SHKLOV'S LABORS LOST

ASL SCENARIO T4

SHKLOV, RUSSIA, 11 July 1941: In the town of Shklov, the German advance was frustrated by the determined defense of a handful of young Soviets. Skillfully using every advantage, the young officer cadets, known as "Stalin Scholars", were able to beat back the advance of the regular German forces. In order to break the deadlock the Germans ordered the crack Infantry Regiment "Grossdeutschland" to clear the town.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Germans win at game end if they Control buildings N5, M7, P3, P5, and P7.

AFTERMATH: The young cadets had defended in depth and so were able to destroy several assault guns that had attempted to cut off their retreat. Unfortunately, this left their front line so weak that the Germans were able to capture the central buildings of the town. Desperate fighting occured in and around the buildings but the superior German firepower prevailed. Final Soviet attempts to rescue their comrades and teachers trapped in the town square were beat back by well-aimed machinegun fire. The remnants of the Stalin Scholar unit pulled back into the woods closely pursued by the Grossdeutchland troops, leaving behind dozens of the finest young men of both nations.
