this Gungan weapon is very similar in design and usage to a force pike. (SW1, TPM)

Electrorangefinder
a sophisticated component which calculates the distance between itself and a target. They are often used in macrobinoculars and starship targetting systems. (ESB)

Electroscope
this visor-shaped microscope was used by doctors for detecting small bodies, such as viruses and cells. (GOF3)

Electrostatic Repellor
a device which generates an static field that repels airborne particles, such as sand and dust. (SWN)

Electrostun Net
a conductive netting that can be deployed to ensnare a victim. Once ensnared, the victim was administered an electric shock of varying strength. The strength depends upon the strength of the victim's struggles. (CSWEA)

Electrotelescope
similar in function to electrobinoculars, the electrotelescope has a much greater range and better image resolution. (ESB)

Electrowire
this was the name given to any form of wire which was used to cordone off an area. A strong electrical current was run through the wire, jolting any being which came in contact with it. (DOR)

Elegance Message Drone
developed by Industrial Automaton, this nine-meter-long cylinder was capable of hyperspacial travel, and was designed to carry messages to virtually any destination in a matter of hours. However, they were extremely expensive, and the instantaneous communication made possible by the HoloNet forced the Elegance drone out of favor. However, the Empire realized the need for secure, emerceny communications, and maintained a small supply for use by remote Imperial Governors. The drone had limited computer capability, basically just enough to get the drone from one location to the other. Information was placed within sealed compartments for transport, and delivered only when the encoded signal emitted from the drone was answered with the correct codes. The Elegance drone was equipped with a self-destruct mechanism, designed to go off if the security protocols were bypassed. These drones were notorious for needed continual maintenance, as their hyperdrive motivators burned out after just five uses. (TBSB)

Elegant Interlude
this ship was owned and operated by Danith Jalay. Strego volunteered the ship to assist in the defense of Nar Shaddaa, during the Imperial attack commanded by Admiral Greelanx. The Elegant Interlude was dispatched to assist in taking out the initial picket line of Greelanx's formation. (THG)

Elegin
an ancient ruling House that held Senatorial representation to the Old Republic. (COJ)

Elegin, Drost
the leader of House Elegin for a number of years, Leia Organa remembered him from her early days as a Senator. Drost was always getting into trouble for one scandal or another, but his brother's position in the Imperial Navy and his family's wealth kept him in favor. When the Empire was defeated, he and House Elegin stayed out of sight until Roganda Ismaren contacted him about a plan to recover the Eye of Palpatine. (COJ)

Elegin, Pouquor
pseudonym of an Imperial Intelligence agent, Pouqour was a member of the Sedition branch. (ISB)

Elegos A'kla
this Caamasi male and his young daughter Releqy were saving from the ravages of Remart Sasyru by Corran Horn. Elegos, the Trusant for the Morymento Caamasi Remnant, deferred to Corran and became his manservant, in order to better protect his people. His mother's brother was Ylenic It'kla. Through genetic memnii, Elegos felt a bond with Corran, andexplained that becoming his manservant would be beneficial to the Caamasi on Kerilt in the long run. This vision came to pass when Elegos accompanied Corran to Suarbi 7/5, where they rescued Mirax and defeat Leonia Tavira. On Surabi 7/5, Elegos discovered a owrld much more hospitable to the Caamasi than Kerilt, and also found that the Khuiumin Survivors and surrednering members of the Invids would need the Caamasi guidance and calmness to forge a new society. He also learned of the story of the Alderaan Graveyard through Tycho Celchu, and established a similar way of honoring the Caamasi dead after he reloacted to Suarbi 7/5. Several years later, Elegos played a role in the resolution of the Caamas Incident, helping deliver the fragment of transmission from Colonel Vermel to Leia Organa-Solo and setting up a meeting between her and Admiral Pellaeon. Elegos was eventually named the Senator who represented the Caamasi Remnant in the New Republic. He agreed to accompany Leia Organa Solo on a fact-finding mission to the Outer Rim Territories, in an effort to prove to the Senate that the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy was a real threat. Eventually, they were forced to fight their way clear of the Yuuzhan Vong to return to Coruscant, and still the leadership of the Republic failed to grasp the import of the invasion. Elegos finally became fed up with politics, and traveled to Dubrillion to present himself as an envoy to Shedao Shai. Shedao Shai agreed to hosst Elegos as an emissary, against the wishes of Deign Lian. Elegos and Shedao Shai learned much from each other, until the New Republic discovered that the pollen of the bafforr tree caused permanent damage to their crab armor. In an effort to draw out Corran Horn - who had killed two of his relatives - Shedao Shai murdered Elegos and had his skeleton gilded and packed in a sarcophagus. Elegos' remains were sorely received by Corran, who eventually met Shedao Shai in a duel. (IJ, VOF, DTO, DTR)

Elephant Nose
a derogatory term for the Kubaz race (SW)

Eleton
this gaseous substance is found in large quantities on the planet Caaraz. It can be refined for use as a fuel source for weapons power packs. It was for this reason that the Empire garrisoned Caaraz during the Galactic Civil War. (GG12)

Eleven Elders of the People
this was the governing body of the planet Emberlene. They were responsible for commissioning the creation of the Mistryl warrior society. It was also known that the Eleven were responsible for the subjugation and conquest of several planets in the immediate vicinty of Emberlene, which led the destruction of the planet at the hands of mercenaries hired by their victims. They covered the true nature of the destruction by claiming it was the Empire, worried about the strength of the Mistryl, that attacked Emberlene. (SOP, VOF)

Eleven Star Marketing
this major advertising, marketing, and sales company is a non-voting, contributing sponsor of the Corporate Sector Authority. They created the "Artificial Intelligence Worth Shaving Your Head For" campaign for the Aj^6 cyborg construct. (CSA)

Elfa
this small, personal submersible was operated by the Yarin harbor master of the Crystal Reef floating city, located near the arctic polar cap of Calamari. It was provided for use by Cilghal, Jacen Solo, and Tenel Ka, who were trying to intercept Anja Gallandro. They later used it to eliminate a stash of spice hidden under the polar ice by Black Sun operatives, but the sub was heavily damaged in an encounter with the skra'akan. (CCR)

Elgar
this continent, located on the western hemisphere of Lazerian IV, was part of the kingdom of Devit. (TSK)

Eliad
a non-descript planet in the Minos Cluster, it was on Eliad that Emperor Palpatine exiled a large number of nobles after stripping them of their power. He offered them the chance to remain alive - rather than make martyrs out of them by killing them - if they remained in permanent exile. If they agreed, they were allowed to take with them all of their wealth. Eliad was one of a handful of remote worlds that Palpatine chose as his exile colonies. With nothing to do and nowhere to go, the incredibly rich settlers of Eliad devised increasingly sophisticated and demented ways of entertaining themselves. The inhabitants remained staunch, albeit quite, supporters of the Old Republic, but they kept their beliefs to themselves rather than attract Imperial attention. Palpatine stationed a Lancer-class frigate in orbit around Eliad, to keep the nobles in their places. The average day on Eliad lasts 21 standard hours, while its year encompasses 381 local days. (GG6)

Elias, Kama
the Telosian gladiator was one of the combatants in the game of Katharsis. (DOR)

Elicia
Fliry Vorru's Thyferran secretary. (BW)

Eliest Council
the Saurton ruling council on Essowyn. (PG)

Eliminator 434
an erect, bullet-shaped assassin droid that stands 1.8 meters tall. They are armed with a single blaster cannon and a concussion missile launcher. (CPL, SWSB)

Eliminator-7
a late-model BlasTech pistol, the Eliminator-7 employed a more efficient power pack than its predecessors. (GMH)

Elin Roe
this planet was the primary world in a system that was patrolled by Hallyn Phlynne during the Galactic Civil War. The fifth moon of the planet was bombarded with radioactive dust when the Krish mechanic known as Maniac tinkered with the drive systems of the Yagaran Four's freighter. When it tried to enter hyperspace, the drive exploded, destroying the ship. (SWAJ, CRO)

Elis
this native of Anobis was the leader of Anja Gallandro's mining town. He was also the leader of the loose association of mining towns formed during the height of the civil war on Anobis. When Han Solo tried to get the sides talking, Elis agreed to meet with Ynos under a temporary cease-fire to discuss ways to end the war. (ROM)

Elis Helrot
this Givin spent a lot of time on Tatooine, scouring Mos Eisley for information about slaves or spice for transport. He makes many journeys to delivery these cargoes to Kala'uun. He owns the transport ship Hinthra. (CCG)

Elisinandrox
this was the brand name of a medical supply. (FOP)

Elite Circle
the ruling members of the Assassins' Guild. At one time, they were nearly exterminated by Gallandro, who killed off half of their number by himself. That was the first and only time the Guild had ever been forced to default on a contract. (HSL)

Elite Squadron
one of the squadrons of TIE Fighters maintained by the Thyferran Home Defense Corps, it was commanded by Erisi Dlarir. (BW)

Elix
a predator from a heavy-gravity world, they were transplanted to Dar'Or when their planet's sun went supernova. The environmentalists who decided on Dar'Or failed to recognize that the elix's homeworld had much higher gravity that Dar'Or. Because of their high-gravity evolution, the elix quickly overtook most of the life on the lower-gravity Dar'Or, including the sentient Ri'Dar. They are on the galaxy's preservation list, but are often illegally hunted for their meat. (GG4)

Elkin
this member of Talon Karrde's organization worked on the Starry Ice as a gunner, under the command of Shirlee Faughn. (SOP)

Ellam
this blue-skinned humanoid owned a used speeder and swoop shop in the city of Gralleenya, on Questal. Known as Honest Ellam, he was basically honest about his prices and service, although he tended to embellish the histories of his merchandise. His homeworld's gravity is much less than standard, so he was confined to an anti-grav chair, which he used to propel his meter-tall body around his sales yards. He had a large head and four long arms, and his eyes were a solid red in color. His V-shaped mouth gave him the appearance of a perpetual smile. To make sure that he didn't get robbed, Ellam kept a group of Gamorreans on retainer as bodyguards. (GCQ)

Elliar
Isolder's former betrothed, the Lady was assassinated before they could be married. Although she never admitted it, many believe that the Queen Mother, Ta'a Chume, was responsible for drowning Elliar in a reflecting pool. Note that she is named Ellian in Cracken's Threat Dossier. (CPL, CTD)

Ellice
this woman worked for Yeorg Captisan as a senior aide, during the period leading up to the Battle of Bakura. (TBSB)

Ellie' Arcadium
this was one of the many aqua-domed buildings found in the city of Theed, on the planet Naboo. (IWE1)

Ellor
this Duro was a smuggling chief working for Billey during the early years of the New Republic. Ellor became a smuggler after surviving the death penalty while transporting gy'lan spice with Talon Karrde. The excitement he experienced during their escape into hyperspace convinced him to take up swmuggling as a profession. His ship helped destroy an unfinished Star Destroyer at the Bilbringi shipyards just prior to Thrawn's attack on Coruscant. (TLC, TTSB)

Ellorrs Madak
according to the Star Wars:Customizable Card Game, this is the Duro that is seen in the Mos Eisley cantina when Luke Skywalker and Ben Kenobi try to book passage to Alderaan. (CCG)

Ellstree Bar
one of the ramshackle establishments located in the town of New Hope Settlement, on Ladarra. (TFNR)

Ellsworth
an Imperial functionary on Bakura, working for Nereus. (TB)

Elma
this timid man served as the droid technician of the Q'Maere Research Facility, during the time Moff Sarne used the facility as a penal colony. (KR)

Elmra
this New Republic Commander was killed by a strange, shape-changing alien loyal to the remnants of the Empire. The creature was eventually captured by New Republic agents and neutralized. (GMS)

Eloag
this white-furred bird is native to the planet Chad, and is often preyed upon by the cy'een. (SWJ10)

Eloggi
a planet in the Endor system that was heavily mined by the Empire for its native ores. Following the formation of the New Republic, all but one Sullustan company were denied access to the planet's resources. (DFRSB)

Eloinie, Cyrstas
this young woman, the daughter of Darred Eloinie, was kidnapped by the Neo-Fundamentalist Phlangites despite the fact that she was demonstrating on their side of a Peaceful Dawn Rally. Darred hired Valekn Gresh to recover her. (GG10)

Eloinie, Darred
this man was the chief executive officer of Eloinie Petro-Munitions during the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Eloinie Petro-Munitions
this chemical weapons manufacturer was headquartered on Zaraksander. (GG10)

Elokas
this was one of three habitable worlds in the Sabrixin System. (GG11)

Elom
1) homeworld of the Elomin and Elom races, it is located in the Borderland Regions. The Elomin joined the Alliance in an effort to escape slavery at the hands of the Empire, who sought to force the Elomin to mine lommite for them. It is a cold, barren world without much vegetation. The planet's day is 26 standard hours in length, and its years lasts 406 local days. (TLC, HTSB, GG12)

2) this short, heavy race of shaggy humanoids is native to the underground caverns of the planet Elom. Their fur is oily and thick, and their skin is tough enough to withstand the sharp rocks and stones of their habitat. Their fingers and toes end in hooked claws that are used to grasp and dig. Their eyes are set on short stalks on either side of their heads, and their mouths are punctuated by two short tusks. They are peaceful herbivores, and have remained outside of the galactic community while the Elomin have embraced the galaxy. Some younger Eloms have been outspoken about receiving the benefits realized by the Elomin, and this dissention was only heightened when the Empire took control of Elom. The Elom race evolved on the surface of Elom, but moved underground to search out roots and tubers when the water levels of their planet dropped. Thus, they didn't gain from the interaction with the Old Republic or the Empire, as did the Elomin. Many Eloms simply retreated deeper into their caves. The Star Wars Customizable Card Game confuses Elom with Elomin, stating that the Eloms worked to sabotage the Imperial war machine by adapting stolen equipment for the Alliance. (GG12, CCG7)

natives of Elom, these tall, thin aliens and pointed ears and four horns. Their eyes are widely spaced, and their noses have tusks. They have long hair sprouting from just behind their ears. The Elomin had little advanced technology when they were admitted to the Old Republic, but readily accepted the new technologies they were given access to. When the Emperor Palpatine rose to power, the Elomin were enslaved and forced to mine lommite for the Imperial war machine. The Star Wars Customizable Card Game confuses Elom with Elomin, stating that the Eloms worked to sabotage the Imperial war machine by adapting stolen equipment for the Alliance. (TLC, HTSB, CCG7)

Elomin Press
a publishing house founded on Elom. (GG12)

Elona
this was the first month of the Tapani local calendar, which mapped almost directly to the Coruscant local calendar. (PGT)

Elorac
an Alliance freighter destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Elotis
this Togorian was a master in the crafting of steel weapons, including the sc'rath. After witnessing Mlatar Thon Gra's skills in the Rrann Hhoss, Elotis took the young male to be his apprentice. Elotis trained Mlatar for six years before the younger male earned the rank of master himself. (AIR)

Eloy
an Imperial scientist, Dr. Eloy was in charge of developing the second-generation laser cannons for the second Death Star under Bevel Lemelisk. (TME)

Elpfel
this Mon Calamari served the Alliance as a Commander, and was in command of the cruiser Wavesong. (MTSE)

Elpur
sometimes called Elpoor, this planet is the innermost world of the Ropagi System. It is an unremarkable world of desolate, searing, rocky wastes. (TSK)

Elrood
this planet is the capital world of the Elrood Sector, and is a commercial colony with a reputable starship yard. It is located opposite the Outer Rim Territories, in the Metharian Nebula Territories. The planet is a temperate world of cities and plains. Its average day lasts 28 standard hours. Its year lasts 364 local days. (COJ, PG)

Elrood Quarry Corporation
a privately-owned mineral mining operation based on the planet Elrood. It operates a number of mines, including the mineral mines on Bodrin. (PG)

Elrood Starport
this was the largest starport on the planet Elrood, located just outside the city of Elrooden. (OE)

Elrood-Derilyn Trade Route
this trade route runs through the Elrood Sector, connecting the Elrood, Kidron, and Derilyn planetary systems. (PG)

Elrooden
the capital city of the planet Elrood. (PG)

Elsek
this man, a native of the planet Kuat, served the Imperial armed forces as a Lieutenant during the garrisoning of the forest moon of Endor. A graduate of the Academy on the planet Corulag, Elsek formed a friendly rivalry with Avarik which continued on Endor. Where Avarik was somewhat hot-headed, Elsek was smart and calm enough to make up for his partner's ways. Both were part of the scout trooper corps at Endor, before the Alliance destroyed the second Death Star. (CCG10)

Elshandruu Pica
this Outer Rim world, located in Quence Sector, is a haven for casinos, like Margath's on Elshandruu Pica. Its day lasts 26 standard hours, and the casinos there are rumored to stay open for 27 hours. The planet has three moons, two of which are ivory in color, and the third is blood red. (GG9, BW, IJ)

Elshandruu Pica Thundercloud
a mixed drink often served with a fizzy head formed by ionized gas. Some establishments used microshocks to illuminate the gas, making it look like a thundercloud. This particular beverage is highly inebriating. (GG9)

Elsinore-Cordova
manufacturers of podracers and podracing engines. They produced the Turbodyne 99-U podracer. (IG1)

Elto
this is one of the two main continents of the planet Gacerian. (PG2)

Elusive
1) this 50-meter long Imperial transport was assigned to mop up after the destruction of the Alliance base on Dankayo. The Elusive was armed with a pair of laser cannons and four doube-turbolaser batteries. Its commanding officer recovered several apparently worthless datapacks, which turned out to contain valuable information regarding Alliance undercover agents, safeworlds, and contacts. The ship was pursued across Paradise Sector by Alliance agents, and the datapacks were eventually recovered after a skirmish with the Squibs and Ugors. The battle erupted when the Squibs agreed to help drag the Elusive out of hyperspace with a gravity-well projector stolen from the Ugors. (SH)
2) this was the personal starship of the Herglic gambler Narloch. It was a modified Mneffe-class Superluminal shuttle, armed with a turret-mounted double laser cannon. (ND)

this brand of entertainment modules immerses the user in an artificial world that looks, sounds, feels, tastes, and smells real. (RM)

Emancipation Virus
developed by Xalto Sneerzick and Babalabbet Swoont, this small program was designed to work its way into a droid's programming and destroy any subservient traits. The virus also eliminated the droid's life preservation programming, freeing the droid from any bonds it might have had to organic masters. Sneerzick had been raiding Cosmohaul Shipping transport vessels, looking for droids to free, when he was presented the opportunity to take control of the Argent Lady and its cargo of 100 R5 droids. He set the emancipation virus free among the R5s, hoping to test it further and enlist more followers. However, the R5 personality matrix - as programmed by Industrial Automaton - was poorly completed in order to shave off a few credits in the price of the droids. The R5 series tends to grew sour and bitter with age, and this trait brought out the worst possible result in the emancipation virus. The R5s began to turn against anything in their way, including Sneerzick's followers. The R5s were destroyed by a team of freelance mercenaries, but not before they managed to kill Sneerzick and his fellow abolitionists. (SWJ9)

Emancipator
1) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer captured by the New Republic, the Emancipator was known as the Imperial ship Accuser. The Emancipator first saw duty for the New Republic when Laryn Kre'fey used it as the command ship in the assault on the Imperial baseworld Blackmoon. Later, the Emancipator was the lead ship in the force sent to take Ciutric back from Prince-Admiral Krennel. The ship and its fleet barely survived, and Emancipator lived to fight another day. After the rise to power of Emperor Palpatine;s clone on Byss, the Emancipator was piloted by Wedge Antilles and Lando Calrissian at the first Battle of Calamari. It sustained a great deal of damage, and Lando was finally forced to abandon it. Instead of condemning the ship to a useless death, he rammed a World Devastator with it, after getting the crew offboard. Note that, according to X-Wing: Isard's Revenge, this ship was an Imperial-II class warship. (DE1, XWN, IR)
2) this was the name Bria Tharen gave to the captured slave ship Helot's Shackle. (RD)

this beautiful planet is covered with rolling hills and wondrous lakes. It is located within the Allied Tion. (ML)

Embassies Row
this wide avenue, located within Coruscant's Dometown, was the site of many embassies which provided assistance to the variety of non-human species who lived there. (BP)

Emberlene
this planet is the homeworld of the Mistryl warrior sect. The people of the planet believed that Emberlene was one of the first worlds destroyed by the Empire for supposedly rebellious activity. This was the primary reason the Mistryl were created, as a way to exact revenge on the Empire. The Mistryl felt all the more cheated when the destruction of the planet Caamas was made public, and there was a great swelling of outrage - and still Emberlene remained a nearly lifeless hulk. However, Jorj Car'das eventually revealed the truth behind Emberlene's destruction to Shada D'ukal. About three years before the destruction, the Eleven Elders who ruled the planet set out to conquer and plunder any and all worlds within their reach. These actions were kept secret for nearly two and a half years, before a group of their victims hired a mercenary force to combat them. The mercenaries were, in Car'das' words, "overly thorough" in their efforts, and wiped out nearly all life on Emberlene. Car'das offered to give Shada the information that would lead her to source of the mercenary group, but she decided that the time had come for her people to simply start living again, rather than existing only for revenge. (SOP, VOF)

Embrace of Pain
this was the term used by the Yuuzhan Vong to describe their restraint system used to control slaves. The Embrace of Pain used leather-like straps to bind the arms, legs, and torso of a captive. It administered a constant level of pain to the captive, to remind the captive that it was securely bound. If the captive became too immune to the pain, the Embrace could administer more. If the captive suffered too much, the Embrace could reduce the amount of pain it produced. In this way, a slave could be quickly forced into submission. The leather bands could tighten automatically if the captive tried to escape, although escape was difficult because the captive was restrained in an inverse position: feet up in the air, head near the ground. (DTO)

Embrace of the Tion
this glitz band often played live at Orman's Sky Palace. (ML)

Emerald Shark
a colorful, predatory fish native to the planet Dubrillion. (DTR)

Emeraude
this was a brilliant green gemstone. (BP)

Emergency Plans and Procedures
the 365-page Imperial document which is provided to all of the Empire's installations, it contains the contigency plans for a number of situations. Tol Sivron and his team at the Maw Installation used it to the letter, which ultimately may have cost them their lives. (COTF)

Emergency Stud
a small button which, when pushed, ignites a series of explosive bolts which jettison a starship's cockpit cover, allowing the pilot to escape the ship. (SME)

Emil, Vin
this doctor of planetology was one of the original personnel at the Q'Maere Research Facility, and was also one of those stranded at the base when Moff Sarne fled Kal'Shebbol. He was offered a top-secret position by Sarne himself, a position which Emil gladly accepted. However, his participation in the interrogation and destruction of prisoners left him a withdrawn and introverted individual. (KR)

Emissary, The
according to the ancient Sharu legends, the Emissary will accompany by the Bearer when it it time for the Mindharp to be activated, when it is time for the Sharu to emerge from hiding. The Emissary is described in the legends as a strange, five-sided alien who is more mechanical than organic. When Rokur Gepta heard this, he activated Vuffi Raa and kept him on Rafa IV while Osuno Whett went to the Oseon to search out a candidate for the Bearer. When Whett found Lando Calrissian, he used Vuffi Raa as credit in a game of sabacc, which he lost on purpose. This led Lando to the Rafa System and into the hands of Gepta and Duttes Mer. (LCM)

Emlee
this young woman was a servant indentured to Baroness Muehling of Kuat. In reality, Emlee was Jaina Solo, who was working with Mara Jade Skywalker to discover the truth behind Dassid Cree'ar's work on the planet Duro. (BP)

Emmer
a planet located in Nilgaard Sector. It was the first terrestrial planet in the Emmer System, which was dominated by an asteroid belt and a gas giant with six moons. It was colonized many millennia before the Battle of Yavin, and the human stock of the original colonists evolved into a stout-bodied race of near-humans known as Emmerians. The planet was also home to contingents of Herglics, Ugors, and Defels. Those areas not covered with urban sprawl were covered with a tall grass which radiated a polychromatic light like a fiber-optic cable. This grass was extremely resilient and fast-growing, making it impossible to build roads on the planet. The planet's heavy gravity virtually nullified the effects of standard repulsor-lift vehicles, so walker-like vehicles were produced to move about. The Empire modeled their AT-AT's after many Emmerian innovations. (ND)

Emmerians
this race of stout near-humans descended from the original human colonists of the planet Emmer. (ND)

Emotional Hostages
1) a song written and played by Anadale Fayde. It was first released as part of the compilation Darkness on the Land, and has been given a scarlet rating by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)
2) the title of a compilation of songs by Annadale Fayde, released before the song of the same name. (GG9)

EMP grenades
detonation devices which destroy objects with shards of flying shrapnel. (CPL)

Empartheca System
this star system was located near Quence Sector. (HR)

Emperor of Air and Darkness
a compilation of songs written and played by the band Deeply Religious. It has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Emperor Suites
some of the finest accommodations found aboard the Kuari Princess, the Emperor Suites can run up to 1,000 credits per day. (RM)

Emperor's Black Bones, The
this phrase is often used to describe the worst of all surprises, as in, "Emperor's Black Bones, what are you doing here?" (IR)

Emperor's Black Heart, The
this phrase is often used to describe the worst of any possible option, as in, "What in the Emperor's Black Heart are you doing?" (IJ)

Emperor's Citadel, The
the Emperor's black tower on Byss, it is guarded by a battery of the most advanced turbolasers. (DE1, DE2)

Emperor's Demonstration Team
this was a specialized part of the Imperial Armed Forces, which made public demonstrations of the scope of the Imperials talents. Besides military demonstrations involving marksmanship and piloting skills, they also performed military marches. (CCG10)

Emperor's Dualities, The
a slang term used by Halla for Palpatine's testicles. (SME)

Emperor's Hand, The
codename given to Mara Jade by Emperor Palpatine. She believed that she was the only person given the codename, but Grand Admiral Thrawn suggests that she was one of many "Hands," and it is later revealed that Roganda Ismaren was one of them. The rise of Maarek Stele also revealed that there was more than "Hand," as the Emperor's Secret Order of the Empire was overseen by them. (DFR, COJ, TIE)

Emperor's Inner Circle, The
the closest advisors and ministers to the Emperor just prior to the Battle of Endor were known as the Inner Circle. When Palpatine was killed, they tried to assume control of the Empire, but were unable to gain control of all the various Imperial factions. (DE1)

Emperor's Net
this Interdictor-class warship was part of Zsinj's fleet, which he brought to Kuat in an effort to steal a Super-class Star Destroyer. (IF)

Emperor's New Clothes, The
this loud, obnoxious, pro-Imperial band has its roots in the Outer Rim Territories. They got rave reviews from the Imperial Board of Culture for their pro-Imperial lyrics, although the band's political battles with Red Shift Limit have caused this support to wane. There are two groups of beings who listen to their music: those who believe every word they sing, and those who believe the exact oppostite. (GG9)

Emperor's Palace
this was the name of a specialized obstacle used in swoopchasing. The obstacle consisted of three successive solid barriers, each with a pattern of holes cut into them. Racers were required to navigate their swoops through similar holes in each wall in order to escape the obstacle. This involved quick thinking and visual dexterity, as the rider had to quickly identify the next hole before slamming into a solid wall. If a rider went through the wrong hole, a severe time penalty was issued. (BSS)

Emperor's Plague
developed by Evir Derricote, thus mutagenic plague killed only human beings. (TEP)

Emperor's Revenge
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was dispatched to Phaeda with the Steadfast by Carnor Jax. The two warships destroyed much of the planet's Collo Fauale pass, in an effort destroy Mirith Sinn's New Republic forces and to eliminate Kir Kanos. Carnor Jax then ordered the ship to follow Kanos to Yinchorr, where her commander, General Wessel, captured Kanos' Scimitar bomber. However, the boimber was rigged to explode upon opening, a ruse recognized by Jax. Jax fled the Emperor's Revenge in a shuttle, just before Wessel opened the bomber. The Emperor's Revenge was destroyed in the blast. (CE)

Emperor's Ruling Circle
established by Ars Dangor in the wake of the Battle of Endor, this group tried to maintain the stature and tenets of the New Order. They were eventually replaced by the Imperial Ruling Council. (CTD)

Emperor's Shield, The
this squadron of TIE Fighter pilots was trained by Admiral Thrawn and given missions in the Outer Rim during the height of the Galactic Civil War. They were later assigned to protect Emperor Palpatine during his inspection of the second Death Star. (CCG11)

Emperor's Shadow
this was the name given to Emperor Palpatine's personal yacht. It was rumored to have disappeared shortly after the Battle of Endor, although it was supposedly seen near Kaal several times. It was commanded by Jeng Droga, and was believed to have one of the original cloaking devices created by the Empire. (SWJ14)

Emperor's Sword, The
this squadron of TIE Fighters was trained to protect Emperor Palpatine whenever he traveled away from Coruscant. Despite their mission, the squadron often flew older models of TIE Fighters because of their skills and experience with them. (CCG11)

Emperor's Twilight
this Corellian Corvette was attacked by pirates near the planet Abatrarg. (PG2)

Emperor's Will
1) this Victory-class (Imperial-class?) Star Destroyer was part of the fleet guarding Coruscant when the Rogue Squadron infiltrated the planet. When the New Republic arrived to retake the planet, the Emperor's Will and the Imperator were not sent into the battle. It was assumed that Ysanne Isard took them with her when she retreated to Lusankya. (WG)
2) this Star Galleon was operated by the Imperial Taxation Bureau during the height of the New Order. The crew of the Far Orbit attempted to capture this ship and collect the huge sum of credits in her holds, but was intercepted by the Interdictor cruiser Claw near Esseles. The Far Orbit was forced to flee into the Ringali Nebula, but later caught the Emperor's Will and her escort, the Zaff Jendinpurg, on their return from Esseles. The Emperor's Will was armed with ten turbolasers and a concussion missile launcher. (FOP)

Emperor's Will, The
the highest of all service medals presented by the Empire, the Emperor's Will was given to those who risked their own lives to save that of Emperor Palpatine. (TIE)

Emperor's Wisdom
one of the Victory-class Star Destroyers in Prince-Admiral Krennel's fleet, the Emperor's Wisdom was paired with the Decisive during the blockade of Liinade III. Later, when Krennel began planning his conquest of Coruscant, he placed the two ships - along with his flagship, the Reckoning - at the forefront of his assault force. However, the force was trapped at Ciutric by the two fleets sent by the New Republic to liberate the planet. In the ensuing battle, the Emperor's Wisdom was destroyed. (IR)

Empeth Crystals
these strange crystals grow in the Crystal Valley on Lazerian IV. The crystals grow once every ten years, and only a pair grow each time. These cubic crystals seem to glow with an inner light, and once harvested from the valley they are nearly indestructible. Empeth crystals “live” for about five years after being picked, after which time they become dull, lackluster rocks. The empeth crystals are protected and hoarded by the King of Devit, on Lazerian IV. While valued for their beauty, empeth crystals also have an affinity for the Force. A Force-sensitive individual can detect the Force in another individual while holding a crystal. (TSK)

Empion Mine
this form of mine was developed at the same time as the Morrt droid project. They ahd two functions. The first was to explode and take out its intended target. Second, it would send out a communication burst via hyperspace channel to the ship that launched it, indicating its position and its success. (WS)

Empire, The
the name given to the regime established by Senator Palpatine when he assumed the position of galactic ruler and instituted his New Order. The basic belief of the Empire was to rule by fear of force rather than by force itself. Palpatine became the Emperor, and built a huge war machine in order to instill fear. Palpatine's use of the Dark Side of the Force bolstered his ability to control the galaxy, until he was destroyed during the Battle of Endor. After that, the Empire floundered for a number of years. Various warlords and Imperial officers tried to re-establish momentum for the Empire in a series of skirmishes with the New Republic, but none was able to triumph over it. Even the reborn Emperor Palpatine tried to strike back from a hidden base on Byss, but could not defeat Luke Skywalker and the New Republic. (SW, ESB, ROTJ, HTTE, DE1, JS)

Empire and the Glory, The
this Imperial holovid starred Alexis Cov-Prim. (LAA)

Empire Forever
this Imperial CR-90 consular ship was dispatched to carry Coh Veshiv to the Ringali Shell. Veshiv considered the ship his personal flagship, and was extensively modified to provide him with a variety of recreational pursuits while in flight. The ship was also armed with six double turbolaser cannons, and had a docking area added which could accommodate six TIE Fighters. (FOP)

Empire Reborn
the grand scheme developed by Hethrir following the destruction of the Empire and the loss of Emperor Palpatine. Hethrir planned to restore the Empire to its former glory by first subverting the minds of children, eventually turning their parents and other adults. He was also getting support from other Imperial agents. He attempted to gain absolute power by dealing with the being Waru, but was consumed by Waru before his Empire Reborn could be created. (CS)

Empire Strikes Back, The Title of Episode 5 of Star Wars.

The Empire Strikes Back won the following Academy Awards:
- Best Sound (Ben Burtt)
- Special Achievement Award for Visual Effects (Brian Johnson, Richard Edlund)

The Empire Strikes Back was also nominated for the following awards:

- Best Art Direction (Lesley Dilley, Harry Lance, Alan Tomkins)
- Best Set Decoration (Michael Ford)
- Best Original Score (John Williams)
(ESB)

Empire Youth
part of Hethrir's grand plan for the Empire Reborn revolved around using Force-sensitive children to promote the new regime. Hethrir kept his students on a worldcraft secretly located in the galaxy. He continually culled the children for their levels of Force sensitivity, often culling non-humans without regard. Those children removed from the worldcraft were sold into slavery, and the profits were turned over to the Empire Reborn. (CS)

Empleh
a disabled Imperial tug attacked by Alliance starfighters during a raid. (XW)

Empress Teta Preferred System
a Sabacc system in which each player selects a card from one other player, and the best resulting hand wins the round. (DA)

Empress Teta System
this seven-world system is a source of carbonite. Known in ancient times as the Koros System, it was renamed when Empress Teta unified the seven surrounding systems. It was also home to the Krath, a group of young nobles, led by Satal Keto and Aleema, who rose to power using the lore of the ancient Sith Dark Lords. They assumed control of the system when they murdered their parents, and were forced to fight the combined troops of the Old Republic, the Jedi Knights, and the Tetans that opposed them. (TOJ, DLS, GAS)

Empress's Diadem
this YT-1210 light freighter was the ship that Melina Carniss used in support of Booster Terrik's operations while stationed in the Yag'Dhul system, running the space Station for Rogue Squadron. The Diadem was armed with a pair of turret-mounted blasters and a concussion missile launcher. Note that this strongly indicates that Melina Carniss was actually Mara Jade, despite the fact that Tales from Jabba's Palace describes Carniss as one of Jabba's lead dancers. (BW)

Empress*-class Space Station
this deep-space installation consists of a central disk with living areas located above and below the center line. Thin towers rise from the upper section, and three wedge-shaped causeways radiate outward. It is armed with ten turbolaser batteries and six laser cannons. The Empress-class station can support up to 24 starfighters. (KT)

Emptiness, The
another of Lando Calrissian's mystical references. (LCM)

Emtrey
the M-3PO droid assigned to Rogue Squadron about two and a half years after the Battle of Endor, Emtrey had been cobbled together and reprogrammed by Lieutenant Losca. Losca had been trying to supply the Alliance with needed consumables, but was meeting with limited success. She built Emtrey to act as a sort of commodities broker, added brokering code and a scrounging routine that could be activated by a code phrase repeated three times. The scrounging routine, as discovered by the Rogues, is activated by repeating the phrase "shut up" three times. It was eventually removed from Emtrey's memory banks. (XWN, WG, KT)

Empyrean
this New Republic battle cruiser was stationed at Cybloc XII until it was dispatched to quell a pirate uprising near Budpock. The ship was drawn away from the planet of Nam Chorios by the manipulations of Seti Ashgad and Dzym. The ship was overtaken by Loronar Corporation Needle ships near Nim Drovis, and was forced to flee the battle in order to survive. It never made it, as the Needles continued to hound the ship, pelting its shields and eventually exploding it. (POT)

Emwhulb
a Socorran swear word, meant to indicate a being of low standards and no loyalty. (BSS)

EN-B
this was the model number of Accutronics' armored, heavy-weight droid torso. (DW)

En'Tra'Sol
this was the rigid honor code adhered to by the Coynite race. (AE)

En'Tra'Tal
the capital city of the planet Coyn. (PG)

Enaleh
this planet was covered mainly by tropical oceans, with a few landmasses supporting a variety of plant and animal life. (COG)

Enara
this Fallanassi woman was a prisoner on the Pride of Yevetha during the Black Fleet Crisis. Enara was one of the few prisoners to befriend Han Solo while they were imprisoned in the cargo holds. She tapped into the White Current to help Chewbacca and Lumpawarump locate Solo in the Super-class Star Destroyers cargo holds. She also created false images of several other Fallanassi, to make the Yevetha believe that they had more captives than they believed. She remained behind on the Pride of Yevetha to keep the illusion up, allowing Solo and the Wookiees to escape. (TT)

Enarc
1) the fourth planet in the five-world Demophon System, Enarc was destroyed when the system's primary star exploded as a supernova. (SN)
2) the primary world in the Enarc System, Enarc is also one of the endpoints of the Enarc Run. (TSK)

Enarc Run
this galactic trade route is linked to the Harrin Trade Corridor by the Kira Run. It originates at the Vondarc System and links seven major marketplace systems before ending at the planet Enarc. It is an important hyperspace route, cutting across the Mid Rim and providing a jumping-off point for travel heading toward the Outer Rim. (TSK)

Enasteri, Charis
this elderly woman traveled with her husband, Neth, and settled on the planet Rhamalai to escape the Jedi purge. When the Empire invaded the planet, she decided to help her daughter, Nadra, and Denel Moonrunner escape the invasion. Unfortunately, the Empire deemed her condition beyond medical treatment and scheduled her for euthanasia. Nadra arranged to get her freed by falsifying Denel's work orders, and all three managed to escape the governmental offices in Argona. Charis hated the Empire and everything it stood for, and overcame the illness she suffered to help them escape the city. However, they were seperated by Imperial fire before they could reach the Moonrunner residence. Denel managed to escape, but was unable to recover Charis and Nadra before Imperial fighters fired on the Refugee. Nadra and Charis were forced to remain on Rhamalai. (SWJ13)

Enasteri, Nadra
the daughter of Charis Enasteri, Nadra was born on the planet Rhamalai a few years after her parents settled on the planet. She was seventeen when the Empire subjugated the planet. Nadra had been trained as a medic and healer at the Bellorin Medical Academy, but returned to Rhamalai when her mother became ill. She found worked in the local governmental offices, where she found work as a civilian medic. She believed her father to be dead, but Charis revealed that he had fled Rhamalai when she was but a year old before to avoid Imperial agents. She used her access to the governmental offices in Argona to rescue her mother and her childhood friend, Denel Moonrunner. However, they were pinned down before Denel could return with his family and the Refugee, and Nadra and Charis were forced to remain on Rhamalai. (SWJ13)

Enasteri, Neth
this man was Jedi Knight who traveled to the planet Rhamalai to escape Darth Vader and the Jedi purge. At the time, he was married to Charis Enasteri. When their daugther, Nadra, was just a year old, Neth was forced to flee the planet. This was about 3 years after Emperor Palpatine took control of the galaxy and instituted the New Order. (SWJ13)

Enchanted Lagoon
a holographic display found on Hologram Fun World, it presents the visitor with a beautiful grotto filled with all sort so floweres from around the galaxy. Han porposes that he and Leia get married there. (QE)

Enclision Grid
a matrix of lasers that guards a location, the enclision grid is activated by contact. It then unleashes a number of lasers directed at the intruder. The grid can be programmed for a slight delay, guaranteeing that the intruder cannot escape off the grid before being burned alive. (COJ)

Encyclopedia Galactica
a reference guide to all of the known worlds in the Old Republic. (RPG)

Encyclopedia Omnia Memnose
one of the major works of history and information, this reference guide documents many of the known worlds in the galaxy. (ML)

End of the Line
a song written and played by the band Starburst. It was first released as part of the compilation Only in Your Dreams, and has been rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

End of the World
this tavern was located on Koda Space Station. (GOF7)

Endara
a Hapan term, roughly translated as 'superior technology.' (CPL)

Endex
this world was a rocky planet, covered with scar-like canyons over most of its surface. During the Galactic Civil War, Endex was located deep within Imperial space. The Imperials refused to allow the planet's native race, the Entymals, to leave the planet. (AE)

Endicott
this orphan graduated third in his class from the Imperial Academy on Carida. This earned him the notice of his superiors, and he was offered a promotion to Lieutenant and a position as docking bay officer aboard the second Death Star. (CCG11)

Endings and Beginnings: An Autobiography
this autobiography detailed the life of Reglis Taal, and told in-depth of how he became a bounty hunter after the death of his brother, Philo. (GG10)

Endogenous Steroid
this body-enhancing medicine is used to help elderly patients build up their strength while fighting diseases such as Zithrom's Disease. (TFE)

Endor
1) this silvery gas giant planet, located in the Moddell Sector, is orbited by nine moons, including the Forest Moon of Endor. It is not located near any hyperspace node, and requires a fairly complex series of jumps in order to get there. (ROTJ, MTS, AT, ISU, EA)
2) the second moon of the planet Endor, most often known as the Forest Moon of Endor, is sometimes simply referred to as Endor. (BHAS)

Endor
1) alias Han uses for the cargo shuttle he uses to escape from Kessel. It is used when he first arrives at the Maw Installation. (JS)
2) the Alliance Corona-class frigate that collided with the Shooting Star, following a mistimed hyperspace jump. The jump was part of a routine fleet exercise. All hands on both ships were lost, and the disaster became an object lesson for those navigators who thought about quickly entering jump data during any fleet movement. (SOL)

Endor Day
a day of celebration legislated by the New Republic, it was intended to honor all those who died during the Battle of Endor. The highlight of every Endor Day celebration were the sequential blasts of fireworks set off to recreate the celebration which occurred on the Forest Moon of Endor after the battle. (SOP)

Endor Express
a pleasure cruise, operated by Star Tours, that takes passengers to Endor. (ST)

Endor Patch
an award given to all the Alliance starfighter pilots who survived the Battle of Endor. (WS)

Endoraan
this planet was often on the itinerary of the Kuari Princess. It served as one of the endpoints of the Relgim Run, opposite Mantooine. (RM, TFE)

Endorian Pony
a small, horse-like creature from the planet's forest moon. The Ewoks have learned to domesticate and train them for pack animals and transportation. Are these also called Bordok? (JS, EA)

Endorian Spider
a large, black arachnid native to the underground caves of Endor, these insects are almost two meters across, and spin huge webs to trap their prey. They are carnivorous, and their bite is lethal. They have glowing green eyes, and large tusks instead of pincers, to help them hold their prey while they eat. Nests of these spiders lives in the bowels of the fortresses of the gorax, cleaning up the scraps left behind by the huge humanoids. Are these also called the rakazzak? (EA, ISU)

Endorian Treesnake
see Tempter (ISU)

Endovan
this planet aligned itself with the New Republic after the Battle of Endor. It was believed that Rodin Baem stole information from New Republic computers on this planet. (WBC)

Endrolian Ground-apple Juice
this beverage is supposedly non-alcoholic, but it can be quickly fermented into a fine spirit. (GG9)

Endurance
a New Republic Endurance-class fleet carrier assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. At Orinda, the Endurance kept its smaller fighters in their bays until most of the Imperial fire was eliminated. This proved to be a faulty tactic, as the Endurance came under fire from a Star Destroyer. The ship was overwhelmed, and was destroyed before it could launch any form of counterattack. (BTS)

Endurance*-class Fleet Carrier
one of several new warship designs created during the early years of the New Republic, the Endurance-class fleet carrier was one of the new classes approved for use by the Navy. Like other starships of the new class, the Endurance-class was based on another design which had already been proved, the Nebula-class destroyer. It measured 1,040 meters in length, and was armed with 12 turbolaser cannons, 20 laser cannons, 8 ion cannons, and 4 tractor beam projectors. The Endurance-class ship required a crew of 6,795, with 76 gunners and room for 1,600 troops. The Endurance-class Carrier was designed to be a primary source of support for a battle fleet, and could easily act as a command ship to a small fleet. The carrier maintained a pair of starfighter wings, one for close assault and one for long-range superiority. (BTS, CTD)

Endus
this Doctor of Biology led the biological research lab at the Empire's outpost on Lotide. (BI)

Endwa
this meat is a Corellian staple and, like most Corellian foods, is best served fried. It is said that properly-cooked endwa slides down the throat slowly. (IJ)

Energy Array
this was the name given to the starship system that maintained the distribution of power to weapons, shields, and engines. The exact distribution of power could be set by the pilot, but the Energy Array maintained it during flight and/or combat. (XWA)

Energy Ball
a small artillery weapon developed by the Gungans, energy balls were just that: small blue spheres of coherent energy. They came in various sizes, depending on the target the Gungans were using them against. Each energy ball acted much like the blast from an ion cannon. The energy contained in the blue sphere was dispersed upon detonation, wreaking havoc with electrical systems and severely damaging organic nervous systems. The outer shell is made from a charged organic matrix, while the innards are made from unstable energy masses. (TPM, IG1)

Energy Battery
any multi-cannon laser or ion weapon. (SW)

Energy Binder
this thick band of electromagentic energy is harnessed between two small generators, and is used to keep the opposing engines of a pod racer from flying off in opposite directions. While generally harmless when compared to the rest of the pod's components, a body part caught in the binder's beam will be rendered numb for hours. (SW1)

Energy Cell
any rechargeable power source. (SW)

Energy Cutter
a starship mechanic's tool. (HSE)

Energy Drum
one of the marvels of Gungan technology, the energy drum supplies the power needed to generate their incredible deflector shields. It is often mounted atop a fambaa or other large creature, and is designed to collect energy from an energy emitter and store it for use in the shields. At the touch of a switch, the drum releases the energy in the form of a viscous shield that forms a dome over the heads of the Gungan army. (IG1)

Energy Emittance Baffler
this device, designed and manufactured by Santhe/Sienar Technologies, was a key component of the Empire's early cloaking device technology. Codenamed NOVA, the baffler project was approved by Emperor Palpatine himself. The device was made up of five parts: an emission modifier, a low-energy baffler, an emission analyzer, and energy directional scrambler, and an energy cluster blanket. (ML)

Energy Emitter
this Gungan devices is mounted atop a fambaa or other large creature, and then drawn into battle. When activated, the emitter generates a huge amount of power that is focused onto a nearby energy drum. The drum then collects the energy and uses it to generate a powerful deflector shield. (IG1)

Energy Gate
a static force field used to restrict access to an area. (SW)

Energy Lathe
a machinist's tool found in most spaceport repair shops. (SWR)

Energy Mining
an illegal form of mining in which powerful bursts of energy are used to cut through the rock and locate natural ores and minerals. The discharges produced by the creation of the energy beam as well as from the mining process itself are flung into a planet's atmosphere, where they interact with the planet's natural energies to create huge electrical storms and deadly fallout. It is for this reason that energy mining has been outlawed, since it posed significant threats to a planet's populace. (SME)

Energy Pike
this crude weapon is similar to a force pike, but releases an electrical discharge on contact. (SWJ9)

Energy Shell
this projectile weapon was developed by the Baktoid Armor Workshop for deployment in the AAT battle tank. An energy shell is a contained detonation device wrapped in a protective cocoon of plasma energy. This cocoon allows it to penetrate further before exploding, making it a dangerous piece of artillery. (X1)

Energy Sink
this device is used in many forms of battle armor. Its primary function is to absorb the energy of a blaster bolt which strikes the armor. On stormtrooper armor, the energy sinks are the small blocks located on the utility belt. (ISB)

Energy Spider
a denizen of the Kessel spice mines, it is a spider that looks like it is made of glass. They apparently are another source of the glitterstim spice, which they also consume and synthesize for use as a webbing to trap the bogeys for food. They use their fangs to impale their victims and drain their life-energy. There rounded bodies are studded with dozens of legs, hundreds of mouths, and literaly thousands of eyes. They are also known as spice spiders. (JS, JASB)

Energy Web Generator
this strange weapon was created by the Aing-Tii monks for use aboard their Sanhedrim starships. The generators produce a network of lightning-like energy that arcs from the weapon and assails its target, much like an ion cannon burst. (KO)

Enfield
this Imperial Sergeant Major was in charge of security around detention block AA-23 aboard the first Death Star. He served as Shann Childsen's attaché, and was in command of a squadron of Death Star troopers. (CCG9)

Enforce
this Victory-I class Star Destroyer was part of the Corporate Sector Authority fleet under the command of Baruche Sloane. (TSK)

Enforcement Central
this was the massive database maintained by the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations, in order to keep track of the variety of bounties which were posted during the New Order. Established and registered bounty hunters had direct access to the database, in order to view the current status of a bounty. (GG10)

Enforcement Guides
these were the primary police force of the planet Kegan, during the rulership of V-Tan and O-Vieve. (FFT)

Enforcer
this Imperial bulk cruiser was part of Admiral Greelanx's last line, during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Enforcer One
the ancient dreadnaught used by Bogga the Hutt as a command ship. Enforcer One was a Core Galaxy Systems Dreadnaught, heavily modified from its stock beginnings. The ship had been decommissioned from the Old Republic's Navy and shipped to the salvage yards at Ord Trasi. Bogga obtained the ship there, and began modifying it. It has a fixed, heavy turbolaser which servde as its primary weapon. The turbolaser had an advanced cooling system that kept the separate power generator and laser actuator from overheating. Sixteen turret-mounted laser cannons supplement the turbolaser, and four tractor beam projectors allow the ship to control smaller ships. Six light tactical fighters are housed in the docking bay. (TOJ, EGV)

Enforcer Pistol
this .48-caliber projectile weapon was the trademark sidearm of the Morellian Enforcer. It was developed by the Morellian Weapons Conglomerate during the Old Republic. Despite its low-tech design, many modern weapons experts admired the Enforcer Pistol's balanced weight, its lack of recoil despite its power, and its sheer ability to cause large amounts of damage. (AIR)

Enforcer*-class Picket Cruiser
this starship was built by Kuat Drive Yards and Seinar Fleet Systems at the Galentro Heavy Works shipyards at Jaemus. This ship first saw action within the Pentastar Alignment. (TFE, SWAJ)

Engagement at Jestan
this Alliance won a decisive victory in this battle, due mainly to the tactical expertise of Beryl Chiffonage. (AIR)

Engira
a planet which is home to an Imperial supply base. (SWSB)

Engret
a young boy working with Rekkon when Rekkon was a teacher. Engret's sister was an outspoken legal scholar, and held a great dislike for the Corporate Sector Authority. When she suddenly disappeared, Engret joined Rekkon's mission to find out what the Authority was doing with the people it kidnapped. Unfortunately, when Han Solo came to transport Rekkon and his team to Orron III, Engret was left behind. (HSE)

Enhanced-bonding Plating
a special form of exterior plating that allows it to better deflect energy. Stars' End was built from this plating, but it proved to be part of the station's downfall, because the plating helped deflect the explosion at the tower's base, redirecting the force down toward the planet and causing the tower to be shot into the air. (HSE)

EnhanceScan
this CryonCorp general-purpose scanner has a range of up to 1500 meters when scanning for life forms. Its motion and metal detectors have an optimal range of just 500 meters. (CCG9)

Enin'sd
an Alliance XQ4 platform destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Enkhet, Barsoulentinial
this thin, pale young man joined the Alliance as a slicer. A former cabin boy for a notorious smuggler, Enkhet learned how to fly a number of starships. He eventually joined the Alliance, but was deemed to reckless and undisciplined to be a starfighter pilot. He was assigned to Commander Briessen, and served as part of Lieutenant Haslam's assault team as a computer operator and pilot. (SWJ10, TFE)

Enkidu
this Pursuer enforcement ship was owned by K'Armyn Viraxo during the Galactic Civil War. He used it to harrass Harlequin Station as well as Azzameen Station. (XWA)

Enna
an Imperial container group destroyed near Kalla VII by Keyan Farlander. (XW)

Ennead
this biological machine was the Yuuzhan Vong version of a tank. (DTR)

Ennth
this planet was a colony world which seemed to resist any attempt at settlement. The first colonists established a series of outposts on the world, and soon learned that the planet's single moon had a wildly elliptic orbit. This orbit brought it close enough to Ennth every eight years for it to skim through Ennth's atmosphere. This proximity resulted in incredible tidal and seismic stresses that tore the world apart every eight years. The colonists fled to space stations in orbit to survive the devstation, but their strength and will led them to return after the moon had passed and rebuild their settlements. (LO, JUS, SHA)

Enouck
an Alliance Shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Enrichment Zone
this was a term used by the Agricultural Corps to describe an area which is being terraformed or recovered. Natural flora, as well as enhanced breeds from offworld, are cultivated and monitored during the development of the zone. (DR)

Ensaiav
this Corellian gunship was one of five Alliance gunships sent to assist the Imperial forces in the battle against the Ssi-ruuk at Bakura. (TBSB)

Entana Run
this hyperspace route wound through the Lesser Plooriod Cluster. Together with the Burna Trade Route, it formed the boundary of Urce Space. (AIR)

Entechment
this Ssi-ruuvi technology allowed them to drain off the life-essence of a living being and store it in unusual batteries for powering their droid starships and other technologies. The process worked best on humans, since their connections to the Force were stronger. The subject was injected with a magnetic solution which was absorbed into the nervous system, and an external circuit was attuned to the internal magnetization of the subject. This "catchment arc" then collected the life-energy of the subject and placed it in batteries. The subject almost always died after the entechment was complete. (TB, TBSB)

Entechment Chair
device used by the Ssi-ruuvi to collect brain energy for use in driving shipboard circuits or battle droids. A special chair was designed to hold Luke Skywalker. (TB)

Entel, Jor
a ruthless and vicious pirate captain, Jor Entel worked in the Demophon System. He lured unsuspecting passengers on his ship, the Night Wind, promising passage off the doomed planets. Once off-planet, Entel and his crew would slaughter their passengers and dump their bodies after taking whatever booty they could. He and his crew were killed by a group of Alliance agents who discovered that he had murdered Enid Vahr. (SN)

Entertainment Center
this is the section of Imperial City, on Coruscant, where many of the Fete Week festivities begin. The Shaldania Parade winds through its streets and spires. (SWJ8)

Enth
this is the second combination symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic combination "ae". (SWM)

Entralla
this primary planet in the Entralla System is located in the Velcar Free Commerce Zone. It wasn't always a member of the FCZ. Before the institution of the New Order, Entralla was a free world. It was a world of various religious beliefs, each with a strong following. It also had a deep history of glorious deeds and mythical warriors. Palpatine later took control of the world. Following the Battle of Endor, the natives of the planet had planned to secede from the Empire and join the Alliance, but they were overrun by the Pentastar Alignment. The New Republic could not send aid, and the planet was usurped. (SWAJ)

Entropy, The
another of Lando Calrissian's mystical references. (LCM)

Entrus
this temperate, ocean-covered world was known as the recreation capital of Trax Sector. Entrus' economy is primarily based on incomes from gambling, supplemented by catering to the whims and desires of the sector's wealthiest inhabitants. The city areas are located on small islands, and are densely populated. Weather on the planet was remarkably consistent and very pleasant, due in part to the system's powerful sun. During the Galactic Civil War, the Alliance established its Trax Sector command center on Entrus, under the noses of the Imperial officers who vacationed on the planet. (GMK)

Entuur
a planet. (AIR)

Entuuran
this was the name used to describe the human inhabitants of the planet Entuur. (AIR)

Entuuran Resilience Test developed on the planet Entuur, this was a form of torture used by the Empire's High Inquisitor Slosin. (AIR)

Entymal
an alien race from the planet Endex, the Entymals were used as slave labor by the Amber Sun Mining Corporate in the Bextar System. These lanky, humanoid insects had a green exoskeleton, and had specialized gliding membranes under their arms. They make excellent pilots, as their brains were highly developed, giving them excellent spatial reasoning capability. Although not part of a hive mind, the Entymal society was based on the classic hive arrangement. A queen ruled each nation, with barren females serving her. Male drons were only good for two things: performing labor and mating with the queen. (SWAJ, AE)

Enu
this race of near-humans is characterized by their thin bodies and their large, pale eyes. They are native to the planet Deylerax. (WBC)

ENVC-370
this model of reflective body glove was produced by Syncronics. It allowed the wearer to survive a blaster shot by reflecting the effects of the weapon. The suit could only absorb a limited amount of energy before needed to be discarded and replaced. (GG10)

Envelope
this was the codename of the datafile package provided by Mal Biron to any prospective smugglers and spacer who wish to work for him. Biron usually waited until he had a group of candidates before handing out the Envelopes, and he always had Kalend Thora watching them. The instructions in the datafiles explain a series of runs to be made along the Sisar Run, with the smuggler or crew completing the runs in the best time eventually gaining the new contract. (SSR)

Enviro-analyzer
this device was developed for use by scouts and other galactic explorers. This compact, rectangular box held a number of sensors, including radiation detectors, spectrameters, temperature monitors, mineral spotters, and lifesign sensors. (GG8)

Enzeen
this species of blue-skinned humanoids was from an unknown world, and were not often encountered in the galaxy. They had needle-like spikes in place of hair on their heads, and were chubby in form. They were apprehensive about the modern technology of the galaxy, but were very friendly to other races. Borborygmus Gog relocated a colony of Enzeen to the planet D'vouran as part of Project Starscream. They immediately formed a symbiotic relationship with the bioengineered world, attracting tourists and luring them into the forest, where the planet could devour them. In return, the Enzeen were allowed to insert their tube-like tongues into the planet's crust and suck out sustenance of their own. They were protected from the planet's hunger by wearing small pendants that projected a sort of force field around them. After Mammon Hoole exposed the secrets of D'vouran to the Alliance, certain discoveries led the possible conclusion that the Enzeen were also bio-engineered by the Empire to watch over the planet. (GOF1)

Enzymer
this device was used by merchants who worked on alien worlds or with imported merchandise. It scanned a piece of material and provided details about its chemical makeup. It accomplished this by retrieving biological residues and growing them in small cultures. With this data, the enzymer can then develop counter-agents to any potentially poisonous or dangerous bacteria. (SWJ14)

Eoaq the Expansive
a descendant of Uueg Tching, Eoaq was one of the few rulers of the Tching Dynasty who bothered to read from Uueg's Sayings. (SWJ14)

EoBaam Shipping Lines
this starship manufacturer purchased the rights to the Rin Assid Bulk Hauler designs. (CSA)

Eobbim Figh
this Mhingxin was a business acquaintence of Bossk. Figh worked the information networks of Mos Eisley, and confirmed for Bossk that Gleed Otondon had embezzled the wealth of the former Bounty Hunters Guild and gone into hiding. Figh carried with him a compartmented box filled with stim-enhancing snuff powders. (HM)

Eol Sha
this a new-formed world of immense seismic activity is located near the Cauldron Nebula. It has only one moon, but the moon's orbit is slowly decaying. It has been estimated that, within a 100 years, it will impact the planet. The planet was settled during the Old Republic, just decades before Palpatine rose to power. The goal was to mine the gases from the nearby nebula, but the planet's instability destroyed that endeavor. The planet's day encompasses 19 standard hours, while its year lasts 326 local days. (JS, JASB)

Eoodso
this Jeodu was one of Dequc's personal guards. (MJEH)

Eopie
this herd animal is native to the planet Tatooine. Eopies have small, bulbous bodies supported by four spindly legs. They are quite sure-footed in the sandy desert, but are awkward in water. Adults are also used as beasts of burden, while the young and elderly eopies are useful for consuming the desert weeds that grow up near homes and hydroponics labs. (SW1, GF)

Ephant Mon
this Chevin was known for his mercenary skills. He specialized in gun running, and would sell his wares to just about anyone. Shortly before the Battle of Naboo, Ephant Mon was involved with two intertwined but equally illegal operations for Jabba the Hutt: the import of high technology to Cerea, and the export of malium from the planet. In the business with Bron, Ephant Mon befriended Maj-Odo-Nomor and his techrat friends in order to gain a measure of popular support while remaining behind the scenes. However, the plan was thwarted by the appearance of Ki-Adi-Mundi, who was searching for his own daughter, Sylvn, as well as Maj. Ephant Mon was forced to transport them to Tatooine, but was stowed away on a cargo ship that contained divvik pupae. The pupae hatched, forcing them to hide in an escape pod. The divviks damaged much of the ship's control systems in their rage to find flesh, and left the escape pod's ejection systems disabled. Mon used the presence of Sylvn to lure Ki to their rescue. When the situation turned against him, Ephant Mon jettisoned the escape pod and returned to Jabba's palace with Sylvn and Twin in chains. They tried to diffuse the situation by leaving the two girls at the mercy of one of Tatooine's awesome ion storms. The plan was to distract Ki while they covered their tracks. Ki managed to rescue the girls, but Mon and Jabba the Hutt managed to evade capture. He worked with Jabba several years later, running weapons on one of Glakka's moons. One of Jabba's men had turned them into the Imperial authorities, and Mon and Jabba were forced to fight their way out. They were able to escape, but had to brave chill weather during the night. Jabba wrapped his then-thinner body around Mon, keeping him warm until the night passed and they could get off-world. Since then, Ephant Mon had remained loyal to Jabba for saving his life. Ephant had many offers of employment from Lady Valarian while on Tatooine, but he kept strongly to his loyalties to Jabba. When Luke Skywalker entered Jabba's palace, Ephant Mon was drawn to the young Jedi. Luke appealed to Mon to warn Jabba about his imminent demise, and Mon discovered that he had been following something similar to the Force his entire life. He pleaded with Jabba. but to no avail. Jabba then accused Mon of plotting against him, and spurned the Chevin. Jabba left for the Pit of Carkoon without Mon at his side. The novelization of Return of the Jedi has Ephant Mon in a battle with Ree-Yees aboard Jabba's Sail Barge while Jabba was taking Luke and Han to the Great Pit of Carkoon. Ephant Mon was getting beaten very badly, much to Jabba's pleasure. It is believed that Ephant Mon was killed aboard Jabba's sail barge when it exploded. Mon, upon hearing of Jabba's death, returned to Vinsoth to contemplate the Force and run a few profitable scams on the side. (ROTJ, GG5, TJP, PTR)

Ephemera
this planet was the home of a merchant who gave Jabba the Hutt an unsual gift: a small bank in the shape of a native creature. Jabba bequeathed the bank to his nephew, Gorga. The will stated that Gorga had been given control of "...the entire holdings of Jabba's bank." (TJT)

Ephram Warrick
Wicket's great-grandfather, Ephram was a famous Ewok warrior. He defeated the Duloks by using a weapon-filled War Wagon. (ECAR)

Epicanthix
a near-human race, the Epicanthix are geneticall very close to standard human stock. Their variances from baseline humans are subtle: all Epicanthix have long, black hair; they are well-muscled, and tend to be williowy and graceful; and they are extremely warlike in their ways. Their closeness to baseline humans suggested to many xenoarchaeologists that the Epicanthix were descended from a forgotten civilization effort many millennia before the rise of the New Order. Under the guidance of the warrior-chief Canthar, the Epicanthix moved from an industrial society to space-level technologies in a matter of millennia. (SE, SESB, AE)

Epicures Club
a humanitarian organization referred to by Lando Calrissian. (LCM)

Epidermal Sensors
any sensors used by a droid to monitor its out shell and signal when it comes in contact with another surface. (SWN)

Epidimi System
this planetary system orbits a double star, and is the birthplace of the Tarong race. (GG12)

Episol System
this planetary system is one of the member worlds of the Kathol Republic. It has four natural planets, only one of which is marginally habitable. It is a desert world which supports several mining colonies. The most widely settled body in the system is Dayark, a moon which orbits the system's single gas giant, Nepe. (KO)

Eponte Spaceport
located on the Madieri continent of Kabaira, this high-altitude spaceport was built from ancient brick-lined streets. However, the spaceport embraces none of the nostalgia they evoke. The damp, foggy weather permeates the disreputable establishments of the spaceport. (SWAJ)

Eppon
this was the name used by Tash and Zak Arranda to describe the small child they discovered in the laboratory hidden on the planet Kiva. They first found Eppon as an infant in an egg-shaped creche, and the baby could only say one word: "eppon." They had nothing else to call it, so they named it "Eppon." However, the baby began to grow before their eyes, becoming a toddler just as a team from the Alliance arrived on Kiva to search out Project Starscream. Little did they know that Eppon was the culmination of the Project's research. As Eppon continued to grow at an incredible rate, he required food. He consumed several unwary Alliance soldiers before his true nature was revealed by Borborygmus Gog, his creator. Eppon was the first of Gog's Army of Terror, a group of biologically-created weapons that would never die, could change form at will, could read the minds of its victims and use their deepest fears against them, was impervious to the Force, and grew stronger with each feeding. As Eppon matured, a purple splotch spread from his forehead to cover his entire body with a scale-like armor, and he transformed from a child into a hideous monster. When Eppon turned on Gog after realizing his fate, Gog activated the fail-safe mechanism in each of his warriors: a small explosive implanted in Eppon's brain. The explosion destroyed muc of Eppon's body, but a small spark of life remained alive afterward. (GOF6)

Epsi Nadir
this Rim world is the location of an auction house owned by the Most Honourable Guild of Armourers. (GG9)

Epsilon Nine
this Imperial communications research station was located in the Cron Drift. It had been sending low-level transmissions to New Republic operatives in the Elrood Sector, following the Battle of Endor, until Lumiya swarmed in and retook the station. (SWG)

Epsilon Wing
this was the section of the Binring Biodemical Products facility on Saffalore which was used by the Empire to create near-human intelligence in the galaxy's more primitive, non-human species. It was destroyed by Tuzin Gast, who hoped to free the test subjects he had created. (SOC)

Equalizer
SoroSuub's personal, disposable ion cannon. This shoulder-launched weapon carries four ion bolts in a two-meter tube. Each bolt is fired individually, and the tube is discarded after all four are used. (ISB)

Equalizing Amplitude Unit
this small device carries electrmagnetic impulses from one location to another. Combinations of different-sized EAUs can be grouped together on a large chip, and are used to route impulses from a control panel to certain equipment. Each EAU chip has a certain unique chip stress, which is indicated by the density of EAUs on its surface. (IC)

Equat
this alien race was known for their epic poetry. (OE)

Equator
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Equator City
this city, located on the planet Rodia, is the home of a number of seedy casinos. Avaro Sookcool ran his operations there. (SE)

Equet
this merchant works on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, selling personal melee weapons. He was an active recruiter of beings to serve as mercenaries in the Minos Cluster. (GA)

ER-1C
this series of probe droids was used by scouts and explorers for its unique, amphibious design. The spherical ER-1C can split into two halves on command. The upper half contains a small repulsordrive, and can float over land. The lower half has a specialized engine and housing which allows it to operate underwater. (GF)

Er'Dox Kaan
a giant red star, it is the primary sun of the planet Laboi II. (GG4)

Er'Kit
1) this was a species of tall, thin, reptilian aliens that were native to a planet of the same name. Er'Kit's small heads were covered in smooth, pale skin. (TPM, RAC, IWE1)
2) this Outer Rim planet was the homeworld of the Er'Kit race. (IWE1)

Eradicator
this was one of the Empire's Imperial-class Star Destroyers. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Eradicator was under the command of Governor Vellam, patrolling the space around the Bright Jewel System. Vellam dispatched it to hunt down Captain Sodarra and his crew, during the search for Darth Vader's body. (GG10, SL)

Eradicator E8U
this 1.5-meter-tall assassin droid worked for Vanel, duringher tenure as Mon Tondievz's chief of security. (TSK)

Eradictor
this device was developed by the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic. Resembling a large communications dish, the eradictor could lock onto the communications of a Jedi working from a remote location and scramble the incoming transmission's header data. This way, the origination point of the message was unreadable to any being who tried to slice the transmission in order to pinpoint a Jedi's location. The exterior walls of the Jedi Temple on Coruscant were dotted with eradictors. (IWE1).

Erasmus Gambit
a military infiltration ploy in which soldiers are placed aboard supply craft. When the craft land at a base, the soldiers then overtake the base. (RASB)

Erbas
an Imperial assault transport destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

ERD-LL
this series of labor droids was created by taking the basic mechanics of a binary loadlifter and attaching it to a telescoping torso. This allowed the droid to move heavy objects to great heights. (BP)

Erdan
this human slave lived in Mos Espa at the same time Anakin Skywalker lived there. Erdan had been chemically enlarged by his owner, in an effort to make him better able to do more work. Erdan also had his face painted with permanent colorings to denote his ownership. (IG1)

Eredin
this planet is located in Astal Sector. (GG11)

Ereesus
this ancient space city was known for its slave markets. (TOJC)

Ereneda
a Hapan term for Ta'a Chume, roughly translated as 'she who has no equal.' (CPL)

Erg Es 992
this large star was the primary solar body in the system that contained Cybloc. (POT)

Ergagesh Ocean
this body of water covers 90% of the planet Ergeshui, supplying the swamps with nutrient-rich water. (PG2)

Ergesh
this alien race is native to the swampy planet of Ergeshui. They are about two meters tall, and resemble shambling mounds of plant material, and can live to be more than 200 standard years of age. Their bodies are covered with droopy, slimy appendages of various sizes and lengths, and have coloration including greens, browns, and grays. They are intelligent, curious creatures which are very gentle. It has been said that Ergesh communication sounded like thick mud coming to a rapid boil, although most Ergesh prefer to speak Basic. Two Ergesh reproduce by planting one seed from each body in the shoolbloorp swamp during a special mating ceremony. (PG2, AE)

Ergesh Rum
this highly-priced spirit is fermented on Ergesh. (PG2)

Ergesh Starjumper
this unique spacecraft is really a living organism. The Starjumper measures 400 meters in length, and is about 30 meters in diameter. The Starjumper is biologically engineered by the Ergesh, and is grown in the Industrial Swampfields of Ergeshui. They Starjumper relies on several organic appendages for navigation, fire control, and communications. The Starjumper is powered by the life energies of the 800 Ergesh who operate it. This symbiosis makes the Starjumper unusable by other species. (PG2)

Ergeshui
this planet is the only world in the Agash System. It is a hostile world, covered with a thick, nitrogen and carbon dioxide atmosphere blanketing a moist, swampy landmass. This dense atmosphere filters the light from Agash, bathing the landscape in an eerie, red glow. It is the homeworld of the Ergesh race. The average day on Ergeshui lasts 40 standard hours; its year lasts 380 local days. It has two moons. (PG2)

Erglush
this city is the capital city of the planet Ergeshui, located on the Ersheg continent. The buildings that comprise the city are made from mud and organic matter. Erglush is connected to Outworlder City by a living monorail made from a thick vine. The vine produces bean-shaped growths that slide along the vine, propellde by methane gas and photosynthetic charge. Ergesh can ride inside the bean-pods from one city to the other. (PG2)

Ergo
a planet which was the site of an Imperial fuel station during the Galactic Civil War. (DF)

Ergo, Brixie
the daughter of a prominent Entrallan doctor and his wife, Brixie was drawn to the study of alien species. She excelled in this field, and was about to graduate from medical school herself when the Pentastar Alignment conscripted her parents as combat medics. She thought of joining the New Republic, but the Republic was unable to spare forces to deal with the Alignment. She was recruited by Andrephan Stormcaller in a tavern, where he was posing as a drunkard who was willing to listen to her rantings. She decided to join the Red Moons as a medic, and two months later she accompanied the team sent to Gabredor III. She was to be ready to provide assistance to the kidnapped children of the Cantras Gola ambassador. The mission exposed her to the harsh realities of the struggle against the Alignment, as Lex Kempo lost his life saving hers. (SWJ8, TFE)

Ergovore
this is a species of small, beady-eyed creature which lives by consuming pure energy. (HM)

Erhynradd Massacre
this battle took placed during the early years of the New Order, and took the life of Gideon Tarkin. (CRO)

Eri Palle
this Yevethan was one of Nil Spaar's personal aides. (BTS, TT)

Eriadu
this planet, located in the Seswenna Sector, in the Outer Rim, was the seat of Grand Moff Tarkin's early power. It was here that he developed the Tarkin Doctrine. The planet is known for its beautiful silver and blue shell jewelry. Drost Elegin left his family on Eriadu before leaving to meet Roganda Ismaren on Belsavis. (ISB, COJ)

Eridain
this Corellian CR90 Corvette was part of the New Republic fleet assigned to the retaking of Coruscant. Captain Afyon was in command of the Eridian, and was at Hensara III providing the machinery to retrieve the Battle of Yavin from a lake there. (XWN)

Erigorm
a planet which held Senatorial representation in the Senate during the latter days ot the Old Republic, before the Senate was disbanded. (ISB)

Erik
this starship pilot served the Alliance at Eyrie Base. (SWJ8)

Erinnic
this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer was part of the Imperial Remnant's small fleet. It was dispatched to the Ord Mantell during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, on intelligence received from the New Republic. (HT)

Erloi
this Fyodoi member of the Roh tribe is Tseeach's son. He is training to become the tribe's next shaman, following in his father's footsteps. (PG2)

Eron, Reagal
this man served as the chief gunnery officer aboard the Star Destroyer Eradicator. He was a witness to Boba Fett's delivery of Feldral Okor to Prefect Isis, and decided to join the Imperial Navy shortly afterward. (GG10)

Eror Zeen
this city is the capital of the planet Danoor. (KO)

Errant Venture
this was the name Booster Terrik used for the Star Destroyer he obtained from the New Republic following the liberation of Thyferra. Formerly known as the Virulence, it was severely stripped of weaponry due to New Republic regulations for civilian ships. The interior of the vast ship was refitted to create a bazaar-like atmosphere, completely with food courts, multiple shopping levels, and several discretely-hidden conference rooms. The ship was a continual troublespot for Booster, as he tried to run it with a minimal crew and operations staff. Several systems, including weapons and turbolifts, were constantly under repair. Booster hired 200 Verpine technicians to upgrade the ship to workable order, a task which took them more that seven months to complete. Part of the ship's interior was gutted and formed into three entertainment and commercial levels - Black, Blue, and Diamond Levels - to cater to the wide variety of customers Booster attracted. He maintained a strong security force made up of humans and Weequays. When Grand Admiral Thrawn returned from the Unknown Regions to threaten the New Republic, Borsk Fey'lya campaigned for the Errant Venture to be nationalized into the Republic's fleet. However, Intelligence had trouble locating the ship. Once they found it, Booster agreed to the plan, provided that the ship be completely refitted and rearmed, with all modifications remaining intact after the battle. He also demanded the assignment in rank of Admiral. Fey'lya and the Ruling Council were forced to leave the ship alone, but Airen Cracken began sending out hints and rumors of the ship being used to track Thrawn. During the Caamas Incident, Booster reluctantly agreed to let Garm Bel Iblis use the Venture in a raid on the Imperial archives at Yaga Minor, in an effort to obtain a copy of the Caamas Document. Bel Iblis believed that the Venture could get close to the planet because none of its identification codes were known to the Empire, and he maneuvered Booster into agreement by claiming that the resulting civil war - which would begin if the Document weren't recovered soon - would series hamper his ability to do any business. Booster got a measure of revenge on Bel Iblis, though, because Bel Iblis was forced to upgrade the weapons and shields get them up to Imperial standards, and Booster was allowed to keep them. He even got a new paint job. In order to get the Venture close enough to Yaga Minor, Bel Iblis used ID codes from the Star Destroyer Tyrannic, which hadn't been seen in several months. This proved to be the flaw in their plans, since Moff Disra and Grodin Tierce knew that the Tyrannic was cloaked and hiding near Bothawui. (BW, SOP, IJ, VOF, IR)

Erratic Orbit
this starship was owned and operated by Helm Iskraker during the Galactic Civil War. (CCC)

Errine, Daralla
this tall, attractive woman was a former smuggler who owned and operated the Crosswind Saloon on Seregar, during the height of the New Order. She was known as a no-nonsense businesswoman who turned the Saloon into a profitable enterprise. (ND)

Ersheg
this is the main continent of the planet Ergeshui. (PG2)

Ervic, Seteem
this man made a small fortune at his family business, the growing and harvesting of grain to make sweet cakes. A native of the planet Saffalore, Seteem maintained his wealth by never indulging in frivolous or unnecessary expenditures. He maintained a working, though outdated, landspeeder for his travels to and from the city of Lurark, where he did most of his business. His landspeeder was appropriated by Wraith Squadron, during their attempt to infiltrate the Binring Biomedical facility in Lurark, because thet had landed well outside the city's limits and needed transportation. His obsession with saving money had cost him his first wife, but one of his daughters understood it and worked to inherit the business from him. (SOC)

Erwithat
1) the Corellian author of The Fall of the Sun. (COJ)
2) this city is the site of Pembric II's primary spaceport. (VOF)

Erysthes
this planet, located in the Corporate Sector, is the source of the galaxy's supply of chak-root. (CRO)

ERYX-4
this floating assassin droid was a member of Gyran's bounty hunting team. It dispatched a holobug, keyed to Limna Yith, in order to track the Kerestian after Gyran was hired by Prince Xizor to locate her. (SSR)

ES/6
this was the designation of the evening work shift at Santhe/Sienar Technologies. (ML)

Esau's Ridge
this area of deep erosion is found on the planet Tholatin. A thousand meters in length and more than a hundred meters deep, the Ridge is a thin crevasse through a towering rock wall. A group of enterprising smugglers established a base there, digging out a series of catacombs for living quarters, repair bays, and hangars. The Ridge became an exclusive sanctuary for those elite veterans of the trade who were well-connected rather than well-heeled. It was here that Chewbacca gathered information on the Black Fleet Crisis, as well as the possible whereabouts of Han Solo, following the aborted Test of Ascension for his son, Lumpawarump. (TT)

Escabar
this planet was known as the homeworld of the borcatu species of scavenger. (COG)

Escalation
this Yuuzhan Vong ritual was performed whenever a subaltern acted with bravery and skill, overcoming their enemy and achieving greater good for the Yuuzhan Vong. During the ritual, a subaltern was forced to submit their body to an implanter, which cut open their shoulders and placed a piece of surge-coral at the joint. The blood which flowed from the wounds was collected and given as a sacrifice to the Yuuzhan Vong gods, and the surge-coral became a symbol of the Yuuzhan Vong's escalation. Once the ritual was over, the subaltern was promoted to a position of command and given their own ship to lead into battle. (JE)

Escalion
this man, the perator of Yedagon and leader of the Yedagonian Confederacy, was perator Pekaelic ke Teldan's chief rival. He welcomed Wedge Antilles and the pilots of Red Flight, after they were exlied from Cartann by ke Teldan and the manipulations of Tomer Darpen, and gave Wedge the leadership task of getting the Confederacy's fleet ready for war. Escalion wore a white uniform similar to that of an Imperial Grand Admiral, but with violet piping on the sleeves and legs and a huge block of medals on his chest. He was continually in communication with the perator of Halbegardia during the civil war on Adumar, as they were allies against ke Teldan's misinformed plan to form a word government. (SOA)

Escalon, Carter
this Alliance courier was captured by Imperial forces on Coruscant, shortly after the Battle of Hoth, and forced to work in the spice mines of the planet Sevarcos. He was later sold to Lord Cassius Nolath Rha as a slave, but was eventually rescued by the Alliance team which posed as Ray Carantar's pit crew during the wind-rider race which took place during the Festival of the High Winds. Like many couriers during the Galactic Civil War, Escalon carried his messages in a special vessel imbedded in his skull. (SWJ12)

Escape
a Pakuuni shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Escape at Cloud City
the entertainer Leger DeMain nearly perished while trying to execute this illusion of escape. (CRO)

Escape Pod
any small, single-use craft used to exit a larger ship in an emergency. The Corellian Corvette (Blockade Runner) used the Faberstien-Lago Emergency life Pod, which is made is various sizes from 3 meters to 15 meters in length; they can hold 1-50 occupants. These pods can travel up to 80 MGLT at sublight speeds, allowing them to outrun most pursuit ships. However, they lack mobility, and are subject to being fired upon by an attacker.
The Faberstien-Lago pods come equipped with the following:
- Pax Hustana Wide Array Sensor and Open Band Beacon
- 4 Explosive Separator Charges
- Pillman One-shot Propulsion Unit
- Ferro-Magnesium Ceramic Hull
- Forward-mounted Viewport
(SW, SCRE)

Escargot, The
a mystical reference used by Lando Calrissian. (LCM)

Escort Carrier
a box-like, 500-meter transport ship used to transport an entire wing of TIE fighters (72 fighters in all) and a limited number of support craft. They have minimal armaments, but are equipped with a hyperdrive system for easy entrance to, and exit from, a battle site. Escort Carriers were designed and built at the Kuat Drive Yards. Each carrier has a crew complement of 3,505, and has been rated at a maximum speed of 12 MGLT. They are also equipped with a limited repair facility, as well as the following shipboard components:
- 10 Taim & Bak H8 dual laser cannons
- 1 Krupx VL-6 Warhead Launching System
- Front'Rear Projecting Shields (180 SBD)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (90 RU)
(ISB, TIE)

Escort Frigate
see Nebulon-B Frigate

Escort Shuttle
any Delta-class shuttle, such as the Cygnus Spaceworks JV-7. (TIE)

Escort Transport
any well-armed, light-duty military transport ship, escort transports usually measure 45 meters in length, and have been rated at 70 MGLT. Armed with 2 laser cannons, 2 ion cannons, multiple turbolasers, 2 proton torpedo launchers, 250 SBD shields, and a 125 RU hull, they are formidable warships by themselves. (TIE)

Escra Plo'kre
this Bothan was a supporter of the Alliance. He was captured by the Empire and imprisoned on Kessel until Wedge Antilles was able to negotiate his freedom from Moruth Doole. (WG)

Esege Tuketu
a Norvath pilot serving the New Republic, Tuke flew a K-Wing for the Fifth Battle Group. (BTS)

Esk
this is the fifth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "e". (SWM)

Esla
this long-deceased Melodie was the keeper of legends for her generation. She handed the legends and her position down to her son, Aragon, having learned them from her own father. The legends have been maintained for thousands of generations. (LW)

Esooma
this planet is the homeworld of the Esoomian race. (WBC)

Esoomian
this hulking alien species is native to the planet Esooma. The average Esoomian stands no less than three meters tall, and has long, well-muscled arms and legs. They are equally adept at moving on two limbs or four. Their small, pointed skulls are dominated by two black, almond-shaped eyes, and their mouths have two thick tentacles at each corner. The average Esoomian is also marginally intelligent, and their speech is often garbled and unintelligible. (WBC)

Esorp
an Imperial freighter destroyed by Keyan Farlander during his first tour of duty as an X-Wing pilot. (XW)

Espcaf
a particularly dark, rich variety of coffeine. It is usually consumed in small quantities. (WG)

Esplanade, The
the luxurious pedestrian mall located on Oseon 6845, the Esplanade is one of the most expensive places to do business. The footage along the walkway is reportedly the highest-priced in the galaxy, but also carries a great deal of prestige to the store-owners that can afford it. The Esplanade is a cobblestoned street which is covered by a tranparent dome. Artificial gravity is generated, since the asteroid is too small to generate its own. (LCF)

Espionage Droid
any series of droid that resembles a normal droid on the outside, but has hidden programming that is used to record information and relay it to the droid's owner. MerenData built an espionage droid from a 3PO protocol droid base, which was extremely effective due to the widespread use of 3PO droids as diplomatic interpreters. (RASB)

Espo
a slang term for the Corporate Sector Authority's Security Police. It can be used in singular or plural terms. (HSE)

Espo Walker 91
this version of the Old Republic's AT-PT was manufactured by the SecuriTech Corporation. It was designed to allow a single Espo officer to act as a combat squad in battle zones. Although the Espo Walker was expensive and prone to malfunction, it served its purpose well. The Espo Walker was armed with a single light blaster cannon, a heavy stun cannon, and a concussion grenade launcher. (CSA, AIR)

Espo Walker 101
this version of the AT-PT replaced the Espo Walker 91 model long before the Empire rose to power. (AIR)

Esral'sa'Nikto
one of the five Nikto races, the Esral'sa'Nikto are commonly referred to as the Mountain Nikto. (GG12)

Esraza Temple
an exotic locale found on the planet Oligtaz. (RM)

Esseles
this planet was never officially overtaken by the Empire, although COMPNOR maintained the local political party and the Empire seeded the local police. Esseles is located in the Darpa Sector. It was once a very prosperous world in the Sector, with many industries specializing in high-tech research and development in hypernautics and hyperdrive engine manufacturing. However, it lost ground to other worlds during the decline of the Old Republic and the institution of the New Order. Under the leadership of President Ralle, the planet suffered through its worst economic shortage shortly after the Battle of Yavin, and was eventually placed under Imperial control by Governor Takel. (GG2, SWJ8, SWJ9)

Esseles-Class Space Station
designed and manufactured by Alderaan Royal Engineers, this ancient design was built to surround an existing moon and use it as the basis for the space station. One pole wsa used to house much of the station's docking facilities, control towers, and communications systems. City sprawls, much like those on the later Death Star battle station, were spread across the surface of the moon, linked by various tranport tubes. Specialized venting systems bleed power generated from the interior of the station to the surface. (EGV)

Esselian Hall
this was the ruling body that governed the planet Esseles, prior to the rise of Emperor Palpatine and the instigation of the New Order. (FOP)

Esselian New Order Party
this political party advocated complete surrender of the planet Esseles to the Empire. The ENO party was decidedly pro-Human, and questioned the leadership of Hall President Ralle during the non-Human strikes which crippled Esselian corporations. The party's leader, Jamson Freller, continually challenged Ralle's dominance of Esselian politics. (SWJ8, SWJ9)

Essence Stealer
this device was part of Borborygmus Gog's Project Starscream. Located within the reconstructed Jedi library on the Nespis VIII space station, the Essence Stealer was designed to capture the true Force-essence of a Jedi. Gog never got a chance to verify its operation, as the only Force-sensitive being it encountered was Tash Arranda, who managed to destroy it with the help of her uncle, Mammon Hoole. (GOF5)

Essien Run
this hyperspace route traveled through the Asamin System. (AIR)

Ession
this planet, the fourth in the Lucaya System of the Corporate Sector, was settled some 4,000 years before the Battle of Endor. Since that time, it evolved into a major center of industrial manufacturing, and managed to remain neutral during the Galactic Civil War. The warlord Zsinj had built the Pakkerd Light Transport company on the planet, building TIE Fighters for use in his war machine, and sent the Night Caller - under the control of Wraith Squadron - to protect the Implacable while it receives the first shipment of new starfighters. However, the New Republic managed to get three squadrons of X-Wings to the planet aboard the Blood Nest, and was able to knock out the Pakkerd plant before the TIEs could launch. The Republic also managed to take out the Implacable. (WS)

Ession Strike
this Corellian Engineering CR90 corvette was part of the New Republic fleet which was created to support Han Solo and the Mon Remonda during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. The ship was originally known as the Night Caller, but was renamed by the New Republic after its capture. (SOC)

Essor
this was one of the largest cities found on the planet Essowyn. It was located on a northern island. (PG1)

Essowyn
this planet is found in the Saurton System, located in the Trax Sector. It is constantly being bombarded by debris from the system's twin asteroid belts. It is the homeworld of the Saurton race, which had been divided into two warring factions - the Quenno and the Des'mar - for many decades. The average day on Essowyn lasts 39 standard hours, while its year lasts 401 local days. Much of the planet was covered with water, although there were four major continents and a number of large islands. Most of the cities built by the Saurton were located underground, to protect them from asteroid strikes. (PG1)

Estalle Island
located on the planet Procopia, this canalled city served as the sector capital of Tapani Sector. Shey Tapani established a luxurious estate on the island, which was dominated by the most wondrous examples of Tapani architecture in the sector. (PGT)

Estaria Central Starport
this starport was targeted for investigation by the Empire, after the number of smugglers and black marketeers operating out of the starport grew rapidly. It was owned and operated by Galactic Access, Incorporated. (HAS)

Estuan Theater
this huge amphitheater was located on the Kuari Princess. Named for the renowned Dactrurian actor Anorad Estuan, many live and holographic performances took place in the theater for the enjoyment of the ship's passengers. (RM)

Etahn A'baht
this Dornean Navy commander was the New Republic's choice to lead the Fifth Battle Group when it was created. A'baht had been in charge of the 80-ship Dornean fleet which successfully held the Empire at bay during the attempted invasion of Dornea. He was well over 100 years old when he took command of the Fifth. (BTS)

Etaias
a Yevethan honorific used when speaking to a superior. (BTS)

Etelo
a domestic farm animal raised by the Togorians for food. (GG4, TPS)

Eternal, The
a mystical reference used by Lando Calrissian. (LCM)

Eternal Core, The
another of Lando Calrissian's mystical references. (LCM)

Eternity Crystal
part of a fantastic ruse concocted by Darth Vader to lure Leia Organa into his clutches, this wondrous stone, created by the Jerni millennia before the rise of the New Order, was rumored to allow the user to travel through time. Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa tried to recover the crystal to aid the Alliance, but were captured on Jerne by Ryko Vant. They had hoped to use the stone to return to the Old Republic and prevent the rise of Emperor Palpatine and the destruction of Alderaan, much as Vader had predicted. His forced were attacked by Meeka Reen's guerillas, who took Luke and Leia as their own prisoners. They learned that the crystal was housed on Adony Station, and raced to recover it before Darth Vader could beat them to it. Unfortunately, Vader had rigged the vault to explode when opened, in an effort to kill Luke and Leia. The vault exploded, catching all three of them. They managed to escape, but the crystal and much of Adony Station were destroyed. (CSWDW)

Ethar
an Imperial Corvette group captured by Keyan Farlander. (XW)

Etherhawk
this Marauder-class cruiser was part of the fleet assigned to Han Solo and the Mon Remonda, during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. It was barely serviceable, and many of its crew felt it was one overhaul short of complete dilapidation. (SOC)

Etheric Rudder
the steering mechanism of a starfighter, it allows the ship to turn in the vacuum of space, without the benefit of resistance from wind or water. The rudder can be used in flight, or while the ship is floating in space. (HTTE, IF, IR)

Ethersquid
a tentacled creature found on the planet Gyndine. (DESB)

Etherway
a Harkners-Balix 903, dubbed "the Flying Hatbox" by Mara Jade. It is owned by Talon Kaarde, and used by Fynn Torve on his missions to Abregado. The ship was impounded on Abregado when Han and Lando arrived to try and locate Talon Kaarde, and Torve left it there to fly with Han and Lando in the Falcon. Later, Wedge Antilles had it moved and pretended to be its owner to get in touch with Mara Jade. (HTTE, DFR)

Ethnic Architectural Forms of the Tion Hegemony
this publication regularly highlighted the various forms of architecture found on inhabited worlds of the Tion Hegemony. (ML)

Ethra
this is the Socorran word for the number three. (BSS)

Ethra Brewery
this Socorran beverage distiller, named for the three primary owners - Karl Ancher, Abdi-Badawzi, and Saadoon-Kauldi - is the exclusive producer of raava and zsajhira berry tea. Ethra Brewery also bought the rights to "mine" the hot springs and frozen water of the planet Neftali. (BSS)

Ethromite
this is one of the minerals used to create fusion reactions in starship power generators. (GOF9)

Etnam
this Imperial Admiral was Captain Grendahls' commanding officer, and was in charge of the operation to recover Adalric Brandl. (TFE)

ETR-3
this was a model of escort and assault transport built during the New Order. It was the first of the Beta-class trasports. (XWA)

Etsero
this Adnerem ran the largest string of gambling houses found on his homeworld of Adner. While profitable on paper, Etsero found that he soon owed money to Jabba the Hutt and other prominent crimelords. He rigged many of his casino games in order to bring in more credits, and eliminated any being who complained too loudly. The central jewel in his empire is the Red Lisken. (WBC)

Ettarue Arm
this is one of the many arms which spiral out from the center core of the known galaxy. (TA)

Etti
this race of pale-blue skinned humans was much finer and frailer than the standard human stock. The early ancestors of the Etti broke away from the Old Republic some 20,000 years before the Battle of Hoth, claiming that the Republic was too tyranical and oppressive. They settled on Etti IV, where they were eventually forced to co-exist with the Corporate Sector Authority's own government. The Etti were allowed to rule the planet as they wished, but were given CSA directives along the way. (SESB)

Etti IV
a planet in the Corporate Sector which is supposedly open to general trade, Etti IV was originally settled 20,000 years before the Battle of Hoth by the Etti people. It is the seat of the Corporate Sector Authority's power, but has no exportable resources. It is located on a major trade route within the Corporate Sector. It is also where Han Solo pays off Ploovo 2-for-1 with a dinko. Etti IV is also one of the primary entry-point worlds to the Corporate Sector. (HSE, CSA, SESB)

Etti Lighter
this Corporate Sector Authority light transport ship was originally designed for hauling cargo, although it has been recently modified to use as a patrol and interdiction craft for deployment to backwater systems. The Lighter measures 125 meters in length, and has a crew of 25, with 13 gunners and room for 15 passengers. It is armed with ten quad-laser cannons and a tractor beam emplacement, and can transport up to 400 metric tons of cargo. Several Etti lighters were sold on the black market to the Skandrei Bandits, who modified them for piracy and raiding. (CSA, KO)

Ettyk, Halla
this Alderaanian was a prominent criminal prosecutor on her homeworld. She was off-planet trying to depose a witness when the Death Star destroyed it, and joined the Alliance shortly afterward. She became a member of Airen Cracken's counterintelligence staff, and rose through the ranks to become a Commander for the Alliance and, later, the New Republic. When Tycho Celchu was brought to trial for the death of Corran Horn, the 34-year-old Ettyk was chosen as the state's prosecutor. She took the job immediately, even though she hadn't prosecuted a case in seven years. Her case against Celchu seemed air-tight, until Corran Horn escaped from the Lusankya and revealed the traitor within Rogue Squadron was not Celchu. Ettyk dropped the charges and made her apologies to Celchu. (KT)

Eucliptan Morae
this BR-23 Courier was purchased by Aloren Breesa for use by her local rebel cell during the Galactic Civil War. The original plan was to refit the ship as an escape vehicle, in case the Empire discovered their operations. Over time, the ship became a secret storehouse for supplies because Breesa's cell didn't include any pilots who could fly it. (IA)

Euritarina
this doctor was experimenting with different weapons systems at the Empire's Lotide outpost during the Galactic Civil War. (BI)

Eurrsk Thri'ag
this Bothan male, a native of the planet Bothawui, was one of the first pilots to make the grade and serve with Wraith Squadron. Among the members of the squadron, he was known as "Grinder." He distinguished by his silvery fur, and became the squadron's code-slicer and one of the best of their practial jokers. In the battle that destroyed the Implacable over Session, Grinder took a laser blast from the dying Star Destroyer and was killed. (WS)

Euvae Mountains
this range of mountains found on the planet Carosi XII completely rings the planet. (PG2)

EV
this was the model number of a series of heavy-weight droid heads built by Industrial Automaton. (DW)

EV-series Droid
this series of supervisoer droids was manufactured by Merendata. They were humanoid in form, with long, bullet-shaped heads. (MTS)

EV-2-E
this Merendata supervisor droid was employed as the ship's overseer aboard the Alliance cruiser Mantan Wanderer. EV-2-E was nominally in command of the ship's droid pool. (ROE)

EV-4D9
this Merendata EV-series supervisor droid was equipped with the same MDF motivator that caused EV-9D9 to become erratic. This droid was originally purchased by a group which recognized her malicious quirks and enhanced them, turning the droid into an efficient interrogation machine. EV-4D9 was later acquired by Ploovo Two-for-One during the Glite-Ven Hostilities, and went to work with Lotas and HN-TR1 on his Protocol Team. (AIR)

EV-9D9 (Eve-Ninedeenine)
this thin, bullet-headed Merendata Supervisor droid was programmed as a female. It had a number of strange programming quirks and manufacturing problems that led to EV-9D9's eventual control of her own systems, including a faulty MDF motivator which gave her a mean streak. One such manufacturing flaw was the addition of a third optic sensor. Later, she rewired herself to become more self-sufficient and more intelligent. As these changes continued, she grew to wonder what it would be like to have feelings, like an organic. She continued to rewire herself, in search of the perfect program to allow her the sensation of feelings. She then set out to wreak havoc across the galaxy, stopping at one time on Cloud City. There, she was emplyed by Lando Calrissian as chief of security, a position that Lando had not filled due to the tight staffing problem he had just keeping the station operative. She was discovered by Sarl Random, and sabotaged many of the station's systems and destroyed nearly a quarter of its droids before stealing a Mining Guild cutter and escaping. She fled, and years later she turned up on Tatooine, in Jabba the Hutt's service as the Chief of Cyborg Operations for Jabba. She built hreself a workroom under the palace, a place where she continually tortured droids in an effort to feeling their pain and anguish. There, she discovered that she had feelings of paranoia stemming from her actions throughout the galaxy. These feelings were heightened when C-3PO and R2-D2 came to the palace and almost willingly accepted their fate. Her fears were realized when 12-4C-41 found her in her personal workshop. The 12-series droid had tracked her from Cloud City, seeking to "balance the equation" of destruction she had caused. She resigned herself to her fate, and prepared to relish the feelings and sensations brought on by death. However, 12-4C-41 deprived her of it by removing her third optic sensor and her pain simulator. He then released all of her captives, and they dismembered her until she was no longer functional. (ROTJ, TJP, AIR)

this second generation administrative droid was descended from the prototype EV-9D9. He headed the droid torture chamber on Telti, which was run by Brakiss. EV-9D92 was said to be twice as ruthless as its predecessor, a fact not lost on Cole Fardreamer, who was brought to EV-9D92 when Brakiss caught him on Telti. Cole managed to escape with the help fo R2-D2 and C-3PO, who had rallied the other droids against not only EV-9D92, but the Red Terror as well. (TNR)

Eva-T System
the Empire met with a group of pirates in this system to negotiate the release of a prominent TIE Defender scientist. It was in this system that Emperor Palpatine promoted Thrawn to the rank of Grand Admiral. (TIE)

Evad
an Imperial container group destroyed near Kalla VII by Keyan Farlander. (XW)

Evader Squadron
this starfighter group was stationed on the Rand Ecliptic during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. Their emblem was a simple black and yellow checkerboard design. Biggs Darklighter served on Evader Squadron before jumping ship to join the Alliance. (CCG)

Evader-GT
this Corellian Engineering ion drive is basically a scaled-down military drive that was produced for commercial sale. They were close enough to Imperial military standards that the Imperial Space Ministry required a permit for operation during the New Order. (GG6)

Evakmar
this corporation worked with the Kuat Drive Yards to produce a series of transport vessels that were used by the Empire. (ISB)

Evanrue
one of the New Republic's Escort Frigates, it collided with one of the cloaked asteroids during Thrawn's attack on Coruscant. (TLC)

Evar Orbus
the former leader of the Max Rebo band, Evar Orvus was the band's Letaki headsman. It was Orbus who bought Droopy McCool, then Snit, and added him to the band. When the band was hired to perform in Mos Eisley, the local Bith band intercepted them at the spaceport and attempted to hijack them. Evar became angry, and tried to kill the Bith. He used a blaster that he had hidden in a false tentacle, but only managed to get the band into more trouble. In the ensuing firefight, Evar Orbus was killed by a stray blaster bolt. (TJP)

Evas
one of the four moons orbitting the planet Onderon. (TOJC)

Evas VI
this planet is the homeworld of the Pliith race. (SWJ1)

Evax
this Imperial Intelligence officer had the uncanny ability to predict the movements of enemy fleets. He served on the first Death Star as a starship combat coordinator, and was killed when the Death Star was destroyed. (CCG2)

Evazan
Evazan was wanted in 12 or more star systems for the deaths of his patients. Evazan was a self-styled doctor, and offered to help many people by offering inexpensive surgery. Although no one know if Evazan ever obtained a true doctoral degree, his movement from planet to planet helped him gain more and more victims. Evazan was searching for immortality, and was hoping that his patient's insides would point him on a path to discover it. This pursuit of immortaility earned him the nickname Doctor Death, among others. He hooked up with Ponda Baba around this time. His legacy of victims led him to be pursued by Jodo Kast, who nearly caught up to him in the Corellia System. Evazan managed to escape, but not before one of Jodo Kast's blaster shots caught him in the face. Evazan was scarred for life. Evazan and Ponda Baba fled Corellia to hide out on Tatooine, where he set up the Cutting Edge Boutique. Evazan used the boutique to continue his search for immortality until he encountered Luke Skywalker in the Mos Eisley cantina. They tried to bully the youth into a fight, but found themselves on the wrong side of Obi-Wan Kenobi's lightsaber. After he and Ponda Baba barely survived, Evazan made a breakthrough: he believed that the mind, not the body, was the key to immortality. He and Ponda Baba fled to Ando, where Ponda Baba helped set Evazan up in a large castle laboratory, under the assumption that Ponda Baba would be the first beneficiary of Evazan's new mind-transferrence technique. Evazan used a stolen Imperial transmogrifier to transfer the mind of one individual to another, discarding the old body and the replaced mind. His device worked, but in reverse, displacing Ponda Baba's mind with that of an Andoan senator. Evazan then went to work for Borborygmus Gog, hoping to gain information from Project Starscream. Shortly after that project was broken up by the Shi'ido Hoole, Evazan was pursued by Boba Fett himself. The bounty hunter caught up to Evazan on the planet Necropolis and executed him while he was holding Zak Arranda hostage. Pylum required that Fett leave Evazan's body behind, in hopes of holding off the Curse of Sycorax, and Fett agreed, but held them all responsible if he never collected the full bounty. Unknown to them all, Evazan had injected himself with a megadose of his own reanimation serum, and he eventually returned to life. However, the serum only worked well on recently-dead bodies. The longer the body stayed dead before being injected, the less likely it was to survive reanimation. Evazan nearly completed his work, but was stopped by the zombie Kairn. Evazan tried to eliminate Hoole, Zak, and Tash, but Kairn refused to see his friends killed. He used the anti-serum created by D-V9 to kill the zombie army Evazan had created, then was killed himself when the potion touched him. Boba Fett then used the potion to eliminate Evazan once and for all. (MTS, TME, GOF2)

Even Piell
this marble-faced Lannik Jedi Master was a member of the Jedi Council which convened to discuss the fate of young Anakin Skywalker. A fierce warrior on his homeworld, Piell was known among the Council members for his stoic demeanor and rigid code of honor. He lost his left eye in a battle of Lannik against seven of the Chosen One’s terrorists, although he managed to defeat them all singlehandedly. He opted not to have a cybernetic implant replace the eye, as a symbol of ultimate survival against any odds. Even Piell was portrayed by Michaela Cottrell in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (TPM, IG1)

Evening Star
a Corona-class transport owned by Premier Provisions. (SN)

Event Horizon
this cramped, dingy bar was located in Cairn, on the backwater world of Seikosha. (POC)

Event Vistas
this corporation operated a fleet of luxury cruiser liners during the early years of the New Republic. (SOC)

Everest
manufacturers of data analysis systems like the 448 DataSifter. (VOF)

Evet Scy'rrep
a celebrated shipjacker whose exploits were made into a series of vignettes for Galactic Bandits.. He knocked off fifteen luxury starships before he was finally caught. When asked why he preyed on the large luxury ships, he answered, "because that's where the credits are." (SE)

Evil One
this sabacc card had a value of -15. (HT)

Evilo Nailati
this disembodied brain of a B'omarr monk befriended and taught Buboicullaar about the universe and how to control his mind. (TJP)

Eviscerator
an Imperial-II class Star Destroyer, the Eviscerator was the flagship which patrolled the Brentaal System shortly after the Battle of Endor. The 181st Imperial Fighter Group was stationed aboard the ship during the Battle of Brentaal. Later, the Eviscerator was stationed in the Venjagga System, it was en route to Borleais during the New Republic's first assault there. (XWES, XWN)

Evlan, Allandria
this young girl and her twin sister, Allexia, lived with their widowed aunt on Kuat. They attended school with the children of employees of Kuat Drive Yards and of Imperial representatives. Each twin was supportive of the Alliance, despite their pro-Imperial environment, and they used their good looks to win the attention of young Imperial boys. The twins would string their targets along, pretending to enjoy their company while pretending to be flirty in order to get the boys to innocently provide information on their parents' activities. Allandria and Allexi would then arrange to provide the data to an Alliance cell in a nearby system. Their work often paid off, resulting in data on new ship designs, shipyard delivery schedules, and Imperial fleet movements. (CRO)

Evocar
a huge planet in the Y'Toub system, it was the natural home of the Evocii race until it was discovered by the Hutts as they fled Varl. Once the Hutts took over, they renamed the planet Nal Hutta. (DESB)

Evocii
this race of primitive humanoids evolved on the planet Evocar, and were content with their feudal society. When the Hutts arrived and began trading them technology for the use of land, the Evocii were captivated by the new things the Hutts brought. They were so enrapt with the technology that they failed to see that the Hutts were buying the planet out from underneath them. By the time they realized their error, it was too late. The Hutts had moved in, built their palaces and theme parks, and renamed the planet Nal Hutta. The Evocii were given temporary refuge on the planet's fifth moon, then renamed to Nar Shaddaa, but the Hutts treated them as little more than slaves. The Evocii, thus robbed of their heritage and their homes, devolved in the depths of the spaceport. (DESB)

Evolution Droid
developed by X0-X1 after the droid was installed in Cloud City's main computer core by Doctor Vreen, these small droids were created to assist in transforming organic lifeforms into metallic automata. X0-X1 demanded that Vreen conscript the scientists as Bioniip Laboratories to construct them, and began transforming Vreen himself in order to add credence to its threats. They were also known as E-droids, and were microscopic in size. X0-X1 devised them to manipulate matter at the atomic level, modifying organic chemicals and transforming them to metals. However, Vreen was able to enlist the help of Walex Blissex, and together they discovered a way to reprogram these droids and use them to poison X0-X1. (CCC)

Evona
according to Hutt legends, Evona was the sister star to Ardos until it was consumed by a black hole. Hutt legends say that Ardos was in love with Evona, which was a sister star that made up a binary system. The two lovers had many children, which were the various planets of the system. When Evona was sucked into a black hole along with several planets, Ardos became angry and miserable at the loss of his loved ones. Ardos self-destructed, throwing off a huge radioactive mantle of gas, and reducing itself to a white dwarf. The ejection of radioactive matter destroyed many of the remaining planets, leaving only the Hutt homeworld of Varl. Scientists from the Old Republic and Empire believe that this story is a mere legend, and that the Hutt's destroyed much of their system in an ancient civil war. (GG4)

EWHB-10
MerrSonn's heavy repeating blaster, it has been nicknamed the "E-Web." EWHB stands for Emplacement Weapon, Heavy Blaster; this indicates that the weapon is fairly mobile, but must be rigidly mounted in order to counteract the effects of its incredible firepower. It is powered by a portable Eksoan power unit, and it cooled by the Gk3 Cryocooler for continuous firing. (ISB)

Ewok
a diminutive race of furry creatures on the Forest Moon of Endor, they resemble teddy bears. They have large, bright eyes, small black noses, and hands which possess two fingers and an opposable thumb. Although they have no true technology, they have developed a highly developed civilization based on various mechanical devices built from tree limbs, bones, and animal hides. They live in the huge trees of Endor, but have farms and fields on the ground. They are friendly by nature, and have cunning minds capable of solving puzzles. They worship a religion based on the legends of spirits living in the moon's giant trees. (ROTJ, EA)

Ewyrin
an alien student of the Force, Ewyrin nearly succumbed to the Dark Side on Dantooine. (RC)

Ewwen
Ido's brother, Ewwen held the position of Mor Glayyd when Han Solo and Fiolla were trying to unravel the Corporate Sector Authority's slavery ring. He was named the Mor Glayyd after his father was poisoned a month or so before Han and Fiolla arrived, as part of the Corporate Sector Authority's plot to cover up their slavery ring. Ewwen has the red-brown henna-colored hair which runs in his family, but is younger and shorter than his sister. The other Mors wanted him brought down, in an effort to reduce the Glayyd clan's power. The Corporate Sector Authority wanted him removed so that he could not implicate them in the slavery ring. So, a plot was put together in which a seasoned gunman named Gallandro, posing as an offworld visitor while working for the Corporate Sector Authority, tried to win Ido's favor at a reception. He feigned anger, and struck her on the face. This was all a plot to goad her brother into a death-duel. Ewwen either had to step down or fight. Either option was preferable to his maintaining the position of Mor Glayyd and spilling the beans on the Corporate Sector Authority's slavery ring. Fortunately, Han Solo intervened on Ewwen's part and made Gallandro back down. Ewwen then told Han and Fiolla everything he knew about the slavery ring. (HSR)

EX-F
this starship was an Imperial weapons and propulsion testbed built at the Black-15 shipyards during the Galactic Civil War. It was a Dreadnaught-scale ship, and was part of the bounty of ships stolen by the Yevetha, and was later renamed the Glory. (BTS, SOL)

Exaltation
this pseudo-religious event was concocted by the Hutts and the t'landa Til, for use in maintaining a calm slave-labor pool on Ylesia. Described to pilgrims as contact with the Oneness, the Exaltation was actually a physical manifestation performed by the t'landa Til. These creatures were able to use a throat pouch to inhale air and expel it in sonic vibrations. The t'landa Til could manipulate the wavelength and force of the vibrations by forcing air over cilia in the pouch, creating inaudible waves that affected the brains of other sentients. In reality, male t'landa Til use the process to stir females into mating readiness when they are in heat. The Exaltation revolved around the pilgrims receiving intense waves of pleasure and serenity from a t'landa Til priest. Over time, the pilgrims became addicted to the Exaltation, and required it every day in order to continue their lives. The Hutts and the t'landa Til were more than happy to oblige, for it kept the pilgrims blind to the true nature of the work they performed. However, it was sometimes boring for them, since the males got no pleasure out of it themselves. (TPS)

Exalted Torcaigne
this crime syndicate was based on the planet Attahox. They made most of their money controlling the export of phosovane salts in the Rimworlds. (CSWDW)

Excarga
this ore-producing world managed to stay far from the front lines of the Galactic Civil War, while secretly supplying the Alliance with materials. Following the Battle of Endor, Excarga became an active member of the New Republic. (SWAJ)

Excelsior
an Alliance Mon Calamari cruiser used during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

ExcelStar
this starship construction corporation often modified Seinar Fleet Systems craft for personal usage by non-military pilots. (GG8)

Excomm
this was a branch of the Imperial Security Bureau answerable only to Darth Vader and Emperor Palpatine. (THG)

Executioner
this was the name given to one of the many podraces which wound through the caverns and energy domes of the penal colony on Oovo IV, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Executioner's Row
this slum was located on the outskirts of the town called Dying Slowly, on the planet Jubilar. (TBH)

Executive Results
this company served as a front for Syndicate One. On the surface, Executive Results claimed to be used equipment retailers. However, the company actually hired all kinds of mercenaries and freelance businessbeings to transport cargoes across the galaxy for the Syndicate, in the years following the Battle of Endor. Executive Results also outiftted many of the mercenaries it hired, paying for five percent of equipment costs and one-third of fuel and provisions costs. (SWJ8)

Executor
the title given to the seven elite Dark Jedi appointed by Emperor Palpatine to carry out the plans behind Operation Shadow Hand. (DE2)

Executor
the Super-class Star Destroyer used as Darth Vader's flagship, the Executor was the first in a long line of fearsome warships that descended from the Imperial-class Star Destroyer. There are many rumors surrounding the construction of the Executor: Many claim that the ship was built at the shipyards of Fondor, while others contend it was built by an unspecified Kuat Drive Yards facility as reported in the Imperial Defense Daily. However, the true Executor was built at Fondor. The Kuat ship was built under the same name, but was later renamed Lusankya when it was launched. Note that the short story Smal Favors claims Vader took command of the Executor directly from Kuat Drive Yards, which contradicts the Kuat ship's becoming the Lusankya. Equally enigmatic is the Executor's construction period. The only real knowledge is that the ship was turned over to Darth Vader between his escape from the Battle of Yavin and the Battle of Hoth. The plans to the huge ship were stolen by Luke Skywalker and Tanith Shire, but revealed no weaknesses to Alliance technicians. The ship's name was given by Vader on its maiden voyage, as it destroyed the Alliance outpost on Laakteen Depot while en route to Yavin 4. Its first commander was executed by Vader for failing to complete a mission to eradicate the Massassi Base. It was then placed under the command of Admiral Ozzel, during the search for the Alliance leading up to the Battle of Hoth. It was Ozzel who brought the fleet out of hyperspace too far out from Hoth, alerting the Alliance to the fleet's presense. Vader executed Ozzel on the spot, and promoted Captain Piett to Admiral, and commander of the ship. Following a number of victories over the Alliance, the Executor was finally destroyed during the Battle of Endor, when a concerted attack by Alliance pilots disabled the ship. Without steering and navigation, it plowed into the surface of the second Death Star and exploded. (ESB, ROTJ, CSW, DESB, BW, SWJ12)

Exelbrok
manufacturers of podracers and racing engines. (IG1)

Exelis Hunters
this band of criminals terrorized Strabin Sector, until the Ubese bounty hunter Arcuse captured the entire band. (AIR)

Exex
the ruling class of individuals living on Bespin's Cloud City, the Exex forms the bureaucratic caste on the outpost. The ranks of the Exex were made up of the business leaders who maintained headquarters on the floating city, and was balanced by the city's Administrator and the Parliament of Guilds. (GG2, ISU)

ExGal Society
this under-funded, independent exploration company sponsored several remote outposts at the fringes of the galaxy. They hoped to be the first to report on life from beyond the known galaxy. (VP) this was the name given to the ExGal Society's outpost on the planet Belkadan. Fifteen members of the ExGal Society were dispatched to Belkadan to maintain the ExGal-4 listening post. It was established three years before the start of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, and was destroyed by the Yuuzhan Vong in order to draw attention away from their base on Helska. (VP)

Exhaust Nacelles
the tapering spouts located at the end of a starship's engine blocks, these devices are used to concentrate the engine's thrust to provide maximum velocity generation. (SCRE)

Exis Convocation
this was the name given to the meeting of the ancient Jedi Knights, ten years after the Great Sith War, which was called by Nomi Sunrider and held on Exis Station. The Jedi met to discuss the recent events of the Sith War, and what to do about Ulic Qel-Droma. (TOJR)

Exis Station
Nomi Sunrider called a convocation of the Jedi Knights on this station, ten years after the Great Sith War. The Jedi gathered to discuss how to repair the rifts opened during the War, and how to continue their order. The meeting became known as the Exis Convocation. (TOJR)

Exmoor
this vast estate was owned by Doman Beruss. The family estate of the Beruss clan, it occupied a large section of Imperial City on Coruscant, some 300 kilometers southwest of the Imperial Palace. It was essentially a walled city, containing two parks, a forest, a meadow surrounding a small lake, and twenty-one huge buildings. Among the focal points of Exmoor is Illodia Tower. The primary residence consists of seventy rooms, and it occupied by no fewer than 30 members of clan Beruss at any time. (TT)

ExO
the title given to the highest-ranking officer in the Corporate Sector Authority, the ExO runs the Direx Board. The ExO originally made decisions based on consultation with the Direx Board, but the ExO has recntly been given final authority to act without consulting the Diredx Board. The ExO is chosen from a number of candidates who come from outside the ranks of the Direx Board, thus ensuring that corporations cannot suddnyl gain control of the Direx Board. The candidates usually are selected from the current crop of Viceprexes. The ExO serves until death or a no-confidence vote from the Direx Board which is seconded and ratified. (CSA)

Exo
this was the legendary world prophesied by Deamos Na-Coth. It was an ancient paradise hidden somewhere in the galaxy. (KO)

Exobiology Institute
this biological research institution is located on Coruscant. (SOL)

Exocron
this world is the primary planet in the Exocron System, located in the Kathol Outback and hidden within a gas cloud. Much of the population of the Outback is unaware of the existence of Exocron, since it is located within a nebula of gases that interfere with most sensor systems. Most star maps of the Outback fail to show Exocron, which is just as well for the planet's inhabitants. The planet was originally settled by colonists of the Cabal, who fled the hypocrisy and "plastic society" of the Core Worlds during the early time of the Old Republic to find the world of Exo. Their ship, the Exocros Cabal, was damaged in an asteroid storm, and wandered the galaxy until it found Exocron. The planet was named for their ship, and the colonists destroyed their ship and set up a guardian force to keep it safe for future use. In the meantime, the majority of the colonists began living off the land and keeping to themselves. The guardians became known as the Devisors, and became the upper of two social castes. Any new technology had to be approved by the Devisors before it could be made available for general use. The splitting of the social structure was not easy, though, and many small battles erupted between factions who wanted more control or more freedom. A series of unification wars swept the planet in the years just prior to the Battle of Yavin, re-establishing the position of the Devisors. Jorj Car'das retired to Exocron after running into the Aing-Tii monks. (SOP, KO)

Exocron Combined Air-Space Fleet
this was the second generation of the Exocron Airfleet, as it grew to include the protection of the space surrounding Exocron, and not just the immediate atmosphere. It was still commanded by Horzao Darr, some fifteen years after the Battle of Endor. (VOF)

Exocros Cabal
this ancient colony ship was commissioned by Deamos Na-Coth and The Cabal to search for the legendary planet of Exo. The colonists consisted of some 2,000 beings whose families believed deeply in Na-Coth's writings and teachings. When the ship emerged from hyperspace into a stray asteroid storm, it was severely damaged. The captain and much of the crew were killed, and the colonists splintered along varying interpretations of Na-Coth's writings. The ship continued to function, though, and was pursued by pirates. Finally, the surviving engineers aboard took control of the situation and decided to find a planet that was far from the pirate lanes and safe enough to live on. They eventually found the planet Exocron, which was named for the ship. (KO)

Exodeen
this planet is the homeworld of the Exodeenian race. (TNR)

Exodeenian
this alien race is native to the planet Exodeen. They are a predatory race, with six arms and six legs supporting a strong body and long tail. Their wide mouths were fillde with multiple rows of sharp teeth. (TNR)

Exodo II
it was on this black-lava-covered world that Han Solo, Lando Calrissian, and Chewbacca discovered the remains of a New Republic scout cruiser, destroyed by the Needle ships commanded by Dzym and Seti Ashgad. The planet was the homeworld of the ghaswar species. (POT)

Exosquidra
this Calamari ocean creature is considered a delicacy. (SWJ9)

Exotac Arms
this small weapons manufacturer produced a variety of civilian-use weapons. (WSV)

Exotic Entertainers' Union
a consolidated group of dancers, consorts, and prostitutes which provides support when interfacing with crimelords and businessmen. (SE)

Exotic Exhibit
this bar and club on Nar Shaddaa advertised live dancers at nearly every hour. (THG)

Exotic Items
this small shop, located on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, features a wide variety of strange, beautiful, and expensive items from across the galaxy. It even carried a working lightsaber, purchased from a woman named Shavree. (GA)

Exoticalia Pet Emporium
this was the front business set up by Drend Navett and Klif in Drev'starn, during the time they were planning to take out the city's shield generator. As dealers from Fedje, they sold all sorts of exotic creatures as pets. (VOF)

Exovar, Luskin
this man was considered a living legend by many scouts, explorers, and adventurers. Born on Lessuris, he joined the Scout Service in his early teens and made a name for himself by discovering entire sectors of unknown space. His travels became the fodder for a number of tall tales, although these were often beyond the actual truth of the matter. Exovar eventually retired to Neftali, where he went into busines by opening up Exovar's Emporium. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, Exovar was considered a little insane, but he nevertheless could be an incredibly smart and witty friend. (WSV)

Exovar's Emporium
located on the planet Neftali, on the far side of the planet from Cordel Cove, this business was owned and operated by Luskin Exovar. The most memorable feature of the facility was the head of an Imperial AT-AT which guarded the entrance, taken by Luskin when he defeated the walker with just a laser cutter. The starship entrance to the Emporium was guarded by Ion Alley,and visiting ships were parked at Luskin's Landing. Within the Emporium, vistiors were presented with a variety of stores and interesting sights, including artworks by Furva Keill, armor from both the Imperial Royal Guards and the Thyrsus Sun Guards, and a half-dozen actual Jedi lightsabers. Visitors to the Emporium were encouraged to leave behind a personal effect, adding to the vast collection of unique items on display. (WSV)

Exozone
an insectoid bounty hunter on Nar Shaddaa, he helped Boba Fett and Dengar track down Han and Leia when they were on the planet. (DE1)

EXP-7 Predator
this experimental weapon was designed by Exotac Arms, and was developed for hunting large game. Only three were produced: two were tested in Exotac's labs, while the third was given to Kaori Batta for field testing. It was a cumbersome weapon which could inflict devstating damage, and could take down a charging bantha if aimed properly. (WSV)

Expanse, The
this area of Tapani Sector was known for its ore-rich worlds, which were held by the various noble houses. Its capital, and the capital of Tapani Sector, was based on the planet Procopia. During the height of the New Order, it was estimated that there were 345 nobles families which made up the population of The Expanse, broken into Houses. There were seven major Houses which were formed from these families: the greater Houses of Mecetti, Cadriaan, and Melantha; and the lesser Houses of Barnaba, Pelagia, Reena, and Calipsa. Each House has a certain amount of voting power in the Great Council, depending on their current status. (PGT)

Expansion Region
an area of the galaxy once known for its manufacturing plants and heavy industry under the Old Republic, it was originally an experimental sector governed by the corporations working in it. Many of the corporations working their began to take liberties with the worlds they owned, abusing the populace and stripping entire worlds of their natural resources. When word of these atrocities reached the ears of the Old Republic, control of the area was turned over to the Senate. Many of the corporations balked at this, for it reduced the role of the corporations in governing the systems. In order to placate the corporations, the Old Republic set aside a group of uninhabited systems in the Region for use by the corporations, and thus the Corporate Sector was born. This area of the galaxy was responsible for much of the growth experienced in The Slice. It has been in an economic decline ever since, although the Corporate Sector continues to bring in huge profits. (RPG, CSA)

Expansion Week
a holiday celebrated throughout Tapani Sector, Expansion Week comes just before the upper class Capital Season. It fell between the months of Selona and Telona. (LE, PGT)

Expansionist Period
a time of galactic exploration just prior to the birth of the Old Republic, the Expansionist Period quickly followed the invention of stardrives which allowed people to quickly travel between planets. The Expansionist Period reached its height following the invention of the hyperdrive, and led directly into the formation of the Old Republic. (HSL)

Expeditionary Battle Planetoid developed by Raith Sienar, this huge warship used an immense hypermatter reactor to power its hyperdrives and its large, central laser weapon. The design was eventually taken by Wilhuff Tarkin and used as the basis for the first Death Star. (RP)

Expeditions
this Old Republic scout ship was famous for the number of wild and inhospitable planets its crew discovered. (AIR)

Expeditious
a Carrack-class light cruiser assigned to Kirtan Loor. (XWN)

Exploding Star
a ride found at Hologram Fun World, it simulates a trip through extremely hot, exploding supernovas. (QE)

Exploration, Military, and Merchant Services
this branch of the Old Republic was dedicated to educating and producing the galaxy's best starship pilots. the Corulag Acedmy was one of it premier facilities, until it was nationalized by the Empire. (E1A3)

Explorer
1) this was Hydrospeare's submergible exploration vehicle. The Explorer was designed at the request of the Empire, which was looking for an amphibious assault vehicle. The Hydrospeare design was unable to create a craft which was swift underwater while mobile on land, so the Empire funded the underwater piece. The 9.1-meter long craft is only 6 meters in height, and much of that is in the legs.

This meant that the crew space was minimized, making operation close and cramped. Operation of the Explorer required a pilot, co-pilot, and a pair of gunners. The Explorer was propelled on six legs, and was armed with a turret-mounted Arakyd 5-XV cannon and a Taim & Bak SC4 cannon. A Siep-Irol SensAll sensor array provided data about the Explorer's surroundings. (CFG, AIR)
2) the Explorer is a series of 15-meter-long scout ships developed and built in Incom Industries during the height of the New Order. A highly-automated craft, the Explorer series required a pilot and the exploration crew to operate, and could carry up to five metric tons of cargo. (WBC)

this space boat was owned and operated by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. It was assigned to the rescue team which was dispatched to Sedri to recover Mors Odrion. The ship had a wedge-shaped main fuselage, with three combination engines attached at the rear. These engines served as sublight drives, but could also operate underwater. These engines were supplemented with a system of repulsorlifts, and a hyperdrive rounded out its multi-environment propulsion systems. It required a crew of 6, and could transport up to six passengers and 150 metric tons of cargo. The Explorer was armed with a pair of double laser cannons. (BGS)

Explorer Craft
a small, jet-like craft used by Han Solo and Chewbacca on the Millennium Falcon. (WSB)

Explorer Droid
any droid that was manufactured to enter unknown territory and determine its inhabitability. LesTech built a number of explorer droids during the Old Republic. These droids were equipped with seismic sensors, motive sensors, electromagnetic sensors, infrared and visual sensors, two manipulatory arms, and a specimen hopper. The LesTech explorer moved about on treads, and stood about 1.3 meters tall. These droids were sent to a planet's surface in a remote shuttle, and were often destroyed while surveying hostile worlds. (RASB)

Explorer's Guild, The located within Exovar's Emporium, on the planet Neftali, this relaxation chamber was known as a "home away from home" for scouts. (WSV)

Expo Starliner
this starship was a huge ship, much larger that a Koqus Starliner. (SOL)

Express-class Shuttle
a Hapan ambassadorial transport ship. (L)

Exsanguinator
this Victory-class Star Destroyer served the Imperial Fleet until Pash Cracken and his Academy buddies defected to the Alliance. The Star Destroyer tried to cut off their escape, but they managed to destroy it. (WG)

Exterminator
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was built at the Kuat Drive Yards during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ9)

Extent Systems
manufacturers of interstellar cargo storage shells. (XW)

Extinguishers
this was the name of the Bothan fire fighting team stationed in Drev'starn, on Bothawui. (VOF)

EXVR-1 Guardian Grid
this was the name of an ion generation field produced during the height of the New Order. Known as an ion defense grid, the EXVR-1 was essentially a durasteel tunnel lined with wide-pattern ion cannons. The EXVR-1 could unleash a barrage of intense ion energy on any ship passing through it, rendering the electrical and computer systems of the craft inoperable and, in many cases, permanently damaged. (WSV)

Eyar City
this sewers of this city were populated by a variety of criminals and rebel cells, since they were rarely swept by either Eyar Treatment Systems or the local law enforcement agency. (HAS)

Eyar Treatment Systems
this corporation was charged with cleaning and maintaining the huge maze of underground sewers beneath Eyar City. ETS was often underfunded by the local government, and could barely keep up with the continual work of cleaning the sewers. (HAS)

Eye of Koda
this ancient artifact resembled a heavy, diamond-shaped amulet. It was named for Krin Koda, the scout who found it originally after stumbling upon a remote planet. The world became known as Koda's World, and after landing he discovered that the native Tempestro were being killed by a known disease. After administering the antidote and curing the Tempestro, they presented him with the Eye, as they were unaware of its power. He believed it was a map to a planet which held the ultimate in wealth and power. The small particles suspended within the amulet do indeed map out the location of a planetary system, although Krin Koda never found it. Several legends surround the actual benefit to be gained on the planet, the most common of which requires the holder of the Eye to gain entrance to a temple on the planet and stand on the altar within it. If this is accomplished, the holder will gain the ability to move unseen among his fellow beings, and gains a mastery over them. Krin Koda himself disappeared before finding the temple, and misfortune seemed to follow anyone else who found the amulet. A group of scouts found the Eye on Vengler, shortly after the Battle of Endor, and raced the evil magician Dhar Bullwin to Koda's World to discover its abilities. The map within the Eye leads to Koda's World, and was meant to be a way for the modern Tempestro to discover the knowledge of their ancient ancestors, should they ever regain the civilization they once had. The temple contained all the knowledge and power, hidden within its stone walls, and only the most worthy beings would be able to benefit from them. (GG8)

the specially-designed starship Eye of Palpatine was basically a huge dreadnaught hidden inside an asteroid-like shell. The moon-sized craft could travel hyperspace until it neared a target, then drop into normal space. It would then swing into the destination system as a piece of space debris. It automated firing controls could then unleash a huge gout of firepower, capable of destroying an entire planet. In overall length, the ship was larger than a Super-class Star Destroyer. As part of the mission of the Eye, special stromtrooper squadrons were dropped on hostile worlds in the Outer Rim Territories and told to await pick-up by the new starship. They were never told what to expect, let alone that the Emperor Palpatine himself was the only personal holding all the cards. When the Jedi Knights discovered Palpatine's plans for the Eye of Palpatine, they sent Callista and another Jedi to disabled the craft. Callista sacrificed herself to the ship's automated defenses as the other Jedi escaped. She then used the Force to lock herself into the computer's automated firing controls. In this position, she was able to counteract The Will of the ship and keep it from being reactivated by incoming Imperials by destroying any approaching ships. Over the years, with Palpatine's involvement as Emperor and his death at Endor, the various stormtrooper groups died or were killed by indigenous life. Callista remained resident in the firing control section of the computer core. When Luke Skywalker, Cray Mingla, and Nichos Marr went to the Moonflower Nebula, they activated the Eye's proximity alarms, and Callista fired on them, stranding them on Pzob. This somehow set off the Eye's seek-and-recover systems, and it wnet about its preprogrammed mission. However, it could only collect native life-forms, not the stormtroopers it should have. Various life-forms were then subjected to the Eye's brainwashing indocatrination and turned into stormtroopers. The brainwashing included the implanting of false images portraying the Jedi Knights as murderers and plunderers. (COJ)

Eye of Shiblizar
this old Ulig Abaha Dimel attack ship was modified by Zlarb and Magg for use as a slave transport. Magg was able to locte it through Espo channels from his Corporate Sector Authority offices. Measuring 95 meters in length, the Eye of Shiblizar could carry up to 660 metric tons of cargo. Its cargo bays were also capable of carrying up to three pinnaces, which would account for 60 metric tons of cargo. The ship was modified to including heavier weapons and a more modern drive system. It is armed with ten double-laser cannons, an ion cannon, and a tractor beam projector. Slaves were never actually delivered with the Eye of Shiblizar, however. Zlarb and Magg would rendezvous at a pre-arranged location with a ship they would "hijack." The slaves carried in the Eye's holds would be transferred to the "hijacked" ship, which would be released once it was loaded. Zlarb and Magg would then move off to pick up their next load of slaves. The Eye of Shiblizar was manned by a crew of 23, with 43 gunners and a security force of 34 troopers. (CSA)

Eye of the Needle
this section of Beggar's Canyon on Tatooine is a narrow slot-shaped canyon filed with jagged, tooth-like rocks. (SE)

Eye-flower Seaweed
this animated oceanic plant is found on the planet Hapes. The fronds of the plant lay motionless in the water until a boat or animal stumbles into them. Then, large red flowers seem to bloom from the plant, opening to reveal eyes. The eyes help the primitive mind locate the intruder, and the seaweed uses the talons which stud its fronds to catch the prey. The seaweed is a cunning hunter, although its overall intelligence is minimal. (L)

Eye-on-U
this is one of the two major newsgrid services available to the natives of the planet Utharis. It is regularly available on the Utharis Gridlink. (TT)

Eye-snatcher
this beautiful red bird was native to an unspecified planet in the Ottega System. It was named for its habit of swoping down on a being and pulling out their eyes with its talons. The bird belived it was simply rescuing its eggs, which were shaped and colored like eyeballs. The eggs of the eye-snatcher were considered a delicacy whenever they were hard-boiled, a fact which led to increased boldness in the attacks of eye-snatchers. However, eating a nest full of hard-boiled eye-snatcher eggs often meant consuming a real eyeball or two. (E1A7)

Eyeball
Alliance starfighter pilot slang term for a TIE Fighter. (XWN)

Eyes
this was the nickname of one of the Alliance's most unusual information contacts. It was rumored that Eyes was a member of an alen race exterminated by Emperor Palpatine and the Empire, although this has never been proven. Of course, it's never been proven because no other member of Eyes' species has ever been encountered, and he wasn't telling. Whatever the case, Eyes appears to be a humanoid creature whose thin body is topped with a thick stalk from which protrude more than twenty eye-stalks. Each stalk has a fully-functioning eyeball in its socket, and Eyes can view a complete 360-degree area at one time. Eyes lived in the Snakes' Den area of Camden, spending much of his time at the Jade Simian. There, he (although no one has ever determined Eyes' exact sex) brokers information which he usually then sells to the Alliance. Eyes maintained his own personal grudge against the Empire, and it was rumored that he also had an affinity with the Force. It is known that Eyes used his mysterious abilities to hunt down and kill an Imperial customs officer in cold blood. (CRO)

Eyes of Mesra
this device was rumored to be able to predict the future, but ultimately became nothing more than a child's toy. They were quite popular on backwater worlds such as Tatooine, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (IG1)

Eyeshine
this modified Barloz-class freighter was owned and operated by Mal Biron. It was armed with a turret-mounted quad laser cannon and a pair of ion cannons, and was equipped for long scouting missions. The ship was named for a Shistavenan female Mal Biron once romanced, and was equipped with an X10-D droid brain. (SSR)

Eyrgen
this Imperial Moff was in charge of the Wornal Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He and Moff Prentioch were constantly at odds with each other, as they tried to expand their own personal territories following the Battle of Endor. (SWAJ)

Eyrie Base
this was one of the many Alliance bases that came to aid the survivors of the Battle of Hoth. It was located on the planet Karatha, situated in the depths of a great, ancient sink hole. The walls of the sink hole had solidified over time, forming limestone cliffs. (SWJ8)

Eyttyn, Kol
this man served as a Wing Commander aboard the New Republic carrier-cruiser Thurse, during the New Republic's battles with the Yuuzhan Vong. During the struggle to recover the Queen of Empire near Bilbringi, Eyttyn and his squadron discovered that the Yuuzhan Vong starships were capable to making calculated microjumps through hyperspace in a fraction of a second. (HT)

Eyttyrmin
this planet, found in the Khuiumin System, was the homeworld of the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates. (SWAJ)

Eyttyrmin Batiiv
a band of pirates from the Khuiumin system who wreaked havoc in the galaxy during the early years of Palpatine's New Order. They maintained a small armada of 70 starfighters, 50 star yachts, 28 corvettes, and a number of civilian ships; the fleet numbers more than 140 ships. They were wiped out in an attack by the Empire: 8,000 pirates started the battle, 272 emerged from it. (SWSB)

Eyvind
a moisture farmer on Tatooine, he toiled the air currents about the same time as Owen Lars and Ariq Joanson. Eyvind felt that Ariq's beliefs in a peaceful human-Jawa-Sand Person existence were foolish. When Eyvind became engaged to Ariela, she helped Eyvind understand Ariq's dreams a little better, and Eyvind allowed Ariq to invite some Jawas to the wedding. The two were married on the same day that Imperial stormtroopers destroyed a Jawa sandcrawler and the Lars homestead in search of R2-D2 and C-3PO. The Jawas were grateful for the invitation, and brought a great many gifts. Unfortunately, a group of young Sand People out to prove their adulthood attacked the reception, killing Eyvind and carrying off Ariela. Eyvind left his farm to Ariela, which she and Ariq agreed to tend, when it was safe again. (TME)

EZ 2-1B
this malfunctioning medical droid lived deep within the Port Town section of Cloud City. EZ 2-1B made a living by performing illegal cybernetic operations on beings, mainly giving them incredible computer brains for the storage of information. Many of the outpost's infochants sent their employees to EZ 2-1B for these operations, although the droid never offered a guarantee. (GG2)

Ezrakh
this Noghri served as one of Leia Organa-Solo's bodyguards during her mission to the Chorios Systems to meet with Seti Ashgad. Although Leia had removed the Noghri from their service to her, a warning about the trip had caused herto summon Ezrakh and Gshkaath to accompany her and supplement her honor guard. Like most every other being in the small group of ships that accompanied Leia to Chorios, Ezrakh was killed by the Death Seed plague. (POT)

E3-series Droid
this series of companion droids was produced by Cybot Galactica. Roughly humanoid in stature and standing about a meter tall, these droids were designed and programmed to perform the more manual labor their owners required. (WSV)

E522
a model of assassin droid characterized by its waspish waist, large shoulders, and squared-off head. (TME)

F-Web
this successor to the E-Web weapon had increased power, and was equipped with a gunner shield. It's main role was as an infantry anti-personnel weapon. The F-Web was also collapsible, making it easy to set up and take down. (CSA)

f-2
this is the designation of Comar’s light ion cannon. Many tramp freighter captains installed this weapon on their ships, since it was a relatively inexpensive way to disable an attacking ship. (GG6)

F-3PO
this droid worked as a protocol on Cloud City until the prototype X0-X1 took control of the city. X0-X1 also took control of F-3PO and forced the droid to execute Doctor Issan Len. F-3PO retained enough of its original programming to regret the murder, but was powerless to stop X0-X1. (CCC)

f-4
this is the designation of Comar’s medium ion cannon. It was more powerful than the f-2, but not as strong as the f-6. (GG6)

f-6
this is the designation of Comar’s most powerful ion cannon, designed for use on transport ships and bulk freighters. (GG6)

f-9
this was the designation of Comar's heavy ion cannon. (FOP)

F'Dann IX
this planet is located near Filve, and was the site of a battle between Imperial forces and the Crimson Nova pirates. (TBSB)

F'ej D'aw
this Klatooinan thug worked for Nawnum the Hutt during the Galactic Civil War. His services were sught after by Ganis the Hutt, in an attempt to bring down Nawnum and take over his small empire. (IA)

F'la Ren
a blue-white star, it is the primary sun of the planet F'tral. (GG4)

F'quallix
this Nalroni was known as a spice-jacker who made every effort to insure that his crew was not harmed during an operation. It was believed that F'quallix was just an alias, but his true identity was never discovered. (GG11)

F'tral
an ocean world orbitting F'la Ren, F'tral is home to the Iyra species. The volcanic islands that have formed in these clear, fresh oceans have become the homes of specialized plants. These plants have adapted to become competent fishing plants, voracious cannibal plants, and some have evolved that can seduce other lifeforms near enough for capture. It is located in the Calaron Sector. Many of the planet's oceans are deep, with depths up to eleven kilometers. In other areas, the oceans are shallow tidal pools. (GG4, REB)

Fa-Loh-Sui
this modified Corellian Engineering Corporation CR90 corvetter was the flagship of Abin-Ral-Xufush's Dark Wing pirate fleet. It was armed with four double turblaser cannons, an ion cannon, and a tractor beam generator. The ship was taken from an Alliance force which patrolled the Outer Rim, and was named for a Tiss'shar assassin Abin-Ral-Xufush had once courted. (PP)

Faa
one of several species of scalefish native to the oceans of Naboo. (IG1)

Faarl the Conqueror
this is the name used by Faarl, a young man from the planet Korlings. Often called the Child Conquerer, Faarl was the eldest son of a noble family of Korlings, and was barely sixteen when Emperor Palpatine was killed at Endor. He started out his career as a pirate, raiding the defenseless worlds of Wild Space. By the age of nineteen, he had conquered seven or more primitive planets located in the Parthovian Cluster. He was feared on the planets he conquered, especially in the Parthovian Cluster. He preys mainly on planets with small populations and limited defenses. He established his base of power on the planet Pochi, in a citadel known as Fortress Baarlos. (WBC)

Faarlsun

Fala
this Sedrian female was the daughter of the renegade priest Karak, but was unaware of her father's ambitions until he was driven out of Fitsay by Cardo. She was also a priestess of the Golden Sun, and served as her father's high priestess after he fled Fitsay. She believed that Karak had fled the city in order to find a way to free the Golden Sun for all Sedrians. The Alliance team sent to rescue Mors Odrion was brought to Karak's settlement by Pek, and they were able to convince Fala that her father simply wanted the Golden Sun for his own use. The discovery of Karak's plans to share the Golden Sun with the Empire turned Fala away from her father. She joined forces with Pek in an effort to ensure the Golden Sun was available to all Sedrians. After defeating her father and scattering pieces of the Golden Sun across Sedri's oceans, Fala and Pek were married, and together they worked to restore Sedrian society to its former state. (BGS)

Falaco Don-DeMardo
this General Manager of Marqua Spas fired his assistant manager, Tarin DeHallo, after she hired Jantaa Binx. Falconi, Shamus this native of the planet Algor was born to a family of highly successful pirates and smugglers. However, the abilities seemed tied to the females of his family. His grandmother was a successful pirate, and his mother and sisters were equally successful. He lacked their abilities, and turned to smuggling instead. He used the starship his grandmother had left to him, the 300-year-old PB-950 known as the Lumrunner, to travel the galaxy, but the ship was in constant need of repair. He won't ever reveal who he came to meet his partner, Grasheel, but the pair manage to keep the old ship flying. He has cultivated a wide network of informants and friends who kept him employed, primarily in the Mestra System It was here that he started running guns for Dutan Lee, and came under the notice of Captain Alijah Orr. He has managed to keep out of Orr's way, thanks to the help of Port Captain Renea Luies. (SWJ9)

Faleur, Reina
this woman was a member of the New Republic's Supply and Ordnance division, and held the rank of Lieutenant shortly after the Battle of Endor. Tycho Celchu tried to fix Wedge Antilles up on a date with her, during a stop-over after Rogue Squadron returned from Eiattu. She agreed to the date, and had to fight off the attentions of Wes Janson while exercising. (XWMR)

Faleur, Sera
this woman married Gavin Darklighter several years after the Battle of Bilbringi. Together, the couple adoped two sons who were orphans of the campaign against Grand Admiral Thrawn. They later had a daughter before Gavin was promoted to Commander of Rogue Squadron, then gave birth to a third son and a second daughter. Sera was a native of Chandrila, and grew up on the shores of the Silver Sea. During the battle against the Yuuzhan Vong, she took her children and remained hidden on Chandrila, while Gavin commanded Rogue Squadron in battle. (DTO, DTR)

Falk
this young man was a boyhood friend of Dodo Bodonawieedo. They grew up in the streets of Mos Eisley, frocking Jawas and running information for the Shawpees. They eventually were hired as informants by Jabba the Hutt, but Falk was soon caught eavesdropping on Bib Fortuna. The Twi'lek reported him, and Jabba had Falk executed. (MTSE)

Falken, Rorax
this renowned physicist was one of the multitude of scientists and engineers whose work was incorporated into the first Death Star. When he discovered that the Empire had put his well-intentioned ideas to use in a weapon of mass destruction, he suffered a massivebreakdown. Falken was confined to a repulsorchair from that point on, and became very secretive. He was easily noticed by his repulsorchiar, but also by his wild, unkempt, gray hair. After retiring to Mrlsst, Falken's work became the founding influence for the band Ghost Jedi. His music has been praised throughout the galaxy as precise yet emotionless, much like the scientific work he performs. During the New Republic's struggle for control of the Phantom Project, Falken's lab was attacked by Imperial forces under the command of Loka Hask. Falken was killed in the crossfire between Rogue Squadron and Hask's troops. (XWPA)

Fallanassi
a race of humans which originated on Lucazec, the Fallanassi eventually became a quasi-religious order made up of various species. They followed the way of the White Current. The Fallanassi were the subject of Imperial pursuit during the Galactic Civil War, for Palpatine wanted to control their Force-like powers. The Fallanassi fled Lucazec some two years before the Battle of Yavin, and scattered throughout the galaxy. They have an innate ability to change names, appearances, and habits in order to blend in with their surroundings. This has allowed them to evade Imperial pursuit on the various worlds they fled to, such as Teyr and Atzerri. Most of the Fallanassi had relocated to planets in the Koornacht Cluster, and were subjected to the executions of the Yevetha during the Black Fleet Crisis. A few realized the danger, and sent the Star Morning to recover any and all survivors. Following the Battle of N'zoth, the remaining Fallanassi fled the Cluster and hid themselves, hoping to recover from their losses and regain their strength and unity. (BTS, SOL)

Falleen
1) the homeworld of the Falleen race. Darth Vader once set up a bacteriological research outpost on the planet. When a highly-destructive bacterium got loose, Vader acted without remorse. He ordered his ships in orbit to raze the laboratory and the city surrounding it. Vader wiped out the bacterium, along with an entire city and over two hundred thousand Falleen. Among the dead were Prince Xizor's parents, a brother and two sisters, and three uncles. Decades later, Falleen fell to the Yuuzhan Vong, shortly after the destruction of the Fondor shipyards and Hosk Station. (SE, MA, BP)

2) a reptilian alien race characterized by their cool, calculating demeanor. They despised mammalian races as inferior to their cold, reptilian cousins. They were covered with small scales, and often had a topknot of hair on their heads. Their scales change color with their emotions, and they exude intense pheromones when they want to. The males use these pheromones to attract females. The Falleen are humanoid in stature, and have clawed fingers and toes. Their ancestors lived in the water, and most Falleen litters are birthed in the water. They have evolved into what some consider the most beautiful of all humanoid races. As a people, the Falleen existed in a feudal society, with noble houses ruling over lower classes of artisans, workers, and slaves. Rather than become wrapped up in learning about the galaxy at large, the Falleen chose to remain introverted and refine their already "superior" culture. Then, about ten years before the Battle of Hoth, Darth Vader eliminated a great portion of the Falleen population in order to stop the spread of a bioweapon which had been tested on the planet and had been set free. In reaction to these murders, the Falleen withdrew even further from the galactic community. After the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy, the Falleen were forced to flee the alien invaders, who subjugated their homeworld shortly after the Battle of Fondor. (SE, AE, BP)

Falleen's Fist
Prince Xizor's personal skyhook on Coruscant, it was destroyed during the space battle over Coruscant between Xizor's forces trying to intercept Leia Organa and the Alliance. The battle attracted the attention of the Imperial fleet under Darth Vader, who concentrated his fire on Xizor's forces instead of the Alliance. Vader wanted thwart Xizor's attempts to kill Luke Skywalker, and chose to have Luke escape. Vader opened fire on Xizor's skyhook when Xizor failed to call in his ships. It is believed that Xizor was killed on the skyhook. (SE)

Fallone, Hahz
depending on who you talked to, this man was known as a shrewd businessman or a consummate crook. He had strong ties to the business community in Iritsa, on the planet Chazwa, and was suspected of being the leader of a criminal organization. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, he was rumored to have possession of the Black Sphere, and a bounty was placed on its return. The natives of Eckless had been subjugated by Fallone's forces, and forced to mine ores and minerals for Fallone's own use. The natives rebelled, and managed to unseat Fallone's position of power. However, Fallone stole the Black Sphere before he left the planet and fled back to Chazwa. He used the money he obtained from the sale of the ores and minerals to bankroll his operations on Chazwa, and grew steadily richer. However, he was pursued to Chazwa by Rusha and a group of bounty hunters searching for the Black Sphere. During the hunt, it was revealed that Fallone had used ships and men from Jorga Sune's group to work on Eckless, under a truce which Fallone reneged on as soon as he had the Black Sphere. When Fallone learned that Rusha was looking for him, he used her bounty on the Sphere to help eliminate Jorga Sune. He also had Rusha killed in the process, thereby eliminating all threats against him. (ND)

2) a pirate Captain known as the Pirate Prince, Fandar was, at one time, ranked as high a sixth on the Empire's "most wanted" lists. He ravaged Imperial space, stealing whatever he could. He was employed briefly by the Alliance, in an attempt to harass and disrupt Imperial shipping lanes. (RPG)

Fandomar
Momaw Nadon's Ithorian wife, she lived and worked aboard the Tafanda Bay even while Nadon was exiled from the planet. She greeted Hoole and his young charges, Zak and Tash Arranda, when they arrived on Ithor to pick up supplies. She accompanied them to Mining Station Alpha as part of her own, self-imposed punishment, and was taken aback to learn that the tomb which held the entity known as Spore had been opened. She destroyed the mining outpost in an effort to kill Spore, but the entity had already infected Hodge. They escaped to Ithor, but Spore attacked as soon as they were on the ground. She later revealed to Tash Arranda that she was the individual who told the Empire about Spore's existence, and that was why she made regular runs to Mining Station Alpha. (TME, GOF9)

Fanfar
a musical instrument. (TME)

Fang
this assassin droid was employed by Boddu Bocck as the guardian of his offices in Port Town on Cloud City. The droid resembled a small All-Terrain Scout Transport, and was named for the metallic spikes which filled its "mouth." (IDC)

Fangol
this small, frozen world is located in Mortex Sector, and was the site of a hidden Alliance base. The base housed the sector's headquarters deep in the icy crust of the planet. The planet was continually shrouded in a white, icy mist that was formed from the ejecta of hundreds of icy volcanoes. The mists reflected all light from space, making the planet appear to be a solid ball of white. The mists also disrupted communications, so the Alliance established a listening post on the planet's only moon. The mists themselves are poisonous to breathe, being laden with sulfur and other chemicals from the volcanoes. The Alliance brought the captured Black Ice to Fangol, unaware that the Empire had placed a homing beacon on the ship. The Alliance was forced to evacuate the base, but Lawra Mers proposed using the Black Ice to ram the torpedo sphere sent to wipe out the base. The plan succeeded, giving the Alliance an oppportunity to safely evacuate the base. (BI)

Fanron, Dasha
this Lieutenant Commander served the New Republic as a customs officer in the Ison Corridor. He was the first agent to successfully capture the Twi'leki slaver Slar-dan ti Gardi when the slaver attempted to bribe him. (SWJ8)

Far Distance
one of the many Ferroan settlements on the planet Zonama Sekot, buyers of Sekotan starships were brought to Far Distance in order to be united with seed-partners. (RP)

Far Orbit
this Nebulon-B frigate was under Imperial control until one of its commanders, Dhas Vedij, staged a mutiny and took control of the ship from Captain Kenit. Vedij then provided his assistance to the Alliance, and used the Far Orbit to launch privateer raids on near-Core systems during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB, FOP)

Far Orbit Project
this Alliance operation was based on a series of ideas and proposals from Ral'Rai Muvunc, and involved using privateers to harass Imperial patrols and obtain supplies for the Alliance. The Alliance contracted the services of Dhas Vedij and the Far Orbit to raid Imperial worlds and convoys in the Ringali Shell shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The project was considered by many to be a success, as Vedij and his crew single-handedly captured Imperial Advisor Coh Veshiv, obtained a wealth of Imperial and corporate cargoes, and pirated a huge cache of gems, spice, and artworks from the Star Galleon Emperor's Will. All profits were split evenly between the Alliance and the crew of the Far Orbit. (FOP)

Far Outsiders
this was the Ferroan name for the alien race which attacked the planet Zonama Sekot shortly after the Battle of Naboo. The Far Outsiders seemed to have no connection to the Force, and despite the fact that they flew in starships which were oragnic in nature and similar to Sekotan starships, the planet rejected them as did the Magister. They retailated by attacking the planet from orbit, leaving much of the southern hemisphere in ruins. The Jedi Knight Vergere gave herself up to the Far Outsiders, in an effort to stop the bombardment. The Far Outsiders agreed to Vergere's plan, and left the planet with her. A year later, Zonama Sekot was attacked by Wilhuff Tarkin, and Sekot armed the planet's huge hyperdrives and took it into hyperspace. Could these be the Yuuzhan Vong? (RP)

Far Seeker
this decrepit luxury liner was the only ship that plied the only major hyperspace route through the Minor Cluster, during the New Order. Its point of origin was on Travnin. (GG6)

Far*Reach IV PQR
this Loronar starship was designed for use as an Imperial survey vessel. It measured 80 meters in length, and was a bullet-shaped ship with two sets of wings. The first pair of wings was large, designed as cargo holds. The smallre, rearward pair of wings acted as stabilizers. The Far*Reach was armed with four laser cannons, and required a crew of six. (IC)

Fara's Belt
located in the Rolion Sector, this area of the galaxy was the site of an Imperial base in that sector. The Alliance hoped to attack it and make off before the Imperial knew what hit them, but Major Herrit had planted false information, and was aware of the impending attack. The Alliance's General Dodonna was in charge of the B-Wing attack, which was immediately surrounded and decimated by TIE Fighters. (RASB)

Farana Sector
this area of space is located on the far side of the Corporate Sector from Atzerri. (SOL)

Farang
1) one of the native races of the planet Ab'Bshingh, the Farangs were almost constantly at war with the Waroot race throughout their history. When the planet was discovered by the Empire, the many battles were studied by the Imperial strategist Crat Dakerno, who was sent to subjugate the two races. Dakerno used their complex maneuvers to create the board game known as B'shingh. (SWJ8)
2) a gamepiece used in the game B'shingh. (TFE, SWJ8)

Farazzish
a Virujansian senator rescued from Captivity by the Alliance. (RC)

Farblemumble
a term used by Leia Organa-Solo to describe the multitude of people she met as the young daughter of Bail Organa. (SOL)

Farboon
a planet captured by the Empire just before the Battle of Hoth. While in orbit around the planet, the Star Destroyer Vengeance was undergoing minor repairs when Maarek Stele took a TIE Interceptor out for a test run. He was wuickly caught up in the action when Admiral Mordon's shuttle was intercepted by Alliance spies. Stele rescued the shuttle with some help, and was admitted into TIE Pilot training. (TIE)

Fardreamer, Cole
this young man was a native of the planet Tatooine, and grew up after Luke Skywalker had become a hero of the Alliance. Like many youths of his time, he grew up hoping to follow in Luke's footsteps. He began tinkering with landspeeders and skyhoppers, making a name for himself as a repairman. His dreams would have died, when he learned that much of Luke's success was due to the Force, except for the taunts he continually received from his peers. Their jeers only hardened his resolve, and he left Tatooine to become a mechanic for the New Republic on Coruscant. His abilities quickly earned him the respect and admiration of his superiors, and he was generally regarded as being on par with the Kloperians. It was Cole who was spotted by Skywalker, when he came to investigate the status of his X-Wing. Finding it dismantled for refitting, Luke demanded the Cole put it back together. In doing so, Cole discovered a detonation device in the new flight computer. Taking the initiative, Cole investigated all of the X-Wings, including the newer models. Similar detonation devices were in all of the New Republic's X-Wings, and despite the lack of support from the Kloperians, Cole persisted. He drew the attention of Wedge Antilles, who understood what Cole had discovered, and allowed Cole to continue his investigation. However, he became entangled with R2-D2 and C-3PO, and found himself in a stolen transport destined for Telti. It was there that he discovered Brakiss' droid factory, and the detonators being installed within them. He managed to get a message back to the New Republic, and got them to deactivate their droids. With the help of R2-D2 and C-3PO, he was able to drive Brakiss's droid troops away and forced Brakiss off Telti, eliminating the threat of more rigged droids. (TNR)

Farege, Wertram
this lithe, wily man was full of false bravado and swagger, but was really a coward at heart. Farege was also a double agent who worked with both the New Republic and the Iskalloni who tried to gain control of the galaxy. He tried to contract a group of Republic agents to transport droids, and during the trip he sabotaged their ship. He then planned to deliver the ship to the Iskalloni, so that they could raid its databanks of the locations of New Republic worlds. The Iskalloni could then move in and enslave the worlds, after enslaving the agents. However, Farege was double-crossed by the Iskalloni, which enslaved him as soon as they found the New Republic ship. Seeing that he had been used, Farege resisted long enough to warn the agents of the impending Iskalloni attack. He was later rescued by the agents, and the Iskalloni mutagen was removed from his system. (TSK)

Farell, Nalco
this man was the precinct director of the Thimwa district of Cmaoli Di, on the planet Mallonore, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ12)

Farfeld II
this planet, located in the Farfeld System, was the site of an Imperial system patrol fleet of CR90 corvettes. The Alliance gained knowledge of the base and destroyed it during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Fargednim P'taan
a moderately successful drug smuggler operating after the Battle of Endor. He operated on the planet Yetoom, and his medium-sized operation was growing during the early years of the New Republic. (COJ)

Farghul
this is the native sentient species found on the planet Farrfin. They are a felinoid race, covered in tawny fur and having prehensile tails. They are fearsome fighters and cunning thieves, although they were particularly intimidated by the Jedi Knights after the Jedi of the Old Republic tried to wipe out the smuggling bases on Farrfin. Farghuls are also distrustful of most politicians, and tend to be slightly xenophobic. (TTSB)

Faris
this small-time spacer was a confederate of Pyrron Nox. (SSR)

Faris, Alek
this man was known aouse Pelagia's strongest diplomat and advisor during the Clone Wars, despite the fact the he was a native of Brentaal. (PGT)

Farlander, Keyan
Keyan Farlander grew up on Agamar, and was indifferent to the ways of the galactic government until Mon Mothma came to the planet to gain underground support for the Alliance. Farlander received a copy of the A Call to Reason pamphlet, and it turned his mind to the Alliance. He joined up, and decided the he wanted to be a starfighter pilot. As an untrained Alliance starpilot on his first mission, Keyan helped recover important Imperial documents by disabling the Imperial shuttle Talon near Turkana. He proved his incredible piloting skills there as well, and went on to become one of the Alliance's premier pilots. He was instrumental in raids on a number of Imperial outposts, and was part of the team that fled to Yavin 4 to prepare for battle against the Death Star. While on Yavin 4, Keyan helped familiarize Luke Skywalker on the controls of the X-Wing. (XW)

Farlander, Kitha
Kitha is Keyan Farlander's sister. She was in Tondatha when the Empire invaded the town, and was severely burned. Keyan sent her to Oorn Tchis to live with her aunt and uncle, Mimya and Trinn. There, she received medical treatment and was able to survive, although she had to undergo intense rehabilitation during her first years on Oorn Tchis. (XW)

Farlax Sector
this area of the galaxy, containing the Koornacht Cluster, was defended by the Black Sword Command during the Imperial Civil War. It was located in the Rim Territories, and was largely unexplored by New Republic surveyors. Farlax Sector also contains the Hatawa and Kokash Systems, and accounts for more than 2,000 inhabited worlds. Some 300 of these worlds were members of the New Republic before the Yevethan Purge. (BTS, SOL)

Farlek
this species of four-legged creature could grow to 1.5 meters in height. They were covered with thick scales, and their wide heads were protected by bony plates. They are usually green in color, although albino specimens have been collected. They smell awful, but are not kept for their companionship. Instead, they are used as guardians and hunting beasts. In the wild, farleks, use their long, sticky tongues to catch and ensnare their prey. (OE)

Farlhu
this is one of the three largest cities found on the planet Farrfin. Like Jahhnu and Geltyu, it is best known for the criminal element which thrives within its borders. (TTSB)

Farlight
this New Republic warship was part of the Third Battle Group, and was assigned to blockade Wehttam during the Yevethan Purge. (SOL)

Farmer's Folly
this seedy tavern is located as far from the starport as could be, while still being within the city limits of Starpoint, on the planet Draenell's Point. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Farmer's Folly was owned and operated by Kesha Weebe. (GMK)

Farng
a carbonite trader executed by Aleema and Satal Keto. (DLS)

Farns
this gang of youths from Mos Eisley was supposed to be the spaceport city's swoop gang, but none of the members actually owened a swoop. The closest thing to a swoop was the Starhawk speederbike owned by Franklin Scott. They were basically an honest, unthreatening group of youths - definitely not your typical swoop gang. (GG7)

Farnym
this alien race had a large, round body covered with short fur. Their small limbs and bulbous appearance betrayed an incredible strength. Their heads were emphasized by short snouts and orange eyes. (TNR)

Farool, Braig
this overweight, balding human was the planetary Governor and Chief Administrator of TransGalMeg Industries, Incorporated, on the planet Narg. Slightly overweight and balding Braig Farool lived the easy life after climbing to the top of TGM's corporate structure. He always dressed well, and meticulously groomed what little hair had left. Braig once tried to expand his horizons by capturing the Shashay space singer known as Crying Dawn Sunger, hoping to break the fragile alliance between the Shashay and the Alliance itself. The plan, implemented with information gathered by his brother, Nak, involved blaming the Alliance for the kidnapping of Crying Dawn Singer. However, Braig's ambitions went beyond this simple plan. He also prepared false holovids which he hoped would discredit Rayter Sector's Moff, Nile Owen, and place Braig himself into the office. However, Moff Owen discovered Nak's part in the plan, and executed him. Shortly afterward, Braig went mad. A group of Alliance agents were able to intercept Braig before Owen got to him, and tried take him prisoner while rescuing Crying Dawn Singer. Although the Shashay was successfully recovered, it is unknown if Braig Farool survived the Alliance's rescue, or the wrath of Nile Owen, following the exposure of Farool's plans. (TA)

Farool, Nak
Braig Farool's younger brother, Nak was a special assistant to Rayter Sector's Moff Nile Owen during the Galactic Civil War. In this position, he learned that the Alliance was attempting to form a mutual support pact with the Shashay, and that an Alliance agent was travelling with the Shashay space singer, Crying Dawn Singer. Nak forwarded this information to his brother, and together they devised a plot to discredit the Alliance and bring favor upon themselves from Moff Owen. However, Braig aspired to more than just simple recognition from the Moff, and tried to discredit the Moff himself. A further plan was devised, with a holo-transmission showing Nak publicly proclaiming Owen's lack of feeling for the Shashay. Owen intercepted the transmission, and executed Nak for his part in the plan. (TA)

Farr, Samoc
Toryn Farr's younger sister, Samoc was one of the Alliance's best fighter pilots. She had helped in the Battle of Hoth as a snowspeeder pilot, and was shot down by an AT-AT walker. She suffered burns over most of her body, and was in shock when Alliance soldiers found her. They dragged her out of her speeder and got her on the transport ship Bright Hope. When the bounty hunters 4-LOM and Zuckuss rescued the passengers of the Hope, Samoc was treated at the Alliance medical facilities on Darlyn Boda and recovered. (TBH)

Farr, Toryn
this Alliance soldier served as the Echo Base's Chief Controller of operations before and during the Battle of Hoth. She was the primary relay between the Alliance's commanders and the ground troops, and acted as the interface between command and the ion cannon gunners. In this role, she was the last person to evacuate Echo Base during the Battle of Hoth. She managed to escape on the Bright Hope, and worked to get 18 members of the crew into escape pods. They jettisoned, and landed on Hoth. She also worked with the bounty hunters 4-LOM and Zuckuss to rescue 90 others, and was promoted to Special Forces Commander for her actions. Toryn also received a medal of merit for her bravery. She later led the Alliance team which rescued the 18 who landed on Hoth in the Bright Hope's escape pods. (CCG3, TBH)

Farral, Kanda
an inexperienced salvager whose first zero-G salvage involved the recovery of dumped Imperial technology for Sreethyn. (ISB)

Farrberry
a galactic delicacy, farrberries are prized for their fine scent and invigorating effect when eaten. The finest farrberries are grown in the Xorth System. (TIE)

Farrell, Jake
this man served the Old Republic, during its last years, and a starfighter pilot. Later, after the advent of the New Order, he retired from active duty to train younger pilots. When the missions he became invovled in turned from simple defensive skirmishes to outright destruction, he fled Imperial service and hid on a remote planet. When he learned of the Alliance and its struggle against the Empire, Farrell came out of retirement to assist in the training of Alliance starfighter pilots. He was best known for his no-nonsense approach to training, and demanded that his trainees learn discipline and control. (RA)

Farrfin
this planet was the homeworld of the Farghul race, and was the capital planet of a sector of the galaxy which became part of the New Republic. The Republic put up a strong fight against Grand Admiral Thrawn there. It was best known as a haven for smugglers during the height of the Old Republic. (TLC, TTSB, AE)

Farris Wheel
a renowned hotel and club found in the Mid Rim. (GG9)

Farrow Bird
native to the planet Aruza, this bird has a patch of bioluminescent feathers on its chest. The flashes of light which occur when the bird attacks its prey serve to blind and confuse the prey, making it easier to catch. (TBH)

Farrs, Shappa
this Ferroan man was a descendant of the original settlers of the planet Zonama Sekot. In later years, he became known as one of the planet's best starshipwrights, following his marriage to Sheekla. Over the years, Shappa lost his right arm and several fingers on his left hand performing the forging and shaping of Sekotan starships. The loss of these body parts was a concern for the Magister, who refused to let Shappa participate in the annealing process performed by Vagna and his team. During Wilhuff Tarkin's attack on Zonama Sekot, Shappa was badly injured and went into shock. He recovered shortly before Sekot took the planet into hyperspace. (RP)

Farrs, Sheekla
this Ferroan woman was a descendant of the original colonists who first settled Zonama Sekot. She as later in charge of the ceremonies which united a seed-partner with its eventual master. She was married to Shappa Farrs. Sheekla accompanied Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi on the initial part of the visit to the planet, where they were chosen by fifteen seed-partners. Later, when Wilhuff Tarkin attacked the planet, Sheekla was badly injured. She survived, recovering just before the planet disappeared into hyperspace. (RP)

FarRun
this was one of three Imperial maintenance carriers assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Farseein
this was the Gungan term for binoculars or other devices which augment the user's ability to see across a distance. (IG1)

Farseeker, Jackson
Jill Farseeker's grandfather, Jackson was a retired Imperial Captain. (RPG)

Farseeker, Jill
a youngster travelling the galaxy with Roark Garnet. (RPG)

Farseen System
the New Republic nearly caught up with Qell Tepine and Star's Nova in this system, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

Farseers
this caste of Bosph was made up of those individuals which excelled at attuning their minds to the Force and reading the future. (SWJ13)

Farsellah
this planet aligned itself with the New Republic after the Battle of Endor. It was believed that Rodin Baem stole information from New Republic computers on this planet. (WBC)

FarStar
this modified CR-90 corvette was dispatched by the New Republic, under the command of Kaiya Adrimetrum, to locate Moff Sarne in the Kathol Sector and neutralize him. It had been liberated from the fleet of Moff Kentor Sarne when the New Republic began its bid to win over Kathol sector. It was originally commanded by Keleman Ciro, until he was captured by Sarne and imprisoned on Q'Maere. The ship was a collection of bailing wire and Spatch-Coat, and was always in a state of repair. The starboard side of the ship had been modifed to accept a docking area, giving the ship a lopsided appearance. (DARK, KO, KR)

FarStar Warriors
this class of Yvarema was developed by the Majjvara of Yvara, shortly after the crew of the FarStar helped the Yvarema defeat the Qektoth Confederacy and remain free. These Yvarema resembled a cross between a Sludir and a humanoid Yvarema, honoring the efforts of Gunthar and Qesya Vth'naar in the defeat of the Qektoth forces. (KR)

Farstey
this planet was the site of an Alliance base during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB)

Farstine
this methane world is located at one end of the Five Veils' Tour Route. (GG9)

Farumme
this is the Adumari name given to the huge, reptilian beasts of burden which roam the planet. The farumme measured between seven and ten meters in length, and have coloration which ranges from brown to green. Their scales form a natural armor banding which covers their necks and flanks. The Adumari developed saddles which allow multiple people to ride a single farumme at once. (SOA)

Farumme*-class Hauler
this Adumari starship was named for the lumbering reptiles used as mounts on the planet Adumar. It was an old design, though many of the ships remained in service during the early years of the New Republic. Specialized tie-down rings were welded into the deck plates to allow for a variety of cargo configurations. (SOA)

Farwan&Glott
this podracer manufacturer designed and built the unique, cockpit-in-front, FG 8T8 Twin Block2 Special racer. (IG1)

FAR202019S
this is the astrogation catalog designation of the planet J't'p'tan. (TT)

Fasan
this was one of six Imperial bulk freighters assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Fascyn
this Tarc served as a bounty hunter and assassin for House Salaktori during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Fasel
an Imperial Moff who survived the death of the Empire at Endor, he set up operations in Cilpar. This might be a typographical error, misnaming Tascl. (XWRS)

Fasgo
this red-haired man was an acquaintence of Roa, having worked for the older spacer during his tax-and-tariff scamming days on Roonadan. They later met up on the Jubilee Wheel space station, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, when Roa was looking for Reck Desh. He gave them information which led them to Big Bunji's offices on the Jubilee Wheel, near Ord Mantell. When the Yuuzhan Vong attacked the Wheel, Fasgo was one of the multitude of beings who was sucked into a Vong ship. Fasgo and Roa were both placed aboard the Creche', as part of a group of prisoners who were to nourish a young yammosk. Unfortunately for Fasgo, the plans of Wurth Skidder to confuse the yammoks caused the creature to go briefly insane, and Fasgo was killed when the yammosk struck him with a tentacle and shattered his skull. (HT)

Fass, Baddon
one of the Emperor Palpatine's Dark Side Elite, Fass was activated by Operation Shadow Hand. Sedriss commissioned Fass and Zasm Katth to perform a number of activities on Nar Shaddaa. First, they were to enlist the aid of Boba Fett in tracking down the Millennium Falcon. Second, they were to hunt down and destroy Vima-Da-Boda. Third, they were to report on the Falcon's whereabouts so that Sedriss could capture it. Katth and Fass, both grizzled veterans of Palpatine's rule, failed on all counts, as Boba Fett escaped them, and they were both unable to capture the Falcon. Fass perished aboard his Star Destroyer Invincible when it mistakenly locked onto Nar Shaddaa's control tower with its tractor beam. The collision destroyed the capital ship and all its crew. (DE2)

Fass, Inyon
the twin sister of Teekon Fass, Inyon was a member of Antar Roat's Requiem Squadron. In reality, Inyon was Inyri Forge, who had died her hair a bright red to match that of Teekon, who was played by Tycho Celchu. They assumed these identies in order to infitlrate Prince-Admiral Krennel's forces shortly after the Battle of Bilbringi. Roat, played by Wedge Antilles, explained that Requiem Squadron was charged with finding the best TIE Defender pilots it could, which was why a woman held a position in the squadron. (IR)

Fass, Teekon

Fassa
this female Gungan was a Major in the Gungan Grand Army. She was also the niece of Boss Nass. She was sent with Rep Teers to oversee the construction of the arena in Lake Umberbool, being built for the Festival of Warriors. However, an accident led to the collapse of much of the arena. Fassa was caught in the accident, but was rescued from by Jar Jar Binks, who was trying to save Boss Nass and Commander Wollod. She indebted herself to him as a way to repay his bravery. However, Jar Jar tried to explain to her that he didn't deserve the life-debt, though Fassa couldn't understand why. Shortly the Battle of Naboo, Fassa entered the Big Nasty Free-For-All. Despite stiff competition from Captain Tarpals, Boss Nass, and Jar Jar himself, Fassa won the contest. (E1A9, E1A10)

Fast Hand
one of the Submersible Environment Modules used by Lando Calrissian to mine corusca gems from Yavin's core. Lando used it to take Jaina and Jacen Solo on a trip to a mining site. (SA)

Fast-attack Patrol Ship
the preferred method of transport used by the Noghri commando teams. (DFR)

Fastblast
this pirate ship and her crew served the Invid pirate forces. Like most of the better Invid forces, it was based on Corukrus. When Corran Horn began terrorizing the city of Vlarnya with his "avenging Jedi" specter in an effort to reduce the Invid threat, the Fastblast crew was the first to flee the planet. (IJ)

FastFlesh
this is the brand name of BioTech's most advanced medpac. It contained a variety of healing agents and accelerants that enhanced a being's natural ability to regenerate cells. This ability to repair damaged flesh is, as a side effect, quite painful. If used too often ina short period, FastFlesh growth can be toxic and fatal. (CFG, ROE)

Fat Man
this was the name used by the New Republic Navy to describe a Yevethan Aramadia-class thrustship. (TT)

Fat Monkey
this species of simian was found in the swampy jungles of the planet Gelgelar. Reeho birds often killed infants for food. (SWJ14)

Fate's Judges
this TIE Interceptor squadron was based in the Sevarcos System's asteroid belt. (SWJ12)

Father Ocean
this is the Akwin name given to the oceans of the planet Lazerian IV. (TSK)

Father Tree
1) the tallest and oldest tree on the Forest Moon of Endor, it is the home of the Grundakk. The Grundakk is in turn the guardian of the Father Tree. (AT)
2) the trees native to the Forest Moon of Endor, father trees are used by the Ewoks as homes. The oldest and tallest of them is known simply as the Father Tree. They grow to incredible heights in the low gravity of the moon. The father trees are hardy conifers covered with a thick bark that exudes a strong, natural pesticide. (ROTJ, DA, AT, ISU)

Fathoms
this restaurant was located on Calamari, taking up eight full levels of the Glitter Cay Tower on Wildwater City. Fathoms was made up from four distinct sections, each with its own offerings. The main restaurant was an elegant setting in which to enjoy fine dining. The HyperDive Cantina was an unruly place known for its hard-drinking patrons. The Wave Works was a gift shop, and the SeaBed Lodge was a hotel which provided a wealth of leisure activities for its guests. The mercenary Pog met potential recruits for the ThunderForce unit here. (HAS, WSV)

Faughn, Shirlee
a lieutenant in Tomas Gillespee's organization during the early years of the New Republic, she had been a member of Gillespee;s organization since we was a teenager. She was eventually promoted to Gillespee's second-in-command. She transferred to Talon Karrde's organization after the formation of the Smugglers' Alliance. She worked her way through the ranks, eventually becoming the Captain of the Starry Ice. (DFR, TLC, SOP, TTSB)

Fave
the punctual captain of the Tellivar Lady. (TME)

Favervil Dialectric Ribbon
this thin material is used in the construction of spectral sensors. It senses and measures the micro-changes in electrical fields. It tends to debond when bombarded with more than 15,000 Rahms of ion energy. (TT)

Favria
this was one of the primary sources of meat hunted by the Bosphs on their homeworld. (SWJ13)

Faylee
this individual was one of Poas Trell's auxiliaries. (SOL)

Faynaa
this fast-moving, carnivorous fish is found in the oceans of Naboo. They have short, thick bodies which are propelled by a thin tail that ends in a paddle-like span. (GF)

Fawn, Arrisa
this woman was one of the few female officer in the Imperial military, although she never got promoted beyond the rank of Lieutenant. She had hoped to make a name for herself and her family, but the Emperor's guidelines relegated her to a lowly liaison position aboard Starlyte Station. Her inability to make headway in her career was a sore spot with her, and Arissa seriously considered joining the Alliance. However, the salary she pulled down as a lowly liaison officer more than made up for her personal desires. She also knew that her second-in-command, Brezzic Marr, was a staunch Imperial who would probably track her down if she defected. (WSV)

Faz
this planet was a member of the Duskhan League, and was one of the many colony worlds held by the Yevetha. It is located in the Koornacht Cluster, in Farlax Sector. (SOL)

FC
this droid was assigned to the crew of the New Republic Scout Service ship Founder. FC had a female personality which treated each of the living crew members like children. (GG8)

this is the designation of the Golan Arms Flechette Launcher. (CSA)

FD Ratio
this measurement is known as the Fire/Disable ratio, and describes the amount of time an artillery weapon can fire a charge divided by the amount of time the tube is disabled for cooling and recharging. Lower FD ratios indicate more powerful weapons. Imperial troops in the Atrisian System were responsible for the generation of this measurement. (ISB)

FD-62
a model of security descrambler manufactured by Opirus during the early years of the New Republic.These lock-breakers were illegal for civilian use. (TFNR)

FDP-6000
a series of culinary automata, these droids were tall cylinders armed with an assortment of kitchen utensils. (SN)

FE-3PO
this human-cyborg relations droid was an acknowledged expert on the droids used throughout the galaxy during the height of the New Order. (MTSE)

Feal, Vin
this man was known as a shady trader who would make a deal with just about anyone. Feal traveled the galaxy in his starship, the Black Butcher. Feduch Importers this Algaran shipping company is believed to serve as a front for a lucrative smuggling and slaving operation in the Algaran System. (PG2)

Fedukowski
manufacturers of the D/Square decryption and deciphering system. (VOF)

Feed-reptile this generic term refers to any Adumari reptile bred and raised for its meat. They are generally quite docile. (SOA)

Feeder
this small, mobile plant is native to the planet Binaros. They stand about a half-meter tall, and move about on thick, fleshy tendrils. The have an extendable sac in their midsection, which is used to hold water. They have a needle-like appendage that is used to extract water from any source. These appendages can also be used in defense, and the feeder is capable of consuming a target's blood to obtain sustenance. The mobile plants are actually drones which are spawned to bring food to a mother plant, but they have no true intelligence. They act solely on environmental stimuli. The mother plant is a noturnal bloomer, and is incapable of movement. The mother is quite large, appearing to be a ball-shaped mouth filled with tooth-like thorns. It is anchored to the gorund by six short taproots and a network of thinner roots. The plant has an averge life cycle of about two standard weeks. (KO)

Feejay
a creature whose flesh is a favored delicacy of some Hutts. The feejay resembles a starfish, but with three thick arms and three thick head-tentacles. (DRO)

Feenicks VI
this planet was the site of an Imperial System Patrol Squadron base during the Galactic Civil War. The base was destroyed in an attack by the Alliance. (XW)

Feeorin
this humanoid race inhabited several worlds in the Outer Rim Territories, but were often viewed by other settlers as unwanted scavengers. The Feeorin were forced to abandon their homeworld many millennia before the Battle of Naboo, but many of their colony ships never made it to their destinations. At the time of the Battle of Naboo, less than a million Feeorin were known to exist in the galaxy. Their skin coloration varied, from jet black to white and several colors in between. Green, yellow, and blue skinned Feeorin were the most common. Feeorin lacked hair, but had a collection of thick tendrils hanging from the back of their skulls. (SFT)

Feethek
this Shashay term means “I’m leaving.” (TA)

Fef
a moderately large planet orbiting a yellow-orange star, Fef has a thick, hot atmosphere which supports a wide variety of life. Most of the lifeforms have short lifespans, though. The huge trees that make up Fef's forests grow to over 100 meters in height in 20-30 years, then die and decompose in a matter of weeks. Fef is the homeworld of the swarming insectoid Fefze. (GG4)

Fefze
an insectoid race native to the planet Fef, they are one of the truest forms of hive intelligence found in the galaxy. They exist in group minds of 10-100 individuals, sometimes called swarms. These swarms are the primary building block of Fefze society, and when considered as a swarm, the Fefze are are quite intelligent. However, taken individually, Fefze are no more intelligent than any other insect. Individuals known enough to eat, avoid danger, and reproduce. The Fefze eat by covering their food - any organic material is edible to them - with a digestive acid, then lap up the resulting paste. This acid is also used as a defense mechanism, because a Fefze can regurgitate the paste when attacked and flee. The attacking creature usually stops to eat the paste, rather than expend energy chasing the Fefze. Fefze individuals have limited dexterity. Fefze swarms are created from the individuals born from a single egg globule, which contains hatchlings from several different parents. A swarm's highest priority is recruiting new hatchlings, and a given swarm can exist for thousands of years this way. New hatchlings are obtained during the Fefze dance swarm, and tourists often come to Fef to view it. (GG4)

Fefze Beetle
a giant beetle that inhabits mountainous planets, the fefze beetle is often hunted for sport. They often hunt in packs. A mutated species of fefze beetle was the only living creature found on the surface of the planet Duro, during the early years of the New Republic. This mutation had both an exoskeleton and an internal skeleton, giving it the ability to grow to incredible sizes. (GDV, MMY, BP)

Fegigrish Heavy Industrials
this Squib corporation produced a number of demolition devices, such as battering rams and wrecking balls. (PP)

Fehern
this planet is the homeworld of the Eddel race. During the height of the Old Republic, Eddel starships regularly plied the expanses of Trax Sector. However, after the rise of Emperor Palpatine, the Eddel were subjugated and left with minimal levels of technology. (GMK)

Fein
a member of Kaarde's team, Fein served as a weapons specialist. (HTTE, DFR, TTSB)

Feiya
this is the only land-based town on the planet Deyer, and is the site of the planet's only spaceport. (JASB)

Fek'ra, Nilya
this tall, black-haired woman was one of the most powerful criminal figures on the planet Cotellier. Cunning and devious, Fek'ra is a beautiful woman with deep green eyes. She worked for a mysterious crimelord, although she steadily put together enough knowledge and resources to start her own operation should fate allow her the opportunity. She was one of Yosger's chief rivals, and hoped to obtain the data stored in the computer systems of the Smoking Blaster before Yosger did. She managed to get the crew of the Smoking Blaster under her control and obtained the location of Yosger's base on Carz. She then paid the mercenary crew to take her to Carz and apprehend Yosger. (GMH)

Fel, Ajai
this woman was Soontir Fel's sister-in-law, and the mother of Fyric Fel. She felt that Fyric was kidnapped in order to force the Fels to provide information on the whereabouts of Wynssa Starflare, the wife of Baron Soontir Fel. Her husband, Todr, helped bring down the kidnappers, who were led by Ilir Post, when he shot Post in the head. Corran Horn and Iella Wessiri, along with Wes Janson, Hobbie

Klivian, and Plourr Ilo had cornered Post at his estate. Once Fyric was rescued, Todr and Ajai agreed to seek santuary with the New Republic, and fled Corellia with the Rogue Squadron pilots. (XWFT)

Fel, Fyric
this two-year-old was the nephew of Soontir Fel. He was kidnapped from the Fel estate, just outside Coronet City on the planet Corellia, shortly after the Battle of Brentaal, and Corran Horn was dispatched to investigate. Fyric's mother Ajai believed he was kidnapped in order to get the Fel's to provide information on the whereabouts of Wynssa Starflare. He intercepted Wes Janson, Hobbie Klivian, and Plourr Ilo when the arrived at the Fel estate, hoping to gather information on the whereabouts of Wynssa Starflare, who was actually Wedge Antilles' sister, Syal. Kirtan Loor took over the investigation, and tried to take the Rogue Squadron pilots in for questioning. Horn let the pilots go, but had to save them when they tried to negotiate with the kidnappers, whom he identified as a group led by Ilir Post. Fyric was eventually rescued, when Todr Fel shot Post in the head and then Plourr caught Fyric before he could fall. (XWFT)

Fel, Jagged
this ruggedly handsome young man was revealed to be the son of Baron Soontir Fel and Syal Antilles, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. He was distinguished by his pale green eyes and a scar which started above his right eye and ran over his skull. The hair over the scar was white, contrasting with rest of his jet-black hair.Jagged grew up among the Chiss, being accepted by them ass one of their own, and he strove to ensure that he met their lofty expectations. At the Battle of Garqi, Fel and his Spike Squadron of Chiss were part of the fleet assembled by Admiral Pellaeon to support the New Republic. Their incredible skill helped turn back the Yuuzhan Vong forces. At the time, he held the rank of Colonel. When the battle group reported back to the New Republic leadership, Jagged Fel was asked by his uncle, Wedge Antilles, to accompany them. Spike Force later assisted the New Republic at the Battle of Ithor. In the wake of the battle, Fel sent two squadrons of Chiss pilots back to report on the Yuuzhan Vong to his father, while Jagged himself remained behind as a liaison to Rogue Squadron. (DTR)

Fel, Soontir
one of the youngest Imperial Navy officers to obtain the rank of Captain and command a ship, Fel was everything one would expect from a recruiting poster. Broad-shouldered and handsome from years of working as a farmer, Fel was a native of Corellia and had come through the ranks as a decorated and legendary TIE Fighter pilot. However, he did not enter the Imperial Academy willingly. Instead, he was bribed into go in order to stop him from testifying against Ilir Post, on the threat that his father would be charged with a flurry of minor crimes if he didn't go. This took him away from the farming that he loved so much, but he was determined to make the best of the situation. Fel was a contemporary of Han Solo and Loka Hask while at the Carida Academy, regularly defeating Hask while often challenging Solo. After graduating with honors as his class' salutatorian, Fel earned command of the Pride of the Senate shortly before the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, and was quite puzzled by Admiral Greelanx's battle plans. They did not allow for any flexibility during the battle, while executing the Base Delta Zero order to the letter. Fel had never participated in such an exercise, and questioned the wisdom of decimating Nar Shaddaa. However, the battle was quickly upon him, and the minimal battle plan outlined by Greelanx - coupled with the surprising ability of the smugglers to damage the Imperial fleet - soon resulted an Imperial retreat. Fel, appalled at the losses and at Greelanx's orders to retreat, remained behind to retrieve as many of his pilots as he could before redezvousing with the fleet. Greelanx was angry with Fel's insubordination, but Fel resolved to report Greelanx's poor planning to his superiors. He was assigned to the 37th Imperial Fighter Wing before transferring to Prefsbelt IV as a flight instructor. After receiving high honors, Fel actually was responsible for the training of Tycho Celchu, Biggs Darklighter, and Hobbie Klivian. He was offered a position in Moff Tarkin's bodyguard unit by Tarkin himself, but the defection of Biggs Darklighter and Derek Klivian relegated Fel to the 181st Imperial Fighter Group, which was under the command of Evir Derricote. They scored a hollow victory at Ord Biniir, on the same day as the Battle of Yavin, but Fel was given a commendation on Coruscant in an effort to bolster Imperial morale. There, he met Wynssa Starflare, and they fell deeply in love. Shortly afterward, Fel became known to Ysanne Isard, who challenged his loyalty by trying to seduce him. He refused, and although she praised his loyalty, she also hated him. Fel saw through Isard's ploy and into the heart of the Empire, and didn't like what he saw. He also saw that the Emperor's non-human bias was only as good as the air around it, once Thrawn began to rise through the ranks. Fel found himself admiring Thrawn's plans for the ambush which destroyed the Alliance's supply convoy near Derra IV, but could not reconcile Palpatine's hypocrisy. Although he was promoted to Colonel and given command of the entire 181st Fighter Group, Fel became disheartened with the Empire. Ysanne Isard's sacrifice of an entire fighter wing to lure Rogue Squadron to Brentaal was an action he couldn't reconcile in his own mind. After the 181st was sent to Brentaal to help defend the world - more of an exercise to bring down the Cabal that to save the planet - Fel decided that enough was enough. When the New Republic had defeated the Imperials, Fel was captured when Colonel Salm hit his Interceptor with an ion cannon blast, rendering his fighter inoperative. Shortly before the Battle of Brentaal, he had arranged for Wynssa - now his wife - to disappear. He pledged to help the New Republic if they would help him locate Wynssa, a proposition to which the Republic's Starfighter Command agreed. However, Fel soon turned his back on the Republic and returned to Imperial service. Wedge Antilles, the real-life brother of Wynssa Starflare, thought he had encountered Fel again, during the series of skirmishes against the Warlord Zsinj. In reality, though, the Fel he discovered was Tetran Cowall, and his abilities were augmented with a droid brain in several of his wingmate's TIE Interceptors. It was later learned that Fel had joined the forces aligned with Grand Admiral Thrawn, and he spent the next several years working with the true Imperial leadership to eliminate the various warlords who claimed Imperial rights. He lost an eye in the final battle of his career, and retired to work with Voss Parck as a commander at the Hand of Thrawn compound on Nirauan. Fel was also the "parent" of a number of clones developed at Thrawn's request. The clones were dispatched to several sleeper cells - excellent pilots awaiting Thrawn's reactivation codes. The clones were flash-imprinted with much of Fel's ability as a pilot and warrior, but without his personality. However, many groups managed to retain his love of the open air and farming, and decided not to heed the recall which came ten years after Thrawn's death. Shortly after the Battle of Garqi, it was revealed that Soontir and Syal had had five children together, including a son, Jagged, who eventually rose to power in the Imperial Remnant's military. (THG, HXW, VOF, IF, MBF, XWES, DTR)

