Zowie

I ALWAYS KNEW THERE WAS A BIGGER WORLD OUT THERE.
NOW IT'S TIME FOR SCOUT AND ME TO EXPLORE!

Background:

Zowie was a precocious child, always curious about the world outside of her father's humble smithy. The forests and caves that lay just out of sight from her home were full of mystery and wonder. There was nothing special about them to an adult, but to her, they were the stuff of legends and great adventures.

One day, when she was seven years old, Zowie was exploring one of these small caves, when she discovered something different. It was a creature, of sorts, but not like any she had known. It was metallic and round, and perfectly capable of human speech. The strange orb told her he was from another world. It was his job to scout the far reaches of time and space and report his findings, but somewhere along the way he became irreparably damaged. Completing his mission, as well as returning home, were possibilities forever closed off to him. Zowie named him "Scout," which seemed fitting. He liked the name. He liked Zowie. It had been a long time since he had a friend.

As the years passed, they spent many hours in the cave. Day after day, she would visit him. At first, she didn't question his existence at all. But as she grew older, thoughts of what a scout from another world might entail burdened her mind. For Scout's part, he was content and happy. Never had he enjoyed such simple pleasures. There was no reason to ever go back, even if he could.

Scout was Zowie's secret. She never told her father, Alex, who was a simple, hard-working man. Nor did she tell her twin brother, Jin, who would've disregarded her words as childish fancy anyway. Zowie's mother died long ago, and she has very little memory of her.

Not long after Zowie reached the age of 18, a peaceful evening with her family was interrupted by a deafening boom that shook the ground beneath them. They rushed outside, only to find the sky torn apart by a mysterious glowing purple rift. From within the cleft, a large floating ship emerged. Its movements were jerky and haphazard as it zoomed past them, only to crash some distance away. Zowie was terrified, but her stalwart father and unshakable brother were determined to investigate. None of her protestations would persuade them. She rushed to tell Scout.

Scout was already watching the events unfold from his cave. He told her that the ship they had witnessed was familiar to him; it was from his world. He was fearful of what dangers lurked inside.

Her concern for her family now overpowering her fear, Zowie grabbed her treasured sword and headed to the crash site with Scout at her side.

Personality:

Zowie is a free spirit, never wanting to stick to convention or what is expected of her. She's a bit stubborn in her ways and resolute in her belief that there's always a solution to any problem. Zowie has a warm heart, preferring to deal with conflicts without violence whenever possible.

Zowie's Sword:

Zowie's sword is a 16th birthday gift from her father. Jin had received an identical weapon, but he cast it aside as "a regular old sword." To Zowie, it meant the world.

Scout:

Scout always seems to have a useful tool for any situation, though his offensive capabilities are limited to a weak shock. His flight and small size can also be handy.

Attributes: Attack +1, Dimensional Pocket +2, Flight +2, Quick +2; Awkward Size -2, Frail -1, Weak -2

Magical Immunity:

For reasons she doesn't fully understand, Zowie is immune to many of the strange magics from beyond the rift.
