L'IL NIGHT CREW

VOLUME 1

Written and drawn by Jeff Gray

L'il Night Crew represents Jeff Gray's unique way of taking notes. Instead of scribbling down illegible snippets like most of us, Jeff draws stick figure drama to memorialize key (or not so key) moments of the game. So what you see here represents Mr. Gray's notes for the Night Crew, a Cyberpunk 2020 campaign in which he finds himself a player. For many of you this comic strip may not make any sense, and it does tend to exaggerate some things or go far out on left field with others, but it has kept our group entertained for years since it's the very first strip. So much so in fact, that often we look forward to the newest panels at the end of every game almost as much as the game itself, and yes, he gets extra IP for them – Deric Bernier, Jeff's GM.

The Night Crew is

 Nomads lose a shipment.

THE BEGINNINGS OF THE NIGHT CREW

As the Fixer led solo laden Night Crew just begins to take jobs, they withdraw from them all to make their own high dividends taking advantage of Night City's desperate ploy with Carnival. In this state spawned manhunt, solo mercenaries will cash in on rated criminals for a week straight.

Of course, the Night Crew jumps the gun by hiring Wurmy 44, one of the nets most versatile and infamous hackers, to get them the kill list early.

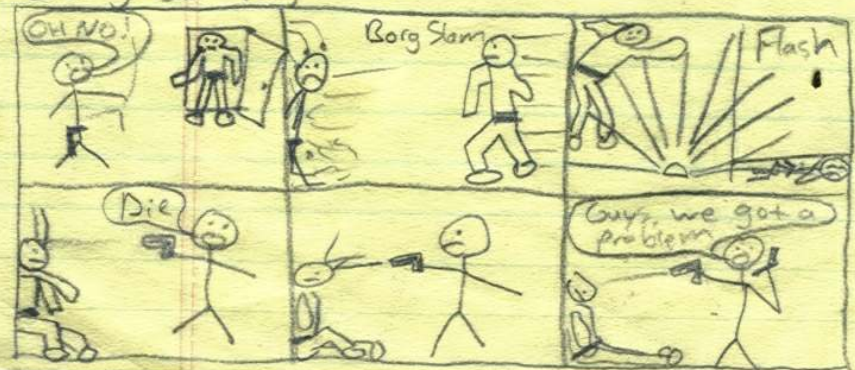

In the early case work, Okira ends up stalked down in a bar bathroom by a city cyborg officer. He had a nice unmarked car that the Crew got good use of for the rest of the pre-carnival manhunt.

This original sticktoon is how Okira's (Jeff Gray) notes evolved into the Sticktoon Storyboards, which make better notes to review anyway.

Wurmy 44 "Don't get caught, Don't get fooled let us plow up some soil and you can help roll in the harvest. Talk via your call, your time, your method (we understand hot), deal open, ends negotiable, respect!"

— the night crew
Borg Bar Fight

After piling up 2 S~~X~~ Criminals (at 20,000 EB turn in each for 40,000 EB) and 3 4~~X~~ Criminals (10,000 each for 30,000 EB) the guys laid low to wait for Carnival day one. The professional Night Crew had all S bodies in a Frozen Truck, but some other interest brought the Feds and Police in on the Warehouse where their Frozen Truck was stashed. Of course, the Night crew got their Truck, ran the cops over, and shot or detonated the rest with C4 toss bombs.

This stick toon catches some of the action as the Night Crew begins shifting bodies from truck A to B, to Van C, D, E, F and ever on forward till the cash in point.

In Addition, the guys roll in an extra 60,000 EB in turn-ins during Carnival, as well as their video blimp-cam broadcast of Chico destroying half of Maelstrom (Solo gang) with some sniper assistance, Viva-la-Night Crew!

OKIRA'S INVENTIONS 😎$

Nothing more lethal than a smart gun tote'n cyborg who knows the potent art of

Gun Fu

So Okira got to thinkin' about a new tech tool or gadget widget to that could give the Night Crew an edge to wedge.

And since we got this guy on the crew that loves all that techie stuff...

Here's Okira's Inventions

1. The Auto-shot Fu Sensor

Gun Fu artist can punch in with their gun tips for a perfectly shot (timing, distance) at point blank range with melee style blasts. Infrared requirements:

smartlink gun
Gun Fu of 3

barrel sensor activates at one cm.

Must be installed on a silencer to be used with one.

Auto-shot Fu Sensor + 1 accuracy handgun automatic point-blank ignore by location penalties as per melee attacks

2. Clip Magnets

the quick release clip eject springs rock a hands "free" operation (skill on guns)

each thigh strap unit holds 3 clips
Clips can attach at 25-30 cm from gun to leg

3. Quick Load Belt

Can lean out fresh loaded clips at an angle perfect for split-second reload.

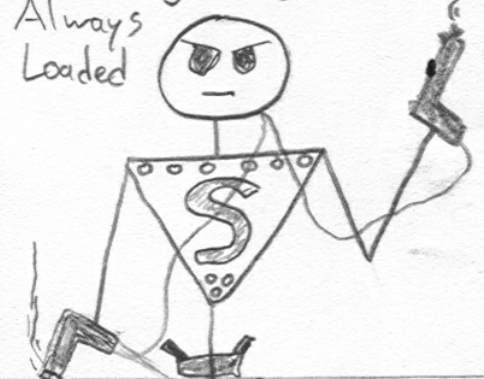

And with such really great idea's like those, Jason Ashland's having a world of fun.

A few short calls, a lot of parts getting delivered, and hours of tech later... the guys give Chico a gift. The Gun Fu Special! 😎