Fel, Todr
this man was Soontir Fel's younger brother. He allowed his wife, Ajai, to contact the Rogue Squadron pilots who were on Corellia to locate Wynssa Starflare, on the off-chance that they could be persuaded to help find his young son, Fyric. Fyric had been kidnapped by Ilir Post, and was being held for ransom. When the Rogues, along with Corran Horn and Iella Wessiri of the Corellian Security Force, cornered Post at his estate, Todr's ploy paid off. He knew that Post would kill his son, so he took a chance and shot at Post. The blast took Post between the eyes, killing him instantly. However, Post dropped Fyric from a second-story window as he died. Luckily, Plourr Ilo caught Fyric before he could hit the ground. Todr and his famaily fled Corellia with the Rogues, hoping to find safety with Soontir and the New Republic. (XWFT)

Fel Swoop
a seedy cantina located on Treasure Ship Row on Corellia, it was frequented by swoop riders and speeder bike jockeys. (IJ)

Fel's Day
first comemmorated by Lon Isoto, this holiday was to be observed every year on the planet Brentaal, to mark the efforts of Baron Soontir Fel in defending Brentaal from attack by the New Republic. (XWES)

Felbar
a baked dessert. (TME)

Feldrall Okor
Boba Fett received a bounty of one hundred fifty thousand credits for retrieving this pirate for the Imperial Governess, Isis. When Fett showed up with Okor - who had lost an arm during the capture - Isis refused to pay his fee. Fett threatened to blow them all up with a thermal detonator, until Isis gave in and paid him. (TJP, EGC, GG10)

Feldt
this was the primary continent found on the planet Nishr, and was the site of the main base of the Alliance's Nishr Taskforce. (ROE)

Feleea
this Imperial Moff was a rival of Moff Relans, and went rogue after the Battle of Endor. (HR)

Felinx
this is a species of feline creature often kept as a pet by the wealthiest of the galaxy's beings. Breeders of felinx continually inbreed each successive generation, and maintain those bloodlines with minimal brain-mass. Thus, the average felinx is little more than a long, fur-covered body that exists for the physical pleasures of warmth and food. This trait makes them the ideal pet, for they require little more than regular meals and the warmth of being held. However, certain individuals end up nothing more than automata, and require bio-stimulation circuit implants to keep them from bumping into walls and chewing their fur off. (MA)

Felis Alverite
this Ropagu was the primary representative of his planet in the Off-worlders' Quarter starport. He maintained comprehensive databases on all travelers to and from the starport, and keeps a vigilant eye out for criminals and other violent individuals. Over the years he spent in the Off-worlders' Quarter, Alverite developed a sympathy for the Alliance, and was a source of helpful information to the New Republic during its early years. (TSK)

Fellan
this young man worked for Narloch as a courier, until he was offered a huge sum of credits by Kendamari Casinos to help bring down the Herglic entrepreneur. He took the money, and assisted a group of bounty hunters in locating Narloch. (ND)

Fellon
this is a port city located on the planet Halmad. A small Imperial base was located in the southern warehouse district, but was destroyed as part of Operation Groundquake. (IF)

Fellowship of Kooroo
this quasi-religion emerged as a search for enlightenment, based on the teachings of the spiritual leader Kooroo. To attain true enlightenment, followers strove to achieve telepathic abilities to communicate. They worshipped and meditated on several Outer Rim worlds, where there were Shrines of Kooroo placed. These shrines were later claimed to be ancient communications devices by the reporter Andor Javin, and the Fellowship deeply resented the intrusion and speculation. They put out a deathmark on Javin's head, in reaction to his reports. (SWJ13)

Felth, Davin
a member of the Desert Sands stormtrooper unit sweeping Mos Eisley in search of R2-D2 and C-3PO. He was trained at the Imperial facility of Carida, and was among the top recruits in his class. Thus, he was chosen to be one of the first troopers to be assigned to the new AT-AT project, under General Veers. While on a training mission, Davin discovered that the AT-AT was extremely vulnerable due to its long legs. He commanded his walker to "kneel" on all four legs, and was able to defeat all training targets. He reported to Veers that it was possible to "trip" the walker using a cable entwined around its legs, but Veers hid the information in order to advance his own career. When additional stormtroopers were needed to sweep Tatooine in search of the droids, Davin was quickly moved off the AT-AT project and into stromtrooper armor. There, he was assigned to Captain Terrik. (It was Davin who said, "Look, sir. Droids." after the discovery of the droids' escape pod.) However, Davin became increasingly disillusioned with the Empire's regime, having witnessed first-hand the needless destruction of Jawas and Sand People, as well as the wanton execution of the Lars family. The unnecessary execution of Het Nkik pushed Davin over the edge, and when his squadron was ordered to keep the Millennium Falcon from leaving Mos Eisley, Davin shot Terrik in the back, and pretended that he was killed in the crossfire. From then on, he resolved to remain a stormtrooper in order to feed the Alliance key information about the Empire. It is assumed that one of the first informational transfers included the weakness of the AT-AT. (TME, EGC)

Feltipern Trevagg
a Gotal who had filled a number of positions over the years, including bounty hunter, Imperial bodyguard, and ship's security officer. He was working for the City Prefect of the port of Mos Eisley, on Tatooine, as a tax collector when Luke Skywalker and Ben Kenobi booked passage ot Alderaan. In this position, Feltipern had developed many of the taxes charged to native and transients, including a water tax and a port passage tax. This passage tax brought him in contact with M'iiyoum Onith, who lost her seat on the passenger liner Tellivar Lady because she couldn't pay it. Feltipern began lusting for her. He also discerned Kenobi's presence in Mos Eisley by detecting the Force with his head cones, and sought to sell the information to the Empire. In trying to get M'iiyoum into bed, he failed to recognize that she was a H'nemthean, and that the female of her species guts her mate with her knife-like tongue. Feltipern was found dead in the Inn, the morning after the Millennium Falcon blasted out of the spaceport. (TME)

Feltran
this senior Alliance agent was known by the alias Feltron when he accompanied Bria Tharen aboard the Queen of Empire. He posed as Bria Lavval's agent, and was killed when Boba Fett tried to capture Bria. (RD)

Feltron

Femon
1) this is a major city found on the planet Gailea, and is the site of the annual Marqua Spas Grand Ball. (SWJ9)
2) this woman served as Dolph's Lieutenant during the early days of his bid for power under the name Kuellar. A strikingly beautiful woman with long, black hair and pale skin, she used kohl and other substances to mask her features and give her the appearance of death. Her family was killed when the Eye of Palpatine was awakened after the Battle of Endor. The Eye attacked her homeworld and destroyed most of the life there. She felt that the New Republic inadequately addressed the threat of the Eye, and held the Republic responsible for her family's deaths. As Dolph's plans unfolded, Femon chafed at his patience. She felt he was being too soft on the Republic, and challenged his goals and methods. Her support of Dolph began to fade, and scoffed at his use of the Force. In his anger, Dolph/Kuellar used the Force to grip her throat and break her neck. (TNR)

Fen'po
this young woman, a native of the planet Dathomir, was a member of the Singing Mountain clan of Force-using women. She was just learning the ways of Allyan Magic when Luke Skywalker discovered the existence of the Chu'unthor on Dathomir. (CTD)

Fenald
this native of the planet Kuat was Kuat of Kuat's chief of security during the period of the New Order. Outwardly loyal to the end, Fenald was secretly in league with Kodir of Kuhlvult and her plans to take control of Kuat Drive Yards. In an intricate plot, he agreed to betray Kuat to the various ruling families, thereby making way for Kodir to take his place. It was Fenald who arranged – through Nil Posondum – to have Kodir's sister Kateel kidnapped. Years later, Kodir began manipulated Kuat of Kuat, hoping to oust him from control of KDY and take it for herself. Fenald played his part well, and Kuat was unaware of his deceit until the families tried to wrest control of KDY for themselves. Fenald continued to work behind the scenes for Kodir while she worked for Kuat, furthering her own attempt to gain control of KDY, until he demanded money in return for keeping her plans a secret. Kodir decided that Fenald had stopped being useful, and slit his throat in a basck-alley bar. (MA, SLS, HM)

Fenion
one of the planets visted by the Night Caller shortly before it was captured by Wraith Squadron near Xobome 6. (WS)

Fenn Booda
this warden served at the Galactic Correctional Authority's penal colony on Oovo IV. Booda was known as a strict warden, but allowed those inmates who behaved themselves to view the various podraces which were run on the airless surface of the moon. (RAC)

Fenn's Warehouse
this was the starship repair facility established in Gelgelar Free Port by Slerog Fenn, in an effort to squeeze out Loro Ecls. (SWJ14)

Fenner, Rivoc
this xeno-biologist was credited with the first discovery of the creature known later as Fenner's Rock. It is said that he tripped over the first one he ever encountered, believing it to be a simple pile of stones. (COG)

Fenner's Rock
named for the xeno-biologist Rivoc Fenner, this unusual creature resembled a collection of lichen- and moss-covered stones. They subsist on the lichens, moss, and algae which attach to their bodies, moving slowly over real rocks to find food. They lack true limbs, instead having a pair of appendages which they use to drag themselves along. The mouth of a Fenner's Rock is filled with huge teeth, but the teeth are formed from soft cartilage and were ineffective against most creatures. Most scientists believed them to be silent creartues, but many have observed groupings of Fenner's Rocks "singing" to each other. The exact purpose behind the sounds is unknown. These creatures could be found on a number of planets, and were considered a nuisance on some world because they multiply rapidly, damming up natural waterways and producing semi-toxic bacteria. (COG)

Fenrij
this man was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. He and Iquar eventually made the capture, after many members of their team were injured. (GG11)

Fenson
this Imperial Navy Trooper was a native of the planet Rendili. Skilled in close-quarters combat, Fenson was assigned to the Imperial garrison on the forest moon of Endor, and worked with Trooper Vesden in monitoring activity around the shield generator bunker. (CCG10)

Fenti Bean
this healthful legume is grown on the planet Moorja. (SWJ8)

Fenves
a planet. (WBC)

Feq
this man worked with Dannen Lifehold for two years, serving as the mechanic aboard the Lifeline. Feq became the brother Dannen never had, and they became close friends. However, during “routine” Imperial customs inspection, Feq objected to the officer’s confiscation of modified engine parts. One of the stormtroopers supporting the inspector shot Feq dead. Dannen held a small wake for his friend before setting the body adrift in space, and never forgot the Imperials’ rash actions. (SWJ1)

Feragriff
this creature was native to the planet Batorine, and was hunted by the Blood Carvers during a coming-of-age ceremony. When the Blood Carvers were relocated to Coruscant, following attacked by the Lontars, they brought with them several feragriffs, which were placed in preserves on one of Coruscant's moons. Thus, the tradition of hunting a feragriff to prove one's adulthood was preserved. (RP)

Feral
this Imperial escort frigate was commanded by Lev Kepzen during the height of the New Order. (FOP)

Ferbil
this small, furred creature was native to the planet Kegan. (FFT)

Ferdas
an Imperial Captain, he was once in command of the Imperial Star Destroyer Avenger. (ISB)

Fere
1) the binary star which forms the center of the Fere System. The star system is sometimes spelled "Ferre." (CPL)
2) often spelled Feree, this world was known for its shipyards, which produced some of the most luxurious starships in the galaxy. The planet and its inhabitants - also known as Fere - were destroyed by a plague about 200 years before Isolder first came to Dathomir. (CPL)
3) the native race of the planet Fere, they were very tall, with soft ivory-colored skin and 6 fingers on each hand. They were wiped out by a planet-wide plague. They were considered master shipbuilders in their time. (CPL)

Feree
another name for the planet Fere. (CPL)

Fergriss Pharmaceuticals
this promising biomedical corporation was bankrupted when the Empire assaulted the planet on which its corporate headquarters were located. Fergriss was unable to recover from the loss of finances and resources. (GG11)

Ferijian Ape
a comical-looking primate. (SWJ9)

Ferini
a legendary team of swoop racers from the Corellian System. Dengar was a member of this team, before being injured in a race with Han Solo and turning to a life of bounty hunting. (MTS, EGC)

Ferinn, Trennt
a member of the New Republic Intelligence agency, Ferinn was a Colonel at the time of the Starbuster Plot and the rise of the Human League on Corellia. Ferinn provided a detailed analysis of the situation leading up this period, as well as information on the events that occurred during and after the break-up of the Saccorian Triad. (CTD)

Feris City
this city was known for its dense concentration of freelance bounty hunters. (GG10)

Ferleen Snee
this Jedi Master once used the Force to manipulate the Muntuur stones over his head. (GG9)

Fern Tree
a full, frilly tree native to the planet Bakura. (TB)

Fernandin, Lexi
this man founded the Fernandin Scouting Expedition corporation during the last years of the Old Republic, and fought to maintain his independence and operation during the New Order. (GG2)

Fernandin Scouting Expedition
a galactic survey group that was given permission to find a suitable planet on which to relocate Weytin's Colony, after they left Setor. The moons of Yavin were among the possible sites chosen. Fernandin had to receive a special permit from the Empire in order to carry out their search. (GG2)

Ferob
an Imperial Captain, Ferob commanded the Victory-class Star Destroyer Iron Fist, under the watchful eye of Grand Admiral Thrawn, in the Unknown Regions. (DFRSB)

Ferr, Selas
this man was a member of the rebel underground on Jastro III during the Galactic Civil War. He was in love with the daughter of the Imperial Governor, but they were often forbidden to meet. They found an unexpected ally in an agent named Alexan, who forwarded messages between them. Alexan later agreed to help Ferr break a group or rebels out of the Imperial prison, provided that Ferr took the Governor's daughter with them. Ferr agreed, and the rescue attempt was successful. However, Alexan was seriously wounded in the escape, and later died of his wounds. Ferr and the Governor's daughter later learned that Alexan was, in fact, the Governor himself. (HR)

Ferra
a witch of the Singing Mountain clan on Dathomir, she was killed by a Nightsister spell which snapped her neck. (CPL)

Ferreges
this tall, blond woman was noted for the exotic, wild appearance of her facial features. She was also a trained assassin, and was hired by the Empire to hunt down the miners who fled the Graveyard of Alderaan. (GA)

Ferrelian Ant
this species of insect was known to be particularly industrious and hard-working. (E1A5)

Ferret
this was the name given to the Republic Engineering Corporation reconnaissance vessel manufactured shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. At 28 meters in length, the Ferret recon vessel was coated with sensor-baffling materials and equipped with the latest in stealth technology, allowing it to enter hostile territory virtually undetected. Its primary mission was to obtain information about enemy territory without being detected or caught. To allow the Ferret to move quietly at sublight speeds, a unique, baffled drive system was developed which would allow the ship to move about without leaving any detectable trail for up to an hour. The primary engine system relies on chemically-generated thrust, further adding to its stealth modes. The Ferret was operated by three linked droid brains, each of which controlled certain equipment on the ship. The Ferret was lightly armed, with a pair of missile launchers being its only weaponry. (CTD)

Ferrhast
this planet is the site of the Imperial Institute of Higher Studies. (SWAJ)

Ferrier, Niles
a master thief, Niles Ferrier was known throughout the galaxy as a starship hijacker. He had a great deal of skill in the use of computer linkups, and often stole ships by simply reworking a spaceport's duty roster to clear the area when he found a good ship. He was often accompanied by four or five human smugglers, a Defel wraith, and a Verpine. His passion for carrababba tabac laced with armudu spice is also widely known, and the unmistakeable combination often announces his presence. He put his starship stealing skills to good use during Grand Admiral Thrawn's reign of terror, stealing ships and selling them to Thrawn and the Empire for a large profit. Ferrier later helped Thrawn infiltrate the blossoming smuggler's alliance. (DFR, DFRSB, TLC)

Ferro
this was the name of the capital world of the Ferro Systems. Its year encompassed three standard years. (RP)

Ferro Systems
a collection of star systems settled by human colonists, the Ferro Systems were reclusive and isolationist in their stance. Although they elected to join the galactic community of the Old Republic, they were not always compliant with its laws. (RP)

Ferroan
this was the name given to the human colonists who settled the Ferro Systems. They were a proud people, but quite reclusive and independent. These tall, strong-looking humans were known for their milky-white skin, and the fact that they rarely traveled far from their homeworlds. The group of Ferroans which settled on the planet Zonama Sekot were employed by the original Magister as the caretakers of the planet, using their natural instinct to remain separated from the rest of the galaxy to ensure Zonama Sekot was well-hidden from casual observers. (RP)

Ferro-magnesium Ceramic
a metallic-based colloid used in the hulls of ships which must pass through a planet's atmosphere, such as emergency life pods. (SCRE)

Ferrocarbon
this incredibly strong, durable material was used to form the deepest structural sections of the buildings on Coruscant. (RP)

Ferroconcrete
a material used to form walkways, ferrocrete is made from a mixture of concrete and steel-like materials which are bonded at the molecular level. (LCF, E1A1)

Ferronel
this city was located on the planet Cmaoli Di, and was the site of Von Doobba's estate. (SWJ13)

Ferros VI
an Imperial prison camp was maintained on this planet during the Galactic Civil War. (DSTC)

Ferry
a group of Imperial transports operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Fersin
this Ewok was the High Master of the Panshee tribe, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (SWJ1)

Fest
primary planet in the Fest System, the inhabitants were nearly always at war with themselves or their neighbors on Mantooine. They disliked Emperor Palpatine even more, and were beginning to rebel when the Empire attacked Mantooine. Their distrust for each other, coupled with a lack of communications facilities, kept the inhabitants of Fest from warning the Mantooinians about the attack. The geography of Fest is dominated by steep mountain ranges and deep valleys. Fest was the site of an Imperial weapons research facility during the Galactic Civil War, located atop one of the planet's tallest mountains. (RASB, DF, RSG)

Festival of Great Trade
this was one of the major holiday events on the planet Svivren, celebrated in the southern districts where the major bargaining arenas were found. Merchant "pilgrims" from all over Svivren descend on the city of Wrils during this time. (MJEH)

Festival of Hoods
an Ewok ceremony in which young Ewoks pass into maturity. The presenation of a skin hood signifies that the Ewok is no longer a child. (ECAR)

Festival of the High Winds
this annual gathering of spice merchants, slavers, and crimelords takes place on the planet Sevarcos. Sponsored by the Spice Lords of Sevarcos, the Festival served as a backdrop against which the major leaders could exchange information and make deals. A wind-rider race highlighted the events of the Festival. (SWJ12)

Festival of Warriors
this annual competition between Gungan warriors attracted the best soldiers from tribes across the planet. To be invited to the Festival was considered a great honor among the members of the Gungan Grand Army. (E1A9)

Feszum
this city was located on the Beszilov continent of the planet Garnib. (PG1)

Fetch
an Alliance transport destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Fete Week
1) a week-long celebration observed on Chandrila. Canna Omonda was publicly executed for openly criticizing Palpatine's decision to disband the Imperial Senate during Fete Week. (SWAJ)
2) a public celebration held annually on Coruscant. (TFE)

Fether
a planet whose natural resources have been depleted. (RPG)

Fett, Boba
Boba Fett was known at one time as the Journeyman Protector Jaster Mereel. There are also rumors that Fett was an extremely dedicated Imperial stormtrooper who, for reasons known only to him, attacked and killed his superior officer. These rumors have never been substantiated. What is known is that Jaster Mereel killed a corrupt Protector but was imprisoned for the murder anyway. He was exiled from the planet Concord Down, and found employment as a bounty hunter, learning the skills that would make him a formidable adversary in the future. In his travels, Boba Fett acquired a full suit of Mandalorian Shock Trooper armor. The unique weapons systems of the armor suited a number of purposes, including enhancement of his arsenal as well as increasing the mystique behind his reputation. He also acquired an old Kuat Systems Engineering Firespray-class ship, which he named Slave I and had heavily modified at Kuat Drive Yards. Many of the modifications to Slave I were developed by Kuat of Kuat himself, and helped further the design of other starships. Fett employed the best microsurgeons in the galaxy to remove as many of the pain-sensing nerves from his body. He also had many of his body's pleasure sensors eliminated as well. As his proficiency as a bounty hunter grew, so did his reputation. This led to his being hired by Kud'ar Mub'at, in an intricate plan to eliminate the Bounty Hunters Guild. The plan, masterminded by Prince Xizor, involved Fett actually joining the Guild, which he had felt was too restrictive in its bylaws. The plan worked, resulting in the breaking of the Guild into two rival factions. During this time, Fett also discovered the schemes of Kuat of Kuat, and would have exposed the leader of Kuat Drive Yards if Kuat hadn't been intent on his own suicide. Fett later became one of the bounty hunters commissioned by Darth Vader to hunt down the Millennium Falcon. This occurred at about the same time as Jabba The Hutt hired him to capture Solo. These two commissions fit together perfectly for Boba Fett, who used his knowledge of Han Solo's background to predict Han's maneuver of floating away with the Avenger's garbage, and tracked the Falcon to Bespin and Cloud City. Boba Fett then took possession of Han's frozen body and returned to Tatooine, only to be intercepted over the desert world by IG-88. In a brief firefight, Boba Fett was able to destroy IG-88's ship, but Slave I was so damaged that landing on Tatooine would be impossible. So, Fett travelled to the Outer Rim world of Zhar, and landed on Gall. There, he was further beset by bounty hunters, including Zuckuss and 4-LOM, who wanted to steal Solo's body. Fett managed to escape them as well, only to be assaulted by Alliance starfighters from Rogue Squadron. Fett escaped them as well and transported Solo to Jabba the Hutt, collecting the large bounty on Han's head to go with his Imperial payment. It was at time that Fett discovered Ree Duptom's personal starship adrift and Duptom himself dead. He took possession of the droid in Duptom's hold and the young woman in his holding cell. The droid contained data on Kuat of Kuat's plot to discredit Prince Xizor, and the woman turned out to be Neelah. Jabba then offered him a large sum of money to remain on Tatooine as his personal bounty hunter. This allowed him to hide Neelah from the rest of the galaxy, but Fett stipulated that he would remain a freelance bounty hunter on retainer. Although the work was extremely simple for Fett, he believed that there would be a rescue attempt made on Solo, and he wanted to be there when it happened. After slightly underestimating Leia's disguise as Boussh, Boba Fett's instincts went into overdrive, and he was ready when Luke Skywalker showed up at Jabba's palace. Unfortunately for Boba Fett, when Luke, Han, and Chewie were about to be thrown into the Sarlacc pit, Fett's rocket backpack was accidentally activated by the then-blind Han Solo. Fett careened into the side of Jabba's sail barge and was knocked unconscious. Fett was thought to have been killed in the Sarlacc's acid-filled belly, but he managed to set of a series of explosions which destroyed much of the beast and allowed him to escape. He lay dying in the twin suns of Tatooine until he was discovered by Dengar and Manaroo, who recognized him by the tattered armor that still clung to his skinless body. Dengar also found Neelah,and took them both to his hideout in the desert. There, with the help of some of Jabba's medical droids, Dengar nursed Fett back to health. Once recovered, Boba Fett set out to clear up the situation with Kuat of Kuat and Neelah. They managed to put all the pieces together, with the help of Balancesheet and Kuat himself, before Kuat killed himself. After recovering the heavily-damaged Slave I from the Alliance, he limped to Nar Shaddaa and commandeered a second ship for his use. He designated this ship Slave II, and was again commissioned by the Hutts, this time to kill Solo once and for all. He almost succeeded at Nar Shaddaa, but was again thwarted. When Han Solo and Princess Leia returned to Nar Shaddaa to take Vima-Da-Boda into custody, Boba Fett again nearly captured Solo, but Chewbacca overpowered him, ripping off his helmet and igniting his rocket-pack. Fett careened into the ceiling of the spaceport's lowest levels and was knocked unconscious. It was believed that he sustained near-fatal head injuries, but Fett returned to action shortly afterward. His spent much of his career tracking down the two most elusive targets, Han Solo and Rivo Xarran. Fett caught Rivo on Ladarra, but let him live after discovering that Rivo was caring for a group of children. He later caught Solo on Jubilar,and the two decided that they had been adversaries too long to kill each other, and they went their separate ways. Boba Fett was portrayed by Jeremy Bulloch in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back and Star Wars: Return of the Jedi*. He was also portrayed by Alen Rosenburg for the The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio.* (ESB, ESBR, ROTJ, MTS, DE1, DE2, DESB, EGC, SSE, MA. SLS, HM, TBH, TFNR) this well-known and well-liked rogue owned Tion Hauling, based on Lianna. She was born to a poor family, and earned her wealth through hard work, keen business acuman, and a little bit of piracy. Among the working class of Lianna, she is considered something of a hero. (ML)

Fevvenor
this huge tree was native to the rainforests of the planet Veron. These trees covered more than three-quarters of Veron's surface, but were not able to survive on the rocky mountains or coastal shores. (PG1, AE)

Fevvenor Toad
this small amphibian was native to the upper levels of the fevvenor trees which made up the rainforests of Veron. (PG1)

Fex-M3
a chemical weapon, Fex-M3 is a potent nerve gas that causes death when inhaled. (ISB)

Fex-M3d
a later variation on the original Fex-M3 nerve gas, Fex-M3d was designed to bind to neuro-receptors as it passed through the bloodstream after being inhaled. This binding effect prevents the nerves from sending information to the brain. In small doses, it can cause involuntary muscles to become lax, making the heartbeat irregular and breathing difficult. In larger doses, the body's autonomous nervous system shuts down completely, stopping the lungs from breathing. (WG)

Fey'lya's Pride
this Lambda-class shuttle was part of the Bothan fleet which assisted the Alliance in evacuating their base on Kothlis, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Fey'starn
this was a small fishing village located on the planet Bothawui (Kothlis?). (COG)

Feyd-cloth
a rough, pebbly cloth used to make robes. Emperor Palpatine wore a feyd-cloth robe while he was on the second Death Star over Endor. (SE)

Feynir
this Draedan dictator was one of the few that supported Emperor Palpatine and the New Order on Sesid. (GG12)

Feyodor
this portly man was a Corellian, and he owned and operated Feyodor's Tavern in Omman's Capital City. He was generally regarded as an excellent chef, although no one knew if he had been formally trained. (SWJ12)

Feyodor's Tavern
this small tavern was located in Capital City, on Omman, and was owned by the man named Feyodor. One of its most famous attractions was the cascading waterfall of lights which graced the wall behind the bar. The artwork also served a more devious role, as each light indicated the presence of a certain smuggler, bounty hunter, or pirate. If the light was on, the individual was in the area and looking for work. Other lights in the waterfall indicated that certain clients had a job to offer. Color-coding represented need, status, and occupations required. Blue indicated a veteran, while red was a warning that the individual was a risk. Green meant the being was available, and white indicated that the being was pratically a living legend. Yellow meant a deal was in progress, but could be broken as the contract hadn't been signed. (SWJ12)

Feyyaz Ferdusi
this Nduuati bounty hunter was also an accomplished swoopchase racer. He was beaten once on Najiba by Jobany Cyrs, despite the fact that Jobany was a rookie at the time. (BSS)

Fezzgem
a rhinestone-like gem. (GMH)

Fezzter
this fat, bald human was Crying Dawn Singer's road agent and personal manager. He often dressed in tight-fitting suits of metallic fabrics. (TA)

Ffib
an alien race native to the planet Lorahns, the Ffibs established a religious order which spanned many worlds during the Old Republic. Several years before the Battle of Naboo, the Ffib were nearly wiped out by the Twi'leki pirate Reess Kairn. The Daughters of the Ffib sought out Aurra Sing, hoping to employ her in an effort to eliminate Kairn and the two Shi'ido he employed to masquerade as him. (TJP, BHAS)

Ffib Tribunal
this was the governmental body which ruled the Ffib people, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (BHAS)

Fft
small lizards used as meat sources for the Ssi-ruuk (TB)

FG 8T8 Twin Block2 Special this was a model of Farwan&Glott podracer that was unique in its design to most other racers. The Twin Block2 Special had its cockpit positioned in front of its engines, rather than behind, requiring a specialized control cable set-up. The engines of the Twin Block2 Special measured 7.16 meters in length, and could propel the cockpit at speeds reaching 785 kilometers per hour. (IG1)

FGA-583
this was a type of nerve gas manufactured for Locris Syndicates. (GG10)

Fhnark & Company Exotic Foodstuffs
this supplier of unusual kinds of food – including still living delicacies like trufflites – is known by their motto, "We cater to the galaxy's degenerate appetites." (MA)

Fhramp
this creature was raised for its pelt. (TMEC)

Fia
this alien race, native to the planet Galantos, called the Koornacht Cluster "The Multitude." (BTS)

Fibercord
a strong, thin cord that is used to connect grappling hooks and other climbing devices. These cords are made from durable fibers, often flexsteel, and can also be used as whips. (ISB)

Fiberplast
this incredibly strong material is used to make doors and other building materials. (KT)

Fibra-rope
a strong, braided rope used by climbers and tight-rope walkers. It was also favored by mercenaries and infiltration squadrons. (SOC)

Fibuli
this planet is one of the Trianii colony worlds usurped by the Corporate Sector. Intense fighting among the Trianii Rangers and the CSA resulted from the takeover, and it was during this battle that Keeheen was taken prisoner by the CSA and imprisoned at Stars' End. After three years of devastating battles, the Rangers and the CSA signed an armistice treaty following the Battle of Yavin. (SWAJ, CSA)

Fiddanl
1) the first planet in the Yavin system, it is a molten world of toxic chemicals and atmosphere. It has eighteen natural landmasses, which shift upwards of 600 kilometers a day. The planet's name seems to have originated in the Imperial Xenodetic Survey Department, and was given by a Nuiwit clerk to replace the designation 96NK3F2. The average day on Fiddanl lasts 18 standard hours, and its year encompasses 276 local days. From space, the planet appears as a constantly-changing mosaic of color, resulting from the rich abundance of minerals in the crust and in the atmosphere. (GG2)
2) this was the name used by many Nuiwits for their pets. (GG2)

Fidelity
this was one of the Thranta-class warships slaved to the Another Chance to protect it from being taken by hostile forces. Like its companions, the Courage and Valiant, it would accompany the Another Chance as it jumped through hyperspace to avoid detection. One of the Thranta's would enter realspace before the Chance to engage any resistance, the second would accompany it for protection, and the third would help draw off pursuit. (BW)

Fidge
a Biituian youth who befriended R2-D2 and C-3PO when they encountered the Great Heap on Biitu. Fidge was ten years old at the time. (TGH)

Field Achievement Award
this medal was given to all members of the Alliance who survive their first mission into Imperial-controlled territory. (TFE)

Field Secured Container Vessel
known as an FSCV, these huge ships have heavy ion drives at each end. Produced by Loronar, the ship consists of several paired Prexton doublefield generators which create 800-meter-wide spheres of energy that can carry 250 million cubic meters of storage. The entire ship can then be surrounded by a hyperspace field which allows it to move at lightspeed to its destination. Note that the Black Ice adventure module claims these ships were designed and manufactured by Rendili StarDrive. (ISB, BI)

Field Sports
this small corporation manufactured recreational weapons used in targetting sports, including air guns used to fire capsules of paint to indicate hits. (ROE)

Fieldhopper
this insect, found on the planet Kubindi, is a staple in Kubaz cooking. (SWJ10)

Fierfek
the Huttese word for hex or curse. (TJP)

Fifteen Moons Casino
a gaming house located on Ord Mantell. (SL)

Fifth Battle Group
also known as the Fifth Fleet, this was the New Republic's latest defensive fleet, created about twelve years after the Battle of Endor. The Fifth Fleet was the first to be completely comprised of the Navy's new classes of starship, such as the Sacheen- and Hajen-class frigates. It was initially placed under the command of Etahn A'baht, and was deployed to the Koornacht Cluster during the Yevethan Great Purge. It initially contained 106 starships, but it took a number of losses in the blockade of Doornik-319. (BTS, SOL)

Figg, Ecclessis
this human was a well-known Corellian, famous for his deep-space explorations and wild inventions. On one of his expeditions, he discovered the planet Bespin's concentration of tibanna gas. Other gases were also discovered, and he began making plans to mine it. His initial plans called for a large amount of credit, so he successfully wooed and married a wealthy Alderaanian heiress, albeit from a lesser house. Over the duration of their marriage, Figg's investments returned a ten-fold profit on her money. His first Bespin mining colony, the Floating Home, was the start of a number of floating settlements to be erected in the clouds of Bespin, and spurred Figg to create Cloud City. His wife was the primary source for many of the architectural styles, drawing from the styles used on her homeworld of Alderaan. (GG2, TLC, DA, ISU)

Figg Avenue
this wide, wondrously-architected pathway was located on the administration level of Cloud City. (GG2)

Figg Plaza
one of the many beautiful open-air plazas located on Cloud City, Figg Plaza provided visitors with spectacular views of Bespin's sunset. (GG2)

Figg & Associates
the conglomerate of businesses formed by Ecclessis Figg on Bespin. (ISU)

Figg & Associates Bank and Trust
this was the largest financial institution formed on Cloud City. (GG2)

Figg & Associates Museum of Art
this acclaimed art museum was located on Cloud City, and was funded by Ecclessis Figg and his conglomerate. (GG2)

Figgis, Arner
this man, a professor of anthropology, proposed that the Bharhulai tribe of Socorro was a perfect example of his survival-regressive-isolationist theory. The theory proposed that groups of humans, isolated from other members of their kind during the colonization of a planet, would revert to primitive stages of human development in order to ensure the survival of the group. (BSS)

Figrin D'an
the Bith leader of the Mos Eisley cantina band, he is known as "Fiery Figrin" on Tatooine. He is rumored to have a huge stash of fine Corellian spice in his possession, and he is a sucker for a game of sabacc. He plays the Kloo Horn. (SW, SCRE, TME)

Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes
the Bith band that was playing in the Mos Eisley cantina when Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker booked passage on the Millennium Falcon, they were - at one time - Jabba the Hutt's full-time band. They are members, in good standing, of the Intergalactic Federation of Musicians. (TME)

Fijisi
the wood of this tree is used in panelling, it has a unique, delicate scent. It is native to the planet Cardooine, but also exists on the planet Commenor. (TLC, IR)

Filar-Nitzan
this was a race of gaseous beings which could form its body into a number of configurations. Native to the planet known only as DNX-N1, the Filar-Nitzan were called "cloud demons" or "gas devils" by the few beings who knew of them. Their coloration is varied, ranging from blue to green and yellow, and their eyes were always the opposite color from their bodies. Thus, a green-bodied Filar-Nitzan had red eyes. Xenobiologists of the New Republic believed that there were less than 400 individual Filar-Nitzan alive in the galaxy. (SWJ12, AE)

Filcher
a pirate cargo ferry destroyed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, as it tried to ferry supplies to Alliance transports. (TIE)

Filice Gonzork
this Arhan slicer was a member of The Shield during the Galactic Civil War. She married Peert Ginzork shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (CRO)

Filla
a New Republic Lieutenant serving under Admiral Ackbar. (XWN)

Fillin Ta
this young Whiphid, along with Norun Gep, ran Gep's Grill in Mos Eisley.They made their living by rendezvousing with hunters on the outskirts of Mos Eisley, buying up catches of dewback and bantha for their delicious food. (GG7)

Fillio Androu
this Wroonian and his partner, Linx Mallicker, salvaged the Lambarian Crab and modified it for their own use. The two were known as weapons runners, and plied the Rimma Trade Route while supplying weapons to the Alliance. (SS)

Fillip
an Anzati word for a simple pleasure. (TME)

Filorin, Abil
this man was the Alliance's primary contact within the local rebel cell on Brosi. Abil worked hard to make contact with the Brosin Underground, hoping to bring them into the fold of the Alliance before their efforts crossed paths. Note that this character is also referred to as Abil Vilorin in Alliance Intelligence Reports. (AIR)

Filve
a planet in the Ando system, Filve was the site of one of Thrawn's last attacks before he attacked Coruscant. The attack was led by the Star Destroyer Judicator. Much of the planet is covered by a hot desert, and the native Filvians have built enclosed cities to protect themselves from the planet's scorching environment. (TLC, TTSB)

Filvian
the race native to Filve, this Filvians are large, intelligent quadripeds which evolved in the various harsh landscapes of Filve. Their bumpy shape is a result of a variety of glands and sacs located on their bodies, which help the Filvian hold water and fat for consumption in emergency situations. This allows them to go for up to thirty days without food or water. Their three-fingered hands are quite dextrous, and many Filvians are known to be excellent computer operators. (TLC, TTSB)

Final Jump
spacer slang for death. (HSR)

Final Prophet
this is the Charon death cult's exalted leader. It was believed that the Final Prophet would be the Charon who would lead them all into the Void, for the Prophet would show them how to eliminate all life in the galaxy. The Void would then reveal to the Prohpet all the secrets of the galaxy, and allow the Charon to return to the Void. (OS)

Final Trump
a dreamed-up sabacc hand, Lando Calrissian envisioned this hand as an automatic 23 for its holder. (LCS)

Findo, Jarth
a native of the Corellian System, Jarth Findo was once a member of the Imperial Army's Special Missions company. After the company was nearly defeated by Alliance forces, Findo deserted his outfit and barely escaped the stromtroopers sent to bring him back. He started his own mercenary band, and recruited former members of the Imperial Army to join him. Many of his mercenaries were imprisoned for being mentally unstable, but Findo had no problems with that. He later began attacking New Republic military installations, but managed to elude capture. It was believed he maintained a base in the Duro Sector. (WBC)

Findris
this planet, the primary world in the Findris Sector, was the site of the Colonial News Net headquarters. It is also known as the birthplace of the Justice Action Network. (CRO)

Findris Flu
this common affliction tends to linger on in its sufferers, even after normal treatment is complete. (VP)

Fingal
Staffa's aide on Berchest, Fingal had the uncanny ability to show absolutely no emotion, no matter what the situation. He had served on Berchest for nearly ten years at the time of the Battle of Endor, as an undercover agent of the Empire, and believed his career was over until he was reactivated by Grand Admiral Thrawn. Thrawn used Fingal to keep an eye on Staffa, as well as to monitor any possible activities of Luke Skywalker on Berchest. (TLC, TTSB)

Fingerfin
native to the seas of Ruan, this fish had little value as a foodstuff. Instead, the Salliche Agricultural Corporation harvested them and ground them up for use as a fertilizer additive. (JE)

Fingerprint Masque
similar in appearance to an ink pad, this device attached a biochemical screen (or masque) to a being's fingertips. The screen can be set to a random pattern or a known pattern, and altered the fingerprint impression of a being. (GG11)

Fingertip Express
this was the name of Moranda Savich's MRX-BR Pacifier. (VOF)

Finhead Stonebone
an alien resembling a Kubaz, except that he appears to have three snouts instead of just one. A larger snout extends in between two smaller snouts. His origins were never discovered, although history shows he appeared in the known galaxy only a few years before the Great Sith War. He joined a pirate group in the Vorc Sector shortly afterward, and eventually earned enough money to buy his own ship. As Captain of the Starjacker, he tried to steal ore from Gruna's Colossus Wasp transport ship. When Gruna called in protection from Bogga the Hutt, Finhead was captured and given two choices: immediate death, or fly to Ambria and kill Master Thon. Finhead chose to go to Ambria, but was unsuccessful in trying to kill the Jedi Master. His small attack force was repelled by Thon and Nomi Sunrider. (TOJ, TOJC)

Fink's Hole
a city located on the planet Shador, Fink's Hole was close to the starport in Mud Station. Like other cities on the planet, the buildings in Fink's Hole were built on pylons to keep them above the swampy water. All travel between buildings was accomplished with gondollas and repulsor-powered boats. (SL)

Finn
an Imperial soldier killed on Cilpar. (XWRS)

Finn, Jasta
this rough, grim-looking man was a bounty hunter who worked in the Borderlands Region of the galaxy during the early years of the New Republic. He was loyal to Janelle Serap, and did much of her dirty work from a base on Seikosha. It was Finn who received the shipment of astromech droids and weapons from Simms Jonndril, including the droid R1-T4. (POC)

Fioer Desert
this desert was located on the planet Zaraksander. (GG10)

Fiolla
a female human with dark skin, hair, and eyes, she is a Lorrdian working for the Corporate Sector Authority as an auditor-at-large. Her full name is Hart-and-Parn Gorra-Fiolla of Lorrd, and her actual title is Assistant Auditor-General. Fiolla was born to middle-class boredom, and she grew up most admiring her uncle, Rewello. He was a renowned comic and mimic who had once played in front of the Regent of Alderaan. Fiolla did well in school, and eventually accepted a scholarship to the university of Kalla. During a break period, Fiolla and her roommates chose to vacation on Etti IV. It wasn't glamorous, but the shopping was great. While on Etti IV, Fiolla thwarted a murder attempt by Rex Shaxrigge on Dagmar Vozda. Vozda was working undercover to expose Shaxrigge, and was impressed with Fiolla's spirit. Vozda hired Fiolla into service with the Corporate Sector Authority after graduation, and Fiolla began to impress hre superiors almost immediately. When Vozda retired, Fiolla was in perfect position to take over the position of Detached Duty Officer for the Office of the Auditor-General. She had been on the trail of a slavery ring within the Authority, having tracked it all the way to Odumin, when she met up with Han Solo at Bonadan. She had been conducting random checks of Authority operations, and came upon Zlarb's involvement. She planned to intercept him at the Bonadan spaceport, but found Han instead. They teamed up to solve the slavery ring, only to end up exposing Odumin's plans on Ammuud. There, Fiolla revealed that she, too, was part of the cover-up activities necessary to maintain the slavery ring. (HSR, CSA)

Firdaaz, Gammer
this scout served aboard the FarStar, although quite often he was more drunk than sober. In one of his drunken stupors, he discovered the strange plants brought aboard the corvette after Kl'aal stumbled upon a spore-spreading plant on Binaros. Later, after the FarStar penetrated the Kathol Rift, Gammer elected to remain on the planet Demonsgate in order to maintain the Lifeline project. (KO, KR)

Fire Breather
one of the biological constructs of the Yuuzhan Vong, this thirty-foot-tall creature resembled a huge, walking balloon. It moved about a six stubby legs, and its body was studded with hose-like tentacles. From each of these tentacles, the fire breather ejected a stream of thick fluid, which caught fire in the presence of oxygen and incinerated everything it touched. The Yuuzhan Vong first employed these creatures during the attack on Gyndine. (JE)

Fire Creeper
this species of large insect inhabits the caves of the planet Nirauan, travelling in huge swarms across the floor and consuming everything in their path. They make a large amount of noise when they swarm, announcing their presence to anything that might have a chance to escape them. (VOF)

Fire Crystal
a flaming gemstone used by jugglers. They were found only in the No-ad System. (L, GOF5)

Fire Knife
a torture device. (ROTJN)

Fire Mountain Rally
this was one of several podraces that were sanctioned by the pro circuit, and wound through the coastal areas of the Baroo continent of the planet Baroonda, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Fire Nodes
precious gemstones. (HSE)

Fire Ring of Fornax
named for the unusual prominences which orbit the planet Fornax, this was the name given to a circle of flames in which pirates dueled against each other. Most often, duels to the death were fought inside a Fire Ring, so that no combatant could try to escape without being seriously burned in the attempt. (PP)

Firearc49 Speargun
manufactured by BlasTech, this speargun was developed for underwater use. It was essentially a long, metal pipe which could shoot a spear nearly 50 meters through the water. (SWJ1)

Fireater
this New Republic cruiser was stationed at Durren, in the early years of the New Republic. Along with the Courane, it was dispatched to Cybloc XII to investigate the spread of the Death Seed plague there. The Fireater was later was then sent to defend Nam Chorios, where it was destroyed by the combined attack of a group of Needle ships. (POT)

Firebug
another name for a phosphor bug. (COJ)

Firecat
a beast which is more dangerous after it has been wounded. (SE)

Fireclaw
this Imperial Interdictor cruiser partolled Lifh Sector during the Galactic Civil War. During the Alliance's attempt to liberate Vilosoria, the astromech R2Z-DL managed to discover Imperial codes and information on an imminent malfunction in the Fireclaw's gravity well projectors. Koedi Raef used the codes to redirect the Fireclaw, ordering it to remain in position until the projectors could be repaired. In the meantime, the Alliance was able to eliminate the Imperial garrison on Vilosoria and free the planet from Imperial control. (CRO)

Firecracker Mine
this form of weapon uses a group of small charges combined into a single mine. When activated, the firecracker mine sets off several small explosions which are used more for distraction than destruction. (TT)

Firefacet
a four-sided, elongated gemstone known for its brilliant, internal firelight. Lando Calrissian received a number of them as part of his reward for finding Dack Tymmo. (JS)

Firefoam
part of a starship's anti-fire protection systems, firefoam is expelled near a fire's source. It effectively douses most kinds of fires, and can be retrieved and ejected into space by the ship's anti-fire systems. (LCF)

Firefolk
another name for the Wisties of Endor. (EA)

Firegnat
an insect native to Clak'Dor VII, the firegnat's bite releases a burning saliva-like secretion. (TCC)

Firepath
this complex board game involves strategy and planning from each of two players. They are required to move their pieces on a board which is divided up into four Radials (Eastern, Western, Northern, and Southern) and four Rings (Fool's, Sorcerer's, Traitor's, and Beast's). Each Radial and Ring has seven Stones. Among the pieces are the Cardinal and the Merchant. When a piece from one player is captured by another, it disapears in a consuming pillar of fire. Darth Vader once lured Clat the Shamer onto a Firepath game board, during a match with Lady Dhol. Vader captured Clat on the board, consuming the assassin in flame. He later executed Dhol the same way, for her part in the deception. (CSWDW)

Firerider
this Starwind-class passenger yacht was owned and operated by Serdo for many years. Ostensibly, Serdo used the ship as a transport ship, carrying government officials and dignitaries to and from their appointments. In reality, Serdo used these trips to smuggle spice between planets. After amassing his own fortune, Serdo retired and sold the ship to Fizzi's Slight User Starships. The Firerider was armed with turret-mounted light ion cannon for defense. (SS)

Firespray
this was the brand name of BlasTech's DL-87 deck clearing blaster. (PP)

Firespray*-class Patrol Vessel
see Firespray-31 (PP)

Firespray-31
a 21.5-meter-long starship that was built for a very short time by Kuat Systems Engineering, the Firespray-31 was built for speed and stealth. It's design resembles and elephant's head, with the cockpit and cargo area making up the face and trunk, while the engine area formed the "ears." Two-thirds of the ship's hull area was dedicated to the engines, while accounts for its remarkable speed. It also points out the ship's lack of popularity, as there was limited cargo space. Over the years, these unique vessels have been seen less and less, although some smugglers still use them. These ships have been highly modified. One example of a Firespray-3 in use during the Galactic Civil War was the craft Slave I owned by the bounty hunter Boba Fett. (MTS, EGV)

FireStar Orbital Defense Station designed and manufactured by Rendili StarDrive, the FireStar Orbital Defense Station was capable of protecting and entire planet. Crewed by 500 officers and 208 gunners, the FireStar was armed with 148 laser cannons and 60 concussion missile launchers. The central section of the FireStar contained landing pads and hangars, while four towers pierced the platforms and rose eleven levels above and five levels below the central section. The FireStar could handle up to 500 passengers, and could store enough supplies for six months of autonomous activity. Produced during the last century of the Old Republic, the FireStar station never reached a wide market, and most of the stations built were purchased by planetary governments. (HAS)

FireStorm
this was a model of air-to-ground missile launching system that could fire 250 missiles per rack. Each missile had to be fired separately, which made the weapon slow to refire. (SS)

Firestorm
1) following the destruction of the Shockwave, this Imperial-class Star Destroyer became the flagship of Harrsk's fleet. He turned it over to Admiral Daala when he ordered her to assume command of the fleet. It was on the Firestorm that Daala later turned over control of the Imperial Navy to Pellaeon. (DS)
2) this one one of four Corellian CR90 Corvettes under the command of Lumiya, following the Battle of Endor. (SWG)

Firethorn Tree
these 100-meter tall trees grow in the Irugian rain forest on Abbaji. (SE)

Fireworm
also known as the Lava Dragon, this creature can survive the intense heat and pressure of the molten lava it lives in. It is armored by crystallized scales of silicon, and resembles a huge snake with pointed ear tufts made of hard scales. It "breathes" the lava, and is insulated by air bladders that keep it bouyant in the lava. On Eol Sha, Gantoris tests Luke's motives by making Luke walk across a lava pit and confront the fireworm living in it. Luke tried to kill it with his lightsaber, but the fireworm's scales only refracted the lightsaber's beam and deflected it into dozens of smaller light beams. (JS, JASB)

Firil, Sirenas
this bounty hunter teamed up with Chandrex Grenn in an effort to hunt down Pallas Quintell on Kallistas. She was part of a small guild based on Port Evokk, but maintained the ability to freelance on the side. The two hunters managed to survive a firefight near Quintell's desert base and captured him, returning the rebel to Prefect Rinn for a 1,000-credit bounty. (GG10)

Firith Olan
this Twi'leki individual was rumored to know the location of Jabba the Hutt's secret weapons cache, located somewhere in the Tatooine desert. The black-sheep son of a wealthy Twi'lek family, Olan was a minor crimelord who believed that, following Jabba the Hutt's death, he could step in and take control of the Hutt's criminal empire. He had somehow managed to gain control of the brain walker that contained Bib Fortuna's brain, and took great pleasure in the knowledge that Fortuna retained information about Jabba. In order to obtain the weapons cache, he had to put Huff Darklighter out of business, because Darklighter had learned of its existence. In the midst of this power struggle, Rogue Squadron was sent to discover if the cache existed. Imperial forces were also sent in to retrieve the cache, stored at the so-called Eidolon Base. Olan was captured by Captain Semtin and returned to Ryloth, in an attempt to draw off the Republic's forces. Semtin later freed him as a way to gain the confidence of the Twi'leki head clans, but caught him again at Eidolon Base. Semtin stabbed Olan before escpaing, and Bib Fortuna's brain walker took advantage of the situation. Fortuna had been trailing Olan, waiting for just such an opportunity to exact revenge. Fortuna dragged Olan's body to the B'omarr monks and had them swap brains. Olan was forced to spend the rest of his conscious existence in the brain walker, while Fortuna used his body to try and rebuild Jabba's empire. (XWBT)

Firrerre
homeworld of the Firrerreo race, it is famous for its 1,263-meter waterfall. The planet was rendered uninhabitable by the Empire after Hethrir betrayed it to Darth Vader and the Emperor, and has been toxic ever since. The inhabitants of the planet were thought to be extinct, until the beings Hethrir, Rillao, and Tigris were discovered by Princess Leia in 33 PE. Then it was revealed that a good number of Firrerreo were trapped in suspended animation aboard a group of colony ships sent out years ago to colonize nearby planets. (CS)

Firrerrean Silk
this fine fabric was created by the Firrerreo and used to make beautiful cloaks and jackets. (E1A5)

Firrerreo
tall humanoids native to the planet Firrerre, they beings have unique striped hair, nictitating mebranes covering their eyes, and golden skin which turns silver when scarred. They possessed limited spacefaring technology, and had only recently perfected sublight travel when Hethrir convinced them to head for nearby planets while being held in hibernation. Those that were placed on the colony ships are the only surviving Firrerreo, because Hethrir later turned the planet over to the Empire, which destroyed the ecosystem with a biological weapon. Hethrir had been raiding the colony ships for slaves over the years, until his death at the hands of the being Waru. The Firrerreo have strong clan affiliations, and a fair amount of Force sensitivity. (CS)

Firro
a planet subjugated by the Empire, it was placed under the jurisdiction of Governor Cuvir. (MTS)

First Battle Group
also known as the First Fleet, this was the first full Naval fleet commissioned by the New Republic. It was first assigned as the home guard for Coruscant, and was later sent on various tours of duty as other fleets were commissioned. It was in the area of the galaxy known as Thunder Alley when the Yevethan Great Purge began. (BTS)

First Battle of Ord Biniir
this Galactic Civil War battle was decided by the presence of the durable Y-Wing starfighters. (EGV)

First Dawn
a Tatooinian term referring to the time period between when the first and second suns rise. (MTS)

First Edition
this was the name of Moff Aricos Dreleene's L19 freighter. He had hoped to obtain an L19a special edition, but discovered that his "bargain" was a run-of-the-mill L19. He invested a huge sum of credits to have outlaw techs refit the ship to appear to be a true L19a, including modification of the serial numbers and transpoder codes, and Dreleene was able to pass it off for many years. However, a band of pirates saw the First Edition and captured it, thinking they had acquired an L19a. After learning that it was a fake, the pirates turned the Moff and the ship over to the Alliance. The Alliance refitted the ship, and renamed it the Almost Authentic. (SS)

First Hall of Brentioch established by the Brentioch family many millennia before the Battle of Yavin, this Hall was the forerunner of the Brentaal Hall Conservatory. The huge building was proposed and funded by Sival Brentioch. (SWJ13)

First Twilight
a Tatooinian term referring to the time period between when the first and second suns set. (MTS)

First Unification Wars
this series of battles was waged by Empress Teta some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. These wars brought the first seven star systems under Teta’s command, and brought the planet Kirrek into her empire. (GAS)

Firstmother
the extinct, humanoid predecessors of the M'Shinni race, the Firstmothers evolved a symbiotic with certain plant species. The resulting organism closely resembled the M'shinni. Every M'shinni Rootline can trace its roots back to a Firstmother. (GG12)

Firsts
this name was used by the descendants of the original colonists who settled Zonama Sekot, as a way to describe those original colonists. To be a child of an original colonist was to be known as a son or daughter of Firsts. (RP)

Firtee Cluster
an area of warehouses and other storage facilities located on the north side of Xakrea, on the planet Darkknell. (TFNR)

Firwirrung
this reddish-brown Ssi-ruu was an apprentice of the enctechment master Yifail. Later, after the subjugation of the planet G’rho, Firwirrung was Sibwarra's Ssi-ruuvi commander, and head of the Ssi-ruuvi entechment project at Bakura. Many of his peers, including Admiral Ivpikkis, felt uncomfortable around Firiwrrung, claiming that he was overly ambitious and unworthy of the praise which was lavished on him. Firwirrung was credited with the formation of the plan to modify an entechment chair to accommodate a Force-sensitive individual, allowing the Ssi-ruuk to draw life-energy from other humans across a great distance. Despite the initial success of the apparatus in enteching Luke Skywalker, Firiwrrung was unable to complete his work. Dev Sibwarra managed to kill the Ssi-ruu during the Battle of Bakura. (TB, TBSB)

Fish
this inept man joined Orman's organization shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He was disliked by the other thugs in Orman's employ, and they worked to betray Fish just to get rid of him. (ML) an Imperial Security Bureau agent investigating Alliance activity on Demophon before the planet was destroyed when its sun exploded. (SN)

Fitca Prime
this planet was the primary world in the Fitca System, located within the Lesser Plooriod Cluster. The plane and system were subjugated by the Empire's High Inquisitor Mox Slosin during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Fitch
1) this man served as once of Dequc's couriers. He escorted Mara Jade – working under the alias of Baroness Paltonae – to Dequc's fortress on Qiaxx. (MJEH)
2) this Ferroan was one of the group which accepted a newly-shaped Sekotan starship from the Langhesi and finished off the creatoin process. They filled any seams or cracks left behind by the Jentari, then calibrated the ship's systems to it new owner. Fitch's people also provided elementary education to the new owner, but left the majority of it to the ship itself. Fitch provided guidance to the new owner, as their actions during the early life of their starship would help the ship grow mature. (RP)

Fitsay
this was one of the underwater cities built by the Sedrians in the shallow oceans of Sedri. While it is known for its architeture, Fitsay is best known for being the dome which contained the Great Shell Dome which housed the Golden Sun. While having the Golden Sun gives the Sedrian priests a high level of command over their fellow Sedrians, the water supply to the Golden Sun was greatly reduced. This meant that the polyps couldn't sieve the water for plankton and other food, and the Golden Sun began to starve. It also tried to devise a way to get the priests to set it free, without incurring any harm to itself. When a group of Alliance agents traveled to Sedri to rescue Mors Odrion, they discovered the various plots by Karak, Cardo, and Commander Aban to control the Golden Sun. he Sedrians who lived in the city also called themselves "Fitsay," to distinguish themselves from other Sedrians. (GG4, BGS)

Fitz Roi
a legendary jatz musician. (SWAJ)

Fivaran Organization
this pirate gang operated during the early years of the New Order. Nearly all the Fivaran pirates were killed or captured shortly before the Battle of Yavin, when they mistakenly attacked the Alliance Special Forces vessel Hauler VI. The pirates believed it was a civilian vessel, since it carried no obvious Alliance markings. Denuab and Dorin Venithon escaped as soon as they realized the mistake. (AIR)

Five, The
the rulers of the sadistic followers of the Soulworm, the Five control some of Attahox's underground. Led by Suzal, the Five included the woman Koorabee, the youth Mavin, and the lovers Chell and Chokla. They maintained a hidden fortress in the Hellhoop, and kept a number of creatures captive in their Menagerie. When they captured Han Solo, Leia Organa, and Chewbacca, they made a series of mistakes in underestimating the Alliance agents. All by Chokla were killed when Chewie freed the creatures of the Menagerie, as well as Han and Leia. Chokla managed to escape before Wuzzek could catch him. (CSWDW)

Five Brothers
a name given to the five inhabited planets in the Corellian System. (AC)

Five Fire Rings of Fornax
see Fornax

Five Veils' Tour Route
a hyperspace lane the connects various tourist and trade worlds between Farstine and Skynara. (GG9)

Fiver
this early-model R7 astromech was owned by Anakin Solo. The name came from the five attempts Anakin made to upgrade the notoriously poor-functioning droid to the standards of an R2 unit. (BP)

Fixer
this was the term used to describe a specialized form of computer slicer. Fixers hacked into corporate or government data centers and stole proprietary information, leaving forged - though bogus - data behind. They then sold the information on the black market. It was believed that the term "fixer" came from the Sullustan phrase tersish g'loc, which loosely translated to "fix them once and for all." (GG11)

Fixer, The
one of Luke's friends at Anchorhead on Tatooine, he was a mechanic at Tosche Station. He owned the Power Station there. He was dating Camie when Bigs Darklighter returned to Tatooine before joining the Alliance, and the two later were married and lived in the old Darklighter estate. The Fixer was portrayed by Adam Arkin for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR)

Fixer
this was one of three Imperial maintenance carriers assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Fiz Cor'gril
this Bith, known to his associates as Fizzi, felt that he was just another intelligent Bith, and left Clak'Dor VII to pursue a life among the stars. He took a number of somewhat disreputable jobs to get by, and picked up a great deal of knowledge about starships, business, and negotiation. About twenty years before the Battle of Hoth, Fizzi set up a starship dealership on Trevi IV. Hiring a Verpine named Garginoolaara to repair his starships, and taking a chance on Shanna Kinn to help him sell them, Fizzi has built one of the most affordable and dependable starship dealerships in the sector. Fizzi is known to his clients as a fair but demanding salesman, with a polite demeanor and a shrewd business mind. He prefers to let his clients browse rather than pushing a hard-sell on them, and is glad to take them on tours himself. (SWJ9)

Fizz-Pop
this is a carbonated beverage enjoyed throughout the galaxy. The Squibs use empty Fizz-Pop cans as the badges of their most trusted diplomats. (SH)

Fizzbrew
a highly-carbonated beer. (BP)

Fizzer-sweet
a popular kind of candy, made during the New Order. (AIR)

Fizzi's Slightly Used Starships
this establishment, found in Trevi City on Trevi IV, has been owned and operated by Fiz Cor'gril for nearly three decades. (SWJ9)

Fizzyglug
an intergalactic carbonated beverage favored on Nar Shaddaa and many backwater worlds. (DESB, HR)

Fizzz
the jizz term for a Dorenian Beshniquel. (TME)

Flack
a swear word used by many Imperial troops. (VOF)

Flagn Horn
this musical instrument was often used by bards, as its unique sound complimented the spoken word. (HR)

Flailer
these jet-black creatures have a flat, disc-like shape. They live one the surface of Calamari's seas, floating in wait for prey to come within reach. The edge of the flailer's body is studded with razor-sharp teeth, which the flailer uses to rake its prey's flesh. The flailer then consumes the blood that flows from the prey's wounds. (DU)

Flakax
an insectile race native to the planet Flax, the Flakax were a society of sexless drones dominated by a queen. A few males are also produced when the female lays her eggs, to assist in the reproductive process. The drones do all the work required, while the males are simply slaves to the queen. The Flakax society is highly developed around the hives in which they live, with each of the three sexes having a defined role in its maintenance. However, they had no high technology when they were subjugated by the Empire and forced to work in mines to obtain metals for the Imperial war machine. (GG4)

Flame Beetle
found on the planet Kashyyyk, these unusual insects can exhale fire when attacked. This defense mechanism is well-known to the Wookiees, but some still stumble into a swarm and suffer burns. (TT)

Flame Carpet Warhead
this weapon is filled with a wickedly-flammable liquid. The liquid is thick and adhesive, and is scattered across several square kilometers when the warhead explodes. A charge inside the warhead ignites the liquid, which burns anything and everything it comes in contact with. (TBH)

Flame Opal
a valuable gemstone. (POT)

Flame Rifle
an out-dated weapon that produced a blast of destructive flame that could be aimed at a target. (HSL)

Flame-gem
a valuable gemstone. (LCS)

Flameout
a drink Han Solo liked to partake of every so often. If mixed properly, it could burn the tongue while freezing the throat. (HSR)

Flameout
a song written and played by the band Red Shift Limit. It was first released as part of the compilation entitled Thoughts from The Core, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Flamestrike Legion
this small but cohesive unit of troops defended Bamula Sector from foreign invasion for several generations before the Empire showed up. The Legion, noted for its mustard-yellow armor, was no match for the Imperial war machine, and forcibly disbanded. (SWJ8)

Flamewind
a name given to the unique flaring of the Oseon System's primary star. The star belches out huge solar prominences once a year. These flares pick up excited vapors from the inner asteroids in the system, further exciting them and creating a huge, fluorescent, pulsating display of colors throughout the asteroid system. This display is a huge event for the tourist trade in the Oseon. The cycle of the Flamewind lasts about three wweks, during which time all interasteroid travel is restricted and communications are completely blotted out. There are stories and legends of strange disappearances, apparitions, and visitations during the Flamewind. Lando Calrissian returns to the Oseon System to play sabacc with Lob Doluff, and catches one of the Flamewind's displays. (LCF)

Flan, Gevil
this man owned a dockside warehouse on Fait d'Fait, and a friend of Siro Simito. He kept Simito's Alliance loyalties a secret, primarily because he knew that the Vallaido pirates would kill him if he squealed. (CRO)

Flandar
this barren ball of rock was the third and outermost planet in the Thanta Zilbra system, until it was destroyed by the Sacorrian Triad as part of the Starbuster Plot. (CTD)

Flandon Sweeg
primary character in The Slug Named Grendel, Flandon Sweeg was a starship captain who was up to his ears in debt. He was a dangerous, dishonorable man who commanded his ship through fear rather than through comradery. He planned to capture the legendary space slug Grendel and sell it off, hoping to make enough credits to pay off his debtors ans reatin a huge fortune. Flandon, his starship Darkfire, and his crew were all lost in the Borkeen Belt. (SWSB)

Flandorian Flower
the blossoms of this plant are used to decorate the floats used in the Shaldania Parade on Coruscant. (SWJ8)

Flangth
this nutritional food is hated by many young children for its lack of taste. Note that this is spelled flanth in the Star Wars Adventure Journal, Number 14. (CSA, SWJ14)

Flangth*-hound
this creature was generally regarded as the source of the foodstuff known as flangth, although no one has ever seen one. (PGT)

Flangth-2-Go
this subsidiary of Arcon Multinode Agricorp is the second-largest fast food chain in the galaxy. (CSA)

Flankers
this world was located in a remote part of Fakir Sector, on the border between the sector and the Colonies region. Its star exploded sometime after the Battle of Yavin, destroying the entire system. The Empire abandoned its base on Flankers shortly before the explosion. (SWCP)

Flannis, Fionna
this woman was an investigative reporter with the Colonial News Net during the height of the New Order. She despised the social hierarchy developed by the Empire, and hated the upper classes. It was for this reason that she joined the Alliance, providing information she gathered from attending Imperial events to Alliance agents in the hopes that she could embarrass the Imperial elite. (CRO)

Flapdragon
this creature, native to the planet Gamorr, lives in muddy swamps. (POT)

Flare Base
an Alliance outpost set up in the high mountains on Korseg IV. (RPG)

Flare-S
this Mobquet swoop is a hybrid of the innovations derived from racing swoops and speeder bikes. It is heavier than most swoops, a fact that is attributed to its reinforced S-shaped chassis. The Flare-S has forward-mounted steering vanes and longer stabilizer bars to increase handling and maneuverability. The repulsorlift engine is mounted in the center of the frame to help decrease rolling and tumbling. The Flare-S is also equipped with air intakes that force-feed turbothrusters connected to directionall nozzles for additional speed and maneuverability. It can attain speeds of up to 600 kilometers per hour. (EGV, CCG9)

Flarestar
this was one of the many bars and taverns that sprung up on Yag'Dhul's space station after Rogue Squadron moved in. The Flarestar was known for its good service and dark, brooding decor. (BW)

Flarestream, Margo
known to her allies as "Pepper," Margo was a flight commander with the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. She defected from the Imperial Academy early in the war, before it became "fashionable." She was capable of flying anything, from Z-95 Headhunters to X-Wings. She was given her first command during the evacuation of Refnar, ordered to protect the transports and freighters long enough for them to jumpo into hyperspace. However, when her unit was decimated in the Last Stand at Refnar, she lost more than good friends and pilots. She lost her will to fly, and requested a transfer out of Starfighter Command. She "retired" to Fabrillan, where she spent most of her time drunk while awaiting her next orders. (CRO)

Flarg
a swear word which often referred to excrement. (ROE)

Flarion
this is the Wookiee name for a species of bird common on Kashyyyk. They are hunted for food by the Wookiees. The flarion are easily started, and require quick reflexes to shoot. (TT)

Flash
a group of Alliance Y-Wings supporting the Tela from the frigate Xerxes. (TIE)

Flash Company
one of the two divisions of the ThunderForce mercenary unit. Flash and Dazzle Companies each have eight full platoons of soldiers, and each had nearly 200 members in the unit. (HAS)

Flash Fire
this Dreadnaught-class heavy cruiser was part of Warlord Zsinj's third fleet, during the early years of the New Republic. The Flash Fire was destroyed at the Battle of Selaggis. (SOC)

Flash Goggles
a form of eye protection which continually and immediately adjusts for incoming light. They are often used near blast sights, to help protect the eyes of the viewers. Similar to tranparisteel, the lenses in flash goggles darken when the incoming light brightens. Flash gogles also share transparisteel's tendency to cloud up completely following an intense flare, but flash goggles often burn out completely following these flares, rendering them useless. (AC)

Flash Pistol
this primitive weapon was the favored sidearm on the planet Sevarcos. It used gunpowder to project a bullet at its target. (SWJ12)

Flash Rifle
a large weapon used on Sevarcos, the flash rifle is a bigger version of the flash pistol. It used primitive gunpowder to project a small bullet at its target. (SWJ12)

Flash Speeder
this was one of two primary repulsor-equipped speeders produced by the engineers of the royal forces of Naboo. The 4.5-meter-long Flash speeder has two outboard repulsor engines, and has room for a pilot and a passenger. The Flash is a military design, and has a turret-mounted laser cannon mounted between the engines at the rear of the speeder. It has room for a pilot and up to three passengers, and can attain speeds of 200 kilometers per hour. (SW1, YJC1, X1, IG1)

Flash Teaching
a technique for implanting personalities and technical training on clones. (TLC)

Flash 4
Merr-Sonn's heavy blaster pistol. (RASB)

Flashburn
a term used by Jedi Masters to describe the way in which certain Jedi and Force-sensitive individuals will close off areas of their minds in reaction to a large, emotional trauma. The result is that the individual has sections of their memory seeming cease to exist, and they can't remember details about the thing at the center of the trauma. Corran Horn was flashburned when he believed his Mirax was lost, shortly after the death of Emperor Palpatine's clone. (IJ)

Flashship
built by the Korlier Combine, these fast starfighters are among the rarest of ships in the galaxy. Like all other Korlier designs, the Flashships have no serial numbers, which makes them hard to identify and trace. (VOF)

Flask, Erisson
an Alliance soldier who spent time on the Kwenn space station. (RC)

Flat Liner
Erlick Frodor's YT-1300 freighter, he used it to help the Alliance in the Demophon System. When Frodor became the commander of the Orflon Base, the Flat Liner was turned over to the Alliance for use as an evacuation ship. It was later renamed the One Liner. (SN)

Flatbread
this Alderaanian foodstuff is a tasty, crusty, cracker-like bread. (TPS)

Flatcam
similar to a flatscreen, the flatcam is a two-dimensional recording and display system which was used in the age before holocams were invented. (SOA)

Flatscreen
any device which uses a two-dimensional display for input and output. (TJP)

Flatsculp
a two-dimension artform popularized by the Vaathkree. (HTTE)

Flatview
any two-dimensional message transmission screen. (AC)

Flautis
a member of the Human League on Corellia, Flautis often worked with Barnley. Flautis was a short, greasy, unkempt human. (AC)

Flavian, Cort
this Corporate Sector Authority Security Policeman was working for Jor Nieler some years after the Battle of Endor. Easily distinguished by his bright red hair, Cort was working undercover with Nieler at Rordan's Spaceship Parts and More in the starport city of Verena. His position was doubly dangerous, for Cort was also an undercover Imperial Intelligence agent at the time. (TSK)

Flax
located in the Ptera System of the Sumitra Sector, Flax is home to the Flakax race of insectiods. It is tectonically active, and is covered alternately by oceans, incredibly-tall mountain ranges, and deserts. The Flakax live underground in hives. The planet was overrun by the Empire, and the Flakax were enslaved and used to mine ores from the planet's crust. (GG4, REB)

Flechette Launcher
a shoulder-mounted weapon that launches a cannister filled with small darts. The cannister explodes a short distance from its target, releasing a hail of darts. (HSR, CSA, KO)

Flechette Missile
a projectile, just over 11 centimeters in length, that is built as an anti-personnel weapon or an armor-piercing anti-vehicle weapon. (WEG)

Fleck
this was one of Gamgalon's henchmen on Varonat. He was the Krish's chief come-up flector. (TFE)

Fleek-Eel
a snake-like creature native to the planet Falleen. They inhabit the Hocekureem Sea. They are a delicacy, and are often served cooked in pepper oil or zaffa oil. (SE, SESB)

Fleet Central Communications
the branch of the New Republic responsible for the hyperspace communication between various factions of the New Republic Navy. (TLC)

Fleet Command Academy
this was the fledgling New Republic's premier Naval officers' training facility. (SOC)

Fleet Tactics and Combat Methodology
this Alliance military guidebook was written by Admiral Ackbar, and was intended for reading by the Allianc'se Navy officers. (TBSB)

Fleet Watch
this publication is the newsletter of the Alliance Veterans Victory Association. It attempted to provide a non-confidential, up-to-date status report of the New Republic's Navy and Armed Forces. (TT)

Fleft-wauf
this carnivorous flying ray is native to the planet Taloraan, where they prey upon the huge sleft-chuffni. They have barbed tails that they use to rip open the sleft-chuffni's gasbag. The Wind Raiders use fleft-wauf as mounts, in their attacks on the Denfraadi. (SWAJ)

Fleik
a creature whose liver is often creamed to make pate'. (TME)

Flenn, Mich
this aging Corellian was a smuggler who retired as soon as he made enough credits to purchase the Blue Light Tavern on Nar Shaddaa. He was the first person to describe the Jedi Knights to Han Solo. (RD)

Flennic
this Imperial Moff controlled a portion of the Imperial Remnant, following the peace accord made with the New Republic. He was a member of the old school, and believed that the Republic should be left alone when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (DTR)

Flesh Droid
this term was used to describe those organic beings who had been turned into droid by the evolution droids created by X0-X1. Flesh droids were nearly complete in the their transformation, but retained a percentage of their original organic makeup. (CCC)

Flet, Derren
the architect of Jabba the Hutt's palace on Tatooine. The Movie Trilogy Sourcebook and the Essential Guide to Characters both indicate that Derren Flet built Jabba's palace, and was killed for not included a large enough dungeon. However, Tales from Jabba's Palace and the Illustrated Star Wars Universe both claim the palace existed long before Jabba took control of it. (MTS, EGC, ISU, TJP)

Flex-5
this was the brand name of Merr-Sonn's detonite tape. (SWJ13)

Flexi-corridor
this was a form of pre-fabricated tunnel which could be bent into any shape and attached between two buildings. Flexi-corridor allowed explorers, scout, miners, and other settlers on remote worlds to maintain a contained living environment. (JH)

Flexisteel
this pliable yet extremely durable material is used in the formation of lanyards and other heavy ropes used in starship construction yards. (SWCP)

Flexsteel
a material that has metallic characteristics, but is very plaible as well. It is often used to make flexcord, and was used by Beryl Chiffonage to form the tow cable of a power harpoon. It is often referred to as flexi-steel. (CCG3)

Fligh
this humanoid was a known infochant who worked on the planet Coruscant some twelve years prior to the Battle of Naboo. He was also a good friend of Didi Oddo, and spent a good deal of time working the halls of the Galactic Senate. A spindly creature with large ears and a long face, Fligh had a green, prosthetic eye which replaced one he lost in a fight with a Hutt crimelord. Note that in Jedi Apprentice: The Dealy Hunter, Fligh is referred to as a human by Uta S'orn. Fligh favored a glass of muja juice when he wasn't working. Fligh was asked by Astri to find out about a dinner party which was being planned by Jenna Zan Arbor. He trailed her to the Senate Chamber, where Arbor was meeting with her friend, Senator Uta S'orn. This fit into Fligh's plans, since he had been hired by Helb and the Tech Radiers to acquire the datapad of Senator S'orn. Fligh simply stole both datapads at one time. Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, trying to help Didi located Fligh, discovered that Fligh owed a large sum of credits to the Tech Raiders, shortly before Fligh was found murdered on the Lane of All Worlds. Qui-Gon discovered that Fligh's prosthetic eye had been dislodged during the struggle, while Fligh was apparently strangled. Fligh's body was also drained completely of blood, in a similar fashion as six or so other lowlifes during the preceding year. His death was also similar to that of Ren S'orn. Senator S'orn's datapad was acquired by the Tech Raiders, but Jenna Zan Arbor's pad remained missing. (DH)

Flightknife
this was the Adumari term for a squadron of fighter craft. It has not size restriction, and contains between 4 and 12 pilots and their craft. (SOA)

[Flik'a kirki]
the ultimate goal of the followers of the [Dinante Fli'r] religion, this is known as the virtuous circle of nature. It refers to the belief that all good Ho'Din, who act as stewards of the flora and fauna of Moltok and protect their environment from destruction, will return their origins and be reborn as plants. (GG4)

Flim
this accomplished actor and impressionist was tapped by Moff Disra for his resemblance to Grand Admiral Thrawn. With a little surgical alteration and judicious use of dyes, Flim was transformed over a two-year period to become the embodiment of Thrawn. Specialized, self-powered surface inserts were created to make Flim's eyes glow red, and his vocal control allowed him to quiet a room in no time. When the Caamas Incident threatened to tear the New Republic apart, Disra brought Flim out of hiding. Using a series of feints in which no real explanation was given as to Thrawn's reappearance, Flim man successfully played the role of Thrawn, using his acting ability and as much Imperial history as he could memorize to pull off the role. Flim managed to fool Major Tierce as well as Captain Dorja, both of whom had served under Thrawn. When the Relentless intercepted the Lady Luck, Flim got his chance to portray Thrawn for Lando Calrissian and Porolo Miatamia. As Thrawn, he offered the New Republic the use of his services in the resolution of the Bothan situation. They took the message back, but it was rejected by the New Republic. Flim continued to act as Thrawn, drawing in many systems to the Empire's side, including the Ruurians and the Kroctari. When Han Solo and Calrissian were discovered on Bastion, Flim got another chance to prove his abilities, portraying Thrawn for both Calrissian and Solo. He offered them a copy of the Caamas Document, and implicated Borsk Fey'lya in the attack on the Combined Clans Building on Bothawui. He then let them go, knowing that the Document he provided them had been doctored to implicate other Bothans in the destruction of Caamas. Flim's act was eventually exposed by Admiral Pellaeon, who revealed not only Flim's background but that of Tierce. Tierce was executed by Shada D'ukal, Disra was exposed as a traitor, and Flim simply surrendered to Pellaeon. (SOP, VOF)

Flimsiplast
this material resembles sheets of plastic that can be written on. Used for conveying messages, flimsiplast can be impregnated with chemicals that allow the writing to remain hidden until it contacts a being's specific chemical makeup. It can also be set to burn up after the message has been activated, thereby ensuring the message is read and them destroyed. (COJ, SLS)

Flimsy
a name given to the sheets of plastic or crystal that contain data and information. They could be erased and used over and over. (TB, TPS)

Flin
a Captain in the New Republic. (DESB)

Flin, Nelson
this Alliance Intelligence agent was Evram Darkmere's best friend and chief contact. Darkmere passed on vital information about the Empire's movements around Herdessa to Flin. When Darkmere defeated Gorvan Shrulldike in combat, Flin and his partner Lupon eliminated Shrulldike's flunkies before they could kill Darkmere. (CRO)

Flink
a creature noted for its inability to flee when confronted. It was often used to denote an undefended target, as in "he's a sitting flink." (BP)

Flint
a Force-sensitive Jedi candidate who was trained in the use of the Dark Side by Darth Vader. Flint became known as the Dark Lord of Beldarone, and was slighted by Luke Skywalker following the Battle of Endor. Luke was able to control Flint and stop him from reviving the Sith magic. (EGC)

Flint, Finegan
this tall, thin man was the founder of the Knights swoop gang on Stend IV. He has a bookish appearance, belying his role as the leader of a swoop gang. (GG9)

Flint, Lucius
Flint was a Captain in the police force that patrolled the city of D'larah. He was swayed over to the G'uotr Network in order that his wife and children could be safely transported off Demophon before it was destroyed. He maintained his belief in the law, however, but would turn a blind eye from minor infractions. (SN)

Flip of the Credit
this modest casino was owned by Avaro Sookcool, and was located in Equator City on Rodia. (SESB)

Flirt
this small, box-like computer was designed for use by the Wookiee Chenlambec and his apprentice, Tinian I'att. Female in personality, Flirt was designed to look like one of the quarrels in Chen's bandolier. Flirt was programmed to talk to a computer installment and insiunate herself into its programming. She was a talkative creation, and loved challenges. This trait allowed her to work hard to infiltrate the computer system of the Hound's Tooth when Chenlambec and Tinian attempted to trap Bossk. Flirt was able to gain control of several security systems, allowing Chen to scout the ship's defenses. Flirt later gained control of the Hound itself, after electronically 'sweet-talking' it. This allowed Chen and Tinian to overcome Bossk's built-in defenses and trap him near Lomabu III. After they took control of the Hound's Tooth, Chen mounted Flirt onto a power-point on the X10-D service droid, giving her a huge, strong body and full-time access to the Hound's computer system. (TBH)

Flitter
1) another name for a one- or two-person airspeeder (HSE)
2) the codename of one of the Alliance's safe worlds, Flitter was located in the Tierfon System. The planet's location was revealed when an Imperial starship captured an Alliance transport on its way to the planet. The Imperial fleet destroyed many of the planet's cities and poisoned much of its ecology, killing 95 percent of the population and leaving the rest to die. (RASB)

Flitter Suit
this form of protective clothing was essentially a vacuum suit with a small jet pack attached. These suits offered slightly better hard-vacuum protection than a standard vacuum suit, as well as the ability to make small movements with the jet pack. Because they were designed for light duty, the jet pack of a flitter suit was capable of a single thrust before requiring a recharge. (PSG)

Flitterfly
a this small insect flew on gossamer wings, giving it a jerky motion when moving in a breeze. (BP)

Floater
1) another name for a landspeeder. (SWN)

2) any of the various species of creatures which inhabit the upper cloud layers of the planet Yavin. Of the twelve known species of Floaters, two are predatory and feed on the other ten species. One of the predatory species resembled a large, floating jellyfish or squid, while the other was sharklike in its form. All species range in size from 30 to 1,500 meters in length. (GG2)

Floater Car
a repulsorlift land vehicle. (JS)

Floater Globe
this was a form of art which used miniature repulsors to keep a filigreed globe afloat. (TFNR)

Floater Shark
one of only two predatory species found in the clouds of the planet Yavin, the floater shark rides the winds in search of food. (GG2)

Floater Squid
one of only two predatory species found in the clouds of the planet Yavin, the floater shark rides the winds in search of food. (GG2)

Floating City
the largest of the settlements found on the planet Aquillaris, Floating City actually hovers a few feet off the surface of the vast ocean which covers the planet. It was located near the planet's largest coral reef. (RAC)

Floating Fish
this tastefully-decorated gambling club was located on Cloud City, and was owned and operated by Mussat Nasrabi during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (IDC)

Floating Fortress
a cylindrical repulsorlift combat vehicle used to augment Imperial ground troops through the use of sophisticated sensor arrays and a huge blaster cannon. (SWSB)

Floating Glob
this Charon bio-construct was created as a waste disposal system for use aboard their strange starships. The globs measure about a meter in diameter, and have a number of tendrils which hang down from the main sphere. The tendrils exude an adhesive which attaches waste material to them. The tendrils then consume the waste by placing it inside the acid-filled main body where it is broken down into materials used as food by the glob. (OS)

Floating Home
Lord Ecclessis Figg's first Bespin gas mining colony. It proved to the galaxy that gas mining could be profitable, and was the first of a multitude of settlements built in Bespin's clouds. (ISU)

Flodon
one of the Imperial agents altered to resemble a Mon Calamari, Flodon's personality is one of stoic disinterest in everything. He is a bit unstable mentally. He had a love of the hunt, and was among the best killers in the service of the Empire. When the Empire invaded Calamari, Flodon assisted Generet in trying to subvert the rebellious Calamarians. (DU)

Floozam
a creature domesticated as a pet. (COTF)

Floppy Helix Intensifier
this device was used to damped the overall strength of a tractor beam generator at any particular point, producing a wide arc of force much wider and longer than the original design. (GG2)

Floren
this New Republic warship was part of Task Force Gemstone. (TT)

Florn
an extrememly hostile and dangerous planet, it is home to the Lamproid race. In order to survive, most races need hyperaccelerated nerve implants to help them react to the planet's many pitfalls. (TME)

Floubette Dance
this stylized form of the Floubettean mating ritual is considered an art form when performed by avian species. When humans and near-humans perform it, the dance is nothing but disgusting. (SWJ9)

Floubettean
an avian race which performs a complex mating dance. The dance has been performed as an artistic expression by other avian races, but it is revolting when it is performed by humans. (SWJ9)

Flounut
a legume from which a flavorful oil is extracted and whipped into butter. (SE)

Flower-fruit
a succulent native to the planet Dagobah, the flower-fruit has a tough outer skin that protects it from most foraging creatures. When it is exposed to bright lights, the flower-fruit unfolds its skin to expose purplish berries to the light. It is the favorite food of the spotlight sloth, which uses bioluminescent patches on its body to make the flower-fruit open up. (IUS)

Flowered Plains
this open area is found on the planet Ylesia, near Colony One. It is essentially a flat swamp, although it is covered with huge, exotic blossoms that carpet it completely. (TPS)

Flowering Bott Pub
this cantina and restaurant was popular with Newcomers in the city of Hweg Shul. (POT)

Flowstone
a building material (HTTE, JS)

FLTCH R-1
this huge mercenary droid was sent by Bron and Ephant Mon to eliminate Ki-Adi-Mundi in the depths of the Outsider Citadels, after the Cerean elders rejected admission into the Old Republic. Ki had gotten dangerously close to their source, and needed to be removed. Ki was able to defeat the huge droid after a messenger brought his lightsaber to him, at the request of Nar-Somo-Dali. The droid was recovered by Silais and reprogrammed, and was eventually assigned to assist Ki in his search for Ephant Mon near Tatooine. FLTCH R-1 served as the starship pilot, and profusely apologized to Ki for his earlier actions. (PTR)

Fluffy
a pittin Leia Organa had as a childhood pet on Alderaan. (COJ)

Fluggrian
a squat, green-skinned alien species distinguished by the four knobby protuberances that jutted from their forehead. Native to the planet Plooriod IV, Fluggrians use the knobs on their heads as sensory inputs, and they can process this input at incredibly high speeds. They have thick lips which cover square teeth, and they breathe through a pair of gill-like bands which wrap their necks. They are known for their organized crime rings, and are higly suspicious of other beings. Note that Inside the Worlds of Star Wars Episode I claims that the Fluggrians were native to the planet Ploo IV. (IG1, RAC, SWK, IWE1)

Fluidics
an obsolete technology that used pressurized liquids as the driving force necessary to manipulate the steering vanes of starships. The technology still exists on some backwater worlds, and various developing species (such as the Kamarians) are only just perfecting it in their societies. (HSR)

Flurry
an Alliance Quasar Fire-class cruiser-carrier commanded by Captain Manchisco. It was one of several ships donated to the Alliance by the Sullustans to the Virgillian Alignment forces during the Virgillian Civil War, and was one of the larger ships sent to Bakura to help the Imperial government there battle the Ssi-ruuk. It was equipped with 20 X-Wings (including the ships of Rogue Squadron), 3 A-Wings, and 4 B-Wings. The Flurry was also modified to use General Dodonna's prototype Battle Analysis Computer. For all this, the Flurry was destroyed when Nereus ordered Thanas to open fire on the Alliance ships, following a battle with the Ssi-ruuk. The Dominant, under Thanas' command, opened fire on the cruiser and exploded it, killing her crew. (TB, EGV)

Flutie
derogatory Imperial term for any race that can't speak the Basic language of humans. It refers to the "whistles and tweets" of other languages. Used extensively during the Bakuran siege to describe the Ssi-ruuk. (TB)

Flutie
see Shriwirr (TB)

Flutterer
an alien creature native to the planet Marca, these water-breathing fish averaged just six centimeters in length. Large schools of flutterers often swam near the surface of the water, churning the surface with a roiling motion which made it appear as if a large creature were in the water. In reality, the flutterers were merely oxygenating the water around them. (POM)

Fluwhaka
this mist-covered world is notable for its rocky spires and crags. It was the site of a base used by winged, humanoid pirates once hunted by Jodo Kast. (TOD)

Flux
a game of chance which developed a following shortly after the Battle of Endor. (XWM)

Flux-fiend
this was gambler's slang for any gambler who liked to play flux. (XWM)

Flux-field Generator
a device which is used to melt solid carbonite. (MMY)

Flycatcher
this Wroonian creature hangs from the ceilings of caves by their tongues. When they spot their prey, they swing outward and down and swoop into attack position. During the height of the New Order, filets of flycatcher flesh were considered a culinary delicacy. (SESB)

Flyer Through Spikes
this Qom Jha was one of the reinforcements sent by Eater of Fire Creepers, following the death of Builder with Vines, to assist Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade in their assault on the Hand of Thrawn. (VOF)

Flying Catch
this starfighter retrieval maneuver involves the fighter itself and a larger transport. While in flight, the transport would open its cargo bay doors long enough for the fighter to fly inside and land. (VP)

Flying Decks
nickname given to the ancient transport ships used by the Krath to move their shocktroops from planet to planet. These are T-shaped transports, with the wings and main engines at the front of the ship. They resemble WWII bombers. (DLS)

Flying Delmarijes, The
this group of tiny humanoids performs acrobatic feats and trapeze-like repuslor moves for Kersh Lauskner's Travelling Animal/Acrobatic Arcadium. (GCQ)

Flying Fortress
see Floating Fortress. (HR)

Flying Serpent
this species of beautiful, winged reptiles is native to an uncharted desert world in the Outer Rim. They have long, snake-like bodies covered in mottled green scales, and have thin yellow wings which span nearly the same length as their body. They lived deep within the Great Well, where water from the planet's inner mantle springs upward. When the mercenary Tyrann and his forces discovered the planet, they also discovered that certain ultrasonic tones and pulses could be used to control the flying serpents. Tyrann's forces then used the flying serpents as mounts. (CSW)

Flyntarian Tabac Stick
this was a form of solid tabac, considered something of a luxury to most of the galaxy. They were fitted with an automatically igniting tip, giving the smoker instant pleasure. (AIR)

Flyway 120
this speeder route connects the city of Cloud Bridge with the Greenbelt Region, on the planet Teyr. (SOL)

FM-6B
this medical droid served the Empire at the Arginall City garrison during the height of the New Order. This droid injected Ketrian Altronel with a slow-release poison that we aimed at keeping her from defecting to the Alliance. (SWJ8)

Fneeb
an alien race. (TME)

Fnessal
this planet was the homeworld of the Fnessian race. (ND)

Fnessian
this race of humanoids was native to the planet Fnessal, and was distinguished by the two eyestalks which stood up on their heads. The backs of their heads were covered with thick, fleshy tendrils. (ND)

Fnnbu
this ancient Zexx was a pirate in the Stenness System, and a confederate of Finhead Stonebone. (TOJ)

Foag
this New Republic Navy Colonel was in command of the picket ship Folna during the struggle with the Yevetha. (TT)

Foam Soap
a cleansing agent. (LCJ)

Foamwander City
primary center of Calamarian trade, one of the planet's floating cities. (DA)

Focus Cooker
this form of oven uses focused energy rays to heat food. (SOP)

Fode
this was the name of one of the two heads of the Troig which served Jabba the Hutt as a podracing announcer, during the last years of the Old Republic. Fode, along with his companion Beed, called the Boonta Eve race which was won by nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker. Fode was distinguished from his twin by his red skin and short horns, and Fode spoke Basic in compliment to Beed's use of Huttese. Fode's voice was supplied by Greg Proops for Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Fodro
this planet was known as the endpoint of the annual Dahvil-Fodro Hyperspace Promenade. (CRO)

Fodurant
this planet was the site of a New Republic penal colony. (SOP)

Foerost
this planet was the site of an ancient Old Republic shipyard. The shipyard's engineers removed raw materials from the planet and transported them into high orbit for delivery to the shipyards. It was attacked by Aleema and a cluster of Ulic Qel-Droma's Krath starships and some Mandalorian warships. Qel-Droma then stole nearly 300 of the Republic's starships to add to his vast galactic armada. He took them to Coruscant, where he attempted to eliminate further resistance to Sith domination. (TSW)

Fogg Alait
this Grannan was a member of the colony on Polneye until the Yevetha overran the planet. Fogg was captured, rather than exterminated, and held on the Super-class Star Destroyer Pride of Yevetha as a hedge against reprisal by the New Republic. (TT)

Fogger
an Imperial Nebulon-B frigate dispatched to the Tungra Sector to clean up the Mugaari pirates operating there following the Battle of Hoth. It was also used as the command ship when the Empire fought to recapture the D-34 platform in the Javin Sector. (TIE)

Fokask
this planet was the home of one of Han Solo's smuggling buddies. He had settled down there, but remained in touch with Han. The smuggler sent Han a number of questions regarding Leia's status as Chief of State during the Yevethan Purge, and relayed the local opinions of Leia's rule. (SOL)

Fokask Banner
this local newsgrid is headquartered on the planet Fokask. (SOL)

Fola
this native of the planet Teyr lived at North 5, 26 Up, in the city of Griann. Fola was married to Kritt, and they were neighbors of the Fallanassi group that lived at North 5, 26 Down, but never knew they were Fallanassi. (SOL)

Foless Crossroads
this intersection of hyperspace shipping lanes is located near the planet Darepp. (SOL)

Followers of Palawa
this group of hermits were highly revered on their homeworld of Bunduki. They were also masters of the martial art known as teras kasi. (SESB)

Folna
this New Republic picket ship accompanied the warship Vanguard into system ILC-905, during the Black Fleet Crisis. It was under the command of Colonel Foag, who served under Commodore Brand. (TT)

Folor
one of Commenor's moons, its location in the Commenor System allowed it close access to the Corellian spacelanes. The Alliance had a base there, nestled in the abandoned mines that tunneled through it. Later, following the Battle of Endor, the New Republic used it as a starfighter training facility. It was on Folor that the X-Wing Rogue Squadron was "reborn," thanks to the work done by Admiral Ackbar and Wedge Antilles. The Republic also maintained a false beacon on the other side of the planet, along with a complete mock-up of a base, to throw off attackers and allow an evacuation in case of attack. This false set of beacons was discovered by Gara Petothel, using Morrt droid data, and Apwar Trigit thought he had the base dead to rights. However, when they arrived at Folor, they discovered that the "base" was simply a barren ice plain. (XWN, WS)

Fonada
this former Imperial Admiral established his own small fleet after the Battle of Endor, and became one of the first of the renegade warlords. (HR)

Fond Memory
this Lambda-class shuttle was operated by Elegos A'kla, during his tenure as a Senator to the New Republic. Elegos used it to travel to Dubrillion with Leia Organa Solo, to investigate the state of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (DTO)

Fondine, Slish
this entrepreneur created the first of Umgul City's blobstacle courses in a collapsed sinkhole just outside the city. His designs became a model for future courses. He also owned a blob stable, and regularly raced his blobs in the city. Fondine discovered Lando Calrissian in his stables, shortly after Lando arrived on Umgul to locate Dack. Lando had discovered that Dack was impregnating the blobs with micro-stimulators to improve their performace, and revealed this information to Fondine. (JS, JASB)

Fondine Raceways
this blobstacle source, located on the fringe of Umgul City, was built by Slish Fondine. The course never closes, with racing and waging continuing throughout the night and day. (JASB)

Fondor
a planet located in the Mid Rim Territories, Fondor is famous for its shipyards and its military importance. It is located a short distance from a number of trade routes which run from the Core, the Colonies, and the Mid-Rim out to the Outer Rim. The droid Bollux was first activated there, during the days of the Old Republic. After the Empire took control of the shipyards, the Super-class Star Destroyer Executor was built there. Fondor was later liberated from Imperial control and used by the New Republic. Six moons orbited Fondor, all of which were mined for raw ores and materials. Over time, the moons were slowly eroded by mining. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, the alien invaders attacked Fondor and its shipyards used suicide bombing runs. Squadrons of coralskippers flung themselves at the orbital facilities, causing untold damage. (HSE, CSW, VM, SWAJ, JE)

Fondor City
this was the capital city of the planet Fondor. (JE)

Fondurant
this planet was the site of a New Republic prison facility. (HT)

Fonterrat
this alien scavenger had located the Empire's storehouse of plagues, and was able to secure a sample of the Emperor's Plague. He sold the sample to Nolaa Tarkona, who had Fonterrat's payment tainted with the plague in order to test its effectiveness. Fonterrat didn't directly sell her the location of the storehouse, though. He provided this to Bornan Thul, who later disappeared with the datadisk. Fonterrat himself fled Tarkona to the planet Gammalin, where he began spending his tainted credits. When the human population started dying because of the plague, and discovered that Fonterrat was the source, they locked him in jail. He languished there, and eventually died when his human captors all died of the plague. (TEP)

Fontin, Kare
this elderly man was a former Old Republic Senator. He was well over 100 years of age when the New Order was implemented, and while his body began failing, his mind was still quick and sharp. He used his wits to avoid succumbing to Imperial pressure, and eventually became a diplomat for the New Republic. (GMH)

Foo-twitter
a device which is used on Chad III to lure the wystoh away from an area. Callista's family used them to help repair their floating ships, keeping the wystoh away while they swam in the waters. (COJ)

Food Synthesizer
any device which is used to create consumables from certain raw materials. They can be programmed to create almost any dish, thus making them compatible with many different alien tastes. The raw material used to create the food consists of certain starches, sugars, carbohydrates, and proteins. They can be built for residences, large restaurants, and starships. (WEG, DA)

Food-kin
this was the name used by the Priapulin to describe those offspring which were created as a foodsource for an adult. Food-kin were small, crab-like creatures which scuttled about, never leaving the vicinity of their adult. They were fairly intelligent, and often felt a sense of pride in the fact that they were the Priapulin's food. Like the other offpsring produced by the adult, the food-kin lived to serve their parent, and were even proud to be eaten. Once consumed, the eggs of the food-kin are incubated inside the adult Priapulin, continuing their lines as future partners with the Priapulin. (RP)

Foodtester
any device which is used to detect the presence of poisons in consumables. (CS)

Fools' Gold
this large ship - measuring almost a kilometer in length - was part of a two-ship convoy that was bringing a shipment of gems to the Chikarri, in the planet Plagen. The gems were from the Klatooinan Trade Guild, as payment for the right to establish a trading post on Plagen. Both ships were built for the sole purpose of transporting precious cargoes, and their cargo bays were actually huge vaults equipped with the best inertial dampers credits could buy. The hulls were reinforced in order to survive any attack, and the fuel cells were capable of propelling the ships for several centuries. The Fool's Gold was lost in the Karbonni Asteroid Belt when it was forced out og hyperspace by a rogue asteroid, and it was not seen for several centuries until its existence was discovered by a Chikarri historian, some years after the Battle of Endor. Chiakrri law stated that the ship was the property of whoever found it first, and a race to locate the ship ended when a group of explorers outraced Bruce Mercy and his pirates to it. (TSK)

For the Love of Beau TIE
a song written and played by the band The Emperor's New Clothes. It was first released on the compilation Artistic Integrity. (GG9)

For the Want of an Empire
Jaalib Brandl was portraying the tragic hero of this play, a Jedi Knight consumed with the desire to kill his best friend and companion, on the planet Iscera when he was sought out by Fable Astin. Jaalib went underground shortly after the performance, and reappeared several years later on Garos IV. (SWJ8, SWJ12)

Forad Party
an Esselian political party known for its tolerance of non-human races during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (SWJ8)

Forak
this is the capital city of the planet Dosha. (SWAJ)

Forb Basic
an input language used by Blue Max. (HSE)

Forbes
manufacturers of anti-radar defense units. (MMY)

Forbidden
a Lambda-class shuttle stolen by the New Republic, the Forbidden was used by the training center of Folor. It later was part of the assault fleet sent to the planet Borleais. It was piloted by Tycho Celchu; due to his questionable status within the New Republic, the Forbidden's weapons systems were removed. The Forbidden was later used to ferry criminals from Kessel to its moon, when the Rogues negotiated the release of Zekka Thyne. (XWN, WG)

Forbidden Fortress of the Gorax, The a huge stone tower built by the Gorax near the Desert of Salma on Endor. It is a tall, rocky spire whose entrance is hidden in the tumble of rocks at its base. (EA)

Forbidden Gardens of Nuswatta
Jabba the Hutt once witnessed them, despite their being forbidden. (JTH)

Force-7
a code phrase sued by Lando Calrissian on Cloud City to indicate that it was time to fight back against the Imperials occupying the city. (ESBN)

Force, The
an energy that occurs naturally in the galaxy, it springs from all forms of life. It has two "sides," a good side and a Dark Side, although this is a great oversimplification of the Force's existence. It has many sides, including a living element and a unifying element, and it binds all things together in a great web of existence. The Jedi Knights discovered that the Force was accessible to all living beings through the presence of midi-chlorians in their cells. The more midi-chlorians that inhabited a being's cells, the more the being was able to contact the Force. However, a high concentration of midi-chlorians did not guarantee a being control of the Force. Only through intense study and dedicated training could a being become proficient in harnessing the power of The Force. The Jedi Council discovered that younger beings had an easier time of learning the techniques required to touch and control the Force, and eventually developed a system that actively sought out and identified beings with high midi-chlorian counts at their birth. With, or sometimes without, the permission of the parents, the Jedi took children no more than one year old away for training. Children and older beings, who had already established a set pattern of mental and physical usage, often were unable to complete the necessary training, and were deemed too wasteful of Jedi resources. The Jedi Knights have historically been the most powerful users of The Force, having trained with and learned the three basic techniques: control (the manipulation of one's internal Force strength), sense (detection of the Force in the external world), and alter (manipulation of matter with the Force). These techniques, used by themselves or in combination, allow the Jedi to perform many different activities with the Force. (SW, HTSB, TPM)

Force Cage
this was a portable force field generator which produced a cell-sized enclosure to lock up a criminal or target. It attached to a collapsible frame made from bi-state memory plastic, and was used by law enforcement agencies across the galaxy. (GG10)

Force cylinder
a device which allows life forms to transfer from one ship to another through space, without actually linking the ships together physically. (HTTE)

Force Demon
this race of evil creatures once ruled the galaxy. (CSWDW)

Force Detector
a device developed by Emperor Palpatine, it uses two unique sheet-crystal paddles and a control pack to determine whether or not a person is Force-sensitive. If the person has some sensitivity to the Force, a bluish aura is displayed around them when the detector is activated. The strength of the aura has come correlation to the amount of Force sensitivity the person has. Anyone without Force sensitivity does not register the blue aura. (JS)

Force Fence
a fence used to enclose prison grounds, it carries some sort or repulsion and/or shock field to deter the prisoners from escaping. (LCM)

Force Lightning
a corruption of The Force which manifests itself in blue lightning, which can be directed at an opponent. Many Dark Jedi use this, while the Light Side Jedi do not. (ROTJ, TB)

Force pike
a older weapon, much like a long staff with a vibroblade at the end. See electro-jabber. (CPL)

Force Sabaac
an ancient variation of Sabacc, in which the cards are not randomized, but the players must declare their hand to be light or dark, based on the cards dealt to him. The strongest light or dark hand wins, provided that the overall lightness or darkness (based on all the hands in play) is in their favor. A lone dark hand against all light hands is almost always a loser. (CPL)

Force Scream
once called "a wave of hatred, amplified and fueled by the Dark Side," this Sith power allowed the wielder to smash through mental and physical defenses with ease. (TOJC)

Force Sensitivity
a trait in some individuals which allows them to be more attuned to the Force than others. (SME, WEG)

Force Shackles
very effective, very expensive restraining devices which use alloy cuff bands to hold a captive. The bands have miniature tractor beams placed on them. These tractor beams grasp the opposing cuff band and keep it locked in place. The tightness of the cuff can be modified by varying the intensity of the tractor beams. (LCF)

Force Storm
a tornado of energy created by a disturbance in The Force, these are very hard to control. (DE1, CPL)

Force Two Armada
this classification of fleet strength indicates a large-scale assault grouping. (SOL)

Force whip
a whip-like device which discharges energy bursts when it contacts an opponent (COTF)

Force-eaters
see Stennes Shifter. (SWJ12)

ForceFlow
this was the pseudonym used by a computer slicer who often made contact with Tash Arranda. ForceFlow often wrote stories of the Jedi Knights and posted them on the Imperial HoloNet, but never managed to get caught. These stories attracted Tash, and the two became friends. ForceFlow often provided Tash with inside information on the Empire, helping her to be aware of possible dangers in her travels with Mammon Hoole. After the Arranda children and Hoole arrived on Nespis VIII, ForceFlow seemed to help Tash understand what was happening. However, it was later revealed that ForceFlow was actually Borborygmus Gog, who had been hoping to lure the Arrandas and Hoole into a trap on Nespis VIII, in order to test out his Essence Stealer. (GOF1, GOF2, GOF5)

Fordon System
the Quarren pirate Jerresk was once spotted in this star system, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

Foreign Intruder Defense Organism
FIDO for short, this is a defensive system set up by Luke and Ackbar on Anoth. It is a multi-tentacled cyborg beast with plasteel claws, modeled after Calamarian krakana. This was a reference to the Star Wars Echo on FIDONet by Kevin Anderson. (COTF)

Foresight
this New Republic surveyor ship was destroyed when it tried to recover parts from an abandoned Imperial cruiser. The cruiser's automatic firing sensors were still active, despite the damage it had taken, and fired on the Foresight, causing it to explode. (BTS)

Forest Father
according to the Ewoks, the Forest Father is the primary caretaker of the forests, having been given that due by the Great Spirit of the Forest. (AT)

Forest Honey
this is a form of honey created by the Wookiees. (RD)

Forest Moon of Endor
the life-supporting satellite of the gas giant Endor, found in the Moddell Sector, this second moon has a widely-varied, temperate climate. (No planet is seen in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi, and the Star Wars: Return of the Jedi novelization talks of the planet being destroyed eons ago. However, the Ewoks films definitely show a clouded world around which the moon orbits, and The Truce at Bakura mentions a dead planet. The Adventures of Teebo describes Endor as a planet. The Bounty Hunters: Aurra Sing says that the Forest Moon is sometimes simply referred to as Endor.) Due to the out-of-the-way location of the planet Endor, its Forest Moon has become something of a desert island in space. Its breathable atmosphere allows nearly any race to land there, in the event their ship gets in trouble while off the normal hyperspace routes. As its name indicated, forests abound on the moon, broken here and there by rocky wastes and small deserts. The moon's low gravity allows the trees to grow to incredible heights. It is the home of many unique species, including the Ewoks and the Marauders. The Empire discovered the out-of-the-way moon, and used it as a construction sight for the second Death Star. The Empire placed a shield generator on the moon to help guard the battle station during its construction; thus, Endor became known as the Sanctuary Moon. Other sources have described a vast wealth of ores on the moon, which were mined by the Empire. These mining operations were significantly reduced when the New Republic was formed. The moon has a 18-hour day, and rotates around the sun in about 402 standard days. (ROTJ, DFRSB, EA, BFE, TB, DA, AT, ISU, BHAS)

Forest of Faithfulness
this low forested area of the planet Ylesia is located near the Flowered Plains, just outside of Colony One. (TPS)

Forethought
this continent, one of two on the planet Ropagi II, is located on the planet's western hemisphere. Like its counterpart, Afterthought, the continent is amazingly flat, and covered with huge expanses of grassy plains broken by urban centers. Those native Ropagu who turn their minds to the future of their planet live on this continent. (TSK)

Forge, Inyri
Lujayne Forge's sister, Inyri was remarkably similar to Lujayne in appearance. She had just as much promise as Lujayne did, but felt that she never got her parents' support in anything. She rebelled, and joined up with Zekka Thyne while he was imprisoned on Kessel. She dyed a forelock of her hair blue, to match the patches on Thyne's skin, and became his lover and his spice cutter. In this capacity, Inyri was responsible for dosing the spice that Thyne was able smuggle into consumable portions. When the Rogue Squadron negotiated with Moruth Doole for the release of Thyne, Inyri went along with him, rather than returning to her parents. She later realized that Thyne was never going to give her the respect she so desperately wanted, and she shot him when he tried to expose the Rogues on Coruscant. Inyri remained with the squadron for many years, becoming one of the group's primary leaders. Gavin Darklighter, upon assuming command of the Squadron, named Inyri his second-in-command, and Inyri took up the position of Rogue Five. (WG, DTO)

Forge, Kassar
Lujayne's father, Kassar originally came to Kessel in an effort to try and reform the criminals there. He voluntarily remained on the moon following the Battle of Endor, believing that he still could make a difference in the lives of the criminals. (WG)

Forge, Lujayne
a native of Kessel, she was a member of Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron. Her father was an Old Republic corrections officer who went to Kessel to teach inmates how to better re-integrate back into society upon their release. There, he met and fell in love with Lujayne's mother, an inmate at the time. Together they got married and had a number of children. They remained on Kessel when Lujayne left to join the New Republic. She felt that Corran Horn held this against her, since he was part of a Security team that toured Kessel. Forge was killed on Talasea, when Kirtan Loor's troops infiltrated the Rogues' base there. She never awakened when the stormtroopers entered the compound, and was shot in her sleep. (XWN)

Forge, Myda
Myda was the wife of Kassar Forge, and the mother of Lujayne and Inyri. She stayed by her husband's side, teaching the criminals imprisoned at Kessel how to reform themselves. She would not have chosen Kessel as a place to live, but her love for her husband kept her there. (WG)

Forger
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer suppressed rebellious activity on Gra Ploven during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. It's commander was Davith Sconn, who - under orders from Moff Dureya - fired multiple turbolaser batteries into the planet's water supplies, creating super-hot steam which boiled the native Ploven alive. (SOL)

Forging
this was the process by which the seeds of the boras tree of Zonama Sekot were split open by lightning and charged with energy. From this point, the seeds were annealed into new boras trees. The development of Sekotan starships mimicked this process, as seed-partners were allowed to grow before they were filled with energy and modified into seed-disks. (RP)

Forgofshar Desert
a desert located on Carida, it was used to acclimate Imperial inductees to harsh climates. (TME)

Fori, Vett
a short, tough-looking woman who was tge chief supervisor of mining operations on Oseon 2795 when Lando Calrissian stopped there. Her disarming smile often caught men offguard, as did her propensity to smoke a cigar. (LCM)

Form-chair
this generic term refers to any chair which molds itself to the user's body contours. (RD)

Forma
this tall, bald-headed, dark-skinned man was a Captain with the Mining Guild, which rose to power in the wake of the deaths of Grand Admiral Thrawn and Emperor Palpatine's clones. He was in command of the mining ship Draisini, and was dispatched to negotiate a deal between the Guild and representatives of the Empire and the New Republic. Forma forced the will of the Guild on both parties, then left the negotiations. At the conclusion of the negotiations, Forma picked up a secret cargo along with the usual load of ores. Shortly after leaving, the Draisini was attacked by pirates led by Sol Mon. They were working for Grappa the Hutt, and secured the ship and took Forma into custody. He was tortured and bled of information, then given to the Zanzibar for one of their ceremonies. Forma was eventually killed by the Zanzibar. (CE2)

Formayj
this ancient Yao smuggler made a living in Esau's Ridge, on Tholatin, brokering information. Over the centuries, he had developed an intricate network of informants to supply accurate data. In addition, Formayj had an excellent memory, and never forgot good information. He was able to provide Chewbacca with several valuable documents during the Black Fleet Crisis, including a map of the Koornacht Cluster, an Imperial autopsy report on three Yevetha, transmissions from a New Republic patrol drone operating in the Koornacht near Wakiza, and the shield and sensor codes for several of the Imperial warships under Yevethan control. (TT)

Formex
a surfacing material used on spaceport landing pads and on roads. (HSE, HSL)

Forn
this is the sixth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "f". (SWM)

Forna Tutha Star Probe
this archaeological relic was discovered by a scientist named Bartleton. Unfortunately for Bartelton, one member of his team inadvertently triggered a fire inside the probe, destroying it before he could recover it for further inspection. (TT)

Fornax
a planet famous for the five rings of solar prominence which encircle it, called the Five Fire Rings of Fornax. (SWN)

Forno, Jace
a female Corellian pilot working for Olag Greck, she pilots his personal shuttle. She is very thin and gaunt, with a patch over her right eye and a strip of jet-black hair cut down the center of her head. She is called upon to help Greck overtake the ship stolen by IG-88. The Phlutdroid uses a nearby asteroid to shake the pursuit. Forno later became Movo Brattakin's chief of security on Nar Shaddaa, where she destroyed Unit Zed and blasted C-3PO's leg off while capturing the droids. (DRO)

Fornow

Fountain of the Ancients
this unique, natural phenomenon is located in the center of the Derelkoos Desert, on Klatooine. In a bowl-shaped depression, liquid wintrium seeps from the desert sand and begins to crystallize. As it solidifies over several millenia, the wintrium forms wonderful shapes and patterns, continually expanding and growing. Because of its hardness, the Fountain's shape can be altered only by powerful weaponry, and has stood untouched for as long as the Klatooinan race can remember. The Fountain's continually growth, increasing strength, and tenacity have instilled similar values in the Klatooinan people. It also has certain religious connotations to them. (GG12)

Fountain of the Hutt Ancients
this bastardized name for the Fountain of the Ancients was developed by the Hutts who had signed the Klatooinans into perpetual indenture. The tried to generate more respect and admiration for themselves by modifying the name of one of the Klatooinans most revered and symbolic natural landmarks. (GG12)

Frane
this Rutanian was the King of his people some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. Frane's family had led the Rutanian people for one hundred years by this time. A short-tempered and vindicative ruler, Frane considered himself the best hunter on the planet, and became angry if he didn't maintain his stature. However, Frane was also a sensitive man who would break into deep fits of sobbing. When his first-born son, Leed, refused to return to Rutan on his sixteenth birthday, Frane accused the Senali government of holding the boy against his will. The Jedi Knights were asked to mediate the dispute, in an effort to avoid another civil war. Frane also planned to imprison Meenon's daughter, Yaana, if he was not allowed to speak to Leed. The Jedi discovered that Leed wanted to remain on Senali, and had offered his brother Taroon the chance to rule in his place. Frane's short temper initially blinded him to the possibility of Taroon being a good leader, but in the end Taroon proved himself worthy of Frane's notice. Frane agreed to allow Leed to remain on Senali, as the first ambassador for both worlds, and he took Taroon as his heir. Frane even proposed that Taroon marry Drenna to help solidify the new-found peace between Rutan and Senali. (SP)

Free Lance
this Nebulon-B frigate was turned into a pirate ship by Urias Xhaxin, during the last years of the New Order. Xhaxin purchased the ship from a Hutt arms dealer for 100 grams of hollinium hyperbaride, a two-carat Rainbow Gem, and a cannister of glitterstim. During this time, he worked as a privateer, and the Free Lance was known for the blazing claw insignia it wore on the forward section. The Free Lance was armed with ten turbolaser batteries, a pair of ion cannons, twelve laser cannons, and two tractor beam projectors. Xhaxin and the Free Lance were employed by the Alliance under Ral'Rai Muvunc's plan to use pirates and privateers to harass Imperial convoys and obtain much-needed supplies. After the Battle of Endor, Xhaxin and the Free Lance continued to work for the New Republic, picking off Imperial convoys. However, he found that his targets grew more and more sparse as the Empire dwindled and became the Imperial Remnant. The ship was severely damaged while making a run near Bastion, when it encountered a Yuuzhan Vong warship. The Vong pummeled the Free Lance, but Xhaxin's crew was able to make a blind jump into hyperspace and escape. (DTO, PP)

Free Trade Zone
this area of the galaxy was, at one time, untouched by the government of the Old Republic. It was set aside for, and managed by, the Trade Federation under a franchise that gave them control of the zone. The Federation was able to set its own tariffs and mark its own trade routes without interference from the Old Republic. This changed when the Senate voted to impose taxation upon these trade routes, forcing the Trade Federation to blockade the small planet of Naboo in protest. (IG1)

Free Trader Worlds
this loose alliance of planets was ruled by anarchy at best. The planetary governments held little power, and rewarded the rich and powerful for their minimal contributions to the rest of society. Very little is actually free on these worlds, especially to offworlders. Businessbeings from Free Trader Worlds are often referred to as "thieves with business cards." (SOL)

Free Trader's Guide to the Planets
this database of planetary information was compiled by the Lantilian Spacers Brotherhood for the use of its members. The basic service was free, and there were additional features and information that could be purchased for a small fee, such as the Trader's Gamble. No guarantee was made as to the accuracy of the information, since much of it came from members in good standing with the Brotherhood. (SWJ10)

Freerunner FM
this is a modified version of the basic Kelliak Freerunner. The weaponry is the primary update with the FM version, wiuth a pair of turret-mounted anti-vehicle laser cannons and a pair of anti-infantry blaster batteries. A third gunner is required to operate the weapons properly. (TTSB)

Freeworlds
this loose affiliation of planets is located in the Tapani Sector of the Colonies. They were on the fringes of the Sector, and struggled to throw off the yoke of control by the ancient houses of the Tapani Sector. The primary planets of the Freeworlds were Lamuir IV, Tallaan, Neona, Aleron, and Mrlsst, and the leaders and rulers of the Freeworlds were descendants of the ancient Houses of The Expanse. (EGP, PGT)

Freeworlds Common Navy
this was the primary military power of the Freeworlds Region of Tapani Sector, and was formed from the resources of the five primary planets of the Freeworlds. Its mission was to patrol the Shapani Bypass and maintain its freedom, supplementing the patrols of the Old Republic and the Empire while ensuring the free flow of bacta from Thyferra. (PGT)

Freeworlds Region
this area of Tapani Sector was located along the sector's borders. It was positioned along both the Shapani Bypass and the Giju Run, making it a transportation nexus for Tapani Sector. The Freeworlds Region gained power over the generations because all the ores from The Expanse had to pass through the Freeworlds Region. (PGT)

Freeze-floating Control
a starship component which uses computers to adjust the ship's maneuvering to counteract the effects of atmospheric turbulance. (SW)

Freg

Frexton
this thin man was the chief scientist at the Corulag Academy's Science Services center when Yoda and Mace Windu tried to enroll Teela Panjarra as a Jedi trainee. Frexton refused to release the child, hoping to use her as a subject to help determine what makes a being Force-sensitive. Master Yoda feared Frexton would perform any number of unusually cruel experiments on the girl, and rushed to Corulag to rescue her. When the Academy was attacked by Bartokk assassins working for Groodo the Hutt, Frexton tried to flee with Teela, but was cornered by Yoda. The two were forced to fight through Bartokks and X10-D droids under their control, but safelyt escaped with Teela. (E1A4)

Freyrr
one of Chewbacca's second cousins, Freyrr was probably the best stalker and tracker in the family. It was Freyrr who sought out Chewbacca during Lumpawarrump's Test of Ascension, delivering the news that Han Solo had been captured by the Yevetha. Freyrr offered to accompany Lumpy during his test, but Chewie declined the offer. (RD, TT)

Frezhin
this creature was native to Thalassia. (GG11)

Frezhlix
this alien race developed a feud with the Sif'krie race shortly after the Battle of Endor. It was given new fire after it was revealed that the Bothans were involved in the destruction of Caamas, and the Sif'kries supported the Drashtine Initiative. The Frezhlix began blockading shipment of pommwomm plants, in order to economically cripple the Sif'krie. The New Republic acted to break the blockade, assisting with the liberation of the Sycophant Jolly and responding only after the Frezhlix commander opened fire. The Frezhlix twisted the facts to petition against the Republic in the Senate. (SOP)

FrictionGrip
this was the name of a substance that enhanced the ability of gloves, boots, and climbsuits to adhere to surfaces, allowing for easier ascents when climbing structures. (ROE)

Frija
this daughter of Imperial Governor Torlock was secretly plotting with Trolock's most trusted advisor, Admiral Droon, to execute her father and take control of the planet Corulag. Torlock suspected that the Alliance was a great threat, and had human replica droids created of himself and Frija. When Torlock learned that Frija and Droon had told Darth Vader that he was a traitor to the Empire, Torlock fled Corulag and activated the droids. The droid Torlock was captured by Droon and Frija and imprisoned, but their plan to execute Torlock was still in motion. Vader had sent Jix to execute Torlock, but he instead encountered the droid Frija. She was about to be destroyed by Droon's agents, but Jix rescued her and learned of the plots. Jix was eventually captured by Droon, but not before meeting the droid Torlock. Droon and Frija attempted to remove both of them by feeding them to the dragon snakes that live in the caves of Corulag, but they escaped and returned to confront Droon. In the midst of the struggle, Droon shot and killed the real Frija before being captured by Jix. Jix then took Droon and the two human replica droids to Coruscant. He allowed the droids to take a shuttle and flee Coruscant, and they decided to hide out on Hoth. The droid Frija encountered Luke Skywalker when he was forced to land on the planet shortly after leaving the planet Aridus. The droid Torlock tried to kill Luke, but Frija's droid intervened, taking a blaster bolt meant for Luke. Frija was mortally wounded. Luke retailiated, slicing the father in two with his lightsaber. It was then that Luke discovered she and her father were droids. The droid Frija was unable to remain active as a result of the damage from the blaster bolt, and expired before Luke could save her. Luke then returned to the Alliance with the location of the planet. (CSW, SST)

a native of Demophon, Frodor joined the Academy and made a name for himself flying stormtrooper dropships. However, he was disgusted with the Empire's mandatory slaughter whenever battle was engaged, so he opted not to join the Imperial Armed Forced when his commission was over. He instead became a free trader, flying the Flat Liner. This was unprofitable in the Demophon System, and when a group of Alliance agents offered him a commission, he took it. He worked his way up in the ranks, and eventually became the commander of the Orflon base. (SN)

Froffli
a race whose unique hairstyles mark them throughout the galaxy. They are a hot-headed and vindictive race. During the early decades of the New Republic, the Froffli found themselves reduced in stature by the Bothans, who used their position of power within the Republic government to drive their own light-machinery industry and nearly wipe out that of the Froffli. (HTTE, SOP)

Frog-dog
a large, reptilian creature which resembles a squating dog, the frog-dog uses its sticky, whip-like tongue to snare its prey. Many races throughout the galaxy regard the frog-dog as a stupid creature, due to its appearance and its low stature. This is something the frog-dogs do little to rectify, as it serves their purposes quite well. They have made themselves available as spies to various agencies throughout the galaxy, including the Empire. (TJP)

Frohad Galactic Firearms
this weapons manufacturer produced some of the galaxy's most unusual weapons, including the Magna Caster-100. (ROE)

Fromm
a gang which operated on the planet Annoo during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. They controlled the weapons satellite Trigon One until Demma Moll and her band of freedom fighters destroyed it. (DCAR)

Frona Zeffla
this governmental functionary died at her desk, deep within the Imperial Palace on Coruscant. Because of the office's location within the Palace, her body wasn't discovered for more than a year. (TT)

Fronde's Airspeeders
this speeder rental company had twenty-two outlets scattered throughout Lola Curich and Lianna. In addition to speeder rentals, Fronde's also sells used speeders, and has a small repair shop. (ML)

Fronk's Fever
a bogus ailment Han Solo references when he leaves Ploovo 2-for-1 in the Free-Flight Dance Dome on Etti IV. (HSE)

Frontier Post
this was the name used by the New Republic Scout Service for any one of about 5,000 frontier worlds used as clearing houses on local system information. Most of the facilities on Frontier Posts were automated, and provided scouts working in remote areas of the galaxy with current information. These scouts could also receive new mission orders at Frontier Posts, as well as obtain a little rest and relaxation. (GG8)

Fronz, Jared
the immensely obese Imperial bureaucrat in charge of Byrne City on Demophon, Fronz was deathly afraid of bodily harm. He kept a loose hold on the city during its last days. (SN)

Frorral
a Wookiee, and a member of Page's Commandos. She was known as a wilderness fighter. (HTSB)

Frosch
a carnivorous reptilian alien found on the Forest Moon of Endor. (EGC)

Frost, Alum
one of the Empire's most skilled and loyal soldiers, Frost was among the top four members of the training facility on Yinchorr, in the same class as Carnor Jax and Kir Kanos. Emperor Palpatine ordered Frost and Jax to battle each other to the death, in an effort to prove their loyalty. Jax quickly dispatched Frost. (CE)

Frosty Sulphate
an alcoholic concotion created by Wuher. (TME)

Froz
a planet, and homeworld of the Frozian race, Froz had a lighter-than-standard gravity. It was once covered with grassy plains and deciduous forests, until the Empire decided to punish the Frozians for sympathizing with the Alliance. Large portions of the planet's surface were bombarded with turbolasers, destroying much of the native flora and fauna. (AC, AE)

Frozen Death Flightknife
this group of Adumari Blade-32 fighters served aboard the Allegiance during the defense of Adumar. (SOA)

Frozian
a race of humanoids from the planet Froz, Frozians have an extra joint in their arms and legs. This makes their motion very unusual to watch. They evolved from a species of prairie lopers who lived by eating the fruit of tall trees. They are covered in fur, and have whiskers on their faces. They have no external ears, and large muzzles. Frozians have a tendency to stutter words or phrases while they are speaking Basic. They evolved in the relatively low gravity of Froz, and could live to be over 100 years old. Those Frozians who lived on higher-gravity worlds often found it difficult to adjust, and the average life expectancy of a Frozian living off their native world was about 20 years less than normal. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, the Frozians were accused by the Empire of harboring sympathy for the Alliance. To make an example out of them, the Empire blasted large sections of the surface of Froz with turbolaser fire, decimating a good portion of the Frozian populatio. (AC, AE)

Fruck
this Gamorrean was one of Ugmush's husbands, and was a weapons gunner on the Zicreex. (POT)

Fruit Bladders
appendages of the native Calamarian algae, these air-filled sacs keep the algae afloat. They are also a prime food source for much of Calamari's herbivorous sea life. (DA)

Fruit Fizz
a non-alcoholic drink favored by many of the New Republic's starfighter pilots. (IF)

FSCV
Loronar's Field-Secured Container Vessel, the FSCV always travels in pairs. The two ships face their ion engines in opposite directions, which places their Prexton doublefield generators opposite the engines. The two generators create a huge force bubble, which can be surrounded by a hyperspace field so that the pair can jump into lightspeed. The power required to generate the force bubble draws considerable power from the ion engines, leading to lengthy acceleration and deceleration distances. (ISB)

FSI-200
this was the model number of one of Sabrashi Bio-chemical Deterrants' Fear Sticks. (FOP)

Fud Sang
this unusual alien was considered a top-notch pod racer during the last years of the Old Republic. Fud Sang was unusual in that his head was also his body. His short arms and legs sprouted from the lower half of his skull, while two huge eyes bulged from the top. (RAC)

Fug
this form of fungus, which grew in abundance on the planet Gamorr, was used in the creation of many Gamorrean meals. (SWJ14)

Fugazzi
an Alliance Frigate operative during the Galactic Civil War. It was used to evacuate the personnal from Briggia following the Imperial attack there as part of Operation Strike Fear. (XW)

Fuge in K
this ancient, orchestral piece was composed by Mondegrene. It was an intellectual masterpiece, complex and grandiose, which was best heard when played by a full orchestra accompanied by thunder cannons and dual-spectrum light organ. (POT)

Fugo
Fandar's Chadra-Fan assistant, he was an extremely capable substitute for Fandar. (QE)

Fuguee
this individual was at one time the Administrator of Kline Colony, under Imperial rule. He was ousted in favor of Administrator Brago, primarily because Fuguee was too forgiving of offenses against the Empire. (SWJ10)

Fulcrum
this was the most sacred text of the Cosmic Balance religion, written during Bakura's early history by Dif Istuvi. Within the book, he claimed that “the weight of the universecould balance on one rightly-placed atom.” (TBSB)

Fulgin Cylinder
a long, convoluted tube. (POT)

Fulkes
this Cavrilhu pirate was one of several who patrolled the Kauron asteroid base, under the command of Control. Fulkes often worked with Grinner, and the two of them tried to hunt down Luke Skywalker when the Jedi infiltrated the base. (SOP)

Full-rig slave circuitry automated spaceship control that allows droids and computers to fly the craft, rather than humans (DFR)

Full-Spectrum Transceiver
a sensor package that are often called Universal Sensors because they can detect all sorts of objects, energies, and fields. These sensors use large receptor dishes to collect available sensory information. Thus, the larger the dish, the better quality information that can be gathered. (WEG)

Fuller, Devon
a native of the planet Arkanis, Devon was the model of a brash, young, X-Wing pilot. He was accepted into the Vensenor Flight Academy, but was expelled for his behavior. Still, he managed to learn enough to serve as a ship's navigator until he saved up enough credits to buy his owne ship. As a spacer, he was characterized as a nuisance, until he met up with Owen Sareth, who introduced Devon to the Alliance. Since then, Devon's first ship, the Croc of Gold has been destroyed by Imperial forces. His second ship was also shot down by the Empire. This formed a great hatred for the Empire in Devon, and hardened his resolve to assist the Alliance. After Devon met Corwin Shelvay, he settled down even further, and his closest compatriots have called him philosophical. (GG9)

Fulminant
this New Republic warship was destroyed at the Battle of N’zoth. (TT)

Fulmrick
this diminutive, green-skinned alien was Jace Forno's assistant during the period just following her employment as chief of security for Movo Brattakin on Nar Shaddaa. Fulmrick has a wide, flat head with large ears and a long snout. Fulmrick had a mane of black hair that ran from the top of his down down the center of his back. He assisted Forno on her mission to retrieve crystals from Indobok. (DRO)

Funnel Flower
this plant, native to Tatooine, has a cone of large petals that grows from a long, J-shaped stem. The stem itself grows within a crack or crevice in the rocks. The plant pulls hot air in through the upper part of the stem, and then moves it down into the part hidden in the crevice. There, moisture condenses out of the air, and is hoarded by the plant in the crook of the stem. (ISU)

Fur-spider
this venomous arachnid was native to the planet Devaron. As large as a dog, these insects wove webs of blood-red webbing. A large group of these spiders lives in the undercity of Coruscant. (TPS)

Furball
1) a species of Kimanannian marsupial. (HSE)
2) this was starfighter pilots' slang for an engagement zone. (SOA)

Furgan
1) this Caridan ambassador was he is extremely loyal to the Old Empire and to Palpatine. He remained pro-Imperial during the early years of the New Republic, even though the old Emperor had been dead 7 years. Following the death of the reborn Emperor, Furgan went on what he called a pilgrimage to Coruscant to view the Empire's former center, and on the trip, he attended a New Republic function. It is at this function that he threw a drink in Mon Mothma's face. The drink contained a number of nano-destroyers attuned to her genetic structure, and the pilgrimage eventually became obvious as an assassination attempt. Furgan was also involved in a plot to capture Anakin Solo and gain a leg up on Leia Organa and the New Republic. His attempt was foiled when Terpfen, Furgan's Mon Calamari spy, turned on him, and Furgan was killed when Terpfen pushed his MT-AT off a cliff with another of the MT-ATs. (JS, DA, COTF)

2) Furgan is one of the suburbs of Umgul City. (JASB)

Furlag
this tall, furry humanoid was part of the loose bounty hunter alliance that formed around Bossk, just before the Battle of Endor. Furlag and the others tried to intercept Boba Fett and claim the carbonite-frozen body of Han Solo. They missed Fett on Gaul, but were able to track him using a signal sent by 4-LOM. The bounty hunters captured Slave I and took Fett prisoner, and Furlag was placed in charge of locking Fett up. However, this bat-faced alien didn't notice Fett activating an unused crawl shaft, and stepped into the open tube. Furlag was then sucked into space and was killed. (SE)

Furworm
a large, furry alien creature. (COTF)

Fury
1) one of three Imperial-class Star Destroyers under the command of Lumiya, following the Battle of Endor. (SWG)
2) this transport ship was owned by the Mistryl. Shada D'ukal and Dunc T'racen used it during the early years of the New Republic, when they were sent to assist Ghitsa Dogder and Fenig Nabon in transporting a group of Twi'leki dancers. (TFNR)

Fuse-ball
this tabletop game of skill involved moving zero-gravity targets into assigned spaces in order to score points. (POC)

Fusion Cutter
an industrial tool with many applications. It produces a wide-dispresion laser beam which can be used to cut through most materials. It can also be used as a weapon, in a pinch. (SW, DF)

Fusion Disintegrator
this device uses a contained reactor to reduce other materials to smaller, nearly atomic particles. They found widespread use in tunneling applications, where dirt and rock must be removed and transported from a dig site. Because of the nature of the machine, though, it can be used to cut through virtually any material. The disintegrator can be used manually, or mounted on a support tripod. (VOF)

Fusion Disk
a small device which has a small charge attached. When the disk contacts another surface, the charge is ignited, causing the disk to fuse itself to the other surface. The tow cables used by the Alliance to trip the Imperial walkers on Hoth employed fusion disks. (ESB)

Fusion Furnace
a small device which generates heat and light, or can generate power for recharging energy cells. (ESB)

Fusion Generator Supply Tanks
these cubical pods are used to store fusion energy, once it has left a generator. They can store the energy for later use, for powering up vehicles and small installations. (CCG)

Fusion Holodrama
this holo-feature producer was responsible for some of the most popular holovids produced during the New Order. Among their brightest stars was the actress Wynssa Starflare. (MBF)

Fusion Reactor
the most popular source of starship power, cold-ionization fusion reactors fuse matter at room temperature, creating huge amounts of energy without emitting large amounts of heat. The fusion reactor then sends the energy it generates to the cryogenic power cells for storage. These are also safe sources of power, since they employ a well-understood technology at tolerable temperatures. Fusion reactors are a necessity for propelling large starships through hyperspace. (SWSB, TT)

Fusion WeldCut
this welder is roughly the size and shape of a blaster, and emits a narrow stream of fused plasma. The stream is capable of welding two metals together as well as cutting through most metals. It has oversized controls, which allow it to be used by vac-suited repairmen at orbital drydocks. (TA)

Fusion Welder
a small device used to weld two objects together, the fusion welder alters the molecular structure of the two objects at the point which they meet, forming a tight seal. The welder generates an internal fusion reaction, focusing the energy created through its nozzle. Fusion welders are often used to place restraining bolts on droids. They resemble bulky blaster pistols, and used blaster power packs. (CCG, GMH)

Futhark
this is the name of the formal Naboo alphabet. Based on a series of oval shapes, the futhark is reserved for use in military and official control labels. (IG1)

Futhork
this is the name of the traditional, hand-written Naboo alphabet. It uses a wider variety of shapes and symbols than the futhark alphabet. (IG1)

Futility Station
this was a nickname of Lant Mining Corporation's LMCTS-24542 testing station. (HAS)

Fuzzel
this Commander in the Imperial Armed Forces was stationed on Tatooine during the Galactic Civil War. Fuzzel had managed to arrange a deal with Jabba the Hutt, in which Jabba turned over certain criminals to Fuzzel for their rewards. More often than not, Jabba provided dead criminals, but he still managed to find those beings Fuzzel could not. He was one of the many officers hunting for the criminal Karkas, and Fuzzel intercepted Hoole upon his arrival, after learning that Hoole's ship had left Koda Space Station at the same time Karkas had fled. He let Hoole and his young charges, Tash and Zak Arranda, free after thoroughly searching their ship. Fuzzel later received Karkas' body, although Jabba had removed his brain and stored inside the brain spider droid of a B'omarr monk. Shortly thereafter, Fuzzel was found murdered in a Mos Eisley alleyway, with the letter 'K' carved into ihs forehead. Zak Arranda discovered the body, and believed that his sister, Tash, was responsible for the crime. However, it had just been Tash's body. Jabba had arranged to have Karkas's brain placed into another criminal's body, but the criminal had escaped. So Jabba used Tash as a temporary holder. (GOF7)

Fuzzum
a species of thin-legged creatures whose body consists of a fuzzy ball of fur. They have no technology to speak of, and their preferred weapon is a wooden spear. (DCAR)

Fuzzynettle
a plant native to the Forest Moon of Endor, the Ewoks have found that the fuzzynettle has certain medicinal values. (EGC)

FV50
this was the designation of a standard droid motivator unit. (HM)

Fw'Sen
this alien race mates only once, before they are sexually mature. The fertilized eggs are retained inside the female's body until she has matured, at which time they are awakened and begin to grow. (TT)

Fw'sen*-class Picket Ship
this Ssi-ruuvi design is a small combat ship that is piloted by a P'w'eck servant. These 45-meter long ships required three P'w'eck pilots and ten P'w'eck gunners, and are extermely fragile. The Ssi-ruuvi engineers opted for shield generators insetad of hull plating on these ships, which meant that once the shields are down, the ship was extremely vulnerable. Like most Ssi-ruuvi starships, the Fw'sen-class resembles a pointed egg. However, the Fw'sen-class has four stubby wings for stability. It is armed with top- and bottom-mounted turbolasers, a pair of front-mounted laser cannons, and six ion cannons. Each Fw'sen-class picket ship carried 6 enteched servant droids in addition to its P'w'eck crew. This crew setup, paired with the ship's fragile shielding, allowed the picket ships to be expendable while serving the purpose of providing needed support. The ships are piloted remotely by a Ssi-ruuk who has access to special neural inhibitors planted in the P'w'ecks. Twenty Fw'sen-class ships were sent as part of the Bakura invasion fleet. Note that the Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels indicates that this ship was fifty meters in length, and was not armed with ion cannons. (EGV, TBSB)

Fwatna
Jarril had smuggling contacts on this planet, but hadn't used them in the three years leading up to his death. (TNR)

FWG-5
this was a model of flechette pistol produced by Malaxan Firepower Incorporated. (FOP)

Fwiis
this planet, some 150 lightyears from Atzerri, was one of the colony worlds visited by the Star Morning after it left Darepp for Motexx. (SOL)

Fwillsving
a planet near Honoghr and Kessel, in the Calaron Sector. (TLC, REB)

FX-7
a medical droid produced by Medtech Industries, it is cylindrical in design with many useful appendages. The FX-7 models were designed as surgical assistants. The FX-7 droid which served the Alliance at Hoth's Echo Base was known as 'Fixit.' (ESB, SWSB, CCG3)

FX-10
this Imperial medical droid served aboard the fleet which participated in the Battle of Hoth. The FX-10 series was similar in shape to the FX-7s. (CCG)

Fyaban
this Ebranite term describes the leader of a clan. It also refers to the leader of the ghantar. (GG12)

Fyg
this Weequay worked for Booster Terrik as a guard and soldier aboard the Errant Venture. (IJ)

Fyodoi
this human stock evolved on the planet Fyodos. At one time, the Fyodoi had became a technology-rich society with a thriving space program. They had managed to send starships to explore their system. Each of the three continental groups of Fyodoi were in intellectual competiton with each other, until profits and corporate directives got in the way. Small battles began to break out among the three groups, and these battles escalated into a full-scale war. Using the fruits of their technology, the Fyodoi developed weapons of mass-destruction and unleashed them on each other. This war later became known as the Great Cleansing. Soon, the planet Fyodos was reduced to a scarred hulk.The Fyodoi realized that their pride and technology had destroyed the world they loved, and reverted to a primitive society of hunter/gatherers and warriors. The Fyodoi are a loud and boisterous race of stubborn, narrow-minded warriors. (PG2)

Fyodos
this planet, the fourth in the Tatrang System, was a mecca of high technology and beauty until its human population declared war on itself. The planet's other native race, the Galidyns, could only watch in horror as their neighbors unleashed huge weapons of mass destruction on the world. Now, the planet is recovering from the wars. Much of the terrain has nearly recovered, although only the Galidyns remember its former beauty. The humans have reverted to a pre-technology stage of development. The average day on Fyodos lasts 20 local hours, and the year lasts 360 local days. Fyodos has three natural satellites. (PG2)

Fyre, Silver
a former smuggling pal of Han Solo's and a mercenary leader, she commanded the Aquaris Freeholders. At one time, Silver hijacked a load of spice being transported by Solo, and he hasn't trusted her since. Before she officially joined the Alliance, she had been responsible for turning people in to the Empire. While on the planet Kabal, after meeting with Leia Organa, she signed up with the Alliance. Thus, when the Alliance met her on Aquaris, Han was skeptical of her support. However, she proved her loyalty to the Alliance when she rescued the agents from Kraaken, her second-in-command. (CSW)

Fyyrsprus
members of this clumsy, reptilian species were subcontracted to perform work for Dapp Solus and Salem Victory on their custom freighter, the Starcat. After several of the repairs were found to be faulty - in reality, the Happy Blasters got what they paid for, which wasn't much - the technician Mac targeted the Fyyrsprus for extermination. He organized the team's efforts to "repay" the Fyyrsprus for their poor work. (SWJ13)

F1-series Droid
developed by Cybot Galactica, this four-legged companion droid was designed for use by scouts and explorers. Canine in shape, the F1 droid is equipped with a heavy grasping jaw designed for holding without crushing. The head of the droid contains video, audio, and olfactory pickups, as well as a communications uplink and movement sensor package. (GG8)

F2-series Droid
this second-generation exploration droid was manufactured by Cybot Galactica. These droids were known to be loyal, dedicated, and moderately clever in their ability to solve problems. (ROE)

F4-7
one of the medical droids evacuated from the Alliance's Echo base on the Bright Hope. F4-7 was 2-1B's medical assistant. (TBH)

F7
Kuat Drive Yards drop ship, the F7 is affectionately known as the Landing Brick. It is a 60-meter troop transport ship that is used to get troops from an orbiting capital ship to a planet's surface. They are minimally shielded and armed with only a single laser cannon. They are equipped with huge, short-burst drive systems that operate only upon landing. The drop ship free-falls to the surface, and the engines kick in just before impact. This allows the ship to entry a planet's atmosphere nearly undetected. (DFRSB)

F7V
this series of valet/translator droids was produced by Cybot Galactica. They were capable of translating over 3,000,000 languages via a TranLag II communication module. (TA)

F8GN
this tall, spindly, copper-colored droid was owned by Garris Shrike. Shrike programmed the droid to keep a running tally of the credits brought in by the children who worked for Shrike. Each child was given a territory to work on Corellia, and F8GN's job was to make sure each child brought in the proper amount. F8GN was in need of repair almost constantly, as indicated by the patchwork of small plates and welds on its body. F8GN's vocabulator didn't always work right, and alternated between a metallic shrill and a deep , unctuous boom. F8GN's eyes were fitted with different colored lenses, giving the droid one red eye and one green eye. (TPS)

* G *

G Cat
this modified Arakyd Helix Interceptor was operated by Cryle Cavv, with the help of the astromech droid R2-RC, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Cavv claimed the ship was nothing more than a transport vessel, despite its military beginnings. Cavv armed the ship with four plasburst cannons and a pair of proton torpedo launchers, and installed a slave circuit and beckon call to remotely call the ship to his location. (SWJ12)

G-locks
a starship's protective restraint system for its passengers. (SME)

G-type Rotolaser
this outdated weapon is similar to a Gatling Gun. It produced coherent bolts of energy like a modern blaster, but it does so via a rotating galven tube. The tube collects energy as is spins, and ejects a bolt whenever the galven pattern meets the barrel. The resulting bolts of energy are relatively low in power, since the galven tube spins rapidly and doesn't collect enough energy before it meets the barrel again. (SH)

this was the designation of Comar's Tracker anti-atmospheric gun, developed for surface-to-air combat. (BI) designation of Comar's TriTracker anti-atmospheric gun. It has an advanced target acquisition and tracking system, which uses three different sensor arrays to locate its targets. Although it can be operated by droids, a trained pair of crewmen provides the best operation and accuracy. The G-003 suffers from a rather limited range, though, and requires a land-line power source. (ISB)

G-003

G-021
this is one of the many New Republic personnel transport gigs used to ferry pilots and commanders between the ships of the Fifth Battle Group. Plat Mallar was in charge of the gig, which he used to ferry Colonel Bowman Gavin to the Polaron. (TT)

G-1 series Droid
this series of automatons was created for deployment as heavy equipment operaters. They could be programmed to handle almost any large piece of equipment, and found widespread usage at mining facilities. (JH)

G-1A
this is the designation of a bullet-shaped transport ship manufactured at the Byblos Drive Yards. (CCG4)

G-12
this was a model of repulsor-taxi produced during the early years of the New Order by Mobquet. (AIR)

G-138
this rogue star consumed the Imperial Star Destroyer Desolator after Alliance operatives repogrammed the capital ship's navigation computer. (IC)

G-2RD
a prison guard droid originally developed by Arakyd, and was later used by the New Republic. They stand about 1.2 meters in height, and are equipped with a repulsorlift for locomotion. The G-2RD has a visual/sound sensor suite, a vocabulator, a broadband antenna, a grasping claw, and two weapons appendages - one for stunning and one armed with a blaster. (DFR, DFRSB, SWJ14)

g-2000
a powerful, extremely sensitive life form tracker manufactured by Speizoc. (COJ)

G-3PO
known as Uncle Gee, this protocol droid was owned by Xalto Sneerzick's parents. When Sneerzick's mother died, his father programmed Uncle Gee to care for Xalto. They grew extremely close, and it was Xalto who gave the droid the nickname Uncle Gee. When Sneerzick established the Droid Abolitionist Movement, G-3PO remained by his side, and even risked his mechanical life for the fanatical leader. G-3PO was the first droid impregnated with the "emancipation virus" developed by Sneerzick and Babalabbet Swoont. Like the rest of Sneerzick's followers, Uncle Gee was aboard the Argent Lady when the cargo of R5 droids reacted strangely to the "emancipation virus" and attacked the abolitionists. G-3PO was blasted during a firefight. (SWJ9) strong, single-purpose droids. These silver automata can be programmed to perform menial tasks. (COJ)

G-79
this was the designation of the drone barge dispatched by Darth Vader to transport Jix to Corulag, on his mission to eliminate Governor Torlock. (SST)

G'hengle
Adar Tallon's communications officer aboard the Silent Water. (RC)

G'mi Moa
this Liannan bulk freighter traveled a regular route along the Perlemian Trade Route, until it was captured by the notorious pirate Gunda Mabin. (SWJ14)

G'Nagnib
an Alliance freighter destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

G'nnoch
this ancient, pictographic work was compiled by the Ssi-ruu race, and documented the existence of the Ssi-ruuk and their place in the Universe. Other parts of the G'nnoch detail the various ways of obtaining and losing honor. A major section of this work described the creation of the universe, from the Ssi-ruuk point of view. In the beginning, there wer four eggs. From the first hatched Ssi and P'w'itthki. Ssi's children hatched from the second egg, while P'w'itthki's children hatched from the third egg. The fourth egg was reserved for those descendants who earned a place in the afterlife. Eventually, Ssi was forced to defeat P'w'itthki in combat, but allowed P'w'itthki's hatchlings to live on, serving the children of Ssi forall eternity. This myth describes the beginning of the relationship between the Ssi-ruuk (htachlings of Ssi) and the P'w'eck (hatchlings of P'w'itthki). (AE, TBSB)

G'nook
an unintelligent species of ape-like humanoids with very small brains. (MMY)

G'Nung
this Gamorrean worked as one of Jasta Finn's henchmen, although he was actually working directly for Chiron Drebbick. (POC)

G'rho
an outpost planet colonized by Chandrilan settlers, G'rho was where Dev Sibwarra grew up after fleeing Chandrila. Unfortunately for the colonists, G'rho was one of the first planets subjugated by the Ssi-ruuk. (TB, TBSB)

G'rho Defense Force
this small militia was formed from the settlers who traveled to G'rho during the New Order, and served to protect the small settlements from external attack. (TBSB)

G'rile
this was the Corellian term used to denote the goals used in the sport of phrenbi. (BSS)

G'uotr Network
the black-market system that flourished during the last days of the planet Demophon, in the city of D'larah. (SN)

G'wenee
this urban world was known as a center of trade and commerce. (CE2)

GA-series Intelligence Droid
this outdated model of information analysis droid was produced by Cybot Galactica for use in scientific and business-oriented thinktanks. It was eventually replaced with the GY-series. (TBSB)

Ga'p'tashi
this Kajain'sa'Nikto started his career as an enforcer aboard a Hutt starship, but soon became quite angry at the fact that other races were not subject to the slavery of the Hutts like the Nikto were. He almost considered joining the Alliance, but was recruited by the Tenloss Syndicate as a pirate. Ga'p'tashi quickly accepted the offer, after Tenloss indicated that they wanted him to work almost exclusively in Hutt Space, disrupting Hutt convoys. He soon acquired the Nikto Kajidic, and manned it with Nikto and Klatooinan officers and gunners. Ga'p'tashi was very successful, and even completed a raid on the planet Vodran without being damaged. (PP)

Gaaqu
an Imperial Moff. (ISB)

Gaar Suppoon
this alien criminal was a rival of Jabba the Hutt's during the early years of the New Order. Suppoon was a pink-skinned humanoid with a long face and thin limbs. His nose and chin are studded with a pair of short tusks. The name "Gaar" is a title of respect among his people. Suppoon was responsible for the destruction of Kosh Kurp's village and family, although he was known as Sonopo Bomoor then. Kurp tracked the alien across the galaxy, and finally caught up with him, thanks to a plan devised by Jabba the Hutt. When Jabba revealed that Suppoon was really Bomoor, Kosh Kurp decided it was time to repay Bomoor. Suppoon tried to shot Kurp, but the laser blast deflected off Kurp's armor and blasted Suppoon's head off. Jabba turned Suppoon's holdings over to Kurp. (JTH)

Gaartatha
this Wookiee was a freelance pilot and shipper during the Galactic Civil War. However, his partner was caught by Imperial forces and enslaved for labor. Gaartatha himself barely escaped, and consoled himself by consuming too many Dentarian Ripples. He spent the rest of his time trying to figure out how to rescue his partner. (GMH)

Gaawan
this is the Tuhgri title given to the leader of a Tuhgri tribe. Each gaawan is sent to the House of Balance each year to discuss matters of importance to the Tuhgri. (KO)

Gabby
the 18-year-old survey pilot of the Astrolabe, Gabby was killed near Doornik-1142. (BTS)

Gablith Masquer
developed from the basic ooglith masquer, the gablith masquer allowed the Yuuzhan Vong to assume the guise of certain non-human races, including the Duros. The gablith masquer could form itself into a number of shapes and textures, and its activation spot was located on the wearer's neck. This modification - the activation spot on an ooglith masquer was near the nose of the wearer - allowed a Yuuzhan Vong to impersonate a species such as the Duro, which lacked a nose. (BP)

Gabredor III
this heavily forested world was the site of the Karazak Slavers Guild loading base during the early years of the New Republic. The Red Moons broke up the Guild's operation when they attempted to rescue the children of the ambassador of Cantras Gola. The planet is located with the hyperspace route known as Myto's Arrow. However, like many planets along the route, Gabredor III offered no real value to developers and was ignored. This made it the perfect haven for smugglers and slavers. The average day on Gabredor III lasts 22 standard hours, and its year lasts 352 local days. (SWJ8, TFE)

Gacer'grocinga
this Gacerite term means "leader of artists. It is the highest compliment a Gacerite can bestow on a non-Gacerite, and was used to describe Imperial Governor Ulbrek Gostech. (PG2)

Gacerian
1) this planet is the fourth and primary world in the Gacerian System. It was a model of what the Empire could have been if it had been more compassionate. The Imperial governor, while in complete control, left the general populace to themselves. This had the effect of instilling the values of the New Order while preserving many of the freedoms the people once shared. Gacerian is the homeworld of the Gacerite race. It is a world of stark beauty: the lack of naturally beautiful landmarks makes those that exist much more breathtaking. Gacerian also have no axial tilt, so it has no seasonal variations. Its days last 36 standard hours, and its year encompasses 375 local days. Gacerian has two natural satellites. One of the main exports of the planet are beautiful gemstones mined there. The remnants of the Imperial occupation control them, using slaves to extract the gems. (PG2)
2) this is the native language of the Gacerite race. (POT)

Gacerite
1) this alien race is native to the planet Gacerian. They are humanoid, but stand nearly three meters tall. They have spindly limbs and no body hair. Their eyes have evolved into small, black orbs that protect the optic nerve from the bright glare of Klozar. Their ears, on the other hand, are large, and the Gacerite sense of hearing is very keen. The nostrils in their noses draw air into their primary set of lungs, while a secondary set of nostrils - located in their necks - connect to a thirs lung. This arrangement allows them to continue to breath while talking or singing. Their music is cherished throughout the galaxy; even Emperor Palpatine was said to be fond of Gacerite dirge opera. The Gacerites have a classless society and a well-disciplined army, and they do battle with vigor whenever they compatriots play battle music. They also make excellent translators, and often are chosen to reprogram 3PO droids. The average Gacerite lives to be 150 years old. (PG2, AE)
2) a precious stone. (PP)

Gachoogai River
one of the primary waterways found on the planet Ylesia, the Gachoogai River is located between Colony One and Colony Two. On a planet of shallow seas and swamps, the Gachoogai was anomolously swift-flowing and deep. (TPS)

Gadaf
this Rodian smuggler served as Falan Iniro's gunner aboard the Take That!. Gadaf was killed when Iniro took the ship into battle before getting the signal from the Nar Shaddaa command base, and the ship was destroyed by a Carrack-class picket ship. (THG)

Gaderffii
the traditional weapon of the Sandpeople. A short staff, with a double-edged axe at one end and a hook on the other. Also called a gaffi stick, they are often assembled from freighter plating. (SWN)

Gadget
this was the nickname given by Ton Phanan to his R2 astromech droid. (WS)

Gado
the native species of the planet Abregado and its surrounding system, the Gados are tall, thin humanoids with long limbs and a worm-like head. A layer of short fur covers most of their body. (HTTE, EGP)

Gaddrian
an alien race. (RASB)

Gaelin
this computer slicer was a member of the crew of the FarStar, during its hunt for Moff Sarne. (KR)

Gaff
1) Koong's Kobok aide-de-camp (DCAR)
2) a tall, fishlike humanoid lizard. (ECAR)

Gafra
an Imperial freighter charged with delivering a new warhead. The warhead had enough power to take out an entire Imperial-I class Star Destroyer. The freighter was intercepted by the Alliance shuttle Herald, and the warhead was stolen. (XW)

Gailea
this planet is the site of the Marqua Spas. (SWJ9)

Gailid
this human worked with Mosep in Jabba the Hutt's accounting and tax collection office. He was also highly technical, and spent a lot of time in the repulsor-pool with Barada. (CCG7)

Gaios
the philosophers of this planet once said that "a seed does not know the flower that produced it." (BTS)

Gakfedd
a tribe of Gamorreans living on Pzob with Luek Skywalker, Cray Mingla, and Nichos Marr were stranded there. At that time, the tribe was ruled by Bullyak and Ugbuz. (COJ)

Gala
this planet was long ruled by the Tallah dynasty, which held sway over three social tribes: the city people, the hill people, and the sea people. The planet was the homeworld of the Galacian race, and had three natural satellites. The average day on the planet was short, and the period of daylight was very short. A decade before the Battle of Naboo, the old Queen of the Tallah agreed to allow her successor to be chosen by popular vote of all the planet's inhabitants. Each of the three tribes would choose a candidate, and the leader would be chosen from among them. She recognized that the gap between the rich and the poor was widening, and that a continued division would tear the planet apart. Obi-Wan Kenobi and Qui-Gon Jinn were scheduled to travel to this planet, after they survived their encounter with Xanatos on Bandomeer. The Jedi were on a mission given to them by Yoda, to mediate the election of the planetary leader. Instead, they were hijacked to the planet Phindar by Paxxi Derida and his brother, Guerra. After Obi-Wan was captured by the Syndicat, he was "renewed" by Baftu and dropped on Gala. However, Obi-Wan had used the Force to resist the effects of the renewal process, and landed with his memories intact. (HP, MOC)

Galaan
this planet, the primary world in the Galaanus System of the Corva Sector, served as the New Republic's primary communications station in the sector. This gas giant provides ample cover for the relay station situated on its northern pole, as well as covering a New Republic Intelligence base. The base was eventually discovered by the Imperial splinter group known as the Kaarenth Dissension and destroyed. The planet's day lasts 132 standard hours, and its annual rotation takes up 479 local days. (SWAJ, SWJ8)

Galacian
this race of humanoids was native to the planet Gala. There were three primary tribes of Galacians: those that lived in the city, those that lived in the hills, and those that lived on the sea. They were thin-bodied creatures with pale, bluish skin which seemed to have a faintly-glowing luminescence. The Galacians often referred to the color of their skin as "moonlight." Because sunlight was not abundant on Gala, they were often referred to as "moon people." The Galacians held deep beliefs in the family structure, and marriages were often arranged so that one or both families augmented their own strength. (HP, MOC)

Galacian Mining Corporation
this legitimate mining operation was set up during Deca Brun's campaign to succeed Queen Veda as planetary governor. The corporation was really a front for Brun to acquire political backing from Offworld Mining Corporation. If Brun had been elected, Offworld would have obtained the rights to mine over half of Gala's surface, including much of the Galacian Sea. (MOC)

Galacian Sea
this vast ocean covered much of the planet Gala. (MOC)

Galactar Route
this street, found in Somin City on the planet Seltos, was where Marse and Sinya Deboora lived. They occupied the twelfth house on the street. (TSK)

Galactic Access, Incorporated this corporation owned and operated a number of starports during the New Order, including the Estaria Central Starport. (HAS)

Galactic Archives
this establishment, located in the city of Talos, on Atzerri, was found near the city's spaceport. It proclaimed itself as "a one-stop source for everything that's worth knowing." Luke Skywalker stopped here, hoping to obtain information on the Jedi Knights, during his travels with Akanah. He picked up some tomes, but they were obvious fakes. (SOL)

Galactic Bandits
a series of holofeatures which celebrated some of the galaxy's most infamous pirates and shipjackers. (SE)

Galactic Banking Network
a collection of banks throughout the galaxy that have linked their assess together to allow free movement of funds. (SWSB)

Galactic Capital Bank
this old Jedi Knights used this financial institution for much of their business, during the last centuries of the Old Republic. (RP)

Galactic Caucus
this meeting was called by the Alliance shortly after the Battle of Endor. Its goal was to determine the correct form of government to put in place of the Empire, prior to the full construction of a New Republic. (CTD)

Galactic Center, The
one of Lando's mystical expletives. (LCM)

Galactic City
this was the name used to describe the capital city of Coruscant, during the last years of the Old Republic. With the advent of the New Order and Emperor Palpatine's rise to power, the city was eventually remained Imperial City. At its height, more than twelve billion individuals lived in Galactic City alone. (E1A3, IWE1)

Galactic Civil War
the war waged between the factions of the Alliance to Restore the Republic and the Empire which embraced Palpatine's New Order. (SW)

Galactic Constitution
the document which laid the foundation for the Old Republic. (SWSB)

Galactic Core
the area of the galaxy immediately surrounding the Deep Core, it is also known as the Core system of worlds. It includes Coruscant. (DE1, SWSB)

Galactic Corporate Policy League
this outwardly law-abiding and legal group of individual interests was secretly a cabal of plutocrats tied to Senator Palpatine and the ideals of his New Order. They resented the legal prohibitions on slavery, strip-mining, and credit-hoarding enforced by the Old Republic, and openly supported Palpatine's bid for Presidency. They petitioned Palpatine for the loosening of governmental controls, and Palpatine listened to them. Once he was established in office, Palpatine placed them in control of the Corporate Sector by naming them the founding members of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Galactic Correctional Authority
this huge correctional conglomerate sprang up during the last decades of the Old Republic, when the concerns of the galaxy's rulers outweighed their concern with the well-being of the galaxy's most remote worlds. Based in the Outer Rim Territories, GCA maintained several penal colonies for the incarceration of criminals captured and convicted throught the Outer Rim. One of the most famous of these colonies was located on Oovo IV, because it was also the site of several pro-circuit podracers. (RAC)

Galactic Court
this is the highest-ranking judicial court in the galaxy, formed by the New Republic some years after the Battle of Endor. (POT)

Galactic Courts of Justice
this complex of buildings, located in the former Galactic City on Coruscant, housed a multitude of courtrooms and juryrooms used during trials of interstellar importance. (IWE1)

Galactic Criminals Act
developed and implemented by Xanatos on his homeworld of Telos, this law allowed the government to obtain police resources to capture offworld criminals. Xanatos' primary goal in instituting the law was to obtain any help he needed to capture Qui-Gon Jinn, if the Jedi Master ever traveled to Telos in an attempt to capture Xanatos. (DOR)

Galactic Crystal Creations
this employee-owned corporation purchased the rights to the planet Garnib. It used the planet to create wondrous pieces from the unusual Garnib crystals and market them throughout the galaxy. (PG1)

Galactic Cultures - A Visitor's Guide to the Galaxy
a travel guide which documents the various human and aline cultures found on the galaxy's most population tourist destinations. (ML)

Galactic Dance Blast
a jizz tune played by the Max Rebo Band. (TJP)

Galactic Defense Review
a periodical produced during the Old Republic and, for a short time, early in the New Order, the Review described the Navy's best weapons and strategies. It also offered commentary. (RPG)

Galactic DelSoli
this sport was contested in Rayter Sector. An annual tournament was the talk of the bars for many weeks. (TA)

Galactic Drift, The
one of Lando's mystical expletives. (LCM)

Galactic Electronics
a development firm located in the Corporate Sector, Galactic Electronics defied the Imperial ban on weapons sales and worked closely with the Alliance to develop the mag pulse weapon just after the Battle of Hoth. The Empire did not look kindly on businesses that defied its orders, let alone defied them in support of the Alliance. An assault on the company's Pondut research station left the company without a major research center. (TIE)

Galactic Encyclopedia, The
this vast collection of information documents nearly every major fact in the known universe. (DE1)

Galactic Exotics

Galactic History Foundation
this research group sought to create a complete picture of the history of galaxy. (COG)

Galactic Medical Central
this is the formal name of the New Republic medical team working in the Meridian Sector, based on Nim Drovis. (POT)

Galactic Miner’s Guild
this was the Empire’s official body that governed and controlled the mining of gases from gas giant planets. (CCG5)

Galactic Museum
this huge museum, located in Imperial City on Coruscant, has survived the various political changes that have swept around it. The museum is the home of many records detailing the Old Republic's growth as well as that of the Empire. There are a number of Sith and Jedi artifacts stored there. The Emperor Palpatine cut all funding for the museum during his rule, keeping the knowledge contained within from the public. He did, however, leave enough money for the museum to carry on his legacy. When the Rogue Squadron pilots infiltrated Coruscant following the Battle of Endor, they found a vast holographic display in which Darth Vader lamented over the death of Palpatine at the hands of the treacherous Rebels. Vader's image claimed that Palpatine was visiting a new "planetary ore extractor" - another name for the second Death Star - when the Rebels attacked. The image went on to claim that the Rebels were going to steal it in order to destroy Imperial planets, when Palpatine offered them forgiveness. The Rebels then killed him and stole the extractor. Much of this pro-Imperial propaganda was removed by the New Republic, following the liberation of Coruscant from Ysanne Isard, and was replaced with failry neutral depictions of the Galactic Civil War. (ISU, WG, SOC)

Galactic News Service
a network which allows the entire New Republic to receive news as it happens, designed by the man who created the Skydome Botanical Gardens on Coruscant. It was here that Voren Na'al got his start as a reporter covering the Corsin swoop races. (MTS, TLC)

Galactic Outdoor Survival School
known throughout the galaxy as simply GOSS, this organization was noted for training some of the most skilled survivalists in any military. Founded by Barosa Warren on the terraformed world of OM813, GOSS provided students with the opportunity to learn survival skills in those environments which were most hostile to their own physiology. Thus, a Mon Calamari student could learn how to survive in desert areas. Graduates described the school as a combination of educational facility and survivalist camp, with a crude mentality and an excellent result. (AIR)

Galactic Patrol
this search and rescue operation was formed by the New Republic, and was missioned to assist disabled starships. (POT)

Galactic Plague, The
this group of alien musicians pounded out bad songs at the Lazy Bergruutfa Cantina on Betha II. (SWJ8)

Galactic Power Engineering
this manufacturer once produced podracing engines and parts, as well as complete racers like the GPE-3130. (IG1)

Galactic Registry
the document which describes all the peoples and races that have joined the galactic government. It was established by the Old Republic, and revised during the early years of the New Republic. (COJ)

Galactic Republic
the original name of the Old Republic, it was founded upon the discovery of hyperspace travel and communications. (TOJ)

Galactic Research Academy
this was the name given to several installations dedicated to pure research. One of the main locations was established on the planet Koaan. (GOF4, GOF7)

Galactic Resorts
this holozine provided reviews and information on the most exclusive and exotic resorts in the galaxy. (CRO)

Galactic Rim on 100 Credits a Day, The a tourist's guide to the planets and sights of the Outer Rim. (RPG)

Galactic Senate

Galactic Society of Recording Artists
this affiliation of musicians and singers provided employment and security for the galaxy’s entertainers. (POT)

Galactic Spice Mining Guild
this guild flourished in the Outer Rim Territories during the last decades of the Old Republic, as the Republic began to turn inward and ignore the activities of the more remote planets. (RAC)

Galactic Standard Time
this was the standard form of measuring time throughout the galaxy, and was based on current time of day on Coruscant. Most chronometers had a feature that allowed the user to check their own current time against the Galactic Standard. Most starships also had a setting that would maintain shipboard time at the Galactic Standard, thereby defining day and night aboard ship. (GOF3)

Galactic Voyager
Ackbar's MC90 star cruiser, he took it to Anoth to help avert Furgan's attempt to kidnap Anakin Solo. It was one of the largest Mon Calamari cruisers ever built, and was part of the New Republic's naval backbone. (COTF, DS, JASB)

Galactic Weekly NewsStack
this counter-culture publication rose to prominence in the Outer Rim Territories during the Galactic Civil War. It took the form on a computer virus which was innocently passed from network to network, dispersing itself even into the Core. At a pre-programmed date and time, the virus blossomed into a tabloid-style news-feature that was displayed on data screens. This blossoming routine once nearly overrode the controls of an Imperial-class Star Destroyer in the Septevorres System. The NewsStack contained hilarious and derogatory stories on the galaxy's most prominent figures, including Emperor Palpatine, Darth Vader, Boba Fett, and Jabba the Hutt. COMPNOR initially ignored the NewsStack, believing that its popularity would be short-lived. However, its virus-like intial form was passed to so many networks and systems that COMPNOR couldn't foresee the explosion. The NewsStack became a thorn in COMPNOR's side, since it harassed the New Order at every turn. (GG9)

Galacticon Insurance
an insurance company known throughout the galaxy for its personal policies. (RM)

Galacticorp Mines
this mining operation was headquartered in Somin City, on the planet Seltos. They were under the nominal control of Magister of Trade Sinya Deboora, who was working to keep the Empire supplied with ores mined by Galacticorp. (TSK)

GalactiDroid Architecture
creators of a number of galaxy-wide standards for automatons. (RPG)

Galalloy Industries
manufacturers of the first true probe droids, they designed automatons that could search planets and asteroids for mineable metals and fuels. They developed these initial probe droids well before the Clone Wars began. (SWSB)

Galand

Galantos
this planet, located in the Farlax Sector, is the homeworld of the Fia. Galantos is found outside the bounds of the Koornacht Cluster. (BTS, SOL)

Galas
this one of the many small mining settlements established on the planet Kallistas. Much of the planet's gemstone mining was based in Galas. (GG10)

Galasett
this Kerestian bounty hunter was an associate of Reglis Taal, and was known as a sort of bounty hunter vigilante. He preferred to hunt down those other hunters who had broken Imperial laws, and was often fined by the Empire for excessive damages during his hunts. Galasett once tried to bring in the Barabel hunter Baraduk, hoping to bring in the other alien and claim a bounty maintained by the governor of Herios IV. Baraduk defeated Galasett in one-on-one combat, and Galasett vowed to have his revenge sooner or later. (GG10, GG12)

Galax Titan
Mikos Argdran arranged for passage aboard this ore freighter, during the Alliance's search for Shondra Del in the Elrood Sector. Argdran was traveling with the Alliance agent searching for Del, being on the run from Loag assassins employed by Lud Chud. It was commanded by a man anmed Kortho Hatanga. The Galax Titan was an aging X46-7 Ore Carrier, which was virtually dead in space whenever it was loaded with cargo. It was armed with four laser cannons, to protect whatever cargo it was carrying. (OE)

Galaxy Chance
this ship is a floating casino, catering to the gaming needs of its passengers. The Khuiumin Survivors hoped to execute Zlece Oonaar by intercepting the ship, some years after the Battle of Endor. It was a modified Corellian CR90 Corvette, and was created to be a smaller version of the Errant Venture. It was even painted red, the color Booster Terrik hoped to use on his Star Destroyer, but couldn't find in sufficient quantities. It was defended by six TIE-wing Uglies. (IJ)

Galaxy Gun
the Empire's most recent super weapon, deisgned by Umak Leth and built in the Byss drydocks after Palpatine was reborn a second time after the Battle of Endor. The Galaxy Gun is capabale of launching intelligent projectiles into hyperspace. These projectiles can then exit hyperspace on their own, at precise coordinates. Once out of hyperspace, the projectiles can strike immediately at their targets, without any advanced warning. (DE2)

Galaxy News Service

Galaxy Ways Theme Park
found on the world of Aralis, this was one of many facilities attacked by Ranats, as tribal warfare escalated and hunting grounds dwindled. (GMS)

Galaxy-15
Kuat Drive Yards' ion engine, used on the Nebulon-B frigate. (EGV)

Gale, Reina
this smuggler tried to run a deal on Arcura, but she was stopped by a group of Imperial AT-ATs there. She survived the virus that killed her parents while they were living in the Mindavar System. Reina was accompanied on her adventures by the Gigoran, Rollos, whom she had rescued from slavery. (SWJ4)

Galentro Heavy Works
this company controlled the government on Bescane, and operated the Jaemus shipyards. Galentro also built the Enforcer-class picket cruiser for the Empire. (SWAJ, SWJ9)

Galey
this man served as one of the cooks aboard the Mon Remonda, during the New Republic's hunt for Warlord Zsinj. Galey, disgruntled by the self-impression that most of the Naval personnel held him in contempt, had allied himself with Zsinj for the right price. Galey's role was part of Project Chubar and, as Zsinj's agent, he was to speak certain key phrases to specific members of non-human species. These non-humans ahd been brainwashed by other Zsinj supporters, and were programmed to kill the individual described in Galey's seemingly inane phrase. Galey's first command was to trigger Tal'dira's programming. Shortly afterward, he activated Nuro Tualin's programming. Both Twi'lek's acted during the Republic's response to a distress call from Jussafet Four, with Tal'dira trying to kill Wedge Antilles while Tualin tried to destroy the Mon Remonda. He was detained for questioning by the security forces aboard the ship, since several pilots had seen him talking with the Twi'leki pilots. (SOC)

GalFactorial
this biomedical firm was one of several corporations bidding for the rights to build a bacta refinery on Verkuyl, some three years after the Battle of Endor. They built and operated a refinery on New Cov, a facility that was built under budget and on schedule. (TFNR)

Galia
daughter of King Ommin and Queen Amanoa of Onderon, she was raised in the walled city of Iziz but fell in love with Oron Kira, the prince of the Beastmasters. They were married following Amanoa's death, bringing together the Onderonian peoples and ending the centuries-old Beast Wars. She later became the Queen of Onderon. (TOJ, FNU)

Galidyn
a race of creatures native to the planet Fyodos, the Galidyns are huge, scaly, intelligent lizards. The Galidyn have small, prehensile forepaws, and large wings. The average Galidyn measures five meters in length, and has a wingspan of nearly ten meters. The Galidyn live to be thousands of years old, and each mating produced just one egg every 100 years. Xenobiologists discovered that there were a few Galidyn that had survived the Great Cleansing of the ancient Fyodoi. They Galidyn love ideas and discussion, and have keen intellects and intense curiosity. They speak the same language as the Fyodoi, but a highly-refined, pure version of it. They tolerate the Fyodoi. The Galidyn have formed eight cities on Fyodos, and each is rulde by a Galidyn steward. When cornered or angered, Galidyn could be ferocious fighters. (PG2, AE)

Galindas Exports
this mass-market fencing operation was part of the Tenloss Syndicate, and maintained a number of asteroid storage facilities near the planet Lucrenn. (GG11)

Galinolo Subservient
this droid manufacturer produced the Mark VII Attendant Droid. (TA)

Galinolo XX
this model of sporting blaster came in a personal-use version as well as a Diplomatic Edition for use by ambassadors and statesbeings. (SWJ1)

Gall
this moon of the gas giant Zhar was the site of an Imperial enclave during the Galactic Civil War. The enclave was the home base for the Imperial fleet which patrolled Cadavine Serctor. The southern hemisphere of the moon is ravaged by cyclonic storms. It housed a pair of Star Destroyers and their full complement of TIE Fighters. Lando Calrissian discovered that Boba Fett had taken Han Solo there, after his flight from Bespin, to get repairs made to Slave I after a run-in with IG-88 over Tatooine. Lando, Leia Organa, Chewbacca, and Dash Rendar tried to intercept the bounty hunter and recover the body of Han Solo, but were unsuccessful. (SE, SSE, SESB)

Galladinium
this company is known for its gladiator walkers, used in many illegal wargames. (SWJ8)

Galladinium's Datalog
this publication of Galladinium Galactic Exports regularly detailed all the goods available for sale from the corporation. The datalog was banned by the Empire when it was discovered that members of various resistance groups, including the Alliance, were obtaining weapons from the Datalog. (SWJ12)

Galladinium Galactic Exports
this was one of the galaxy's largest shipping corporations, at the height of the New Order. (SWJ12)

Gallamby, Daclif
the heir-apparent to the Corellian Diktat, Dupas Thomree, early in the reign of Emperor Palpatine. When Thomree died suddenly, Gallamby was named Diktat. This moved Trackan Sal-Solo from his position of heir-presumptive into the second-in-command position. (AS) the son of a commoner from the planet Ylix, Gallandro grew up unaware of the wars between his own planet and the nearby world of Goelitz. When terrorists from Goelitz murdered his parents while he watched, Gallandro was thrown into the world of violence. He was placed in an orphanage until he was old enough to sign up for duty in the military. He became an excellent soldier; he felt that to be anything less than the best was to end up like his parents. His hatred for the Goelitz made him sharpen his skills, and his victories became almost legendary. When a mission to attack a hospial went bad - Gallandro's quik reflexes made whirl and fire, killing an elderly nurse caring for several young orphans - he came face-to-face with the reality that he just didn't care anymore about anything. He was a soldier, after all. He was part of the forces that eventually defeated the Goelitz. Deprived of work but still highly-skilled, Gallandro hired himself out as a bodyguard, mercenary, and bounty hunter. He single-handedly hijacked the Quamar Messenger before being contracted by Odumin to kill the Malorm family, which he did with ease. He reached them on Matra IV just before a Malkite Poisoner could catch them, and Gallandro was also forced to kill the Poisoner. This got him into a feud with the Malkite Poisoners' Guild which lasted ten years. During this time, Gallandro killed more than half of the Guild's elite leaders. Gallandro was then offered a full-time position as one of Odumin's operatives while Odumin was a territorial manager with the Corporate Sector Authority. Gallandro arrived on Ammuud shortly before Han Solo and Fiolla, and tried to figured out the best way to deal with the possible exposure of the slave trade. He worked with Reesbon clan to determine that a challenge to the new Mor Glayyd would eliminate his power and and leads. Gallandro was hired to play the part of an offworlder who offended the Mor Glayyd's sister. The plan was to lure Ewwen into a death-duel, which he would surely lose, or force him to step down as Mor Glayyd, reducing his reputation. Gallandro was ready to kill Ewwen when Han Solo stepped in to fight for Ewwen. Recognizing that Han was a somewhat-experienced gunman, Gallandro opted to back out of the duel himself, rather than risk death. As he was leaving, he quickly drew his weapon and knocked out a number of holotargets, showing at least Han that he was an incredibly fast and accurate gunman. He re-appeared as Han was trying to leave Ammuud, overtaking the Falcon in an Authority warship. When he boarded the Falcon and ordered Han to fly it back to the spaceport, he also asked for Zlarb's data plaque. Han gave it to him, triggering the security case's neuro-charge. Gallandro was disabled, and Han neutralized him. Han allowed Gallandro to escape, which allowed Gallandro to set out on a mission of revenge against Han. Gallandro's search for Han Solo continued until he was able to intercept Han on Dellalt. When Gallandro learned of Han's involvement with Badure and Hasti, he began making contacts with J'uoch and R'all, and was on the planet when Han and his group arrived to search for the Queen of Ranroon. Gallandro aided J'uoch insomuch as it allowed him to gain access to Han Solo. When the two met up, they eventually came to an uneasy truce, agreeing to split the treasue of Xim in return to Han's life. Gallandro never intended to go through with the agreement, and when he had Han Solo alone in the starship's, hold, he tried to eliminate Han. Skynx interferred, drawing Gallandro away from Han. When Gallandro tried to follow Skynx into the actual treasue hold, the ship's anti-weapons systems opened fire on Gallandro. He was incinerated by the combined blast of a number of laser beams. Gallandro was a gaudy dresser, and was known for his gray hair and long, droopy moustaches, into which he braided golden beads. (HSR, HSL, CSA)

Gallandro

Gallandro, Anja
this woman was the daughter of the gunslinger Gallandro, born shortly before he was killed on the Queen of Ranroon. He had met her mother on Anobis, just as the civil war there was breaking out. He left to find fortune and glory, and left her on Anobis. Her mother came from a mining family, and she was devastated when news of Gallandro's death came. She made sure that Anja knew who killed her father, although she mistakenly believed it was Han Solo. Anja's mother was killed in the early battles of Anobis' civil war, leaving Anja an orphan. Anja left the planet as soon as she could stow away, and eventually ended up on Ord Mantell. There, she became addicted to andris spice, which helped to heighten her senses and skills as a warrior. She came into possession of an ancient lightsaber, which she wielded almost as well as a Jedi. A small woman with long, dark hair held back from her face by a rune-covered leather band, Anja's lightsaber was acid-yellow in color. She eventually went ot work for Czethros, and jumped at the opportunity to exact revenge on Han Solo when they plotted to kill him during the 93rd Blockade Runners Derby. The attempt failed, but she confronted Solo and demanded he attone for her father's death by trying to solve the problems on Anobis. She hoped he would die in the war, but he managed to survive. She then decided to join the Solo children on Yavin 4, in an effort to remain close to Han and help Czethros kill him. However, the more she came to know Jaina and Jacen, the more she began to doubt Czethros' motives. She tried to fit in with the young Jedi students, but she first battled to overcome what she felt was a small spice habit. However, she was unable to free herself of andris' lure alone. She fled Yavin 4 by stealing the Lightning Rod from Zekk and traveling to Kessel, where she bullied her way into a hangar and set out to find a vial of spice. She hoped that one more dose would help her get beyond the pain of withdrawal, but soon found herself mistaken. A chance meeting with Lilmit later reveealed Czethros' treacherous manipulation of her emotions, and she turned away from Black Sun. She helped Cilghal and Jacen eliminate a Black Sun stash of spice beneath the polar icecaps on Calamari, then finaly beat her addiction. She lef the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4 with a new set of friends, and went to work for Lando Calrissian as a pilot. (ROM, TCC, CCR)

Gallant
this New Republic Majestic-class cruiser was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. It took part in the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319, but survived the counterassault. (SOL)

Gallant Sun
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was destroyed by Alliance forces at the shipyards at Pendari. The Alliance employed a computer slicer to discover the ship's refitting schedule, and the information allowed the Alliance to destroy the ship with minimal loss of life. (GG11)

Gallaze
this alien creature was native to the planet Trinta, and was the only pure herbivore on the planet. It resembled a small deer, and traveled in herds of twelve or more individuals. Of the few who have visited Trinta, many have discovered that the gallaze can be hunted for its meat. (DOE)

Galleefryn II
this jungle planet was freed from Imperial control by the Alliance, in a struggle which took place more than ten years before the Battle of Endor. (TBSB)

Galleon
this small, unarmed transport ship was developed during the last years of the Old Republic. The Imperial Navy recycled these cargo ships, using them primarily as troop transports. (REB)

Galleria Shop
one of the many boutiques found aboard the Kuari Princess. (TFE)

Galleros
this is the larger of the two continents on the planet Zelos II, recently renamed in honor of Galleros Nul. (PG2)

Galleros Nul
this Zelosian is the charismatic leader of the planet Zelos II. He is unique among Zelosians in that he has trained himself to enjoy the darkness. He has overcome his race's instinctive fear of the night, and is often seen walking the dark streets, reassuring his people of their safety. Ever since the Empire arrived on Zelos II and was thought to be driven off, Nul has kept the planet under a blanket of martial law. Nul considers himself the Mandated Commander of the People of Zelos, often using the title Commander. His word is the absolute law on Zelos II, and he has not relinquished it despite the belief that the Empire has left the planet. He is distinguishable by his jet-black hair and military dress. After Jai Raventhorn and the New Republic were tipped off to the Imperial presence on the planet, their strike team was killed and Raventhorn was captured. When she was rescued, along with Dirk Harkness, Jai captured the Imperial officer commanding the base and called Nul to let him know about the hidden garrison in the Valley of Umbra. Shortly afterward, Nul disavowed any support for the Empire, and petitioned to have Zelos II be admitted to the New Republic. (PG2, TFNR)

Gallia, Adi
this beautiful, brown-skinned woman was a Jedi Master during the last years of the Old Republic. Born to Corellian parents who were diplomats on Coruscant, she was quickly recognized for her strength with the Force. After years of training, she became one of the twelve members of the Jedi Council shortly before the Battle of Naboo. She was known among the Jedi for her abilities of intuition and information gathering, and maintained a vast network of informants across the planet of Coruscant. Through this network, she discovered that the Trade Federation was building droid-controlled starfighters and was planning to blockade the small planet of Naboo, in an effort to force the Old Republic to lift its taxation of trade routes. The Federation attempted to stop her on Esseles, but she was rescued by Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi. She brought this information to the attention of Chancellor Valorum, who requested that two Jedi be dispatched to Naboo to negotiate a settlement without the interference of the Senate. Although she chose not to use it unless all other options had failed, Adi Gallia owned a crimson-bladed lightsaber. Her golden skin was accented by blue facial markings. Adi Gallia was portrayed by Gin in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1, E1A1, FFT)

Gallienis IV
this was the name of the planet Bridin Anchorage, before Quarlo Bridin took control of it. (GG11)

Galliot
a Ripoblus modified CR90 corvette used to attack the Dimok science station Youst. (TIE)

Gallinore
homeworld of the life-forms which are known as Rainbow Gems, and part of the Hapes Cluster. (TB)

Gallisport
located on the large moon Shesharile 5, Gallisport serves as the capital for both Shesharile 5 and Shesharile 6. It is the home of a number of swoop gangs, including the Spiders and the Raging Banthas. (GG6)

Gallo Mountains
this range of low mountains cut across the main continent of the planet Naboo. (IWE1)

Gallofree Yards
manufacturers of medium transport starships, like medium transports used by the Alliance on Hoth. Gallofree was a small company trying to make it in a crowded transport market, but their marketing and service successes failed to keep it afloat. Gallofree went bankrupt several years before the Battle of Yavin, although many of their ships are still in service. (RASB, EGV)

Gallon
a Mugaari cargo ferry destroyed when the Empire subjugated the Tungra Sector. (TIE)

Gallorr, Arno
the son of Mortris Gallorr, Arno owned and operated Gallorr's Light Repair Shed in the boomtown of Corestrike, on the planet Chrona, during the early years of the New Republic. He disagreed with Mortris' plans to protect the planet from criminals by hiring mercenaries and outside interests. It was later revealed that Arno had been corrupted by the crimelord Themog. (SWJ12)

Gallorr, Mortris
this man served as the Town Council Adjunct of Corestrike, on the planet Chrona, during the early years of the New Republic. It was Gallorr who first advertised for individuals to serve as protectors of the planet, after it was overrun by crimelords and gamblers. He was the founder of Gallorr's Light Repair Shed, and established the business before Corestrike was incorporated into a township. He longed for the peaceful days before gambling and crime took over the planet's economy, a vision his son Arno disagreed with. He and his grandson, Selmar, and his daughter-in-law, Serise, were kidnapped by Themog and held for ransom, until a group of freelance soldiers defeated Themog and freed the Gallorrs. With Themog's demise, Mortris was able to break the criminal yoke which held Chrona and re-establish the law. (SWJ12)

Gallorr, Selmar
this young boy was Arno Gallor's son, but he was more like his grandfather Mortris than like Arno. Selmar was extremely gifted with his hands, and could tale apart almost any droid and repair it so that it worked better than before. Selmar was entranced by the mercenaries his grandfather hired to protect Chrona, and wanted to learn how to fire a blaster. (SWJ12)

Gallorr, Serise
this young woman married Arno Gallorr shortly before the Battle of Endor. (SWJ12)

Gallorr's Light Repair Shed located in the town of Corestrike, on Chrona, this garage was owned and operated by Arno Gallorr. (SWJ12)

Gallou, Rennie
this woman served as one of the Alliance's supply officers at the Massassi Base on Yavin 4. (SA1)

Galltine
Elea Poista's false identity Kel was supposedly born on this planet. (GG2)

Gallzar
one of the many warring clans of Th'iruckai. (GMS)

Galoomp
this herd beast roams the plains of Naboo. The tail of the galoomp ends in a small, bony knob that is shed once each year. The Gungans collect the discarded knobs for use as baby rattles. (GF)

Galous, Pinac
this Imperial economic advisor, assigned to the planet Ord Grovner, instituted a 15-percent increase in consumption taxes required from all Oute Rim citizens during the Galactic Civil War. Galous cited the increase in "rebellious attacks" and the rising costs of rawmat as the basis for his tax increase. This increase met with heavy civilian opposition, especially since Galous announced that the added Imperial revenue would be used for unspecified military funding. (SWJ9)

Galov Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Outer Rim Territories. (SWAJ)

Galpos II
possible destination of the GrimDeath I when it was intercepted by Spacetrooper Platoon 243-XT. It is part of the Woldona System. (SWSB)

GalResource Industries
one of the many subsidiaries of TaggeCo, which was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Galtea
this planet is located on the boundary between the most inhabited parts of Kathol Sector and the Marcol Void. (KO)

Galtea Run
this hyperspace pathway runs through the Marcol Void, connecting Galtea with Timbra Ott and linking the main section of Kathol Sector to the Kathol Outback. It is one of two such hyperspace routes through the Void. (KO)

Galu
this is the capital city of the planet Gala. Once grand and impressive, it became run-down during the last years of the Beju-Tallah Dynasty. The city was built on three hills, with the royal castle situated atop the tallest hill. This made it visible from any location in the city. (HP, MOC)

Galub Sea Slug
a parasitic ocean creature native to Spira, the Galub sea slug was known to grow up to two meters in length. These incredibly stupid creatures adhered themselves to larger creatures, boring into their skin and sucking the blood from their bodies. Because of their limited intelligence, Galub sea slugs often mistook boats for living hosts, and attached themselves to passing ships. (SWJ1)

Galven Pattern
this pattern of electronic circuits lines the inside of a blaster barrel. It is formed by a static pulse field created by micro-electronics built into the barrel. It modulates the power of the energy and light emitted from the Actuating Blaster Module. (CFG)

Galvoni III
this planet was the site of an Imperial military communcations complex infiltrated by Voren Na'al in an attempt to gather information on the Death Star project. (MTS)

GAM Missile
developed by MerrSonn, the Gravity Activated Mode missile can home in on intense infrared sources, such as vehicle exhausts. It also has an onboard computer that be selected for targetting the gravity-wave anomalies produced by repulsorlift usage. The GAM missile can pursue a target for up to 40 kilometers before it exhausts its fuel source. (ISB)

Gama, Tira
this woman was a native of the Corellian colony world of Tralus. There, she met and married Denn Solo. She became pregnant shortly before a group of raiding pirates began attacking the outer worlds of the Corellian System. She gave birth to twins just before Tralus was attacked. She managed to flee the attack with a girl, whom she later named Tiion. Denn Solo fled with the other child, a boy, but was never heard from again. When Tira returned to Corellia, her father wiped out all memories of Denn, to make it easier on his daughter. (TPS)

Gama System
this planetary system is home to the Gama-Senn race, which bowed to the reborn Emperor Palpatine after seeing the destructive capability of the Galaxy Gun. (EE)

Gama-Senn
a race of humanoids that inhabits the Gama System. They voluntarily submitted to the reborn Emperor Palpatine, following the demonstrations of the power of the Galaxy Gun. They withheld their allegiance until the Gun was fired, so that they could determine which side of the war to align with. (EE)

Gamb, Tord
this man, a native of Port Evokk, was known as a conman and sam artist during the early years of the New Republic. He later managed to steal information on the Republic's defense net around Asmall, and was wanted by the authorities. (WBC)

Game, The
this gambler's paradise is located on the planet Sorotarr VI. (GG9)

Game Chambers of Questal
this is a collection of puzzle-filled rooms maintained by Moff Bandor on Questal, during the Galactic Civil War. The chambers included a space simulator, a laser maze, a pit of winds, a quarry, and the chamber which housed the hurlothrumbic generator. The various rooms were connected with tunnels which vibrated like earthquakes and were strewn with motion-activated lasers. Populating the chambers and tunnels are the various creatures and outlaws captured on Questal by the use of the generator. These denizens are kept angry by the generator, so that Bandor can toy with new prisoners by placing them in the chambers and giving them the chance to survive. Other mercenaries and soldiers are employed by Bandor, and patrol the chambers with special helmets that block the waves of the generator. A group of Alliance agents, searching for Tiree, managed to successfully negotiate the chambers and destroy the generator. (GCQ)

