DESCRIPTION

The El-Adrel IV Lifeform is an extremely aggressive, vaguely humanoid entity native to the planet, El-Adrel IV.

An energy-being in nature, it generates highly localized electromagnetic fields. The creature is considered semi-corporeal in it's baser form. Normally a being of pure electromagnetic energy, the El-Adrel creature can manifest into a sold form for a brief time, usually to fight or attack.

Although it does not require live food, and subsists on absorbed fluids, and gases produced by the planets on the planet's surface; the creature is a very aggressive, and highly territorial animal. It will attack anyone entering into any region it has claimed as it's own domain.

El-Adrel IV creatures are solitary beings. Understandable given their violent nature. They will readily attack another member of their own species with the same lack of provocation.

Although presumably restricted to their native planet, it is possible these creatures evolved on other worlds as well. There have been reports of similar creatures on other planets in both the Alpha and Beta quadrants.