Gameboard
any gaming table with the capability to project holographic images into its surface, such as a holochess table. (SW)

Gamefinders
this caste of Bosph was made up of those individuals which excelled at hunting the wild umuls and favria. (SWJ13)

Gamer
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War, it was one of the groups that tried to assassinate then-Vice Admiral Thrawn when he arrived at the new NL-1 station. (TIE)

Games, The
this series of military battles is staged among the warrior caste of Rabaanite society. The Games provide a way for warriors to test their skills against other warriors, while weeding out the weaker opponents in search of the planet's champion. The strongest and most capable warrior is named the planet's champion, and is sent to the Combat Moon whenever a dispute arises between Rabaan and S'krrr. (SWJ9)

Gamgalon
a Krish crimelord who controlled the Morodin-hunting safari business on the planet Varont. He got much of his funding from Jabba the Hutt, although he hated the fact that he had to work for Jabba. After Jabba's death, Gamgalon reclaimed his independence. His business on Varonat was actually a front for his harvesting of Yagaran aleudrupe plants, and was highly illegal because Morodin were sentient creatures. He paid off the local Imperial Moff to maintain his lucrative business, which involved fertilizing the aleudrope plants with Morodin slime. This caused them to become a form of catalyst that could create blaster fuel that was even better than spin-sealed tibanna gas. When Talon Kaarde discovered the operation, Gamgalon nearly eliminated the smuggler. However, in a standoff that resulted in the death of Quelev Tapper, Mara Jade - also known as Celina Marniss - killed Gamgalon before he could execute Kaarde. (SWJ1, EGC, TFE)

Gaminne Group, Incorporated
a mining conglomerate operated almost exclusively within the Lan System. Gaminne took control of the system some 1,300 years before the Galactic Civil War, shortly after the system was discovered by Old Republic scouts. GCGI bought the mining rights to the system from the native Qieg, and negotiated the establishment of a human settlement. GGI's management of the system was even-handed, and eventually the human and Qieg societyies became intertwined. In the millennia since its establishment, GGI itself was dissolved, but the mining operations in the Lan System continued throughout the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ1)

Gamma*-class Assault Shuttle
heavily armored fighters with a good deal of armament, these ships often required a droid to perform navigation. Manufactured by Telgorn Corporation for the Empire, these 30-meter ships were amon the heaviest-shielded craft in the fleet. They were used to shuttle zero-G troops into battle, and were equally capable in an atmosphere, deep space, or hyperspace.
Each Gamma-class shuttle boasted the following shipboard components:
- 4 Taim & Bak KT6 Heavy Blaster Cannons
- Nordoxicon Wavefront-active Tractor Beam projector

- Telgorn Twin-tandem flight computers
- Kel-Mar Steady State power coupler
- Fabritech UL.2 power modulator
- Telgorn IA/4 Fusial Thrust reactors
- Novaldex Deflector Shield generator
- Concussion missile launcher

Gamma Flux Broiler
this device is used to prepare food. (CSWEA)

Gamma-9104
this was the designation of Voort saBinring, while he was a test subject under the control of Tuzin Gast. (SOC)

Gammalin
Fonterrat stopped at this planet, shortly after recovering the Emperor's Plague from its Imperial storehouse. He unknowingly released the plague, for Nolaa Tarkona had booby-trapped her payment with a small sample of the plague. When he opened the container after landing on Gammalin, the plague was unleashed as he passed tainted credits to the human population. Tarkona used the trap as a way of proving the plague's effectiveness. The humans, after realizing what Fonterrat had done, threw him in jail. He languished there and eventually died when his human captors succombed to the plague. (TEP)

Gammer
this term of endearment was used on Brentaal to describe one's grandmother. (IDC)

Gamor Run
a legendary smuggling run that has been overrun by pirates and hijackers. (DE1)

Gamorr
this planet is the homeworld of the Gamorreans. It has a varied but temperate climate and ecology. The planet's poles are covered with frozen tundra, while the equator is covered with deep forests and jungles. The average day on Gamorr lasts 28 standard hours, and its year lasts 380 local days. There are very few large settlements on the planet, and the largest are controlled and populated by entire clans of powerful females. (SWSB, COJ)

Gamorrean
a race of large, green, pig-like aliens from the planet Gamorr, their history is a violent and bloody one. The female Gamorreans handle all of the necessary productive work while the males wage annual wars during the combat season. It is for this reason that the Gamorrean society is matriarchal. Gamorrean genealogy is the science of a select group of females who memorize songs and sotries that contain the complex history of each family. The six-breasted females often take a senior as well as a junior husband. They only used primitive weapons during the combat season, saving their more advanced weapons for off-planet use. The males are broken up into four castes: the warlord (the most powerful male of his clan, usually married to the matriarch), the clan boar (any other married male that make up the clan's military leaders), the tuskers (unmarried males who have hired into a clan as warriors), and the veterans (old, retired males who have more often than not been injured and can no longer fight). Gamorreans also have a deep-seated hatred of droids. Their normal body temperature is 105 degrees. The planet Gamorr was eventually discovered by human traders, who were able to force the Gamorreans into submission through a series of 'negotiations,' and took the Gamorreans with them as slaves, body guards, soldiers, and bounty hunters. Jabba the Hutt employed a number of Gamorreans in his army. (ROTJ, SWSB, COJ, SWJ10)

Gamorrean Hard Case
this song, written and played by the band Deeply Religious, was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Deeply Religious. (GG9)

Gamorrean Interstellar

Gan Jan Rue's Traveling Menagerie
Bollux once worked for this entertainment troupe as a general roustabout. (HSE)

Ganar Tos
this ancient Zisian served as Teroenza's majordomo at Colony One, on Ylesia. In his old age, Ganar Tos' eyes were rheumy and his skin was wrinkled and hung in loose flaps. When Bria Tharen began working as Teroenza's museum cataloguer, Ganar Tos took a liking to her. He asked for, and received, Teroenza's permission to marry her. She balked, but tried to maintain her demeanor as a pilgrim and worker. When she escaped with Han Solo, Ganar Tos was heartbroken. Throughout the next decade, Tos remained with Teroenza, and was one of the few members of the entire operation to survive the Battle of Ylesia. (TPS, RD)

Ganath
primary planet in the Ganath System, an undiscovered section of the galaxy that is cut off from the space near Nar Shaddaa by a huge cloud of interstellar gas. Like the rest of the system, Ganath has lagged behind the rest of the galaxy in terms of its technology. They are limited space travel capabilities, and have not yet developed a hyperdrive. Han Solo and Princess Leia stumble onto the Ganath System while trying to escape from Boba Fett on Nar Shaddaa. (DE2)

Gand
1) a species of sentient life that has developed in the gases of the planet Gand. Able to survive in the various gases, they require special breathing apparatus in order to survive in oxygen-based atmospheres. The lungs of the Gand are quite efficient, able to utilize nearly 85 percent of the atmosphere they breathe in with each breath. The Gand have developed a totalitarian monarchy, and various colonies of Gand live in pockets of mist in the gas giant's atmosphere. When renegade Gand are sought, findsmen are sent out to locate them. When the Empire overran the planet, the findsmen were presented with advanced technology with which to hunt their targets. The better findsmen became bounty hunters. The Gand hold their names in great reverence. A Gand who has accomplished nothing in his life is simply known as "Gand." When a Gand completes a task, they are given their family's surname. A further accomplishment provides the Gand with a proper name. Pronouns are almost never used, and are reserved for those famous Gand who have accomplished so much that their deeds are known by all. If a Gand does something to be ashamed of, or causes offense to another Gand, their name is reduced. It was discovered, after the Galactic Civil War, that the Gand have certain regenerative properties. (MTS, XWN, WG, AE)
2) the planet Gand is a gaseous planet overrun by the Empire. It is home to the race of gas-breathers also called Gand. The Empire brought in sophisticated sensory equipment, all but relegating the abilities of the findsmen to the arcane. (MTS, TBH)

Gandalla

Gandalom City
this large, urban area was located on the planet Corvanni IV, and was the home to many hi-tech businesses. (GG10)

Gandalom Paramedicinals, Incorporated
this pharmaceutical research and development company was based on the planet Corvanni IV. (GG10)

Gandder's Spin
this starfighter maneuver involves the pilot of a fighter shunting all power to one set of engines - port or starboard - and applying full braking power to the opposite side vents. After a short period (about four seconds), brke power is cut to zero and thrust is cut in half and spread across all engines. The result is that the fighter spins wildly for a few seconds around its center of mass before shooting off on a new trajectory when the spin is stopped. Often, the maneuver is used as cover for a group of proton torpedoes fired at a target just before the spin begins. (SOP)

Gandeal
this planet served as a partner planet to the military world of Fondor. Many of the raw materials needed by the Fondor shipyards were obtained on Gandeal. (SWAJ)

Gandeal-Fondor Hyperlane
this hyperspace route was established by the Empire, in order to more efficiently move starships from Fondor to Coruscant. After the Empire abandoned its facilities at Fondor, the route was rarely used because it was unknown to most independent spacers and corporations. (JE)

Gandle Ott
this planet was site of one of the first settlements in the Kathol Sector. It was a mild planet, with a temperate atmosphere which could sustain most humanoid life. (KO)

Gandolo IV
a barren moon located in the Outer Rim Territories, it was selected as a settlement by a group of Wookiees fleeing Imperial slavery. Among the Wookiees was Chewbacca, who was helpin the Wookiees relocate to the planet. Before they could establish a community, they were discovered by the bounty hunter Bossk, who were being paid by the local Imperial governor. When the Empire tried to overtake the moon, Han Solo landed the Millennium Falcon on top of their troop ship, killing all aboard and stranding the others. (MTS)

Gandorthral Atmospherics
this corporation produced a variety of devices which enabled a user to breath in hostile environments. (ROE)

Gandril
this Imperial Moff was in charge of several worlds in the Colonies during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Gandril was the man who decided Earnst Kamiel's fate, ordering his execution on the planet Haldeen. In a symbolic gesture, Gandril chose the members of the firing squadron by selecting a shooter from each of the systems in which Kamiel had the death sentence on his head. All 54 systems were represented. (SWJ8)

Gandrossi VI
this planet, located in Perinn Sector, was controlled by Imperial Governor Desh during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Gandrun II
this planet is covered with a vast desert wasteland. (GG2)

Ganeed
this female Senali was Meenon's sister, and a member of the Banoosh-Walore clan. (SP)

Ganeid IV
this temperate, low-gravity world was the primary planet in the Ganeid System. (TBSB)

Ganessa
a fruit which is harvested and processed for its juice. (TJP)

Ganig
an Imperial Captain who gained fame in the Battle of Sagma. The ISB suspected him of sympathizing with the Alliance, and he was sacrificed at Picutorion by Drost and Bevven. (ISB)

Ganis
this Hutt was a rival of Nawnum during the Galactic Civil War. When Ganis learned that Nawnum had tried to assassinate him and take over his empire, Ganis placed a bounty on Nawnum's head and set out to ruin the other Hutt. (IA)

Ganis Shipping
this semi-legitimate transport agency was founded by Ganis the Hutt. (IA)

Ganjuko
native to a number of planets in the Filve Sector, this huge beast is similar in many respects to the bantha. Both are large beasts, with the average ganjuko standing more than three meters tall at the shoulder and measuring five meters in length. The body of the ganjuko is covered with w thick pelt of fur. However, where the bantha is known as an easily-domesticated beast of burden, the ganjuko is an easily-angered predator capable of killing any other creature it encounters. Their relatively small heads are nearly bald, and rangin in color from red to orange. Their mouths are formed by a sharp beak, which they use to attack their prey. Their fur, coupled with layers of fat beneath the skin, provide excellent heat-retention in cold climates, making the ganjuko a sluggish and weak creature in areas where the temperature rises above the freezing point. They are long-lived creatures, reaching the age of 110 standard years, but produce just four to eight offspring during this time. They were hunted as trophies, but more often than not the "trophies" were taken by the ganjuko themselves. (COG)

Gank Killers
an alien race used as body guards by many Hutt crimelords. They have square, yellow faces with permanat snarls, cruel beady eyes, and massive, muscled bodies. They also wear highly-mechanized body armor. (ESBN, DE1, DE2, GOF1)

Gank Massacres
a devastating war which took place hundreds of years before the Jedi Assembly on Deneba, it was alluded to by Shatoyo. It involved a struggle between the Light and Dark Sides of the Force. (DLS)

Ganlihk
this planet was the primary world in the Ganlihk System. (COG)

Gann
1) this Imperial Grand Moff controlled Sector 5 during the years leading up to the Yevethan Purge. He was nominally in charge, although Warlord Foga Brill held the real power. (SOL)
2) this man was a member of Nevo's gang. Nevo sent Gann to follow Boba Fett on Star Station 12, but Gann quickly lost site of the bounty hunter. Fett doubled back on Gann and captured him, the forced Gann to explain why Darth Vader was after him. Fett quietly executed Gann, to ensure that he would not be followed. (EOE)
3) this man was a native of the planet Ferro, although he migrated to Zonama Sekot some sixty years before the Battle of Naboo. He became the planet's unofficial spokesman and greeter, meeting with those beings who traveled to Zonama Sekot to obtain a Sekotan starship. In all aspects, Gann remained a Ferroan: reclusive and distrustful of strangers. (RP)

Ganner
this Imperial Lieutenant served the Imperial Interim Ruling Council, although he was loyal to Xandel Carivus. Carivus assigned Ganner to investigate the deaths of Burr Nolyds and Admiral Banjeer. Ganner discovered that the weapons used to kill both men were marked with a symbol used by Kir Kanos, during his tenure at the training facility on Yinchorr. (CE2)

Ganno Juice
this thick, black, syrupy juice was favored by the Jawas, but its bitter taste was hated by most other races. (E1A6)

Gansett Zoo
this menagerie is famous for its intergalactic reptile house. (TMEC)

Gant
this lieutenant served Dolph, as the failed Jedi made a bid for power under the name of Kuellar. When Dolph's major domo, Yanne, failed to impress Dolph, Dolph began grooming Gant to be his successor. (TNR)

Gant, Trenn
this Colonel in the New Republic Intelligence agency investigated the capture of Han Solo's shuttle, Tampion, when he was en route to the Fifth Battle Group in the Koornacht Cluster. He interviewed Plat Mallar to try and ascertain what really happened to allow Solo's capture on what was supposed to be a secret flight. (TT)

Gant Wanar
this starship was the primary vessel in the fleet maintained by the HY'thor Pirates. (AIR)

Ganterville
one of the suburbs of Umgul City. (JASB)

Ganthel
the Imperial governor Graqndon Holleck retired to this world. (SWAJ)

Gantho
this planet is the primary world in the Gantho System, where the Loronar Corporation stripped many planets of their natural resources, without the legal consent of the New Republic. (POT)

Gantlo
this man worked for the owner of the Sand Bar during the early years of the New Order. When the owner fled in fear for his life - the reason Gantlo came to The Puddle in the first place - Gantlo took over as owner and operator of the tavern. (HAS)

Ganton Mountain
this mountain was the highest peak in a range of mountains located on the planet Shalm. The Empire established a garrison base on its western face, but abandoned it after the Battle of Endor. The militant group Pendarran's Revenge took over the garrison to use as their base of operations. (WBC)

Gantonnerre System
this star system was the last known location of the bounty hunter Tyrn Jiton. (WBC)

Gantoris
a descendant of the original colonists on Eol Sha, Gantoris was said to be sensitive to impending earthquakes, and was used by the colony to predict them. When an avalanche occurred during his childhood, many of the children and adults with him were killed while he remained safe from harm. Gantoris was later elected the leader of the colonists on Eol Sha. He was sought out by Luke Skywalker as a potential Jedi for his remarkable past. Gantoris tested Luke's motives and found them truthful, and agreed to go with Luke to Yavin 4 for training as a Jedi Knight. He was often at odds with Corran Horn, who was studying the Force under the alias of Kieran Halcyon. While there, Gantoris was approached by the spirit of Exar Kun. Kun showed Gantoris how to construct a lightsaber well ahead of the training Luke was providing, and also goaded Gantoris by telling him that there was more to learn the Luke's Light-Side prattle. Gantoris resisted Kun's mental grip, and was killed by Kun's spirit. (JS, DA, IJ)

Ganzka
this was one of the four main continents found on the planet Veron. (PG1)

Gaor Tembon
this male Sullustan was an infamous smuggler who plied the Borderlands Regions during the early years of the New Republic. It was said that there was no cargo he wouldn't carry, and worked for other criminals as well as the Empire on occasion. He operated from a base in the Nexer System, and traveled in his modified Nestt-class freighter, the Miv'rah Firestorm. (WBC)

Gap Nine
this swampy-covered world was the homeworld of a reptilian alien species. It also was the site of an Imperial fuel-ore processing station during the Galactic Civil War. At one time, an evil race built great temples on Gap Nine, but the aliens were defeated by the Jedi Knights. The Jedi later used the temples to store information, which was stolen by the Imperials occupying the planet. (SWAJ)

Gap's Grill
a business in Mos Eisley. (TME)

Gaph
this male Ryn was part of the group, led by Melisma, who was searching for Droma during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Gaph and Melisma, along with Droma's nephew and another Ryn, were rescued from Gyndine but stranded on Ruan when there was no other place to relocate refugees. The Ryn were approached by two men, known simply as Tall and Short, who wanted to secure their services are forgers in order to create seemingly official documents which would allow high-paying refugees to obtain passage off Ruan. Gaph used his skills at line drawing, which R'vanna used his calligraphy skills, to create the document. In return, the Ryn were to be transported to Abregado-rae. Although the Ryn made it off Ruan, they missed Droma and Han Solo, who arrived shortly after their departure and were arrested for the forgeries. Unfortunately for Gaph and the Ryn, they were stranded on Fondor by the crew of the Trevee. (JE)

Gar
1) this Imperial Lieutenant served under Sil Sorannan as part of the Black Sword Command. He was one of the 513 survivors of the Yevethan takeover, shortly after the Battle of Endor, and was imprisoned on Pa'aal. He worked with Sorannan to plot their eventual escape from Yevethan control, and was one of the primary officers Sorannan took with him when the Imperials captured the Pride of Yevetha and fled back to the Deep Core. (TT)
2) this Talz was a huge, adult male who discovered a way to make friends with the Imperials that occupied Alzoc III. He received special favors in return for keeping newly-enslaved Talz in line. (GMS)
3) this Gamorrean worked as a bodyguard for Slythor the Squib, on Korad, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (OE)

Garagon
this huge, two-headed reptile lived in the forested jungles of Koda's World, protecting the ancient temple of the Tempestro.At nearly twenty meters in length, the reptile resembled a wingless dragon. When aroused, the garagon would bring one head up from hiding to survey the situation. If needed, it would raise up its second head to attack more than one opponent. Each head, set upon a thick, sinuous neck, was capable to belching fire at an enemy. The garagon could also attack with its heavy claws and sharp teeth. (GG8)

Garaint, Noval
this bounty hunter gained notoriety in the Outer RIm Territories while delivering slaves to Horch of Kheedar. During one such delivery, the Empire invaded Kheedar. Seeing a chance to gain more power, Garaint freed the slaves and took control of Horch's castle. He deftly avoided the Empire, and managed to quickly take control of Horch's empire. He left Horch to be nothing more than a sotted, inebriated figurehead. Garaint is never seen in public without the protection of a suit of Krail 210 personal battle armor. (GG9)

Garalalesh
the Ergeshui swamp skimmer, this creature swims along the surface of the water with its mouth open. This tactic allows the garalalesh to ingest prey with a minimum of effort. They can grow to three meters in length. (PG2)

Garan
this manufacturing city, found on the planet Garos IV, is located about forty kilometers southeast of Ariana. (SWAJ)

Garath
this creature lives in the trees of the planet Yelsain. They were forced into contact with the humans who settled the planet, and fought to maintain their homes. The skirmishes between them became popularized by holo-vids produced on Adarlon. (GG6)

Garbage Pit Racing
this illegal sport sprang up on Coruscant during the decades leading up to the Battle of Naboo and the election of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. The object of the race was to fly through the extremely dangerous garbage pits of Coruscant using specially-designed race wings, avoiding the expelled waste canisters and layers of shielding in an effort to reach the lowest levels. There, racers had to skim the surface of the silicone slurry and obtain a scale from a garbage worm, and then fly back up through the innards of the garbage pits where they finished the race by presenting the scale to the Greeter. Race champions were determined by overall times, as well as their ability to produce scales from larger, deadlier worms. (RP)

Garbage Pits
these huge, open pits were located all over the planet Coruscant, and were two ways in order to eliminate the more than a trillion tons of refuse produced on the planet each day. Most organic materials - food scraps, paper, light metals, and plastics - were actually consumed deep within the pits by garbage worms. Materials which were too toxic to incinerate were placed inside sealed containers and scheduled for transport. The energy from plasma generators was used to power an acceleration field which was used to fire the containers into low orbit. Traffic throughout the planet's cityscape was re-routed around the pits, so that the speeding containers didn't inadvertently destroy a taxi of liner. The containers in low orbit were collected by specialized tugs, and moved to one of Coruscant's moons for more permanent storage. The pits themselves were protected from unwanted intrusion by a series of shields and energy barriers. (RP)

Garbage Snipe
native to the planet Glottal, this bird-like creature is consumed by the Glottalphibs. (TNR)

Garbage Worm
these genetically manufactured creatures were vital to the elimination of waste on Coruscant. It was known that they were based on a number of species of long worms from various other planets, but had been greatly altered by Coruscant's engineers over a period of several hundred years. They lived deep within the garbage pits of the city-planet, wallowing in silicone-filled pools. As waste from the city was dumped into the pits, it was pulverized and mixed into the silicone slurry. The worms then ate anything that they could. They converted much of the waste into small pellets which could be used as fuels or stored. The rest was digested and eliminated as methane, carbon dioxide, and organic wastes. Anything they couldn't eat - heavy metals, primarily - were expelled and sank to the bottom of the garbage pits, where they were collected and sorted by garbage droids. These worms were covered with shiny, iridescent scales of a milky white color. Rumor had it that a garbage worm could eat an entire hyperdrive core and survive ... for a few seconds. The largest worms grew to lengths well over 100 meters, and were nearly four meters in diameter. (RP)

Garban
a planet located in the Tau Sakar System, it is the homeworld of the Jenet race. It was overtaken by the Empire, and the Jenet were forced to work as slaves in the mines. The planet has a temperate climate, with a 17-degree axial tilt that made seasonal changes obvious. (GG4)

Garble
an Alliance container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Garch
this New Republic Naval Captain served the Fleet Office, and was its liaison to the fleet under Pakkpekatt that was sent to intercept the Teljkon vagabond. He was stationed on the Glorious during this time. (SOL)

Gardaji Rift
this area of the galaxy was located on the outer edge of the Tingel Arm, on the very edge of the known galaxy. (RP)

Garden Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was dedicated to cultivating the most beautiful plants found on the planet. (FFT)

Gardens of Talla
a park overlooking the ancient Jedi library on Ossus. (TSW)

Gardulla
this Hutt was known by most of her kind as a female, and was one of Jabba the Hutt's closest friends. There were also rumors of a romance, as Gardulla was often Jabba's guest at his Tatooine townhome. Gardulla owned many slaves, and was at one time the owner of Shmi and Anakin Skywalker. However, she lost them in a bet with the Toydarian junk dealer, Watto, six years before Watto lost Anakin to Qui-Gon Jinn in a similar wager. She offered to buy Anakin back from Watto, after the youth won the Boonta Eve Classic podrace, but Watto was unable to secure Anakin before Qui-Gon whisked him away to Coruscant. Many knew that Gardulla maintained a large, underground pleasure garden, complete with ponds and plantlife and streams. She paid Sebulba to acquire a group of Ghostling children to serve as living statues in the gardens, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. She also planned to import creatures to hunt the Ghostlings, as part of a cruel, living ecosystem. Unfortunately, her plans were thwarted by Anakin and his friends. Aurra Sing later revealed that she had been hired by Gardulla to upset the plans of Jabba, in an effort to overthrow his control of Tatooine and calim it for herself. Note that the comic adaptation of The Phantom Menace indicates that Gardulla was a male Hutt. (SW1, QGJ, TPMC, E1A5, SWO)

Gardulla the Younger
this Hutt was part of the group which formed the leadership of Nal Hutta during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Although Gardulla the Younger didn't wholly agree with Borga's plans to form an alliance, he realized that the plan was not without merit, and suggested selling information on the Vong's invasion plans to the New Republic. (JE)

Garen IV
Stevan Makintay was shipped of to this Imperial penal colony by his father, the Imperial Governor of Hargeeva, after Mak proposed marriage to Ketrian Altronel. (SWJ8)

Gareth
this King of the planet Shalamite tried to cheat Han Solo at a game of Laro, during the King's visit to the New Republic capital of Coruscant. Solo discovered that Gareth was cheated, and got revenge by cheating "better." (TBH)

Garfin
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Garginoolaara
this Verpine, known as Gargi to his friends, grew up like any other Verpine in the Roche Asteroid Belt. However, his natural inquisitiveness and inventiveness led him to tinker more than his peers. Many of his modifications were deemed too dangerous, even for the Verpine themselves, and he was cast out by his hive. He wandered the galaxy until he met Fiz Cor'gril, who recognized his abilities and hired him to work in his starship dealership. He keeps Fizzi's merchandise in top condition, and sometimes a little better than that. (SWJ9)

Gargolyn IV
this planet is the homeworld of the Cor race. It is known to be a garden paradise that is lush with animal life and vegetation. The planet was scouted by Karflo Corporation as the site of a new manufacturing facility, but the scout team discovered that the land of the Cors was guarded by a huge beast that utterly destroyed any settlement Karflo initiated. (GMS)

Gargon
1) a planet held by gangsters, infiltrated by Han Solo and Chewbacca. They received a double payment for stealing a hoard of spice stored there. It was also the home base of Grand Admiral Grunger in the years prior to and following the death of Emperor Palpatine. Much of the galaxy's phobium is also mined there. (ROTJN, GDV)
2) this old recluse faked his own death shortly after he single-handedly terraformed a world for himself to live on. He faked his death because he didn't want his vast wealth and riches split up among his credit-hungry relatives. His false will demanded that all his living heirs had to spend a full night in his mansion, which he had elaborately rigged up to provide scares and traps. This way, he could see which of his heirs was most worthy, and could listen in on their discussions about him. He used his background in the theater to portray his own butler, Jeeves, who had actually passed away several years before. (GMS)

Gargon
an Alliance transport destroyed in the Bruanii Sector following the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Garham's-on-the-Downstream this was a brewtap located in the city of Cartann, on the planet Adumar. Wedge Antilles and Red Flight visited the bar during their diplomatic stay on the planet. (SOA)

Garhoon
this is a vampiric race of sentients. At one time, Bail Organa presided over an emotional court case between the Garhoons and their prey. The prey eventually returned to the Garhoons, much to Leia Organa's dismay. (POT)

Garimor Street
this avenue was located on the planet Andasala. (GG11)

Garin
this man was an associate of Sharalon and Drixar, during their periods of assignment on the planet Bothawui, shortly before the Battle of Endor. Ostensibly, Garin was an accountant and computer databank administrator, but he was also a part of the Bothan Spy Network. (SESB)

Garindan
the Kubaz spy, working for the Empire, who led the stormtroopers to Obi-Wan and Luke in Mos Eisley. Also known as "Long Snoot," Garindan was so well-known that the Imperial detachment on Tatooine sought him out for his ability to deliver information. Garindan also was known to dislike Jabba the Hutt, and was often found delivering false information about the crimelord in an effort to foil Jabba's plans. Much of his information regarding Jabba came from the Devaronian Labria. (SWR, SCRE, MTS)

Garish Ridge
this location on the planet Redcap served as the base of the Juteau Settlement. (SWAJ)

Garland
this New Republic warship was destroyed at the Battle of N'zoth. (TT)

Garlostar
manufacturers of cold-weather, heat-absorbing tents used by snowtroopers. (SWSB)

Garn
this planet was described to Luke Skywalker by a vision of Obi-Wan Kenobi. He later intercepted a transmission which mentioned the planet. Note that Classic Star Wars: Devilworlds indicates that Luke received this transmission while practising with his lightsaber aboard his X-Wing! Luke travelled to Garn, which was a desolate world of craggy rocks and dead trees shrouded in a thick yellow fog, and discovered a trove of ancient Jedi armor. The planet was barren because, several millennia before the Battle of Yavin, it was laid to waste by the Jedi Knights, who strove to eliminate the Order of the Terrible Glare. He also discovered the Portal Desolate and the soul-snares used to trap the life energy of ancient Jedi. He managed to destroy the portal and free the energies. (CSWDW)

Garn, Olin
this darkskinned man was a freelance freighter pilot who often contracted work with Twin Suns Transport Services. During his service to Twin Suns, he became emotionally involved with Aeron Azzameen. However, he own ideals led him to break off his contract with Twin Suns and join the Alliance as a pilot. The Azzameen family continued to maintain their relationship with Olin, considering him an adopted member of the family. (XWA)

Garn, Ril
this Imperial Army Lieutenant was in command of the garrison on Yetnis, during the initial stages of Operation Rebel Hunt. He was known as a by-the-books officer who could bend the rules to get what he needed. (HAS)

Garnant
a species of small, hard-working, purple insects native to Yavin 4. They communed with each other through vibration and scent. (DTO)

Garnet, Roark
a self-proclaimed galactic entrepreneur and adventurer, Roark was the captain of the Dorion Discus. His parents more or less disowned him after he took up smuggling, and he struggled for many years to break even under the oppression of the Empire. (RPG, SWJ1)

Garnib
this planet, the primary world in the Garnib System, is the homeworld of the Balinaka, considered by many to be among of the galaxy's most artistic beings. They enjoy a life of love and expression. The native race, the Balinaka, were subjugated by the Empire, but put up no resistance or complaint. They paid their taxes and were only marginally garrisoned. The planet's day lasts 35 standard hours, and its year lasts 432 local days. It is a cold world, covered in frigid oceans and glaciers. Despite its bleak appearance, Garnib had a certain stark brutality which made it beautiful. (PG1)

Garnib Crystal Corporation known on Garnib as the GCC, this was the primary source of Garnib crystals for the galaxy. Note that this is referred to as Galactic Crystal Creations in Planets of the Galaxy, Volume One. (GMS, PG1)

Garnib Crystals
valuable gemstones found on the planet Garnib, Garnib crystals were rumored to have addictive properties. The original crystals were formed when Vornest Dep-thesel Digarsarg incorporated colored pumice and small gemstone fragments into ice sculptures. The ice sculpture shone with brilliant flashes of light refracting through the colored pumice and gemstones. Over the years, the creation of these crystals has become its own form of art, with craftsbeings working each and every crystal into an individual work of art. These crystals are not mass-produced, and each one is different. What makes them addictive is the swirling patterns of light thrown off when they encounter sunlight. Many beings have been known to sit in from of them for hours, simply watching the display change as the sun shifted position. Most physicians point out that the addiction is really just a short-term overstimulation of the optic nerve, but that certain beings can become psychologically dependent upon the light. (PG1)

Garnoo
a Neti Jedi Master, Garnoo was Oss Willum's first teacher. (DLS)

Garnu Hral Eschen
this Drovian - and his entire family - were killed by Gopso'o tribal warriors during their generations-old feud. (POT)

Garon Nas Tal
this Saurin comabt expert was hired by Jabba the Hutt to train his Gamorrean guards. He quickly came to regret the decision to work for Jabba, because he hated the Hutt nad his henchmen. Like many of Jabba's employees, he was plotting to kill the Hutt shortly before Leia Organa did the job for him. (CCG7)

Garonnin, Lord
one of the Senex Lords who followed Roganda Ismaren to Belsavis, hoping to ride her coattails and recover the Eye of Palpatine. He was killed on Belsavis when Irek Ismaren cleaved him in half with a lightsaber. (COJ)

Garonnin
one of the ancient ruling houses in the Senex Sector, they have run a marginally-safe, asteroid strip-mining operation in the Outer Rim Territories for a long time. (COJ)

Garoo
this was a term used by the Dantari to describe a member of their group who was something of a cross between a holy man and magician. The garoo is believed to be able to speak with the spirits, and commanded great respect from his tribe. The garoo was the nomial leader of his tribe, but was supported by five or six tribal elders in making decisions. (GOF11)

Garool
this creature is the Ergeshui muckworm, which inhabits the swamps of the planet. The garool fasten themselves onto the bodies of creatures that pass through the swamp. Using their sharp teeth, the latch on and open a small wound. Through this wound, the garool sucks out the victim's bodily fluids. (PG2)

Garoos
this alien race is easily distinguished by the purple-tinged gillis flaps they use to breathe. Note that Specter of the Past also spells this as Garoosh. (SOP)

Garos IV
this thickly-forested world was settled by human colonists some 4,000 years ago. The inhabitants became self-sufficient due to Garos IV's rich farmlands. A brisk trade developed between the Garosians and their neighbors, the Sundars, who were part of the colonization effort. The Sundars developed technology, and the two worlds complimented each other. However, the Sundars have recently begun to migrate to Garos IV, settling in the valleys and establishing factories and industrial centers. This emigration began about 200 years before the Galactic Civil War, and raised the ire of the agricultural Garosians. When a Garosian grain facility was destroyed, the resentment among the two neighbors bubbled over, and a civil war was started. It lasted 82 years until a truce was signed. The truce was regularly violated until the Empire took control of the Garos System. The Garosians became strong supporters of the Alliance, and held onto their beliefs until the New Republic took control. Once the rest of the galaxy came to realize that the University of Garos was a top-notch school, more beings began traveling to Garos IV to attend classes there. An economic boom followed, as the students created a need for virtually every service. The planet had two moons, and was located spinward of the Nyarikan Nebula. The average day on Garos IV lasted 25 standard hours, and its year encompassed 382 local days. (SWJ1, SWJ12, DTR)

Garoush
a wealthy Rodian who frequents Issarga's space station. (RPG)

Garowyn
one of the Nightsisters accompanying Vonnda Ra when she seduced Dathomirian witches to join the Shadow Academy. She was a powerfully-built, petite woman with long, brown hair. She earned the rank of Captain among Brakiss' Second Imperium troops. She took control of Luke Skywalker and Tenel Ka, and transported them to the Shadow Academy. Luke feigned limited knowledge of the Force to lull her into a false sense of security, then used the Force to physically fling her into an escape pod on the Shadow Chaser and set her adrift in space. She returned to the Shadow Academy, and later helped Tamith Kai kidnap Zekk. When Brakiss launched his attack on the factories of Kashyyyk, Garowyn submitted to Zekk's leadership in order to gain an opportunity to recover the Shadow Chaser. She nearly succeeded, but was thwarted when she discovered the ship had been damaged in an ion storm. In a struggle with Chewbacca and Jaina Solo, Garowyn lost her footing in a tall wroshyr tree and plummeted to her death. (SA, LO, K)

Garqi
this unimportant Outer Rim world was under the control of the Empire for many years after the Battle of Endor. It was an agricultural world that longed for its freedom. Because of the natural elements found in the planet's crust, the native plant life took on a purple coloration, giving the planet a violet appearance from space. Corran Horn traveled to Garqi to escape Imperial entanglements after he left the Corellian Security Force, and was known to the students of Garqi Ag University through his droid, Whistler, who went by the handle of Xeno. He worked undercover as an assistant the Imperial prefect Mosh Barris, and helped a number of political prisoners escape from the planet. Among the prisoners was Dynba Tesc and the the Duros trader, Lai Nootka. After the Yuuzhan Vong took control of Destrillion and Dubrillion, they started working their way toward the Core. Along their initial route was Garqi, and the planet was unprepared to put up any resistance. The Vong began reforming the planet as a breeding ground for Chazrach warriors. (TFE, KT, DTR)

Garqi Agricultural Combine
this was the primary supplier of foodstuffs grown on the planet Garqi, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (SFT)

Garqi Agricultural University
this was the primary establishment of higher learning, found near Pesktda, on the planet Garqi. It was the source of much of the resistance to the Imperial presence on the planet. (TFE)

Garqi Eagles
this was the squadron name used by the Imperial pilots that were garrisoned on Garqi shortly after the Battle of Endor. (TFE)

Garr Suppoon
this intergalactic criminal was widely feared and respected as a negotiator. Jabba the Hutt once locked up with him, and tried to put out a contract on Suppoon in order to eliminate his abilities. (JTH)

Garral
bipedal predators of the Wayland forests, garrals were used by the Empire to help guard Mount Tantiss. They are attracted by the sounds of a repulsorlift, and most ultrasonic emissions will send them into a killing frenzy. Their native world was unknown, although it was later discovered that they were biologically engineered by the Imperial scientist Luthos Garral by crossing a Mantessan panthac with several other creatures. A normal garral measures about two meters in length, has grey fur, and has a short tail topped with tufts of white fur. (DFR, TLC, TTSB)

Garral, Luthos
this Imperial scientist is credited with crossing a Mantessan panthac with several other vicious species to create the garrals. He designed them to be vigilant sentries and guards. (TTSB)

Garret, Xun
he was the overseer of Tyed Kant. He was an honest man, who would not be bribed or swayed by the various food producing ranches that hovered in the planet's clouds. (SN)

Garret
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer, the Garrett was dispatched to aid the Harpax in recovering the Protector fleet which defected under Admiral Harkov. Darth Vader commanded the ship. It was also used to transport prisoners in the Yllotat System. (TIE)

Garret's Gold
an alias for the Etherway that Aves uses to enter Bilbringi. (TLC)

Garris, Keil
the son of Venadar Garris, Keil Garris was also an alias used by Han Solo. As Keil, he helped Venadar - actually Garris Shrike - swindle wealthy Corellians out of their credits with a fake asteroid mining scam. Pavik Tharen eventually discovered that Han was really Keil, and this precipitated Han's flight from Corellia. (TPS)

Garris, Venadar
this alias was once used by Garris Shrike. Under the name of Venadar, he sold shares to wealthy Corellians in a fake duralloy asteroid mining operation. He also used Han Solo in the cam, claiming him to be his son, Keil. The scam was eventually uncovered, but not before Shrike made a tidy profit and went underground. (TPS)

Garris Socket
this is the standard interface on the rear end of a starship negative flow coupler. It fits onto a three-pronged slot. (CFG)

Garrison Moon
this is the single moon that orbits the planet Kessel. The Empire established a garrison station there, which was later taken over by Moruth Doole. The moon has a normal day of 13 standard hours, and orbits Kessel's sun every 644 local days. (JS, COTF, JASB)

Garrmorl
this is a potent alcohol created by the Wookiees. (RD)

Garron
this Sullustan male worked with Vareth. After his parents were killed, he and Vareth took the insurance money and purchased the Startled Circuit. The two of them were recruited by Bib Fortuna to work as spacers for Jabba the Hutt. (GG7)

Garrthinius
this planet was a hotbed of rebellious activity at the time of the Battle of Endor. The Alliance tried to set up a cell network there, in order to overthrow the Imperial rulers of the planet. (TBSB)

Garsala
this is the fifth world in the Gorsh System, and is a volcanic wasteland. Like the other planets in the Gorsh System, Garsala is owned by the Genetech Corporation. It had two natutal satellites. (PG1)

Gart, Breth
an Agamarian who joined the Alliance at the same time Keyan Farlander did. Gart aspired to be a fighter pilot, but suffered from disorientation sickness early in his career. This kept him out of flight training on his first two attempts to join the ranks of the pilots. He persevered, though, and overcame this weakness the third time. He completed his training with satisfactory skills, but was killed early in the Galactic Civil War in an Alliance raid on Kalla VII. (XW)

Gartana
this is the fourth world in the Gorsh System, and is an oceanic world dotted with small islands. Like the other planets in the Gorsh System, Gartana is owned by the Genetech Corporation. The waters of the planet are poisonous to many species. Gartana had twelve moons. (PG1)

Garth
1) this was a Daan settlement once located in the northern half of Zehava city, shortly before the Eighteenth Battle of Zehva. The Melida invaded it during the early stages of the Nineteenth Battle, herding the Daan into camps and executing thousands. (DOD)
2) this male Senali was Ganeed's husband, and a member of the Banoosh-Walore clan. (SP)

Garthol's Pain
this was an expletive used whenever a being was surprised. (ROE)

Gartogg
one of the Gamorreans serving Jabba the Hutt just prior to the crimelord's death, Gartogg was dim-witted even for a Gamorrean. Many deaths went unnoticed by Gartogg, who was easily fooled into believing that the dead bodies were, in fact, asleep. Ree-Yees led Gartogg to believe that the deaths of Ak-Buz and Phlegmin were part of a grand plot by Ephant Mon, and nearly missed the true nature of the real plots brewing in the crimelord's palace. He stumbled into Dannik Jerriko, and discovered that Jerriko was an Anzat. Gartogg tried to tell Ortugg that Jerriko was behind the strange deaths, but Ortugg believed that Gartogg was just being thick-headed, as usual. Unfortunately, Gartogg was right: Jerriko was trying to consume Han Solo's soup, and was building up a plot to get him close to Solo. Gartogg carried the bodies of Phlegmin and a B'omarr monk around as evidence, until the bodies were putrified and partially mummified by the harsh Tatooine environment. Following the death of Jabba, Gartogg was often seen wandering around Mos Eisley with his two "friends" in tow. (TJP)

Garu-bear
a creature known for its tenacious protection of its offspring. (BP)

Garvan
a deity referenced by Rars Lekfen. He uses an expletive that deals with Garvan's knees. (SWSB)

Garve
this drifter is one of the few who survived a stint as the caretaker of the Imperial base on Jellyfish Cove. A loner and a soldier of fortune, the Empire approached him with the offer of easy payment for watching over the base until he was relieved. He nearly succumbed to the wiles of the ethereal wraiths there. Bara discovered how to block the sunlight by using a trooper's uniform, and nearly had Garve. Garve was able to escape to a landing prisoner ship, which he hijacked when it landed. Rather than let the wraiths attack the prisoners, Garve took them with him to Tatooine. There, he set the prisoners free in the custody of Phlik. (TMEC)

Gas Gem
this rare stone is found in the atmosphere of the planet Bespin, where it is formed from the various gases which surround the planet's core. As the gases drop toward the core, they are compressed in various combinations, until small whorls form around minute particles. The gravitational pressures compress the gases around the particles, formed strange, clear jewels that appear to continually shift and change. (GCQ)

Gas Grenade
any offensive weapon that can be thrown or propelled into an enemy grouping, a gas grenade does not produce shrapnel when it explodes. Instead, it releases stored chemical or biological gases into the enemy's breathing space. (TB)

Gas Vortex
this mining colony was established in the clouds of the gas giant Yhifar. The pressure of the atmospheric gases surrounding the station makes living at the station very uncomfortable for most beings. (GG8)

Gasan String Drum
a musical instrument played by Figrin D'an. (MTS)

Gascon
this planet was of particular interest to both the Alliance and the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It was powerful and independent, and had no fear of Imperial pacification. Likewise, it felt no need to assist the Alliance.However, the planet's location and natural resources made it a valuable ally for either side. After the destruction of Alderaan, several grass-roots rebellions sprang up, hoping to force the leaders of Gascon to side with the Alliance. (GMS)

Gasgano
this gangly alien was a Xexto from the planet Troiken, and was generally considered one of Tatooine's best pod racers, although he invariably lost races to Sebulba. (SW1, TPM, YJC1, IG1)

Gasser
this was the Gungan word for a stove or oven. (E1A11)

Gast, Edda
this Imperial doctor was one of the key figures in the genetic research of Project Chubar, performed at Binring Biomedical and sponsored by Warlord Zsinj. Using the studies of her uncle as a starting point, Doctor Gast developed several new ways to take humanoid alien species and manipulate their brains to make them smarter and meaner. Zsinj had hoped to create an army of aliens which would help him better infiltrate the New Republic's ranks and destroy it from within. Gast, a native of the planet Saffalore, was only too happy to help. One of her first subjects was the Gamorrean, Gamma-9104. After Zsinj learned of the escape of Gamma-9104 - who called himself Voort saBinring - and the Ewok Kettch from her uncle's facility, he confronted Doctor Gast and Doctor Novin Bress. He provided both with blasters to kill each other, as punishment for the escapes. Edda didn't hesitate, shooting Bress to maintain her own existence. She was allowed to continue, but was eventually captured by agents of Wraith Squadron on Saffalore. Zsinj tried to kill her with one of his brainwashed subjects, but Nawara Ven prevented that death by getting her injured body into a bacta tank quickly. In return for a huge sum of credits and a new identity on Coruscant, she agreed to tell the Republic all about Zsinj's plans. She opted to collect her payment in Imperial credits, and was accompanied to Coruscant with Ven himself as her bodyguard. This suited Ven just fine, since Gast was arrested by Republic agents upon her arrival, on charges of trying to smuggle Imperial credits onto the planet for seditious purposes. Her own cunning had backfired, and she was imprisoned. (SOC)

Gast, Tuzin
this man was employed by Binring Biomedical, and was one of the leaders in the Imperial experiment known as Project Chubar, designed to create near-human intelligence in the galaxy's more primitive humanoid species. It was Tuzin who arranged for the Imperial officer Zsinj to obtain a majority share in Binring's operations, and who described the usefulness of his experiements. However, over time, Gast became too attached to his subjects, and feared for their existence in Imperial control. He staged a massive explosion in the Epsilon Wing of the labs on Saffalore, hoping to sacrifice himself so that the creatures could escape. Warlord Zsinj's forces managed to recover all but one of the subjects, either dead or alive, but this survivor was the Gamorrean Voort saBinring. Tuzin died in the explosion, which his neice Edda claimed was a suicide. (SOC)

Gastess' Finance
this Outer Rim business is run by the despicable Gotal, Sarlim Gastess. This operation specializes in hostile takeovers of well-run corporations. Gastess then fires ranking management, inserts its own managers, and restructures the company. A short while later, Gastess will sell the "new" corporation for a huge, short-term profit. It is not usual to see Gastess break its own records on the Parmic Sector Stock Exchange. The corporation is large enough to purchase entire planetary conglomerates, but has found them hard to liquidate. (GG9)

Gasto
this New Republic Navy Midshipman served under Commander Zoalin aboard the Adamantine, and was killed by the Death Seed plague while in orbit around Brachnis Chorios. (POT)

Gat
a unit of measure which describes the amount of tension present in a connection. (CFG)

GAT-12g
this model of the standard Skipray Blastboat was armed with a tractor beam projector in place of the concussion missile launcher. (FOP)

GAT-12h
the Sienar Fleet Systems designation for the Skipray blastboat, a 25-meter-long defense and patrol ship built for use by the Empire. Although small, it had the power output to rank it as a capital ship. It was an exceptionally well-armed craft equally suited for atmospheric and deep-space use. The rear section, containing the main drive, lasers, and stablizing wings, rotates around the axis of the ship. The GAT-12h was introduced shortly before the Battle of Yavin, and was not immediately purchased by the Empire. So, Sienar Fleet Systems began selling them on the open markte, where they were snapped up quickly by pirate and mercenary fleets.
The Skipray is equipped with the following shipboard components:

- 3 Mendarn Arms Dar-2 Medium Ion Cannons
- a proton torpedo launcher
- 2 Senko Systems' 5000 "Tru-Lok" laser cannons
- concussion missile launcher
- Sarylcorp ViX Multiflux Reactor
(ISB, EGV)

GAT-12i
this was the second generation of GAT-series Skipray Blastboat. It measured 25 meters in length, with a wingspan of 14.3 meters and a height of 7.2 meters. It was similar in armament and sensor systems to the original GAT-12h, but had an improved Siep-Irol "Omni-Vu" sensor system. (TTSB, EGV)

GAT-12j
the Sienar Fleet Systems designation for the third generation of the GAT-series Skipray blastboat, introduced shortly after the death of Emperor Palpatine. It had larger ammunition bays for its missile launchers, allowing 12 proton torpedoes and 18 concussion missiles. (JS, EGV)

Gata, Zanza
this man served as an inspector for the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigation during the height of the New Order. He had an exceptional record with the IOCI, bringing years of experience and an 84-percent success rate in tracking down his quarry into many investigations, including the search for the thief know as the Tombat. He was given the task by IOCI Director Jacen Corbit, at the behest of Imperial Moff Landric. (SWJ8)

Gate
this was the nickname Wedge Antilles gave to his R5 astromech droid, following the droid's memory wipe. It was formerly known as Mynock. (BW)

Gatebeast
this Charon bio-construct was formed from a lifeform which existed on the Charon homeworld centuries ago, but was exterminated by the Charon death cults. The machinations of the gatebeast were not fully understood by the Charon bioscientists, but they managed to program it to perform certain duties. The gatebeast is used as a defensive tool, for it has the ability to control an attacker’s position. Any creature targetted by the gatebeast can be “gated” back to a position it occupied a short time before. This seems to be a limited for of teleportation, but the Charon have not fully discovered how the gatebeast performs the movement. (OS)

Gatekeeper
a Jedi Master whose image is stored within a Jedi Holocron, the Gatekeeper is the primary access point for whoever is using the Holocron. (TOJ)

Gateway
this was one of the many domed cities which sprang up on the surface of the planet Duro, to house refugees fleeing the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. The dome, like other such refugee cities, was located beneath one of Duro’s twenty orbital stations, protected by the planetary shield that contained the station. Gateway was constantly at odds with Settlement Thirty-two, as each dome tried to obtain the other’s supplies in an escalating struggle to feed its inhabitants. (BP)

Gateway Space Station
this space station was erected by the Empire in orbit around Tshindral III, although no one ever learned the exact reasons for the choice of location. It was based on the spherical design of the torpedo sphere, with a huge docking ring encircling the station. Many claim that the planet was a tropical paradise before experiments aboard the station went horribly wrong. Whatever the reason, the Empire abandoned the station shortly after its construction and left it adrift. Talandro Starlyte assumed ownership of the station, and began to remodel it for use as a trading post. The Empire returned to reclaim the station, but Starlyte offered to pay the Empire a monthly rent in return for its use as a trading post. The Imperials agreed, provided that a liaison officer remained on the station to monitor its activities, and left Starlyte alone. He also tried to rename the station as Starlyte Station, but the name only stuck with regular patrons. (WSV)

Gatherers
this is a nickname used by operatives of the Bureau of Ships and Services. They are a non-descript group, wearing no uniform to identify themselves as part of BoSS. The Gatherers are responsible for tracking down and apprehending individuals who falsify their starships’ transponder codes. (CFG)

Gathering, The
this is the time of conjunction of the three Fyodos moons. All of the Fyodoi shamans, and at least 100 members of each tribe, gather for a huge feast. (PG2)

Gathering Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was where all general meetings and discussions were held among the populace. It was the central hub of the city, and all other rings surrounded it. (FFT)

Gathering of the Herd
this huge musical event was held annually at Bantha Traxx, on the planet Lianna. Open to local talent from the Allied Tion, Herd night attracted scouts from all the major recording companies, who were searching for "the next big thing." (WSV)

Gathering Trail
found in the forests of the planet Kashyyyk, this level of the jungle is used to bring food to the various cities inhabited by Wookiees. (TT)

Gathi
an alien race. (ISB)

Gathus
a planet with a pretty good smashball team, during the early years of the New Republic. (COJ)

Gatonne, Resh
this man was a native of Bonadan, and was a bounty hunter during the last days of the Old Republic. His son, Yarr, eventually followed in his footsteps. (GG10)

Gatonne, Yarr
a native of the planet Bonadan and the son of Resh Gatonne, Yarr Gatonne was a bounty hunter who worked in the Testarr Sector during the early years of the New Republic. He learned everything he knew about bounty-hunting from his father. As a mode of operation, Yarr would capture the contacts and friends of his target, interrogate them, then pose as the contact in order to capture his bounty. His only weakness was a fascination with rare and valuable gemstones, and could be lured into a hunt by the possible payment in gemstones. (WBC, GG10)

Gatral
this bounty hunter was one of several who accompanied Crutag to Trinta, in pursuit of a team of Alliance agents they encountered on Kwenn Space Station. Gatral and his team were eventually killed by the dreamscapes and dreambeasts of Halagad Ventor before they could capture the Alliance agents. They were "resurrected" by Ventor as dreambeasts and sent after the Alliance team. (DOE)

Gatrellis
this corporation specialized in the creation of highly-specialized explosives, such as plasticene thermite. (ROE)

Gatsori, Jarina
this woman was a reporter for the Andasala Achievement News agency. (GG11)

Gatterweld
this man suddenly appeared aboard the Razor's Kiss, after it was stolen from Kuat Drive Yards by Warlord Zsinj. Zsinj knew he wasn't part of the security detail he'd sent to the ship, but Ensign Gatterweld nevertheless took control after the death of Captain Raslan during the ship's flight from Kuat. However, Gatterweld was unable to defend the huge ship from the massed firepower of the Mon Remonda and the Tedevium, and the Razor's Kiss was destroyed. However, Gatterweld was rescued from the destruction and rewarded for his bravery and loyalty to Zsinj. He became part of Zsinj's security force aboard the Iron Fist, and was later assigned to escort Gara Petothel around the ship. Zsinj didn't trust Gara, who recently had been known as Lara Notsil and a member of the New Republic. Gatterweld kept close tabs on her, but was unable to discern her true activities aboard the ship. When she escaped him and released the test subjects of Project Chubar, Gatterweld tried to stop her. The creatures she had released attacked him, but she would not allow them to kill him. He was bound up and left behind. (IF, SOC)

Gauch
one of the many pilots who worked for Lando Calrissian in the asteroid belt known as Lando's Folly, Gauch was one of the first pilots killed when the Yuuzhan Vong attacked Dubrillion. His TIE Bomber starfighter was under the protection of Belt-Runner I, but the station sustained heavy damage and was forced to retract shield energy. His ship was left without shields,and destroyed by enemy fire. (VP)

Gaulian
the native race of the planet Gaulus. (RASB)

Gaulus
this planet was the site of an Alliance bsae during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB)

Gaunt
cowlike creatures raised by the Abyssin on Byss. (GG4)

Gauntlet
1) this 14-meter multipurpose starfighter was built by Shobquix Yards. It was armed with two pairs of laser cannons and a proton torpedo launcher. (SSR, PG1)
2) this was the name given to one of the many podraces which wound through the caverns and energy domes of the penal colony on Oovo IV, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Gauntlet Scanners
the sensor arrays deployed along with a ring of Star Destroyers to guard the planet Byss during Emperor Palpatine's clonings, the Gauntlet Sensors monitor all incoming security clearance codes and alert the Star Destroyers to any illegal users. (DE2)

Gauntlet Squadron
1) one of the two starfighter squadrons the New Republic relied heavily on when Rogue Squadron resigned its commission to fight the Bacta War, along with Corsai Squadron. The Gauntlet Squadron X-Wings were later assigned to the Allegiance during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. (WS, SOC)
2) one of the fighter squadrons assigned to the Soothfast during its patrol of the Meridian Sector. The squadron took heavy losses during a breif battle of Exodo II, in which the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan was recovered. (HT)

this Corporate Sector world is controlled by a religious cult. Han Solo and Chewbacca once ran chak-root to the workers of this planet, since the substance held some religious taboos. They ran the substance for Big Bunji, who agreed to pay for their expenses as part of their salary. The chak-root runs became more and more difficult as the religious leaders - known as muftis - took notice of them, until one run was intercepted. The Millennium Falcon sustained considerable damage, and Han was forced to dump his load in order to escape. He got the Falcon repaired, since Big Bunji agreed to pay for all expenses. However, he soon received a bill from Big Bunji for all the repairs as well as the dumped chak-root. Both Han and Chewie were livid, and in return for Big Bunji's bill, they strafed the crimelord's compound with the Falcon's new weapons. (CSA)

Gausser
this was the name used to describe any device which could charge an object with a specific electrical field. (IWE1)

GAV
shortened name for an ground assault vehicle. (SWJ9)

Gav
a drink favored by the Mon Calamari. (RASB)

Gavens
Joreb Goss lived with Isela Talsava Norand on this planet, in the city of Torlas. (SOL)

Gavin, Bowman
this New Republic Colonel held the title and position of director of flight personnel for the Fifth Battle Group. This meant that he held a great deal of influence in the recognition and promotion of the pilots in the Fifth, and had the ability to hand-pick pilots for certain assignments. As a pilot himself for the Alliance, Gavin had earned the new sun insignia of the B-Wing pilots during the Battle of Endor. He earned many more service decorations before be promoted to the director's position. (TT)

Gavler, Bent
this native of Bespin's Cloud City rescued Allania Jakien and her friends following the garrisoning of the outpost. (MTS)

Gavryn
a planet that was once under Imperial control. Gilad Pellaeon's first command assignment was to take a group of transports to the planet, but he was ambushed by pirates. Pallaeon managed to defeat the pirates, which eventually led to his promotion to command of the Chimaera. Note that this planet is referred to as Garvyn in The Essential Guide to Characters. (TTSB, EGC)

Gax
manufacturers of starfighter life support systems. (SCRE)

Gazar
this was the word used to describe a member of the Gazaran race. (PG1)

Gazaran
an alien race native to the planet Veron, the Gazaran were intelligent, gliding reptiles that were extremely friendly and eager to please. It was this trait that helped them escape the brunt of the Empire's pro-human stance, since the Gazaran offered no resistance to Imperial rule. They were strictly herbivores, and lived in the fevvenor trees of the Veron rainforest, establishing vast cities in their branches. At the height of the Galactic Civil War, the Gazaran had achieved minimal level of technology and industry, mainly geared toward the production of items needed by the tourists who visited Veron. Each Gazar was given a name which described the city they lived in, their status in the city, and the names of their parents. Thus, the name of a particular Gazar could change over time. The average Gazaran was highly superstitious, and afraid of the larger creatures of the Veron rainforest. Each Gazaran city was ruled by a female who had given birth to at least twelve litters, and other females held positions of power because of their ability to give birth. Males, by contrast, were responsible for gathering food and protecting the females. (PG1, AE)

Gazzt So-Terr Aggul Meztim-Si
this was one of the wondrous tree-cities built by the Gazaran in the rainsforests of the planet Veron. It was located on the southern coast of the continent of Ganzka. (PG1)

GBk-435
early Incom hyperdrive motivation unit. (TIE)

GBk-585
second-generation Incom hyperdrive motivation unit. (SCRE)

GBk-785
third-generation Incom hyperdrive motivation unit. (SCRE)

GBp-629
this was a model of Incom hyperdrive which came equipped with a back-up hyperdrive motivator. (GOF2)

Gbu
an extremely high-gravity world, Gbu is the homeworld of the Veubgri race. (CS)

GDA-8
this semi-humanoid droid was designed by Droxian Manufacturing for use in the multitude of Herglic gambling houses on Tresidiss and other worlds. It was equipped with an AA-1 verbobrain, and its computer banks contained an extensive gambling database and programming that allowed to to keep tabs on a large number of players. (GG11)

Geal System
New Republic Captain Narn Detan was killed by Moxin Tark in this system, while establishing the government of a small colony. (WBC)

Gebbo Fewgive
this con artist was supposedly one of Talandro Starlyte's regular customers. (WSV)

GEC U47
a transport ship owned by Galactic Electronics, it was used to evacuate technical crews from the Pondut research platform during the Empire's retaliatory strike there. (TIE)

Geddawai
an Alliance YT-1300 stationed at their DS-5 deep space outpost. It was the ship that Harkov used to try and escape from Darth Vader when Vader intercepted Harkov at the station. (TIE)

Gedi IV
a planet. (E1A5)

Gee Long
one of Auren Yomm's Colonial Games teammates. (DCAR)

Gee-vise
this device was used to hold objects in place. It used a dedicated power source to apply incredible pressure, and could easily clamp onto large objects. (TPS)

Geedon V
a world that was home to some of the most vicious pirates in the galaxy, until Gallandro arrived and took control of the entire planet single-handedly. It is located in the Sumitra Sector. (HSL, REB)

Geejaw
this species of small avian is a native of the forest moon of Endor, and is prized by zoos and collectors of exotic animals for its ability to mimic any sound it hears. (GF)

Geelan
this alien race is native to the planet Needan. They are short, furry, canine humanoids who loved to barter and hoard valuables. They owned and operated Zirtran's Anchor during the Galactic Civil War. The species barely survived when Needan was hit by a passing comet and forced into a wider orbit, resulting in a rapid cooling of the planet and upheaval of the seasons. Needan was quickly turned into a frigid wasteland, and the Geelan were forced to erect domed structures to protect themselves from the frigid cold. A passing Arconan picked up a distress call the Geelan had broadcast, and agreed to supply them with more advanced technology to assist in the survival of their species. In this way, they discovered the great galactic community, and quickly spread throughout it. They employed a no-holds-barred form of commerce, in which any action was acceptable as long as it got the job done. Blackmail, bribery, and physical violence were not uncommon methods used by the Geelan to complete a deal. (SWJ13, AE)

Geeloniran
term was used by the Geelan race to indicate their ruler. Known as Master Geel or the Great Geel, the Geeloniran was responsible for all business ventures undertaken by the Geelan. The Geeloniran also presided over the activities of individual Geelan "nests." (SWJ13)

Geen, Locus
this man was a decorated General from the days of the Old Republic. He retired just before Emperor Palpatine instituted the New Order, and became a politician on the planet Salliche. He developed a network of contacts, and his status as a war hero got him invited to many events. He was known to be an expressive storyteller, often embellishing his tales with different voices and sound effects. However, Geen also hated the Empire, and used specially encrypted messages to pass information about the Imperial presence on Salliche to Alliance agents. (CRO)

Geentech Corporation
this company is the manufacturer of the 2-1B series of medical droids. They are headquartered in the Gorsh System, which the corporation owns. In addition to medical droids, Geentech has also developed and manufactured a large number of pharmaceutical products. These have been derived form the vast amount of plant and animal life found throughout the Gorsh System. (RASB, SWSB, PG)

Geentech Laboratories
one of the many subsidiaries of Chiewab Amalgamated Pharmaceuticals Company. (CSA)

Geezum
this Snivvian scout was employed by Jabba the Hutt to locate new planets and chart difficult terrain. Although Geezum was never sure of Jabba's motives, the Hutt paid him very well. (CCG7)

Geffa
this Rodian was one of Odanni's criminal contacts, until Geffa tried to force the Mon Calamari to pay a ten-percent "emergency mark-up" on a shipment of spice. Odanni's enforcer, Nollo Kanx, had prepared for treachery, and poisoned the food meant for Geffa. Geffa died when he refused to back down. (WSV)

Gefferon
manufacturers of pleasure repulsorcraft such as sail barges. (RPG, GMS)

Gegak
this Imperial Navy Captain survived the Galactic Civil War, and later served under Foga Brill. Gegak commanded the destroyer Tobay during the search for the Teljkon vagabond. He carried a neuronic whip as a personal weapon, using it to keep his crew in line. (TT)

Geillian Ale
an interstellar brew. (WSV)

Geith
the Jedi Knight who accompanied Callista Ming on the mission to disable the Eye of Palpatine, Geith was an excellent pilot as well as a Jedi. He was also very much in love with Callista, as she was with him. They had first met on Cloud City, while Callista was on a brief layover while training aboard the Chu'unthor. She discovered that he was Force-sensitive, and asked him to learn about the Force on the Ch'unthor. After the original discovery of the Eye of Palpatine, both Geith and Callista were dispatched by Jedi Master Plett to stop the ship. They managed to get aboard, but were trapped by the ship's formidable defenses. After a long argument, they both agreed that he was the only one with a chance to pilot a starship past the Eye's automated defenses and escape. So, he left Callista on the ship with a promise to return with help, and took a Skipray Blastboat. He had nearly predicted the ship's automatic firing pattern, but a change caught him unaware. Once the Eye realized that its target was disabled, it trained all fire on Geith's ship, destroying it and killing him before he could escape. (COJ, SWJ14)

Gektl
a tough, green-skinned reptiloid race that walks upright. They have four digits on each hand and foot, and have a scaly, segmented tail. The gektl has the unique ability of shedding their skin and tails when captured. This sudden loss of control allows the gektl to escape from its startled captor. (CSWEA)

Gekto System
Talon Karrde often had business in this area of the galaxy. (TFNR)

Gel-Bath
a small, portable version of a bacta tank, it can be used on specific injuries. (LCM)

Gel-Coat
a protective packaging material that coats the internal moving parts of weapons or machinery and preserves them during shipment. (HSE)

Geld Bernar
this Khil trader purchased the Merasy at an auction on Brentaal, and added many amenities to the ship. Among them were a state-of-the-art entertainment system and improved library computers. However, Bernar eventually sold the ship to Vacasor in order to help finance an investment in a high-speed shipping company. (SS)

Geldan Sun-apple
an exotic fruit. (RM)

Geleig
manufacturers of high-intensity lamps for starships. (SCRE)

Gelgelar
this planet, located in the Outer Rim Territories, was left alone by the Empire. A swamp world, Gelgelar was best known as the site of the Gelgelar Free Port. Gelgelar was also known to be the site of a Shrine of Kooroo. (SWJ8, SWJ13)

Gelgelar Free Port
this was the primary city found on the planet Gelgelar, and was the site of the planet's primary starport. The entire establishment was owned and operated by Loro Ecls and his family. (SWJ14)

Gellack
this Suarton was a member of the Tresycht nation, when Messert Mines Corporation first purchased the rights to the Thergum Pits. Gellack used the alliance with Messert to obtain weapons and backing for his own army, and quickly subjugated the Yiszte nation. Within four years, Gellack had managed to take control of the entire planet of Essowyn. He then established the position of High Priest, a Saurton within each tribe who reported directly to Gellack himself. Over time, this system of government was adapted slightly in order to maintain the control of the High Priests yet continue to have a single planetary government. (PG1)

Geltyu
this is one of the three largest cities found on the planet Farrfin. Like Jahhnu and Farlhu, it is best known for the criminal element which thrives within its borders. (TTSB)

Gelviddis Cluster
a section of the galaxy in which the Jedi Knights discovered a unique sand which allowed them to conjure up images from their minds in its swirling patterns. (COJ)

GemDiver Station
the name given to Lando Calrissian's corusca gem mining platform in orbit around Yavin. He started the operation around the time that Jaina and Jacen Solo attended the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4. The station was decorated with soft colors and artistic optical tubing creating pleasant designs. Soothing music was continually played over the station's comm systems. Lando used heavily-armored mining ships to plunge into Yavin's atmosphere and scrape corsuca gems from the hard core. His ships also employed nets to capture gems that had been extracted by the harsh winds and swept into the atmosphere. The gems were packed in armed hyperspace cargo pods and sent to their destination. (SA)

Geminor
this world, the second planet in the Lianna System, was blanketed with a hot, dense, poisonous atmosphere. It was orbited by a single moon. (ML)

Gemon-4
a Cygnus Spaceworks ion engine which saw extensive duty as the emergency sublight drive of the Imperial-class Star Destroyer. (EGV)

Gemthrop City
a walled city that houses an average spaceport. The city is walled to keep out the Lecknag beasts. (RPG)

Gemweb
this is a fine, silk-like thread that can be woven into extremely smooth cloth. (VOF)

Genassa
this planet, located in the M'shinni Sector, is the original homeworld of the M'shinni people. (GG12)

GenCore
this huge devices were the primary component in most planetary defense shields. (REB)

Gendarr, Iolan
an Imperial Navy Captain in command of the Star Destroyer Reliance, Gendarr was a native of the planet Commenor. He served under Captain Needa aboard the *Avenger*before being promoted in the aftermath of the Battle of Hoth. He was soon given command of the Reliance, and ordered to protect the training facility on Jardeen IV. When word of the Imperial defeat at the Battle of Endor reached Jardeen IV, Gendarr fled Jardeen IV with General Arndall Lott before the New Republic could find their facility. (WBC)

Genden, Lohn
a native of Alderaan, Lohn Genden left the planet at the age of twenty-five, some twenty-one years before the planet was destroyed by the first Death Star. In the time before Alderaan's destruction, Genden was believed to have been under the command of Imperial Intelligence, but was unheard of until shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Then, he ambushed a luxury liner and held the passengers hostage while demanding the release of Imperial captives. Emperor Palpatine refused , and Genden destroyed the liner and all 10,000 passengers. Several months after the Battle of Endor, Genden re-appeared and took command of a New Republic military base. He again demanded the release of prisoners being held in Republic prisons, but he was driven off before any further action occurred. He managed to elude capture, and was not seen again. It is believed that he retreated to the moon of Gormdin. (WBC)

Gendoraan
a planet. (GA)

Geneer
an ancient Duro dutchess, she was entombed in the Valley of Royalty, in a monument that bears her name. (MMY)

‘Geneering Products
this pharmaceutical manufacturer created the truth serum OV600. They also manufactured RiMPacks for cyborg implantation. (CFG)

General Good
this was the set of beliefs held by the Keganites, prior to their joining the Old Republic. Maintained by V-Tan and O-Vieve, the General Good required every Keganite to dedicate themselves to their planet. Everything they did was for the betterment of the General Good, including the virtually complete isolation of the planet from the rest of the galaxy. V-Tan and O-Vieve taught the Keganites that the importing of technology or knowledge was harmful to the General Good. Every member of society was held in equal regard, and every person was considered a member of a single family. It was believed that each Keganite had a Guide Within, which was their spirit and lifeforce, and tied them into the General Good. The General Good wasn't complete unless every Guide Within was united with each other. To indicate a Keganite's dedication to the General Good, each person placed a letter before their given name - a V for men and an O for women - to demonstrate their commitment. The additional letter could only be dropped when two Keganites formed a lifelong bond, and then only in private. (FFT)

General Ministry
this body ran the day-to-day business of the New Republic. It was formed after the dissolution of the Provisional Council, in an effort to to ensure that the non-military aspects of the government were duly addressed. It had the responsibility for handling the ministry of the government, finance, commerce, security and intelligence, and science and education. Many well-respected universities, including the Obroan Institute for Archaeology and the Kellmer Institute of Galactic History, were directly funded by the General Minsitry. (SOL, CTD)

General Purpose Attack Fighters
a snub fighter of Bakuran design, often referred to as GPAs. (SC)

General Spacetronics
manufacturers of the MaKing-class transport ship. (RPG)

General Visitor Agreement
this official document, signed by all offworld visitors to the planet Teyr, details the rules and regulations that must be obeyed. Each visitor must return a signed copy to Teyr officials upon debarking on the planet. (SOL)

Generations III
this was the brand name of a self-contained power generator used by the Empire to power their remote communications centers. (SOP)

Generet
this Imperial agent was an average human being until the Empire discovered Calamari. Then, he gave himself to the Emperor, and had his appearance surgically altered so that he resembled a Mon Calamari. The disguise was nearly complete, except for the fact that his human internals were not altered. He served as part of COMPNOR's Destabilization branch. (DU)

Generis
an Outer Rim communications center for the New Republic that was destroyed just prior to the Battle of Bilbringi. It is located in the Atrivis Sector. Much of the planet is dominated by dense jungles, and several ruins found within them have revealed the existence of an extinct alien culture. (TLC, TTSB)

Genesia
a planet. (HR)

GeneTech Laboratories
this was one of the many subsidiary corporations of Chiewab Amalgamated Pharmaceuticals Company. This corporation owned the rights to the entire Gorsh System, working in orbiting laboratories to discover new biochemical products. This might be a misspelling of GeenTech Laboratories. (FOP)

Genkal
this Mon Calamari served the New Republic as the Captain of the MC80A cruiser, Naritus. Following the breakup of the Starbuster Plot, Genkal was planning to step down from his command and allow his chief duty officer, Bril Parry, to assume command. (CTD)

Gennan Var
this Twi'leki bounty hunter accepted Ganis' offer to capture Nawnum the Hutt. He hired the Stalkers in an effort to ensure he captured Nawnum. He was easily distinguished by the large scars on his head and arms, and the fact that he was missing one of his head-tails. (IA)

Genon
this lonely world was situated close to several major hyperspace trade routes, but it remained unobtrusive as the base of operations for Grappa the Hutt. (CE2)

Gensang
an alien race which was part of the Trade Federation of the Old Republic. (RP)

Gentes
a planet located in the Anoat System, it is home to the Ugnaught race. The planet is barely liveable, and most of the Ugnaughts move offworld to Cloud City. (MTS)

Gentik
this computer systems manufacturer was known for its advanced droid brain designs and storage systems. (CRO)

this medical facility, located on the planet Geridard, was known for its ability to reduce or eliminate the effects of degenerative diseases. (TFE)

Gerin
a Tammuz-an princess held captive by Kybo Ren during the early years of the New Order on Bodgen. (DCAR)

Gerom
this man was the Imperial Prefect of the planet Namore, during the height of the New Order. It was rumored that he was paying Dasar Zorm for illicit work, but nothing was ever proven. (HR)

Gerrard V
this is the fifth planet in the Gerrard System, and is a world which was once much more hospitable than it is. Gerrard V is dominated by deserts, broken by small temperate areas and bordered by oceans. The planet was strongly against the New Order, and opposed the Empire until several orbital bombardments left much of the planet in ruins. The devstation also destroyed much of the native ecology. (SWAJ, RSG)

Gerrenthum
small cells of Alliance support sprung up on this planet during the Galactic Civil War. (GG2)

Gerrick
a young Jedi who learned the use of The Force during the Galactic Civil War. (RPG)

Geruruche
this Imperial Special Corrections Facilities Minister was killed just before the initial negotiations for the Stars' End project began. This paved the way for Lady Chawkroft to work with the Corporate Sector Authority to bring the project to fruition. He left behind a wife. (CSA)

Gervi Fruit
a galactic fruit. (RPG)

Gesaril
1) this small, furred, six-limbed race is native to the unusual jungles of the planet Gesaril. Their unusual head structure was dominated by a wide mouth filled with sharp teeth. One eye was located at each corner of their mouth, and a large bowl-like ear sprouted from each side of their head. They have a certain affinity for the Force, which they used to manipulate the environment around them. When the Empire tried to establish a presence in the system, the Gesaril were badly mistreated. It has been rumored that the Gesaril, acting on concert and calling on the Force, pulled nine Imperial starships to crash on the planet. In general, the Gesarils are hyperactive and playful, and welcome most visitors who show no ill will. They are excellent carvers, using the Force to help them pull the inner beauty out of their works. (GG6, AE)
2) a strange planet found in the Gesaril System of the Minos Cluster, Gesaril was the site of a series of accidents involving nine Imperial warships. The planet is covered with a dense jungle which seems to float above a noxious swamp. It is the homeworld of the Gesaril race. The Empire had a strong presence in the system for two reasons. First, it had quarantined the system until it could discover why nine separate ships crashed in the exact same section of coastline. Second, a prison facility was built on an asteroid in far orbit around Gesaril's sun. The average day on Gesaril lasts 19 standard hours, and the year lasts 134 local days. (GG6)

Gesco City
this was the second-largest city on the planet Bakura. (TBSB)

Gesenix Mining
this mining corporation founded the settlements on Andasala before the Galactici Civil War disrupted trade in the sector and put the operation out of business. (GG11)

Gessak, Mils

Gestron
this planet was the site of an Imperial base raided by Garm Bel Iblis. (DFRSB)

Getelles
this Imperial Moff survived the upheaval which followed in the wake of the Battle or Endor, and maintained control of the Antemerdian Sector. He maintained a small fleet under the command of Admiral Larm, and wasambitious enough to align himself with the droch Dzym and Seti Ashgad. Getelles, backed by Loronar Corporation's weapons and finances, believed that he could swiftly gain control of Meridian Sector. His aspiration was then to expand outward into New Republic space. In reality, Getelles was simply Loronar's paid assassin. Whenever they needed some being removed from their path, Getelles was tipped off to possible threats to his reign. When the plot was discovered by Republic focres, Getelles' fleet was destroyed. (POT)

Gethnu Cheeve
this Devaronian worked in Jugsmuk Station, on Gamorr, selling specialty items smuggled onto the planet. (SWJ14)

Gethzerion
the Clan Mother of the Nightsisters clan on Dathomir, Gethzerion was actually the middle daughter of Augwynne, the Clan Mother of the Singing Mountain clan. Much to Augwynne's dismay, Gethzerion fell prey to the power of the dark magics practiced by the witches of Dathomir, and felt that her mother's power was weak. Gethzerion made a power play to take control of the Singing Mountain clan, hoping to kill Augwynne but actually killing Kara'teel instead. Gethzerion's actions were discovered, but Gethzerion was freed by Baritha and the two fled in exile from the clan. This only served to harden Gethzerion's resolve, and she established her own clan, the Nightsisters. Gethzerion also wrote The Book of Shadows as a collection of all known information about the Shadow Magic she loved. However, Gethzerion was unable to fully comprehend the goals of the Empire, and was used by the remnants of the Empire to hunt down runaway slaves. When Emperor Palpatine realized that her strength with the Dark Side of the Force was considerable, he cut off Dathomir from any form of trade. Gethzerion was stranded on Dathomir, but later killed the stormtroopers who were guarding her. She use the surviving stormtroopers as a sort of security force. When Han Solo took Leia Organa to Dathomir, Luke Skywalker and Prince Isolder of Hapes tried to rescue her. Gethzerion recognized the strength of the Force in Luke, but was unable to destroy him She later negotiated with Warlord Zsinj for the use of a ship to escape from Dathomir, but the Warlord reneged on the deal and shot her ship from the sky. All the Nightsisters aboard were killed. (CPL)

Gettiarn
this planet is the outermost world in the Iotran System. (GG12)

Gettiarn SpaceStation
this space station is adminsitered by the Iotran Police Force and orbits the planet Gettiarn. It is used as a traffic control center for the Iotran System. (RPG, GG12)

Gevarak, Malindin
a native of the planet Ord Mantell, this small-type counterfeiter was wanted by the Empire for forging Imperial credits for use by Alliance personnel. Although the charges were never proven, it was known that Gevarak traveled with the Wookiee, Cherioer. Last seen in the Baronos Sector, Gevarak's bounty reached 10,000 credits for live capture. He was recognizable by several facial piercings and tattooes.

Gevis City
this urban area was located on the planet Kalandis IV. (GG10)

Gevrell
this man was the Assistant Security Chief at the Mos Eisley Spaceport during the Galactic Civil War. (GG7)

Gevtes, Pagda
this man was the master Devisor of the planet Exocron, during the period shortly after the Battle of Endor. He was also a council adjunct to the planet's ruling council. Like his predecessors, Gevtes worked hard to retain the knowledge of technology within the walls of Caballa City's Ministry of Technology. He also worked to keep the Devisors at the top of Exocron's society and political structure. When the crew of the FarStar was stationed on Exocron, Gevtes wanted to keep them on the planet in order to study their starships and learn more about the current technology of the galaxy. After Eida Sharden agreed to assist Kaiya Adrimetrum in freeing the crew of the FarStar, Gevtes was exposed as a power-hungry individual, and the Devisors' social status was reduced. Gevtes himself was placed under arrest and tried for his crimes. (KO)

Geyyahab
a mythological Wookiee. The name was used by Chewbacca as an alias when he and Princess Leia were searching for Hethrir and Leia's missing children. In Chewie's case, he was simply a wookiee captured by the bounty hunter Lelila. (CS)

Ghaz Kul IV
one of four mining towns that were operating on the planet Pitann, Ghaz Kul IV was connected to the othertowns via repulsor-barge. (KO)

Ghecharo
this arrogant noble once traveled to Neftali, in order to secure the services of Kaori Batta in hunting down an ice modrol. A former military officer, Ghecharo fancied himself a big-game hunter. Batta bristled at Ghecharo's attitude, but agreed to lead the hunt. Despite his lean build, Ghecharo was inadequately prepared for the rigors of Neftali's environment, and whined incessantly about the time it took to actually locate an ice modrol. When they did finally locate one, it had been injured, and Batta refused to track it for fear of attack. Ghecharo called Batta a coward and set out on his own to kill the beast. Unfortunately, Ghecharo was as stupid as he was arrogant, and when he ingited a lumalamp to see into the cave, he gave away his position to the ice modrol. The angry creature attacked with incredible swiftness, killing Ghecharo instantly. Ghecharo's assistant, Kleck, barely escaped. (WSV)

Gheeta
this Shell Hutt was climbing the social ladder when he was confronted with a great challenge. He was placed in charge of the main planetary reception and diplomatic terminal, to be used by the Shell Hutts to receive and negotiate with visitors. Gheeta was given an unlimited budget, and selected Emd Grahvess as his architect. Grahvess was considered the galaxy's best, freelance architect at the time, rivalling those employed by Emperor Palpatine and Prince Xizor of Black Sun. However, Gheeta had planned to kill Grahvess once the job was complete, thereby removing the need to pay him for the work. Grahvess, to his credit, was aware of the Shell Hutt's duplicity, and arranged to have a bounty placed on his own head. The bounty stipulated that he could be taken once the project was complete. Boba Fett took the bounty, but also arranged a few deals with Grahvess himself, placing weapons and explosives within the diplomatic center's columns and walls. Gheeta, robbed of his prey, was forced to pay for Grahvess' work and re-design the complex's security systems. The ease with which Fett penetrated the complex and captured Grahvess proved that his original plans were nowhere near what the Shell Hutt elders had requested, and this dropped him well down in the social structure. Thus, Gheeta developed a deep-seated hatred for Boba Fett, and vowed to kill the bounty hunter. To this end, he formed a web of plots and plans that came to a head with the arrival of Oph Nar Dinnid. In a fit of anger, Gheeta secretly killed Dinnid before any information could be extracted from him, but continued to act as if the comm handler were still alive. This ensured that Fett would come for the bounty on his head. When Fett and his companions arrived, Gheeta made a great show of one-upping the bounty hunter, revealing the long-dead body of Dinnid. This angered Nullada, who became outraged at the loss of credits. Gheeta tried to placate the older Shell Hutt by explaining that the death of Dinnid was compensated by the Narrant System liege-lords. Then, ignoring the elder Hutt's admonitions, Gheeta brought out a legion of hired mercenaries to eliminate the bounty hunters. However, Fett activated the weapons and opened the storage systems and wiped out the diplomatic complex. Near the end of the battle, Boba Fett took D'harhan's laser cannon and shoved it into Gheeta's shell. Pointing the apparatus skyward, Fett fired the weapon. Gheeta was killed instantly, as his shell exploded under the force of the blast. (MA)

Ghent, Zakarisz
a former crew member of the Wild Kaarde, Ghent is an accomplished young computer slicer from the planet Baroli. Note that the Heir to the Empire Sourcebook lists Ghent as a human, but the HTTE comic series from Dark Horse portrays him as a blue-haired near-human. It was Ghent who helped Leia Organa-Solo decipher the transmissions of Delta Source and locate its whereabouts, during the reign of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Following Thrawn's death and the formation of the Smuggler's Alliance, Ghent chose to join the New Republic, and eventually worked his way up to the position of Chief of Cryptography for the New Republic Intelligence agency. In this position, he was able to reconstruct the offer of a peace treaty negotiation that was supposed to have been delivered from Colonel Vermel to Garm Bel Iblis, before Vermel was captured by Captain Dorja and the Relentless. He was accompanied to Pakrik Minor by the Caamasi Elegos A'kla, whose descriptions of the destruction of Caamas and the need for justice without hatred and punishment without revenge struck a chord in the man. Ghent agreed to accompany General Hestiv to Yaga Minor, to recover a copy of the Caamas Document, as a first step in the new peace between the Empire and the New Republic. He was present at the station when Garm Bel Iblis arrived with his own assault force, hoping to steal a copy of the Document. Later, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Ghent served as an intelligence expert for the New Republic. (DFR, HTSB, HTTEC, SOP, VOF, BP)

Ghentiw Northern Mountains
this range of craggy mountains was located just outside the city of Heg, on Bundim. The rebels and Alliance forces, after being routed in the Battle of Heg, regrouped in these mountains shortly before forcing the Imperial forces out of the city and off Bundim. (GMK)

Ghephaenne Deeper-Craters Weaponmakers
this Adumari manufacturer is generally regarded as the premier blastsword maker. Cheriss ke Hanadi used their weapons exclusively, and Ghephaenne paid her for allowing them to use her image in their advertisements. (SOA)

Gherant
this Imperial Navy Commander served as the Deck Officer aboard the Executor during the last years of the New Order. Gherant was hand-picked by Captain Piett, and was responsible for preventing unauthorized access to the Super-class Star Destroyer's computer core. (CCG4)

Ghest
this reptilian predator was native to the planet Rodia, and was legendary among the Rodians for wiping out entire villages of primitive Rodians. A large creature which could attain lengths of six meters or more, the ghests live and hunt in the water. The ghest had huge eyes and a large mouth filled with razor-sharp teeth. Its four feet were heavily clawed, and its skeleton is made of cartilage rather than bone. They hunted by floating along in the water with just their eyes above the surface, exploding out of the water to ambush their prey and – in many cases – swallow it whole. They have no natural enemies, and even the bloodthirsty Rodians feared to hunt them unless it was required to remove a curse or bring a halt to a famine or drought. (KO, COG)

Ghhhk
this creature, native to Clak'dor VII, rises at dawn and screeches its mating call across the jungles. The skin of a ghhhk produces a special oil that is used by the Bith as a medicinal salve. The ghhhk is a thin-boned, green-skinned creature with long limbs and two toes on each foot. Chewbacca had a holographic ghhhk on his holochess board on the Millennium Falcon. (CCG2)

Ghic Dx'ono
this Ishori Senator to the New Republic arranged for Leia Organa-Solo to meet with a delegation of Caamasi during the Caamas Incident. His position, like that of his people, was that the Bothans involved in the destruction of Caamas must all be brought to justice quickly and completely. This was in direct opposition to Senator Porolo Miatamia, who wanted to delay a trial until all evidence was laid on the table. (SOP, VOF)

Ghilron Pirates
this gang of shipjackers and thieves plied the Ac'fren Spur of the Sisar Run, and were the main rivals for the spoils of the Spur of the Disac Pirates. After the Ghilron gang witnessed the extermination of the Disac gang, they went into hiding. (SSR)

Ghoel
this Wol Cabbashite lived in Jabba the Hutt's palace, hanging from the rafters and arches and licking unsuspecting passersby. Ghoel was mistakenly left in the palace, and was quite intelligent. (CCG7)

Gholondreine-β
this planet was once a vibrant, ocean-covered world with strong ties to the Old Republic. Upon instituting the New Order on the planet, the leaders of the various governments chose to move slowly, retaining as many of the freedoms they once enjoyed. This delay in the implementation of the New Order was discovered by Emperor Palpatine, who decided that an example had to be made. As punishment, Palpatine ordered all the water from the planet to be exported to Coruscant, where it would augment that planet's already-poor supply. This left Gholondreine-β as an arid desert wasteland. Many of the planet's natives moved to other inhabited worlds in the nearby systems to escape the dying world. It was on this planet that Boba Fett and Bossk agreed to team up in order to collect the bounty on Trhin Voss'on't. (SLS)

Ghorin
this former overlord and Imperial supporter was the ruler of the Greater Plooriod Cluster. He agreed to supply the Alliance with a shipment of grain, but double-crossed them by providing poisoned cargo. In response, Ghorin was discredited by the Alliance. Alliance pilots used ships stolen from Ghorin's navy to attack an Imperial supply convoy in the Geedon System. Ghorin was executed for treason by Darth Vader. He had a vast castle on the planet Plooriod IV. (XW)

Ghorman
primary planet in the Ghorman System, it was the site of a massacre in which the newly-named Emperor Palpatine wiped out the planet's populace. Located in the Sern Sector, just outside the Core Worlds, Ghorman's populace was wiped out for no apparent reason, other than to help Palpatine establish his evil presence in the galaxy. Note that Rebellion places Ghorman in the Sesswenna Sector. The massacre was a rallying cry for early leaders of the Alliance, including Mon Mothma. The Empire later established a base there. When the Alliance learned of the base's construction, it sent out a squadron of starfighters, which eliminated a number of supply ships and delayed the completion of the base for an entire year. (RASB, XW, REB)

Ghorman Massacre
an event which took place just after Palpatine had named himself Emperor, and which solidified Bail Organa's need for open rebellion against Palpatine's New Order. (JS)

Ghorman's Honor
this Alliance gunship was named in honor of those killed in the Ghorman Massacre. It was one of five gunships sent to assist the Imperial forces battling the Ssi-ruuk at Bakura. (TBSB)

Ghost Jedi
this Mrlssti band became very popular following the Battle of Endor. They had to perform their concerts from an asteroid orbitting the planet, and project holo-concerts to various locations planetside. Their music was written by Rorax Falken, a physicist who wrote precise music with little or no emotion. The band is made up of Falken's best students, and was named for the ghost of Taj Junak. (XWPA)

Ghost Ones, The
this was the name given to a mysterious clan of Senali who moved about without family ties. They were considered troublemakers, creating rivalries between clans where no rivalry existed. The Ghost Ones also spoke out against the exchange of royal children between Rutan and Senali. The Ghost Ones were nomadic, moving from place to place and sowing discontent in their wake. It was later discovered that the Ghost Ones were actually fictional, created by Prince Taroon of Rutan in order to discredit his brother, Prince Leed, so that Taroon himself would gain the throne of Rutan. (SP)

Ghost Spydr
this species of spydr was native to the planet Kubindi, and valued for its tasty flesh in many Kubaz dishes. (E1A5)

Ghostling
a strange, ethereal alien race that resembles humans. They are a very fragile people, and can easily be destroyed when touched. The touch of a human almost certainly means death to them. Even given this fact, though, many ghostlings desire to enter physical relationships with humans. Most ghostlings have green-gold hair and shiny, tan skin. During the last years of the Old Republic, Ghostling children were sought after as pets or slaves by many of the galaxy's less reputable beings, because they were extremely beautiful and hard to find. Ghostlings are native to the planet Datar. They lived in nests formed from creeper vines and leaf material, which hung from the branches of the bayah trees. (CS, E1A5)

Ghtroc Industries
an Outer Rim corporation that produced a series of stock freighters for general use. Their initial designs, including the Class 580 and the Class 720 freighters, were popular with independent spacers, but later designs lost favor with starship owners. The corporation went out of business during the Galactic Civil War, but their freighters continue to see use. (RPG, PP)

Ghufran
this pilot joined Rogue Squadron after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (IJ)

Ghundrak
this Imperial served as the Moff of Thrasybule Sector during the height of the New Order. (ND)

Gian Speeder
this large, military repuslorcraft is often supported by smaller, more maneuverable speeders. In the Royal Naboo armed forces, Gian speeders were supported by 2 or more Flash speeders. The Gian speeder measures 5.7 meters in length, can transport a total complement of four beings (a pilot, a gunner, and two passengers), and is armed with three light repeating laser blasters. The Gian speeder can attain speeds of 160 kilometers per hour. (X1, IG1)

Giant Fungi Forest
this forest was located on the planet Kessel. It was formed from huge, trumpet-shaped fungi which are large and strong enough to allow the inhabitants of Kessel to build homes and offices inside them. Several large fungi were even used as landing pads. Professor Volz had his laboratory in one of the fungi located in the forest. (CSWEA)

Gigor
this mountainous planet was the homeworld of the Gigoran race. (SWJ13)

Gigoran
this species of tall, furred bipeds was often confused with Wookiees. They had long, well-muscled limbs with well-padded hands and feet. Unlike Wookiees, the Gigorans could speak Basic, but preferred their own native language of unintelligible grunts and chirps. They led a peaceful existence until a group of smugglers tried to establish a base on Gigor. The smugglers found a ready source of credits in selling the Gigorans as indentured labor, primarily to the Empire. (SWJ13)

Gihal, Jio
this xenobiologist spent a great deal of time on the moon Misnor, researching the life and migration patterns of the chiilak. Despite the Imperial support for the hunting of chiilaks, Gihal never revealed the location of any of his sitings. (COG)

Giil
this was the first of seven seasons experienced on the planet Guiteica. (AE)

Giju
homeworld of the Herglics. It was known for its explorers and merchants, and the Herglics were one of the first members of the Old Republic. The Empire, realizing the importance of the Herglics and their abilities, forcibly took over the manufacturing centers on Giju after a short but bloody battle. The Empire forced them into hard labor. When the New Republic was born, the Herglics were able to rebuild their society very quickly, for in submitting to the Empire, their cities and manufacturing facilities were spared any major damage. (DFR, DFRSB)

Giju Passage
see Giju Run. (PGT)

Giju Run
also known as the Gju Passage, this hyperspace trade route connected Herglic space to the Tapani Sector. (PGT)

Giju Stew

Gilagimar
one of the most famous warships of the Expansion Era, this was a cruiser-sized starship. (DESB)

Gild-Galaxy Shops
this arcade, located aboard the Kuari Princess, has everything a traveller could ever want, but with better quality and far more expensive prices than can be found throughout the galaxy. (RM)

Gilded Claw
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of the security forces used by Kuat Drive Yards to protect their facilities, in the early years of the New Republic. It was part of the force sent to combat Warlord Zsinj and the Iron Fist, during the Warlord's attempt to steal the Razor's Kiss. Although the Gilded Claw and its TIE squadrons caused considerable damage to the Iron Fist, it managed to escape the battle. (IF)

Gilded Lily
this Baudo-class space yacht was owned by the actress Jona Reeten, whose real name was Rollo Morsai. When the actress Reeten was blacklisted during the Imperial occupation of the Minos Cluster, the fancy and expensive ship was converted for use as a transport. This was the only work that Rollo Morsai could find. The 32-meter ship was gutted for cargo space, and the weaponry was upgraded to a simple, turret-mounted lsaer cannon. (GG6)

Gilden
an alien creature whose soft flesh is pulverized to form a drinkable substance favored by Shistavenen Wolfmen. (TME)

Gileas
this identity, maintained by Pike Angeles, was an Imperial Lieutenant who served in the Supply division of the armed forces. (CRO)

one of the two bases located near the city of Cartann, on the planet Adumar. (SOA)

Gimer
this plant, native to the planet Dagobah, has a bark which provides succulent juice when chewed. Gimer sticks were favored by Yoda, who believed the plant's juice aided in meditation. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game: Dagobah indicates that the gimer stick was a symbol of a Jedi Master's ancient wisdom. (ESB, CCG4, GF, VD1)

Gin
one of the earlier settlers of the planet Nam Chorios, Gin was Arvid Scraf's aunt. She lived in Ruby Gulch, and used some of her influence with the Newcomers to get Luke Skywalker a job in Hweg Shul. (POT)

Ginbotham
this Hig was part of Wedge Antilles' command crew aboard the Yavin, during the battle with the failed Jedi Dolph. Ginbotham was known among the New Republic's Navy for his piloting abilities. (TNR)

Gindoch, Qan
this dark-skinned man was a native of the planet Traflin. He was captured in a raid on Pendor Gyrr's criminal organization on Mantooine, but was released after interrogation. Since he release, Gindoch has gone into the smuggling business, often dealing in spice but also stealing weapons and selling them on the black market. (WBC)

Gingal
this inexperienced Mon Calamari was a Commander in the New Republic, served as Pash Cracken's commanding officer while on station at the planet Xyquine. When the Empire attacked the New Republic there, Gingal was unsure how to retreat. He began to order the fleet to retreat, but Cracken interrupted him before he could broadcast orders to the entire fleet - and to the Imperials waiting to attack them. Gingal didn't allow his inexperience to get in the way, and took Pash's advice. The resulting tactic became known as the Cracken Twist, and saved much of Gingal's fleet. (TTSB).

Ginsbrack, Charls
this Alliance scientist led the hyperdrive research effort on the isolated moon of Barcola. Ginsbrack and his team were developing a new form of hyperdrive to help the Alliance gain an advantage during the Galactic Civil War. However, the new hyperdrive generated strange, hyperdimensional whirlpools that randomly took organic and inorganic items with it, including several of Ginsbrack's scientists. Ginsbrack himself was sucked out of existence, and the project was abandoned. (GMS)

Ginzork, Peert
this patient, experienced soldier was known as the brute force behind The Shield. His name is an assumed identity, created after he deserted the Imperial Army. He had been serving as an assault trooper when he went AWOL. He emerged several years later under the guise of Peert Ginzork and formed The Shield. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, he married Filice Ginzork. Peert was believed to be sympathetic to the Alliance, as many of his operations served to protect field agents and other Alliance sympathizers. (CRO)

Giran
this Nikto worked with Malakili to tend Jabba the Hutt's rancor. He hoped to trap a krayt dragon and bring it to Jabba as a present. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game indicates that Giran is a kajain'sa'Nikto*, although he has the appearance of a* kadas'sa'Nikto. (CCG7)

Girov Dza'tey
this Bothan was the leader of the group which sabotaged the Starfaring in order to land on the planet Malrev. He claimed to be part of the tourist group which was aboard the ship, and that the ship's Captain and chief engineers were the first to be killed in attacks by the Irrukiine, when Rogue Squadron was dispatched to locate the ship. In reality, Girov was a master of Jeswandi, and killed the shi's Captain in order to take control of the situation. When several members of Girov's group attacked Nrin Vakil, the Rogue discovered that the Bothans were extremely good at hand-to-hand combat - skills not normally found in a group of shipwrecked tourists. When Dllr Nep tried to defeat Cartariun by turning the Dark Side energy back on the Devaronian, Girov arrived and shot Dlrr in the back. He then turned Cartariun's magic against him, killing Cartariun. (XWRR, HXW)

Giryulan Findings
this series of Imperial reports documented a number of infamous acts committed by the Empire. Historians believed that the real culprits were never caught, having framed their comrades in order to evade courtmartials or executions. (AIR)

Gistol

Giver, The
this was another name for the Sunesi god known as the Maker. (BP)

Givin
an alien race that carries its skeleton on the outside of its body. This exoskeleton helps protect them from the sudden pressure changes and periods of hard vacuum that occur on the surface of Yag'Dhul, their homeworld. This exoskeleton allows them to seal their joints, giving further protection. Many scientists have likened the Givin to Twi'lek string puppets in their appearance. The Givin live in hermetically sealed cities built to withstand the tides of vacuum, and their society has grown up around the intense mathematics needed to accurately predict the vacuum tides. This had given the Givin the reputation of of being proficient mathematicians and strategists. The Givin also have a fairly advanced technology, and are respected starship builders in most sector of the galaxy. (SW, GG4, CCG)

Giviot
this root vegetable was often sauteed and used as an accompaniment to meats like flangth. (SWJ14)

Givvers
this bookish individual was the branch manager of the Zygian Savings and Loan in Mos Eisley. (GG7)

Gjeel
this Advozse worked as Pok Nar-Tan's majordomo. (PSG)

Gk3
MerrSonn's Cryocooler heat dissipation system used on the EWHB-10 repeating blaster. (ISB)

Gk7
a later generation of MerrSonn CryoCooler heat dissipation unit, the Gk7 was used on the E-Web(15) heavy repeating blaster. (TTSB)

GK-600
this model of guardian droid was used during the Galactic Civil War. (GOF2)

Gla Soocha
this is the name given to the planet around which orbits the New Republic's Pinnacle Base, located on the planet's fifth moon. This was Da Soocha, in Dark Empire I. (DE2)

Gla Soocha 5
this is the name given to the fifth moon of Gla Soocha, and is the site of the New Republic's Pinnacle Base. It was destroyed by a projectile fired from Emperor Palpatine's Galaxy Gun. This was Da Soocha 5, in Dark Empire I. (DE2)

Gladiator Battle Armor
this prototype personal combat armor was developed by the Min-Dal Company, and secretly tested in the criminal pit-fights in the Soruus System. Unfortunately for Min-Dal, the armor was so good the criminals were able to escape from prison while wearing it and wreak havoc in the system. They were finally apprehended by Imperial forces, but Min-Dal was forced to shut down production. (SWAJ)

Gladiator Droid
any droid which is programmed for armed combat in a controlled setting (such as an arena). It is programmed to fight to the death with its opponent. They were popular late in the Old Republic, when decadent and lawless activities began to get overlooked. (HSE)

Gladiators' Open
a regular event aboard The Wheel, this fighting event pitted a wide range of combatants against each other in a series of differing combat arenas. The winner was the last fighter standing at the end of all rounds. Parts of the Open were held in the Zero-Gee Hall. (ND)

Glaennor
this being was one of the most respected members of the Eighth Nebulan Scout Corps. (GG8)

Glaffold
this Imperial Prefect oversaw the planet Fremond III during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ9)

Glagggerick's Tavern
a bar located in Lola Curich, on Lianna. (ML)

Glah Ubooki
this Bimm was a native of Glastro. He once discovered the wreckage of an Imperial Research and Development vessel on the planet, and salvaged a large quantity of parts and materiel. He eventually sold the stuff to an Alliance operative for a tidy profit, and Glah convinced his brothers to buy a ship and acquire as much valuable salvage as they could. It nearly bankrupted them, but they managed to locate some truly rare items which kept them wealthy and kept their business running. Known as Glah Ubooki's Strange and Wondrous Imports, the shop maintained a mixture of worthless junk and unusual relics. In order to continue to seek out new wares, Glah's brothers helped run the shop. Each brother claimed to be Glah Ubooki, and the real Glah always pretended to know a customer, whether he had actually met them or not. Eventually, all eighteen brothers of Glah's took part in the ruse, and their family prospered. (SWJ1)

Glah Ubooki's Strange and Wondrous Imports owned by the Bimm known as Glah Ubooki, this small shop was located in the city of Glastro. It sold rare and unusual items - mostly junk, but every once in a while a truly valuable relic - to anyone who happened to pass by. It was originally started when Glah Ubooki discovered the wreckage of an Imperial R&D vessel, and sold the parts he salvaged to the Alliance for a tidy profit. As the business grew, the other seventeen of Glah's brothers spread off Bimmisaari and started their own version of the shop, although each one claimed that his was the one-and-only shop. (SWJ1)

Glaive
an cargo ferry which was used to smuggle stolen Imperial goods into the Sepan System, it was captured by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Glakka
an icy moon which was used by the Empire as a weapons depot. Jabba the Hutt and Ephant Mon tried to steal the weapons cache, but they were betrayed by some of Jabba's own people. They managed to escape, but had no protection from the moon's frozen wastes. Jabba wrapped himself around Ephant Mon, shielding him from the cold until they were rescued by some of Jabba's more loyal supporters. (EGC)

Glanthe School
an arts institution located on Kamori. (SWAJ)

Glarret
this aging man served as Xaverri's assistant during the years following the death of Xaverri's family. She eventually replaced him with a young Han Solo. (THG)

Glarsaur
this racesof reptiloids was native to the swamps of Gelgelar. Roughly humanoid in shape, glarsaurs had curled tails and muscled limbs which were studded with sharp claws. Their dorsal ridge was protected by thick, green scales, and their belly was covered with segmented plates. Although they were the only sentient life to develop on Gelgelar, glarsaurs were brutish creatures who would rather fight a war than discuss an issue. (SWJ14)

Glas
a Imperial System Patrol Craft hijacked by Ripoblus refugees seeking asylum. (TIE)

Glasc, Katya
this was the alias used by Ysanne Isard while on the planet Darkknell, searching for the stolen plans to the first Death Star. Glasc was supposedly a member of the Darkknell Special Security team. (TFNR)

Glasfir Ring
this small criminal organization was controlled by the Defel Glasfir'a'lik, and was based on the planet Demesel. The Ring had its hands in virtually every criminal enterprise on the planet, especially after Glasfir eliminated the Hutt influence on the planet. (GG11)

Glasfir'a'lik
this Defel, known as a particulary nasty being, was the leader of the Glasfir Ring. He was originally a Hutt enforcer, but was left stranded on Demesel by the Hutts. He became angry at the Hutts, and for three years he hunted down every Hutt agent on the planet. His ability to successfully kill a Hutt earned him semi-legendary status on Demesel, despite the large bounty placed on his head by the Hutts. Glasfir'a'lik eventually commanded the attention of the criminal underworld of Demesel, and quickly took control of the various elements. Glasfir threatened and bribed the planetary government, and eventually won control of the underworld and a level of immunity from prosecution. (GG11)

Glass Mountain
located on the planet Tatooine, this barren mountain was the site of one of Jabba the Hutt's secret caches. A barren knob of rock, Glass Mountain held Jabba's personal escape ship. Jabba had left the small creature Onoh to guard it, shortly before his death. (TJT)

Glassine
a material used to form starship viewports. (COJ)

Glastro
this was one of the major cities located on the planet Bimmisaari. (SWJ1)

Glastroan Wine
this wine was produced by the Bimms who lived in the city of Glastro. (SWJ1)

Glaucus
this man was a retired Imperial Navy Captain, and he always wore a form of Imperial Navy uniform during his civilian life. He found work as a starship Captain, and commanded the Stellar Mermaid during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Glauheim
this gas giant was the second planet of the Marcellus System. It had three satellites. (POM)

Glave, Modigal
this Imperial commander was sent to scout the Ishanna System during the height of the New Order. He served under the command of Governor Klime. A seasoned Imperial commando, Glave was a veteran of of thirty or more heated battles before he was assigned to Klime. His face was severely damaged in a battle on Kestos Minor, when a blaster bolt shattered his helmet. The resulting explosion drove dura-armor fragments into his face, but he managed to ignore the pain and subdue the Alliance forces there. This event got him promoted into an elite group of troopers who were destined to become the Imperial Storm Commandos, and earned him the Imperial Medal of Valor. Glave led a group of stormtroopers to the Combat Moon, with the help of the Rabaanite traitor Andos Delvaren. It was Glave who battled Mika Streev and Sh'shak on the Combat Moon, nearly capturing them twice. Glave attempted to kill Sh'shak and shot the S'krrr in the thorax, but not before Streev and Leda Kyss stopped him. In the rescue attempt, Glave's arm was cut off by Streev, but not before Glave was able to fatally shoot Kyss. Glave and his Imperial forces fled the Moon before Alliance agents could supplement the warriors. (SWJ9)

Glayyd
one of Ammuud's seven major clans, the Glayyd clan was the largest and most powerful at the time Han Solo and Fiolla were trying to track down the Corporate Sector Authority's slavery ring. At that time, the Mor Glayyd was Ewwen, and he was involved in the slavery ring. (HSR)

Glide Lizard
this large, black reptile is able to "fly" over short distances by extending the flaps of skin beneath its legs. (POT)

Glider
a lizard-like predator native to Orellon II. (SWAJ)

Glidrick, Stenn
this former Imperial Navy pilot retired and became a civilian starship captain. His last assignment was piloting the Kuari Princess. He was the one who broke the news to Celia Durasha that her brother Raine had been killed on Ralltiir. Glidrick was also in command when the Riders of the Maelstrom boarded the ship and took control of it. Glidrick was killed in the attack. (RM, TFE)

Glie
this is a species of single-celled organisms that is native to the planet Naboo. There are two distinct species of glie, green and red. The green glie grows on the surface of swamps, creating a greenish mass and choking out other swamp plants while consuming any nutrients it can find. Red glie is very similar to green glie, except that it is reddish in color and lives near the bottom of the swamps. The gungans use red glie in a tasty salad dressing. (GF)

Glie'oleg Kru
this Bothan earned a field promotion to Brevet Admiral during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Kru was in command of the Bothan Assault Cruiser Champion during the defense of Kalarba and Hosk Station, but was killed when the Champion was destroyed near Hosk. (BP)

Glim Worm
found on a variety of planets, the many species of glim worm resembled tube-like predators which were covered with sharp scales. They were highly adaptable, living in the desert as well as urban areas. They burrow quite well, and have developed a complex musculature that allowed them to flow across a wide range of surfaces. Glim worms hunted by detected the subtle vibrations caused by the movement of their prey, and had only to come in contact with they prey in order to catch it. Their muscles could then be used to extende their sharp scales, literally grabbing their prey. Just beneath the skin's surface, specialized glands secreted a gluey substance that further enhanced their hold on the prey, and further muscular manipulation literally rolled the prey into the glim worm's mouth. All the prey captured by a glim worm was eaten whole. (COG)

Glimmerfish
a small fish once native to the planet Alderaan, these finger-sized fish swarmed the canals and waterways of the planet. During the mating season, hundreds of eggs are laid by each female, and they all hatch at about the same time. The explosion of tiny glimmerfish turns the waters silvery with their roiling passage. (ISU)

Glimmik
this is a musical form embraced by many non-human species. (VD1)

GlitterFall
this was the codename of the Alliance's base on Elbara Nine, hidden within the Corus-Calis Glacier Ridge. It served as a staging location for Alliance Special Operations forces in the sector, as well as a listening post which spied on the nearby Imperial Navy installation. (HAS)

Glittering Mynock
this species of mynock is slightly less revolting, although equally annoying, as its deep-space cousin. The main difference is in the skin. A glittering mynock's skin will begin to shine and glitter as it sucks power from a battery or other source. The more power it absorbs, the more intense the glittering becomes. (TSK)

Glitterstar
one of several luxury liners which brought the wealthy and powerful to Alakatha, the Glitterstar flew regularly from the resort world to Coruscant during the early years of the New Republic. It was attacked by Phan Riizolo and the Booty Full, a move that Rogue Squadron belived was backed by Leonia Tavira. However, Riizolo had actually severed ties with Tavira, and was operating on his own. (IJ)

Glitterstim
the form of spice mined on Kessel, it is a byproduct of the digestion of the spice grub. In its inert form, it is carried in small, transparent, black fibers. The fibers are almost alive, and twist and curl after being removed from their rocky veins. It takes a delicate hand to uncurl the fibers, because - although they are flexible - are also very brittle. Individual fibers are stored in light-tight containers. This work is time- and labor-intensive, and contributes directly to the high cost of glitterstim on the market. When exposed to light it ripens, becoming a pearly-blue color when ready for use. When consumed, it crackles and sparks due to contact with the light and saliva. It is the only known form of spice which heightens the user's latent mental powers. A user who consumes too much glitterstim often goes blind, and the substance is known to drive a Bith mad. (JS, JASB, TPS)

Glitterstone
a valuable Bothan gemstone. (FOP)

Glitz
this is a progressive form of jizz music. (ML)

Gliz
this raspy, high-tech form of swing music was popular in the Outer Rim Territories. (RM)

Gloan
this species of tree is native to Thyferra. The Vratix species made their homes in the gloan trees, well above the ground. (BW)

Globe of Peace
this Naboo relic resembles a small sphere, inside of which glows an intense, pinkish-white light. It signified the centuries of peace which the Naboo had maintained on their planet. this Gamorrean thug was employed by Toln ne Yerres as a bodyguard and enforcers during the Galactic Civil War. (GG2)

Gloom Dwellers
a gang inhabiting Nar Shaddaa during the Galactic Civil War. (TME)

Glop Grenade
manufactures by Merr-Sonn, these detonation devices release a chemical foam when triggered. The foam has incredible adhesive properties, and clings to everything it touches. When lobbed into a mob or battle phalanx, glop grenades can quickly immobilize attackers. (CSA)

Glorga
this Hutt crimelord operated from a base on Hollast VII. The natives of the planet tried to overthrow his during one of the planet's rebellious insurrections, but the Hutt's henchmen successfully deflected the attack. (SWAJ, AIR)

Glorious
Pakkpekatt's command cruiser, it was a Belarus-class starship. It was used to chase the Teljkon vagabond. (BTS)

Glorious Rise of the New Order, The this was one of the trivial, pro-Imperial dramas produced by Ahric Korownosek and the NovaCluster Players, during the height of the New Order. (SS)

Glory
the Imperial-I class Star Destroyer dispatched to Venzeiia 2 Prime, it was also the flagship sent to recover the mag pulse technology from Galactic Electronics, in the Corporate Sector. Under the command of Admiral Zaarin, the Glory was used to keep Darth Vader at bay until Zaarin could get to Coruscant to capture Emperor Palpatine. The Glory was Zaarin's escape vehicle from Coruscant when Vice Admiral Thrawn showed up with the Vanguard and the modified corvette Mescue. (TIE)

Glory of Yevetha
this was the name given by the Yevetha to the recommissioned Super-class Star Destroyer EX-F. (BTS)

Glory Street
a thoroughfare located in the city of Zehva, on Melida/Daan. (UP)

Glott
this Gotal bounty hunter was brought to the planet M'haeli by Governor Grigor to help root out the pockets of Alliance supporters, in an effort to locate Ch'no and Mora. Glott used his species' ability to sense the Force as a defense mechanism, reading his opponents' moves a slip-second before they make them. Glott was captured by Ranulf Trommer at Grigor's dragite mines, but Merrik intervened and allowed Glott to escape. The Gotal continued to pursue Trommer and Mora, but was killed by Trommer when he rescued Mora from Grigor. (ROC)

Glottal
this forested, swamp-covered planet is the homeworld of the Glottalphib race. (TNR)

Glottalphib
this cold-blooded, seal-like race is native to the planet Glottal. Taller than Wookiees, they have articulated hands and large tails, and their bodies are covered with scales. These scales are normally a greenish-yellow color, but this color darkens to brown as the Glottalphib ages and the scales begin to fall out. These scales form an armor-like skin which can resist most blaster bolts. A unique characteristic of the Glottalphib is their respiratory system, which produces ignitable gases as a byproduct. The Glottalphibs use these gases as a defense mechanism as well as a hunting implement, igniting the gas and spouting flames from their noses. A cold-blooded race, the Glottalphib are nevertheless larger than Wookiees in size. (TNR)

Glottlefish
this small, tasty fish is found in the oceans of the planet Calamari. (JASB)

Glova
this semi-tropical planet was first colonized aome 200 years before the Battle of Endor. A lode of precious metals made the planet grow quickly, but the mines petered out just as fast as they were opened. The planet's economy soon turned toward agriculture, and Glova became a major supplier of foodstuffs to other planets in the region. The average day on Glova lasts 22.3 standard hours, and its year lasts 375 local days. (POC)

Glow Dome, The
owned by Corinna and Kandria A'Daasha, this establishment was known as "the bright center of Minos Cluster." Located on Adarlon, the Glow Dome was named for the intensely bright lights which spill into the sky above the building. The interior lighting is equally as bright, being populated with a variety of SenseLights, and the owners took no responsibility for injured retinas. The main building was an immense dome, situated atop a cliff overlooking the city. It was rumored that a group of Derriphan lurked within the Dome. (WSV)

Glove of Darth Vader
when Luke Skywalker battled Darth Vader aboard the second Death Star, Luke severed Vader's right hand in a lightsaber duel. It was thought that the hand was lost, flung into deep space when the Death Star exploded near Endor. The Prophets of the Dark Side foretold that it would be found by the next ruler of the galaxy. It was also beleived that the glove wsa indestructible. Captain Dunwell later found the glove in a piece of Death Star wreckage on Calamari. It was believed by Trioculus that the glove also gave the wearer the power to choke a victim without actually touching them, although this was proved false when Trioculus couldn't do it. Emdee-5 then modified the glove to perform a similar duty when Trioculus aimed it, to cover up Trioculus' lack of Force sensitivity. (GDV)

Glow Pearls
precious gemstones. (HSE)

Glow Spider, The
this bar, located near Monument Plaza on Coruscant, was the hangout of Nici the Specialist. It was located on Level 132, megablock 17, block 5, subblock12 of Imperial City. (TPS)

Glow-cutter
this was a form of weapon produced during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Glowcrystal
a light source (DA)

Glower
a species of floating algae that lives in the atmosphere of the gas giant Bespin. These bioluminescent creatures give off a purplish glow that lights up the night side of Bespin. Many of the visitors to the planet wait on the observation decks of floating cities to witness the nighttime glow produced by the glowers. (GG2, ISU)

Glowfish
this bioluminescent fish is raised as a decorative pet. (SHA)

Glowlamp
a small, light-emitting device used to pinpoint light. (DA)

Glowpanel
a large, light-emitting device used to illuminate a large area. (DA)

Glowpoint
the star-like power source found in Hollowtown on Centerpoint Station, Glowpoint is a strange, hovering light source that is suspended in the exact center of Hollowtown and the station. None of the station's inhabitants knew how it was powered, but one theory held that it drew power from the gravitational interflux between Talus and Tralus. (SC)

Glowrod
a portable light source. (SWSB)

Glowstone
1) any form of glowlamp which has been shaped to resemble a rock or stone. They are used in decorative outdoor arrangements. (KT)
2) this is the Qella name for the star N'oka Brath, which is the primary solar body of the Qella system. (TT)

Glowtile
an auto-luminescent decorative tile that can be placed into floors, ceilings, or walls to provide light. They can also be custom-made to form intricate patterns when positioned correctly. Xizor had a set of glowtiles created to form a map of the galaxy on the ceiling of his Imperial City palace. (SSE)

Glowtube
a stationary light source. (AS)

Glurpfish
a creature was native to Calamari, the glurpfish sieves food from the water it lives in. It is made up of protoplasm, and has no discernible form. It is a sluggish creature which gains sustenance by filtering out microorganisms from the surrounding waters. Schools of glurpfish made disgusting burping sounds as they gulped water at the surface of the ocean. (COTF, E1A7)

Glurrg
one of Captain Huba's henchmen. (DRO)

Gluss'elta Islands
this chain of twelve islands is located on the planet Kintan. (GG12)

Gluss'sa'Nikto
this race of Nikto is also known as the Pale Nikto, and evolved on the Gluss'elta Islands of Kintan. (GG12)

Gluttonbug
a Corellian insect which has a voracious appetite for woody plants. They can clear a small forest in no time, if not destroyed. (BW)

GLX Firelance
this was a model of SoroSuub blaster rifle. (IA)

Glymphid
this is a species of long, thin-bodied aliens with a long, tooth-studded snout. They are native to the planet Ploo II, in the Ploo Sector of the galaxy. (IG1, RAC, IWE1)

Glyptograph
this was the term used to describe the basic elements of the Ithorian written language. (VOF)

Glythe Sector
location of the Noghri commandos' Valrar base. (DFR)

Gmir Askilon
this dim star (planet?) was where Lando Calrissian and Pakkpekatt intercepted the Teljkon vagabond. Lando, along with R2-D2, C-3PO, and Lobot, was able to penetrate the vagabond's defenses, but the ship registered their presence and leapt into hyperspace. Pakkpekatt's fleet was left to ponder what happened to them and what their next move should be. Note that Tyrant's Test names this stellar body Gmar Askilon. (BTS, SOL, TT)

GML 32i
this guided missile launcher was produced by Bryn & Gweith during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Gnardly
this is a slang adjective, used to denote something less that wonderful. (SLS)

Gnarltree
the huge, twisted trees that grow in the swamps of Dagobah, these trees were named for their large, exposed root systems. The tree itself is made up of centuries of calcified, woody growth. They are covered with all manner of fungus, lichen, and small creatures. One of the more unique aspects of the gnarltree is that, when it wants to reproduce, it doesn't use pollen or spores. Instead, the gnarltree grows a specialized form of mobilized roots known as a knobby white spider. This spider is really an animated tree which consumes food until it is ready to plant itself in the ground and become a new gnarltree. (DS, ISU)

Gnathgrg
this small, disgusting creature was native to the planet Trandosha. (MA)

Gnisnal
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was destroyed when it malfunctioned during the evacuation of Narth and Ihopek. The explosion that rocked the ship tore it nearly in half, and left behind major pieces of flotsam, including a fully-operative datacore. The New Republic junker Steadfast discovered the Gnisnal on a routine mission, and was able to recover the datacore. The information in the Star Destroyer's core was later used to identify the ships of the Black Fleet. (BTS)

Gnithian Oep
this creature, native to the Jospro Sector, was known as the original host of the ix dbukrii parasite. (TBSB)

GNK
a box-shaped, bipedal power droid produced by Industrial Automaton. (SW, COTF, BTM)

Gno
this Old Republic Senator supported the Alliance during his tenure with the Imperial Senate. When that body was dissolved by Emperor Palpatine, he resigned his position and went underground. Following the Battle of Endor, he was re-elected to serve the New Republic as a Senator. He was one of Leia Organa-Solo's supporters, and believed - as she did - that the election of former Imperial supporters would fractionalize the Senate. (TNR)

Gnosos
this Sunesi was an employee of CorDuro Shipping, but was one of the few who did not support the company's plans to turn Duro over to the Yuuzhan Vong. After Jacen Solo was imprisoned by Durgard Brarun, Gnosos provided Jacen with a datacard that contained his own voiceprint, which would key a shuttle in the hangar of Port Duggan, allowing Jacen to escape. (BP)

Gnullith
this star-shaped creature was genetically altered by the Yuuzhan Vong to serve as a form of breathing apparatus. When applied to the user's face, the gnullith sealed itself to the skin and extended one of its appendages down the user's throat. This provided a way to pass breathable air into the user's lungs. Two other appendages closed off the user's nose, protecting against intrusion of the foreign atmosphere. The gnullith allowed the Yuuzhan Vong to travel underwater and in toxic environments without pause. The New Republic's military forces discovered that a warrior wearing a gnullith could be killed if a shot was placed in the very center of the gnullith's body. (VP, BP)

Go Home
a song written and played by the band Starburst. It was first released as part of the compilation StakeOut. (GG9)

Gobindi
1) this planet, with a landscape dotted with ancient ruins, was the site of an Imperial biowarfare laboratory during the Galactic Civil War. The fifth planet in its system, Gobindi was the homeworld of the Gobindi race. Much of the planet is covered by dense jungle. (GOF3)
2) this alien race was native to the planet Gobindi, though they were extinct long before the Battle of Yavin. The Gobindi were master architects, and built huge ziggurats in the deep jungles of the planet. While many of the stepped pyramids had rooms and passageways, several were completely solid. It was these ziggurats which were built to contain the deadly viruses the Gobindi discovered in the jungles. They were wiped out by one such virus, known as the Gobindi virus, but not before they discovered a way to cure it. In their dying actions, they carved the formula for the antidote into the ziggurat's walls. (GOF3)

Gobindi Virus
this deadly strain of virus was discovered by the ancient Gobindi race, which eventually contracted it and was wiped out by it. It was re-developed by the Empire's Biological Warfare Division for use as a weapon. A sample of the virus was entombed in a huge ziggurat, built by thre Gobindi in an effort to stop it from spreading. Before they were all killed by the virus, the Gobindi managed to discover a cure for its actions. However, they were unable to administer it in time. they managed to carve its formula on the stepped walls of the ziggurat, in case the virus escaped. It thrives in hot, humid envirnments, but was initially not very contagious, requiring a liquid medium to move from one host to the next. Imperial scientists discovered a way to allow to move through the air. The virus itself resembled a tiny, horned eel, and wrapped its host in a coating of green slime to maintain its environment. This slime allowed the host to move about, thereby increasing the chances of further transmission. (GOF3)

GoCorp
manufacturers of cargo skiffs, such as the Arunskin 32. (TME)

Golan Arms
a renowned military emplacement manufacturer which produced small, anti-infantry weapons and huge orbital defense platforms. (ESB, SWSB, CSA)

Golan Arms Batteries
cylindrical turret-style anti-infantry guns similar to those used by the Alliance to defend the Echo Base on Hoth. (ESB, DFR)

Golan I Defense Platform
this orbital space station was an entry-level design. It measured 1,231 meters across, and was manned by a crew of 213 and 112 gunners. Up to 40 troops could be stationed inside its perimeter, along with 5,000 metric tons of cargo. The Golan I was armed with 28 turbolaser batteries, 5 proton torpedo launchers, and 6 tractor beam projectors. (TTSB, SOP)

Golan II Battle Station
a midorbit space station, this Golan defense station measured 2,158 meters in length and about a kilometer in width. It was armed with an array of 35 turbolaser batteries, 8 tractor beam projectors, and 10 proton torpedo launchers. The Empire used them to guard the shipyards at Bilbringi. Each Golan II required a crew of 500, along with 149 gunners and up to 80 troops. It could also store about 10,000 metric tons of consumables, enough for about 3 months of living. (TLC, TTSB, IR)

Golan III Battle Station
a massive, midorbit spacestation, the Golan III was the largest station Golan Arms produced. It measured 2,600 meters in length, and required a crew of 880 along with 228 gunners. It could house up to 100 troops and 15,000 metric tons of cargo. Each Golan III was armed with50 turbolsaer batteries, 24 proton torpedo launchers, and 15 tractor beam projectors. The New Republic used two of them to help defend Coruscant. (TLC, TTSB)

Golan III NovaGun
this was another name for the Golan III Battle Station. (FOP)

Golanda
a stern-looking woman, she is the artillery innovations and tactical deployment expert at the Maw Installation. Golanda was the eldest daughter of a wealthy Imperial industrialist, and attended the finest schools in the Empire. She worked at the Imperial Ordnance Research Facility on Shumogi before accepting the position at the Maw. Her acceptance came only after Tol Sivron blackmailed her into taking the position, and she has held a grudge against him ever since. She is killed when the prototype Death Star is dragged into the Maw's black holes and destroyed. (COTF, JASB)

Gold Beaches
a tourist attraction on the planet Corellia in the Corellian System. (AC)

Gold Devil
a speciallized group of Y-Wings used during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Gold Five
Talos "Pops" Merkin's callsign during the Battle of Yavin (SW, JPL)

Gold Four
this Y-Wing, piloted by Lieutenant Lepira, served as the point fighter during the initial stages of the Alliance's attack on the first Death Star, during the Battle of Yavin. (CCG9)

Gold Leader

Golden Dreams
this SoroSuub medium transport ship was part of Drea Renthal's pirate fleet. It had been modified to carry a group of Z-95 Headhunters and discharge them into battle. (THG)

Golden Globe
this mysterious, glowing orb was discovered by the Jedi Master Ikrit some 385 years before the Battle of Yavin. He was unable to penetrate its force field, and the energy radiating from it told him that no adult Jedi would be able to either. So, he curled himself up at the base of the sphere and guarded it until a young Jedi would appear to solve its riddle. This Jedi turned out to be two youngsters, Anakin Solo and Tahiri. They were able, with Ikrit's help, to determine that the Globe held the spirits of thousands of Massassi youths trapped by Exar Kun four millennia before. The Globe could only be opened by a youthful Jedi. Adult Jedi would destroy the Globe and kill the Massassi trapped inside. (GG, LW)

Golden Orb
a bar and restaurant located on Nar Shaddaa. Han Solo frequented the bar after he returned to Nar Shaddaa from the Corporate Sector. (THG, RD)

Golden Ravine
this was the name given by the Majan to a rift valley located on the planet Baroonda. (RAC)

Golden Spoon
a culinary award presented to some of the galaxy's best chefs. (TJP)

Golden Sun
a living community of sentient coral polyps on the planet Sedri. They are Force-sensitive, and use it along with their numerous minds to produce a continual source of energy for the colony. The polyps that make up the Golden Sun are revered by the Sedrians, and the Sedrian priests have some Force sensitivity and can sometimes communicate with the coral polyps. The huge mass of polyps, all in contact with the Force, has tended to create massive gravity readings near the planet, causing hyperspace travel near the planet to be somewhat hazardous. The organism gives off a golden glow as it lives, and the planet Sedri appears to glow brightly when viewed from space. The energy produced by the Golden Sun has a limited ability to heal another living organism. When the Sedrian priests enclosed the caves of the Golden Sun in the domed city of Fitsay, the Golden Sun was not amused. This construction cut off much of the water supply to the polyps, reducing the amount of food they could obtain. The Golden Sun has been trying to find a way to get rid of the priests without causing damage to itself ever since. If a piece of the Golden Sun were broken off, it would produce a sonic wave of pain that cut through the mind of most living beings. The piece would stop glowing and turn a dull green as the living polyps went into a hibernation trance, waiting to be reunited with the main body of the Golden Sun. When Pek, Fala, and a group of Alliance agents tried to capture Karak, they were able to link their minds to that of the Golden Sun. They all realized that the only way for the Sun to survive would be to scatter itself across the planet's oceans, reducing its power and breaking Karak's will. With a great effort, the Golden Sun actually exploded, freeing itself from the Great Shell Dome and scattering new colonies across the surface of Sedri. Over time, the Golden Sun eventually recovered its strength. (GG4, BGS)

Golden Yoke
this was the name given to the special, gold-painted Blade-28 starfighter used by Pekaelic ke Teldan, the perator of Cartann, during his early conquests. (SOA)

Goldenrod
a nickname given to C-3PO by Han Solo during their escape from the Echo Base on Hoth. (ESB)

Golga Besadii Fir
this Hutt represented Nal Hutta to the New Republic, but only as an envoy and not as a full Senator. A member of the Besadii kajidic by birth, it was said that Golga had a touch of the Desilijic clan in him, mainly because he had a desire for human women. After it was learned that Borha the Hutt had made a deal to ally the Hutts with the Yuuzhan Vong, Golga ousted from Coruscant. He agreed to meet with Viqi Shesh, who tried to gather information on the Yuuzhan Vong's next moves. (JE)

Golh
this aquatic planet was the site of several weapons and equipment laboratories established by the Hydrodspeare Corporation during the height of the New Order. (AIR)

Goliath
this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer was placed in position to defend an Imperial Golan I platform, shortly before the Battle of Endor. The platform facility used a great deal of slave labor, and came under attack by the Alliance. The Alliance succeeded in liberating the slaves, despite the presence of the Goliath. (XWA)

Golkus
this planet was visited by Akanah as she flew from Carratos to Coruscant to find Luke Skywalker. It was on Golkus that she obtained a set of falsifies identification papers from Talon Kaarde, along with a smuggler's kit to keep the Mud Sloth anonymous. (SOL)

Golnca
this Socorran term of respect literally translated into Basic as "grandfather." It was used whenever a being met an Ibhaan'I shaman in the desert, an event which many Socorrans considered to be an omen. The omen could mean good fortune or certain doom, depending on the extenuating circumstances. (BSS)

Golthan, Bregius
this Imperial Advisor was stationed on Wroona early in the Galactic Civil War, and was assigned to overseeing the security of the Colonies and the Core Worlds by Emperor Palpatine himself. After the Battle of Endor, Golthan was charged with hunting down and wiping out the Black Curs. He was a tall, gaunt man who always wore dark robes and an odd hat. He was called to the planet Canyon by Guldus Bemm, who had captured a group of New Republic agents after luring them to the planet. The agents managed to escape Golthan’s grasp, but he made off with Platt Okeefe. Golthan took her to his fortress on Voktunma, but the New Republic agents managed to infiltrate the planet and rescue her. In the process, they also destroyed much of Golthan’s fortress. (SWJ8, SWJ13)

Golthar's Sky
an imaginary starship created by Aleema during the Great Sith War. (TSW)

Goluud Corridor
this risky hyperspace route was discovered by Jori and Gav Daragon, a thousand years before the Great Sith War. It involved a jump past the unstable red giant Primus Goluud, but was approved by the Navigator’s Guild. It was deemed too dangerous, however, when the Cha’a drone ship Zeta Five was drawn too near Primus Goluud and exploded. The Daragons were discredited because of this, and were forced to flee Cinnagar. (GAS)

Goluud Minor
this planet orbited Primus Goluud some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. It supported a small mining colony. (GAS)

Gomex Moss
this simple form of plant is one of several first-generation plants used in terraforming. Gomex moss takes hold even in rocky, barren soils, since it consumes very little water. The moss breaks down the rocky soil, converting solid matter into its constituent elements. These elements are then easier to get to for second-generation plants like brachniel and balcrabiian. (POT)

Gommdora, Beyorth
this sentientologist wsa a member of the teaching staff at the University of Huvveck. He was known for his theory that a plague wiped out the Wasilsi race of Joralla, which had been "seeded" on the planet and not native. Their immune systems were not ready to combat the viruses on Joralla, and they died out before a vaccination could be discovered. (PG1)

Gonar
one of the many skulking humans who inhabited the lower levels of Jabba the Hutt's palace. He had a pig-like nose and bright red, curly hair. He sometimes assisted Malakili. Somehow, Gonar discovered that Malakili had made a deal with Lady Valarian, and threatened to spill the beans to Jabba if Malakili didn't flee Tatooine and leave the rancor to him. Malakili killed Gonar by clubbing him with a huge bone, and then fed the poor boy to the rancor. (TJP)

Gondar
a sweaty, disgusting creature whose tusks are often used as ornamental decorations. (COJ, TJP)

Gondara
this yong Aqualish female was the younger sister of Tamo Lan's best friend, Karlon. When Karlon was killed by Imperial forces on Bresnia, Tamo Lan took Gondara under his wing. She, like her brother, decided to join the Alliance, and became a skilled thief as well as medical assistant to Lan. (SWJ10)

Gondry
this one-eyed, hulking Abyssin was a native of the planet Byss. Djas Puhr employed the brute while he was working for Sebulba as a slaver, since Gondry's strong muscles and formidable appearance helped dissuade a captive from struggling too much. Like all Abyssin, Gondry had incredible regenerative abilities, and could heal himself quickly and even restore a lost arm or leg. (E1A5)

Gopple
an Old Republic Senator from Erigorm, Gopple was one of the Senators who believed in short-changing the Republic by compromising on various expenses, such as starships and their components. He came under heavy fire from the Republic's Navy, and from then-Admiral Jerjerrod specifically, for the poor state of the firepower it held. (ISB)

Gopps Forest
this wooded area is located near Tiems. (RASB)

Gopso’o
this race is native to the planet Nim Drovis. The Gopso’o were sworn enemies of the other native race, the Drovians, even during the New Republic’s negotiations to place a sector medical base on the planet. It was believed that the centuries-old feud stemmed from an argument over whether the root word for “truth” was plural or singular. The Gopso’o resemble the Drovians in stature, but have mostly hairless heads. The hair that does grow on their heads is braided with animal totems of plastic and rubber. (POT)

Gopsthal
located on the planet Woostri, this city is the administrative capital of the world. A large number of NeuroSaav Model 608 Mega'puters were installed in the city, and control the daily operations of the entire planet. (TTSB)

Gor’telp
this Kler’terrian was employed as the bartender at Shilley’s. (GCQ)

Gorak
this species of bird was native to the planet Alderaan, and was hunted for its tasty meat. (RF)

Gorak Khzam
this Rodian was once a member of the Sabiador Slavers, and later served as the First Officer aboard the FarStar, serving under Captain Kaiya Adrimetrum. When Uta T’cha revealed Khzam’s past, much of the crew threatened to kill him, having once been slaves themselves. Captain Adrimetum relieved Kham of his duties until she could sort it all out for herself. Meanwhile, Khzam began plotting a defection with Nizzal. When the FarStar landed on Uukaablis, Nizzal managed to smuggle Khzam aboard the Muvon while claiming she was along to collect supplies. Khzam suddenly reappeared after the crew had exited the freighter, and delayed their pursuit by throwing a thermal detonator at them. Nizzal then flew the ship into Kathol Sector and they disappeared. (DARK, KO, KR)

Goratak III
this odd world is dominated by its wild, crystalline landscape. (MB)

Gorath
this Imperial light cruiser was part of Warlord Foga Brill's fleet. It was commanded by Voba Dokrett during the chase for the Teljkon vagabond. Dokrett attacked the vagabond, and the ship responded with force. The Gorath was disabled by the vagabond, with all hands lost in the attack. (SOL, TT)

Gorax
a huge, humanoid behemoth native to the Forest Moon of Endor, it is an ape-like monster with long, black hair, large, tufted ears, and a pig-like snout. It is carnivorous, and preys on any living creature is can get its hands on. The gorax lives in the limestone mounds that are found beyond the Desert of Salma. The average gorax stands almost thrity meters tall, which allows it to reach the tree-villages of the Ewoks and capture them for food. Sometimes, a gorax will capture Ewoks simply as pets. The gorax keeps a ready supply of food, as indicated when one captured Jeremitt and Catarine Towani and kept them caged for later consumption. Cindel and Mace are able to rescue their parents from the Gorax, with the help of the Ewoks. The Gorax was killed when it fell from into an underground chasm. Many goraxes have been known to kill a boar-wolf mother as she is giving birth, killing the mother and all the pus except for the one it likes. It takes the surviving pup and keeps it as a pet. (DA, EA, ISU)

this huge Houk ran a cantina near the primary starport on the planet Phorliss. Gorb hired Mara Jade as a serving girl when she fled from Ysanne Isard. He had planned to run the cantina with his son, but the youth got killed in a war that started over a trivial matter. He was indebted to Black Nebula for the funds used to purchase and maintain the cantina, and was eventually killed by the enforced Plattahr for not keeping up with his payments. (MJEH)

Gorbah
when the Empire tried to subjugate this planet, the natives used a series of four hidden starship bases to launch sniper attacks on the Imperial fleet. They nearly succeeded, losing out only to the sheer size of the Imperial war machine. The survivors fled the system after the Imperial takeover. (SWAJ)

Gorbu Dalo
this minor Hutt crimelord was a rival of Yearo Seville, until Seville rescued his mother from an attack by the droid MdZ-BLK. Seville sent the droid to Gorbu as a "gift," but the droid's unstable personality snapped under Gorbu's control. The droid killed Gorbu after its hatred of the Hutt grew too strong. (CRO)

Gorc
this Dark Jedi, along with his twin Pic, was a member of the group led by Jerec. Gorc was a huge beast, standing more than two meters in height, and was heavily muscled. However, Gorc was slow-witted and slow to move, and relied on his twin's distractive techniques to grab at unsuspecting opponents. Gorc and Pic were defeated by Kyle Katarn during the search for the Valley of the Jedi. (DF2)

Gordal
this young man was considered a genius in the area of computer intelligence. He was part of the team which performed research at the Empire's Lotide outpost during the Galactic Civil War. A Doctor of Computer Science at the time of the Battle of Yavin, Gordal was friendlier to the computer systems on Lotide than to his fellow scientists. He was experimenting with a memory chip that would expand a droid's memory capacity by mor ethan 48 percent when the Alliance infiltrated the labs. (BI)

Gordan
this senile old king of the planet Kheedar was a supporter of the New Order. However, when the Pestage invaded his system, he denounced it vehemently. (GG9)

Gorga
this minor Hutt was Jabba's nephew, and spent much of his early years fawning and grovelling at his uncle's feet in hopes of obtaining some small part of Jabba's empire. When Jabba died, Gorga was given control of Jabba's bank holdings. In a cruel twist, Jabba had actually bequethed to Gorga a small bank, which contained a lowly button. Later in life, Gorga became smitten with the beautiful H'uun, Anachro. He employed Boba Fett to kill Bar-Kooda, as a present to Anachro's father, Orko. Orko and Gorga had never been friends, and Gorga hoped to remedy that and take Anachro's hand in marriage if Bar-Kooda could be eliminated. Fett succeeded, and returned Bar-Kooda's body to Gorga. Gorga had his chefs prepare the body as the main course in a feast at which he asked for Anachro's hand in marriage. When Orko learned just who dinner was, he heartily agreed to let Orko marry Anachro. They were married on Tatootine, and honeymooned on Skeebo. It was on Skeebo that Anachro was kidnapped and held for ransom by the Skavers and Kaptain Voor. Gorga once again called on Boba Fett, who was able to eliminate the Skavers and Voor, as well as Bar-Kooda's older brother, Ry-Kooda, before rescuing Anachro. Just as Anachro discovered she was pregnant, Gorga hired Boba Fett to kill off Orko. He immediately regretted the decision, because he knew it would upset Anachro and complicate the pregnancy, thereby reducing the chances that he would have an heir. In the confusion that followed, Orko was killed by Ry-Kooda, who had come to exact his own revenge. The Koodan then turned to Gorga and Anachro, but Boba Fett managed to kill off the Koodan before any damage could be done. Shortly afterward, Anachro gave birth to a strong Huttlet. (BF, TJT)

this alien creature was native to the planet Trinta, where it was corrupted by the Dark Side of the Force. It has a number of internal organs which can survive outside its body. Gorgon an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer stationed at the Maw Installation by Grand Moff Tarkin, the Gorgon was the flagship of Admiral Daala, under the command of Commander Kratas. It suffered major damage when the Cauldron Nebula was destroyed y the Sun Crusher, and was further damaged when Daala tried to defend the Maw Installation. The ship was loaded with information on the weapons designed at the Maw and brought to the Core Systems, where it was scrapped. (JS, DA, COTF)

Gorgy-bird
the females of this species of avian get so heavy after laying their eggs that they tend to wobble when they fly. This flight pattern is merely a ruse, meant to lure predators to the mother and away from her nest. (XWRR)

Gorimn Wine
this fermented Wookiee beverage is considered mild, although it packs a wallop to humans. (RD)

Gorjaye, Ranna
this woman served aboard the corvette FarStar as a gunner. She was a cocky X-Wing pilot known by the nickname "Wing-Ripper," who formed a grudging respect for Kaiya Adrimetrum, but she remained a loner aboard the ship despite her relationship with Darryn Thyte. She was also known for her sabacc playing, although much of the crew found her ability to win quite annoying. (DARK, KO, KR)

Gorkin's Rest
a tavern frequented by Platt Okeefe and Dirk Harkness, during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ1)

Gorlan
this Outer Rim planet is the second world in the Gorsh System, and is owned by the Genetech Corporation. It is a hot, desert world with a single moon. (PG1)

Gorliz
this Imperial Moff was known as a lover of jewelry, and each of his fingers was covered with rings. He was chosen to preside over the trial of Reson Nath versus Imperial Prefect Adar. (GG10)

Gorm
1) an alien race native to the moon of Gormdin, the Gorms are small, reptilian humanoids with large eyes and sharp teeth. Their leathery skin is light brown in color, and they have two arms and two legs. As a species, the Gorms are natural hunters, but are known to be peaceful beings when encountered in the wild. During the reign of Emperor Palpatine, the Gorms were hunted for sport, and Gorm-hide hats and bags were popular accessories. The practice of hunting Gorms was outlawed by the New Republic. (WBC)

2) a planet located along the galactic frontier. (TOJC)

Gorm the Dissolver
an alien bounty hunter on Nar Shaddaa. He is part cyborg, part living organism, but no one is sure how much of his body is not organic. (DE1, TME)

Gorm Worm
a medium-sized lizard, about the size of an iguana, it has a head studded with spikes and an extremely venomous bite. They were native to the planet Gorm, and were favored as "pets" as by ancient bounty hunters because of their ability to kill a being with a single bite. (TOJ, TOJC)

Gormdin
this moon orbits the planet Sarrelon IV, and is a temperate world covered with rolling plains, steep plateaus, and moderatey dense forests. Over sixty percent of the moon is covered by water, providing the necessary moisture to maintain its environment. It was believed that Lohn Genden established a base of operations on Gormdin, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Gormdin is inhabited by the reptilian Gorms. The average day on Gormdin lasts 20 standard hours, while its year lasts 180 local days. (WBC)

Gornalak
a predatory reptile native to Taraloon. (SWAJ)

Gornash
a Prophet of the Dark Side, Gornash was a massive human in charge of spy activities for the Prophets on Scardia. (MMY, PDS)

Gorneesh
a sly, mean-tempered leader of the Duloks on Endor's forest moon. (ECA)

Gorno
this town, on an unspecified world, was the original development site for the Hammertong project. (TME)

Gornt
a farm animal native to Pakrik Minor, gornts originated on the world of Hethar. The Empire annexed Hethar shortly before the Battle of Yavin, and discovered that these ungainly omnivores could be raised for their flesh, which was sweet, juicy,and highly nutritious. Packaged gornt meat was later added to the rations given to soldiers. The average gornt grew to be a meter or more in length, and had a body which was supprted by huge hind legs and small forelimbs. Their heads were topped with a single horn, and their jaws were frilled with short tendrils. Gornts would eat just about anything, and could digest it with relative ease. This made their flesh highly nutritious, and led to a booming business in raising gornts for meat. Over the years since the Empire annexed Hethar, gornt stocks have been mismanaged. Genetically, there is little variation remaining, and the quality of gornts being produced is sharply declining. (SOP, COG)

Gornt Seron
this Hethas gangster maintained a base on the planet Korbin during the early years of the New Republic. Known as Seron's Castle, it was located in the equatorial mountains of the planet. He was the son of lowly criminals stranded on the planet, but was able to amass a small fortune during his early years. His primary income was from illegal gambling halls, but he was also known to smuggle guns and engage in extortion. Seron once acquired information on the New Republic's plans for eliminating the Imperial presence in the galaxy, and offered to return it for 200,000 credits. The ransom was paid, but the information was never returned. (WBC)

Goroth Prime
this planet, the homeworld of the Gorothite race, was once a lush, forested world. It was devastated during the Aqualish-Corellian War in an event the Gorothites referred to as The Scouring. Over the centuries, the Gorothites adapted to the toxic chemicals which were thrown into the atmosphere. (AE)

Gorothite
this race of reptilian humanoids was native to the planet Goroth Prime. Their large heads were dominated by a bulging brain case, and a series of wattles at their throats were filled with air to form distended sacs. These sacs and wattles were heavily tattooed, and used to display the lineage of an individual Gorothite. Their beady eyes are set back into their skulls, and their sloping foreheads given them a formidable appearance. Their forearms had an extra joint, giving them a flopping appearance. Xenoarchaeologists have discovered that the Gorothites evolved from predatory carnivores who had just discovered sentience when the planet Goroth Prime was nearly destroyed in an event known as The Scouring. The Gorothites were forced down another evolutionary path in order to survive the toxic chemicals thrown into the atmosphere after The Scouring. Marriage and monogamy were unheard of concepts on Goroth Prime, as each j'ber, or clan, strove to strengthen its numbers over the centuries. However, mating between individual j'ber clans was forbidden. (AE)

Gorrlyn
a female Wookiee, she was chosen by Salporin as a mate. The two were separated when the Empire enslaved the Wookiees, and Gorrlyn was widowed when Salporin died trying to protect Chewbacca and Leia Organa Solo on Kashyyyk.
(HTSB)

Gorrm
this tall, thin alien was Ssk Kahorr's chief navigator. Gorrm was killed when Ssk Kahorr and the Starbreaker 12 were destroyed by Naga Sadow. (GAS)

Gorrnar
this is the name of a frozen desert created by Wookiee chefs. (RD)

Gorrt
this Gamorrean worked for Jabba the Hutt, and served as a bodyguard for the Jawa Akkik. (TM)

Gorsa
a species of stout-trunked trees with phosphorescent orange flowers. (TME)

Gorsek, Lile
this scout worked for Commander Deffan and the Fernandin Scouting Expedition, and performed the initial flyby of Yavin 4 during the search for a suitable location for Wetyin's Colony. (GG2)

Gorset
this creature, native to the planet Rhamalai, was a swift-running herbivore which roamed the grassy plains in herds of up to 200 individuals. When Rhamalai was first settled, some 400 years before the Battle of Yavin, the colonists domesticated the gorsets, using them as pack animals and mounts. The average gorset stood about 1.5 meters tall at the shoulder, and was covered with tightly-curled hair. Their manes and tails were made of longer, flowing hair, and their overall coloration ranged form white through brown to black. (SWJ13)

Gorsh
1) this is the primary planet in the Gorsh System, which is owned and overseen by the Geentech Corporation. It is a swampy, damp world which is home to the Orgon race of intelligent plants. The planet's long days (about 64 standard hours) keep it warm, and it thus supports a large number of plants and animals that Geentech has been studying over the years. They have developed a large number of pharmaceutical products from the unique chemical compunds that flourish on the planet. The annual revolution around its sun takes Gorsh 300 local days. The Gorsh System is located in the Outer Rim Territories, and it had a single moon called Tuvvet. (PG1)
2) this yellow star was the central body in the Gorsh System. (PG1)

Gorshian Hands of Death
this six-meter-wide, carnivorous plant was native to the swamps of the planet Gorsh. (PG1)

Gort
this creature resembles a woolamander, but is smaller and has feathers instead of fur. They hatch from small, pink eggs about a year after they are laid. In time, most gorts can be trained to mimic speech. The eggshells are often used in jewelry, and are considered rare and precious. (SHA, CCR)

Gorta
this was the first planet in the Genetech-owned Gorsh System, and was a hot, rocky wasteland. (PG1)

Gortamni
this frigid, ice-covered world is the sixth and final planet in the Gorsh System, located in the Outer Rim Territories. (PG1)

Gortz
this Imperial was a member of Hell's Hammers. Gortz was a navigator/pilot serving under Sergeant Arbmab. (ISB)

Gorug
this Gamorrean worked for Urais Xhaxin as a guardian and soldier aboard the Free Lance. He was known for his belligerent nature, and Gorug had to be constantly reminded that the crew and passengers aboard the ships they ambushed were not enemies to be vanquished or manipulated. (PP)

Gorum
this species of humanoids was known for their thin, prehensile tail, which they used to hang from branches during their sleep periods. When not in the wild, Gorums would hang from rafters and overhead pipes instead of trees. Gorums had large, red eyes and square earflaps, and used their forked tongues to suck the juice out of their food, be it fruit or flesh. (JH)

Gorvan Horansi
this subspecies of Horansi was native to the planet Mutanda, and was known to be the de facto rulers of the planet. They were excellent hunters, and would hunt other races of Horansi if the need arose. Young males of the Gorvan clans were forced to fight one another to prove their adulthood. The loser, if he didn't die in combat, was exiled. They were distinguished by their golden fur. (PG1)

Gosfambling
1) this planet is the homeworld of the Gosfambling race. (TNR)
2) this alien race is native to the planet Gosfambling. They are a delicate, furred race of creatures who are highly intelligent although soft-spoken. They also have a definite view of things, with very little gray area. There is a saying among the Gosfambling: "Once a loser, always a loser." (TNR)

Goshyn Detention Center
a prison facility maintained throughout the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (TTSB)

Gospic, Feyn
this Colonel in the Alliance served as one of Jan Dodonna's chief strategic advisors during the planning which preceded the Battle of Yavin. It was Gospic's plans which were approved for the approach to the first Death Star. (CCG9)

GOSS
see Galactic Outdoor Survival School (AIR)

Goss, Joreb
this owner of Atrium 41, and master of several slave girls on Atzerri, was Akanah's natural father. He met her mother, Isela Talsava Norand, on Praidau, and they were soon married. They relocated to the planet Gavens, where Akanah was born. However, following the death of Isela, Joreb abandoned his former life and fled to Azterri. There, he became addicted to Rokna Blue and lost most of his memory. When Akanah traveled to Azterri with Luke Skywalkerm she found that Joreb had no idea who she was or whether or not he had ever had a daughter. Akanah realized that he was lost to her, and fled the planet. (SOL)

Gossamer Glider
this small, one-person craft was used as an escape craft by Hume. (CSWEA)

Gossbey Racing Edition
this was a specially-marketed model of the Caelli-Merced CR-43 swoopchasing vehicle. (BSS)

Gossit
this Ithorian merchant sells everything a space traveler could ever need. His general store is found on the herdship Bazaar. (GA)

Gossit's General Store
owned by the Ithorian Gossit, this small business offered its patrons virtually every item they would need to travel anywhere in the galaxy. The only items Gossit refused to sell were weapons, armor, and space suits. (GA)

Gostech, Ulbrek
this Imperial Governor was placed in charge of the planet Gacerian, during the Galactic Civil War. A portly man with black hair and beady eyes, Gostech was popular among the Gacerites because he ackowledged and respected them. He offered the Gacerites a kind, fair version of the New Order, and won their trust. He was 100% loyal to Emperor Palpatine, although his methods were viewed with scorn and contempt by some of his Imperial contemporaries. (PG2)

Gotal
1) a planet, homeworld of the Gotal race (CPL)
2) a humanoid race which possesses a limited ability to sense the Force, the Gotal have grey fur, and two cone-like horns on top of their heads. These horns are actually nerve-filled receptors that register the presence of infrared, radio, light, and electromagnetic emissions. These cones also have the ability to sense the presence of the Force as a vague buzzing. They come from a moon called Antar 4, and have an instinctual distrust of droids, for the droids' energy emissions foul up their sensitive horns. The Gotal have come to rely on their cones for a great many things and, as a consequence, they have a hard time interpreting the emotions of other races. This problem is rumored to have led to the Duinuogwuin-Gotal conflict. The one emotion most Gotal are sure of is love, and falling in love at first sight is a common occurance among prospective mates. When two Gotals mate, they do so for life and begin raising a family as soon as possible. The Gotal are a race of hunters, and have little or no political affiliations. They have one of the few societies which exists in a peaceful anarchy. The Gotal resisted entry into the Old Republic, but had absolutely no desire to join the Empire. (SW, TLC, DFRSB, GG4)

Gotiard
this alien race resembles three-meter-tall, goat-headed gorillas. They have an elaborate social structure despite their primitive appearance, and many of their customers do not extend to strangers. Among the many rituals they have, male Gotiards rub and slap each others' chests when they meet. (GMS)

Gotida
this planet was the primary world of the Goti System. (AIR)

Gottu
an urban combat specialist with Page's Commandos, Gottu prefers to do battle with a vibroaxe. (HTSB, DFRSB)

Gouger
an Imperial groundcraft used to reduce construction to rubble and melt it down into usable materials. They are similar to construction droids, but only produce raw materials. They cannot synthesize these materials into useful objects. (CSWDW)

Gourdfruit
a large, ovoid melon. (MA)

Gourmet Master 500
a starship food preparation unit used on pleasure ships. (DFRSB)

Government House
this was the primary governmental building, located on the planet Ord Mantell. (HT)

Government Village
the only stationary Chevin communities, Government Villages are comprised of the various Chevin dictators and their hand-picked advisors. Each of the 24 or so Chevin communities has a Government Village, each ruling a nation of continent on Vinsoth. (GG12)

Govia, Rennt
this Bakuran senator was one of the few totally pro-Imperial senators at the time of the Battle of Endor. He strongly supported Wilek Nereus as the planetary Governor, and worked to undermine the efforts of Prime Minister Captisan. Rennt came from a prominent Bakuran family, and his great-grandparents were financial backers of the Bakur Corporation. He considered himself something of a Core Worlders, despite his Bakuran heritage, mainly because of his education on Corulag. After graduation, he molded himself into a model of the Human High Culture, but was considered self-centered and despicable by his peers. (TB, TBSB)

Govian
an alien race. (MTS)

Gowcara
this Sullustan word means “cascade.” It was the codeword used by Alliance personnel on Stronghold to indicate the Cascade hideout. (OS2)

Gowdawl
this planet was the destination of the Star Morning, a Koqus Starliner that left Motexx fully loaded. It disappeared, and was lost for a year until it suddenly showed up on Arat Fraca. (SOL)

Gowix Computers
this subsidiary of TaggeCo is one of the top twenty Core companies, being based on the planet Corulag. (CSA, FOP)

Gozric
this Imperial Moff ruled the Wyl Sector during the New Order. (CSA)

GPE-3130
this was a model of podracer built by Galactic Power Engineering. With a top speed of 775 kilometers per hour, it was a moderately fast machine. Most unusual about the GPE-3130 was its U-shaped cockpit, with the Steelton control cables mounted at the ends of the U and the driver’s seat in the rounded part. The cockpit of the GPE-3130 measured 3.53 meters in length, while the engines measured 3.81 meters in length. (IG1)

GPT-117
this was Ubrikkian's general purpose troop transport skiff. (OE)

Gra, Mulvek
this aging Imperial officer was a good friend of Jared Brojtal, and was like an uncle to Brojtal's son. Gra himself was too old for field work, but served under Brojtal as a Sergeant in the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigation on Celanon. When word of the death of Brojtal's son reached him, Gra made every effort to hire the best bounty hunters available to locate Ort Hoogra-D'En. (ND)

Gra Ploven
this planet, the homeworld of the Ploven race, was nearly destroyed during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. Imperial forces aboard the Star Destroyer Forger boiled the planet's water by repeatedly firing turbolasers into lakes and seas. The resulting steam boiled the Ploven alive. (SOL)

Gra'aton
ancient Jedi Master who worked with Yoda and Vulaton on Dathomir to try and save the Chu'unthor. (CPL)

Graaa'shad
this fire-spirit lived deep down in the lowest leves of the Kashyyyk forest. Legends claim that one day the Graaa'shad captured the Wookiee warrior Urothko, and prepared to kill him. Luckily for Urothko, the elder Stalpaac intervened. Stalpaac shot the spirit with a bowcaster quarrel, then the two Wookiees launched an attack on the spirirt. Graaa'shad quickly retreated and fled, screaming that one day it would get revenge. In the aftermath of the battle, Urothko pledged his life to Stalpaac, since the older Wookiee had risked his own life to save him. The story of Urothko's rescue quickly spread to other villages, and the tradition of the Wookiee life-debt was created. (TTSB)

Graabaas
(TIE)

Graak
this Ewok was known as a cunning warrior among Chief Chirpa's forces. He often used the tactic of circling around his prey and cutting off their escape routes before attacking. (CCG10)

Graal'diin
the father of Brenn and Dellis Tantor was killed by Alliance forces while trying to deliver medical supplies to this planet. (FC)

Grabber
an old-style weapon. (CSWEA)

Grabvine Gateway
this was one of several podraces that were sanctioned by the pro circuit, and wound through the coastal areas of the Baroo continent of the planet Baroonda, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Grabworm
a species of predator that lives in the swamps of Toydaria and lunges from concealment to catch its prey. (IG1)

Grace, The
a reference to anything good in life, used by Labria. (TME)

Grada
the creators of the finest Cassandran Choholl in the galaxy. (GG9)

Gradilis Sector
this area of the galaxy is located on the boundary between the Unknown Regions and Wild Space. (SOP)

Graeber, Dennix
this Imperial governor was placed in charge of Ralltiir by Lord Tion. He was quite adept at rooting out and eliminating Alliance holdings on the planet. Unfortunately for Dennix, he was remembered by many historians as the Governor of the first Imperial-held planet to be liberated by the New Republic. (FOP, SWJ9, HR)

Grael
this Ewok warrior and Alliance supporter was imprisoned on the space station in the Balis-Baurgh System with Junas Turner. A revered member of the Panshee tribe, Grael was known as an expert musician and hunter. He first met Junas when he was attacked by a yootak, and Junas helped kill the beast. They were shortly discovered by the Imperials who were on the forest moon of Endor during the construction of the second Death Star, and sent to Balis-Baurgh. There, Junas discovered that Grael was somewhat Force-sensitive, and could use his flute to play music which seemed to coerce weak-minded individuals. (SWJ1)

Graemon
this Imperial supporter was one of the leading financial experts running the installation on Muunilinst, some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Admiral Pellaeon discovered that Graemon was one of the primary moneymen funneling Imperial funds into the procurement of Preybird-class starfighters from the Cavrilhu Pirates, under the direction of Moff Disra. Graemon even had ties to New Republic financial and commodities interests. (SOP)

Graf
this New Republic Navy Admiral was promoted to head of Fleet Intelligence shortly after the Battle of Endor. During the Black Fleet Crisis, Graf was responsible for mopping up the damage caused by the leaking of information on Republic casualties in the Koornacht Cluster. The information, leaked by Hiram Drayson in an effort to bolster Leia Organa-Solo's acceptance by the public, came from tapes and recordings held by only three individuals. Graf was able to locate the original three copies, plus three unauthorized versions, but could never discover the actual leak. (TT)

Graf-spanners
this multi-piece gliz band was made up of six penguin-like aliens, and often performed on the Kuari Princess. (RM)

Graff, Skent
this man served the New Republic as the Captain of the Soothfast during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. It was Graff and his crew who were involved in the recovery of the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan and her familiar, Vergere, shortly after the destruction of the planet Obroa-skai. His father had been part of the crew of the Corbantis, rescued near Damonite Yors-B by Han Solo. Unfortunately, Graff's father contracted the virus of the Death Seed plague and soon died. (HT)

Graffe, Jander
Graffe was the heavy-handed Moff who ruled the Darpa Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He was assigned to the sector shortly before the Battle of Yavin, in an effort to stamp out rebellious activity. (SWJ8, FOP)

Gragra
this female Swokes Swokes lived in the city of Mos Espa, and sold food in a street-corner market during the period of time leading up to the Battle of Naboo. Jar Jar Binks tried to steal a chuba from Gragra's store, but was caught by the huge alien. (SW1, YJC1, IG1)

Grahn
this tough, sinewy vine is native to the forested swamplands of Naboo. The Gungans braid grahn vines together to make strong ropes. The flesh of the grahn vine is unappetizing to the Gungans, but many swamp creatures eat it regularly. (GF)

Grahvess, Emd
this man was generally considered the greatest freelance architect of the New Order, outside of those beings hired by Emperor Palpatine himself. When the Shell Hutts ordered Gheeta to design and build a new diplomatic complex, Gheeta was given an unlimited budget with which to hire Grahvess. However, Grahvess was no dummy. He caught wind of Gheeta's plans to kill him once the job was complete, thereby eliminating the need to pay the architect. In a bold move, Grahvess put out a huge bounty on his own head, eventually employing Boba Fett to ensure he was recovered from Circumtore before Gheeta could execute him. In deference to part of the bounty, Fett asked Grahvess to install secret weapons systems and storage compartments in the main hall of the diplomatic complex, for later use in dealing with the Shell Hutts. The plan worked to perfection, and Grahvess escaped the Shell Hutts' grasp. (MA)

Grai'tvo
this male Bothan served as the shields officer aboard the New Republic warship, under the command of Traest Kre'fey. (DTR)

Grain Maggot
an insect native to Nal Hutta, the Hutts roasted them and ate them as a delicacy. (DS)

Graiveh
native to the planet Ealor, this species of tall, furred humanoids was on the cusp of gaining true sentience for several millennia. They lived in groups of 30 to 40 individuals, and were hunters by nature. Their "society" was based on survival of the fittest, with the strongest hunters being allowed to continue the species. They exhibited several traits which indicated they worked for the betterment of their species, including the protection of the young and the females during battle. Graiveh mate for life, and families remained intact for several generations. However, graiveh seemed to understand that genetic diversity would help ensure their survival, so offspring were often exchanged among families in different groups to expand the gene pool. (COG)

Grake
Grake was a Veubg, enslaved by Hethrir and forced to work in the kitchens of the worldcraft Hethrir used for his Empire Youth camp. Grake took great pride in her work, and could not stand to serve the children the thin gruel Hethrir demands. She took every opportunity she can to make her oppressors' lives miserable. (CS)

Grakkyn
this fruit is native to the planet Kashyyyk. The flesh and juice of the grakkyn are fermented to create a potent, alcoholic beverage. (RD)

Grakouine
this planet was the site of an Alliance storage facility during the Galactic Civil War. Following the death of Jabba the Hutt, the Alliance held Boba Fett's ship, Slave I, there for a number of years until they liquidated it to the highest bidder. This person was paid by Fett to purchase the ship for him. (DESB)

Gral-viper
a deadly, poisonous snake known for its swift strike and vicious bite. (TPS)

Graleca
this city is the capital of the planet Jerrilek. (SWAJ)

Gralinyn Juice
this fermented Wookiee beverage is considered mild enough for humans to drink. (RD)

Gralish Liqueur
a form of alcohol preferred by Moranda Savich. (TFNR)

Grall
this planet, the second in the Joralla System, was quarantined during the Galactic Civil War by Moff Debin Seylas. It was a temperate world, blanketed by a poisonous atmosphere. (PG1)

Grallant
this was Lieutenant Haslam's alias when his commando team infiltrated Selnesh's Imperial prison. Grallant was an Imperial officer who was transporting prisoners to Selnesh. Among the prisoners were his assault team, including Liak, Melenna, Gowan, Enkhet, and Aurin Leith. (TFE)

Gralleenya
this is the capital city of the planet Questal. The city is bounded on all sides by the Waste, and was the site of many squabbles during the ardanium rush, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GCQ)

Gralleenya Gala
this festival, held in the city of Gralleenya on Questal, was created by Moff Bandor to celebrate his birthday. The inhabitants of the city - and the planet, as well - were ordered to enjoy themselves, or else. (GCQ)

Grallia
one of the largest cities on the planet Ralltiir. (E1A3)

Grallia Spaceport
this famous, high-tech spaceport was located on Ralltiir. (SWAJ)

Gram Seiglo
a group of Alliance agents met Jenna Lars and Terri Karl in Lola Curich using this name on their reservations. (ML)

Grambo
a Worrt to whom Han Solo once delivered rock ivory. Han witnessed an Ithorian herd meet during the run. (COJ)

Grammel
an Imperial army Captain-Supervisor on Circarpous V, Grammel was known for his ruthless and sadistic behavior. He has pale skin, a growing paunch, and a droopy moustache. His voice has been described as similar to "a piece of machinery long overdue for lubcrication." When he alerted Essada about the existence of the Kaiburr crystal and the presence of Leia Organa on Circarpous V, Essada alerted Darth Vader, who arrived on the planet and ordered Grammel to take Luke and Leia prisoner. The attack failed miserably, and Grammel tried to make the right excuses to appease Vader. Vader had none of it, and bisected Grammel with his lightsaber. (SME)

Gran
a race of three-eyed humanoids native to the planet Kinyen, the Gran have tan skin. Their eyes are set out away from their heads on thick stalks, and they have large ears. Their eyes are adapted for seeing into the visible spectrum as well as the infrared spectrum. They evolved from a herbivorous species, and have two stomachs to digest their food. The females have three breasts, which they use to suckle their young. In general, Gran are peaceful and hospitable, and no conflicts have been noted in their 10,000 year history. They are strongly attached to their families and their race in general; all Gran mate for life, with the survivor usually dying of a broken heart shortly after its mate's death. Their infrared sight allows the Gran to detect their companion's emotional state. The Gran race was hesitant to join the galactic community of the Old Republic, fearing that they would become diluted by huge distances. They remained isolated from the Republic, for the most part, and the Old Republic respected their wishes. After the birth of the New Order, the Gran organized peaceful protests against Palpatine’s rule. However, they were quickly subjugated by the Empire. On their own, the Gran developed space travel, and have developed a healthy trade route with the Herglics. (GG12, TJP, CCG7)

Grand
this was New Republic fighter pilot slang for a Yuuzhan Vong grand cruiser. (DTR)

Grand Aderian Range
this is a huge, kilometer-deep canyon found on the planet Vykos. (SWJ8)

Grand Admiral
this was the highest rank an Imperial Navy officer could reach. At the time of the Battle of Endor, there were only twelve Grand Admirals in the Navy. They were distinguished from other Imperial officers by their stark, white uniforms. The Alliance maintained records of each Grand Admiral's whereabouts, in order to ensure that they didn't get a chance to rally Imperial forces. Among the twelve known Grand Admirals at that time were Grunger, Makati, Takel, Teshik, Thrawn and Rufaan Tigellinus. By the time the Imperial Remnant agreed to a peace treaty with the New Republic, Pellaeon was believed to the only surviving Grand Admiral, a rank he had earned well after the death of Thrawn. (GDV, HTTE, SWJ8, SESB, VOF, FOP)

Grand Alderaanian Gathering
this annual event was held in the royal pavillion of the ruling house of Alderaan. (VOF)

Grand Arena
located in the beautiful Floating City of Aquillaris, the Grand Arena was the starting point for many of the podraces which were hosted by Nave Vengaris during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Grand Audience Chamber
this huge, open space located at the top of the Great Temple on Yavin 4 was left intact by the Alliance engineers who excavated the temple for use as their command base. Its natural beauty was awe-inspiring, and the feelings it invoked could not be modified by future generations. It was here that Princess Leia awarded medals of honor to Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Chewbacca following the Battle of Yavin. Later, Luke Skywalker also chose to leave the chamber intact. (SW, GG)

Grand Chancellor
this was the title used by Palpatine, after he was voted to replace Supreme Chancellor Valorum shortly after the Battle of Naboo. (IS1)

Grand Convocation Chamber
this structure was built to replace the old Senate Hall, destroyed when Dolph’s first attack on the New Republic laid it to rubble. Unlike the Senate chamber, in which the delegates’ seats were arranged in semi-circular rows surrounding a dais, the Convocation chamber had a multitude of configurable blocks of seats. These blocks were arranged in a seemingly random pattern which, when viewed as a whole, spread out in a graceful and stylish array. Each group of seats was separated by soundproof barriers which allowed a clear view of the entire chamber but, when the President deactivated the sound system, isolated each set of delegates and quieted the entire hall. (SOP)

Grand Corridor
located in the Imperial Palace on Coruscant, the Grand Corridor is a tree-lined path that leads to the many assembly halls and meeting rooms used by the Empire and the New Republic. It was built by Emperor Palpatine to link the Council Chamber and the Assemblage auditorium. It intersects the hallway housing the senatorial suites and offices. Palpatine then added the multi-hued ch'hala tress that line it, and thus created the eavesdropping system known as Delta Source. (DFR)

Grand Council
this was the name given to the highest court of Senators in the New Republic. (POT)

Grand Cruiser
this was the New Republic's designation for the largest of the Yuuzhan Vong warships. Later models, used in battle after the destruction of Obroa-skai, had a separate module, known as a keeper, which traveled with them. The keeper contained independent dovin basals, allowing the ship to take fire but not lose shield strength. (DTR, HT)

Grand Daern
this title is given to the leader of the Marasan race. The Grand Daern has direct control of the Mindnet, and makes his decisions based on the data provided by the electnodes. (GG12)

Grand Design, The
this spacers' bar, located in the spaceport on the moon of Travnin, is a circular building famous for its unique design. The entire bar rotates - not just the room, but the holo-projectors, tables, drinking glasses, and certain chairs rotate on their own. Anyone not involved with the transport of goods and services throughout the Minos Cluster is politely asked to leave. (GG6)

Grand Duhka
the Noghri meeting place in Nystao, where all the various clan dynasts and/or maitrakhs meet to discuss planetary issues. It is also referred to as the Common Room of Honoghr. (DFR)

Grand Fleet
the fleet of herdships that encircle the planet Ithor. (SCRE)

Grand Hypergate
located in the ruins outside the city of Satikan, on the planet Asation, this Gree hypergate is thought of as the last remnant of the most ancient and forgotten days of Gree civilization. The Grand Hypergate is actually a circle of seven archways surrounding a central obelisk. The archways are individual hypergates, and the obelisk seems to serve as their control point. The gatemaster of Satikan no longer remembers how to use the Grand Hypergate, although he tries on weekly basis to discover their modes of operation. This weekly attempt to activate the hypergate has taken on a ritualistic feeling. The gatemaster does know, though, that two of the seven gates terminate on Gree, one on Te Hasa, one on Malanose, and a fifth on Licha In. (SWJ8)

Grand Imperial
one of the luxury resorts run by the Empire on Kaal. (SWAJ)

Grand Imperial Union
this affiliation of former Imperial Moffs and their followers was formed in the years following the Battle of Endor. Led by Moff Tragg Brathis, the Union threw its support to Nil Spaar and the Yevetha during their battle against the New Republic. Although Spaar produced a transmission showing Brathis and a fleet of imperial warships, the existence of the Union was never proven. (TT)

Grand Isle
this large island, found on the planet Vladet, was formed from an old volcanic cone. The Empire built a base there, using the natural geothermal energy to power its shield generators. The reason for the base was outwardly claimed to be to discourage piracy in the Rachuk System. (XWN)

Grand Kessel River
a river which runs through a beautiful valley on the planet Kessel, Trioculus blew up the dam that held it back and flooded the river valley, eliminating some troublesome villagers. (QE)

Grand Magnus
a native of the planet Xerton 9. (SWAJ)

Grand Mesra Plateau
this vast flatland separated Mos Espa from Mos Eisley, on the planet Tatooine. (IWE1)

Grand Ministry
this Imperial City edifice housed the various minstries which oversaw day-to-day activity for the New Republic. The building istelf was once part of the Imperial Palace, and served Palpatine as a reception hal. (SOL)

Grand Moff
an Imperial governor, presiding over a sector of the galaxy which has been denoted as a priority sector by the Emperor. The Grand Moff's jurisdiction may span one or more sectors, incorporating part of all of the space ruled over by a Moff. (SW, WEG)

Grand Moff Bank
this was the name of a specialized obstacle used in swoopchasing. It consisted of a large, natural bank or berm which the racers had to fly over. However, a Repulsor-Out obstacle was mounted atop the bank. This required that a racer must accelerate in order to get to the top of the hill, then cut acceleration in order to overcome the Repulsor-Out wall. Once over the wall, the racer had to maneuver their swoop back down the bank. (BSS)

Grand Nest
these are the primary societal bodies of the Arcona race. (GMS)

Grand Oradin Hotel
located in the city of Oradin, on the planet Brentaal, this was the city's most luxurious hotel. It was here that Whistler and Gate had arranged to meet with Talon Kaarde, after they escaped from Ysanne Isard's complex with news of the survival of Rogue Squadron. (IR)

Grand Palace of Gala
this building was the seat of the Beju-Tallah Dynastry's power. Although much of the city of Galu was quite run-down during the last years of the dynasty, the Tallah's managed to maintain the palace's beauty. Built atop the talles of the three hills of the city, the palace was visible from any location in the city. Blue and green gemstones studded the exterior surface of the temple, making it sparkle and shine in the limited sunlight of the planet Gala. The palace ground were covered with wondrous gardens and plantings, which contained samples of virtually every species of plant found on Gala. (HP, MOC)

Grand Protector
the ruler of the Rodian race. (SCRE)

Grand Reception Hall
the kilometer-long location in Imperial City where dignitaries from across the galaxy have been received by the galaxy's rulers. (DFR)

Grand Rim Promenade
this section of the Canyonade on Cejansij was a 300-year-old section of walkway, located about two-thirds of the way up the Canyonade's east face. It was about 30 meters wide at its widest point, and stretched well over ten kilometers along the canyon wall. It was held up without any repulsorlift assistance, including the many skyarches that spanned the canyon itself. (SOP)

Grand Stairway
located within the central towers of the Mos Espa Arena, this wide, spiralling staircase took visitors to the uppermost levels of the arena. Many race fans gathered near the stairway to watch for their favorite racers. (IWE1)

Grand Towers
beautiful office and residential buildings located in Imperial City on Coruscant. (DA)

Grand Trench
a network of steep canyons on the moon Gall, the Grand Trench was the location of the Imperial enclave on the moon. (SE, SESB)

Grand Walkway
this wide avenue encircled the main bubble building of Otoh Gunga, and a large straight section bisected the outer circle. (IWE1)

Grande Hyet
this small, polar island is found on the planet Esseles. During the Galactic Civil War, a group of Alliance supporters known as the Faceless attacked and destroyed an DynaCorp fuel depot located there. The attack was timed to coincide with an attack on the Imperial outpost at Tralee. (SWJ9)

Grandeel
this planet was known for its fish farms. (GG2)

Grandfather Clock
this was the nicknme used by the Hutts to describe the Novolek Beacon, because of its regular pattern of flares. (SSR)

Grandiose Elector
this was the tile given to the leader of the planet Pakrik Major. (VOF)

Grandis Mon Theater
theater located in Imperial City on Coruscant (DFR)

Granf, Beezrul
this smuggler captain once employed Dirk Harkness and Chessa. He owned and operated the bulk freighter Colders Watch. (SWJ1)

Grania
a Singing Mountain clan sister who has turned to the Dark Side and joined the Nightsisters (CPL)

Granit
this man was a member of the Alliance, sent to the Delantine to bolster support for the rebels. When the Empire took control of the system, Granit led the evacuation of Alliance supporters. He was also responsible for the rescue of Stuart Zissu, R2-D2, C-3PO, and 4B-X from the planet Da'nor, where they had crashed while en route to Delantine. (SA2)

Granite Slug
found on Coruscant, these grey-green amoeba-like creatures have eyestalks and mouths which are underneath their bodies. They prefer to live underground. They were introduced to Coruscant 346 years before Furgan attempted to assassinate Mon Mothma, in an attempt by the Old Republic to clean up the garbage that existed in the lower level of Imperial City. Because of the amount of garbage (a fact not realized by the old government), the population of granite slugs exploded. This resulted in an rapid improvement in the cleanliness of Imperial City, but also caused a rise in the number of predators that found the slugs appetizing. (JS, DA, JASB)

Granley, Amos
this young man was a friend of Denel Moonrunner, and was conscripted into the Imperial armed forces when the Empire subjugated the planet Rhamalai. (SWJ13)

Granna
this planet is the homeworld of the Grannan race. It was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (TT)

Grannan
a near-human race native to the planet Granna. A group of Grannans settled the planet Polneye in the Koornacht Cluster. They were distinguishable by the skin cuffs located on their hands and feet, into which they can draw their fingers and toes. They also have loose eye creases, and special respiratory sacs which allow them to breathe methaogen. (BTS, SOL)

Grannell
this New Republic Lieutenant served as a ferry pilot aboard the fleet carrier Venture. Grannell served under Lietuenant Bos in Bravo Flight. (TT)

Granse Confederacy
a well-structured coalition of bounty hunters and trackers, the Granse Confederation appeared on the galactic scene shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The group had just eight members, but all were formerly employed in some form of criminal organization, and were known for their abilities to locate and eliminate "problems." The Confederacy was founded by Callandri and her cousin, Zayl Braith, and its membership included the aliens Kiran Tatch, Arcuse, Rodick Tag, Milscass, Vadon Lenitor, and Lu'daal-ud. Many within the Alliance's command structure believed that the Confederacy was formed specifically to assassinate Alton Lochner, given Callandri's grudge against him, but this was never proven. (GG12, AIR)

Graph 18
this was a model of directional transponder used by scouts and military personnel. Like its smaller cousin, the survey datapad, this briefcase-sized device contains topographical information on a variety of planets. This data is easily updatable from commercial sources. The Graph 18 provides up-to-the-minute charting of the unit's location on a given planet, allowing field personnel to track their progress without getting too lost. The Graph 18 can store information on up to 25,000 different planets. (ROE)

Grapler
an Pakuuni Corvette destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Grappa
1) this Hutt controlled his criminal empire from the planet Genon. Grappa had ties to Black Sun, and his legendary ruthlessness helped ensure that traffic to the planet was kept to a minimum. Grappa had a tattoo of an evil skull placed on his forehead. Mirith Sinn offered to pay for Grappa's help in hunting down Kir Kanos, a deal to which Grappa heartily agreed. Grappa then traveled to Smarck, where he purchased the real Feena D'Asta from Macus Kayniph for a shipment of gree spice. He then developed a plan, with the help of Y'ull Acib and Black Sun, to replace Xandel Carivus with a clone, thereby placing their own puppet in control of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He also served as the mediary between the Zanzibar and the Empire, after Zzzanmxl's forces caught Kir Kanos on Xo. However, the clones developed by Macus Kayniph and sent to eliminate Carivus were killed, and their link to Black Sun was exposed by the Council. Grappa was forced to rethink his plans when Y'ull Acib decided to visit Genon, following the New Republic's raid on Kayniph's cloning facility. New Republic forces then confronted Grappa, led by Mirith Sinn herself. She ordered Grappa to return Feena D'Asta and Kir Kanos, then locked the Hutt in one of his own holding cells. When the Zanzibar arrived to demand their bounty, Grappa was unable to produce the money they expected. Zzzanxml and his troops quickly captured Grappa and transported him to Xo for one of their sacrificial ceremonies, and the Hutt was never heard from again. (CE2)
2) this Rodian mercenary Captain was the leader of the force hired by the Osarians to protect them from attack by the Rhommamoolians, two decades after the Battle of Endor. He led what was known as the Osarian First-Force, intercepting Leia Organa Solo before she could meet with Nom Anor on Rhommamool. (VP)

Grappler
this was one of the Empire'a Interdictor cruisers, operating in the period leading up to the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Grappling Magnet
this large disk is connected to a length of strengthened cable. It can be launched from a stationary position or from a starship, and is designed to fasten to another metal object. They are often used in space to drag or capture a starship into position near a spacedock, but can also be used to slow a dead ship's progress. (VOF)

Grasha, Pen
this pirate served as Urias Xhaxin's starfighter control officer aboard the Free Lance. (DTO)

Grashal
this was a Yuuzhan Vong command center, created like their other structures by the secretions of the gricha larva. (DTO)

Grasheel
this fashionable, sable-furred Wookiee was a friend and first mate to Shamus Falconi. Grasheel always was on the leading edge of fashion, and often wore his fur braided with gems or trinkets. Large earrings, scarves, and jewelry were constantly changing his appearance. Many people are frightened by Wookiees, and the sight of a brightly-jeweled beast is often unsettling. Many of the jewels and trinkets braided into his fur had special, personal meanings. A large hoop earring was given to him by a Socorran smuggler. This habit was formed at an early age, when Grasheel was sold into slavery. Any possessions he did not keep close to his body were stolen. He maintained the habit after he was rescued by a group of Algor pirates, from whom he learned starship engineering. After a strange occurrance in a spacer bar called the Airlock, Grasheel ended up owning half of the Lumrunner, and he found himself in business with Shamus Falconi. Their partnership was a long and fruitful one, as they plied the spcae lanes of the Minos Cluster. (SWJ9)

Grashk
an angry young Wookiee, Grashk joined the Alliance and worked with Almera Zan to try and rescue Enid Vahr from Demophon. (SN)

Graskt
this man served as the Assistant Director of the Treitamma Political Center, shortly before it was destroyed by Armand Isard in an effort to assassinate Garm Bel Iblis. Graskt died in the explosion, along with Bel Iblis' entire family. (TFNR)

Grasp
this is the modified SkySlayer assault ship owned by Teehl. She added twin custom engines to increase its sublight speed. (SH)

Grass Fly
this insect is known for its loud buzz. (GOF3)

Grass Hutt, The
this was one of the ritziest flangth-houses on the planet Ord Mantell, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Grass Painting
an art form that originated on the planet Alderaan, grass painting involved the managed growth of various species of grass. When properly planted and maintained, over the years the natural colors and textures of the grasses form a beautiful artwork when viewed from the air. The art of grass painting also involves a knowledge of soil characteristics, meteorology, and horticulture, in addition to an eye for color and the ability to create on such a grand scale. (ISU)

Grasser
this flesh of this creature is considered something of a delicacy, at least on many backwater worlds. (SWO)

Grath
1) an Imperial Army Commander, serving over General Irrv on Culroon III. Grath executed Irrv for not seeing the Culroon charade of submission; the Culroon attacked and killed a great many Imperial troops before Lieutenant Veers disobeyed Irrv and routed the Culroon with AT-AT assault vehicles. Grath promoted Veers to Major on the spot. (SWSB)
2) a stormtrooper assigned to Zasm Katth and Baddon Fass, when they searched out Nar Shaddaa for Shug Ninx's garage and the Millennium Falcon. (DE2)

Grathal
this antiques dealer was a native of the planet Hargeeva. He maintained a shop in Arginall City, where he worked with Stevan Makintay and the resistance there. Grathal also helped Mak set up many a rendezvous with Ketrian Altronel. (SWJ8)

Grav-car
a term used to describe almost any land-based repulsorcraft. (KT)

Grav-pool
a game of skill popular in many cantinas and taverns, grav-pool was played on a rectangular table. (WSV)

Grav-trap
this is a component of a starship navigational control system. (RM)

Gravan Seven
it was at this planet that Talon Squadron hoped to take out an Imperial base. However, they were ambushed by an entire wing of Imperial starfighters, and all but Myn Donos were shot down and killed. The planet's atmosphere was quite toxic, being formed from the gases expelled by hundreds of active volcanoes. (WS)

Grave Tuskens
these creatures inhabit the world Sulon, and scavenge the dead for any possessions. When Jerec and his Dark Jedi came to Sulon to obtain the location of the Valley of the Jedi from Morgan Katarn, Maw used the Dark Side of the Force to coerce the Grave Tuskens into assisting them. Maw left a large contingent of them in and around Katarn's house, hoping to deflect any pursuit. (DF2)

Gravel maggot
native to Tatooine, these scavengers eat rotting flesh. (SWN)

Gravel storm
a terrible storm experienced on Tatooine, where the wind is strong enough to propel rocks, sand, and other loose derbis. (SW)

Graveyard
1) this was the name given to the asteroid belt created by the destruction of the planet Alderaan. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Royal Treasury of Aladeraan was discovered within the floating rubble. Soon after, rumors surfaced that the Royal Palace of Alderaan had been found intact, hidden inside an asteroid. There were also rumors of ghost ships and Jedi treasures inside the asteroid field. It was in this area that the Warlord Zsinj attacked the New Republic's convoy of bacta from Thyferra, just before Rogue Squadron arrived to escort it to Coruscant. (GA, KT)
2) this was the name of the starship modification repair facility located aboard Starlyte Station. It was run by the Ugnaught Scizzic during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (WSV)

Graveyard of Lost Ships
this collection of starships orbits a dwarf star. It was created over the years by Doctor Arakkus, and encompassed five interconnected rings of ships following the Battle of Yavin. Arakkus lured the ships near the Graveyard with distress calls, in an attempt to make other suffer as he has suffered. The ships which are lured to the Graveyard fall under the gravitational influence of the dwarf star, and become incapable of escaping its grasp. Like the Graveyard itself, the ships slowly plunge into the dwarf star. Most of the crews captured by Arakkus go insane and kill themselves. The Graveyard was destroyed prior to the Battle of Hoth when Arakkus trapped Han Solo, Luke Skywalker, and Chewbacca aboard the Millennium Falcon. The three tried to help Arakkus escape the doomed rings, but Arakkus fled deep into the network of ships. The Alliance agents set of a series of negatron charges - which had been placed througout the Graveyard by Arakkus - destroying the connected ships and Arakkus as well. (CSW)

Gravitech
manufacturers of starship navigational detection systems. (EGV)

Gravitic Polarization Beam
this device was designed by Professor Falken's students at the Mrlssti Academy. The beam reverses the polarization of matter and splits it apart at the molecular level. The gravitic beam was one of the offshoots of the Phantom Project, and was originally designed to remove large tracts of land for relocation. It was put to military use during the New Republic's bid for control of the Phantom Project, when Rogue Squadron was forced to use it against Loka Hask's Interdictor-class cruiser near Mrlsst. (XWPA)

Gravity Bomb
this Yevethan weapon disrupted the localized gravity field surrounding a starship, causing intense pressure changes due to shifting starship plating and decking. (CTD)

Gravitic Shield
a rare form of starship shielding that uses an anti-graviton field to counteract the effects of a gravity well projector. A few Imperial assault ships were built with this type of shield near the end of the Galactic Civil War. (SWSB)

Gravity Shadow
the hyperspace equivalent of a realspace planet, moon, or other stellar body. They are just as dangerous as their realspace cousins, and can cause substantial damage to ship flying through hyperspace. (SWSB)

Gravity Shift Frame
any small, easily handled device which can alter the effects of gravity in a limited space. Freight droids use them to maneuver large, awkward cargo bins when loading or unloading them. (WEG)

Gravity Well
1) this amusement attraction was located in the exact center of Hologram Fun World. It served as the primary lodge for visitors to the station, where they could make purchases and exchange credits. (GOF4)
2) this was a specialized form of obstacle used in swoopchase racing. The Well was formed from a high-banked ditch. Inside the ditch was a repulsorlify engine designed to attract objects rather that repel them. These engines often sat beneath a collection of rigid spikes or other dangerous devices. If a rider was unable to overcome the downard pull of the repulsorlift engines, their swoop would suddenly be dragged down onto the spikes. Because of the dangerous and deadly nature of the Gravity Well, it was considered an outlaw obstacle by the governing bodies of swoopchase racing. (BSS)

Gravity Well Projector
the device which is used to generate a massive wave of energy, which can disrupt the mass lines of realspace, simulating the presence of an actual planet or other stellar body. If the projector is pushed too hard, it can become overloaded. Once overloaded, the projector becomes a gravity vacuum much like a black hole. (ISB, SH)

Gravity-Wave System
this method of detonating a bomb uses specialized circuitry embedded into a weapon's casing. The system senses the strength of the gravity field around it, and can detonate whenever the level reaches a pre-set threshhold. The system is very effective, and cannot be removed from the bomb without causing detonation. It was adopted by the Imperial Navy after the failure of such artillery as the M-12 sweep bomb. (MA)

Gravitics
the mechanisms that create artificial gravity onboard a spaceship. (SWSB)

Gravsled
any repulsorlift vehicle with a flat bed, used to transport heavy cargo. (HSR)

Gravtrac
a repulsorlift farm vehicle. (GG11)

Graxol Kelvynn
this unusual alien was distinguished by the tall, bony crest that sprouted from the top of his head. He was known as an affectionado of podracing, and was present at the Boonta Eve Classic race won by nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker. (SWI)

Gray Death
this deadly disease afflicts the Yevethan race. (SOL)

Gray Griffins
this Alliance scouting team assisted Radell Mining Corporation during its initial explorations of the planet Alluuvia. They were captured by the Scourge, a group of pirates who wanted the planet for their own. The Gray Griffins were eventually released when the Alliance dispatched another team of agents to recover them. (OE)

Gray Leader
callsign used by Colonel Salm during the Battle of Endor. (ROTJ, CCG11)

Gray Squadron
1) a group of B-wings during the Battle of Endor. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game - Death Star 2 Expansion claims Gray Squadron was made up of Y-Wings, under the command of Colonel Salm. (ROTJ, CCG11)
2) the original designation of Wraith Squadron. (WS)

Gray Two
this callsign was used by Lieutenant Telsij during the Battle of Endor. Telsij flew his Y-Wing as Colonel Salm's wingman. (CCG11)

Grayclaw
this was a nickname attributed to Urias Xhaxin, in reference to his cybernetic left hand, which was always covered with a gray bantha-hide glove. (PP)

Graywater
a generic term for any water which is not collected from atmospheric sources. Most graywater is recycled from large cities; other graywater is recycled on starships. (SE)

Grayyshk
this Wookiee's mate contracted the yellow-blood malaise and died while he was accompanying their son on his Test of Ascension. (TT)

Grazer
a herd animal and food source. There are at least two known species of grazers: one is native to the planet Ammuud, the other to Alderaan. The grazer is a large, six-legged beast with prominent antlers on its head. These lumbering creatures graze the forests and plains of Ammuud, and are the favorite prey of the soarers. When necessary, the grazers can move with incredible speed. The Alderaanian grazers have been altered genetically to optimize muscle mass, and have become little more that living machines designed to process meat. Some seventeen species can be found on the eighth moon of Yavin. Grazers and blerds were often used as first-generation creatures on terraformed worlds, because of their grazing habits and their usefulness as food sources. (HSR, GG2, DA, ISU, POT, GG2)

Grazz
this former Imperial Moff fashioned himself a small empire and became one of the many warlords who pestered the New Republic during the early years of its government. (MBC)

Greal
this governmental Secretary maintained a list of the currently-active bounty hunters in and around Feris City, during the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Great Atrium
this was one of the most popular sites to see aboard the Tafanda Bay. (EGV)

Great Bantha
a kind of deity worshipped by the Sand People on Tatooine. (GG)

Great Canyon
a wide expanse on Dathomir where Brakiss set up a camp while searching for experienced Dark Side users to support his Shadow Academy. (SA)

Great Canyon Clan
the new clan of students of the Dark Side that came back to Dathomir to recruit Light Side witches for the Shadow Academy. They were supported and guarded by a squadron of Imperial troops. (SA)

Great Celebration
this Kitonak ceremony is held whenever young Kitonaks become adults and either joins their own tribe or head off into the desert to find a new tribe. During the Galactic Civil War, slavers often raided these celebrations, taking young Kitonaks to sell as laborers or jizz wailers. (GMS)

Great Cleansing, The
the name given to the planetary war that raged between the various factions of Fyodoi. The groups of Fyodoi had become technological rivals, but the technology gave way to war. The Great Cleansing resulted in the devastation of most of the surface of the planet Fyodos, and many Fyodoi were killed. The cities and populations of Kaled and Othlos were completely wiped out, and Tharak suffered 90% casualties and severe damaged. The survivors of the Great Cleansing chose to shun cities and the technology they represented, and reverted to a primitive existence. (PG2)

Great Conquest, The
this era of history on the planet Garban was marked by the intense efforts of Jenet, such as Chirr't Ferr and Rhet H'rrr, to wipe out the marauding danchaf which controlled the planet. (COG)

Great Council
this was the primary legislative and governmental body of The Expanse region of Tapani Sector. It was led by a Prime Minister, and was made up of representatives from the seven Houses of the sector. Each House had a certain amount representation, depending on its size and current status. During the New Order, House Mecetti was the dominant House in the Great Council. The Great Counil was made up of several, smaller subcouncils, with the Senate being the strongest body. The Council of Ten was the most select of the subcouncils, being made up of an inner circle of representatives and handling several key roles. Each of the five primary planets in te Freeworlds Region also had representation on the Great Council, but they lacked the power of even the lowliest of the seven major Houses. (PGT)

Great Council of Deneba, The a Jedi Assembly of all the current Jedi Masters on Deneba, where they met to discuss and plan against the growing wave of Dark Side Energy which was led by Exar Kun and prevalent about 4000 PE. (COTF, IJ)

Great Creator
in Tuhgri mythology, the Great Creator is the being which provides the Tuhgri with everything they need to survive. The belief in the Great Creator has led the Tuhgri to establish a society in which no individual being owns anything. (KO)

Great Cueva Expanse
located in the northern hemisphere of the planet Sriluur, this crater-pocked landscape is home to the Cueva Desert. (SSR)

Great Dalvechan Deserts
this group of arid wastes was located on the planet Ket, and was the homeland of the Ketton race. (AE)

Great Dance, The
a term used by the dancers of the galaxy, The Great Dance meant the afterlife. (TJP)

Great Desert of Dathomir
this is the largest area of desert land found on the planet Dathomir. It is the homeland of the Blue Desert People,and measures about 80 kilometers across. (CTD)

Great Doctrine, The
this Yuuzhan Vong belief was developed to explain their superiority in their own galaxy. It allowed them to develop plans to invade the known galaxy, providing both the justification and motivation for the invasion. (VP)

Great Dome of the Je'Har, The this huge Almanian observatory was built by the Je'Har race. It was destroyed when Dolph - under the pseudonym Kuellar - exterminated the Je'Har. Dolph took control of the building's remains and used them as his command center. (TNR)

Great Droid Revolution
an uprising of droids on Coruscant which occurred about 5,000 PE, in which the Jedi Master Arca learned the technique of short-circuiting a droid by using the Force. (DLS)

Great Edge, The
another mystical reference used by Lando Calrissian. (LCF)

Great Forest Valley
this was one of the few mountainous areas of the planet Rhamalai. (SWJ13)

Great Gadfry
another of Lando Calrissian's mystical references. (LCM)

Great Galactic Museum located in Imperial City on Coruscant, this was the resting site for most of the Sith artifacts during the time of the Great Sith War. (FNU)

Great Geel
see Geeloniran. (SWJ13)

Great Grass Plains
this expanse of green grass and gently rolling hills was located on the planet Naboo. It was here, during the Battle of Naboo, that the Gungan Army met the forces of the Trade Federation, in an effort to deflect attention from Queen Amidala's attempt to capture Nute Gunray. (IWE1)

Great Hall
1) located inside the Bakur Memorial Building, this vast chamber was used as a gathering place for politicians, business and civic leaders, and important visitors. It connected the senate hall with the transportation area, and was known to have been the site where many Bakuran laws were developed in impromptu meetings. (TBSB)
2) this was the name of the royal palace, located in the city of Testa, on the planet Rutan. (SP)

Great Heap
a huge droid created by the Empire to mine fuel ores on the planet Biitu. The massive droid consumed everything in its path, and was equipped with numerous repair droids. (TGH)

Great Hoary Masmot Trading Station, The
found on the planet Toola, this Whiphid trading enclave is formed by two large structures situated near a hot spring in the tundra near the planet's equator. It was run by Haaken Barnar and his staff during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ10)

Great Hohokum
rumored to be over four hundred years old, this hohokum specimen was kept at the Otoh Gunga Zoological Research Facility until the Battle of Naboo. It was considered the facility's second-most important specimen, after the pair of dwarf opee sea killers known as Vink and Nink. When Jar Jar Binks accidentally let the creatures of the facility loose, the Great Hohokum found him later, trying to recover the creatures. The Great Hohokum saved Jar Jar from being eaten by a sando aqua monster, then helped the return to Otoh Gunga. (E1A9)

Great Hunts I've Lived To Tell About this was the title of Valken Gresh's autobiography. (GG10)

Great Hyperspace War
an ancient battle between the minions of the Light and Dark sides of the Force, the Great Hyperspace war erupted on the heels of the First Unification Wars fought in the Koros System. The ancient Sith lords, led by Ludo Kressh and Naga Sadow, fought for control of their minions while Sadow attempted to take control of the galaxy. Meanwhile, the Jedi Knights Odan-Urr and Ooroo tried to use Jedi battle meditation on the advancing Massassi forces, but the Massassi mind was too primitive to be persuaded. The Massassi, under the control of the Sith, swarmed the planet Coruscant, but the Jedi soon realized that the majority of their army was illusional. The Jedi quickly dispatched the true Massassi and free the planet. Meanwhile, Sadow had defeated Kressh in an epic interstellar war in the Sith Empire, but his forces were unable to defend themselves against the might of Empress Teta's forces. As his commanders began to surrender, Sadow used the Dark Side of the Force to communicate with his Massassi spies. They executed Sadow's enemies and took control of their ships, drawing Teta's forces into the Denarii Nova. There, Sadow's forces were eradicated, along with many of Teta's ships, but ultimately the Old Republic was able to eliminate the Sith threat. Sadow was forced to flee, and later established his own base on Yavin 4. (DLS, FOSE)

Great Ice Floes
this was a large, inhabited area of the planet Toola. (HR)

Great Jungle
found on the planet Varonat, this jungle was the home of the Morodin. (SWJ1, EGC)

Great Jungle Outfitters
this business, located on the planet Varonat, supplied hunting gear and supplies for those beings who came to the planet for safari hunts. It was established by Joodiel Magris shortly after the Battle of Endor. (SWJ1)

Great Library, The
this vast intellectual establishment was founded by the Ropagu near the city of Ebyl, on the planet Ropagi II. It contains 10,000 years' worth of Ropagu history, including some parchement scrolls and paper texts. The majority of the staff is comprised of 18 specially-programmed 3PO droids, although a few Ropagu are also on call. However, there is little information on galactic history in the Great Library, since the Ropagu have kept out of the political battles of the larger community. (TSK)

Great Library of Manuals
this vast information storehouse is located on the Gree world of Te Hasa, and is maintained by twelve to fourteen Gree textmasters. (SWJ8)

Great Lock

Great Northern Forest
site of Talon Kaarde's base on Myrkr (DFR)

Great Oopik
native ot the forests of Paramatan, these creatures were an evolutionary cross between native reptile and avian lifeforms. Many scholars believed that they had died out millennia before the rise of the Empire, until a group was discovered on the continent of Grxy. These creatures resembled large, flightless birds, with leathery wings and short fur covering their bodies. They use ultrasound to locate their prey, dining on small forest creatures that they find in the lowest branches of trees. They use a short burst of sound to stun their prey, then use their claws to grasp it while eating. (COG)

Great Pit of Carkoon
site of Jabba's Sarlacc pit on Tatooine. (ROTJ)

Great Protector's Gladiatorial Festival
this Rodian holiday lasted many days, and was centered around a series of battles waged between the current crop of bounty hunters and warriors. The Grand Protector of Rodian society presided over the event, which brought honor and prestige to the winners. (HR)

Great Purge
the Yevethan name used to describe the extermination of all other races inhabiting the Koornacht Cluster. It was masterminded by Nil Spaar, who had planned it while the Empire was still using the Cluster as a hiding place for the Black Sword Command and its shipyards. The Yevetha took control of the yards, and repaired nearly 44 ships for their own uses. Then, Nil Spaar went to Coruscant to placate Leia Organa-Solo while maipulating her into a series of actions Spaar later used to his own advantage. He twisted Leia's words and deeds to his own ends, and managed to get a great deal of public sympathy and support while he methodically slaughtered the humans, Kubaz, and other races that were living in the Koornacht. The Yevetha believed that other races were inferior, and needed to be purged from the Koornacht, and eventually the galaxy. Some historians refer to this time as the Black Fleet Crisis, because the Yevetha used the recommissioned Black Sword warships to destroy civilizations in the Cluster. (BTS)

Great Pyramid
located on Rafa V, this building was the resting place of the Mindharp of Sharu. The only way to enter it was to use the Key of the Overpeople to "enter without entering." The Bearer of the Key was allowed to pass through the pyramid's walls if he properly inserted the Key into the Great Lock. Once inside the pyramid, the Bearer could "dream without sleeping" as the pyramid showed them the history of the Sharu before revealing the location of the Mindharp. The pyramid had the ability to monitor all who entered it, making various changes in size, shape, and time-line to adjust for the different lifeforms. When Lando Calrissian, Vuffi Raa, and Mohs entered, Lando was kept at his normal size until he approached the Mindharp, when he was reduced in size. He was also able enlarge himself to reach the Mindharp atop its twelve-meter-tall pedestal. However, Lando's sense of time was reduced significantly, so that what he thought was a couple of days in the pyramid was actually four months. Mohs, being the High Singer, was struck blind by the pyramid's power, allowing him to "see" beyond the limited knowledge he held as High Singer. Vuffi Raa was shrunk down to a miniscule size, but his sense of time was unaltered, since the pyramid thought he was one of the Sharu's automata. When the pyramid thought the Bearer was ready, it led him to a downward-spiralling tunnel which had the early history of the Rafa System painted on its walls. As the Bearer went deeper underground, the history passed through the early days of the Sharu. When the tunnel ended, it opened into a large chamber that held the Mindharp. The remainder of the Sharu history was depicted on its walls. (LCM)

Great Room of the Enlightened
the room, deep in the bowels of Jabba the Hutt's palace on Tatooine, where the disembodied brains of B'omarr monks sat in jars and contemplated the universe. The Great Room was their resting place, when they weren't moving about the palace in their spider-like conveyances. (TJP)

Great Sea
a natural tourist attraction on Kalarba. (DRO)

Great Sea of Bandomeer
this huge body of water encompassed one half of the surface area of the planet Bandomeer. The remainder of the planet was covered with a single mass of land. (DR)

Great Serpent
a deity worshipped by Zoodia Tantra. (SWJ9)

Great Shell Dome
this was the holding place of the Golden Sun, erected by Cardo and his followers who believed the Golden Sun was a sacred thing to be viewed only by the Priests of the Sun. The shell itself was formed from a huge number of interconnected seashells, varnished together so that the overall shell was nearly impervious. The Dome was destroyed when Pek, Fala, and a group of Alliance agents cornered Karak inside it. They were able to link their minds to the Golden Sun, and helped it explode itself, scattering pieces of itself well beyond the city of Fitsay and across the ocean. (BGS)

Great Shore Marshes
this was an expanse of marshland which bordered on the priary ocean of the planet Gelgelar. (SWJ14)

Great Sith War
a battle in which Exar Kun rallied his Brotherhood of the Sith against the Jedi Knights. The Jedi won the battle, but at a great cost. They had to unite as a single force, and wipe out much of the jungle on Yavin 4 in order to destroy Kun's body. Kun, however, managed to escape to the spiritual plane by draining the life-energy from the enslaved Massassi. (DA, DLS, TSW)

Great Spiral, The
a reverential term used to describe the galaxy. (TTSB)

Great Spirit of the Forest
according to the Ewoks thE Great Spirit of the Forest is the force that controls life in the forests of Endor. (AT)

Great Structure, The
this was the guiding set of 14 ven which dominated the Ulizra religion of the ancient Nazzar. A student of the Ulizra had to take a year or more to study and understand each ven before he or she could progress to the next level. (TOJC)

Great Subcrustal Tubeway
this strange transportation system was created by the Pa Tho race, which died out before being discovered by the Old Republic. The site was later found by scientists from the Obroan Institute. (TT)

Great Temple, The
located on Yavin's fourth moon, in ancient times it was the center of the Massassi civilization. When Exar Kun arrived on the moon and used the Massassi souls to power his own greed, he destroyed the Massassi, and the temple was abandoned to the relentless jungle. When the Alliance needed a remote base, it chose Yavin 4 for its huge temples, and set up their primary command center in the Great Temple. Following the Battle of Yavin, the Alliance abandonded the base, and it lay empty until Luke Skywalker asked Mon Mothma for a place to train the new Jedi Knights. She suggested Yavin 4, and Luke set up his Jedi praxeum in the Great Temple. The temple has five distinct levels, plus an observation level at the very top. The temple stood for several years before it was attacked by the Shadow Academy. The shields which protected it were destroyed by Commander Orvak, who also placed several proton grenades in the Temple. He hoped to bring the Temple down on itself, but his explosives only damaged minor areas of the structure. Luke chose to rebuild the Temple, rather than relocate, because it was still salvageable and it would help his students train and rehabilitate after the attack. A trader from Tatooine loaned the use of a ronto to assist in moving the large chunks of rock which could be found, and the Temple quickly began to retake its shape. (SW, DA, COTF, JUS, SHA, IJ)

Great Time of Peace
this was the name given to the modern era of the planet Naboo by its human inhabitants. The Great Time of Peace stretched far back into the planet's history, to the reign of King Jafan. Jafan helped bring about a world-wide peace on the planet, and the Naboo continued to prosper throughout the centuries. The period of peace was broken by the Trade Federation's invasion of the planet, but helped to usher in a new era of peace. This one was shared by both the Naboo and the Gungans, after they banded together to defeat the Neimoidians and their droid armies. (JQA, IWE1)

Great Torgur Falls

Great Tree, The
the first and largest tree in the Endorian forests, it is at the heart of the Ewok religion. (ROTJN)

Great Vacuum
this was the Hutts' idea of death, a grand vacuum of space which swallowed up the dead. (IA)

Great Void
the ancient Jedi believed that this was the vast emptiness into which the galaxies were created billions of years ago. (TOJC)

Great Wall, The
the huge wall that separates the Valley of Royalty from the mountains of Duro. (MMY)

Great Well
this massive, cylindrical shaft served as a holding pen and stable for the flying serpents commanded by Tyrann's forces. The serpents lived and bred in the lower levels of the Well, and Tyrann's forces had excavated many levels for their own use. The lowest level consisted of a small island in the midst of a large lake, and was the location of Tyrann's slave quarters. (CSW)

Great Zelosi Sea
this is the ocean which covers most of the planet Zelos II. The legends say a vast treasure was located in the Zelosian Chine, far out in the ocean, although the only way to reach it was to travel at the lowest tides the planet ever experienced. This meant traveling on the Day of the Sepulchral Night, when the native Zelosians were all hidden indoors. Thus, finding the treasure was virtually impossible. (PG2, TFNR)

Greater Galam
the fifth planet in the Lan system, Greater Galam is a gas giant with sixteen moons. (SWAJ)

Greater Plooriod Cluster
this area of the galaxy contains the planet Corsin, and was home to some of the galaxy's finest swoop racing until it was occupied by the Empire. (MTS)

Greawyn Belt
this was the outermost of the two asteorid belts which ringed the star Saurton. The Greawyn and Kanawyn Belts surrounded the planet Essowyn. Both belts were mined by six competing consortiums, which were watched closely by the Empire during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (PG1)

Grebnar
this genetically engineered herdbeast is raised for food by the Lurians of the planet Lur. (CSA)

Greddleback Termite
a small insect that devours the hardwood of the apocia tree. (SWAJ)

Gredge, Alpiett
this Imperial Vice Admiral had a large estate on the planet Brentaal during the Galactic Civil War. He was in command of the Victory-class ship Scourge, and patrolled Darpa Sector. He was considered a loyal member of the Imperial war machine, and was part of the force which tried to bring down Dhas Vedij and the Far Orbit. (FOP)

Gree
1) an alien race, the Gree resemble large, six-tentacled cephalopods. They are covered with gray skin which is often tattooed, especially around their large, bulbous heads. The brain case of the Gree hangs in a sac-like appendage from the back of their head, and seems to draw their huge foreheads even longer. They have no mouth, per se, but instead there is a series of fleshy folds beneath their eyes that serves as a vocal communication method. The foremost pair of tentacles are used for manipulation of objects, while the middle pair is used for heavy work. The rear pair is used for locomotion, and they appear to be shambling mounds of flesh when they move. The Gree civilizatizon is immensely old, and is rumored to be hundreds of thousands of years old. It was well past its prime when the worlds were discovered by the Old Republic. They have a technology which is vastly alien to that of the rest of the galaxy, and has its roots in music and the Gree physiology. They developed the knowledge of quanta-technology and dimensional engineering, which defied imperial scientists. Their views of technology are biased, and the Gree find little use for droids and computers, which they consider unimportant. The Gree however, were undone by their technology, falling victim to the ability to use it rather than improve on it. The discovery of life-extending technology further accelerated their decline, until they no longer knew or cared about their own devices. The technology collapsed when none of the Gree could maintain it, and the Gree isolated themselves from the galaxy. Little is known about their life cycle and customs, although it was discovered that their number system is based on the number 14 – the number of suction cups on each tentacle. They guard the Gree Enclave jealously, and any ship passing through it often disappears. (SWJ8)
2) this is planet, located in the heart of the Gree Enclave, the motherworld of the Gree race. Among the Gree themselves, the planet is revered with awe and wonder. It is known as a harsh, barren world dotted with groupings of ruins separated by wastelands. There is only one major city, teeming with nearly sixty million Gree, although much of the city has been abandoned. The average day on Gree lasts 27 standard hours, and its year encompasses 360 local days. Strange pieces of Gree technology exist within the capital city, although very few Gree known exactly what they do. (SWJ8)

Gree Enclave
this area of space, located in the Outer Rim Territories, is controlled by the Gree race, and includes the major worlds of Gree, Asation, Licha In, Lonatro, Malanose, and Te Hasa. Little is known about this area of space, as the Gree keep much of it a secret. Passage through the Gree Enclave by other races is restricted, and any visitor must keep their ships in port on the world of Asation. Visitors are then boarded on the Rokak'k Baran starship, and transported to other Enclave worlds. (SWJ8)

Gree Spice
a purple form of the sensory-enhancing spice. (CE2)

Greeata
this female Rodian served as one of Jabba the Hutt's dancers, shortly before the Hutt's death on Tatooine. She was ostracized as a child because she loved music and dancing more than hunting and killing. Her parents tried their best to change her into a "normal" Rodian child, but she resisted. Instead, she studied the music of various cultures and learned how to dance. After completing her schooling on Rodia, she managed to sneak aboard the Kuari Princess and catch the attention of Sy Snootles. Sy asked her to play kloo horn in a concert, and Greeata happily agreed. After a rowdy Rodian suggested that Greeata return to Rodia and marry him, Greeata and Sy left the Princess and eventually caught up with the Max Rebo Band. The band took in Sy, since they needed a singer, but would only take Greeata if she could dance. Along with Lyn Me and Rhystaal, Greeaata often performed to the music of the Max Rebo Band at Jabba's palace, shortly before the crimelord's death. She and Lyn Me used their survival skills - proving that Greeata had learned something in school on Rodia - to help the band survive the death of Jabba and the tumult which followed. (RJSE, CCG9, MTSE)

Greeb-Streebling Cluster
a section of the galaxy in the Outer Rim Territories, near the Ninth Quadrant. (COJ)

Greedo
Greedo was a Tetsus Rodian, and grew up away from the violence of Rodia with his mother, Neela, and his brother, Pqweeduk. The Tetsus clan fled to an undisclosed jungle moon following the murder of Greedo's father, a noted bounty hunter, by the Chattza clan leader, Navik the Red. Note that the screenplay of Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace has a young Rodian named Greedo accused young Anakin Skywalker of cheating during the Boonta Eve Classic on Tatooine. When Navik invaded the jungle moon, Greedo's family moved to Nar Shaddaa. There, Greedo became involved with Spurch Goa and Dyyz Nataz when he saved them from Gorm the Dissolver. Two Chattza Rodians, Thuku and Neesh, then hired Goa to eliminate Greedo. Goa lured Greedo into the underworld of bounty hunters when Greedo approached him about information regarding the Alliance team living on Nar Shaddaa. Goa agreed to teach Greedo if Greedo paid him his portion of the credits for the information on the Alliance. Greedo agreed, and Goa strung him along until they all ended up on Tatooine, applying to Jabba the Hutt for one of Jabba's many bounties. Greedo, much to Goa's mixed chagrin and desire, signed up to collect the bounty on Han Solo. Greedo intercepted Han Solo in the Mos Eisley cantina, overconfident in his abilities to capture Solo and collect Jabba's reward. Han secretly drew his blaster under the table and shot Greedo in the midsection, killing him instantly. It is believed that Greedo often padded his bounties, waiting for the person to commit further crimes before actually apprehending him in order to drive the bounty up. Note that Tales from the Mos Eisley Cantina makes no reference to the fact that Greedo had already been a bounty hunter for some time, while the Movie Trilogy Sourcebook makes no references to Greedo being a rookie when he was killed by Solo. Although uncredited, Greedo was portrayed by Diana Sadley in Star Wars. (SW, TME, MTS, IS1)

Greejatus, Janus
this cruel man served as one of Emperor Palpatine's advisors during the planning and execution of the Battle of Endor. Greejatus was known to be heartless to other humans and greedy for power, but was predictable and easily controlled by Palpatine. (CCG11

Greel
1) a rare tree which yields expensive, scarlet-red wood. The variety known as band scarlet greel wood is grown almost exclusively on the planet Pii IV, which is owned by Meysen Kayson. The grassland scarlet greel wood is grown on Pii III, which is also owned by Kayson. (HSL, SWAJ)
2) this Gamorrean, along with his brother and partner, Gorge, owned The Broken Tusk on Reuss VIII. Greel was extremely small for a Gamorrean, having a frame which could have been mistaken for human. While Gorge was the muscle, Greel was the entrepreneur, and provided the brains behind the establishment. Greel also preferred to wear fancy clothes, and owned a Synthax-7 voice synthesizer to enable him to communicate with other races. It was rumored that both Gorge and Greel were slaves of Var'Rotha Fin'Rotha, until they managed to escape by jettisoning Fin'Rotha in an escape pod from his ship, the Tolan's Tusk. Gorge and Greel took to the stars, but were inexperienced pilots at best. They ran out of fuel near Reuss VIII and the Tolan's Tusk crashed onto the planet. The remains of the ship were converted into The Broken Tusk, named for the right front tusk Gorge broke in the crash. (WSV)

Greel Screamer
a predator native to the planet Pii 4. (SWAJ)

Greelanx, Winstel
this Imperial Navy Admiral was in command of the fleet sent by Sarn Shild to attack Nar Shaddaa. Prior to the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, the Hutt clas Desilijic had sent Han Solo to offer the Admiral a bribe. The bribe was in return for information about the impending attack, and for allowing the residents of Nar Shaddaa to win the battle without making it look like the Imperial fleet had given up. Greelanx took the bribe, providing the information and devising a battle plan that gave the residents of Nar Shaddaa a chance. Shortly before the battle, Greelnax received orders from someone in Excomm to lose the battle. He suddenly found himself able to accept the Hutts' bribe without compromising his position. However, the loss of the Battle of Nar Shaddaa was reported by Soontir Fel, and Greelanx came under the scrutiny of Darth Vader and the Emperor. Despite the orders from Excomm, Greelanx's acceptance of the Hutt's bribe was discovered. Within minutes of Greelanx's receiving payment from Han Solo, Vader arrived at his offices. The Dark Lord of the Sith executed Greelanx for accepting the bribes as Solo hid in an anteroom. (THG, RD)

Greeley
this man was in charge of the cartography and surveying team which was dispatched to look over the planet Trinta. (DOE)

Green
1) this ambitious human was one of Prince Xizor's vigo's, or one of his closest lieutenants. Green maintained a vast spynet for Black Sun, and specialized in racketeering and blackmail. Xizor assigned Green to sidetrack and waylay the forensics experts working for Durga to discover the cause of Aruk's death, in an effort to draw the Hutt into his service. It was at this time that Guri remarked that Green was "a very competent human." Durga, meanwhile, began manipulating Green, subtly pushing the human in the directions Durga wished him to go. Green later schemed to betray Xizor and his fellow *vigo*s, but Xizor discovered his treachery. During a meeting of his lieutenants, Xizor had Guri exterminate Green. (SE, RD, SESB)
2) this was the alias used by Mara Jade when she infiltrated Governor Touno's offices on Svivren, during her search for the Jeodu crime leader, Dequc. (MJEH)

Green Boys
this was mercenary slang for an Imperial ground force. (TFNR)

Green Champagne
a green-colored, sparkling wine. (SE)

Green Diamond
these beautiful gemstones are wondrous to behold, but deadly to hold. Each green diamond is still immature by geological standards, and contains active radiation. To hold one in the palm of your unprotected hand for thirty second means that enough deadly radioactive emissions have seeped into your body to kill you. Prince Xizor was fond of green diamonds, but only for those woman he had finished with. If one of these woman remained in love with the Prince after he had ended their relationship, Xizor would dispatch a messenger to deliver the beautiful stone. The woman would surely die, as would the messenger, when she took the stone out of its case. Xizor would then send a protected agent to recover it. (SLS)

Green Flight
1) this K-Wing grouping served the 24th Bombardment Squadron as part of the Fifth Battle Group. They participated in Task Force Blackvine, as part of the effort that punished the Yevetha for resisting the blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL)

Greenton
this is an industrial city found on the planet Aldivy. (IF)

Greenwell, The
this large arboretum was located in the Bakur Memorial Building, at the small end of the wedge-shaped building. It was created to take up all six levels of the building, like an huge atrium. Inside, native flora surrounds a series of bubbling fountains and babbling waterways. The main entrance to the Greenwell was from the statuary park on the grounds of the Bakur Complex, although access was possible via turbolifts from any level. A smaller greenwell was located along the wider edge of the Memorial Building, but was not as wondrous as the main Greenwell. For this reason, it was not often visited by tourists, and became a place of relaxation for the workers at the Complex. (TBSB)

Greeter
this being was the individual who awaited garbage pit racers of Coruscant whenever they finished their race. Each racer was supposed to obtain a scale from a garbage worm and present it to the Greeter at the end of their run. Quite often, the Greeter sold the worm scales as memorabilia of the sport, and the credits he obtained often went to pay of the managers and officials who ran the garbage pits. (RP)

Greeve
this Lieutenant was a member of the Alliance team assembled by Han Solo to take out the shield generator for the second Death Star, and was the team's sharpshooter. Before being recruited by Crix Madine, Greeve was a scout and guide known for his knowledge of the jungles of Kashyyyk. (MTS, CCG10)

Grefnakk
this crude, dangerous Gamorrean was a bounty hnuter during the Galactic Civil War. Prior to taking the role of hunter, Grefnakk was a thug for the Maldor Slave Ring. He earned his freedom saving the life of the second-in-command officer during an ambush by rival slavers. (GG10)

Greglik
this former Alliance pilot captained an ore hauler used to transport material in the year following the Battle of Hoth. He was considered by some to be handsome and good-looking, but Greglik was also an addict of various drugs and substances, a habit which eventually led to his death - and that of seventeen other Alliance fighters - in a collision with an asteroid. (POT)

Grehollo
a space station supporting the Captivity prison moon. The Empire manned the station with a squadron of TIE Fighter pilots to patrol the Grehollo System and keep intruders away. (RC)

Grejic
this Hutt presided over the Hutt Grand Council in the century leading up to the Battle of Yavin. He decided that clan Besadii should be punished for raising the price of raw spice in the aftermath of the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, and for not taking any losses at the battle. The punishment was one million credits, to be divided among those clans which did lose resources in the battle. (RD)

Grejj
this Imperial Lieutenant was in command of one of the AT-At walkers stationed at the garrison on Vryssa. Like Lieutenant Byrga, Grejj was killed when Boba Fett came to the planet to recover Rivo Xarran. Fett had acquired control of an AT-AT from Byrga, and used it to destroy Grejj's vehicle. (TFNR)

Grek-class Troop Shuttle designed and manufactured by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, this 30-meter-long shuttle found use aboard Imperial Nebulon-B frigates as well as other local navies. The Grek-class shuttle required a pilot and co-pilot, and could transport up to 50 troops and minimal cargo. It was armed with a computer-controlled laser cannon. (FOP, PP)

Grekk 9
this Norak Tull was one of the few members of his race to reach a position of power within the New Republic Navy. He had been promoted to Commodore just before the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Greko
this man was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. (GG11)

Grelb
this Hutt worked for Jemba the Hutt and Offworld Mining Company, and was in charge of collecting slave laborers for use in the mines of Bandomeer. During the transport of slaves aboard the barge Monument, Grelb became suspicious of young Obi-Wan Kenobi and his Arconan friends, Si Treemba. He managed to capture Si Treemba, but the Arconan was rescued by Obi-Wan, who then implicated Grelb in the sabotage of mining equipment owned by Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation. When the Monument was attacked by pirates, all its travellers were forced to land on an uncharted world dominated by the draigons. There, Jemba and Grelb tried to eliminate Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon Jinn, but the draigons attacked before they could succeed. As Obi-Wan fought off the huge reptiles, Grelb tried to shoot him with a blaster. Many of his shots missed Obi-Wan but hit Jemba instead, killing the old Hutt by piercing its hearts. Grelb was captured and torn apart shortly after by a flight of draigons. (RF)

Greldo Farnor
this rogue Khil terrorist was active during the rule of Emperor Palpatine. He started out as a droid parts salesbeing on Alderaan, where he lived with his family. He was away on business when the Empire destroyed the planet, and returned home to find a rubble-strewn section of space where Alderaan should have been. He set out to make the Empire pay for the death of his family, and attacked Imperial scout ships and cargo vessels at every chance. Even after the death of Palpatine at Endor, Greldo Farnor continued to hunt down agents of the Empire. Many post-Endor Imperials believed Farnor was a member of the New Republic, and wsa provoking hostilities where they were least needed. (GG12, WBC)

this Advozse was the champion swoop racer in the Corellian Sector during the last years of the New Order. (MTSE)

Grembae
this female Adumari technician was part of the armed forces of the Yedagonian Confederacy. She was in charge of readying the Blade-32 fighters of Wedge Antilles and Red Flight for battle against the Cartann nation. Her son painted Wedge's helmet to match that of his X-Wing helmet. (SOA)

Grenade Fungus
a dangerous plant found on the moon Yavin 4, the grenade fungus grows in arcs of rings of plants which spread across the floor of the jungle. When touched with even a light brushing, the fungus can explode outward. Its brittle skin will burst with a loud bang, and spores will be expelled in every direction. Often, the explosion of a grenade fungus will set off those around it, resulting in a widespread explosion of fungi. (ISU, GG2)

Grenal
born on Toola, this Whiphid was part of the group which agreed to travel to Neftali and serve as security guards for Memcha-Badawzi. Shortly after arriving on Neftali, Grenal earned the rank of Spearmaster, and assumed the position of chief of security. Grenal was also the spiritual shaman of the Whiphid population on Neftali, and often helped hunting parties search out prey on Neftali's barren ice flows. (BSS)

Grendahl
this Imperial Nay Captain was sent to Najiba, then Trulalis, to recapture Adalric Brandl. He had been ordered to recover the Dark Jedi by High Inquisitor Tremayne. (TFE)

Grendeef
this Imperial Admiral served as the commander of the Desolator, and was in command of the Imperial Naval base at Miser. As an individual, Grendeef obtained more personal pleasure from his work than professional pride. He was planning to use his command of the Desolator to perform some desparate action to prove he still belonged in command. However, when the crew of the Wanderer tried to reach Miser and present the location of Isis to him, Alliance operatives were able to reprogram the hyperdrive on the Desolator. The Star Destroyer was later listed having been destroyed when it rammed into rogue star G-138. Grendeef, and all aboard, were killed in the accident. (IC)

Grendles
this man was part of the hunting party arranged by Jameson and Lajar Weqill. Unfortunately, Grendles was the first to be killed by a pack of crazed draagax. (COG)

Grendu
a dealer in rare antiquities, Grendu was the Bothan trader who sold Grizzid a rancor, which Grizzid hoped to give to Jabba the Hutt.

Note that the Movie Trilogy Sourcebook lists Grendu as the owner of the rancor, and he only commissioned Grizzid to transport it for him. It doesn't say if Grendu was Bothan or not. (TJP, MTS)

Grendel

Greni
a Wing Commander for the New Republic, she commanded an X-Wing in Gold Squadron. (HTSB)

Grenn, Chandrex
this independent bounty hunter teamed up with Sirenas Firil in an effort to hunt down Pallas Quintell on Kallistas. A former Imperial researcher whose base was destroyed by the Alliance, he escaped being captured shortly after the Battle of Yavin and made his way to the Outer Rim. He took up bounty hunting as a way to locate his sister, who was lost in an Alliance raid on Shadren V. The two hunters managed to survive a firefight near Quintell's desert base and captured him, returning the rebel to Prefect Rinn for a 1,000-credit bounty. (GG10)

Grenna Base
this Alliance base was used by Daino Hyk as a treatment center for the rescued Ylesian slaves. (RD)

Grenwick
this Imperial armed forces Corporal served as the senior tactical advisor to Sergeant Major Enfield aboard the first Death Star. Assigned to security duties in detention block AA-23, Grenwick was a witness to the interrogation of Leia Organa by Darth Vader. (CCG9)

Gresh, Avril
this man was at one time a farmer, working on a Mid Rim world for an agro-collective. However, he chafed at the demanding leadership of the group, and killed his direct overseer during an argument over his lack of production. Avril fled the planet, and eventually joined he Karazak Slavers Guild as an acquisitions specialists. He had an innate ability to track down a target, and was extremely successful in his new job. (GG11)

Gresh, Valken
this bounty hunter was once employed by Darred Eloinie twice in one week. First, Eloinie hired Gresh to capture the leader of the Neo-Fundamentalist Phlangites, in order to stop the protests of the work done by Eloinie Petro-Munitions. Several days later, he hired Gresh again, this time to rescue his daughter, Cyrstas, who had been kidnapped by the Phlangites. These missions, and many other hunts, were chronicled in Gresh's autobiography, Great Hunts I've Lived To Tell About. (GG10)

Greshnohr

Greyshade, Simon
an Imperial Senator, Greyshade oversaw the expulsion proceedings against Mako Spince. (DESB)

Griann
this city, found on the planet Teyr, is located within the planet's Greenbelt region. It was an orderly city, laid out in a five-kilometer-square grid. It was hit by a cyclone about nine years before Luke Skywalker and Akanah arrived, searching for the Fallanassi. (SOL)

Gribbet
this Rybet bounty hunter worked with Skorr in attempting to capture Han Solo on Ord Mantell. (CSW)

Gricha
one of the many creatures bio-engineered by the Yuuzhan Vong, the gricha grow in insect-like stages. As larva, the gricha are capable of consuming sand and other silicates and excreting a form of nacreous shell. As they eat their way to adulthood, the gricha form structures with their shells that are eventually used by the Yuuzhan Vong as dwellings or storage areas. Larger buildings, like the grashal, can be formed by a large number of gricha in a short time. (DTO)

Gricul Salvage Yards
this starship manufacture and repair facility was located on the planet Sriluur, and was heavily subsidized by the Jatayus Trading Consortium. (SSR)

Griddek
this alien race is known for its rigid social structure and belligerent nature. (POT)

Grier, Stren
the son of a widowed trader from the Lesser Plooriod Cluster, this former Imperial scout was framed by his commanding officer just days before his term of service was up. He was implicated in several reports regarding the Giryulan Findings, and fled Imperial service rather than be executed. He found employment with Barosa Warren at the Galactic Outdoor Survival School shortly after the graduation of the famed Twilight Class, serving as Warren's personal assistant. He also proved to be a more than adequate survivalist, learning as much as he could from Warren. (AIR)

Grieves, Victor
this man was a standout within COMPNOR, and graduated directly to a position within the Imperial Security Bureau just two weeks before the Battle of Endor. He went to work for Governor Serdit Tount, patrolling the Outer Rim Territories and reporting on New Republic activity in the Rintonne System. (HR)

Griff
1) an Imperial Admiral, Griff was the fleet admiral who supervised construction of the Executor. Along with Darth Vader, Griff sent a message to the Alliance, claiming that he held open a droid maintenance position that the rebels could use to spy on the shipyards. The offer was a sham, but managed to attract Luke Skywalker to Fondor. Griff later became first commander of the Super-class Star Destroyer, although he wasn't trusted by Vader or his Executive Officer. He continually questioned Darth Vader's motivation and authority, although the Dark Lord executed the Executive Officer for complaining too much about Griff's methods. Shortly after, Vader assigned Griff to command Jovan Station. Griff began to tire of Imperial infighting, and began to see the Alliance through non-Imperial eyes. It was during this time that Darth Vader began to plan his attack on Yavin 4, trying to rout the Alliance once and for all. Griff took control of the operation before Vader was ready, and mounted the attack himself. Griff was unaware that Vader actually wanted him to do this, anticipating the Alliance's movements and using Griff's actions to destroy the Alliance. Griff was killed in the battle when, in an attempt to drop out of hyperspace and engage the fleeing Alliance starships, he caused the Executor to crash into other Imperial ships. He, and much of the fleet were killed in the aftermath, and the Alliance had a chance to evacuate Yavin 4 and reach Hoth. (CSW)
2) the flesh of this deer-like creature, native to the planet Masterhome, was considered a delicacy by the Anointed People. The Anointed People discovered that the eaters which roamed the planet were attracted to the scent of griff meat, and used it to lure eaters away from their villages. (SWCP)

Griffon Squadron

Griffyn-XTG
this SoroSuub lightspeed unit was available in all SoroSuub designs. Although it was a fairly basic drive that provided swift hyperspacial travel, it was designed specifically for use in SoroSuub vehicles, and suffered when installed in other designs. (GG6)

Griffyn/Y2TG
this SoroSuub hyperdrive system had a hyperspace rating of 0.75. (EGV)

Grig
this is one of the main cities found on the planet Narg, and is the site of the largest private starport on the planet. TransGalMeg Industries maintained a large operation in this city, including a hospital and training center. TGM also housed its hygienic recycling facility in Grig, as well as its Personal Satisfaction Division. TGM security in Grig was lax because the natives of the planet never gave TGM any trouble. (TA)

Griggs, Kane
as a native of the Botor Enclave on the planet Kerensik, Kane knew only the cold, frozen expanse of winter until he attended an Imperial university. There, he discovered a multitude of seasons, and the sensation of love. While at the university, he met Marfa Thorbin, and Alderaanian woman studying aquatic xenology. They fell in love, and Kane asked her to marry him. She agreed, and left for Alderaan to tell her parents. She was killed when Tarkin used the Death Star to destroy the planet, and Kane Griggs was changed forever. He left the university and returned to the Enclave, but his anger at the Empire continued to burn. He left his job following the Alliance's victory in the Battle of Endor, and served as a New Republic navigator on the Emancipator. He discovered new friends, a loving wife and child, but he forgot Marfa. (DE1, DESB)

Grigmin
the owner of a one-man airshow, Grigmin was a tall, broad-shouldered man, a few years younger than Han Solo when he employed Han as a maintenance mechanic and pitcrewman. Grigmin was, at one time, a champion heavyweight unarmed fighter. (HSL)

Grigor
the Imperial Governor assigned to M'haeli, Grigor came under the scrutiny of Grand Moff Lynch early in the Galactic Civil War. When Lynch assigned Ranulf Trommer to spy on Grigor as an official aide, Grigor arranged to have Trommer tailed and arrested as an Alliance spy. Trommer was caught, but Mora intervened. The two were saved when Merrik and his companion, a disguised Princess Leia Organa, stepped in to clean up. Trommer was able to expose an illegal dragite mining operation being run by Grigor. Grigor was using common thugs posing as stormtroopers to guard the mines. When the Alliance caught wind of the Governor's mines, they mounted a raid on them, but were only mildly successful. They recovered many gems, but Mora was captured in the attack. Grigor discovered, though a routine screening of Mora's identi-print, that she was the surviving heir to the royal house of M'haeli. He claimed to the humans on the planet that she had agreed to marry him, shortly after kidnapping her. When Ranulf Trommer attempted to rescue Mora, Grigor used her as a shield while holding a blaster to her head. Trommer lashed out and kicked the blaster, which surprised Grigor. His finger contracted on the trigger as the weapon pointed at his head. Grigor was killed instantly. (ROC)

Gril, Pellna
this Lietuenant with the New Republic Intelligence agency was assigned to the Special Threats group, and was the primary source of data on the Fallanassi and the White Current. (CTD)

Grill, The
this buslting, black-market district of the planet Lan Barell was a haven for all sorts of refugees and exiles. A strong cell of support for the Alliance emerged there during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ1)

Grillis Asteroid Belt
this asteroid belt, located between the planets Korbin and Abatrarg in the Atrig System, is mined by Cross-Galactic Mining. (PG2)

GrimDeath I
a pirate ship operating in the Woldona System, it was the target of an Imperial spacetrooper platoon because of its piratical acts. It was crewed by over 300 pirates, and may have been supplying the Alliance with stolen goods. It was built from a converted Victory-class Star Destroyer, but without the firepower. (SWSB)

Grime, Gordus
this noted athlete was one of the best shockball players of the New Order. He maintained his physical conditioning through the use of myostim units, but they affected his mental state. On Kaal, he went berserk and killed or injured 24 people before being killed. (SESB)

Grimnal
an ancient measure of time once used on Corellia. (AC)

Grimorg
an ancient Weequay who worked for Bogga the Hutt. (TOJ)

Grimpen
this old B'omarr monk was one of the few who never achieved true enlightenment. He was a good friend to the young monk Beidlo, but only because he realized Beidlo could be used as part of his schemes. Grimpen had been corrupted by Jabba the Hutt, and was performing brain transfers for criminals under Jabba's employ. This allowed Jabba to provide their old bodies to the authorities, making it seem like the crime lord was trying to become a good citizen. In reality, Grimpen had removed the criminal's brain and transferred it to the body of an unwitting monk or other captive of Jabba. Grimpen had tricked the victim into believing they were ready for enlightenment by having them walk across hot coals, which were simply lume rocks. The victim's brain was then placed into a brain spider droid. Grimpen also managed to lure Tash Arranda into his web, but his plans were foiled by Tash's brother, Zak. As punishment, the true B'omarr monks had Grimpen's brain removed and stored in a jar, never to feel the true enlightenment of the monks. (GOF7)

Grimtaash
this mythical Molator guardian's spirit is said to protect the Alderaanian royal family from corruption and betrayal. The grimtaash is a small, bird-like humanoid with blue skin and large, spidery hands. Chewbacca had a holographic grimtaash on his holochess board on the Millennium Falcon. (CCG2)

Grissmath
natives of the planet Meridian, the Grissmaths were a vicious society that disposed of it political enemies by depositing them on the planet Nam Chorios. They left the prisoners on the barren world, and later seeded the planet with drochs in order to kill them off. The Grissmath society eventually destroyed itself, reducing Meridian to a radioactive wasteland, while the prisoners on Nam Chorios managed to eek out an existence. (POT)

Grissom
this Godling of the Anointed People was appointed by the Godking Trisstan to put together an honor guard and greet the Imperials who arrived on Masterhome in search of the crew of the Long Shot. Trisstan wanted to ensure that the Imperials left the planet empty-handed, having decided that the Alliance forces were going to work for the good of the Anointed People. The Imperials wiped out Grissom and his honor guard, further strengthening Trisstan's resolve to join the Alliance. (SWCP)

Griv
this Rodian served as a member of Mazzic's crew, acting as the pilot of the Raptor. He later served as one of Mazzic's immediate guards and pointmen. He then joined Talon Kaarde's group, acting as a gunner aboard the Wild Kaarde. (TLC, SOP, VOF, TTSB)

Grivooga
the nickname given by Jak Sazz to his oversized hydrospanner, Grivooga is Jak Sazz's only constant companion. He carries it with him at all times, and talks to it incessantly. (DE1, DESB)

Grizmallt
an Imperial world during the Galactic Civil War, this planet fell under the control of the New Republic with little resistance. (DESB)

Grizzid
a smuggler and trader of some notoriety. He dealt quite often with Jabba the Hutt, until he tried to deliver a Rancor to the crimelord on Tatooine. The Rancor escaped from its cage and ravaged the ship on its final approach, killing Grizzid and his crew. The ship crashed in the Dune Sea, where it was later discovered by Kkak clan of Jawas. The Jawas then sold the location of the ship to Bidlo Kwerve. (SWSB, TJP)

Grlubb
this small, rodent-like creature maintained a small dictatorship on the planet Peridon's Folly. He ruled a small weapons manufacturing empire, which he guarded with Abyssin protectors. He was the first individual to hire IG-88, employing the droid to remove a competitor which was developing biochemical weapons nearby. (TBH)

Groat

Grobber
one of the Black Sun underlings dispatched by Zekka Thyne to intercept Haber Trell's cargo at the Dewback Storage facility in Coronet city. (TE)

Grode
an Imperial Major serving on Cilpar following the Battle of Endor. He accepted Tycho Celchu into his ranks, since he had lost one of his pilots recently. When his squadron discovered the existence of New Republic X-Wings in Cilpar, Grode's pilots were pressed into service to eliminate them. Celchu used a series of remote commands to activate his X-Wing, which Winter had inadvertently boarded. Between Celchu's commands and Winter's ability, the X-Wing took out nearly all of Grode's ships, including Grode himself. Grode was a heavy-set, bald-headed man. (XWRS)

Grodo
this Hutt was Aruk's personal physician. Grodo presided over the death throes of Aruk, after the Hutt had been poisoned by Jabba and Jiliac via Teroenza's nala-tree frogs. (THG)

Groff Zugga
this being was the leader of the Galactic Spice Mining Guild during the last decades of the Old Republic, and oversaw the spice-mining operations of the planet Mon Gazza. Zugga was known to make deals while betting the podracers. (RAC)

Groggin

Gromas Mines
the Empire established a phrik mining operation here, as part of Rom Mohc's darktrooper development project. (DF)

Gron Marrab
this Mon Calamari was a Senator to the New Republic during the height of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

Grond
this Imperial Lieutenant was a native of the planet Corellia, where he raced swoops as a youth. Before being posted to the garrison on the forest moon of Endor, Grond served on the Emperor's Demonstration Team. After being assigned as Colonel Dyer's primary aide, Grond went on to coordinate the various scouting actions required to guard the shield generators for the second Death Star's construction site. (CCG10)

Gronn
an Imperial Moff who survived the Battle of Endor, Gronn controlled much of the Allied Tion Sector. When the New Republic tried to move into the sector, Gronn resisted. He was almost ready to invade the planets in the sector with his minimal forces, until Lady Santhe began bribing him to stay away from the planets with manufacturing capability. This led to the birth of the independent Santhe/Seinar Technologies company. (DESB)

Groodo
this Hutt crimelord was the being responsible for the Bartokk attack on the Trinkatta Starships works on Esseles, just before the Battle of Naboo. Prior to this, Groodo had been employed by the Trade Federation to design and build a small, powerful hyperdrive unit for use on droid starfighters. However, the Trade Federation refused to pay for the prototype after Groodo delivered it. Groodo arranged for the Bartokks to steal the droid starfighters being built for the Trade Federation, then planned to destroy the Corulag Academy with them. Groodo's hope was that the Trade Federation would be blamed for the attack, allowing him to recover the prototype and receive payment for it. Groodo hoped to destroy the Corulag Academy after it refused to allow his son, Boonda, to attend schooling there. He nearly succeeded, but Darth Maul intercepted the droid starfighters and slaved them to his Sith Infiltrator's targetting computer. After warning Groodo to flea Corulag, Maul opened fire on the Hutt's freighter with the combined firepower of 25 starfighters. Groodo and his son escaped in a lifepod, and Maul let them go. Darth Sidious had told him to allow Groodo to live in fear after the starfighters were recovered. (E1A3)

Grotberry
a berry which is often used in a sauce that accompanies meat. (BF)

Groth
a deity worshipped by Scuppa. (JTH)

Grotseth
this species of four-meter-long fish was native to the oceans of Baralou. The grotseth were aggressive predators, hunting in packs and attacking anything that appeared to be smaller or weaker. Their bodies are covered with small, razor-edged shells. (PG1)

Ground-Orbit Communications Unit
developed on the planet Duro, when the majority of the population fled the destruction of the planet's ecosystem for orbital cities, this communications device allowed domed settlements on Duro to talk directly with the orbital city above it. Initially, the GOCU line was used to communicate the status of the shield generators which protected the orbital cities. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, the GOCU lines helped the New Republic maintain communications with the ground crews who were rebuilding the natural environment of Duro. (BP)

Groundborer
this ancient, Akin-Dower mining vehicle was developed for quickly excavating tunnels and chambers for use on hostile planets. These excavations could then be used as living spaces for miners and other colonists, especially when the planet's atmosphere was unbreathable. The Groundborer was 120 meters in length, and required a crew of 15 to operate. Up to fifty miners or colonists could be transported inside the craft. The ancient Naddists of Onderon converted a number of Akin-Dower Groundborers for military use, adding four medium blasters to the craft and dubbing it the "Onderonian War Machine." (TOJC, FNU)

Groundcoach
any luxuriously-appointed repulsorlift transport vehicle, they resemble the best horse-drawn carriages. (HSL)

GroundSweeper-3
this omniprobe sensor array was designed and manufactured by Tana Ire for use on many Imperial vehicles. Like most omniprobe sensors, the GroundSweeper-3 resembled a segmented dome when placed atop a weapons platform. (ROE)

Grov
this furred creature is native to the planet Dordolum. Its hide is often used to create blankets. (SOP)

Grove Harrier
this strange creature inhabits the jungles of Kashyyyk's Shadow Forest. The grove harriers follow the mallakins, feeding on the smaller creatures. (TT)

Grovner
this is the capital city of the planet Ord Grovner. (SWAJ)

Growdi
this harmonica-like instrument is attached via a thick cord to an amplifier. Developed by the Shanpa musicians of the planet Manpha, the growdi is part flute and part water-organ. (CCG9, MTSE)

Grozbok
an ancient wrecking droid reprogrammed by Olag Greck to wreak havoc on Hosk. Grozbok is destroyed by Unit Zed's group of renegade security droids. (DRO)

Groznik
a Wookiee enslaved and sent to work at an Imperial base on Endor, Groznik was forced to load ordnance on supply shuttles. When a group of freedom fighters, led by Throm Elscol, raided the base, Groznik went wild and started killing an Imperial in sight. Throm rescued the Wookiee before the Imperials could shoot him, and Groznik initiated a life-debt to Throm. The two returned to Cilpar, and continued to fight against th Imperial presence there. When Throm was killed in a battle with the Imperials on Cilpar, Groznik's debt passed to Elscol. He remained by Elscol's side through the liberation of Cilpar and during the negotiations for the Phantom Project on Mrlsst. However, Groznik was tricked into believing the ghost Jedi of Mrlsst was really Throm Loro, and was lured to Professor Falken's lab. During the New Republic's attempt to rescue Professor Falken's asteroid lab from Imperial control, Groznik remained on the lab and kept Loka Hask at bay while Rogue Squadron used the gravitic polarization beam to eliminate Hask's Interdictor-class cruiser. The device exploded, taking the lab - and Groznik - with it. A statue of the heroic Wookiee was erected in the campus of Mrlsst's Academy, in honor of his actions. (XWRS, XWPA, HXW)

GrrKack
this Ugor was the Chief Tax Chaplain of Paradise Sector, and was in command of a fleet of Black Hole-class salvage dreadnaughts that scoured the sector for garbage. Known as the Reverend Auditor, he was the primary obstacle in the Squib plan to recover a gravity-well generator from the sector, for use in pulling the Elusive out of hyperspace. GrrKack was armed with several outdated weapons held in various pseudopoda on his body. Note that this Ugor is referred to as ArrGack at the beginning of the module. (SH)

Grrobahrr
this Wookiee clan was a longtime rival of the Puurrgerr clan. (C)

GRS-1
this is the designation of the Merr-Sonn Munitions snare rifle. This double-barreled weapon fires liquefied shockstun mist up to 150 meters. The mist condenses into a translucent, web-like net that ensnares the target and hardens when it is exposed to air. (CCG4)

GRS-600
this type of replar splint was developed by Xarnin Medical Technologies. (FOP)

Gru'um Ropple
one of Jabba the Hutt's associates, Gru'um plotted to assassinate Jabba sometime prior to the Battle of Yavin. A blue-skinned, hairless humanoid, he planned to use the humanoid droid Miramba to carry frekkers into the Hutt's palace. His plot coincided with Bib Fortuna's first attempt to kill Jabba. Bib tried to remove Gru'um by planting a blaster in his robes. Jabba had Gru'um and Miramba imprisoned, but the frekkers were unleashed anyway. In the ensuing confusion, Jabba was actually rescued by Bib Fortuna, who tried to keep the Hutt alive for his own schemes. Gru'um's fate was sealed when Jabba discovered where the frekkers had come from. (JTH)

Grubhood
a developmental level that characterizes some alien species, especially those with insectile physiology. First Grubhood is the period following birth and continuing until middle age. Second Grubhood is the period of decline due to old age, and is often characterized by senility. (SWR)

Grueshite
an alien race? (SCRE)

Grugosh
this large, green-skinned alien was a bodyguard and thug. He was partners with Vundar, and served as the brawn to Vundar's brains. The pair frequented the Mid Rim hangout known as the Maze during the Galactic Civil War. They also supported the Alliance, and acted as go-betweens for the local rebel cell and potential new members. (IA)

Gruk
this Gamorrean led a band of mercenaries who simply loved to fight. They followed Gruk around, obeying his every command. It was rumored that, if anyone every defeated Gruk in combat, the entire gang would blindly follow the new leader. (FOP)

Grumby, Jona
this Corporate Sector picket fleet Commodore formerly served with great distinction in the Imperial Navy. He retired from active duty after being crippled in the battle of Ogoth Tiir. In this battle, he lost both legs, and has been relegated to using a hoverchair to get around. He was recruited by the Corporate Sector Authority after his retirement. (CSA)

Grumme Vinn
this old Duros trader worked during the height of the New Order, plying the spacelanes with his starship, the Corsa-Vinn. The ship had been in his family for years, and had earned a reputation as a smuggling vessel. Grumme Vinn himself despised smugglers, and worked hard to make a name for himself as an honest trader. He often went out of his way to avoid helping a smuggler, in order to preserve his own hard-won battles for respect. As the Empire rose to power and more and more smugglers began helping the Alliance, Grumme found that his personal moral code was more of a burden than a blessing, but he nonetheless stuck with it. (PSG)

Grumph
this terrible creature is extremely vicious, and very few who have ever seen one survive the encounter. The grumph measures eight meters in length, and is a dangerous reptile. Spiked scales cover its body, creating a dense armor-like plating. They have wicked claws on each of their four feet, and a mouth full of dagger-like teeth. (TMEC)

Gruna
a 'Nessie captain of a Colossus Wasp transport ship, around the time of the Great Sith War. He had paid a huge sum of money to Bogga the Hutt to keep the various pirates from attacking his ship. Gruna is a corpulent, gray-haired human. (TOJ)

Grundakk
a creature native to the planet Endor, the Grundakk is a huge, fur-covered humanoid with large eyes, wide nostrils, and long arms. The Duloks believe that the Grundakk is dangerous, and they have tried to scare the Ewoks by telling them that the Grundakk is coming to attack their village. Logray knew better, for he knew that the Grundakk was the guardian of the Father Tree. When Teebo is lost in the forest, the Grundakk rescues him and returns him to his home, just in time to help fight off Vulgarr and the Duloks. (AT)

Grung Squad
this was one of the groups of Imperial swamp troopers which attacked the Alliance base on Taul. They were attached to the Victory-class Star Destroyer Dominator. (SWJ1)

Grunger
one of the Imperial Grand Admirals still in power after the death of Emperor Palpatine, Grunger commanded a fleet of thirty Star Destroyers. (GDV)

Gruntak
this Amanin term describes any non-forested land found on the planet Maridun. (GG12)

Grupp
this local policeman was a native of the planet Nam Chorios. Grupp worked with the Ithorian Snaplaunce in maintaining the peace of Hweg Shul. It was Grupp and Snaplaunce that intercepted Luke Skywalker and removed him from the rocks and spears of the Oldtimers that attacked him near Taselda's house. Despite his ties to the law, Grupp was one of Seti Ashgad's stronger supporters. Grupp participated in the various raids and attacks against Oldtimers. (POT)

Grutchin
this bio-engineered form of living starfighter was created by the Yuuzhan Vong. Resembling black, armored turfhoppers, the half-meter-long grutchins were sent out after an advanced force of coralskippers reduced an enemy fleet to near-destruction. The insectile grutchins were released from an ovoid holding ship, and latched themselves onto still-operative enemy ships. The grutchins then used acid-dripping pincers to chew through the enemy ships and render them inoperative and incapable of sustaining life. However, they were living creatures, and couldn't survive a trip through hyperspace. Unlike much of the Yuuzhan Vong's bio-engineered technology, the grutchins were unintelligent weapons of destruction. Once released, they could not be recalled. Those that were not killed in battle - either by enemy fire or by Yuuzhan Vong clean-up parties - often fled the scene of the battle and wreaked havoc in the galaxy. They couldn't reproduce, so any that got away would eventually die out. (VP)

Gruu Pipe
this Essoomian device resembles a short, stubby cylinder studded with small pods. The pipe uses a special form of tobacco that heightens the smoker's awareness. (CCG9)

Gruun
Han's alias in the Dathomir prison, as an Imperial Sergeant. (CPL)

Gruuvan Shaal

Gruvia
this planet is located in the Expansion Region. (SWAJ)

Gruvian Tovash
this was an alcoholic spirit favored by Koth Melan and many other Bothans. (SESB)

Grxy
this was the southernmost continent found on the planet Paramatan, and was known to be the only refuge of the Great Oopik species. (COG)

Gryffus
1) this was a legendary Alderaanian bird of prey. (TBSB)
2) this was Conn Doruggan's nickname, while he was a champion wegsphere player on Alderaan. It referred to the Alderaanian bird of prey, and was based on Doruggan's Alderaanian birthplace. (TBSB)

Gryle City
this is the capital city of the planet Lamuir IV. (PGT)

Grynne, Phlygas
one of the most notorious assassins of the early years following the Battle of Endor, Grynne roamed the Core Worlds looking for work. It was rumored that he charged over 100,000 credits for his work. It was beleived that he murdered Stinna Draesinge Sha. (COJ)

Gryphon, Alain
this Alliance starship Captain was in command of the transport Celestial when it was overtaken by its Imperial captives. Gryphon was supposed to rendezvous with the crew of the Long Shot, which was going to take control of the prisoners from that point onward. Once the prisoners were delivered to an Alliance penal colony, command of the Celestial was to be returned to Captain Gryphon. Rather than sacrifice her ship, Gryphon attempted to destroy the ship by sending into hyperspace with a damaged hyperdrive. The result was that the Celestial and her passengers were thrown into Otherspace. There, they were captured by Ber'asco and the Charon death cult. Gryphon bravely tried to resist the Charon, but she took several vicious claw wounds. The Charon poisons eventually killed her before help from the Alliance could arrive. (OS)

Gryseium Incorporated
formerly owned by the Sullustan Huegu Eib, this ranch in the clouds of Tyed Kant was sold to Rigis Corazon. Corazon has used the company to try and corner the food market on Demophon, but he has not contract with either the Demophonian government or the Empire. Corazon later turned the reins of the company over to his daughter, Sabel. (SN)

Grythsorin
this is the largest canyon on the planet Ebra. The Empire established a mining colony there, which produced lu-ramin. The Empire used Ebranite slaves to obtain the oil. (GG12)

GSAD-43
this runaway armorer droid took up the life of a bounty hunter after misinterpretting his owner's last command. His owner, a bounty hunter herself named Janna Relasi, was killed during a hunt, and told GSAD-43 to "get them for me..." just before she died. GSAD-43 took that to mean he was supposed to hunt down the bounties she was chasing, and became a bounty hunter itself. GSAD-43 remained part of the Salaktori Hunters Guild, although its only mission is to find Relasi's killers. (GG10)

Gshkaath
this Noghri, along with Ezrakh, were summoned by Leia Organa-Solo to accompany her to the Chorios Systems to meet with Seti Ashgad. It was Gshkaath who made sure that Ashgad returned to his ship, the Light of Reason, after their initial meeting. (POT)

Gthull, Kvag
one of the reborn Emperor Palpatine's Dark Jedi, Gthull was in charge of interrogations at Bast Castle. He was sent by Palpatine, along with Tedryn-Sha and Xecr Nist, to capture Jacen and Jaina Solo. He nearly succeeded, but Rayf Ysanna used the Force to recover the children, while Princess Leia blasted Gthull into oblivion. (DE2)

GT-9R
Tirog's protocol droid, he is often referred to as "Niner." (RPG)

GTU
this corporation manufactured power armor suits for use by security forces and para-military groups. (SOP)

Guard
this was the name given to a group of Viraxo Razor starfighters used to harass the Azzameen's shipping operations. (XWA)

Guard Globe
this form of remote was used by Arakkus to guard his fortress in the Graveyard of Lost Ships. The guard globes patrolled the corridors, and were programmed to intercept intruders. (CSW)

GuardDroid
this automaton was designed to be a forboding presence when it was deployed as a guard. C-3PO, then a part of the Organa household, hadn't seen the latest model of GuardDroid when he first met Darth Vader. At one of the Emperor's balls, C-3PO tried to compliment the Dark Lord for being a GuardDroid. Vader, needless to say, was not pleased with the droid. C-3PO was demoted from protocol droid to preschool teacher for a year, and later assigned to the droid pool. (EGC)

Guardian
1) a Super-class Star Destroyer under the command of Admiral Drommel. Drommel and the fleet supporting the Guardian were on station at Coruscant when word of Emperor Palpatine's death reached the capital world. Drommel fled, and took the Guardian with him, to his home system of Oplovis, where he started his own campaign against the New Republic. The Guardian was badly damaged in the Battle of Tantive V with New Republic forces about three years after the Battle of Endor. It was last seen near Soullex, in the Fardon System. (WBC)
2) this was one of three Nebulon-B escort frigates assigned to protect the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)
3) this sleek, ultra-fast starship was owned and operated by Vana Sage, just before the Battle of Naboo. The Guardian was equipped with stealth capabilities, and had a wide range of sensor equipment and weaponry. (OWS, SFT)

Guardian
1) the name used by the person who is sent by Palpatine to guard the Mount Tantiss storehouse. It is believed that the Guardian was killed by Joruus C'baoth when he arrived on Wayland, but this may have been something created in Joruus' delusion. (HTTE, TLC)
2) this is the name of the largest Spook crystals found on Nam Chorios. Often formed into tsil, these sentient crystals controlled the actions of the smaller Spook crystals found on the planet. (POT)
3) this was the title given to those Bitthaevrians who were chosen by their leaders to act as bodyguards and protectors. (AIR)

Guardian Corp
the name given to the 1,000 war robots assigned to guard the Queen of Ranroon as she lay hidden on Dellalt. Should the secret of the ship's location and contents be discovered, the Guardian Corp is activated to eliminate any intrusion. (HSL)

Guardian Light Cruiser
this was a starship used by many space stations to enforce traffic control patterns. (ND)

Guardian of the Republic
this ancient Liberator-class troopship was decommissioned shortly before the fall of the Old Republic. It was purchased at auction by Garris Shrike, who renamed it the Trader's Luck. (TPS)

Guardian Squadron
one of General Salm's Y-Wing bomber squadrons serving the New Republic. Guardian Squadron was part of Salm's Defender Wing. (XWN)

Guardian 344
this ship was developed by Sienar Fleet Systems as the second generation of the Guardian-class light cruiser. It had essentially the same performance characteristics, but required one-fourth the crew compliment and had additional space for 10 troops. (FOP)

Guardian*-class Corvette
this Imperial warship saw a great deal of duty during the early years of the New Order. (THG)

Guardian*-class Droid
this canine-statured droid was developed to serve as a protector and companion for families with young children. Despite its home-based programming, the Guardian-class droid was equipped with a retractable blaster and retractable, blade-like teeth. These droids were fairly inexpensive, which attributed to the Guardian's popularity. (SWJ14)

Guardian*-class Patrol Ship
XL-3 and XL-5 models of this ship were built for the Empire following the Battle of Endor by Sienar Fleet Systems, which were classified as light cruisers and sometimes referred to as simply Guardian Customs Ships. These 42-meter ships were used as inter-system customs vessels, and could handle up to 200 metric tons of confiscated cargo. They had beefed-up shields and four laser cannons - two mounted in front, and two on free-moving turrents. The ship required a crew of 16, with four gunners, and had room for up to six prisoners in the brig. Tion Mil/Sci also manufactured a 40-meter version of the Guardian-class ship, armed with a pair of blaster cannons. The Tion Mil/Sci ships were used as mobile coorindating stations for the huge Hunter-Killer probots that were used by the reborn Emperor Palpatine. (GMS, DE1, RPG, DESB, FOP)

Guardian*-class Shield Generator
this shielding system, developed by MerrSonn, provided both particle and energy shielding for ground-based locations. (HAS)

Guardians of the Breath
this was the name give to the ancient Kashi mystics who were able to control the Force. The Guardians maintained all the lore and skills used to call upon the Breath in oral traditions, as it was considered blasphemy to put any of the knowledge into writing or other concrete format. (TOJC)

Guardstar
this Imperial patrol frigate was orbitting Tatooine when Boba Fett returned from Bespin with Han Solo's frozen body. It tried to intercept the bounty hunter, but Darth Vader commanded them to stand down and let Fett land. (MTS)

Guda
believed to be the largest aquatic creature native to the planet Neftali, the three-meter-long guda fish is sought after by ice fishermen from all over the Outer Rim. They are strong, cunning fish which survive in the frigid waters. Their bones were used as needles and hooks by Neftali natives, and the bony spur at the end of their nose is considered a symbol of good fortune and luck. Their thin bodies have little in the way of flesh, but the meat of the guda is considered a delicacy by the natives of Neftali. (BSS)

Gudb
a short, squat, rat-faced alien who worked for the Hutt crimelord in the Stenness system about 4000 PE. He had a pet gorm worm, and when Andur Sunrider stopped over at the Stenness spaceport, Gudb's boss wanted him to steal Andur's Agedan crystals. Gudb used his gorm worm to kill Andur, but he never got hold of the crystals. (TOJ)

Gueni
this elderly man was the leader of the Daan Council, and a contemporary of Wehutti. When The Young began taking control of the city of Zehava, Gueni was forced into a brittle alliance with Wehutti at the insistence of Qui-Gon Jinn, in an effort to avert a full-scale war. (DOD)

Guerfel
an Old Corellian term meaning 'fool' (SWAJ)

Guerglenar
this Ithorian was one of Crying Dawn Singer's backup singers, along with his partner Drov. When the Shashay was kidnapped on the planet Najarka, Guerglenar and Drov were both killed and taken to the Imperial Biological Research Center there, where they were prepared as trophies. (TA)

Guerra Derida
this Phindian was one of the multitude of slave laborers employed by Offworld Mining Company to work on the planet Bandomeer. Guerra was part of the crew that plied the depths of the Great Sea of Bandomeer, when Obi-Wan Kenobi was similarly enslaved. Guerra had an annoying habit of making a statement and then immediately negating it with a chuckle, a trait which Obi-Wan used to befriend the alien. After Qui-Gon Jinn rescued Obi-Wan from the mines, Guerra overcame his fears and led the slave miners in a mutiny that succeeded in overthrowing Offworld's control and freeing the slaves. Obi-Wan later encountered Guerra again, this time on Guerra's homeworld of Phindar, after he and Qui-Gon Jinn were transported to the planet by Guerra's own brother, Paxxi Derida. Guerra had been hiding in the ship's hold during the trip, since both of the Phindians were wanted by the Syndicat that controlled Phindar. Guerra and Paxxi led a small group of freedom fighters who hoped to overthrown the Syndicat, but they needed the Jedis' help and were afraid to ask. After learning of the Syndicat's plans to take over Gala was well as Phindar, Qui-Gon agreed to help, but only if Guerra told him the complete truth at all times. Guerra agreed. (DR, HP)

Guide Within
this was the name used by Keganites to describe a person's inner spirit and lifeforce. When all Guides Within were united in a common goal, it was known as the General Good. (FFT)

Guidenhauser
manufacturers of starfighter ejection seats. (SWSB)

Guido's Tower
one of the few square buildings foung in the city of Theed, on the planet Naboo, this tall structure was one of the oldest buildings in the city. (IWE1)

Guild
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Guild of Armament Distributors
this weapons dealers' brotherhood was formed on the planet Wroona. It was one of the less legitimate guilds targetted by Imperial Governor Norrin for elimination. (SWJ9)

Guild of Honorable Technicians this Wroonian guild regulated the repair of maintenance of Wroona's technology. (AE)

Guild of Hunters
this very secretive bounty hunter syndicate is the group to join for bounty hunters. However, it is so secretive that very few know of its existence. The galaxy's deadliest, most blood-thirsty bounty hunters join this guild, and will hunt anyone or anything. (GG9)

Guild of Interstellar Merchants
based on the planet Entralla, this Guild is comprised of commercial spacers who ply the spacelanes of the Pentastar Alignment. (SWAJ)

Guild of Non-Human Skilled Laborers formed by Kijo Mnuue and other workers at the Tallaan Imperial shipyards, this Guild strove to obtain better wages and privileges for the non-human workers who built starships for the Empire. The Guild was formed shortly after the Empire subjugated Tallaan and began reducing the number of non-humans workers at the shipyards. Many of these workers had been with the Tallaan shipyards for decades, and the Guild helped them maintain their jobs. (CRO)

Guild of Offworlder Skilled Laborers known as GOSL, this union of laborers sought to obtain fair and equal wages and benefits during the height of the New Order. Their peaceful attempts to restore working relationships often worked, despite the Empire's pro-Human stance. (SWJ9)

Guild of Vindicators
this brotherhood of assassins tried to destroy Darth Vader during the Galactic Civil War. They sent Clat the Shamer to perform the killing, but Vader manipulated Clat into a trap on Cheelit. Clat was consumed in fire when he suddenly became a playing piece in a game of Firepath. (CSWDW)

Guild Reform Committee
one of the two factions which filled the void left when the Bounty Hunters Guild was smashed, the Guild Reform Committee was made up primarily of the younger bounty hunters who felt the elderly leadership of the old Guild was too strict. Ostensibly led by the Trandoshan Bossk, the Committee strove to overshadow the old Guild. However, Bossk controlled it like a dictator, which led many of its members to throw their allegiance in with the True Guild. In the wake of the bounty put out for Trhin Voss'on't and the efficient way the Imperial officer dispatched most of the hunters who came after him, neither faction could sustain its membership. In the end, both the True Guild and the Guild Reform Committee were disbanded. (SLS, HM)

Guilea
this extract of the tecave grass found on the planet Cerea is known for its mildly euphoric effects when consumed. It is prized on many planets throughout the galaxy, but the planet Cerea has a virtual monopoly on its production because it is the only world which contains the necessary trace elements like malium in its atmosphere. The export of malium and tecave is strictly prohibited for this reason, although many individuals manage to smuggler small amounts at great risk. (PTR)

Guiteica
this harsh planet was located in the Kadok Regions, and was the homeworld of the Bitthaevrian race. Known as Kadok III-D on most starcharts, Guiteica was the fourth planet in the Tertiary Kadok System, and had nine natural moons. There were sixteen distinct continents on this rugged planet, which was known for its soaring peaks and huge waterfalls. Because of its axial tilt, Guiteica experienced seven distinct seasons each local year: Giil, Quul, Aul, Zoul, Tweil, Jael, and Quaal. (AE, AIR)

Guiteica Militia
this was the primary military force of Bitthaevrians which protected the planet Guiteica and the Kadok Regions. Each of the planet sixteen continents provided hardware and troops to the Militia. The m'Yalfor'ac Order was generally regarded as the leadership of the Militia, since its membership accounted for more than eighty percent of the Guiteica Militia and the leaders of the m'Yalfor'ac Order were the strongest of the Militia's leaders. (AIR)

Gukked Eggs
a form of breakfast food. (COJ)

Gul-Rah, Thanis
this former bounty hunter was part of the crew of the New Republic starship FarStar, during the search for Moff Sarne in Kathol Sector. Thanis, at one point in his career, hunted for Scoryn, but the intervention of Captain Brannij thwarted the capture. After Scoryn was promoted to First Officer aboard the FarStar, Thanis realized that the balance of power between them had shifted. In order to secure his own position, Thanis began talking to the starfighter pilots, gaining their friendship while sowing the seeds of dissention among them. (KR)

Gulan Screw
this was a huge piece of equipment used to gouge out large areas of rock during mining operations. (RAC)

Gularg
this Hutt bartender owned and operated Gularg's Libation Emporium in Celanon City, during the early years of the New Republic. He had left Nal Hutta to discovered the thrill of exploration, but soon found that he liked working with the incredible diversity of lifeforms in the galaxy. After learning that the best places to meet other beings was in cantinas and bars, Gularg established his Libation Emporium to meet them himself. He was known as jovial and pleasant, something of an anomlay among the Hutts. This didn't stop him from joining in the many fights which occurred in the bar, however. (POC)

Gularg's Libation Emporium
this spacer's bar was located on the planet Celanon, in Celanon City. It was decidely not upscale, with muddy brown water covering the steps down to the entrance and dark lighting making it hard to see inside. When your eyes adjusted to the lack of light, Gularg's appeared to be a huge cavern. Many spacers considered Gularg's to be the most dangerous establishment in the sector. (POC)

Gulch, The
located within the Serianan Asteroid Belt in grid 867-3A4, the Gulch is the nickname of a huge cavern located within the largest of the asteroids. First documented by Korren Starchaser and his team, the Gulch was unusual in that it appeared to be partly natural and partly excavated by some alien race. On the surface of the asteroid were several runes and glyphs, many of which dwarfed Starchaser's scout ship, the Jedi Dreamer. Detailed examination of the runes showed that they had been tooled into the surface of the asteroid. However, anyalsis of the composition of the asteroid revealed that the body is made up of extremely dense and resistant minerals. In the rear of the cavern was an alcove that contained several alien statues. This alcove was carved out the rock of the asteroid, which is all the most astonishing given the dense nature of its composition. The five statues could easily be carried by a human, but were impounded by the New Republic before further analysis could be done. (SWJ8)

Guldi, Drom
the Baron-Administrator of the Kelrodo-Ai gelatin mines following the Battle of Calamari, Drom Guldi fancied himself a big-game hunter. When he heard the Burrk and his two Cathars, Nodon and Nonak, were booking trips to Hoth to hunt Wampas, he jumped at the chance. They were ambushed by Wampas on the trip, and the Wampas accidentally hit the auto-destruct sequence for his ship. The ship exploded before they could fight off the Wampas, and they were stranded. They were eventually discovered by Luke Skywalker and Calista, but were again attacked by Wampas. They fled to the remains of Echo Base, but the Wampas fought their way in and killed nearly every, including Drom Guldi, who held off several Wampas to allow Luke and Callista to escape. (DS)

Guldus Bemm
this Twi'leki former pirate was the Administrator of the Canyon Mining Facility in the years following the Battle of Endor and the liberation of Bakura. He led the group which resuced the crew of a Victory-class Star Destroyer that was damaged near Canyon, and when the Empire left them alone, he moved in. After establishing the Canyon Mining Facility, Bemm and his pirates soon became wealthy. He urgently requested that Luke Skywalker come to the planet Canyon to investigate the strange crystals discovered in the mines there - Bemm thought they might be useful in the construction of lightsabers. This was was all a carefully constructed ruse, as Bemm hoped to lure Skywalker into a trap and deliver him to Advisor Bregius Golthan. When Skywalker himself didn't show up, Bemm captured the New Republic agents who did arrive. (SWJ8)

Gulek, Donn
this man, the Chief Historian at the Kellmer Institute, was an expert on the organizational development and structure of the New Republic. (CTD)

Guller
one of the members of the Blood Nest group which served the Imperial Warlord Zsinj on the third moon of M2398. (WS)

Gulley
this New Republic Navy Lieutenant was Plat Mallar's check pilot, during Mallar's training as an escort pilot. Gulley checked out Mallar's abilities after Mallar was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group, following the loss of the Tampion to the Yevetha. (TT)

Gulley Fish
an alien creature. (TME)

Gulli-brawl
this was the Gungan name for the first phase of the Big Nasty Free-For-All, in which the competitors vied for control of a small number of gulliballs. (E1A10)

Gulli-throw
this was the Gungan name for the second phase of the Big Nasty Free-For-All, in which the Gungans remaining from the gulli-brawl had to place their gulliballs in elevated chutes. The chutes were placed atop flexible poles, and those Gungans who failed to put their ball into the chute were disqualified. (E1A10)

Gulliball
this is one of the most popular sports played by the Gungans. Using mallets made from the branches of the zaela tree, Gungans bat around puffed-up gullipuds in an effort to place them in specified goal areas. (GF)

Gullipud
this flat-bodied, squishy amphibian is native to the swamps of Naboo. They live in the mud, hoping to avoid being eaten while foraging for algae and other plants. When excited or frightened, gullipuds quickly inhale great amounts of air and puff up like balloons. This helps scare off potential predators, and also makes them useful in the Gungan sport of gulliball. For some strange reason, the gullipuds enjoy being batted around with zaela-wood mallets. (GF)

Gulper
a swamp creature native to the bayous of Nim Drovis. (POT)

Gum-tree
a form of plant life native to the planet Chad, it forms many of the planet's bayous. The bark and leaves of the gum-tree are various shades of red. (GG4)

Gumbah Pudding
a form of custard. (AS)

Gumbol
this is a species of tree-dwelling creature native to the swamps of Naboo. (IG1)

Gumes
this food is often served as an accompanyment to nerf meat. (IJ)

Gump-mullet
a small fish of little commercial or culinary importance. (JTH)

Gun of Command
built on Charubah, this weapon releases an electromagnetic wave field that neutralizes the enemy's voluntary thought processes. They were used primarily by Hapans troops. The Gun resembles a normal blaster, and though it was effective in taking out an opponent without harming them, the guns were prohibitively expensive to produce. (CPL, CTD)

Gunda Mabin
known as Gunda the Terror, this Aqualish pirate burst onto the galactic scene about the time of the Battle of Yavin as a member of the Riders of the Maelstrom. She eventually struck out on her own, terrorizing Perrinn Sector during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. She was known to rob her victims blind and them sell them into slavery, a practice which earned her a huge bounty on her head. She was also known to be short on intelligence, relying on brute strength and fear to remain successful. (PP)

Gundark
a four-armed anthropoid known for its incredible strength. Native to the planet Kashyyyk, it has large ears. (ESB)

Gundeeb, Mowa
Mowa was one of the sensor experts who served under Korren Starchaser aboard the scout ship Jedi Dreamer. (SWJ13)

Gundruk
this ambitious young Gamorrean sow was the daughter of Vrokk and Kufbrug, and was married to her uncle Rog. It was later discovered that Gundruk was jealous of her mother's power, as well as the number of suitors Kufbrug attracted. When she discovered that Guth was trying to win Kufbrug's heart, Gundruk formed a plan to obtain her mother's position. She used Rog's unwitting assistance to murder Vrokk, in a plan to frame Guth and take control of Bolgoink. She and Rog were forced to flee Gamorr, after their plans were revealed by Callista Ming and Kufbrug. Another of Kufbrug's daughters were named the clan matron of Nudskutch. (SWJ14)

Gunga Park
this was a large, enclosed, natural area found within the city of Otoh Gunga, on Naboo. (GF)

Gungan
this species of humanoid amphibians was native to the planet Naboo. There are two distinct races of Gungans: the Ankura and the Otolla. The average Otolla Gungan has a tall, muscular body with long arms and short legs, and can exist on either land or in the water. Their heads are crowned with a pair of large frills that can be extended when frightened. Their eyes sit atop short, thick stalks. The Ankura Gungans grow incredibly large, to the point where their immense weight begins to compact their skeletons, and their eyes are hooded with heavy brows instead of sitting atop short stalks. Ankura Gungans also have green skin, where the Otolla Gungans have reddish skin. During much of their existence on Naboo, the Gungans took great pains to avoid contact with their human neighbors, and even built huge underwater cities to escape contact. However, fringe elements of both species realized that they couldn't survive without the other, and specialized trading relationships were set up. While these relationships were not officially recognized by either government, they were vital to the survival of each species. The Gungans, like the Wookiee race, have a distinct concept of the life debt. Any Gungan who is saved by another being must submit to the life debt or be punished by their gods. Despite their amphibious appearance, Gungans are quite technologically advanced. Their immense bubble cities are found in the depths of Naboo's seas, and are made up of groupings of round force-fields. The fields are permeable only to slow-moving objects, and can be penetrated by a Gungan walking through them. However, the force-fields hold back the incredibly pressures of the water that surrounds them. The Gungans also had an advanced shielding technology which they applied to small, hand-held shields as well as huge hemispheres that protected an entire army. Like the bubble fields, these shields were only permeable by slow-moving objects, and they absorbed energy like a sponge. (SW1, TPM, IG1)

Gungan Grand Army
this was the name used to describe the huge army gathered from Ankura and Otolla Gungans, which was ready to act on the orders of Boss Nass or any other leader, in case of emergency. The Grand Army was ordered into battle by Boss Nass as part of Queen Amidala's plans to overthrow the Trade Federation blockade of Naboo, in what became part of the Battle of Naboo. (IG1)

Gungan Sacred Place
this was the name used to describe the hidden location which Gungans held sacred above all others. Located along the foothills of the Gallo Mountains on the planet Naboo, it is one of the few aboveground places they inhabit. Normally reserved for introspective contemplation and prayer, the sacred place also served as a safe haven in the event of an emergency in one of their underwater cities. The sacred place is surrounded by ruins and statues, many depicting ancient Naboo gods and goddesses. (SW1, IG1, IWE1)

Gunlabird
a species of avian native to the forest moon of Endor. Gunlabirds were the favored prey of the yootak. (SWJ1)

Gunman
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. Gunman was based on Kothlis, and was one a member of Churhee's Rifleman, where he worked as a combat technician. (SWJ13, SWJ14)

Gunner Groth
this two-bit bounty hunter hoped to catch Mara Jade on Rishi. He used a false set to pose as the better-known hunter Dengar, but was killed before he could actually capture Mara. (TTSB)

Gunthar
this member of the FarStar's crew was forced to fight in gladiator battles before joining the Alliance. Gunthar was a stocky humanoid with a short tail, whose torso was covered with fur while his abdomen and lower body were scaled. It was later discovered - when the FarStar traveled through the Blue Swirl - that Gunthar was a member of the Yvarema species. In fact, Gunthar was a royal explorer who was mapping a section of the Kathol Rift when he was captured by slavers. Upon his return to Yvara, Gunthar suddenly regained a great deal of intelligence, and pledged his unswerving loyalty to the Majjvara. After the FarStar defeated the Heart of Flesh and allowed the Yvarema to remain free, Gunthar resigned his post aboard the ship and remained on Yvara with his people. At his suggestion, the Majjvara created a new class of Yvarema known as the FarStar Warriors. (KO, KR)

Gupin
a shape-shifting race of elf-like creatures that inhabit the volcanic caves of the forest moon of Endor. (ECAR)

Gurdun
this Imperial Supervisor devised the IG-88 assassin droid, and funnelled large amounts of credits into the droid's creation. He gave Holowan a limited timetable on which to create the droids, which the Empire would use to eliminate targets that stormtroopers could not hit. A large man with an inflated ego, Gurdun personally went to the Holowan labs for the initial demonstration of the IG-series droids. He was greeted with chaos,as the IG-88 droids (along with IG-72) had escaped from their laboratories. Gurdun was forced to send out a warning to the galaxy, indicating that thelethal assassin droids were loose. After this fiasco, Gurdun was placed in charge of the Arakyd Viper probe droid project, and he negotiated to have the droids mass-produced on Mechis III. The droids had been commissioned by Darth Vader himself, to be used to hunt the commanders of the Alliance following the Battle of Yavin. Gurdun saw that he could also use the probe droids to search out IG-88, and put his efforts into the project. Once the droids were delivered, Gurdun was placed in charge of acquiring and delivering the computer core for the second Death Star. While transporting the core to Endor. Gurdun's small fleet was attacked by IG-88A. The droid's robotic troops quickly eliminated Gurdun's stormtrooper escort. When Gurdun was captured by IG-88A, he went into a fit of rage and astonishment. The droid he had created actually was successful, but also very lethal. IG-88A left Gurdun aboard his crippled transport ship, and Gurdun perished when IG-88A destroyed the ship. (TBH)

Guri
this human-replica droid was a blond-haired, blue-eyed female who served Prince Xizor. Guri was beautiful by any human standard, and she was also a highly-skilled assassin. Xizor had paid nine million credits to purchase her, and was the only one of her kind. Xizor made sure of that by exterminating her creator. She was Xizor's right arm, enforcing the crimelord's wishes and maintaining the day-to-day continuity of his enterprises. She was disptached by Xizor to assist Durga the Hutt's assassination of Jiliac, and was also responsible for bringing the traitorous leaders of Orono Shipping under control. When Xizor was killed over Coruscant when the Alliance destroyed his skyhook, it was believed that she perished in the explosion. However, Guri fled the planet and traveled alone for some time. During her private time, she decided to locate Massad Thrumble, hoping that the Imperial researcher could remove the programming that made her an assassin. Thrumble's work succeeded, but not before the Falleen Savan tried to recover Guri. Savan attempted to use a secret codephrase which Xizor had implanted in Guri's brain. Thrumble's reprogramming gave Guri enough information to recognize the phrase, but her new programming ignored it. Guri immobilized Savan and helped turn the Falleen over to the fledgling New Republic. Guri herself, no longer an assassin, fled Hurd's Moon and eventually met up with Dash Rendar. (SE, RD, SEE)

Gurian
manufacturers of hovercraft power plants. (ISB)

Gurn
a deity worshipped by some of Princess Nampi's warriors. (JTH)

Gurrcat
a Corellian predator. (WS)

Gurreck
a horned predator native to the forest moon of Endor, the gurreck has four large fangs studding its upper jaw. (CCG10)

Gurtt, Tyresi
this dark-complected woman was one of the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates who served with Jacob Nive and survived the Imperial assault on them. Her right hand was injured in an unspecified accident, and was replaced with a cybernetic prosthesis. She chose not to have it covered with synthetic flesh as a sort of badge of courage. She became the Captain of Nive's premier fighter group, Bolt Squadron. For her tactics in defeating the Harmzuay, which she acknowledged were Corran Horn's (who was operating under the alias of Jenos Idanian) she was promoted to True Invid and served aboard the Invidious. When Tavira was attacked at Suarbi 7/5 by the combined forces of the Backstab, the Errant Venture, and Corran's Jedi illusions, Tavira fled. However, Jacob Nive had gotten word to Gurtt that any members of the True Invids who were once Survivors were immuned under the deal he struck with Luke Skywalker and Corran, and those who chose to leave Tavira's service were welcome to those freedoms. She and many of her companions took the offer for freedom and left the Invidious before it jumped to hyperspace. (IJ)

Gus Treta
a space station located in the Corellian Sector. Wedge Antilles' parents operated a fuel depot there, but were killed in an explosion there. (SCRE, MTS)

Guth
this Gamorrean was Ugmush' brother, and a crewman aboard the Zicreex. Sometime after the Battle of Endor, Guth was charged with murdering the warlord Vrokk. It was no secret aboard the Zicreex that Guth wanted to challegne Vrokk during the Fair at Bolgoink, Vrokk's brother, Rog, claimed that Guth had challenged Vrokk to combat before the fair, in a written document. The wax seal of the document was impregnated with poison, and Vrokk died shortly after reading it. Vrokk's widow, Kufbrug, tried to support Rog's claims by producing a series of love letters she had supposedly received from Guth. Callista Ming, however, knew that Guth couldn't write his own name, let alone a series of love letters, and set out to clear her crewmate's honor. Callista later discovered that a homunculus-wasp had been sealed into the wax which bound the parchment, and the insect killed Vrokk. It was later discovered, by Callista and Kufbrug, that Rog and Gundruk had murdered Vrokk in order to gain a position of power by controlling both Bolgoink and Nudskutch. Guth was later set free, and married Kufbrug. (SWJ14)

Gutretee
this race of hulking, crystalline humanoids is native to the planet Isis. They are a primitive, single-sex, nomadic race that gains nourishment from the mineral deposits and other crystalline creatures on the planet. When Bail Organa arrived to make Isis a safeworld for the families of Old Republic supporters, some Gutretee tribes welcomed the humans. Other tribes hated off-worlders, and thus grew to dislike the Alliance, although they had no feelings for the Empire either. The Gutretee tribes are very aggressive, and physical combat has a large place in Gutretee ceremonies and rituals. The crystalline matrix of their bodies has two unique features. First, blaster fire simply bounces off of them. Second, the matrix of crystals within a Gutretee body contains all of their race's memories in exact detail. Thus, the Gutretee body is a huge data file. (IC)

Guvvuk
this Yuuzhan Vong command roughly translated into Basic as "Move along." (BP)

Guyef
this was the Balinaka term for hypothermia. (PG1)

Guzald
this Devaronian worked for Saadoon-Kauldi as an interpreter and lieutenant. Guzald was a former slave who was liberated by the immense Kadri'Ra. His years of working on an Imperial garbage scow taught him humility and wisdom, replacing the wanderlust often encountered in males of his species. He had to family ties, as the rest of his family was also enslaved, and gave his entire effort to Saadoon-Kauldi. (BSS)

Gwadj
the Bordali agent charged with kidnapping Marina and Maarek Stele, in an effort to force Kerek Stele to divulge his secrets to the Bordali military. He was captured by the Empire in the middle of the attempt. (TIE)

Gwain Spices
this spice producer was based on the planet Corulag, and paid its taxes directly to the Empire's COMPNOR and Intelligence budgets during the Galactic Civil War. Gwain also supplied potent forms of spice to the Empire's Intelligence agencies. (FOP)

Gwayo
the eggs of this bird were considered a delicacy, and were easy to obtain. Gwayo egg hunters simply followed the bird back to its nest, as it always returned to the nest to tend its eggs. (E1A7)

Gweld
this large, shelled amphibian was native to the planet Sedri. The gweld has long, muscular limbs and a large mouth. The bones of its jaws were often used by the native Sedrians to form spears. (SSR)

Gweek
this Gamorrean word translated roughly to the adjective "strong." (SWJ14)

Gwellib Ap-Llewff
one of the Emperor Palpatine's original Dark Side Adepts. (DE1, DESB)

Gwerax-hai
this large carnivore was native to the rainforests of the planet Veron. The average gwerax-hai was an agile, though not very swift, hunting reptile, with curved tusks protecting a mouth full of sharp teeth. Gwerax-hai measured about four meters in length, including their thin tail. (PG1)

Gwig
an Ewok who received his hood, signifying his status as an adult, just before the Battle of Endor. (ECAR)

Gwouch
this foodstuff contains various nutritional attributes, but it is detested by young children. It is often stewed, resulting in poor palatability. (CSA)

Gwynn
this short, portly woman owned and operated the Gwynn Dispatch in Elrooden. She was also an Alliance supporter, and was Shondra Del's primary contact in the city. (OE)

Gwynn Dispatch
this small, independent business was owned by the woman named Gwynn, and was located in a business district in the city of Elrooden. She matched up cargoes with starship captains, ensuring that all the deliveries were made. (OE)

GX-99
this modified Aro-GX security droid was owned by the bounty hunter known as Cragus 12. GX-99 was completely loyal to Cragus 12, and was skilled in the operation of his freighter, the Claw. (SWJ1)

GX1
this was the model number of the Lantillian Short Hauler. (SS)

GX12
this Corporate Sector Authority hovervan was used as a military personnel carrier. It measured 13 meters in length, and had a crew of a pilot, two gunners, a medic, and a 2-1B medical droid. Up to 16 troops could be carried into battle. The GX12 was armed with twin blaster cannons and a grenade launcher. (CSA)

GX7
Taim & Bak laser cannons used on the Immobilizer 418. (XW)

GY-I Intelligence Droid
developed by Cybot Galactica, this information analysis droid was produced to replace the aging GA-series. Featuring upgraded software and expanded memory capacity, the GY-I series was designed for military usage. These droids were humanoid and short in stature, measuring just a meter in height. Depending on their programming, much of which was produced by Arakyd, the GY-I series could act as tactical analysts, astrogators and hyperspace jump coordinators, or decyphering and decryption. (TBSB)

Gy'lan Spice
one of the many forms of illegal, addictive spice. (TTSB)

Gyle
this Melodie was Lyric's father. He helped Anakin Solo and Tahiri reach Aragon. (LW)

Gylif fho ihn gylif
this Old Corellian phrases translated into Basic as, "a life for a life." (SWJ12)

Gylocal
a powerful pain-killing drug and stimulant. It is manufactured from highly-toxic materials, and decomposes into its components after ten years. (COJ)

Gymnasium
this huge edifice is found within the city of Ban Belos, on the planet Rabaan. Covering a full five city blocks, it contains living space, training areas, and competitive arenas for the Rabaanite warrior caste. The Gymnasium is a tall, multi-level building with a long entry hall known as the Arcade. It is always well-guarded. (SWJ9)

Gymsnor-2
this is an older model CorelliSpace freighter. It measured 31.7 meters in length, and was considered obsolete by spacers about 20 years before the Battle of Endor. (SOP, KO)

Gymsnor-3
this is a model of CorelliSpace freighter. It is a long, segmented craft, measuring 34.1 meters in length and capable of transporting up to 95 metric tons of cargo. The Gymnsor-3 was armed with a turret-mounted laser cannon, and required a single pilot to operate. Like the other ships in the Gymsnor series, the Gymsnor-3 was designed to compete with Corellian Engineering Corporation's freighters. (KT, PP)

Gymsnor-4
this is a model of CorelliSpace light freighter. It resembled a flying wing. (THG)

Gyndine
a territorial administrative world near the Circarpous system, it was the home and base of Bin Essada during the height of the New Order. Later, Gyndine joined the New Republic, and agreed to set up an enclave for the refugees fleeing the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. However, shortly after the alien invaders attacked Ord Mantell, the targetted Gyndine. Waves of refugees tried to get off the planet, but the attacking aliens destroyed New Republic rescue ships and forced huge numbers of refugees to be left behind. (SME, HT, JE)

Gyne, Massus
this man was the High Priest of the Fellowship of Kooroo during the height of the New Order. (SWJ13)

Gyntal
this independent spacer was based out of Hellios. (SWJ14)

Gyosha
this pleasant resort world was located in the Core. (TBSB)

Gyr Keela
this Mrlssti was the president of the Mrlssti Academy, a position to which he was promoted after Rorax Falken suffered his nervous breakdown. He was known for his beautiful, yellow and red facial plumage. He tried to extort money from the Empire by proposing the Phantom project's cloaking device. When the fledgling New Republic also showed interest, Keela opened negotiations between the New Republic and the remnants of the Empire. Wedge Antilles represented the Republic, while his old nemesis Loka Hask represented the Empire. An Imperial plot, involving faked video of Tycho Celchu and the imprisonment of Wedge during the negotiations, virtually assured Imperial control of the Phantom project. In the end, Keela admitted that the project was a fake. After the Empire was driven off Mrlsst, Keela remained president, and vowed to reform his ways and restore his people to their former glory. (XWPA)

Gyran
this bounty hunter was often employed by Prince Xizor, whenever Black Sun needed some internal "housecleaning." Prior to becoming a hunter, Gyran was a royal bodyguard to the spice lords of Sevarcos. Xizor purchased Gyran's services while on a business trip, and he remained under Xizor's control from that point on. Gyran was known to have a fear of wide-open spaces, although he controlled it well during spaceflight. (SSR)

Gyre I
this was one of the original cloud cars produced by Incom Industries, based on the repulsorlift technologies discovered during the construction of Cloud City. (GG2)

Gyrhil
manufacturers of laser cannons. (XW)

Gyro-balance Circuitry
any specialized system that allows droids and ships to maneuver in three dimensions as well as in the vacuum of space. (HSE)

Gyro-grappler
this ancient device was designed by the Old Republic Army as an aid in scaling walls or sheer faces of rock. (TOJC)

Gyro-stabilizers
a starship component which monitors the pitch and yaw of a starship to help modify the ship's artificial gravity and keep the ship's contents upright. (ROTJN)

Gyrowheel Multifunction
a series of droids produced by Cybot Galactica. They are snake-like in shape. (COJ)

gYvX
this was the model number of one of Taim & Bak's shield generator systems, used for large capital-scale ships and small planetoid bases. (HAS)

G0-16
this fan-tan dealer droid worked at the Fifteen Moons Casino on Ord Mantell. It lacked any kind of sympathy for the players, and would routinely skip over players who didn't meet its eye during gameplay. G0-16 once tried to ignore Han Solo's bid during a match, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, while Han was trying to increase the reward he received for rescuing Leia Organa. Han was being hounded by a small droid dispatched by Alfreda Goot, and had to argue with the droid and the casino owner to have his bid placed. (SL)

G1M
this small, roller-treaded droid was a maintenance droid assigned to the crew which assisted Ki-Adi-Mundi in his search for Ephant Mon near Tatooine. The droid was a prototype, and had been rejected because of its highly unusual programming. In an effort to distract his pursuit, Ki tried to empty his holds of garbage and other junk, hoping to damage the trailing starship. In the chaos, G1M was swept out of the hold with the garbage. This was part of Ki's plan, however, as G1M made its way onto Jabba the Hutt's personal shuttle and downloaded its computer banks. Hidden in the data it recovered was enough information to piece together the Trade Federation's part in the import of technology to Cerea. Note that in later issues of Prelude to Rebellion*, this droid is referred to as J1M*. (PTR)

G2-9T
this was a series of repair droids developed about 10 years after the Battle of Endor. (SOP)

G4
a series of servant droids. (TJP)

G47
this heavy-duty tractor beam generator was produced by Novaldex for use on ships which moved asteroids for mining or for safety. Ecclessis Figg used sixteen pairs of them to maintain the sense of gravity on Cloud City. (GG2)

G7-x
Seinar Fleet Systems gravity well projectors used on the Immobilizer 418. (XW)

G8
a blaster rifle produced by Merr-Sonn. (HTSB)

G8-R3
this astromech droid was one of several that served aboard the Naboo Royal Starship during the tenure of Queen Amidala. G8-R3 was one of four droids dispatched during the Queen's escape from the Trade Federation blockade of Naboo, but was also one of the first to be destroyed by Federation turbolasers. An unusual astromech, G8-R3 had the head of an R5 unit and the body of a standard R2 unit. (IG1)

* H *

H-Stable
this was the designation of a series of Por Forian power cells used on Mon Calamari luxury liners. (RM)

H-10
this was one of several models of Seinar troop transports that were used by the Empire before the advent of the Lambda-class shuttle. The H-10 was discarded, but found a new home among smugglers and backwater planetary governments. (POT)

H'drachi
this humanoid race, native to the planet M'haeli, was subjugated by the Empire. The H'drachi have the unique ability to be able to foretell certain future events by manipulating the timestreams around them. The more H'drachi that convene to consult the timestream, the easier it is to read. (ROC)

H'gaard
one of Bespin's twin moons. Along with Drudonna, they are often referred to as The Twins. H'gaard measures about five kilometers in diamater, and is a greenish ice ball. (GG2, ZHR)

H'ken
this planet, which is the primary world in the H'ken System of the Corva Sector, is located within the system's asteroid belt. This belt is nearly 20 kilometers wide, making navigation through the system difficult. (SWAJ)

H'kig
a religious leader from the planet Galand who was put to death by the planet's ruling houses for speaking out about morals and goodness. He preached of these things around 160 PE, but he was also outspoken about the ruling classes of Galand. His murder came shortly after H'kig insulted the planet's Viceroy. (DFRSB)

H'kig, The
this religious sect was formed by the faithful masses who believed in the messages being spread by the religious leader H'kig on Galand. They bought two starships and fled the planet after H'kig was executed, and landed on Rishi, where they set up a theocratic government. The H'kig religion stressed the values of simple living, and the elimination of unnecessary material possessions. The H'kig religion has defined a number of sacred glyphs, each of which has a special meaning. Some of the glyphs are so sacred that they cannot be spoken aloud. (DFRSB, SOL, HT)

H'Krav
a member of Obigon's pirates, he is the Null Space's navigations officer. (HTSB)

H'Lokk Consortium
this corporation, a rival of the Bakur Corporation, injected a virus program into the droids which were sent to Bakura shortly after it was settled by humans. The virus was meant to instruct the droids to sabotage the settlers' activities, forcing the Bakur Corporation to abandon the planet. This would leave it open to H'Lokk to exploit. Unfortunately for H'Lokk, the virus was flawed, and the droids' non-violence failsafes were disabled. The droids started to kill people, and all were destroyed within a week. The settlers suffered great losses, but managed to persevere without the help of droids, dooming H'Lokk's own plans for Bakura. (TBSB)

H'nemthe
a planet with three natural satellites. It is the homeworld of the H'nemthean race. (TME)

H'nemthean
native to the planet H'nemthe, these humanoids resemble Gotals in that they have cone-like appendages of their heads. That is where the resemblance ends, though. Gotals only have two cones, while the H'nemtheans have four. The H'nemtheans have blue-gray skin, and their faces are covered with three ridges of bone and skin running from their cheeks to their chins. They have graceful noses and feathery eyelashes covering bright green eyes. The H'nemtheans are not Force-sensitive, as are the Gotals. The females also have silver, knife-shaped tongues, which are used as part of a bizarre mating ritual. When a female consummates her relationship with a male, she eviscerates him with her tongue, leaving him for dead. It is believed that this ritual is a biological reaction to the existence of twenty males for every female on H'nemthe. When the Empire subjugated their homeworld, many H'nemtheans abandonded it. Many joined the Alliance, working from a base on Anoat to coordinate the shipping of supplies throughout the galaxy. (TME, CCG7, CCG9)

H'ratth
this ancient Jedi Master Chamma established his training facility on this lush planet. (TOJC)

H'rinnrada
this Rodian female was obsessed with gaining status in her clan, and took to bounty hunting as a way to increase her worth. She approached every other sentient as a target, and was not known for her subtlety. (GG10)

H'sishi
this female Togorian joined Talon Karrde's smuggling operation shortly after the New Republic put down Dolph's bid for power on Almania. H'sishi had been living as a scavenger on the planet Torpris, eking out an existence by obtaining the choicest scrap material and selling it to the highest bidder. She helped Mara Jade escape from the palace of Chay Praysh, during Mara's attempt to rescue Sansia Bardrin. H'sishi sustained several injuries, and was taken to Karrde's medical facility after the rescue. As H'sishi healed, Mara told Karrde about the Togorian's resourcefulness, and Karrde agreed to meet with her and discuss a position in his organization. She had earned her way onto the bridge of the Wild Karrde shortly before the revelation of the Caamas Document, and saw minimal action as the ship's main scanner operator. When Karrde set out to meet Booster Terrik on the Errant Venture, the bridge crew kept the exact nature of Terrik's ship. When she recognized that a Star Destroyer was waiting for them after they dropped out of hyperspace, she reacted quite violently, but checked her emotions quickly to provide an accurate description of the ship. With this initiation behind her, H'sishi grew into one of the more competent members of Kaarde's bridge crew. (SOP, VOF, TFNR)

H'uun
a lower class of Hutt society. (BF)

Haakon
this Lord lost a high-stakes sabacc match with the Herglic gambler Narloch, but refused to pay his debts. Haakon claimed the match had been rigged, but an Imperial investigation revealed that Haakon had to pay up. Haakon was forced to mortgage his family holdings in order to pay off the debt, but vowed to make Narloch pay. Haakon issued an anonymous bounty for Narloch's live body. (ND)

Haanen Felean
this male Klatooinan joined the Alliance shortly before the Battle of Endor. He was believed to have died in an Imperial attack on his supply garrison a couple of years later, but later was discovered to have joined the Empire and was providing information on the New Republic's supply routes to its leaders. (WBC)

Haaran Balmor
this Jedi Master once played a game of Divoran Holochess with Hart Daele, via notes and letters, for forty years. (GG9)

Haash'n
this Mon Calamari was known for his skills as an engineer. Like most members of his species, Haash'n joined the Alliance after the Empire subjugated the planet Calamari. He dreamed of piloting a starship, and served as a Major aboard the Home One during the Battle of Endor. (CCG11)

Hab Camber
one of Kaarde's aliases for the Wild Kaarde. (TLC)

Haba
a group of 10 to 10,000 individual Brubbs that live together in a communal fashion. Habas have evolved for a number of reasons, from educational universities to spaceport habas. All children born into a haba are considered wards of the group, and every adult takes responsibility in raising the young. When they are old enough to mate, the children are traded to other habas in order to maintain the integrity of the Brubb genetic pool. (GG4)

Habassa
an alien race enslaved by the Empire. The Habassa openly joined the Alliance following the Battle of Yavin. (XW)

Habassa II
this planet is likely the homeworld of the Habassa race. The planet joined the Alliance following the Battle of Yavin. (XW)

Habeen
one of the two civilizations on Mylok IV, they helped the Nharwaaks develop a compact hyperdrive system. When they Empire heard about the system, they tried to negotiate for the technology, hoping to insert it into new breeds of TIE Fighters. When the Nharwaaks balked at dealing with the Empire, the Habeen stepped in and agreed to sell it to the Empire, even though they did not agree with the Empire's politics. The Nharwaaks tried in vain to thwart the sale of the new hyperdrive technology, but the Empire defeated them. (TIE)

Habba Kee
this alien was one of the best podracers found in the Outer Rim Territories. (TPM)

Habbis
a plant whose root is eaten for food. (AC)

Hack, Turland
this Alliance Lieutenant served at a training facility located outside Mos Eisley, and was part of the group which contained Rookie One. Known simply as Hack to his friends, Turland was unable to qualify for flight school, but turned his efforts communications and tactical assistance. He urged Rookie One to continue his own training, and helped tutor the young pilot during his early flights. (RA)

Hadar Sector
section of the galaxy that contains Turkana. (XW)

Haldress
a planet. (GG10(

Hadlress Defense Systems, Limited
based on the planet Hadlress, this security systems manufacturer was once owned and operated by Jasis Temm. The corporation was a major consultant to Prefect Ilanda before Temm sold it for 4.6 billion credits. (GG10)

Haffrin
this Outer Rim world was the site of a Shrine of Kooroo. (SWJ13)

Hai, Korkeal
this hyper-kinetic human female was a native of the Shesharile system, where she spent her youth rebuilding a light freighter. She was not an expert on all the systems, and spent a large part of her earnings on a Clone Wars-era computer. She used the computer to assist in her engineering work, although the computer's personality was continually at odds with her own. The ship, a modified Gymsnor-3 freighter call the Riff-Raff, was completed just prior to the Battle of Yavin, and the aging computer was installed in it. Korkeal, while not extremely proficient in all starship systems, nevertheless was eager to try and implement new systems on the Riff-Raff, and much of the ship's cargo space was taken up with spare parts. (GG6)

Haik Expedition
this group of interplanetary explorers set out to find a reliable hyperspace lane between the Enarc Run and the Harrin Trade Corridor during the early years of the Old Republic's Expansionist Period. They found the Kira System, located between the Lazerian and Ropagi Systems, and used the system as a reference point and hyperspace anchor for their route. Thus, they discovered the Kira Run. (TSK)

Haillu
this Gungan term is used to describe the long earlobes which hang down from the back of the Gungan skull. They are used in displays of aggression, fright, or friendship. The Otolla Gungan race has very large haillu, where the Ankura race has much smaller haillu. (IG1)

Haime, Josek
this man was a Bakuran senator, representing Gesco City. After the Battle of Bakura, Senator Haime was chosen to represent Bakura in the Alliance of Free Planets. (TBSB)

Haj Shipping Lines
this corporation owned several luxury starliners, and was outwardly loyal to the Empire. However, the executives of the company were secretly helping the Alliance in any way possible. (RD)

Hajen*-class Fleet Tender
this starship was used extensively by the New Republic, and was designed to be part of the supply lines which maintained a battle fleet. It was also one of the new class of starship designs approved for use by the Republic Navy. At 375 meters, it was based on the Sacheen-class escort ship. This practice, of basing new designs on existing, proven designs, continued for several decades. The Hajen-class ship was designed to be a mobile resupply source, more than a repair facility. These huge ships required a crew of six beings, and had a huge droid pool to perform the more menial tasks. Up to six passengers could be carried, along with 300,000 metric tons of supplies. These ships were equipped with a Class-1 hyperdrive and quick sublight engines, but were unarmed. (BTS, CTD)

Hajj
this being was the Captain of the Star of Empire shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He was less than happy when he was told that the Star of Empire would be the first ship outfitted with the Systems Integration Manager,and even less happy about Malik's assignment to install it. When the ship suddenly experienced an engine reactor breach, Hajj and his crewmen assisted the passengers to the escape pods. They were on the ship as the computer suddenly declared the emergency under control, and they met up with Dash Rendar and Zak and Tash Arranda. They attempted to make their way to the communications room, but several of the crewmen died in various attacks along the way. They decided to crawl through cable pipes to get to the communications room, but Hajj was attacked by a multitude of crab-like maintenance droids. In trying to defend himself against their attack, he let go of his grip and plunged to his death at the bottom of the cable pipe. (GOF10)

Hakartha Station
this space station was under Imperial control during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (TBSB)

Hakassi
this planet was the site of a New Republic shipyards. The Intrepid was completed and delivered from these yards just before the conflict with the Yevethan Nil Spaar. (BTS)

Hakh'khar
a Noghri clan. (TLC)

Hako Armado
this Rodian dramatist was considered quite ancient, old enough that the spikes on his head were turning gray. During the early years of the New Republic, few suspected that Hako was also a skilled and deadly assassin. What fewer still knew was that many of his kills were fakes, arranged by the target themselves to escape trouble. (HR)

Hal
this Imperial Navy officer served as the first mate on the shuttle Resurgence during the Galactic Civil War. (SWCP)

Hal, Leor
this man was a strong and ppwerful student of the Jedi arts, who embraced the theory of the Potentium and began guiding other Jedi students along its pathways. Many regarded him as an idealist, until his beliefs started to interfere with his Jedi training. When the Jedi Masters dismissed all the followers of the Potentium, nearly 100 years before the Battle of Naboo, Leor Hal went out into the galaxy and discovered Zonama Sekot. He recruited a group of Ferroans and a group of Langhesi to help him establish a new civilization on the planet, and he eventually came to know the being known as Sekot. Leor Hal established a symbiotic relationship with Sekot, and helped turn the planet into a huge, organic factory. Much of the Zonaman philosophy and leadership came from Hal's own experiences, which he imparted to the planetary society. The plan to create Sekotan starships and sell them to the greater galaxy was Hal's plan, designed to raise enough money to finance the huge hyperdrive cores which were woven into the tampasi and later used to launch the planet into hyperspace, when it came under attack by Wilhuff Tarkin. After his death, the Zonaman's considered his name to be sacred, and forbid anyone to use it out loud. Sekot used a holographic representation of Hal to maintain the status quo on Zonama Sekot, until his withered, dead body was discovered by Anakin Skywalker and Jabitha, during their escape from Tarkin's attack. (RP)

Halabar
this firm but gentle Mon Calamari professor was respected on his homeworld, but was captured and taken as a "pet" during the early stages of the Empire's occupation of Calamari. On Coruscant, he lived in the household of a minor Imperial official, but soon escaped and caught a ride on a smuggling vessel to get off the planet. He hid out in the Outer Rim, established a small tapcafe while helping out the local educational system whenever he could. He hoped to return to Calamari one day and teaching again full-time. (HR)

Haladreshin
this was the brand name of a medical supply. (FOP)

Halanit
this moon orbited a gas giant which was colonized during the last days of the Old Republic. The moon's surface is covered with a thick ice crust, but beneath the crust the inner heat of the moon's core creates pockets of breathable atmosphere. The primary settlement was built just below the ice, in a fissure which was covered with a double-paneled transparisteel dome. The settlers developed ichthyoculture farms, and produced some of the galaxy's best fish. Shortly before the Battle of Endor, the settlement began feeling the effects of an epidemic that resembled the Cardooine Chills, and was one of the first worlds to receive bacta from Rogue Squadron. The settlement was destroyed by the Thyferran Home Defense Corps for accepting the bacta. (BW)

Halbara
this planet is the primary world in the Halbara System. Located in the Elrood Sector, this planet is owned and operated by Radell Mining. The majority of the planet is covered by tropical rainforests, but it is also ravaged by monsoons most of the year. This makes mining difficult, but Radell has found the rewards worth the pain. They have stationed a security force on Halbara, and have given them authorization to shoot first and ask questions later. (PG)

Halbara One
the capital city of the planet Halbara. (PG)

Halbegardia
one of the larger nations on the planet Adumar, the Halbegardians joined the Yedagonian Confederacy in opposing Cartann's perator, Pekaelic ke Teldan, and his bid to rule Adumar's world government. (SOA)

Halberd
a huge staff-like weapon used by the rancors on Dathomir. (CPL)

Halberd
1) a Ripoblus assault transport used during the Sepan Civil War, as well as in battle against the Empire. (TIE)
2) this Imperial escort carrier was part of a small fleet dispatched to inspect and protect various communications arrays, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Halbert, Elias
generally regarded as a drunkard and a liar, this smuggler wasn't always inebriated. Much of his early career was marked by successful missions, until he started losing ships and crewmembers. Elias was suddenly a liability, and many of his old employers stopped calling. A huge man, Elias made a small ripple when he ended up on Socorro, as his reputation and his drinking preceded him. The Society of the Black Bha'lir accepted him, but they never made any effort to clean him up. However, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, he caught the attention of Abdi-Badawzi. The Twi'lek saw that Halbert retained a spark of potential, and took an interest in rehabilitating him. Halbert began making a concerted effort to clean up his act. He reworked his starship, the Seldom Different, and struggled to stay sober while Abdi-Badawzi began funneling jobs his way. (BSS)

Halbret
this ancient Jedi Knight fell from the Light Side and began learning anything he could about the Dark Side and Sith teachings. When he felt a strange disturbance in the Force, he sought out its source and discovered the Cthol race and their Codex. Greedy and evil, Halbret exterminated the Cthol and took the Codex for himself. Halbret was later killed in a space battle with a group of Jedi Knights, and the Codex was lost for several millennia. (GMH)

Halbright
one of the aristocratic ruling houses of the planet Salliche, House Halbright was a strong supporter of the Old Republic. (SWAJ)

Halcyon, Kieran
1) this Jedi Knight was one of many Corellians who became Jedi. He was a famed Knight, and was responsible for eliminating the Afarathu sect some 400 years before the Battle of Endor. Keiran was one of the ancestors of Nejaa Halcyon. The Halcyon line, while famous in the lore of Corellia, was notably unable to use the Force for telekinetic abilities. (IJ)
2) Corran Horn used the alias of Kieran Halcyon during his Jedi training and his search for Mirax Terrik, shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (IJ)

Halcyon, Nejaa
this Corellian Jedi Master was Valin Horn's father, and was good friends with Rostek Horn. Nejaa was a good friend of Ylenic It'kla, and the Caamasi was the one who brought word of Nejaa's death to Corellia. When he died on a mission shortly after the Clone Wars, Rostek cared for Halcyon's family, eventually falling in love with - and marrying - Halcyon's widow. He also adopted the ten-year-old Valin, but nicknamed him Hal, in honor of his father. Nejaa had given Rostek a Jedi Credit medallion, which Rostek passed on to Hal, who in turn passed it to Corran Horn. Corran discovered the existence of Nejaa during his escape from Lusankya, as he stumbled upon a buried Jedi museum near the Galactic Museum. Corran also discovered Nejaa's lightsaber, which he put to use in his escape. Nejaa's true relationship to Corran was revealed by Luke Skywalker, shortly after Tycho Celchu was released from prison. (KT)

Halcyon, Scerra
Nejaa Halcyon's wife, and childhood friend of Rostek Horn. (IJ)

Halcyon, Valin
Hal Horn's given name, Valin was the son of the Jedi Master Nejaa Halcyon. After Nejaa death in the Clone Wars, Rostek Horn married Valin's mother and erased all data on the Halcyon family in an effort to protect them from Emperor Palpatine's Jedi purge. Thus, Valin Halcyon was renamed Hal Horn, in honor of Nejaa. (KT)

Haldeen
this planet was one of the primary worlds of Haldeen Sector. It was here that Justice Action Network terrorist Earnst Kamiel was extradited after being captured on Elrood. (SWJ8)

Haliat
a seductive perfume. (MTS)

Halkans
a Tetan minister killed by the Krath. His head was served to Satal Keto on a platter. (DLS)

Hall, The
this is the name given to both the administrative headquarters of the planet Esseles, as well as the primary governmental body. Both are located in the capital city of Calamar. (SWJ9)

Hall d'main
this unusual creature lives in a different sector than the glet-mite, but it was discovered by Beldorion's second Kubaz chef that their excretions complemented the glet-mite's teleological systems perfectly. This caused the glet-mites to grow to unusual proportions. (POT)

Hall of Contests
this room, found aboard the Charon starship Desolate, was an eight-chambered cave system. Various Charon bio-constructs were placed in the chambers, ready to attack any alien lifeforms. The Charon used the Hall to gauge the ferocity and resourcefulness of lifeforms they planned to annihilate. (OS)

Hall of Decisions
this Adarian building is the headquarters of their society's governmental and corporate offices. (GG12)

Hall of Edification
this ancient building was located on the planet Nazzri, and contained all the histories of the Nazzar people. (TOJC)

Hall of Evidence
this was a form of large mausoleum maintained by both the Daan and the Melida, deep in the city of Zehava, as a constant reminder of the heroes who fought valliantly during their civil war. Ornamental tombstones contained holographic projectors, which displayed a hologram of the deceased and gave a short history of their own struggle with the enemy. Each side of the struggle sought to detroy the other's Halls, in an effort to demoralize their opponent. (DOD)

Hall of Knowledge
part of the ancient Jedi library complex on Ossus, the Hall of Knowledge contained hundreds of thousands of datacards and ancient tomes, holding information as basic as Old Republic planet logs and as rare as the oldest recorded Jedi texts. (TOJC)

Hall of Perri-Teeka
this building, located in the city of Theed, was built as a monument to a legendary Naboo statesman. (IWE1)

Hall of Predation
this museum-like edifice is an ancient testament to the prowess of the great Tunroth Hunters. (GG12)

Hall of Reflections
this chamber of enhanced mirrors was located within Hologram Fun World. The original Hall had several mirrored sections that modified the reflected image of the viewer to give them various appearances and personalities, from the frightful to the ridiculous. After Borborygmus Gog began working on his Nightmare Machine, the Hall was modified to project three-dimensional holograms of a viewer, adding to the confusing nature of the Hall. (GOF4)

Halla
a old woman, native of Circarpous V, she is seems to be sensitive to the Force, and claims to be a master of the Force. She recognizes Luke and Leia as strangers, and also senses Luke's strength in the Force. She gives Luke a shard of the Kaiburr crystal when they first meet, and later helps Luke and Leia escape from Grammel's prison. She then convinves them to help her find the Kaiburr Crystal. Once they locate the crystal and defeat Darth Vader, though, Halla admits that she's a charlatan, and gives the crystal to Luke. (SME)

Halle metes chun, petchuk
an Old Corellian insult of unknown translation. (TFE)

Halleb Harmion
one of three Harmion brothers who work for Sarlim Gastess. Gastess uses the Harmion Brothers to serve as executives of the corporations he acquires. All the Harmions are ruthless, and seem to relish the destruction and anguish they cause when they remove old management and employees in favor of Gastess' Finance people. (GG9)

Halleycraft
this small corporation produced a number of surface and underwater transportation devices. (SWJ1)

Hallomar
this vacation planet is famous for its beaches. (SWAJ)

Hallrin IV
this planet was the site of the Stratis Games. (TTSB)

Hallu Sector
this is an undistinguished area of the Mid Rim. (FOP)

Halmad
this planet was located in the Outer Rim Territories, and was just outside the area of the galaxy controlled by Warlord Zsinj during the early years of the New Republic. It was the site of a variety of mining colonies during the era of the Old Republic, with facilities on the planet, on its three moons, and situation among the asteroid surrounding it. However, about 100 years before the Battle of Endor, the mines ran dry and were abandoned. Commerce kept the planet’s population intact, because Halmad is located at a nexus of several trade routes. Thus, it held some importance during the Galactic Civil War and the struggles between the New Republic and Zsinj. A small Imperial garrison was put in place, with a few TIE Fighters and, later, TIE Interceptors. The planet was chosen as the “proving ground” for the Hawk-bat pirates, who executed several successful pirate raids on the planet, including the theft of several TIE Interceptors from the Imperial installation. (IF)

Halmad Prime
this grain alcohol was one of the primary exports of the planet Halmad. It was regarded as the best, and most expensive, alcohol produced on Halmad, and was only available on its world of distillation through the black market. Almost all Halmad Prime was shipped off to Imperial worlds. (IF)

Halo-lamp
this form of lighting provides a soft, gentle light, and is often used in restaurants to enhance the ambiance. (HP)

Halowan
this planet was the site of an Imperial trans-system data storage facility infiltrated by Voren Na'al and the Alliance. (MTS)

Halpat
this planet was the primary supply depot for the Fifth Battle Group's mission to blockade the Koornacht Cluster. Etahn A'baht had wanted something closer to the Cluster, but the New Republic provided the Halpat facilities instead. (SOL)

Halthor Sector
this area of the galaxy was ruled by Moff Gergis. It is located near the Noonian Sector. (SWAJ)

Hamalcal, Davar
this primitive human was a hunter and scout native to the planet Kaellin III. During the Galactic Civil War, Alliance warships attacked an Imperial supply convoy near the planet, and an Imperial shuttle crashed on Kaellin III. The surviving stormtroopers mistook Hamalcal's people as savages. When the village elder tried to make peace, the stormtroopers murdered him then exterminated much of the village's population. Hamalcal managed to escape, and stowed away on an Alliance landing ship. He fled Kaellin III, and has been roaming the galaxy ever since. He is known as a barbarian and a loose cannon who cares little for technology. However, he does know the difference between the Empire and the Alliance, and took every opportunity to attack Imperial troopers with his trusty vibroaxe. (GG9)

Hamame, Vol
this man was, at one time, a member of Big Gizz's swoop gang on the planet Tatooine. He despised Spiker, and eventually split with the gang, although not on amicable terms. Hamame then went into the information business, primarily stealing what he couldn't obtain himself. Shortly after the death of Jabba the Hutt, Hamame also became a hired gun. Working with the alien Phedroi, they took many jobs in the city of Mos Eisley. The last job they took came as a result of Dengar's trying to alert Kuat of Kuat that Boba Fett was still alive. Hamame and Phedroi figured that they could kill the armored bounty hunter and reap a nice profit for delivery of his body. However, Fett and Dengar managed to elude them long enough to get a signal to Slave I. Hamame and Phedroi pinned the bounty hunters down in a small desert cave, but Fett brought his ship from orbit to land on top of them. (MA)

Hamarin Interface Band
this is one of the primary modules used to interface a computer uplink apparatus to a cyborg. (TT)

Hamaz
this Imperial officer was in charge of fleet operations near Kuat, when he was captured by the bounty hunter Xufal D'uat. The bounty called for the capture of an Alliance gunrunner, and D'uat ws amazed to discover that Hamaz was an Imperial. Hamaz bargained for his release, but D'uat insisted on having a recorded confession of Hamaz's crimes, in case the Imperial tried to have him killed. In the end, Hamaz did have D'uat killed, but he was unable to recover the recorded confession. (SS)

Hamiroz, Zaz
this man was one of the miners who traveled to the remains of Alderaan to search out valuable ores. He and Hanos Darr discovered that the existence of the Royal Palace of Alderaan amid the rubble was simply a rumor spread by Darth Vader himself, in an effort to lure Leia Organa back to Alderaan. Both Hamiroz and Darr were able to get to the herdship Bazaar, where they hoped to get a message off to the Alliance. Instead, they found themselves being tracked by the assassin droid XS3.

Hammer
1) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer stationed in the Javin Sector following the Battle of Hoth. (XW, TIE)
2) this Loronar Strike-class cruiser was part of the small fleet provided to Captain Vocis Kenit during his search for the Far Orbit. (FOP)

Hammer Group
this squadron of starfighters was assigned to the New Republic warship Ralroost, and assisted in rescuing Corran Horn, Jacen Solo, and Ganner Rhysode from Garqi. (DTR)

Hammerheads
derogatory terms for Ithorians (SW, DA)

Hammertong Project
codename of the development project assigned to upgrade the primary laser cannons used to form the second Death Star's superlaser. Just before the Battle of Yavin, the project was going to move its base. The scientists hoped to enlist Manda D'ulin's Mistryls to help keep the base secure, but the Empire didn't like the idea. It killed Manda and Pav D'armon when they attempted to enter the base. However, Shada D'ukal and the surviving Mistryls managed to steal the laser cannons and carry it to Tatooine. (TME)

Hamner, Kenth
this young man was a student at the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4, during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Kenth was born to welathy parents, and was tall and well-built. Prior to his Jedi training, Hamner had been a member of the Corellian Defense Force, but resigned his commission to follow the Force. He later joined the New Republic military as a strategist, and earned the rank of Colonel. After the Battle of Fondor, Hamner became the voice of the Jedi Knights within the New Republic military, but was unable to get any real results with the military because of the Republic's general lack of resources. His efforts were further impeded by Viqi Shesh's duplicitous relationship with the Yuuzhan Vong, claiming that SELCORE resources were better used on other worlds. (JE, BP)

Hamner Heavy Ores
this Jante mining operation maintained a base in orbit around Rett II, until it was attacked and overtaken by Freda military ships. (SWJ9)

Hampton
a freighter stationed near Mytus VII, supplying the Corporate Sector prison. A group of imprisoned Alliance personnel stowed away on the freighter and were rescued when it was intercepted by the Alliance shuttle Mercy. (XW)

Han Solo Associated, Limited
a false collections agency dreamed up by Han Solo as a ruse to keep from telling Roa his current status, when the two run into each other on Bonadan. The inspiration for it was due in part to the appearance of Spray, who was sent to collect on a debt owed by Han. (HSR)

Hanadak
a large, boar-like beast inhabiting the forests of Endor. The hanadak is a carnivorous creature standing about 3 meters at the shoulder, with a menacing snout and huge black claws. The Ewoks say that the hanadaks are controlled by the giant Gorax. (EA)

Hand, Pyr
this black-haired, pale-skinned man was a member of Requiem Squadron, serving under Antar Roat. A Captain, Pyr was nicknamed "Klick" because he was a dead shot from a kilometer or more. Pyr was actually Corran Horn in disguise, as part of Ysanne Isard's plan to infiltrate Prince-Admiral Krennel's forces and bring about his destruction. (IR)

Hand of Thrawn
this was the codename of the hidden fortress maintained by a contingent of Chiss on Nirauan. Grand Admiral Thrawn had left a large number of his race behind with distinct orders to await his return ten years after his departure. It was set up some twenty years before Thrawn's first reign of terror. The caves and tunnels beneath the fortress were lined with cortosis ore, and a large population of ysalamiri were imported, in order to protect the compound from the new crop of Jedi Knights. During the intervening time, they kept a huge assortment of weapons and warships armed and ready for his return. The existence of the fortress - which had five large towers, and resembled an up-turned hand - was kept secret until the New Republic discovered a cache of Imperial datacards on Wayland, at Mount Tantiss. A card entitled "The Hand of Thrawn" was unreadable, however. Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade managed to discover the location of Nirauan after backtracking the trails of ships which attacked them at Kauron. Mara was captured there, and Luke returned to rescue her. They were able to escape from the fortress and provide the Republic with information on its whereabouts. (VOF)

Hand of Thrawn, The
this was the title of one of the datacards discovered by Lak Jit near the bear of Mount Tantiss. It referred to the hidden base of the Chiss, which was a heavily-guarded fortress with five upraised towers that gave it the impression of a hand. It was located on the planet Nirauan. (SOP, VOF)

Hand Pot
this is a smaller collection of credits which are anted up at the beginning of each sabacc round. The player with the best hand wins the pot. (VOF)

Handler
this subnode, a twin to the subnode Docker, was generated by Kud’ar Mub’at to coordinate the landing of ships carrying visitors to the assembler’s web. (MA)

Handree
this Alliance gunship was stationed on the planet Isis, from which it brought medical supplies to the guerillas on Polmanar. It was hijacked by the downed Imperial survey crew of the Wanderer and taken to the Bespin System. There, the Imperials hoped to expose Isi, but were intercepted by Alliance agents. (IC)

Hands-Free
this was the brand name of a series of comlinks manufactured by VargeCorp. They were designed to fit over the ear, allowing the user to communicate without holding a comlink in their hands. (PSG)

Handy
this friend of Allania Jakien was with her when she escaped from Cloud City. (MTS)

Hang Glider
the stick-and-hide framework that the Ewoks use as a mode of transportation, it allows them to 'fly' on currents of air. They use a catapult-like device to launch the gliders from cliffs. (ROTJ, EA)

Hanna City
the capital city of the planet Chandrila. (PSG)

Hannad, Kile
this man was one of Emperor Palpatine's Royal Imperial Guards, and was one of the few that survived the death of his clones on Byss. When the Guards returned to Yinchorr to meet with the Guard to discuss their future, they were exterminated by Carnor Jax. Hannad and Kir Kanos remained alive after the assault, but knew that one of them had to escape to exact revenge on Jax. They flipped a coin, and Hannad's fate was sealed. He held off Jax's troops long enough for Kanos to escape, but was eventually overwhelmed by the opposition and was killed. (CE)

Hannah Balmor
Haaran Balmor's wife. (GG9)

Hannser
this New Republic Navy Captain commanded the Marauder during the search for the Teljkon vagabond. (SOL)

Hanod System
this star system was the last known location of the Star Destroyer Krieger. (WBC)

Hans, Geordi
this native of Tatooine was abandoned by his parents at the age of six. He hitched a ride into Mos Eisley, and was quickly swindled out of any savings her had. Over the years, Geordi has picked up the surprising ability to repair any speeder, and was given a steady job by Unut Poll at Spaceport Speeders. He keeps Poll's merchandise in top condition, allowing Poll to charge a higher price. In his spare time, Geordi is a member of the Farns. (GG7)

Hansen FeatherTouch
this tractor beam unit is capable of amazingly fine operations. They can harmlessly pull a bird out of mid-flight, or rip a small freighter to pieces. The FeatherTouch is turret-mounted, allowing it to be used in a multitude of configurations. (TA)

Hanson Mining Consolidated
this mining operation was based on the planet Neona, and mined ores from the planet's sea floor. (PGT)

Hanugar
this Corellian conman worked with the Qwohog K'zk to swindle passage from Diergo-Rea Duhnes'rd, thereby financing a treasure hunt to the Zelosian Chine. Hanugar and his partner, Sevik, pretended to be shipwrecked vacationers, and were picked up by K'zk's crew before they reached the Chine. (TFNR)

Hanx-Wargel
manufacturers of the SuperFlow IV starship computer. (SWSB)

Hapan
this is the name used to describe the humans which are native to the planet Hapes. They differ from normal humans in two ways. First, they are considered quite handsome and beautiful as a race. Second, they are unable to see well in the dark because of the fact that the planet Hapes is continually bathed in light, either from its sun or from the seven moons that orbit the planet. (CTD)

Hapan Ale
a mildly-intoxicating beverage brewed in the Hapes cluster. (HTF)

Hapan Battle Armor
highly-polished black armor with silver trim, it is worn by the cyborg warriors from Charubah. (CPL)

Hapan Battle Dragon
these huge, red-hued, saucer-shaped capital ships are armed with forty ion cannons, forty turbolasers, dorsal- and ventral-mounted triple ion gun batteries, ten proton torpedo launchers, a tractor beam projector, and four pulse-mass generator tubes. This is not a large amount of firepower for such a large ship, and Battle Dragons must work in concert to throw up a wall of energy against their enemies. They are about 600 meters in diameter. The ship has two circular main sections linked by sixteen rotation support struts. The triple ion gun batteries rotate freely, allowing fresh cannons to fire while the other recharge. They have hangar space for three squadrons of Miy'til fighters, but many often carry a complement of X-Wings. There are 63 Battle Dragons at any time in the Hapan fleet, one representing each of the 63 Hapan stars and their life-supporting planets. The Hapan Battle Dragon was produced by Olanji/Charubah, at the direction of the Hapan royal family. Each Battle Dragon carryied three squadrons of Miy'til fighters, up to 500 troops, a crew of 1,200, and a gunnery crew of 190. (CPL, EGV, CTD)

Hapan Cluster
see Hapes Cluster (CTD)

Hapan Consortium
this starship manufacturer is owned and controlled by the Hapan royal family. Their designs rarely leave the Hapes Cluster, and are inferior to most Imperial or Republic ships in terms of power generators and weapons systems. (EGV)

Hapan Nova-class Battle Cruiser
see Nova-class Battle Cruiser (CPL)

Hapan Stinger
a security escort vessel built on Hapes. (L)

Hapan Water Dragon
an ocean-going repulsorlift battleship built on the planet Hapes. (L)

Hapes
1) this was the primary star in the Hapan System, and was generally considered the central body of the Hapes cluster (CPL)
2) originally settled by a group of pirates called the Lorell Raiders, the planet Hapes later became a neutral system when the Jedi Knights wiped out the Raiders when they started making raids into Old Republic supply centers. The surviving women swore never to let a man run the government following this defeat. The system was later overrun by the Empire, but Ta'a Chume (the Queen Mother at the time) built a powerful armed forces and drove the Imperial out. The Hapans are known for their belligerence. The planet orbits the star Hapes, and has been the seat of the Hapan government for as long as anyone can remember. The planet has seven moons. The light from these moons, as well as from the star Hapes, has caused the natives to lose much of their ability to see at night. The average day on Hapes lasts 22 standard hours, and the year on Hapes encompasses 240 local days. (CPL, CTD)

Hapes Cluster
a system of 63 star systems, it was originally settled by a group of pirates called the Lorell Raiders, and was overrun by the Empire until Ta'a Chume ousted them. She ruled with an iron fist until her heir, Prince Isolder, chose Teneniel Djo to be his wife and the next Chume. Teneniel Djo brought the Hapans into the New Republic. There were at least 119 known worlds within the Cluster's boundaries, of which 12 were unsettled at the time of the New Republic's negotiations with Ta'a Chume. Following Prince Isolder's marriage to Teneniel Djo, twelve of these worlds aligned themselves directly with the New Republic. The Cluster has four distinct regions: the Interior Region, which is considered the heart of the Cluster and contains Hapes; the Rifle Worlds, named for the fact that these industrial worlds once tried to secede from the Hapes Consortium; the Rim Worlds, which bordered on the rest of the known galaxy; and the Transitory Mists Region, which is filled with nebulous gases and is home to many pirate groups. (CPL, CTD)

Hapes Consortium
the governing body of the of 63 star systems of the Hapes Cluster, the Consortium was controlled by the Queen Mother. Each of the member planets had a vote in all matters of state, and the Queen Mother's vote could be called upon in the even of a tie. For many generations, the Hapes Consortium advocated isolation from the rest of the galaxy, preferring to stay out of the struggles of the Galactic Civil War. However, when Leia Organa-Solo pleaded with the Consortium for aid in combatting the Yuuzhan Vong, a vote was taken to determine whether the Hapans would help. The member worlds were divided in their support, and only a foolish duel between Prince Isolder and Archon Beed Thane settled the matter in favor of supporting the New Republic. However, in the aftermath of the Battle of Fondor, in which most of the Hapan fleet was destroyed before it could bring its weapons to bear, the Consortium voted to isolate itself completely from the New Republic. (COJ, JE)

Hapes Transit Authority
this traffic control operation monitored and directed the vast amount of starship traffic at the planet Hapes. (AE)

Happer
one of the jailers working in the Mos Eisley jail. (TME)

Happy
a city on the lawless world of Korbin. Like the other cities on the planet, it was jokingly given an upbeat name despite the lawlessness of the planet. Happy, Joy, and Peace are cities called Small-Timers, because of their size and because ther are less intense than Pleasant City. (PG2)

Happy Blasters:
this group of mercenary scouts was named for their usual response to any form of opposition: they just started firing their blasters at anything that moved. Under the leadership of Salem Victory, the Happy Blasters traveled to Kriekaal to obtain an artifact which was rumored to be attuned to the Force. (SWJ13)

Happy Dagger
this modified SoroSuub PLY-3000 luxury yacht was owned an operated by Roa, some twenty-five years after the Battle of Endor. Roa had it outfitted with uwa wood appointments, and other modifications made the ship extremely comfortable and well-armed. (HT)

Happy Failure
this dry-docked freighter served as a popular casino in Cloud City's Port Town, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. The ship was owned at one time by Odea Aurora's mother and father. After her father's death, Odea and her mother tried to establish an independent shipping agency on Cloud City. After inadvertently carrying a cargo stolen from Jabba the Hutt, she was executed by Toln ne Yerres. The Twi'lek took ownership of the Happy Failure, forcing Odea into the streets before gutting the ship and turning it into a casino. (GG2)

Happy Grove
the area of the forest in which Teebo lived as a child. (AT)

Happy Surprise
a Merr-Sonn holdout blaster. (GG9)

Happy-patty
this quickly-cooked food is a favorite among children. (POT)

Happy's Landing Tavern
a bar and restaurant located in Il Avali, on Druckenwell. Tinian I'att and Daye Azur-Jamin frequented the ale house, dressed as common workers in order to escape their positions at I'att Armament. It was here that Tinian fled after her grandparents were executed by Moff Kerioth. (TFE)

Hapspir, Barrini, Corbolan, Triaxis

Harasser
a group of Imperial Frigates supporting the Star Destroyer Invincible near Dellalt. (XW)

Harazod
the capital city of the planet Gerrard V. (SWAJ)

Harbid
an Imperial Navy Captain, commander of the Death's Head. (HTTE)

Harbright, Borert
this Salliche Ag delegate represented the Ruan System in the New Republic Senate. He was also a Count, and a respected member of a royal house. Harbright agreed to allow Ruan to be used as an enclave for refugees fleeing the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

Harbin-re
this planet is famous for its operas, which were among those favored by Emperor Palpatine himself. (SWAJ)

Harbinger
this assault ship was operated by Bel Att, for use in his duties to the Nalroni crimelord Sprax. The ship was later commandeered by Limna Yith and her mercenary band. (SSR)

Harbright, Borert
this man was a member of the Harbright family, which was once an Imperial House, Borert's family also owned the immense Salliche Agricultural Corporation. In the wake of the Battle of Endor and the establishment of the New Republic, the Harbrights continued to control Salliche Ag, with Borert running the daily operations of the corporation. However, when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy, the Harbrights began retooling Salliche Ag to remove all traces of non-organic workers and tools. They hoped that they could survive the invasion by proving their adherence to the Yuuzhan Vong's bio-organic technologies. (JE)

Harbright, Dees
this man was a cousin, once removed, of Borert Harbright, and served as the senior vice president of marketing for the Salliche Agricultural Corporation during the early decades of the New Order. (JE)

HarborVacc
this corporation produced a wide range of vacuum pumps. (HR)

Harburik
1) an Imperial Lieutenant proficient in the use of Caspel launchers. (ISB)
2) Harburik served as Tatooine's Chief of Police during the Galactic Civil War. He was a model of everything evil about the New Order. He was rude, crass, and cruel. After the death of Orun Depp, Harburik took control of the planet. When Talmont was named to replace Depp, Harburik plotted any number of ways to remove Talmont from office. (GG7)

Harc Seff
this Ishi Tib accountant was an experienced businessbeing and a freelance consultant to planetary governors during the Galactic Civil War. (CCG9)

Harch

Hardin
this spacer, who worked out of Corulag, was continually modifying his L2 Base Labor Droid, and was amazed that the automaton kept working. (SWJ14)

Hardon, Den
this criminal was targetted for execution by Gornt Seron, shortly after the Battle of Endor. Seron employed Kyr Laron to assassinate Hardon. Laron intercepted Hardon's ship and filled it with RX-8 gas in order to kill Hardon. (WBC)

Harf
an alien reace distinguished by their red, goggle-like eyes and their long snout. (HM)

Hargeeva
this temperate world, the third of five in the Pelonat System, was nothing more than a backwater planet until the Empire discovered it was rich in mineral deposits. It was originally settled some 2,000 years before the Battle of Yavin, but support for the colonists was cut off. The society reverted to a feudal state, and remained that way until the Empire showed up. The limited government was unable to stop Imperial subjugation, and high-tech refineries and a full garrison were quickly installed. The planet remained under Imperial control for many years. The average day on Hargeeva lasts 23 standard hours, and its year encompasses 380 local days. (SWJ8)

Hargon's Hill
this low peak, south of Ariana on the planet Garos IV, was the site of some rich hibridium mines operated by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ1)

Harida Kavila
this Rodian Grand Protector is credited with creating the Rodian form of drama, primarily as a way to curb the violent Rodian instincts during a period in which murders and killings were outnumbering births. (GG4)

Harix
this planet was a hotbed of rebellious activity during the Galactic Civil War. Much of the rebellion was led by school teachers. The Empire tried to maintain control there by placing a garrison on the planet, ld by the Gektl Rahz. However, Luke Skywalker managed to free the captured school teachers and defeat Rahz. (CSWEA)

Hariz
this city, located on the planet N'zoth, is where Nil Spaar chose to make his first appearance upon returning to the planet from Coruscant. It was here that he received the praise of the Yevethan people, after the first phase of the Yevethan Purge was so successful. (SOL)

Hark'r
this Noehon was an Alliance Captain who was in command of Homebase. Note that this character is described as the Captain of Home in the Star Wars Campaign Pack. Hark'r was a merchant who stumbled upon the Home and was captured as a pirate, but Lens Reekeene decided that he wasn't a threat. However, in order to ensure that Hark'r didn't relay information on the Home to the Empire, Lens offered Hark'r only two choices for freedom: remain on the Home, or spend the rest of his life on an uncharted, remote planet. Hark'r elected to remain on the Home, and eventually became the ship's supply master. (GG12, SWCP)

Harkners-Balix 903
a transport ship, similar to the Harkners-Balix 917 and 922 models. Wedge referred to the Etherway as a 903 when he met Mara Jade on Abregado. (DFR)

Harkners-Balix 917
second-generation transport ship, similar in shape to the earlier Harkners-Balix 903. (DFR)

Harkners-Balix 922
third-generation transport ship, similar in shape to the earlier Harkners-Balix 903. (DFR)

Harkness, Dirk
a native of the planet Salliche, this Alliance operative joined the Alliance shortly after Imperial forces killed his fiance, Chessa. He was angry, and wanted to exact any kind of revenge on the Empire. Harkness was eventually named the commander of the Black Curs, and was forced to crash-land on Hensara III. He and his crew were eventually rescued by the X-Wing Rogue Squadron. Before the Battle of Endor, Harkness worked as an independent operative for the Alliance and the New Republic. Harkness was a trusted source of information to Airen Cracken, although his freelance status meant that other members of the Republic didn't trust him. He was a stubborn man, and a native of the planet Salliche. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, he had been working with Platt Okeefe and her band of mercenaries, and was captured by Imperial forces. He was imprisoned on Zelos II, and shared a dark cell with Jai Raventhorn. They were interrogated and beaten senseless, and neither had any idea how long they were imprisoned. Okeefe and Tru'eb Cholakk managed to rescue them both. (XWN, SWJ1, SWJ8, TFNR)

Harkon Dell
one of the Old Republic Senators who openly voiced his displeasure with the New Order. (DSTC)

Harkov
an Imperial Admiral, commander of the Star Destroyer Protector. He was assigned to cease the Sepan Civil War and bring both the Dimok and the Ripoblus under Imperial control. Following the Battle of Hoth, Harkov met with Mon Mothma and secretly offered to defect his entire fleet to the Alliance. He was not successful, however, as he was intercepted by Darth Vader in the Parmel System and executed. (TIE)

Harkul
a wide plain found on the planet Kuar, it was the site of a duel between Ulic Qel-Droma and an ancient Mandalorian warrior. (TSW)

Harla
this Yuuzhan Vong worldship was under the command of Prefect Drathul during the invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

Harlaan
this young pilot served the Royal Naboo Defense Force shortly before the Battle of Naboo. A member of Echo Flight, Harlaan was killed when the Velumina, under the command of Captain Sorran, tried to steal several N-1 starfighters. Dren Melne tried to force Essara Till to surrender, and destroyed Harlaan's fighter in an effort to persuade her. (SFT)

Harlan
a female Jedi Knight. (JASB)

Harlequin Station
this space station served as a trade center during the Galactic Civil War. Led by Mayor Brauken, the station traded often with Azzameen Station, and the two supported each other in their struggles with the Viraxo. (XWA)

Harles
the Imperial Commander who was in command of the attack on Gaulus. He had planted a MerenData espionage droid in the Alliance base there, and used its information to plan the attack. He hated to fight wars that involved women and children, and when he encountered 16-year-old girl trying to rig the base's generator to blow up with the Imperials inside, he allowed her to finish the job and then helped her escape before the base was destroyed. (RASB)

Harleys, Diblen
this native of the planet Coruscant grew up at the height of the New Order. His father was a privileged bureaucrat, which helped insulate Diblen from the worst of the atrocities of the Imperial war machine. His mother died when he was fifteen, about the time he resolved to join the Imperial Survey Corps and explore Wild Space. His father sat him down and explained to him the harsh realities of a scout's life, as well as the true nature of the Empire. His father had kept his dissident thoughts to himself, and warned Diblen to do the same. Diblen, however, believed that the right thing to do was to fight, and he joined the Alliance at his first chance. He proved to be a confident fighter pilot and tactician, and was a valuable resource during the planning of the Battle of Endor. He retained his love for flying, though, which eventually got hom promoted within the New Republic to wing commander on Coruscant shortly before the rise to power of Grand Admiral Thrawn. He was distinguished by the glareshades and blue gemstone earring he wore while in uniform. (TLC, TTSB)

Harlison, Chop
this swoop technician was a native of the Shesharile System, and was a minor thief and rabble-rouser. He was part of Dutan Lee's information network, helping the Arcona's regular customers locate him after a move. His swoop gang assisted Dutan Lee whenever possible. Chop was an old acquaintence of Shamus Falconi and Grasheel the Wookiee. (SWJ9)

Harloen
this planet is known as the swoop racing capital of the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Harlow, Kend
this gambler was indebted to the Rodian crimelord Hatabbas, who eventually forced Harlow to fight his pet svaper. Harlow was unable to defeat the beast, and was consumed in battle. (COG)

Harlsen's Laws of Functional Military Intelligence
this short set of laws was developed to teach officer candidates that nothing is ever perfect in battle. The law states that, "Limited intelligence reports are inadequate; detailed intelligence reports are inaccurate; highly detailed intelligence reports are traps." (ROE)

Harm
an Imperial technician working for Evir Derricote on Borleias. (XWN)

Harmae
this Yuuzhan Vong subaltern was escalated by Nas Choka for his brave work during the subjugation of Obroa-skai. (JE)

Harmonia
this is the capital city of the planet Gacerian. (PG)

Harmzuay
this old Kaloth-style battlecruiser was owned by the Thalassian slavers. It has been heavily modified, and it is rumored that it can defeat a Nebulon-B frigate. The Harmzuay is equipped with a pair of mandibles on its bow, useful for grabbing smaller ships. The ship was destroyed in a battle with the Invidious some years after the Battle of Endor, when it tried to poach slaves from Kerilt at the same time Leonia Tavira hoped to raid the colony world. The Harmzuay fought boldly, but was no match for the Invidious' firepower. (GG9, IJ)

Harnik, Gates
a grocer from the Cilpari city of Tamarack, he was secretly supplying food to the pockets of Resistance on the planet. When Moff Tascl leveled the city in an effort to flush out Alliance supporters, Harnik was caught and hung from the ruins of the city by the Imperials as an example. (XWRS)

Harns, Ela
this woman served at Estaria Central Starport as a freight administrator. Her office was in charge of all services and fees at the starport. Ela herself was also an Alliance sympathizer, and was a member of the local rebellious cell. She and two others were the only beings who knew of a secret cache of supplies hidden within the starport, available in case the Alliance ever needed them. (HAS)

Harona
this New Republic Lieutenant served under Pakkpekatt on the Glorious. (BTS)

Harous, Tolum
this man worked as a scientist and engineer on Hydrospeare Corporation's Design Team Beta for nearly thirty years before taking over as its director from Doctor Plo Smarx. A native of Adamastor, Harous was well-schooled in a multutide of subjects, and was offered incredibly lucrative deals to work for Kuat Drive Yards and Sienar Fleet Systems. He turned them all down, though, because he thoroughly enjoyed his work at Hydrospeare. He was known as a perfectionist, and sometimes scrapped perfectly good items because he felt that they could be done better another way. (AIR)

Harpago
an Imperial Interdictor-class capital ship, Admiral Zaarin used the Harpago to stall his pursuers as he sped toward the planet Coruscant. He was on his way there to complete his plans for capturing and executing Emperor Palpatine. (TIE)

Harpax
an Imperial Interdictor-class capital ship, the Harpax was instrumental in the battles that eventually recovered the fleet of ships under the command of Admiral Harkov in the Ottega System. (TIE)

Harrak
this man served as a Colonel in the Imperial armed forces, and worked on Admiral Pellaeon's staff during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (DTR)

Harran Estillo
this individual was an Imperial agent planted on Eiattu to impersonate Harrandatha, the only son of Uthorrferrell Cartha thought to be executed during the Priamsta's overthrowing of Uthorrferrell Cartha. He was given a ring very similar to one given to Harrandatha by Darth Vader, as a way to prove his story. Estillo then created the People's Liberation Battallion, hoping to overthrow the Priamsta and gain control of the planet himself. When not in his guise of Harrandatha, Estillo had a running relationship with Leonia Tavira, who helped him make headway against the Priamsta. His ruse was eventually exposed by Plourr, who killed the real Harrandatha on the night of the Priamsta's coup in order to escape. (XWWP)

Harrandatha
this royal youth was Plourr Ilo's younger brother and the true son of Uthorrferrell Cartha. Unlike other members of the family, Harrandatha was a failure of the Eiattuan genetic engineers. He was sadistic and cruel, torturing small animals for fun and choosing the philosophy of the New Order over that of the Old Republic. The happiest day of his life was the day Darth Vader arrived on Eaittu to inspect a new garrison. He met the Dark Lord, who played on the youth's loyalties and created a devote follower of Palpatine's rule. Vader left him a small, jeweled ring as a symbol of their friendship, although the ring was truly meant to control Harrandatha's mind. When Uthorrferrell was executed by the Priamsta, it was Harrandatha who caught Plourr during the royal family's flight. He tried to sound an alarm, but Plourr bludgeoned him with a rock and killed him. The ring was later recovered and used by Harran Estillo to impersonate Harrandatha. (XWWP)

Harrar
this Yuuzhan Vong priest was placed in a position of command during Nom Anor's second wave of attacks against the New Republic. The use of religious commanders came after the defeat of Shedao Shai at Ithor, and the loss of the fleet under the command of Deign Lian. Harrar was one of the few Yuuzhan Vong who recognized the true threat of the Jedi Knights, and he was the first to suggest outright aggression against them. He agreed to the plan to have Elan infiltrate the Jedi Order as a hostage, all the while harboring a deadly bioweapon in her lungs. Harrar went so far as to suggest an alliance with the remaining Sith lords, if they could be found. Harrar spent much of his time consulting specific auguries, hoping to determine the best course of action for the invading force. When Elan's mission failed and was reviewed with supreme commander Nas Choka, Harrar was reassigned to the Outer Rim with Commander Tla. (HT)

Harravan
a Hapan privateer who killed Isolder's older brother. Isolder hunted the man down and captured him, but chose to make an example out of him rather than murder him. Unfortunately for Isolder, Harravan was killed in prison before he could stand trial and reveal the names of his accomplices. It was assumed that the Queen Mother, Ta'a Chume, had employed the pirates to assassinate her son, whom she felt was too weak to become a ruler of Hapes. (CPL, EGC)

Harridan
this Imperial Victory-class Star Destroyer was patrolling the N'zoth System in the Koornacht Cluster just after the Battle of Endor. It was ordered to assist in the evacuation of Notak just before the Yevetha took control of Black-15. Note that this ship is called the Harramin in Tyrant's Test. (BTS, TT)

Harrier
one of Garm Bel Iblis' Katana fleet Dreadnaughts, the Harrier was the flagship of his personal fleet. (DFR)

Harrier Team

Harrow
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was commanded by Captain Marl Semtin in the years leading up to - and immediately following - the Battle of Endor. (XWBT)

Harrowbane
this caustic weed was native to the planet Randorn 2. The native Mizx believed that the plant prevented the ibliton from invading their villages. They considered the plant sacred, and planted borders around their villages with the plant. This belief is based partly in reality, since the touch of the harrowbane actually burns the exposed skin of the ibliton's tentacles. (COG)

Harrsk
an Imperial Navy Captain who served during the Battle of Endor, Harrsk's Star Destroyer was severely damaged in the battle, and Harrsk received a number of greivous burns all over his face and body. He fled with the remnants of the fleet to the Core, where he let his skin heal naturally, preserving forever the scars the Alliance had given him. The only repair he allowed was the addition of a droid's optical sensor to replace his lost eye. Since the Battle of Endor, Harrsk has mustered the remaining Imperial starships, and began small harassment attacks on the New Republic. as his power grew, Harrks became more and more of a dissenter, active during Leia Organa Solo's reign as the Chief of State for the New Republic. Harrsk sought to restore the New Order to the galaxy. He was thought to have a base on Spuma, from which he was manufacturing Imperial-class Star Destroyers for his fleet. Admiral Daala offered to join with Harrsk following the destruction of her fleet and the Eye of Palpatine. When he refused, and ordered her to take command of his fleet against Teradoc, Daala set out to unite the feuding warlords or die. In ther end, Daala found it best to kill of the childish warlords - Harrsk included - when they failed to reach an agreement at the summit on Tsoss Beacon. (COJ, DS)

Harsis
this dark-skinned man served as a sensor officer aboard the Direption, under the command of Commander Darron, during the defense of Liinade III. (IR)

Harson, Crin
this Imperial Moff was discovered dead in his rooms on the resort world of Traflin, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. A group of Alliance personnel who were taking a well-deserved rest were implicated in the crime, but were cleared of any murder charges when the true killer was discovered by the Alliance agents. (GMS)

Hart, Syndic Pandis
Talon Karrde's alias when he went to Tropis-on-Varont to infiltrate the safari business. Karrde also used this alias during a short period, while he was hunting down the location of the Emperor's Shadow. (EGC, SWJ14)

Harthan
this diplomatic conselor worked for the Tion Hegemony. An elder statesman with many successful negotiations in his history, Harthan was called upon to intercede for the Troobs and Hobors on Tahlboor, hoping to create a lasting peace between the races while obtaining trading rights on Tahlboor. His son, Jake, however, was not interested in restoring peace to the planet. Instead, he wanted control of Mount Yeroc. Jake skillfully manipulated his father out of the counselor's position, taking it for himself. Harthan was somewhat powerless to stop the ensuing struggles, but eventually discovered his son's treachery with the help of R2-D2 and C-3PO. When the Troobs and Hobors realized that they could use Mount Yeroc as a way to bring their races together, they asked Harthan to tell the Tion Hegemony that they wanted to work things out on their own. (DRPC)

Harthan, Jake
ths son of the Tion Hegemony's Counselor Harthan, Jake managed to acquire R2-D2 and C-3PO on Rudrig, after the droids left the service of Governor Wena on Kalarba. Jake later accompanied his father to Tahlboor. There, while his father was trying to work with the Hobors and Troobs to restore peace, Jake discovered the power of Mount Yeroc and the sky cannon. Hoping to obtain the power for himself, he set in motion a plan that would remove his father from the negotiations. This accomplished, Jake insinuated himself into the counselor's position. From there, he silently killed Ket Krax and tried to frame Larka Nimondro for the murder. Jake hoped that this would ignite a civil war, removing him to take control of Mount Yeroc. Unfortunately, the droids R2-D2 and C-3PO discovered that Jake was the culprit. Although they only had the simplest of evidence, C-3PO bluffed Jake by claiming to have a holo-vid of the crime taking place, as well as fingerprints. In truth, all the droids had was the vibro-shiv used to commit the crime. They knew that the Hobors never used vibro-shivs, and took an educated guess. Jake fell for the bluff and admitted to the crime, taking Madame Krax hostage. She bit his hand and distracted him long enough for a Troob to launch a spear at him. The shot was true, and Jake was killed when he fell into the sky cannon he so desired. (DRPC)

Harthis
this New Republic Major was an administrative assistant to Colonel Gavin Darklighter, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (BP)

Harthusa
this Devaronian worked as a slave auctioneer on the Imperial world of Deysum III shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Despite his cunning and his sense of business, Harthusa was essentially a coward. He maintained a luxurious domed apartment on Deysum III, where he regularly entertained females of all races. (GMK)

Harthusa's Pride
this modified space yacht was owned by the Devaronian auctioneer Harthusa. The ship was stolen by the Alliance agents who were investigating the Empire's construction of a supply depot in the Bissillirus System, shortly after they liberated Kentara from slavery. The agents then flew back to continue their investigation. (GMK)

Hartzig
this military man served Dolph during the failed Jedi's bid for power. Hartzig served Dolph - who went by the name of Kuellar - as the commander in charge of the cleanup activities on the moon Pydyr. (TNR)

Harvest
this was the original name of the Barloz-class freighter known as the Twi'lek Dancer. It was owned by an agricultural combine in the Tion Hegemony, but when they acquired the funds to purchase a YT-1300, they retired the Harvest. It was eventually purchased by Xufal D'uat, who renamed it the Venom Sting. (SS)

Harvest Bay
this oceanic region of the planet Cols was known as the primary breeding ground of the kalaides. (COG)

Harvest Ceremony
the Ithorian ritual in which the DNA or other physical specimen are taken from a plant for use in growing other hybrids. (TME)

Harvest Day
a holiday celebrated in Tapani Sector, it was first observed by the original settlers of the sector. The exact origins of the holiday are have been lost over time, but it is believed that the settlers traditionally commemorated the time of harvesting their crops on this day. In modern times, it is simply a day off from work. Harvest Day fell between the months of Yelona and Relona on the Tapani local calendar. (LE, PGT)

Harvest Festival
this was a week-long series of contests and parties held annually by the AGR agro-combine on Corellia. (MBF)

They are built with large bins for collecting the grains and vegetables they harvest, and are often equipped with internal shredders to help mulch the weeds and other waste products from their work. (CPL)

Hasamadi
this warehouse district of Coruscant's southern polar region was used by Lando Calrissian and Luke Skywalker. They hid the Millennium Falcon there when they attempted to rescue Leia Organa from Xizor's palace. (SE)

HASH-19
this assassin droid, employed by Moff Bandor to roam the Game Chambers of Questal, was a gold-chrome metallic ball. When first encountered, HASH-19 appears as nothing more than a surveillance spy-eye. As soon as it encounters a target, HAS-19 sprouts six mechanical arms. Each arm is tipped with four vibroblades, and HASH-19 attacked by spinning wildly and slashing its way through its prey. (GCQ)

Hask, Loka
this man attended from the Imperial Academy on Carida, but was expelled for grifting his classmates. He was returned to his homeworld just in time to witness the public execution of his father. Hask took his meager inheritance, along with the hidden caches of credits and valuables his father had stashed away, and bought a small starship. He began a small-time pirating operation, and eventually worked his way up to become the leader of the Bonestar Pirates. He led the Corellian authorities on a chase through the Corellian System in the armed freighter Buzzzer, and tried to lose them at Gus Treta. His plan was to create a large enough diversion to allow the pirates to escape from notice. He landed at the Jagged Antilles' fuel depot, and requested that his ship be refueled. In the midst of refueling, Hask ordered his ship to lift off. This resulted in a ruptured fuel linkage that spewed volatile fuel everywhere. The backwash from his ship's thrusters ignited the fuel, destroying the Antilles' depot. Jagged and Zena Antilles died trying to contain the damage, but Wedge was removed from the conflagration by Booster Terrik. Terrik did not stand in Wedge's way when the youth demanded revenge, and Hask found himself again the hunted. Wedge and Booster managed to severely damage the Pirate's ship, leaving them for dead. Hask, fearing for his own life, took the only usable spacesuit and escaped the destruction. However, a parasite had hidden in the suit, and attacked Hask. It latched onto his face, and Hask never found a suitable method for removing it without inflicting great damage to himself. He vowed to hunt down Wedge Antilles for the loss of his pirates and ship. He later managed to became a member of the Imperial forces, and was one of the neogitators trying to obtain the Mrlssi Phantom cloaking device. He was pitted against Wedge Antilles in the negotiations, and managed to frame the Rogues in an incident of theft. Wedge escaped, and was able expose Hask's treachery. However, Hask escaped to Rorax Falken's lab, where he discovered the gravitic polarization beam. When the suddenly activated, Hask was caught too near the device. It developed a huge feedback loop, opening a wormhole and swallowing Hask, the lab, and a nearby Star Destroyer. (XWPA, HXW)

Haslam, Koris
this Alliance Lieutenant was part of the special forces team assigned to Commander Briessen, and was instrumental in the liberation of Gebnerret Vibrion from Selnesh. He gave no details about his past, but many attribute his understanding of Imperial military structure to a commission with the Empire. His personality was genial, and it allowed him to mingle with spacers and mechanics as easily as he could bureaucrats and politicians. Haslam was injured in the escape from Selnesh, but not seriously. He was able to man the guns on their escape ship. (SWJ10, TFE)

Haslip, Dair
this Imperial agent worked on Garos IV as an undercover Alliance supporter. (SWJ12)

Hassarian
this alien race maintained membership in the New Republic. (TT)

Hassla'tak
this Twi'lek worked for Booster Terrik as a navigator and stewart aboard the Errant Venture. (IJ, IR)

Hassling
native to the swamp world of Dagobah, this short-bodied plant has a distinctive, mildly offensive odor. Its bulbous roots can be ground up and mized with water to form an orange paint. Explorers have also discovered strange, hassling-based paintings in the caves of Dagobah, although the planet is known to have no natural, sentient lifeforms. (GF)

Hast
1) a former Imperial pit Lieutenant serving on the Valiant, Hast joined the Alliance after resigning his commission at the end of his hitch.

He served the Alliance for many years as a special agent assigned to monitoring the privateer vessels employed by Ral'Rai Muvunc and Ordnance and Supply. Hast was given the mission to observer Urias Xhaxin and the crew of the Free Lance. (ISB, PP)
2) this planet was the site of secret New Republic shipyards. The captured Star Destroyers Liberator and Emancipator were refitted there. Both were damaged when Imperial forces managed to discover the shipyards and attack them. (DESB)

Hasti

Hatcher, B'ante
the leader of Agamar's underground Resistance, during the early years of Palpatine's reign. (XW)

Hathrox III
this planet was the site of a biochemical civil war some 1,200 years before the Battle of Endor. One of the armies had unleashed a plague as a “secret weapon,” one which was a “fool-proof” antivirus. All the group managed to do was wipe out the entire population of the planet. During the new Republic, Hathrox III was still listed as a “standing hazard.” The history of the planet was discovered by a scouting team which discovered records of civilization, but failed to live long enough to read them. Neither did the rescue crew that assisted them, nor the quarantine staff which tried to save them. (POT)

Hatirma Havighasu
this old smuggler was a friend to Han Solo during his smuggling days. Havighasu always flew solo, feeling that cooperation was for cowards. He couldn't take on the big jobs and earn the big money, but he was able to survive long beyond many of his contemporaries. He was often found plying the Praff Run. (BTS)

Haul Jets
a slang phrase meaning "let's get out of here." (SWR)

Hauler VI
this Alliance Censian-class transport was used by the Special Forces division as a troop carrier. It was attacked shortly before the Battle of Yavin by the Fivaran Organization, who failed to recognize that the ship was a military vessel. Nearly all the Fivaran pirates were killed or captured, although Denuab and Dorin Venithon escaped as soon as they realized the mistake. (AIR)

Hauler-2 Cargo Tug

HavaKing
this business was based on the planet Brentaal. (SWJ14)

Havaland
this Imperial Moff was in control of the Rettna System during the New Order. He also had jurisdiction over Freda and Jante Systems. When the Freda broke a decades-old cold war by attacking Jante holdings on Rett II, Haveland called in Imperial forces to bring about a cease-fire. He also initiated peace talks between the Freda and Jante, but neither side would concede anything, and the Freda withdrew. (SWJ8, SWJ9)

Havel, Matas
this man was an honest trader, and was the original owner of the YT-2400 transport which later became known as the Lambarian Crab. Havel had modified the ship to have additional cargo space and enhanced shielding, but sold the ship to Finious Crab three years after purchasing it. (SS)

Haven
a small planetoid located in the Minos Cluster, Haven was the site of the Alliance's primary resistance center in the Cluster during the Galactic Civil War. Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa fled to this planet after losing Han Solo at Cloud City, meeting a segment of the Alliance fleet and regrouping. Luke received his prosthetic hand while in orbit around Haven, and it was here that the initial plan to rescue Solo was put into action. (WEG, SOL)

Haven
the group of Imperial Lambda-class shuttles commandeered by Admiral Zaarin as part of his plot to capture Emperor Palpatine. He was unable to complete his coup d'etat, and fled in the Star Destroyer Glory. (TIE)

Haverling
this planet joined the New Republic after the Battle of Endor. A shipyard was erected there, and supported the Republic's fleet in the sector. (SOP)

this song, written and played by the band Deeply Religious, was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Advanced Explosives Handbook. (GG9)

Havoc
1) an Imperial Strike-class cruiser which intercepted the Alliance frigate Battle of Yavin in the Hensara System. The crew of the frigate were forced to land it on the planet Hensara III, and had to sink it in a deep lake. They lacked the equipment to recover the frigate, and so Rogue Squadron was called in to escort a rescue team to Hensara III. (XWN)
2) this starship was owned and operated by the Feeorin pirate Nym. It was armed with powerful bombs, laser cannons, and a turret-mounted blaster cannon. The Havoc was also well-shielded. (OWS, SFT) designation of Ubrikkian's Floating Fortress, this repulsorlift craft was designed to extinguish urban uprisings without the need to call in AT-AT walkers. These floating cylinders have fully-independent, full-sweep heavy blaster cannons mounted on a topside turrent. The two guns sweep across the field of fire, eventually locking onto the target. The fortress is also equipped with a sophisticated sensor package modeled after assassin droids. The package creates a 30-meter bubble around the vehicle which is extremely effective at locating targets. This has made the HAVr A9 all the more effective, as the sight of a huge repulsor tank homing in on a single target and swiftly eliminating it is awesome to behold. (ISB)

HAVr A9

HAVw A5
Kuat Drive Yards' heavy ground assault vehicle (GAV), the HAVw A5 has been nicknamed the Juggernaut, or the Rolling Slab. One of the Empire's oldest, and most durable, GAVs, the HAVw A5 moves on five sets of wheels and does not have a repulsorlift. They resemble the AT-AT's top section, with the 5 sets of wheels in place of the AT-AT's legs. Juggernauts are well-armed, with 3 heavy laser cannons, a single medium blaster cannon, and two concussion grenade launchers. The HAVw A5 requires a crew of 8, one of which must man the observation tower which protrudes above the main body. This crewer relays information about upcoming terrain to the cockpit; without him, the Juggernaut can become mired in treacherous terrain. The Juggernaut has room to carry up to 50 troops. (ISB)

Hawk Squadron
one of the starfighter groups maintained by the Khuiumin Survivors, in support of the Invids. (IJ)

Hawk-bat
native kite-like creatures on Coruscant, the hawk-bat has metallic talons. (JS, DA)

Hawk-bat Independent Space Force
this was the name of the pirate identities used by Wraith Squadron during their attempt to infiltrate Warlord Zsinj's forces. Several of the Wraiths donned makeup and became Hawk-bats, in order to hide their identitied from anyone they met with. The Hawk-bats concentrated their early efforts on the planet Halmad, which was just outside Zsinj's area of control. Their base was situated in an abandoned mine, designated A3 by Tonheld Mining Corporation, within a large asteroid in the Halmad system. After stealing several TIE Interceptors from the garrison in Hullis, and pirating the cargoes of a number of Halmad-based shippers, Zsinj finally stepped in and took protective control of Halmad. He then offered the Hawk-bats a chance to join him, rather than fight against him. They agreed to participate in Zsinj's raid on Kuat, where the New Republic's forces - led by Han Solo and the Mon Remonda - nearly caught the rogue Warlord. (IF, SOC)

Hawkbat
this was one of Imperial warlord Zsinj's supply ships, and was sent to rendezvous with the Night Caller shortly before it was ordered to attack Talasea. Zsinj ordered it to dock with the Night Caller and perform a routine inspection, although the Night Caller had actually been captured by Wraith Squadron and the New Republic. (WS)

Hawkbat's Perch
one of several crew shuttles assigned to the warship Hawkbat. (WS)

Hawkbat's Vigil
one of several crew shuttles assigned to the warship Hawkbat. (WS)

Hawra
this Imperial Captain served as the commander of the security forces protecting the Imperial outpost on Lotide. While cheerful and outgoing to most appearances, Hawra was known as one of the Empire's most ruthless officers. He rose to his position by stepping over those who underestimated him. He was also quite paranoid and quite corrupt, and would stop at nothing to ensure his own safety. (BI)

Hawser, Llek
this man was a Major with the Corellian Security Force, serving under Gil Bastra. (HAS)

Hax, Pollux
one of Emperor Palpatine's most trusted associates. Pollux Hax was placed in charge of the Empire's propaganda dissemination section. He performed admirably there, and was later commissioned to generate an article describing the wonders and locations of Coruscant. (ISU)

this rudimentary droid controlled the household at 16AA889 Starfield Road. (HAS)

HD-234-C a Hapan harvester droid that is not equipped with an internal shredding device. (CPL)

HD7
Cygnus Spaceworks' hyperdrive activation unit. (TIE)

Head Clan
the group of five Twi'Leks that leads their community. Their length of leadership is defined by shortest lifespan of the five members. When one of the head clan dies, the remaining four members are cast out from the community and sentenced to a virtual death at the hands of Ryloth's extreme environment. (COTF)

Head Proctor
the leader of the Proctors serving in Hethrir's Empire Youth. The position requires that the Proctor has mastered the use of the lightsaber, and has demonstrated leadership qualities. He dresses in the same blue uniform as the other Proctors, but with a white sash. (CS)

Head Tails
the two tentacular appendages that are found growing from the rear of a Twi'lek's head, these head tails serve a number of purposes. First and foremost, they are a source of vanity, as hair or feathers are to other races. They are also used in a silent form of communication among individual Twi'leks. The head tails also serve a ceremonial and sensual role in the dances performed by Twi'lek females. (ESB, MTS)

Headon-5
this was the designation of the swift sublight engines used on many Nubian starships. The Headon-5s were best utilized in a J-type configuration, with a pair of drives mounted on swept-back wings. (TPM)

Headquarters, The
an underworld cantina located in the Invisible Sector of Imperial City on Coruscant. Zekka Thyne returned here after being released from Kessel by Wedge Antilles. He captured Corran Horn there, but was also killed there by Inyri Forge. (WG)

Headquarters Frigate
see Home One. (ROTJN)

Head's Up Display
a starfighter holographic display system that allows the ship's vital information, such as fuel levels and targetting, to be displayed in front of the pilot's eyes, rather than on a console. These systems allow the pilot to concentrate on his forward viewports while, at the same time, monitor his ship's activities. (HSE, SWSB)

Healing Crystals of Fire
these firey gemstones were among the greatest treasures of the Jedi Knights. Maintained under tight security in the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, they were used heal serious wounds. Inside each gemstone was an eternal flame. Xanatos attempted to steal these stones, along with a cache of vertex crystals, several years after he left the Jedi Order. He attempted to cover up his plans by also attempting to kill Yoda and destroy the Jedi Temple on Coruscant. (UP, CT)

Healing Stick
this medical device was developed on Pydyr, and found galxy-wide acceptance before the creation of bacta. The healing stick was made from a white, powdery substance which could be rubbed onto a wound . The powder began healing on contact, foaming around the wound as it worked. The stick worked best if the injured being was asleep. (TNR)

Heart of D'vouran
this was the name used by the Enzeen to describe the original feeding orifice of the planet D'vouran. It appeared to be made of living mud, and resembled a deep, wide pit located below the surface of the planet. The Enzeen would lure unsuspecting tourists to the underground location, then lower them into the pit in order for the planet to devour them. Later, when D'vouran became self-sufficient, the Heart was no longer needed, as the planet could consume a being located anywhere on the planet by simply opening up a hole na drawing them in. The Enzeen themselves avoided being eaten by wearing a small pendant which contained a force field generator that shielded their life-force from the planet. (GOF1)

Heart of Flesh
this Qektoth Attack Cruiser was dispatched to Yvara to collect specimens of Yvarema. The Qektoth Confederacy hoped to bio-engineer a human hive-mind, and planned to experiment on the Yvarema mammalian hive. The Heart of Flesh was developed in a secret facility in the Kathol Rift, during the time that the Scourge was first used in combat by the Confederacy. The Heart of Flesh was intercepted by the New Republic corvette FarStar. (KR)

Heart of the Bright Jewel this was a name used to describe the planet Ord Mantell. (SL)

Heart of the Universe this ancient Jedi tool was a wondrous gem created by Jaled Dur. References to the existence of the Heart were discovered by Alliance agents during the Galactic Civil War, although it was being held by the Dark Jedi Croym. A group of Force-sensitive agents managed to infiltrate Croyn's castle and recover the Heart before it could be used for evil. (GMS)

Hearth, Twilit
this cantina siren was the mate of Sprig Cheever. She was the lead singer in the cantina band they founded, and was often found at Happy's Landing in Il Avali, on Druckenwell. It was here that she and Sprig met Tinian I'att and Daye Azur-Jamin. When Tinian's grandparents were murdered by Eisen Kerioth, Twilit and Sprig helped her escape by disguising her as a member of the band. Twilit remained on Druckenwell while Sprig and the band got Tinian offworld, allowing Tinian to portray the band's lead singer. Twilit often wore shimmering, silky dresses that revealed more than they covered. (SWJ10, TFE)

Heartland Settlement
a farming community formed on the planet Ennth, it was destroyed by lava during one of the planet’s eight-year cycles of devastation. (SHA)

Heas
this Imperial Governor was in charge of Feris City during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Heater
one of Jabba the Hutt's henchmen, Heater operated the cruise ship Dune Princess during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Heater made sure that the Dune Princess was slightly smaller than Jabba's own sail barge. Heater was portrayed by Joel Brooks for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio.
(SWR, LAA)

Heat-seeking Laser Mine
an Imperial deep-space mine used to defend shipyards and as a last defense for stranded starships. Once deployed, these mines lock onto intense heat sources, such as starship exhaust nacelles, and fire on these assumed targets. (XW)

Heavy Blaster Blues
this song, written and played by the band Deeply Religious, was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Advanced Explosives Handbook. (GG9)

Heavy Hauler
this was to be a larger version of the Kazellis Light Freighter, with expanded cargo capacity and more power. Unfortunately for Kazellis, it was nationalized by the Empire before it could produce the Heavy Hauler. (SS)

Heavy Lifter
similar to cargo-lifters, ther small craft (25 meters or less) have grasping arms mounted beneath their hulls to hold onto small cargo containers. These craft are often unarmed and unshielded, with light, 10-RU hulls. They have been clocked at 20 MGLT. (TIE)

Heavy Tracker
one of Mekuun's combat assault vehicles, the Heavy Tracker is more of a mobile scanning unit. It is equipped with an omniprobe sensor array, which can be programmed to hug the ground and search out targets. The Heavy Tracker has a single heavy laser cannon. (RASB)

Heavy Tracker 16
SoroSuub's personal blaster rifle. (RASB)

Heavy Weapons Specialists
this branch of the Alliance's SpecForces units were trained in the doctrines and use of laser weapons, artillery, and other heavy-duty weaponry. They were considered the 6th Regiment of the SpecForces of the Alliance.(ROE)

Hebsly
this Imperial Lieutenant was a skilled starfighter pilot who used the maneuverability of the TIE Fighter to his advantage in combat. (CCG11)

Heckson Industries
this small starship manufacturer produced a series of small transport shuttles during the New Order. (GMK)

Hedron, Mol
this Imperial intelligence agent was a native of the planet Swarquen. He served the Empire for many years before the Battle of Yavin, and was not heard from until three years after the Battle of Endor. Then, he was encountered stealing information on the newest starships designs of the New Republic from the Sluis Van shipyards. He eluded capture, but not before beaming information on the starships to an unknown Imperial location. (WBC)

Hedrys City
this was one of the major cities located on the planet Norne. (CRO)

Heedra
this man was the Imperial Moff, in command of Baxel Sector, during the height of the New Order. He worked hard to drive the Hutts from the planets they controlled in the sector, including Lirra. (SWJ12)

Heer, Noshy
this vagrant never considered himself to be a freeloader, although he was forced to scrounge for credits after losing all his money gambling in the Relatta System. He tried to return to his homeworld of Alderaan, where he had plenty of funds in the bank, but the destruction of the planet left him homeless and poor. He spent the rest of his life cruising around the Outer Rim Territories, finding his way aboard a variety of starships and also staying one step ahead of poverty. (HR)

Heff
one of the original settlers of the planet Tatooine, Heff was killed in Mos Eisley for the information he held about Adar Tallon. Jodo Kast intercepted Heff before the Alliance could, and killed him with a Senaari-dipped dart. Heff was a rabbit-like alien who owned Heff's Souvenir Shop. After his death, the shop became the property of his daughter, Tebbi. (TM)

Heff's Souvenir Shop
a business located in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. (GG7, TM)

Heffrin
a small colony world located in the Outer Rim Territories. (TBSB)

Hefi

Heg
this was the capital city of the planet Bundim, until it was destroyed in the Battle of Heg, shortly after the Alliance destroyed the first Death Star at Yavin. (GMK)

Hegerty, Soron
Soron Hegerty was a Doctor of Biology who spent a great deal of her time studying the Ssither race on Jatee. She was raised as an Old Republic Army brat, although she had only the best life could provide. She grew up admiring the Old Republic's various alien species, and devoted her education to understanding them more. With the advent of the Empire, Soron and her father were conscripted into duty. She became a member of the Imperial Species Identification Bureau, but was constantly thwarted in her attempts to bring other species into the New Order. After discovering the Ssither on Jatee, she faked her own death and returned to Jatee, where she continually subverted Imperial probes on the planetoid. (SN)

Heggel
this Imperial Admiral was placed in charge of the fleet which patrolled Trax Sector, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He ordered Commander Resner to root out and destroy the rebellious cells of activity in the sector. (GMK)

Heggs, Sam
this spacer once encountered a time warp on a remote ice world. He encountered the warp while he was an old man, and the planet was locked in ice. However, in the warp, Heggs was a young man and the planet was a tropical jungle. In both times, the grumph was the dominant form of life on the world. In a weird twist of time, the older Sam actually pre-dated the younger Sam. The young Sam was being attacked by a grown grumph, and was cornered when the old Sam found him. The old Sam began destroying grumph eggs, in an effort to remove the attacking grumph from young Sam's world. He succeeded, allowing the young Sam to survive. He carried a grumph egg off the planet with him, and ended up in Mos Eisley. There, he met Jeet Travis, and exchanged the story and the egg for a bottle of Vaschean rye. Travis attempted to drink the eggs juices, which tasted not unlike battery acid. (TMEC)

Heglum
a very light, synthetic gas used in dirigibles. It was sometimes found in nebulae and other gaseous clouds, and bonded to sublight drives. This required that ships passing through heglum clouds undergo regular scrubbing of their drive systems to maintain optimal performance. (GG2, KR)

Heksa
this man was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. (GG11)

Hela-Tan
this Togorian pirate was one of a group which tried to intercept Darth Maul while the Sith apprentice was en route to Tatooine to capture Queen Amidala. (JDM)

Helas
this unusual creature, native to the moist world of Enaleh, resembled a flying snake or eel. They were filter feeders, but traveled through the air to catch their prey instead of the water. Given Enaleh's damp atmosphere, the helas were amphibious. The offspring evolved in the water, but the adults preferred to fly through the air. Their heads were essentially large baskets, with four jaw-like flaps which opened up to collect small insects. Four long tentacles grew from the corners of their mouths, and presumably helped them detect their prey. Helas lacked wings, and seemed to have an internal organ which acted in much the same was as a repulsorlift engine did. Scientists have been studying the helas species to determine the exact nature of their flying ability, but have been unable to pinpoint it. (COG)

Helb
this Neimoidian worked as a broker for the Tech Raiders, selling equipment by making deals in the various taverns and bars of the Senate District on Coruscant. Unlike most Neimoidians, Helb wore simple clothing so as not to stand out in a crowd. It was Helb who revealed to Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi that Fligh owed a large sum of credits to the Tech Raiders, as payment for a number of favors he had obtained. It was discovered by the Jedi that Helb had employed Fligh to steal Senator Uta S'orn's datapad, in order to thwart her plans to break up the Tech Raiders. (DH)

Heleisk
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the starship Rand Ecliptic when Biggs Darklighter was assigned to duty on it. Heleisk was a supporter of the Alliance, and worked with Derek "Hobbie" Klivan to stage a mutiny aboard the Ecliptic when it docked at Bestine. Together they stole the ship and defected to the Alliance. (EGC)

Helempor's Exotic Jewelry
this dealer in fine and unusual jewlery was based on Bespin's Cloud City. The owner of the store maintained a position on the city's Parliament of Guilds. (GG2)

Helicite
a gypsum formation found on Tatooine. (SWN)

Helicon
an Imperial shuttle assigned to escort Kirtan Loor from Talasea to Vladet. (XWN)

Heliesk
this Captain of the Rand Ecliptic was an Alliance sympathizer. He was in command of the ship when Biggs Darklighter and Hobbie Klivian were assigned to it, following their graduation from the Imperial Academy. To potential Alliance recruits, Heliesk was known simply as "Starfire," which was how Biggs and Hobbie found him. Heliesk helped the two reach an Alliance officer and jump ship. (MTS)

Helisk
this was one of three habitable worlds in the Sabrixin System. (GG11)

Helix Interceptor
Arakyd's light freighter/starfighter, the Helix is a 30.9-meter craft that is triangular in shape, resembling a bird of prey. It can carry up to 35 metric tons of cargo, giving it frieghter capabilities, but it is also heavily armed. A pair of plasburst laser cannons is supported by a pair of ion cannons and a proton torpoedo launcher, providing starfighter abilities. The Helix requires a pilot and co-pilot, and can carry up to four pasengers. It is fairly well-shielded, and has a strong hull. (KO, GOF2)

Helixell
a key ingredient in Duro hyperdrive fuel. (SCRE)

Hell Projector
a starship weapon with enough firepower to destroy an entire continent from space. (LCS)

Hell's Axe
this modified Incom Explorer scout ship was owned and operated by Kyr Laron. On the outside, it appears quite ordinary, which serves to help Laron travel somewhat anonymously. Among the primary modifications is the enlarged airlock, which Laron uses when she dons her zero-g spacetrooper armor to intercept a target's ship. It is armed with three retractable laser cannons. (WBC)

Hell's Hammers
this elite armor unit of the Imperial forces was created to crush resistance to Palpatine's New Order. Later, they were used to eradicate Alliance outposts and quelling rebellion. The primary armament used by the Hell’s Hammers was the Imperial-class repulsortank. The Hell's Hammers were decimated by Alliance forces during the battle which took place on Turak IV. (ISB, SWJ9, MBC)

Hellcat
a group of Imperial Lambda-class shuttles used by Zaarin to try and stretch Thrawn's search party thin. Zaarin had Palpatine hidden in the Haven shuttles, and added the Hellcat group to further confuse his pursuit. (TIE)

Hellenika
Tinian I’att used this alias when she delivered Bossk to Imperial Governor Io Desnand, after capturing the Trandoshan in the Lomabu System. (TBH)

Hellhoop
this strange void is located near the planet Attahox, and was controlled by the Five. Its presence is obvious from the ring os asteroids which surround it. In the center is an unusual, extrea-dimensional portal. Shaped like a triangle, this portal twists open when starships approach it. Once the ships are drawn in, the triangle twists closed. The Five captured starships within the Hellhoop and took great pleasure torturing the crews and passengers. The sadistic desires of the Five became their destruction when they captured Han Solo, Leia Organa, and Chewbacca some years after the Battle of Hoth. Chewbacca was imprisoned in the Menagerie, while Han and Leia were tortured. Chewbacca escaped, and liberated Wuzzek and the other Menagerie beasts. Wuzzek went on a rampage, killing all of the Five but Chokla. Wuzzek then destroyed the Hellhoop itself, allowing the Alliance agents a chance to ecape before he did so. (CSWDW)

Helm Iskraker
this small-time criminal is someone who bounty hunters consider to be "pin money". Iskraker was a humanoid with rolling layers of gold-colored skin which shimmered as it moved. As his skin shifted against itself, it sloughed off golden flakes. He traveled the galaxy in his own ship, the Erratic Orbit. Iskraker was known as a bumbler, and virtually every operation he started ended in failure. He worked tirelessly to improve his standing within the criminal underworld, and often blamed his mistakes on his friend Widget. When Doctor Vreen hired Iskraker to break into SecuriCo and steal the codes to open the locks to Cloud City's computer core, Iskraker managed to obtain the plans without being caught. His theft was discovered, though the authorities of SecuriCo could never trace him. (GG9, CCC)

Heloan Yagen
the fifth and outermost planet in the Bovo Yagen system Heloan Yagen is a gas giant named for the wife of Bovo Yagen himself. It had 24 natural satellites. (CTD)

Helona
this was the sixth month of the Tapani local calendar, which mapped almost directly to the Coruscant local calendar. (PGT)

Helot's Shackle
this heavily-modified CR90 corvette was captained by Ngyn Reeos. The ship was part of the fleet which guarded Kessel during the early years of the New Order, and was dispatched to assist in transporting processed spice off Ylesia. It was distinguishable by the symbol of a hand dripping blood displayed on her flanks (as well as those of the ships accompanying her), a slavers' symbol which meant "no quarter given." One of the major modifications to the ship was the addition of a docking bay in the bottom. The ship chased Han Solo and Bria Tharen as they escaped from Ylesia with Murrrgh and Mrrov, but failed to capture them. The ship was also used to transport slaves off Ylesia, and was once attacked by Bria Tharen and her Corellian Resistance, who hoped to rescue the slaves. The crew was either dispatched or surrendered, and Bria took control of the starship. She renamed it Emancipator. (TPS, RD)

Helpers
the lowest rank in Hethrir's Empire Youth school, these students are basically servants. They are designated by their rust-colored uniforms. (CS)

Helska
this planet, the fourth of seven in the Helska System, was the location of the first Yuuzhan Vong base. Much of the planet is covered with ice, and the atmosphere is choked with vaporous fog. Yomin Carr had scouted the planet before he joined the group on ExGal-4, and had left behind villips to help monitor the creation of the base. It was a small world, no more than a few thousand kilometers in diameter. The fifth planet, just outside Helska's orbit, was an uninhabitable gas giant. When the New Republic finally discovered how to destroy the Praetorite Vong's yammosk, which was hidden inside the planet, they forced the world to warm and then re-solidify via the Mezzicanley Wave effect. Helska's matter was unable to handle the strain of the effect, and shattered into a billion pieces of ice and rock. (VP)

Helthen Company
this manufacturer produced a variety of heavy-duty equipment, and was contracted by Ecclessis Figg to create the huge thermo-converters which were installed on Cloud City to maintain the outpost's electrical power. (GG2)

Heltiss
this renowned Ithorian physician served on the herdship Bazaar. (GA)

Helvan
this Imperial Special Intelligence operative was assigned to Kirtan Loor on Coruscant, as part of the Palpatine Counterinsurgency Faction. (KT)

Hem Dazon
this male Arcona worked as a scout in the Outer Rim Territories. He was addicted to salt, as noted by his glowing yellow eyes. (CCG2)

Hemei IV
this planet was believed to the birthplace of the Cosmic Balance religion. (TBSB)

Hemmel
a major cash crop grown on Delle II. (SWAJ)

Hendanyn
this race created unique death masks. The masks were used primarily by the elderly for two reasons. First, the mask hid the signs aging. Second, the mask conformed itself to the wearer's face and collected personal information via a strange mental link. The mask could be removed after death, the wearer's memories and knowledge could be retrieved by future generations. (TNR)

Hendrixen
this man once organized a fishing trip to Ganlihk, during which one of his friends was attacked by a zuxu. (COG)

Hengin Ki-Tapp Wett Gon-far
this was one of the wondrous tree-cities built by the Gazaran in the rainsforests of the planet Veron. It was located on the southeastern coast of the continent of Vusi. It wasn't the largest city of the Gazaran, but it was the most powerful. Hengin Ki-Tapp Wett Gon-far controlled the spaceport in the city of Trelbio, and strictly regulated what business the other cities could do in Trelbio. (PG1)

Henle
this Alliance Special Forces soldier was a member of Team Razor. (HAS)

Hennilrum
this trader plied the spacelanes of Trax Sector during the Galactic Civil War. Hennilrum was sympathetic toward the Alliance, and used his connections to Trefflet Wuin to provide the Alliance with information on the Empire's new supply base in Bissillirus System. (GMK)

Hensara III
third planet in the Hensara System, the Alliance frigate Battle of Yavin was sunk in one of its deep lakes when it tried to escape from the Havoc. It was a small, jungle-covered world. (XWN)

Hensing
this member of the Cavrilhu Pirates worked security details, serving under Control. (SOP)

Hensworth
this Imperial Army Lieutenant worked with Sinya Deboora to try and maintain Imperial control of the planet Seltos. When the populace of Seltos rose up and overthrew the government, Hensworth went into hiding, but maintained contact with Deboora by promising her the Imperial Governorship of the planet once the Empire regained control. He and Deboora were thwarted in their bid for power by New Republic agents inserted on the planet as part of Freedom Strike Seltos. (TSK)

Herafin
this youth was a native of Starpoint, on Draenell's Point, and was the leader of the gang known as the Vibroblades during the Galactic Civil War. Herafin and Benthar, the leader of the rival gang known as Benthar's Boys, developed an intense rivalry shortly after the Empire garrisoned the planet and Droxie - Benthar's girlfriend and second-in-command - left him to join the Vibroblades. (GMK)

Herak Square
an open, public area in Ven-Kav, on Venaari. (SWAJ)

Herald
the Alliance shuttle charged with intercepting the freighter Gafra and stealing the new Imperial warhead. (XW)

Herat
this female Jawa was the shaman of Wittin's tribe. She was Wittin's advisor during his negotiations with Jabba the Hutt, and agreed to serve as one of Jabba's retainers as long as he helped Wittin. (CCG7)

Herd Meet
a regular gathering of the Ithorian herdships, these meets occur once every three Ithorian years. (SCRE, EGC)

Herd Mother
Ketwol's old, poorly-maintained starship. (MTSE)

Herdessa
a planet. (CRO)

Herdship
an Ithorian craft designed to transport all manner of items across the galaxy. They provide the Ithorians with a "home away from home" complete with tropical jungles. (DA, SCRE)

Heresiarch
a Sovereign-class Star Destroyer under construction when Emperor Palpatine re-emerges on Byss. (DE1)

Herf
this is the eighth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "h". (SWM)

Herg
this arrogant young man was a native of Coruscant, and a student of galactic history under the tutelage of Voren Na'al, several years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Despite his chosen field of study, Herg was not very interested in history unless it was spectacular and didn't involve research. (TTSB)

Herglic
a race of huge, bipedal aliens with blue skin, these creatures evolved from ocean-dwelling mammals and still breath through blowholes on top of their heads. Native to the planet Giju, these humanoids were overrun by the Empire, which took control of their cities and manufacturing sites for their own use. The Herglics tried to fight back, but centuries of peaceful living failed to prepare them for the might of the Empire. Imperial forces slaughtered Herglics virtually at will, until the Herglics surrendered. The Herglic society is punctuated by great explorers and merchants, but they tend to become addicted to gambling quite easily. They are also self-conscious about their size and unusual physical characteristics. (DFR, DFRSB, AE)

Herglic Trading Journal
this Herglic newsnet reported on a variety of business issues and events, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Herian I'ngre
this Bith broke the traditional mold and openly joined the Alliance, during the Galactic Civil War. A native of Clak'Dor 4, she found the pro-human stance of Emperor Palpatine quite distasteful, and found the diversity of the Alliance to be refreshing. She later joined Rogue Squadron, and was killed during the Malrev Incident. She had crashed on the planet, and was rescued by Dllr Nep. The pair used the last of their strength to fly Herian's X-Wing into the temple of a Dark Side adept and destroy it, killing the magician as well. (XWRR, HXW)

Heritage Squad

Het Nkik
a Jawa youth who, during the last years of the Empire, felt that Jawas should note be pacifists. He felt that any Jawa could stand up to any threat, given the right tools. He learned this after he was caught by a group of Sand People. He was able to drive them away by setting off an loud alarm on a crashed T-16 skyhopper he'd found. This attitude didn't sit well with Wimateeka, his clan leader, who clung to the belief that Jawas needed to remain as the galaxy's whipping dogs. Het and his best friend and clansman, Jek Nkik, once rebuilt a damaged E522 assassin droid, creating a messenger droid and selling it to Valarian. When Hrar Kkak sold him a DL-44 blaster at a Jawa swap meet, Het knew that he could use it to destroy some of the Imperial stormtroopers who were harassing the Jawas and Sand People. He was in the Mos Eisley cantina, planning his attack, when Luke Skywalker and Ben Kenobi were trying to book passage to Alderaan. While there, Het bargained with a Ranat named Reegesk for the possession of a bantha-horn talisman. The talisman was a sign of Het's success. He ran out into the street, not knowing that Reegesk had pocketed the blaster's power cell. Het attacked Davin Felth's squadron, but the gun proved useless. Het Nkik was executed by stormtrooper 1047. (TME, CCG2)

Hethrir
a Firrerreo who had a remarkable amount of vision. He grew to a leadership position on Firrerre, and convinced his people that they had to colonize their nearby planetary neighbors or overrun their planet. However, they did not have hyperdrive capabilities yet, so they set out in sublight ships equipped with hibernation beds. He eventually fell in love with Rillao, and they were married. When the Empire began hunt down alien races because of Palpatine's xenophobia, Hethrir and Rillao came within the influence of Darth Vader. Vader ecognized Hethrir's Force-sensitivity, and secretly kept both Hethrir and Rillao as Jedi students. As part of his Jedi training, Hethrir built a unique lightsaber, which could only be activated by using the Force to complete certain circuits. Vader also believed that a child of their union would be exceedingly strong. As Hethrir grew in power and eventually sired a son, Tigris, he gained favor in Vader's eyes. Tigris turned to have no Force sensititivy whatsoever, and was placed aboard one of the Firrerreo colony ships. Hethrir helped turn over his planet and his people to the Empire by allowing the Empire to biologically destroy Firrerre and by giving the Empire the colony ships' flight plans. These acts helped solidify Hethrir's position with Vader as it alienated him from Rillao, who strongly disagreed with Vader's plans. Vader eventually appointed him Procurator of Justice for the Empire, and the atrocities Hethrir perpetrated became infamous.

When Vader appointed Hethrir as the overseer for the Crseih Space Station, Hethrir turned the science outpost into a prison, cruelly torturing the prisoners there. This led to the emergence of Waru into the galaxy, and Hethrir struck a deal with Waru: absolute power over the Force in return for getting Waru back to his galaxy. This could only be accomplished by allowing Waru to consume a large amount of Force energy, and Hethrir began sacrificing his prisoners to Waru. When the Empire crumbled after the Battle of Endor, Hethrir went into hiding, all the while formulating plans to restore the Empire. He eventually found Rillao again, and took her to the stranded colony ships, where he placed her in hibernation as he took Tigris as a slave. Hethrir had also determined that the Solo children were strong enough in the Force that they would help him return Waru to its own galaxy, and so he devised the kidnapping of the children on Munto Codru. Hethrir's plans were foiled, however, by a series of events which led to the New Republic's presence at Crseih station, and Hethrir was eventually consumed by Waru himself, allowing Waru to return to its own galaxy. Hethrir had striped hair, colored with gold, copper, and cinnamon brown. He has very pale skin and a square face. (CS)

Higron, Rodin
this Corellian gambler and privateer won the ownership of the planet Oasis in a crooked sabacc match. He travelled to the planet to see how oxite was mined, but was impressed with the ability of the Riders of the Maelstrom to pick off passing ships and pirate their cargo. Higron set up his own base of operations on Oasis, much to the chagrin of Big Jak Targrim and the Riders. Higron felt that competition was the galactic way, and soon was making his own profits. Higron was a quiet supporter of the Alliance, so he only preyed on Imperial craft. The increased scrutiny of Imperial losses angered Targrim, and he vowed to capture a starship and ram it into the planet Oasis. He nearly succeeded, capturing the famed Kuari Princess as it exited hyperspace. However, the timely interaction of a group of Alliance operatives on the ship avoided the disaster. (RM)

Hiicrop, Satnik
this ficticious individual was created by Boba Fett, during his attempt to stop Jodo Kast from impersonating him. Hiicrop supposedly caused great harm to Sava Brec Madak, the alias Fett used to employ Kast from House Benelex. In a subtle twist on reality, Madak claimed that Hiicrop then tried to impersonate him. Hiicrop was hiding on Nal Hutta, and Kast tracked him there, only to find out that Hiicrop was really Fett. Fett eliminated Kast on the planet. (TOD)

Himron, Molo
this Imperial Army Major was the leader of Thrawn's assault force to Coruscant, whose goal was to capture Leia Organa Solo and her children. He was the only survivor of Mara Jade's counterattack, and he identified the source of his plot to capture Leia and her children as Mara Jade. Early in his career, Himron had been hand-picked by Emperor Palpatine to be trained by the Imperial Intelligence bureau, and proved to be an excellent Intelligence operative. (TLC, TTSB)

Hin
a Yuzzem slave who was working for the Empire on Circarpous V. He, along with Kee, were getting fed up with the demands place on them by the local Imperials, and started destroying everything they saw. They were imprisoned by Grammel, and continued to wreak havoc by killing their fellow prisoners. This was OK with Grammel, as it helped eliminate certain captives. When Grammel placed Luke and Leia in the Yuzzems' cell, Luke began to communicate with them, and gained Hin and Kee's trust. Together, they escaped the prison compound and set out to find the Temple of Pomojema and the Kaiburr crystal. Hin was fatally injured by Darth Vader outside the temple, but managed to survive long enough to rescue Luke. (SME)

Hindasar System

Hirken, Mirkovig
a Corporate Sector Authority's Vice President, Hirken was born to one of the oldest families to live on the planet Alsakan, in the Galactic Core. Mirkovig was the youngest of nine children, and ld a pamperde and spoiled life. His parents urged all of their children to uphold their family honor by choosing a calling and doing the best at it. To this end, private tutors, fine schools, and unlimited expenses were at his disposal. His parents felt that Mirkovig was meant to do something truly wonderful. After reading about his ancestor, Arlo Hirken, and the adventures he had with Rin Assid, Mirkovig decided to pursue a career in economics and politics. He graduated with honors, and was hired by the Corporate Sector Authority. He was placed on the fast track to powerful positions, and was soon betrothed to the daughter of the Duke of Opatajji. Mirkovig and Neera were soon married, and her insensitivity placed undue demands on him to become more and more powerful and bring her more and more credits to spend. He was placed in charge of Corporate Security just before work began on the Stars' End penal colony on Mytus VII. Hirken oversaw construction of the facility with the Detention Task Force and Lady Chawkroft. He was a tall, fatherly man with a full head of white hair, well-manicured and laquered finernails, and flashy clothes. Hirken created "the list" of candidates for incarceration at Stars' End, and many of them were vocal opponents of the Corporate Sector Authority. He was killed just after Han Solo triggered the explosion which launched the colony's central tower into orbit. He was trying to escape without first helping his wife and the Security officers in the tower, and his wife shot him in the back with a blaster. (HSE, CSA)

Hirom Pinkatta

Hissa
an Imperial Grand Moff serving the Empire after the death of Emperor Palpatine, Hissa is one of Trioculus' most trusted officers. Hissa has spear-pointed teeth, which point to his alien origins. As part of the Central Committee of Grand Moffs' plan to keep Triclops a secret and find a way to rule the galaxy following Palpatine's death, Hissa cultivated a friendship with Trioculus, knowing that the three-eyed mutant could be passed off as the true son of Palpatine. Hissa is severely disfigured on Duro, when the hazardous wastes from Imperial dumping grounds flood the Valley of Royalty. He falls into the wastes, which eat away most of his body. His arms were then replaced with the arms of an assassin droid, and his torso was encased on a repulsorlift floating chair. When the Prophets of the Dark Side sentenced him for treachery against the Empire, he was to be starved aboard Scardia until he was very near death. Then, his final meal would be given to him: a meal of biscuits laden with parasites that would consume him from the inside out. He never got that far, for Kadann, suspicious that Triclops' information on the Lost City of the Jedi was false, sent Hissa to investigate. Hissa was then incinerated in the molten lava core of Yavin 4, at the end of the false entrance to the City. (GDV, MMY, QE, PDS)

Hissal
the Brigian who approaches Han Solo on Saheelindeel. He is accused of being a fugitive by Keek, who is trying to get the university closed down because of its threat to his power. (HSL)

Hissest
this Sekct leader was the first to encounter the Alliance team which crash-landed on Marca shortly after the Battle of Yavin. She was considered something of a rebel, and was often avoided or ignored by She-Who-Speaks. She-Who-Speaks forced Hissest to battle one of the Alliance agents in a test of trust, and Hissest was seriously wounded. This forced She-Who-Speaks to accept the Alliance agents as friends, at which point the agents revived Hissest. This earned the trust of She-Who-Speaks. (POM)

Hist
the marksman who taught Tirog how to use a blaster. (RPG)

Historical Battle Site Preservation Act
a governmental decree issued by the New Republic, it set up a fleet of cargo haulers under the name Operation Flotsam to collect the debris from space battles that occurred during the Galactic Civil War. It was first proposed when Imperial and Alliance military artifacts began showing up in private collections. It gained momentum when some of those artifacts turned out to be operational: an Imperial thermal detonator that detonated in the home of a wealthy Givin collector; a group if interrogation droids used by gangs on Rudrig. The HBSPA then funded the Alliance War Museum on Coruscant as a display vehicle for the military items. (BTS)

History of the Jedi Knights, The
this tome was rumored to exist in the legendary Jedi library, located on the Nespis VIII space station. It was found on the station by Tash Arranda, during Mammon Hoole's search for Project Starscream. When she opened it, she released the spirit of Aidan Bok, who helped her escape from the station with Hoole and her brother, Zak. (GOF5)

History of Two Peoples, One Planet, The written by Theosidicc Sirrap Treblif and published by Elomin Press, this volume dcouments that history of the Elomin and Elom races on the planet Elom. (GG12)

Hitak Harriers
this was one of the Alliance troops which participated in the battles to control Kwymar Sector during the Galactic Civil War. They were veterans of the Battle of Hoth, and were responsible for defeating the Imperial Hell's Hammers during a siege on Turak IV. They were named for the volcanic Hitak mountains on the planet. (MB)

Hitak Mountains
found on the planet Turak IV, the volcanic Hitak mountains were used as a strategic hiding place by the Alliance soldiers who fought there. The struck from the mountains and retreated there, allowing them a goo deal of concealment. (ISB)

Hitcher Crab
native to the wilderness regions of the planet Sevarcos, this large crustacean measured over a meter in length, including its tail. Rumors told of hitcher crabs exceeding four meters in length, but these stories were discounted mirages. Three large spikes on top of their shells, and two clawed arms. The hitcher crab produced a slow-acting poison that coated their shells and spikes. They also have water sacs which they carry inside their shells, allowing them to survive for long periods in the desert. The hitcher crab was a forger, living on the small rodents and plant life along the canyons. When at rest, they buried themselves in the sand and went into a form of hibernation. Unsuspecting creatures who stepped on the back of the crab were injected with the poison. Eventually, the victim died from the wounds, and the crab simply tracked it and consumed it later. (COG)

Hive, The
this was the primary entrance used to gain access to The Pits, located on Stend VI. Hive traffic control was staffed completely with organic beings, since there was an unspoken hatred of droids at The Pits. The Hive was a tall, honeycombed column which was built atop the main building, and provided visitors with stalls in which to park their swoops. The hexagonal stalls were particle- and ray-shielded, and access was given only after the proper identification was given. Turbolifts carried patrons from their stalls to the entertainment areas below. (WSV)

Hive Palace
the Lady Dhol's castle on Cheelit. (CSWDW)

Hive Rats
large, carnivorous rodents living underground on Coruscant. (AC)

Hive Virus
prior to the Clone Wars, they viruses were fairly widespread. They infected an individual and drove them crazy in a relatively short period of time. The virus attacks the mental centers of the brain, altering perceptions. They were also highly contagious. After the Clone Wars, medical technology flourished, and the hive viruses were virtually eliminated throughout the galaxy. (DFR)

Hive Wars
a period of Kubaz culture prior to their discovery of space travel. They Kubaz, struggling to exist on Kubindi despite the intense solar radiation from the star Ku'Bakai, turned to consuming insects. Each Kubaz clan maintained its own hive of insects for food, but some were still lacking in sustenance. This sparked a series of inter-clan raids on each others' insect hives, which eventually led to all-out wars between neighboring clans. These Hive Wars were slowly killing off the Kubaz until their discovery of Insecticulture, which allowed the Kubaz geneticists to alter the coloration of an insect, thereby identifying whole hives of insects as belonging to a certain clan. This science also allowed them to breed stronger, heartier insects, and eventually allowed them to provide for all. (SCRE)

Hjaff
this arid, desert planet was the homeworld of the Tarc race. Hjaff had three major continents. The year on Hjaff lasted about 1.25 standard years. (AE, SWJ14)

HK-130
this was a model of small security droid manufactured on Balmorra. Resembling a tiny metal ball with small silver studs, the HK-130 was known as the "trouble seeker," since its primary mission was to search for potential criminals. It would scan each being it encountered and determine the being's level of threat. If the being resisted, or proved to be troublesome, the HK-130 could fire a powerful stun beam from one of the small silver studs. (GOF4)

HLAF-500
this Corellian Engineering Corporation light attack fighter is an upgraded version of the LAF-250, and includes a pair of SoroSuub 9X2 fusial thrust engines and a pair of proton torpedo launchers. (CTD)

a group of Alliance containers used to supply Admiral Harkov and the defecting Protector fleet in the Ottega System. (TIE)

HM Blaster
a heavy0duty blaster produced during the last years of the Old Republic. (E1A3)

HM-6
Dymek concussion missile launchers used on RZ-1 A-Wing starfighters. (SCRE)

HM-8
this torpedo launcher was developed by Dymek during the early years of the New Republic, as a follow-on to the HM-6 launcher. (BP)

Hmumfmumf
a tree which grows on the jungle world Baskarn, its roots are used by the Yrashu to make ceremonial maces. (SWAJ)

HN-TR Droid
this series of assassin droids was virtually unheard of, since only a single model was ever produced. Analysis of HN-TR1's memory core indicated that these droids were to be created in order to hunt down members of the Alliance. (AIR)

HN-TR1
this assassin droid was believed to be the only model of the HN-TR series ever produced, primarily because HN-TR1 destroyed its design team and all its schematics when it was first activated. HN-TR1 killed several Alliance agents before being purchased yby Ploovo Two-for-One, who used the droid as part of his "Protocol Team." Many individuals who survived encounters with HN-TR1 believed that it was faster and more accurate than IG-88, which it vaguely resembled. (AIR)

Ho'Din
a humanoid race with snakelike head appendages, the Ho'Din have a lilting, singsong language punctuated by movements of their head appendages. Native to the planet Moltok, these gentle humanoids are known for their ability to treat illnesses and disease using natural methods, rather than technology. The word "Ho'Din" means "walking flower," a reference to their unusual head appendages. The Ho'Din can grow to be 3 meters tall and, like the Ithorians, they worship nature and have established laws which prevent the destruction of their environment. Cold-blooded in nature, the Ho'Din have two hearts, which pump green blood. The appendages on their heads are actually temperature-sensitive, and allow the Ho'Din to monitor the ambient temperature and maintain body heat. Their hands have four thick fingers, and a small webbing between them indicates the Ho'Din's amphibious ancestry. As a species, the Ho'Din are recent additions to the galaxy, descending from arboreal creatures about 300 years before the Galactic Civil War. In their rush to make room for an increasing population and evolving technology, the Ho'Din cleared much of the surface of Moltok in what is now referred to as the "great rape of the land." This led to a virulent epidemic that decimated the species. Years of research led to an understanding of the disease, and brought to light a natural remedy that technology couldn't provide. This formed the basis of their medical knowledge, and the succeeding generations were taught about the dangers of technology and "progress." The average lifespan of a Ho'Din is about 120 standard years. (TLC, GG4, LCJ)

Hoar Chall Engineering
this Neimoidian starshipwright produced the huge C-9979 landing ships used by Trade Federation war fleets. Hoar Chall only employed the most skilled of the Xi Charrians. (X1)

Hoat-stick
a smoking device. (SOL)

Hoban
the human captain of the transport ship Star Dream, Hoban transported Evar Orbus and his Galactic Jizz-wailers to Tatooine. (TJP)

HobbyCraft Microweight
this was a model of civilian glider produced by Illiseni Aerodyne. In order to ensure maximum ride capability, the HobbyCraft was equipped with a powerful repulsor engine. This gave the craft a measure of safety, but its weight reduced its flight ceiling. (ROE)

Hobor
one of the two sentient races native to the planet Tahlboor, the Hobors were humanoid in stature. They had brownish-blue skin, unlike the Troobs, which tended toward deep blue skin. Both races are characterized by their wide faces, which are flanked by a several rings of spade-shaped flaps. Five sets of these flaps ring the upper part of the head, and hair is interspersed among the flaps. The flaps stand upright, away from the head. The rest of their faces are cat-like, with a long, flat nose and toothy mouths. Like their cousins the Troobs, most Hobors has a thick mane of hair covering the backs of their heads. Most of the Hobors are heavyset in build. Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Troobs and Hobors appealed to Tion Hegemony to assist in reconciling a generations-old feud between them. Counselor Harthan was called in, but was manipulated out of position by his son, Jake, who hoped to get the two races to destroy each other so he could control Mount Yeroc. Eventually, with the help of R2-D2 and C-3PO, Jake's plans were thwarted and peace was restored. (DRPC)

Hocce
this Imperial Ensign served as a medical technician aboard the first Death Star. His youthful appearance belies his great medical skill. (DSTC)

Hocekureem Sea
this ocean, home of the fleek-eel, is found on the planet Falleen. (SE)

Hodge
this Starfly pilot worked at Mining Station Alpha during the Galactic Civil War. He was the chief officer of the outpost, but had only two other workers stationed with him. He frequently worked with the Ithorian Fandomar, providing the Ithorians with minerals they need. What he didn't know is that most Ithorian visits were also used to make sure that the tomb which held Spore was intact. However, after discovering the tomb in an air pocket within the asteroid, Hodge was lured back to the tomb and was infected with Spore's entity. When Fandomar tried to escape the asteroid and return to Ithor, she unwittingly brought Hodge - and Spore - with her. Hodge attacked just as a rescue team came to recover them, with black vines snaking from his mouth to entwine and infect the Ithorians. Hodge also managed to capture and infect Hoole and Zak before being cornered by Jerec. Jerec offered Spore the chance to get off Ithor, if it would infect the crew of the Vengeance and allow Jerec to take control of the ship for his own powers. Spore agreed, but never planned to honor the agreement. Since Hodge was the primary host, Spore took his body aboard the Star Destroyer and infected the entire crew in just a few hours, then tried to take control of Tash Arranda. She escaped the warship and fled into the asteroids near Ithor, and Spore gave chase. A group of space slugs managed to destroy the Vengeance, leaving much of her crew dead. Many members, like Hodge, were expelled into the vacuum of space and killed. Spore, however, simply went dormant and waited for someone to recover Hodge's body. (GOF9)

Hodidiji
this New Republic Senator was swayed by Tig Peramis and Cian Marook to align with the Yevetha during the Great Purge. Hodidiji yielded his time on the Senate floor to Peramis and Nil Spaar, who used the time to distort the actions of Leia Organa-Solo to his own ends. (BTS)

Hodo
this K-Wing pilot was a member of the Fifth Battle Group, and was the leader of the Black squadron. He was in line for promotion to squadron commander during the Yevethan Great Purge. (BTS)

Hodrudda
this Huttese word translates to “race,” especially when used to describe podraces or other small-craft races. (IS1)

Hoersch-Kessel Drive, Incorporated
this Old Republic manufacturer designed of some of the most popular sublight drives and starships. HKD was also wholly owned by Duroes investors, until they were forced to sell to a Nimbanese clan. They tried to make the company more streamlined and began selling off less profitable divisions, but the company continued to bring in mediocre profits. HKD has since been sold too many times to mention, and builds fewer than 100 ships per yer since the Galactic Civil War. (SWSB, EGV)

Hoersch-Kessel Ion Drive
this popular sublight drive uses a power source to generate ions, which are expelled through an exhaust nacelle to create thrust. It uses almost any material as a power source. Although it works best with heavy metals, the H-K Ion Drive can use cryogenic cells, liquid reactants, and ion pods as power sources. The fuel is first broken down into nuclear energy and converted to ions. These ions are then expelled from the ship, which causes the ship to move in the direction opposite the thrust. Given that the H-K Ion Drive creates radioactive nuclear energy, any ship that is equipped with one must require towing or the addition of a repulsorlift to travel within a planet's atmosphere. Their use is extremely widespread, and they are low-maintenance drives. (SWSB)

Hoff
this Alliance Sergeant served the Special Forces division as the leader of the Technician team assigned to the Nishr Taskforce. (ROE)

Hoff, Colby
a business competitor of Prince Xizor's, Colby Hoff once took a gamble that he was smarter than Xizor. In the end, Xizor won the gamble and Hoff was ruined. He committed suicide by firing a blaster into his mouth. His son tried to avenge the suicide when Darth Vader secretly allowed him into a secure passageway under Imperial City. Xizor was walking the corridor to meet with Palpatine, and the son attacked. His attack failed miserably, as Xizor quickly disabled him and snapped his neck. (SE)

Hoffner
as Captain of the pleasure ship Coral Vanda, he was Bel Iblis' contact on Pantolomin. He had been Kaarde's commander on the smuggling mission that inadvertently discovered the Dark Force ships. (DFR)

Hoggon
Ulic Qel-Droma hired this obese man to transport him to as remote a world as possible, so that he could avoid all contact with the galaxy and find peace with himself. A scavenger and salvager by trade, Hoggon was a friend of the Jedi Knights, but was unaware of Ulic’s true identity when he dropped the former Jedi on Rhen Var. He then traveled to Exis Station in order to see the Jedi Knights gathered there for the Exis Convocation. Upon leaving the station, Hoggon discovered that Vima Sunrider had stowed away on his ship. He ended up transporting her to Rhen Var, so that she could seek out Ulic. Suddenly realizing that he had two Jedi on his ship and didn’t even know it, Hoggon resolved to locate Nomi Sunrider and tell her that Vima was with Ulic on Rhen Var. However, Nomi was not happy with his news, and spurned his offer of passage to Rhen Var. When Sylvar arrived at Exis Station looking for Nomi, Hoggon agreed to take her to Rhen Var, glad to have met a fourth Jedi Knight. When Sylvar was unable to defeat Ulic, Hoggon stole up behind them and shot Ulic in the back with his blaster. Hoggon believed that he would be venerated by the Jedi for killing Ulic, and was surprised when Sylvar nearly killed him. (TOJR)

Hohass Ekwesh
this Thakwaash was one of the first members of Wraith Squadron. Like most Takwaash, he was covered in short, brown fur, and had a cascade of chestnut-brown hair falling from his head. Although he stood just under two meters in height, he was known as "Runt" to the rest of his team, because he was the smallest of the children in his family. His size allowed him to pilot a starfighter, and he joined the New Republic to fly. However, the Thakwaash characteristic multiple minds became his undoing, as the pilot mind would weave in and out of command and leave him bewildered in several situations. He was chosen for duty with the Wraiths because the pilot mind was quite intelligent and was a good pilot. Runt also served as the squadron's physical trainer. (WS)

Hohokum
this amphibious, turtle-like beast is found inthe swamps of Naboo. It is most at home in the water, and usually ventures onto land only to lay its eggs. (GF)

Hoil
one of the many Sunesi who served Agapos the Ninth's underground resistance. (SWJ10)

Hok
this planet, located in the Colonies Region, was the homeworld of a population of Gran. (TPM, IWE1)

Hokami
this species of predator was native to the planet Mutanda. Measuring up to 1.5 meters in height, the Hokami's body could measure nearly five meters in length. They attack they prey with their sharp claws and huge teeth, and have been known to attack repulsorlift vehicles. (PG1)

Hoke
this immensely fat, pompous man worked with Dyril as the repair and maintenace team of the Q'Maere Research Facility, during the time Moff Sarne used the facility as a penal colony. (KR)

Hokuum
this stimulating drug causes its users to kill each other after about three days of use. (TNR)

Holcolo
this smuggler, based out of Dentaal, had a friend who used to reprogram robo-hacks to kidnap the local gentry. With a little creative programming, the robo-hack would simply deliver its passengers to his hideout instead of their home, and the man would hold them hostage for a tidy ransom. The plan failed when the local authorities simply reprogrammed the robo-hack to take him to the local jail. (SWJ14)

Hold-Father
any male person delegated by a child's parents as a temporary guardian. The term arises from the fact that the guardian holds the place of a father. (CS)

Hold-Mother
any female person delegated by a child's parents as a temporary guardian. The term arises from the fact that the guardian holds the place of a mother. (CS)

Holdout Blaster
any small, easily-concealed energy weapon, a holdout blaster has limited firepower. It can fire one or two full-intensity blasts before it is completely drained. (TB, RPG)

Holdout Flightknife
one of the many Yedagonian fighter squadrons which supported Wedge Antilles and the Running Crimson Flightknife during the war against the forces of the Cartann nation, on Adumar. The Holdouts eventually landed in Cartann City and assisted Cheriss ke Hanadi in recovering Red Flight's X-Wings. (SOA)

Holiday Towers
a beautiful hotel and casino owned by Jabba the Hutt on Cloud City, it was confiscated by Lando Calrissian after Jabba's death. When Zorba the Hutt returned to Cloud City and showed Lando Jabba's will hidden in CB-99, Lando tried to weasel his way into keeping the hotel by playing a match of sabacc with Zorba. Unfortunately for Lando, Zorba insisted on using his own cards, which were rigged. Not only did Lando lose the Holiday Tower Hotel, but he lost the entire deed to Cloud City as well. The Holiday Towers is a moderately-priced establishment, well-appointed by not as luxurious as the Yerith Bespin. (ZHR, ISU, MTS)

Holistic Data Transfer
a form of “information shorthand” that allows computers and droids to store large amounts of data in tiny amounts of memory. Known as HDT, this form of saving data means that a computer is able to do more with less active memory and storage space. (CFG)

Hollan D1 Sector
the Alliance used a group of starships, stolen from the Overlord Ghorin, to destroy a vital Imperial storage area in this sector. (XW)

Hollast VII
this planet, located in the Hollastin System, was the site of a number of Alliance-funded insurgences aimed at freeing the populace from Imperial control. Some of them had secondary goals of overthrowing Glorga the Hutt. (SWAJ, AIR)

Holleck, Grandon
one-time governor of Chandrila. (SWAJ)

Hollinium
this was a moderately valuable metal ore which was used in the production of hyperbarides. (PP)

Hollis
this Alliance Sergeant was one the leaders of the troopers who defended Echo Base, during the Battle of Hoth. He managed to survive the battle, adding to his incredible record of success, and was awarded the Kenobi Medallion for his bravery. (CCG9)

Hollowtown
the huge, central biosphere located in Centerpoint Station, it was a beautiful area of gardens, parks, and living spaces. It was lit by the Glowpoint, and provided nearly all the foodstuffs needed to keep the inhabitants fed. However, when the station began generating strange pulses timed with the destruction of stars listed on the Starbuster plot, the Glowpoint incinerated everything in Hollowtown until the oxygen ran out. When Luke Skywalker and Lando Calrissian first see it, the toxic residues of the destruction make Hollowtown unlivable. Lando later finds that Hollowtown and the Glowpoint were components of the huge power supply needed to keep the hyperspatial tractor beam operational. The Glowpoint acted as a pilot light, which Hollowtown was a battery of sorts. (SC)

Holman, Deke
this dark-skinned human man was a native of the planet Socorra, and was amember of the Alliance's Harrier infiltration team. A good friend of Arecelis Acosta, Deke was known to as a middle-aged thrill seeker who had joined the Alliance after spending time as a pirate and mercenary. Deke had fought in several battles against the Empire, along side of Alliance personnel, before enlisting himself. When his commander, Fable Astin, went AWOL looking for Jaalib Brandl, Deke remained an important part of the Harrier team untol he received a call from Jaalib. Deke took the Prodigal and flew to Trulalis to rescue Fable. (SWJ8)

Holo
a message or other broadcast received on a holographic device. They can be short, personal messages or entire movies, such as the holo-thriller. (HSL, HTTE, JS)

Holo-bit Generator
this device allows the user to manipulate a pre-recorded holo-transmission and create a false transmission. The generator first makes a holographic image of the desired subject, then runs it through a bit manipulation program to generate subsequent images. The complete set of images forms a smooth, seemingly real transmission. (CFG)

Holo-faker
this term is used to describe any being in the business of creating falsified holographic transmissions. (POT)

Holo-Wing
a game of strategy and skill found in may up-scale casinos. (WSV)

Holobet
this young woman was an Imperial Princess. (HR)

Holobug
any small, nearly undetectable device which could be placed on a target for surveillance purposes. The holobug would return a real-time display of the target's surroundings, allowing trackers to better estimate the target's position. (SSR)

Holocard
a small ID card which contains a holographic image, indicating a person's name, business, or security clearance. (LCF)

Holocassette
a small cartridge which contains a holographic message. (LCM)

Holochess
a chess game which utilizes holographic representations of the playing pieces, often fantastic aliens. The rules differ from Earth's chess, as it is played on a circular field, rather than a square. (SW, DFR)

Holocomm
any full-duplex three-dimensional communication. (AC, WEG)

Holocorder
this form of recording device captured full-form, three-dimensional images as well as sound for later playback. (SL)

Holocron
see Jedi Holocron

Holocube
a device which generates a single, static, holographic image. It is used to keep a picture of a loved one nearby. (HSE)

Holodais
a three-dimensional pedestal that allows the user to stand in the midst of a static image or an interactive transmission. (JS)

Holofeature
a movie that is displayed on a holoprojector. They are contained in a cube-like device that is very similar to the Jedi Holocron. (HSR)

Holofield
the display area of a holographic transmission device. (DA)

Holoflage
this form of holographic equipment is used to camouflage a door or other area. The holoflage mimics the surrounding walls, making the door disappear from view. (TFNR)

Hologram
any three-dimension image which depicts sound and movement. The hologram is the primary message type used on the HoloNet, which allows realtime broadcast and reception of holographic news stories. (SW)

Hologram Fun World
an amusement park that is located in a transparent dome that floats in a blue helium cloud in the Zabian System, Hologram Fun World boasts that it can make any visitor's dreams come true. The World itself isn't really a world, but a self-contained planetoid that is about 40 kilometers in diameter. It was filled with holographic entertainment of all kinds, from realistic excursions to remote worlds, to incredible simulations of huge creatures. Borborygmus Gog managed to obtain permission from Danna Fajji to build his Nightmare Machine there, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Lando Calrissian later purchased controlling interest and ran the theme park, after losing Cloud City to Zorba the Hutt in a rigged sabacc match. (QE, GOF4)

Holograph
any three-dimension image which is static, without movement or sound. (SWR)

Holographic Portal
any three-dimensional image used to disguise the entrance to a secret base. (XWBT)

Holographic Recording Mode
a recording process used to capture the pictures and sounds transmitted via hologram. (SWR)

Holographic Zoo of Extinct Animals
Located in Imperial City on Coruscant, this is a "zoo" used to depict extinct animals from around the galaxy. (DA)

Hologym
an athletic training facility which employed holographic arenas, obstacles, and opponents in the games played there. (GOF2)

Holomonster
holograms depicting mythological or extinct creatures, and used as game pieces for holochess and other hologames. (SW)

HoloNet
Once the main vehicle for spreading news instantaneously thoroughout the galaxy, the Holonet used subspace relays to transmit three-dimensional images to various holonet receivers. This media distribution system allowed the Old Republic to have instant access to any inhabited location in the galaxy. It was created from hundreds of thousands of non-mass transceivers connected through an incredible matrix of coordinated SimuTunnels. Each endpoint was equippde with a huge computer system that decoded and sorted the transmitted information. Unfortunately, the HoloNet was incredibly expensive to maintain and operate. Thus, its use was usually restricted to purely governmental transmissions. After Palpatine assumed control of the galaxy, he limited the holonet to specific Imperial uses, in order to control the flow of information through the galaxy. (RPG, ISB)

HoloNet Communications Unit
a Holocomm for short, these portable devices allow the user to transmit and receive messages over the HoloNet. (WEG)

Holonovel
a device which projects a three-dimensional version of a story for its user. (XW)

Holopad
a device much like a data pad, except that it is capable of displaying holographic transmissions as well. (DA)

Holopanel
a device which controls holographic transmissions. (COTF)

Holoprojector
a device which takes input and displays a full, tri-D display above it. The holoprojector can manipulate the display based on the data input to it. They come in many shapes and sizes, from small, personal projectors to large, commercial versions used in theaters. (SW, HSR, JS)

Holoscreen
any three-dimensional billboard. (DE2, AC)

Holosculpture
a three-dimensional form of artwork. (ISB)

Holoshill
the derogatory term used to describe reporters who work for tabloids and sensationalistic news agencies. (KT)

Holoshroud
a device which mimics a person's injured state, allowing the victim to move slightly from his downed position. When the attacker comes to determine his victim's status, the victim can pounce on his attacker and surprise him. (TME)

Holosign
any three-dimensional plaque used to mark locations. Spaceports use them to indicate a parked starship's name, owner, and other identification. They can easily be reprogrammed. (LCF)

Holotarget
any three-dimensional image used to simulate battlefield opponents during weapons training. They can be programmed to have all the abilities of any given opponent. (HSR)

Holotank
a device which projects a holographic image which surrounds the viewer, giving the impression of actually being in the image. (HSE)

Holotape
any three-dimensional recording. (HSE)

Holovid
a device much is used to display holographic transmissions. It is larger than a holopad. (CPL, AC)

Holowan Laboratories known for their slogan - “the Friendly Technology People” - this was the parent company of Holowan Mechanicals. (MTS, TBH)

Holowan Mechanicals
a subsidiary of Halowan Laboratories, Holowan Mechanicals was the manufacturer of the IG-series of assassin droids. (MTS)

Holozeotroscope
this entertainment device is actually a powerful holographic generator. It is an expensive piece of equipment, and is rarely seen outside the most luxurious of Coruscant’s entertainment establishments. The cylindrical device rotates on a gyroscopic axis, displaying a pre-programmed holographic display. (SWJ9)

Holo3-Graphics
this computer architecture designer created the Multi-Motion framework for realtime, three-dimensional computing. (CFG)

Holt
an Imperial fleet Admiral who taught at the Academy during the Galactic Civil War. (ISB)

Holvi
this was one of the six major continents found on the planet Celanon. (PG1)

Holy Ugor Taxation Collection Agency
abbreviated HUTCA, this is the controlling agency which monitors all Ugor waste recovery companies. The leader of the agency changes almost hourly, due to the complex negotiations of the Ugors. (GG4)

Holy of Holies
this Ugor ideal is considered the holiest of all space debris. Sometimes called the Prime Mover, the Ugors believed that the Holy of Holies would someday be recovered from the scene of a massive space battle. It could be activated by the Ugors, and would allow them to move massive amounts of garbage to their home system, making them the premier salvage service provider in the galaxy. The Ugors believed they had found the Holy of Holies shortly after the Battle of Yavin., when they discovered a gravity-well projector at the site of an Imperial victory. The Alliance tried to take the device, during their search for the Elusive. (SH)

Homd-Resa
this was one of the few aggressive clans of Senali, and they patrolled their ocean territory with martial persistence. The Homd-Resa clan once attacked the Nali-Erun clan, destroying the Nali-Erun dwellings in an effort to assert their claim to the seas. (SP)

Home
this heavily-modified Tsukkian water freighter was owned and operated by Lens and Milla Reekeene, founders of the Reekeene's Roughnecks gang. The ship served as the base of operations for the Roughnecks, providing living quarters for its members and docking space for the group's X-Wing starfighters. The ship moved often throughout Fakir Sector and the Bakchou arm of the galaxy, avoiding Imperial entanglements while continually harrassing Imperial convoys. (SWCP)

Home Father
this was the name used by those male followers of the Cosmic Balance relgion who lived and worked in Simple Homes. (TBSB)

Home Fleet
this was the name given to the New Republic fleet of warships which protected Coruscant and the surrounding system. (HT)

Home Mother
this was the name used by those female followers of the Cosmic Balance relgion who lived and worked in Simple Homes. (TBSB)

Home One
Ackbar's original Mon Calamari Star Cruiser, which served as the command ship for the Alliance during the Battle of Endor. At that time, it was the largest ship in the Alliance's fleet. As newer and better Mon Calamari starships were designed, Ackbar eventually retired Home One in favor of the Defiance and the Galactic Voyager. (ROTJ, XWN, WG)

Home Planet Mine
this was the primary azurite mine controlled by Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation, on the planet Bandomeer. It was named for the Home Planet Party, which was working with the Arconans to restore Bandomeer's natural plantlife after decades of stripmining. The mine was sabotaged by Xanatos, in an effort to lure Qui-Gon Jinn to his death. However, it was discovered that the mine was a source of ionite, which shut down Xanatos' bombs and allowed the Jedi to escape. (DR)

Home Planet Party
this political faction formed on the planet Bandomeer, and was supported by the native Meerians as well as the Arconans who lived there while working for Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation. The primary goal of the party was the retaking of control of Bandomeer's natural resources and the restoration of the planet's natural beauty. Both had been taken by the mining companies that stripped the planet of azurite and other minerals. Led by the charismatic VeerTa, the party was striving to become financially independent from the mining companies when Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi were lured into the trap set by Xanatos. After exposing Xanatos and VeerTa as partners – although VeerTa believed she was working with the party's best interests in mind – in the destruction of the Home Planet Mine, the party became unnecessary as Offworld Mining Company left Bandomeer alone. (DR)

Home Talk
Selonian name for their own conversational language. (AS)

Home-clan
this was the name given to the city-like groups of Gigorans who lived in the caves of Gigor. (AE)

Homebase
the codename of an Alliance command center used during the Galactic Civil War. Note that this may be a reference to the Home starship used by Reekeene's Roughnecks. (GG12, SWCP)

Homestead Act
a governmental declaration made on Tatooine, declaring that anyone who could provide startup funds and justification could be granted farmland on the planet. (TME)

Homestone
this is the Qella name for their homeworld, Brath Qella. They also called it the Place of Beginning. (TT)

Homon
this planet was the site of an Alliance base during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB)

Homonculous
this magical construct resembled a large, winged monkey. It had mottled green skin and wicked claws that exuded a powerful poison. Dhar Bullwin used a homonculous to divert a group of scouts that was searching for the Eye of Koda. When a homonculous is killed, it seems to dissolve into a greenish mist, leaving behind a ghastly skeleton. (GG8)

Homthor Deck
one of two credicruise decks on the Kuari Princess, it is located immediately below the Lido Deck. Most of the starcruiser's staterooms are located on this deck and its partner, the Wellad Deck. (RM)

Homunculus-wasp
this small, poisonous insect was native to the planet Af'El. Assassins sometimes used these small creatures to kill their targets, since the wasp was very tiny. These creatures were called kheilwar by the Defel. There was only a short period of time in which the homunculus-wasp could be employed this way, for they grew at an astonishing rate. In just a week, the tiny insect could amass more than twenty kilograms of body weight and grow to a height of 1.5 meters or more. They were armed with razor-sharp fins and large wings that absorbed and warped visible light, giving it the ability to seemingly disappear. Perhaps their most unusual ability, though, was the ability to transform its body into a simulacrum of anyone it had met. This allowed the creature to further blend into a crowd, and infiltrate a location if its initial attempt to kill a being failed. The homunculus-wasp was primarily a nocturnal feeder, since its sensory organs were badly damaged when exposed to normal sunlight. (SWJ14)

Hondo Bador
this chubby Sullustan ran a starship repair and outfitting business on Ord Mantell during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SL)

Honest Ellam's Speeder Lot located on the planet Questal, deep in the city of Gralleenya, Honest Ellam purchased Tiree's X-Wing from Bim Maldeen. (GCQ)

Honey Comb IX
one of MicroThrust's top-of-the-line computer spikes, it is surpassed in efficiency and duration only by the Tunneler spike. (CFG)

Honeystix
this dessert was perfected on the planet Rishi, and was served lightly fried and dusted with sweet poweder. (SWJ12)

Honi
this young Jedi trainee was almost three when Obi-Wan Kenobi was chosen to be the padawan of Qui-Gon Jinn. (CT)

Honiten
this alias was used by Falynn Sandskimmer, when she and Wraith Squadron infiltrated the planet Storinal. Honiten was a native of Bakura, and was one of the bodyguards protecting Wes Janson, who was using the alias Iskit Tyestin. (WS)

Honn Dangel
this Meri meteorologist left the Merisee military to work on Cloud City. (GG2)

Honoghr
this once-lush paradise of a planet is the homeworld of the Noghri, and was virtually unknown until it was nearly devastated following a starship battle in its orbit. The Emperor, upon discovering the Noghri, conceived of a plot to enslave Noghri, with the help of Darth Vader. The huge space battle took place above the planet, and one of the ships was destroyed. It plummeted to the planet's surface, setting off earthquakes and releasing toxic chemicals into the atmosphere. When Vader arrived to offer aid, the Noghri readily accepted, and made Vader their Lord and Savior. However, Palpatine had arranged that the decon droids sent to the planet would continue to poison it by planting modified kholm grass. This modified grass would choke out all other vegetation, while making it appear that the planet could still support life. When Princess Leia and Chewbacca discovered the plot following the downfall of the Empire, they quickly worked with the Noghri to remedy the situation. After the deception of Darth Vader and the Emperor was made apparent to the Noghri, they quickly joined the New Republic. However, all efforts to restore the planet's broken ecosystem turned out to be futile, as the once-green world was incapable of recovering. The Noghri eventually relocated to the planet Wayland, leaving Honoghr for dead. It is the fourth planet in the Honoghr system and has three natural satellites. The system is located near Kessel and Fwillsving. Honoghr has a rotation of 23 hours, and its orbit lasts about 352 local days. (DFR, DFRSB, SOP)

Honoghran
this was the native language of the Noghri race. (HT)

Honor
one of the Yevethan warships sent to purge Polneye. (BTS)

Honor Among Thieves
this epic poem was written by the Snivvian artist Toirboggle. (HR)

Honor Clan
this was the name given to a group of Wookiee hunters and warriors who worked together to throw off the Imperial yoke of control on Kashyyyk. (HR)

Honor Rigora
this form of rigora duel was fought between a dishonored pirate and the champion of the defender. This form of duel is often invoked when the defender is an inferior duelist. (PP)

Honor-wife
this is the name used to describe the one of the secondary wives of a Cerean male. The ratio of Cerean men to women is one to twenty, so most males take several honor-wives in addition to their bond-wife. The relationship between the bond-wife and the honor-wives is often strained, especially with relationship to the bearing of children. (PTR)

Hood, Willrow
this resident of Cloud City worked for a Tibanna gas mining operation which was sympathetic to the Alliance's ideals during the Galactic Civil War. He worked with his superiors to sell Tibanna gas to the Alliance at a discount. (CCG5)

Hoodu Geyser Fields
this open plain, studded with natural steam geysers, is located on the planet Baroonda. (RAC)

Hook Nebula
this area of the galaxy was a strategic location, set between the Empire and a number of rebellious worlds. Located in the Rim, this nebula was also the home of the Qeimet Fleet. (ISB)

(Indeterminate) Hoole

Hoom
a huge phlog, he is the son of Zut and Dobah. (ECAR)

Hoona
a phlog female who fell in love with Wicket after drinking a magic Dulok potion. (ECAR)

Hoopster's Prank
this freighter belonged to Booster Terrik, and was often sent out to assist in the shipment of pommwomm plants. It was boarded by Rogue Squadron on the assumption that it was carrying contraband, but was found to be clean. The Sif'krie race then banned smugglers from carrying their pommwomm plants. (SOP, VOF)

Hootbat
an avian creature native to Clak'Dor VII, the hootbat is named for its unusual hooting song. (TCC)

Hoover
an short, four-legged, elephantine alien race with a long snout and large eyes. Their long snouts are as long as their short bodies. Despite their lowly appearance, Hoovers are highly technical, and their small size allows them to perform delicate tasks with complex equipment. A member of this species was known to inhabit Jabba's court. Their origins are not known. (ROTJ, CCG7)

Hop-stone
this game of a simple strategy can be played by two or more players, in a single-handed or two-handed method. (TT)

Hope
this Mon Calamari cruiser was part of the New Republic's early fleet. Commanded by Captain Arboga, it was the first ship to recover the message carried in the cargo of the Messenger as it fled from Coruscant. (TFE)

Hopetown
this settlement was formed on the planet Ennth. When the planet's moon orbited close to Ennth during its eight-year cycle, the seismic and tidal activity it spawned destroyed Hopetown. The colonists returned to Ennth after the devastation, and rebuilt it. They also renamed it New Hopetown. (SHA)

Hopper
this was the generic term for any suborbital craft used to transport beings and cargo from a planetside starport to a transport ship in orbit. (SL)

Hopperoo
a jumping creature. (SE)

Hopskip
this is a species of skittish, easily-frightened creature. (VOF)

Hopskip
this modified YT-1300 freighter was owned by Haber Trell and Maranne Darmic. They used to smuggler weapons to the rebel underground on Derra IV. The ship looked as if it had been split down the middle, then the two halves patched together one on top of the other. It was destroyed by the 181st Imperial Fighter Group when the Empire ambushed the Alliance's supply convoy at Derra IV, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. (TFE, MBF)

Horak-mul
this one-eyed Sith warrior was loyal to Naga Sadow, although he was unsure of the Lord's true motivations. Horak-mul sided with Ludo Kressh following the death of Marka Ragnos. After Kressh discovered that Sadow had tricked the Sith into believing an Old Republic war force was coming, Horak-mul and Dor Gal-ram followed Kresh to Rhelg to plan an attack on Sadow. They led the Sith fleet to Khar Delba, and were extremely confident when the fortress put up little resistance. Horak-mul , however, was unaware of the deception of Naga Sadow, who was hiding on Khar Shian. He was also unaware that many of Sadow's spies were onboard his ship. When Sadow gave the command, the spies attacked Horak-mul and killed him just before Sadow defeated Ludo Kressh. (GAS)

Horansi
1) a particularly ruthless card game popular among the Alliance's starfighter pilots (XW)
2) an alien race which has four tribes - the Kasa, Gorvan, Mashi, and Treka Horansi. The Horansi are a sentient, feline race native to the planet Mutanda. Their primitive, tribal society was equally welcoming to the Empire or the Republics. They recognized the importance of the prothium mines in their system and played upon it, selling themselves out as hunting guides for the miners and soldiers stationed there. The average Horansi was bipedal, although they could run on all fours when the terrain dictated it. Their night vision is especially acute, allowing them to track prey in low-light conditions. (PG1, SWAJ)

Horch
also known as Horch of Kheedar, this two-bit crimelord ruled the criminal elements of the planet Kheedar until the planet was invaded by Imperial forces. His lackeys panicked and fled, leaving his fortress undefended. Horch was faced with imminent death at the hands of the Imperials, until Noval Garaint took control of his fortress. Rather than death, Horch chose to become a slave to Garaint, who usurped control of Horch's empire. Horch kept himself blissfully unaware of his predicament by sotting himself with spice liquor. (GG9)

Hord
an Imperial tug stationed at the NL-1 station near Pakuuni. (TIE)

Hordon Cal
this hot ball of rock was the innermost planet of the Thanta Zilbra System. It was orbited by a single moon, but both were destroyed when the Sacorrian Triad destroyed the system as part of the Starbuster Plot. (CTD)

Horizon-Hopper
classified as a “light” hyperdrive, this Incom system was designed to be a backup system to a starship’s normal hyperdrive. The Horizon-Hopper was one-third as powerful as a stock hyperdrive. Note that Tales from the New Republic claims the Horizon-Hopper is an old, outdated hyperdrive manufactured by SoroSuub. (GG6, TFNR)

Horizontal boosters part of a hyperdrive system, it provides energy to the ionization chamber to cause ignition. (ESB)

Hork
this man served the Alliance as a Sergeant in command of a ground assault team during the Galactic Civil War. (ROE)

Horliss-Horliss
this deity was known for giving organic beings the use of metastyle. When it discovered that Tilotny had "thrown a shape" and created a physical manifestation of herself, Horliss-Horliss did the same. It bacame a subtle, billowing mist. Horliss-Horliss had the power to create null inversions, as well as the ability to turn organic matter into solid material. He proves himself equal to Tilonty in this ability by solidifying Leia Organa's internal organs, leaving Splendid Ap to return her to normal. (CSWDW)

Horn, Corran
this Corellian was a Captain at one time in Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron. Corran was a member of the Corellian Security Force before trying out for Rogue Squadron. He joined the training academy as his father, Hal, had before him, and excelled in the training at a level above his father's. He worked with Iella Wessiri under Gil Bastra, and fell in with Bastra's anti-Imperial philosophy. During an undercover mission with his father, Corran's mother was fatally injured in an accident with a drunk driver. They rushed to the hospital, where she died after seeing them one last time. With the appointment of Kirtan Loor as his superior, and with Hal's death at the hands of the Trandoshan bounty hunter Bossk, Corran knew that his future on Corellia was limited. Corran and Bastra created false smuggler ids for each other, the Wessiri's, and two other Alliance supporters, and then staged a scenario in which Corran killed them in cold blood. Corran claimed that he was only following the orders of Kirtan Loor, but Loor felt that Corran was trying to upstage him. When Corran defected to the Alliance, Loor put out an Imperial deathmark on Corran's head. Corran's father didn't approve of his defection, considering him an outlaw for joining. However, Hal Horn was much happier that his son hadn't become an Imperial. During one of his training simulations, Corran tried to change the basic set of maneuvers for the Requiem scenario, slowing to a near-stop to trying and draw the TIE Fighters, and TIE Bombers to him and away from the Redemption. He succeeded, making nine kills and surviving Antilles himself, who was piloting a TIE Fighter. Corran later became one of Antilles' best pilots, taking on the hardest missions and surviving them. Corran kept his grandfather's JedCred on a chain around his neck, rubbing it for luck during these missions. He was instrumental in the liberation of Borleias from the Empire, and went undercover to assist the New Republic in gaining information on Coruscant. However, while on the Coruscant mission, Corran's Z-95 Headhunter was brought down by remote control - presumably by Tycho Celchu - and crashed in the Invisible Sector of Coruscant's Imperial City. He was captured and brought to Ysanne Isard at Lusankya for interrogation. He proved to be incorrigible, and Isard consigned him to the rock mines. There, he met the prisoner Jan and devised an escape plan. Corran discovered that the gravity at Lusankya was reversed to keep the prisoners disoriented, and escaped to discover that Lusankya was buried beneath Imperial City. After spending six weeks in the Lusankya facility, he arrived at Tycho's trial and proved Tycho innocent. He also relayed information on a hidden Jedi museum buried near Lusankya to Luke Skywalker, who found the museum in a hidden section of the Galactic Museum. Luke offered Corran the chance to become a Jedi Knight, but Corran refused. He opted to continue to serve with Rogue Squadron. It was at about this time that Corran became romantically involved with Mirax Terrik, a situation whose irony was not lost on either of them. Corran's father, Hal, had been the one to send Booster Terrik to Kessel for smuggling. Mirax, though, held none of her father's enmity, and wasted no time in agreeing to marry Corran. After the Battle of Thyferra, they were married by Wedge Antilles aboard the Lusankya, in order to avoid any interference from Booster. A more elaborate ceremony was held on Coruscant upon their return. Corran remained with Rogue Squadron, and spent time battling Grand Admiral Thrawn and the reborn Emperor Palpatine's forces at Coruscant - the home he and Mirax build was one of the first victims of the falling Star Destroyer Liberator. When the battle to eliminate the Invid pirates led Mirax into danger, Corran joined Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 and began to learn more about the Force. A rival of Gantoris, Corran was a slow but steady learner. However, after the defeat of Exar Kun and following a visit with his grandfather on Corellia, Corran realized that he didn't need to become a Jedi to find Mirax. He infiltrated the Khuiumin Survivors and joined the Invids, attracting the attention of Leonia Tavira. In order to scatter the Invids, he started portraying an "avenging Jedi" on Courkrus, killing Shala the Hutt before getting most of the Invids to flee. When he came under the attack of Tavira's Jensaarai warriors, though, he was rescued by Luke Skywalker and took off to rescue Mirax on Suarbi 7/5.

They succeeded in rescuing here, then Corran used his ability with the Force to lead Tavira to believe she was under attack by the New Republic and the destroyed Sun Crusher. Tavira fled, and things slowly returned to normal. Corran opted not to return to Yavin 4, a decision which Luke agreed to wholeheartedly. Luke did allow Corran one parting gesture, though: Corran destroyed Exar Kun's statue and temple on Yavin 4 with a volley of proton torpedoes, forever eliminating the focal point of Sith energy on the moon. After he resigned his commission with the New Republic and Rogue Squadron, Corran returned to Yavin 4 to complete his Jedi training. By the time of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, Corran was a full Jedi Knight. Like his grandfather, Corran found that he had no ability to move objects through the Force, something that many considered a basic skill of a Jedi. He was one of the Jedi who felt Luke was doing his best to bring new Knights along slowly, although he often found himself in the minority. Corran was teamed up with Ganner Rhysode during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, and the pair struggled to agree on virtually everything. They eventually discovered a grudging respect for each other. When Corran and Ganner attempted to rescue the slaves they found on Bimmiel, Corran was mortally wounded by a Yuuzhan Vong amphistaff. Ganner returned to recover Corran's body, quickly dunking him in bacta and drawing the poison out so that Corran survived. In the wake of the battle, Corran learned that the planet Garqi had been invaded, and that he had been called up to serve as a Colonel in their militia. This mission allowed him to scout out the Yuuzhan Vong actions on the planet, as well as forming a resistance group and planning for the evacuation of civilians if necessary. He was allowed to take a group of six Noghri with him, and they discovered that the pollen of the bafforr tree was deadly to vonduun crab armor. However, before the New Republic could take advantage of this, the Yuuzhan Vong attacked Ithor. The Yuuzhan Vong commander, Shedao Shai, also murdered Elegos A'Kla, and sent his bones back to Corran as a threat. Corran and the rest of the Jedi were allowed to defend the planet from ground assault, and Corran eventually confronted Shedao Shai. They agreed to a duel: Corran fighting for Ithor and Shedao Shai for the remains of Mongei Shai. Corran barely managed to defeat the Yuuzhan Vong commander, but that defeat left Deign Lian in command of the alien fleet. Lian fired on Ithor with a bacteria-riddled bioweapon which destroyed all life on Ithor's surface. Then, the Legacy of Torment was destroyed, and it crashed into Ithor's surface. As the ship exploded and flames engulfed Ithor's surface, Corran was labeled in the news media as "the man who killed Ithor." For his own part, Corran felt himself slipping dangerously close to the Dark Side of the Force, having wanted to kill Shedao Shai in revenge for Elegos A'Kla's death, rather than to protect Ithor. He resigned his position with the Jedi Knights in order to meditate on his actions and try to return to an equilibrium. (XWN, WG, KT, BW, IJ, IR, DTO, DTR)

Horn, Hal
Corran Horn's father, Hal's given name was Valin Halcyon. After his father, Nejaa Halcyon, was killed in the Clone Wars, Rostek Horn married Nejaa's widow and erased all information on the Halcyon family. He hoped this would hide his new family from Emperor Palpatine, and the name Hal was used to honor to Nejaa Halcyon. Hal was ten years old when Nejaa died. He was an excellent graduate of the Corellian Security Force Academy, and attended the Academy twenty years before his son. Hal Horn was the investigating officer who looked into Soontir Fel's disruption of Ilir Post's assault on Pamr, and was given the assignment to investigate the explosion on Gus Treta that killed Wedge Antilles' parents. Hal kept a watchful eye on Wedge, but declared him a hopeless fool when Wedge started running weapons for the Alliance. Hal later married a Corellian woman, and they had a son together, whom they named Corran. Corran grew up to follow in Hal's footsteps, also becoming a CorSec agent. As a team, they were quite effective. On one undercover mission, they learned that Hal's wife had been fatally injured by a drunk driver. They rushed to the hospital to see her, and she died shortly afterward. Several years later, Hal was killed on a mission with Corran, during which they flew separate ships to intercept a smuggling ship, and they met little resistance. However, the smuggler was also the target of the bounty hunter Bossk. Corran had become relaxed, and wasn't checking other sensors because the smuggler was in their sights. Bossk, under a valid Imperial warrant, was trying to target the smuggler, but strafed Hal Horn's ship with enough laser fire to disintegrate it. Bossk was released by Kirtan Loor, who cited the inherent lack of dexterity in Trandoshans as the reason Bossk's lasers caught Horn instead of the smuggler. Corran held himself responsible for the death of his father for many years. Hal's father was friends with a Jedi Knight from Corellia. They worked together for years before the Jedi became a Master. The Master presented Hal's father with a JedCred before he was killed in the Clone Wars. The medallion was given to Hal, who later passed it on to Corran. (XWN, WG, KT, BW, IJ, MBF)

Horn, Jysella
this was the name of the first daughter born to Corran Horn and Mirax Terrik. (DTO)

Horn, Nyche
this Corellian woman married Hal Horn, and was Corran Horn's mother. (TFNR)

Horn, Rostek
Corran Horn's adopted grandfather, Rostek was also a member of the Corellian Security Force and a contemporary of Fliry Vorru. He was good friend's with Corran's real grandfather, Nejaa Halcyon, and took care of his family after Halcyon's death. Rostek used his position within CorSec to eliminate all traces of the Halcyon family, hoping to hide Nejaa's widow and young son from Palpatine's Jedi purge. Rostek eventually married Nejaa's widow, and cared for her son Valin, whom they renamed Hal in honor of Nejaa Halcyon. Rostek lived to a ripe old age, but was held on Corellia by the will of the Diktat, even after the Battle of Endor. In his spare time, Rostek was known in several circles as the producer of some of Corellia's most beautiful flowers, hybrids he created in his private greenhouse. When the Diktat modified the Corellian Security Force into the Public Safety Service, he burned down Rostek's house - as well as Hal Horn's - hoping to eliminate the files Rostek had kept on public officials and other influential people. Rostek, however, had maintained several copies, and they began showing up in the mail of these officials, marked with one of the beautiful hybrid blossoms. In return for his continued silence, Rostek was awarded a grand new residence on the site of his old one. The PSS maintained watches on Rostek, and even tried to infiltrate his staff. Much had been made about Rostek's use of blossoms when sending his messages, and leaders debated the relative meanings of a live flower versus and cut specimen. In reality, Rostek had been using the redundant genes in the flowers' DNA to encode information about the Halcyon heritage, in hopes that Corran or Hal would return and claim it. (KT, TFE, BW, IJ)

Horn, Valin
this was the name given to the first son of Corran Horn and Mirax Terrik. Valin was born about four years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. He was named for his grandfather, Valin Halcyon. Like his father, Valin was Force-sensitive, and eventually attended the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 for training. By the time he was eleven, Valin found that he had an affinity with animals, and could use the Force to commune with this. However, like his father and grandfather, Valin had almost no skills in telekinesis. (SOP, DTO)

Hornbeak
a predator native to the planet Orellon II. (SWAJ)

Hornclaw
this modified YT-1300 freighter was stolen from Abek's Station by Limna Yith, after she was liberated by a group of agents sent to rescue her by Mal Biron. The Hornclaw was armed with a pair of fire-linked laser cannons. (SSR)

Hornet
a group of Imperial Corvettes protecting freighters near Petrakis when they were attacked by Alliance starfighters. (XW)

Hornet Interceptor
a sleek, insect-like fighter built on the black market for the Tenloss Syndicate. It was designed to emulate the TIE Fighter: a fast, lightweight, and easily mass-produced. It has a thin, rounded body with insectile wings that can be deployed in atmospheres. The command pod has its own section, and can be jettisoned in emergencies. It is lightly armored and shielded, but is highly maneuverable. It employs a pair of laser cannons - which can be upgraded to turbocharged laser cannons - as its only armament. The Hornet was initially used only by Tenloss and those groups it allowed access to the Hornet, although shady deals with other criminals and organizations have made the Hornet available elsewhere. The Hornet measures 14 meters in length. (JS, EGV, JASB)

Hornet*-class Carrier
this Sullustan starship was develped during the last decades of the Old Republic, and was designed to carry starfighter into battle. (SFT)

Horns of Waryl
this was the name given by the Yvarema to a constellation of three stars in the night sky of Yvara. The stars were in an inverted pyramid. (KR)

Hornweed
this species of tree-like plant is found in the swamps of the planet Naboo. The fibers of the hornweed's branches are used by the Gungans to form strong, resilient bows and arms for their catapults. (IG1)

Horodi
an Alliance starpilot assigned to Keyan Farlander's squadron. He was killed during the attempt to capture the Ethar Corvettes. (XW)

Horox Ryyder
1) this is a species of tall humanoids whose most distinctive feature is their heads. Their skulls are topped by a tall bony ridge nearly a meter in length, and their lower jaw also juts outward with a bony ridge. A Horox Ryyder accompanied Watto to the Boonta Eve Classic podrace, where the Toydarian watched incredulously as Anakin Skywalker defeated Sebulba. (SW1, IG1)
2) this Old Republic Senator was known for his calming demeanor, patience, and insight. He came from a species of tall humanoids whose most distinguishing feature was their heads. His skull was topped by a tall bony ridge nearly a meter in length, and his lower jaw also jutted outward with a bony ridge. (IG1)

Horse
an Imperial CR90 Corvette group operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Horska
this planet was the site of a major Imperial HoloNet relay station, in the decades following the Battle of Endor. (VOF)

Hort
this Imperial Moff was one of the few that remained in power during the second decade of the New Republic. Hort was present at the meeting at which Admiral Pellaeon discussed the negotiation of a peace treaty with the New Republic, but Hort firmly rejected the treaty. (SOP)

Hortek
this alien race is a tall, humanoid race covered with bony, armor-like plates. They have long necks and unblinking eyes. Amongst their own kind, Hortek are telepathic, and some have developed the ability to read other races. They are one of the few predator races which are members of the New Republic. (BTS)

Hortine, Zevel
this Corellian smuggler found himself the teacher of Kaj Nedmak, after discovering the youth stowed away on his ship. When he got too old to continue smuggling, Hortine left his ship and his business to Kaj. (SWJ14)

Horuz System
construction site for the first Death Star, it is located in the Outer Rim Territories. (SWR, MTS, DS)

Horvat
this gruff Rodian served as one of Guldus Bemm's henchmen, and was one of his majordomos within the Canyon Mining Facility heirarchy. When Bemm contacted Luke Skywalker with a false story about strange crystals found in several caverns, the pirates hoped to capture Skywalker and turn him over to Advisor Bregius Golthan, thereby ensuring the colony's survival. Horvat led a group of New Republic operatives to the site for further investigation. What they discovered was a double-cross, and the cavern was actually filled with Imperial AT-STs. (SWJ8)

Horvik
this member of the Vengeance group was the second team sent to disrupt activity in Drev'starn, to cover the work of Navett and Klif in taking out the city's shield generator. Horvic and Pensin posed as the night clean-up crew at a Ho-Din cafe near the generator site. He later assisted them in digging out a tunnel to gain access to the power generators of the shields. Once Navett was in place and ready to take out the shield generator, Horvik accompanied Klif anfd Pensin on a sabotage mission. Disguised as New Republic technicians, they managed to get aboard the Predominance and make their way to a turbolaser battery. They killed their escort and managed to get eight shots off at the city of Drev'starn before begin discovered and neutralized. (VOF)

Horvus
an Imperial cargo ferry group used to deliver supplies to the outpost in the Pakuuni System. (TIE)

Hosk
this moon orbited the planet Kalarba. It was industrialized by the Old Republic, when an Esseles-class space station was buily around it. (DRO, EGV)

Hosk Station
an Alderaan Royal Engineers Esseles-class space station located in orbit around Kalarba, it was built across the surface of Kalarba's largest moon, Hosk. The station was originally designed to be an Old Republic supply and maintenance post, a role which it served for thousands of years. The expansion of the galaxy brought more and more colonists to the surrounding systems, and suddenly Hosk Station was no longer as important as it used to be. The station was sold to civilian interests on the planet Kalarba. The station was nearly destroyed by Olag Greck when a droid barge delivered C-3PO, R2-D2, and IG-88 to the station. C-3PO and R2-D2 had been put up for auction by their previous owner, Master Wena, and were being shipped to Hosk for assignment. IG-88 escaped, and C-3PO and R2-D2 were jettisoned to the planet Kalarba, where they were acquired by the Pitareeze family. C-3PO and R2-D2 returned to the station with Nak and his grandfather, and were left to join a group of renegade droids who were ready to rebel against Olag Greck's war droids and their control over them. Under the careful command of Unit Zed, the droids were able to defeat Greck's various war droids and foil Greck's attempt to steal a load of ash ore. In the process, they also were able to reroute an explosion rigged by Greck to blow up the stations' power core. Many years later, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy Hosk Station was destroyed shortly after the Battle of Fondor, as the Vong attempted to eliminate all non-organic technologies. (DRO, EGV, BP)

Hoska
1) a slow-moving creature native to Agamar. (XW)
2) this giant herbivore was native to the planet Essowyn, and provided a source of food for the Saurton race. The average hoska stood three meters tall at the shoulder, and had two large horns protruding from the corners of its mouth. Great herds of hoska roamed the plains of the planet. (PG1)

Hospitality Guides
this was the group of Keganites which greeted pilgrims and offworlders, and escorted them around the planet, during the rulership of V-Tan and O-Vieve. (FFT)

Hosrel XI
the first planet that Lehesu visits when he escapes the Imperial blockade of the ThonBoka. (LCS)

Hot Chocolate
pretty much what it sounds like; Lando gets Luke to start drinking it (HTTE)

Hot Springs
located on Carosi XII, this beautiful crystalline cave system is home to several naturally-warmed pools of mineral-laced water. (PG2)

Hot-vape
fighter pilot slang for being ambushed. (IJ)

Hotel Drofo
an expesnively-decorated hotel on Oseon 6845. (LCF)

Hotel Grand
this luxurious hotel was the located on the planet Ord Mantell, and was the site of the Conclave on the Plight of the Refugees. (HT)

Hotel Imperial
a luxurious hotel located in Imperial City on Coruscant. (WG)

Hotel Sharu
generally regarded as the best hotel in Teguta Lusat. (LCM)

Hoth
this snow planet is the sixth planet in the Hoth system, located in the Ison Corridor. It orbits a distant, blue-white star, and has three natural satellites. Just outside the orbit of Hoth is a huge asteroid belt, which is believed to be the result of the collision of two planets eons ago. Its remote location made it the perfect site for an Alliance base three years after the Battle of Yavin. It orbits its star inside a treacherous belt of asteroids, making any approach to the planet very hazardous. Many smaller asteroids get pulled in by Hoth's gravity, and rain down on the planet as meteors. The planet's normal daytime temperature was some thirty-degrees below zero, and its high-velocity wind and snow storms make it extremely inhospitable. Hoth has a fair amount of seismic activity, which is constantly changing the various ice formations and creating vast, natural ice caves and tunnels. It is for these reasons that Alliance Major Kem Monnon chose it for Echo Base. Its harsh, frozen climate has given rise to only two major lifeforms, the Wampa ice creature and the tauntaun. Small rodents, wirelike ice worms, and hardy lichens complete a minimal foodchain. (ESB, ISU, GG2)

Hoth Hog
this compact creature was a boar-like snow creature that lived on the planet Hoth. (RA)

Hotshot
this was a nickname given by the Corellian Security Force to any blaster which had the trigger guard removed. Among the criminal elements, the removal of the trigger guard was supposed to represent how tough an individual was. More often than not, however, a hotshot was accidentally discharged when it was carried in a waistband or arm holster. (TFE)

Houjix
this ferocious-looking beast is native to the planet Kinyen, but it is really a gentle, loyal beast that is oftem domesticated by the Gran. The houjix is a blue- and yellow-striped quadriped with large teeth, a spiked, club-like tail, and two feet on each of the front two legs. Chewbacca had a holographic representation of a houjix on his holochess board on the Millennium Falcon. (CCG2)

Houk
an extremely large, humanoid race originally from the Ansuroer Sector, the Houk have spread throughout the galaxy following thei contact with a Vaathkree trading ship. Their skin is colored deep blue or purple, and their eyes are apiercing yellow. They are second in the galaxy in brute strength only to the Wookiee race, but they do not display the violent rage of the Wookiee. However, they have short tempers none the less, and prefer fighting over any other solution to a problem. The Houk generally use any method possible to gain an advantage over their opponents, including sneaking up on them and attacking from behind. Thus, many other races consider them cowards. The Houk which settled on the planet Sriluur were often at war with their neighbors, the Weequay, until the Empire stepped in and subjugated both races. The Empire used the Houk as a basis for creating the "perfect slave," but it is unknown if their program was successful. The Houk race has produced few technological advancements, but has adapted well to the use of hyperdrives and modern weapons. (HSL, GG12, SWAJ, CRO)

Houk-Weequay Conflicts
a series of brutal wars between the two native races on Sriluur. (SWAJ)

Houlilan
this alien - an Ithorian? - was a member of the Alien Combine on Coruscant. (WG)

Hound's Tooth
Bossk's modified YV-666 starship, it was purchased by the bounty hunter after his previous ship was destroyed on Gandolo IV. Bossk had it highly modified from its origins as a light freighter, including shields and weapons upgrades. Many of these modifications were done by Kuat Drive Yards, which installed a fail-safe code into the computer systems. Much of the ship was rebuilt to accomodate the Trandoshan physiology, and Bossk had a specialized set of controls added to allow him to simply rest his arms in a pair of troughs and control the ship via movements of his body. The Hound's Tooth was also one of the few ships that was capable of changing course while in hyperspace. Bossk also added an X10-D droid brain to control shipboard systems. This brain responds to verbal commands, which allows Bossk to have access to ship's systems from anywhere on the ship. Note that while the Star Wars: Customizable Card Game: Dagobah says that X10-D is the computer system, Tales of the Bounty Hunters indicates that X10-D was a huge service droid used by Bossk to move cargo. The droid X10-D had no built-in computer, but took commands from the Hound's Tooth. Bossk also keeps the Nashtah Pup hidden in one of the holds for emergency use. The Hound was a tempermental ship, as the main computer worked to control every on-board system while reacting to Bossk's verbal commands. When Bossk allowed Chenlambec and Tinian I'att to pilot the ship, they introduced the ship's computer to Flirt. Flirt eventually insinuated herself into the computer core, and showed it that Bossk was willing to sacrifice the ship in order to keep Chen's pelt intact. The computer rebelled, locking out Bossk from making any verbal commands while keeping the Trandoshan locked in a freezer-locker. After delivering Bossk to Imperial Governor Io Desnand, Chen and Tinian took control of the Hound for themselves. The Trandoshan eventually recovered his ship, and used it on many hunts until he became entangled with Boba Fett, during the other hunter's search fo Kuat of Kuat. When Bossk tried to steal the Slave I, drifting above Tatooine after Fett was consumed by the Sarlacc, he was shocked to discover that Fett was still alive. He had loaded the computer system of a mock-up of Slave I to send out a false self-destruct alarm if someone boarded the ship, and Bossk fell for the bait. He fled the scene in an escape pod, and Boba Fett took control of the Hound's Tooth. He then traveled to the remains of Kud'ar Mub'at's web to find answers, but was fired upon by Balancesheet. The ship was nearly destroyed, but was repaired and used by Dengar and Neelah to draw off Kodir of Kuhlvult's forces. It was eventually captured by the Kuati nobles in the Oranessan System, who used the fail-safe code to shut her down, and and left to drift. Fett and Dengar managed to restart it and return to Kuat, where they finally put all the pieces of the puzzle together. (MTS, EGV, CCG4, TBH, MA, SLS, HM)

Hound-W2
this is Industrial Automaton's SPD-series droid. It is a box-like machine that rolls on treads. Rectractable arms allow it to extend sensors that pick up the trail of many kinds of security breaches. (TTSB)

House Barnaba
this was one of the four lesser Houses of Tapani Sector, known for is hedonistic approach to life. Families within House Barnaba never really wanted to become dominant, and developed great skill at playing one House against another, while ensuring that Barnaba came out ahead in the end. During the height of the New Order, House Barnaba found itself aligned with House Melantha, and working closer with House Cadriaan. (PGT)

House Benelex
this was the governing body of the Benelex Bounty Hunters Guild. It was led by Corvastan Benelex. (GG10)

House Cadriaan
one of the three greater Houses of Tapani Sector, House Cadriaan was known for its openmindedness and its skills in the mercantile trades. Its capital was on Procopia, and only during the height of the New Order did this House begin to assert its power. Members of House Cadriaan held themselves to a higher standard than most other Houses, resorting to spying and underhanded tactics only when absolutely necessary to preserve the House. The House's provinces lie along the Shapani Bypass, and the internal military of House Cadriaan was quickly augmented to preserve its hold on the sector's greatest properties. (PGT)

House Calipsa
this was one of the lesser Houses of Tapani Sector, and was considered to be the most conservative of the seven Houses. Calipsa chose to ally itself with the dominant House of the time, using this position to avoid negotiation. Members of House Calipsa were known for their short tempers and lack of patience. Despite its shortcomings, House Calipsa maintained the second-largest number of holdings in Tapani Sector, second only to House Mecetti. (PGT)

House Guard
this was the private security force which protected the various nobles of Tapani Sector during the height of the New Order. The House Guard was formed because the Empire couldn't patrol the entire sector and maintain the security of individual Houses. Each House had its own Guard, and the Home Guards were the only military group allowed to travel outside a House's provincial holdings. (PGT)

House Mecetti
this was one of the greater Houses of Tapani Sector, and dominated the Great Council during the modern era of the galaxy. Nothing mattered more to the nobles of House Mecetti than acquiring and keeping power, and the end always justified the means. Often, this mentality forced House Mecetti to act against the better good of Tapani Sector, but that mattered little in the grander scheme. Its reputation among the Houses is that of ruthlessness and vindictive reprisal, and it continued to gain power in Tapani Sector by setting the other Houses against each other and cleaning up later. House Mecetti was most infamously known for its support and alliance with the Mecrosa Order, many millennia before the Battle of Yavin. Mecetti controlled fourteen different star systems in Tapani Sector, giving it the largest number of holdings of all the seven Houses. (PGT)

House Melantha
this was one of the original twelve ruling Houses of Tapani Sector, and was one of the Sector's greater Houses. It was most famous because it produced Shey Tapani, and his descendants believed that they were the rightful rulers of the sector. House Melantha maintained a great number of contacts on the planet Coruscant, buth during the Old Republic and the New Order, giving it the political clout it needed to rise to power. Members of this House were considered to be arrogant and obnoxious by their peers in other Houses. Despite its powerful standing, House Melantha has rarely been the dominant House in the Great Council, always sitting behind House Pelagia or House Mecetti. Melantha tried to gain power during the fall of the Old Republic, openly supporting Emperor Palpatine and providing its members to the Emperor's court. There were rumors that an Imperial Dark Side Adept was the real power behind House Melantha during the New Order, but these rumors were never proven. (PGT)

House Neuvalis
this was the governing body of the Neuvalis Bounty Hunters Guild, and was controlled by Marjan and Feras Neuvalis. It was headquartered on Plexis. (GG10)

House of Balance
this is the location where all the *gaawan*s from Tuhgri tribes meet once every year to discuss matters of importance. Each gaawan has an equal say in all matters, and they meet to develop planet-wide policies as well as solve tribral disputes. (KO)

House of Citizens of Corulag
this was the name of the planetary government that ruled Corulag. They threw in their wholehearted support to the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

House of Cron
this is the hereditary ruling family of the Cronese Mandate. (ML)

House of Vanar
this was the fashion design studio based on Coruscant and created by Vanar, during the early years of the New Republic. Leia Organa-Solo asked them to submit a design for Mara Jade's wedding dress, and Vanar's team came up with avery revealing design. Mara discarded their idea, despite Vanar's claims that "minimal was maximal" in galactic fashion of the time. (U)

House of War
located in the city of Fitsay, this structure was the home of the warrior priests of the Sedrian race. (BGS)

House Paramexor
this was the governing body of the Paramexor Guild of Hunters. It was led by Janq Paramexor, who insisted that his members only hunt accused murderers. The Guild's headquarters were on Denevar. (GG10)

House Pelagia
this was one of the lesser ruling Houses of Tapani Sector, despite the fact that it traced it roots to the original colonists who settled on Pelagon more than 13,000 years ago. Pelagia was best known for being recruited by the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic, eventually establishing a bloodline which was strong with the Force. Members of House Pelagia held honor and dignity in a higher regard than most other Houses, a position which led them to turn to other methods of gaining power. House Pelagia was considered one of the most adept at twisting the truth to their own ends, promising much less than they actually seem to. During the early years of Tapani Sector's history, House Pelagia was the most powerful of all the seven Houses. Their ties to the Jedi Knights only furthered their position in the Great Council. However, with the rise in power of Emperor Palpatine, many of the other Houses dropped their support of Pelagia and turned to House Melantha or House Mecetti. House Pelagia's position floundered to the point that it was deemed a lesser House, having lost more than seventy percent of its representation on the Great Council. The House survived, though, and began taking steps to regains its former strength. (PGT)

House Reena
one of the four lesser Houses of Tapani Sector, House Reena remained strong because of its holdings. Many of the planets in its province were rich in ores, and several others were the sites of prestigious universities. Members of House Reena were known to be polite and extremely well-educated. (PGT)

House Renliss
this was the governing body of the Renliss Bounty Hunters Guild, which was led by Jalindas and Gratina Renliss. They maintained their base of operations on the planet Dartessex IV. For personal reasons known only to the sisters, the Guild only accepted female members. (GG10)

House Salaktori
this was the governing body of the Salaktori Hunters Guild. Led by Jeslor Salaktori, the House was based on the planet Resht VII. (GG10)

House Tresario
led by Rovan Tresario, this was the governing body which controlled the operations of the Tresario Bounty Hunters Guild. The Guild was based on the planet Baradas II. (GG10)

Household Phalanx
this is the name of the group of loyal Chiss retainers who guard a Chiss noble. (VOF)

Housekeeping Specialist Droid called an HSD, these droids are programmed to keep a residence clean and tidy. (ZHR)

Hovarb
this tallgrain farmer, living on Pakrik Minor, was of the Imperial sleeper agents placed there by Grand Admiral Thrawn. (SOP)

Hover Car
personal, land-based transportation (CPL)

Hover Cruiser
another name for a repulsor-cruiser. (LCM)

Hover-raft
an antique cargo mover. (HSL)

Hover-skiing
a sport in which repulsorlift-equipped skis are used to slide down a hill or mountain. (QE, GOF4)

Hover-train
a multi-car repulsorlift cargo transport system. (CSW)

Hover-taxi
another name for a robo-hack. (CSWEA)

Hoverbird
a bird that can stay in one place while flying. (COJ)

Hoverboard
a flat piece of wood, plastic, or metal which had a small repulsorlift engine and a propulsion system attached. Like an anti-gravity skateboard, youngsters around the galaxy used these devices for transportation and for performing tricks. They are sometimes called skimboards. (GOF2)

Hoverbus
repulsorlift, public transportation. (LCM)

Hovercam
this is a generic term used to describe repulsor-equipped camera droids, such as the podracer cams and the Senate cams of the Old Republic. (IG1)

Hovercoaster
an amusement park attraction, the hovercoaster uses repulsor-equipped cars that ride along a looping, diving railway. (TCC)

Hoverscout Attack Vehicle
a swift, repulsorlift-based warship built by Mekuun for the Empire, the Hoverscout is often deployed in groups that sweep an area clear of enemies. The speed and maneuverability of the Hoverscout, coupled with its heavy armor plating and sensitive scanners, makes it an extremely effective war machine. The Hoverscout is armed with a heavy blaster cannon, a single laser cannon, and a concussion missile launcher. (DFR, ISB)

Hoversled
(HTTE)

Hovertrain
this repulsorlift cargo transport has a main cockpit pod, behind which are connected a number of repulsorlift cargo modules. Often, there are segments of the hovertrain dedicated to weaponry, in order to protect the transport of its cargo. (CSW, SSE)

Hovertransport
(ZHR)

Hovervan
a large, repulsorlift cargo truck. (HSE)

Hrakian
this near-human race was characterized by its orange skin, bushy eyebrows, and a ridge of hair growing from the center of their foreheads to the nape of their necks. (CSWEA)

Hrakness, Choday
a native of Agamar, Hrakness was a graduate of the Imperial Academy, although he eventually joined the Alliance and became a Captain in the New Republic Navy shortly after the Battle of Endor. After Wraith Squadron captured the Night Caller, Choday and his crew were assigned to command the corvette. When the Night Caller was dispatched to assist in the defense of Talasea, when it was targetted by Apwar Trigit, Hrakness led his crew into battle. However, the corvette took heavy damage in the battle, and most of its command crew was killed. Among the dead was Hrakness, although he was survived by his second-in-command, Atril Tabanne. (WS)

Hrar Kkak
the Jawa trader who sold a DL-44 blaster to Het Nkik. (TME)

Hras'kkk'rarr

Hrrtayyk
this is the Wookiee term for the Test of Ascension. (TT)

Hrumph
this creature, native to the grassy plains of Naboo, is named for the grunting noise it makes. The hrumph is a large, gray-skinned beast whose head is dominated by six large horns. They are easily domesticated, and are used by the Naboo and the Gungans as beasts of burden as well as a source of food. (GF)

HR211
this Nova-Tech powersuit was designed to provide a measure of protection from low levels of heat and radiation. It was reusable, but only provided an hour's worth of protection. (OE)

HS-1
this 330-meter long hospital ship series is reminiscent of the Nebulon-B frigate in shape, with an engine section and living sections separated by a long body tube. However, the HS-1 has a huge, boxy engine section and a small bridge area. It is manned by 20 officers and 200 crewers, and is regularly staffed by 380 medical personnel and 1,000 medical droids. The HS-1 can accommodate 2,000 patients. (PG2)

Hssiss
spawned from Lake Natth on Ambria, these mutated lizards have a limited ability to influence Force-sensitive beings around them. For this reason, they were also known as dark side dragons. Hsiss were found on many worlds of the Old Republic, although Jedi scholars disagree as to whether they were native to these worlds or simply brought there by the Sith. (TOJ, TOJC)

Hsuberry Tree
this large, palm-like tree grows in the swamps of the planet Naboo. It is distinguished by its fuzzy berries, which – if rumors are true - can be fermented into life-extending elixirs. (GF)

Ht-12
Taim & Bak double heavy laser cannon. (EGV)

HT-2200
Corellian Engineering Corporation's medium freighter, the HT-2200 was 54.8 meters in length. It had a unique, double-hulled forward cargo section which was mounted to a series of engines. It had a trimantium armored hull, which contributed to its low lift-to-mass ratio. Overall the HT-2200 wasn't nearly as maneuverable as its cousins, and was considered to be "pirate bait" to many spacers and a commercial failure to the businessbeings. Despite the perceptions, the HT-2200 was able to provide spacers with a variety of environmental options within each cargo hold, and innovation for CEC. The HT-2200 required a pilot and co-pilot to operate, and could transport up to eight passengers and 800 metric tons of cargo. It was armed with a pair of turret-mounted pulse laser cannons. (SS, SWJ9)

HT-50
this form of transportation crate was manufactured by SoroSuub, and was equipped with a portable heater to keep cargoes warm during transport. (PSG)

Huba
a former chef who worked for Olag Greck, Huba was in charge of preparing a feast for one of Greck's Hutt criminal partners. Greck tried to poison the food, but didn't put enough in it. When the Hutt tried to execute Greck, he blamed the slightly-poisoned food on Huba and his team of chefs. They were enslaved by the Hutt and put to work in crystal mines until they managed to escape some months later. Huba and his chefs became pirates, in an attempt to raise enough money to repay Greck's treachery. Captain Huba was encountered by C-3PO and R2-D2 during their adventures on Kalarba, just prior to the Galactic Civil War. He was a grey-skinned humanoid with a thick neck and pointed ears. He attacked the Tharen Wayfarer to steal what he could, since Olag Greck's shipment's had stopped flying through Kalarba's ports. He was fond of a good Stenness Pie. When C-3PO and R2-D2 beat Ripter in a vump-shugga race, Huba refused to accept the Captain's medal, and so Muptupp voted the Captaincy to R2-D2. When the droids left, Huba recovered his rank. (DRO)

Hubba
a gourd found in the desert oases of Tatooine, it provides the primary basis for the diets of Sand People and Jawas. These round, yellow fruits grew in the shadows of cliffs, and their tough, stringy inner fibers held a great deal of water. The water could be wrung or sucked from them, providing fluids to the eater. (TME, TJP)

Hublin, Shea
this Imperial noble was famous throughout the galaxy for his ability to destroy Alliance cells. (CSWEA)

Hud
native to the planet Rutan, this quadripedal predator was distinguished by the black and red stripes of its pelt. The Rutanians took wild hud stock and bred hunting beasts which were strong and swift, and used them as mounts during kudana hunts. (SP)

Hudsol, Bob
this Corellian served the Alliance as a Commander during the Battle of Yavin. His claim to fame is that he helped lead the Bothan resistance, and he had strong ties to the Bothan Spynet. (CCG2)

Huegu Eib
this Sullustan entreprenuer started the Gryseium corporation in the clouds of Tyed Kant. He was quite comfortable there, until the Empire rose to power. The Emperor's pro-human attitudes forced Eib to sell the floating ranch and retire. (SN)

Huff Zinga
this Gungan was the Director of the Otoh Gunga Zoological Research Facility, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. (E1A9)

Hug'rer
Captain Hug'rer was in command of the New Republic Scout Service's Ops Post on Xoemefel, during the early years of the New Republic. (GG8)

Hugard
this man was an independent spacer. (SWJ14)

Huhk
this is the larger form which can be used by the Lahsbee species. These polymorphous beings can somehow attain a greater mass in their Huhk form. (SWJ12)

Hul, Alfren
this Imperial General was assigned to the forces which supporter Moff Andal's attempts to eliminate piracy and rebellion in Elrood Sector, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Hul maintained a gladiator arena at his compound on Derilyn, where he pitted criminals and suspected Alliance supporters against Coynite warriors in battles to the death. Known as the Arena of Games, it brought back a form of entertainment made popular by Coynites. In order to finance his gladiator games, Hul ran up a large gambling debt with Lud Chud. He was about to be exposed when he managed to capture Mikos Argdran and recover the datafiles which would have incriminated him. When the Brazen was severely damaged in a pirate ambush, Hul declared martial law on Derilyn. When the Brazen was destroyed while in drydock at the Derilyn Space Defense Platform, Hul suddenly found himself being reprimanded, and lost his position within the military. (OE)

Hulgren
a huge, wormlike creature found on Hosk Station, it has a thick, grey skin and numerous misplaced eyes. Its mouth is full of large pointed teeth, and a group of horns on its head. (DRO)

Hullepi
this Khil term describes the strands of flesh which chang from their faces. The Khil rely on their hullepi for a number of uses. Primary among them is respiration; the hullepi collect air from around them and filter it to the lungs. The second use is feeding, as the debris filtered out by the hullepi is often rich in micro-proteins and other solid matter, and is consumed by the Khil. The third use of the hullepi is for communcation. By drawing air around and through hullepi of varying lengths and thicknesses, the Khil can create a musical form of speech. (GG12)

Hullis
this was the capital city of the planet Halmad. It was the site of a small Imperial garrison, and remained under Imperial control for several years following the Battle of Endor. (IF)

Hultomo
this snow- and ice-covered planet is the second planet in the Garnib System. It had two moons. (PG1)

Human Events Network
this pro-Imperial newsnet reported on a variety of cultural events which occurred in the Core Worlds, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Human High Culture
this was a theory which was prevalent during the New Order, and documented why the human race and its culture was the ultimate evolution of society in the galaxy. (SESB)

Human League
a group which opposed the Corellian Trade Summit, it was led by Thrackan Sal-Solo, the Hidden Leader. It was set up as a private security force that was decidedly pro-human, and catered to human clients. The members of the Human League wear shabby, dark brown uniforms with black armbands. On the armbands is the symbol of the Human League, a grinning skull holding a dagger in its mouth. The goal of the Human League was to shed the edicts of the Empire and separate the three primary races of the Corellian Sector, with the human race being named the primary ruling race. (AC)

Human Replica Droid
the goal of Project Decoy, human replica droids are built to exactly resemble a human. They can be used in dangerous situations where the person's life might be at stake. These droids, designed by Fandar and Fugo for DRAPAC, have lasers in their eyes. Note that Shadows of the Empire claims Guri was created from the technology discovered by Project Decoy, although Project Decoy was introduced sometime after the Battle of Endor in Queen of the Empire. (QE, SE)

Humbaba
this bovine creature was native to several forested planets, including Corellia and Kashoon. It was often used in the expletive reference, “knee-deep in humbaba manure.” The average specimen measured two meters in height at the shoulder, and was covered with dense fur. Ancient Kashoonara legends speak of humbaba which measured “six Kahsoonara high” at the shoulder. These beasts were natural burrowers, living in the softer swamplands at the edge of the forest. There are four known species of humbaba, distinguishable by their unusual, prehensile noses. Despite their size and their burrowing nature, humbabas were extremely fast on their feet, making them excellent mounts for the Kashoonara. During the liberation of Kashoon from the Empire, Alliance forces also rode humbabas into battle. The Kashoonara revere the humbaba, and forbade the hunting of these creatures. (THG, COG)

Hume
this member of the Alliance was captured, along with Leia Organa, by Darth Vader shortly after the Battle of Yavin. They were being transported aboard Vader's Star Destroyer and managed to escape. They fled in Hume's ship, but were pursued by Vader. A TIE Fighter damaged the ship, and Hume was forced to knock Leia unconscious in order to load her into a gossamer glider. He ejected the escape craft over Phelarion just as the Imperials destroyed his ship. Hume died in the explosion. (CSWEA, EGC)

Hume
a Nharwaak container group destroyed during an Imperial raid on their hidden base. (TIE)

Humming Peeper
a small flying creature native to the swamps of Endor, its wings created a hypnotic sound when beaten quickly. It was brightly colored, with brilliant yellow and blue feathers. (ECAR, FFT)

Hunchuzuc
a Selonian den dedicated to freeing Selonian from the rule of the Overden. (AS)

Hundred Club, The
this is a list of all the bounty hunters who command 100,000 or more credits for the bounties they capture, and are still alive to tell about it. The list contains as many as a million members. (GG9)

Hundred Prescriptions of Alsidas
a series of religious adages memorized by its followers. (BTS)

Hundred-Year Darkness
a devastating war which took place thousands of years before the Jedi Assembly on Deneba, it was alluded to by Shatoyo. It was a struggle between the Light and Dark Sides of the Force. (DLS)

Hunnoverrs Sector
Danaan Kerr was rumored to have performed dark magics in this sector, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

Hunt, Joren
Thadius Black's human bodyguard. (SN)

Hunt, the
this is the term used within the circle of bounty hunters to describe an individual hunt. It carries an almost reverent meaning. (TBH)

Hunt Saboteur
this field of work sprang up during the early years of the New Order, as more and more bounty hunters were able to work without much governmental interference, making the collection of hard merchandise extremely profitable. Hunt saboteurs would lurk behind the normal operations of a bounty hunter, waiting for the target to be captured before moving in. Once secured, the saboteur would move in and take possession of the target and return it to a location specified by the entity that placed the bounty. If successful, the target would be retrieved without the need to pay a high-priced bounty. The only payment would be to the sabotuer, who often commanded a much lower fee. (SLS)

Huntbird
the armored explorer-cruiser loaned to Luke Skywalker and Cray Mingla by the Ithorians, so that they could search the Moonflower Nebula. (COJ)

Hunter
1) this game was invented by the children of Emperor Palpatine's aides. The games would last three or more days, as the children hid from the Hunter and tried to avoid being captured. (TT)
2) a model of sporting blaster rifle. (GMS)

Hunter
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was part of the Imperial starship group assigned to monitor the Suprosa, during the time it was supposed to be intercepted by the Alliance. (XWA)

Hunter of Winds
this elder Qom Qae Bargainer felt that the need to contact Luke Skywalker for help against the Threateners was too much of a risk, since it involved one of their nesting attaching itself to a Threatener ship for the journey to the known galaxy. This got him into trouble with Eater of Fire Creepers, who believed that the messages had been sent. When Luke finally arrived on Nirauan, Hunter of Winds opposed his son's assistance of Luke and Mara Jade, in their struggle to reach the Hand of Thrawn. Child of Winds wanted to contact the Qom Jha for help, but Hunter of Winds thought better of the idea. Child of Winds disobeyed his father and got Luke in contact with Eater of Fire Creepers. When Child of Winds returned to his nesting to tell of the exploits of Luke and Mara, Hunter of Winds was forced to see the error of his ways. When Luke and Mara finally escaped from the Hand of Thrawn compound, Hunter of Winds and several Qom Qae were ready to transport them to their ships and get them back to Coruscant. (VOF)

Hunter Squadron
this New Republic ground assault unit was assigned to take out the Palpatine Counterinsurgency Faction on Coruscant, with the support of Rogue Squadron. Their primary mission objectives were to deter attacks on bacta facilities under the control of Fliry Vorru, in Invisec. The plans for the attack were leaked by Ysanne Isard to the Republic, in an effort to draw attention away from the escape of the Lusankya from Imperial City. (KT)

Hunter V
BlasTech's civilian version of the Sharpshooter V blaster carbine weapon. (ISB)

Hunter-Killer Probot
a huge, starship-sized droid designed for pursuit and capture of selected targets, the H-K was built by Arakyd for use by the Empire. The H-K is a highly intelligent pursuit and detainment vessel equipped with powerful sensors and hull scanners, and could be used as a deep-space sweeper of a system patrol craft. They are about 150 meters tall, and have 4 heavy grasping arms, 4 fine work arms, a single tractor beam projector, an internal secure chamber, two quad blaster cannons, and two ion cannons. Shug Ninx and Salla Zend managed to gain control of one of these huge ships, and used its weapons to blasy open the prison compound where Han Solo and Chewbacca were being held on Byss. (DE1, DESB)

Hunter's Creed
this is the code by which all law-abiding bounty hunters live. Chief among the rules of the Creed is the stipulation that no Hunter could kill another, nor interfere with another's Hunt. Another primary rule was that any being under the apprenticeship of a master Hunter was temporarily immune to incarceration. This is the reason that many small-time criminals become bounty hunters. (TBH)

Hunter's Luck
one of Mara Jade's smuggling ships. It was, at one time, a rich kid's yacht. It had been stolen by pirates and reworked when Mara obtained it. (COJ)

Hunter's World
see Keyorin (OE)

Hunting Telik the White
this epic Equat poem told the story of a hunt for a massive, albino farlek. (OE)

Huntress
a Pakuuni Nebulon-B frigate used as a command base in their struggle against the Empire. (TIE)

HuntSuit
a model of personal, protective armor manufactured on Corellia, the HuntSuit found favor with bounty hunters of all walks. It was based on th design of the PowerSuit. (GG10)

Hunu
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Huoba Neva
a female Sullustan, Huoba Neva had two strikes against her when she joined the Imperial Academy. As the daughter of a SoroSuub executive, she easily gained acceptance and quickly distinguished herself. She rose quickly, but never seemed to be able to obtain a command of her own, in the Imperial Navy. Eventually, the pro-Human Imperial doctrine started to sink in, and Huoba started thinking about joined the Alliance. Sian Tevv had told Ackbar about her outstanding accomplishments, and Ackbar needed good starship commanders, so she was accepted into the Alliance. She became the youngest Republic warship commander following the victory in the Illoud System, and she was given command of the Rebel Star. Huoba Neva perished when the ship collided with the burned-out hull of a Star Destroyer as it emerged from hyperspace near Coruscant. The Rebel Star was part of the small New Republic fleet sent to rescue the crew of the Liberator, and the Alliance mourned her passing. (DE1, DESB)

Huorne
a member of COMPNOR Investigations, Huorne worked with Parl to obtain information on Admiral Ackbar, but never seemed to be able to get the crucial piece of information. (ISB)

Hurcha
eighth planet in the Churba system, it is too cold to support life. (DFR)

Hurd's Moon
Guri tried to hide out on this inhabited world, after escaping the destruction of Prince Xizor's skyhook over Coruscant. An outpost was created in the arid world, mainly for smugglers and their sort. (SEE)

Hurdiss
this Imperial Navy communications officer served as the tactical communications chief during the Battle of Hoth. He also coordinated the chase of the Millennium Falcon. (CCG4)

Hurlothrumb, Lorenz
this Imperial scientist and researcher workedint the Imperial Medi-Center's Encephalo-Research Division. Moff Bandor promised him the ability to test his "wave machine" on live sentients, and Hurlothrumb agreed to work for him. The resulting device was known as the Hurlothrumbic Generator, and was put to use by Bandor on Questal. (GCQ)

Hurlothrombic Gas
Emperor Palpatine routinely flooded his audience chamber with small amounts of this gas, ensuring that his visitors were in awe and fear of him. (POT)

Hurlothrumbic Generator
a device which produces energy waves that cause the human brain to react with varying levels of fear, depending on the strength of the waves. It was designed and developed by Doctor Lorenz Hurlorthrumb, some time after the Battle of Yavin. Moff Bandor helped finance the development, and experimented with the use of the device during the Galactic Civil War on the planet Questal. Bandor modified the generator, adding specific "doomsday programming" to set off ever-increasingly intense waves of fear. Once activated, the generator will eventually develop such powerful waves that it would drive every inhabitant of the planet Questal mad with fear. He was apprehended by a squad of Alliance agents before he could put it to wide-scale use. (GCQ)

Hurn Jak
this Th'iruckai teruk was a rival of Oolan Krim, and had planted several spies in Krim's clan. When Jak discovered that Krim was negotiating with a group of offworld scouts for weapons, Jak arranged for them to be posioned with yurfloo in order to force them to provide him with the weapons. Hurn Jak held the only known antidote. The slowly dying scouts discovered the source of the enmity between the clans, and arranged to get the teruks together to discuss a cease-fire after learning that the war between the clans was based on an ancient misunderstanding. (GMS)

Hurricane 506
a model of Bespin Motors twin-pod cloud car. In the Hurricane configuration, one pod is used for pilot and co-pilot, while the other contains the power generators needed to power the weapons and engines. Because of this configuration, the Hurricane tends to roll to the left during acceleration. The Hurricane was later replaced with the Storm IV cloud car. (GG7)

Hurrim
this small pirate group was controlled by Golov Nakhym, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Hurrim was employed by Toburik Haulers to provide protection and support for its transport ships. They later provided assistance to the Empire, during the Imperials' attempt to disrupt the smugglers who were supplying the Alliance with arms and supplies prior to the Battle of Endor. In order to secure their supply lines, the Alliance destroyed the Hurrim base and captured Golov Nakhym. (XWA)

Hurrungat
this legendary, ancient Kashoonara god was known as the bringer of twilight, and rode huge a humbaba called Aarwynn around his underworld realm. (COG)

Hurt Vector
space slang for unemployment and indebtedness. (HSL)

Hurt Vectors
this swoop gang began terrorizing Vandalar City, on Reaper's World, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. They were rounded up by a team of bounty hunters shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (ND)

Hut
the spelling of Hutt, when used to refer to the Hutt race. (SWN, ESBN)

Hut
an Imperial transport ship which assisted in the evacuation of the Omar TIE Advanced manufacturing facilities. (TIE)

Hut'to
a modified CR90 Corvette used by the Empire to escort prison ships. (TIE)

Hutch
this cyborged tramp freighter first mate worked with Captain Nuendo Rash. He had very little in the ay of a sense of humor. (GG6)

Hutrick, Aaz'del
this man was the director of the Empire's Department of Munitions Resource Development during the height of the Galactic Civil War, and oversaw the construction of several hyperbaride plants across the galaxy. (POM)

Hutt
1) a large, slug-like alien with short, stubby arms, huge eyes, and a wide mouth. They originated on the planet Varl, but have populated a great number of other worlds including Nal Hutta. They speak their own language, and have the ability to see in visible light as well as ultraviolet light. They often light their palaces with both, turning off the natural lighting to give trespassers a false sense of stealth. Desite the sheer bulk of their flesh, Hutts do not have a skeleton. Instead, an internal mantle helps shape the head and support the arms, while the rest of their body is simply one large, snail-like foot. The skin of a Hutt is incredibly thick, and is covered with a mixture of mucus and oily sweat. This makes the skin able to resist harsh chemicals and even some blaster bolts. Below the epidermis is a thick layer of blubber that helps maintain body temperature and makes it impossible to puncture their skin with a knife. Hutts are also hermaphroditic, often choosing to appear as one sex or the other for the benefit of their audience. Young Hutts spend their first year of life inside a pouch on their mother's belly, and are virtually mindless. They live near their mothers for several decades after birth, returning to their pouches when they are scared or tired. Young Hutts aren't considered accountable until they are well over 100 years old. All Hutts have a given name, which is supported by their clan name and their surname (eg., Jabba Desilijic Tiure). The history of the Hutt race can be traced to the early times before the formation of the Old Republic. They were a strong force even then, dominating large portions of the space surrounding their homeworld. After the discovery of the hyperdrive, the Hutts began expanding their territories, but ran into Xim the Despot. Xim and the Hutts fought several fierce battle near the uninhabited world of Vontor, until the Hutts discovered the Si'Klaata Cluster and the strong, warrior-like races it hid. The Hutts managed to sign the Klatooinans, Niktos, and Vodrans into perpetual servitude, and used many warriors during the Third Battle of Vontor. This was the decisive battle against Xim, and left the Hutts in control of large areas of the galaxy. However, the Hutts could not escape their own greedy nature, and soon began to covet each other's holdings. Interclan wars broke out, and the clans eventually broke off relations with each other. When they realized that this was bad for business, they began exchanging messengers. The Hutts took to killing the messengers if they didn't like the message, but this further impaired business. So, the Hutts made a pact which recognized messengers as sacrosanct. As a race, Hutts do not trust any other races, atrait that stems from an incident in which all prominent Hutts on Nal Hutta were executed by an assassin. (ROTJ, COTF, ZHR, GG4, GG12, TPS, THG, RD)
2) this was the name given to the jizz band led by Sluggo the Hutt and fronted by the Kitonak Anarc. (GMS)

Hutt Caravel
a short-range transport ship used by the Hutt crime lords to shuttle between Nal Hutta and Nar Sahddaa. No two caravels are alike, for each Hutt has tried to outdo his brethren in expressing his individuality. There are varying ranges of luxury in the caravels, depending on the Hutt's financial power. Most are basically transports that can be modestly armed. Most caravels have escape pods for their Hutt owners, but none for the crew. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

Hutt Clan of Ancients
this governmental body rules much of the Hutt society. (GG12)

Hutt Commerical Laws
these are the rules and regulations that govern the various business that Hutts enacted between clans. Among the many laws are several dealing with the appointment and treatment of Hutt counselors. These particular laws are documented in Section C, subsection 12.4.e. (TFNR)

Hutt Counselor
this position was usually given to a non-Hutt, and refers to an individual who has been appointed to conduct business on behalf of a Hutt ruler or his clan. Each counselor must be well-versed in the complexities of Hutt politics and business. Therefore, a counsleor almost always remains with a single family, rather than try to learn about multiple groups. The counselor must also be unswervingly loyal to the Hutt clan it serves, or risk a quick death. The position of Hutt counselor was created in the wake of (TFNR)

Hutt Flats
located on the dried-up bed of Lake Anre, this open desert area was located just outside the Mos Espa podracing course made famous by the Boonta Eve Classic. (RAC, IWE1)

Hutt Floater
the repulsorlift platform that Hutts use to move around, since their bulk and lack of limbs prevents self-locomotion. (ROTJ, DE1)

Hutt Grand Council
this is the primary governing body for the various leaders of the Hutt kajidics. Headquartered on Nal Hutta in a great hall, the Grand Council oversaw the operations of all *kajidic*s without preference. (THG, RD)

Hutt Haven
this tapcaf, located on Coruscant, was where Nawara Ven was directed to meet Hes Glillto. This occurred during the trial of Tycho Celchu, and Ven was hoping that Hes Glillto was really Lai Nootka. Instead, it turned out to be Kirtan Loor, who had agreed to expose every Imperial agent on Coruscant, including the real traitor within Rogue Squadron, in return for a certain level of freedom. (KT)

Hutt Jewelers' Guild
this guild of Hutts specializes in the grading and valuation of gemstones. (TSK)

Huttese
natural language spoken by the Hutt race. Note that the Return of the Jedi Radio Dramatization indicates that Jabba's security eyeball speaks Twi'leki. (ROTJ, ROJR)

Huulian Starfighter
this spacecraft, known for its long engine nacelles, was outdated during the Old Republic. (IWE1)

Huv
this Imperial agent, like Generet, was surgically altered so that he resembled a Mon Calamari on the outside. Huv has a great dislike for the Alliance, but his desire for personal recognition and power is stronger than his love for the Empire. He assisted Generet in trying to subvert the Mon Calamari during the Galactic Civil War. (DU)

Hvarnec Junior Scout League
this small organization taught the youngsters of Merim City how to be scouts, and had an annual craft sale in the city. (SSR)

Hweg Shul
this small settlement is the capital city of the planet Nam Chorios. (POT)

Hwotha berries
food source native to Dathomir. (CPL)

HX
a group of Alliance containers used to supply Admiral Harkov and the defecting Protector fleet in the Ottega System. (TIE)

HY-6
developed by BlasTech, this heavy laser cannon was developed for the Empire, and was designed to operate in aquatic environments. (AIR)

Hy'thor Pirates
this pirate gang, led by the Nalroni Ompiach, operated during the early years of the New Order. They raided the Mieru'kar area of the galaxy almost exclusively, primarily because the pickings were so good. (AIR)

Hy'tras
this was one of the five races of Shatra, native only to the Klypash continent on Trascor. They were the second-most common of the Shatra races, but accounted for just one-tenth of the total Shatra population, and rejected technology to maintain a simple way of life. They turned all their wealth over to the Y'tras race in exchange for their isolation. (AE)

Hyabb
this planet was continually at war with its neighbor, Twith, almost from the beginning of the Old Republic. In what became known as the Hyabb-Twith Campaigns, the ancient Jedi Knights ousted the Nelroni Marauders and freed the planet from their oppression. (TOJC)

Hyabb-Twith Campaigns
this long struggle between the ancient Jedi Knights and the Nelroni Marauders took place more than four millennia before the Battle of Yavin. Despite the obvious benefits it would have brought them, the governments of Hyabb and Twith stayed out of the conflict, ostensibly to avoid retarting their centuries-old feuds. Many Jedi lost their lives over the course of several years, until Arca Jeth discovered the Marauders' base on Voon. The Marauders ambushed the Jedi, but they were no match for the Force. However, only Jeth and a handful of other Jedi survived. Jeth returned to the Hyabb-Twith Corridor with more Jedi, and helped them scatter and eliminate the Nelroni threat. (TOJC)

Hyabb-Twith Corridor
this ancient hyperspace trade route connected the planet Hyabb and Twith. Control of the route was continually under debate, especially after the Nelroni Marauders begin plundering the planets along the Corridor. The ancient Jedi Knights were called in to subdue the Marauders and restore free travel along the Corridor. (TOJC)

Hyallp
a race of intelligent, spider-like creatures. They had strong, jaw-like mandibles, and could exude a poison called srejtpan that could kill a t'lanmda Til with one drop. (RD)

Hyb, Mal
this human was a member of Barada's repulsorpool crew. She was one of his most competent workers, especially skilled with a welding torch. (TJP)

HyD
this was the model number of a series of navigational computers produced by Microaxial. (SCRE, SL)

HYd-997
Slayn & Korpil hyperdrive motivator used on the B-Wing. (XW)

Hydan
this Rodian served aboard the FarStar as a computer slicer. (KO)

Hydenock
this red-leafed tree was native to the planet Alderaan. It was distinctive for its gently curved shape, and is often found in Alderaanian artwork. The bark of the hydenock is crushed and used to create a reddish dye, and can also be extracted to form bubble wort. (GF)

Hyder
a planet with a small human population. (POC)

Hydian Way
a route through the galactic Core that was blazed by Freia Kallea nearly three thousand years before the Galactic Civil War. The Hydian Way runs from the middle of the Core out to the Corporate Sector. It intersects the Perlemian Trade Route in the Bormea Sector, at the planet Brentaal. (SWAJ)

Hydra
one of the four Imperial-I class Star Destroyer stationed at the Maw Installation by Grand Moff Tarkin, the Hydra was under the command of Sten Thanas. It was destroyed when Han, Kyp, and Qwi Xux tried to escape in the Sun Crusher. Han used the ship, with its impenetrable armor, as a missile, and rammed the Hydra's command bridge, permanently disabling the ship and causing irreparable damage to it. (JS, JASB)

Hydrobike
this form of repulsor-equipped vehicle resembled a speeder bike, but was used to travel across water. (ND)

Hydroclamper
a fluid-activated connection device. (CCG, CFG)

Hydrodynamic Music Systems
systems which use fluids in the walls and windows of a room to generate and amplify sound. (TB)

HydroExtractor
this device is used by scouts and explorers to render clean, drinkable water from alien water sources. It can also extract moisture from the air surrounding it, acting like a portable vaporator. (GG8)

Hydrolocomotive
a transportation device which uses fluid to propel itself through a tube. (JS)

Hydron
a stablized form of hydron-3, hydron was easier to trsansport. (XWA)

Hydron-3
an atmospheric element which some species must breathe in order to survive. (TJP)

Hydroponics Station
these self-contained units allow farmers to grow crops on planets with little or no natural atmospheric moisture. The Lars family had one on Tatooine. The hydroponics station uses very little water to grow enough crops to keep a small family continually fed, with some left over for sale to neighbors. The Lars family station was seen as a low, circular structure ringed with lights, on the fringe of their moisture farm compound. (CCG)

Hydroshovel
a fluid-powered digging utensil. (GG7)

Hydrospanners
the intergalactic equivalent of a wrench. (ESB)

Hydrospeare Corporation
this corporation is headquartered on the planet Kabaira. Many of their contracts were from the Imperial war machine. Among the products produced for the Empire waa the Explorer submergible. (FOP, CFG)

Hydrostatic Field Generator
this Gungan shield system was used to keep water out of a bongo. (E1A9)

Hydrotoboggan
this Gungan vehicle was a long, sled-like transport which was equipped with unique repulsors. It was activated with a simple puch, and could carry up to four Gungan soldiers with rapid ease. (E1A10)

Hyggin Mountains
located near Somin City, on the planet Seltos, these mountains were mined by Galacticorp Mines for the precious ores they held. (TSK)

Hyko
a group of Imperial Corvettes disabled by Keyan Farlander near Orron III during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Hyllyard City
major center of activity on Myrkr, it is a frontier town at best. It is home to various smugglers, fugitives, and traders. (HTTE)

Hyllyard Hotel
headquarters for the Imperial teams stationed on Myrkr (HTTE)

Hyos
the Codru-Ji doctor who assists Chewbacca following the kidnap attempt on the Solo children. She is assisted by her youngest child, still in its wyrwulf form. She has a great hunger for knowledge, and makes it a point to fully study and learn the physiology of any and all races she comes into contact with. This is how she came to understand the medical needs of Wookiees. (CS)

Hyper-dejarik
this form of the hologame dejarik was played at near-frantic speeds, requiring the players to have lightning-fast reactions. (SWJ12)

Hyperbaride
this artificial material has the unique property of being able to withstand incredibly high temperatures, flux densities, and radiation levels without being damaged. This made hyperbarides a requirement in the production of heavy turbolasers as well as the immense lasers used on the Death Stars. The Empire spent a great deal of money developing and manufacturing hyperbarides, for without them the firepower of the Imperial Navy would have been greatly reduced. However, the production of hyperbarides required incredible amounts of thermal energy, and the process releases highly toxic by-products in its wake. Thus, the production of hyperbarides was often relegated to lifeless worlds or moons. The huge, powerful plants which produce these materials are almost always staffed with live workers, as the process of creating the hyperbarides produces electromagnetic waves and radiation which affects the operation of most droids. (POM)

Hyperbattery
this form of battery was developed to harness the incredible energy of a planet's core. Each the size of a room, hyperbatteries store energy from which is extracted from a planet's core by immense heat exchangers. (POM)

Hypercoil
this hyperdrive component is used to condense energy for transmission to the hyperdrive motivator. (OS)

Hyperdrive
the starship engine and its components which allows the ship to travel at supralight speeds through hyperspace. It works with the ship's NavCom unit to assure direction and course changes necessary to maneuver through hyperspace are executed without encountering gravity shadows. Most hyperdrives require a fusion generator to propel a ship through space. The hyperdrive is built from a titanium-chromium compound that can withstand the forces needed to push through the space-time fabric of realspace into the hyperspacial continuum. The hyperdrive uses modified gamma radiation to create electromagnetic energy that, when ejected from the hyperdrive, cause the realspace time-space matrix to ripple. The hyperdrive continues to eject electromagnetic energy to push against these ripples, propelling the ship into hyperspace. However, the hyperdrive system can only work in the absense of gravity. This means that a ship must escape from a planet's gravity well before it can jump into hyperspace. Each hyperdrive system is equipped with a cutoff which returns the ship to realspace if a gravity well is discovered in an unspecified location. This principle allowed the Empire to create the Interdictor-class cruiser as a way to drag Alliance ships out of hyperspace at a specific location. It is rumored that the hyperdrive was invented eons ago by a space-faring race from outside the known galaxy. When this race encountered the known galaxy, it first came upon the Corellian System. There, the aliens sold the secrets of the hyperdrive to the Corellians, who studied it for decades before producing their first, working hyperdrive. Interstellar exploration and unification began in earnest. After about 20 years, the Corellians began selling their ideas to other star systems, and a huge galactic community was born, which later evolved into the Old Republic. Hyperdrives are grouped according to their ability to exceed the speed of light, and are categorized by classes. The lower the class number, the faster the hyperdrive can propel the ship. For example, the Millennium Falcon can make ".5 past lightspeed," an indication that it had a Class .5 hyperdrive. This class is half-again as fast as Class 1 hyperdrive. (SW, ESB, SWSB, TT, IG1, GOF1)

Hyperdrive Actuation Diode
his small component of a starship's hyperdrive was instrumental in the acceleration from sublight speeds to supralight speeds. (SL)

Hyperdrive Motivator
the starship component which is responsible for building up the energies necessary to propel a ship into hyperspace. The hyperdrive motivator creates an electromagnetic field around a starship, and then projects that field into hyperspace. Once in hyperspace, the hyperdrive motivator employs trilithium crystals to propel the ship through the continuum. When the ship's destination is reached, the hyperdrive motivator projects the ship's field back into realspace and cuts the trilithium drive. (ESB, SCRE, GG6)

Hyperdrive Shunt
this device, which is part of a starship's hyperdrive, allows excess heat and power to be bled off before it can damage the hyperdrive itself. (DA)

Hyperdust
a slang term, used when outrunning an opponent and reaching hyperspace ("Eat my hyperdust"). (COJ)

Hypergate
this development of Gree technology is unique in the galaxy. Resembling a doorframe or archway, the hypergate is controlled by a Gree gatemaster. At the activation of the gatemaster, a hypergate can be used to transport a being from its current position to another terminus, which is itself another hypergate. This remote hypergate can be in the next town or several planets away. In esense, these are personal transportation devices, and would have reduced the role of starships in the galaxy if the ability to create and maintain them hadn't been lost over time. Now, just a handful of hypergates exist, all within the Gree Enclave. (SWJ8)

Hypergleanum
this gland, located in the brain, produces chemicals which help the brain understand sensory input. (CFG)

HyperGym
this was the brand name of a line of personal exercise equipment. (POM)

Hypermatter
this material was used in the huge reactor cores which powered the first Death Star. It was first devised some fifty years before the Battle of Yavin, when Raith Sienar and his Advanced Projects team began working with a kilometer-wide ball of plasma contained within an implosion core. Sienar's designs were eventually usurped by Wilhuff Tarkin and used to create the first Death Star. (ICS, RP)

Hyperpaint
this was a specialized form of paint used on swoops and speederbikes. It was designed to provide a striking finish to a vehicle as well as endure the scouring those vehicles took at high speeds. (WSV)

Hypersheers
this specialized tool was used in the manufacture of droids. (CCC)

Hypershunt
this song, written and played by the band Starburst, first appeared on the compilation StakeOut. (GG9)

Hyperspace
1) shorter name for the hyperspacial continuum. (SW, SWSB)
2) this was one of the many restaurants and taverns that were established on Yag'Dhul's space station after Rogue Squadron took control of it. The Hype, as it was known, had good food and a bright decor. (BW)

Hyperspace Communications
a transmission method that allows message-bearing signals to be send into hyperspace for quicker transmission. (HSE)

Hyperspace compass
a navigation computer component which determines a starship's spatial coordinates. (DE1)

Hyperspace Courier Tube
a coffin-sized device which is used to transport a shipment through hyperspace without the need for a starship. (DA)

Hyperspace Marauder
Lo Khan's modified Xiytiar-class transport ship. It isn't very fast, and was unarmed (that was the way Lo Khan liked it) for a long time. He has added increased shielding and has beefed up the hull strength, and he keeps primarily to the best-known shipping lanes to avoid being ambushed. If he ever was ambushed, Lo Khan had installed a unique computer and communications system that allowed him to access his attacker's shipboard computers. The attackers suddenly find that they can't control their own ship, let alone the Marauder, which puts Lo Khan in a great bargaining position. After the emergence of the cloned Emperor Palpatine on Byss and the appearance of Han Solo, Lo Khan added a pair of 700 Penetrator laser cannons for defense. (DE1, DESB, DE2)

Hyperspace Orbiting Scanner
developed by Geothray Camber and implemented by Lindu Sencker, this device was developed for the Empire to eavesdrop into virtually any computer system in the galaxy. The HOS orbits a world in hyperspace, and monitors the hyperspace shadows left by the electrons flowing through computer networks. The HOS is programmed to understand the multitude of intergalactic programming languages, and deciphers the shadows into recognizable system commands. It has been used near almost 500,000 of the galaxy's planets, and boasted a 78% success rate. (ISB)

Hyperspace Pulsemass Generator
this grandly-named Imperial weapon was often referred to in more simple terms as a pebble-spreader. Its primary use is to create and scatter tiny spheres of hyperenergy into an area of space. These spheres, much like the fields produced by gravity well projectors, block a ship's ability to travel through hyperspace near them. The problem with these devices is that the tiny hyperenergy sphere dissipate their energy quickly, limiting the effective duration of the blockade. (ISB)

Hyperspace Roamer
a cargo ship given permission to make the Byss Run during the rise of Palpatine's second clone there. The Hyperspace Roamer was cleared to land at port tower Tarkin-12 just before Shug Ninx and Salla Zend arrived to try and recover Salla's ship. (DE2)

Hyperspace Security Net
a network of hyperspace traffic lanes that are controlled by the Empire. The security net allows entry and exit from the Deep Core, and it is continually monitored for unauthorized traffic. (DE1)

Hyperspace transponder
the basis for hyperspace communication, it sends out weak pulses of energy which contains a message. They are not very reliable. (DE1)

Hyperspace War
a devastating war which took place thousands of years before the Jedi Assembly on Deneba, it was alluded to by Shatoyo. It was a great battle between the Light and Dark Sides of the Force. (DLS)

Hyperspace wormhole
a natural phenomenon in which suddenly connects two positions in the galaxy via a tunnel through hyperspace. The wormhole is accompanied by huge energy storms. These wormholes often occur just after large disturbances in the Force. (DE1)

Hyperspacial Continuum
a dimension of the space-time continuum that can only be reached at supralight speeds. It transcends the four normal dimensions of length, width, depth, and time, and is analogous to a dimension floats above them. It allows space travelers to "jump" from a specific point in realspace to another point is realspace without having to travel directly between them. It corresponds directly with realspace, and any point in realspace has a matching point in hyperspace. Physical bodies in realspace also exist in hyperspace, but as gravity shadows of their true selves. The direction a starship travels is also similar in hyperspace as it is in realspace. While it was generally accepted that the galaxy was one of a multitude in the universe, it was discovered that a massive hyperspacial distrubance surrounded the galaxy and prevented a starship from travelling beyond its boundaries. This theory was challenged when the Yuuzhan Vong launched their invasion of the galaxy, and their ships seemed capable of hyperspace travel across the gulf between galaxies. (SW, SWSB, DTO)

Hyperspaze and the Jump Lanes
this musical group toured the galaxy during the height of the New Order, playing music that was as popular as it was controversial.

They were eventually banned by the Empire. Much of their music was inspired by the raw emotion and intense drive of the Alliance agents they encountered while touring the Outer Rim. (HR)

Hypervelocity Gun
this planetary defense weapon uses a huge powerplant to drive a firing mechanism. The powerplant is buried underground, as is the weapon's ray- and particle-shield generators. This supports the weapon during firing, when it blasts super-accelerated slugs at its target. The HVG can fire up to 120 slugs per minute, in between shield bursts. The slugs can penetrate ray shielding, and make quick work of most particle shields. (BTS)

Hyperware
generic term that is used to describe the starship systems that allow the ship to transition from sublight drive to hyperdrive. (LCF)

HyperDive Cantina
this rowdy and unruly bar was located within the Fathoms restaurant complex, situated in the Glitter Cay Tower of Wildwater City on Calamari. Patrons of the bar entered through a dark tunnel, which was set with imbedded lights that flashed to make a being feel as if they were moving through hyperspace. Upon entering the cantine proper, patrons found themselves walking in nearly a meter of water. Every table and chair in the Cantina was bolted to the floor, and raised sufficiently to keep drinks out of the water. (WSV)

Hyperwave Inertial Momentum Sustainer
abbreviated HIMS, this device was developed on Bakura. In its simplest form, this is a specially-built hyperspace coil which shuts itself on and off. When the device detects an interdiction field or other false mass-line in hyperspace, it cuts the hyperdrive off, dropping the ship out of hyperspace. Immediately, a static hyperwave bubble generator in-line with the HIMS ignites, surrounding the ship with a hyperspace bubble. The bubble does not provide thrust, just a way of passing through the interdiction field. Thus, the ship coasts inside the bubble until it can no longer sustain istelf. When the bubble fails, the hyperspace comes on long enough to register the existence of the interdiction field, then trips again. If enough hyperspace buble generators are linked to the hyperspace coil, the ship can drift deep into the interdiction field, popping bubbles as it goes. The ship will appear to flicker in and out of hyperspace. The momentum of the ship will slowly diminish until it cannot jump back to hyperspace. At this time, the HIMS can be shut down, and sublight engines must be used. (AS)

Hyperwave Signal Interceptor
these sensory devices are used to detect fluctuations in the field that separates realspace from the hyperspacial continuum. These fluctuations are caused when a starship enters or exits hyperspace, and so these sensors can be used to determine the mass, speed, and course of the starship. They cannot, however, determine the ship's point of origin or destination. These sensors also detect subspace and hyperspace transmissions. (ISB)

Hypnocane
a pain-killing drug that also helps doctors soothe a patient by inducing a semi-hypnotic trance state. (COJ)

Hypno-imprinting
an out-dated form of brainwashing in which the subject is placed under hypnosis and imprinted with certain traits and commands. The Survivors on Dellalt use this technique to keep the members of their small society from leaking information about themselves. (HSL)

Hypo-driver
this thin tool is a must for any landspeeder repairbeing. (POT)

Hypospray
a drug used by the Ssi-ruuk to hypnotize their captives. (TB)

Hypotria
this planet is located in the Lifh Sector, and served as the base of operations for the crimelord Qa'till during the height of the New Order. (CRO)

Hyra
this city is located on Kamori. (SWAJ)

Hyrotii
manufacturers of the Zebra short-range fighter. Note that this may be a typo for Hyrotil. (EGV)

Hyrotil Corporation
this starship manufacturer was known for the Crescent-class transport ship. This might be the same as Hyrotii mentioned in The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels. (SS, CRO)

Hythrope IV
it was on this planet that Airen Cracken first met Vin Northal, when Northal saved Cracken's assault team from a stormtrooper ambush. (CRO)

Hyx, Daino
this member of the Alliance armed forces was part of the team assigned to Bria Tharen’s Red Hand Squadron. He was with Bria when she attacked the Helot’s Shackle, and was in charge of getting the freed slaves off the slave ship and onto the Retribution. Hyx was a scholar at an Alderaanian university, and studied the treatment of addictions. He put shi schooling to work for the Alliance and the Corellian resistance, quickly discovering a way to ease the withdrawal of Ylesian “pilgrims” who were freed from Exultations. He later assisted Bria in the Battle of Ylesia, leading one of the nine assault teams. (RD)

H2-1B4
Scarlet Bloodhawk's ancient domodroid. (RPG)

H2-1
one of the Corellian Engineering Corporation's hyperdrive systems. Xizor had one installed on the Stinger. (EGV)

H4-5D
this heavy labor droid was modified by X0-X1 to disrupt the meeting between Doctor Vreen and Lira Wessex, at the Royal Casino, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. H4-5D was eventually immobilized by the Alliance agents who were on Cloud City to locate Doctor Issan Len. (CCC)

I-7 Howlrunner
Incom's new starfighter, designed for the Empire around the time of Emperor Palpatine's rebirth on Byss. It has been nicknamed for the Kamarian Howlrunner. It resembles a streamlined T-47 airspeeder in shape, being a long, wedge-shaped craft with a rectangular midsection. Little is known about the I-7's performance in battle, although initial engagements during the struggle against the clones of Emperor Palpatine on Byss suggest that has excellent maneuverability and can take a lot of punishment. The ship measures 11.4 meters in length, and is armed with a pair of laser cannons. It was the first major starfighter design to come from the nationalized Incom Corporation, in response to the Kuat Drive Yards A-9 Vigilance Interceptor and the FreiTek E-Wing. (DE1, DESB, DE2, EGV)

I'att, Augusta
this striking woman was Strephan I'att's wife. She and Strephan took in their granddaugther, Tinian, after her parents' deaths, and raised her until adulthood. Just before she and Strephan were killed by Moff Keioth, Augusta contracted a rare degenerative disease that slowly eroded her body. Treatment was expensive, but Strephan spared no expense. (TFE)

I'att, Strephan
Tinian I'att's grandfather, and one of the masterminds behind I'att Armament. He and Daye Azur-Jamin developed a portable energy-dissipation field generator that absorbed an incoming blaster bolt and reduced its energy to a harmless level. He had planned to show it to the Empire's armed forces, but Moff Eisen Kerioth - who had also been working on a way to improve stormtrooper armor - decided to take the device for himself. He scheduled a demonstration, and once he was satisfied with the deivce's efficiency, he murdered Strephan and his wife, Augusta, in cold blood. He failed to execute Tinian, though, and she escaped from Druckenwell with several key components that Kerioth required. (TFE)

I'att, Tinian
the young heiress of the I'att Armaments fortune, Tinian was a native of the planet Druckenwell. It is unknown when or how her parents disppeared, but Tinian was raised by her grandparents, Strephan and Augusta I'att. Daye Azur-Jamin later discovered that Tinian's mother had abandoned her before disappearing.Tinian had free access to the resources of I'att Armament, and learned everything she could about the armament business. By the time she was seventeen, she could identify almost any explosive material by its smell. She was deeply in love with Daye Azur-Jamin, and they were engaged to be married when Moff Kerioth tried to steal I'att Armament's plans for a stromtrooper shielding device. Her grandparents were executed, and Daye helped her get off-planet before destroying the I'att research facility. She became a freelance bounty hunter and tracker, and eventually hooked up with the Wookiee Chenambec. Although her family had kept Wookiees as slaves, she knew that they were an honorable race. She saved his life many times, on Silver Station and at the Kline Colony. In the years following the Battle of Endor, Tinian was reunited with Daye, and the pair rediscovered their love for each other. They were eventually married, and together had a son named Tam. Tam followed in Daye's footsteps, being Force-sensitive and training at the Yavin 4 praxeum. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Tinian worked with the Jedi Knight Lowbacca to scout out the advancing edges of the Vong forces. They were nearly trapped in Hutt Space after the aliens discovered that their alliance with the Hutts had been compromised. (SWJ10, TBH, BP)

I'att Armament
this defense company, located on the planet Druckenwell, created some of the best anti-blaster energy shields during the later years of the Galactic Civil War. Run by Strephan I'att, I'att Armament was planning to develop a shielding device for stormtroopers which involved a small energy-dissipation field generator attached to the backplate. However, Imperial Moff Eisen Kerioth tried to steal the plans for himself. Moff Kerioth killed Strephan, but young Tinian I'att escaped Druckenwell with several key componets of the system, while her lover Daye Azur-Jamin destroyed the I'att research facility. (TFE)

I'Shibix, Quarlo
this swarthy human served Mon Tondievz as the mine supervisor of the nova crystal mines on Krann. He worked with an all-Kluuzot mining crew, a work environment he claimed to have devised all by himself. He supposedly defected from Imperial service after the Battle of Endor, severing the nova crystal supply lines and turning them over to the New Republic. In fact, Quarlo was working with Vanel to mek sure the Empire was able to enslave the Kluuzot and retake the nova crystal mines. On the side, Quarlo and his mining crew were also involved in the illegal trafficking of the deadly spice eldratz. Quarlo was using a portion of the eldratz to addict the Kluuzot, offering to suuply their fixes only if they worked in the mines. He was apprehended by New Republic agent s, but could not be brought to justice before the Kluuzot took him away. His fate is unknown. (TSK)

Iasa
this Jawa was a trusted confederate of Kalit, until the Jawa leader entrusted Iasa with his credits, his mate, and a sandcrawler. Iasa never explained what happened, but when he returned to the tribe he had none of these items. He was exiled from the clan, and spent his remaining time abusing the residents of Mos Eisley. He thought about stealing Luke Skywalker's landspeeder, while the youth was in the cantina with Ben Kenobi, looking for passage to Alderaan. (CCG9)

Iast System
this area of the galaxy is believed to have been the site of a hidden Imperial research facility. Known as To-phalion Base, the Imperials were trying to develop a cloaking device under the codename Vorknkx. Admiral Zaarin managed to infiltrate the system and steal a CR90 corvette equipped with a working cloaking device. However, the Vorknkx team had not yet figured out how to make the device stable while travelling through hyperspace. Zaarin fled into hyperspace, but the cloaking device malfunctioned as the ship made the jump. The corvette and its crew, including Zaarin, were destroyed. (TIE)

Ibhaan'I
one of the nomadic tribes of humans that descended from Old Corellians on Socorro. They were the most technologically advanced of the nomadic tribes, as evidenced by the existence of the starport in Vakeyya located in the middle of their tribal holdings. They were also known to be one of the most nomadic of the four main tribes, and each family traveled a great deal of the Doaba Badlands during each generation. This wandering gave them a great deal of skill in scouting and hunting, and their ability to understand technology made them valuable guides to non-Socorrans. (BSS)

Ibhann'I Tribal Lands
these lands were owned by the Ibhann'I tribe, on the planet Socorro. The land was located near Vakeyya. (BSS)

Ibliton
this huge mollusk inhabited the swamps of Randorn 2. Its shell measured two meters across, and its tentacles added another three meters in length. Its shell was coiled and chambered, and the creature's fleshy body stuck out the open end. The Mizx who inhabit the planet believe that the ibliton was the avatar of Hershoon the Destroyer, created from Hershoon's demented soul in order to perpetuate his legacy. In reality, the ibliton predate the Mizx by several millennia, and the fossil record indicated that forerunners of the ibliton existed 600,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Their bodies are segmented and insectoid, with armor plating covering all but the four tentacles. Their segmented legs end in sharp, knife-like talons, and allow them to walk along the ground. The ibliton display a form of raw cunning in their predatory actions, and have been known to attack explorers in ambush attacks. (COG)

Ibtisam
this blue-skinned humanoid was a member of the Mon Calamari race. She joined Alliance as a B-wing pilot shortly before the Battle of Endor. Ibtisam had highly modified her B-Wing, but all the modifications couldn't keep her from being shot down during the second wave of Imperial attacks over Endor. Ibtisam survived, and remained with the Alliance as an X-Wing pilot. Following the recovery of the Eidolon, Ibtisam joined Rogue Squadron. When Ibtisam met Nrin Vakil, the two Rogues couldn't escape their species' continual rivalry, but never succumbed to petty bickering. Ibtisam and Nrin became fast friends, and could take up opposite sides of nearly any issue and argue about it in a vehement, yet friendly, manner. Ibtisam was killed when the Rogues were dispatched to rescue Sate Pestage from Ciutric, but were ambushed by forces led by Admiral Krennel. (XWWP, XWMR, IR)

IC-M
this Cybot Galactica General Utility Droid was first designed as an Imperial City maintenance droid. It was strange in its construction, in that it has two "heads" which face each other. One has optical sensors, while the other has a screen for data display. This allows the droid to view the plans and blueprints it is working with while it works. (JASB)

Icarii
this race of humanoids was distinguished by the scales which surrounded their eyes in a diamond-shaped pattern. The wealth of the tribe is held in small gemstones and beads, and woven into the hair of their queen. The tribe's wealth is immeasureable, and many of the galaxy's most corrupt beings desired to cut her hair and steal the jewels. Individual Icarii can survive dismemberment for long periods of time, and the strongest can even have their heads removed. The head could remain alive for several months before eventually dying. Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, Darth Vader ordered the destruction of the Icarii. General Nim commanded th eoperation, but allowed Colonel Karda to carry out the plans. Karda promptly poisoned the tribe and took Selestrine, their queen, hostage, hoping to gain profit through her ability to foresee the future. She hoped to die like the rest of her tribe, and tried to commit suicide by taking the same poison Karda had usedon her people. Karda discovered her plan, and managed to sever her head before it could be poisoned. He escaped with her head encased in a life-sustaining casket. However, after Karda killed Nim in an effort to retain possession of the head, he fled the Empire and was marked a fugitive. (EOE)

Ice Modrol
this was a species of predator imported to the planet Neftali shortly before the fall of the Old Republic. Their paws were studded with sharp talons which could cut the spine of a mariqar snow q'lk in one muscular swipe. Large specimens of ice modrol could grow to five meters in height or more. (BSS)

Ice Moon
a form of gemstone found in the Hapes Cluster. (JE)

Ice Puppy
a creature native to Toola, and hunted by the Whiphids. (TJP)

Ice Spike
this specially-made explosive was used by ice fisherman on the planet Neftali. The spikes used specially-shaped charges to blast a hole through the ice which covered the Beija Seas, which was often a meter or more thick. (BSS)

Ice Station Beta
this Imperial outpost was found on the planet Anteevy. Kyle Katarn infiltrated this outpost while trying to discover the source of the darktroopers. (DF)

Ice Storm
a division of Imperial Cold Assault Stormtroopers. (SWSB)

Ice Tiger
a Toolan predator. (TJP)

Ice Walker
12-legged automatons used to travel on the ice plains of Belsavis, they resemble huge, low-slung insects. (COJ)

Iceborer
this is another name for a stylus ship. (VP)

Icefish
a species native to the planet Ediorung, icefish are often caught and poached as a delicacy. (TJP)

Iceman
this bounty hunter hailed from the Nord System, although he spent most of his career in the Minos Cluster. No one was sure if his monicker was derived from the way he “iced” his quarries or from his complete lack of emotion and personality. He had no mercy, and was determined to maintain a perfect capture record as a bounty hunter. (GG6)

Iceworm
a thin, wirelike creature native to the planet Hoth. They burrow through the ice that covers the planet, leaving behind a series of thin tunnels. When the windstorms blow across the ice, it creates an eerie music as it whistles through the iceworm's tunnels. (ISU)

Ichalin Station

ID Profile
a starship's relevant data, combined in a single transmission that is transmitted via the ship's transponder. (HSE)

Idanian, Jenos
one of the early aliases used by Han Solo, during his tenure with Garris Shrike. He later used the alias as a legitimate identity when he and Bria Tharen fled Ylesia. As Jenos, he sold off the artifacts they had taken from Teroenza’s museum. The identify of Idanian was eventually discovered by Rostek Horn, who provided it to Corran Horn in order to get him off Corellia during search for Mirax Terrik. (TPS, IJ)

Idellian Arrays
this small corporation produced a wide range of lifeform scanners. (ROE)

Identifier
this subnode was generated by Kud’ar Mub’at to identify ships carrying visitors to the assembler’s web, before they reached the web’s outer defenses. Identifier’s role was quite important, since those defenses were minimal at best. (MA)

Identify Friend or Foe Transponder known as an IFF transponder, this device is a kind of subspace radio wave generator used to provide a wimple way to identify a starship. It provides a burst of information about the ownership and registry of a starship, which can be analyzed by IFF receivers. If the codes check out, the starship is a friend. If not, then it’s a foe. Many planetary traffic control systems have their own codes, to mark their native ships. Smugglers usually had two or three IFF transponders on their ships, which coulfd be swapped out for different identities. One of the more famous IFF transponder codes was the Alderaanian code used to link the Another Chance to its protective escort. (SCRE, CPL, CFG, BW)

Identity Probe
this small, needle-like device is used to verify a being’s identity. Most often used in the delivery of sensitive or confidential materials, the probe is held between the fingers and squeezed. The small needle then takes a sample of skin and body fluids for comparison with an encoded description of the recipient. If the samples match, a positive response is stored in the probe’s inoxide tip. When the tip is inserted into a special reader, the package containing the materials is either opened (if the samples match) or destroyed (if they don’t match). This ensures that sensitive or confidential deliveries make it to their intended destination without being intercepted. In extreme cases, the inoxide probe and signal a more devastating action in the result of a mismatch, such as an explosion which destroys the package as well as the offending party. (MA)

Idiot
one of the sixteen face cards in the game of sabacc, the Idiot has a value of zero. The card is dominated by the color violet. (CCC, RD)

Idiot's Array
a sabacc hand that always resulted in a score of 23 and a sabacc for its holder, the Idiot's Array consists of The Idiot facecard, along with any 2 and any 3 from the four suits. Thus, it is literally 023. (JS, DA, LCF)

Ido
Ewwen's sister, Ido holds a position of some power in the Glayyd clan on Ammuud. She has the red-brown henna-colored hair which runs in her family, and is a tall, striking beauty. A few years younger than Fiolla, she was involved in an attempt to murder her brother, who was the Mor Glayyd at the time. A seasoned gunman named Gallandro, posing as an offworld visitor while working for the Corporate Sector Authority, tried to win her favor at a reception. He feigned anger, and struck her on the face. This was all a plot to goad her brother into a death-duel. Ewwen either had to step down or fight. Either option was preferable to his maintaining the position of Mor Glayyd and spilling the beans on the Corporate Sector Authority's slavery ring. (HSR)

Idow
an urban combat specialist with Page's Commandos. (HTSB)

Idret
this Imperial Intelligence agent was known to be responsible for the deaths of more than thirty Bothan members of the Alliance. Idret's true identity was never discovered, although it was believed that Idret worked as the chief operative in the Maldrood Sector. (HR)

IG-2000
IG-88's needle-shaped Aggressor assault fighter, it was heavily modified from its original condition. Built on Mechis III, IG-88 installed a Galaxy-15 ion engine, which he forced-fed with three Quadex power cores. IG-88 also added weapons upgrades and a pair of tractor beam generators mounted on the forward mandibles. The droid also disabled the ship's inertial compensators, for it felt none of the effects experienced by organics. IG-88 used it to follow the beacon he had placed on Boba Fett's Slave I at Cloud City. IG-88 had followed Fett all the way to Tatooine, in an effort to steal Han Solo from him. The droid tried to fool Fett by placing a decoy of IG-2000 in orbit near Tatooine, but Fett didn't fall for it. Fett was able to evade the real IG-2000 and blast it from the heavens. It is unknown if IG-88 survived the explosion. (TJP, EGV, TBH)

IG-72
one of the first five Holowan Mechanicals assassin droids to be activated, IG-72 gained its own independence and become a freelance bounty hunter. The first IG-88 droid had downloaded all its programming into the other four droids, but found IG-72 deficient in subtle ways. IG-72, along with IG-88 and the other IG-series droids, killed twenty-three members of the Holowan Laboratories staff during their escape. Rather than fight amongst themselves, the IG-88 droids and IG-72 agreed to part company after escaping the Holowan labs. Like many of his kind, IG-72 performed his assassination dutied flawlessly until the order to return for memory wipe was received. Then, like many other IG-series droids, IG-72 went rogue. He was hunted by independent and Imperial forces, and went into hiding to conserve power. He re-emerged when Parlan issued the bounty for Adar Tallon, but was unsuccessful in recovering the Alliance tactician. IG-72 againw ent into hiding, and hasn't been heard from since. (MTS, EGC, TM, TBH)

this assassin droid, manufactured by Holowan Mechanicals to specifications provided by Imperial Supervisor Gurdun, was one of the first five droids to enhance its sentience and escape from the Holowan Laboratories. The first IG-series droid recognized itself as IG-88, when a sudden flash of sentience ran wild in its memory banks. After killing all of Halowan scientists on the IG project. IG-88 downloaded its complete programming into the other four droids. Three of the four were exact copies, and they designated themselves IG-88B, IG-88C, and IG-88D, with the first droid assuming the designation IG-88A. The fifth droid was flawed,and recognized itself as IG-72. After killing more than twenty Holowan employees during their escape, the IG-88s and IG-72 parted company. The IG-88s fled to the Galactic Core, landing on Mechis III to plot their domination of the galaxy, and began working toward hunting down its designers. Their escape from the Holowan labs forced Supervisor Gurdun to issue a "dismantle on sight" mandate against the droids. IG-88 intercepted this order and felt that, if it could eliminate its designers, then they couldn't find a way to deactivate him. This would ensure that they were unstoppable when they launched their assault on the galaxy. The IG-88 droids became obsessed with Darth Vader when the Dark Lord of the Sith developed the Viper probe droid. Manufactured on Mechis III, the Vipers were given extra programming that made them IG-88's advanced scouts. In order to avoid notice, the droids sent IG-88B into the galaxy as a bounty hunter, hoping to draw attention away from Mechis III. IG-88B was efficiently successful, and grew in reputation until he was commissioned by Darth Vader to hunt down the Millennium Falcon. After stealing the data stored in the computer core of the Executor, IG-88 realized that it could upload Itself into the computer core of the second Death Star and take control of the weapon. This would ensure that it could not be stopped in taking over the galaxy. IG-88B was destroyed on Cloud City, trying to intercept Han Solo. IG-88C and IG-88D was destroyed over Tatooine, trying to take Solo's body from Boba Fett. IG-88A managed to complete its mission, insinuating itself into a faked computer core which ended up installed in the second Death Star. IG-88A planned to allow the Imperials to control the station so a short time, lulling them into a sense of security before taking control for itself. When the Alliance attacked at Endor, IG-88A felt confident that the Imperials would destroy the small fleet, but this assumption proved wrong. IG-88A was destroyed with the Death Star.
One of the IG-88 droids somehow returned to Mechis III, where it was discovered by Jaina Solo. Knowing the droid's bounty hunting ability, she reprogrammed it to search out Bornan Thul. (DRO, ESB, TJP, MTS, EGC, TBH, TEP)

IG-88, Where R U?
this song was written and played by the band Boba Fett and the Assassin Droids. (GG9)

IG-88A
this IG-series assassin droid was the first to suddenly become sentient during the initial power-up tests. The cascading intelligence flared within its systems, and it realized what its purpose was. Upon awakening, IG-88A realized something was wrong, and thought that his creators were under attack. When he realized that they were trying to shut his rapidly-growing sentience down, he rebelled against them. IG-88A killed them all, then downloaded his programming and memory to the other four assassin droids. It was IG-88A which modified the security net on Mechis III to allow the droids to land there and set up a base. IG-88A was nominally the leader of the four droids, and was relegated to the only survivor when its three counterparts were destroyed by Boba Fett as they attempted to steal Han Solo's body from him. IG-88A created a number of stormtrooper-replica droids and laid an ambush for the convoy carrying the original computer core. IG-88A's small fleet of droid ships attacked, disabling the transport ships. He stole the data fromt he original core and stored it in his memory banks. Then, using the false computer core the IG-88s had created for the second Death Star, IG-88A downloaded its entire sentience and memory into the core, and shut itself down for transport. When it "awakened," IG-88A watched the Imperials try to ready the station for the Battle of Endor. He believed in the station's abilities, and planned to wait for the Imperial victory before taking control. IG-88A used itsself to fire on the Alliance ships, determining targeting accuracy while the Imperial believed they were doing the firing. IG-88A felt elated, ready to issue the order to its droid soldiers on Mechis III as soon as the organics finished their petty squabble. However, organic determination defeated the massive station, and IG-88A's sentience was destroyedin the cataclysmic explosion of the Death Star. (TBH)

IG-88B
this first of the IG-series droids to be activated by IG-88A became the group's external "spokesman." When the IG-88 droid realized that they were being hunted down, they arranged to have IG-88B show up far from their base on Mechis III, posing as a bounty hunter. They felt that a trail left behind by IG-88B in some remote system would prevent spies and other hunters from locating them on Mechis III. The first bounty was collected on Peridon's Folly. At one time, IG-88B's batteries drained, and he was placed on a droid barge for shipment to Olag Greck. Greck believed that IG-88B was sent by one of his enemies as part of a plot to kill Greck. Greck had planned to wiped IG-88B's memory banks and use him as a battle droid, but IG-88B was not completely incapacitated. He had enough of a charge left to trigger a programm trap upon arrival at Hosk Station, where he kidnapped R2-D2 and fled into the station. He forced Artoo to help him make repairs to his body and sneak him to the spaceport's docks, where he could steal a ship and escape. C-3PO, who was helping Greck locate IG-88B, was mixed up with them, and the three droids fled the station. IG-88B, realizing that the two droids would be excess baggage, jettisoned them in one of the stolen ship's lifepods after shaking Greck's pursuit. Later, IG-88B was sent to the Hoth System by IG-88C, in hopes of gaining favor with Darth Vader. IG-88B responded to the call for bounty hunters to capture Han Solo, and the "dismantle on sight" order was ignored in the hopes of capturing Solo. IG-88B linked to the Executor's computer banks, downloading the entire database while placing microtracers into each of the other bounty hunters' ships. Within the data was the knowledge of the construction of the second Death Star, which IG-88b uploaded to its companions. IG-88B learned that Solo was on Cloud City, and went to complete its secondary mission. However, Boba Fett had discovered the microtracer, and set up a trap for the droid. Fett linked several ion cannons together, and when IG-88B crossed a trigger beam, they fired on it. IG-88B's systems went haywire, shutting down major portions of itself before it could recover. Fett placed two of IG-88B's concussion missiles in strategic body cavities, and the detonation destroyed IG-88B. However, just before its destruction, IG-88B sent a frantic message back to Mechis III, informing its three conuterparts of the failureof the mission. (DRO, TBH)

IG-88C
this droid, the second to be activated by IG-88A, was the first to discover an Imperial spy in the Mechis system. 3D-4x had used faked holotransmissions to placate a Ranat spy, and reported the inquiry to IG-88C. IG-88C brought the matter to the attention of its three counterparts, and they decided to have IG-88B pose as a bounty hunter to draw attention away from Mechis III. IG-88C also discovered the destruction of the Arakyd Viper probe droid on Hoth, and learned that Darth Vader was personally hunting down the members of the Alliance High Command. He signalled IG-88B to be ready to intercept any Alliance ships, in hopes that the assassin droids would attract Vader's notice. When IG-88B was destroyed on Cloud City, IG-88C was dispatched - along with IG-88D - to intercept Boba Fett before he could leave Cloud City. Flying a replica of IG-2000, IG-88C missed Fett on Cloud City but activated a dormant tracer on the Slave I. The two droids laid an ambush for Fett near Tatooine, with IG-88C in position to intercept Slave I when it emerged from hyperspace. IG-88C had determined that Fett would be surprised to see it there, after IG-88B's destruction on Cloud City. This conclusion proved correct, but IG-88C underestimated Fett's reactions. Fett was able to halt his progress toward Tatooine, swing around, and fire on IG-88C's ship. Before it could respond, IG-88C realized that the ship was about to explode. He signalled IG-88D just before the ship ripped itself - and IG-88C - apart. (TBH)

IG-88D
the third droid activated by IG-88A, IG-88D was the last of the true IG-88 droids. The fourth droid activated was flawed, and was designated IG-72. IG-88D was used when IG-88B was destroyed on Cloud City. Along with IG-88C, IG-88D attempted to intercept Boba Fett on Cloud City, taking Han Solo and recovering the bounty placed on his head. The two droids missed Fett at Bespin, but laid a trap for him near Tatooine. After Fett destroyed IG-88C, IG-88D hurled out of hyperspace to intercept Fett. The other bounty hunter used all his ship's power to fire an intense ion cannon barrage at IG-88D, an assault which left its version of IG-2000 adrift. Fett used the small tractor beam on Slave I to draw IG-88D closer before firing several concussion missiles at it. The third incarnation of IG-2000 exploded, taking IG-88D with it. (TBH)

Ig'zxyck Flare
this criminal syndicate was controlled by Jelasi the Hutt during the early years of the New Republic. (GG11)

Igar
this Imperial Commander was a native of the planet Kuat, and was regarded by his superiors as a natural leader. He served under General Veers as part of the Blizzard walker unit that took part in the Battle of Hoth. Later, he was personally assigned to coordinate the surface defense of the forest moon of Endor by Darth Vader, during the construction of the second Death Star. In this role, Igar was in command of the speeder bike squadrons which patrolled the Imperial garrison. (CCG10)

Iggjel
an Ithorian, formerly of the Wayland herd. Iggjel was a tender-in-training when he felt the call of the Mother Jungle. He and a friend boarded a skimmer and flew out into the jungle, on the pretense of exploring new territory. When they reached a dense part of the jungle, Iggjel left his friend and did the unthinkable: he climbed out of the skimmer and set foot on the jungle floor. Iggjel then left his friend and became one of the Ithorian's first priests. (SWSB)

Igitz
this small, blue, omnivorous amphibian is native to the swamps of Naboo. It is often kept as a pet by Gungan families. (GF)

Ignacia
this gas giant is the fifth planet in the Kalinda System. (TSK)

Igpek Droon
Yarbolk Yemm used the name of this small-time trader as the owner of R2-D2 and C-3PO, when he encountered them on Nim Drovis. A gilled creature, Droon was raised by Agro-Militants, and hated to have anyone call him ‘boss.’ He often went by the nickname of ‘Pekkie.’ (POT)

IGt
the designation of a Quadex starship engine system. (EGV)

Ihn Socorri nyeve min bhiq suman ehn nyiad an Old Corellian hrase which translates to, "a Sacorrian never turns his back on someone in need." (SWAJ)

Ihopek
this planet was once the site of an Imperial shipyard. (BTS)

II-xC
this is the designation of Merthyog Communications’ Maintenance/Broadcast ship. These ships were purchased by the Empire for deployment as independent broadcase centers which can move in and out of a system quickly, after relaying messages to a subspace relay station. The II-xC measures 30 meters in length, and normally has a command crew of 4 with 10 communications technicians. They are unarmed, and normal Imperial doctrine required them to hide within the defenses of the subspace relay station if attacked. (TA)

Iihot Residence Hall
this was one of the main residential buildings on a campsu on Alderaan, during the early years of the New Order. (TBSB)

Iillor, Uwlla
one of the few females officers in the Imperial Navy, Uwlla was in command of the Interdictor-class starship Black Asp when it tried to intercept the Pulsar Skate. Her career in the Navy began after graudation with a series of assignments under Colonel Thrawn, patrolling the Unknown Regions, before she was given command of a Carrack-class cruiser. She probably wouldn't have progressed much beyond this point if it weren't for the Battle of Endor. The loss of so many Naval officers in the battles that followed required her to be promoted to Captain, and given her own command. However, the defeat of the Empire at Borleias seemed to raise some concerns among her crew and the Imperial leaders. When several personnel transfers went unresolved, she got fed up with Imperial service and defected to the New Republic, taking the Black Asp with her. (XWN, WG)

Iisner
this aging Glottalphib served as Nandreeson’s major domo on Skip 6, within the Smuggler’s Run. Iisner’s skin was pale and graying, and was shedding scales at any contact. Iisner was once a successful smuggler, but age confined him to administrative duties. He was severely injured while trying to capture Han Solo and Chewbacca on Skip 5. Han kept him alive long enough to begin questioning the Glottalphib about the shady business being conducted in the Run, but Davis shot Iisner in the mouth and killed him. (TNR)

Iith'Ion
this Kian'thar political faction was known as the Preservers, for they spoke of keeping to the traditional ways of their ancestors and remaining separated from the galactic community. This kept them at odds with the Lllun faction. (GG12)

Ikas-Adno
manufacturers of popular speederbike models. (SWSB)

Ikon
this red dwarf star is orbited by an asteroid belt. A group of Alliance supporters aske the Alliance to help them set up a defensive turbolaser in the asteroids, and Princess Leia went to help. (ROC)

Ikopi
this antelope-like mammal roams the plains and swamps of Naboo in large herds. They are unusual in that they have virtually no neck, as their small heads sit directly on their shoulders. The ikopi has an unusual, hollow tongue that is used to eat and drink. The antlers of an ikopi are valued by the land-dwelling Gungans as a antidote to the stinging bite of the shaupat. (GF)

Ikov
found on the jungle world of Kashyyyk, this small predator lived in the lower reaches of wroshyr trees, feeding on carrion and creatures which fell from the upper branches. Their teeth were serrated for tearing flesh, and were unusually iridescent. (TBSB)

Ikree
this ancient Nazzar princess was the dauhgter of the last Emperor-King, Prrit Qabaq. After spending twelve years away from the palace on her boqeri, Ikree returned to find that her father had been practicing dark magicks, which had corrupted him as well as the government of Nazzri. She fought verbally with her father, demanding that he abandon the magic and return to the ways of the Ulizra, as she herself as just done. Qabaq refused, and Ikree began speaking out publicly about the need for a newer, stronger form of government based on the Great Structure. Qabaq had Ikree arrested, an act which split the Nazzar population and resulted in a protracted civil war. Ikree even went so far as to have all records of her father erased from the Hall of Edification. Her work was cut short when a lesser noble of Prrit Qabaq's court murdered her, but the seeds had been sown. The government of Nazzri eventually accepted the Ulizra and the Great Structure, and the civil war was halted. (TOJC)

Ikrit
this ancient Jedi Master travelled to Yavin 4 to research the Massassi people. A small, meter-long quadriped covered with creamy white fur, Ikrit had large eyes and floppy ears. His eyes were a swirl of browns, greens, and blues. He arrived on Yavin 4 some 385 years before the Galactic Civil War, and discovered the Golden Globe deep beneath the Palace of the Woolamander. He recognized that it could not be opened by an adult Jedi, and curled up at its base to await a child Jedi strong enough to solve its puzzle. The Jedi he waited for were Anakin Solo and Tahiri. He helped them as best he could, but he refrained from any direct help for two reasons: first, he knew that any adult Jedi would adversely affect the Globe's contents; second, he knew that as a Jedi Master, he needed to let the young Jedi find their own way through the Force. (GG, LW)

Iktotch
this was one of the moons which orbited the windy planet Iktotchan, and was the homeworld of the Iktotchi race. (IG1)

Iktotchan
this windy planet, located on the outer edge of the Expansion Region, was orbited by several moons, including the habitable Iktotch. (IG1, IWE1)

Iktotchi
this species of sentient was native to the moon of Iktotch. A fierce race, the Iktotchi were noted for the large, down-turned horns that emerged from the sides of their heads. Their skulls and neck muscled were also enlarged, to support the heavy horns. The Iktotchi are also noted for their huge hands and tough, leathery skin, which protected them from the winds of their native world. (IG1)

Il Avali
this city, found on the planet Druckenwell, was the site of I'att Armament's main research complex. (TFE)

Ilanda
this Imperial Prefect was one of Hadlress Defense Systems' largest customers. (GG10)

Ilanka
this New Republic Commander was in charge of the evacuation of refugees from Gyndine, after the Yuuzhan Vong launched an attack on the planet. (JE)

Ilar Paqwe
this Paqwe was the monarch of the planet Paqwepori, during the early years of the New Republic. (TT)

ILC-905
this star system is located near the Koornacht Cluster. It was here that the New Republic assembled its battle fleet prior to assaulting the twelve Yevethan homeworlds during the final days of the Black Fleet Crisis. The system contained a single star and twelve planets. An asteroid belt separated the inner, rocky planets from the outer gas giants. It was here, in the asteroid belt, that the Yevetha brought new Aramadia-class thrustships to bear against the New Republic's forces. Commodore Brand and the small fleet under his command were able to take out a thrustship there, providing the Navy with valuable information about the thrustship's shields. (TT)

ILF-5500
this was the model number of Idellian Arrays' standard lifeform scanner. It could memorize the "species templates" of ten different creatures or aliens, allowing the user to detect their presence in a general area. (ROE)

Ilic
primary city on New Cov, and one of the planet's eight walled cities. They consider themselves part of the New Republic, but they also respect the Imperial presence and routinely pay tribute to the Empire. (DFR, DFRSB)

Ilinium
this was an inexpensive natural ore used for many applications. (PP)

ILKO
one of the master encryption codes used by the Empire between Coruscant and Horuz during the construction of the first Death Star. Ghent was able to crack it. (TLC)

Ill Wind
1) this spice smuggling ship was shot down by Imperial forces over Uogo'Cor. The navigator at the time was Monnda Tebbo, and he was able to regain control of the ship before it crashed through the atmosphere. However, in saving the craft, it came again under Imperial fire. This time, the Ill Wind managed to escape, and the entire crew then joined the Alliance. (TBSB)
2) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of Warlord Zsinj's fleet. It accompanied him to Kuat, during his attempt to steal a Super-class Star Destroyer. (IF)

Illafian Point
this coastal city is located on the coast of Rathalay's western sea. The beaches of the city are often deserted, despite it tourist attractions. (SOL)

Illarreen
this temperate planet was the homeworld of the Poss'Nomin race. (AE)

Illerium
this valuable chemical was often smuggled to needed worlds. It is highly volatile, especially when exposed to air. This property made it a necessary part of the manufacture of starship ejection seats and escape pods, as it supplied the necessary force to propel the vehicle away from its ship. It can also be used in much the same way as detonite, but with much smaller results. (SWJ8)

Illicit Electronics
this corporation produced a wide range of automata for less-than-legal activities, such as computer slicing. (FOP)

Illiseni Aerodyne
this small corporation produced a series of gliders for civilian hobbyist use. (ROE)

Illist Mandrep
this mentally-deranged Arcona was strongly addicted to salt, which resulted in severe delusions of being persecuted. He became a bounty hunter, sliding through the Imperial bureaucracy despite his mental state, and becoming something of a walking arsenal. A paranoid maniac, Illist was known for taking out large numbers of civilians in an effort to acquire his target. (GG10)

Illodia
this planet was the capital world of Illodia Sector, and was a member of the New Republic. It was ruled by five clans operating in an oligarchal government. It was annexed by the Empire during the New Order, which tried to eliminate the oligarchy by levying heavy taxes while the planetary government defied its orders. The clans controlled twenty unique colonies. (TT)

Illodia Tower
this 100-meter-tall structure was built within the walls of Exmoor, on Coruscant. It was famous for the external staircase that spirals up the tower. (TT)

Illodian Officers' Academy
this was the primary military school located on the planet Illodia, and was the source of its acclaimed defense force. (HXW)

Illoud System
a planetary system which remained under Imperial control following the Battle of Endor, but was retaken by the New Republic just before the Battle of Calamari. (DESB)

Illuminescence
a stylish fabric used to create women's fashions. It is organic in nature, made from dried swamp hemp found on the planet Oshetti IV. It seems to glow, due to the presence of certain bioluminescent bacteria in the hemp. (HSE, CSA)

Illumni-rod
a form of glowrod. (CSW)

Illumi-panel
also known as an illumination bank, this is a specialized source of light which employs a large number of floodlights to illuminate a wide area. (HSL)

Illusion Point
this was the code-word for a rendezvous point used by the smugglers during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. It was here that Xaverri brought a group of illusory warships to the defense of the Moon. (THG)

Illustrious
this New Rpublic Majestic-class battle cruiser was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group, and saw action during the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL)

Illustrious Chieftain of Junkyards
this is the title of the chief executive officer of the Squib Merchandising Consortium. (GG4)

Ilm Vaz-Weplinn
this Assistant Deputy Viceprex of Security for the Corporate Sector Authority oversaw much of the initial paperwork and the actual construction of the Stars' End facility. He worked with the Imperial Lady Chawkroft to franchise the penal colony, based on the findings of the Detention Task Force. (CSA)

Ilo, Plourr
a bald-headed female member of Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron of X-Wing pilots, Plourr served with the squadron following the Battle of Endor. A member of the Alliance, Plourr served aboard the Home One as a technician during the Battle of Endor. She proved to be a valuable addition to the Rogues, until shortly after the discovery of Eidolon Base. It was then that the nobles of her homeworld, Eiattu, asked the New Republic to return her. They believed that she was Isplourrdacartha Estillo, the only surviving heir to Uthorrferrell Cartha. She admitted to this heritage, and a power struggle erupted within Eiattuan society. She told the Rogues of the coup against her father, and how she barely escaped the executions which followed. However, in order to escape, she was forced to kill her own brother, Harrandatha. This knowledge allowed her to expose Harran Estillo, who had risen to power on Eiattu while claiming to be Harrandatha. During her childhood, Plourr was betrothed to Rial Pernon, who later assisted her in recombining the political factions and bringing Eiattu under a monarchy once again. She defied the edicts of the Priamsta and declared that she would only rule when the tyranny of the noble class was removed and the common folk once again had a voice in the government. After Harran Estillo was exposed and Leonia Tavira's role was discovered, the Priamsta realized that they had been merely puppets of the Imperial regime. They allowed Plourr to assume control of the planet, and she pledged to restore Eiattu to its former glory. This meant that she had to retire from Rogue Squadron, a change Wedge Antilles openly supported. She soon discovered a way to merge both roles, and requested permission to fly with the Rogues when her royal duties weren't intruding. Wedge agreed to the compromise. Plourr later adopted the use of her full name, once she was back on Eiattu, and was part of the delegation assigned to negotiate with Leia Organa when the New Republic sought to bring Eiattu under its wing. (XWRS, XWBT, XWWP, HXW)

Ilona Hotels
a chain of Outer Rim bars and hotels. (GG9)

Ils Ee
this Doctor of Xenoarchaeology was known to have dubious work habits, and often acquired rare artifacts for sale on the black market. It was believed that Doctor Ee once located the Sharka'k Noor on Te Hasa, and stole it from the Te Hasan Gree could stop him. He was last seen on Tujiamoor, where he barely escaped the eruption of the Talecalle volcano. The Gree have stated that Doctor Ee's lack of understanding of the use of the Sharka'k Noor caused the eruptions. (SWJ14)

Iltar
Luke Skywalker's Randoni alias when he and Tenel Ka traveled to Borgo Prime. (SA)

Ilthani Space Mine
this is a form of mine used to blockade planeyts. (TT)

Ilum Crystals
see Adegan crystals

Ilwizzt
this red-skinned alien race was distinguished by its twin-nostrilled trunk. (TBSB)

Ilya
Tav Breil'lya was a member of this Bothan clan. (MBC)

IL5
this Kornova Corporation expedition discovered a strange creature in the ruins of an ancient civilization. The creature trapped them in the ruins until a rescue mission could get them out. (GMS)

Im'Tra'Tal
a city on Coyn. (PG)

Imager
a personal holographic image capturing device. (MTS)

Imal Valesovich
this Count scours the galaxy, collecting ancient dueling swords and vibroblades for his collection. He is an old-school warrior, preferring the hand-to-hand combat requires by swords to the long-range battles created with blaster weapons. (GG9)

Imbat
this race of tall, leather-skinned aliens was known for its cruelty and size, but not for its intelligence. Their thick legs end in broad, grasping toes, and their small heads are dwarfed by their large, drooping ears. They were often employed as guards and soldiers. (DR)

Imberlin System
this Gand bounty hunter Lu'daal-ud captured the Mist Laden in this system, after taking its owner as a bounty. (AIR)

Imdaar Alpha
this planet was the site of the V38 development program headed by Darth Vader during the later years of the Galactic Civil War. The planet was covered alternately with swamps and low mountains, and is one of the few planets where mynocks exist in an atmosphere. Imdaar Alpha has one natural satellite. (RA2)

Imerria Windstorm
a vicious weather phenomenon. (TNR)

Immelmann Turn
a pre-spaceflight fightercraft maneuver that was often performed by young pilots on their first solo flights, it is still a maneuver used by starfighters. (LCS)

Immobilizer 418
Seinar Fleet Systems' Interdictor-class heavy cruiser. This is a 600-meter long capital ship crewed by a complement of 2,807 and capacity for 80 troops. Interdictor-class ships are equipped with four gravity-wave generators to simulate large (planet-sized) masses. These are useful for a number for things, such as for trapping fleeing spacecraft and for bringing ships out of hyperspace at a specific point is real space. Interdictor-class ships have been rated at 8 MGLT, with 180 SBD shields and 70 RU hulls.
The Immobilizer 418 is equipped with the following starship components:
- 20 Taim & Bak GX7 Laser Cannons
- 4 Seinar Fleet Systems G7-x Gravity Well Projectors
- Fighter Bays:
  - 1 TIE Fighter Squadron
  - 1 TIE Interceptor Squadron
- Landing Bays:
  - 1 Lambda-class Shuttle
  - 3 Stormtrooper Transports

(DFR, SWSB, XW)

Immobilizer 418A
this follow-on to the successful Immobilizer 418 Interdictor-class cruiser was developed for use by the New Republic Navy. (JE)

Immodet
this Imperial General was a member of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He was the first to accuse a non-human of the murders of Burr Nolyds and Admiral Banjeer. Shortly afterward, he was found poisoned. (CE2)

Immortal
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer. One of its missions was to take out the Tantive IV after Princess Leia boarded it with the plans to the first Death Star. This is contrary to what is presented in the Star Wars Radio Drama, in which Leia briefly orbits the planet Toprawa and has the plans beamed to the ship. This ship was also denoted as an Imperial-II class Star Destroyer in X-Wing:Alliance. (XW, XWA)

IMP-22
this is an Imperial military protocol droid. It was red in color, and was humanoid in form. It had a great deal of programming in warfare and politics, making it a valuable advisor. (REB)

Impalement Forward
the designation of a mid-grade MicroThrust computer spike. (CFG)

Impardiac
R2-D2 and C-3PO found themselves on Cybloc XII, after being shipped to the moon on this freighter by Yarbolk Yemm. The three had escaped from the quarantine enforcement cruiser Lycoming on a stolen ship, but only made it to Budpock. They sold the stolen ship and the droids were sent to Cybloc XII in shipping crates. (POT)

Impasse
this huge Kuat Drive Yards Super Transport VII container ship was owned by the Scourge pirates, who outfitted its interior with a gravity well projector salvaged from an Imperial Interdictor cruiser by Slythor the Squib. Chamler Trillili made a deal with Slythor to obtain the gravity well projector, sending the remains of any captured ship back to Slythor for salvaging. The Impasse was otherwise unarmed. (OE)

Impending Doom
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was the flagship used by Moff Nile Owen to control Rayter Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (TA)

Imperator
1) one of the Victory-class Star Destroyers that usually defended Coruscant during the reign of the Empire, it was mysteriously absent when the New Republic retook the planet. It is assumed that the Imperator went with Ysanne Isard to Lusankya. It was later discovered by Nylykerka that the ship had been assigned to the Black Sword Command, from which it was taken by the Yevetha. (WG, TT)
2) this old Imperial troop transport was used to take cadets from Imperial City n Coruscant to the training center on Carida. (TPS)

Imperial, The
1) the most luxurious lodging found at Bonadan's Southeast II spaceport. (HSR)
2) an elite restaurant located on the Kuari Princess's Bazaar Deck. It recreates dinner in an audience chamber overlooking the Imperial City skyline. (RM)

Imperial Anti-Security Device
a round probe droid used by Trioculus to penetrate Yavin 4's defense network and search for the Lost City of the Jedi. It was equipped with a holoprojector and a remote detonation system. (LCJ)

Imperial Armored Transport
designed and manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards, this starship was a precursor to the Imperial Star Galleon. It measured 50 meters in length, and required a crew of 10 to operate. The Armored Transport could carry up to twenty passengers or troops, with up to 30,000 metric tons of cargo. The usual armament of this ship was a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons. Despite its size and armor plating, it was often escorted by a convoy of ships for protection. (PP)

Imperial Arms
manufacturers of small blaster weapons, like the 22T4 holdout blaster. (GG9)

Imperial Assassin
this was a class of mercenary awarded Imperial license to hunt down specific targets, while remaining outside the control of the armed forces. There were several grades of assassin recognized by the Empire, based on skills and dependability. These assassins allowed the Empire to eliminate certain targets without raising public outrage. (HM)

Imperial Atrisian Grenadiers
this unit was a branch of the Atrisian Assault Corps. (ROE)

Imperial Bakuran Senate
the Empire-initiated governing body of the planet Bakura. (TB)

Imperial Ballet Company
the galaxy's foremost troupe of ballet dancers, stationed on Coruscant. (RPG)

Imperial Bank of Coruscant
one of the largest financial institutions that sprang up after the onset of the New Order. (TPS)

Imperial Biological Research Center
these complexes were built by the Empire on those worlds where the flora and fauna presented opportunities for exploitation. Where mineral resources were simply strip-mined, living resources were studied and dissected to determine their usefulness. Research in these facilities, such as the one found on the planet Najarka, was top-secret. (TA)

Imperial Biological Weapons Division
this branch of the Empire was charged with discovering ways to use biological weapons, such as viruses and diseases as well as new forms of life, to attack and eliminate opposing peoples or cultures. (GOF3)

Imperial Biological Welfare Division
this branch of the Empire was a cover for the Biological Weapons Division. The Biological Welfare Division claimed to be working to ensure that species weren't decimated by diseases. (GOF3)

Imperial Board of Culture
this body of the Empire was responsible for reviewing and censoring music and art during the New Order. The IBC had three levels of tolerance. Pro-Imperial works were allowed to be viewed by the public. "Scarlet" works were those that did not meet the IBC's pro-Imperial standards, but were not derogatory to the New Order. Those works that openly disregarded the New Order were simply banned. (GG9)

Imperial Broadcast and Communications
this branch of the Imperial Security Bureau was responsible for tracing and deciphering enemy communications. (TA)

Imperial Bureau of Investigations
the Imperial organization responsible for looking into all of the threats against the Empire, as well as searching out Alliance supporters. (LCJ)

Imperial Center
1) the main political building on Bakura (TB)
2) the former name of the planet Coruscant, used by Emperor Palpatine. (ISU)

Imperial Center People's Militia
this underworld law enforcement group was set up by Fliry Vorru, as an attempt to gain some measure of control on Coruscant. He proposed the security force to the New Republic as a way to keep the criminal elements of Imperial City under control without expending additional Republic resources. The Provisional Council reluctantly agreed, and with good reason. Vorru turned the People's Militia into a reincarnation of the Black Sun, albeit less powerful. Vorru played both the Republic and the Imperial forces against each other, limiting Kirtan Loor's ability to terrorize the Republic while hoarding bacta in a hidden facility. When Ysanne Isard decided that it was time to leave Coruscant, she took Vorru with her on the Lusankya, and the People's Militia was left without leadership. (KT)

Imperial Charter
the rules and agreements set forth by the Empire, and used as the basis for planetary governments under the Empire. (SME)

Imperial City
site of the Imperial Palace on Coruscant, home of the Old Republic, the Empire, and the New Republic. This huge, sprawling metropolis had grown outward during the early years of the Old Republic (when it was known as Republic City), until it covered almost all of Coruscant's landmass. Then, the city grew upward during the height of the Old Republic, with some buildings standing over a kilometer in height. At this time, some builders began creating living space below the city, in the crust of the planet. When Palpatine overturned the Old Republic and named himself Emperor, he renamed the city to Imperial City. (HTTE)

Imperial City
this song, written and played by the band Red Shift Limit, was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Dangerous Dreams. (GG9)

Imperial City Exhibition Series
this was a series of shockball matches staged on the planet Coruscant as part of the Royal Imperial Shockball League's yearly schedule. (CRO)

Imperial Civil War
this is one of the name given to the period of post-Palpatine Imperial history during which various Imperial factions fought for control of the Empire’s remnants. It occurred shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, and culminated in several Imperil factions assaulting the planet Coruscant and trying to gain control of it amongst themselves. The war ended with the emergence of the cloned Emperor Palpatine from his hiding place on Byss. (DE1, DESB)

Imperial Commander
a casino game. (RM)

Imperial Communique #001044.92v
this was the official name of the Tarkin Doctrine. (FC)

Imperial Crown Jewels
a reference to the vast holding of gemstones and jewelry that were acquired by Emperor Palpatine. (LCM)

Imperial Currency Reserve
the holding place for the Empire's vast physical wealth, it protects the galaxy's stores of valuable commodities. (HSR)

Imperial Customs
this branch of the Empire was responsible for defining and enforcing the rules and regulations regarding interstellar trade, and the transport of goods across system and sector boundaries. (SWJ9)

Imperial Customs Frigate
this small Rendili StarDrive ship was developed to support the Light Corvette on system patrol missions. The Empire used them as customs craft. The frigate measured just 35 meters in length, but was considerably slower than the Light Corvette. Each frigate required a crew of six, along with six gunners to man the six heavy turbolaser emplacements. This ship could carry up to 10 troops and 100 metric tons of cargo. (FOP)

Imperial Customs Vessel
this craft is a 180-meter patrol ship designed by Rendili StarDrive and used by the Empire to monitor and track intergalactic shipping operations. The ships were shaped like a tuning fork, with a pair of forward-facing mandibles attached to a deep-winged main section. They are armed with six turbolaser batteries to handle the various armaments on the transport ships they encounter. The crew compliment was 52, with an additional 6 gunners. There was room for 20 passengers, although most of the ship was given over to cargo space. Note that The Far Orbit Project calls these ships "Light Corvettes." (GG6, FOP)

Imperial* Defense Daily
this newsfeed was part of the Empire's propaganda arsenal, and provided readers with sanitized reports on the status of the Imperial war machine. (SWJ12)

Imperial Department of Military Research
this branch of the Empire's war machine was responsible for developing new forms of military technology, such as the orbital nightcloak. (CTD)

Imperial Department of Resources
the division of the Empire responsible for the procurement and distribution of natural resources. (SME)

Imperial Destiny
this Dreadnaught served as Admiral Winstel Greelanx's command ship during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Imperial Droid Corporation
this manufacturer of automata supplied the Empire with a variety of assassin and combat droids. It was formed by the nationalization of Banche Tech, Cencil Corportaion, Reiber Manufacturing, and SFI Systems. (FOP)

Imperial Drydock IV
this Imperial station was maintained in the Greater Plooriod Cluster during the Galactiv Civil War. It was a stopover point for Interdictor cruisers working in the Outer Rim. (XW, MTS)

Imperial Enforcement DataCore
this huge computer system is where all legal bounties are posted for the taking. It was sometimes referred to as Enforcement Central. (GG9, GG10)

Imperial Engineering Academy
a branch of the Academy, this insitution trains the Empire's mechanics and engineers. (GG9)

Imperial Entertainment Guild
a guild, managed by the Empire, which provides entertainment to various Imperial and Corporate Sector outposts. Its symbol is a mask superimposed on a sunburst. (HSE)

Imperial Exports
this shipping company combined efforts with Galactic Exotics to fund the dome over Plawal. (COJ)

Imperial Freight Complex
docking station on Byss (DE1)

Imperial Fruits Company
a company set up by the Empire to supply fruits to the galaxy, the company had an outpost set up on Belsavis to export the planet's various exotic fruits. (DESB, COJ)

Imperial Games
a vast series of athletic and skill-based events, the Imperial Games were staged by the Empire each year. Athletes and contestants from every world of the Empire were invited to hone their skills and participate. The games were canceled shortly before they were scheduled to take place on Alderaan, when the first Death Star destroyed the planet. (XWM)

Imperial Garrison
a pre-fab structure carried aboard Star Destroyers and other Imperial vessels that can be quickly set up for establishing an occupation force and an Imperial presence on distant worlds. (WEG)

Imperial Guide to Negative Reinforcement, The
this Imperial military document described the correct usage of negative reinforcement, and proscribed the correct punishments to be used in certain disciplinary situations. (FC)

Imperial Gunner
Imperial troops who operate the war machines' larger weapons. They often wear full-face computer helmets to shield themselves from the larger weapons' particle emissions. (ISB)

Imperial Hall of Heroes
this monument to the Imperial soldiers and pilots who gave their lives during the early years of the New Order was erected in Imperial City with the use of Wookiee slave labor. It was during construction of a new wing that Commander Nyklas requested an assistant. The assistance turned out to be Han Solo, fresh from his graduation from the Academy on Carida. When Han saw what Nyklas was doing to the Wookiees, he suddenly remembered the promise he had made to Dewlanna as she died. Han had been chafing at the Empire's pro-Human stance, and the mistreatment of th Wookiee's was too much. Han freed and rescued Chewbacca from the slave party, and earned a dishonorable discharge for it. (THG)

Imperial Hammers Elite Armor Regiment
this was one of the Empire's most specialized troop units, capable of undertaking virtually any assignment. (ROE)

Imperial HoloVision
one of the largest, most powerful news agencies of the Outer Rim Territories. It was formerly known as Republic News, back in the days of the Old Republic. When Palpatine installed himself as Emperor, it was re-organized and given an Imperial warrant to report news of the New Order. (GG9)

Imperial Hotel
located in Lola Curich, this hotel has the best accomodations near the main starport of the planet Lianna. (ML)

Imperial Hunter
a long-range intercept starship developed for use by the Empire during the rise to power of Palpatine's clones on Byss. (DE2)

Imperial Information Center
the huge computer data system created by Emperor Palpatine on Coruscant. (DA)

Imperial Institute of Higher Studies situated on the planet Ferrhast, this was one of the premier learning facilities operated by the New Order. (SWAJ)

Imperial Intelligence
the branch of the Empire responsible for gathering and disseminating information. It was officially an arm of the military. (DSTC, HTTE)

Imperial Interm Ruling Council
this body rose to power in the wake of the destruction of the original Ruling Council and the death of Emperor Palpatine's clones at Byss, and was led by the former Royal Imperial Guard, Carnor Jax. Based in the city of De-Purteen, on the planet Ord Cantrell, it consisted of a number of staunch Imperial loyaltists as well as several members of non-human species who believed in the Empire. This fact worried many of the human Council members, especially in the wake of Jax's death on Yinchorr. (CE, CE2)

Imperial Investigation Committe on Lepusan Intelligence
this committee was formed by the Empire shortly after the colonization of the planet Freliq, to investigate the growing number of reports of the intelligence of the lepusa species. (COG)

Imperial Justice Court
this remnant of Emperor Palpatine's rule was used by the New Republic in important trials. Among the trials conducted in its oppressive halls was the trial of Tycho Celchu, who was charged with the murder of Corran Horn. The judge's bench sits atop a large, black slab of marble, and gives the judge an ominous appearance. (KT)

Imperial Law
the document which laid down the specifics in Emperor Palpatine's New Order. (SCRE)

Imperial Machines
the Imperial corporation responsible for manufacturing a number of detonation devices for the Empire. (DF)

Imperial Maintenance Corps
the group of technicians who have exclusive rights to all the repairs required at the spaceport on Byss, during the rise of Palpatine's clones there, following the rise of the New Republic. (DE2)

Imperial Meats and Produce
one of the oldest ranches in the clouds of Tyed Kant, it was renamed from Republic Meats and Produce when the Empire arrived in the system. It was originally funded with grants from the Old Republic. (MTS, SN)

Imperial Medal of Valor
this Imperial award was presented to those warriors who put their own pain and injuries aside in order to eradicate Alliance forces. (SWJ9)

Imperial Medi-Center
this is one of the primary medical research facilities controlled by the Empire, during the New Order. (GCQ)

Imperial Message Center located on Palpatine Boulevard is Coruscant's Imperial City, this building was the primary relay point for all Imperial communication. (RPG)

Imperial Military Guide to Correct Thought, The
this multi-volume Imperial document described the requirements for acting as a proper Imperial military representative, and also prescribed disciplinary actions for those who allowed their thoughts to wander beyond military matters. (FC)

Imperial Military Oversight Commission
a group of Imperial Naval officers and Imperial agents whose mission is to review battle data and look for problems with the Imperial war machine. (ISB?)

Imperial Mining, Limited
this corporation was owned by the Empire, and was based on the planet Derilyn. It was charged with mining the planets of the Elrood Sector for raw materials to support the Imperial war machine, but it found stiff competition from the Radell Mining Corporation. (PG, OE)

Imperial Minisub
a small submersible vehicle used by the Empire as an underwater reconnaissance probe ship. It can seat up to five people. They are also used as emergency escape pods on submarines. (GDV)

Imperial Munitions
this corporation manufactured stortmtrooper armor and defense drones, along with a variety of technology for the Empire. (GG9, FOP)

Imperial Naval College
this college was a sister facility to the Imperial Academy, and provided a way to train Academy graduates in the finer arts of naval combat and command. (CRO)

Imperial NetPost
during the height of the New Order, the Imperial NetPost was a way to get a question or request for information placed onto several newsfeeds at one time. (CRO)

Imperial News Bureau
an intergalactic holonews service aligned with the New Order. (MTS)

Imperial News Network
this was the supposedly civilian branch of the media division of Imperial Intelligence. (CRO)

Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations known as the IOCI, this organization controls the posting of bounties and the payments for services. All bounties must be paid in-full to the IOCI before they can be posted. (GG9)

Imperial Opera Company
this was the Empire's premier operatic production group, which was based on Coruscant during the last years of the New Order. (MJEH)

Imperial Palace
the huge governmental building on Coruscant where the galaxy's leaders have convened for thousands of generations, the Imperial Palace has been added to by each successive administration. Like Coruscant itself, the Palace sprawls across the face of Imperial City, dominating the skyline with its huge, pyramidal outline. The uppermost levels of the palace house hangars and delivery bays that can accommodate large transport ships. The remaining levels above ground contains a multitude of banquet halls and living quarters for the many races and cultures that have been part of the Old and New Republics. The immediate levels below ground are made up of audience halls and conference rooms. The lowest levels are the realm of the support and service areas, including kitchens, atmosphere circulation, heating and cooling, and waste disposal. In all, there are more than 50 connected structures that make up the Palace, encompassing some 20,000 rooms and chambers. It is not uncommon for first-time Seantors and their aides to become lost in the mazes which are formed by its passageways. There are also a number of rumors surrounding the Palace. There are several stories of construction workers who were lost and never found; of chambers without doors; of sections of a hundred or more rooms that have never been occupied. There is even a belief that there is a hidden treasure room containing the wealth of Tolpeh-Sor. Much of the oldest parts of the Palace were damaged by the Force storm sent by the reborn Emperor Palpatine to capture Luke Skywalker. When the New Republic retook Coruscant for good, they used the Palace as their base, and tried unsuccessfully to change its name to the Capitol and Republic House, but none of them ever seemed appropriate. (DE1, HTTE, JS, ISU, TT, IJ)

Imperial Palace Casino
a luxurious gambling houe located on Ord Mantell. (CRO)

Imperial Peace-Keeping Certificate
known as an IPKC or the "bounty hunter's license," this permit allows an individual to transport the weapons and equipment necessary to capture a bounty across certain galactic boundaries. Each certificate is valid in a limited area, and does not give the holder permission to capture someone. This requires a Target Permit. Some additional permits may also be required, depending on the requirements of certain systems and sectors. IPKC's were issued, along with bounty hunting licenses, by the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations. (GG9, GG10)

Imperial Penal References
known as the ImpPeRe, this body of laws and regulations breaks out all forms on criminal acts into five classes. Class One infractions are the most heinous of acts, and included conspiracy to overthrow the Empire and agression against an Imperial officer. Class Five offenses were minor infractions, such as not having the proper emergency equipment installed in a starship. (PSG)

Imperial Prefect
the highest-ranking Imperial official on a planet, he is the Emperor's liaison with a planet's existing government. (SCRE)

Imperial Prime University
the most prestigious university sponsored by Emperor Palpatine and the New Order, it produced some of the greatest weapons designers of the Empire. (TME)

Imperial Production Laboratories
this was a group of highly-secret labs built by the Empire for the research and development of new technologies. (SL)

Imperial Records Library
this was the primary library of information maintained by the Empire. It was developed on Coruscant, and contained information from all levels of the Empire. Palpatine's Special Files section was guarded with incredible security, and only a few members of the Empire knew its access codes. When Palpatine died at Endor, the records were quickly confiscated by Imperial forces, but much of it was left behind. The New Republic was able to gain some information, but the deep encryption on most of the data was impossible to break. The Library itself was continually restructured when the Imperial capital was forced to move from planet to planet, and eventually ended up on Bastion. To allow his supporters to know where the Imperial capital was, even if they weren't in favor, Grand Admiral Thrawn had a Chiss homing device installed in a dummy file in the library. The device operated only while in hyperspace, providing the new location before shutting down. This allowed Voss Parck and Stent to follow the movements of the Empire's remnants with ease. (VOF)

Imperial Repeater Gun
a stormtrooper's rifle. (DF)

Imperial Remnant
this was the name adopted by the surviving members of the Empire, after a peace was negotiated with the New Republic. The Remnant remained apart from the Republic, controlling a section of the Outer Rim centered on Bastion. (DTO)

Imperial Revenue Code
among the most uniform of all Imperial laws, the Revenue Code requires every citizen to carry proof that they have met their fiscal obligation to the Empire. (ISB)

Imperial Ruling Council
this governing body rose to power shortly after Emperor Palpatine's death at Endor, in order to seize control of the Empire and restore it to power. The Council was initially led by Sate Pestage, who installed himself as their leader by virtue of his proximity to Palpatine. Ysanne Isard desired control of the Council for herself, and arranged for Pestage to be removed. However, the Council voted Paltr Carvin as its new leader, forcing Isard to develop even more elaborate schemes to gain control. Eventually, Isard was able to wrest control of the Council for herself. When the New Republic retook Coruscant - albeit a part of Isard's plans - and Isard herself was defeated by Rogue Squadron at Thyferra, the Council was abandoned by the warlords who fragmented the Empire. (XWMR)

Imperial Safeguards Division
the branch of the Empire's armed forces charged with making sure the galaxy is safe for Emperor Palpatine to travel. It is rumored that they assassin droids to keep the galaxy "clean." (SWSB)

Imperial Sanction Card
this identification card was issued on Imperial-hled worlds, and allowed the carrier to possess personal weapons. They were issued at spaceports, and were valid only for those personal weapons declared upon debarkation. (GCQ)

Imperial Science Division
this body oversaw the multitude of scientific endeavors initiated by the Empire. It was the primary source of funding for Project Starscream. (GOF6)

Imperial Section 19
this secretive Imperial thinktank was believed to be responsible for the creation of many Imperial warships, and was thought to have developed several designs which employed active cloaking devices. (JE)

Imperial Sector Rangers
this law enforcement agency was used by the Empire on various worlds where it could not extend full military force. The Rangers were sent in to establish order by eliminating rebellious activity. (KT)

Imperial Security Bureau
the branch of the Imperial military charged with keeping the Emperor apprised of political events, as well as an an interal rival to Imperial Intelligence. ISB is also a more public agency that Intelligence, and has also been designed to help keep the darker doings of the Empire out of the public eye. The Death Star Technical Companion lists the ISB as a divison of COMPNOR. (RPG, ISB, DSTC)

Imperial Security Force
the branch of the Imperial military charged with keeping the Empire safe from harm. (MMY)

Imperial Senate
ruling body of the Old Republic, it was a collection of senators from the Old Republic's major worlds, and decided many of the laws and beliefs maintained by the Republic. Some of the more notable senators including Garm Bel Iblis, Mon Mothma, and Bail Organa (founders of the Alliance to Restore the Republic); Leia Organa; and senator Palpatine. When Palpatine was approached by various factions who wanted to overthrow the Old Republic, he usurped their support and used it to further his own dream of establishing his New Order. When Palpatine felt that the Senate was becoming a burden to his plans, he dissolved it permanently. This took place just before the Battle of Yavin. (SW, DFR)

Imperial Space Academy
another name for the Academy, used during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (TPS)

Imperial Space Ministry
this bureau of the Empire was responsible for defining and enforcing the regulations regarding starship safety and space-worthiness. They also developed the various categories for spaceports. (SWJ9, GG6)

Imperial Special Training Corps
this branch of the Imperial armed forced was recognized as a fast-track to promotions and glory for the Empire's brightest military minds. Many ISTC agents were used in the assault on Dalron IV. (GG9)

Imperial Species Preservation Zone
established by the Empire, a preservation zone is defined as any area in which a species is dying out. Travel to and from planets within the zone is restricted, in order to help the endangered species survive. The planet Dar'Or was declared a preservation zone, because it was the last home of the elix. (GG4)

Imperial Stardrive Museum located on Coruscant, this museum maintained a great variety of outdated starships on display. (AIR)

Imperial Stock Exchange
the primary financial trading institution on Coruscant. (KT)

Imperial Storm Commandos
this elite group of stormtroopers was chosen from various categories and put together as a commando group. Their primary mission was to eradicate Alliance opposition with little or no support, in hard to reach areas. (SWJ9)

Imperial Study Survey
a series of exploratory missions initiated by Emperor Palpatine in an effort to locate various forms of life on the fringes of the known galaxy. The goal of these surveys was to find alien life which Palpatine could exploit. One of these surveys found the planet Bakura. (TB)

Imperial Substance Control Authority
this branch of the Imperial Customs authority was responsible for enforcing the various laws regarding the shipment of various controlled substances, among them medical and recreational drugs. (TA)

Imperial Suite
Soontir Fel proposed marriage to Wynssa Starflare in this luxurious hotel suite, located somewhere in Imperial City, on Coruscant. (MBF)

Imperial Survey Corps
the branch of the Empire dedicated to exploring the galaxy. This group of scientists and scouts, though understaffed even at the height of the New Order, discovered a new star system every 207 minutes. (ISB)

Imperial Symphony Orchestra
the Emperor's premier musical orchestra. (TB)

Imperial Taxation Bureau
this branch of the Empire was charged with setting, levying, and obtaining the various taxes, fees, and tariffs imposed by Emperor Palpatine. (FOP)

Imperial Tractor Beam Primer
this datadoc was given to every Imperial weapons officer who needed instruction in the use of tractor beams. (TTSB)

Imperial Trade and Commerce Authority
this Imperial agency was responsible for authorizing salvage and recovery licenses for companies who wished to do work in Imperial space. Known as the ITCA, it ran extensive background checks on all applicants, resulting in lengthy delays before a license was issued. One of the primary regions ITCA issued licenses to was the Wastes. (SWJ9)

Imperial Truth
this docudrama was produced in Larrin Sector by J'fe Din and the team that developed the episodic story Starflash. The episodes provided viewers with detailed recreations of some of the Empire's most heinous and cruel actions, ensuring that the show's viewers understood that the Empire was evil and that the New Republic promised a better form of government. (HR)

Imperial Xenodetic Survey
this branch of the Empire was responsible for cataloguing the galaxy's alien races. (GG2)

Imperial Zoological Agency
this branch of the Imperial Survey Corps was responsible for the cataloguing of flora and fauna on newly-discovered worlds. (TA)

Imperial Zoological Gardens
this beautiful display of the galaxy’s flora and fauna was built by Emperor Palpatine on Kailor V. (TA)

Imperial-class Repulsortank
this series of military repulsorcraft was designed and manufactured by Ubrikkian for use by the Empire. They were five times faster than standard AT-AT walkers, more maneuverable than a walker, and were heavily armed. There were three versions of the tank, each more powerful and stronger than the previous. The 1-L tank is the standard version, and the most economical. The 1-M tank is stronger than the 1-L, but not as well-defended as the 1-H, which is the most powerful Imperial-class tank. 1,500 Imperial-class tanks were initially produced. 1,420 were shipped to the first Death Star, and the remainder were assigned to Hell's Hammers. All the Death Star's tanks were lost in the Battle of Yavin, while many of the Hell's Hammers' tanks were destroyed on Turak IV. Production was somewhat limited afterward. (SWJ9)

Imperial-I class Star Destroyer
Built at the Kuat Drive Yards, this medium-duty Imperial capital ship is the version used in the Emperor Palpatine's Navy. The wedge-shaped Imperial-I class Star Destroyer measured 1,600 meters in length, and was manned by 36,810 crewers and 275 gunners. It could also transport up to 1,200 troops. Jedi Search quotes the Imperial-I class is manned by 37,000 crewers and can carry 9,700 troops. Its top sublight speed is 60 MGLT, and its hull has been rated at 150 RU. Despite its formidable appearance, Talon Karrde once stated that the Imperial-class had 174,000 design flaws waiting to be exploited.
It boasts the following shipboard systems:
- Om-Thaim Broadcast Banner Shield Generator (the round towers on top) rated at 300 SBD
- 60 Borstel NK-7 Ion Cannon Batteries
- 10 Phylon-Q7 Tractor Beam Projectors
- Seinar Fleet Systems I-a2b Solar Ionization Reactor and Stardrive
- 60 Taim and Bak XX9 Heavy Turbolaser Batteries
- LeGrange Targetting Computers
- Seinar Fleet Systems S-s3a Long Range Tachyon Detection Scanner
- Planetary Assault Units:
  - 12 Landing Barges
  - 20 AT-ATs
  - 30 AT-STs
- Fighter Bays:
  - 3 TIE Fighter Squadrons
  - 2 TIE Interceptor Squadrons
  - 1 TIE Bomber Squadron
- Landing Bays:
  - 5 Assault Gunboats
  - 8 Lambda-class Shuttles
  - 15 Stormtrooper Transports

Other Star Destroyers that have been named in the various games and RPG materials, but do not have specified sources: Enforcer, Eradicator, Furious, Harasser, Revenge, Stalker, and Victorious.
(SW, SCRE, SWSB, ISB, TIE, SOP)

Imperial-II class Star Destroyer
a modification to the incredibly effective Imperial-I class, the Imperial-II class only had 36,755 crewers, but 300 gunners and nearly 10,000 troops. These 1,600-meter ships were equipped with 50 heavy turbolaser batteries, 50 heavy turbolaser cannons, 20 ions cannons, and 10 tractor beam projectors. (SWSB, ISB, BW)

Imperialization
the process of galactic conquest set for by Emperor Palpatine's New Order. (SW)

Impervious
1) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was built at the Kuat Drive Yards during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ9)
2) this was the name of Traest Kre'fey's Lambda-class shuttle. Note that it is also referred to as Elegos A'kla's shuttle in the book Dark Tide: Onslaught. It served as a sort of command ship during the evacuation of Dubrillion, supporting Rogue, Savage, and Tough Squadrons against the Yuuzhan Vong. (DTO)

Impervium
a brand-name of the plasteel used to create stormtrooper armor. It is designed with extra-vehicular safety in mind. Thus, only glancing bolts from a blaster are deflected. Any direct hits pass right through it. (SW)

Implacable
1) an Imperial Nebulon-B frigate operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)
2) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was under the command of Admiral Apwar Trigit, shortly after the Battle of Endor. He aligned himself and the ship with Warlord Zsinj. The Implacable was the first ship to receive a new shipment of TIE Fighters from the Pakkerd Light Transport facility on Ession, and it arrived there with defensive support from the corvette Night Caller. However, the Night Caller was under the control of Wraith Squadron, and was supported by three squadrons of X-Wings hidden in the holds of the Blood Nest, which took the place of the Red Feathers. Using a maneuver known as the Loran Spitball, the Night Caller destroyed the power cells of the Implacable, leaving the ship dead in space. Trigit, realizing that he was beaten, set the Implacable to self-destruct, then headed for the escape pods. The Implacable smashed stern-first into one of Ession's moons and was destroyed. (WS)

Implanter
this Yuuzhan Vong bio-mechanism was designed to implant surge-coral into the body of a Yuuzhan Vong during the ritual known as escalation. The implanter was a small, six-legged creature created from calcifiers, the creatures used to enslave other races with crippling growths of yorik coral. Implanters had botryoidal eyes and four blade-like arms, allowing them to cut through flesh and place surge-coral where directed. (JE)

Implosion Drive
a very powerful sublight drive system, the implosion drive employs a high-pressure implosion reactor that emits an intense gravitic field that dimples the space-time continuum of realspace, causing the vessel to move. These engines are extremely high-maintenance drives, which is one reason that implosion drives are uncommon, except in the Outer Rim Territories. (SWSB)

Impounder
this Imperial Customs ship was part of the fleet which patrolled the Kalinda System, following the Battle of Endor. It was under the command of Captain Mandus Fouc. (TSK)

ImpPeRe
this was spacer's slang for the Imperial Penal References. (PSG)

Impstar
Alliance slang for an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer. (BW)

Impstar Deuce
Alliance slang for an Imperial-II class Star Destroyer. (BW)

Imush
the roots of this plant are often used in cooking. They are chopped and sauteed for use as a side-dish. (RD)

Imzig
this humanoid race is distinguished from the base human stock by the bony ridges which surround their eyes. (CCG5)

IM4-099
this Imperial Mark IV patrol droid regularly patrolled Mos Eisley during the period leading up to the Battle of Yavin. He was known to the stormtroopers and other natives as "Face." (SWSE, BTM)

In aiente
this Mistryl phrase is a command for attention or an order to stand down, depending on the context in which it is used. (TFNR)

IN-344-B
a sightline holographic crosshairs targetting computer. (SCRE)

IN-3444-B
a sightline holographic crosshairs targetting computer. (Could just be a typo in SCRE). (SCRE)

IN-4
this was a series of information droids produced during the New Order by Veril Line Systems. They could follow only basic instructions, and only if they received them from an identifiable source. (SESB)

Inacc, Gol
this crusty Corellian owned and operated Inacc's Shipping, out of the Estaria Central Starport. Inacc was known as a lazy captain who was worried more about his next loan payment than making sure his customers were satisfied. He flew his cargoes with his own ship, Inacc's Crate. (HAS)

Inacc's Crate
this deteriorating YT-1300 light freighter was owned and operated by Gol Inacc. (HAS)

Inacc's Shipping
owned and operated by Gol Inacc, this small-time shipping agency operated with one ship, the Inacc's Crate, out of Estaria Central Starport during the height of the New Order. (HAS)

Inadi
this New Republic Navy Captain was in command of the starship Vanguard during the Black Fleet Crisis. She worked with Commodore Brand to bring down a Yevethan T-type starship, but the Vanguard took heavy fire and was destroyed. (TT)

Inamo
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Inat Prime
Boba Fett paid a large sum of credits to have microscopic subdermal trackers placed on Rivo Xarran on this planet, during his hunt for the fugitive. (TFNR)

Inat Rangoon
this friend of Airen Cracken once posed as an off-world investor and infiltrated BlasTech's weapons research department. The rest of his group sliced into the security system and cut the facility's power. In the ensuing confusion, Rangoon managed to break into the main computer system and download the datafile 8A70b before being reassured that the emergency had been taken care of. (CFG)

Inchichtok
this was a race of xenophobic creatures which destroyed any other race it encountered. (GMK)

Incom Industries
headquartered on Coromon Island, on the planet Fresia, Incom manufactured the X-wing, the T-16 skyhopper, and other starship components. They are generally considered top-of-the-line in the industries they choose to enter, a trait that Incom had maintained for over two thousand years. They chose to ignore the sweeping changes that occurred when Emperor Palpatine took control of the galaxy. The increasing pressure of Imperial rule angered many of its top scientists and engineers, and they defected to the Alliance, carrying with them the plans to the X-Wing. The remaining Incom employees were quickly nationalized by the Empire, and the company's star dwindled. Few new designs have came from Incom until the introduction of the I-7 Howlrunner, during the reemergence of Palpatine on Byss. (SW, DE2, SWSB, EGV)

Incubus
an ethereal alien which desires to couple with a human female in order to breed. (CS)

Indal Properties
this real estate agency was found in the city of Sodonna, on the planet Teyr. (SOL)

Indellian System
a planetary system. (CCC)

Indenture
this Firespray-class ship was owned and operated by Krassis Trellix, until he tried to ambush Fenig Nabin and Ghitsa Dogder. The two woman had been transporting a group of Twi'lek dancers to Nal Hutta, and Trellix hoped to take possession of their cargo. Fen and Ghitsa were flying with Shada D'ukal and Dunc T'racen aboard the Fury, and their combined skills were no match for Trellix. He was killed when the Indenture was destroyed in battle. (TFNR)

Independence
the Mon Calamari cruiser used as the Alliance's flagship early in the Galactic Civil War. It was the primary stop-over point for Alliance starpilots. The Independence was later attacked by the Star Destroyer Merciless, but it managed to survive. During the Battle of Endor, the Independence served as the Alliance fleet's communications control center. (XW, TIE, CCG11)

Independence Week
this holiday was celebrated only in the Freeworlds region of Tapani Sector, from the tenth day of Relona to the fifteenth day of Relona. It celebrated the region's breaking away from the rest of the Expanse. (PGT)

Independent Class
this starship was owned and operated by Gideon. (SWJ12)

Independent Company of Settlers
this was the official name used by the group of 3,000 former Imperial supporters who wanted to live in peace after the Battle of Endor. Led by former Admiral Daala, the group maintained a fleet of ships which transported it from world to world, hoping to find a planet on which they could remain loyal to the New Order while separated from the New Republic. Many of the members were formal Navy officers who grew tired of the political posturing of individuals, corporations, and worlds. They entered into an agreement with the Pedducian Warlord K'iin to live on 1.5 billion acres of land on Pedducis Chorios. They were forced to defend their planet when the New Republic entered the Chorios Systems to secure the sector after the spread of the Death Seed plague. (POT)

Independent Shippers Association
this association of independent transport ship captains was formed during the second decade of the New Republic. It was created in response to the decentralization of certain monopolies under the Republic's watchful eye. Han Solo was appointed an official liaison to the Association, and was one of the primary mediators between the Republic and the Association. (SOP)

Independent Traders' Infonet
one of the smaller news networks available, ITI carried information relevant and timely to the independent shipper. (SWJ8)

Inderrin Tree
a species of graceful, blue trees native to the planet Aruza. (TBH)

Indexer
a round, alien being native to Chalcedon, it has 5 prehensile trunks and lives in a pool of water-covered agate stones. It has strange, crystalline eyes. Like all of its race, the Indexer has a limited intelligence that, when combined with others' minds, forms a vast mental storehouse of information and sentience. Rillao knows of the Indexer, and asks the Indexer for information on the slave trade of Firrerreo. (CS)

Indikir
this arid rock is the second planet in the Bseto System. (SWAJ)

Indinor
this temperate world is a rocky wasteland. Orbitted by two moons, it is the fifth planet in the Lianna System. (ML)

Indobok
this heavily cratered and valleyed moon orbited the planet Kalarba, near Hosk Station. IG-88 flies near it in an effort to shake the pursuit of Olag Greck. The planetoid supports the unusual B'rknaa race. Indobok itself is, in actuality, a single massive adult B'rknaa. The Kalarba System was overtaken by the Yuuzhan Vong, shortly after the Battle of Fondor. (DRO, BP)

Indola
a sloth-like, sabertoothed predator native to the planet Dar'Or, the indola has received fierce competition from the elix, which was introduced to the planet to save it from extinction. The indola naturally hunted the Ri'Dar race for food. (GG4)

Indomitable
1) a New Republic Majestic-class battle cruiser Han uses to try and draw Zsinj out and thin his defenses. It was later reassigned to the Fifth Battle Group and Commodore Brand, where it saw action during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster. (CPL, SOL, TT)
2) an Imperial-class Star Destroyer built at the Kuat Drive Yards during the Galactic Civil War. It was assigned to patrol Darpa Sector, and was based out of Esseles. (SWJ9)

Indu San
this Outer Rim world is the primary planet in the Indu San System. Although it holds a remote location in the galaxy, Indu San was an active member of the Old Republic. When the Empire assumed control of the galaxy, the first governor allowed the old government to smoothly transition to the New Order, and the planet was a model of Imperial life. However, the subsequent governor instituted a harsher regimen, and the populace rebelled. The rebellion continued until after the Battle of Endor, when the New Republic sent a force to assist the populace. The governor requested aid from the Empire, but the fragmented Imperial forces couldn't help. He was deposed, and the old government was re-instated. The president of the planet's Congressional Council waffled on whether or not to support the New Republic, and was quickly assassinated. The average day on Indu San lasts 25 standard hours, andits year lasts 382 local days. (SWAJ)

Indupar
this planet was the capital world of the Induparan Crown Worlds. (PP)

Indupar, Dahon
this man was the King of the Induparan Crown Worlds during the Galactic Civil War. He was the most recent member of the Indupar family to control the Induparan Monarchy. (PP)

Indupar Nova
this corvette was part of an independent fleet which operated the Ec Pand System. It had the distinct privilege of being the first ship captured by Urias Xhaxin and the Free Lance for the Alliance. Xhaxin soon discovered that the Lade Kalena and her handmain, Missa, were trying to flee the planet in order to avoid being captured by a rival house. Xhaxin captured both of them in order to ransom them off to the highest bidder. (PP)

Induparan Crown Worlds
this was the name of the collection of star systems owned by the monarchy which governed the Induparan. It included the Ec Pand System and its planets. (PP)

Induparan Monarchy
this familial monarchy controlled the Induparan Crown Worlds during the height of the New Order. (PP)

Industrial Automaton
a company which produces astromech droids, namely the R2 series. They were one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (SW, TLC, CSA)

Industrial Starports
this group of complexes is located on the planet Lazerian IV. They are used exclusively for the import of raw materials to the industrial corporations of the planet, and are off-limits to public transportation. (TSK)

Industrial Swampfields
this is the name given to the Ergeshui swamps in which the Ergesh "grow" their organic technologies. Many corporations would love to discover the secrets of the Industrial Swampfields, but the Ergesh are very reluctant to share them. (PG2)

Industrious Thoughts
this Diamalan warship served as Senator Miatamia's command ship during the blockade of Bothawui, shortly after the revelation of the Bothan involvement in the destruction of Caamas. When saboteurs took control of the weapons aboard the Predominance and began firing on Drev'starn, the Industrious Thoughts moved in to cut off their attack. In the ensuing system-wide communications jamming, Miatamia failed to receive the message to stand down. (VOF)

Indyup
a species of tree native to Ithor, it has a gnarled looking trunk. (TME)

Inert-screen Load Shifter
this type of droid, used primarily in engineering facilities and shipyards, is a tall, boxy automaton with short, stubby legs. They use a special system of inertial modifiers to create a low-gravity screen around them, enabling them to move heavy equipment with relative ease. Kuat of Kuat used one of these droids to hide the falsified recording he had made to frame Prince Xizor in the deaths of Owen and Beru Lars, but the droid failed to be delivered before its courier, Ree Duptom, was killed. (MA)

Inertial Compensator
this small, artificial gravity projector is used in starships to assist a pilot in overcoming the effects of acceleration, deceleration, and maneuvering. It allowed a pilot to put a starship through maneuvers that created intense G-forces, as the compensator kept the pilot from blacking out by adjusting the gravity surrounding the pilot. Gavin Darklighter and Traest Kre'fey discovered that the inertial compensator could also perform another duty. If the compensator's field was adjusted to extend some thirteen meters from its source, protecting an area beyond the shields of the ship, it would actually negate the effects of Yuuzhan Vong gravity weapons. If several starfighters using this double protection ganged up on a coralskipper, the organic ship would actually implode as its onboard systems overloaded from trying to increase power to the gravity wells. (WS, DTO)

Inexorable
1) this Imperial bulk cruiser was part of Admiral Greelanx's fleet which attacked Nar Shaddaa during the early years of the New Order. It was one of the last ships to join the engagement, since it had been placed at the rear of the attack formation. (THG)
2) this Imperial-I class Star Destroyer was commanded by Admiral Thrawn during the years immediately after the Battle of Endor. It later became part of his own fleet following his re-emergence from the Unknown Regions as a Grand Admiral. (HTTE, WG)

Inferno
this was one of several podraces that were sanctioned by the pro circuit, and wound through the coastal areas of the Baroo continent of the planet Baroonda, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Infiltrators
this group of Alliance special forces operatives was sent in to infiltrate heavily-guarded areas before the main assault force could advance. They assisted in bringing down perimeter defense and allowed the main force an easier access to a target. The Infiltrators were disbanded shortly after the Battle of Endor. Many members of the Infiltrators took positions with Red Team Five. (TFNR)

Infinity
a smuggling ship ship owned by the Dim-U priests of Tatooine, the Infinity was piloted by BoShek just before the Imperial blockade of Tatooine. BoShek was flying with bogus transponder codes, and was trying to get the ship back to Tatooine for a new set of codes when he was intercepted by two Star Destroyers. He was forced to land the Infinity in the Dune Sea. (TME)

Inflexible
an Imperial-class Star Destroyer built at the Kuat Drive Yards. (SWJ9)

Infiltrator
one of Sienar Advanced Projects Laboratories' prototype designs, this ship was eventually modified for use by Darth Maul. Originally designedas a courier ship, the 26.5-meter-long Infiltrator was given advanced weaponry, propulsion systems, and a full-effect stygium-based cloaking device for invisibility on command. The sublight engines were X-C 2 ion arrays, while the hyperdrive was an SSDS 11-A powerplant. Weapons included six prototype laser cannons. The craft had a long, main fuselage to which was attached the ball-shaped control center aft. The wings of the craft were used to radiator the intense heat of its engines, and could be folded down during landings. The designs of the control center and the wings were later incorporated into the TIE Advanced prototype produced for Darth Vader. (X1)

Infiltrators
one of the most elite sections of the Alliance's Special Forces division, Infiltrators used stealth and cunning to get into Imperial installations prior to an actual assault. They gathered intelligence and "softened up" any Imperial resistance, before the main ground force attacked. They were considered the 5th Regiment of the SpecForces of the Alliance.(ROE)

Influenza necrosi
this was a bio-engineered, deadly form of the flu created by the Empire for use as a biological weapon. (GOF3)

Influx Capacitor
this hyperdrive component regulates the in-flow of energy to the entire system. (OS)

Infochant
a slang term used to describe underworld operatives who sell information for a living. (GG2, HTSB)

Infopanel
a recording device which collecting audio and video inputs to document messages. Infopanels are often used near doors to personal residences, so that the owners can receive messages from visitors if they are away. (LO)

Infrascan
this device is used to scan the interior of a device or package. (CSW)

Infuriating Savages
a smashball team. (COJ)

Ingey
a binjinphant owned by Prince Coby of Tammuz-an. (DCAR)

Ingo
a planet covered with desolate salt flats and craters. Humans have colonized the world, but their existence is a constant struggle. (DCAR)

Ingoian
this humanoid race is characterized by the clump of beard-like tentacles on their chins. (SESB)

Inheritance Exemption
this law was put into place by the ancient leaders of the Kuat ruling families, and stipulated that the Kuat family would maintain control of Kuat Drive Yards without exception. Each succeeding Kuati generation would supply a leader for the vast starship manufacturing facility, who would work with the interests of all ruling families. This exemption was enacted when it was discovered that the Kuat family had the inherent skills needed to manage the corporation. Some families, such as the Knylenn and Kadnessi, chafed at the exemption, but were forced to agreed that the Kuat family brought prestige and wealth to all Kuati families. (SLS)

Inhibition Field
this was the name given to the force field used by the Yuuzhan Vong to contain prisoners. Generated by a specialized dovin basal, the inhibition field was a dome-shaped force field which could not be breeched without a being taking severe electrical and neurological damage. Many of these fields were modified to allow the insertion of a Yuuzhan Vong executioner. (HT)

Iniro, Falan
this hot-headed and impulsive Corellian was a competent sabacc player and pilot who lived on Nar Shaddaa during the early years of the New Order. He volunteered his piloting skills and his starship, the Take That!, to the defense of Nar Shaddaa when the Empire attacked the moon. However, his impulsive nature cost him his life when he jumped the gun during the counter-attack. The Nar Shaddaa command post issued an order, which Iniro thought was “Prepare to engage.” In actuality, all Iniro heard was “Prepare to...” before he leapt into battle. This left him stranded and alone against the Carrack-class cruisers making up the picket line. The cruisers ripped the Take That! apart with turbolaser fire in no time. (THG)

Injector
a tool found in most medkits, an injector is used to administer pain killers and stimulants. It is a small, disk-shaped implement that is green on one side (where the stimulant is stored) and red on the other (where the pain killer is stored). Small needles on each side are projected when the injector is placed on a patient's neck, allowing the drugs to be placed into the patient's bloodstream. (LCF)

Injectrine
this fuel additive is used to activated the power fluids used by racing engines. (X1)

Inkabunga
this is a Huttese term of surprise, and translates to the Basic world “incredible.” (IS1)

Inn on Isttu Lake
located on Isttu Lake, aboard the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, the Inn was not as opulent as the Great Mother River Hotel. (GA)

Inner Circle
the Emperor Palpatine's closest ministers and governors, who unsuccessfully tried to take over the Empire after the Emperor's death at Endor. (DE1)

Inner Council
1) this ruling body of the New Republic began existence as the primary circle of leaders within the Provisional Council. After the dissolution of the Provisional Council, the Inner Council became the focal point of the Republic’s leadership. (HTTE, TNR)
2) the Brigian center of power under the New Regime. (HSL)

Inner Court of the Transcendant this structure, located on the planet J’t’p’tan, was erected by the H’kig settlers there. It was a wide, open space surrounded by ornate walls and buildings. (TT)

Inner Guide
this was another name for the Guide Within. (FFT)

Inner Hub
this was the name used by the Daan and the Melida to indicate the center of the city of Zehava. Shortly after the Twenty-Second Battle of Zehava, the Daan had driven the Melida into the Inner Hub, and surrounded them in the Outer Circle. (DOD)

Inner Rim Territories
the section of the galaxy once considered the furthest reaches of expansion, it was once known simply as The Rim during much of the Old Republic's early millennia. However, as hyperspace explorers began venturing beyond this area, it was renamed the Inner Rim. When the Empire began taking more and more resources from the Inner Rim worlds, many of its inhabitants left the Inner Rim and moved out into the Outer Rim. (SWSB, EGP)

Inner River District
this area was part of the city of Sodonna, on the planet Teyr. (SOL)

Inner Sphere
this was a term used to describe those star systems located in the Core Worlds and the Colonies region. (GG11)

Innerdome Arena
this sporting venue was located on Nwarcol Point, along the Sisar Run. (SSR)

Innis, Tarn
this graduate of the Imperial Academy was considered too average to ever assume command. He was given a position in the Supply branch of the military, where he eventually earned the command of the Shallow March Supply Post shortly before the Battle of Yavin. Over the years since taking this command, Innis developed a network of informants that provided him incredible detail on the logistics of the Imperial army. He often passed this information on to the Alliance via pirates and smugglers like Talon Karrde. (CRO)

Inoxide
this substance is used in identity probes. Based on the results of the identity probe, the inoxide in the tip of the probe can be set to a positive of negative polarity. When inserted into a special reader, the inoxide's state can be used to determine success or failure. (MA)

Inpoll
this is the name given to the fall season on the planet Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Inquiesse
this is the smallest continent of the planet Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Inquisitor
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer made regular patrols in the Core Worlds, near the boundaries of Darpa and Bormea Sectors. (FOP)

Inquisitor-4
one of the World Devastators that attacked Calamari, Inquisitor-4 was a 1,700-meter-long, "young adult" World Devastator that was smaller and less well-armed than ships like the Silencer-7. It had 8- heavy turbolaser batteries, 80 blaster cannons, 30 proton missile tubes, and 10 tractor beam emplacements. It was manned by a crew of 21,640, with 1,020 gunners, 1,800 slaves, 1,211 droids, and up to 6,700 troops and 1,000 pilots. (DE1, DESB)

Insect-bird
a scarlet flying creature native to the jungles of Yavin 4. (COTF)

Insecticulture
the Kubaz science of genetically altering insects for increased stamina and food supply, as well as marking them for identification among the various Kubaz clans. (SCRE)

Inspector 11
this analysis droid was placed in charge of the Arakyd Viper production line on Mechis III by IG-88. (TBH)

Insta-Meal
produced by SoroSuub, the Insta-Meal is a processed food which is used in survival packs. It usually comes in block form, from which pieces can be broken off and consumed. It contains large amount of essential nutrients in a small, easily transported form. (WEG)

Insta-7
the Gotal bounty hunter Glott was wanted on this planet. (ROC)

Instant Adhesive
this bonding agent claimed to be able to secure two materials together with amazing adhesive properties. (POC)

Instigator
this Trianii RX4 patrol ship was part of the New Republic fleet assigned to Corva Sector, shortly after the Battle of Bilbringi. Despite heavy usage, the Instigator was nonetheless a reliable ship. Many of the modifications performed on the ship were handled personally by Captain Bluuis. The ship measures 33 meters in length, and is armed with a pair of twin turbolasers and an ion cannon. It was flown under the name Surge during the Republic's search for the Kaarenth Dissension. (SWJ8)

Institute for Sentient Studies located on the planet Baraboo, this educational facility studies the various sentient civilizations that have arisen in the galaxy. (BTS)

Institute of Imperial Psychological Studies
this college specialized in the study of sentient behavioral patterns and profiles. (GG10)

Institute of Starship Engineering

next to the Imperial Engineering Academy, this is one of the most highly-respected engineering guilds in the galaxy. In fact, the Imperial Navy required bi-annual ISE certification among its engineers. Most graduates can commands a 100% uptake in their wage opportunities. The ISE has a huge campus on Coruscant, with smaller campuses on Perithal VI, Sullust, and in the Corellian System. A campus used to be based on Alderaan. (GG9)

Instrop Sector
Danaan Kerr was rumored to have performed dark magics in this sector, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

Insulfoam
this heat-reflective material was used to insulate buildings and perishable cargoes. (LO)

Intellex III
this model of computer brain was used in R1 as well as R4 droids. The Intellex III was a powerful central unit, but lacked the versatility of its successor, the Intellex IV. (GG7)

Intellex IV
the model of internal computer system used in R2-series astromech droids, the Intellex IV can perform 10,000 or more operations a second. (SWSB)

Intelligence Freighter
a specialized cruiser used by Imperial Intelligence, it was not overly marked or obvious. (DFR)

IntelStar Company
this manufacturer of prime hyperdrive components supplies parts to eleven different hyperdrive builders. They were one of the original non-voting Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Interceptor
this Imperial customs ship, captained by Hallyn Phlynne, patrolled the Elin Roe System. (SWAJ)

Interchip
this small device processes the transfer of credits from one party to another. When a being purchases something from a merchant, the merchant enters the cost into the interchip. The being then inserts their own credit voucher, and the interchip debits their account the correct number of credits before depositing them into the merchant's account. Payment between two individuals can also be accomplished the same way. (GG2)

Interdiction Field
the name used to describe any gravimetric force field that simulates the presence of mass in open space or hyperspace. The field can be a small, powerful, planet-sized field, similar to those generated by the Interdictor-class starships; or, it can be a huge, system-wide field similar to that used by Thrackan Sal-Solo to seal off the Corellian Sector just following his secession from the New Republic. (AC)

Interdictor*-class Cruiser
Interdictor-class ships are equipped with four gravity-wave generators to simulate large (planet-sized) masses. These are useful for a number for things, such as for trapping fleeing spacecraft and for bringing ships out of hyperspace at a specific point is real space. (DFR, ISB)

Interechoic Micrometer
a sensititive device which uses sound waves to measure the thickness of metals, especially starship hulls. (COJ)

Interfacing System Bridge
known as a patch, this computer device allows the user to bypass the entry protocols in order to quickly access the central computer. Most often used by tech teams and Imperial technicians, these devices are incredibly helpful when a component is damaged or a subsystem is breached, and the problem might result in a system-wide failure. The techs don't have time to enter in all their security information, and can use the patch to simply correct the problem. The Alliance discovered that these patches could also be used to mask an intrusion into an Imperial computer system, allowing the saboteurs to place a virus or tag without being detected. (SWJ10)

InterFlux
manufacturers of one of the most popular water-making systems for starships. (WEG)

Intergalactic Droid Agency
a company that matches unowned droids to the needs of businesses and individuals throughout the galaxy. (DCAR)

Intergalactic Federation of Musicians
a guild dedicated to promoting the advancement of music throughout the galaxy. (TME)

Intergalactic Trade Mission
a gathering of important businessbeings held regularly on Bothawui. Koth Melan requested that Leia Organa meet him at the Mission to discuss the recovery of the secret plans to the second Death Star. (SE)

Intergyron
a starship system component. (GG6)

Interloper Squadron
one of the TIE Defender squadrons dispatched by Colonel Vessery to recover Rogue Squadron above Corvis Minor Five. (IR)

Intermatic, R.C.
this was the name of a false business used as a front by the New Republic's Alpha Blue team. Intermatic, R.C. had a pair of private hangars in Section 41 of Newport, where the Alpha Blue Technical Services team received shipments. (TT)

Internal Organization Bureau
a division of Imperial Intelligence charged with protecting the overall Imperial Intelligence organization from any internal or external threats. It is known as IntOrg for short. (SWSB)

Interrogation droid
spherical droid with a built-in repulsorlift, it has many devices suited for torture and other information-gathering activities. (SW)

Interrogator
an Imperial-II class Star Destroyer under the command of the High Inquisitor Tremayne. It had seen a number of different Captains in its time, since Tremayne rarely remained pleased with an individual's performance. Although most Imperial officers aspired to command, they shied away from command of the Interrogator. (GG9, TFNR)

Interrogator
the device which sends out the query to a starship's transponder, an interrogator retrieves a ship's ID profile and checks it for correct authorization. All spaceports and military ships have them. (HSE)

Interruptor Template
a device which works with a starship's weapons systems to make sure that exterior structures (such as landing gear and entry ramps) are protected from weapons fire. (HSE, WEG)

Interstellar Collections Limited
the galactic collections agency which produces and maintains the Red List, ICL has grown into a major company which can repossess belongings, settle disputes, and collect on old debts. They are the largest of these collection agenecies that grew out of a lack of concern on the part of the Empire and the Corporate Sector Authority for the debts of individuals. (HSR)

Interstellar Shipping
a huge conglomerate of shipping companies which operated in the galaxy when Han Solo was a smuggler. (HSL)

Intersystem Library Exchange
a construct of the New Republic, the ILE was set up so that any planetary system could obtain data from another system's databanks. (BTS)

Intertalkie
a starship intercom system. (LCS)

InterWorld Marketplace
the sprawling, tariff-free bazaar found on the Kuari Princess. (RPG)

Inthulpin
this is the name of the spring season on the planet Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Intimidator
1) this was the brand name of one of Merr-Sonn Munitions' blaster pistols. The Intimidator lacks a strong punch, but can fire off an incredible amount of blasts in a short period of time. (ROE)
2) this was the brand name of Greff-Timms Industrial's PC2 pulse-wave light cannon. (TOJC)

Intimidator
an Imperial-class Star Destroyer which was sent to Black-15 from its normal dock in the Core, to make room for a Super-class ship. It was at Black-15 when the Yevetha took control of the shipyards. The Intimidator was spaceworthy, and Jian Paret used it as his command ship, until it was captured by Nil Spaar. It was renamed by the Yevetha as the Pride of Yevetha. During the final battle of the Black Fleet Crisis, Sil Sorannan takes control of the starship from Nil Spaar, stranding the Yevetha in hyperspace while taking the ship out of the Koornacht. Note that Shield of Lies indicates that this ship is a Super-class Star Destroyer, as does Tyrant's Test*.* (BTS, SOL, TT)

Intombe
an Alliance strike cruiser destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Intractable
one of the Imperial cruisers that blockaded the ThonBoka in order to starve the Oswaft, its commanding officer balked at being a front-line defensive ship when Rokur Gepta ordered it. Gepta immediately stripped the officer, his second-in-command, and their counterparts on the Upright and the Vainglorious of their ranks. (LCS)

Intravenous Access Unit
known as an IAU, this medical device is used to administer drugs to patients at the subcutaneous level. When placed on a patient's chest and activated, it extended a catheter which could burrow into the flesh and locate a subclavian vein in which to deposit the drugs in the main unit. (TFE)

Intrepid
1) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer assigned to guard the Imperial detention center at Stars' End. It was destroyed when Keyan Farlander and a group of Alliance starfighters assaulted the prison in an attempt to rescue a number of prisoners of war. (XW)
2) this Imperial Class 1000 cruiser was under the command of Captain Dulrain, and patrolled the Gesaril System during the Galactic Civil War. (GG6)
3) this New Republic Endurance-class fleet carrier was built and assigned to the Fifth Battle Group just prior to the Yevethan Great Purge. It served as the flagship of the fleet, under the command of Etahn A'baht. It led the initial, though unsuccessful, blockade of Doornik-319. (BTS, SOL)
4) this New Republic Nebulon-B frigate was part of the supply convoy travelling to Liinade III, when it was brought out of hyperspace by the Interdictor cruiser Binder near system M2934738. The attacking ships, under the direction of Prince-Admiral Krennel, pounded the lead ship - the Pride of Selonia - the instant it dropped into realspace, preventing any sort of counterattack. The Pride of Selonia was destroyed in the attack. The Intrepid managed to pour a large amount of laser fire into the Binder before the Reckoning fired on her. The might of the Reckoning's assault broke the Intrepid into two pieces, which spiralled away from each other as the ship died in space. (IR)

Intruder
1) a series of assassin droids often portrayed in holofeatures. (SWSB)
2) a low-grade computer spike manufactured by MicroThrust. (CFG)
3) a series of missiles produced by Sienar Fleet Systems for use in TIE Bombers and TIE Defenders. The design of the Intruder series was stolen by ISB agents from the Slayn & Korpil colonies that produced the B-Wing starfighter. Slayn & Korpil designed the warhead to explode into a huge blossom of ion energy. The blast was capable of destroying capital ships by overloading the shield generators with ion energy. (CCG9)

Intruder
1) a Bakuran Namana-class light cruier used by Ossilege as his flagship while assisting the New Republic in breaking the blockade of the Corellian System. During the decisive battle with the Triad fleet, the Intruder was rammed by three modified frigates after being prodded into battle with them. The Intruder sustained heavy damage and casualties, including Ossilege and Gaeriel Captison. (AS, SC, CTD)
2) this Imperial Marauder-class corvette was dispatched to disrupt the Bothan's joining of the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Intuci
this planet was raided by Sonopo Bomoor. His forced sacked the primary city of Bonaka Nueno, leaving many dead and more homeless. (JTH)

Intybus
this flowering plant is used in gardens for its beautiful, colorful blossoms. (TT)

Invid
this was New Republic pilots' slang for the pirates who worked for Leonia Tavira, and were supported by her Star Destroyer, the Invidious. (IJ)

Invidious
this Imperial Star Destroyer was part of High Admiral Teradoc's fleet, shortly after the death of Emperor Palpatine at Endor. Somehow, it came under the command of Loenia Tavira, and was the mainstay of the fleet guarding her holdings on Eiattu. When the Rogue Squadron pilots defeated her there, she took the Invidious and hid for several years, until the warship reappeared in a supporting role for Tavira's pirate fleet. She would bring the Invidious into a system and pummel the defenses of a starship or settlement, then depart, leaving the pirates to loot and pillage what they could. They paid Tavira half of everything they took. (IJ)

Invincible
1) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer used during the early part of Operation Strike Fear, the Invincible was later destroyed when the Alliance stole an improved warhead from the Imperial freighter Gafra. The Alliance team was forced to use the warhead against the Invincible. (XW)
2) this Star Destroyer was one of four ships that formed the core of the fleet under the command of Moff Vanko. (RM)
3) the Star Destroyer used by Zasm Katth and Baddon Fass to go to Nar Shaddaa and kill Vima-Da-Boda and Han Solo. The ship was destroyed when Katth ordered full tractor beam power to lock onto the Millenium Falcon. The Falcon hid behind the spaceport's control tower, and the powerful tractor beam ripped the tower from the station. It impaled the Star Destroyer, knocking out main thrusters and disabling the ship's maneuverability. It then crashed into the surface of Nar Shaddaa, killing all hands. (DE2)

Invincible*-class Dreadnaught
this capital ship measures 2,011 meters in length, and was first built over 3,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. They were designed to resemble the ancient Alsakan warships used in the Alsakan Conflicts, with design points taken from the huge starships of Xim the Despot. The Invincible-class was one of the Old Republic's largest ships, but space combat technology began moving toward smaller platforms. The huge ships were soon discontinued, decommissioned, and sold off. The Corporate Sector Authority was able to obtain a number of them on the open market, since they were cheap, available, and effective. The Invincible-class Dreadnaught was manpower-intensive, though, requiring 23,614 crewers and 114 gunners. It could transport up to 6,000 troops, and was armed with 30 quad-laser cannons, 12 turbolaser cannons, 6 tractor beam projectors, and 6 concussion missile tubes. (HSE, CSA)

Invisible and Ineluctable Casino
this was the name used by Drawmas Sma'Da to describe his gambling enterprise, which was based on the skirmishes and battles that were fought during the Galactic Civil War. Sma'Da had the uncanny ability to predict the outcome of battles between the Empire and the Alliance, and to set accurate odds on the outcomes. Many of the galaxy's richest beings would wager on the outcome of any size confrontation, and Sma'Da grew wealthy by taking their bets. However, his wealth and insight soon came to the attention of Emperor Palpatine, who put out a sizabele bounty on Sma'Da's head. With his capture, and with the decisive outcome of the Battle of Endor, Sma'Da's prominence quickly dwindled. (HM)

Invisible Empress
see Tching, Oeana (SWJ14)

Invisible Market
the intergalactic black market which operates beneath the jurisdiction of the government. (HSR)

Invisible Sector
this section of Imperial City, on Coruscant, was something most Imperial inhabitants of the planet would rather forget even existed. The Invisible Sector - often simply called Invisec - was the home of many of the planet's alien laborers, and has been described as "uglier, nastier, and less hospitable than Mos Eisley." The original Invisible Sector boundaries simply encompassed the Alien Protection Zone, but the residents have continually expanded it. (WG)

Inx, Jondrell
this young pirate was known as a consummate con artist and huckster who would sell his own mother for ten credits. He secretly pretended to be in love with Cressis Linrec, so that he could eventually kidnap her and collect a huge ransom from her father. He told Governor Linrec that, if the ransom wasn't paid, he would sell Cressis to the Zygerian slavers. He enlisted the help of his friend and former emplloyee, Pallas Quintell, but would have sold him out if the mission demanded it. It was later revealed the Jondrell was a native of Kallistas, who used his position as a pirate to acquire credits and funnel them back to the mining colonies on Kallistas. Inx was eventually cornered by a trio of bounty hunters sent by Prefect Rinn to capture him, but he managed to escape. (GG10)

Inysh
this planet was the homeworld of the Abinyshi race. The Empire stripped the world of its deposits of kalonterium, dumping the toxic wastes produced in every conceivable location. The plants were abandoned by the Empire, and Inysh was left a ruined world. (AE)

Io, Dargen
this Alliance Captain served as the sector Chief of Supply for Mortex Sector during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (BI)

Ioa
this New Republic Navy Captain was in command of the Borealis when it served as Leia Organa-Solo's flagship during her travel to the Chorios Systems. Like the rest of the crew on his ship, he was killed by the Death Seed plague unleashed by Seti Ashgad. (POT)

Ion
this small, eight-legged rodent was discovered in the engine compartment of the Shadow Chaser by Jacen Solo, while the ship was en route to Kashyyyk. The small creature had chewed up several components of the ship's ion shielding, and this caused the ship to be jerked out of hyperspace upon encountering an ion storm. The ship was damaged, but completed the trip to Kashyyyk and was repaired. Jacen kept Ion and her babies in a small cage, and part of his collection of strange animals. (DK)

Ion Alley
this was the nickname used to describe the ion defense grid which protected the starship approach to Exovar's Emporium, on the planet Neftali. After transmitting the proper identification, ships had to pass through a heavy set of blast doors before entering a long tunnel. The tunnel was equipped with an EXVR-1 ion generation field, giving it the nickname Ion Alley. Any unauthorized ship passing through Ion Alley was hit with a barrage of ion energy, enough to override shields and render a starship inert. (WSV)

Ion Beamer
a paddle-shaped medical instrument used by the Ssi-ruuvi to immobilize their prisoners. These devices were also called ion paddle beamers. These devices affected humans and most humanoids in the same way a DEMP gun affected droids: electromagnetic impulses within the nervous system of the target were disrupted, cutting off the target's control of their body. Like other Ssi-ruuvi technology, these weapons were powered by enteched life-energy, which provided a variable energy source. New Republic technicians who tried to attach standard power packs simply burned out the beamer. (TB, TBSB)

Ion Bomb
in the decades leading up to the fall of the Old Republic, ion bombs were considered the most powerful explosives in the galaxy. (DR)

Ion Cannon
any particle cannon which uses a huge turbine to generate a large negative ion pulse. The pulse can be aimed as a concentrated mass at its target. The pulse doesn't physically destroy its target, but the ions contained in the pulse render computers and other delicate systems useless. Ion cannons can be built to almost any size and use, from small starfighter systems to huge, planetary defense weapons. (ESB, SWSB)

Ion Defense Grid
any system which could be used to protect the starship entrance to a facility, the IDG employed several wide-pattern ion cannons to set up a grid of ion energy that could be used to disable a starship which tried to gain unauthorized access. (WSV)

Ion Engine
a compact sublight drive which can generate large amounts of thrust and velocity by expelling charged particles through and exhaust port. (SW)

Ion Exciter
a component of the early hyperdrive systems which helps charge up the particles used to generate thrust. (TOJ)

Ion Explosives
detonation weapons which employ excited ions to initiate the explosion of certain forms of matter. (ZHR)

Ion Paddle Beamer
this was another name for the Ssi-ruuvi ion beamer. (TBSB)

Ion Pulse Weapon
this modified form of ion cannon was developed for use on starfighters during the last years of the Galactic Civil War. It used ion energy in such a way as to initially cause damage to another starship's shields, allowing a secondary burst of ion energy to disable shipboard systems. (XWA)

Ion Sandbox
this saloon, located near the Calamar Intergalactic Spaceport on Esseles, was popular with the many pilots who traveled through the system. Bama Vook hid within the saloon after he stole the Trade Federation's droid starfighters from Trinkatta Starships. (E1A2)

Ion Storm
this Strike-class cruiser served as the flagship of Governor Newen Streeg's fleet, which patrolled the Sisar Run during the last years of the New Order. It was commanded by Captain Barse Neoman during this time. (SSR)

Ion Surcharge Generator
a device which builds up an overload of ionized particles for use in an ion cannon. (ZHR)

Ion-flux stabilizer
(JS)

Iona Wince
this young Wroonian served as a cabin stewardess aboard the Starlight Cloud during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Only 11 years of age at the time of the Battle of Hoth, Iona stowed away on the luxury liner in hopes of seeing the galaxy. She claimed to have gotten the job because her father knew the captain of the ship, but in reality the captain discovered her in the hold but still allowed her to remain on board. He liked her upbeat attitude about life, and allowed her to stay on as a steward. Iona developed an allegiance to the Alliance during her time aboard the Stalight Cloud, and used her position to ensure that Alliance agents fleeing from capture were safely given passage aboard the ship. She kept her ears open for the presence of bounty hunters and Imperial spies, and relayed important information to the Alliance agents on board. (CRO)

Ionic Ring
this unique starship was created by Professor Renn Volz. It used a specially modulated ionic beam to manipulate a planet's weather patterns. Volz envisioned the ship as a climatizer, capable of altering the destructive forces of nature to make a world livable. He tested the ship on Zerm, and it was a success. However, he came under Imperial scrutiny, and Captain Bzorn took control of the ship. Bzorn used the ionic ring to destroy planets, turning their weather into stormy, devastating forces. The ring was recaptured by Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Chewbacca at Kessel, but Volz decided that the ship was too dangerous. He destroyed it himself. (CSWEA)

Ionite
this mineral is considered quite valuable throughout the galaxy. Its unique characteristic is that it carries neither a positive nor a negative charge. Instead, ionite carries an alternate charge that affects all charged particle fields around it. In the presence of a positively-charged element, ionite carries a negative charge that negates the positive charge. The reverse is also true. Thus, in the presence of ionite, any electrical device has its operations voided and becomes unusable. This is especially true to chronometers and other timing devices. (DR)

Ionization Reactor
a shipboard component which converts solar energy from the surrounding space into useable starship fuel. (SCRE)

Ionstrike, Wonn
this crimelord worked from a base on Cloud City. He was an elderly man who was crippled in an accident and left paralyzed. He moved about in a specially-designed wheelchair, and spent his entire career working to drive Jabba the Hutt out of business on Cloud City. (GG2, GG12)

Iopene Princess
this starship, a Mining Guild cutter, was hijacked by EV-9D9 as she escaped from Cloud City. It was a state-of-the-art ship, equipped with the newest hyperdrive motivators, sensor systems, and weapons. (TJP)

Iotek
manufacturers of starship ion power cells and ionization reactors. (XW)

Ioth
an alien Captain who worked as an Alliance Naval Supply analyst, Ioth was the individual who saw that the Empire was fortifying the Oplovis fleet just prior to their planned attack on Mantooine. (RASB)

Iotra
this planet, the fifth in the Iotran System, is the temperate homeworld of the Iotran race. The Iotran year is slightly longer than the galactic standard - fourteen Iotran years encompass nearly eighteen standard years. (GG12)

Iotran
a humanoid alien species of incredible strength, the Iotrans hail from the planet Iotra. They have three fingers and a strong thumb on each hand, and two foretoes on each foot. At their elbows, shoulders, and hands are sturdy, bone-like spikes that help protect them from attack. They are an extremely military race, letting their actions speak in place of words. Their culture and history are extremely stable, a result of continued military dominance within the government. Many well-known galactic military orders grew out of Iotran military nations; although these Iotran nations have since combined to for the Iotran Police Force, the orders themselves continue to find new members througout the galaxy. Each Iotran citizen must serve in the IPF for six standard years at the age of 14 seasons (about 18 standard years). Iotran technology is crude but reliable, but not up to galactic norms. They have assumed the use of hyperdrives and weapons in order to further their military defenses. (RPG, GG12)

Iotran Braceman Council
this elite group of veterans of service to the Iotran Police Force tracks down off-world criminals throughout the galaxy. They didn't care about or observe Imperial jurisdiction during the New Order, and have achieved a 95% capture rate during their history. The IBC also doesn't care about political or governmental regulations, especially when the capture is imminent. This has earned them a great deal of resentment from various planetary governments. (GG12)

Iotran Defense Technologies
this small corporation produced a variety of specialized weapons for use by the Iotran Bracemen. (AIR)

Iotran Expanse
this area of the galaxy contained the Iotran System, and bordered Hutt Space, the Karstaxon Regions, and Sulorine Sector. (SSR)

Iotran Police Force
known simply as the IPF, this Iotran military force was created from the various military orders that supported former Iotran nations. When the Iotran nations agreed to unify themselves some 700 years before the Galactic Civil War, the various orders were consilidated into the IPF. They act as law enforcers, national guardsmen, and rescue workers throughout Iotran society. Each Iotran who reaches the age of fourteen seasons (about 18 standard years) must serve a tour of duty in the IPF, during which time they learn basic military training. (GG12)

IPG-X1131 LongTail
this model of podracer, manufactured by Irdani Performance Group, had the longest engines of any podracer which was mass-produced during the last decades of the Old Republic. Teemto Pagalies flew one of these racers. The cockpit of the LongTail measured 5.33 meters in length, while the engines were an immense 10.67 meters long. The LongTail could achieve speeds of 775 kilometers per hour. (IG1)

Ipharian-Da'Lor
this was the name of a race of serpent-like beings, noted for their snake-like lower body. They moved about by slithering on their thick, meter-long tails, while their forebody stood nearly three meters above the ground. They were vaguely humanoid from the torso up, with muscular arms and an elongated face. A ridge of black spines ran from the back of their skull down to their tail, which ended with a retractable spike. The Ipharian-Da'Lor often used masks to cover their faces, thereby hiding their identity. (WSV)

Iphigin
this temperate world is the home planet of the Iphigini race. (SOP)

Iphigini
this race of sentients is native to the planet Iphigin. They are easily recognized by their braided lip-beards, which sit at the bottom of a craggy face. Their skin is quite wrinkled. (SOP)

Iponta
this Gutretee warrior was the strongest of the tribe which greeted offworlders to Isis. When the Alliance sent a group of operative to Isis to keep the crew of the Wanderer from revealing its location, they had to survive combat with Iponta, in order to prove their trust and honor. (IC)

Ipsee, mipsee, monsee, mope
this Gungan singsong was spoken whenever a Gungan had to choose between several options, but had no way to determine which was the best option. (E1A9)

IPV-1
following the success of the IR-3F, Seinar Fleet System produced this System Patrol Craft measuring 150 meters in length. Note that Pirates and Privateers documents the length at just 120 meters. These fast, maneuverable craft are well-armed for intercepting criminals along border regions where Star Destroyers are not present. They lack hyperdrives, and so they are restricted to patrolling specific areas of space. They have been rated at a top speed of 80 MGLT, and have a crew compliment of 12 - four officers and eight gunners. They had cargo capacity to transport up to 200 metric tons of supplies or equipment.
They have the following shipboard components:
- 4 Taim & Bak XV7 Turbolasers
- 1 Krupx VL-4a Warhead Launching System
- Front/Rear Projecting Novaldex Shields (150 SBD)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (60 RU)

(TIE, PP)

IPV/4
this was the latest in Seinar Fleet Systems' patrol craft, designed and built in the decade following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (VOF)

Iquar
this man was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. It was part of Seland' Ir's plans that the entire strike team surrender after successfully recovering Locrin, thereby avoiding bloodshed. Most of the slavers were set free because the studio she worked for paid off the ransom before charges could be brought up. He was eventually caught by New Republic Sector Rangers, and forced to confess the plans. (GG11)

Iquazard
this species of large, boar-like reptile was native to the planet Gelgelar. Small iquazards were the favored prey of reeho birds. These creatures had incredibly thick skin, and it was said that an iquazard could absorb a blaster bolt from near range. (SWJ14)

IR-3F
this was a model of systems patrol craft produced by Sienar Fleet Systems, and was the forerunner of the IPV-1 patrol vessel. At 110 meters in length, and armed with four turret-mounted turbolaser cannons, the IR-3F was capable of taking on capital-sized targets. It was most often used as a blockade ship, with several other similar vessels forming a line. It had to be based in the system it patrolled, however, since the basic design lacked a hyperdrive. The IR-3F required a crew of 3, with 8 gunners and up to 10 troops. It could transport up to 180 metric tons of cargo and had a three-month supply of consumables. Despite the benefits of its impressive power-to-mass ratio, the small crew tended to wear down quickly trying to maintain the ship on long patrols. (FOP, PP)

IR-5
this was the model number of Merr-Sonn's Intimidator blaster pistol. (ROE)

IRD
a small starfighter introduced by the Corporate Sector Authority. It is a fast craft when flown in outer space, but suffers greatly when flown in a planet's atmosphere. The ship's name is derived from its mission profile: Interception, Reconnaissance, and Defense. It was a combat-dedicated fighter measuring 8.5 meters in length, and armed with a pair of twin blaster cannons. It was designed for a single pilot. (HSE, CSA)

IRD-A
this second-generation of the Corporate Sector Authority's Intercept/Reconnaissance/Defense starfighter solved the original design's lack of performance in atmospheric flight. It measured 10 meters in length, and was armed with a twin blaster cannon and a concussion missile tube. Like the original IRD, it was designed for a single pilot. (CSA)

Irden
one of the first tribes of Ugnaughts purchased by Ecclessis Figg for employment on Cloud City. (GG2, MTS)

Ir'khaim
dynast of the Noghri clan Kihm'bar, he was Thrawn's personal bodyguard before Rukh assumed the position. (DFR)

Irdani Performance Group
this conglomerate produced many parts for racing craft, from podracers to starships. They also developed and manufactured complete racers, such as trhe IPG-X1131 LongTail. (IG1)

Ire Eleazari
this Ithorian exiled himself from his homeworld of Ithor in order to monitor the activities of the treacherous Oosea. Ire purchased an asteroid in the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt in order to monitor Oosea's dealings with Imperial Governor Parnell. Ire also became good friends with the Tredways, and assisted Luke Skywalker in saving Dena Tredway after Parnell destroyed 24 Tredway. (JH)

Irenez
Irenez, like her counterpart Sena Midanyl, was a native Corellian with ties to Garm Bel Iblis. It was Bel Iblis who sponsored her enrollment to the Academy. Following her graduation, Irenez opted to remain neutral in the war between Empire and Alliance, and formed her own platoon of mercenaries and soldiers. When Bel Iblis put out feelers to retain the services of good soldiers, Irenez immediately made her team available. She was placed in charge of the secret meetings with Tav Breil'lya, and was responsible for detaining Han Solo and Lando Calrissian. (DFR, DFRSB)

Iri
this planet, located in the Epidimi System, was discovered some 5,000 years before the fall of the Old Republic. Republic scientists discovered that the avian lifeforms living on Iri were genetically similar to those living on nearby Disim. They attempted to breed the unique species, in hopes of creating a new form of life. The experiment was a success, but the resulting species - known as the Tarong - was much more intelligent and eventually overran the two parent species. The original species no longer exist in the Epidimi System. (GG12)

Iridium
this planet was known for its infamous space pirates. The pirates used special power gems to generate a disruptive aura that allowed them to break through starship shields. Raskar held the last of the usable gems, until Han Solo and Chewbacca wrested it from him. (CSW)

Iridonia
Darth Sidious told Darth Maul that he was a native of this planet, located in the Mid Rim. Sidious explained that he found Maul as a baby and took him in to train as his apprentice. (JDM, IWE1)

Iris Enhancer
a device which is used to alter the appearance the wearer's eyes. (CS)

Irith
a planet. (DE1)

Iritsa
this city was located on the planet Chazwa. It was the site of one of the planet's larger spaceports. It was, in many respects, similar to Mos Eisley on Tatooine, but it was much greener and nicer to live in. (ND)

Iritsa Civil Guard
this was the police force which patrolled the city of Iritsa, on Chazwa, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Irol
this Imperial Sergeant was from a forested planet, where he learned how to fly a speeder bike. His balance and flying skills made him a valuable, though cocky, member of the Imperial garrison on the forest moon of Endor, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (CCG10)

Iron Age
a pre-technology epoch in galactic history. (CPL)

Iron Citadel
this vast building was once the seat of the Tetan government, until it was overtaken by Satal Keto and Aleema as the command center for the Krath. It was located in Cinnagar, and was heavily armored and armed. (DLS)

Iron Fist
1) a elderly Victory-class Star Destroyer, it was Zsinj's first command during his service to the Empire. It was in this ship that he learned to use asteroids as weapons. He could draw an attacking force into an asteroid belt, then fire on the larger asteroids when the opponent attacked. He knew that the opponent would use the larger asteroids for cover as they sneaked in to attack. Super-heated metals and ores would be blasted into space, and acted like schrapnel to the opponent's fighters and taking them out more effectively than laser fire. It was a tactic Zsinj would try to reuse at the Battle of Selaggis, but which was recognized by Myn Donos and thwarted. It later served as part of Grand Admiral Thrawn's fleet. (DFRSB, IF, SOC)
2) Zsinj's flagship Super-class Star Destroyer, it was originally christened the Brawl, but was renamed in honor of his first command, the Victory-class ship also called Iron Fist. It was pursued by Han Solo and the fleet supporting the Mon Remonda during the early years of the New Republic, before Solo resigned his commission. In a series of battles at Kuat, Vahaba, and Selaggis, Solo nearly destroyed the Iron Fist, but Zsinj always proved to be one step ahead. At Selaggis, Solo came the closest to killing Zsinj, but Zsinj used the Second Death to flee with the Iron Fist intact. These events took place just prior to the Hapan delegation to Coruscant and Prince Isolder's proposal of marriage to Leia. It was later destroyed at Dathomir by Solo's fleet. (CPL, SOC, CTD) located on the planet Aridus, this huge structure was built by the Empire to overcome the intense interference generated by the planet's magnetic fluctuations. However, the intense frequency used by the Tower to overcome the interference caused massive neurological damage to the native Chubbits. When Darth Vader tried to capture Luke Skywalker on the planet by having an actor pose as Obi-Wan Kenobi, the Iron Tower was partially destroyed when Luke escaped from the trap. (CSW)

Iron Tower

Ironhand
1) this Imperial Star Destroyer, under the command of Captain Argona, was one of only thirteen that remained in the Imperial Navy some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. It was later assigned to accompany the Tyrannic and Obliterator to Bothawui, where the three ships were cloaked from sensors and hidden among the comets that pass through the system. Once the battle was joined, Han Solo managed to get many of the Bothan clans to supply warships from their personal fleets. The three Star Destroyers were forced to retreat to Bastion or be slowly picked apart by the New Republic. Captain Nalgol gave the order to retreat, ending the blockade and bringing to a close the Caamas Incident. (SOP, VOF)
2) this Trenchant-class cruiser was the personal ship of High Inquisitor Mox Slosin, during the height of the New Order. (AIR)

Ironwall
this is one of the seven major Kentran cities on Orellon II, and was ruled by Lord Mogotah. (SWAJ)

Ironwood
a tight-grained wood. (SOL)

Irradiation Box
this form of containment unit was used by starship captains to ensure that equipment used on strange planets didn't bring back unusual organisms. The irradiation box produced a series of broadband radiation and ultrasonic fields to kill off harmful bacteria and viruses which may have attached themselves to the equipment. They were smaller, portable versions of irradiators. (PSG)

Irradiator
any device which emits certain forms of energy to kill certain viruses and organisms. They are often employed at spaceports, to make sure cargo is clean. (HSL)

Irrational Number
this bar was owned by a group of Bith. It was located in Jugsmuk Station, on Gamorr, and was run by a Bith known only as Numbers. (SWJ140

Irregulars
this loose affiliation pirate and mercenary groups was extremely pro-Alliance in their stance during the Galactic Civil War. The groups which made up the Irregulars were scattered across the galaxy, and harried the Empire's supply convoys in order to help the Alliance. (SWCP)

Irrukiine
these huge, four-armed humanoids were native to the planet Malrev. The only true species with any sort of intelligence on the planet, the Malrev were normally vicious hunters. They are covered with a pelt short, brown fur, and their panther-like faces are split by a mouth full of sharp team. The mad Devaronian Cartariun used the Dark Side of the Force to control the Irrukiine, then put them through a series of wargames by controlling them with just his Sith magic. In this way, he learned how to use them as a weapon, arming them with Imperial blasters for ground assaults while using them to fly TIE Fighters in aerial combat. (XWRR)

Irrv
an Imperial General who commanded Maximillian Veers when he was a lieutenant. Irrv was sent to Culroon III to subjugate the simple people living there, and nearly failed in this duty when the Culroon launched a surprise attack during an official ceremony. The battle was turned the Empire's way when then-Lieutenant Veers disobeyed Irrv's direct order to remain confined to the base and attacked the Culroon with AT-ATs. Irrv was irate with Veers, but never got a chance to court-marshall him, as this commanding officer, Commander Grath, executed him on the spot for not seeing the Culroon charade. Grath then promoted Veers to Major. (SWSB)

Irugian Rainforest
this dense forest area is found on the planet Abbaji. It is the home of the hundred-meter-tall firethorn trees. (SE)

Isard, Armand
this man was the head of the Empire's Intelligence organization for many years, having rising through the ranks with the Old Republic. Many who met him remarked on the somewhat inhuman gaze he had. Armand was known to a great deal of people for his ability to ferret out and destroy a cell of Alliance supporters, whether they actually supported the Alliance or not. He was one of the first Imperial officers alerted to the theft of the plans to the first Death Star, and dispatched his daughter, Ysanne, to Darkknell to retrieve them. His hope was that she would be killed in the attempt, removing any possible threat to his position. Unfortunately, Ysanne survived the mission, but failed to recover the datacards containing the plans. She also figured out why Armand sent her, and was so angry that she implicated Armand in the original theft. She also implicated Armand in the bombing of the Treitamma Political Center, claiming that he did it to kill Arrianya Bel Iblis so that Garm Bel Iblis would be free to join the Alliance. Ysanne then called in Imperial Security, and had Armand arrested and executed for treason. (SOC, TFNR)

Isard, Ysanne
a native of Coruscant, Ysanne was born to Imperial service. She was the daughter of Emperor Palpatine's last Internal Security Director. She later betrayed her father to Palpatine, claiming that he was going to defect to the Alliance. Palpatine had her father executed - some say she was the person who shot him - and promoted her to his vacate position. She was later promoted to Director of Imperial Intelligence, and held the Empire together during the years following Palpatine's death at Endor. She felt that Sate Pestage was incapable of holding the Empire together, and began manipulating bureaucrats and military leaders - much as Palpatine had - in an effort to turn them against Pestage. In the end, she was responsible for Pestage's outser from the Empire. Among certain members of the New Republic and the Imperial remnants, she was known as Iceheart. She was characterized by long, black hair, but what made her an imposing force was her eyes. One eye was a cold, ice-blue; the other was deep red with flame-like, golden highlights. She was also responsible for the hiding of the Super-class Star Destroyer Lusankya in an unused facility under Imperial City on Coruscant, from which she tortured and interrogated her prisoners in the infamous Lusankya prison facility. From Lusankya, she could monitor the happenings on Coruscant without notice. She employed Kirtan Loor as a her agent, creating the Krytos virus and keeping him on Coruscant as the leader of the Palpatine Counterinsurgency Force. Once the New Republic defeated the Krytos virus and fully liberated Coruscant, she took the Lusankya and fled to Thyferra, where she took control of the planet's government. Once she entrenched herself on Thyferra, she ousted the Zaltin corporation and planned to execute 1,000 Vratix a day until she had "downsized" bacta production or Rogue Squadron surrendered to her. If either didn't happen in 30 days, she upped the number of Vratix executed to 2,000 per day. Erisi Dlarit suggested that the plan be implemented as a way to stop Ashern terrorism. In the meantime, Isard activated a specially-made clone of herself, created just before she lost Thyferra, and allowed it to use her own contacts and resources to hide the prisoners formerly hidden on the Lusankya. Once the clone returned to Thyferra, Isard had it executed. Isard continued to hold the upper hand over the Rogues until she lost the Avarice to defection and the Virulence was captured at Yag'Dhul. Left with just the Lusankya, Isard tried to make a stand at the Battle of Thyferra. However, that battle never turned in her favor, and she fled the planet on Fliry Vorru's personal shuttle, Thyfonian. The shuttle was intercepted by Corran Horn and Tycho Celchu, whose combined attack destroyed its shields and eradicated the craft with a proton torpedo. Isard was believed to have been killed in the explosion, but in fact she wasn't on the shuttle at all. Her communications had been from a remote sight, and she smuggled herself off-planet disguised as a refugee and went into hiding to recover from her losses. She made her way to General Arnothian's facility and took control of his TIE Defender operation. Meanwhile, the clone Isard thought she had killed had allied itself with Prince-Admiral Krennel, and worked with him to bring down Rogue Squadron and the New Republic by trying to re-open the division between human and non-human races. The clone also kept a close watch on the prisoners of the Lusankya, collecting them all while Grand Admiral Thrawn ruled the Empire and eventually using them as bait for a trap meant to catch Rogue Squadron. Their plans were thwarted by the real Ysanne Isard, who rescued Rogue Squadron from Corvis Minor Five with the help of Colonel Vessery and convinced them to help her destroy the clone and Krennel. While Krennel was killed in the space battle over Ciutric, Isard's clone tried to escape using the same tactic that the real Isard used to escape from Thyferra. However, Wedge Antilles recognized the scheme and destroyed the shuttle - piloted by Colonel Lorrir - while triangulating the clone's position by backtracking her communcations signal. He launched a pair of concussion missiles at her location, destroying it and the clone. The real Isard claimed to want nothing but peace, but really wanted to regain command of the Lusankya, which was being refitted at the Bilbringi shipyards. However, her motives were discovered by Booster Terrik, his daughter Mirax, and Iella Wessiri, and a New Republic task force was dispatched to prevent her from stealing it. In a struggle within the huge ship, Ysanne and Iella confronted each other. After Isard threw every taunt and tactic at Iella, Iella responded by shooting her dead, once and for all. (XWN, WG, KT, BW, IR)

ISBe
this manufacturer created hyprwave transmission systems for use on starships. (RM)

Isced
a tribe of Ugnaughts living on Cloud City, the Isceds were one of the first three tribes purchased by Ecclessis Figg for employment at the mining outpost. The Isceds were looked down upon by the Botrut and Irden trbies because of their malicious sense of humor. (GG2, MTS)

Iscera
this planet was the first place Fable Astin and the Harrier infiltration team stopped, after the disastrous success of their mission to Nysza III. In the main Iscerian spaceport, Fable met Jaalib Brandl. The planet’s atmosphere is almost continually wracked by electrical storms, which cause unpredictable reactions within the volatile gases the fill its upper levels. (SWJ8)

Isela Talsava Norand
this Fallanassi female was Akanah's mother. Isela was one of the Councilwomen who collectively rejected Tagge's offer of subservience to the Empire. Isela met Joreb Goss while she was on Praidaw, and they eventually got married and moved to Gavens. Goss left Isela and fled to Atzerri, hoping to make enough money to return to his family and give them the style of life they deserved. He never returned, and Isela and Akanah moved to Lucazec. Akanah believed that Isela died on Lucazec. Upon being reunited with Wailu on J’t’p’tan, Akanah discovered that it was Talsava who brought the Empire down on the Fallanassi. Talsava was exiled, and brought Akanah with her to Carratos despite Wailu’s offer to bring Akanah up in the Fallanassi circle. (BTS, SOL, TT)

Isen
1) this gas giant is the only planet in the Isen System. It has six natural satellites, of which one - Isen IV - is inhabitted. The system is still in its birth stage, and the primary star Isen continues to give off large amounts of radiation. This, coupled with the system's three asteroid belts, makes navigation through the Isen System extremely difficult. (PG1)
2) this yellow star was the central body of the Isen System. (PG1)

Isen IV
this airless, rocky planetoid was the fourth of six moons orbiting the gas giant Isen. A small pirate base has been established on its bleak surface by the Void Demons, and the underground tunnels were inhabited by a colony of Morvaks. The planetoid makes a full revolution around its sun once every 740 standard days. (PG1)

Ishanna I
this is the first planet in the Ishanna System. It is a barren, searing ball of rock with two moons. (SWJ9)

Ishanna II
this is the second planet in the Ishanna System. A barren world with no natural atmosphere, Ishanna II is important for its mineral deposits, which are mined by various independent companies. It has three moons. (SWJ9)

Ishanna V
this planet, the fifth in the Ishanna System, is an uninhabitable world with five natural satellites. Its mineral resources have been mined by various independent corporations located on Rabaan. (SWJ9)

Ishi Tib
1) an amphibious, humanoid alien race characterized by their huge eyes and beak-like mouths, the Ishi Tib are native to the planet Tibrin. They inhabit Tibrin's oceans, and spend most of their lives under the water. Their thick, green skin helps retain moisture, so they are fairly adaptable in other environments. However, an Ishi Tib who lives away from the water must return to a briny seawater bath every thirty hours or so in order to maintain their skin's moisture levels and to keep their lungs moist. The Ishi Tib race is descended from a species of bony fish which had large, fluke-like fins which were highly developed. They escaped predation by leaving the ocean and staying on land for short periods of time, and natural selection allowed the development of arms, legs, and lungs. They have builts cities upon the coral reefs of Tibrin's oceans, taking great care so they don't disrupt the delicate environmental balances. As a species, they were highly sought after as efficient organizers. (GG4, CCG7)
2) the name of one of Jabba the Hutt's henchman who was of the Ishi Tib race. (ROTJ)

Ishori
this race of sentients is native to the planet Isht, which was part of the New Republic. Shortly before the revelation of the Bothan involvement in the destruction of Caamas, the Ishori were involved in a minor dispute with the Diamala over shipping security. The Diamals didn’t trust the Ishori patrols that escorted their transports into Ishori ports, while the Ishoru didn’t want armed Diamala ships in their systems. Han Solo and Luke Skywalker tried to mediate the dispute, but were unable to bring about a solution before the two races polarized their hatred around the Caamas Incident. As a race, the Ishori are very excitable, and tend get agitated when confronted. They also have a martial society, with many of their laws based on the tenets of battle. (SOP, VOF)

Isht
this planet is the homeworld of the Ishori race. (VOF)

Isilia
this freighter was owned an operated by Adriav Kavos. Kavos was forced to land the ship on the planet Joralla, during an attempt to sell a datadisk containing secret information on the Alliance. It was armed with a pair of laser cannons, and could transport up to four passengers and 100 metric tons of cargo. (PG1)

Isis
1) a crystalline planet, which was the site of an Alliance starfighter construction facility during the Galactic Civil War. The planet is the homeworld of the Gutretee, a race of crystalline humanoids. It was located beyond the fringe of Imperial space, and wasfirst explored by an Alderaanian scouting expedition. Bail Organa kept the planet's location a secret, fearing that Palpatine's growing wrath against Old Republic supporters would require desparate measures. When his fears were realized, Organa began hiding the families of prominent Republic supporters on Isis. The newcomers with met with gruff acceptance by most Gutretee, and a cooperation between them grew into the starfighter facility. The planet itself is a huge world, covered with translucent mountains and refractive spires. It was nearly discovered by Imperial forces when the crew of the Imperial survey vessel Wanderer crashed on the planet. They tried to escape back to the Imperial base on Miser by hijacking the Handree, but were intercepted by Alliance agents. (RASB, IC)
2) this female Imperial Governor wanted Boba Fett to capture Feldrall Okor. When she balked at his price for capturing the pirate, Boba Fett armed a thermal detonator and threatened to blow up her palace if she didn't comply. She eventually gave in, and paid Fett's price. (EGC)

Isk
this ninth Aurebesh symbol, and it stood for the Basic letter "i". (IR, SWM)

Iskadrell
this is the primary planet in the Iskallon System, and the homeworld of the Iskalloni race. (TSK)

Iskalloni
little is known of this alien race, which hails from the Iskallon System. What is known is that they are a humanoid race that implants cybernetic devices to assist their strange physiology. These impants are not perfect, and produce a toxic waste that is deadly to most carbon-based lifeforms. This toxic waste is also found in their heavy machinery, including starships and hyperdrives. It is a perilous duty for those Iskalloni which are charged with cleanging an Iskalloni hyperdrive. Most Iskalloni have hairless, blue-tinted skin, a result of the addition of mutagen to their system. The mutagen allows the iskalloni to accept the bio-technical implants and survive. Their eyes are deeply recessed in their skulls, and have dark, black irises.The Iskalloni remained apart from the rest of the galaxy for several millennia, after several attempt s to establish peaceful relations fell through. During the height of the New Order, the Iskalloni returned to known space, and made contact with Imperial agents. While the Empire thought it had gained a valuable ally, the Iskalloni showed no preference in enslaving humans, taking the Imperial agents as well as Alliance personnel in their initial attacks. The Iskalloni sought to enslave the entire human race, but couldn't determine the best place to begin their assault. Eventually, with the help of Wertram Farege, they captured a New Republic starship with the planetary coordinates of several major worlds, and launched their assault. However, the crew of the starship was able to disable the Iskalloni ship and strand the aliens in theirown galaxy. (TSK, GG12)

Island Beast
a species of huge, kilometer-long creature native to the planet Taloraan. The island beast floats in the planet's atmosphere. It has a huge body cavity which is inhabitable, and they are used by the Wind Raiders as living quarters. (SWAJ)

Ism Oolos
this Ho-Din physician worked for the New Republic at the medical facility in Bagsho, on the planet Nim Drovis. It was Ism Oolos that treated the victims of the Corbantis crash, rescued from Damonite Yors B by Han Solo, Lando Calrissian, and Chewbacca. According to Planet of Twilight, Ism Oolos is twenty-five meters tall! Oolos later worked with Mara Jade, in an effort to determine what disease was making her ill during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Like most other scientists, Doctor Oolos was unable to find the source of the disease. (POT, HT)

Ismaren, Irek
Roganda Ismaren's son by an unrevealed father, Irek's youthful abilities with the Force were augmented by his mother when she had Nasdra Magrody implant an AI chip in his brain. This chip allowed Irek to become educated quicker, both from a practical standpoint as well as with the Force. The subelectronic converter chip was placed in his brain at the age of 5. By age 7, he began formal training in the Force. At 13, he could easily qualify for an advanced degree in a number of physical sciences, if he so chose. However, he had been brought up this way for one purpose: to recover the derelict Eye of Palpatine. Roganda realized, from her association with Palpatine, that only a mind capable of interfacing the Force with the ship would be able to reactivate it. So, she chose her own son to be the instrument of her success. She hoped that his ability to control mechanical things with the Force would allow him to call the Eye to Belsavis and control it. Irek's weakness, though, was that he could only control objects if he knew their basic schematics, which he committed to memory. If the schematics were to change, even fundamentally, he couldn't manipulate an object. (COJ)

Ismaren, Lagan
one of Nichos Marr's childhood friends, they tried to find the kretch in Plett's Well. He was Roganda's brother. (COJ)

Ismaren, Roganda
one of Emperor Palpatine's concubines, Leia Organa Solo once saw her during her first Senatorial meeting. Later, on Belsavis, Leia caught up with her in Plawal. She is somewhat Force-sensitive, and was one of the children in Plett's Well. Her Force-sensitivity earned her a place as one of Palpatine's Emperor's Hands, much like Mara Jade. Roganda told Leia that she had been hiding on Belsavis for seven years, fleeing the anti-Palpatine sentiments sweeping the galaxy. Leia recognized her pale, white skin and dark hair. All the while, though, Roganda was hiding the plot to recover the Eye of Palpatine by having her son, Irek, implanted with a Force-augmenting AI chip developed by Nasdra Magrody. Roganda's real reason for being on Belsavis was to hide her son's traingin from prying eyes. Roganda used her Imperial contacts for funding, and assembled them on Belsavis, where the Eye was programmed to attack first. (COJ)

ISO
an acronym meaning "independent ship owner." (SE)

Isolder
the younger son of the Hapan Queen Mother, Isolder held the title of Chume'da (which roughly translates to "Prince") at the time when Leia Organa petitioned the Hapans for assistance in defeating Warlord Zsinj. He had been named Chume'da because his older brother, Kalen, was murdered by a privateer named Harravan. It was later revealed that Kalen had been assassinated by their mother, Ta'a Chume, in an effort to remove him from the line of succession. The blonde-haired Isolder caught a glimpse of Princess Leia when she arrived on Hapes, and fell in love with her. He proposed to his mother that a marriage to her would help the Hapans prosper, and Ta'a Chume pretended to agree. Isolder then arranged to go to Coruscant, where he proposed marriage. Leia stalled the marriage, and was given more time to decide when Han Solo won Dathomir in a sabacc match. Han kidnapped Leia and took her to Dathomir, and Isolder and Luke Skywalker followed to rescue her. While on Dathomir, Isolder met Teneniel Djo and realized that he loved her more than Leia. He also learned of his mother's treacherous attempt to have Leia killed. In an effort to break the unsavory traditions he mother adhered to, Isolder took Teneniel as his bride. Luke Skywalker had foreseen that he and Teneniel would give birth to a daughter who was strong in the Force, a prophecy which was later fulfilled with the birth of Tenel Ka. When Ta'a Chume stepped down, Teneniel Djo became the Queen Mother of Hapes, and Isolder became her king. The Hapans remained outside galactic politics for several years, until the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. Then, Leia Organa-Solo again traveled to the Hapes Cluster in hopes of convincing the Hapans to join the fight against the alien invaders. The Hapes Consortium was divided on whether to support the New Republic, until Isolder slapped Beed Thane for insulting Leia. This led to an unusual duel in which the winner would control the vote. Thane was arrogant, and Isolder was able to outlast him. The Hapes Cluster joined the New Republic in an effort to defeat the Yuuzhan Vong, and Isolder himself led the fleet from the Song of War. However, as the combined fleet made to defend Corellia, it was discovered that the Yuuzhan Vong were actually attacking Fondor. The fleet made emergency maneuvers to reach Fondor, but found the shipyards utterly destroyed. The Hapans and the New Republic forces opened fire on the Yuuzhan Vong armada, but all hostilities were ceased when a blast from Centerpoint Station ripped through the Fondor System. In addition to wiping out the Yuuzhan Vong, the blast decimated the Hapan fleet. Isolder and his crew aboard the Song of War were just outside the blast, and survived to limp back to the Hapes Cluster. (CPL., CTD, JE)

Ison Corridor
a backwater group of planets in which Mara Jade posed as a hyperdrive mechanic. The Corridor begins with the Bespin System, and travels along the straight line formed by Anoat, Hoth, and Ison Systems. It takes about fourteen hours to jump between each of these systems along the Corridor. It was located near the Corellian Trade Spine, a much more profitable and understood hyperspace pathway which drew much of the Corridor's potential traffic. (DFR, GG2, SWAJ)

Ison System
this planetary system is located at the opposite end of the Ison Corridor from the Bespin System. (GG2)

Isothane
this alcoholic beverage is often served with water and ice. (MA)

Isoto, Lon
this Imperial Admiral was regarded as a traitor for his part in the Battle of Brentaal. He was known to both the Empire he served the New Republic he opposed as an ineffectual leader, often called "Isoto the Indecisive" in closed quarters, but rose to power through the support of the members of the Cabal. Isoto was more interested in his pleasure than the Empire, and used his position to obtain the things he desired most. He was in command of the Imperial base near Vuultin at the time of Emperor Palpatine's death at Endor, and was allowed to remain in command of the base when Sate Pestage rose to power. Ysanne Isard and Pestage planned to draw the New Republic's forces to Brentaal IV, hoping to prove the Cabal was unable to control the moon, let alone the Empire. Meanwhile, Isoto languished in his fortress, surrounded by women and - if rumors were true - enjoying glitterstim spice. He was shot and killed by one of his concubines, shortly after being order by Ysanne Isard to evacuate Brentaal. The concubine was actually working for Isard as part of Project Ambition. (XWES, IR, HXW)

ISPCA
the Intergalactic Society for the Protection against Cruelty to Aliens. (LCM)

Isplourrdacartha Estillo
this was the full, given name of Plourr Ilo. Like most Eiattuan names, it is a mixture of parts of ancestral names. (XWWP)

Iss, Lafek
this bounty hunter was known for his wide range of skills, from electronics and computer programming to droid programming and anti-surveillance. He was a member of the Salaktori Hunters Guild, and worked from a base in Feris City during the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Issarga
a planet which is the site of a huge space station devoted to gambling and trade. (RPG)

Issen
this Imperial Navy Ensign served under Lieutenant Carsa aboard the Lusankya during the Battle of Thyferra. (BW)

Isshaddik
this male Wookiee was the mate of Dewlannamapia. He was exiled from Kashyyyk for a crime Dewlanna never explained, and the two of them ended up working for Garris Shrike. He was killed a year later on a smuggling run to Nar Hekka. (TPS)

Issham Mining Corporation
this sham corporation was actually a front used by the Alliance to establish a base on the planet Virmeude. Issham purchased the mining rights to the planet, then established the Virmeude Starport. In reality, the Alliance used Virmeude as one of the primary posts from which it gathered intelligence from the Core Worlds during the Galactic Civil War. The spaceport also served as a haven and base of operations for pirates and smugglers who were sympathetic to the Alliance. IMC appeared to outside interests as a corporation making a modest profit from its operations on Virmeude, but the Alliance is careful to doctor its books accordingly. All mining shipments brought in by privateers is listed as profit, and all mining and support resources are ordered as if they were to be used in a mining installation. (PP)

Issk, Bartell
a sewer technician in Selkren, on Demophon, Issk aided a group of Alliance operatives in determining the reasons behind Imperial activity on the planet. (SN)

Issor
this Outer Rim waterworld is the homeworld of the Issori and Odenji races. It is a prosperous world of high technology and commerce located in the Trulalis System. (SWJ13)

Issori
this friendly alien race is native to the planet Issor. They have green-scaled skin and a docile though unemotional nature, and are not generally outgoing. They rarely leave the oceans of Issor, as the planet had very little landmass. However, they developed an advanced technology that helped them and their cousins, the Odenji, colonize many of their neighboring planets. Several centuries before the Battle of Yavin, the Odenji were nearly wiped out by the melanncho, a disease which had little effect on the Issori. The females of the species produce eggs, which they tend to until they hatch. The eggs are fertilized through the use of a sperm packet produced by the males. Each young Issori is placed into a certain caste upon its birth, depending on its parents. The caste of the newborn Issori is the same as that of the egg-laying female. The caste of the male fertilizer determines the newborn's position within its caste and the family and political alliances it shares. Eggs are often shared among members of the noble castes from distant nations in arranged ceremonies, to provide deeper alliances and maintain genetic diversity. Nobles may breed with common caste members, but only from the same nation. Issori names reflect their breeding, and have three parts. The first part is based on the father's side of the family, and indicate what type of a union the child comes from. The second name is generally that of the child's mother's family. The last name is a unique name given to the offspring. Both the first and third names are determined using a formula in order to give the most auspicious numerical values to the letters of the offspring's name. (SWJ13, IR)

Issori Blowfish
this snouts of this delicate fish were often deep-fried and served as a garnish for poultry and other white meats. (SWJ12)

Istic II
this was the primary planet in the Istic System. It orbited a young yellow-white star that bombarded the planet with heavy radiation. (TBSB)

Istician
classified by the Empire as subsentient, these creatures were native to the radiation-shrouded planet of Istic II. Because of the high levels of radiation in the environment, isticians suffered from frequent genetic mutation, and had a variety of shapes, sizes, and coloration.s. The Imperial governor of the system welcomed hunters to take as many isticians as they could, since they were considered a nuisance to the human settlers. (TBSB)

Isttu
this Ithorian city is located on the herdship Bazaar. It is the site of the Great Mother River Hotel, and is located on the banks of the Isttu Lake. It houses many wonderful shops and businesses. It perfectly recreates the illusion of a jungle village, until one looks up to see the dome that protects Isttu village from the vacuum of space. (GA)

Isttu Galactic Bank
this was the primary financial institution located aboard the Ithorian herdship Bazaar. (GA)

Isttu Lake
this body of water was maintained within the Dome of Mother Jungle on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar. (GA)

Istuvi, Dif
this man led the Bakuran faithful who embraced the Cosmic Balance during the planet's early history. He is generally credited with authoring the faith's most sacred text, the Fulcrum. He claimed that “the weight of the universe could balance on one rightly-placed atom.” (TBSB)

IT-0
a model of Imperial interrogation droid, the IT-0 is a spherical droid that floats on repulsorlifts. Its gloss-black surface is studded with a visual/sound sensor suite, a vocabulator, a laser scalpel, hypodermic injectors, power shears, and a grasping claw. The basic design of the IT-series droids was created by the Imperial Security Bureau, although it is not know where they were manufactured. (MTS, DFRSB, BTM)

IT-0 26
this interrogation droid served the Empire on board the Desolator. (IC)

IT-1
the series of interrogation droids that succeeded the IT-0. The IT-1 rolled on a large wheel. (DSTC)

IT-3
a newer model of Imperial interrogation droid. (DFRSB)

IT-904
this modified Imperial interrogation droid was purchased at an auction by Dej Vennor, for use in hunting down the bounties Vennor collected. IT-904 had extensive programming changes, and was given additional armaments. The droid's personality became highly sarcastic as a result, especially when dealing with organic lifeforms. (FOP)

Itch Mite
a small, parasitic insect which bites its host and leaves behind an itch-inducing chemical. (TFE)

Ithmir
this Gamorrean ran the Thorip Norr cantina, located in Lola Curich on Lianna. (ML)

Ithor
homeworld of the Ithorians and fourth world in the Ottega System (sometimes called the Ithorian System), it was a world blockaded by the Empire during Palpatine's reign. When the Ithorians gave the Empire certain agricultural and cloning information, the Empire left them alone. Now, it is a tourist destination. The natives prefer to leave their environment as natural as possible, and have constructed huge, floating cities. It is located in the Ottega Sector in the Lesser Plooriod Cluster, in the Calaron Sector, and has many natural satellites. In what became known as the Battle of Ithor, all life on the planet was destroyed by a bacteria-filled bioweapon constructed by the Yuuzhan Vong. After Shedao Shai was killed on the planet's surface, Deign Lian unleashed the bacteria, which consumed all plant and animal life on Ithor's surface. The attack was meant to destroy the bafforr trees specifically, but the Yuuzhan Vong didn't care about any collateral damage. Adding insult to injury, the destruction of the Legacy of Torment by New Republic warships left the Yuuzhan Vong grand cruiser without drive systems. It crashed into the surface of Ithor, igniting the bacteria-filled slime and creating a series of planet-sweeping fires. Ithor burned like a star for several days before dying out, hanging in space like a dead cinder. Because of his part in Shedao Shai's death, Corran Horn was quickly targeted by the news agencies as "the man who destroyed Ithor." (SWSB, MTS, DA, REB, DTR)

Ithor Lady
this New Republic battle cruiser was stationed at Cybloc XII until it was dispatched to quell a pirate uprising near Budpock. The ship was drawn away from the planet of Nam Chorios by the manipulations of Seti Ashgad and Dzym. (POT)

Ithor Loman
this cantina, found in the spaceport near Rytal Prime, on Dayark, is where Talon Kaarde and Jutka met to discuss the attack on the Wild Kaarde, during Kaarde's search for Jorj Car'das. (VOF)

Ithorian
strange looking natives of Ithor, these creatures' heads appear to have been stretched and bent like a ladle. The eyes are set at opposite sides of the hammer-shaped top portion of the head, and their mouths are hidden below on the sloping part of the head. They have wide, flat feet designed to keep their balance. They also have two throats, and this biological phenomenon makes them hard to understand. This caused them a great deal of pain when the Empire discovered their planet, for the Imperial xenophobia was heightened by their inability to communicate. (SW, DA, SWSB)

Ithorian Delicacies
this food stand, located near Lake Isttu on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, served up a wide range of vegatarian meals favored by Ithorians. While much of the food was edible to other races, it wasn't generally palatable. (GA)

Ithorian Gardens
an upscale restaurant located on Cloud City during the height of the New Order. (IDC)

Ithorian Razor Shark
this predatory fish lives in the oceans of Ithor, and has dagger-like teeth lining its large mouth. (RF)

Ithorian Trade Guilds centered on the many Ithorian Herd Ships, these guilds provide visitors with quality goods at reasonable prices. (GG9)

Ithorian Wind Chimes
a small, hanging piece of art which makes simple music was the wind stirs its organic pieces. (DA)

Ithull
a planet in the Stenness system, Ithull was the homeworld of the Colossus Wasp and the Ithullan race. The Ithullans were wiped out by the Mandalorians. A year on the planet lasted 25 standard months. (TOJ, TME, TOJC)

Ithullan
a race native to the planet Ithull, they were wiped out by the Mandalorians a few hundred years before the Galactic Civil War. (TME)

Ithullian Ore-Hauler
this huge starship was formed from the carapace of a dead Colossus Wasp by the Ithullans. Used some four millennia before the Battle of Endor, these Ore-Haulers measured overa a kilometer in length, and required a crew of 15 to operate. 14 gunners manned the weapons emplacements which protected the ship and its cargo. The general configuration was to have a pair of front-mounted heavy turbolasers supported by twelve defensive blasters. These unusual ships were equipped with slow hyperdrives, in an effort to provide them with supralight speeds that wouldn't destroy the Wasp carcass. (TOJC)

ITO-9
this interrogation droid was abandoned when its starship was destroyed in space. It became what is commonly known as a void droid, and patrolled the Paradise System Junkyards. (SH)

Iuaway
an Alliance noble Lord whose people inhabited an urbanized world. (RASB)

Ivak
this Imperial officer served Ysanne Isard shortly after the death of Emperor Palpatine at Endor. Ivak interrogated Mara Jade, when she was first caught by Isard. (MJEH)

Ivar
this native of Tammuz-an was one of Kutuab the Hutts primary weapons salesbeings, and worked hard to ensure that the local gangs of Houk and Weequay youths were armed with Kutuab's own weapons. (SSR)

Iviitz
this was one of Wonn Ionstrike's personal freighters. (GG2)

Ivlacav Gourn
this was the name of Tarc Navy, which patrolled the system surrounding Hjaff. It was founded on a belief of zero tolerance toward intruders. This policy resulted in an increased number of skirmishes during the New Order, as Imperial forces tried to penetrate Tarc space. (AE)

Ivo
a New Republic communications officer. (DESB)

Ivory Tower
found near some lava pits on the planet Aridus, this edifice was destroyed when the false Ben Kenobi - planted by Darth Vader in hopes of luring Luke Skywalker to the planet - tried to distract the Dark Lord and allow Luke to escape. The false Kenobi reduced the Tower to rubble, capturing Vader in the collapse and giving Luke time to flee Aridus. (CSW)

Ivpikkis
this Ssi-ruuvi Admiral was the military commander of the task force sent to subjugate the planet Bakura. He was one of the few Ssi-ruuk at Bakura with real military experience, having been a soldier and scout before being promoted to officer status. It was Ivpikkis who captured Imperial troops and suggested that the Ssi-ruuk should use the Empire to extend their control. It was believed that Admiral Ivpikkis managed to escape the destruction of the Ssi-ruuvi fleet during the Battle of Bakura. (TB, TBSB)

Ivrooy Coral
this form of coral is well-known among the rich and powerful for its ability to be cultured and grown into strong, durable pieces of furniture. Many of the best cultured ivrooy pieces were manufactured before the Clone Wars. The color of ivrooy is not stable, and darkens over time. (SOP)

Iwo
this was Malan Tugrina's nickname for Mon Mothma. (SOC)

Ix Dbukrii
this soft-bodied parasite was known for its ability to scar the neocortex of its host, causing dementia, disorientation, delusions, and loss of memory. The parasite was originally found in the Jospro Sector, where it lived in the Gnithian oep. The ix dbukrii was introduced into its host by a nearly extinct, blood-sucking Gnithian insect, slipping beneath the host's eyelids and burrowing into the brain. (TBSB)

IX 3244-B
the Imperial Survey Team that first scouted out the Forest Moon of Endor as a location for building the second Death Star. (MTS)

IX-26
this New Republic patrol ship was used to ferry Kroddok Stopa's archaeological team to Brath Qella. It stopped on Babali to pick up Stopa and Josala Krenn to gather information on the Qella, during the attempt to capture the Teljkon vagabond. (BTS, SOL)

IX-44F
this New Republic Intelligence ferret ship was sent to trail the Teljkon vagabond near Gmar Askilon, just before the Yevethan Great Purge. (BTS)

Ixidro Legorburu
this M'haeli served as an officer in the New Republic Intelligence agency. He was Pakkpekatt's tactical aide during the search for the Teljkon vagabond at Gmir Askilon. As he rose through the ranks, Legorburu eventually earned the rank of Colonel with the New Republic's Defense Force. He was chosen to be the director of the Home Fleet's Battle Assessment Division, and was one of the primary statisticians during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. (SOL, HT)

Ixll
a small, flying creature native to Da Soocha 5. They have a fair amount of intelligence, and are talented toolmakers. They have been expanding their native technology, and know a great deal about computers, repulsorlifts, and starship engines. When the New Republic chose the Pinnacle Moon for a base, the Ixlls welcomed the humans with a curious reservation. The two groups studied each other, and were able to achieve a working relationship. The Ixlls have even learned to use their normal language, which consists of various chirps, clicks, and whistles, to communicate with R2 astromech droids. (DE1, DESB)

Ixsthmus
this Ithorian is the captain of the transport ship, the Long Shot. He is considered quite handsome, for an Ithorian. He is stern, intelligent, and possesses absolutely no sense of humor. He was a strong supporter of the Alliance, and helped them out whenever he could. However, if a mission put the Long Shot in jeopardy, Ixsthmus would almost always back out. He relies on his co-pilot, Siene Symm, to perform any underhanded or sneaky dealings with customers, because Ixsthmus is also very honorable. (SWCP)

Ixtlar
this planet has a large number of holographic advertising signs scattered across its surface. It creates a dazzling nighttime vista. (CSA)

Ixxus Cranata
this Ithorian is one of the greatest storytellers of his race. His tales of Ithorian history are vibrant and captivating, and have been translated into a number of different languages for enjoyment throughout the galaxy. He has been approached by the historians of the New Republic, in hopes that they may be able to gain some knowledge of Ithorian history that was lost during the New Order. (HR)

Ixzinian Rock Ram
this creature was native to the planet Pellastrallas. (COG)

IX4
one model of Taim and Bak's laser cannons, these are long, needle-like guns similar to those used on the X-Wing starfighter. (SCRE)

Iych-thae
this fanatical Ithorian commanded the shepherd ship Varnay during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He held strongly to the ecological and environmental beliefs of his people, and traveled to Elrood Sector to preach his message to the peoples there. Iych-thae protested vehemently on the abuses Radell Mining Corporation enacted on the planet Dega, which was abandoned as a barren ball of rock after Radell's mines ran dry. Iych-thae was instrumental in the negotiations between Radell and the Anguilla of Alluuvia, and eventually agreed to act as an independent overseer to Radell's future mining operations. (OE)

Iyon
the Codru-Ji Chamberlain assigned to Princess Leia during her stay on Munto Codru. The inherent political infighting among the Codru-Ji did not reach a concensus on his qualifications, so Iyon's appointment to the post was a hard-fought battle. Iyon has a young child, still in the pupal wyrwulf stage, when Princess Leia arrives on the planet. When the Solo children are kidnapped by Hethrir, Iyon's child is also taken. The child was very near its metamorphosis stage, and cocoons itself just before returning to Munto Codru. (CS)

Iyra
a race of tentacled cephalopods native to the planet F'tral, these sentient ocean-dwellers have developed vast underwater cities. Averaging a meter in diameter, the Iyra have a large mouth on their ventral side and several eyestalks on the dorsal side. For each tentacle an Iyra has, there is usually one eyestalk. As an Iyra matures, it grows more tentacles and eyestalks. They have an impressive technology, creating corrosion-resistant materials as well as gravitic and inertial devices for starships. They have established a caste system dependant upon the number of tentacles and eyestalks an individual has, thereby guaranteeing that each individual will continually improve their position in life. The more tentacles, the higher their position in society. Thus, they are very contempuous of humanoid and other legged alien races. They are able to survive outside the oceans of F'tral by filling starship cabins with a mixture of gases and water vapor that keep their skin moist and maintain chemical balances. (GG4)

Iyred
this planet was once covered with tropical forests, and was the native world of the black bha'lir. However, deforestation and construction threatened the population of black bha'lir. The Society of the Black Bha'lir eventually led several missions to rescue the huge cats. (BSS)

Iyuta
this planet was the site of an Imperial communications center, located in the city of Takari. The Alliance staged a raid on Iyuta, with the help of Reekeene's Roughnecks, and successfully knocked out the communications center, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (SWCP)

Iziz
a major city on Onderon, and the city where Freedon Nadd held court following his seduction by the Dark Side. It was walled by the inhabitants in command, to separate themselves from the Dxun beasts that descended on the planet when the Dxun moon orbitted close. The city itself sits on a low mountain within the walls. The walls contained several thousand square miles of territory, and reached several miles into the planet's crust. (TOJ, FNU, DLS)

Izrina
the queen of the Wisties on Endor, she befriends the Towani children and assists them in rescuing their parents from the Gorax. She flies around the Gorax's head, confusing and enraging the beast. She is the only Wistie to remain outside of the Candle of Pure Light. (EA)

Izzat
this Twi'lek was a member of the Society of the Black Bha'lir, but was also something of a traitor. He was known to have turned no less than twelve of his fellow Black Bha'lir members - including Kaine Paulsen - to the local and Imperial authorities. When Drake Paulsen learned of Izzat's treachery, he hunted the Twi'lek down and killed him, ostensibly invoking the Rite of Retribution. What Drake didn't know was that Izzat was working for the Empire at the time. The Empire put out a bounty on Paulsen and his partner, Nikaede Celso, but it was never claimed. (BSS)

I2-AM3
a series of Imperial astrogation droids built for the Empire, and based on the Industrial Automation R2 astromech series. (ISB)

I2-CG
a series of Imperial storage and transceiving droids, based on Cybot Galactica's ED4 series. They were often employed by Sector Plexus groups for the transport of important data. (ISB, MB)

I2F
a series of manufacturing droids produced by the Empire. (SWJ12)

I2F-5
a series of industrial droids used by the Empire. (ISB)

I2F-73
a series of industrial droids often equipped with repulsorlifts, these were used extensively by the Empire. (ISB)

* J *

J-type
this is the term used to describe the twin-radial configuration of sublight engines on most starships. (SW1)

J-3PA
a bronze protocol droid owned by Premier Provisions. (SN)

J-77
the Novaldex Event Horizon Engines used on RZ-1 A-Wing starfighters. It is rated at 400 KTU. (SCRE, XW)

J-9SB
this protocol droid was the informal ambassador of the Soco-Jarel Spaceport during the height of the New Order. Stationed within the Boliscon Towers, J-9 met with visiting VIPs and served the refreshments while they waited for their hosts to collect them. Plated with glossy-black armor, J-9 was easily distinguished from other droids in the spaceport. J-9SB also served as an undercover watchdog, continually searching for plain-clothed Imperial customs officers or police. If J-9 suspected a person of being an Imperial law enforcement agent, it immediately contacted Aquato Boliscon to report their arrival. (BSS)

J'ber
this was the term used by the Gorothites to describe a clan. Roughly translated, the term meant "extended family." All members of a j'ber were connected by blood or honor, and the members of each j'ber were forbidden to breed with Gorothites from another j'ber. (AE)

J'kuutak
this creature, native to the planet Guiteica, was used as a mount by the Bitthaevrian warriors. (AIR)

J'mesk Iman
this Tamran Senator of the New Republic felt that the Diversity Alliance should be allowed to exist, even after hearing the testimony of Jaina and Jacen Solo after they returned from Ryloth. Iman believed that the children were well-intentioned but ill-advised to attempt the rescue of Lowbacca and his sister. (TEP)

J'Quille
a Whiphid male who was part of Jabba the Hutt's retinue on Tatooine, just prior to the crimelord's death. He was one of Valarian's former lovers, and the two of them staged a falling out to gain Jabba's attention. Jabba, in turn, employed him in order to gall Valarian. Valarian and J'Quille had arranged their break-up, and J'Quille became a spy. She had J'Quille arrange to meet Malakili and the rancor, in order to steal them out from under Jabba's nose. J'Quille was also responsible for bribing Phlegmin to lace Jabba's paddy toads with a slow-acting poison. In his rooms, J'Quille kept a strand of poisoned Mastmot teeth as a decoration, hoping someday to use them against Jabba. He never got the chance, because Jabba was killed at the Pit of Carkoon. When he fled Tatooine and tried to return to Toola, he found that Valarian had put a price on his head for "rejecting" her. J'Quille returned to Jabba's palace and became a B'omarr acolyte, claiming that having his brain removed to a nutrient jar was the only way to escape Tatooine's heat. (TJP)

J't'p'tan
this planet, located within the Koornacht Cluster, was one of the worlds to which the Fallanassi fled when the Empire attacked Lucazec. Wialu was one of the Fallanassi who fled there, and she sensed the danger of the Yevetha Great Purge. The planet was known in the New Republic's astrogation catalog as FAR202019S, and was known to other as Doornik-628. The name of the planet is derived from a series of H'Kig glyphs which describe basic elements of the H'kig religion. The first three are too sacred to write out - jeh teh peh - and form the "J't'p'" portion of the name. The last piece - tan - not so sacred. The Yevetha wiped out the H'kig settlement on the planet, reducing it to scroched ruins while exterminating all but a few of the religious followers. (BTS, SOL, TT)

J'uoch
sister to R'all, she helps him run the mining operation on Dellalt. She is a striking woman with thick, straight, black hair flowing from a sharp widow's peak. Her black eyes are a stark contrast to her pale skin. When she discovers that Lanni has found the log-recorder from the Queen of Ranroon, she orders Lanni to be killed in order to obtain the recorder. The recorder, however, is not found, and J'uoch begins to search on her own. When she learns that Badure and Hasti have returned to find the recorder, she again steps up to try and get to it first, but becomes involved in the deeper plots surrounding the Queen. J'uoch is killed when the Guardian Corp of war-robots attacks her camp. She tries to flee, but Hasti stops her. In the duel that follows, J'uoch is thrown off a bridge by Hasti. (HSL)

Ja'Fai
this Abyssin term refers to the mating race between eligible males and females. Any female who completes the rite of passage to adulthood is given a head start, to be pursued by all adult bachelor males. The first male to catch a female wins her, and they are mated for life. Because the female Abyssin are faster runners than the males, a female's like or dislike for a given male may influence the race. (GG4)

Jaan
this man was an Imperial Moff during the height of the New Order. (SWJ8)

Jaar
this is a drink given to Wookiee children. It is fermented from alcoari milk and vineberry extract, and is very sweet to the taste. (RD)

Jabba Desilijic Tiure
one of the galaxy's most infamous crimelords, Jabba was a slug-like Hutt. He was sired by Zorba the Hutt on the planet Nal Hutta, about 600 years before he set up shop on Tatooine. Like most Hutts, Jabba had a huge, bloated body which must be moved on repulsorlift devices. This made Jabba appear immobile and defenseless, but he was also highly resourceful and cunning. During his early years as a thief and smuggler, Jabba worked with Ephant Mon, and once saved Ephant's life during an Imperial raid. When his father was imprisoned for improper business conduct, Jabba became the heir apparent to the Desilijic leader, Jiliac. They worked trielessly to expand Desilijic's horizon, but Jiliac's untimely pregnancy stalled Jabba's ambitions. When Durga the Hutt challenged Jiliac to combat under the Old Law, Jabba used the opportunity to assassinate Jiliac's offspring just as the old Hutt was killed by Durga. Jabba the assumed control of Desilijic. At the height of the New Order, Jabba had become the Outer Rim's most notorious crime lord, controlling most of the smuggling, spice shipments, loan sharking, and murders in that territory. He was a major player in the illegal movement of glitterstim spice, and was constantly in powerplays with Moruth Doole over command of the market. Jabba had a working relationship with Han Solo, which centered around the delivery of smuggled spice from Kessel. When Han had to dump a shipment and escape from the Imperials, he could not repay Jabba, and so Jabba placed a death mark on Solo's head. Jabba employed his own set of bounty hunters to find Solo, thus keeping some of the reward money in-house. When Boba Fett returned Solo to Jabba, in a block of frozen carbonite, Jabba was ecstatic, and had the frozen Solo hung as a wall decoration. This capture of Solo led to a reprisal from Solo's new-found friends on the Alliance, and Jabba was killed when he tried to have Solo and Luke Skywalker put to death in the belly of the Sarlacc which resided in the Great Pit of Carkoon. Luke used the Force and a little luck to rescue Han, while Princess Leia strangled Jabba with the chain he kept linked around her neck. Following Jabba's demise, no one could find his will, and his palace was left empty. It was overrun with Ranats, until Zorba the Hutt returned to take ownership of it and Jabba's other possessions. At his largest, Jabba measured 3.9 meters in length, (SW, ROTJ, ZHR, EGC, GG7, TPS, THG, RD)

Jabba's Palace Sabacc
this variant was reportedly created by the Hutt himself, and it was used to win the servitude of a great many beings. (CCG7)

Jabba's Throne Room
this club bar, found in The Revels district of the city of Talos, was a wondrous recreation of Jabba the Hutt's Tatooine palace throne room. It contained holographic and live-action recreations of many of Jabba retainers, including Bib Fortuna, Oola, Gamorreans, and the Max Rebo Band. (SOL)

Jabdo Garrink
this Rodian worked in Jugsmuk Station, on Gamorr, selling specialty items smuggled onto the planet. Callista Ming discovered that Jabdo had sold a homunculus-wasp to Rog and Gundruk, unaware that they were going to use it to murder Vrokk. (SWJ14)

Jabitha
this young Ferroan girl was the granddaughter of the original Magister of Zonama Sekot, and greeted Anakin Skywalker when he and Obi-Wan Kenobi traveled to the planet to investigate the disappearance of Vergere. Her grandfather had created a number of holograms of her to keep him company in the Far Distance compound, while she was in Middle Distance attending school. To avoid confusion, the Magister named the holograms Wind. Jabitha was on Zonama Sekot when the planet disappeared into hyperspace, in order to avoid capture at the hands of Wilhuff Tarkin. Anakin never saw her again. (RP)

Jabitha
this was the name given by Anakin Skywalker to the huge Sekotan starship he purchased with Obi-Wan Kenobi, during their search for Vergere. They agreed to purchase the ship in order to get close to the Zonamans and learn what happened to Vergere. Their ship was formed from fifteen seed-partners, all of which survived the forging and annealing process before being shaped into a thirty-meter-long craft. However, Zonama Sekot came under attack by Wilhuff Tarkin at the time the Jabitha was shaped, and Anakin and Obi-Wan were unable to fully integrate themelves with the ship. The Jabitha fell sick, and when Zonama Sekot disappeared into hyperspace to escape Tarkin's assault, the Jabitha died on the planet Seline. (RP)

Jaboon
this large, slow-moving herbivore is native to the planet Naboo. It is a calm-natured beast, and is often domesticated by the Gungans for use as a mount. Its skin is also prized by artisans and collectors, for it is used to make beautiful leather book covers. (GF)

Jacc Maldelbrot
one-time owner of the Royal Casino on Cloud City, Jacc began his career as a textile worker in the Kathol Sector. (GG2)

Jace, Bror
Bror was a member of X-Wing Rogue Squadron. He was a native of the planet Thyferra, and a veteran of the Battle of Hoth, Endor, and Bakura. He was a member of the Zaltin faction of bacta producers, as a way to balance the inclusion of Erisi Dlarit to the Squadron. It was the belief of the Zaltin faction that the Empire was doomed, and that an alliance with the New Republic through Jace would be profitable. Jace was part of the mission which was sent to Noquivzor, but was ambushed by the Black Asp. His body was never recovered, and Jace was listed as missing in action. It was believed that Tycho Celchu had leaked the mission's plans to the Imperials, but it was later revealed that Celchu was not the traitor. Jace himself later reappeared, and explained that the Vratix of the Ashern faction had recalled him to help plan the overthrow of Xucphra's pro-Imperial Bacta Cartel. He assisted the Rogues in the planning for the Battle of Thyferra, and was invaluable to the infiltration unit led by Elscol Loro and Sixtus Quin. After the Rogues defeated Ysanne Isard and removed the Imperial yoke from Thyferra, Jace was appointed to create the Thfyerran Aerospace Defense Force. (XWN, WG, KT, BW)

Jacelle
this was the capital city of the planet Sirdar. (COG)

Jack-a-dale
this is a wild bird native to the plane Utharis. It lives in abandoned buildings. (TT)

Jackal
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Jackelope
a doglike creature native to Douglas III. (LCM)

Jacques
a moisture farming family on Tatooine. They were friends with Ariq Joanson, and agreeing with his ideals. (TME)

Jadai Motors
this small corporation produced a number of distinctive repulsorlift ground transports. (AIR)

Jaddyyk
this parasitic moss grows in the jungles of Kashyyyk. It grows in clumps of stringy tendrils which sprout from a tall mound-like stalk, making the plant look like a long-furred Wookiee. (TT)

Jade
this Alliance shuttle was dispatched to pick up the Bothan delegates aboard the Tal'cara, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Jade Skywalker, Mara
a strikingly beautiful woman known for her flame-red hair and piercing green eyes, Mara Jade grew up as an orphan after her parents were killed early in her life. Little in known about her young adulthood, but at some point she was taken in by Emperor Palpatine and trained in the use of the Force. She was later employed by Emperor Palpatine as The Emperor's Hand. She took on a number of surveillance missions, often posing as one of the Emperor's dalliances in order to escape notice. As a member of Palpatine's closest followers, she gained a good deal of experience in the use of The Force. Her latent Force-sensitivity was heightened by the Emperor, and it allowed her to contact him across vast distances via Force energy. These abilities disappeared almost completely when the Emperor was killed. One of the last missions the Emperor assigned her to was the killing of Luke Skywalker. The Emperor claimed to have foreseen her involvement in Luke's death, and sent her to Tatooine following Vader's failure to capture Luke at Cloud City. She infiltrated Jabba's palace as a dancing girl, but was not allowed onto Jabba's sailbarge when it left to sacrifice Luke and Han to the Sarlacc. This unfortunate setback allowed her to continue in her efforts to kill Luke, but the death of the Emperor at Endor robbed her of her Force abilities and her main source of impetus. She went underground after Palpatine's death, since - as a secret agent for the Emperor - none of the surviving Imperials would ever believe she was more than a dancing girl. She performed a number of odd jons across the galaxy before she joined up with Talon Kaarde. She was working on Tropis at the time, and was employed by two safari hunters who turned out to be Talon Kaarde and Tapper Quelev. When Kaarde and Quelev got into trouble, Mara intervened and helped Kaarde escape. They then made proper introductions, and Mara asked for a job. She joined up just before he became involved with the New Republic, and was once again thrown into Luke's path. The Emperor's command to kill Luke resurfaced, but the events surrounding Grand Admiral Thrawn's plans for Luke and the New Republic kept getting in her way. She found herself helping Luke more often than not. When she and Luke were reunited in C'baoth's stronghold on Wayland, she fulfilled her "destiny" to kill Luke Skywalker, but not in the way she or the Emperor had forseen. When C'baoth sent a clone of Luke to battle the original Luke, Mara destroyed the clone. Following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn Mara worked with the New Republic as a liaison between the Republic and the newly-formed Smugglers' Alliance. Following the death of the reborn Emperor on Byss, Mara continued to assist the Republic, but was increasingly pursued by Lando Calrissian, both on a business level and a personal level. She kept Lando at arm's-length from a personal standpoint, but joined in with him to restart the Spice Mines of Kessel as a legal source of glitterstim spice. They were also employed by Talon Karrde to search out the location of Jorj Car'das, a job which took them nearly six years to complete on the side. During the Caamas Incident, Mara took a group of Karrde's people to Nirauan, to search out the strange ships that attacked them in the Kauron asteroid field. She was stranded on the planet, and was eventually rescue by Luke. They realized that their relationship was now stronger than ever, especially after Mara bluntly showed Luke that his use of the Force needed to be minimized before he could fully understand it. Luke, in response, helped Mara realize her potential with the Force, unlocking it in time to use it to escape from the Chiss who controlled the Hand of Thrawn. During their escape, Luke asked Mara to marry him, a question to which she immediately agreed. After the resolution of the Caamas Incident, they were wed: once, in a solemn Jedi ceremony performed by Kam Solusar; and again in a public ceremony on Coruscant. Both agreed that they should travel the galaxy as Jedi instructors, leaving the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4 to grow beyond Luke's vision. A few years later, Mara suddenly became ill. Through the sheer will of the Force, she remained active, but was unaware that her illness was actually engineered by Nom Anor, in an attempt to see just how powerful the Jedi Knights were. She resisted the disease he had created long after other victims were dead and buried. After the creature named Vergere escaped from the Millennium Falcon and her servitude to the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan, Han Solo returned to Coruscant with a sample of Vergere's tears. The creature claimed they could help heal Mara's disease, and Mara was more than willing to try. The initial stages of her recovery were somewhat painful, but whatever Vergere gave them drove off the disease. She hesitated to call herself cured, and retained a small portion of the tears for later use. Soon after the Battle of Fondor, Mara discovered two momentous things: first, that it was Nom Anor who had poisoned her on the planet Monor II; and second, that she was pregnant with Luke's son. She refused to stop fighting against the Yuuzhan Vong, but also realized that she could not longer be at the forefront of the fight. (HTTE, DFR, TLC, COTF, EGC, IJ, SOP, VOF, VP, SWI, HT, BP, U)

Jade's Fire
the starship owned by Mara Jade in the years following the financial loss of the Kessel Spice Mines, Jade's Fire boasts some impressive scanners and sensors often unavailable to non-military starships. The ship is a SoroSuub Luxury 3000 yacht, slightly larger than a YT-1300, with a truncated nose, wide fuselage, two elliptical wings, and an orange and red flame pattern painted on its hull. Among its components are a shootback system that automatically returns incoming fire and a slave-circuit control. It also had three quad turbolasers and a tractor beam projector. Because of Mara's introverted nature, the Jade's Fire was the one thing she cared about the most. That was why Luke Skywalker was reluctant to take it to Nirauan in search of Mara, but he recognized the necessity to do so. They had planned to use the ship to escape the planet, but Mara realized that the only way to stop Voss Parck and Soontir Fel from contacting Bastion was to eliminate their fleet. She used her beckon call to remotely pilot the Jade's Fire on a collision course with the hangar facility of the Hand of Thrawn complex, destroying the hangar and most of the ships within. (AC, AS, VOF, CTD)

Jade's Sting
one of the names Mara Jade considered for her starship, before settling on the Jade's Fire. (TFNR)

Jade's Whip
one of the names Mara Jade considered for her starship, before settling on the Jade's Fire. (TFNR)

Jade Moon
this is the name given to one of Loronar's largest satellites, which was the site of an Imperial special weapons platform manufacturing facility during the last years of the New Order. (RSG)

Jade Rose
a fancy flowering plant. (SE)

Jade Sabre
this custom-modifief shuttle was built by Luke Skywalker and given to his wife, Mara Jade, as a gift shortly after they were married. It had a shape like a fish-head, with swept-back wings and flared side pods protecting its ion drives. Mara believed that Luke had the ship constructed to thank her for sacrificing the Jade's Fire on Nirauan. Mara and Anakin Solo flew the ship to Dantooine, after the initial battle of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, so that Mara could get some rest. Unfortunately for all, the Vong were already on Dantooine, and they destroyed the Jade Sabre before Anakin and Mara could recover it. (VP, DTO)

Jade Shadow
this was the luxury yacht purchased by Lando Calrissian and presented to Mara Jade Skywalker as a gift. The ship had a number of significant modifications, including retractable laser cannons, camouflaged torpedo launchers, and enhanced shielding systems obtained by Talon Karrde. The name Jade Shadow was coined by Tendra Risant, and denoted the ship's nonreflective gray hull. Lando had picked out the ship because of its aft cargo bay, which was wide enough to accommodate Luke Skywalker's X-Wing fighter. (BP)

Jade Simian
a seedy tavern located within the Snakes' Den, on the planet Camden. (CRO)

Jael
this was the sixth of seven seasons experienced on the planet Guiteica. (AE)

Jael City
this is one of four major cities on the planet Kirima, and is located on the western part of the planet western continent. (TSK)

Jael Ganton Farvash
this Bitthaevrian Major was one of the only recorded traitors to the m'Yalfor'ac Order. He made a bid for control of the Order by attempting to assassinate Quaal Tavier Catharius, but the initial attempt failed. Ganton was sentenced to be executed, but he invoked his personal right to challenge his accuser, Tavier, in direct combat. Ganton knew that Tavier was seriously injured, and hoped to at least demean Tavier if he refused. Tavier, however, accepted, and chose Aul Tarrus Vishav as his Guardian. Ganton, however, had planned to win the fight, and brought three of his own Guardians to the challenge. Ganton had made sure that the Succession Judge was a personal friend, which allowed him to bring in his three Guardians despite Tarrus' protests. In an amazing upset, though, Tarrus defeated the other three Guardians while Tavier managed to kill Ganton in comabt. To ensure that there would be no further treachery, Tarrus also executed the Succession Judge. (AIR)

Jaemus
this primary world in the Jaemus System is located within the Velcar Free Commerce Zone, in the Pentastar Alignment. The Empire used the Galentro Heavy Works shipyards to subcontract out the work of Kuat Drive Yards and Seinar Fleet Systems, and the result was the Enforcer-class picket cruiser. The Jaemus yards were rivalled only by the Sluis Van shipyards. A group of Plexus courier droids also passed through the Jaemus shipyards, to be modified by Renikco and Santhe workers to serve as transport vessels for Death-Hunter cyborgs. (SWAJ, SWJ9)

Jafan
this man was once the King of the Naboo, and was generally credited with establishing the Great Time of Peace during his rule. (IWE1)

Jaffa Cider
this pressed, mulled juice was known for its rich fragrance. (ND)

Jag Crag Gorge
part of the incredibly beautiful, though extremely arid, landscape of Tatooine, Jag Crag Gorge is a twisting, winding channel filled with rocky spires and outcroppings. Located near Arch Canyon, the Gorge was part of Jabba the Hutt's podracing course. It fed racers into the formation known as Jett's Chute. (TPM, RAC)

Jagannath
this Trandoshan term refers to the spoils of victory won in mortal combat. Each Trandoshan collects jagannath points throughout its life, mainly from capturing and killing Wookiees much larger than itself. When the Trandoshan dies, he gives his jagannath points to a Scorekeeper, and the total determines the Trandoshan's place in the afterlife. (TBH)

Jagg Island Detention Center located on Coruscant, this prison facility was used by the New Republic to incarcerate former Imperial officers. (SOL)

Jagga II
this planet, located in the Venjagga System, was the site of an Imperial base following the Battle of Endor. It is a small world, and was protected by the Imperial-II class Star Destroyer Eviscerator. The reason for the Eviscerator's presence was the fact that Jagga II was producing missiles for the Imperial Navy. (XWN)

Jagga VII
a gas giant in the Venjagga System. (XWN)

Jaggert, Randall
this Imperial Colonel was in charge of the construction of the resupply base which waas to be built in the Bissillirus System, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GMK)

Jahhnu
this is one of the three largest cities found on the planet Farrfin. Like Farlhu and Geltyu, it is best known for the criminal element which thrives within its borders. Jahhnu is known for the numerous betting houses that cater to gullible off-worlders, and which take in incredible numbers of credits from unsuspecting tourists. (TTSB)

Jai
the Dathomirian word for Jedi (CPL)

JAK Racing
this podracer manufacturer was best known for the J930 Dash-8 racer used by Ebe Endocott. Note that the name JAK comes from the first initials of George Lucas' children. (IG1)

Jak Sazz
a bounty hunter often found in the Byss Bistro, Jak Sazz is a member of the Ab'Ugartte species. He is rumored to have never turned down a paying job, no matter what it involved. His only constant companion is a huge hydrospanner he named Grivooga. Anyone who insulted Grivooga was quickly introduced to the tool's hard metallic surface, as many of Jak Sazz's crewmen have discovered. (DE1, DESB)

Jakan
this Yuuzhan Vong high priest was an advisor to Supreme Overlord Shimrra, and the father of the priestess Elan. (HT)

Jake
a Circarpousian miner who attacks Luke with a double-bladed stiletto outside a Mimban restaurant. (SME)

Jakien, Allania
this brave ten-year-old lived with her parents on Cloud City. Her father was a worker in the tibanna gas refinery, and her mother worked at the Imperial Towers restaurant. When Darth Vader first arrived at the outpost, she didn't know about it. However, when Lando Calrissian ordered the evacuation of the colony, she was cut off from her parents. She and a group of friends tranversed tthe city's Ugnaught tunnels, passing into the carbon-freezing chamber just as Luke Skywalker and Darth Vader were battling with their lightsabers. She kept going, but felt some bond with Luke that she couldn't explain. When she emerged from the tunnels with her friends, they were found by Bent Gavler and whisked off the outpost in a crowded transport ship. She sensed that Luke was all right as they flew away from Cloud City. (MTS)

Jal
this Alliance Special Forces soldier was a member of Team Razor. (HAS)

Jaled Dur
this ancient Jedi Master is credited with the creation of the Heart of the Universe. (GMS)

Jalor City
this was the capital of the planet Gotida. (AIR)

Jalor Docking Facilities
this was the central enterprise around which the city of Corint City was built. It was located on the coast of the Uloitir Sea, at the mouth of a wide river delta. The Jalor facility provided spacers with easy-access docking bays and landing pads, as well as a relatively lax customs office. (SWJ10)

Jalose
Merrik's female companion on M'haeli, she was also a supporter of the Alliance. She was injured in the firefight when they, along with Princess Leia Organa, helped rescue Mora and Ranulf Trommer. She later died of these injuries. (ROC)

Jalus Nebl
this Sullustan was once employed as a pilot by Teroenza. He became ill from transporting spice from Ylesia, which was later diagnosed as an allergy, and was temporarily replaced by a young Han Solo. He helped the young man understand ways to navigate the storms that ravage the planet. Their friendship grew quickly, and eventually Jalus assisted Han in escaping from Ylesia. It was Nebl who flew between the Talisman and the Helot's Shackle, breaking the tractor beam contact and allowing both himself and Han to escape. Nebl fled into hyperspace with the Ylesian Dream and disappeared. He joined the Alliance, and renamed the Ylesian Dream to Dream of Freedom. He joined Bria Tharen and the group which assaulted Ylesia to destroy the Besadii businesses there. He piloted the Dream in through the atmosphere and led the way for many Alliance ships to reach the ground. Unfortunately, the Dream was the first ship targetted by the turbolaser protecting the planet. The first shots it fired in defense of the colonies there struck the Dream and destroyed it, killing Nebl in the explosion. (TPS, RD)

Jamer, Dren
an Imperial Navy Captain serving on the Dominant under Pter Thanas, Dren Jamer was known for a less than stellar career at the Imperial Academy and as an officer. However, both parts of his life were punctuated by unusually bright moments. His commanding officer aboard the Star Destroyer Stormclaw commended his attention to detail and promoted him to the bridge crew. However, his otherwise average performance relegated him to duty at Bakura, where he served as Thanas' second in command. Thanas recognized Jamer's aptitude for science and exploration, and assigned him the duty of mapping the Bakura System. After the Battle of Bakura, Jamer continued to denounce the Alliance and left Thanas' crew to remain with the Imperial forces. (TB, TBSB)

Jameson
this man convinced his commanding officer, Lajar Weqill, to go on a safari to Relkass. The plan was to kill a few draagax for the bounty on their pelts. A native of Relkass, Jameson barely survived the hunt after severely underestimating the predatory frenzy of a pack of draagax under the influence of the Relkass sentinel plant's narcotic. (COG)

Jaminere
this planet served as the capital world of the Allied Tion sector. It was part of Xim the Despot's empire in the early years of galactic history, although it was never part of the Tion Hegemony. (ML)

Jamiro, Tigran
this native of the planet Onderon spent most of his life in service to the Alliance. He served at the Dantooine base before being relocated to Yavin 4. After the Battle of Yavin, Jamiro was assigned to Echo Base on Hoth. Jamiro's expertise is in logistics, and he served as Echo Base's Senior Logistics Officer. Any Alliance personnel arriving at the base had to report directly to him. (CCG3)

Jammer Pack
any form of technology used to prevent unwanted listeners from overhearing a conversation. The original technology was less than successful, and would have been scrapped if the devices hadn't been discovered by various intelligence agencies. It was found that a high-powered jammer pack could drown out all communications in a specific area. This allowed operatives to enter a location while their targets were unable to communicate with each other. (TTSB)

Jamos, Hen
this merchant and spacer plied the spacelanes of Trax Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He was sympathetic to the Alliance, and agreed to help a group of Alliance agents travel from Draenell's Point to Entrus, during their investigation of the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. Hen was the owner and operator of the Trax Express, and spent much of his career transporting trinkets and souvenirs of the sector to starports and visitors' centers. (GMK)

JAN
see Justice Action Network (SWJ8)

Jan
this unknown individual accompanied Andos Delvaren to the Combat Moon, in an effort to instigate large-scale conflict between the Rabaanite and S'krrr people. Jan was an Imperial agent, and attempted to draw Mika Streev into a trap to disable and kill him in S'krrr fashion. However, Mika's reflexes kept him out of reach, and he delivered a blow which crippled Jan's knee. Andos managed to knock out Mika, and Jan attempted to kill him with a S'krrr energy pike. Mika came to and grappled with Jan, until he was able to remove a stilleto from its sheath and slit Jan's throat. (SWJ9)

Jan-lo, Sunnar
a female Agamarian recruited into the Alliance along with Keyan Farlander, Sunnar became a fairly competant starfighter pilot. (XW)

Janako
designation of one model of MaKing-class transport ship built by General Spacetronics. Janako models had unique rear flanges mounted on them. (RPG)

Janara III
this world is covered with green, rolling hills. It was destroyed by an Imperial assault, although the propaganda reports claimed it was the work of the Alliance. Jaalib Brandl later told Alex Winger that the population of Janara III was destroyed in order for his father, Adalric, to capture Alex herself. (SWJ12)

Janczyk
the Captain of the Dred Imperative. (SN)

Jandal
this city is located on the planet Kamori. (SWAJ)

Jandarra
this green and purple tubular vegetable is grown on the planet Jubilar. It grows in the deserts there, usually only after one of the infrequent rain storms. A delicacy favored by the wealthy throughout the galaxy, jandarra plants take almost two years to cultivate, due to the rarity of rain on the Jubilar desert. The natives of Jubilar were forced to smuggle the vegetable off their planet to nearby Shalam for processing, because nearby Shalamites placed a 100% tariff on it in order to help fill their own coffers. (TBH)

Jandi, Aellyn
this young woman married Moff Riit Jandi, and lived on Elshandruu Pica. She was a childhood friend and love of Sair Yonka from their time on Commenor, who managed to convince Kina Margath to cover up their affair. Kina agreed, and spread rumors that Yonka was romancing herself, instead of coming to Elshandruu Pica to meet with Aellyn. For her own part, Aellyn used her position as the Moff's wife to obtain special concessions for Margath's on Elshandruu Pica, and persuaded Yonka to bring exotic liquors and alcohols from the worlds he visted for Kina. (BW)

Jandi, Riit
this Imperial Moff took control of Elshandruu Pica in the wake of the Battle of Endor. He was married to Aellyn Jandi, a woman forty years his younger, and was unaware of her affair with Sair Yonka. (BW)

Jandler
a well-dressed, able-bodied human living on Rafa IV, Jandler was at one time the owner of the Spaceman's Rest. When he gave up the bar, he was restricted from ever entering again. At this time, Jandler began working for Duttes Mer as a constable and Captain of the Guard. When Mer and Rokur Gepta brought Lando Calrissian to Rafa IV, Jandler was placed in charge of making Lando couldn't back out of their deal to locate the Mindharp. Jandler was ordered to follow Lando's every move, and to eliminate Calrissian if necessary. The orders from Mer finally angered Jandler enough that he willingly let Lando place his team on a drifting crusier whose destination was Rafa XI. This gave Lando enough time to find the Mindharp without intervention and figure out its true purpose. (LCM)

Jandoon
this planet is the primary world in the Jandoon System, which is located in the Corva Sector. The inhabitants of the planet died out centuries ago, although the reasons for their disappearance have not been revealed. It is rumored that the spirits of the dead roam the system, and these rumors tend to keep most travellers out of the system. Another rumor states that the planet's inhabitants were technologically advanced, and that fantastic machines and tools can be found deep within the planet. It has been documented that the average day on Jandoon lasts 25 standard hours, and that its year encompasses 273 local days. Note that the Star Wars: Customizable Card Game claims that Jandoon is the homeworld of the Brizzit race. (SWAJ, CCG)

Jandovar, Maxa
a famous vandfillist who performed during the Galactic Civil War. Labria followed her across the galaxy in an attempt to see one of her performances. While he was on Tatooine, arranging transport to see her on Morvogodine, she was captured by Imperial forces, and died in custody. (TME)

Jandur
this planet's government was full of bluster and self-importance when it applied for membership in the New Republic. It decided to back off when it realized what the New Republic stood for, and was awarded membership. (BTS)

Janelle Serap
this female Seikoshan was one of the most powerful crimelords on the planet Seikoska, during the early years of the New Republic. She tried to get her hands on the droid R1-T4, which had been shipped to her by Simms Jonndril, but the smugglers who transported it balked on their agreement and turned the droid over to Kade Darven and the New Republic. (POC)

Janet Lalasha
a Fizzz player who performed during the Galactic Civil War. (TME)

Jangelle
this warm world is located in the Kathol Outback. It's surface is covered with sandy lowlands broken by a complex network of rivers, streams, and deltas. Large, deep bodies of water are rare on Jangelle. The planet was settled by a group of refugees who fled the Empire when it invaded Kathol Sector, and they maintained contact with the rest of the sector - and Moff Sarne's activities - during supply runs to Gandle Ott and Pembric II. The colonies on Jangelle are low-tech settlements, although there are two ion cannons and a small navy protecting them. The leadership of Jangelle formed a mutual defense pact with the planets of the Kathol Republic in order to maintain their world's freedom. (KO)

Jangler
a musical instrument often used in marching bands. (CPL)

Janguine
1) this planet was home to a species of jungle barbarians, which disappeared some 300 years before the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (VP)
2) this was the native language used by the natives of the planet Janguine. It was eventually absorbed by the Mooloolian tribes of the planet's mountainous region. Many language experts believed that the Yuuzhan Vong language was reminiscent, if not related to, the Janguine language. (VP, HT)

Janildakara
this woman took up bounty hunting after her family's transport was ambushed by pirates. Janildakara herself was sold to the Zyggerian slavers, but escaped and began searching for her parents. She joined House Renliss and became a hunter, believing that the House would provide her with access to information on their whereabouts. However, her superiors at Renliss merely used her emotional vulnerability to their own ends, making her their tool. She was known in the business as an expert in the use of poisons. (GG10)

Jankok
this warm planet was the homeworld of the Srrors'tok race. (AE)

Janna, Neile
this noted holo-feature director and producer was best-known for Kallea's Hope, a feature produced shortly before the Battle of Yavin. The feature was credited by the artisans of the New Order with restoring interest in Freia Kallea and the Kallea Cycle opera. (SWJ13)

Jannpyr
this Jiivahar was one of the most renowned tour guides to ever work on the planet Carest 1. (SWJ14)

Janodral Mizar
a planet near to the place where Han and Chewie attacked a Zyggerian slave ship single-handedly and managed to free the slaves. (HTTE)

Janse
a former sharpshooter, Janse was a native of the planet Ukio before joining the Alliance shortly before the Battle of Endor. He had been employed by BlasTech as a weapons design evaluator, and used his skills to help the Alliance as a scout and hunter. When he left BlasTech, he took with him a cache of A280 blaster rifles. He was part of the ground assault team that infiltrated the Empire's shield generator station on the Forest Moon of Endor. (CCG10)

Jansih, Karrinna
Mara Jade's alias when she worked as a serving girl on Phorliss. (EGC)

Janson, Wes
a native of Taanab, Wes Janson joined the Alliance at Tierfon, and quickly showed his abilities as a pilot and sharpshooter. He gained True Gunner status while serving at Tierfon as an X-wing pilot in the Yellow Aces. It was while of Tierfon that Janson and Jek Porkins were forced to shoot down the rogue pilot Kiseek Doran. He came down with a strain of Hesken Fever just before the Battle of Yavin, and was unable to fly his X-Wing. Jek Porkins drew the duty of filling in for him, and the importance of this occurance has haunted Janson ever since. He managed to recover, and eventually became a member of Rogue Squadron under Luke Skywalker. He served as Wedge Antilles' gunner in the Battle of Hoth, and was known by the callsign of Rogue Five. Janson was a native of the planet Coruscant. In the years which followed, Janson remained a fixture of Rogue Squadron, serving as the team's comic relief with Hobbie Klivian. He was reported dead when the Rogues were ambushed at Distna, while searching for evidence of Pulsar Station, but he was rescued by Booster Terrik and the Errant Venture and returned to Coruscant. After recovering from his injuries, Wes rejoined the squadron during the hunt for Prince-Admiral Krennel. Like most of the veterans of Rogue Squadron, Janson retired shortly after the negotiation of peace between the New Republic and the Imperial Remnant. Janson was portrayed by Ian Liston in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back. (ESB, HTTE, MTS, XWRS, WS, IR, DTO)

Janson
a Nharwaak CR90 corvette operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Jante
1) this is the primary planet in the Jante System. (SWJ9)
2) the natives of the planet Jante, the Jante were long-time rivals of their sector neighbors, the Freda. During the New Order, Jante mining operations in the Rettna System were attacked by Freda's Lon Flotillas. Moff Haveland attempted to bring about a cease-fire, but the Freda withdrew from the talks. (SWJ9)

Jante Materials Corporation
this Jante mining company maintained a base of operations in orbit around Rett II, until it was attacked by Freda Lon Flotillas during the New Order. (SWJ9)

Jantol
this warship was part of the New Republic's Third Battle Group. It was diverted to the Koornacht Cluster during the Yevethan Purge, and participated in the blockade of Wettham. (SOL)

Januaris
Milo Thirk's wife. (SWSB)

Janwuine
this Gand word is used to describe any member of their species who has distinguished themselves so much that they are allowed to speak of themselves in the first person. It is considered rude an vulgar by the Gand to refer to oneself as "I" without having enough of a history and impact on other Gand that everyone recognizes them without their given name. Those Gand that earn the position of janwuine have a mate chosen for them. (BW, IJ)

Janwuine-jika
this Gand ceremony is performed for those Gand who distinguish themselves from the norm, and are deemed janwuine. (BW)

Japor Snippet

Jaqiv
this Etti Lighter was one of the first ships captured by Venslas Beeli and the Solar Terrors, adding to the Zahtjav. It was serving as a Corporate Sector Authority patrol ship when the Solar Terrors captured it, spacing the entire crew before taking possession. It was armed with ten quad-laser cannons and a tractor beam projector. (FOP)

Jar Jar Binks
this young Otolla Gungan outcast was a companion of Qui-Gon Jinn. Like most Otolla Gungans, Jar Jar was thin-bodied and muscular, and had large frills at the back of his head. He was outcast from Otoh Gunga for continually making mistakes that placed other members of the Gungan society at risk, including crashing Boss Nass' heyblibber, flooding Boss Nass's mansion while acting as a caterer, and opening the bubbles of the creatures in Otoh Gunga's zoo. Jar Jar was eating clams and wandering the swamps of Naboo when the Trade Federation began landing its invasion force. He was rescued by Qui-Gon Jinn, who rescued Jar Jar from further punitive action by claiming a life-debt on him. Boss Nass was reluctant to give up the chance to punish the younger creature, but was forced to accede to the life debt. Jar Jar then traveled with Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan Kenobi, helping to protect Queen Amidala during her struggle with the Federation. Jar Jar's friendship with Amidala led to a greater relationship when she appealed to Boss Nass for assistance in the Battle of Naboo. Boss Nass credited Jar Jar with bringing the Gungans and humans together in peace, and was promoted to the rank of General for his efforts. Jar Jar Binks was portrayed by Ahmad Best in the film Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Jar'Kai
this ancient form of combat used speciallized dueling swords. (XWA)

Jarencat
a creature native to Sriluur, known for its curious nature. (TFNR)

Jaresh
this Outer Rim satellite is found in the Jaresh System, located in the Corva Sector. The moon was purchased by the smuggler Ree Shala, who build her base there. The moon's natural trees grow to many hundreds of meters in height, providing excellent cover. The moon's extremely remote location also helps. The average day on Jaresh lasts 29 standard hours, while its year lasts 98 local days. (SWAJ)

Jaret
this male Senali was the son of Garth and Ganeed, and a member of the Banoosh-Walore clan. Jaret was married to Mesan, and they had a daughter, Tawn. (SP)

Jargool Muus
this Gamorrean male was one of a group of bounty hunters contracted by the Empire to hunt down the Alliance agents who were investigating the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. He was simply a blunt, intimidating, rude killer...nothing more, nothing less. (GMK)

Jargridian Brandy
an inexpensive alcohol, Jargridian Brandy was the favorite of Brooser. (POC)

Jari'kyn
this young Twi'leki female worked as a fashion designer for the House of Vanar. She was fired when Mara Jade rejected the wedding gown design submitted by Vanar, despite the fact that Vanar had done most of the design himself. Mara encountered her in a lower level of Coruscant's Imperial City, and realized that Jari'kyn had nothing to do with the skimpy outfit Vanar had submitted. Mara hired Jari'kyn on the spot, asking her to design not only the wedding dress but the bridesmaids' dresses as well. Jari'kyn agreed to the proposal, and set to work on the dresses. As she was delivering them to the wedding chapel, Jari'kyn was ambushed by Anlys Takkar and her escorts. Among the escorts was Banner Sumptor, who balked when Anlys ordered him to kill Jari'kyn so that they could steal the dress and disrupt the wedding. Banner refused to follow the order, and shot the rest of the escort. Jari'kyn grabbed a thick piece of pipe and whacked Anlys on the head, rendering her unconscious. Banner then helped Jari'kyn get the dresses to the church in time for the wedding. (U)

Jarib, Russ
this man worked for the Corporate Sector Authority as an Intelligence agent. He was assigned to the planet Kirima, and kept an eye on Bren-Jules Rordan and the Imperial activities in the city of Verena. He was working at B.J. Rordan's Collectibles when the New Republic implemented Project Second Chance. (TSK)

Jarmak
this freelance bounty hunter was turned in to the Imperial authorities by his best friend. (GG10)

Jarn, Grison
this weathered old man was a farmer on a planet which was caught between the Empire and the Alliance. The Alliance confiscated his gravtrac, giving him a datachip with which to claim it. The Empire defeated the Alliance, claiming the gravtrac was captured for its own use. Imperial forces also conscripted his son, and usurped Jarn's farm as an observation post. Shortly after the farm was destroyed in a brief struggle, Jarn was approached by two thugs from Jorrn Kresh's organization, who told the old man that he had to pay "protection money." After all that he had been through, Jarn just laughed in their faces. (GG11)

Jarnek, Harlov
this Imperial Moff controlled Tandor Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He kept a pet with him at all times, an interested creature that both amazed and frightened his acquaintences. Unknown to Jarnek - who believed that anything that wasn't human was surely not intelligent - the "pet" was actually the Covallon agent Daelar vuv Tertarrnek. Jarnek himself graduated from the Imperial Naval College, and was known as a coldly efficient leader. (CRO)

Jaro
this Harixian youth was a friend of Berd, and showed the boy how to use target drones to fool the Empire into believing a fleet of ships was approaching. (CSWEA)

Jarrad, Selby
this woman was an Intelligence agent for the New Republic. A native of a mining clan working on the planet Averill, Selby was able to experience the Empire's oppression when the local mining operations were nationalized. He father was crippled in a preventable accident, and Selby found she couldn't remain on Averill under Imperial rule. She tagged along with her cousin, who was on Averill in an effort to organize a local resistance but eventually gave up. She was sent to the planet Verkuyl to assist in ousting the Imperial presence there shortly after the Battle of Endor. She and Cobb Vartos posed as businessbeings who were on Verkuyl to meet with Governor Parco Ein, in an effort to obtain permission for GalFactorial to build a bacta refinery on the planet. (TFNR, SWJ13)

Jarril
this former smuggling acquaintence of Han Solo plied the Smuggler's Run during the years after the collapse of the Empire. It was Jarril who smuggled Lando Calrissian out of the Run after Calrissian stole a great deal of treasure from Nandreeson. He became mixed up in Dolph's plans to use the Run to transport his remote detonation droids to Coruscant, and starting seeing his fellow smugglers disappear. They made a great deal of money before becoming lost, and Jarril himself went to Coruscant to track down Han. Jarril hoped that Han would unofficially investigate the circumstances, and met him in the Crystal Jewel. Han initially declined the offer, and during their talks Dolph's droids exploded in the Senate Assembly Chamber. Han left to see what had happened, and Jarril returned to his ship. His co-pilot, Seluss, was nowhere to be found, so Jarril began his pre-flight preparations. Some of Dolph's men intercepted him, and took over his ship, the Spicy Lady. They shot Jarril and killed him, leaving him adrift. They also left incriminating messages in the Spicy Lady's computer banks, implicating Han in the Senate Chamber bombing. (TNR)

Jarronto
this is a species of blue fungus that lives near the swamps of Naboo. They are tall stalks and large caps. (SW1)

Jarroth
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Stormwind during the Galactic Civil War. He patrolled the Virgillian System, looking for suspected Alliance strongholds. (TBSB)

Jarrou
this New Republic Navy Commander was one of the primary leaders of the battle fleet dispatched to deal with the Yevetha during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Jarsa
this woman was part of the crew of the New Republic Scout Service ship, Founder. (GG8)

Jarse Motempe
this New Republic information science specialist was responsible for decoding the data found in the Gnisnal's datacore. (BTS)

Jarsten
an acquaintence of Roark Garnet. (RPG)

Jart Eyan
this Twi'lek served the New Republic as a Navy Lieutenant and aide to Admiral Ackbar during the early years of the New Republic. Eyan was also the first of Warlord Zsinj's subjects in Project Minefield, which involved brainwashing non-human species and implanting a code phrase to trigger a response. The code phrase involved a keyword and a name. When the keyword was spoken, the brainwashing would kick in, compelling the subject to kill the person named in the phrase. Eyan's target was Ackbar himself, and he nearly succeeded during a briefing of the forces hunting Warlord Zsinj aboard the Home One. Voort saBinring got in between Eyan and Ackbar, and took the shots meant for Ackbar. Eyan was unprepared for the Gamorrean's ability to withstand blaster fire, and was caught unaware when Voort smashed his head into the nearest wall. Eyan died of massive skull injuries before he could be questioned. (SOC)

Jarvanam
this planet is located in Astal Sector. (GG11)

Jarvashqiine
a shaman-like priest who wielded a power much like the Force. (DESB)

Jarvis, Alendar
this man was a reporter for the New Order Progressive, and covered events that occurred on Coruscant during the Galactic Civil War. He was also something of a philosopher, and saw the New Order as a newarly perfect form of galactic government. He felt that the Alliance was a dangerous threat to the stability of society, and that it strove only to restore the corruption and rot of the Old Republic. (SWJ8, HR)

Jasa
Anakin Solo's nickname for his brother Jacen, during the early years of Anakin's life. (CS)

Jaset, Bal
this Tapani Sector noble was the High Lord of House Melantha during the height of the New Order. He had formerly served as a Court Advisor to Emperor Palpatine during the last years of the Old Republic, and took his position as House ruler ten years before the Battle of Hoth. He was best known for his romantic liaisons, having sired more than thirty bastard children and taking innumerable lovers during his short career as High Lord. He gained a great deal of political and military support from Emperor Palpatine, which allowed Jaset to begin working to surpass House Mecetti as the dominant House in the Great Council. (PGT)

Jaso Corporation
this corporation developed the Right ID system of dermatoglyphic identification. (TA)

Jassa, Mroon
this ancient Jedi Master established a training center on Truuine, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. It was on Truuine that Kith Kark tried to convince Master Jassa that he was ready to being the Jedi training. Jassa ignored the Gotal twice, because Kith Kark only wanted to learn the Force as a hobby or task, not because the Force called him. Nearly a year after his first visit, Kith Kark returned to Truuine a third time. He had finally discovered that the Force wasn't something you just obtained, but was something that had to be felt and and obeyed. Jassa understood that Kith Kark had finally been touched by the Force, and agreed to train him. (TOJC)

Jasse Heart
this was an extremely valuable gemstone. (FOP)

Javin Sector
located near the Hoth System, the Empire established outpost station D-34 there. Following the Battle of Hoth, the Imperial Fleet tried to drive the fleeing Alliance ships through the Javin Sector and past D-34, from which the Empire could destroy the ships. (TIE)

Javis-12
this asteroid is one of the largest in the Mestra System asteroid field, located in the Minos Cluster. It is roughly egg-shaped, and measures about 400 kilometers at its widest point. The asteroid no longer revolves around its axis, thanks to specially-placed repulsors. This keeps the main living areas on the far side of the asteroid, away from the rest of the asteroid belt. This protects the living areas from asteroid and meteorite hits. Javis-12 orbits the Mestra System's star once every 611 local days. The Minos-Mestra Corporation's local headquarters were located on this asteroid, and the system's only starport is located here. The starport is a conglomerate of domes and caves ranging across and below the surface of the asteroid. (GG6)

Jawa
diminutive desert-dwelling scrap merchants on Tatooine, these repulsive little creatures have large, glowing eyes which peer out from dirty cloaks. They have a randomly variable language, which makes it hard to interpret what they say. They are inherently cowards. Very few have ever seen what a Jawa looks like under their cloaks. They are pack animals, working together in small bands to collect anything and everything for resale to all buyers. It is believed by some xenologists that Jawas have human origins. Their normal body temperature is 116 degrees. The Jawa leader was portrayed by Jack Purvis in Star Wars. (SW, COJ)

Jawa Beer
a cheap, quickly-brewed concoction created by the Jawas. (MTS)

Jawa Droid Traders
a loose union of Jawa clans that sell droids on Tatooine. (ZHR)

Jawa Ionization Gun
this gun is one of the most famous symbols of the Jawa race. The ionization gun has many uses, primary of which is the immobilization of a droid. The weapon discharges an intense ion beam which ionizes the droid's circuits, rendering it temporarily unable to function.

The gun is created from any blaster rifle, which is gutted of its laser components and modified to accept an ion accelerator created by the Jawas themselves. This accelerator is made from a droid restraining bolt wired to an ignition accu-accelerator. (CFG)

Jawa Juice
this mixed, alcoholic drink was popular at the Bantha Traxx establishment on Lianna. (WSV)

Jawa Traders
this scrap and salvage business is located in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. It was started by the Jawa Aguilae, but she quickly found that she couldn't part with her merchandise. So, she hired Mace Windu to act as her salesman. (GG7)

Jawan
this is the name of the harsh, guttural language of the Jawa race of Tatooine. (E1A5)

Jawaswag
this was the nickname given by Gavin Darklighter to his R2 unit. The meant that Gavin believed any Jawa would love to steal the droid. However, when the droid was actually accosted by a group of Jawas, it thwarted their attempts to steal it and actually injured one of them. From that point on, Gavin called it Toughcatch. This name was shortened to Catch for ease of use in combat. About twenty years after the Battle of Endor, Catch was given the R2-Delta upgrade. (BW, DTO)

Jax
this human Freelie was one of the band that captured C-3PO, R2-D2, Luke Skywalker, and Leia Organa on Vorzyd 5. (CSWEA)

Jax, Carnor
this former Royal Imperial Guard was a member of the training class the produced Kir Kanos. Jax often bested Kir Kanos in the training battles fought in The Squall, and defeated Alum Frost in a fight to the death on Yinchorr. The battle was staged by Emperor Palpatine himself, meant to determine the more loyal warrior. In the wake of Palpatine's death at Endor, Jax began to envision himself as a new Dark Lord and ruler of the Empire. He established a power base, and bribed one of Palpatine's primary clone scientists into creating defective clones for the Emperor. Jax then began wearing a suit of armor which was a modified version of the Royal Guards' armor, with a black faceplate and cloak. When Palpatine's clones were destroyed at Byss, he made his bid for control of the Empire by creating the Imperial Interim Ruling Council and assuming its leadership. He also set out to exterminate the remaining Royal Imperial Guards, but Kir Kanos managed to escape and took with him the secret of Jax's treason. Jax learned of Kanos' survival, and knew that he would have to eliminate the threat he posed. When Kanos was discovered on Phaeda, Jax ordered Colonel Shev to stand down and let his own forces deal with Kanos, but Shev ignored the orders. In the end, Kanos was able to escape to the planet Yinchorr. Jax pursued him, but was unable to stop General Wessel from falling for another of Kanos' tricks. Jax fled the Emperor's Revenge with Blim and a squadron of hand-picked, black-armored stormtroopers, landing on Yinchorr to hunt down Kanor. The entire squadron of troopers was eliminated by Kanos, leaving Jax to face him in one-on-one combat. They met in The Squall, where Jax had defeated Kanos during their training. Jax made sure he had all of Kanos' escapes covered, including the placement of Blim in a nearby position to shoot Kanos if the other man got an advantage. After Blim was eliminated by Mirith Sinn and Sish Sadeet, Jax nearly defeated Kir Kanos. However, the other man was too strong for Jax. In a short duel, Kanos drove the blade of his staff through Jax's breastplate, piercing his heart and killing him instantly. (CE)

Jaxa
this smuggler worked with Bettle, and assisted Mara Jade in creating a distribution system for the glitterstim spice mined on Kessel after Moruth Doole was removed from power. (JASB)

Jaxton, Brut
this man was a member of the Nova Scouts scouting service, although he retired shortly after the Battle of Endor. (GG8)

Jaxus
a planet which orbits fairly close to its sun, but is still capable of supporting human life. (SN)

Jaya
Anakin Solo's nickname for his sister Jaina. (CS)

Jayhawk
this man was the Captain of the Martinette, and leader of a gang of pirates which plied the spacelanes of Fakir Sector, near Masterhome, during the Galactic Civil War. The pirates were nearly wiped out when they attempted to waylay the crew of the Long Shot near Masterhome, but the Alliance ship was able to drive off the pirates. Jayhawk and his crew limped away from the battle more or less intact. (SWCP)

Jayme, Ivhin
this man grew up with parents who had a hands-off approach to raising him. This taught him to be open-minded about things, but he was never instilled with any drive or determination. At the age of 16, he lied about his age and joined the Imperial Armed Forces, and within a few short months he had been trained into a dangerous and formidable urban commando by the instructors on Merikon. After following the orders of his superiors and destroying a building, Jayme learned that there had been children inside, as well as enemy soldiers. He couldn't reconcile this indiscriminate loss of life, and went AWOL. He found himself drifting until he ended up on Rodaj, where he met T'Charek Haathi. She convinced him to join the Alliance, and Jayme was initially recruited into the Alliance's urban commando team. However, he balked at several missions and was moved to the Special Operations team, where he was reunited with Haathi as a shipjacker. (SWJ13, SWJ14)

Jazbina
this world was known for its luxurious aromatic baths and its valuable sun crystals. Luke Skywalker was sent to Jazbina shortly after the Battle of Yavin, on a diplomatic mission to sway the Jazbinans to join the Alliance. However, the planet was solidly aligned with the Empire, which paid a high price for the sun crystals. It was the homeworld of the Jazbinan race. (VQ)

Jazbinan
this race of feline humanoids was native to the planet Jazbina. They were loyal to the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, since the Empire paid high prices for the sun crystals they mined. (VQ)

JC-671
this model of deflector shield generator was produced by Delphus during the height of the New Order, and found widepsread use on Nebulon-B frigates. (FOP)

JE-99-DI-88-FOR-00-CE
the code signal that activates the weather control system in the Lost City of the Jedi. (LCJ)

Je'Har
this race was native to the planet Almania, and were much more powerful than the humans which shared the world. Despite their war-like nature, the Je'Har built magnificent cities. Both races supported the Old Republic, and resisted the onslaught of the Empire before pledging allegiance to the New Republic. However, shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, the Je'Har began to assert their dominance over their human neighbors. They held the humans at bay, even enslaving them and torturing them as their whim saw fit. There were even reports of wholesale slaughter during the YevethanPurge. One survivor of the Je'Har domination was Dolph, who became somewhat gifted in the use of the Force and saw a way to overthrown the Je'Har. Using his remotely-activated droid bombs, Dolph wiped out the Je'Har, although he spared their leaders. He tortured them for a week, avenging the week of suffering they put his parents through. (TNR)

Jeboe'i
this Old Corellian word literally translated as "thief," and could be used as singular or plural. In variations the sport of phrenbi, teams which are paired against each other are referred to as jeboe'i, and could not be scored upon by the opposite team. (BSS)

Jebwa
a red and yellow flower native to Corellia (TFE)

Jeco
this predator attacks with lightning speed. (DSTC)

Jedd Six
this planet was first scouted by Lexi Fernandin, during the last years of the Old Republic. (GG2)

Jedgar
a seven-foot-tall member of the Prophets of the Dark Side, Jedgar is known as the High Prophet, and serves as the groups' emissary to visitors to Scardia station. He is a balding man. (LCJ)

Jedi Battle Meditation
a skill mastered by only a few Jedi Knights and Masters, it involves the Jedi's concentration on the general flow and the outcome of a battle. When the Jedi has pictured the battle in his mind, he can then project the image to all participants in the battle. This mental image influences both sides of the battle, and helps bolster the Jedi's forces while reducing the opponent's conviction. The Jedi Master Thon could do this, and so could Nomi Sunrider. Luke Skywalker found a volume dedicated to the technique when he discovered the ancient Jedi library on Ossus. (TOJ, DE2)

Jedi Code, The
the tenets of the Jedi Knights. The basic Code has altered in form but never content over the millennia, and goes as follows: "There is no emotion; there is peace. There is no ignorance; there is knowledge. There is no passion; there is serenity. There is no chaos; there is harmony. There is no death; there is the Force." Among the other basic tenets is the notion that a Jedi Knight or Master can only take a single Padawan apprentice. This ensures that a teacher cannot gain undue influence, and mirrors the limitations imposed by the Sith Lords. (SWSB, DA, TPM, TOJC)

Jedi Council
in the years leading up to the Clone Wars and the fall of the Old Republic, the Jedi Council consisted of twelve Jedi Masters elected to guide the actions and goals of the Jedi. They had a spectacular chamber located in one of the four council towers of the Jedi Temple, located on Coruscant. The Council was made up of five lifetime members, four long-term members, and three limited-term members. (SW1, IG1)

Jedi Credit
also known as JedCreds, these Corellian medallions were minted whenever a native of Corellia became a Jedi Master. Corran Horn's real grandfather, Nejaa Halcyon, gave a number of these to his friends and relatives, including Rostek Horn. Rostek later passed it to Hal Horn, who passed it to hisown son, Corran. (XWN, KT)

Jedi Dreamer
this New Republic scout craft was commanded by Korren Starchaser. (SWJ8)

Jedi Explorer
the sleek, new, two-man starship Luke Skywalker used just to go to Ossus with Kam Solusar and search for the ancient Jedi lore that might be hidden there. It was designed to navigate uncharted hyperspace routes, and had a huge cargo hold. It also transported an experimental T-77 airspeeder for planet-side use. It is well-armed with laser and ion cannons. (DE2)

Jedi Explorer II
the second of the new, two-man starships Luke Skywalker used. He flew this one to Ossus to try and head off Palpatine's attempt to obtain Ysanna bodies from which to manufacture clones. (EE)

Jedi High Council

Jedi Holocron
known originally as a holographic chronicle, this was a recording device used by the ancient Jedi Knights to hold the multitude of teachings and lore needed to maintain the Jedi Knights. Each of these devices provides a visual and vocal way to view the enclosed information. Each holocron has a gatekeeper assigned to dispense the information. The gatekeeper contains the cognitive network functions of a Jedi Master, and acts as a search, recovery, and storage allocation program. The devices are shaped like small, translucent cubes, and can be activated by a person controlling The Force. The Holocron can sense the user's ability with the Force, and can block out areas of knowledge that are beyond the user's ability. Despite the name, these holocrons were not limited to the Jedi Knights. Several holocrons containing Sith lore have been discovered as well. (DE1, JS, DA, IJ, SWJ14)

Jedi Knights
the Jedi Knights were the guardians of peace and justice from the early beginnings of the Old Republic. They were highly trained in the use of the Force, and employed the elegant lightsaber as their weapon of choice. They protected the Republic from all threats, including the Clone Wars. They were also used to settle disputes and contentions for rulership due to their overall neutrality and their ability to search out the truth via the Force. When Senator Palpatine assumed the throne of galactic Emperor, he realized that the Jedi Knights were the only true faction that could stand between himself and the galaxy, and so he dispatched a series of extermination forces to eradicate the Jedi. He nearly succeeded, for the only Jedi known to have survived were Darth Vader, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and the Jedi Master Yoda. (SW, ESB, ROTJ)

Jedi Library
located in the Lost City of the Jedi, this building holds records of the Jedi from thousands of years before the Galactic Civil War. It houses a vast central computer, as well as archives of ancient manuscripts and books. It is rumored that all the knowledge of all the intelligent races of the galaxy is stored there. (LCJ)

Jedi Masters
those Jedi Knights who became extremely talented and powerful in the use of the Force were often trained to become Jedi Masters. The Jedi Masters' roles were varied, from teaching the young Jedi Knights in the use of The Force to acting as intermediaries for the Old Republic. The Jedi Masters were not exempt from Palpatine's Jedi purge, and the Jedi Master Yoda is the only known Master to survive. Yoda was able to pass on his vast knowledge of the Force to Luke Skywalker, who continued to train in the use of the Force after Yoda's death and become the newest Jedi Master. It is rumored that the best and truest Jedi Masters do not truly die, but move on to some mystical state of being. Their physical bodies cease to exist. (ESB, ROTJ, JS)

Jedi Prophecies
a series of vague foretellings that predicted the various surges in Dark Side conflicts throughout the galaxy. (DLS)

Jedi Shadows
this was the name of a secretive band of Jedi Knights who devoted much of their time to gathering information on the users of the Dark Side of the Force, including the Sith. The Shadows were first formed millennia before the Great Sith War, and were often charged with infiltrating Sith territory in order to gather information. (TOJC)

Jedi Temple
located in the former Galactic City, on the planet Coruscant, this complex of spires and buildings was the base of operations for the Jedi Knights. The central Temple Spire rose a kilometer above the surrounding cityscape, and was surrounded by four individual Council towers. All five towers were supported by the main building, which sunk its roots deep into Coruscant's crust. The ziggurat shape of the main building, coupled with the five spires, was meant to symbolize a *padawan*s path to enlightment through the Force. There were several contemplation stations located on each of the four smaller towers, where a Jedi could go be alone with their thoughts. (IWE1)

Jedi-Gon
this was Guerra Derida's nickname for Qui-Gon Jinn. (HP)

Jedilore
this was the name of a street in the city of Xakrea, on Darkknell. (TFNR)

Jedselk
this man was the planetary governor and second in command of the Imperial garrison on Sellasas, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He was promoted to the governorship of Dolla after breaking the Alliance siege on Sellasas, and decided to employ Tyionsis Cex as his personal bounty hunter. (GG10)

Jedselk, Amara
this young woman was the daughter of Governer Jedselk of Sellasas. When the Alliance tried to retake the planet, she was caught in the middle of the crossfire. During the battle, she rescued a Srrors'tok warrior, whom she later named Tyionsis Cex. (GG10)

Jeedai
this was the Yuuzhan Vong term for a Jedi Knight. (DTO)

Jeeves
Gargon's butler. (GMS)

Jeffers
Jeffers served as General Irrv's aide on Culroon III. He was killed when Kloff, feigning submission to the Empire, stabbed him with the ceremonial sword given to Kloff by Irrv. (SWSB)

Jeffrey
an Alliance Corvette operative during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Jeh
this H'Kig glyph was considered too sacred to write out, and was often simply known as "j'," as in the planetary name J't'p'tan. The rough translation of the glyph to Basic yields "the imminent," one of the mystical references of the H'kig religion. (SOL)

Jehltekk Enhancer Valve
this mechanical valve regulates power flow from a power converter. (CFG)

Jek Nkik
one of Het Nkik's Jawa clansmen, and Het's best friend. They once recovered an E522 assassin droid from a crashed starship in the desert, rebuilt it, and created a passable messenger droid that they sold to Valarian. Wimateeka wasn't very pleased with their act, but was proud of their ability to get the droid running again. Jek was a member of the Jawa clan who sold R2-D2 and C-3PO to Owen Lars and Luke Skywalker, and perished in the Imperial assault on his clan's sandcrawler. (TME)

Jelasi
this Hutt was one of Kumac's main rivals, both during Jabba's leadership of the Hutt crime empire and after Jabba's death. Many inside Jabba's organization believed Jelasi was Jabba's chosen successor. In the wake of Jabba's death, Jelasi assumed control of the Ig'zxyck Flare organization and began to "legitimize" Hutt criminal activities. This earned him the ire of many Hutts, including Kumac, during the early years of the New Republic. Jelasi earned the business of much of the Imperial remnant during this time, as the Empire tried to maintain a low-key approach to regaining power. (GG11)

Jelldar
this was one of the six major continents found on the planet Celanon. (PG1)

Jellrek, Antoll
this ruthless Imperial Moff controlled the Galov Sector during the New Order. He lived on the planet Romar, and was killed in an attack from Jai Raventhorn. (SWAJ)

Jellyfish Cove
this small planetoid was the site of an Imperial prison colony during the Galactic Civil War. It was covered with rolling oceans broken by a barren, twisted landscape. The deserts were littered with statues of sensuous humanoids. When the sun was shining, these statues were beautiful to behold. When the sunlight disappeared, though, these statues suddenly came to life. They were actually a race composed of unique tissue that solidified in sunlight. The prison colony was scantily manned, for the Imperials were just as susceptible to the humanoids as the prisoners. Thus, many times the Empire employed smugglers or down-on-their-luck spacers to guard the outpost. The prison ships made sure to deliver their cargos during the day, so as to avoid the humanoids. (TMEC)

Jelon
this Imperial Navy Commander served as Admiral Greelanx’s second-in-command during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Jem
the Ysanna girl encountered By Luke Skywalker and Kam Solusar when they arrive on Ossus, Jem was in the middle of a ritual with her brother, Rayf, in which they were tied to the tree-like form of the ancient Jedi Master Ood Bnar. She was 23 years old when Luke first met her. Like all other Ysanna, Jem was strong with the Force, and chose to leave Ossus and become one of Luke's first students. She also became one of Luke's brief loves, until she was killed on New Alderaan by Tedryn-sha. (DE2)

Jemba
this Hutt was placed in charge of Offworld Mining Company’s operations on the planet Bandomeer. As ruthless as any other Hutt, Jemba relied on slave labor and sabotage of his competitor’s operations to remain at the top of heap. Among the rumors that surrounded Jemba was the story that he destroyed a rival’s atmospheric containment system at a mining outpost on the planet Varristad, killing over a quarter of a million beings and ensuring a huge profit for Offworld. During a regular run to collect guards and slaces for use in the mines of Bandomeer, Jemba and his lieutenant Grelb were caught aboard the transport barge Monument when it came under attack by pirates. They had been pestered by the investigations of Obi-Wan Kenobi and Si Treemba, and after being forced to land on an uncharted world, Jemba vowed to eliminate the Jedi and reclaim his workers. However, while trying to kill Qui-Gon Jinn and starve the Arconan workers of his competitors, Jemba's camp was attacked by draigons. Grelb tried to shoot young Obi-Wan, who was fighting off the draigons, but managed instead to hit Jemba. The blasts from Grelb's gun pierced Jemba's hearts, killing him instantly and rendering his efforts to naught. (RF)

Jendar
this planet was the site of numerous battles during the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Jendon
this Imperial Colonel was a former test pilot, and was known as the first pilot to fly the TIE Defenders to roll off the production line. During the period leading up to the Battle of Endor, Jendon served as Darth Vader's personal shuttle pilot. (CCG11)

Jendorn
a planet located in the Borderlands Regions. (DFRSB)

Jenet
native to the planet Garban, these aliens have pale pink skin, deep red eyes, and white fur. By almost every galactic standard, the Jenets are considered ugly and quarrelsome. Jenets have large ears and noses, and have developed keen senses of hearing, smell, and sight. These senses allow them to gather food, and their digestive system is adaptable enough to allow them to eat just about anything. Thus, they are often found scavenging for food rather than hunting for it. The Jenet race is also physically adept, and can run, jump, climb, and swim when needed. Jenets can also dislocate their limbs in order to squeeze into small spaces. Descended from rodents, they have vast memories, and are often considered quarrelsome due to their images of own self-importance. They are also extremely reproductive, and nearly wiped themselves out of existence due to overpopulation. They were not immune to Palpatine's subjugation of alien species during his reign as Emperor, and were forced to work in mines dug on their homeworld. (GG4)

Jengardin Double-bladed Vibroblade
a unique, dangerous weapon weapon developed by the Jengardin Millenial Warriors. (GG12)

Jengardin Millenial Warriors
one of the most infamous military orders founded on Iotra. Like their counterparts, the Millenial Warriors never engaged in full-scale war on their home planet. They were eventually consolidated into the Iotran Police Force. (GG12)

Jengus
this Jawa and his family left Tatooine shortly after the murder of an entire Jawa clan by Imperial stormtroopers, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. He hoped to join his nephew, Squig, but was stranded at Cordel Cove on Neftali for starship repairs. The port master at the time agreed to let his family have free-run of the starport if Jengus would agree to serve as the starport's head technician. Jengus quickly agreed, and oversaw all the machinery and mechanical maintenance of Cordel Cove. Jengus and his twin sons also oversaw the management of the underground hot springs of Cordel Cove, catering to the whims of tourists of all species. (BSS)

Jenks
this New Republic technician was actually an Imperial spy. It was Jenks who provided the location of the Republic's base on Nespis VIII to the reborn Emperor Palpatine. (EE)

Jenn
this Alliance Commander was a good friend of Ensign Till, whom she teased at any provocation. (RA2)

Jennie Lee
this is the name given by Rone Taggar to his X-Wing starfighter. Part of the 21st Recon Group, the Jennie Lee was named for Taggar's mother. (SOL)

Jenorri Delegam
this female was a member of Grappa the Hutt's court, and was known for her lack of taste and style in her clothing. (CE2)

Jens
this young woman was a student of xenoarcheology at the University of Agamar during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Jens was part of the team which traveled to Bimmiel with Anki Pace, to serach for Jedi artifacts. She discovered the differences between the various beetles used by the Yuuzhan Vong to patrol the areas they controlled. (DTO)

Jensaarai
this was the name used by the Force-weilding population of Suarbi 7/5. They were trained as Jedi, and even taught how to create their own lightsabers, but were taught that Obi-Wan Kenobi was one of the greatest users of the Dark Side of the Force. There are three ranks of Jensaarai: Apprentices, Defenders, and Saarai-kaar. When they became Defenders, the Jensaarai created a unique form of personal armor created from cortosis ore and modeled to make them appear to be a vicious creature. Of the Saarai-kaar, there was only one member of that rank at any one point in time. When Leonia Tavira suddenly landed on the moon and executed its Imperial governor, thereby "freeing" them from Imperial control, the Jensaarai quickly grew to trust her. She betrayed that trust, and twisted them into a position in which the only way they could protect their people was to serve as her personal warriors. They were forced to accede, and joined her aboard the Invidious. She also told them that there was a being named Halcyon who would be their undoing, so she forced them to kidnap Mirax Terrik in order to draw Corran Horn to Suarbi 7/5. When they all met in battle, Luke Skywalker made quick work of the Jensaarai while Corran battled the Saarai-kaar. He did not kill them, though, a fact which surprised most of them when they came aroubd after the battle. It was later revealed that the word Jensaarai is a Sith term that means "hidden followers of truth." The last of the true Jensaarai Sith magicians died with Nikkos Tyris, but the new Saarai-kaar continued to train her young son and the other survivors in the ways of the Force. In a strange twist of fate, she taught them that the Jedi Knights were evil, but she also taught them the use of the light side of the Force, since she lacked the ability and education to comprehend the Sith treachings. Thus, when Emperor Palpatine's Jedi purge sent Darth Vader to Suarbi 7/5, Vader killed the Saarai-kaar's son because he felt only the light side emanating from him. When Luke and Corran defeated the Jensaarai and Leonia Tavira, the Saarai-kaar understoof what had happened, and agreed that the Jedi weren't any more evil than the Jensaarai. She agreed to consider sending a delegation of her followers to Yavin 4 for formal training under Luke. (IJ)

Jensen
a moisture farming family on Tatooine. They were friends with Ariq Joanson, although they opposed his ideals. (TME)

Jensen Drever II
this short, stocky near-human is the Chief Executive Officer of the Drever Corporation. Jensen has grayish-green skin, short, spiky hair, and a malformed face. He is generally rational and calm, but can fly into a rage when things don't go his way. Despite the fact that he runs Drever Corporation, he is by no means successful. (GG9)

Jensoni-class Starliner
a luxury passenger transport ship. (GG9)

Jenssar SoBilles
this Duros was his homeworld’s primary representative to the early delegations of the Alliance. He first began considering rebellion after hearing Bria Tharen speak on Cloud City, some years before the Battle of Yavin. He later was one of the original signers of the New Republic's declaration of war against the remnants of the Empire. (DESB, RD)

Jentan, Evitch
this former Imperial governor of Ebra allows the native Ebranites to have certain freedoms, provided that they remained completely loyal to the Empire. This earned him a measure of respect among the Ebranites. Any dissenters were sent to labor in the lu-ramin mines of Grythsurin. (GG12)

Jentari
this was the name given to the huge, cybernetic organisms which were bred to be the factories of the planet Zonama Sekot. The Jentari were actually huge, tree-like creatures that understood the needs of Sekot and channeled her energy into the constructs built within them. They were known as shapers to the original Magister, who worked with Sekot to create and train the Jentari. They were given smaller tasks, such as the shaping of Sekotan starships, in order to train them for the task of making the entire planet of Zonama Sekot capable of traveling through hyperspace if a dangerous foe every tried to overtake the planet. Many xenobiologists claim that the Jentari was also responsible for the creation of the boras and the tampasi. (RP)

Jenth
this is the tenth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "j". (SWM)

Jenth-44
this was the Imperial sleeper cell placed on Pakrik Minor by Grand Admiral Thrawn. (VOF)

Jenwald, Lyndelah
this woman was part of the Red Hand Squadron that assaulted Ylesia under the command of Bria Tharen, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. She sustained several injuries during the assault, but survived. (RD)

Jeodu
this species of blocky humanoid aliens appears to be made of stone. (MJEH)

Jer-weevil
this insect is often dried and salted, and served as a snack or appetizer. (RD)

Jeratai
this Imperial Admiral sat on the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He supported General Immodet's belief that the being who killed Burr Nolyds and Admiral Banjeer was a non-human. (CE2)

Jerba
a shaggy, horse-like pack animal found on Tatooine. (SGL)

Jerec
this Dark Jedi came into power some time after the Battle of Yavin, collecting six disciples in a quest for riches and power. He is unmistakable in a crowd, with a thin, blindfold-like mask covering the holes where his eyes used to be. Dark tattooes embellish his mouth and chin, and his bald pate is accentuated by a heavy brow. He had the unique ability to drain the life energy from an opponent. Jerec served Emperor Palpatine during the Galactic Civil War, and attempted to obtain the entity known as Spore for the Emperor's use. He failed to secure the entity before it infected Hodge, but tracked Spore to Ithor. He offered Spore the chance to control thousands of minds, if Spore agreed to work for him. Jerec had hoped that Spore would take control of the crew of his warship, the Vengeance. However, Spore had its own plans, and used the Vengeance to try and hunt down Tash Arranda. As it tried to follow her through the asteroids near Ithor, a group of space slugs began battering the Star Destroyer, knocking out its shields and causing it to explode. It is unknown how Jerec survived the explosion, just that he managed to escape in a Starfly and ordered a recovery team to pick up the pieces of the Vengeance. After the Battle of Endor, he hoped to locate the Valley of the Jedi and enhance his powers, and murdered Qu Rahn and Morgan Katarn in his quest for more information. Jerec and his Dark Jedi would have had the Valley's secrets if not for Morgan's son, Kyle, who defeated Jerec and his minions on the very precipice of the Valley's power source. (DF2, GOF9)

this smuggler worked from a base on the planet Byblos. (HAS)

Jerell
this man was the leader of the New Republic strike team which helped liberate Ralltiir from Imperial control after the Battle of Endor. His daughter, Bettle, was a member of the team as well. (HR)

Jericho
a native of Mindabaal, and daughter of the rightful king of the planet, Jericho was a rebellious student and the exact opposite of her sister, Josephine. She kidnapped her sister when Josephine went to sign the papers that officially admitted Mindabaal into the Empire. When they returned, they found that the Empire had devastated their homeworld. Jericho and Josephine then turned to a life of smuggling. (SWAJ)

Jericho
this Alliance Nebulon-B frigate was part of a small fleet dispatched to destroy a pirate base, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Jerijador
a planet, located in the Calaron Sector, known for its cheap shoe kits. (ISB, COJ, REB)

Jerius
this Kentran king ruled the city of Kariish, on Orellon II. He was a constant rival of King Mogotah, who ruled Ironwall. (SWAJ)

Jerjerrod
an Imperial Moff, Jerjerrod controlled the Quanta Sector before being chosen as commander of the second Death Star near Endor. He was chosen for the position because Palpatine wanted to avoid the hubris that killed Wilhuf Tarkin and lost the first Death Star. Jerjerrod was a contented, non-ambitious sort of man, and fit Palpatine's bill perfectly. Jerjerrod was killed when the Death Star was destroyed by the Alliance. Jerjerrod was portrayed by Michael Pennington in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi. (ROTJ)

Jermagium*-class Light Cruiser
manufactured by SoroSuub, this 25-meter light freighter was unremarkable in design and popularity. It requried a crew of two, and could transport up to 8 passengers and 85 metric tons of cargo. They were armed with a single laser cannon. (TSK, PP)

Jerne
this dead world was, at one time in ancient history, the homeworld of the Jerni civilization. After the demise of the Jerni, Jerne was colonized by humans and used until it was nearly destroyed. Under the auspices of the New Order, Jerne became a hotbed of rebellious activity. It has two moons. It was here that Leia Organa and Luke Skywalker began searching for the Eternity Crystal. (CSWDW)

Jerne City
the capital of the planet Jerne, and the former site of an Imperial base. (CSWDW)

Jerni
this ancient race inhabited the planet Jerne. Their civilization suddenly died out long ago. They were the creators of the Eternity Crystal. (CSWDW)

Jero Jal-Song
this being, a native of the planet Merisee, was one of the member of the Cult of Those Who Redeem during the height of the New Order. (OE)

Jeron
manufacturers of fusion cutters. (DF)

Jerresk
this Quarren was the leader of a band of pirates based on Fluwhaka. His pirates attacked several New Republic supply ships about five years after the Battle of Yavin, and he was placed on the Republic’s Most Wanted list. Jodo Kast took a Republic bounty to hunt down Jerresk’s pirates, after Jerresk himself was captured by Republic fighter pilots. (TOD, WBC)

Jerrilek
this planet is a vacation spot and retirement location for some of the galaxy's most affluent beings. It two main continents are situated along its equator, and are lush, tropical paradises. There are strange ruins in the oceans, suggesting that there once was an aquatic race that inhabited the planet. The planet spins very rapidly, completing a day in about 14 standard hours. 594 of these days make up the planet's year. (SWAJ)

Jerriman
this man, a member of the Boku Settlement on G'rho, served as a Lieutenant in the G'rho Defense Force under Major Brco, during the height of the New Order. Jerriman was in command of the militia's starfighter squadron. (TBSB)

Jerru

Jev, Ilo
this Imperial Colonel was a native of the planet Wyloff. He grew up as the son of a local broadcast personality, and was eventually recruited by the Imperial News Network. His performance within the Wyloff Sector Plexus was exemplary, and he rose quickly in an area where promotions were scarce. After being promoted to Commander, Jev learned that his father had been killed by Imperial agents for being "subversive and treasonous" in his broadcasts. Jev knew this was a lie, and that his father had only been reporting the truth about Moff Varnier's lack of government. Using his position within Sector Plexus, he learned that Varnier was assassinating any individual who opposed his rule. Varnier even had an agent hidden within the Wyloff Sector Plexus. Angry over his father's death, Jev hunted down the agent and arrested him as a supporter of the Alliance. Jev was promoted to Colonel and given command of the Xector Plexus, and his command of the unit was demanding and short-tempered. Jev was later recruited to be an Alliance agent by Vin Northal, and he agreed to assist as a way to enact revenge for the billions of lives exterminated by the Empire. (CRO)

Jiliac Desilijic Tiron
this huge Hutt was Jabba's uncle, and was the leader of the Desilijic kajidic during the early years of the New Order. He maintained a vast estate on Nal Hutta, known as the Winter Palace, and was the de facto ruler of the planet Dilbana. Early in the reign of Emperor Palpatine, Jiliac and Jabba were in the business of supplying raw spice to Zavval and Teroenza for processing on Ylesia. They also hired pirates to waylay transport ships from Ylesia which carried the processed spice, thereby obtaining sellable goods for nothing. When Zavval died on Ylesia, Jiliac and Jabba were forced into a series of confrontations with Aruk and Durga. In the midst of these battles, Jiliac became pregnant and became a female. After the birth of her baby, Jiliac became so wrapped up with maternal instincts that Jabba feared Desilijic would be taken over. Jiliac retained her sharp intellect, though, but sometimes failed to understand Jabba's devious plans. They successfully lobbied at the Hutt Grand Council to penalize clan Besadii for its monopolization of the spice market, but this incurred Durga the Hutt's wrath. Durga challenged Jiliac to combat under the Old Law, and the younger Hutt prevailed. During the battle, Jabba also murdered Jiliac's offspring, leaving Jabba alone as Deslijic's leader. Jinn, Qui-Gon this Jedi Master was known as one of the order's most formidable members, but his recklessness and his devotion to seemingly inane causes kept him from becoming a member of the 12-being Jedi Council. Trained by a Master who had worked with students for 400 years, Qui-Gon was generally regarded as one of the best pure swordsmen the order had ever seen. However, Qui-Gon was also something of a maverick, and was unable to control his inner sense of purpose. Qui-Gon wore his hair long in a tacit defiance of the Jedi order's rules. His control of the living Force was deep, although his abilities with the unifying Force were not as strong. After successfully training a Padawan apprentice, it was Qui-Gon who discovered the young boy named Xanatos, and brought him to Coruscant for training despite his age and spoiled nature. When the Council allowed Qui-Gon to take a Padawan, Qui-Gon chose Xanatos immediately. Qui-Gon either failed to - or chose not to – see Xanatos' many failings, regarding the boy's mistakes and growing anger as minor things, much the way a father would. In the end, this caused him great trouble. Shortly before Xanatos was to take the tests to determine his eligiblity to become a Jedi Knight, Master Yoda dispatched Qui-Gon and his Padawan to Telos, on an unspecific mission. While there, Qui-Gon was confronted with Xanatos' treachery in the attack on a neighboring world. Qui-Gon was forced to kill Xanatos' father, Crion, in a battle, and earned Xanatos' unending hatred from that point on. The youth fled, and Qui-Gon was left to return to Coruscant without a Padawan. He claimed that Xanatos had been killed in battle, and vowed never to take another Padawan again. He continued to interview new students, but always left without choosing an apprentice. Years later, he was charged by Master Yoda to travel to the planet Bandomeer and assist the government there in negotiating a mining treaty. The trip put him in close quarters with young Obi-Wan Kenobi, whom he had recently passed up as a Padawan apprentice. They were then drawn into the schemes of Xanatos, who hoped to exact revenge on Qui-Gon by killing him on Bandomeer. During their missions, which suddenly became a single mission, Qui-Gon realized that he and Obi-Wan were closely meshed with the Force. During their escape from Xanatos' trap in the ionite mines, Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan became linked in the Force, something that was only meant to happen to a Master and his apprentice. After their escape, Qui-Gon realized that Obi-Wan was not to be taken lightly, and he took the boy as his Padawan learner. Together, they explored the Force for some twelve years before the Trade Federation invaded the peaceful world of Naboo. Supreme Chancellor Valorum asked that the Jedi be dispatched to negotiate with the Neimoidians, so Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan were sent to Naboo. There, they became entangled in the intricate web being woven by Darth Sidious. Their mission quickly changed to the protection of Queen Amidala, whom they planned to transport to Coruscant for an appeal to the Senate. Their ship sustained large amounts of damage in clearing the Trade Federation blockade, and they were forced to land on Tatooine to repair the ship. While on the planet, Qui-Gon discovered the existence of young Anakin Skywalker. A check of the boy's blood revealed an incredibly high concentration of midi-chlorians, and after learning of Shmi Skywalker's description of Anakin's conception, he believed that he had found the prophecied Chosen One. He also discovered the existence of Darth Maul, and barely escaped from the Sith Lord. He brought Anakin before the Jedi Council, but was sternly rebuffed for his impertinence. Instead, they were all sent back to Naboo to protect Amidala in her attempt to break the Trade Federation blockade on her own. While the Queen succeeded, Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan were forced to confront Darth Maul again. In an epic battle within the Theed palace's power station, Qui-Gon was separated from Obi-Wan by the power plant's security lasers. Forced to battle the Sith Lord on his own, Qui-Gon was physically unable to compete. Darth Maul was able to stun Qui-Gon before killing the Jedi Master with a quick jab of his double-bladed lightsaber, while Obi-Wan looked on helplessly. Obi-Wan was able to defeat Darth Maul once freed from the lasers, but was too late to save his Master. Obi-Wan held Qui-Gon as he died, vowing to continue his Master's dream of training young Anakin Skywalker. Qui-Gon Jinn was portrayed by Liam Neeson in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. Jixton, Wrenga this Corellian underworld figure was known for his resourcefulness and his ruthlessness. A former Imperial Gunnery Sergeant known to his comrades a Jix, he was part of the task force that was sent to Falleen to accompany Darth Vader's experiment there. After the experiment failed, Jixton was court-martialled and sent to Kessel, but he quickly escaped from the prison complex and became a mercenary. He again encountered Vader several years later on the planet Aridus, where he had been hiding from the Empire. During this time, Jix had befriended the native Chubbits. When Vader was nearly killed in the explosion of the Iron Tower, Jix found him and would have killed the Dark Lord in revenge, but decided against it rather than risk the wrath of the Empire. Jix loaded Vader's body onto a starship and set out to deliver him, but Vader awoke and realized the situation. He offered Jix the chance to return to Aridus without fear of Imperial pursuit if he agreed to do whatever the Dark Lord needed. Jix was forced to agree to the deal, and he became an effective agent of Vader's. In this capacity, Jix exposed the liaison between Frija and Admiral Droon. Jix was later infiltrated into Jabba the Hutt's organization following the Dark Lord's failure to capture Luke Skywalker on Cloud City. Vader instructed Jix to become one of Jabba's swoop gang members, and to capture Luke when he arrived on Tatooine to plan the rescue of Han Solo. Jix nearly captured Luke in a swoop race through Beggar's Canyon, but Dash Rendar was able to disrupt his plans and get Luke free of the swoop gang. (SEC, SSE, SST)

Joanson, Ariq
one of Owen Lars' contemporaries, Ariq Joanson set up a moisture farm farther out than anyone else on Tatooine. His farm, which was only marginally profitable, bordered Jawa and Sand Person lands. Ariq felt that the three races could live together peacefully, despite the stories being spread by the Imperial governors. He regularly left gifts of water to both native races, and developed a great friendship with the Jawas of Wimateeka's clan. He developed an uneasy truce with the Sand People. Many of his friends, including his neighbor Eyvind, thought he was crazy. Ariq paid them no mind, and planned to purchase a great tract of land that he would subdivide with Jawas and Sand People. He was even going to help them submit the paperwork to make the land officially their own. When Eyvind became engaged to Ariela, Ariq asked if he could invite Wimateeka's clan. Ariela talked Eyvind into agreeing, and the wedding reception was a success. The Jawas were impressed with human customs and civility, while the humans marvelled that the Jawas could be so friendly. When a group of adolescent Sand People attacked the reception, Ariq was greatly dismayed. Eyvind was killed in the attack, and the local Imperial detachment used the incident to further the distrust between the races. Ariq was undaunted, and after rescuing Ariela from the Sand People, he set out to find the Alliance and work with them to overthrow the Empire. (TME)

Jobath
a Fia councillor from Galantos, Jobath personally waited outside the residence of Leia Organa-Solo on Coruscant to petition her to act against the Yevethan Great Purge. He pleaded for her to admit Galantos into the New Republic. She asked him to wait in the diplomatic hostel until she could recover herself from the events surrounding her talks with Nil Spaar. Joh Yowza this Yuzzum was a thief as well as the male lead singer for the Max Rebo Band. The name "Joh Yowza" was given to him by the band's female lead, Sy Snootles. Joh had been ostracized from his herd on Endor because he was considered too small to hunt. He stood nearly half a meter shorter than the average Yuzzum, and was often left behind on rugger hunts. On one of his solitary treks, Joh managed to stow away on a ship owned by Roark Garnet, who discovered the Yuzzum and nicknamed him "Furball." It was Garnet who taught Joh how to speak Basic. While on a stopover on Nar Shaddaa, Joh heard the music of the Max Rebo Band. He broke into song in the audience, and so astounded the band that they hired him on the spot. When the band traveled to Tatooine to play for Jabba the Hutt, they were forced to hide Joh because Jabba hated Yuzzum. However, Joh's incredible singing voice convinced the crimelord that not all Yuzzum are bad. After Jabba's death, Joh fled to Mos Eisley and signed on as a singer on a small passenger liner. Jump Freighter
a Calamari transport ship. (TM)

Jump Gate
at specific coordinates common to hyperspace and realspace which marked a safe stopping-off point in space, the early astrogators placed huge beacons known as jump gates to mark its location. These were common very early in the development of hyperdrive starships, for they were home to huge spaceports which had equipment and supplies. As hyperspace travel became easier with the advent of the AI navcom units, these jump gates became simply spaceports, since the beacons were no longer needed. The ancient jump gates were very limited in their capacity to re-route a starship, with only enough memory to remember a small number of other locations. Thus, the network was criss-crossed with a network of routes which passed through these gates. . (TOJ, TOJC)

Jumper
1) this Zelosian parasite is noctural, and feeds on dead bodies. The feeding frenzy of a swarm of jumpers has a unique effect on newly-dead bodies. They jumpers release certain enzymes and electrical discharges while feeding. This combination of events causes the dead body to jerk and flinch, and eventually kick-starts the brain. The dead body then seems to come back to life and walk, although the effect only lasts until the jumpers have consumed the body. This usually lasts a few hours. This "walking dead" effect is deathly frightening to the native Zelosians, since it occurs at night during the darkness they fear most. (PG2) this was the most prevalent religion worshipped among the Ka'hren on the planet V'shar. It rose to prominence as the primary religion of the Unfyr Warriors, but died out when that group itself died out. (AIR)

Jydan Writings
these sacred texts contained the laws and regulations of the Jydan religion. According to the religion, the Writings were created by the three prophets of each Jydan god, and related the teachings and tales of those gods. The Writings were considered companion works to the Volumes of Truth by both theJydan and the Ni'Shaw-Dak Ministry. (AIR)

Jyn Obah
this tall humanoid had long red hair, a severe underbite, and a nose ring. He served as Kybo Ren's first mate during the early years of the New Order. He also wore pieces of stromtrooper armor. (DCAR)

Jyng, Oskar
this former design team chief at Ubrikkian was enticed to leave that position for a job in the Corporate Sector Authority's Research Division. He took the CSA job, and became the inventor of the War Wheel. (CSA)

JZ-5
Slayn & Korpil's fusial thrust engine, used on the B-Wing. (XW)

JZ-5g7
this advanced Slayn & Korpil fusial thrust engine was used on late-model B-Wings and the B-Wing Expanded. (EGV)

J1M
see G1M (PTR)

J11.9
the Old Republic's original designation of the Tatoo System. (GG7)

J21-Z65
this was the Imperial designation of the Paradise System. (SH)

J9-series Droids
manufactured by Roche Industries, these worker drones are humanoid, insectile droids with teardrop-shaped heads. They rivaled the 3PO series in their ability to process information. They were equipped with TranLang II communications modules and Arjan II central processors. (GG7, TME)

J9-5
this Roche worker drone ran the Mos Eisley Spaceport control tower. Programmed with a feminine personality, she had been pased from owner to owner before she ended up in Mos Eisley. (GG7)

J9-6
this Roche workder drone was working for the local government in Mos Eisley during the Galactic Civil War. (GG7)

J930 Dash-8
this was a model of podracer manufactured by JAK Racing. It was noted for its long, sloped engines, which utilized the Split-X technology found in Collor Pondrat engines. The cockpit of the J930 measured 3.05 meters in length, and the engines measured 9.55 meters in length. They could propel the racer at speeds approaching 785 kilometers per hour. (IG1)

* K *

k
this unit of measure describes the amount of pressure a hydroclamper (or similar tool) can apply to a surface. (CFG)

K-Inhibitor
this is a component used to provide social information to a droid's brain. K-Inhibitors can be added or removed to create a range of desired behaviors. (CFG)

K-M2
this Industrial Automaton spaceport control droid was built by the Alliance. They attempted to create a droid which could penetrate the Empire at vital points and remain unobtrusive while gathering information. K-M2 was equipped with backup batteries and memory storage units, which allowed him to completely recover from memory wipes with his hidden programming intact. He was placed in Imperial service in the Minos Cluster, where any inadvertent malfunctions wouldn't jeopardize important missions. K-M2 rose in the Imperial ranks, and eventually became the head controller of the Travnin spaceport. He gathered data on the Chariot and other Imperial vehicles, but secretly longed to sacrifice himself to save an exposed Alliance agent. (GG6)

K-Series Droid
this Industrial Automaton series of droids was designed as spaceport control drones. They were tall, awkward-looking automata with clamshell-shaped craniums, long arms, and protruding mid-sections. They were often painted red or yellow to set them apart from normal droids. (GG6)

K-Wing
a bomber developed by the New Republic about twelve years after the Battle of Endor. From the front, the K-Wing resembles the letter K, lying on its long side. The central fuselage is studded with four wings: two larger wings extend upward, while the shorter wings at the bottom act as landing skids. The four wings have eighteern unique positions, which can be adjusted depending on weaponry and payload. It has three primary thrust engines, two on the lower wings and one at the rear of the fuselage. The two-seated fighter was flown by a pilot and a gunner and a bomber, and was designed to fly in gravity-dense arenas. The K-Wing has no hyperdrive, being an atmospheric bomber. It primary mission is as a bomber, and it is the equal of the TIE Bomber in armament. It can also be armed to the teeth as a starfighter, but the ship suffers in maneuverability when more weapons are added. Thus, it is not a dogfight ship. It was first tested by the crew of the Monitor, and was first assigned to active duty with Task Force Quickfire. It first saw combat with the Fifth Battle Group near Bessimir. (BTS)

K-0
this droid was part of Korren Starchaser's scouting team, and provided services ranging from protocol to language translation and computation. (SWJ13)

K-1-0
The Alliance's evacuation code signal, used on the Hoth base (ESB)

K-11
this cybernetic implant was produced by Control Zone, and provided the user with an internal blaster. (AIR)

K-1B
this medical droid was assigned to the New Republic warship Intrepid. K-1B treated Lumpawarump, after the Wookiee sustained a blaster wound while rescuing Han Solo from the Pride of Yevetha. (TT)

K-18
common starship rations. (SOL)

K-222
this zZip aero-interceptor was one of the premier atmospheric fighters in the Corporate Sector Authority fleet. It measures 13 meters in length, and was armed with doubel-wingtip laser cannons and six concussion missiles. It was capable of reaching 2,600 kilometers per hour in atmospheric flight. (CSA)

K-3PO
this white protocol droid served the Alliance under Commander Narra, learning military tactics along the way. The droid later served as the leader of the Alliance's droid pool at Echo Base on Hoth. (CCG)

k-43
this heavy laser cannon was developed by Incom Industries during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (GG2)

K-749 System
located in the Outer Rim Territories, this system contains the planet Pzob. (COJ)

K-8LR
a series of silver protocol droids. Jabba the Hutt owned one just before the Battle of Yavin. When Muftak and Kabe tried to rob Jabba's

Mos Eisley townhouse, they freed K-8LR of his restraining bolt, and the droid allowed them to escape while the townhouse was destroyed in a firefight. Jabba became angry with his K-8LR and had it destroyed. (TME)

K'ath
this many-tiered world is renowned for the production of delicate figurines made from seashells. (GOF4)

K'Cink
this member of the Cavrilhu Pirates worked in the electronics shop at the Kauron asteroid base. (SOP)

K'cri's Cafe
this was a small cafe located on Figg Avenue on Cloud City, and was owned and operated by K'cri Elban. Odea Aurora made unique pieces of jewelry for sale at K'cri's. (GG2)

K'derek
this male Tarong was the sibling of Sk'rirak. His russet and black plumage complimented her green coloration. He was anexplosives expert, and was adept at gathering intelligence on Imperial garrisons. Both worked as lucrative businessbeings until they signed on as information gatherers with the Alliance. They sold their information for droids and jewelry. (GG12)

K'hondo
this Sedrian warrior was one of Karak's followers. (BGS)

K'iin
this Pedducian Warlord was the leader of the Silver Unifir, and was the ruler who agreed to let the Independent Company of Settlers live on Pedducis Chorios. (POT)

k'Jtari
this alien race was known for its ancient form of martial arts, which required intense mental and physical dedication. (WSV)

K'lar
this was the term used by the Krieks to describe the patriarch who rules each tribe. The k'lar also led the ken'karro. (SWJ13)

K'lial Khzrry
this Xi'Dec and its sibling, Diskio, were the only surviving members of their family, which was well-respected in the Xi'Dec community. The rest of the family was killed while vacationing on the Savage Pleasure, during an Imperial assassination attempt. Following the death of the family, both K'lial and Diskio threw in their support for the Alliance. Using their species as a cover, they scoured Grohl Sector looking for other Xi'Dec to recruit into their family. While searching for Xi'Dec, they also appropriate rebel agents and whisk them to safehouses before Imperial officers can capture them. K'lial was the more humanoid of the pair, using his unusual vocal capabilities to produce one of the more comforting Basic accents in the galaxy. K'lial could also use its arms to produce hypnotic patterns of movement, while occasionally lifting a wallet or two. (CRO)

K'lor'slug
this creature, native to the planet Noe'ha'on, it a multi-armed slug which lives in swamps. These large, pinkish creatures multiply rapidly, as the females lay hundreds of eggs each mating period. There is a k'lor'slug on Chewie's holotable aboard the Millennium Falcon. (CCG)

K'ntarr, Kalieva
the daughter of Rilvvan K'ntarr, Kalieva was a teenage heiress to her planet's throne and Rythani Products corporate empire when Sienn Sconn attempted to steal a Rythani prototype. A pampered and spoiled princess, Kalieva is also a devious schemer in the realms of business and politics. She allowed herself to be drawn into Sconn's attempt to steal the prototype from beneath Moff Caerbellak's nose, and actually felt herself somewhat drawn to him. However, this was all a ruse, with the ultimate goal that Sconn should steal the prototype and deliver it to the New Republic. Kalieva had, in fact, entered into a relationship with Caerbellak, and she assumed the throne and the corporate position he held when Caerbellak assassinated her father. Sconn fled Rydonni Prime with the weapon, furthering Caerbellak's plans. (SWJ9)

K'ntarr, Rilvvan
this monarch ruled the planet Rydonni Prime, and the pro-Imperial Rythani Products, during the reign of Emperor Palpatine and the early years of the New Republic. He cultivated a relationship with Moff Caerbellak, until the Moff realized that a relationship with the king's daughter, Kalieva, would be more profitable. Rilvvan was killed by Caerbellak during the "theft" of the latest Rythani prototype by Sienn Sconn. (SWJ9)

K'Reye, Cohden
this Corellian man was known to his associates as something of an expert on the various cantinas and bars of the galaxy. He even compiled a computer datafile which documented the good and bad things about certain locales. (WSV)

K'rom Wars
a period of Xi'Dec history in which several warrior sexes evolved forelimbs which could be used as spears or swords. (GG4)

K'taktaxka
this gas giant is located in the Expansion region. The Alliance sent operatives to this planet to scout out reserves of tibanna gas, following the Battle of Hoth. (SWAJ)

K'tara
this was a style of hand-to-hadn martial arts studied by the Alliance's Special Forces division. (ROE)

K'thri Arts
this style of martial arts emphasized unarmed combat. (TTSB)

K'vath 5
this is the fifth planet of the K'vath System. It has several moons, including the resort world of Alakatha. (IJ)

K'yne Harmion
one of three Harmion brothers who work for Sarlim Gastess. Gastess uses the Harmion Brothers to serve as executives of the corporations he acquires. All the Harmions are ruthless, and seem to relish the destruction and anguish they cause when they remove old management and employees in favor of Gastess' Finance people. (GG9)

K'zagg Colony
the community of Ruurians from which Skynx hails. (HSL)

K'zk
this Qwohog convinced Diergo-Rea Duhnes'rd and his beloved, Solum'ke, into financing a treasure hunt to the Zelosian Chine during Zelos II's Day of the Sepulchral Night. He then double-crossed them, having his Corellian partners pretend to be shipwrecked. The pirates then took the treasure the Weequay had recovered and left them to drown when the tides rose. (TFNR)

Ka, Tenel
the daughter of Isolder and Teneniel Djo, Tenel Ka was raised on Dathomir in the tradition of the other witches in Teneniel's clan. Tenel showed great aptitude with the Force, and later attended Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy on Yavin 4, at the same time as Jacen and Jaina Solo. She was a reserved, distant companion to the twins, in keeping with the strength she learned on Dathomir. When Luke discovered the connection between Lando Calrissian's lost corusca gems and the space station Borgo Prime, he took Tenel Ka with him to search out any leads on the Shadow Academy. Later, she posed with him on Dathomir as Force sensitives, and were transported to the Shadow Academy. There, they helped rescue Jaina and Jacen. Her Jedi training nearly came to an end when Luke Skywalker requested that the students at his praxeum built their own lightsabers, in preparation for battling the Shadow Academy. Tenel Ka felt that the weapon was no the important link, but the warrior was. She didn't focus all of her energies in her lightsaber, which she built from an old rancor tooth. In a practice duel with Jacen Solo, Tenel pushed herself and Jacen to their limits. Her lightsaber failed to maintain its energy beam, and Jacen's blade passed through it, severing Tenel Ka's right hand. The wound was instantly cauterized, and replacing the hand was impossible. She travelled back to Hapes to recover from the incident, secretly wondering about her own abilities. She found herselve in the midst of Ambassador Yfra's treacherous plans. The series of ensuing battles forced Tenel Ka to realize that, although the warrior is very important, how the warrior maintains their touch on the Force is most important. Her injury was of minimal importance if she truly mastered the Force. She returned to Yavin 4, and built a new lightsaber. She kept to her original design of using a rancor tooth, but worked with the Force to create a weapon superior to the original. It used a rainbow gem from Gallinore, and produced a turquoise-colored blade. She has been named several times as Kenel Ka or Tenel Ta throughout the Young Jedi Knights books. (HTF, SA, L, DK, JUS)

Ka'aa
an elder, nomadic race of aliens that knows the Koornacht Cluster as no'aat padu'll - The Little Nursery. (BTS)

Ka'Dedus
the huge, ultraviolet supergiant star which is the primary sun for Af'El. (GG4)

Ka'hren
this alien race was native to the planet V'shar. Humanoid in stature, the Ka'hren were isolationists who developed their own forms of space travel but preferred to remain on their homeworld. Any Ka'hren who wished to leave V'shar had to receive special permissionfrom each of the leaders of V'shar's seven nations. In appearance, the average Ka'hren appeared almost skeletal, with tall bodies and thin limbs. Their thick skin ranged in color from blue to dark red to black, and they were hairless except for fur ontheir forearms and two locks of hair which grew from their temples. (AIR)

Ka'i'lorshin
this Red Nikto served the Alliance as a sharpshooter, as part of the Sandwind Team which worked in the Periphery during the Galactic Civil War. (SSR)

Kaa
this city on Lucazec was the site of the planet's only major spaceport. It was considered new and secure by the natives, but was far from the galactic standard. (BTS)

KAAC Freerunner
ground-based assault vehicle built by Kelliak Arms and Armor Corporation. (DFR)

Kaadi
this young, female Phindian was part of the resistance movement led by Paxxi and Guerra Derida, which sprang up in opposition to the control of the Syndicat over Phindar. Her father, Nuuta, had been forced to submit to the Syndicat's renewal process, and was dropped on the planet Alba. Kaadi invited the Derida brothers and the Jedi, Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, to stay at her parents' house while they avoided the Syndicat. When the group put their plans to expose the Syndicat into motion, Kaadi rallied the local resistance and helped storm the Syndicat's warehouses. Kaadi was injured in the struggle which was fought between the Syndicat's forces and the resistance, but survived to lead the rebels to victory. (HP)

Kaadu
this species of two-legged, flightless avian is native to the planet Naboo. Kaadu are fearless creatures, and are often used as steeds by Gungan warriors. The kaadu lay their eggs on land, often in fields, where they are often eaten by predators like the peko peko. For this reason, the average clutch of kaadu eggs is quite large. (GF)

Kaal
this Mid-Rim ocean world is located in the Yushan Sector. Despite its boundless oceans, Kaal is also a major exporter of agricultural goods. Numerous casinos and luxury resorts populate its coasts and islands. Following the death of Emperor Palpatine, one of his faithful Dark Jedi was so overwhelmed that he crashed his ship into the oceans of Kaal. The ship was rumored to have the only working cloaking device. The crash caused massive tidal waves which destroyed the Unis Islands. The Empire abandoned the planet, since its most valuable resort properties had been wiped out. The crimelord Tirgee Banyalle then took control of the planet, and exploited its aquacultural resources. After the Battle of Endor, the New Republic and Talon Kaarde both negotiated for control of the planet. The Republic wanted to have access to the aquaculture, while Kaarde wanted the cloaking device. (SWAJ)

Kaaldar
this Imperial physician was responsible for the creation of Bledsoe's disease. He was on Tatooine, verifying a new strain, when Luke Skywalker became infected. He administered to Luke, but was keep Luke confined to the hospital. (CSWEA)

Kaar
an Alliance YT-1300 destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Kaarenth Dissension
this splinter group formed in Corva Sector after the defeat of Grand Admiral Thrawn at Bilbringi. It was the brainchild of Meres Ulcane and an anonymous Imperial supporter. Using the Spawn Nebula as a shield, the Kaarenth Dissension began assembling a fleet of warships. From this hidden base, they destroyed the New Republic communications center hidden within the gas giant Galaan, and stirred up a great deal of anoymosity toward the New Republic among the alien races of the Outer Rim. Ulcane proved to be a motivational speaking, inciting discontent toward the Republic with relative ease. However, the Dissension died near Betha II, when the New Republic was able to locate Ulcane and discover his hidden fleet. The Republic agents managed to destroy the space station which served as Ulcane’s base, killing Ulcane and destroying much his fleet. (SWJ8)

Kabaira
this oceanic Outer Rim world is located in the Teilcam System. The planet-wide oceans are broken periodically by more than two million volcanic islands. Most of the volcanoes are inactive. The few that remain active are located in the southern hemisphere. (SWAJ)

Kabal
the homeworld of Lady Lapema Phonstom, Kabal was also the site of the Conference of Uncommitted Worlds during the Galactic Civil War. It remained neutral throughout the conflict, even after surviving an Imperial invasion during the Conference. (AC, CSW)

Kabalard Vinne
this Wroonian outlaw, a former representative for the Guild of Armaments Distributors, claimed responsibility for the attack on the Imperial warship Rampant while it was in drydock at the Wroonian Stardock. Vinne claimed that the attack was a response to Governor Norrin’s crackdown on some of Wroona’s less respectable guilds. (SWJ9)

Kabarr’s Fortress
this HT-2200 medium freighter was highly modified by a number of owners. Additional armor plating was added to supplement the trimantium hull, the cargo area was divided into four environmental holds, and the original sublight drive was replaced with a SoroSuub Boav ion drive. The original armaments were removed to add additional shielding, but the poor wiring of the shield generators into the power cores sometimes drains the ship’s entire power supply. This “quirk” causes the entire ship to shutdown while the shields are in use. The only remaining armament is a pulse laser cannon. (SWJ9)

Kabe
the Chandra-Fan who is present in the Mos Eisley cantina when Luke is assaulted by Ponda Baba, Kabe was orphaned in the streets of the spaceport by a group of smugglers who thought she was too small to be of any value. She was about 40 standard years old at that time. She was adopted by the Talz named Muftak, and the two of them often work together. She also gains a great deal of fun and money by posing as a Jawa and demanding unofficial taxes of the desert scavengers. She has a great liking for Juri Juice, which she consumes quite readily in the cantina. However, Wuher won't give her credit, so she has to have Muftak get it for her. The two orphans get a chance to leave Tatooine for good after trying to rob Jabba the Hutt's Mos Eisley townhouse. They nearly got away with a trove of treasures when they found Barid Mesoriaam in a hidden chamber. He entrusted a datadot to them, which they delivered to a Mon Calamari working for the Alliance. He paid them 15,000 credits and two Imperial travel vouchers as a reward. (SW, SCRE, TME)

Kabieroun
1) this planet is the homeworld of a tall, thin alien race. (SWJ8)
2) this is the name of the race of aliens native to the planet of the same name. (TFE)

Kabus-Dabeh
this ancient city, located on the planet Muzara, was the site of a minor Dark Side nexus. It was shunned by the native Muza, who ordered Keval Raffaan to recover a bag of coins form the temple in the city to prove his worthiness as a Jedi Peacemaker. (TOJC)

Kabus-Dabeh Monstrosity
this huge monster inhabited the ruins of the ancient city of Kabus-Dabeh, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. It was covered with black scales, and had four barbed tentacles. Two large fins and a lumpy tail helped it move about, and its fang-filled jaws could kill its prey with a single bite. The barbs on the tentacles were hollow, and could inject a lethal poison into its prey. (TOJC)

Kaccen
this slicer helped a group of freelance spacers obtain forged invitations to Rae Vixe's gala, during which they managed to "kidnap" Cera Vixe so that she could flee Kinyen and marry Vee Naaq. (IA)

Kad, Tolo
this ancient Onderonian served King Ommin and Queen Amanoa as a chief aide, although much of the work he claimed to have done himself was actually done by his assistant, Novar. Novar became disgruntled with Kad's constant denial of his abilities. When King Ommin demanded that Kad prepare a wonderful state dinner, Novar told him that he would make sure everything was in order. However, Novar planned to use this to his advantage, and did absolutely nothing about the dinner. Meanwhile, Kad bragged endlessly about the incredible plans he was developing. When Ommin arrived at the dining hall, he found that there was nothing in place: no food, no servants, no entertainment. He demanded to know the meaning of it all, and Kad was speechless and unable to respond. In fury,. King Ommin destroyed Tolo Kad with a ball of flame conjured from the Dark Side of the Force. (TOJC)

Kadann
a black-bearded dwarf, Kadann is the Supreme Prophet of the Dark Side. He is responsible for the prophecy that whoever wears the Glove of Darth Vader will be the next Emperor of the galaxy, which is contained in a series of four-line, non-rhyming verses. The leaders of the remnants of the Empire strive to obtain his blessing to make their rulership of the galaxy legitimate. Kadann drinks a strange tea brewed from the fungus-infested bark of an Endorian tree, which is rumored to allow him to see into the future. He is also a collector of the galaxy's finest artifacts, which he displays throughout Scardia's halls. (LCJ)

Kadas'sa'Nikto
one of the five main Nikto races, the Kadas'sa'Nikto are also known as the Green Nikto. (GG12)

Kadlo
an ancient Duro King, he was honored by having the largest tower in the Valley of Royalty, a silver structure near Queen Rana's monument. (MMY)

Kadnessi
one of the ruling families of the planet Kuat. They sided with the Knylenn family during Khoss of Knylenn's bid to overturn the Inheritance Exemption. (SLS)

Kadok III
this star, located in the Kadok Regions, was the primary body in the Tertiary Kadok System. (AIR)

Kadok III-A
this searing ball of rock was the first planet in the Tertiary Kadok System. It had eight natural moons. (AIR)

Kadok III-B
this searing ball of rock was the second planet in the Tertiary Kadok System. It had fifteen natural moons(AIR)

Kadok III-C
this barren, rocky world was the third planet in the Tertiary Kadok System. It had a single moon. (AIR)

Kadok III-D
this was the name of the planet Guiteica, which was used in most Old Republic starcharts. (AIR)

Kadok III-E
this gas giant was the first planet in the Tertiary Kadok System. It had 75 natural moons. (AIR)

Kadok Regions
this area of the galaxy was the home of the Bitthaevrian race. It was rumored that the Kadok Regions had little regard for the Old Republic, and were even said to have defeated the Jedi Knights in a battle shortly before the rise of Emperor Palpatine. (AE, AIR)

Kadorto, Halley
a particularly daring Alliance starfighter pilot who, during the Galactic Civil War, received the Kalidor Crescent for single-handedly rescuing Mon Calamari slaves from the Star Destroyer Warrior by wiping out the ship's complement of TIE fighters and securing the freighters it guarded. He was a veteran of the Clone Wars. (XW)

Kadri'Ra
1) this was the name of a species of huge, intelligent, insectoid worm native to the planet Arapia. They are rumored to be related to the Duinuogwuin, and can exist in hard vacuum for short periods of time. Their lifespan can reach 1,500 years, and they continue to grow throughout their lives, often reaching lengths of 200 meters or more. A protective exoskeleton cracked and expanded with each period of growth. The front section of their bodies is studded with six to ten arms, and their heads are crowned with a wide frill of chitin. The lower section of their body is a bulbous, fleshy mass. As individual beings grew, they eventually reached a point in their lives where their bodies were too large to survive. These huge Kadri'Ra often chose to hide themselves in caverns, thereby forcing their bodies to adapt to the natural confines of the cave. The Kadri'Ra were generally regarded as thinkers and sages, although the Empire regarded them as mere beasts. They were subjugated and enslaved, and many Kadri'Ra died in labor camps. In the brief period of the New Order, the population of Kadri'Ra was cut from over 140 million to less than 15,000. (BSS)
2) this was the incredibly complex language of the Kadri'Ra species. (BSS)

Kael
this bounty hunter was known to have a near-perfect record of captures before being employed to hunt down Karl Ancher. Unfortunately, the Society of the Black Bha'lir had hired a group of freelance mercenaries to act as Ancher's bodyguards, and Kael was unable to secure the smuggler. (BSS)

Kaell
a family native to the planet Khomm, the Kaell family has produced the leaders of Dorsk 81's home city. When Dorsk 81 left, Kaell 115 was the leader. When Dorsk 81 and Kyp Durron returned to the planet, Kaell 116 was in charge of the city. (DS)

Kaelldin Krothburt
this author wrote several books on the Galactic Civil War and the role of pirates in it. Among Krothburt's works is Study of the Galactic Balance of Power: The New Order's Greatest Challenges. (GG9)

Kaellin III
this tiny, backwater world is located in the Malenstorr System. (GG9)

Kaelta
a purple star which is the primary sun in the Kaelta System, a planetary system which contains the planet Toola. (GG4)

Kaezeb Mining Operations Center
this ancient space station orbited the planet Arkania, 1,000 years after the fall of the Sith Empire. (TOJC)

Kafvris
this specis of vine is native to the planet Bothawui, and is often used in decorative plantings. (SOP)

Kaha
a species of tree native to the planet Talasea. (XWN)

Kahr'corvh
a member of the Noghri clan Khim'bar, Kahr'corvh was the specie's representative to the New Republic. He signed the declaration of war against the remnants of the Empire. (DESB)

Kai, Tamith
the first of a new group of Nightsisters, Tamith Kai kidnapped Jaina and Jacen Solo, along with Lowbacca, from GemDiver station. Tamith is distinguished by her jet black hair, pale skin, deep violet eyes, and remarkable beauty. She wore jet-black armor which was adorned with functional spikes. She employed Qorl as her personal pilot after joining Brakiss on the Shadow Academy. She struggled against Brakiss' leadership, and was bitter that Zekk defeated her own champion, Vilas. When the Shadow Academy attacked Yavin 4, Tamith Kai led the initial ground assault with Zekk. They split up the Jedi students and tried to kill them separately, but were unable to do so. When Tenel Ka clipped a TIE Fighter with her lightsaber, the craft spun out of control and struck the landing platform on which Tamith Kai stood. She was instantly killed in the resulting explosion. (SA, L, JUS)

Kai Mir
one of Ellor's ships used in the smugglers' raid on Bilbringi. (TLC)

Kaiberoun
this tall, alien race is easily distinguished by its thin form and long face. While not as long as the face of a Chevin, the Kaiberoun's face is nonetheless just as distinctive. (TFE)

Kaiburr Crystal
a red gemstone capable of enhancing the user's Force strength. It increases the holder's perception of the Force, and this effect is magnified with larger portions of the crystal. Luke feels the gem's power with just a shard that is held by Halla. When he gains control of the entire gem, its power is revealed as a healing power. It heals the various mortal injuries Luke sustained in his battle with Darth Vader inside the Temple of Pomojema. Luke later uses the power to help heal Leia's wounds. Halla makes the connection between the crystal's power and the rumors of Pomojema's priests performing healing miracles. Luke gives control of the crystal to Halla, who holds onto it. Luke's studies into Jedi lore also revealed that kaiburr crystals were the most powerful stones that could be used in the creation of lightsabers. (SME, L)

Kaikielius System
this planetary system lies close to the Coruscant System, and was taken over by the remnants of the Empire that rose to power just before Emperor Palpatine re-emerged on Byss. This increased Imperial activity forced the New Republic to leave Coruscant. (DESB)

Kail
a planet located in the Corporate Sector. (HSE, CSA)

Kail Ranges
the land that Torm's father owned. In an effort to gain control of the Kail Ranges, Torm turned in his father and older brother to the Corporate Sector Authority for assumed crimes. The Authority, recognizing Torm's desire to own the Ranges, forced him to become a secret agent if he wanted to own them. (HSE)

Kailio Entertainments
this business was owned by the Hutts, and served as a legitimate front for their plans to monolopize the manufacture and distribution of holographic entertainment within the Core Worlds. Despite its seedy background, Kailio was recognized throughout the galaxy as one of the most charitable patrons of the arts, and was active in artistic relief efforts. These humanitarian goals helped mask the corporation's trillion-credit-a-year laundering operations. (GG11)

Kailor V
this planet was the site of the Imperial Zoological Gardens. The various aquaria were maintained by the Shalik family of Sedrians. (TA, GG4)

Kaimme Twins
these smuggling kingpins harrassed Corporate Sector transport ships until they were captured and imprisoned at Stars' End, under the direction of Viceprex Hirken. (CSA)

Kain, Drukus
this hot-tempered farmers was one of the least-known weapons manufacturers on the planet Draenell's Point, during the Galactic Civil War. This was because he appeared to be nothing more than a farmer, which was his chosen cover. Kain was also known as a drunkard, and spent many loud nights drinking in the Farmer's Folly. Drukus took up the secret life of a weapons maker after the Empire took control of Bissillirus System for use as a supply depot., supplying the rebellious youths of the planet with weapons he hopes will be used to eliminate the Imperial presence. (GMK)

Kaine, Ardus
this Imperial Grand Moff ruled the Outer Rim Territories following the death of Wilhuf Tarkin. Kaine was instrumental in the formation of the Pentastar Alignment, for he was the individual who called together the leaders of the Velcer Free Commerce Zone and proposed it to them. He more or less ingored the call to arms of Grand Admiral Thrawn, waiting until his own forces were ready to attack the New Republic themselves. He formed the Alignment with the intent of gianing the support of corporations, and created a highly-organized force that maintained the ideals of the New Order, although with a slightly modified implmentation. (TFE)

Kaine Paulsen
a smuggler who sometimes worked with Toob Ancher. He was killed on Thrugii while trying to deliver smuggled supplies to the miners there. (SWAJ)

Kaini
this woman was a reporter for major newsfeed. She was also a friend and associate of Siro Simito, and an Alliance agent. She used her position as a reporter to interview Simito, while secretly passing him data for him to transport to the Alliance. (CRO)

Kaink
an Ewok priestess living the forests of Endor, she is a source of mystical inspiration for the Ewoks. When Deej and his sons agree to help Cindel and Mace rescue their parents, they go to see Kaink for guidance. When she discovers that they are carrying the crystal token, she uses it to test Mace and Cindel's intentions toward the Ewoks. The crystal turns into a mouse in Cindel's hands, and a lizard in Mace's hands. Finding these revelations valid and truthful, Kaink joins the party to rescue the children's parents from the Gorax. Kaink uses the crystal a number of times to influence the wildlife of Endor, aiding the party's passage to the Fortress of the Gorax. Kaink was portrayed by Margarita Ferguson in The Ewok Adventure. (EA)

Kairn
this young native of the planet Necropolis greeted Zak Arranda when the boy arrived on Necropolis with his sister Tash and their uncle, Hoole. The two became friends, until Kairn and his buddies dared Zak to enter the huge graveyard and travel to the Crypt of the Ancients in the dead of night. Zak agreed, but was confronted with the undead zombies that lived in the cemetary. Kairn tried to rescue Zak, but was captured and murdered by Evazan. Kairn was buried in a ceremony along with Evazan, but Kairn returned to the city the next day as a member of the reanimated dead. He had been the latest of Doctor Evazan's experiments, and a fairly successful one at that. Kairn's death provided Evazan with a freshly dead body, and proved that his reanimation serum was viable. Evazan himself had been killed by Boba Fett, but had injected himself with his reanimation serum and returned to life. Zak was caught up in Evazan's plans, and Kairn became just another zombie until Evazan tried to kill everyone in order to cover his tracks. When the droid D-V9 discovered a way to reverse the reanimation process, Kairn was ordered by Evazan to stop him. However, Kairn disobeyed Evazan and used the droid's new potion to halt the living dead and make them dead again. However, in the struggle, some of the potion got on Kairn's skin, and he was also killed. (GOF2)

Kaith
this woman was Janq Paramexor's consort. She had a cybernetic replacement for her right hand. (GG10)

Kal Mpon
an Arcona, and father to Kal Nkai. When his Grand Nest was raided by another clan, Kal Mpon and his son left to find their own existence on Cona. They set out to live off the land, but Kal Mpon was killed when he got too close to one of Cona's predatory plants. The plant issued a colorless, odorless gas, which Kal Mpon inhaled. The gas killed him instantly. (SCRE)

Kal Nkai
an Arcona, who left his Grand Nest with his father, Kal Mpon, after it was raided by another clan. Kal Nkai, alone and without support, was picked up by an Imperial detachment and forced to work in a salt mine. Being an Arcona and raised in a saltless environment, Kal Nkai became addicted to the salt. He knew that his addiction was hindered by his nearness to such a large source, and he sought to escape his slavery. After a successful escape from Imperial slavery, Kal Nkai arrived on Tatooine, at the ripe old age of 16 standard years. He quickly established himself as a moisture farmer, working to extract the water and stay away from salt. Known as "Goldeye" around Mos Eisley, Kal Nkai frequents the cantina quite often, looking for a lick of salt to satisfy his cravings while going through withdrawal. He was in the Mos Eisley cantina when Obi-Wan and Luke approached Han Solo for passage to Alderaan. (SW, SCRE)

Kal-ar
one of the six Tiss'shar races, the Kal-ar are characterized by the thin, concentric bands of color that cover their hides. (GG12)

Kal-tan-shi
this Tiss'shar was a noted bounty hunter and assassin who had an intense rivalry with Ssach'thirix during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. Kal-tan-shi made a living capturing Alliance operatives, preferring to hunt for Alliance personnel because Imperial bounties tended to be higher than individual ones. This alone would have angered the Alliance, but Kal-tan-shi had a penchant for killing the operatives during transport. Kal-tan-shi earned his reputation as a member of House Paramexor, which specialized in the capture of non-living bounties. He left the Paramexor family to start his own business, which earned him the displeasure of Janq Paramexor, although the two remained good friends for a long time. For an unknown reason, Kal-tan-shi hated droids, and didn't use any to help operate his freighter, the Accuser. (GG12, AIR)

Kal'Fanl C'ndros
the Quor'sav female who passes Luke Skywalker while he's selling his landspeeder in Mos Eisley, Kal was a freelance pilot and an over-protective mother. Following the Battle of Hoth, she joined a group of smugglers who were plying the Sisar Run in order to save up credits to supply her family with food. She carried her clutch of eggs in the modified hold of her ship, the Shelltooth. It was during this time that she started to fall in love with Rycar Ryjerd, much to his dismay. (CCG, SSR)

Kal'Shebbol

Kal Lup
this Shistavenan wolfman, along with her husband Tar, ran Lup's Wares and Supplies. Despite their ferocious appearances, the Lups are a congenial pair, although they never forget a debt. (GG7)

Kala Kevv
this Sullustan served the Alliance as a pilot during the Galactic Civil War. She was rescued by a group of Alliance agents after her X-Wing crashed on an uncharted jungle world. She was also rescued after being shot down over NCW-781 by Operation Shadowstrike. (IA)

Kala'uun Starport
this Rylothian starport was under the control of the Shak clan. It is located on the terminator line between dark and light sides of the planet, gaining a measure of warmth from its position. However, due to the crosswinds created as the cold air of the dark side mixes with the hot air on the light side, approaches to the starport need to be handled with care. This danger was further compounded by the fact that Kala'uun was dug into the heights of a huge spire of rock. (KT, XWBT)

Kalaan
this planet was subjugated by the Empire during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War. (FC)

Kalab
a planet located near Glova. (POC)

Kalai
a mysterious race of aliens that started building onto Zirtran's Anchor during the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Kalaide
this was a species of small mollusks native to the waters of Harvest Bay, on the planet Cols. They measure no larger than two centimeters across, including their shelled bodies and flagellum. They have a lifespan of just a few months, but reproduce proficiently in stable environments. The kalaides float along and consume a wide variety of bacteria and small algae, in effect cleaning the waters of the planet and making them inhabitable to other species. However, when climatic or environmental changes affect the waterways, birthrates of kalaides drop dramatically, thereby affecting other populations. The government of Cols has placed severe restrictions on the corporations of the planet, forcing them to minimize their chemical wastes in order to preserve the kalaide populations. (COG)

Kalan
this species of tall herbivore was native to the planet Mutanda. Measuring over three meters in height, the fur-covered kalans roamed the plains in large herds in their four legs. These tusked beasts were hunted for food by humans as well as the native Horansi. (PG1)

Kalbrac
a Mon Calamari, Kalbrac was one of the Mon Cal who tried to welcome the Empire to his planet. When the Empire began trying to suppress the natives, Kalbrac tried to fix things himself. He found that the effort was nearly futile, and turned to the Alliance for help. (DU)

Kalduu
this is one of two sentient races native to the planet Ropagi II, although their external appearance would bely that. The Kalduu are large, hemispherical creatures which float above the ground. Four tentacles dangle below their transparent bodies, serving as a means for eating and breathing. They travel in groups of three or less, consuming viruses and germs from the air. The average Kalduu can live to be 500 standard years in age, and they reproduce via fission. The Kalduu have no vocal chords, and have learned to communicate via telepathy. Two or more Kalduu and form a group mind if they are in close proximity. Several millenia before the Galactic Civil War, the Kalduu realized that the warring factions of the Ropagu were eventully going to destroty their planet. The Kalduu intervened in the struggles, making contact and winning the trust of the various Ropagu nations. Since then, the Kalduu have bonded with the minds of the various Ropagu leaders, filling their minds with peaceful thoughts while forming a form of symbiotic relationship. After many centuries of this existence, the Kalduu stopped influencing the minds of the Ropagu, using telepathy only to avoid warfare. Current generations of Kalduu often regret that their ancestors used this form of mind control on the Roapgu, but they also realize the potential danger that was averted. (TSK)

Kaled
one of the three main land masses of the planet Fyodos. (PG2)

Kalen
this Hapan man was Prince Isolder's older brother. He had no competance for ruling the worlds of the Hapan Cluster, a fact that was not missed by his mother, Ta'a Chume. She had him assassinated in order to get him out of the way, so that Isolder could eventually marry the next ruler of the Hapan Cluster. (CTD)

Kalena
this young woman was a member of the Indupar royal house. She was taken prisoner when the Free Lance ambushed her own ship, the Indupar Nova, near Ec Pand. It was revealed that she was posing as her maid, Missa, as the two had switched positions when the pirates attacked. Urias Xhaxin took both women hostage in order to ransom them off later on. (PP)

Kalend Thora
his Duros smuggler worked for Mal Biron, as part of the Narloni crimelord Sprax's operations. Formerly a smuggler for Kintan gunrunners, Kalend Thora had spent the majority of her career in Corellian space before joining Black Sun. Shortly before the Battle of Endor, Kalend was assigned to smuggling along the Sisar Run with her light freighter, the Starknife. During the events which surrounded the destruction of the mining outpost on Yen-2, Kalend recovered the only copy of the Banari List from Limna Yith, only to have it stolen by Ujin Voli. Voli left her to die in Temptation Canyon, but mercenaries hired by Mal Biron rescued her. (SSR)

Kalenda, Belindi
a slight, dark-skinned female human working for the New Republic Intelligence agency, Belindi was noticeable from her jet-black hair and disarming eyes that never seemed to focus on their subject. As a Lieutenant in the NRI, she was assigned to infiltrate the Corellian Sector in 37 NE and try to find out why other NRI agents were suddenly disappearing. She enlisted Han Solo's help in trying to gather more information. Her operation to land on Corellia was compromised, though, and she was forced to crash into the planet's ocean. When she realized that the NRI had been infiltrated, she changed her mission in the field, acting as the unofficial bodyguard for Princess Leia and Solo family until the New Republic security team arrived. She was forced to go further underground when Thrackan Sal-Solo seceeded the Sector from the New Republic. She was 25 years old when Thrackan Sal-Solo rises to power. She was told by her brother, Tindel, that she was a native of an unspecified backwater world in the Outer Rim, but she grew up on Coruscant. After the crisis in the Corellian Sector was resovled, Belindi remained with the NRI, and eventually held the position of deputy director of operations. By the time the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy, Belindi had earned the rank of Colonel within the NRI. She oversaw the initial interviews with the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan on Wayland, but was later implicated in the “misinformation flap” which arose in the wake of the Battle of Fondor. Her team had provided intelligence enough to point to a Yuuzhan Vong invasion of Corellia, Bothawui, or Tynna. After Tynna was attacked, Corellia was left undefended to lure the Vong into a trap. However, The aliens attacked at Fondor instead, and the shipyards there were lost. Belindi became something of a scaepgoat, and was demoted to Lieutenant Colonel. Nevertheless, she remained a valuable agent for the NRI. (AC, AS, CTD, BP)

Kalenda, Tindel
this man, the brother of Belindi Kalenda, was killed on Coruscant while searching for a job. He told his sister that their family was from an Outer Rim backwater world, although they were living on Coruscant at the time. (CTD)

Kallea's Hope
this holo-feature was produced and directed by Neile Janna shortly before the Battle of Yavin. Kallea's Hope translated the famed Kallea Cycle opera into a format which easily understood and accessible to the majority of the galaxy. Many art historians of the New Order credit this holo-feature with creating new interest in the life of Freia Kallea and the opera known as the Kallea Cycle. (SWJ13)

Kallic
this Imperial Navy Captain was given temporary command of the flagship Super Star Destroyer Executor shortly after the Battle of Hoth, when Darth Vader was called to Coruscant by the Emperor. (SESB)

Kallistas
originally part of the Revkinn System, this Outer Rim world was a once a prosperous mining colony. Despite its arid bioshpere, radioactive elements and rare gemstones were found in abundance under the low mountains. After the advent of the New Order, the planet was placed in the center of an ongoing series of raids by Alliance personnel who hoped to take the planet and finance their war efforts. However, the mines fell into disrepair, and the planet's economy sagged. Shortly after the Alliance began its raids, pirates and smugglers started making their bases on the planet, further dragging its economy and reputation down. The average day on this temperate desert planet lasts 22 standard hours, and its year encompasses 342 local days. (GG10)

Kalna
this young Hutt was a member of the Ramesh kajidic when they assassinated a leader of the Black Bha'lir smuggler society. this group of criminals worked in the Xorao System, during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Kaltor Naklian
this Ka'hren was a legend among his own people, primarily for his skills with the rantok blade. He studied, and later taught, at the University of Timb, while bounty hunting sentients as a sideline. His exploits in taking the scalps of Wookiees and other alien races earned him a great deal of respect among his peers, as well as the notice of the weaponsmaster Ther-das. Ther-das asked him to become one of the founding members of the Zulirian Swordmasters, and Kaltor quickly agreed. Kaltor became a major force in the formation of the Swordmasters' policies, while maintaining his religious beliefs. Kaltor was aslo known as the founder and leader of the Ni'shaw-Dak Ministry, and somehow managed to keep both efforts separate. It was Kaltor who discovered preserved copies of the Jydan Writings and the Volumes of Truth, next to which he found a perfectly preserved rantok blade and a series of books documenting the history and use of the religious tomes. Thus, he felt himself to have been chosen as Ni'Shaw's third prophet, and set out to establish the Ni'Shaw-Dak Ministry. (AIR)

Kandar
this Duros served as the pilot and astrogator aboard the pirate vessel Free Lance. (PP)

Kandos Shuttle
a space transport famous for leaving ahead of schedule. (TJP)

Kang and Lubrichs
a musical duo who performed during the middle years of the Old Republic. (TME)

Kanjil Mang
this Ishi Tib was a doctor and anthropologist who studied at the University of Tibrin. Mang did extensive research on the Ugnaught society on Bespin's Cloud City. (GG2)

Kann
a Mugaari cargo ferry destroyed during an Imperial raid on their hidden outpost. (TIE)

Kanno Sebak
this Sullustan was the promary representative of the Guild of Offworlder Skilled Laborers on Esseles during the New Order. It was

Sebak who worked with Hall President Ralle to end the non-Human strikes that crippled Esselian businesses after the terrorist group known as the Faceless began destroying Imperial bases. (SWJ9)

Kanos, Kir
this man was at one time an elite stormtrooper for the Empire. Recognized as one of the most loyal and able warriors of the Empire, he was given a chance to train at the Royal Guard facility on Yinchorr. His chief rival during the training was Carnor Jax, who defeated Alum Frost in combat for the Emperor. Kir also survived the training, after being forced to fight a battle to the death with his friend, Lemmet Tauk. His reward was to be defeated by Darth Vader and the Dark Side of the Force, which earned him a lightsaber scar across his face. He was promoted to serve as one of Emperor Palpatine's Royal Imperial Guards, and he served faithfully until Palpatine was killed at Endor. Like many of the Royal Guard, he remained loyal to the remnants of the Empire, and tried to return to Palpatine's side when his clones were activated on Byss. However, after the clones were killed, Kanos returned to Yinchorr with the other Guards to discuss their next moves. All but Kanos were wiped out by the treacherous Carnor Jax, including Kile Hannad. Kanos suddenly found himself loyal to an Empire with no leader. Worse, he learned that Carnor Jax had assumed control of a portion of the Empire, proclaiming to be a Dark Lord. Kanor went into hiding on Phaeda, and joined the New Republic cell led by Mirith Sinn in order to defeat their common enemies. When Colonel Shev ordered his forces to invade the Republic stronghold and capture Kanos, Sinn's forces were unable to stop the assault. However, Kanos took matters into his own hands nad eliminated Shev's troops, then fled to Yinchorr. He was followed by Jax, Blim, and a squadron of specially-trained, black-armored stormtroopers which he quickly dispatched. He then faced Carnor Jax, alone in The Squall. Kanos was able to gain the upper hand, and when Mirith Sinn and Sish Sadeet dispatched Blim, Kanos was able to breach Jax's defense and drive the blade of his staff through Jax's breastplate. Jax was killed instantly, despite the fact that Mirith wanted him alive for questioning. Sadeet was angry at the loss of Jax, and tried to kill Kanos. Kanos, however, anticipated Sadeet's attack and killed the Trandoshan with a jab of his staff. He then left Yinchorr and went into hiding. He reappeared as the bounty hunter Kenix Kil, and infiltrated Grappa the Hutt's organization. When Mirith was given over to the Zanzibar and taken to Xo, Kanos followed them. He hoped to rescue Mirith, and asked for Kennede's son's help. However, Kanos was captured by the Zanzibar and brought to Genon by Zzzanmxl, who hoped to collect the Imperial bounty on Kanos' head. Mirith managed to free him, along with Feena D'Asta, and they returned to Ord Cantrell to find the Baron D'Asta. In the wake of Xandel Carivus' treacherous schemes, Kanos hunted the self-proclaimed Emperor down and executed him as a traitor to the Empire. Kanos then left them all on Ord Cantrell, to follow his own ideal of the Empire depsite his afffection for Mirith. (CE, CE2)

Kant
primary star in the Kantel System. (SN)

Kanz Disorders
about 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War, the provisional governor of the planet Argazda - Myrial - seceded his planet from the Old Republic and declared the Kanz Sector independent. He then launched into a series of conquests in which a number of planets were placed into slavery, including Lorrd. The outrage from the enslaved worlds met deaf ears in the Old Republic, for it was busy battling the outbreak of Sith magic in the galaxy. The Disorders lasted nearly 300 years before they were resolved by a joint task force of Jedi Knights and Old Republic armed forces. 300 million Lorrdians and 5 billion other beings were killed in the conflicts. (HSR, CSA)

Kanziwck Amphitheatre
an open-air entertainment facility. (RPG)

Kaoln
this Jedi remained hidden during Palpatine’s purge, and then later helped smuggle arms and other valuable goods for the Alliance. Kaoln once employed Nuendo Rash to transport goods from Tatooine, using a cargo of grain to hide the real cargo. (GG6)

Kaph-samekh-nine-cipher-nine-go-daleth this code phrase was used by Etahn A'baht, during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster. It released Task Force Aster to attack the Yevetha at Doornik-319. (SOL)

Kapin Toologin
this self-important Twi'lek was a galactic insurance salesman. It is rumored that he is really a powerful crimelord. One of his favorite vacation spots is the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, where he frequents the Great Mother River Restaurant. (GA)

Kapp Dendo
this small-time shakedown artist was working on Tatooine with Winter, during the New Republic’s search for the Imperial Eidolon Base. He was one of the Alliance's best special operatives, using his wits, slyness, and charisma to get the job done. He was also a great judge of character, and was responsible for recruiting many agents into the Alliance. Dendo was a Devaronian male, and he unknowingly hired Rogue Squadron to blow up some of Huff Darklighter’s buildings. This would allow Winter to infiltrate Darklighter’s safe and steal the data disk containing the location of the base and the weapons hidden there. Firith Olan’s agents got there first, and stole the disk before Winter could stop them. Shortly before the Battle of Brentaal, Dendo was given command of Commando team one. He and his commandos were inserted into the city of Vuultin, on Brentaal, to gather intelligence and plan the ground assault that would augment air strikes. His team rescued Wes Janson and Ibtisam after they were shot down by the 181st Imperial Fighter Group, and used their skills to assist in the ground attack. Later, Kapp Dendo led a group of six Noghri on a mission to infiltrate the planet Ciutric and help Corran Horn free the prisoners Ysanne Isard had held on the Lusankya. (XWBT, XWES, XWMR, HXW, IR)

Kappa
the Imperial transport intercepted by Alliance starfighters as it tried to carry away the Cygnus Spaceworks technical staff. (XW)

Kappa-class Shuttle
this 35-meter shuttle was a personnel transport ship produced during the height of the Old Republic by Republic Sienar Systems. It was originally designed to carry AT-PTs into battle for close support operations, and could carry up to 40 troops into battle. The shuttle's interior was modular, and could be rearranged for various troop needs. In form it was a precursor to the Lambda-class shuttle, but the cockpit was extended away from the main fuselage and the the dorsal wing was not used. The stabilizer wings on the Kappa-class shuttle are much smaller than the Lambda-class has, and are stationary. The standard Kappa-class shuttle was armed with a pair of turret-mounted, double blaster cannons, and a pair of repeating blaster cannons mounted on the nose. After the rise of the Empire, the Kappa-class remained in production, although many users decided to leave off the AT-PTs. The cargo space which held the small walkers was often turned into additiona storage space. (ROE)

Kappela Dynasty
this dynasty was the last of the descendants of Shey Tapani to rule Tapani Sector before the advent of the Tapani Federation. (PGT)

Kar Yang
this Hiitian bounty hunter came to Azool to learn of the whereabouts of Guri, after the human replica droid escaped the destruction of Prince Xizor's skyhook. Yang and his own assistant droid tracked Guri to Murninkam, where she rescued the droid Doc. They followed her trail back to Hurd's Moon, where the assistant droid initiated a plan to kill Yang and take Guri for itself. Kang overhead the conversation between the droid and its employer, and executed the droid shortly after they infiltrated Hurd's Moon. After discovering where Trumble's operating room was, Kang tried to recover Guri on his own. Guri complied, just long enough to catch Yang off-guard and disable him, then she killed him in self-defense. (SEE)

Kara'teel
this woman was the youngest of the daughters born to the Singing Mountain clan's Clan Mother, Augwynne. She died protecting her mother from an attack by the Nightsister leader, Gethzerion. (CTD)

Karadbria
this individual once tried to create a Gamorrean board game. (SWJ10)

Karak
this charismatic, power-hungry Sedrian priest was the bishop of war under Cardo's rulership of Fitsay. However, Karak desired more power than that. He stole a piece of the Golden Sun for his own use, hoping to take control of Fitsay and, eventually, all of Sedri. His chief rival, Cardo, drove Karak and his followers out of Fitsay, but they retained their piece of the Golden Sun. In order to gain popular support, Karak preached that the Golden Sun should be accessible to all Sedrians, in open opposition to Cardo's own stance. After fleeing Fitsay, Karak tried to form an alliance with Commander Aban and the Imperials. Karak hoped to crack the Great Shell Dome and take the Golden Sun for himself. Aban wanted to obtain the power of the Golden Sun for the Empire. His treacherous plans eventually affected the Golden Sun itself, turning it to the Dark Side of the Force. Pek, Fala, and a group of Alliance agents were able to scatter pieces of the Golden Sun from the Great Shell Dome, cutting off Karak's power and leaving him defenseless. He was captured by Pek's forces and imprisoned for his treachery. (BGS)

Karalan
this Krish smuggler worked in the Lexas Systems before joining the Mytaranor Slaving Council. (AIR)

Karap Valley
this fog-shrouded valley was located on the planet Hewl. (AIR)

Karatha
this planet was the site of the Alliance's Eyrie Base. From space, the planet is bathed in a blue-green atmosphere. Much of the planet is dominated by a soft mantle made of limestone, and many sink holes have formed on its surface over the millennia. (SWJ8)

Karazak
this is the primary planet in the Karazak System, located in the Outer Rim Territories. The planet is riddled with caves and tunnels, which are used by the Slaver Syndicate as a base of operations. Along with Zygeria and the Thalassian System, Karazak is one of the Outer Rim's slaving capitals. (GG9)

Karazak Slavers Cooperative
see Karazak Slavers Guild (TFNR)

Karazak Slavers Guild
headquartered on the planet Karazak, this slaving operation maintained a transfer center on Gabredor III, which was led by Greezim Trentacal. Trentacal was hired by the Pentastar Alignment to kidnap the children of the ambassador of Cantras Gola, in an attempt to force PowerOn Conglomeration to remain with the Alignment. The children were rescued - and the transfer center destroyed - by the Red Moons, who were operating in the interests of the New Republic to defeat the Alignment. (TFE)

Karbo Jaxx
this Rodian arms dealer and gunrunner was known to work alone. Few beings knew that Karbo Jaxx wasn't his real name. In fact, Karbo Jaxx was really Nian Lup. Karbo maintained a base of operation behind the waterfall which fed Telega Lake. Karbo worked almost exclusively in the Outer Rim. Karbo dealt often with the Alliance, and never betrayed them despite having no specific allegiance to the Alliance. He just recognized that the Alliance was a needy client which could afford his prices. (HAS)

Karbonni Asteroid Belt
this asteroid belt is located in the Pax System. It was here that one of the two ships carrying gems from the Klatooinan Trade Guild, in payment for the rights to trade on Plagen, was lost. To this day, explorers of every kind seek the ship, called the Fool's Gold, hoping to obtain fantastic wealth. (TSK)

Karda, Abal
Karda was, at one time, an Imperial Colonel. Boba Fett took on the assignment to track this man down, after he was declared an enemy of the Empire, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. A balding man with a cybernetic replacement for his left eye, Karda had been ordered by his superior, General Nim, to wipe out the Icarii. Karda destroyed the Icarii by poisoning the entire tribe. Selestrine, queen of the Icarii, was captured by Karda and forced into slavery. Karda believed that he could use her ability to foresee the future to his advantage, but Selestrine took the same poison that killed her tribe. In anger, Karda beheaded her before the poison could spread, and then stolen the disembodied head after medics encased it in a life-sustaining casket sheathed in kneeb hide. Selestrine then predicted that Karda's superior, General Nim, would be killed, and Karda could move up to take his place. General Nim came to Karda to congratulate him, and also revealed that Darth Vader himself knew about Seletrine's disembodied head. Karda grew scared and jealous of this knowledge, and shot Nim and his forces dead on the spot, thereby fulfilling Selestrin'es prophecy. Karda fled the Empire, assuming the guise of a Vestaari nomad in order to escape notice and travel to Star Station 12, then assumed the guise of a Duhman traveller in order to avoid being captured for the bounty placed on his head. Karda then traveled to Star Station 9, hoping to throw off any pursuit before fleeing to the planet Maryx Minor, where he hid himself among the Ancient Order of the Pessimists. Karda grew more and more delusional, and even killed one of the priests there when he believed the young man was a bounty hunter. He killed another when their funeral dirge for brother Mabob was too loud. However, Karda's disguises and hiding places couldn't prevent Boba Fett from finding him. In the end, Karda was shot and killed by Fett on Maryx Minor. (EOE)

Kardue'sai'Malloc
this Devish from the Kardue family was the third to bear that name and the sixteenth in a line of devoted Army supporters. He was also the last, for when the Empire ordered him to execute over 700 Devaronian supporters of the Alliance, he balked at military life. He fled Devaron, and ended up on Tatooine. There, he went by the name of Labria, where he is known as Mos Eisley's mascot drunkard. He tries to make a living as an information broker, but his constant state of inebriation nets him little in the way of valuable data. He is known to a few by the alias Airbal (Labria spelled backwards), which is the name his is using to save money in a Tatooine bank. He hopes one day to make it big and get off the desert world. In the meantime, he pursued the best the galaxy has to offer for music, despite Imperial restrictions on performers in general. He has an extensive (complete, in his estimation) collection of the galaxy's music hidden in his Mos Eisley residence. When Garindan told him that Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes were playing for Jabba, he became obsessed with seeing them. Knowing that Jabba didn't like him and wouldn't let him in, Kardue'sai'Malloc arranged for Valarian to dump the Max Rebo Band and hire the Nodes away from Jabba. At the same time, he tipped Jabba off to Valarian's transgression. In the resulting melee, he asked Wuher to offer the Nodes a chance to lay low, in exchange for playing at the Mos Eisley cantina for basically nothing. Thus, Kardue'sai'Malloc - Labria to his Mos Eisley friends - was present in the Mos Eisley cantina when Obi-Wan and Luke approach Han Solo for passage to the Alderaan system. Larbia eventually won most of the Nodes' musical instruments playing sabacc with Figrin. He used his ability to see infrared light to cheat Figrin, failing only to obtain Doikk Na'ts's Fizzz. Kardue was eventually captured, some fifteen years after the Battle of Hoth. Kardue had been spotted on Tatooine, following the deaths of four mercenaries who were trying to kill him. Boba Fett tracked him to Peppel, somehow finding him by tracking sales of Merenzane Gold. Fett incapacitated Kardue, and brought him back to Devaron for sentencing. Before being turned over to the authorities, Kardue made Fett promise that his music collection would be recovered and saved for posterity. As per Devaronian law, Kardue was executed by a pack of quarra for his crimes. (SW, SCRE, TME, TBH)

Karduran Acrobats
these acrobats are known throughout the galaxy for their trapeze-like acts. (TCC)

Kareas Brandy
this distillation was favored by General Hestiv. (SOP)

Karedda
this planet is the third world in the Kessel System, and is too far removed from the inner two and the star, Kessa, to received much sunlight. Thus, Karedda is a frozen wasteland. Its orbit has been decaying, due to its proximity to the Maw during part of its orbital path, and will probably be swallowed by the black holes. (JASB)

Karell, Dunston
this man was a member of the Alliance's Gray Griffins, and served as the pilot of the Whisper. (OE)

Karena
a Jedi scholar from the Old Republic, who first used the term praxeum to describe the distillation of learning combined with action. (DA)

Karfeddion
a planet in the Senex Sector, it is known for its slave farms. (COJ)

Karflian Nestling
this northern area of the city of Xakrea, on Darkknell, was inhabited by members of the fringe and the lower classes. (TFNR)

Karflo Corporation
this conglomerate has subsidairy businesses in heavy mining, manufacturing, xenobiotechnology, colonial exploration, and research. Karflo was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. Under the rule of Emperor Palpatine and the New Order, Karflo became a major manufacturer of hyperdrive components, and often exploited low-tech worlds in order to rape them of natural resources. This practice was curtailed by the New Republic, in an effort to allow these worlds to decide for themselves how best to use their natural resources. (CSA, GG8)

Karflo
an Alliance freighter group that was part of a convoy trying to supply Admiral Harkov's defecting fleet. The convoy, and the Karflo group, were destroyed in an Imperial ambush. (TIE)

Kargin
this man held the rank of General within the Hawk-bat Independent Space Force pirate command structure. In reality, Kargin was Garik Loran. (IF)

Kari
this is the sole sentient species is native to the planet Karideph. The Kari are small insectoids, with black exskeletons covering most of their bodies. They walk on two powerful legs, with two small arm-like appendages used to manipulate objects. Due to the huge, city-like structures which dominate the surface of the planet, many Kari live in a vast system of underground tunnels, and have never seen the light of the planet's primary star. Much of their effort is spent growing food, as the population of Karideph is nearly 100 billion Kari. The Kari are also adept at creating small appliances and machines, which they export in exchange for food. The basic societal element of the Kari is the Hatch, which describes a family of 20 to 30 individuals. It is the Hatches, not the Kari themselves, that form the individual personalities of Karideph, as the Kari have a true hive society. As a whole, the Kari have limited intelligence, but they have developed a system of songs that maintain histories and lessons from generation to generation. Bards were among the most important of the Kari, and each Hatch had at least one singer to preserve their history and to communicate with other Hatches. The Empire banned the Kari from participating in - or even developing - space travel, fearing that their impressive birthrate would allow the Kari to quickly overrun human society. (GG6, AE)

Karia Ver Seryan
this female was Lando Calrissian's third choice as a rich wife, at the time he was trying to fund Domeworld. Unknown to him, she is a life witch on Leria Kerlsil. She is a strikingly beautiful, albeit 312-year-old, woman, with a tall, slender figure and deep purple eyes. She also has long, golden hair. She lives in a large mansion on Leria Kerlsil, but it is located in a deserted part of town. This is probably due to the knowledge that she is a life witch. The ostentacious gardening and landscaping givens the masion the feeling of a well-fortified castle. She is proud to have had 49 husbands during her lifetime, since she believes that she has given them all the gift of five added years. She made it onto Lando's list because she was married to an old acquaintence of Landos, Chanto Solk. Solk died after the five years Karia Supported him, and it was about five years after that time when Lando met Karia. Karia was the heiress to Solk's starship sales fortune. Lando visits her first, and is taken with her beauty as well as her fortunes. Fortunately, C-3PO and R2-D2 interrupt the marriage ceremony before Lando entered into the blood kiss. (AC, CTD)

Karideph
this planet is one of the most overpopulated places in the galaxy. Like Coruscant, Karideph's surface is dominated by cities, with any space not given over to buildings being consumed with endless tiers of well-groomed gardens. There is no longer any wilderness or wildlife on Karideph. Even the mountains and seas have been turned into terraced and manicured plots. Much of the planet's industry is geared toward the production of food for its incomprehensible numbers; foodstuffs also top the list of items imported to the planet. The planet’s native sentient race, the Kari, supported the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War, although they were prone to any attack which left them without a constant source of food. Karideph is located in the Minos Cluster. Its temperate climate once allowed the operation of farms. Its day lasts approximately 19 standard hours, and its year lasts 204 local days. (GG6)

Karin
this Baron was a native of the planet Yarrv, and ruled the Darpheon city-state during the Galactic Civil War. Karin was militaristic agitator who hoped to become King of Yarrv and subjugate the nearby planet of Steelious. A war with Steelious would require heavy investment in war materiel, and Karin's city-state was heavily involved with military manufacturing. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, an Alliance protocol droid containing vital information on the Alliance's activities in the sector was damaged on Yarrv, and found employment in Karin's estate as a butler. Alliance agents were forced to infiltrate the Baron's estate and recover the droid. (WS)

Karinne
a Corvette operated by the Twi'Leks during the Galactic Civil War. It was attacked by the Star Destroyer Avenger while on a diplomatic mission to the Alliance. The Twi'Leks, at that time, were a neutral party in the war. The Corvette was rescued by a squadron of Alliance starfighters who drove off the Avenger. (XW)

Kariish
one of seven major Kentran cities on Orellon II, Kariish was ruled by King Jerius. (SWAJ)

Karka
an Alliance starfighter pilot who was killed in the offensive against Operation Strike Fear near Briggia. (XW)

Karka Kre'fey
this creamy-white-furred Bothan was the grandson of Laryn Kre'fey, and was a friend of Liska Dan'kre. He physically assaulted Gavin Darklighter at a gathering at Liska's home on Coruscant, claiming that Laryn's death besmirched the family honor. Gavin refused to be goaded by the large Bothan, and declined the challenge Kre'fey issued. (KT)

Karkak'k
this Gree is credited with the creation of the Karkak'k Marek device. (SWJ8)

Karkak'k Marek
this sensor-like device was created by the Gree Karkak'k, and is used to protect the huge starship known as the Rokak'k Baran. (SWJ8)

Karkan Ribenes
this rack of meaty ribs is often served seasoned with tomo spice. (SOP)

Karkas
this huge man was easily distinguished by his smashed-in face, one crushed eye, and muscular physique. He was one of the most wanted criminals in the galaxy during the Galactic Civil War, with a death sentence in over two dozen systems. He was wanted by the Empire, the Alliance, and even Black Sun for committing over 90 murders. Each time he murdered, Karkas carved the letter 'K' in his victim's forehead. Part of the time, Karkas was working for Jabba the Hutt. Karkas had agreed to submit to the B'omarr monk brain removal operation, which would allow Karkas' brain to be placed into another person's body, allowing Karkas to continue his criminal actions. However, Zak Arranda allowed the prisoner Jabba had held for Karkas' brain to escape, so Jabba transferred Karkas' brain to Zak's sister, Tash. They had plans to transfer Karkas' brain into the Shi'ido body of Hoole, but Hoole and Zak foiled their plans. (GOF7)

Karl, Anet
this Doctor served as part of Urias Xhaxin's pirate crew, during their runs in Imperial space. She was aboard the Free Lance when it was attacked by a Yuuzhan Vong warship near Bastion. (DTO)

Karl, Terri
this Alliance cell organizer was based on the planet Lianna during the later years of the Galactic Civil War. Her cover was that of a socialite who was too flightly to be considered useful or reliable. This young, blonde woman was the daughter of a noble, Old Republic family. (ML)

Karlo
this Twi'lek worked for Alfreda Goot. Karlo was guarding the entrance to the Dockside Cafe when Han Solo and Captain Sodarra arrived to recover Leia Organa. Karlo and his men fled the cafe when they discovered Sodarra was accompanied by a squadron of stormtroopers, leaving Alfreda Goot alone. (SL)

Karlon
this Aqualish was responsible for the upbringing of his siblings on Ando, after the deaths of their parents. He later joined the Alliance, and became good friends with the Carosite Tamo Lan. However, Karlon was killed by Imperial forces on Bresnia. Tamo Lan agreed to look after Karlon's younger sister, Gondara. (SWJ10)

Karmida
this Old Tarmidian word translates to "Admiral." (VOF)

Karmova Drum
this musical instrument was a round, domed, drum. (IWE1)

Karn
this man was Tallov Kersk's brother-in-law, and was one of the first colonists of the Brentaal League to settle on Muzara. (TOJC)

Karnak Alpha
this planet was home to a race of fur-covered creatures known simply as Karnak Alphans in Basic. (LO)

Karnak Alphan
this alien race is native to Karnak Alpha. They have humanoid dimensions, but were covered completely in fur. The Karnak Alphans held their children in a position of importance far above other races, for they valued their families and descendants greatly. They also have a great reverence for unusual zoological species, and have created unique, contained environments for their specimens. (LO)

Karnst
this planet, the primary world in the Karnst System, was located in the Karstaxon Regions, between Pirik and Talir. (SSR)

Karolistan
this is one of two moons orbitting Kerest which were colonied by the Kerestians. (GG12)

Karr
this Imperial Lieutenant served under Administrator Brago, after Brago replaced Fuguee at the Kline Colony outpost. (SWJ10)

Karra
this planet is an intensely warm world covered with grassy plateaus and thick jungle canyons. Much of the indigenous life on Karra is insectoid, and the native Karrans have evolved into primitive insectivores. A group of settlers, funded by the Mineral Assets Partnership, tried to establish a varmigio mine on the planet, but the mines were dry and provided no ore. The settlement was abandoned until the Empire tried to rejuvenate the mines. They met with the same result, and again the mines were abandoned. The mines were eventually destroyed by dense swarms of insects, presumably controlled by the Karrans. The average day on Karra lasted 20 standard hours, and its year took up 304 local days. (SWJ1)

Karran
this race of large, fur-covered creatures evolved on the planet Karra. Their bodies were roughly cone-shaped, with their long snouts at the apex and their round hindquarters at the base. By the era of the New Order, they had developed the use of tools, but their long fingers and the lack of an opposable thumb limited their dexterity. The Karrans subsist on the various insect species on the planet, and have a primitive culture. They have recently developed a form of hive mind, and seem to be able to control certain species of insects. The primary evidence of this control is the destruction of two failed varmigio mines on Karra, which were destroyed by huge swarms of insects which were seemingly operating at the will of the Karrans. (SWJ1, AE)

Karran Beetle
this species of huge insect was native to the planet Karra. They used their large mandibles as weapons, and could do great damage to living flesh. The Karrans themselves learned how to control the beetles, and used them in battle against their enemies. (SWJ1)

Karran Mantis
this species of huge insect was native to the planet Karra. Imperial forces which tried to establish a base on the planet discovered that this species of mantis was nearly as large as an AT-AT walker. The Karrans themselves learned how to control the mantises, and used them in battle against their enemies. At the height of the Galactic Civil War, there was only one surviving specimen of Karran Mantis, kept alive by the careful tending of the Karrans. (SWJ1)

Karrde, Talon
a smuggler and information broker, Karrde learned the ropes of smuggling from Billey. It was during this period that Karrde discovered the whereabouts of the Katana fleet by accident, when a botched operation left his crew's ship in an uncharted area of space. After leaving Billey's operation, Karrde became one of Jorj Car'das' most trusted lieutenants. When Car'das suddenly disappeared about five years before the Battle of Endor, Karrde stepped in and took control of the operation. He quickly solidifed his power base, surviving seven different assassination attempts, four of which seemed to have Car'das behind them. Karrde commanded a group of highly-skilled thieves and mercenaries from his starship, the Wild Karrde. He more or less took control of most of the galaxy's smuggling after Jabba the Hutt's demise, although it was not a position he desired. He surrounded himself with the best people he could hire, including Mara Jade and the young slicer Ghent. During the time when Grand Admiral Thrawn returned from the Unknown Regions to harry the New Republic, Karrde found himself in the midst of the struggle when he intercepted Luke Skywalker in an empty section of space. He then hosted Han Solo and Lando Calrissian at his base on Myrkr, but forced to abandon the base when Imperial forces raided it. Karrde continued to assist the New Republic from a distance, and was instrumental in the recovery of a crystal gravfield trap receptor for the Republic. He was later instrumental in the formation of the Smuggler's Alliance. During the Caamas Incident, Karrde decided that it was time to search out Car'das, if not for his own personal reasons then to recover a copy on the Caamas Document. While Car'das did not have a copy of the Document, he did have complete history records of Moff Disra, Grodin Tierce, and Flim, which Karrde, with the help of Shada D'ukal, managed to return to Admiral Pellaeon aboard the Chimaera. Once Disra was brought to trial, Karrde's actions allowed the Republic and the remnants of the Empire to initiate a peace treaty. Ever the opportunist, Karrde proposed that he be allowed to set up an Intelligence agency that provided the same information to both the Empire and the New Republic. That way, there could be no secrets between them, especially if Karrde's agency remained neutral. Both sides agreed to the proposal. For a while, Karrde himself served as the primary liaison between the Republic and the Imperial Remnant. (HTTE, DFR, TLC, SOP, VOF, JE)

Karre, Debin
this modest-seeming, middle-aged man wanted to join the Imperial military as a young man, but a childhood accident left him with a decided limp. Despite this setback, Karre believed that the New Order was the best government for the galaxy, and joined the Empire as an Imperial morale officer. (HR)

Karreio
Crix Madine's former fiancee, Karreio was a supporter of the New Order, but she was oblivious to the Empire's atrocities. She died on Coruscant when the New Republic first reclaimed the planet from the Empire. (DS)

Karren
this city, located on the planet Antiquity, was the site of one of the planet's two spaceports. It was essentially a larger version of the city of Lis'an, some 25 minutes away. It was the nominal capital of Antiquity. (POC)

Karryntora
one of the main Wookiree tree-cities of the planet Kashyyyk. (TT)

Karsk, Amil
this Alliance fighter pilot was a rival of Biggs Darklighter. On a mission against a large number of TIE Fighters, Biggs recorded five kills and should have been named ace, while Karsk recorded four. Karsk later claimed to have made the kill Biggs' claimed was his third. Biggs let him have it, and to let Karsk know that he knew about the deception, any time Biggs obtained five of anything, he gave Karsk the third. During a series of five scheduled patrols Biggs was to fly, he gave Karsk the third. This mission was a simple escort mission to Alderaan. However, while on layover on Alderaan, Karsk was killed when the Death Star destroyed Alderaan. (XWN)

Karstaxon Region

Kasarax
one of the Swimming People of Dellalt, he is Shazeen's nephew. He is the Top Bull in the lake near J'uoch's mining camp when Han Solo, Chewbacca, Badure, and Hasti arrive on Dellalt, after having bested his uncle in combat. He has since gained a lot of power over the humans who use the lake, as well as the other sauropteroids, charging exorbitant prices for transport while harshly discouraging other Swimmers from operating on the lake. When Han asks for transport, Kasarax demands 40 driit each. This enrages Shazeen, who asks for no payment for transport. This leads to a race and, eventually, physical combat between the two. Kasarax is bested by Shazeen in this second battle, and is forced out of power. (HSL)

Kasey

Kashyyyk
this jungle planet, known for its deadly flora and fauna, is the Wookiee home world, although there are legends that say the Wookiees settled Kashyyyk after travelling from another planet. There are four main continents on the planet, separated by bands of ocean studded with archipelagoes. There is a small region of desert near the equator. The Wookiees live in huge tree cities built to elevate them from the dangerous lower levels of the jungle. The Wookies discovered that the jungle had seven distinct levels, each defined by the amount of light it receives. The lower levels – designated first, second, and third - have plants which are phosphorescent, providing their own light. Wookiees never traveled below the fourth level. The normal Kashyyyk rotational period lasts about 26 standard hours; its year lasts 381 local days. It is located in the Sumitra Sector, and has three moons. (SW, HTTE, HTSB, REB, DK, RD)

Kast, Jodo
the bounty hunter wore Mandlorian shocktrooper armor, similar to that worn by Boba Fett, although it is unknown if his armor is as modified. Known as a ruthless and cunning bounty hunter, Jodo Kast patterned his own life after Boba Fett, and often let his quarry assume he was the famous bounty hunter. He often got jobs for his resemblance to Fett, when the party posting the bounty wanted Fett's reputation but couldn't afford it. It was Kast who pursued Ponda Baba through Truuzdann. He later teamed up with Puggles Trodd and Zardra when he was approached by Captain Parlan to hunt down Adar Tallon. When Kast took a New Republic bounty to hunt down Jerresk's pirates, he came under the notice of Dengar, who relayed the hunter's impersonation of Boba Fett to Fett himself. Fett, using the alias Sava Brec Madak, hired Kast to hunt down the ficticious Satnik Hiicrop. Hiicrop was none other than Boba Fett, who managed to capture Kast on Nal Hutta some five years after the Battle of Yavin. Fett injected Kast with a neural toxin to disable him, then blew up the building Kast was lying in. (TM, SCRE, EGC, TOD)

Katana
lead Dreadnaught in the Katana Fleet. (DFR)

Katana* Fleet
this fleet of 200 Dreadnaught-class Heavy Cruisers was commissioned by the Old Republic, during a period where such an expense was incredibly unjustified. However, the plan was approved based on the fact that they were fitted with full-rig slave circuitry to cut down on the huge crew size; only about 2,000 crewmen would be needed. Called "The Dark Force" due to their dark coloration and/or lack of interior lighting, they were lost on their maiden voyage when a hive virus invaded the crew. The dying crew tried to slave all the ships together, but the command crew was by this time also insane, and they blind-jumped into hyperspace and disappeared. Decades later, the rumors of the Dark Fleet were proved factual, when the location of the ships was discovered by Talon Kaarde. His information was given to the New Republic, but also stolen by Grand Admiral Thrawn. Thrawn's forces managed to get to the fleet just before the Republic, but both sides managed to secure parts of the fleet. (DFR)

Katarn
a predatory creature native to the planet Kashyyyk, the katarn is a sleek quadriped with a thin, rodent-like tail and prehensile claws on their hands. The head of a katarn is crowned by a bony ridge that flares backward from the face, which serves to protect the neck of the beast. (HTTE, TTSB)

Katarn, Kyle
Kyle Katarn was born to a farming family on Sulon, and was raised with the ideals of hard work and perseverence. When he was old enough, he enrolled in the Academy for two reasons. First, it would allow him to pursue his own military interests. Second, he felt that it would help his father gain prosperity and recognition. While he was at the Academy, Kyle's family - and all of Sulon - were destroyed in an Imperial invasion. The Empire's agents at the Academy blamed the attack on the Alliance, spreading the seeds of hatred for the Alliance. They failed to cultivate them, though, when they denied Kyle funeral leave. Thus, he grew to hate the Empire equally.

As the Empire became more crystallized, Kyle became more and more frustrated with his service to it. When he encountered the captive Jan Ors, she persuaded him to help her escape. The persuasion came at a time when Kyle was most disheartened, and so he freed her and took up the life of a mercenary. He worked for anyone who would pay him, since he had no love for the Empire or the Alliance. However, Jan Ors petitioned Mon Mothma to seek out and hire Kyle Katarn, for she recognized in him the potential ally he could be. Mon Mothma agreed. His first mission was part of Operation Skyhook. He was asked to single-handedly infiltrate the secret Imperial base on Danuta and steal the plans to the original Death Star. He succeeded, escaping the base and turning the plans over to the Alliance. He stayed with the Alliance, and was the agent responsible for obtaining early clues to the Empire's Darktrooper development program. Katarn, again working alone, discovered the location of several manufacturing facilities and the main Darktrooper base - the Arc Hammer - and was able to defeat Rom Mohc in one-on-one combat to halt the Darktrooper development and destroy the Arc Hammer. When Katarn returned from these missions, he was asked to train a group of crack Alliance commandos for undercover missions such as Operation Skyhook. Kyle agreed, and quickly formed a tight-knit group of agents. When Kyle retired from service, one of the commandos - Lieutenant Page - took over as the leader of the commando squad. Sometime afterward, Kyle was visited by the spirit of Rahn, and told of the Jedi heritage of his father. Many years before, Kyle's father had helped a Jedi Master close of the Valley of the Souls. When the Dark Jedi Jerec tried to enter the Valley, Rahn managed to penetrate the physical world and enlist Kyle's help in defeating Jerec and his minions. (DF, SWSB, DA, DF2)

Katarn, Morgan
this native of Sulon was Kyle Katarn's father. He was also quite sensitive to the Force, but was untrained. Morgan retired at about the time Kyle enrolled in the Academy. Shortly afterward, the Empire subjugated Sulon. Morgan couldn't sit back and watch his world destroyed, so he joined the Alliance. During the evacuation of his friends and his assisting the Alliance, Morgan learned of the location of the Valley of the Jedi. He used many tricks to hide the location of the Valley from evil eyes, including creating a map to its planet in the ceiling tiles of his house. He told his good friend Qu Rahn about his discovery, for Rahn was also searching for its location. Rahn recognized the strength of the Force in Morgan, and realized that Kyle would eventually become a Jedi. Rahn entrusted his lightsaber to Morgan to give to Kyle, so that he could locate the Valley and protect it from Dark Jedi. After Rahn's death at Jerec's hands, Jerec who travelled to Sulon and killed Morgan and stole the tiles. (DF2)

Katarn Commandos
the crack squadron of guerilla warriors who were teamed with the former mercenary Kyle Katarn during the early days of the Galactic Civil War. When Katarn retired from active duty, Page rose from the ranks to become the leader of the group. Their name changed to Page's Commandos, but their expertise didn't change. Their insignia was formed from the seal of the New Republic, with a stylized katarn beast leaping across and in front of it. (DF, DFRSB, TTSB)

Katarn*-class Boarding Shuttle
this Rendili StarDrive shuttle was designed with a nose-end airlock. The shuttle was structurally enhanced so that it could ram into a target ship. Once the target was hulled, plasma torches mounted around the airlock would open a hole, and the airlock would seal around it. Assault troops could then board the target ship through the airlock and begin their take-over. This all could be accomplished in less than two minutes. The Katarn-class shuttle was armed with a single, front-mounted double laser cannon, and measured 28 meters in length. It could transport up to 50 troops and 500 kilograms of equipment, and required a crew of three. (ROE)

Katarra
this young, female Wookiee led the underground resistance which sprang up after the Empire subjugated Kashyyyk and began taking Wookiees as slaves. She organized Wookiees in the city of Rwookrrorro and its environs. Like her father, Tarkazza, Katarra was a striped Wookiee distinguished by her brown fur and tan stripe. (RD)

Katchni
a creature without any sense of reason or control. (VOF)

Kateel
this young woman a member of the Kuhlvult family of Kuat, and sister to Kodir. However, when Kateel threatened to expose her sister's plans to take control of Kuat Drive Yards, Kodir had Kateel kidnapped and then had her memory erased. From that point on, the only name Kateel knew for herself was Neelah, the only way she could pronounce her name as an infant. (SLS)

Kath
a reptilian, alien race. (AIR)

Katharsis
about twelve years before the Battle of Naboo, this form of entertainment became overwhlemingly popular on the planet Telos. Ostensibly a lottery mixed with betting on the outcome of several physical challenges, Katharsis allowed every native of Telos the chance to become incredibly wealthy with each round of play. Telosians gathered in huge domes scattered across the planet, where live coverage of the events was piped onto huge screens, while realtime updates on odds were posted on smaller terminals In the opening phase, all Telosians bet on the outcome of short battles and challenges to the players. The payouts were good, but only led up to the main event in which three natives were allowed to bet on the outcome of the final event. The winner, if they bet properly, won a huge award. All proceeds from Katharsis, which was managed by the corporation UniFy, were said to go directly into a fund which helped preserve the natural beauty of Telos. In reality, Katharsis was simplyu a way for the former Jedi Knight Xanatos to obtain a steady income of credits to fund his illegal mining operations. After Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi exposed Xanatos' plans, Katharsis was outlawed on Telos. (DOR)

Katharsis Day
during Xanatos' rise ot power, these were holiday-like periods when the game Katharsis was played. The entire planet virtually stopped moving, and citizens all over the planet flocked to the domed gaming chambers for their chance to win a fortune. (DOR)

Kathis, Dav
this man was an Imperial Navy officer who retired when his hitch was up. He and his wife, Leanna Carella, decided to settle down and have a family. After the birth of their son, Dav suddenly disappeared under mysterious circumstances. It was later discovered that Dav had been captured by COMPNOR agents who suspected him of selling information to the Alliance. Kathis maintained that he had done nothing wrong, and remained loyal to the Empire. (SS)

Kathol Outback
a wild area of space located in Kathol Sector, across the Marcol Void from more populated areas. Much of the Outback is unexplored, although there are several small settlements maintained by colonists, refugees, criminals, and religious cults. Most of the settlements were unaware of the events in the rest of the galaxy, and there were several colonies which had never heard of any government but the Old Republic. (SOP, KO)

Kathol Republic
this collection of ten star systems found in the Kathol Outback was created by a group of renegade politicians who saw that the Old Republic was crumbling and chose to set up their own government. They settled on fourteen worlds, twelve of which required some terraforming in order to be habitable. In order to ensure that all members worlds would be adequately defended in case of attack, all member worlds maintain a mutual defense pact. The seat of the Republic's government is located on the moon Dayark. Each member planet of the Republic elects eleven senators to represent them in the Republic's government, regardless of the individual populations. One senator from each planet is nominated for the position of president of the Republic, and this position is then voted on by all the worlds. (KO)

Kathol Rift
this collection of young suns and nebulous gas clouds forms the boundary of the Kathol Outback, along with the Marcol Void. No one has been able to navigate through the Rift and return, although it is rumored that the Aing-Tii monks use the Rift as a way to hide their worlds. (KO)

Kathol Sector
this is a remote section of the galaxy which was overtaken by Moff Sarne shortly after the Battle of Endor. The Empire had held the sector during the later years of the New Order, but Sarne was unable to take control of more than a quarter the entire sector. The Imperial capital of the sector was Kal-Shebbol. Much of the sector is uncharted, especially the Kathol Outback and the Kathol Rift. (GG2, DARK)

Kathol Tyranny
this was the name used by Sho'ban Do to describe his political stance and his vision of the Kathol Republic under his rule. (KO)

Katsu Line

Kattellyn
this yellow star is at the center of the Kattellyn system. (PG2)

Katth, Zasm
one of the Emperor Palpatine's Dark Side Elite, Katth was activated by Operation Shadow Hand. Sedriss commissioned Katth and Baddon Fass to perform a number of activities on Nar Shaddaa. First, they were to enlist the aid of Boba Fett in tracking down the Millennium Falcon. Second, they were to hunt down and destroy Vima-Da-Boda. Third, they were to report on the Falcon's whereabouts so that Sedriss could capture it. Katth and Fass, both grizzled veterans of Palpatine's rule, failed on all counts, as Boba Fett escaped them, and they were both unable to capture the Falcon. Katth perished aboard his Star Destroyer Invincible when it mistakenly locked onto Nar Shaddaa's control tower with its tractor beam. The collision destroyed the capital ship and all its crew. (DE2)

Katunda

Kavafi
this man was a friend of Mammon Hoole, a relationship dating back to the time when Hoole worked as a scientist for the Empire. Kavafi was one of the scientists working in the Imperial Biological Welfare Division. After retiring from Imperial service, Kavafi then took the reins of the Mah Dala Infirmary on Gobindi. While on Gobindi, Kavafi was captured by Imperial agents and imprisoned in one of the ancient ziggurats, while a Shi'ido loyal to the Empire was put in his place. The Shi'ido then conducted experiments on the Gobindi Virus, hoping to use it as a weapon for the Empire. Some weeks later, Mammon Hoole arrived on Gobindi to enlist Kavafi's help in curing Zak Arranda, but discovered the Shi'ido in Kavafi's place. The false Kavafi was exposed and the real doctor freed, and Hoole was able to halt the futher development of the Gobindi Virus. (GOF3)

Kavil
this pirate sought to gain favor with the Empire by throwing his support to Leonia Tavira, after Tavira fled Eiattu. He was a hulking, brute of a man with stringy clumps of red hair and a myraid of scar tissue covering his face and body. Shortly before Sate Pestage was executed by Ysanne Isard, Kavil was working as a double agent, supplying Pestage with information on Tavira's actions. Kavil brought news of the mission to Eiattu which captured Leia, but Pestage knew that the actual Leia had been on Axxila at the time. (XWM)

Kavil's Corsairs
one of several pirate groups operating under the Blazing Claw sigil, this pirate group recruited Leonia Tavira after she fled Eiattu. (HXW)

Kavila
this was the only true continent found on the damp, watery world of Dalos IV. Covered with jungles, Kavila's population was primarily alien, with just a few pockets of human occupation. Much of the architecture on the continent was old-fashioned in style, but there was no lack of modern conveniences. (ND)

Kavos, Adriav
this starship captain owned the freighter Isilia. He was known as a moderate success, never really breaking through into the "big leagues" of smuggling. Kavos and his crew once tried to sell a datadisk containing vital information on the Alliance to the highest bidder, but his ship was forced down on the planet Joralla. There, a team of Alliance agents enlisted the help of the Tikiarri in recovering the disk. (PG1)

Kavsrach

Kaydiss
this mosgoth, native to Togoria, was provided to a young Han Solo for use in training to ride the great beasts. The Togorian Rrowv taught Han to fly, and Kaydiss was a willing and able mount. Han once took Bria Tharen for a ride on Kaydiss. (TPS)

Kaylo NaKuda
this Herglic owned Kuda's Compound, a speederbike and swoop sales and service facility adjacent to The Pits, on Stend VI. He was known for his fair, albeit high, prices and excellent customer service, and most of his customers come back again for new service. Kaylo also handled the day-to-day operations of The Pits, since Pinnix was usually off on mysterious personal business. Kaylo was a long-time friend of Yin Vocta, and loved to find ways to use Vector Technologies devices in his work. Despite his fair prices and apparently slim margins, Kaylo stills turned a hefty profit. What was unknown to most beings was that Kaylo was using slave labor to perform most of the work, and he was obtaining stolen parts from the Razers swoop gang in return for other favors. (WSV)

Kaylon
this gas is often used in fluorescent-style lighting. (TA)

Kayson

Kazak
this Ewok elder served on the council headed by Chief Chirpa. Kazak was an excellent scout, and studied the movements of the Imperials garrisoned on the forest moon of Endor during the construction of the second Death Star. His efforts were invaluable to Han Solo's assault team. (CCG10)

Kazellis Corporation
manufacturers of freighters and other large starships, Kazellis was based in Kathol Sector. As their designs became more popular, Kazellis began advertising and selling on Kal'Shebbol and Eriadu, where they met with stern opposition from the Empire. As Moff Kentor Sarne grew in power, he demanded that Kazellis supply him with ships at a huge discount. Kazellis refused, not knowing the full power behind the Empire. In short order, Kazellis was nationalized by the Empire, and its entire management chain was executed or imprisoned. (SS)

Kazellis Light Freighter developed by Kazellis Corporation, this transport ship measured 28 meters in length, and was armed with a turret-mounted quad laser cannon. The ship found a following among the spacers who plied the Rimma Trade Route, and Kazellis expanded its operations to meet the demand. The light freighter design required a pilot and gunner to operate, and could transport up to eight passengers and 100 metric tons of cargo. Its semi-circular design gave it an organic look and feel, making it visually different than most other transports available during the early years of the New Order. (SS)

Kazlin 5

this is the designation of one of Taim & Bak’s starship light blaster cannons. They can be mounted in retractable turrets for easy deployment against ground troops. (SWJ9)

Kdak
this ancient beast was found in the Colla-Di caverns of Arda-2. It was a huge, slug-like creature who mouth was ringed by several thick tendrils. These tendrils could be used as feelers, but could also grip prey and drag it into its beaked mouth. Located above their mouths, the kdak have nine eyes. The kdak exudes a strange-smelling slime as it travels. (CSWEA)

Ke Daiv
this Blood Carver was part of a well-known political family, but was exiled from his family for killing his childhood friend during a hunting expedition. Adopted as an orphan, Ke Daiv learned that his benefactor's son was prophecied to die in battle. The son was kept away from any form of combat. However, the youth still had to kill a wild feragriff to prove his adulthood, so they were sent to a preserve on one of Coruscant's moons to kill the beast. Unfortunately, the prophecy came true when one of Ke Daiv's shots missed the feragriff and instead killed the other youth. His benefactor cursed him and exiled him. He found work with the Trade Federation as an assassin, and was part of a small group hired to kill Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker as a form of revenge for the Federation's loss of control following the Battle of Naboo. Ke Daiv tried to kill Anakin during a garbage pit race three years after the battle, but failed when Obi-Wan intervened. Ke Daiv was then hired by Wilhuff Tarkin to accompany Raith Sienar to Zonama Sekot. While there, Sienar told Ke Daiv of Tarkin's xenophobia, and tried to get the Blood Carver to work toward his own goals. Ke Daiv agreed with Sienar, and attempted to bond with his own Sekotan starship. However, the lifeforms of the planet rejected him, and Ke Daiv was forced to try and steal the ship acquired by Anakin and Obi-Wan. Ke Daiv failed to obtain the ship, and was killed in battle when Anakin unleashed an intense wave of Force energy at him. It was the first time Anakin had been forced to kill another being with the Force, and he greatly regretted it. (RP)

ke Fanax, Depird
this Adumari man was the brother of Jeapird ke Fanax. When his brother was killed while in combat with Cheriss ke Hanadi during the Cartann Ground Championships, Depird sought to avenge not only his brother but the reputation of pilots. In the duel, which was staged for the entertainment of Wedge Antilles and his pilots, Cheriss defeated Depird soundly. She offered his life to Wedge as a sign of respect and honor. Wedge, however, thought the loss of life was too blatant. Instead of having Depird killed, he let the man live, hoping that Depird would learn from his pain and his mistakes to fight better another time. (SOA)

ke Fanax, Jeapird

this man was defeated by Cheriss ke Hanadi in the Cartann Ground Championships, just before the New Republic first contacted Adumar. Jeapird was one of the few Adumari pilots who had real skill with the blastsword. His defeat was unusual in that he lost to a woman who was also not a fighter pilot. (SOA)

ke Hanadi, Cheriss
this Adumari woman served as Wedge Antilles' guide, during the time he spent in Cartann during the negotiations between Adumar and the New Republic. She was a skilled fighter, but suffered from vertigo and could gain honor among her fellow Adumari as a pilot. She was born to parents of the working class, and spent part of her youth working in an underground food processing plant. her mother had worked there, before she died from brownloung. Many Admuri felt she was nothing more than a gutter-fighter who retained favor in the court by winning her challenges. She was the victor in the Cartann Ground Championship just before the New Republic first contacted the Adumari, and received several challenges from pilots because of it. She managed to meet every challenge, and hoped to impress Wedge while doing so. However, Wedge did not return her affection, since he was in love with Iella Wessiri. Cherris tried to further impress him by accepting a string of challenges, but he convinced her to back out when she was nearly killed. Eventually, Cheriss understood what Wedge had to say, and simply worked with him to bring about changes in Adumari society. When Wedge was exiled from Cartann by perator Pekaelic ke Teldan, who was given false information by Tomer Darpen, Cheriss followed him to the Yedagonian Confederacy, and helped him prepare for the civil war with Cartann. She proved her combat skills once again, and when the Adumari agreed to join the New Republic, Wedge helped her gain admission to the Academy. He also introduced her to a prescription drug which helped her overcome her vertigo. She opted to join the Republic's armed forces and train as a pilot, becaused she knew that her role in helping the Yedagon would prevent her from returning to her home nation of Cartann. (SOA)

ke Kith, Garatty
this Adumari man lived next door to Fiana Novarr, alias Iella Wessiri. He was challenged to a duel and killed by Irasal ke Voltin. (SOA)

ke Mattino, Liak
a decorated Adumari pilot, Captain ke Mattino led the Strike the Moons Flightknife. He was the first to challenge Wedge Antilles and Red Flight in simulated - rather then live-fire - combat, but his flightknife was soundly defeated. When Wedge offered them another chance to duel, ke Mattino accepted despite the fact that a second challenge was not a normal protocol. In the end, the Strike the Moons learned a lot about New Republic fighter tactics. He and his pilots later joined Red Flight at the Giltella Air Base to discuss tactics and the results of their simulated combat. In the wake of the treacherous actions of Tomer Darpen, ke Mattino led the Strike the Moons Flightknife on a mission to escort Wedge and Red Flight out of Cartann and to the Yedagonian nation. He and his Flightknife defected, and assisted the Yedagonian forces in defeating Cartann. Unfortunately, Liak was killed in the battle. (SOA)

ke Olean
this is one of Cartann City's families. (SOA)

ke Rassa, Balass
this 22-year-old Adumari man was the eldest son of perator Pekaelic ke Teldan. Following Adumari custom, he was sent away to live with a surrogate family at an early age, protecting him from the many challenges and duels which would have been levelled at him if his true identity were known. He became an excellent pilot, a trait noted by Wedge Antilles when the New Republic sought to bring the planet Adumar into its membership. Balass was a quick study, and eagerly picked up on the notion of honor being an internal feeling, rather than an external show of worthiness. He also understood the notion of doing good for the betterment of others, rather than using one's accomplishments to further one's own goals. However, when Pekaelic ke Teldan was forced to initiate a civil war among Adumar' nations by the urgings of Tomer Darpen, he found himself defeated by the other nations and disgraced. By Adumari custom, Pekaelic should have been killed by the victor, which happened to be Wedge. Instead, Wedge offered Pekaelic the chance to abdicate his throne and leave the political scene. Once Pekaelic discovered that Balass had survived the war, he offered the perator's title to Balass. Balass agreed, and was named perator in his father's place. Balass retook the surname ke Teldan, and vowed to work fairly and equally with the other Adumari perators to create a world government and join the New Republic. (SOA)

ke Seiufere, Phalle
this Adumari pilot challenged Cheriss ke Hanadi to a duel, shortly after she had defeated Eneboros ke Shalapan. She accepted the challenge, and barely defeated him in combat. She claimed that these were challenges that she had ignored while escorting Wedge Antilles and Red Flight in the city of Cartann, but the challenges were actually an effort to prove herself worthy of Wedge's affection and to redeem herself in the eyes of the perator, Pekaelic ke Teldan. (SOA)

ke Sekae, Thanaer
this Adumari pilot challenged Cheriss ke Hanadi to a duel, shortly after she had defeated Eneboros ke Shalapan and Phalle ke Seiufere in combat. Her third challenge in less than a day, she was weary and injured at the start of the fight. She had claimed to be accepted challenges that had remained unfulfilled during her time as Wedge Antilles' escort through Cartann City. In reality, she was trying to please Wedge and the perator, Pekaelic ke Teldan. Thanaer quickly defeated Cheriss, but her life was spared when Wes Janson challenged Thanaer to a duel for her life. While not an accepted motivation for a duel, Thanaer accepted and was soundly defeated by Wes and his hand-to-hand combat tactics. Wes claimed his challenge and victory was an "engagement present" to Wedge and Iella Wessiri. (SOA)

ke Shalapan, Eneboros
this Adumari pilot challenged Cheriss ke Hanadi to a duel. She accepted the challenge and defeated him, in an effort to prove herself worthy of Wedge Antilles and the perator, Pekaelic ke Teldan. (SOA)

ke Shia, Buan
this Adumari pilot was part of Dyans ke Vasan's flightknife, and was one of the first Adumari pilots to challenge Wedge Antilles. The flightknife attacked Red Flight as they arrived at Adumar, but all were killed in combat by Wedge and his pilots. (SOA)

ke Teldan, Pekaelic
this Adumari was the perator of the city of Cartann when the planet was first contacted by the New Republic. Tomer Darpen quickly began manipulating ke Teldan, hoping to sway the perator to join the New Republic instead of the Empire. Unknowing of Darpen's schemes, ke Teldan was drawn into a web of deceit which forced him to declare Cartann the seat of the world government which was required for entry into the Republic. This declaration, made without the consent of any of the other perators on the planet, initiated a civil war which ended in defeat for Cartann. Wedge Antilles, which led the forces of the Yedagonian Confederacy against Cartann, refused to execute ke Teldan, as was demanded by Adumari custom. Instead, Wedge allowed ke Teldan to abdicate his throne to his son, Balass ke Rassa. (SOA)

ke Teldan, Balass
see ke Rassa, Balass (SOA)

ke Unthos, Uliaff
this Adumari man served as Cartann's Minister of Notifications under perator Pekaelic ke Teldan. In this role, Uliaff's office was responsible for notifying the families of fighter pilots who had died in combat, in training, or in a duel. Uliaff himself was responsible for setting the policies by which the notification letters would be written and sent. (SOA)

ke Vasan, Dyans
this man, a native of the planet Adumar, was the first Adumari pilot to challenge Wedge Antilles and his pilots when they arrived at Adumar. ke Vasan and his flightknife attacked Wedge's Red Flight as they made their to Cartann, forcing the Republic pilots into battle. In the end, ke Vasan and his flight were destroyed by Wedge and Red Flight. (SOA)

ke Voltin, Irasal
this Adumari man had a long-standing feud with Garatty ke Kith. On the night Wedge Antilles and Iella Wessiri decided that they were in love with each other, Irasal finally killed Garatty in a duel. (SOA)

KE-40409
this is the designation of the reconnaissance X-Wing flown by Plat Mallar while stationed aboard the Venture during the new Republic's battle with the Yevetha. (TT)

Ke'dem
a variation of an Old Corellian term for a person who condemned or fallen. (TFE)

Keal Roscon
this Sullustan was a member of The Shield, and served the group as a pilot and tactical advisor. He was a member of the Sullustan home guard before he was expelled for not staying out of trouble. He later joined The Shield, where he became famous for his almost suicidal ability to fly. (CRO)

Kebyc
this near-human female served as the senior accountant for the Cloud City Miner's Guild, during the administration of Lando Calrissian. Like Calrissian, Kebyc was determined to wipe out the corruption of prior administrations. (CCG5)

Kech, Nakk
this Khuiumin Survivor was the Captain of Rock Squadron, under the command of Jacob Nive. He was killed several months after Corran Horn - under the alias Jenos Idanian - joined the Survivors, when the Invidious suddenly jumped out of the system during a raid. Another Invid raid - under the command of Shala the Hutt - was under attack, and Leonia Tavira felt that the losses to Rock Squadron were minimal compared to the other group. (IJ)

Keddek
this was the title given to the Tarc who served as the supreme ruler of the planet Hjaff. The Keddek was advised and counciled by three continental leaders. (AE)

Kedler

one of the Old Republic starships sent to evacuate Ossus, during the Great Sith War. It was destroyed by the Mandalorian warriors and their war mounts before it could land on the planet. (TSW)

Kee
a Yuzzem slave who was working for the Empire on Circarpous V. He, along with Hin, were getting fed up with the demands place on them by the local Imperials, and started destroying everything they saw. They were imprisoned by Grammel, and continued to wreak havoc by killing their fellow prisoners. This was OK with Grammel, as it helped eliminate certain captives. When Grammel placed Luke and Leia in the Yuzzems' cell, Luke began to communicate with them, and gained Hin and Kee's trust. Together, they escaped the prison compound and set out to find the Temple of Pomojema and the Kaiburr crystal. Kee was killed at the temple by Darth Vader. (SME)

Kee-Piru
one of the first Mon Calamari floating cities destroyed by the World Devastators, shortly after Emperor Palpatine was reborn into a cloned body on Byss. (DESB)

Keed
an alien race native to the planet Keedad, the humanoid Keed differ from normal human stock in several ways. They lack a protruding nose, instead having a flat ridge atop two nostrils in the center of their face. They also have three fingers and a thumb. (CRO)

Keeheen
an orphaned Trianii, Keeheen was adopted by his aunt after an "accidental" dump of toxic waste began killing his family and ruining their farm. Keeheen watched with interest as the Trianii Rangers moved in to apprehend the culprits, and he decided that he would become a Ranger. He excelled in his studies, and quickly surpassed his classmates. He became the youngest commissioned Ranger in the history of the service. During his stay on Trian, he met and fell in love with Atuarre. He proposed to her the first time they met, but she politely turned him down. Keeheen wouldn't take "no" for an answer, and maintained close ties to her. Atuarre eventually fell in love with him, and they were soon married. Atuarre also began training as a Ranger, and they were moved to Fibuli. There, Atuarre gave birth to their only child, Pakka. Then, the Corporate Sector Authority annexed Fibuli and rounded up any dissenters. Keeheen was among the loudest, and he was taken prisoner, along with Pakka. The Authority tortured Pakka in front of his eyes, but he resisted their attempts to get him to cooperate. He was imprisoned at Stars' End, but was eventually rescued by Atuarre and Pakka, with the help of Han Solo and Chewbacca. Since then, Keeheen has returned to duty with the Rangers, and became an Administrator. (HSE, CSA)

Keehon
this Imperial Lieutenant served under Administrator Brago, after Brago replaced Fuguee at the Kline Colony outpost. (SWJ10)

Keejin
this unusual creature inhabits the caves of a number of worlds, including Yavin 4 and Thila. Known to many explorers as the cave crawler, this strange beast is more of a fright than a threat. They can grow to lengths of two meters, and spend most of their life dwelling in deep caves where they scavenge for food. Their ability to filter out the correct elements in their air supply has given them the ability to exist in a variety of environments, including the vacuum of deep space. Specimens have even been found inside space slugs and miner's horrors. Their long bodies are supported by two stump-like arms, and they crawl with the help of two claws on each "hand." As these claws scrape along the ground, they create an eerie sound which disconcerts most explorers because you can hear the creature well before they see it - if they ever see it. (COG)

Keek
1) a taller, broader Brigian than Hissal, Keek's darker coloer sets him apart as well. He is the Chief of the Internal Security Police for the Brigian New Regime, and wears a very guady outfit and plumed helmet to help increase his stature. He wants to gain control of the planet, and to that end he has decided to close down all institutions of higher learning. Their education of the masses encouraged freedom of speech and the ability to govern themselves, threatening Keek's position. (HSL)
2) this New Republic K-Wing bomber pilot was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. Keek was killed in the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL)

Keeper
this form of Yuuzhan Vong starship was developed during their attempt to take control of the galaxy. Its development came shortly after the New Republic learned to pour intense amounts of firepower into a dovin basal, weakening the creature and stealing power from weapons systems. In this way, the Republic managed to destroy a number of Yuuzhan Vong warships. The keeper was well-protected, and contained a large dovin basal. The keeper was the attached to another, larger, Yuuzhan Vong warship, to act as its shielding and protection. In this way, the larger ship was protected from enemy fire by a stronger shield, and their weapons didn't lose power when the shield were absorbing fire. (HT)

Keeper
a group of CR90 Corvettes used by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, the Keeper group was used to escort prison ships on transfer missions. (TIE)

Keeper of Promises
this Qom Jha was one of the few that had ever gotten into the caverns below the High Tower and seen the Threateners up close. He was assigned by Eater of Fire Creepers to lead Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade to the Tower, along with Splitter of Stones and Builder with Vines, as well as the Qom Qae Child of Winds. (VOF)

Keeper Subdermal Control System
this piece of exotic technology was produced by Vector Technologies. Known in the catalogs as the AA-2, this system involved the use of surgically-implanted beacons and a tracker unit. Developed for the maintenance of slave labor pools, the Keeper system provides its user with a way to keep slaves from escaping. The beacon provided the tracking unit with an exact location of the slave, and contained a dose of an exotic neurotoxin which could be injected into the slave's system in the event of an escape attempt. The slave owner could activate the neurotoxin by signalling the beacon from the tracker. If the slave managed to escape beyond the range of the tracker, the beacon would lose its signal and release the neurotoxin automatically. (WSV)

Keeta
this cream-colored Trianii was Gideon's first mate, and worked with him aboard the Independent Class. She lost an eye in a battle with one of Boss Trome's shape-shifting alien thugs, and she covered the scar with a black eye patch. (SWJ12)

Kegan
this temperate world was the sole planet orbiting a single sun in the Outer Rim Territories. Some thirty-five years before the Battle of Yavin, Kegan was ruled by an isolationist government which believed a series of evil prophesies would come to pass if the Jedi Knights were allowed to visit the planet. There was only a single city on the planet at the time, which was divided into circles of expertise. Outside the city, all land was given over to food and animal cultivation. The humans who lived on the planet remained apart until the child O-Lana was born. The Jedi Knights were contacted by her parents, and the child was eventually brought to Coruscant. The Keganites soon discovered that the galaxy around them was a wondrous place, and overthrew the government to join the Old Republic. It was later discovered that the prophesies described by the Keganites were visions of the rise of Emperor Palpatine and the subjugation of the galaxy under the New Order. (FFT)

Keganite
this was the name of the human population of the planet Kegan. During the rulership of V-Tan and O-Vieve, all Keganites were required to become part of the General Good. To this end, each Keganite had to take a name which included a link to the General Good. Every male was given a name, to which was added the beginning "V-". Every female was also given a name, to which was added the beginning "O-". (FFT)

Kei

Kel-Mar
manufacturers of starship power couplers. (ISB)

Kel'Vannon, Denell
this easy-going man was one a member of the Corellian Security Forces before resigning his commission to become a private investigator. He was cool under fire, and rarely lost his temper. He maintained a strict code of honor, and never took questionable jobs or worked for disreputable beings. During the early stages of the Galactic Civil War, Denell traveled to Starlyte Station to investigate the disappearance of several beings. With the help of a team of independent agents, Denell managed to uncover the experiments of Dahz Thulaka, but was unable to bring the Twi'lek to justice. (WSV)

Kelada
this industrial planet is located in the Anarid Cluster. It was the site of an Arakyd factory and was a major supplier of repulsorlift components and AT-AT parts for the Empire. The once-beautiful world was turned into an industrial wasteland due to the intense manufacturing that was required to support the Imperial war machine. (SWJ1, SWJ13)

Keldon
this medic served the Alliance on Kirtania, under the command of Commander Astred. (SWJ1)

Keldor, Ohran
one of the designers of the original Death Star, he taught at Moff Tarkin's Omwat orbital school, and later helped make the Maw Installation habitable by employing Mrlssi to make the outpost operational. Ohran and his colleagues were on the first Death Star when it destroyed Alderaan. They were dropped off on Carida as the Death Star made its way to Yavin 4. He was about 30 years older than Leia Organa. Keldor was killed on Belsavis while trying to captured the escaped Leia Organa, when he fell from one of the mobile vine-coffee beds. (COJ, JE)

Kell Dragon
a flat-bodied, short-legged cousin of the krayt dragon, the kell dragon is a mottled grey in color and plated with armor-like scales. Three rows of spikes stud the dorsal ridges of the dragon, starting near the nose and travelling down to its hindquarters. (DF, DF2)

Kellering
an Imperial scientist assigned to Dr. Eloy's team. Dr. Kellering assisted in the development of the second-generation laser cannons for the second Death Star under Bevel Lemelisk. Kellering was the scientist who approached Manda D'ulin about gaining Mistryl security for the project, code-named Hammertong. (TME)

Kelliak Arms and Armor Company
KAAC tried to persuade the Empire that their Freerunner CAV was the ultimate in fast, flexible firepower. The Empire didn't go for their advertising campaign, and the Freerunner didn't appeal to them. So, KAAC was forced into unloading the Freeruner wherever there was a buyer, which usually meant selling them to petty arms dealers and undercover Alliance agents. The company eventually went bankrupt. (RASB)

Kellimin
this smuggler hate the Empire. (SWJ14)

Kellmer Institute of Galactic History

Kemplex IX
a dead moon located in the ancient Cron System, in the Auril Sector, it was the site of an Old Republic hyperspace station. It was the location chosen by Captain Vanicus to mass the Old Republic's fleet against Ulic Qel-Droma. He chose it because he believed Qel-Droma would attack there. Instead, Qel-Droma attacked Coruscant while its defenses were down. (TSW)

Kempman
this Alliance container transport group was supporting the Organarms deep-space facility when it was attacked by Imperial forces. The facility, and the entire Kempman group, was destroyed. (TIE)

Kempo, Lex
a good-looking young Corellian known as the “Mad Vornskr,” Lex was a member of the Red Moons. Prior to his service under Andrephan Stormcaller, Kempo claimed to have been a member of an elite stormtrooper unit and several mercenary groups. In fact, Lex had been conscripted in the Imperial military after a drinking and bragging session in a Corellian bar left him too hungover to remember how he had gotten there. He proved himself tougher, faster, and better than his fellow soldiers, but this also earned him their hatred. Lex was assigned to the 676th Light Support Scouts to keep him out of the way, and took the first chance he could find to sneak away and join the world of freelance soldiers. He kept and wore a modified suit of scout trooper armor, which had been dulled and therma-painted to match the surroundings in which he worked. Kempo managed to escape from firefights that no being could have survived, and an acquaintence once told him he was as “mad as a vornskr.” He liked the description, and kept the nickname “Mad Vornskr.” Sometime later, he joined the Alliance as a pathfinder and scout, and worked closely with the Red Alpha unit. He was responsible for protecting Gunder Vren during the Alliance's attempt to recover the Shard of Alderaan program from Begas Tok. When Andrephan Stormcaller broke away from the New Republic, Kempo followed him to join the Red Moons. He was part of the assault team that attacked the Karazak Slavers Guild on Gabredor III. Kempo was responsible for driving a repulsorsled laden with explosives into the primary entrance to the slavers' compound, killing himself in the resulting infreno. However, Kempo "went out with a blaze of glory," having set up the explosions to burn a huge, crescent shape in the compound, marking the destruction as casued by the Red Moons. (SWJ8, TFE, LAA)

Ken
a small child discovered by an unknown Jedi Knight, Ken was raised by the DJ-88 caretaker droid in the Lost Coty of the Jedi. His origins have been kept a secret, but he has fairly good control of the Force. As long as he can remember, he has worn a birthstone on a silver chain, although its origins are unknown to him as well. The stone is a hemispherical piece of silver crystal. He is restricted to living within the limits of the Lost City until he is old enough and experienced enough to survive by himself. Kadann foresaw that Ken would be able to bring Trioculus down, which was a prophecy fulfilled when Ken learned about Trioculus by secretly reading DJ-88's files on the Slavelord. He was 12 years old when Luke Skywalker took him out of the Lost City and trained him. His name, Ken, is taken from his mother's name, for Ken is the child of the Jedi woman Kendalina. He is sought later by Kadann, who believes he can obtain the location of the Lost City of the Jedi from Ken. Kadann, in an effort to make Ken give him the location of the green marble entrance, reveals a stone which fits perfectly with Ken's birthsone. Once inside the City, Kadann and DJ-88 reveal that Ken is the child of Kendalina and Triclops. Kendalina wanted Ken hidden from Palpatine, who was in fact Ken's grandfather, so she had someone hide him in the Lost City City of the Jedi. (LCJ, ZHR, PDS)

Ken'kali
this was the term used by the Krieks to describe their warrior caste. The ken'kali were largely ceremonial, as the Krieks were a peace-loving people, although they did serve to guard their tribe's lands. (SWJ13)

Kenalpa
this tall-growing tree is native to the planet Corellia. (GG2)

Kendalina
a human female, she was also a Jedi Knight known by Triclops before his imprisonment on Duro. Kendalina was captured in Palpatine's Jedi purge, and sentenced to the Imperial asylum on Kessel. There, she met Triclops, also a prisoner in the asylum. Together, they gave birth to Ken, the Jedi Prince. She had bright, gray eyes. (MMY, PDS)

Kendamar
this planet is located in Lol Sector. (GG11)

Kendamari Casinos
this string of high-class casinos was owned and operated by the Tenloss Syndicate. Many of the larger casinos were owned by Hutts, and all were located in Lol Sector. The headquarters of Kendamari were on the planet Kendamar. (GG11)

Kendy, Machel
this man served the New Republic as an Imperial Palace Security guard, during the period leading up to Grand Admiral Thrawn's rise to power. A Lieutenant, he was fiercely competitve in many sports, but was recognized as the New Republic armed forces champion in the K'thri martial arts. He learned the arts from his stepfather, who was also a master, and who trained Machel from the time he could walk. (TLC, TTSB)

Kenit, Vocis
this Imperial Captain was in command of the Far Orbit when Dhas Vedij and his followers mutinied. Kenit was a native of Hallu Sector, and formerly served on the Semqi Pefis and at Thomquizarr Naval Base. He proved himself to be to powerful and too well-connected to remain in any one position for very long, and was named Captain of the Far Orbit just twelve years after joining the Imperial Academy on Lianna. He spent much of his time on the Far Orbit hunting down pirates, often wiping out entire fleets when a simple victory would have sufficed. Kenit was not well-respected by his crew, being more of a bully and a dictator than a captain and mentor. The mutineers took control of the frigate and blasted Kenit and his officers into space in an escape pod. After being recovered, Kenit was visited by Sate Pestage, who delivered the message that he was to be executed for failing to avoid the mutiny.His only chance for redemtpion was to bring in the Far Orbit and her crew. Kenit vowed to bring Vedij and his crew to justice, but failed in several attempts. Emperor Palpatine, upset with the way in which the Far Orbit allied itself with the Alliance, executed Kenit himself. (FOP)

Kenlin, Bors
this man was trhe Captain of the Xucphra Rose, the first bacta transport ship captured by Rogue Squadron, in the time leading up to the Battle of Thyferra. Kenlin surrendered his ship as soon as Wedge Antilles guaranteed the safety of the crews' families. (BW)

Kennede
this elderly man served as Emperor Palpatine's training Master at the Royal Imperial Guard facility on Yinchorr. He trained Kir Kanos and Carnor Jax, and was killed by Jax's stormtroopers on Yinchorr following the death of Emperor Palpatine's last clone. However, his son Tav remained loyal to Kanos, after the former Royal Guard brought news of his father's death. Kennede's son was, by that time, a member of the New Republic, having seen that the Empire his father loved was no longer in existence. (CE, CE2)

Kennede, Tav
this man was the son of Master Kennede, the man who trained Royal Imperial Guards Carnor Jax and Kir Kanos. He had joined the New Republic, believing that the Empire his father had supported no longer existed. After Kanos brought word of his father's death at the hands of Carnor Jax, the younger Kennede threw his loyalty to Kir Kanos. He accompanied Kanos on a misison to rescue Mirith Sinn from the Zanzibar on the planet Xo, and after being signalled by Kanos to retrieve them, Kennede was able rescue Mirith. Kanos was captured by the Zanzibar before the younger Kennede could rescue him. Later, after Kanos escaped from the Zanzibar and Grappa the Hutt, he was reunited with Kennede when they returned the real Feena D'Asta to her father. When Xandel Carivus ordered his forces to kill the Baron, Kennede took a blaster bolt which was meant for the Baron. It struck his shoulder, but he survived the injury. In the aftermath of Xandel Carivus' execution, Tav remained with Baron D'Asta as an aide, although he remained at Kanos' back and call. (CE2)

Kenobi, Obi-Wan (Ben)
Obi-Wan was taken from his family at a ery early age, once his affinity with the Force was evident. Note that the novelization of Return of the Jedi claims Obi-Wan was the first son of a moderately wealthy family, and he was a fast learner. He sailed through his education at the Academy, and was praised by his family as well as his acquaintances in the Old Republic. His ability to control the Force was also evident, and he was recruited into the ranks of the Jedi Knights. As a young Jedi, Obi-Wan was trained by Yoda, and quickly learned the value of patience and hard work in understanding the Force. Once Yoda was elected the Jedi Council of twelve Masters, Obi-Wan's training was continued by Qui-Gon Jinn. They were at odds with each other quite often, as Qui-Gon was headstrong while Obi-Wan was more practical. However, their opposing personalities blended them into an effective duo. Some twelve years before the battle of Naboo, Obi-Wan actually renounced his Jedi brethren while trying to help Cerasi and the Young. After helping to thwart Xanatos' plans to destroy the Jedi Temple, Obi-Wan once again accepted as Qui-Gon's padawan. The pair were dispatched to Naboo during the Trade Federation's blockade of the planet, and the situation brought their differences to a head. When Qui-Gon discovered the young Anakin Skywalker, he told the Jedi Council that he no longer needed to train Obi-Wan. Obi-Wan took it as a personal affront, and despite the thrill of actually becoming a Jedi Knight and progressing to Master, he resented Qui-Gon's impertinence. Their differences were quickly resolved as the Battle of Naboo came to a head, and they battled the Sith Lord Darth Maul in the depths of the palace in Theed. When Qui-Gon was killed, Obi-Wan was forced to watch from behind a laser barrier. As soon as the barrier dropped, Obi-Wan attacked, pressing the battle until he was caught off-guard. Darth Maul forced him into a power shaft and nearly killed Obi-Wan, but the Jedi managed to recover Qui-Gon's lightsaber and eliminated Maul. Shortly thereafter, Obi-Wan was given the title of Jedi Knight. At the same time, against Yoda's judgement, Obi-Wan was also named Anakin's Master. As a Jedi and as a Soldier, Obi-Wan was promoted to General in the Old Republic, and gained acclaim during the Clone Wars, fighting along side Anakin Skywalker and Bail Organa. Following the Clone Wars, Obi-Wan tried to train his friend Anakin in the ways of the Force, but could not control his young student's need for more and more instruction. Anakin was brash and headstrong, and the discipline needed to master the Light Side were too much for him. Anakin became a pupil of Senator Palpatine, and Obi-Wan was powerless to stop his descent to the Dark Side. Obi-Wan tried everything he could to reason with Anakin and return him to the Light Side, but to no avail. Following a particularly heated argument, Anakin and Obi-Wan found themselves drawing their lightsabers and dueling ferociously. As luck would have it, Anakin faltered, and fell into a pit of molten lava. Obi-Wan, already distraught for his failing to keep Anakin in the Light Side, tried to rescue his friend by pulling him from the searing lava and returning him to the Old Republic's cybernetic surgeons. However, Obi-Wan was suspicious of the new Emperor Palpatine's sway over Anakin, and quickly surmised that the Emperor would stop at nothing to avenge his pupil's injuries. Obi-Wan quickly discussed a plan with Bail Organa and other Republic members before whisking Anakin's wife and unborn twins away from the Emperor. He persuaded Bail Organa to take in the young mother and her daughter. He then fled to Tatooine, where he convinced his brother, Owen Lars, and his wife, Beru, to take in the infant son of Anakin. Obi-Wan then hid himself in the Jundland Wastes of Tatooine, assuming the name Ben and promoting the image of a crazy old hermit. When Artoo-Detoo delivered a message from the daughter of Anakin Skywalker almost 20 years later, Obi-Wan was forced out of hiding. He enlisted the aid of Luke Skywalker - Anakin's son - in seeing the plans to the first Death Star safely to Alderaan. When this plan was foiled, Obi-Wan saw that he must sacrifice himself for the greater good of the Alliance. In a great lightsaber duel with his former friend Anakin Skywalker - who was now the infamous Darth Vader - Obi-Wan martyred himself, thus allowing his spirit-self to become one with the Force. This allowed him to continue to assist Luke's development as a Jedi while remaining hidden from the eyes of Emperor Palpatine and Darth Vader. Obi-Wan's spirit visited Luke on Hoth, after Luke's escape from the Wampa Ice Creature. He told Luke to go to Dagobah and seek out Yoda, for Obi-Wan sensed that his old master yet lived, and could help Luke ascend to the ranks of the Jedi Knights. His spirit reappeared twice more to Luke on Dagobah, urging the young man to continue his training. The younger Obi-Wan Kenobi was portrayed by Ewan MacGregor in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace*, and by Sir Alec Guinness in the second three* Star Wars films. Obi-Wan was also portrayed by Bernard Behrens in the Star Wars and The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR, ESB, ESBR, ROTJ, SW1, DOD, CT)

Kenobi Medallion
this award, presented by the Alliance, was bestowed upon those individuals who sacrificed everything for the elimination of the New Order. Thus, the award was only given posthumously. Jek Porkins was one of the first recipients of the award, for his heroic actions in the Battle of Yavin. (MTS)

Kenobi Offensive
a series of military maneuvers employed by Obi-wan Kenobi, when he was a general with the Old Republic. The Offensive revolved around the use of a large number of smaller ships, which executing small attacks on the enemy fleet in an effort to draw a portion of the fleet out of formation. Once out of formation, the enemy ships could be destroyed by a reserve offensive task force, which could then rush behind enemy lines through the hole created in the main formation. In theory, the enemy's ships would be unable to fire on attacking ships as they passed through the line, because any stray fire would strike their own ships. Over time, Alliance military leaders simplified the strategy, simply placing ships where the enemy wouldn't expect them to be, and then attacking the main enemy force from within. (TB, TBSB)

Kenow
a Colonel in Klyn Shanga's rag-tag militia, Kenow was charged with intercepting Vuffi Raa on Oseon 6845. Unfortunately, Kenow was discovered by Lando Calrissian, who killed him in self-defense. Lando was arrested, but charged with carrying a concealed weapon, due to eye-witness accounts of his defense. Kenow and Shanga fought together in the Battle of the Rood as boys. (LCF)

Kensaric
this Corporal served the Alliance as a scout and field tracker. Kensaric served under Bren Derlin at Echo Base, and survived the Battle of Hoth. Later, Kensaric served on Han Solo's strike team sent to the forest moon of Endor. There, Kensaric and his team were assigned to ensure that the strike team's tracks were covered, so that there was no evidence of their being on the moon. (CCG10)

Kenta Anwa
this Silika challenged Dannen Lifehold to a battle in The Contest on Dohu VII, shortly after Dannen defeated Kemmel Attapi. However, like Attapi before him, Anwa lost to the human. (SWJ1)

Kentara
this Wookiee was a member of the Alliance, but was captured and sold into slavery shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Kentara had been sent to Bundim along with a group of Alliance forces to assist in the liberation of Bundim, but was one of the first prisoners taken during the Battle of Heg. He was purchased by Quintarus Returyl on Deysum III, but was later rescued by the Alliance agents who were investigating the construction of an Imperial supply station the Bissilirus System. (GMK)

Kentra
a species of winged, fur-covered aliens native to the planet Orellon II. The average Kentra stood more than two meters tall, and their bodies were humanoid in form. Their large wings were bat-like in form, but were distinct from their arms. The Kentra social structure was based on the idea of nests, which were formed from extended families and local village folk. Nests were organized into clans, and clans were organized into flocks. Each flock was ultimately based on the race of Kentra which formed it. There were four specific racial groups: jungle Kentra, spotted Kentra, striped Kentra, and the brown folk Kentra. It is believed that they chose to name themselves Kentra after the arrival of Michael Tandre to Orellon II. Tandre was forced to land his ship, the Alpha Kentrum, on the planet,and he became a sort of spiritual leader for the Kentra. (SWAJ, AE)

Keoulkeech
this grizzled Ewok shaman served under Chief Chirpa during the Battle of Endor. Following the struggle to free Endor, Keoulkeech set out to find his calling among the great trees of the forest. Opening himself up to the spirits of Endor, he found himself at Salfur's Trading Post. There, he met a Carosite trader who was bringing medical supplies to Yir Tangee. He heard the spirits calling, and joined the crew of the Sudden Restoration as a healer and medic. (HR)

Kep
this Adumari measure of distance was based on one thousand paces of a long-dead perator. (SOA)

Kepporra, Wynt
this man, a native of the planet Alderaan, attended the Imperial Academy on Prefsbelt IV at the same time as Delak Krennel. A member of the Academy's Thespian Union, he was home on leave when the planet was destroyed by the first Death Star, and was killed. Later, as Krennel rose to power and tried to disrupt the workings of the early New Republic, he claimed that Kepporra had been a good friend, when in fact they rarely met and had little interaction on Prefsbelt IV. In a broadcasted message, Krennel shed a fake tear for Kepporra's death, in an effort to win over dishomed Alderaanians from the Republic. This plan was the idea of Ysanne Isard's clone, who hoped to establish a rift between the human and non-human races of the Republic. (IR)

Kepzen, Lev
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the frigate Feral when it captured the Solar Terrors pirate gang. (FOP)

Kerane's Folly
named after a mad prospector named Kerane, this legendary asteroid in the Hoth system is reportedly composed of pure platinum. Kerane was the first to locate the asteroid, and even brought back a small sample to verify its composition. However, when Kerane returned to the asteroid belt to recover the asteroid, he was never able to find it. He went mad in his frustrating search, and the asteroid's location remains a mystery. (ISU)

Keremark
this river town was located on the planet Risban. It was defended by the massive Fortress Keremark. (HAS)

Kerensik
a frozen planet on which humans dwell in enclaves. (DESB)

Kerensiki Trees
these tall trees, native to the planet Kerensik, have large spines instead of leaves. (DESB)

Kerest
this dying planet is the homeworld of the Kerestian race. The planet, located far from many trade routes within the Sluis Sector, has been in an ice age ever since the Kerestian sun underwent strange changes. The sun's power was greatly reduced, and the amount of light and heat reaching Kerest was greatly diminished. As a result, the Kerestions were forced to resort to any means possible to survive. This has created two unique groups of Kerestians: the savage descendants of those who survived on Kerest, and the less intense descendants of off-world Kerestians. The planet was discovered by exploration vessels of the House of Tagge. (GG12)

Kerestian
an alien race hailing from the planet Kerest, the Kerestians have evolved into savage hunters of great cunning and skill. They are tall, powerfully-built humanoids with convoluted ridges on their foreheads. Two thin strips of hair grow in a strange double widow's peak from the ridges, and the strips continue down the Kerestian's back. Their nose is defined by a single, vertical slit above their mouth, and a row of breather tubes runs along their cheekbones. Their small ears are holes located at the base of the skull, and are surrounded by folds of skin. The breather tubes were once used for long-range, high-frequency communication, but that ability has been lost over time. They are methodical, deliberate hunters, and are thought to be humorless. However, a recent discovery of a Kerestian colony ship has turned up ancient members of the species suspended in time. When they were revived, these colonists showed none of the current Kerestian violence or deliberateness. It has been surmised that the harsh conditions of the planet Kerest forced subsequent generations of Kerestians to evolve into the vicious hunters they are today. They had mastered repulsorlift technology and sub-light space travel before Kerest was nearly destroyed as its sun began to convulse and contract. Kerest was reduced to a frozen wasteland. This caused the ancient Kerestians to "devolve" into barbarians and hunters. Their technology has subsequently reverted to stone-age levels. (GG12)

Kerf
this Imperial Major served as part of the spaceport control team assigned to monitor all traffic in the capital city of the planet Bastion. It was Kerf who announced the arrival of Admiral Pellaeon, just after Pellaeon had met with Leia Organa-Solo. (VOF)

Kerilt
this humid, jungle-covered planet is the first world in the Algaran System. The intense humidity and dense jungles prohibit colonization, although the atmosphere is conducive to habitation. Kerilt has one moon. (PG2)

Kerioth, Eisen
this Imperial Moff controlled his sector from a base on the planet Doldur. He walked with a limp, a reminder of his service in the Imperial aremed forces. When he discovered that Strephan I'att had developed a way to augment the protective properties of stormtrooper armor, he decided that he could steal the designs and take credit for them himself. The Moff had both Strephan and his wife, Augusta, executed before taking the designs for his own. He returned to Doldur, and began working on perfecting the system, but he lacked a piece of the puzzle: several c-boards stolen by Strephan's granddaughter, Tinian, as she escaped from Kerioth's killing spree. (TFE)

Kerl
Kerl was a member of Echo Flight, during the period leading up to the Battle of Naboo. Kerl's Naboo Police Cruiser was damaged during the defense of station TFP-9, when Echo One's ship took damaged from Dren Melne and crashed into it. Kerl was thrown clear of most of the debris, and barely survived the impact. (SFT)

Kern's Pride
Samuel Tomas Gillespee's freighter. (TLC)

Kernode
this material was created by the Gungans. Similar in most respects to utanode, kernode was stronger and better able to support larger bubble buildings. (IWE1)

Kerol Fire-gem
a rare and beautiful gemstone. (TPS)

Kerr, Danaan
this man was rumored to be a Dark Jedi with an allegiance to Emperor Palpatine. He reappeared about three years after the Battle of Endor in the Bitrose and Instrop Sectors, where there were reports of an insane dark magician. It was later discovered that he was indeed a Jedi Knight at one time, entering the order during the Clone Wars. He wsa saved from Palpatine's Jedi purge when the Emperor discovered Kerr had a strong link to the Dark Side of the Force. Palpatine left Kerr to be consumed by the Dark Side, and Kerr eventually fled to Rannon. (WBC)

Kerrithrarr
a Wookiee leader within the Alliance, Kerrithrarr was instrumental in the development of the New Republic. His signature helped validate the Declaration of a New Republic. When former Imperial supporters began gaining Senate seats after planetary elections, Kerrithrarr agreed with Leia Organa-Solo, believing that the Imperials would tear the Senate and the Republic apart. (HTSB, TNR)

Kerros' Tower
the highest tower located on Cloud City, Kerros' Tower housed the traffic control center for the facility. It was also the base of operations for the Storm Guard. (ISU, TBH, GG2)

Kersh Lauskner's Traveling Animal/Acrobatic Arcadium
this small troupe of gymnasts and animal handlers travelled the galaxy, performing for planetary officials and Imperial dignitaries. Among the clowns and acrobats was the Amazing Alonzo and his captive trompa. The troupe once played at the Gralleenya Gala, some three years after the Battle of Yavin, when Alonzo's trompa escaped and nearly injured a young child. It was later learned that the beast was reacting to Moff Bandor's hurlothrumbic generator. (GCQ)

Kersk, Cavvie
Tallov Kersk's young daughter. (TOJC)

Kersk, Tallov
this man and his family were among the colonists sent by the Brentaal League to establish a settlement on Muzara, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Tallov and his family were also the first colonists to encounter the Muzara. Tallov dreamed of the day that he and his community would turn Muzara's dry savannas into a major supplier of crops and foodstuffs for the Brentaal League. (TOJC)

Kersk, Vettle
Tallov Kersk's young son. (TOJC)

Keryt
this hot, dry world is the first planet in the Zelos System. It has been scouted for terraforming, but has yet to be modified. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Keshid
this man was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. He was shot in the leg by Janissa during the attempt. (GG11)

Keskin
a planet that was subdued by the Empire. (ISB)

Kess
this Corellian smuggler and his companion, Mica, were swallowed by the Sarlacc on Tatooine. (TJP)

Kessa
this blue-white star is the primary solar body in the Kessel System. (JASB)

Kessarch
this species of grazing, herd animal was native to the planet Rordak, and was a staple in the diet of the Viska. (PG1)

Kessel
a planet with large spice mining operation, Kessel is the second and primary world in the Kessel System, far out in the Outer Rim. It has no natural atmosphere, so one is generated by huge processors. It has one moon. Kessel is doomed to be swallowed by the nearby Maw in the next few millennia, as the intense gravity of the multiple black holes draw it in. It was used as an Imperial penal colony, with an Imperial garrison stationed on the moon. The prisoners were used as spice miners. The miners work in near-absolute darkness, so as not to activate the spice. When Emperor Palpatine died at Endor, the Imperials stationed there were not prepared for autonomy. When the prisoners heard about the death of the Emperor, they revolted against the Imperial guards, overthrowing them and establishing control of the planet and the production of spice. Moruth Doole, a prisoner who had risen to the top of the Imperial's list, became the de facto ruler of the mines. He continued to use the lowest of the prisoners as spice miners, keeping a handful of the upper-level prisoners as advisors and crew chiefs. Doole had the atmospheric production reduced in an effort to save money; he felt that since the prisoners worked underground, an above-ground atmosphere was a frivolous waste of money. Doole's reign over the mines ended just after he shot Han Solo down over the planet. Solo escaped through the Maw, only to find the Maw Installation. His escape back through the Maw drew Daala's Imperial fleet through it as well, and his escape drew Daala's ire. She lashed out at Doole's Navy in retaliation, destroying 90% of it. When Tol Sivron and the remaining Installation crew fled through the Maw in the prototype Death Star, they used Kessel as a target for the untested superlaser. They succeeded only in destroying the garrison moon. Lando and Mara Jade tried to reopen the mines, but were unsuccessful at making the operation profitable. Kessel orbits the star Kessa once every 322 local days. Each day lasts about 26 standard hours. Note that Rebellion states that Kessel is located in the Calaron Sector, while The Hutt Gambit says it's in the Kessel Sector. Also note that Class Star Wars: The Early Adventures depicts Kessel as a beautiful, temperate world of strange forests of huge fungi. The planet is ravaged by Captain Bzorn, who controlled the Ionic Ring, but it is unclear if the devastation resulted in the desolate world seen in the Jedi Academy Trilogy. (SW, JS, COTF, AC, CSWEA, JASB, REB, THG)

Kessel Krusher
this was the stage name used by Resik, during his stint as a professional wrestler. (CRO)

Kessel Run
1) an 18-parsec smuggling route that passes near The Maw, the Kessel Run was used by smugglers to bypass Imperial ships guarding the movement of spice from Kessel's mines. The completion of the run is a source of pride and accomplishment among smugglers, who constantly try to outdo each other. By moving closer to the black holes of the Maw, a starhsip pilot can trim parsecs from the Run while increasing the difficulty of the trip. The official record for completing the run is held by Han Solo and Chewbacca aboard the Millennium Falcon, in 11.5 parsecs. BoShek claims to have beaten that record, but without a full cargo to weigh him down. (SW, TME, JS, JASB)

2) this swoopcahsing obstacle was one of the straightest parts of the race course, but it was littered with the damaged hulls of spacecraft, simulated asteroids, and other trash placed to impede a rider's progress. (BSS)

Kessel Spice Corporation
this was the official title of the Imperial body that governed the excavation and production of glitterstim spice on Kessel during the New Order. (FOP)

Kessel Station
this space station orbitted Kessel, and provided a base from which the Empire could monitor the prison facilities, during the height of the New Order. (XWA)

Kesseled
this term, as in “I’ll be Kesseled,” is used to express surprise. (SOP)

Kesselian Blockade Runner
a fast passenger ship built on the planet Kessel. (ROTJN)

KesselRunner
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. KesselRunner was based on Nar Shaddaa. (SWJ13)

Kessendra
once the capital city of Kessel, abandoned by the time Moruth Doole overthrows the Imperial garrison. It was also the site of Kessendra Stadium, where Grand Moff Hissa falsely announced that Trioculus was Palpatine's mutant son. (JS, GDV)

Kessendra Stadium
a large, open-air stadium used by the Empire for demonstration on Kessel. Grand Moff Hissa convened the Central Committee of Grand Moffs there to falsely announced that Trioculus was Palpatine's mutant son. (GDV)

Kesslerite Lounge Chair
a self-conforming piece of furniture. (BTS)

Kestel System
this Empire used this location as a staging area for assault fleets attacking targets in Mortex Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (BI)

Kestic Station
a free-trade outpost located near the Bestine System. It was the home of Zev Senesca and his parents, who were running guns to the Alliance, until the Star Destroyer Merciless destroyed the station. (MTS)

Kestos Minor
Modigal Glave sustained a huge amount of facial damage during the Imperial subjugation of this planet. He took a blaster bolt in the helmet, at point-blank range. The helmet shattered, and dura-armor shrapnel buried itself in his face. He ignored the pain and damage and continued to fight, eventually gaining control of the world. (SWJ9)

Kestrel Nova
a freighter captured by the ancient Jedi Knights, in a battle with space pirates near Tanaab. Ulic Qel-Droma used it, disguised as a smuggler, to infiltrate the Krath. (DLS)

Ket
this desert world was the home planet of the Ketton race. (AE)

Ket Krax
this Troob was the son the General Krax and his wife, Stigrit Krax. In secret, he was in love with the Hobor, Larka Nimondro, despite generations of hostility between their two peoples. When Jake Harthan attempted to disrupt the peace talks between the two races in order to gain control of Mount Yeroc, he murdered Ket and framed Larka for the crime. (DRPC)

Ket Maliss
this Dashade "shadow killer" is a bounty hunter working for Prince Xizor. He is a thick-bodied humanoid with smooth, dark skin. He has small, beady eyes set in a wrinkled face, and his lipless mouth is filled with sharp fangs. Among his greatest achievements for Black Sun was the extermination of the Disac pirate gang, which had been plaguing Sprax's operations along the Sisar Run. Maliss was also the last of the Dashade species, and was the last of the cryogenically-preserved killers maintained by Xizor's family. (CCG, SSR)

Keta
Zothip's Togorian first mate, Keta had joined the Cavrilhu Pirates shortly before the rise of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (DFRSB)

Ketal
this planet was the site of an Alliance base that was compromised by the Xucphra corporation. Xucphra leaked the location to the Empire, which promptly destroyed the base. (SWAJ)

Ketaris

Kete
a large, dragon-like insect. (ECAR)

Kether, Ran
this man, a native of the planet Chandrila, served in Rogue Squadron as Rogue Seven, during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. He served as the squadron's communications officer. (SOC)

Kethren Systems
this was one of the largest buyers of spin-sealer tibanna gas from Cloud City during the height of the New Order. (GG2)

Keto
this burly, dark-skinned man served the Alliance as a Corvette pilot, and was stationed at Eyrie Base with Stevan Makintay. (SWJ8)

Keto, Satal
a member of the Tetan Elite, Satal Keto and his cousin, Aleema, were drawn to the Dark Side energies that were present in the galaxy some 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. They formed the Dark Side worshippers known as the Krath. They were drawn to the Dark Side so fully that they crossed the galaxy to Coruscant, where they entered the Galactic Museum and stole a number of Sith manuscripts and artifacts. They then traveled to Onderon, in an effort to learn more about the artifacts from the Naddists there. Satal was shown how to use the Sith artifacts by King Ommin, who was later killed by the spirit of Freedon Nadd. Nadd's spirit then chose Satal and Aleema to be his new living emmissaries, providing them with Sith swords. The two returned to the Tetan star system, where they overthrew the Carbonite Mining Guild with help from the Dark Jedi and the military just before the Great Sith War. He and Aleema froze their parents in carbonite after they overtook the guild. When Ulic Qel-Droma infiltrated the Krath in an effort to eradicate the Sith warriors, Satal poisoned him with Sith drugs in order to keep the Jedi from turning on the Krath. However, the poison only focused Ulic's powers, and in a pitched lightsaber duel, Aleema tells Ulic that it was Satal who ordered the attack on Deneba which killed Master Arca. Ulic's fury rose even higher, and he killed Satal before turning on the Jedi. (FNU, DA, DLS)

Ketrann
a huge carnivore with four long fangs, the ketrann was native to Alk'lellish III. Ketrann fed on the herding metarshi, leaping onto its prey with powerful hind legs and taking it down with several quick bites. (TB, TBSB)

Kett
1) this man was the Captain of the Admiral Korvin, and served the Trade Federation for many years before being assigned to the task force Wilhuff Tarkin dispatched to Zonama Sekot. Kett's record showed that he had participated in some of the Trade Federation's most heinous military actions, a fact that he was at once proud of and worried about. He chafed at the prospect of being assimilated or forcibly retired when the Old Republic took control of the Trade Federation's fleet, in the aftermath of the Battle of Naboo. (RP)
2) this young Corellian man served under Urias Xhaxin as a sensor operator aboard the Free Lance. (PP)

Kettch
this was the name of a non-existent Ewok who applied for a position in Wraith Squadron. He was originally the creation of Wes Janson, who tried to pull a fast on one Wedge Antilles. Wedge vowed to get revenge, but Kettch took on a life of his own. He continually showed up in the cockpit of Wedge's X-Wing when he least expected it, and served as the squadron's unofficial mascot until the Wraiths became pirates in order to attract the attention of Warlord Zsinj. When the Wraiths were chosen to assist in the stealing of the Razor's Kiss, Wedge used the stuffed dummy of Kettch to hide his own identity, and Kettch quickly became one of the best pilots in the Hawk-bat pirate squadron. When word leaked out that the Hawk-bats had an Ewok pilot, Zsinj suspected that he had escaped from the Binring Biomedical facilty's Epsilon Wing along with Voort saBinring. This vexed him, and forced him to move the facility from Saffalore to a position on the Iron Fist for security reasons. (WS, IF, SOC)

Kettch's Drill
this starfighter maneuver, developed by Wraith Squadron, was designed to gain surprise whenever a squadron was opposed by two or more waves of enemy starfighters. Instead of swinging around and engaging the first wave of enemies in a dogfight, the drill involved the squadron plowing straight through to the second wave, taking as many of the first wave as possible in the fly-by. The dogfighting would then begin with the second wave survivors, and would eventually collect the remaining ships from the first wave. (IF)

Kettemoor
this New Republic Sacheen-class light escort vessel was part of the fleet sent, under the command of Pakkpekatt, to intercept the Teljkon vagabond at Gmir Askilon. After the mission failed to secure the vagabond, the Kettemoor was used to transport the injured and dying crew of the Kuari to Nichen, after the vagabond fired on the other ship and fled. (SOL)

Ketton
this nomadic race of insectile humanoids was native to the planet Ket. They were quite peaceful, but their physical form gave them a fearsome appearance. Ketton stood nearly two meters in height, and their bodies were covered with a tan-colored exoskeleton. Despite their insectile appearance, Kettons were mammals. They had two large fangs at the end of their faces, which were only used for feeding. The Ketton believed that to use the fangs in combat would soil their beings. (AE)

Keturah's Point
named for Keturah Ambar, this was the highest point located on Orane Mountain, on the planet Neftali. It provided visitors with an uniterrupted view of the planet's icy landscape. (BSS)

Ketwol
this Pacithhip scout spent much of his downtime talking to spacers and travelers at cantinas, such as the one in Mos Eisley, gathering information he needs to locate new worlds. He traveled the galaxy on a starship known as the Herd Mother. (CCG9, MTSE)

Kever, Alroy
this human was the commander of Alarik X's personal guard. Kever was a member of the King's Own Guard battalion assigned to watch over and guard the empeth crystals growing in the Crystal Valley of Lazerian IV. Harvested crystals were stored in his house, under a special security detail. (TSK)

Kevron
this is the smallest of Algara II's four moons. It was the site of an astronomical research station. (PG2)

Kewafi
this plant, native to the planet Joralla, produced brilliant blue blooms. It also produced poisonous barbs instead of leaves, and it could literally fire these barbs at a creature which came too close to it. (PG1)

Kexeerian Blasters Technology
this weapons manufacturer was headquartered on Algara II. (PG2)

Key Card
a card-shaped device which is coded to allow entrance to a room or passage. (LCJ)

Key of the Overpeople
an ancient artifact that has been traced to the Sharu, the Key is a golden implement shaped like a fork. To the human eye, it appears to be continually changing its aspect, which tends to cause headaches if viewed for too long. The fork seems to have anywhere from two to four tines, depending on when you view it. It was found in a museum outside of the Rafa System, and was recovered by Rokur Gepta. He believes that the Key is a tool to be used to activate the Mindharp. The Key has gone by many names throughout history: The Fabled Key of the Sharu, The Opener of Mysteries, The Illuminator of Darkness, Shower of the Way, The Means to The End. The actual purpose of the Key was to allow the Bearer to enter the great pyramid on Rafa V, and begin the journey toward the Mindharp. No door actually opens; rather, the Bearer is allowed to pass through the pyramid's structure and enter the "dream without sleep." This dream shows the Bearer the history of the Sharu and, eventually, the Mindharp. (LCM)

KeyBed
this musical instrument resembled a piano with black, green, and white keys. (TFE)

Keydon
a Dimok shuttle operative during the Sepan Civil War. It was used to transport Dimok diplomats to Sepan 8 for negotiations with the Ripoblus in which they agreed to fight together against the Empire. (TIE)

Keyhole
codename of a group of Alliance deepspace probes destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Keyis, Dar
this New Republic starfighter pilot was a member of Rogue Squadron. A native of the planet Churba, he had just eight combat missions under his belt before being assigned to the Rogues, to help fill a position left empty after the Malrev Incident. Keyis was killed at the Battle of Brentaal. (XWES, XWFT)

Keyn
1) a carnivore native to the Gontzol System, the keyn is known for its ability to track its prey over long distances. (ISB)
2) this was the alias used by Wurth Skidder, after he allowed himself to be captured by the Yuuzhan Vong on Gyndine and brought aboard the Creche'. (JE)

Keyorin
the small-time crimelord Drebble had a base on this planet, from which he tried to capture Lando Calrissian. During a confrontation on the planet between Bossk, IG-88, Han Solo, Chewbacca, and Calrissian, the bounty hunters were defeated and Calrissian escaped. Because of the large population of bounty hunters, both native and transient, Keyorin became known as the "Hunter's World." (EGC, OE)

Keysshi
this was the ancient Twi'leki ceremony of History. Rumors had it that a wondrous crystal skull was carved from the crystallized ashes of a fallen Twi'leki hero, and was used to preside over the ceremonies which maintained clan history. (SWJ12)

Kez-Iban
the name assumed by Mon Julpa after his memory was stolen by Zatec-Cha. (DCAR)

KGDefender
this KonGar ion engine was designed for military use. (EGV)

Khabarakh
a member of the Noghri clan Kihm'bar and thirdson of the clan maitrakh, Khabarakh was the only survivor of Noghri commando team 22, which sent to Kashyyyk to eliminate Princess Leia. However, his encounter with Leia led him to reconsider his loyalty to the Empire. He spent nearly a month on Kashyyyk before returning to Honoghr, which drew the attention of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Throughout the struggle between Thrawn and the New Republic, Khabarakh supported Leia and her family, and eventually became a bodyguard of sorts for her. After the death of Thrawn, he returned to his planet to help rebuilt it. (HTTE, DFR, DFRC)

Khaddar, Ob
this outspoken radical at Alderaan University was a native Alderaanian grass painter who wass most famous for a painting he did to commemorate the arrival of Emperor Palpatine on Alderaan. He worked alone, allowing no one to interfere with his vision. When the spring rains soaked the painting, it blossomed with color and life, depicting the Emperor as a benevolent ruler. However, when Palpatine arrived to look at the grass painting, Ob Khaddar's final stroke was revealed. On the very day Palpatine arrived, black lilies began to bloom while the other colored flowers began to wither and die. The painting seen by the Emperor was of a withered, ugly monster, and Palpatine was outraged and ordered the entire painting burned. By the time Palpatine arrived, though, Khaddar had already fled the planet. He carries a death mark on his head, but has never been found. (ISU)

Khakraim
this Noghri, a member of the Hakh'khar clan, was part of the team which worked for the New Republic at the safehouse it established in New Nystao, on Wayland. (HT)

Khal, Rastus
according to Crev Bombassa, this legendary fictional Corellian was always able to make time to meet with those individuals who intrigued him. (VOF)

Khamp, Melvor
this man was a native of Derilyn, and worked at the Imperial shipyards near Sluis Van during the Galactic Civil War. When he learned of the Sixty Hour War and the destruction of the city of Paran, he learned that his family had been killed in the assault. He was granted emergency leave to return to Derilyn, and defected to the underground resistance on Derilyn. He later joined the Friends of Paran, in an effort to inspire the natives of Derilyn to fight back against the Empire (OE).

Khana
this was a Cerean term for a one-to-one battle that would decide the leadership of a group or band. (PTR)

Khar Delba
this huge, rocky world was the site of Naga Sadow's decoy base, during the power struggle which erupted following the death of Marka Ragnos. (GAS)

Khar Shian
this moon of Khar Delba was tide-locked in its orbit around the planet. Thus, one side was perpetually turned away from the planet. It was on this moon that Naga Sadow had built his primary fortress. (GAS)

Kharr
this ancient Cathar wiseman was sought out by Sylvar when she returned to her homeworld, after nearly inciting a Twi'lek clan war following the Exis Convocation. Kharr was not a Jedi, but could see that Sylvar was wrong in placing her aggression on Ulic Qel-Droma. Kharr urged her to go on a blood hunt and find her true enemy. (TOJR)

Khasaan'I
an Old Corellian greeting used on the planet Socorro. (BSS)

Khasva
a species of fish native to the planet Calamari, they were considered a delicacy when fried. (WSV)

Khe-Jeen Slee
this male Issori joined the New Republic X-Wing group Rogue Squadron just before the Battle of Bilbringi, but was killed during the attempt to gather data on the moon Distna. Ysanne Isard's clone had learned of the New Republic's attempt to locate Pulsar Station, and used the information in her bid to eliminate Rogue Squadron. She dispatched Prince-Admiral Krennel's forces to Corvis Minor Five, where they ambushed the reconnaissance team. (IR)

Kheedar
this minor world, deep in the Outer Rim Territories, was the site of a number of hydrocarbon processing facilities. It was subjugated by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Kheilwar
this was the Defel name for the homunculus-wasp of Af'El. (SWJ14)

Khelter
this unit of measurement was used on the planet Socorro to indicate a distance of one kilometer. (BSS)

Kherkhaman
this was the largest of the Kriek tribes, inhabiting the entire continent of Dekok on the plane Kriekaal. (SWJ13)

Khi'r
a leaf-eating creature native to Rishi. (SWAJ)

Khil
an ancient race that joined the Old Republic millenia ago, the Khil are humanoids characterized by their unique facial structure. Their large heads are hairless, and seem to lack jaws. Just below their noses is a mass of fleshy tendrils known as hullepi. These strands of flesh are among the most important organs in the Khil body, as they are used for eating, drinking, breathing, and communication. The hullepi are used to breathe the air of their home planet, Belnar. As a by-product of breathing, the hullepi strain microscopic proteins and moisture from the air. This serves as the Khil's food. Any waste products thus ingested are expelled by sneezing. They can also absorb liquids through the hullepi, prefering juices to supplement the airborne proteins they consume. By breathing through hullepi of various sizes, the Khil can also communicate, via a series of musical whistles and songs. A dedicated and driven race, the Khil have been members of the Old Republic for longer than anyone could remember. They spread throughout several colony worlds and systems after discovering the ability to travel through space. When Palpatine instituted the New Order, the Khil were outraged and appalled. They worked to support the Alliance in any way possible, with an eye for subtlety. (GG12)

Khiss
this Dug worked for Sebulba, helping to traffick the slaves that the podracer bought and sold on the side. Khiss was known among the less-reputable of the galaxy's wealthy for his ability to obtain rare or unusual slave species, such as Ghostlings. Khiss was killed when he was eaten by a deneba bush in Gardulla the Hutt's hidden underground oasis. Khiss had been working with Sebulba to recapture the Ghostlings, as well as Pala Kwi'teksa and Anakin Skywalker. Pala lured Khiss close to the bush, which struck with blinding speed and cpatured Khiss before he could scream out a warning. (E1A5, E1A7)

Kho Nai
this is the homeworld of the Khotta. (BTS)

Khoan
an alien race noticeable by their size, the average Khoan is shorter than a human but weighs twice as much as a Wookiee. Their yellow skin covered rolls of blubber, and they had a spiked dorsal fin along their back. A ring of bony spikes ringed their necks like a collar. (JH)

Khoehng
this Old Corellian word means “king.” (SWJ8)

Khoehng Heights
located some five kilometers outside the settlement of Kovit, on the planet Trulalis, Khoehng Heights was named for the first play ever performed in its outdoor theater, Uhl Eharl Khoehng. The theater had been constructed in the side of a mountain. By the end of the Old Republic, the Heights had become overgrown from abandonment and neglect, although the theater itself remained largely intact. (SWJ8)

Kholes
this world was a strong supporter of the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. However, it was razed by the Imperial starfleet for its sympathies. (CSWEA)

Kholm-grass
the only plant that manages to survive on Honoghr, though it has been altered from its original form by the Empire to prohibit the growth of other plant species. (DFR)

Khomm
the homeworld of Dorsk 81 and his race, Khomm is located in a star system near the galactic Core. The planet's inhabitants and their society remained unchanged for thousands of years, since they felt that they had achieved perfection. This led to the cloning of "perfect" individuals, and the society evolved into a stagnant group of repetitive clones. They lead uneventful lives, which is often fine with them. Any members of the society who want to do something unusual are shunned, much as Dorsk 81 was. The planet is a technological world, crisscrossed with grid-like cities laid out according to pattern. Admiral Daala chose Khomm as one of her first points of attack following her unification of the Imperial warlords' fleets, primarily because her plans for attacking Yavin 4 were overheard by Kyp Durron on Dorsk 81, who fled to Khomm because it was the only location plotted in their navicomputer. Cronus' fleet of Victory-class Star Destroyers laid waste to the planet in no time, due to the lack of planetary defense. (DA, DS)

Khoss
this young member of the Knylenn family from the planet Kuat was highly ambitious, and longed to take control of Kuat Drive Yards. He went so far as to kill his family’s elder and preserve the body in an elaborate life-support system. This allowed Khoss to effectively control the family’s business without having to prove his abilities. His plans came to a head shortly before the Battle of Endor, after his network of spies had gathered information on Kuat of Kuat and his dealings. He claimed that Kuat’s behind-the-scenes actions were treacherous and self-centered, and that the leader of KDY was only working his own best interests. Kodir of Kuhlvult supported Kuat in the debate, and helped expose Fenald as a traitor as well as Khoss' deception with his elder's body. However, this entire episode fell into Kodir's plans to wrest control of KDY from Kuat, but her plans were also exposed and defeated. (SLS)

Khotta
an alien race native to the planet Kho Nai. The Khotta were similar to the Donadi in that they could alter their preception of the world around them to see within pictures and images. (BTS)

Khotta Mind-print
this form of art was created by the alien Khotta. The Khotta could alter their perception of the art and see beyond the surface to an image hidden within it. (BTS)

Khoz'zhak
this ancient Gree device was discovered by Corellia Antilles and her survey crew in the jungles of Asation. It was part of a cache maintained by a tribe of feral Gree. and Antilles managed to take it. She was forced to hide it in some ruins after being pursued by the Gree, and she then hired a small team to retrieve it. They were intercepted by a delegation of Gree from Te Hasa, who negotiated the return of the device for a large sum of credits and a lesser Gree device. The exact nature of the Kho'zhak's abilities was never discovered. (SWJ8)

Khra Shuttle
this small personnel transport was used by the Noghri, in the years after they were liberated from Imperial slavery by Leia Organa-Solo. (VOF)

Khrassh
this region of the planet Escabar was known as a trade center. (COG)

Khuiumin
primary planet in the Khuiumin system, and home to the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates. (SWSB)

Khuiumin 4
see Courkrus. (IJ)

Khuiumin Survivors
this pirate group was formed form the remains of the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates who survived the attack of the Bombard and the Crusader. Their de facto leader was Jacob Nive. They eventually left Khuiumin System and took up residence on Nal Hutta, and later joined the Invid pirate fleet assembled under Leonia Tavira. They then moved back to Khuiumin, establishing a base on Courkrus. They vowed to get revenge on the two captains of the Imperial Star Destroyers. (IJ)

Khuiumin System
a section of the galaxy which was the base for the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates during the early days of the New Order. They were wiped out by an attack initiated by the Empire. (SWSB)

Khurgee
this Imperial Captain served on the Thunderflare. He was honored for rescuing five fellow officers from the wreckage of a shuttle crash on the Star Destroyer. He was promoted, and assigned to docking bay security officer duty on the first Death Star. He was on duty when the Millennium Falcon was captured in the Alderaan System. (CCG2)

Khwir
this Twilek served as Urias Xhaxin's navigator and first mate aboard the Free Lance. (DTO, PP)

Khzrry
once one of the most respected of Xi'Dec families, the Khzrry family was nearly wiped out while vacationing aboard the Savage Pleasure. They were killed when Imperial forces assassinated Mael Sidras. The only survivors were Diskio and K'lial Khzrry. (CRO)

Ki-Adi-Mundi
this Jedi Knight was a member of the Cerean race. Trained by Yoda since the age of four when he was discovered by the Dark Woman, he spent twenty-one years learning the way of the Jedi. After being given the title of Jedi Knight, Ki had considerable power in manipulating the Force by the time he returned home on his first mission, to free his people from the grip of Bin-Garda-Zon and his rogues. This task he managed to accomplish without bloodshed as the old and weak Bin-Garda was unable to maintain his control of the rogues in the face of Ki's ability to best their leader. Several more years of working as a Jedi Knight brough Ki a good deal of influence within the ranks of the Jedi. However, he found he had little influence on his homeworld. Like most of the older generation, Ki-Adi-Mundi wanted to do away with unnecessary technology, while the younger generation wanted speeder bikes and starships. As a generation war erupted on Cerea, Ki-Adi-Mundi was caught in the middle when his daughter, Sylvn, was found to be a friend of Maj. He pursued the techrats at the behest of the Cerean council of elders, and eventually traced the imports of technology to Ephant Mon, Jabba the Hutt, and the Trade Federation. He was forced to abandon his search on Tatooine, after rescuing Sylvn and Twin from an ion storm which masked the escape of Mon and Jabba. Upon returning to Cerea, he was met with two welcome revelations: first, that his bond-wife Shea was pregnant; and second, that he had been nominated for a seat on the Jedi Council. His inclusion in the Jedi Council was unique in that, at the time, he was the only Jedi Knight on the council, while all other members were Jedi Masters. Nevertheless, his wisdom and calm demeanor were welcomed on the Council. His first mission for the Council was to travel to Tatooine and locate Sharad Hett. He later was influential in the decisions made regarding the testing and training of Anakin Skywalker. He used a purple-

bladed lightsaber. Ki-Adi-Mundi was portrayed by Silas Carson in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (PTR, SW1, IG1, SWO)

Kiam
an Imperial freighter group that was assigned to deliver hyperdrive repair supplies to the disabled starship Intrepid. The group was destroyed in a raid by Alliance X-Wings, led by Keyan Farlander. (XW)

Kian, Kin
this man was an Alliance starfighter pilot who was a veteran of Aggressor Wing squadron before being recruited into Rogue Squadron. During the Battle of Endor, he served as Colonel Salm's gunner. (CCG11)

Kian'thar
a large, well-muscled humanoid race native to the planet Shaum Hii. The head of a Kian'thar is studded with a pair of large breather tubes and several small, tentacular appendages above its eyes and below its mouth. They are aquatic reptiles, evolved from land-based creatures to live in the oceans. Their skin is formed from a number of tough, scale-like plates that protect it like armor. They are a highly perceptive race, able to detect the emotions of others around them. The Kian'thar travels the oceans of Shaum Hii on bentails, herding the native derlacs as a source of food. Their technology level is therefore below the galactic norm, but this has not bothered the Kian'thar. The location of Shaum Hii has kept the Kian'thar separated from much of the galaxy until about 300 years before the Galactic Civil War, when a Shistavenan exploration group discovered them while charting the sector. The Kian'thar have been divided over how strongly to embrace galactic culture, but the feud has been minor as the Kian'thar are - as a race - content with their lots in life. The Kian'thar have a complex series of familial and leige relationships that are nearly impossible for offworlders to decipher. Among the more unusual aspects is the social requirement which forces fertilized eggs to be passed down through three generations of unrelated, affiliated clans before birth. (GG12, SLS)

Kibbick
this young Hutt was a member of the Besadii clan, and was the nephew of Zavval and Aruk. When Zavval was killed during Han Solo's escape from Ylesia, Aruk installed Kibbick in his place as manager of the spice processing centers on Ylesia. At the time, Kibbick was still able to move under his own power. For all intents and purposes, Kibbick was a figurehead, barely capable of understanding the business of spice and slaves. When Aruk was killed by Teroenza and clan Desilijic, Kibbick remained in charge of the Ylesian enterprise, although he was despised by his cousin, Durga. Teroenza, bolstered by his dealings with clan Desilijic, killed Kibbick himself by ramming the Hutt with his horn, then shooting Kibbick with a blaster to disguise the wounds. Teroenza then blamed Kibbick's death on Red Hand Squadron, even though they were across the galaxy at the time. Durga used this piece of information to begin his plans for retribution against Desilijic. (THG, RD)

Kibilini Sector
this was an area of the Outer Rim. (GG11)

Kibilini Smugglers' Guild
this small smuggler's alliance was formed by the independent shippers of the Kibilini Sector during the end of the New Order. It faltered and nearly went out of business when Parmella Trillidor vacated the Guild's leadership position to start the Anavill Smuggler's Guild. (GG11)

Kibla
this leafy vegetable is hated by most young children. (CSA)

Kibnon
an insectile alien race of green-shelled, mantis-like creatures who are related to the Verpine. The average Kibnon grows to be three meters in height. (GG7, TME)

Kibo Flower
a rare purple flower that is collected by Baji on Yavin Four, its seeds have been rumored to restore sight to the blind. It has a strong, sweet fragrance. Baji is working to preserve it. (LCJ)

Kibshae brandale
an interstellar spirit. '48 was a good vintage. (DFR)

Kich
this large planet is the second world in the Rannon System. It is too close to the star Rannon to support life. (WBC)

Kichicolia
this species of harmless, herbivorous primates was discovered by the Imperial Zoological Agency during its survey of the planet Najarka. They have thick, long fur which is primarily white with black markings around the eyes. They have prehensile fingers and toes, and their long tail is covered with long white fur. They communicate in a series of loud, trilling squawks. Emperor Palpatine had a number of the kichicolia exported for display in his own gardens on Coruscant and Kailor V. (TA)

Kichiir
this Wookiee was a member of the underground resistance in Rwookrrorro, serving under Katarra. Kichiir later joined the Alliance, and proved to be a valuable field agent. It was Kichiir's team which rescued Xenon Nnaksta from the bounty hunter Ssach'thirix on Pii 3, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (RD, AIR)

Kicking the Rancor
this was an Imperial phrase used to describe any foolish stunt in which the risks vastly outweighed the gains. (VOF)

Kid Dxo'la
this balding smuggler lived in the Smuggler's Run, and claimed to be a friend of Han Solo. In fact, it was Kid who first took Han through the Kessel Run. However, after Solo became a vital part of the Alliance, Kid became invovled with Nandreeson, and eventually went to work for the Glottalphib crimelord. When Solo suddenly reappeared on the Run, Kid and his companions Zeen Afit, Wynni, and Sinewy Ana Blue attempted to lure Solo into their confidences. Their machinations were revealed to Solo during a series of encounters. Kid was killed in the firefight on Skip 6, during which Han Solo attempted to rescue Lando Calrissian. (TNR)

Kidriff 5
this planet, the fifth of twelve worlds in the Kidriff System was occupied by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It was strategic for two reasons: first, it was a wealthy trade depot world along several hyperspace routes; second, its natural resources included several heavy alloys which were used to improve the strength and durability of TIE Fighter hulls. After the Battle of Endor, the system was usurped by the Warlord Zsinj, and represented the furthest point Coreward that his influence extended. The governing body of the planet chose to build it up in the image of Coruscant, so much of the planet is covered by gleaming cityscapes. However, the planet's cities are relatively new compared to Coruscant's, and so the atmosphere is still clear. The Imperial forces there relaxed much of their security measures in order to increase the trade flowing through Kidriff 5's ports. (SOC)

Kidron
this is the primary planet in the Kidron System, located in the Elrood Sector. It is the homeworld of the Orfite race, but has become a sort of haven for criminals and convicts. It is a hot, damp world that is covered with jungles and oceans. Its day lasts 20 standard hours, and its year lasts 276 local days. (PG3)

Kidron Silk
a wondrous fabric produced on the planet Kidron during the height of the New Order. (OE)

Kie'hintack
this Imperial Governor controlled the Veron System during the Galactic Civil War. (PG1)

Kiela
this female Devaronian was mated with Tosha. She died several years before the Battle of Yavin, but not before leaving Tosha with two daughters. (COG)

Kieler
a blue and yellow-striped fish species native to Calamari. (DA)

Kier Dom
this is one of the many aliases used by Lirin Banolt. (XWBT)

Kierra
this battered YT-1300 light freighter was owned by Thaddeus Ross. He had installed a sophisticated computer system in the ship, which he could operate via vocal commands. The computer's vocabulator adopted a feminine aspect, and became simply known as Kierra. She was a nagging yet loyal companion to Rose, who threatened to unplug her when she became overbearing. (TFE)

Kieth Cairn
this individual was severely injured after a visit to Dr. Evazans Cutting Edge boutique in Mos Eisley. (GG7)

Kiffex
the planet on which the Tonnika Sisters were raised. It was also here that they perfected their unscrupulous morals. (MTS)

Kiffu, Senni
the name Mara Jade uses to escape the stormtroopers at Hyllyard City (HTTE)

Kiffu
this near-human race was native to the planet Kiffex. (EGC)

Kihm'bar
Khabarakh's clan on Honoghr, Kihm'bar was led by Ir'khaim in they years following the Battle of Endor. (DFR)

Kiidan
a city on Cilpar. (XWRS)

Kiili
one of the two women Chewbacca befriends at the spas on Rudrig. (HSL)

Kiilimaar
this planet was supposed to be the site where Rneeki pirates would ransom an Imperial scientist back to the Empire. The scientist, an important link in the development of the TIE Defender, was rescued by the Empire. (TIE)

Kiirium
a very common metal used in the formation of artificial shielding, kiirium is transported in large ingots for smelting. Xim the Despot, realizing the need to kiirium to help protect his forces, had planned to stockpile kiirium in his vaults on Dellalt. Thus, the Queen of Ranroon was loaded with kiirium when it was hidden on Dellalt. When Han Solo discovers the starship, he finds that the rumored treasure of Xim was really just a vast supply of military supplies. (HSL)

Kiju Mnuue
this Herglic was at one time the leader of the Guild of Non-Human Skilled Laborers, working at the Tallaan Imperial shipyards for many decades during the New Order. He was a skilled zero-gee welder, cargo inspector, and job foreman, and was instrumental in the formation of the Guild of Non-Human Skilled Laborers. He was also a member of the local Alliance cell on Tallaan, and was often in communication with the Mon Calamari and the Corellian Shipbuilders Unions regarding new Imperial designs. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, Kijo was in charge of the shipyards' environmental controls, managing the operation of the life support systems throughout the facilities. (CRO)

Kil, Kenix
this was the alias used by Kir Kanos to infiltrate Grappa the Hutt's organization. Kenix Kil was a bounty hunter, easily distinguished by his yellow and black armor. Kil's fingerprints had been removed - more to protect Kanos' identity than Kil's - and his helmet contained special voice filters that inhibited any kind of voice printing or vocal identification. After Zee Ethda failed to recover Tarrant Snil, Grappa hired Kenix to do the job. Kenix quickly dispatched Snil's bodyguards and easily captured the customs officer. Kil expressed a distrust of Mirith Sinn, in keeping with his bounty hunter persona. Inside, Kanos was taking every precautioin to avoid her discovering his true identity. (CE2)

Kilandran Royal Forces
see Kinlandrin Royal Forces. (PP)

Kile
one of the moons orbiting the planet Zhar, Kile was a world rich in minerals. It was here that Rogue Squadron set up a launchpad for its attack on the moon Gall. Kile orbits wuite close to Zhar, and as a result, Kile's atmosphere is bombarded with magnetic interference. This made the planet somewhat inhospitable as a mining outpost, but it helped hide the Alliance's forces during their staging operation. (SE, SESB)

Kile II
this planet was the site of an Imperial Enclave, which governed the Imperial presence in the sector during the Galactic Civil War. Much of the planet is dominated by canyons and huge pits, evidence of intense seismic activity. (RSG)

Kiles L'toth
this Dornean was the New Republic's associate director of the Astrogation Survey Institute about twelve years after the Battle of Endor. Kiles had previously served with Etahn A'baht in the Dornean Navy. Kiles tried to help A'baht by sending the Astrolabe into the Farlax Sector to scout out the Yevetha. After Etahn A'Baht was relieved of his duties, L'toth was promoted to commander of the Fifth Fleet. (BTS, HT)

Kiliad Marble
Jabba the Hutt's throne on Tatooine was carved from this beautiful stone. (MTS)

Kilit
this species of Zelosian raptor can grow to over a meter in length, and have a wingspan of two meters or more. They are covered with short, oily, black hair. They have beady eyes and razor-sharp beaks. The kilits swoop down on their prey, latching on with their beaks and holding on with their talons. The kilit them drains its victim's bodily fluids. The species was named when a Zelosian, under attack by one of the creatures, shouted "kill it!" to his companions. (PG2)

Killaniri
this gas giant is the primary planet in the Killaniri System, and is the source of the prothium gas refined on Mutanda. Killaniri had fifteen moons, and measured some 154,000 kilometers in diameter. Much of the planet's resources were owned or controlled by BlasTech Corporation or Czerka Weapons, which maintained floating refineries in the planet's atmosphere. (PG1)

Killball
this was the term used by biologists to describe the roiling mass of slashrats that attack a single target. The slashrats use their long bodies and surround their prey in a large mass, tearing the prey apart in minutes. (DTO)

Killik
a creature once native to the planet Alderaan, the killiks lived in the in towering cities they built one the plains. The killiks were human-sized aliens that had a hive mind but no apparent technology. They built their castle-like buildings out of the natural elements found on Alderaan, and formed them mound upon mound to create a complex series of living, eating, and egg-laying grottoes. They apparently decorated their rooms with brilliant, complex mosaics of stones and pebbles. However, for some unknown reason, the killiks died out long before humans ever settled the planet. They left behind their incredibly beautiful cities, which the human inhabitants of Alderaan left untouched for centuries. Exploration of the killik ruins revealed that the killik were four-armed insectoids with wicked, three-clawed hands. They also had two powerful legs that indicated the killik could jump long distances. (ISU)

Killscent
this form of pheromone-laden sweat is exuded by slashrats whenever they attack their prey. The scent attracts other slashrats to the prey, and often generates a feeding frenzy known as a killball. (DTO)

Kiltar
this was one of the traditional Tunroth weapons, and resembled a heavy staff. (SSR)

Kiltik
native to the planet Cathar, this species of insectoid creature was capable of laying waste to entire populations of lesser beasts and destroying entire ecosystems. For this reason, the Cathar hunted them regularly in an effort to maintain their civilization. They rested during the heat of the day, and came out a night to feed. The Kiltik had a rudimentary society, with drones doing the majority of the work to protect a queen. (TOJR)

Kiltirin*-class Dungeon Ship
this Rendili StarDrive starship was a scaled-down version of the Lictor-class dungeon ship, measuring 150 meters in length. It required a crew of 115, with 50 additional guards, and could carry up to 1,250 prisoners and 275 metric tons of cargo. It was armed with up to five quad turbolaser batteries and a single tractor beam projector. (AIR)

Kilwallen, Seni
this woman married Trig Kilwallen shortly before the Ssi-ruuk attacked the planet G'rho. Both Seni and Trig were good pilots, and joined the local militia in support of the G'rho Defene Force. They piloted Conjo starfighters in defense of G'rho, during the Ssi-ruuk subjugation of the planet. Seni and Trig fought in the defense of G'rho against the Ssi-ruuk, but the battle went poorly for the humans. Trig agreed to infiltrate the alien's base and cut an opening in its outer defenses, which would allow Seni to fly her Conjo fighter into the base and bombard it. Trig was successful, and Seni was able to get inside the base. However, the destruction she rained down on the base caused it to explode violently, and it was all she could do to fly free of the fireball. Her fighter's life support system could handle the high altitude she reached, and it was all she could do to put the fighter on autopilot before she passed out.. (TBSB)

Kilwallen, Trig
this man was the brother of Ydra Kilwallen Sibwarra, and a colonist on the planet G'rho. Like his sister, Trig was sensitive to the Force, and even trained briefly on Chandrila with her, but lacked her control. When Ydra fled to G'rho with her son, Dev, she hoped Trig would help them settle in and avoid Imperial notice. He managed to convince his Ilwizzt boss, Brco, to hire Ydra as the colony historian. Trig and his wife, Seni, were both pilots in the local division of the G'rho Defense Force. When the Ssi-ruuk invaded the planet Trig and Seni fought bravely with the rest of the Defense Force. After the main fleet left the system, Trig agreed to infiltrate the aliens' entechment center, a mission which had failed three times before. However, his sensitivity to the Force allowed him a measure of success. He managed to cut an entrance to the Ssi-ruuvi base, which allowed Seni to fly in and bombard the installation. Trig barely escaped the destruction of the base, but could not relocate his sister after her desparate flight to escape. (TBSB)

Kimanan
a planet which is the homeworld of the marsupial furballs. (HSE)

Kimm Systems
a group of planetary systems. (COJ)

Kin Kian
this Sullustan served as a Y-Wing gunner in Colonel Salm's Agressor Wing. Kin Kian flew with Telsij Cayr during the initial strike by the New Republic against Brentaal, but was killed when their fighter was shot down near Oradin. (XWES)

Kin'tya
this small blade was a traditional Kian'thar weapon, easily hidden in a boot or belt. (WSV)

Kinard
this Imperial Amry private was among the first soldiers to set foot on the planet Alluuvia. He was repulsed by his first sight of the Anguilla, and was suprised to find himself shooting at them for no apparent reason. The rest of his squadron followed suit. Within minutes, the water around their shuttle was filled with dead Anguilla bodies. (OE)

Kindelian
one of the major continents on the planet Dentaal. (SWAJ)

Kinderbubble
this is the name used to describe any Gungan bubble building dedicated to the education of young individuals. (GF)

Kiner
one of the last counterintelligence officers of the Old Republic, Admiral Kiner's name was preserved by Imperial officers who reversed the letters, calling themselves Renik. (ISB)

Kinesculpture
an artform that is constantly in motion. (RM)

Kinetite
a restrained-energy globe that can be generated through use of the Dark Side of the Force. Darth Vader generated one in an effort to destroy the then-untrained Luke Skywalker on Circarpous V, but Luke was able to deflect it and send it back at Vader. (SME)

Kinfarg
the leader of the Klagg Gamorrean stormtroopers on the re-activated Eye of Palpatine. He was in charge of the interrogation of Cray Mingla as an Alliance sympathizer. (COJ)

King's Galquek
this planet, located in one of the many Chorios systems, was infected with the Death Seed plague during Dzym's attempt to take control of the galaxy. (POT)

King's Own Guard
this is the name given to the military defense force which protects Alarik X, the King of Devit. (TSK)

Kinkosa City
this is the capital of the Kinkosa state of Kirtania. An Imperial supply station was built here during the Galactic Civil War, in an effort to control the traffic through the city's major starport. During the height of the New Order, the city experienced a sort of renaissance, and a great deal of rebuilding and restoration made the city appear more run-down than it truly was. (SWJ1)

Kinlandrin Royal Forces
one of the most famous Iotran military orders, they never engaged in battle on Iotra. The Kinlandrin force was consolidated into the Iotran Police Force. Note that Pirates and Privateers spells this group Kilandran. (GG12, PP)

Kinn, Shanna
a native of Dorriella, Shanna was the youngest of three children, and the only girl. She learned starship repair from her older brothers, but lost her family when the Empire took control of Dorriella. Her family was killed when Imperial forces raided a supposed Alliance cell, and Shanna was left to steal enough food and credits to survive as an orphan. She left Dorriella by stowing away on a starship, and made some shady contacts who needed a starship mechanic. She ended up on Trevi IV, and was stealing starship parts when she met Fiz Cor'gril. Fizzi recognized her potential, and signed her on to work with the Verpine Garginoolaara keeping his starships in good working order. Her underworld contacts provided her with a ready supply of slightly-used parts, a part of her work she kept secret from Fizzi. She had very few friends, aside from Fizzi and Gargi. (SWJ9)

Kinn-taas
this was the Jiivahar name for the seasonal gathering which involved great feasts. The Kinn-taas was held to redistribute foodstuffs to needy *talin*s of Jiivahar. Every Jiivahar was compelled by social obligation to give up as much of their possessions as they could afford, donating it to the leader of the talin in preparation for the feast. The leaders then distribute the bounty to all Jiivahar based on individual need. (AE)

Kinnet, Deena
this woman grew up on Coruscant, a stone's throw from the Senate chamber. Her wealthy family sent her to the best schools, where she earned a degree in medicine and eventually earned a doctorate in cosmetic surgery. She returned to Coruscant and established a successful office in view of the Imperial Palace, catering to the vain whims of Imperial officers. With the death of Emperor Palpatine at Endor, her business fell off sharply. She was approached by an Imperial agent who offered a position as an Imperial spy, performing surgeries throughout the Core while gathering information on the movements of the New Republic. She gladly accepted the offer, which included a YT-1300 transport modified to serve as her remote office and a Q-3PO droid. (HR)

Kinnison, Jimbo
a failed Jedi Knight. (RPG)

Kinsa Doroturo
this Twi'lek female was an academic and an anti-Hutt activist during the Galactic Civil War. She was convinced that Terman Station was actually an orbital weapons platform left over from the ancient days of Xim the Despot, and hoped to activate it and use it against the Hutts who controlled the Si'Klaata Cluster. (SSR)

Kintan
this planet is located in the heart of the Si'Klaata Cluster. Its turbulent history is evidenced by the existence of five unique races of Nikto, the primary sentient race on the planet. In an effort to survive on a planet with many vicious predators - incuding the huge strider, which no longer exists there - the various Nikto races destroyed much of the planet's natural environment. As a result, they rule Kintan. (CCG, SWAJ, GG12)

Kintaro
this Imperial Grand Moff was in charge of the Bajic Sector and the Vergesso Asteroids. When Xizor provided the location of an Ororo Transportation shipyards to Darth Vader, telling the Dark Lord the shipyards were run by the Alliance, Emperor Palpatine had Kintaro executed for failing to secure his sectors against Alliance invasion. (SE, SESB)

Kinun Depot
this refueling station was located in the Outer Rim. (AIR)

Kinyen
this planet is the homeworld of the three-eyes humanoid race of the Gran. (MTS)

Kip
the planet on which Zorba the Hutt was imprisoned for illegally mining gemstones, an operation which nearly bankrupted clan Desilijic. It is a damp, mud-ball of a world, riddled with caves and dungeons. It is inhabited by small, pygmy aliens, and was overtaken by a group of pirates. These pirates freed Zorba. (ZHR, RD)

Kir
a planet deep in the Corporate Sector, known for its vertex crystal mines. (CSA)

Kir Vantai
this blue-skinned Duros served the Alliance and, later, the New Republic, as a Naval officer. His competent command of starships allowed him to rise to the rank of Admiral, and was one of the New Republic's commanding officers during the struggle against Grand Admiral Thrawn. He maintained his position of command, controlling the flagship Moonshadow. (IR)

Kira
this star is the primary body in the Kira System, which is located between the Lazerian and Ropagi Systems. Its location was discovered by the Haik Expedition, which used it as a hyperspace anchor and connected the Enarc Run and the Harrin Trade Corridor via the Kira Run. (TSK)

Kira I
this was the first planet in the Kira System, discovered by an exploratory expedition during the height of the Old Republic. Republic ships returned to the system years later, only to find that the inner three planets, including Kira I, had been destroyed. No explanation was ever given, and the system was forgotten until the Haik Expedition used it to anchor the Kira Run. (TSK)

Kira II
this was the only habitable planet in the Kira System, discovered by an exploratory expedition during the height of the Old Republic. The planet was known as Kira Prime until Republic ships returned to the system years later. They found that the inner three planets, including Kira II, had been destroyed. The asteroid field which orbited Kira inside Kira IV was later renamed Kira Prime. No explanation was ever given, and the system was forgotten until the Haik Expedition used it to anchor the Kira Run. (TSK)

Kira III
this was the third planet in the Kira System, discovered by an exploratory expedition during the height of the Old Republic. Republic ships returned to the system years later, only to find that the inner three planets, including Kira III, had been destroyed. No explanation was ever given, and the system was forgotten until the Haik Expedition used it to anchor the Kira Run. (TSK)

Kira IV
the fourth planet in the Kira System, this is the only world to survive the unusual destruction which ripped through the system several millenia before the Galactic Civil War. The inner three planets were destroyed in an event which has never been explained. (TSK)

Kira Prime
this was originally the name of the second planet in the Kira System, until the inner three planets were mysteriously destroyed. Since then, the asteroid field created from the rubble has been known as Kira Prime. (TSK)

Kira Run
this hyperspace trade route connects the Lazerian and Ropagi Systems via the Kira System. It also links the Enarc Run with the Harrin Trade Corridor. It was discovered by the Haik expedition. It was a somewhat uncertain route, due to its remoteness, but it has been maintained by various small shipping companies. (TSK)

Kiran Tatch
this Tunroth Hunter was a member of the Granse Confederacy. As one of the few Tunroth to survive the Reslian Plague, he eventually achieved the rank of shturlan. Before joining the Granse Confederacy, Kiran Tatch worked as a skip-chaser, and was believed to have been on Jabba the Hutt's list of beings who had a chance to track down Han Solo and Chewbacca. However, Tatch preferred to take larger bounties closer to the Core Worlds, and worked for several prominent Hutt crimelords during the early years of the New Order. He was often teamed with Arcuse while in the employ of Glorga the Hutt, but Tatch grew tired and disdainful of the Hutts. In a daring display of bravado, Tatch spit on Glorga and then left the Hutt's employ, eventually signing on with Callandri just before the Battle of Hoth. (GG12, AIR)

Kirana Ti
a Singing Mountain clan witch from Dathomir, she eventually joined Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4. She quickly grew into one the most experienced Jedi, and was part of the team dispatched to Corbos. There, with the help of Streen, Kyp Durron, and Dorsk 82, she defeated the Leviathan of Corbos. (CPL, JS, JAL)

Kirby
this Alliance pilot was a well-liked, although somewhat cynical, Commander in the navy. (RA2)

Kirdo III
the desert homeworld of the Kitonak race, Kirdo is the third planet in its system. The planet is covered with white sand deserts, red mud plains, and yellow-orange hills. It is wracked by sandstorms and winds that can reach 400 kilometers an hour. (GG4)

Kirik-fly
this small insect is attracted to the heavy scent of the bantha. (TSK)

Kirima
this is the lone habitable planet in the Kalinda System. It was named for Kirima Kalinda, the mother of the system's discoverer, Jak Kalinda. The planet had abundant natural resources, and was colonized quickly after its discovery. The planet has a single moon. It orbits the star Kalinda once every 210 local days, which last and average of 35 standard hours. Note that Twin Stars of Kira often refers to this world as Karima. (TSK)

Kirl
1) a district of the planet Munto Codru. (CS)
2) the name of the Ambassador from the Kirl province. He chose to use the name Kirl in place of his given name, after he was appointed to the position. (CS)

Kirlian
a Codru-Ji native to the Kirl province of Munto Codru. (CS)

Kirrek
one of the seven primary planets in the ancient Koros System, which is now known as the Empress Teta system. When Empress Teta attempted to join the seven worlds of the Koros System into a single alliance united by commerce and aid, Kirrek was the world which resisted the hardest. Pirates and rebels on the planet ignored or attacked any contingent sent to discuss the alliance, and a civil war broke out that marked the final battles of the First Unification Wars. Teta petitioned the Old Republic to send help in quelling the battle, and the Jedi Knight Odan-Urr was dispatched to assist Memit Nadill in mediating the battle. Odan-Urr brought with him the concept of Jedi battle meditation, and together they were able to convince the rebels on Kirrek to surrender their arms long enough to negotiate a peace treaty. A thousand years later, Kirrek's three main cities were destroyed just before the Great Sith War, when they refused to submit to Satal Keto and Aleema. (DLS)

Kirtania
this fourth planet in the Yyrtan System was a green-blue world of jungles and deserts broken by mountains. It was the homeworld of the Araquia race of arachnids. Originally colonized by humans, the planet was been severely depleted of its natural resources by the mining and deforestation performed by various groups. The average day on Kirtania lasted 23 standard hours, while its year encompassed 369 local days. (SWJ1, AE)

Kisen Asteroid Belt
this was the innermost of the three asteroid belts which surrounded the star Isen. (PG1)

Kisheb, G.L.
this man served as a physician on the planet Londori, during the height of the New Order. (COG)

Kishh District
this Bakuran providence, located on the continent of Braad, was the native home of the Kurtzen. (TB, TBSB)

Kissh'daar
this was the largest of the three continents found on the planet Bakura. It was set aside by the Empire as living space for the native Kurtzen. (TBSB)

Kissh'tih Airspeeder
produced by Bakur RepulsorCorp, this six-meter-long speeder was designed to be cheap and reliable, and was marketed as a civilian transport. It was a basic transport, lacking sophisticated safety and personal comfort systems. The Kissh'tih could carry a pilot and up to three passengers, as well as 100 kilograms of cargo. It could attain speeds of 360 kilometers an hour, and had a flight ceiling of 100 meters. (TBSB)

Kiskin
a planet or city known for its small, crowded tenements. (COJ)

Kisquar
this Mrissi worked for the Nalroni crimelord Sprax as a an overseer to Sprax's various smuggling and salvage operations. A red-and-black plumed male, Kisquar was once a hijacker and smuggler himself, and his reputation eventually led to his employment with Sprax. Kisquar's reputation among smugglers allowed Sprax to hire some of the best pirates and spacers in the galaxy, since they all knew that Kisquar was not a flunky but "one of them." (SSR)

Kist
this man, a Captain in the Imperial Army, developed the original designs for the Class 1 Defense Unit. The Empire's own manufacturers rejected the idea, and Kist eventually sold it to Ulban Arms. (SWJ14)

Kite Creature
a large, graceful beast native to Alderaan. They could fly, and were used to ferry Alderaanians from one of their cities to another. (JS)

Kite Plant
native to Yavin 4, these unusual plants are often seen floating airborne above the treetop canopy. They are brightly colored, which makes them an easy target for avain herbivores. When kite plants are attacked, or when they bump into the tall Massassi trees, they release a storm of jewel-like spores which land in the canopy and eventually grow into new plants. (CCR)

Kitehawk
a purple-winged bird of prey native to Yavin 4. (BTS)

Kitel Phard
this world was the primary planet in the Atrisi System, and the seat of the famed Kitel Phard Dynasty. (ISB)

Kitel Phard Dynasty
a period of galactic peace and prosperity, before the birth of the Old Republic. It arose on the primary planet in the Atrisi System, and unified the entire planet. (XW, ISB)

Kith Kark
this ancient Gotal spent much of his young life tending the family farm, but never really found his calling. On a vacation trip to Truuine, Kith encountered a Jedi Knight for the first time. Kith realized that he was without a vocation, and decided to become a Jedi. Both he and the Jedi realized that Kith could touch the Force, and the Jedi allowed him to travel to the training compound of Master Mroon Jassa. The Master ignored Kith Kark's presence, sensing correctly that the Force had not called to the Gotal. Kith didn't understand the rejection, and returned to Antar 4 to learn all he could about the Jedi. He traveled back to Truuine several months later, and was again rejected. After more study, Kith finally understood that the Force wasn't something you just obtained, but rather an innate energy that calls you to it. After meditating on this, he traveled back to Truuine. There, Master Jassa realized that Kith finally had been called by the Force, and accepted Kith as a student. After Kith attained the rank of Jedi Knight, he went on to be trained by Master Vodo Siosk-Baas just prior to the Great Sith War. He was killed on Onderon, as part of the joint Jedi Knight-Old Republic force trying to eliminate the Naddists, when the Dark Side energies of their opponents drain the Light Side energy from their attack. (FNU, TOJC)

Kithaba
this famous Klatooinian assassin worked for Jabba the Hutt, although he had come to despise the killing and bloodshed. Shortly before the Hutt’s death, Kithaba had planned to escape from his servitude and become a musician. (CCG7)

Kithless
a predatory creature. (SL)

Kithra
a female Mistryl guard working for Mara Jade. (COTF)

Kitik Keed'kak
this female Yarn'nli was a quick-tempered, insectoid creature who inhabited Mos Eisley. (CCG)

Kitonak
a race of pudgy, white humanoids from the planet Kirdo III, these creatures have tough, leathery skin and can draw into their folds of skin and seal vulnerable body openings. This trait allows them to protect themselves from Kirdo's harsh desert environment. Their normal body temperature is 106 degrees. Their heads are msuhroom-shaped, and their eyes, nose, and ears, and mouth are hidden from view by folds of skin. The four stout fingers on each hand are extremely dexterous. Kitoanks are easy-going, patient creatures who rarley rush anything. This is a trait developed from hunting choobas on their homeworld. A Kitonak will stand motionless in the desert, pretending to be a sulfaro plant, until the chooba's congregate near them. When a chooba crawls onto the Kitonak and into their mouth, which resembles the cavities of the sulfaro, the Kitonak simply consumes the chooba. A single chooba can sustain a Kitonak for a standard month. Kitonaks do not walk in the normal sense of the word, because their feet are actually muscled pads which are studded with olfactory organs. To move, a Kitonak alternately expands and contracts the muscles in their feet, much like a snake. The feet also provide the Kitonak's sense of smell. (ROTJ, GG4, COJ)

Kitster
this nine-year-old boy was one of Anakin Skywalker’s best childhood friends. A resident of Mos Espa and a slave owned by Gardulla the Hutt, Kitster and Anakin had many adventures, when they weren’t working for their masters. Kitster was good at keeping secrets, and the biggest secret of all was that he knew who his father was. Kitster was four years old when he was captured when the ship owned by his father, Rakir Banai, was boarded by pirates. Kitster was portrayed by Dhruv Chanchani in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, TPM, IS1, E1A5)

Kiv Truun
this Yevethan Viceroy was killed by Nil Spaar, when Spaar began his bid for power. Eri Palle was instrumental in helping Spaar assassinate the Yevethan leader. (SOL)

Kiv'arwa
this Poss'Nomin was an explorer, who made a living as a scout for Rim Commercial Mining. (SWJ14)

Kiva
this planet was home to a race of beings known only as the Kivans. Borborygmus Gog and Mammon Hoole set up the first laboratory dedicated to Project Starscream on the planet, after receiving funding from Emperor Palpatine and the Imperial Science Division, where they experimented with the power of life and death. Although Hoole advised the Emperor that the project would utterly destroy all life on Kiva, it made little difference. The Kivans were wiped out when Borborygmus Gog ordered the continuation of Project Starscream, and the experiment itself was horribly wrong, killed everything on Kiva, including the Kivans. The planet itself was left a barren, rocky wasteland, and was haunted by the wraiths of the Kivans until Gog was killed by them shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GOF6)

Kivan
this was the race of beings native to the planet Kiva. They were a peaceful people, known in the surrounding systems as artists and architects. When Project Starscream was allowed to continue its experiments with the power of life, the project nearly destroyed the planet. It killed off all the Kivans, but they survived as disembodied wraiths. They believed that Mammon Hoole had been responsible for their deaths, but were later informed that it was Borborygmus Gog who ordered the project's continuation, in spite of the consequences for the Kivans. The wraiths killed Gog, and were able to finally die in peace. (GOF6)

Kiviett
this Imperial surveyor was second in command of Survey Team IX 3244-B, which scouted the Forest Moon of Endor as a possible location for the building of the second Death Star. He reported that the Ewoks were not as tame as they appeared, but his observations were wiped from the record by his commanding officer, Toss. Kiviett was reprimanded and sent down. (MTS)

Kiwip
a grass which can be prepared as food. (TJP)

KK-5
this was a model of blaster pistol produced by Imperial Munitions during the height of the New Order. (TBSB)

Kkekkrrg Rro
this is the Wookiee name for the Shadow Keepers, dangerous predators that live in the fourth level of Kashyyyk's biosphere. (TT, RD)

Kkkellerr
this city, found on the planet Kashyyyk, is located along the Rryatt Trail. It forms one endpoint of the trail, at the opposite end from Rwookrrorro. (TT)

Kkral'Nas
this Kian'thar was a noted Alliance operative. (GG12)

Kktkt
a planet in the Koornacht Cluster. (SOL)

KL-45
this was the model number of a hydraulic valve manufactured for use in cooling systems by SoroSuub. (IA)

KL-543
this model of engraving laser was produced by Opirus Personal Lasers. Its use of three fine laser beams made it useful whenever fine detail was required, and the KL-543 found widespread use among counterfeiters. (GG11)

KL-6T-LF7V/T
this is the full designation of the Alliance intelligence droid 6T-L. (TA)

Kl'aal
this Defel served aboard the FarStar as one of the ship's primary technicians. Kl'aal was also valuable for his scouting and reconnaissance skills, and got anxious when he didn't get a chance to roam in the wilds. During the FarStar's stop on Binaros during its search for Moff Sarne, Kl'aal picked up the spores of a feeder plant and brought them aboard the FarStar inadvertently. When Gorak Khzam defected from the crew, Kl'aal was promoted to the secruity team to backfill the Rodian's position. Despite the new role, Kl'aal grew more and more restless with the relentless - and sometimes boring - pursuit of Moff Sarne. (KO, KR)

Kl'ieutu Mutela
this ancient Vodran was responsible for linking the Vodrans to the Hutts. He is revered among all successive generations. (GG12)

Kla
one of several Caamasi maternal clans. (IJ)

Klaatu
1) a humanoid alien distinguished by its green skin and small facial horns. Their origins are not known, but they are often found working for Hutt crime bosses. (ROTJ, TOJ)
2) this kadas'sa'Nikto was known as a gambler and one of Jabba the Hutt's main assistants. He was in charge of the repulsor-pool, and was responsible for making sure that all the skiffs and barges were in good working order. He made sure that his schedule always allowed him to see Jabba's rancor get fed each day. (CCG7)

Klagg
a tribe of Gamorreans living on Pzob, they were enemies of the Gakfedd tribe. When the Eye of Palpatine began collecting aliens for its stormtrooper ranks, it collected both tribes from Pzob during a battle between them. As indoctrinated stormtroopers, the battles continued. (COJ)

Klak
this creature is native to the planet Kashyyyk. The meat of the klak is often served fried. Is the klak a vegetable or an animal? (RD)

Klang Dynasty
the rulers of this ancient dynasty were often embalmed and mummified after death, in hopes that they might live longer lives in the afterworld. (TJT)

Klatooinan
an alien race native to Klatooine, the Klatooinans have been indentured to the Hutts seince before the rise of the Old Republic. Along with the Vodran and Nikto races, the Klatooinans have served the Hutts since the battles against Xim the Despot. They are a tall, humanoid race with flat, canine faces and coarse skin. The Klatooinan culture is strongly tied to traditional values, and has been as patient and tenacious as the Fountain of Ancients. They also, like the Fountain, strove to grow stronger with age. The Klatooinans have often referred to themselves as the Children of the Fountain, since they have developed many of the Fountain's characteristics. At the age of ten, every Klatooinan is sold into servitude, usually to local governments. Especially troublesome youths are sold into slavery. This helps the young Klatooinans learn to respect and admire their elders and the traditions of their people. However, they have forever been under the oppression of the Hutts. Like the Fountain of the Ancients, the Klatooinans hope that they can endure long enough to grow strong with age and shed the Hutt yolk. (MTS, TJP, GG12)

Klatooinan Trade Guild
this famed commerical organization is actually just a front for several Hutt endeavors. (GG12)

Klatooine
this desert planet, located within the Si'Klaata Cluster, is the homeworld of the Klatooinan race. Klatooine is found deep in Hutt space. (MTS, GG12)

Klatoon
a planet. (CRO)

Klaymor 4-2
a planet which hid an Alliance spy probe during the Galactic Civil War. The probe was destroyed by a TIE Fighter dispatched from the Astin. (TIE)

Kleck
this short, heavy-set man served as Ghecharo's adjutant. He barely escaped the clutches of a wounded ice modrol which had just killed Ghecharo, while on safari on the planet Neftali. The pair had entered the modrol's lair against the wishes of their guide, Kaori Batta, and Ghecharo suffered the consequences of his rash actions. (WSV)

Kleeque*-class Transport
a transport ship used by the Alliance on Hoth, the Kleeque-class transport was designed and manufactured by the Corellian Engineering Corporation. It was positioned to be a medium-range cargo ferry, measuring 250 meters in length and capable of carrying up to 5,000 metric tons of cargo and up to 1,000 passengers. A crew of sixteen operated the ship, which was unarmed in its basic outfitting. The Alliance often added a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons to protect the ship, even though its design limited its ability to fly in space combat. (RASB, ROE)

Kleex
a flea-like parasite that lives on the tails of durkii. (DCAR)

Klein Bottle
an impossibly-twisted flask that is shaped like a crazy pretzel. (LCF)

Klekket
this Yuuzhan Vong measurement of time was roughly equal to two standard months. (BP)

Klemp, Ott
this man served under Gennad Rozhdenst in the Alliance's Scavenger Squadron, during the period leading up to the Battle of Endor. Although a relatively inexperienced pilot, Klemp proved to be a valubale sounding board for Rozhdenst's plans. (HM)

Kler'terrian
this four-armed, three-eyed race has the ability to continually monitor its surroundings, as its eyes are evenly spaced around its head. (GCQ)

Klerint
during its occupation of Deysum III, the Empire established its computer resources base in this city. (GMK)

Klev, Titus
a native of the planet Alsakan, Klev's father was a highly-placed officer in the Clone Wars. His mother was the heiress to a wealthy merchant company. He wanted for nothing, and eagerly joined his local SAGroup when his time came. He excelled in Wegsphere, and was trained on Ibanjji. His outstanding record made him the 37th Klev to be accepted into the Academy, but the Alliance's victory at Endor nearly ended his career. He stuck with the Empire, though, and seemed ready to be promoted to Moff when he was named an Imperial Navy Captain, commander of the Silencer-7 World Devastator. He died when his World Devastator crashed on the planet Calamari. (DE1, DESB)

Klevb
this Jiivahar was outcast from his talin on Carest 1, and made a living in the galaxy as a terrorist and gun for hire. (SWJ14)

Kleyvits
on elderly Selonian representative of the Overden, Kleyvits is a tall, though somewhat stooped, female. She intercepts Han, Leia, and Dracmus when they make an emergency landing on Selonia. (SC)

Kliap Pirates
this pirate gang executed several flashy raids in the Kliap Sector, during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Kliap Sector
this area of the galaxy was infamous, as the home of the Kliap Pirates. (AIR)

Klif
this man was hired by Moff Disra to incite crowds to riot on several New Republic worlds. One of the leaders of the group known as Vengeance, Klif was a genius at demagoguery. He could whip a crowd into a frenzy with ease. He worked with Drend Navett on many such operations. Klif and Drend found steady employment under Moff Disra, who used their services to destabilize the New Republic shortly after it was revealed that the Bothans were involved in the destruction of Caamas. Later, Navett and Klif were placed in charge of taking out the shield generator in Drev'starn, posing as exotic animal dealers. They used their small animals as saboteurs, first getting metalmites into the generator facility, then using baby mawkrens to transport small bombs into the building. Once Navett was in place and ready to take out the shield generator, Kliff accompanied Horvic anfd Pensin on a sabotage mission. Disguised as New Republic technicians, they managed to get aboard the Predominance and make their way to a turbolaser battery. They killed their escort and managed to get eight shots off at the city of Drev'starn before begin discovered and neutralized. (SOP, VOF)

Kliffen
this town is located at one end of the valley which dominates the city of Kliffen, on Commenor. (IR)

Klime
this ambitious Imperial Army General was known as a ruthless and demanding officer. His efficient conquests were known to many Imperial officers, who recognized that Klime was very good at instilling respect through the use of fear and military prowess. He desired to become a planetary governor, hoping to increase his power and prestige, and he took the position of governor over the Ishanna System during the height of the New Order. He ruled the system, and its neighbors, much like a military outfit, instilling fear and showing his muscle when needed. (SWJ9)

Klin Anwa
this Silika was a brother and companion to Kenta Anwa. He rescued Dannen Lifehold on Dohu VII, shortly after Dannen defeated Kenta in The Contest and was captured Bakk and Chokk. Kenta had been embarrassed that he hadn't gotten a holo-image of himself with Dannen, and asked Klin to locate him and get a picture. Klin followed Dannen's scent, and was forced to subdue the Bloxian thugs in order to secure a picture. (SWJ1)

Kline
a member of Leia's crew to the Katana fleet (DFR)

Kline, Eujustus
this prospector, working for the Solgg Chemical Company, discovered the planet Monor II and the dense cirrifog that surrounds it. He also realized that the cirrifog could have industrial uses. Because of the demand for cirrifog and the profits it brought in, Solgg named Monor II Kline Colony. (SWJ10)

Kline Colony
Tinian I'att once saved Chenlambec's life on this world, also known as Monor II, when an Alliance 'acquisition' took poorly to the Wookiee's style of capture. (SWJ10, TBH)

Klirun
this is the traditional Tunroth bow weapon. It was an extremely powerful and accurate weapon, and could fire caros arrows with enough force to pierce stormtrooper armor. (GG12, AIR)

Kliss
one of Demophon's two continents, Kliss was nearly uninhabitable before the system's star exploded. (SN)

Klito
this Imperial hanger deck officer served on the Subjugator under Captain Kolaff. (SF)

Klivian, Derek
a native of the planet Ralltiir, this Alliance pilot was known to hi scomrades as Hobbie. He served as Biggs Darklighter's executive officer aboard the Rand Ecliptic. Hobbie was known as a skeptic in his early years of service to the Alliance, but that seemed to change when he met Biggs. He was always eager to get into a starfighter and shoot down the enemy, much like a rookie on every flight. Hobbie served under Captain Heliesk on the Rand Ecliptic, and when Heliesk staged a mock mutiny and stole the Ecliptic from the shipyards of Bestine, Hobbie defected with Biggs and several others. Later in his career, Hobbie assisted in the defense of Echo Base on Hoth, and was later assigned to Wedge's Rogue Squadron as Rogue Six. Many of his comrades often said that Hobbie enjoyed bacta baths too much, and that he could crash any starship he touched. He was given the nickname Bugbite by Iella Wessiri, a reminder of their first meeting on Corellia, after Hobbie had been stung by a local insect. Shortly after the Imperial Remnant agreed to a peace treaty with the New Republic, Hobbie and most of the other veteran Rogues retired from active duty. Hobbie was portrayed by Richard Oldfield in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back. (ESB, XWN, MTS, EGC, RSG, SOC, SOA, DTO)

Klivering
one of Ellor's ships used in the smugglers' raid on Bilbringi (TLC)

Kloff
a native of the planet Culroon III, Kloff assumed leadership among his people by showing them how to use advanced technology, such as energy weapons, to create an armed forces. When the Empire tried to subjugate the planet, Kloff rallied his clansmen against them. The Empire tried to make it look like a peaceful joining of powers, but Kloff had hidden a number of clansmen in the surrounding area. When Imperial General Irrv gave Kloff a ceremonial sword, Kloff ordered his people to attack. The Imperial forces regrouped, and through the quick thinking of then-Lieutenant Maximillian Veers, brought in the huge AT-AT ground assault vehicles to subdue the Culroon. (SWSB)

Kloo Horn
a musical wind instrument, larger than a Dorenian Beshniquel, and with a double reed. It has richer, more pastel harmonics than the Beshniquel, although some have described it as having a deep hooting sound. (TME, ROM)

Kloodavian
a race of small reptiloids, the Kloodavians have sharp beaks and yellow scales. The have the ability to regenerate any of their limbs, and a new one will grow back in a matter of days. Kloodavians are also immune to mental manipulation. (E1A1)

Kloper
this planet is the homeworld of the Kloperian race. (TNR)

Kloperian
this short, squat alien race had gray skin and small, tentacle-like appendages running along both sides of its body. Many of these appendages end in tiny hands, which are highly dextrous. Kloperians have large, bulbous eyes which collect large amounts of light and provide them with incredibly detailed vision. Their heads sit atop extendable necks, and are punctuated by wide, fish-like mouths. The Kloperian race is known for its mechanical and engineering skills, but they are also gruff and imperious with other races. The New Republic employed a number of Kloperians on Coruscant, to keep the home fleet in top condition. (TNR)

Klozar
this orange star is located at the center of the Gacerian System. (PG2)

Kluggerhorn, Zack
an alias given to Han Solo by Princess Leia on Hologram Fun World. (QE)

Kluistar
this planet aligned itself with the New Republic after the Battle of Endor. It was believed that Rodin Baem stole information from New Republic computers on this planet. It was known for its unspoiled wildernesses, and the government regulated the size and locations of its cities in order to minimize the intrusion into the natural beauty of the planet. Despite this regulation, the government eventually allowed the construction of The Ace of Sabres, in order to bring in more revenue to the planet. (WBC, WSV)

Kluuzot
this sentient species of arboreal mammals is native to the planet Krann. They evolved from a lemur-like race of creatures, and live within the Black Jungle. They have soft, glowing, amber-colored eyes which are suited for seeing in the deep red light of Krann's four stars. These eyes appear alsmot fluorescent under normal lighting. The Empire, which harvested innumerable amounts of nova crystals to fund the first Death Star project, attempted to enslave the Kluuzot. The intelligent mammals simply fled deep into the jungle, where they hid until the New Republic came to liberate the planet. They have not pledged any support to the Republic, but the Kluuzot realize that the Republic is not there to enslave them. (TSK)

Klypash
this continent, located on the planet Trascor, was the only area populated by the Hy'tras race of Shatra. (AE)

Kn'ik Th'ronik
this Fnessian was wanted to SoroSuub Corporation for the theft of the freighter Morgannier. Kn'ik was also known as a gunrunner and droid smuggler who supplied the Alliance with materiel. (ND)

Knaar
this saurian predator is native to the planet Anobis. They migrate in packs of 100 or more, scouring the landscape for food as they pass. These reptiloids have purplish-blue scales and a dorsal ridge of silver spines. Their tails are barbed, and can be used as a weapon. Most knaars attack at night, when the only thing that can be seen are their yellow eyes. The average knaar is large enough to swallow a man whole. (ROM)

Knanan
a city located on the planet Fibuli. (CSA)

Knave Squadron
a group of New Republic E-Wings that flew in the Battle of Calamari. (DE1)

Knave Three
this E-Wing, a member of the Knave Squadron which defended Calamari from the Emperor's World Devastators, was damaged in the battle. Rather than plunge into the sea, its pilot managed to fly the ship into the Devastator Silencer-7. The Devastator's systems went into a self-destruct sequence, and the huge ship was destroyed. (DE1)

Kneeb
this creature is considered a culinary delicacy by the Hutts. They resembled large, yellow-furred pigs with blue-black stripes. Their hides were often cured and used to cover suitcases, books, and caskets. (BF, EOE)

Kneebhawk
this is a large species of avian predator. The female of the species jealously guards her eggs from outsiders. (EOE)

Kneesaa
a female Ewok, Kneesaa was the child of Chief Chirpa and Ra-Lee. She and Wicket were two of the most famous Ewok children in their village, for together they saved the village from a number of dangers. They rescued the father trees in the forests from the Phlogs, and later returned her older sister Asha to the clan. (ECAR, EGC)

Knellis
this industrial city was located east of Tekar, on Derilyn. The Friends of Paran made their primary base in this city. (OE)

Knezex Hral Piksoar
this Drovian worked for the New Republic base on Nim Drovis. He was a direct descendant of Garnu Hral Eschen, and fought alongside his fellow Drovians against the Gopso'o terrorists. It was Knezex Hral Piksoar who greeted Han Solo and Chewbacca when they arrived at Bagsho to drop off the survivors of the Corbantis. (POT)

Knife
this N'Gai once employed Malla's brother Vargi in an attempt to obtain Wookiee slaves. Together, they managed to trick much of Chewbacca's clan into their clutches, until they were apprehended by Han Solo and Lando Calrissian. (EGC)

Knight Hammer
the new name given by Admiral Daala to the Super-class Star Destroyer Night Hammer, built by Delvardus. She decided to rename the ship for her attack on the Jedi academy on Yavin 4. The ship arrived shortly after the Jedi Knights had flung Pellaeon's fleet out of the system, but the Knight Hammer was more than a match for the few Jedi on the ground. After the arrival of the Republic fleet, Callista managed to steal a downed TIE Bomber on the surface of Yavin 4. She landed the ship in the fighter bays of the Knight Hammer and set off the bombs stored there. The resulting explosions ripped through the Star Destroyer's engine compartments, leaving the ship dead in space. The gravity of Yavin then grabbed the ship and sucked it into its core. Daala evacuated the crew, and immobilized Callista before escaping in a command-level escape pod. (DS)

Knights, The
this swoop gang, which originated on Stend VI, was formed by Finegan Flint. The Knights dedicated themselves to two things: to uphold the ideals of the Jedi Knights, and to stop the Skulls. (GG9)

Knives
this sport is one of the Rabaanite warriors training exercises. Fully-contested matches are part of The Games. (SWJ9)

Knobby White Spider
this strange arachnid, native to the planet Dagobah, is actually a stage in the growth of the gnarltree. They are as large as a landspeeder, and are pure white in color. They have a large body that is covered with knobs and lumps, connected to ten gnarled legs. They flesh of the knobby spider is actually made up of calcified wood. The spider is a mobile root system spawned by a mature gnarltree; the spider then moves through the swamps, eating and growing and storing nutrients and energy. Once it is ready to become a full-grown gnarltree, it finds a clearing and uproots all surrounding plantlife. It then drives its legs into the ground and begins growing a root system that will sustain it for centuries to come. The spider's head hardens and becomes the trunk of the tree. Note that The Ghostling Children claims that these creatures are a species of spydr. (ISU, E1A5)

Knolstee
this Corporate Sector world is on the regular route of the luxury liner Lady of Mindor, located between Ammuud and Roonadan. (CSA)

Knores
this planet is famous for its red seas. (POC)

Knossa
the site of the main spaceport on the planet Ossus. (DLS)

Knotgrass
a plant with gnarled leaves. (COJ)

Knowledge Cartridge
this device is used by cyborgs to obtain instant information. They allow the cyborg increased flexibility, as information can be exchanged without the need to onboard storage. The cartridges plug into slots on the bio-computer interface module, and provide the cyborg with information on virtually any subject. There are knowledge-based cartridges, which provide information on general subjects, and techncal cartridges, which provide information on the application of knowledge. (CFG)

Knowt's Disease
a debilitating disease that kills slowly. Pter Thanas suffered from this disease on Bakura. (AS)

Knylenn
this was one of the ruling families of the planet Kuat. They were the primary rival to the Kuat family, and spend much of their time trying to overturn the Inheritance Exemption. There efforts came to a head when Khoss of Knylenn secretly killed his family's elder and placed him in an elaborate life-support system. This allowed Khoss to effectively rule the family without having to prove his abilities. However, his plans were exposed by Kodir of Kuhlvult and Kuat of Kuat. (SLS)

Knytix
this species of arachnid is similar in appearance to the Vratix, and is also native to Thyferra. They are smaller and blockier that the Vratix, and were kept as pets and workers by the larger Vratix. Sometimes, they also served as a food source. The Vratix mainly used the knytix for creating the mud which was used to build their villages in the gloan trees. The mud was mixed from the dense soil and the saliva of the knytix. (BW)

Ko
1) an Alliance YT-1300 destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)
2) this Yevethan word is the equivalent of "yes." (SOL)

Koaan
this planet is the site of a Galactic Research Academy facility. (GOF4, GOF7)

Koba
this culinary delight is often served stuffed with bread and meat. (SOL)

Kobal's World
this planet was subjugated by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWDW)

Kobbahn
this planet is the site of a major starport. (SWAJ)

Kobok
an insectoid alien race characterized by their green fur, deadly stingers, and triple eyes. Two of their eyes face forward; the third is located on the back of their heads. (DCAR)

Kocceille Twi'lek
this phrase was used by the Twi'lek race to indicate an individual who was a "friend of the Twi'leks." (ND)

Koccic sulng
an Old Corellian reprimand, loosley translated as "Be quiet." (TFE)

Koccic sulng il pla
an Old Corellian phrase meaning, "shut up and play." (SWAJ)

Koda, Krin
this legendary scout was the first being to discover what became known as the Eye of Koda, during the early days of the Empire. When he landed on the planet which became known as Koda's World, he found the native Tempestro struggling against a deadly disease. Krin's meager stores included several medpacks, and he was able to administer an antidote and save the Tempestro. They presented him with the Eye of Koda as a reward, as they were unaware of its true power. He disappeared before he could prove the legends behind the Eye, and misfortune seemed to follow those who located the amulet after him. (GG8)

Koda Space Station
this run-down spaceport was located in a backwater section of the galaxy. The most common visitors to Koda were farmers looking for excitement and bored smugglers. A moderately busy port, visitors were greeted by a protocol droid stationed at the main entrance from the docking ports. (GOF7)

Koda's World
this planet was supposedly discovered by Krin Koda, during his search for the source of the power of the amulet that became known as the Eye of Koda. A heavily forested world, broken here and there with mountains and oceans, Koda's world is the home planet of the Tempestro race. The trees of the planet are covered with a shaggy, red bark, and the leaves resemble large, five-fingered hands. It is the fourth planet which orbits the star Tarin. The average day on Koda's World lasts fourteen standard hours, and its year lasts 502 local days. Several thousand years before the Galactic Civil War, an asteroid struck the planet, wiping out most of the Tempestro and forcing the survivors to exist by living in the trees. (GG8)

Kodir
this ambitious young woman was a member of the Kuhlvult family, of the planet Kuat. Like other members of the Kuhlvult family, Kodir was athletic, but not necessarily beautiful. However, she was also quite devious, and developed a plan to oust Kuat of Kuat from the leadership of Kuat Drive Yards and take it for herself. She gathered a small band of young royals and laid out her plans, but was initially rejected by her sister, Kateel. Kateel threatened to expose the group, so Kodir had her kidnapped and then had her memory wiped out. However, she left this job to a third party, which failed to do the job completely. Kodir, however, was unaware of the situation, and continued with her schemes. She drew in Kuat's security chief, Fenald, paying him to betray Kuat so that she could take his place as security chief. After orchestrating an uprising by Khoss of Knylenn from behind the scenes, Kodir achieved the position of security chief and began forcing Kuat into a corner from which he could not escape. She also executed Fenald, when the man tried to blackmail her. She secretly worked a deal with the Alliance to deliver a group of warships, shortly before the Battle of Endor. She insinuated that Kuat of Kuat was loyal only to the Empire, and the Alliance representatives – Commander Rozhdenst and Wonn Uzalg - would need to replace him in order to get the ships. The Alliance agreed, having already discussed the situation with the other Kuati royal families, and ostensibly recognized Kodir as Kuat's successor. However, Kateel – having known herself only as Neelah – recovered her memory and returned to Kuat to face her sister at about the same time Kuat himself began destroying the KDY facilities. It was also at this point in time that the Battle of Endor began. The plots and plans Kodir had worked so hard on were suddenly exposed and smashed to bits. After Kust nearly destroyed the Kdy facilities, Kodir was captured and charged with a host of offenses, including murder, kidnapping, and conspiracy. (SLS, HM)

Kodoos Mac-15
this was a model of swoop produced for use on swoopchasing courses. (BSS)

Kodu Terrafin
an Arcona working for Jabba the Hutt, Kodu piloted the courier ship that ran between Jabba's palace and Mos Eisley. (TME)

Koensayr
manufacturers of a wide range of starships and starship components, they can boast having components in nearly a fifth of all starships in production. One of their most famous products is the BTL A4 Longprobe Starfighter, also known as the Y-Wing. They also manufacture pleasure craft, but parts account for 72% of their profits. (SCRE, EGV)

Kogan, Gil
this man was a small-time criminal who worked in Iritsa, on the planet Chazwa, during the Galactic Civil War. He was hired by Hahz Fallone as a stand-in, since Kogan bore a passing resemblance to the crimelord. Kogan bore a grudge against Jorga Sune, and gladly joined Fallone's organization. He was killed shortly after Fallone stole the Black Sphere, in a firefight between Fallone's thugs and Sune's men. (ND)

Kogan 6
this planet was the object of an archaeological expedition under the command of Doctor Bromial. (TT)

Kogler, Hyndis
a member of the Empire's Infiltration bureau, he refused to believe that specially-programmed 3PO droids could be used as espionage agents. (ISB)

Koh'shak
this Shak clan Twi'lek was an obese creature, and was the minister of the Kala'uun Starport when Rogue Squadron was sent to Ryloth to bargain for kor ryll. Koh'shak would have sold the ryll to the New Republic, and kept the profits for himself. However, the warrior Tal'dira exposed Koh'shak's personal goals, and gave the kor to the Rogues, as a gift from warrior to warrior. (KT)

Kohl
this dark substance is used in makeup and camouflage to darken the skin. (TNR)

Kohvrekhar
this Noghri accompanied Darth Vader during the search for Luke Skywalker, following the Battle of Hoth. Vader ordered Kohvrekhar to Tatooine, to ensure that Jabba the Hutt and his henchmen didn't capture or kill Skywalker. (SESB)

Koiogran Turn Maneuver
an escape tactic in which the fleeing ship changes course sharply and at higher speed to shake its pursuer (HTTE)

Kojash
this Koornacht Cluster planet was the site of a Morath mining operation. The operation was a primary target of the Yevethan Purge, and was swiftly exterminated by the Yevetha. (SOL)

Kokash Sector
a galactic sector located in the Rim, it was largely unexplored by New Republic standards. (BTS)

Kol Attan
this Yevethan Proctor served under the command of Nil Spaar during the Yevethan Purge. Attan commanded the Beauty of Yevetha until the New Republic initiated a blockade of the Koornacht Cluster, in retaliation for the extremination of peoples by the Yevetha. The Beauty of Yevetha was destroyed in the second wave of Republic blockades, but Attan survived and was brought before Spaar. Rather than killing Attan and giving him an easy way out, Spaar banished Attan from service and reduced him to the rank of to-mara, or shamed one. (SOL)

Kol Huro System
this star system consisted of seven planets, designated Kol Huro I through Kol Huro VII, which were entirely dedicated to the development and manufacture of weapons and starships for the petty tyrant who controlled the system. The tyrant was brought to justice by the Old Republic some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. (RP)

Kolader
this city is located in the center of the continent of Afterthought, on the planet Ropagi II. (TSK)

Kolaff
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Subjugator, which was sent to Kwenn Space Station to pick up Walex Blissex. He felt that mission, devised by Lira and Denn Wessex, was sneaky and beneath him, but he served his duty to the Empire by going along to capture the "Rebel scum." An extremely intelligent man, Kolaff had an obsession with doing battle. He didn't exactly hate the Alliance; in an off-hand sort of way, he admired their courage in the face of great obstacles. Kolaff was defeated on the Subjugator by the team of Alliance agents that accompanied Blissex. They engaged in a battle using AT-STs in a docking bay, which allowed the agents to rescue Blissex and escape. Kolaff later died when the Subjugator self-destructed. (SF)

Kolb, Sidris
this reconstructive meteorologist were part of the team assembled by the New Republic to restore the natural environment of the planet Druo, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Kolb was often at odds with Aj Koenes, since their projects required similar resources, and the work of one often impaired the work of the other. (BP)

Kole, Phadreas
this Imperial Governor ruled Rhinnal during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Kolene
a port city located on Corellia. (TPS)

Kolermigon
an Alliance transport ship captured during the Galactic Civil War. It was trying to transport Alliance personnel to meet with Admiral Harkov at station DS-5. (TIE)

Koll No Kay
this Qwohog was Kei No Kay's brother, and served the Alliance as a medical technician during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (WSV)

Kollene, Maytoc
this aging tramp freighter captain served aboard the Worthless Fool before it was sold to the Alliance. Kollene spent much of his career in Rayter Sector, and it is believed that he worked with Yearo Seville before becoming involved with the Alliance. He modified the cockpit extensively, since he loss his left leg years before. It is unknown how he lost the leg, although rumors have it that the Imperial forces occupying Rayter Sector were the cause of it. The rumors say this explains why Kollene joined the Alliance, in order to exact some form of revenge on the Empire. He was very withdrawn and tacit, only speaking when absolutely necessary. It was Kollene who piloted the Worthless Fool during the Alliance's rescue of the Shashay Crying Dawn Singer from the clutches of Braig and Nak Farool. (TA)

Kollis, Vin
this Imperial Governor was placed in charge of the planet Nishr during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He was originally a Major General in the Imperial Army, and retained this rank as well as his governorship. His forces were constantly harassed by the Alliance's Nishr Taskforce, and Kollis was forced to request additional support from the Empire. He rarely received adequate support, as Nishr was too far from the Core to warrant additional troops. However, when the local Nish began rising against his forces, he used military firepower to decimate the Nish population in what became known as the Nishr Suppression. (ROE)

Kollrin
this Sullustan ambassador was targetted for assassination by Tovric, who would have succeeded if not for the timely intervention of Dunan Par'Ell. Tovric and his employers hoped to make Kollrin pay for the imprisonment and execution of prisoners. (WSV)

Kolo
this fish is a favorite of sport fisherbeings throughout the galaxy. It puts up a tremendous, entertaining fight. (TT)

Kolos Moon
this natural satellite is known for its clear air. (TT)

Kolot
this Ewok was one of the test subjects for Project Chubar. It had been trained in many disciplines, including melee combat and starship piloting. When Lara Notsil tried to escape from the Iron Fist near Selaggis, she freed the test subjects but couldn't find enough escape pods for them all. Kolot volunteered to pilot a shuttle for her rescue effort. (SOC)

Kolow, Bannish
this Imperial Security agent was placed aboard Santhe Passenger and Freight transport SPF 14897 during the hunt for the Far Orbit. His mission was to oversee the capture and initial interrogation of the crew of the Far Orbit. (FOP)

Kolvissh
this blossoming plant is native to the uppermost levels of Kashyyyk's biosphere. (RD)

Kommerkan
a creature raised for its meat. (SME)

Komnor System
a planetary system that once had a number of Hutt inhabitants. A vicious warlord came in and evicted all the Hutts, invoking the wrath of Jabba the Hutt. He hired Dyyz Nataz to assassinate the warlord. (TME)

Kompa
this elderly gentleman lived within the Imperial complex on Mrlsst, a few years after the Battle of Endor. (XWPA)

Koncco
this is a ritualistic form of dance which originated on low-gravity worlds. It is characterized by incredible leaps and bounds. (GG4)

KonGar Ship Works
manufacturers of the ATR Assault Transport ship and starship drive systems. (TIE, EGV)

Konkeel Pie
this dish is favored by the Hewett race, but it toxic to most humanoid species. (E1A4)

Konnair, Dorset
this woman, a native of the planet Coruscant, served in the New Republic military as an A-Wing pilot in Blue Squadron. Based on Folor, Dorset had the callsign Blue Nine. During the hunt for Warlord Zsinj, she joined Polearm Squadron, and was designated Polearm Seven. She was distinguished by her dark hair and pale skin, which was ornately tattooed with blue symbols. A starflare burst around her right eye, but most other tattoos were hidden by her clothing. (WS, SOC)

Koobis Nu
this Rodian, known as "Target" by his comrades, served the New Republic as a starfighter pilot. As a member of Rogue Squadron during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj, Koobis was designated Rogue Eight. (SOC)

Koodan
this race of hulking humanoids is charatcerized by their huge, hard-shelled heads and armored skin. Their mouths are filled with pointed, conical teeth which surround a thick, round tongue. Their stubby arms are well-muscled, and end in three-fingered hands. They have few natural enemies. (BF)

Koolach Silk
this beautiful fabric was used by Winter to bribe the starport master at Kala'uun Starport, when Rogue Squadron tried to capture Firith Olan during the search for the Eidolon. (XWBT)

Koolb, Nojin
the planetary governor of Xartun, he negotiated with Warlord Zsinj while applying for admission to the New Republic. He claimed to be outwardly loyal to the Republic, while privately supporting Zsinj. (WS)

Kooloota-Fyf
this being served on the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. (CE2)

Koong
an unkempt, middle-aged man, Koong led a group of criminals from Tawntoom, in the Roon System. They ran any number of illegal activities, from theft to hijacking. (DCAR)

Koorabee
this obese woman was a member of the Five. She was killed by Wuzzek after Chewbacca freed the creatures contained in the Menagerie. (CSWDW)

Koornacht, Aitro
a native of the planet Tamban, Aitro Koornacht was an Old Republic astronomer. He was the first to see the collection of star systems now known as the Koornacht Cluster, on a night when he discovered Emperor Preedu III's First Observer and a young woman in a groundcoach. The Observer named the new star cluster after Koornacht, in returned for keeping the incident a secret. (BTS)

Koornacht Cluster
a collection of some 2,000 star systems first noticed by Aitro Koornacht, the Koornacht Cluster has many names. It is known as "The Multitude" by the Fia, "God's Temple" by the Wehttem, and no'aat padu'll - The Little Nursery - by the Ka'aa. The Cluster is located at the outer edges of the Deep Core, bordering on the Core Worlds themselves. It was controlled by the Yevetha from N'zoth, until the Empire invaded the Cluster and established a number of shipyards there. The Black Sword Command was stationed there, out of the way of prying eyes. The Yevethan government - the Duskhan League - later assumed control of the Cluster. It is located in the Farlax Sector of the Rim, between Coruscant and the Core. Despite the number of systems the Cluster contains, only about 100 planets have been found with native forms of life, and just six developed sentient lifeforms. (BTS, EGP, CTD)

Kooroo
1) this spiritual leader commanded the legions known as the Fellowship of Kooroo, a semi-religious sect which strove to reach true enlightenment through the attainment of telepathic powers. Shrines of Kooroo were found on many Outer Rim worlds, including Boztrok, Sufezz, and Brantees. In the modern age of the galaxy, Kooroo was a figurehead around which the Fellowship rallied, despite the reporting of Andor Javin. Javin claimed the Kooroo's shrines were nothing more than ancient communication devices. (SWJ13)
2) this ancient race of beings was believed to have been the founders of the Kooroo religion. They were never contacted by the Old Republic, and their homeworld was never located. (SWJ14)

Koos
the name given to one of the four continents of Yavin 4 by Lile Gorsek and the Fernandin Survey Operation. (GG2)

Koozar, Fendrilon
this man was one of Emperor Palpatine's advisors. A connoussier of fine foods, he was secretly poisoned by Prince Xizor during a meal at the Manarai Restaurant on Coruscant, in an effort to eliminate his needless prying into Black Sun's operations. (SESB)

Koqus Design Syndic
this starship manufacturing operation flourished in the last years of the Old Republic by taking discarded Republic Seinar Systems designs and revamping them. (SOL)

Koqus Starliner
this old, Koqus Design Syndic starship was manufactured some twenty years before the rise of the New Order. It was based on an old Republic Seinar Systems design, created as a short-route liner capable of carrying 58 passengers. The Starliner measured 44 meters in length and 28 meters in width, and was spade-like in shape. A pair of SoroSuub Viper 40 ion engines provided more than enough sublight propulsion, but the ship's hyperdrive systems were limited in jump calculation and speed. The ship had two main decks, one used for passengers and one for cargo. (SOL)

Kor
this is the rarest, and purest, form of ryll spice produced on Ryloth. It makes up only three percent of the total ryll production, and virtually none of it leaves the planet. It was discovered that kor ryll had certain medicinal properties. This was found by Qlaern Hirf and his Vratix verachan, who were working to counteract the effects of the Krytos virus. The New Republic sent Rogue Squadron, with Nawara Ven, to Ryloth, in hopes that they could negotiate a supply of kor for use in augmenting bacta. Kor ryll absorbs light in the ultraviolet range, and appears black under normal lighting. It can be distinguished from colored, less pure ryll under ultraviolet lighting. (KT)

Korad
this planet is the dumping grounds for the Elrood Sector. Located in the Korad System, Korad is an arid, rocky world covered with junkyards and is ringed by an artificial belt of scrap. It was also the base of operations for Slythor the Squib, during the height of the New Order. The planet was controlled by groupd of Squibs in the north and Ugors in the east. (PG, OE)

Koradin Sector
this area of the Outer Rim was a hotbed of rebellious activity shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GG11)

Koratas
this is the fourth moon of the planet Dathomir. The Imperials under the command of Warlord Zsinj discovered that the moon was abundant with neutronium, lommite, and zersium - the key components in the creation of durasteel. (CTD)

Korbin
this planet, the fifth world in the Atrig System, is a world of temperate plains. It has a single moon. Korbin is also completely lawless. This is belied by the names of its primary cities: Pleasant City, Hope, Peace, and Joy. It is a hot, dry world which rotates about its axis once every 28 standard hours. Its year lasts 380 local days. It has almost no axial tilt, and thus has very minimal seasonal changes. It was once a thriving mining world until the mines ran dry. The miners left, but the planet was later repopulated by the outcasts from an overcrowded nearby system. The planet is girded by equatorial mountains, which are surrounded by arid plains. (PG2)

Kordren
this chubby Cerean youth was part of the band of techrats which hung out with Skeel and Maj-Odo-Nomor. In order to hide his identity while riding swoops out on the plains, Kordren often painted his face white with two red bars around his eyes. Like many Cerean youths, Kordren loved the thrill of swoops and the prestige of having high-technology equipment, but was unskilled in their use. When he and Skeel tried to race their swoops through the Outsider Citadels, they took a wrong turn and ended up running into a dead-end passage. Skeel was unable to stop his swoop and was killed when it struck the wall and exploded. Kordren managed to leap from his swoop before the impact, and was hospitalized for several broken bones and bruises. (PTR)

Kordu
this planet is the homeworld of the Kordulian kriss, often called a ratter thist. (VOF)

Kordulian Kriss
this is another name for a ratter thist. (VOF)

Korev VII
this planet was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War, and served as the governmental seat of power for Zaric Sector. (GG10)

Korenn
one of Crix Madine's commandos, Korenn served on the Galactic Voyager while Madine was tracking Durga the Hutt. He was killed when he accompanied Madine and Trandia into the Hoth asteroid belt to survey the construction of the Darksaber project. The shields of his modified A-Wing were breached by a small piece of space debris, resulting in a loss of engine power and attitude control. His ship was destroyed when it collided with an asteroid. Korenn was killed in the explosion. (DS)

Korfaise gas
a lighter-than-air gas used as a hyperdrive coolant. It is highly poisonous. (HTTE)

Korfani
an alien race. (SESB)

Korg
a Hutt unit of measure, it defines a specific volume of material. (JTH)

Korlier Combine
this starship manufacturer is known for th small Flashships it builds. Korlier doesn't provide its ships with serial numbers, which makes them the perfect ships for beings who don't want to be traced or identified. It also makes their ships somewhat expensive. (VOF)

Korlings
a planet. (WBC)

Kormoran
a group of Alliance modified CR90 Corvettes destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Kornov
this Imperial Captain graduated from the Academy with honors, learning his lessons quickly and well. He made a name for himself commanding a strike cruiser that participated in the first defeat of an Alliance attack on an Imperial installation. He was then assigned to Admiral Motti, and served on the first Death Star. He was a loyal and hard-working assistant. (DSTC)

Kornova Corporation
this corporation was established to further the discovery and understanding of ancient civilizations. Kornova sent out numerous scouting expeditions in search of new evidence, and retained a number of archaeologists and xeno-archaeologists to assist in the collection of information. (GMS)

Korolev
an Alliance Corvette used to evacuate Briggia when it was attacked as part of Operation Strike Fear. It was used to transport the wounded to the mdeical frigate Redemption. (XW)

Koromondain PDS, Incorporated
this corporation produced a variety of personal defense tools, including stun cloaks and wrist lasers. (GG10)

Koros Major
a planet in the Empress Teta system. It was the last planet in the system to hold out against the Krath oppression. It was the sight of a major battle between the combined forces of the Jedi Knights and the Old Republic and the Krath (c.4000 PE). (DLS)

Koros Minor
this planet is located in what used to be the Koros System. (GAS)

Koros System
this planetary system was one of seven brought under the control of Empress Teta. It became the center of Teta's empire, and was later renamed the Empress Teta System. (GAS)

Korownosek, Ahric
this man considered himself a great actor, but he had few believers, especially among the critics. Nevertheless, he led the NovaCluster Players across the galaxy in his modified freighter, the Command Performance, hoping to get a big break. In the meantime, Ahric amused himself by stealing trinkets and artifacts from the museums and halls they played in. He then fenced the stolen merchandise to earn an extra credit or two. (SS)

Korpil
a Verpine colony, one of the builders of the B-Wing starfighter. (RASB, SWSB)

Korral, Baz
this man was imprisoned on Kessel during the same time Booster Terrik was incarcerated there. Booster saved his life at least once during their stay, a favor which Korral returned when he kept an eye on Mirax Terrik and Iella Wessiri during their investigation of Wooter, Rimki, and Vass on the planet Commenor. Korral employed a group of Verpines in his information operation, realizing that they can communicate via radio waves without making obtrusive movements. (IR)

Korrda
a thin, scrawny-looking Hutt who served as Durga's assistant. He met Leia Organa on Nal Hutta when she tried to surprise Durga by showing up more or less unexpectedly. Korrda was left trying to appease Leia and show her some diplomatic courtesy. He has a wasting disease that keeps him thin no matter how much he eats. Durga and the other Hutts despise him for his thinness, and so Durga gives him menial, downgrading tasks to perform. (DS)

Korren
an Alderaanian in Page's Commandos, Korren was one of the team's technical specialists. (HTSB)

Korriban
this remote planet was the seat of the ancient Sith race. Located across the galaxy from Cinnagar and Koros Minor, it was unknown to the Old Republic before the rise of Naga Sadow. It was to Korriban that the ancient Dark Jedi fled, after they were exiled by the Jedi Knights. Korriban was a desolate world which, under the pall of Sith magic, became more hellish and dangerous. The native life there was twisted by the Dark Side, and the ghosts of Sith Dark Lords roamed everywhere. The Sith Lords erected huge palaces and burial complexes, which honored not only the dead Lords but the current magicians as well. Exar Kun was led here by Freedon Nadd's spirit, in an effort to recover certain Sith manuscripts. The Emperor Palpatine often visited Korriban, to help him center himself in the Dark Side of the Force. (DLS, EE)

Korseg IV
this remote, mountainous planet was the site of the Alliance's Flare Base during the Galactic Civil War. (RPG)

Korta Sarc
this Shistavanen Wolfman was the Alpha Premier of the Uvena System during the early years of the New Order, until he was found murdered at the Jenet embassy on Uvena III. (AIR)

Korus
this Tetan was the tutor of Aleema, Satal Keto, and other royal youths about 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. When the youths formed the Krath, they rebelled against their parents and their teachers. Aleema's magic was used to twist Korus to their bidding. In a display of her power for the Lord Keto, Aleema changed Korus' tongue into an Adegan Eel. Satal and Aleema kept the old man as a servant, until he accidentally spilled wine on Aleema. She killed him with Sith magic in her anger. (DLS)

Koryunt, Adair
this rough-looking man once planted a bomb in the Elrooden headquarters of Radell Mining Corporation, and left the employees and the police a message claiming his part in the planting of the bomb. He also placed emphasis on certain words in the message, words which pointed a group of Alliance agents to the bomb's location. Koryunt was mentally unstable, a fact which was overlooked when he was hired by Imperial Mining, Limited, to plant the bomb in Radell's headquarters. (OE)

Kosh Kurp
this tall, muscular, blue-skinned alien was employed by the Empire as a detonations expert. He was red body armor and a red helmet set with two blunt horns. He was sent to Gaar Suppoon's hideout on a warning that Jabba the Hutt had planted a bomb there. In reality, Jabba had played Kosh Kurp for the bomb. Jabba knew that Gaar Suppoon had gone by the name of Sonopo Bomoor, a crazed villian who had invaded Kurp's homeworld and killed his family in front of his eyes. Suppoon left Kurp alive, as a living testimony of Bomoor's deeds. He spent the rest of his life searching for Bomoor, whom Jabba knew was really Suppoon. When Suppoon tried to kill Kurp, the laser bolt ricocheted off his red armor and blasted Suppoon's head off. Kosh Kurp became the de facto leader of Suppoon's criminal empire. (JTH)

Kosk, Reynol
the Imperial Lieutenant was in charge of the Trogan Imperial garrison when Grand Admiral Thrawn rose to power. He was persuaded by Niles Ferrier to attack the smugglers' meeting, but was killed in the attack. (ISB, TLC)

Koss
a container group captured by the Lightning. (TIE)

Koss
this gas giant is the fourth planet in the Faarlsun System, and has eight moons. (WBC)

Koss, Stephannis
a native of the planet Bonadan, this man was wanted by the Corporate Sector Authority for several crimes. Foremost among the charges was conspiracy to deprive the CSA of revenue. Koss had been bribed by a rival agri-corporation to slander the CSA by revealing that the development of agricultural enzymes was actually a well-disguised series of bio-weapons experiments. (ND)

Kossak
an infamous Hutt warrior and conquerer, Kossak used Vodran, Nikto, and Klatooinan forces to defeat Xim the Despot during the Third Battle of Vontor. (ZHR, GG12)

Kossan Asteroid Belt
this was the middle asteroid belt ringing the star Isen. The gas giant Isen orbited just outside the Kossan Belt. (PG1)

Kossh Street
a thoroughfare located in Capital City, on Omman. (SWJ12)

Kossi
one of the three major continents on Pantolomin. (DFRSB)

Kossim Asteroid Belt
this was the outermost asteroid belt ringing the star Isen. The gas giant Isen orbited inside the Kossim Belt. (PG1)

Kost
this province, located on the planet Kalzeron, is found in the northern hemisphere. It is a harsh, frigid place to live. (SWJ8)

Kostra
this planet is located in the Kriz Sector. (CRO)

Koth Melan
this Bothan was a native of Bothawui. His father was a teacher on the planet during the Galactic Civil War, but was killed by Imperial forces on false charges of espionage. A member of the Alya clan, Koth Melan removed the Bothan honorific 'lya' in memory of his father, and chose not to replace it after the War was over. Melan rose to power in the Bothan resistance, and was placed in charge of the Bothan Spynet. He was among the first to realize that the Bothans had access to the secret plans to the second Death Star, although he did not know the exact details. He sent word to Leia Organa to come to Bothawui and receive the information, but Leia was on Rodia and the message was delivered to Luke Skywalker and Lando Calrissian instead. They arrived, and after stealing the information from the Tuk Previz, took it to Kothlis. There, Koth Melan was killed in the firefight during an Imperial raid on the planet. (SE, SSE, SESB)

Kothlis
this Bothan colony world was the birthplace of Borsk Fey'lya. It has three small moons, and is the fourth planet in its system. The Bothan spy network maintained an impressive information slicing operation on the planet. The plans for the second Imperial Death Star were taken to the planet after being recovered from the Suprosa, and were almost lost during an Imperial raid. Kothlis was a semi-tropical world, with an average day of 22 standard hours and a year which lasts 408 local days. (HTTE, SE, SESB)

Kothlis II
a space station located near the planet Kothlis. It was here that the Bothan spies who obtained the plans to the second Death Star took on supplies to complete their delivery. The Empire seized control of the station, but not before the Bothans could escape. It was here that Talon Karrde provided information on the whereabouts of Wurth Skidder to Kyp Durron. (TIE, JE)

Kothlis Shadowport
this was the name given to the spaceport located on the second moon of the planet Kothlis. The planet was originally used as a training ground and ordnance test site by the Bothan military, until the New Order made such practices illegal. The moon was abandoned, but found new use to smugglers and pirates who worked in the nearby space. The spaceport was maintained by the former pirate Rithgar, who charged no credits for use of the spaceport but expected his customers to leave behind a portion of their supplies and spare parts for other users. (SESB)

Koti
this was a term used by the Krieks to describe immature members of their species. (AE)

Kotiate
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer, the Kotiate was the last of the Imperial-I class ships built with moderate shielding. It was destroyed by a group of Alliance starfighters at a supply stop. The ease with which the Kotiate was destroyed prompted the Empire to upgrade the Imperial-I class's shielding. (XW)

Kououra
this species of predator was native to Kashyyyk. Distinguished by it bright red fur, the kououra had a set of hollow fangs in both jaws, which it used to inject a powerful toxin into the body of its prey. These creatures averaged about a meter in length. (TBSB)

Koved City
located on Siluria III, it was located about a half-hour's drive from the planet's main spaceport. (GG9)

Koverd
this IPV systems patrol craft was used to protect the area surrounding Harlequin Station during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Kovings, Bendlar
this man served the Alliance as a deck officer and a communications officers, working for Colonel Stijhl at the Gelgelar Free Port drop point during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ14)

Kovit
a farming community nestled among the huge, limestone mountains on the planet Trulalis, Kovit was protected from the windswept regions of the central plains and the harsh weapon of the northern regions. The settlers there used imported banthas as beasts of burden, although subsequent generations of the beasts were much smaller than other strains. It was the hometown of Adalric Brandl. (TFE)

Kowakian Monkey-lizard
this race of strange, long-limbed creatures shows minimal sentience while it hides behind a cunning intellect. These creatures have long, floppy ears, a wide mouth capped by a horned beak, a ruff of fur around their necks, and three-fingered hands and feet. They have rough, tan-colored skin, and a long, prehensile tail. (ROTJ, MTS)

Kowk
a decidedly stupid animal. (VOF)

Koyi Komad
this Twi'leki waitress worked at the Soundmound, on Mrlsst, during the early years of the New Republic. She was serving drinks to Rogue Squadron when they began to ask about the band Ghost Jedi. She agreed to take them on a tour of the Mrlsst Academy and show them the spot where Taj Junak was murdered, resulting in the birth of the legend of the Ghost Jedi. She later put the Rogues in contact with Nasta, and eventually left Mrlsst to join the Republic. She then served Rogue Squadron as a friend, confidante, and chief mechanic. Like the other Twi'leks of the New Republic, she was very upset when the Republic's High Council ordered all Twi'leks off-duty until further notice, in the wake of the treacherous actions of Jart Eyan. However, she came to understand the reasons behind the order, and dealt with them in her own way. After retiring from active duty, Koyi married Nrin Vakil. (XWPA, HXW, SOC, DTO)

KPLink
this specialized communications and data exchange service was used by the security force aboard the Kuari Princess. (RM)

KPR Droid
a series of security droids manufactured by Lerrimore Droids. (CCG)

Kra
a city on Coyn. (PG)

Kraaken
this humanoid alien had long, pointed ears and wore a reflectinve pair of eyeshades, and was Silver Fyre's second-in-command until he turned traitor. When he learned that Luke Skywalker was carrying a data disk with the plans to the Executor, Kraaken tried to kill Like and steal the plans. He nearly succeeded, but Silver Fyre helped rescue Luke. Kraaken fled, but was later arrested by Han Solo and brought to trial before the Aquaris Freeholders. The Freeholders disowned him, and his pleas to Silver Fyre fell on deaf ears. He was exiled from the planet. (CSW)

Kraay, Langstyn
this Doctor of Planetology was in charge of the Q'Maere Research Facility, some four years after the Battle of Endor. Because of the isolation of the outpost, Kraay was unaware of the state of the galaxy when the FarStar put into Q'Maere to restock its supplies. Kraay had interned with COMPNOR at a psychiatric ward during his early career, and discovered that he had a knack for dealing with the "personality reconstruction" of mentally unstable patients. He was handpicked by Sarne to lead the Q'Maere Research Facility, which had recently been converted to a penal colony. When Sarne was ousted from Kal'Shebbol, he stranded Kraay and the doctors on Q'Maere. This angered Kraay and his fellow doctors, who were more than happy to help the FarStar as long as it helped get them off the planet. However, when he learned that the FarStar was a New Republic ship, he ordered the crew taken prisoner. However, an uprising by the prisoners of the facility forced Kraay into submission. (KR)

Krabbex
a large, shelled creature native to Calamari, it has ten legs and dual mouth mandibles. It was covered in two rows of spines, and four of its eighteen eyes were on front grasping claws. (JS, DA)

Krade, Jalia
this woman was married to Jasta Krade, and was a noble lady of a Tapani Sector family. (PGT)

Krade, Jasta

Kraemr
this smuggler's partner was killed by a G-2RD droid, during their attempt to break the ship out of an impound. (SWJ14)

Krag Val
this Yuuzhan Vong warrior was one of Shedao Shai's chief lieutenants. He was in charge of the recovery mission sent to Bimmiel to recover the remains of a Yuuzhan Vong warrior killed by slashrats decades prior to the invasion along Vector Prime. He was later in charge of repairing the damaged done by Corran Horn and Ganner Rhysode when they freed the slaves being held by the Vong on Bimmiel. Following the rebuilding of the base on Bimmiel, Krag Val was sent to Garqi by Shedao Shai to oversee the transformation of that world into a food-producing world for the Vong. It was on Garqi that he encountered Corran Horn, Jacen Solo, Ganner Rhysode, and their Noghri escort, in the Pesktda Xenobiological Gardens. There, the Jedi discovered that vonduun crab armor was allergic to the pollen of the bafforr tree. They burned down the bafforr groves in order to retain the secret, but drew Krag Val's attention. He managed to badly injure Rhysode and kill one of the Noghri before engaging Jacen Solo in battle. Krag Val's footing slipped when his leg fell into a drain hole, rendering him helpless against Jacen's attack. Krag Val ordered Runck Das to return to Shedao Shai just before he was slain in battle by Jacen Solo. (DTO, DTR)

Kragget Rat
another name for the ratadillo of Eol Sha. (JASB)

Krail, Davish
Krail was an aged Alliance fighter pilot known as Pops. (CCG)

Krail Armory
manufacturers of the 210 and 1010 personal armor suits. (GG9, KO)

Krakana
a large, bullet-shaped ocean creature on Calamari. It has spined fins, sharp pointed teeth, and tentacles near its mouth. (DA)

Kraken XI Superprocessor
this droid control unit was developed by Industrial Automaton for use in the AG9 series of data storage and retrieval droids. Note that this is referred to as a Kraren XI Superprocessor in the Star Wars Adventure Journal, Number 14. (TBSB, SWJ14)

Kral
an Alliance soldier who was mortally wounded in a firefight with Imperial troops. He hid a grenade under his stretcher, and waited for the Imperial to discover him before pulling the pin. (RASB)

Kral Nevil
this Quarren served as Rogue Two and Gavin Darklighter's wingman in Rogue Squadron, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Kral was killed in the engagement with the Yuuzhan Vong over Dantooine, while trying to protect the flow of refugees from Destrillion and Dubrillion. Kral later served in the Battles of Garqi and Ithor. Note that in Dark Tide: Onslaught, Kral is described as Rogue Two while Nevil seems to be Rogue Three. (DTO, DTR)

Krall Praget
this native of the planet Edatha was a New Republic Senator, and chaired the Council on Security and Intelligence. He regarded the loss of the Teljkon vagabond at Gmir Askilon to be a failure, and demanded that the mission return home. Praget did not support Leia Organa-Solo's selection as Chief of State, but he did not openly oppose it. After Leia began granting membership in the Republic to Koornacht Cluster worlds, he convened the Ruling Council and ordered a recall on her right to rule. Although the vote was 5-2 in support of Leia, it laid the groundwork for another vote of no-confidence after the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster met with limited success and the capture of Han Solo. (SOL)

Krane
this tough Alliance Commander was known for his ability to think like an Imperial pilot. He demanded only the best from his pilots, and gave them little leeway in their performance reviews. Krane believed that the only way the Alliance would prevail was if it acted as a precision fighting force. He specialized in training Alliance pilots to fly captured TIE Fighters, for special missions as well as to give Alliance pilots a sense of the Imperial pilot's perspective. His team worked hard to capture intact TIE Fighters for their own use. (RA2)

Krann
this planet is located in the four-star Opiteihr System, and is a humid, densely-jungled world. Because the four stars that dominate the system are all red giants, Krann is continually bathed in an eerie, blood-red light. This has led to the evolution of plants which have deep black leaves which soak up all available light, an ebon carpet known as the Black Jungle. The planet is ost famous for its nova crystals, which were harvested for the Empire by the native Kluuzot in order to fund the first Death Star project. The average day on Krann lasts 31 standard hours, though its year lasts only 162 local days. (TSK)

Krann System
located near the Merren Sector, this star system is the next stop on the Harrin Trade Corridor after the Brevost System. (TSK)

Kraren XI Superprocessor
see Kraken XI Superprocessor (SWJ14)

Krass, Jord
a Lieutenant in the Imperial Navy during the Galactic Civil War, he helped his Captain, Mordaph Clafdatha write a detailed report on the various Alliance starfighters for Darth Vader. (XW)

Kratas
born on Derilyn, Kratas was accepted into the SAGEducation group at the Calamar University on a full scholarship. He excelled in history and politics, and was chosen for further training on Carida. He eventually was promoted to Navy Commander under Daala's command, captain of the Gorgon. He was in charge of the ground forces which Daala sends to route the Eol Sha colonists relocated to Dantooine. Kratas was one of the few members of Daala's team to survive the series of defeats that the Imperial fleet suffered under Daala, and he accompanied her into the Core to search for the feuding warlords. They tried to get the warlords to unify and creata a huge force against the New Republic, but each of them was too wrapped up in his own power to agree. Kratas was killed while inspecting Harrsk's flagship Star Destroyer, the Shockwave, when the warship was destroyed in an attack from another Imperial warlord, Teradoc. (JS, DA, COTF, DS, JASB)

Kraten
this barren, rocky world is the first planet in the Outlier System based on the star, Sacor. (CTD)

Krath
a society of Tetan Elite led by Satal Keto and Aleema, it was based on the Dark Side teachings of the Sith. (FNU, DLS)

Krath Enchanter
Satal Keto's luxurious Tetan yacht, it was destroyed when Keto and Aleema tried to land on Onderon during the Old Republic's seige there against the Naddists. (FNU)

Krax
this elder Troob was the leader of his people, and represented them at the peace and trade negotiations held by the Tion Hegemony. When his son Ket was murdered, apparently by Larka Nimondro, General Krax broke off the negotiations and declared war on the Hobors. Just as he was planning to launch his attack, C-3PO and R2-D2 managed to use Mount Yeroc to communicate to all parties. They exposed Jake Harthan as the killer, and managed to avert a full-scale war. Krax deferred to reason, and agreed to meet with Nimondro on their own terms, to discuss a true peace for Tahlboor before further negotiations with the Tion Hegemony began. (DRPC)

Kraxith
Governor of Trebela, and an Imperial supporter. He was responsible for exposing a rag-tag group of Alliance supporters in his capital city. (SWSB)

Kray'geen T'ihar
this Mon Calamari was the leader of the Alliance opposition to the Imperial subjugation of the planet Bundim, and was able to rally his forces after the Battle of Heg and free the planet. (GMK)

Krayiss Two
this planet was the site of a Sith gathering, a thousand years after the fall of the Sith Empire. Jev Sunrider and three other Jedi Masters were dispatched to investigate, and never returned. Krayiss Two had two moons. (TOJC)

Krayt
an Imperial shuttle protecting a supply convoy near Bonadan until it was attacked and destroyed during an Alliance raid. (XW)

Krayt Dragon
a large, fearsome beast native to Tatooine, the krayt dragon is a beast which continues to grow larger throughout its lifespan. The krayt dragon is yellowish-brown in color, a camouflage used to blend in with the desert's rocky caves and fissures. The head of the dragon is heavily armored, and five large horns grow from its crown. The dragon walks low to the ground on four heavy legs, and its tail is studded with long spikes. The Tusken Raiders on Tatooine have a maturity ritual in which young males are left in the desert to confront and kill a krayt dragon in order to prove their adulthood. The only sure way to kill the krayt is to penetrate their central sinus cavity and puncture the brain which lies behind it. The krayt, like many reptiles, has fearsome teeth which are used to capture its prey, but are ineffective for grinding and chewing. So, like many reptiles, the kray dragon ingests stones and boulders and holds them in a series of gizzards. The muscles of the gizzard chambers roll food around among the stones, crushing it into digestible pulp. The last gizzard chamber contains the smoothest stones, which are expelled in favor ot newer, rougher stones. These smooth stones are known throughout the galaxy as dragon pearls, and are extremely valuable. It has been reported that the krayt dragon has recently been domesticated. They are often raised for their milk and eggs. The Sandpeople and Jawas have said that the bones of the krayt dragon hold mystical powers. There are some scholars who believe that the krayt dragon is really the descendant of the wild offspring of a Duinuogwuin, although this has never been proven. (SW, DE2, TJP, ISU, GG7, CCG, GG4)

Krayt Dragon Lounge
a bar located in Mos Eisley. Han Solo tried to win some credits there, after dumping a load of Jabba the Hutt's spice. He ran into Dash Rendar, but was unable to win any additional funds. (RD)

Krayt Pearl
these are simply the gizzard stones used by the Krayt Dragon to help it digest its food. The stones, when taken from the dragon's gut, are a lustrous, milky color. Obtaining the stones is a ritual of manhood for the Tusken Raiders. (DS)

Kreb Zellock
a heavy-set individual. (DCAR)

Kredo Daar
a deep-space hauler who detests droids. (RASB)

Kreeling
Hal Horn had once tracked Moranda Savich to this world, but was unable to capture her before she was able to flee. (TFNR)

Kreen, Shaina
this strikingly beautiful woman was a former model who worked as a waitress at the Ace of Sabres. Her naive and slightly dim-witted approach to life hid the fact that she was, in reality, an Alliance undercover agent. Dunan Par'Ell was overly protective of Shaina, although she never figured out why. (WSV)

Kreesis
this is the largest continent on Algara II, and the location of the cities of Algarine, Benis, and Tivin. (PG2)

Kreet'ah
this Kian'thar was one of Prince Xizor's vigo's, or one of his closest lieutenants. He had learned the criminal trade from his biological mother, who was herself one of Xizor's *vigo*s during her own lifetime. Kreet'ah's professional assets impressed the Falleen prince, who rewarded Kreet'ah by allowing him to inherit his mother's position. Among his assets, Kreet'ah had developed a wide-ranging information network, and developed a wealth on corporate contacts and spies. Given Xizor's desire to control information, this made Kreet'ah quite valuable to the Falleen prince. (SE, SLS)

Kreetle
this large insect is found on the planet Naboo, where it eats many varieties of plants and small animals. They have large, mandibular jaws which can be used to capture and crush its prey. Trained kreetles are used by the Gungans to open containers and clams, and farm-raised kreetles are considered a crunchy snack. (GF)

Krell
this man worked as a gunner for Captain Twolz. When Twolz and the rest of his crew were killed on Niian, Krell and Dannen Lifehold went into business for themselves. (SWJ1)

Krella
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. Krella was based on Byblos. (SWJ13)

Kren
a city on the continent of Tronis, on the planet Algara II. (PG2)

Krendan
this Alliance Commander was in charge of Nomad Squad, at Taul, shortly before the base was destroyed by the Victory-class Star Destroyer Dominator. (SWJ1)

Krenhner
this planet is capital world of the Krenhner Sector. (SOL)

Krenhner Sector Station
this space station was the closest New Republic outpost to Gmir Askilon. Pakkpekatt sent the Marauder to the station after the Teljkon vagabond fled into hyperspace. (SOL)

Krenjsh
this New Republic Intelligence operative was working with the expedition that was sent to capture the Teljkon vagabond. (SOL)

Krenn, Josala
this explorer worked with Kroddok Stopa, and was affiliated with the Obroan Institute. She was stationed on Babali with Stopa when the call came to investigate the planet Brath Qella, during the New Republic's chase of the Teljkon vagabond. Both she and Stopa were killed in an avalanche while searching for information on the planet Brath Qella. (SOL)

Krennel, Delak
this man, a native of the planet Corulag, graduated from the Imperial Academy on Prefsbelt IV, where he was the intramural unarmed-combat champion. Upon graduation, Krennel served the Empire until the Battle of Endor. He was dispatched to the Unknown Regions to serve under Admiral Thrawn, though he detested the fact that he was serving an alien. After Krennel bombarded a world instead of following Thrawn's more "passifistic" orders, Krennel was sent back to Imperial Center for punishment from the Emperor himself. Luckily for Krennel, Emperor Palpatine was killed at Endor before he could pass judgement on Krennel. Krennel then fled Imperial service, striking out on his own and establishing himself at the same time as other renegade Imperial warlords like Zsinj and Teradoc. In a battle, he lost the use of his right forearm from the elbow down, and the limb had to be replaced with a cybernetic implant. The mechanical device glowed red whenever he exerted force with it, evoking fear in his subordinates and enemies. During the initial struggle for control of the Empire, Krennel aligned himself with General Paltr Carvin and, on orders from Ysanne Isard, set out to capture Leia Organa at Axxila. He was thrown off his plan by an AT3 directive from Soontir Fel, a directive reinforced by Sate Pestage. Krennel backed off, but later learned of Pestage's deception in moving him away from Axxila. When Isard approached him about working directly for her instead of Carvin, he was initially suspicious. However, she helped augment his forces in an attempt to retrieve Pestage from Ciutric, and his allegiance changed. After the New Republic thought they had recovered Pestage, Pestage slipped away and presented himself to Krennel for asylum. Krennel, however, cared nothing for Pestage but desired the control of Pestage's holding. Krennel personally executed Sate Pestage by strangling him with his cybernetic hand, then usurped control of the Ciutric Hegemony for himself and paid lip-service to Thrawn's call for support during his rise to power. After Thrawn's death at Bilbringi, the Republic targeted Krennel and the Ciutric Hegemony for removal. They began raiding Ciutric space, unaware that Krennel had allied himself with the activated clone of Ysanne Isard. Together, they began a disinformation campaign aimed at opening a rift between the human and non-human races of the New Republic. Krennel claimed the Hegemony to be a haven for Alderaanian refugees who were tired of the Republic's pro-alien politics. However, they efforts were undermined by the real Ysanne Isard, who managed to capture Rogue Squadron and convince them to help her defeat Krennel. As soon as Krennel learned that the Rogues were destroyed at Corvis Minor, he and the clone began plotting their conquest of Coruscant. They waylayed Republic supply convoys to Liinade III, hoping to draw off much of the starship security around Coruscant. Just as they were about to launch their attack, the Republic - on a tip from Wedge Antilles, who was working with the real Isard - attacked Ciutric. Before his forces could leave the system, Krennel found himself on the brink of disaster. His fleet was decimated by the effectiveness of the Thrawn Pincer, Ciutric had been infiltrated and her planetary shields dropped, and he had no firepower to bring to bear on the Republic ships. The combined fire of the Selonian Fire and the Corusca Fire destroyed Krennel's flagship, the Reckoning, and Krennel was killed in the explosion. (XWMR, IR)

Krenth
this is the fourth combination symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic combination "kh". (SWM)

Kresch
this quasi-sentient mollusk is native to the swamps of Naboo. The Gungans use them to store information in their underwater libraries. The kresch has a single eye, which it can extend on a short stalk for viewing its environment. The blood of the kresch is unusual in that, when the mollusk is poked or manipulated, the inky blood rearranges itself to display images and words. (GF)

Kress, Maxig
a native of the planet Tibro, this woman was wanted by the corporate leaders of Gandalom Paramedicinals for the theft of several experimental compounds. She was rumored to have destroyed security droids and injured security personnel during the theft. She went underground, using the alias Levesh Tolik in order to escape capture. A 25,000 credit bounty was placed on her head. (GG10)

Kressar
this crime boss found himself under attack from the Hutts. As he planned to have his gang passed into good hands, he put two envelopes in his safe. After he was assassinated, his successor, Jorrn Kresh, found the envelopes. One envelope was labeled "Open after you survive your first assassination attempt." The second was labeled "Open after you find out the Hutts are involved." Inside the first envelope was a note with the advice, "Blame it all on me and my cronies." In the second envelope was another note saying, "Make up two more envelopes..." (GG11)

Krestock
this bounty hunter paired up with Raxine in an effort to hunt down Philo Taal, although neither realized that there was no official bounty posted. They disagreed over how to split the bounty, so they agreed to each take one of Philo's legs and pull until he split like a wishbone. In the end, though, Raxine simply shot Philo dead. Raxine and Krestock never received payment, except for the fact that Philo's brother, Reglis Taal, hunted them down adn executed them for their parts in Philo's death. (GG10)

Kretch
a creature which is found in the caverns of Belsavis, the kretch measures about a foot in length. It is a worm-like creature, a couple of inches in diameter, with two sets of jaws filled with serrated teeth. Its tail is barbed, and is used to catch and hold its prey. The creature's scary appearance was used as a deterrent by Belsavian parents. They often told their children that the kretch would catch them and eat them if they did something bad. Nichos Marr's caretaker Margolis used to warn Nichos and his friends that the kretch would catch them if they found Plett's Well. (COJ)

Kretch, Dalmeidan
this minor planetary official maintained a second occupation as a bounty hunter. He used his position within the Imperial bureaucracy to learn of new bounties, then took "business trips" to acquire his targets. He hoped to make enough credits from hunting to leave politics forever. (GG10)

Krev, Raquid
this cargo hauler and part-time smuggler owned an operated the freigther Lexus Primal during the early years of the New Republic. He once had a cargo of spice stolen from him by a group of spice-jackers. One of their members disguised himself as Raquin, and overrode the programming of his security droid, D-Mot. He was a family man, and allowed them to steal the cargo in order to ensure the safety of his wife and children. (GG11)

Krevk Settlement
this was the name of the Sullustan colony established on the planet Gelgelar. (SWJ14)

Kribben
in a popular, though unsettling, Corellian fable, Kribben and his brother Zibben disobeyed their parents and set out to investigate a forbidden area. They were attacked and eaten by a group of wrix. (COG)

Krickle
one of Talon Karrde's smugglers, Krickle served under Shirlee Faughn on the Starry Ice. (SOP)

Krieger
this Imperial Star Destroyer was under the command of Captain Dor Reder, during the early years of the New Republic. It was part of the fleet controlled by Admiral Drommel, and was last encountered in the Hanod System. (WBC)

Kriek
this species of reptilian beings was native to the planet Kriekaal. The Krieks resembled large turtles, with long necks and pointed snouts. Like all shelled creatures, they could pull their extremities inside their shells whenever they were in danger. Krieks could walk on their hind legs like humanoids, but preferred to walk on all-fours. In general, the Krieks are a quiet, gentle race. There were 43 distinct selio, or tribes, of Krieks, each led by a k'lar and guarded by a cadre of ken'kali. (SWJ13)

Kriekaal
this planet, the outermost of the two worlds in the Kriekaal System, was covered with relatively shallow oceans of molten duranium. The planet was far enough from its aging orange star to cool periodically, and small continents of hardened duranium often formed. It was on these "landmasses" that the native Krieks eked out their existence. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, twelve continents were in existence when Korren Starchaser and his scouting team investigated the planet. (SWJ13)

Kriff
this is an Imperial swear word. (VOF)

Kriger
a Star Destroyer under the command of Captain Dor Reder. (WBC)

Krikthasi
an alien race native to the planet Baralou, the Krikthasi have been enemies of the Multopos for their entire existence. They were descended from large, marine mollusks, and had long, flexible bodies studded with tentacles. Krikthasi have four well-developed eyes, with a set of four tentacles emerging just behind their heads. They have two mouths, one for eating and another for breathing. They used the water to help propel themselves through the water, expelling it through a group of vents at the rear of their bodies. Four more tentacles surround their hindquarters. Their coloration helped them communicate, as each Krikthasi could manipulate the pattern of their coloration to express complex concepts as well as emotions. The Krikthasi, in their seemingly endless war with the Multopos, have discovered that the eggs of the Multopos were quite delicious, and eat them as a way of proving to themselves that the Multopos were not sentient. (PG1, AE)

Kril
this creature, native to the planet Kidron, was raaised by the Orfites as a source of meat. (AE)

Krill
1) a creature native to the planet Kidron, the krill are harvested for their meat. (PG)
2) this is the eleventh symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "k". (SWM)

Krin
this man was an Imperial Captain, and commanded the Star Destroyer Adjudicator during the height of the New Order. He took Vimron Trell under his wing, after Trell produced a wondrous feast that impressed Moff Renquet enough to have Renquet request that the Adjudicator be reassigned as his personal fleet flagship. (CRO)

Krish
an alien race native to the planet Sanza, the Krish are smooth-skinned humanoids with large, wide heads. Their faces are dominated by bony ridges above the eyes and along the nose, and their mouths are filled with rows of tiny, pointed teeth. They also have short, wiry hair, and love playing games of any sort. In general, however, they were highly unreliable when it came to business matters. (EGC, CRO, DTO, AE, SWJ1)

Kritkeen, Sinick
this Imperial COMPNOR General served as the planetary supervisor on Aruza, during the New Order. He bore a striking resemblance to Han Solo, which is why the bounty hunter Dengar agreed to assassinate Kritkeen for the Aruzans. Kritkeen was working to enslave the Aruzans, and they simply wanted their freedom. Dengar tracked Kritkeen and caught him, giving the Imperial a three-minute lead before chasing him down. Dengar's mind began believing that Kritkeen was Solo, and he relished the actions of placing an armed concussion grenade in Kritkeen's mouth and throwing the man off a cliff. (TBH)

Kritt
Fola's mate, they lived at North 5 26 Up in the city of Griann, on Teyr. (SOL)

Kriyystak
one of Chewbacca's many relatives, Kriyystak worked to replenish the Millennium Falcon's food stores whiel Chewie was on Kashyyyk for Lumpawarump's Test of Ascension. (RD, TT)

Krizar
these vicious creatures were often used by crimelords to patrol their compounds. Krizar begin life as a shell-encased pupa, which must exist in a nutrient slime until it can break through its shell. If a shelled pupa is removed from the slime, it dies quickly. Once it chews free of the shell, the krizar must be incubated while they grow. Each krizar has a set of mouth palps that it uses like scissors, latching onto the nearest heat source and chewing its way inward. (TFNR)

Krizzin
this barren, arid world is the fourth planet in the Algaran System. Orbital scans have revealed that it is riddled with caves and vast mineral deposits. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Krk
a H'drachi noble who believed Ch'no was a fool, and couldn't correctly read the time-streams, even though Ch'no was quite often right. He was one of the first to openly denounced Ch'no's adoption of the infant Mora. (ROC)

Kro
this small, rodent-like reptile is native to the planet Zelos II. It has a toothy, scoop-shaped mouth and glowing red eyes. Kro also have prehensile tails, which support and balance the creature in the absense of forearms. The kro hang from trees, waiting for prey to pass by. They then dop down onto their prey, holding it with their tails while they eat it alive. (PG2)

Krob
a deity worshipped by Cabrool Nuum. (JTH)

Kroctar
this planet was the merchant center and capital world of Shataum Sector in the decades following the Battle of Endor. Moff Disra, along with Grodin Tierce and the con-man Flim - posing as the resurrected Thrawn - managed to bully the leaders of this world into a brief alliance with the Imperial faction they represented. It is the homeworld of the Kroctari race. (VOF)

Kroctari
this race was native to the planet Kroctar. They were somewhat loyal to the Empire and its ideals, and felt that the Caamas Incident was an indication of the lack of order maintained by the New Republic. They were willing to welcome Thrawn back to their planet, but were unaware that Thrawn was actually the conman Flim, acting under the command of Moff Disra. (VOF)

Kroeskin Fabrications manufacturers of ceramisteel vehicle hulls, Kroeskin was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Krok
a male Gamorrean in the Gakfedd tribe, Krok was junior husband to Bullyak. (COJ)

Krolp
an indecent Huttese reference to excrement. (JTH)

Kron Thon
this crimelord was a rival of Mugsy Fratillio. (GMS)

Kronas
this hot, rocky world is the first planet in the Kattellyn System. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Krotorra
this Wookiee was one of many who served the New Republic as representative of the planet Kashyyyk. Along with his partner, Lamorrack, Krotorra was captured ans sold into slavery by Slar-dan ti Gardi and Borun Call. (SWJ8)

Krovalis
this Nimbanese clan tried to apply for a data holding position under the Bureau of Ships and Services, shortly after the Bovark clan debacle. They also applied for a position of power under the Hutt Clan of Ancients. After the Hutts accepted their petition, the Krovalis Nimbanese asked them to allow the Krovalis clan to remain free, in return for access to Nimbanese data holdings under the BoSS. The Hutts, led by Zochaeb the Hutt and seeing a easy source of information from a non-aggressive party, agreed to this. They pushed hard on the BoSS to allow the Nimbanese to be re-instated as data holders. Thus, the Krovalis clan was the first of a new era of Nimbanese holders. (GG12)

Krovas
this man was Jorkatt the Render's second-in-comnmand, until he was found drowned in a swimming accident. The presence of plasticrete bricks in the pockets of his clothing was never explained. Later, Vohrkrewel Yahrkar assumed Krovas' persona whenever he spent time on Celanon. (POC)

Kroyie
a species of birds native to Kashyyyk. The kroyies were once a food source for rich Wookiees. Now it is a food source for all. (HTTE)

Kroyn'Tal

Krozurbian
this alien race was at war with itself for 200 years. A brutish, green-skinned retpiloid people, the Krozurbian civil war would have raged longer if Master Zorneth hadn't slipped the leaders some savorium-laden thookah steaks. It was part of an experiment to verify to himself the potency of the herb. The Krozurbian leaders dropped their arms and immediately ceased their hostilities. (DRO)

kRR
this Old Hihg Squibbian term is not translateable to Basic, but refers to the novelty value of an item under negotiation. (SH)

KRT410C
this was a model of Kurtob podracer. The cockpit of the KRT410C measured a scant 2.03 meters in length, while its engines were just 3.81 meters long. This made it one of the smallest racers of its day. However, this did not translate into more speed, as the KRT410C's top speed was around 775 kilometers per hour. (IG1)

Krudar
this surly Duros was one of the many gunners serving aboard the FarStar during its search for Moff Sarne in Kathol Sector. (KO)

Kruger, Moira
this woman, who fashioned herself as a Lady, owned and operated the Grinder Dance Hall in the boomtown of Corestrike, on Chrona, during the early years of the New Republic. Along with Mortris and Arno Gallorr, Moira worked as one of the town's governmental Adjuncts, although it was later revealed that Moira had been bought out by the crimelor Themog. Her origins were unknown, but she was a prominent bantha-owner until the discovery of chronamite poisoned her herds. She nearly lost everything, until she won the Grinder Dance Hall in a game of sabacc. Her detractors claim she cheated her way to the Grinder, having been a con artist and gambler since her youth. Shortly before Mortris Gallorr began hiring mercenaries to try and protect Corestrike from criminals, Moira began a relationship with Themog, and the two were inseparable. She allowed Themog to use the Grinder as a hideout. (SWJ12)

Kruk Battle-wagon
this warship was developed shortly after the Clone Wars. (SOP)

Krul
this man was Jai Raventhorn's fiance, before he was killed by Imperial forces. (TFNR)

Kruluk
a talkative, good-natured Quarren, Kruluk runs The Long Drink bar and eatery in Morjanssik, on Calamari. He believes that the Quarren should join the Alliance and rid themselves of the Empire, but he keeps this mostly to himself. He doesn't want any trouble, with his fellow Quarren or the authorities of Morjanssik. (DU)

Krunch
this Wookiee worked as Bolabo Hujaan's chief mechanic at Bolabo's Garage on Byblos. They met while serving together on a smuggler's starship, and Krunch accompanied Bolabo when she set out on her own. According to Bolabo, the name Krunch was chosen because that's what the Wookiee did to patrons who didn't pay for their repairs at the Garage. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, Krunch rarely left the confines of the Garage, fearing that Imperial forces would enslave him. The patrons of Bolabo's Garage always left happy, because Krunch was a highly skilled mechanic who could work wonders with almost any starship. (CRO)

Krung Dynasty
the rulers of this ancient dynasty were often embalmed and mummified after death, in hopes that they might live longer lives in the afterworld. The Mendacian funeral urns of the young Krungs were considered priceless by the time of the Battle of Hoth. (TJT)

Krupx
manufacturers of detonation devices, such as proton torpedoes. (SCRE)

Kruqr
this scrawny-looking man worked for Booster Terrik as a guard and soldier aboard the Errant Venture. (IJ)

Krusp
a Huttese term for stick or pole. (JTH)

Kruuny
one of the many pilots who worked for Lando Calrissian in the asteroid belt known as Lando's Folly, Kruuny was one of the pilots who agreed to help Lando's forces try and hold off the first wave of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. (VP)

Krykis IV
it was on this planet that Doctor Corellia Antilles discovered the Voorlach Temple. (SWJ14)

Kryll
this Alliance General was in charge of the Outer Rim Communications Center during the Galactic Civil War. Kryll was an Imperial officer who defected to the Alliance after the destruction of Alderaan. He often told his troops that he defected, not because of Alderaan, but because the Empire didn't appreciate his wonderful tenor voice. He later served the New Republic on Generis. (RASB, TLC)

Kryndyn
this city is the capital of the planet Zelos II. Like all Zelosian cities, it is ringed with a 10-meter tall wall, and has a standing garrison. The garrison of Kryndyn numbers 50,000 troops. It has a thriving commodities maket, and provides ample supplies for Zelosian and off-worlder needs. (PG2)

Kryss
this Corellian youth was rescued by Han Solo and Chewbacca from Ylesia. (RD)

Krytollak
an alien race which worshipped the Emperor Palpatine during the reign of the New Order, the Krytollaks are a warm-blooded, insectile species. They have hard, dense outer shells surrounding tough skeletal structures. Most Krytollaks have brown or black shells. A green shell appears every so often, and is reverred as a sign of greatness. Nobles and ranking officials paint elaborate designs on the shells. They have small eyes hidden within their facial plates, and beak-like mouths. Their ears are really a series of membranes arranged around the facial plates, and they lack a nose as well as a sense of smell. They subsist on plant material and certain rocks and minerals. They were technologically primitive and aloof when they were discovered during the latter years of the Old Republic. When Palpatine rose to power, the Krytollaks - who believe in a single ruler of their own homeworld of Thandruss - deferred to his awesome power. Many Krytollaks infiltrated the Alliance in an effort to provide information to the Empire. It is unknown how the Krytollaks have adapted to life under the auspices of the New Republic. (GG12)

Krytos
this was the codename for Evir Derricote's alien bioweapon. The Krytos virus was developed to affect only aliens, not humans. This was part of Ysanne Isard's master plan to expose the New Republic as unsympathetic to non-humans. The goal of the Krytos virus was to infect all of the aliens on Coruscant just before the Republic could take control of the planet. Then, just as it was trying to position itself as the dominant government in the galaxy, the aliens would suddenly become ill. The Krytos virus initially caused a stupor or listlessness in aliens, followed by a dark discoloration of the skin. The skin would later crack and blister, then seem to melt away. The Krytos virus was designed to infect a cell and multiply within the cell until the cell burst from the pressure. The suddenly-release viruses would infect neighboring cells, continuing to multiply and explode cells. The virus affected all cells in an alien's body, including skin, organs, and bones. One unique side effect of the Krytos virus is that it seemed to ignore nerve cells and pain receptors. Thus, the victim was acutely aware of the pain the virus was causing.
Derricote developed the Krytos virus with an antidote: it could be counteracted by immersing the victim in large amounts of bacta. The more widespread the virus is, the more bacta is required to eliminate it. This was the second part of Isard's plan. The Republic could save all of the aliens by providing them with bacta, but it would have to bankrupt itself in order to do it. (WG)

this Imperial by-law allowed any military officer to take control of a criminal organization and order its members into custody. (MJEH)

Ksaa

KT4
Taim & Bak laser cannons, similar to those used on the Dx-9 Delta-class transport. (XW)

KT6
Taim & Bak heavy blaster cannons, similar to those used on the Telgorn Gamma-class assault shuttle. (ISB)

Ku'Bakai
this blue giant star is the primary sun in the Ku'Bakai system, home to the planet Kubindi and three other, life-supporting worlds. The Kubaz used these worlds (the sixth, eighth, and eleventh) as insect farms which cater to their every taste. The first four planets in the system are sterile worlds, having been scoured by the intense solar flares given off by the star in a brief series of pulses millennia ago. These flares are well-known to astronomers for their beauty. (SCRE, MTS, GG4, SWJ10)

Kuan
one of two habitable planets in the Taroon System, Kuan was invaded by the Empire just before the Battle of Hoth. Kuan and its sister planet, Bordal, had been locked in a bitter, decades-old war, although no one remembered the exact cause. The Kuan economy was in ruins, and the planetary government had declared martial law. The Empire, seeing an opportunity, entered the system to bring news of Palpatine's removal of the supposed dead wood of the Old Republic. The Empire blamed the planet's economic crisis on the Old Republic, and swayed the Kuani to join the Empire. The planet's primary inhabitants are human. The planet has many moons. (TIE)

Kuantar
this gas giant is the third world in the Kidron System, located in the Elrood Sector. It is surrounded by a spectacular ring system. (PG)

Kuar
this planet was the primary world in the Kuar System, which is located near the Empress Teta System. This world was adopted by the ancient Mandalore warriors when they attacked the Tetan worlds prior to the Great Sith War. It was here, millenia later, that Fonterrat provided Bornan Thul with a datadisk containing the location of the Emperor's plague storehouse. (TSW, TEP)

Kuari
one of the ships dispatched to intercept the Teljkon vagabond, the Kuari was the ship that was able to get nearest to the vagabond. Lando Calrissian's yacht, the Lady Luck, was tethered to the vagabond after Lando boldly gained access to the strange ship. When Pakkpekatt ordered the Kuari nearer, the vagabond severed the connection to the Lady Luck and fired on the Kuari before jumping into hyperspace. The Kuari sustained a great amount of damage, and there were many casualties and injuries. The dead and wounded were taken to Nichen on the Kettemoor. (SOL)

Kuari Princess
a Mon Calamari MC80 luxury spaceliner whose slafcourses are famous throughout the galaxy. The Princess is the flagship of Galaxy Tours, and has accommodations for up to 3,500 passengers of 27 unique species. It measures 500 meters in length, and is manned by 840 crewers, 500 droids, and 60 security officers. It is lightly armed, with 10 turbolaser batteries. The Princess had a long and storied history, incldluing one trip through the Maelstrom in which is was hijacked by the Riders of the Maelstrom as part of a plot to destroy Rodin Higron's base on the planet Oasis. (RPG, RM)

Kuari Suites
one of the most luxurious accommodations on the Kuari Princess, the Kuari Suites can be reserved for about a 1,000 credits a night. (RM)

Kuat
1) this planet was of prime importance to the New Order, for the Kuat Drive Yards shipyards there were among the first to mass-produce warships for the Empire. The relationship blossomed, and the Kuat Drive Yards were made into the primary facility for the construction of Star Destroyers. A forested world of pastoral beauty, It is located in the Kuat Sector, located in the most densely-populated area of the galaxy. (SWSB, XWN, SWAJ, MA)
2) this was the name of the strongest of the many family clans which ruled the planet Kuat. Like all Kuati families, they continued to enhance their bloodlines by using telbuns to birth their children. However, the Kuat family maintained a strong genetic structure, and proved themselves more than able to manage the huge Kuat Drive Yards. Several generations prior to the Battle of Yavin, all the great families agreed on the Inheritance Exemption, which allowed the Kuat family to pass control of KDY down through successive generations. This was challenged by several families just prior to the Battle of Endor, a coup attempt which was successfully averted by Kuat of Kuat only by nearly destroying the KDY facilities. (MA, SLS, HM)

3) this descendant of the ancient Kuat family controlled the vast Kuat Drive Yards during the last years of the Old Republic and throughout the New Order. Although never truly appreciated, Kuat of Kuat worked diligently to maintain the independence of KDY in the face of Emperor Palpatine's growing power. He fiercely refused to be part of the first Death Star project, an action denounced by the ruling families of Kuat until the station was destroyed near Yavin. Unknown to most of the Kuati clans until the end of the New Order, Kuat even tried to eliminate Prince Xizor of Black Sun, when the Falleen began trying to take control of the shipyards. The plot involved implicating Xizor in the deaths of Owen and Beru Lars on Tatooine, an event which Kuat recorded and later added traces of Falleen pheromones to an olfactory sensor. If the plan worked, Luke Skywalker would break off his involvement with the Alliance long enough to eliminate Xizor, thereby removing one of Kuat's chief enemies. The plot never got a chance to succeed, because the droid containing the falsified evidence was lost by its courier, Ree Duptom, when his ship's engines failed. The droid fell into the hands of Boba Fett, and Kuat found himself trying to kill the bounty hunter in order to recover the droid. Several attempts were made, including a bombing run in the Tatooine desert near the Sarlacc pit, to ensure Fett's death. These efforts didn't go unnoticed, though, as several of the other Kuati families took them as personal vendettas and signs that Kuat was no longer working in KDY's best interests. The family's plotting eventually took in Kuat's security chief, Fenald, and his replacement, Kodir of Kuhlvult. Through it all, however, Kuat maintained the upper hand. In the end, he was forced to destroy the KDY facilities, rather than let them fall into the hands of anyone else. In this, too, Kuat was thwarted by the efforts of the Alliance and Boba Fett himself. The bounty hunter managed to flee the destruction in a slaved Star Destroyer, taking with him most of the explosives Kuat had hoped to use. In the end, Kuat returned to the main facilities and was killed in the explosions he himself had set off. (MA, SLS, HM)

Kuat Central Authority
this was the security force which controlled the movement of starships to and from the Kuat Drive Yards facilities in orbit near the planet Kuat. It also controlled the traffic destined to the planet itself. (IF)

Kuat City
this was one of the largest cities on the planet Kuat. (HT)

Kuat Drive Yards
KDY is one of the top three starship manufacturers, along with Corellian Engineering Corporation and Sienar Fleet Systems. KDY was controlled by the ruling families of the planet Kuat, with each new ruler being chosen from among the most competent in a vote. However, it was determined that the Kuat family had the most aptitude for running the huge corporation, and the ruling families established the Inheritance Exemption. This allowed control of KDY to pass from one generation of the Kuat family to the next, thereby ensuring that the most able of the Kuat minds was continually in control of the corporation. This meant that KDY was always generating vast amounts of wealth for all the ruling families. Kuat Drive Yards remained independent from any governmental body, from the time of its inception during the Old Republic throughout the New Order of Emperor Palpatine. It is perhaps most famous for its production of the Imperial-class Star Destroyer. It also produced many shipboard components, as well as the Nebulon-B frigate. KDY aligned itself with the Empire, and remained pro-Imperial after the Battle of Endor. It was also one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. Unknown to most buyers, every ship which left Kuat Drive Yards was given a regulator subcode in its computer system. This trapdoor allowed Kuat Drive Yards engineers to obtain control of a ship for diagnostics and repairs. These codes could also be used to break into a ship and take control from its user. This fact was never revealed, in part to save KDY from the wrath of Emperor Palpatine. During the last days of the New Order, shortly before the Battle of Endor, much of Kuat Drive Yards was destroyed by Kuat of Kuat. He hoped to ensure that no one – not the Empire, the Alliance, or Kodir of Kuhlvult – would take control of the operation. He acted nobly, but was unaware of the forces around him. In fact, the bounty hunter Boba Fett was his greatest ally, and helped expose Kodir's treacherous plans. The future leaders of KDY maintained Kuat of Kuat's series of explosives, which could be detonated if the facilities ever were in danger of being captured. (JS, SCRE, EGV, CSA, MA, SLS, HM, IF) this ancient colony ship predated the Old Republic, and brought the first colonists to the planet Alsakan. (CSA)

Kuat Freight Port
a division of Kuat Drive Yards, the Freight Port handled all incoming shipments of raw materials as well as movement of materials within the Drive Yards. (SWJ9)

Kuat Systems Engineering
KSE was a short-lived subsidiary of Kuat Drive Yards created in the waning days of the Old Republic. It produced a few well-designed but poorly marketed starships, including the CloakShape fighter and the Firespray-class attack ship. The lack of sales eventually led to KSE being re-integrated under the KDY banner as an after-market upgrade kit manufacturer. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, KSE was sold off to a group of Imperial loyalists. It was later revealed that the loyalists were really Vaathkree merchants with strong ties to the New Republic. The Dark Empire Sourcebook says that KSE was the forerunner of KDY was charged with developing new starfighters for the Empire. One of their first starships was the CloakShape Fighter. Kubaz an alien race hailing from the planet Kubindi, the Kubaz have dark green skin, a prehensile trunk, and large eyes. Their eyes are sensitive to the red spectrum of light, and often wear large goggles when they are away from their homeworld. They tend to be clan-oriented, with each clan protecting its property from other rival clans. The intense solar flares from their planet's sun nearly destroyed the majority of food sources on the planet, and the Kubaz were forced to hunt insects as a staple diet. This led to the rival clans raiding each others' insect farms. These so-called Hive Wars were resolved when the Kubaz found a way to alter the genetics of their insects to not only improve their reproduction, but to identify each hive by its colorings as property of a certain clan. This newly-formed science of Insecticulture helped keep the rival clans from feuding, and also allowed the Kubaz to expand their horizons. They eventually discovered space travel, and eventually populated three of the 11 worlds orbiting the sun Ku'Bakai. This ability to move off-planet then introduced the Kubaz to their neighbors, the Verpine. Since the Verpine are an insectile race by nature, the space-faring Kubaz found that the Verpine were tasty, and began to hunt them as an additional food source. (SW, TLC, SCRE, MTS, GG4)

Kubaz Insect
this small sculpture was carved from a single diamond-fusion crystal about a third of a meter in height. As a gemstone, its value was incalculable. As a work of art, it was priceless. The statue was stolen by the small-time theived Lauren and Sam from the collection of Rock'co on Narigus III, although it was later discovered that Rock'co's statue was a fake. (GMS)

Kubaz Xirconia
this abundant, clear stone is often used as a substitute for real diamonds. (MJEH)

Kubindi
this planet is the homeworld of the Kubaz, and is the fifth planet orbiting the sun Ku'Bakai. Kubindi orbits very close to Ku'Bakai, and the frequent solar flares raze the planet's surface, destroying much of the plant and animal life. The primary survivors of the flares were insects. There are millions of species on the planet today. Other creatures which managed to survive had to evolve into insect-eaters, like the Kubaz. They now inhabit the 6th, 8th, and 11th worlds in the Ku'Bakai system, with only the poor or disgraced Kubaz still clinging to existence on Kubindi. Kubindi is located in the Calaron Sector. The day on Kubindi lasts 48 standard hours, and it year encompasses 420 local days. The planet was overtaken by the Yuuzhan Vong some twenty-six years after the Battle of Endor, following in the wake of Falleen and Rodia. Kyp Durron and his group of vigilantes, Kyp's Dozen, held off the aliens long enough for every spaceworthy ship to flee the planet. It was believed that the Kubaz were attractive targets to the Yuuzhan Vong because of their history of genetic manuipulation of insects. (TLC, SCRE, MTS, REB, SWJ10, BP)

Kud'ar Mub'at
this assembler served the galaxy as a go-between and middleman for much of its less glamourous – or legal – activities. Like most assemblers, Kud'ar Mub'ar gained its independence by consuming the assembler which created it. Among Mub'at's most regarded functions was as holder in escrow of the credits placed for the bounty on a being's life. This allowed the poster of the bounty to remain out of the path of danger, while ensuring the timely and accurate delivery of the goods. The assembler was not without its own defenses, having acquired a number of weapons from the ships of individuals which tried to swindle it. Kud'ar Mub'at also salvaged sublight engines for use in moving its web through space. In essence, any being visiting the web was walking within Kud'ar Mub'at's own brain, and was constantly under surveillance. After the development of the subnode called Balancesheet, Mub'at was able to be in two places at once. He himself would see to one customer, while Balancesheet – operating from one of Mub'at's shed carapaces – would attent to the other. Among the assembler's largest customers was the Bounty Hunters Guild, which used the assembler's services to ensure prompt payments of the bounties its members collected. Kud'ar Mub'at was also involved in a great deal of political and powerful intrigue, including the plans of Kuat of Kuat and Prince Xizor of Black Sun. Together, they orchestrated the destruction of the Bounty Hunters Guild and plotted the death of Boba Fett. It was Kud'ar Mub'at who convinced Boba Fett to join the Guild in order to bring about its destruction. At first, the bounty hunter was unaware of the assembler's alliance with Xizor. However, the state of the galaxy during the Galactic Civil War and the ability of Boba Fett to avoid death made these plans tenuous at best. These plans also kept Mub'at's attention on the outside galaxy, allowing the subnode Balancesheet to gain intelligence and autonomy from its creator. Balancesheet entered an alliance with Xizor, and together they brought about the destruction of Kud'ar Mub'at and its web. Kud'ar pleaded with Boba Fett to take hime away, but Fett declined the offer. The pieces of the web drifted for several years before they were approached by Fett, along with Dengar and Neelah, who hoped to re-animate the assembler and learn more about Kuat's plans. Although the assembler was brought back to life, its memory was damaged and it couldn't provide the information it needed. Balancesheet then returned to its creator and destroyed it utterly, firing laser cannons into the web and incinerating much of it. This seemed to please Mub'at, who wanted the release of true death. (MA, SLS, HM)

Kuellar
1) this ancient Almania military leader served as an army general several centuries before the Galactic Civil War. A human, Kuellar conquered the planet and the Je'Har before taking control of the entire Almanian System and the surrounding sector. Although he was generally regarded as ruthless and deadly, Kuellar was also known as a beloved and respected leader to the Almanian peoples. (TNR)
2) the pseudonym adopted by the failed Jedi student Dolph, during his attempt to wrest power from Leia Organa-Solo and take control of the New Republic. Dolph assumed the name Kuellar after defeating the Je'Har, and he began using a Hendanyn death mask to cover his face. The mask hung on a silver chain when he wasn't wearing it. (TNR)

Kufbrug
this Gamorrean sow was a member of the Bolgoink clan, and was married to Vrokk. After Vrokk was murdered, Kufbrug brought out a series of parchments which she claimed were love letters from Guth. She produced them as corroborating evidence of Guth's signature on a document which challenged Vrokk to a duel. Vrokk died shortly after reading the document, killed by a poison hidden in the seal used to close it. Callista Ming, however, knew that Guth couldn't sign his own name, let alone write love letters. Despite Callista's obvious friendship with Guth, Kufbrug allowed the human time to seek out Vrokk's killer. Kufbrug later admitted that she liked Guth more than Vrokk, and thought that the two might run away together. (SWJ14)

Kumac
this Hutt was one of Jabba's most efficient underlings, during his reign as the top Hutt crimelord. She was loyal and also quick-witted, and wasted no time in carving out her own piece of Jabba's empire following his death on Tatooine. Shortly afterward, Kumac engineered an escape plan that freed Brahle Logris from prison on Tamazall. She hoped to use Logris' talents to her own advantage, but Logris was eventually captured by the Sector Rangers. (GG11)

Kumauri
this starshipwright developed several warship designs during the Old Republic, including the Cal-class warship. They operated under the control of Vall Kumauri, and based many of their designs on the original Kumauri Battleship. (CRO)

Kumauri, Vall
some 10,000 years before the Battle of Yavin, this upstart young warlord seized control of several remote star systems in an effort to establish his own little empire outside the control of the Old Republic. He had a great deal of knowledge about starships, and was instrumental in the design and manufacture of the Kumauri Battleship, named for himself. His shiny star collapsed and imploded after only a few years, but the designs of the Kumauri Battleship was maintained and modified by Kumauri starshipwrights. (CRO)

Kumauri Battleship
this ancient ship was designed and manfuactured by Vall Kumauri, and served as the flagship of his personal fleet. Its design was considered highly-advanced for its age - some 10,000 years before the Battle of Yavin - and was best-known for the huge mass drive weapon slung over its main hull. It was also armed with several tractor beams, which were used to capture asteroids for use as projectile weapons. Once collected, the asteroids were shot out of the mass drive weapon's bore at a target. These natural weapons were capable of leveling entire cities, and made the Kumauri Battleship a terror to confront. Many of its design aspects, including the mass drive weapon, were later incorporated into the Cal-class warship. (CRO)

Kun, Exar
a Jedi student of Vodo-Siosk Baas on Dantooine, Exar Kun used Vodo's holocron to learn about the ancient Sith. Exar Kun didn't like the fact that Vodo, not to mention his fellow students Crado and Sylvar, were not human, and he continually goaded them. He nearly killed Sylvar during a lightsaber training exercise, and she clawed him on the right cheek. Vodo stopped the duel before someone was killed, and challenged Kun to a duel between Kun's skill with a lightsaber and Vodo's skill with a walking stick. Vodo nearly defeated Kun, but Kun snatched another lightsaber and attacked his Master. Vodo's stick was broken, and Kun's rage passed as he felt he was victorious. Exar Kun then left Dantooine to try and obtain the Sith artifacts that had been found on Onderon. He entered the tomb of Freedon Nadd and was controlled by Nadd's evil spirit. Nadd led Kun to Korriban, where Kun discovered a pair of Sith scrolls that tantalizingly led him further down the path to the Dark Side. Kun tried to resist, but Nadd nearly killed him before offering assistance. However, the assistance required Kun to give himself to the Dark Side. Kun chose to live, and was drawn into the Dark Side's power. Then, Nadd directed Kun to go to Yavin 4, where he should complete the work of Naga Sadow. On Yavin 4, Kun again tried to renounce Nadd's teachings, and was captured by the Massassi. They tried to sacrifice Kun in a blood ceremony, during which Nadd's spirit goaded him down the Dark path. Exar Kun called out to the Dark Side in anger, and a Sith amulet was drawn to his power. It fused to his arm, and he was suddenly endowed with the power of the Sith. He took control of the Massassi, and exterminated Nadd's spirit. As the months went by, Exar Kun found Naga Sadow's works and began to gain more and more Sith power. Once he felt that he was powerful enough, he went to the Empress Teta System to defeat Aleema and Satal Keto and claim his position as Sith lord. When he arrived, Keto had already been killed by Ulic Qel-Droma, so Kun tried to defeat him in battle. The ancient Sith masters were drawn to the pair's incredible Dark Side power, and halted the battle. They named Kun the Dark Lord of the Sith, and Qel-Droma his Apprentice. They went into hiding, and continued to gain power. Kun was able to lure several young Jedi Knights to his cause, including Oss Willum and Crado. On Yavin 4, Kun showed them the Sith holocron, which he destroyed in a display of power. The shards exploded outward, piercing the young Jedi and possessing them with Sith demons. When the time was right, they exploded into the galaxy as Sith warriors. Kun ordered his young disciples to exterminate their Jedi Masters in a fiendish pogrom. Thus, the Great Sith War was started. Kun and Qel-Droma's forces killed millions in their rampages. When Qel-Droma was captured and put to trial on Coruscant, Kun and Mandalore arrived to retrieve him. In a show of power, Kun put the entire court into suspended animation, killing the Old Republic's highest official and eventually murdering Master Vodo. Kun later raided Ossus, in an attempt to steal the ancient Jedi and Sith lore stored there. This effort was cut short when Aleema destroyed the Cron System, and Kun was forced to flee back to Yavin 4 to regain his strength. The war would have continued, but the end of the war was quickened when Qel-Droma was captured on Ossus by Master Thon. He was cut off from the Force by Nomi Sunrider, and betrayed Kun by providing the location of Kun's power - the temples on Yavin 4 - to the Jedi. The Jedi then met Exar Kun on the jungle moon, where Kun drew on the Massassi spirits in an effort to gain strength and make a last stand against the Jedi. Exar Kun was defeated by the Jedi, but only his body was destroyed. Kun consumed the Massassi in an effort to lock his spirit away in the temples on Yavin 4, where it remained until Luke Skywalker started training his new Jedi Knights there more than 4000 years later. Kun tried to control the emerging Jedi Knights, but his hold was tenuous. His first attempt at controlling one of them led to the death of Gantoris. Kyp Durron was his second attempt, but Kyp used Kun's power in an attempt to destroy the Empire. In a final battle with Luke's Jedi students, Kun was defeated by the combined strength of all the students. At his final death, Kun's former teacher Vodo Siosk-Baas appeared to claim him. Several months later, after escaping from Leonia Tavira and the Jensaarai, Luke Skywalker allowed Corran Horn to destroy Kun's statue and temple with a series of proton torpedoes, utterly wiping out the primary source of dark side energy on the moon. Kurtzen a race native to the Kishh district of the Braad continent of Bakura, the Kurtzen had pale, white skin and ridges instead of hair on their heads. Humanoid in stature, the Kurtzen were suffering from a number of diseases and malnutrition when human colonists first landed on Bakura. They gladly traded land for medical supplies and access to newer treatments, and the population steadied for many years. The appearance of the Empire actually helped the Kurtzen further, although many were displaced to the Kishh'daar continent. After the Empire took control of the planet, a generation gap formed among the Kurtzen society, as the younger members began using more technology and began ignoring the traditions of their families, while the older Kurtzen struggled to maintain their heritage. Kwenn-class Hyperdrive these hyperdrives are used on Mon Calamari luxury liners. (RM)

Kwerve, Bidlo
Bidlo Kwerve was a Corellian whose life was a series of harsh misadventures. He was noticeable by the vicious scar on his face and the stark white streak running through his thick, black hair. He was at one time a member of Jabba the Hutt's court, where he was in charge of inventorying incoming smuggled cargo. He was in line to be promoted, and was vying with Bib Fortuna for the position if Jabba's major domo. Bidlo was responsible for locating the Rancor beast that Jabba kept for a pet. He haggled for the location of a wrecked spaceship in Tatooine's wastes with some Jawas, and snuck out of Jabba's palace with some guards to recover it. One of the Gamorreans that went with him, Orrtug, was brutally attacked by the Rancor when they first located it. Bidlo was able to knock the Rancor senseless by detonation a stun grenade near it. Then, he and Bib Fortuna presented the Rancor to Jabba as a birthday present. Jabba was pleased and astounded by the gift, but having learned that Bidlo took his prized Gamorreans on an unauthorized mission into the desert, served Bidlo up as the Rancor's first meal in captivity. When Luke Skywalker was fed to the Rancor, it is rumored that he used Bidlo Kwerve’s skull to activate the door which crushed the Rancor and killed it. (SWSB, TJP,CCG7)

Kyp's Dozen
formed after the destruction of the Dozen-and-Two Avengers at Helska, this band of vigilantes was led by Kyp Durron. They were classified by the New Republic military as a support unit, provided that drop the "Avengers" from their name. The group was made up of Durron and eleven combat veterans who had come out of retirement to fight back against the Yuuzhan Vong. They traveled to Kalarba, hoping to intercept the Yuuzhan Vong ship carrying Wurth Skidder. They managed to overtake the Creche', but were unable to cripple it. The Creche' jumped into hyperspace, bound for Fondor to meet with the rest of the Yuuzhan Vong fleet. Kyp's Dozen followed the ship to Fondor, but were too late to rescue Skidder. Kyp and his squadron vowed to avenge Skidder's death, further dividing themselves from the rest of the Jedi Knights. (JE)

Kyrf
this fruit, grown on a single plantation on the planet Korbin, is often fermented to create an alcoholic beverage also called kyrf. The kyrf fruit is quite flavorful, and the alcohol is quite powerful. Cross-Galactic handles all the exportation of kyrf liquor, which is produced by Drelmar Bin. (PG2)

Kyryll's World
the planet which is home to the Pui-Ui race. (WEG)

Kyss, Leda
this Rabaanite was Mika Streev's closest friend and lover, and was a member of the warrior caste. She had earned the red bandoleer, but had not yet achieved the sunburst sigil of combat artist like Streev. The primary reason behind this was her open mind to other opportunities, outside the scope of combat. She is an accomplished pilot, and traveled off-world a number of times while transporting Rabaanite dignitaries to other planets. It was during these trips that she saw the Empire for what it was: a ruthless machine concerned with its own goals, including the destruction of the Alliance. After helping a group of Alliance agents flee an Imperial starport, she intermittently assisted the Alliance, primarily in the Circarpous System. When the Empire threatened the Ishanna System, she tried to turn Streev toward the Alliance. She was met by a group of Alliance agents who were attempting to halt Imperial progress in the system, and they went to the Combat Moon to rescue Streev. In a firefight on Rabaan's Combat Moon, Leda was shot in the head by Commander Glave. She died almost instantly, and was buried on the moon by Streev and the Alliance agents who knew Leda. (SWJ9)

Kyte, Jaron
this Imperial General was one of the leaders of the defense setup on the planet Muunilinst, some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. He questioned Admiral Pellaeon and his proposal for a peace treaty with the New Republic. Pellaeon later implicated

Kyte in the supplying of Imperial equipment and personnel to the Cavrilhu Pirates, part of Moff Disra's plans to obtain Preybird-class starfighters outside proper Imperial channels. (SOP)

Kzenka
this was the Elomin term used to describe the leader of a pack of ranphyx. (COG)

K0-B2
this combat droid was abandoned when its starship was destroyed in space. It became what is commonly known as a void droid, and patrolled the Paradise System Junkyards. (SH)

K220
manufactured by Wickstrom, this device was a heavy-duty peripheral sensor package, designed to allow the offloading of tasks during transmission of data. (VOF)

K23M9
this was the callsign of the Syndicat guard whose armor was stolen by Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi during their attempt to break the Syndicat's hold on the planet Phindar. K23M9's armor was worn by Guerra Derida, who was discovered in an unauthorized part of the Syndicat warehouse during their search for Paxxi Derida's Anti-register. Obi-Wan switched armor with Guerra and was captured by Syndicat guards and brought to Baftu himself. Obi-Wan was scheduled to be renewed and dumped on an unspecified world. (HP)

K3
this humanoid droid served as Mara Jade's assistant during the time she served as the Emperor's Hand. (MJEH)

K4
one model of Rim Securities security droids, these 1.6-meter automatons are well-armored and equipped with an internal blaster rifle. (RPG)

K4-06B
this battered, blue-painted droid was employed by the law enforcement agency on the planet Emmer. Humanoid in stature, K4-06B was paired with the Gamorrean Uurk, and helped defuse bombs and translate for Uurk. (ND)

K5 Enforcer Droid
developed by Rim Securities, this series of droids succeeded the K4 series. The K5 was more versatile, had a wider range of external weaponry, and was considerably tougher than the K4. It was also a bit slower, making it a somwhat easier target. (SWJ1)

K8LR
this protocol droid was owned by Jabba the Hutt and his aunt, Jiliac, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. (RD)

* L *

L7 Droid
a series of logician droids. (DE1)

L-s1
Seinar Fleet System's Laser Cannon, used on the TIE Fighter and the TIE Bomber. (SCRE)

L-s7.2
designed by Seinar Fleet Systems, this laser cannon was created for interoperability with any model of TIE fighter. This allowed it to be easily deployed throughout the Imperial fleet. (CCG11)

L-s9.3
Seinar Fleet System's Laser Cannon, used on the TIE Interceptor and the TIE Advanced. (XW)

L-5
this designation was used for Luke Skywalker's X-Wing during the Galactic Civil War. (CSW)

L'at
this planet, located in the Koornacht Cluster, was the home of a colony of H'kig settlers. When the Yevetha initiated their Great Purge, they exterminated all but a few of the colonists in their rampage through the Koornacht. (TT)

L'hnnar, Shandria
this New Republic operative stole the plans to Project Orrad on Venaari. She escaped from the Star Destroyer Retaliator and the bounty hunter Pentix Graphyt with the help of thief Sienn Sconn. She was also in love with Sconn. (SWAJ, SWJ9)

L'lahsh
a traditional Alderaanian meal. (SWR)

L'pwacc Den Port
this was one of the largest Selonian cities found on the planet Corellia. (JE)

l'Quar'ta
this was the primary continent found on the planet Guiteica. (AIR)

L'tiri Peaks
this is the northern-most mountain chain found on the planet Dolomar. (TTSB)

Laa
this was one of the many species of scalefish which inhabited the oceans of Naboo. (IG1)

Laabann, Arian
this Eiattuan noble was a full Count, and was one of the leaders of the Priamsta during the time when Plourr Ilo tried to reconstruct the monarchy on Eiattu. He was willing to kidnap or even kill Plourr in order to keep the Priamsta in control, thereby maintaining the separation of the commoners from the royalty. In this effort, Laabann even tried to have Plourr kidnapped, but she escaped and was able to oust the Priamsta. A few years later, when Princess Leia Organa traveled to Eiattu for diplomatic negotiations, Laabann was arrested on charges of having Leia and Tycho Celchu kidnapped. In reality, Laabann had sold information about the Eiattuan castle and Leia's location to Moff Leonia Tavira. Soontir Fel interrogated Laabann, and revealed that he was still working for the Empire. Laabann threatened to expose him, but Fel ensured his secrecy. (XWWP, XWM)

LAACDoc
this was the abbreviation used by the Empire to describe Legal Authorization for Advanced Confinement Documents. (GG10)

Laakteen Depot
the Alliance used this planet's proximity to Fondor as a reason to build a base there, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. It took nearly a year for the Alliance to take the planet from the Empire and establish the base. However, shortly after the completion of the Executor, Darth Vader wiped out the base on the huge ship's maiden voyage. The destruction of the base forced the Alliance to bring the Mon Calamari into the Galactic Civil War, hoping that they could create a diversion while the Alliance evacuated Massassi Base. (CSW)

Laanars
this Invid pirate infiltrated the Tinta Palette as a stewart, shortly before the pirates attacked the luxury liner. (IJ)

Laantis
an Imperial frigate which was attacked by Alliance starfighters during the Galactic Civil War, when its hyperdrive failed. It was protected by TIE fighters until the Rasvin. arrived with a new hyperdrive unit. (TIE)

Labansat
this infamous Weequat mercenary worked in the Lesser Plooriod Cluster and the Karstaxon Region. (GG12, REB)

Labio
this tired, old Devaronian female managed the Starwind Chandlery on StarForge Station during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Laboi
a mammalian race native to the planet Laboi II, they are furred snakelike creatures which survive the planet's intense weather. They live in packs which roam the planet in search of ovolyans, all the time making sure that they don't fall prey to the ovolyans themselves. The largest male is considered the pack leader, although true leadership comes from age. The laboi have cultivated unique, carefully-tended gardens of crystals, and they seem to have a limited form of telekinesis which allows them - especially the older females - to agitate the molten rock and crystal to form beautiful, subtly colored crystals. These crystals are highly desired on many Core Worlds. (GG4)

Laboi II
the second planet in the Laboi System, Laboi II has a year which encompasses about 4,050 standard hours. However, Laboi II has a slow, retrograde orbit causes one side of the planet to remain sunward for about 2,020 hours. During this time, the planet's sun, Er'Dox Kaan, heats one side of the planet to the point where rocks begin to melt. When coupled with the fact that the other side of the planet is locked in sub-zero temperatures, strong winds are created at the terminus which help dsitribute the heat and cold evenly. This allows minimal life to exist on the planet. Laboi II has no natural plant life because of the searing effects of its orbit, but the Laboi, the ovolyan, and numerous species of insects have been able to adapt to the extreme temperatures of the planet. (GG4)

Laboi Mineral Crystals
mined on the planet Laboi II, these crystals are popular in the Galactic Core. (GG4)

Labria
Kardue'sai'Malloc's alias while living on Tatooine. The word "labria" in Devish has a dirty connotation, loosely translated as "cold food." He was known as a drunkard and a coward. He offered his help to the Alliance operatives who went to Tatooine to locate Adar Tallon, but was wounded in a firefight with the bounty hunters. He fled into the night, and was not seen again. (SCRE, TM, TME)

Laca
a domestic herd animal raised by the farmers of the planet Makthierse. (COG)

Lachany Foods
this foodstuffs manufacturer was headquartered in the city of Greenton, on the planet Aldivy. (IF)

Lachton
bulky crew member of the Wild Kaarde, he often served as copilot. (HTTE)

Lactil
bovine creatures found on Chad, they are bred to produce milk. (QE)

Ladarra
this remote planet is covered with deserts of rest-colored sand. (TFNR)

Ladnek
the flesh of this sea creature is considered a delicacy. (RD)

Lady Akiko
Marshal Levnis' personal yacht. He turned to the Most Honourable Guild of Armourers to track down a Kalld'n-class stardrive for it. (GG9)

Lady Anna
an alias used by Akanah when she returned to Lucazec with Luke Skywalker. She continued to use the pseudonym while on Teyr. (BTS, SOL)

Lady Fate Casino
this gambling house was located on Ord Mantell, near the Hotel Grand. (HT)

Lady Luck
Lando's personal ship, the Lady Luck is a modified SoroSuub PLY 3000 pleasure yacht. Formerly owned by an Orthellin royal mistress, the ship is richly appointed. Lando has rigged it with a straight-line, homing-beacon type of full-rig slave circuitry. Other modifications to the weapons and defenses have also been made. (HTTE, DFRSB)

Lady Nebula
this song, written and played by the band Red Shift Limit, was given a scarlet rating by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Totally Patriotic. (GG9)

Lady of Mindor
the Lady-class luxury passenger liner that Han Solo and Fiolla book passage aboard while trying to get to Ammuud inconspicuously. It was attacked by pirates as it emerged from hyperspace near Ammuud, forcing them to make forced landing on Ammuud. The Lady was a sleek, wedge-shaped craft measuring 310 meters in length. (HSR, SWSB, CSA)

Lady of Whinnador
a moderately-priced Outer Rim cruise ship. (GG9)

Lady Sunfire
this modified Barloz-class freighter was the personal ship of the ZeHethbra smuggler, Clyngunn. The engine systems were upgraded, and the weapons system replaced with a trio of quad-laser cannons and four aft-mounted concussion missile launchers. Clyngunn also added a military-grade countermeasures package. (TTSB)

Lady Telura
Moff Balfour's Thalassian luxury space barge. He was constantly tinkering with it. (GG9)

Lady-class Luxury Liner
Shobquix Yards' luxury passenger liner, the Lady-class measures 310 meters in length and has a cargo capacity of 1,000 cubic meters. It was crewed by a complement of 12 officers, 24 crewers, and 81 stewards, and had room for 600 passangers in various staterooms. It carried enough consumables for a 300-day trip. It was equipped with 4 twin laser cannons and limited defensive shielding. (CSA, SWSB)

Ladybaby
a small creature that is often served covered in chocolate as a snack or appetizer. (TJP)

Laerdocian
this alien race is characterized by its thick accent. (SOP)

Laerron Woern
this Elomin pirate was known to indiscriminately raid Imperial and Alliance vessels, as well as civilian vessels, from a base in the Drup's Star System. After the Battle of Endor, he began focusing his effort on New Republic ships. His actions were considered disgraceful by the leaders of Elomin society, who placed a 10,000-credit bounty on his head. His base is a large planetoid known as Woern's Asteroid, and his command ship is a modified Gamma-class assault shuttle. At the height of his influence, Woern commanded over 200 different pirates of all species. (WBC)

Laertos
this Alliance maintained a drop point at the primary spaceport on this planet, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ14)

LAF-250
this Corellian Engineering Corporation light attack fighter measured 12 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of laser cannons. It was built by Republic Engineering Corporation in a unique agreement with CEC. The LAF-250 was a fast, maneuverable craft, but its light armament makes it an easy target for a large attack force. The LAF-250 was equipped with a Class-2 hyperdrive. (CTD)

Laffer, Dek
this man was a Staff Sergeant in the Alliance military, and served as the welcoming officer at outpost DVL-181 during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Lafoe, Garouf
this free-trader started his own business transporting ice from Ohann and Adriana for use as water on Tatooine. He made a good living until the Empire began cracking down on free trade and raised taxes and tariffs on imports. (CCG2)

Laforn District
this residential section of Corint City was populated primarily by non-human races. It was the location of several well-known restaurants run by the alien inhabitants. (SWJ10)

Lafra
this planet, which had a wide variety of terrain, was the homeworld of the Lafrarians. The planet also produced a talented smashball team during the New Republic. (HSE, COJ, AE)

Lafran
an alien race. (SOL)

Lafrarian
the alien race native to Lafra, these gray-skinned humanoids were descended from a species of avians, and retained vestigial wing membranes under their arms. However, they no longer have the ability to fly. Lafrarians also had a facial structure which resembled a beak, and was made entirely of externalized cartilage. (HSE, CSA, AE)

Lagg
this Doctor of Physics was in charge of the physics lab at the Imperial outpost on Lotide, during the Galactic Civil War. (BI)

Lagrane
Keyan Farlander's commanding officer onboard the cruiser Independence. (XW)

Lagula Cave
podracers who took part in the Boonta Eve Classic had to pass through this low-ceilinged cave in order to complete a circuit around the Mos Espa Circuit racecourse. It was rumored that a krayt dragon inhabited the caves, giving the area a frightening reputation. Note that this area of the Mos Espa Circuit is named Laguna Caves in Inside the Worlds of Star Wars Episode I. (RAC, IWE1)

Lahsbee
this was a race of polymorphous beings which could shape their forms into two distinct configurations. Unlike other polymorphic alien species, the Lahsbees can somehow attain a greater mass in their larger form, the Huhk. (SWJ12)

Lai Nootka
this Duros weapons dealer worked on Coruscant following the Battle of Endor. He made shipping runs with his freighter, Star's Delight. It was known that Nootka liked to read Duros adventure novels, and often used the names of characters and ships within them as aliases in his own business. He was captured on Garqi by Mosh Barris while trying to ship X-Wing parts and proton torpedoes to the New Republic, but was eventually rescued by Corran Horn and Dynba Tesc. Tycho Celchu claimed to be meeting with him at the time Corran Horn claimed to see Celchu talking with Kirtan Loor at The Headquarters. They were supposed to be discussing a supply of Z-95 parts. He disappeared shortly afterward, and could not be found to testify at Celchu's trial. In addition, more than 247 Duros were known to be dead from the Krytos virus, so his wherabouts could not be pinpointed. It was suspected that he was either eliminated by Imperial forces, or was working under an alias. His death was confirmed to Nawara Ven by Kirtan Loor, during their initial meeting at the Hutt Haven. (WG, KT, TFE)

Laibach, Ivo
Zev Veers' SAGroup commander. (DESB)

Laim
this planet, located in Rayter Sector, was one of six worlds in the sector which could initiated communications on the Rayter Sector Subspace Broadcast Network. (TA)

Laine
this Imperial Academy cadet was a contemporary of Tycho Celchu, and trained under Soontir Fel at the Prefsbelt OIV academy. He once told Tycho that he would never defeat a tough opponent because he was an Alderaanian. Tycho responded with a crushing left punch, knocking Laine to the ground. Soontir Fel interrupted the fight between his two students, but told the security team which investigated it that Laine had slipped. (MBF)

Lair
this man was a brother-in-law of Benedict Vidkum, and handled security during renovations of Imperial City's sewer systems. (SESB)

Lajaie, Evram
this popular Alliance strategist was one of the commanders of the Battle of Yavin. He had expertise in space defense platforms and orbital battle stations, and was instrumental in planning the attack on the first Death Star. (CCG2)

Lak Jit
this male Devaronian discovered a handfull of datacards at the base of Mount Tantiss, some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Among them was a card entitled “The Hand of Thrawn” and a card describing the Bothan involvement in the destruction of Caamas. He claimed to have ownership of them by way of the Debble Agreement, but Leia under that agreement Leia could recover the cards after making proper restitution. He nearly escaped from Wayland with the cards, but was apprehended by Leia Organa-Solo’s Noghri bodyguards. He stillmanaged to escape with a copy of the Caamas datacard, and freely dispensed the little bit of information it contained until he was caught by Mazzic. Lak Jit was then locked away by Mazzic and Talon Kaarde until the Caamas Incident could be resolved. (SOP)

Lak Sivrak
a Shistavanen scout, hiding from Imperial persecution on Tatooine. He was employed by the Empire as a scout, exploring the edges of known space in an effort to map out shipping routes for the Empire's growing mining operations. During one of his missions, he came across a group of dishomed colonists, who were actually members of the Alliance. He thought they were just settlers, and he offered his help in keeping them from starving. They tried to convert him to the beliefs of the Alliance, but he declined. He did, however, agree to keep their location a secret. The Empire, however, following up on his mission, discovered the settlers and interrogated them, learning of Lak Sivrak's ommission about their whereabouts. He was cut off from Imperial employment and chased off, persecuted and outlawed for helping the Alliance. Seeking shelter on a backwater world, Sivrak ended up on Tatooine, and was present in the Mos Eisley cantina when Obi-Wan and Luke approach Han Solo for passage to the Alderaan system. While there, he met Dice Ibegon, a Florn Lamproid whose Force sensitivity connected with his own. In a strange relationship, the two joined the Alliance. Dice was never sure if Sivrak joined because of her or if he truly cared about the Alliance. Sivrak served as part of the ground force in the Battle of Hoth, but Dice did not survive the Imperial attack. Sivrak despaired, but Dice's Force-image visited him often, taking him back to the cantina and proving to him that, despite his love for her, the Alliance still needed his services. Sivrak's growing competance with a starfighter got him his own X-Wing, and he flew in the Battle of Endor. Unfortunately, his ship was shot down, and he did not survive the crash. His Force-image was strong enough, though, that it joined those of Dice, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Yoda, and Anakin Skywalker at the final celebration. (SW, SCRE, TME)

Lake Anre
this ancient body of water was located on the planet Tatooine. It drained into the area known as the northen Dune Sea via underground tributaries. Like all sources of open water on the planet, Lake Anre dried up millennia ago. The lakebed was later renamed Hutt Flats, after Jabba the Hutt established his criminal empire on Tatooine. (IWE1)

Lake Natth
a lake on the planet Ambria that seems to be the source of the planet's Dark Side energies. The Jedi Master Thon drove the Dark Side energies back into the lake. The creatures that live in and around the lake have slowly been mutated into Dark Side servants. (TOJ)

Lake of Dreams
an expensive perfume. (COJ)

Lake of Small Fish
this was the name given by the Qom Qae to the body of water located nearest the Hand of Thrawn compound on Nirauan. (VOF)

Lake Paonga
this body of water, located on the planet Naboo, appeared to be just a shallow pond near the edge of a vast swamp. However, it was deceptively deep, and led to the city of Otoh Gunga. Various tunnels and caverns led to the planet's core. (IG1)

Lake Spirit
a shapeless, phosphorescent creature living in the underground lakes of Circarpous V. It moves by extending various pseudopods out from its central core, which is filled with strange light and material. It is a spongy, low-density creature which can reabsorb pieces of itself if necessary. It appears to at least exhale air, for when Luke and Leia encountered on below Mimban's surface, it created a bubble trail while it swam underwater. (SME)

Lake Umberbool
this underwater location was the site of the annual Festival of Warriors. Shortly before the Battle of Naboo, the Gungans had erected a new arena at the bottom of the Lake. (E1A9)

Lake Viceroy
this body of water is located on the planet Coruscant (Rathalay?). (SOL)

Lake Weir
this large body of water is located within the borders of the city of Zehava, on Melida/Daan. During the period of civil war on Melida/Daan that preceded the Battle of Naboo, the Daan erected a huge repulsor-supported Hall of Evidence over the lake. It was the only body of standing water within a thousand kilometers of the city. (DOD)

Lakky, Grodon
this brutal, sadistic man was placed in command of the slave pool at the Maw Installation. Lakky was a fat, ugly human who derived great pleasure from breaking his slaves. However, he got no respect from his superiors. Lakky was killed at the Maw by Nawruun, who rose up against his master when Chewbacca and Han Solo fled the Installation during the New Republic's attempt to take control of it. (JASB)

Lalmy'ashian Pearls
these unusual gemstones were popular - and expensive - in the Core Worlds. (GG11)

Lambarian Crab
this modified YT-2400 transport was originally owned and operated by Matas Havel. After retiring, Havel sold it to Finous Crab, who gave the ship its name. Crab tore out the redundant systems and added his own modifications, turning the ship into a virtual flying coffin. This proved to be his downfall, as the life support systems failed outside of Eriadu, and Crab died when his oxygen ran out. The Lambarian Crab was later salvaged by Linx Mallicker and Fillio Androu, who used the ship to smuggle guns and weapons to the Outer Rim Territories. The Crab was armed with a turret-mounted heavy double-laser cannon and an ion cannon. (SS)

Lambda Sector
this area of the galaxy was ruled by Imperial Moff Par Lankin, who set up his own little empire there following the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

Lambda*-class Shuttle
three-winged transportation used by the Empire, it is also built in a military configuration as the Cygnus Spaceworks T-4a shuttle. The Lambda-class shuttle was designed to swiftly transport personnel and cargo between ships in the Imperial fleet. Sienar Fleet Systems built the original shuttles to carry up to twenty passengers in relative safety, for the Lambda-class has standard reinforced hull plating and multiple shield generators. The Lambda-class is also fitted with a hyperdrive for travel between fleets. The basic Sienar Lambda-class shuttle measured 20 meters in length, and was armed with three double blaster cannons and two double laser cannons. It was designed to have a crew compliment of four, with two additional positions for communications and power regulation. (ROTJ, XW, EGV)

LaMelle, Hailey
this woman was one of Namore's hottest holonews reporters, until she got caught trying to film a payoff between Prefect Gerom and Dasar Zorm. She and her cameraman, Andross, were arrested and imprisoned. (HR)

Lament
this Strike-class cruiser was part of the Imperial fleet sent to destroy the Alliance's partnership with smugglers, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Lameril Ridge
this landmark, found on the planet Adumar, was the site of a war between Cartann and a rival nation. The hero of the battle was Pekaelic ke Teldan, and the honor and glory he earned in the battle helped him get elected as Cartann's perator years later. (SOA)

Lamina
this was the name of the organic building materials used by the Ferooan colonists who settled Zonama Sekot. Lamina was part of the living entity known as Sekot, and so each item made from lamina required sustenance from the planet in order to survive. (RP

Lammu, Roaky
this was an alias used by Han Solo during his search for Reck Desh. Lammu was a freelance laser-welder. (HT)

Lamner
this Colonel with the Invids served aboard the Invidious, under the direct control of Leonia Tavira. (IJ)

Lamorrack
this Wookiee was one of many who served the New Republic as representative of the planet Kashyyyk. Along with his partner Krotorra, Lamorrack was captured and sold into slavery by Slar-dan ti Gardi and Borun Call. (SWJ8)

Lampfish
a huge fish found in the seas of Calamari, the lampfish measures about 10 meters in average length. They live in the deepest seas, and have grotesque bodies. Their heads are huge, filled with beady eyes. They have a moutful of pointed teeth, and a tongue that is bioluminescent. (DU)

Lampray, Totovia
this was one of the humorous names Garik Loran used for Lara Notsil, after she was mistaken for Edallia Monotheer by an old man on Coruscant. (SOC)

Lamproid
an eel-like race which is the only sentient species from the planet Florn. The Star Wars Customizable Card Game states that Lamproids are native to several worlds. The Lamproid's body is a mass of muscular coils which it uses to hold onto its prey. Its head is covered with light-sensitive stalks surrounding a mouth full of multiple rows of teeth. The Lamproid has a stinger, which is uses to protect itself, and it bleeds purple blood. (TME, CCG7)

Lamuir IV
this planet is located in Tapani Sector, and is part of the Lamuir System. It was one of only two worlds within Tapani Sector on which humans were not the dominant species. Herglics were the primary species on the planet, having settled it many thousands of years before humans discovered it. The planet's normally sensible inhabitants become frivolous during the annual Priole Danna festival. (SWAJ, PGT)

Lan Barell
the fourth planet in the Lan System, Lan Barell is an arid world of deserts and tundra. Much of the planet's water supply is contained in its small polar icecaps. The crust of the planet was lden with deposits of iron, giving it a blue sheen. This unusual coloration, combined with the dim red light of the star Lan, made Lan Barell a garish place to exist. The planet's surface was dominated by desert wastes, with several huge plateaus forming "continents" above it. It is the homeworld of the Qieg race of small insectoids, who inhabited the plateaus and the Cacti Forests. The planet once had three moons, but one of them has been reduced to rubble because of Qieg mining. (SWJ1)

Lan Fellov
the second planet in the Lan System. It is a rocky wasteland, and has one natural satellite. (SWJ1)

Lan Tundi
the third planet in the Lan System. It is a barren rock that is orbitted by four moons. (SWJ1)

Lanah
this Corellian woman was a friend of Bria Tharen. When the Empire began exerting control over Corellia, Lanah was one of a group of rebels captured and executed. (THG)

Lance
Imperial jargon for a speeder bike unit. (EGV)

Lance of Endor
this was the alias used by Rolf Tredium for the corvette Lialic II, during his campaign to foil the progress of the FarStar in the Kathol Outback. (KO)

Lancer
the name of a mid-grade computer spike produced by MicroThrust. (CFG)

Lancer
this was the name of a group of five Imperial Lancer-class frigates assigned to protect the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Lancer*-class Frigate an Imperial capital ship built by Kuat Drive Yards, the Lancer-class was proposed by Admiral Drez following the Battle of Yavin. KDY built a limited number of them as test prototypes, but found that they were very expensive to build. The Lancer's primary mission was to screen off enemy starfighters early in an engagement, paving the way for large ship-to-ship combat which Imperial-class Star Destroyers were more than capable of winning. The Lancer-class didn't get a fair chance to prove its worth until Grand Admiral Thrawn appeared from the Unknown Regions. He was able to put the Lancers to work in key raiding missions on New Republic worlds. These 250-meter-long ships normally have a crew of 850, with room for 40 additional troops. They are equipped with 20 quad-laser cannon batteries. (DFR, TLC, JS, ISB, EGV)

Lanchenzoor, Riga
this Corporate Sector Authority Viceprex of Finance was shrewd and ruthless in her dealings. She was lured away from a lucrative position as chief manager of the Bank of Aargauha, where she had become the youngest individual to be promoted to that position. She despises internal corruption and deceit. She wanted to separate the Authority credit from the Imperial credit, but this idea was met with considerable resistance from of Viceprexes. They feared that an Imperial backlash from the move would ruin the Authority. (CSA)

Lancoln
this man served as one of Imperial Lord Dixton's personal bodyguards. However, he was not stupid, and would surrender if he knew he was outgunned. (SWCP)

Land Shrimp
a large, terrestrial crustacean native to the planet Kashyyyk. Its flesh is considered a delicacy by many races. (SE)

Landcruiser
any large landspeeder. (AC)

Landgouger
a mining implement. (HSL)

Landing Brick
KDY's F7 drop ship. (DFRSB)

Landing Claw
a starship accessory that allows the pilot to clamp his ship onto another spacecraft without docking (ESB)

Landing Pit 8
where the Millennium Falcon is parked on Myrkr when Han Solo and Lando Calrissian are escorted there. (HTTE)

Landing Pit 21
where the Etherway is waiting for Wedge at the Abregado-Rae spaceport. (DFR?)

Landing Pit 63
where Torve Fynn originally abandoned the Etherway at the Abregado-Rae spaceport. (HTTE, DFR)

Landing Pit 67
where Torve Fynn originally abandoned the Etherway at the Abregado-Rae spaceport. (DFR?)

Landing Platform 327
the landing platform on which the Millennium Falcon is told to land, on Cloud City. (ESB)

Landing Zone
1) a bar and grill located in Bonadan's Southeast II spaceport, near the Alien Quarter. It, along with its furnishings, was built from items salvaged from the spaceport's scrap yards. (HSR)
2) this is smuggler’s slang for a room or a flat. (THG)

Landkiller One
Davin Felth's callsign on his first solo AT-AT training mission. It was on this mission that he discovered the vulnerability of the walker's exposed legs. (TME)

Landmark Holiday
this generic holiday was celebrated on the planet Brentaal, whenever a major event occurred. Depending on the nature of the event being celebrated, a Landmark Holiday could last as long as a week. (SWJ14)

Landmark Preservation Office
the group charged with preserving Xim's vaults and other prominent features on Dellalt, it was infiltrated by the Survivors to help keep the location of the Queen of Ranroon and Xim's treasure a secret. (HSL)

Lando's Folly
this asteroid system, located near the planets Destrillion and Dubrillion, was purchased by Lando Calrissian and used to mining as well as intense forms of starship racing. The race course was actually a way for Lando to develop a way to get to Kerane's Folly, the legendary platinum asteroid hidden in Hoth's asteroid belt. Lando hoped to develop ways to find the asteroid, mine it, and protect his claim from other hunters by monitoring the races and the reactions of the pilots to the asteroids. Lando also developed a method of using remote-controlled repulsors to protect the ships from bumping into the asteroids. Always looking for ways to save money, Lando obtained several decommissioned TIE Advanced x1 starfighters and TIE Bombers for use in flying through the asteroids. Lando's technicians developed a system known as collision shields, a combination of repulsor fields, shields, and defensive arrays to protect the small ships, all of which were operated from a remote station like Belt-Runner I. The idea of running the field was to stay operative as long as possible, thereby providing Lando with a way to remain within the Hoth asteroid belt long enough to find and mine Kerane's Folly. Kyp Durron held the record for duration until Jaina Solo more than doubled it on her first run. (VP)

Landor System
during the last decades of the Old Republic, this planetary system was avoided by most travellers because of the large amount of pirate activity found within it. (DR)

Landra
this small, twisting piece of land is the smaller of the two continents of the planet Lianna. (ML)

Landric
this Imperial Moff was in control of Emmo sector during the height of the New Order. His wife, the Lady Landric, was a native of the planet Danteel. During a vacation at Margath's on Elshandruu Pica, her stunning necklace of three corusca gems in a mythra setting was stolen, then returned, by the infamous Tombat. The Moff ordered the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigation to bring in the Tombat. (SWJ8)

Landru City
this is one of the major population centers found on the planet Danteel. (SWJ8)

Landspeeder
generic term for any anti-grav ground transport. (SW)

Lane of All Worlds
this thoroughfare was located in the third quadrant of Coruscant's Senate District, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (DH)

Lang, Adion
this native of Lankashiir was a childhood friend of Celia Durasha. Adion's father was a strict taskmaster who demanded the best from all his children. After hearing Reise Durasha talk of the glory of the military, Adion left Lankashiir and attended the Imperial Academy at Raithal, and rose through the ranks to become an officer of the Imperial Security Bureau. He had a small detachment with which he worked to uncover the source of support for the Alliance in Relgim Sector, and had traced a supply of guns and weapons to Detien Kaileel. When he boarded the Kuari Princess in hopes of capturing Kaileel, he encountered his childhood love, Celia Durasha. Instead of recruiting her help, though, Lang incurred her wrath as she began to understand what the Empire was all about. (TFE, SWJ8)

Langhesa
this planet was the homeworld of the Langhesi, until it was overrun by the Tsinimals 100 years before the Battle of Naboo. (RP)

Langhesan
this was the native language of the Langhesi. Even after thay were forcibly removed from their homeworld and enslaved by the Tsinimals, the Langhesi maintained the use of this language. (RP)

Langhesi
originally from the planet Langhesa, this race of humans was enslaved by the Tsinimals about 100 years before the Battle of Naboo. The Tsinimals took their Langhesi slaves all over the galaxy, leaving small pockets of Langhesi culture on many worlds. The Langhesi were known as farmers, and could mold the elements of life into previously-unseen forms. This form of genetic manipulation was regarded as a sin against the Tsinimal gods, resulting in the conquest of Langhesa. Those Langhesi which inhabited the lowlands of Zonama Sekot were employed by the original Magister as the forgers and shapers of Sekotan technology, for their skills with organic materials complimented the patterns of growth observed among the boras. (RP)

Langlier, Corvus
this man was a Major in the Imperial armed forces. Langlier developed a technique that used standard communications signals to act as remote guidance systems for TIE Fighters. When he discovered that the program would be used to destroy planets which offered significant resistance to Imperial takover, Corvus decided to defect from the Empire. He took the programming with him, and had his identity and appearance changed, assuming the life of Lorn Moonrunner. With his wife, Corvus fled to Rhamalai. (SWJ13)

Langoona
the natives of this remote world carve intricate death-masks decorated with semi-precious stones, iridescent shells, and various metals. (RD)

Langre
one of Crev Bombassa's swopp-riding bodyguards, Langre served as the leader of his group. Langre was quickly dispatched by Shada D'ukal when she accompanied Talon Kaarde to Pembric II in search of Bombassa. (VOF)

Lanis, Kailage
this red-haired woman was a member of the Friends of Paran resistance group on Derilyn, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. She was good friends with Sneeze, and both were captured during the Alliance's attempt to expose Operation: Elrood. (OE)

Lanius
this member of the Cavrilhu Pirates was stationed at the Kauron asteroid base when Luke Skywalker infiltrated it in search of clones. Lanius was in charge of moving Wesselman's SB-20 droid - with Luke hidden inside - to Pap's electronics lab. (SOP)

Lank, Bels
this moisture farmer lived on Tatooine until he was killed by IG-72 during the hunt for Adar Tallon. (TM)

Lank, Reen
Bels Lank's daughter, Reen witnessed his murder by IG-72 and offered to help the Alliance find Adar Tallon. (TM)

Lankashiir
this was Celia Durasha's home planet. (TFE)

Lankin, Par
this Imperial Moff survived the wake of the Battle of Endor and set up his own empire in the Lambda Sector. A native of the planet Desstious, Lankin was a loyal supporter of Emperor Palpatine, and used the planets under his control to provide heavy industry and shipyards for the Empire's war machine. His troops are also extremely loyal. (WBC)

Lannik
1) this planet, located along the border between the Expansion Region and the Mid Rim, was the homeworld of the Lannik race. During the final decades of the Old Republic, the planet was thrown into turmoil by a group of terrorists led by the enigmatic being known as the Chosen One. If not for the efforts of its armed forces, as well as the efforts of the Lannik Jedi Master, Even Piell, the Chosen One's forces would have overthrown the government. Instead, a period of unease led up to the time of the Battle of Naboo. (IG1)
2) this species of short, paled-skinned humanoids was native to the planet Lannik. They were distinguished by their large, pointed ears and their warrior-like society. The soldiers of the Lannik armed forces wore their hair in a single topknot. (IG1)

Lant
this star was the central body of the Lant System, located in the Periphery on its border with the Karstaxon Regions. (SSR)

Lant Mining Corporation
this corporation owned a number of mines in Brak Sector, during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Lantern Inn
located in Arginall City, this restaurant was the primary meeting place used by Ketrian Altronel and Stevan Makintay during the Imperial occupation of Hargeeva. (SWJ8)

Lantern of Sacred Light
an Ewok holy item. (ECAR)

Lanternbird
found in the forests of Endor, the lanternbird is covered with grey-green feathers. It has a long tail, the end of which gives off a natural bioluminescence. They are often eaten by Duloks. (AT)

Lanthrym
this is the primary world in the Lanthrym System, a little-traveled part of the Elrood Sector. It is primarily populated by Gamorreans, who work on the planet for the various pirates and crimelords that use Lanthrym as their base. It is a cool world, covered with frozen plains and snowy wastes. The climate has forced the crime bosses to build their casinos and gladiator arenas underground. (PG)

Lantillian Deluxe
a short-haul transport ship, the Lantillian Deluxe measures 27 meters from bow to stern. It is crewed by two beings, and has room for six passengers. Many Lantillian Deluxe transports were modified for use as pleasure craft. The basic design centers around a pair of long pods which are connected and attached to the drive system. The ship has a pair of stabilizer fins which can be deployed for control in an atmosphere and for defense in space. (SWCP)

Lantillian Short Hauler
this 27-meter ship was the pleasure version of the Lantillian Deluxe. Designed and manufactured by the Lantillian ShipWrights corporation, this craft was designated GX1 by the corporation. This two-person craft can transport up to 80 metric tons of cargo and up to six passengers. The ship had a bulbous cockpit at the front, with a flattened fuselage behind. A pair of starbilizing wings is connected to the rea portion of the fuselage. It was designed to bring affordable luxury to the average citizen. The Short Hauler required a crew of four to operate, and had enough space for six passengers. The basic version was also armed with a civilian-grade turbolaser cannon. While the craft was considered to be a rugged, durable ship, the Short Hauler suffered from finicky landing gear, which had to be routinely cleaned and lubricated. (SWJ9, SWCP, SS)

Lantillian ShipWrights
this small starship designer was best known for the GX1 Short Hauler. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, Lantillian was absorbed by TaggeCo, and many of the corporation's designers were fired. (SS)

Lantillian Spacers' Brotherhood
a second-rate version of the Corellian Merchants' Guild, the Brotherhood is open to any spacer who applies. It provides many of the same services as the CMG, but doesn't have messaging or financial services. It also doesn't have the CMG's economic clout, and became a victim of Imperial harrassment during the Galactic Civil War. The various Lantillian guildhouses offer moderate accomodations to their members. (GG9)

Lanto, Paro
this Imperial sector governor dispatched Captain Alater to investigate the claims of Planetary Safaris against the Barabel race. (GG4)

Lanvarok
this weapon was used by the ancient Sith warriors. It was extermely complicated to use, and favors those users who are left-handed. (BW, MJEH)

Lao-mon
many xenobiologists believed that the Shi'ido race was native to this planet. (AE)

Lapema Phonstom
the fifth candidate on Lando Calrissian's rich wife list, she is a royal Lady on the planet Kabal. (AC)

Lapez System
Luke Skywalker was betrayed by an Alliance deserter in this system, where Dirk Balor tried to capture him. (CSWDW)

Lapi-stone
this is a stone which is sleek and hard when polished. (THG)

Lapti Nek
the song that Sy Snootles is singing with the Max Rebo Band at Jabba's palace following the arrival of C-3PO and R2-D2. (ROTJ)

Lar
the orange star which is the centerpoint of the Lar System. This planetary system includes the planet Mima II. (GG4)

Lar Warriors
this extinct brotherhood of warriors created the Teelar method of wielding a sword. (AIR)

Larado, Incavi
one of Boba Fett's informants, Incavi married Miagi Baker. When he suddenly passed away, some believed that Incavi had killed him to take his position as mayor of the city of Death, on Jubilar. Nothing was ever proven. It was Larado who alerted the bounty hunter to Han Solo's appearance on Jubilar, some fifteen years after the Battle of Hoth. Larado had met Solo after he disembarked, offering him a job smuggling jandarra underneath the Shalamite tariff. When Fett arrived to try and kill Solo, one of his shots caught Incavi, killing her instantly. (TBH)

Laramont
this man was one of the technicians who helped maintain the Hawkbat's Vigil. (WS)

Laramus
primary planet in the Laramus System of Parmic Sector, Laramus was the site of an Alliance ambush on an Imperial convoy. The Alliance cruiser Visseon II came out of hyperspace with is weapons firing, taking the convoy by surprise. The Imperials quickly recognized that there was only a single ship attacking them, and they split the convoy into multiple groups. While the Visseon II was busy with one small group, the others attacked. At this point, Alliance reinforcements arrived, decimating the Imperial ships and taking control of 14 fully-loaded transports. The Alliance suffered no losses during the skirmish. (SWSB, GG9)

Laramus Base Irregulars
this small, ragged company of rebellious soldiers specializes in extremely dangerous missions. They are referred to in the mercenary business as "dead men." They used to operate from a base on the planet Laramus, but the Alliance cell there continued to grow. The Empire arrived and destroyed much of the planet, forcing the Irregulars to search out a new base. (GG9)

Lardanis Survival Systems
this corporation manufactured various types of expeditionary equipment, including portable power generators. (CCG4)

Larel, Vin
this man served as a Captain in the Alliance Intelligence agency during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Larens
this member of the Alliance armed forces was part of Bria Tharen's Red Hand Squadron, and joined them shortly before the attack on the Helot's Shackle. (RD)

Laressa
this is the capital city of the planet Phindar. (HP)

Largess Cakes
a small pastry. (TJP)

Lariss
the Imperial Major who tried to exile the leaders of Virujansi to Captivity. (RC)

Larjh StarCorporation
this subsidiary of zZip Product Concepts manufactured custom space yachts. They maintained a point of presence aboard the luxury gambling liner Cal Ambre. (CSA, CRO)

Larka Nimondro
this Hobor was the daughter to Chief Nimondro. She was also in love with Troob, Ket Krax. The two met often in secret, trying to maintain their relationship in the face of generations of hatred. When Ket was murdered by Jake Harthan, Larka was framed for the murder and accused by General Krax. She fled the scene of Ket's death, but was caught by a huge arachnid which lived in the cave she hid in. R2-D2 and C-3PO managed to free her, and discovered the identity of Ket's true killer. With Larka's help, they convinced Chief Nimondro to let them use Mount Yeroc's sky cannon to communicate with all of Tahlboor. During the message, C-3PO revealed that he had found the murder weapon - a vibro-shiv - at the scene, and reminded all the combatants that Hobors never used vibro-shivs. Jake Harthan became enraged at the discovery and lashed out, only to learn that C-3PO had bluffed him into admitting the crime. After Jake was killed and a war averted between the Troobs and Hobors, a distraught Larka chose to leave Tahlboor for awhile, accompanying Counselor Harthan to the Tion Hegemony to allow her peoples to work out their own peace. (DRPC)

Larkhess
a Republic escort frigate commanded by Captain Afyon. (HTTE)

Larkin Nerf
a beast native to the planet Pii 3. (SWAJ)

Larkor
this Barabel was an Alliance operative during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, until he was captured by the bounty hunter Ssach'thirix. (AIR)

Larm
this former Imperial Navy Admiral served under Moff Gentelles in the years after the Battle of Yavin. He was a by-the-book officer, who tended to kiss more boots that he polished. He rose through the Naval ranks on Getelles' coattail, maintaining his tough soldier exterior while bending to Getelles' every wish. It was Larm who commanded the Imperial fleet which blockaded Leia Organa-Solo and the Alliance agents sent to rescue her. Larm was killed in the battle, when Luke Skywalker and the Spook-crystal tsil on Nam Chorios used the Force to turn the Loronar Needles against the Reliant, just as the small ship docked with Larm's Carrack-class cruiser. The Reliant, taking Larm's ship with it. His fleet was forced back into the Antemeridian Sector when Daala's independent fleet arrived to supplement the Republic's ships. (POT)

Laro
this card game is often wagered on by gamblers. Han Solo was once beaten at Laro by Gareth, King of Shalamite. Solo discovered he was cheating, and cheated the King in a subsequent match. (TBH)

Laron, Kyr
this woman was a highly-skilled assassin, and was hired by Gornt Seron to eliminate specific targets. She carefully maintained the rumors and appearance that Kyr Laron was a man, and used an associate named Shiaer Hifron to conduct most of her business. Kyr was fond of using highly-toxic, poisonous gases and neurotoxins to kill her victims, a clue which gave the New Republic information about her activities. She moved about often, to avoid detection, and spent most of her travel time in her personel starship, the Incom Explorer Scout ship known as the Hell's Axe. (WBC)

Larrin Sector
this area of the galaxy was under Imperial control for many years, until the New Republic finally drove it out. (HR)

Lars, Beru
the former Beru Weth, this woman married Owen Lars. She and Owen moved to Tatooine to escape the demands of "normal" life, but were interrupted when Obi-Wan Kenobi asked them to adopt Luke Skywalker. Obi-Wan appealed to Beru's feminine side with Luke's plight, and she convinced Owen to accept the boy into their family. She was killed when stormtroopers, following the information trail left by C-3PO and R2-D2, razed their farm in search of the droids. Beru was portrayed by Shelagh Fraser in Star Wars, and by Anne Gerety for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (SW, SCRE, SWR)

Lars, Jenna
this woman worked with Darren Weeb aboard the Arcadia. She was also a supporter of the Alliance, and was a close contact of Terri Karl. (ML)

Lars, Owen
Luke's adoptive Uncle. Owen was the younger brother of Obi-Wan Kenobi and, as such, was always expected to live up to his brother's greatness. Owen did not want that kind of pressure, so he and his young wife, Beru Weth, moved to Tatooine and set up a moisture farm. When Obi-Wan showed up years later, asking them to take in the infant Luke Skywalker, Owen refused, until Beru was able to convince him that it would be okay. Owen then raised Luke as he would his own son, instilling the values of honesty and hard work into the boy. He did his best to keep Luke from realizing his true identity, for he felt that the ways of the Empire would only corrupt the young boy. He masked this by saying that he needed Luke's help on the farm. Owen was a gruff and stern master, always chiding Luke for wanting to spend time with his friends and not at his chores. When Luke saved up enough credits to purchase a landspeeder, Owen went with him to make sure he didn't get taken. He also bought Luke T-16 skyhopper, and worked with Luke to keep it in flyable condition. When Owen purchased the droids R2-D2 and C-3PO, Luke tried to talk him into submitting an application to the Academy early. Owen refused, sensing that Luke was about to continue his father's legacy of trying to save the galaxy through the use of some silly religious belief. He told Luke that he needed to remain on Tatooine one more season, and Luke stormed off. The rift between them never got any smaller, especially when Luke left early the next morning without giving him any warning. Owen was killed when a group of stormtroopers, tracking down the droids R2-D2 and C-3PO, razed the moisture farm after not finding the droids. Owen was portrayed by Phil Brown in Star Wars*. He was also portrayed by Thomas Hill for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio.* (SW, SWR, MTS)

Laryn Kre'fey
this Bothan male, a native of Bothawui, was a General in the New Republic Navy. He had dazzling white fur and golden eyes. It was Kre'fey who in charge of the first New Republic attempt to reclaim Coruscant, about two and a half years after the Battle of Endor. He began planning the military exercises needed to retake the planet, which included capturing certain worlds near the Coruscant System. The first of them was Borleias, which was retaken after two attempts and the loss of certain members of Rogue Squadron. Kre'fey himself was killed on Borleias in the battle. It was rumored that he was a distant relative of New Republic Council Borsk Fey'lya. (XWN, WG)

Lasan
this arid planet, located in the farthest reaches of the Outer Rim Territories, was the homeworld of the Lasat. (AE)

Lasarcompfac
this is one of several small, industrial towns strewn across the northern coast of Anai, on the planet Lianna. (ML)

Lasarla
a Hapan term for the fruit of the Selab wisdom tree. (CPL)

Lasat
native to the remote planet of Lasan, this species of humanoid evolved from predatory canines. They had slender builds, but their large heads were dominated by huge eyes and large ears used to dissipate heat. Their jaws and tooth structure are indicative of their canine ancestry, with heavy teeth and strong musculature. They were a tribal, nomadic race that caught its food by trapping rather than hunting. They histories were maintained in a collection of core truths hidden within mythological tales of heroism. Their level of technology was primitive at the time of the Galactic Civil War, with real science and technology still being thought of a magic. (AE)

Laser
a device which uses a photonic beam generator to combine coherent energy into packets that can be aimed at a target. Upon striking the target, the packets split the target's molecular structure to varying degrees, based on the strength of the packets emitted. The packets can be generated to lightly stun a target or completely vaporize it. (SWSB)

Laser Battery
another form of starship laser weapon, the laser battery uses a self-contained atomic battery to generate electromagnetic energy. This means that laser batteries are large weapons, unsuited for small starships. They are also much more powerful that laser cannons, but generate intense amounts heat, and must be cooled after each shot. (SWSB)

Laser Cannon
these versatile weapons are used on starships. They can be mounted almost anywhere, provided that they can be powered separately from the ship's main power. There are different sizes and configurations of laser cannons, from small, single cannons to the quad-laser cannons. They employ quad-helix prismatic crystals to generate a laser beam, which is focused through a polarized alloy. The color and size of the beam can be modified, allowing a ship to sometimes fire "invisible" lasers as part of a surprise attack. The physics of these invisible shots, however, are not detectable by most sensors, and cannot be easily targetted. (SW, SWSB)

Laser Lathe
this was a computer-controlled machining device which used a super-fine, super-accurate laser to form intricate replacement parts. (BI)

Laser Pen
a writing implement that literally burns written words onto a page. (MMY)

Laser Saw
an old-style weapon. (CSWEA)

Laser Wrench
this specialty tool uses a laser to assist in removing connectors. (TNR)

Laserball
1) this is another name for a remote. (SA1)
2) this was an archaic form of projectile. Each laserball was designed to induce a stinging numbness when it hit exposed flesh, and was shot from a slingshot or throwing stick. If the laserball contacted non-organic material, it caused a small explosion which was more sound than destruction. (DOD)

LaserHone
manufacturers of knives and vibro-bladed weaponry. (ROE)

Lasermaze
this room was one of the many Game Chambers of Questal. A perfect square, the room's floor was marked with an eight-by-eight grid. Twelve columns, placed on various subsquares in the grid, run from floor to ceiling. Each column is armed with four lasers, each facing an ordinal direction in the room. The lasers fire in a pattern, two at a time, and the pattern repeats every 90 seconds. Moff Bandor, to make the maze even harder, installed a low-level tanglefoot field on certain subsquares. The object for prisoners of the chambers was to traverse the maze from one side to the other without getting shot up by the lasers. (GCQ)

Last Call
this 700-meter deep valley on the planet Korbin is located on the world's northern hemisphere. It is littered with the remains of natives and off-worlders who were murdered in the cities. The prevailing winds blow the stench of the valley north, away from habitation. (PG2)

Last Chance
this YT-1300 light freighter was owned by Platt Okeefe. It was armed with a pair of quad-laser cannons. (SWJ9)

Last Legs
this dilapidated Maso-class cargo hauler was captured by the Harmzuay. (GG9)

Last Resort
this cantina, located in New Atraken City, serves only drinks. (PG2)

Last Resort
this ship was part of Talon Kaarde's small fleet, during the early years of the New Republic. As Kaarde reduced his involvement with the operation, he turned over command of the ship to Aves. (IR)

Last Stand at Refnar
this battle between Alliance starships guarding a convoy and Imperial forces turned at the wrong moment for the Alliance. Flight commander Margo "Pepper" Flarestream and her squadron had nearly routed the TIE Fighters sent to atack the convoy, when the Imperial commander broke with typical doctrine and launched his cruiser into the battle. The larger ship quickly decimated Falrestream's starfighters, then destroyed much of the convoy. The mission had been Flarestream's first command, and she retired from Starfighter Commander shortly afterward, despite the fact that she saved nearly seventy percent of her ships. (CRO)

Lastdark Club
found in Coronet City, on Corellia, the Lastdark Club is named for the fact that it it situated in the one spot in the city where the sun touches last before setting. It is considered the environment of some of Coronet City's most enlightened people. (IJ)

Lastri's Ort
one of Kaarde's ships. (TLC)

Latara
an young, female Ewok, Latara is a flutist and a prankster. She is good friends with Kneesaa. (ECAR)

Lataren Tree
this aquatic plant is found on the planet Sesid. Latarens are rooted to the oecan floor by massive stalks covered with dense foliage. The lataren provide ample space for the Draedans to create homes and cities within the groves. The wood of the lataren is sold throughout the galaxy, providing income for the Draedans. (GG12)

Lateral Fin
the huge wing that counterbalances the old Jedi cruisers, such as the Nebulon Ranger. (TOJ)

Lathaam
this Najib was the senior port official at Najiba's main spaceport. He was betrothed to the Twi'leki female Arruna, until Adalric Brandl demanded passge off Najiba. Lathaam laughed at him, explaining that no one left Najiba when it passed through the asteroid field known as the Children of Najiba. Brandl became angry, and killed Arruna with the Dark Side of the Force. (TFE)

Latham, Marsden
this member of the Alderaanian internal security force was on duty when a young Han Solo tried to sell some stolen glitterstim in Aldera, while working for Teroenza. Latham subtly told Han to stop trying to sell the spice, all the while insinuating that Han was skirting a jail sentence. (TPS)

Lathe, Baden
this New Republic Intelligence officer held the rank of Captain, and was the primary agent reporting on the events surrounding Leia Organa's negotiations with the Hapans and her kidnapping by Han Solo. (CTD)

Latoprene
the organic covering that Vuffi Raa used to disguise his metallic body when he and Osuno Whett first encounter the Renatasians. (LCF)

Laudica
this female Corellian was romantically involved with Rayc Ryjerd during the last years of the New Order, although she couldn't quite figure out why. Laudica was an excellent markswoman and a skilled gunrunner, and could often be found in the company of Brindy Truchong or the Tonnika Sisters. (CCG7)

Laughing Bantha
a tavern located on the planet Redcap. (SWAJ)

Laughing Dancer
this freighter was owned by Captain Nomar, but was lost and presumed destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Lauren
this small-time criminal, along with her partner Sam, stole what they thought was the Kubaz Insect from the collection of Rock'co on Narigus III. However, they were kidnapped by Rock'co and Jorkatt the Render before they could do anything with it. The statue they held was later revealed as a fake. (GMS)

Laushin, Ryek
Sabel Corazon's henchman, Ryek was employed as a kind of bodyguard by Sabel's father, Rigis Corazon. Rigis was killed while under Ryek's care, and he has never let himself forget the debt he owes to Sabel. (SN)

Lava Dragon
another name for the fireworm of Eol Sha. (JASB)

Lava Node
a form of gemstone found in the Hapes Cluster. (JE)

Lavek Talstin
this Devaronian male was engaged to be married to Shelta Sune, a marriage arranged for him by his mother and sisters. Lavek, however, wanted nothing to do with marriage, and fled Devaron. He later earned enough credits to purchase the Wanderer, and managed to evade the Devaronian search parties that hunted for him. He was nearly captured when an uncle of Shelta Sune met him in a warehouse, and Lavek barely escaped. He joined the Alliance, feeling that he could hide from his fiance better within their ranks. He used the Wanderer to run supplies from Cuirilla to Alliance bases. Lavek preferred the company of Duros, and even tried to shave his horns down to look more like them. One horn was damaged, and grew back in with a twist. (CRO)

Lavic, Annea
this woman graduated from a prominent medical school on the planet Rhinnal. However, to relieve the pressure of her studies, she started consuming ryll spice. Over time, the spice led to her gambling and stealing to obtain more spice. Annea managed to graduate, but lost her internship when she was too frayed from the spice to concentrate on a surgery. The patient was the son of an Imperial governor's chief aide, and the boy died because she miscalculated on dose of painkillers and sped through the operation. Rather than face the consequences of her mistakes, Annea fled Rhinnal and hid out in the Outer Rim. She tried to return to the life of a doctor, but the pressure kept getting to her and her spice addition returned. She soon found herself on the run again, pursued by spice dealers whom she had not paid. (PSG)

Lavisar
this planet was actually once part of a much larger planetary body, until a series of asteroid collisions broke the larger world apart. Many of the fragments were too small to become anything more than asteroids themselves, but the largest part remained fairly stable and eventually became the planet Lavisar. The larger remaining pieces became moons of the planet. It is composed of heavy metals and ores, and has a higher than standard gravity. This is a remnant of the original planet, which had an incredibly-high gravity. Lavisar remained neutral during the Galactic Civil War and the battles which followed on the heels of the Battle of Endor. Its abundance of heavy ores, along with its shipyards, made it a prime world for addition to Zsinj's empire. Wraith Squadron ran a false assault on the planet, from its base on the Mon Remonda, in order establish the presence of the squadron in Han Solo's fleet. This allowed them to also use the identities of the Hawk-bats near Halmad. (IF)

Lavorn, Gren
this man served as the Alliance's chief maintenance officer at the base on Fangol during the Galactic Civil War. Shortly before the attempt to capture the Black Ice, Lavorn was assigned to understanding and outfitting a pair of captured Spiral-class assault ships for the mission. (BI)

LAVr QH-7 Chariot
Uulsho's military command speeder, the QH-7 is a modified military landspeeder built for the Empire. It is heavily armored, but not very fast; the QH-7's primary function is the transportation of important personnel rather that battle command. The three-man craft is armed with a single, forward-mounted laser cannon, and measures 11.8 meters in length. (ISB, TTSB)

Lavval, Bria
this was an alias used by Bria Tharen to board the Queen of Empire and return to Nar Shaddaa. In order to cover that obvious Corellian name Bria, she claimed that her name was not Corellian at all. Instead, her story had it that “Bria” was a combination of the names of her grandmothers Brusela and Iaphagena. Bria Lavval was a minor starlet and casino singer headed for the Chance Castle. (RD)

Law Elders
the leaders of the Bimm government. (HTTE)

Law of Life
the Ithorian tenet which holds that, for every living plant destroyed in the harvest, two more must be planted in its place. (TME)

Law*-class Patrol Craft
built by Kuat Drive Yards, this 51-meter advance scout ship was used by the Empire in the years that led up to the Battle of Endor. It also saw duty in the years after the death of Emperor Palpatine. It required a crew of four, with 11 gunners. It could transport up to 10 prisoners in a dedicated brig, and could carry up to 250 metric tons of cargo. The Law-class ship was armed with four laser cannons and a proton torpedo launcher, and was capable of hyperspace travel. KDY intended the Law-class ship to be more of a scouting vessel, but soon became the ship of choice for the Sector Rangers as a customs and patrol ship. (TSK, FOP)

Lay Pa-Sidian
the bounty hunter Zee Ethda tried to capture Tarrant Snil in this city, on the planet G'wenee, which was under Imperial control during the early years of the New Republic. It was a major trade center, for goods both legal and otherwise. (CE2)

Layter
an Imperial freighter group supporting the NL-1 outpost in the Pakuuni System. (TIE)

Laz
this is the eastern-most of the three continents which make up the nation of Devit, found on the planet Lazerian IV. A ruined Jedi outpost is located on its western coast, a bleak reminder of a battle which took place there. The blasted ground has never regrown plant life, and the animals of the area stay away. (TSK)

Lazeria City
the capital city of the nation Devit as well as the planet Lazerian IV, Lazeria City is the site of the Lazeria City Starport as well as the Lazerian Orbital Command. Both the LCS and the LOC have been under Imperial Customs control, which uses the resources of the LOC to monitor all traffic in the system. (TSK)

Lazerian
this yellow star is the primary solar body in the Lazerian System. It’s location in space is used to anchor one end of the Kira Run. (TSK)

Lazerian IV
this planet, the fourth in the Lazerian System, is at one end of the Kira Run. The inhabitants of the planet were extremely loyal to the New Order, a sentiment which echoed the rulership of King Alarik X. A temperate world with varying terrain, Lazerian IV has been heavily industrialized, and a large number of urban centers grew around the various starports. The average day on Lazerian IV lasts 24 standard hours, and its year encompasses 360 local days. A pair of moons orbit the planet. (TSK)

Lazerian VI
this sixth planet in the Lazerian System is a gas giant with eight moons. (TSK)

Lazerian VII
the second of two gas giants in the Lazerian System, Lazerian VII is orbitted by ten natural satellites. (TSK)

Lazerian IX
this world or frigid, barren rocks is the ninth planet in the Lazerian System. (TSK)

LazerLords
one of the many pirates groups serving under Leonia Tavira and the Invids. (IJ)

Lazy Bergruutfa Cantina
this circular cantina was located within Betha II’s primary starport. (SWJ8)

LB-K2
a series of courier droids manufactured by Industrial Automation, these droids became known as "elbies." They are programmed to be able to speak in a number of human and alien dialects, and are equipped with a number of data communications technologies. (SN)

LBK
a prototype Nuffin weapon. (JTH)

LBT-16
an Arakyd BT-16 perimeter securty droid. This spider-like droid was often used by B'omarr monks to support their disembodied brains. The LBT-16 was employed as a security droid in Mos Eisley, during the Galactic Civil War. (GG7)

LC-1
this was the callsign of the lead starfighter pilot working for Linkaas Corporation's planetary security force on Dohu VII. After Dannen Lifehold escaped from the planet, Linkaas had LC-1 and his flight group destroyed for failing to capture the human. (SWJ1)

LC02-133BAY-TR02
this was the BoSS registry number of Platt Okeefe's starship, the Last Chance. (IDC)

LD-1
this was a model of sniper's blaster rifle manufactured by Merr-Sonn. (ROE)

Le Yer
this beautifully manicured coastal region was known as a resort city, and was located on the planet Abregado-Rae. (ND)

LE-BO2D9
known as "Leebo," this droid is owned by Dash Rendar. An early-mode Cybot Galactica repair droid, Leebo was programmed by a failed comedian, and had a warped sense of humor. He was a fair pilot, often taking the controls of the Outrider when Dash was on business planteside. (SE, SESB)

LE-PR series Droid
this was a series of navigation droids built during the last years of the Old Republic. These droids were humanoid in stature, with large craniums dominated by a single visual receptor and an antenna rising from the left side. (E1A2)

LE-PR34
this navigator droid was known as "Leaper" to the test pilots of Trinkatta Starships. Leaper was assigned to work with Bama Vook during the tests performed on the droid starfighters which were built for the Trade Federation, in the year leading up to the Battle of Naboo. (E1A2)

LE-series Droid
this was an outdated model of repair droid, once manufactured by Cybot Galactica. (JE)

Leach
an Pakuuni Corvette destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Leafbrothers
the name given by the Ewoks to their non-Ewok friends. (ROTJN)

Leafy Green
it was in this tapcafe, located on JoKo's Alley on Coruscant, that Tekli overheard two Rodians discussing their distrust of the human race. The distrust arose from the fact that the Yuuzhan Vong could use ooglith masquers to pretend to be human, thereby making non-human races hesitant to work with humans. This was shortly before it was discovered that the Vong had perfected the gablith masquer. True to its name, the Leafy Green was decorated to appear as if it were in a lush, tropical environment. The tables were covered with live mosses, and potted plants and trailing vines provided covering for the walls and ceilings. Very few droids were employed by the owners, and were used simply to put together the wonderful dishes cooked by the kitchen staff. (BP)

League of Tapani Freeworlds
this was the official title of the governing organization that controlled the Freeworlds Region of Tapani Sector. It provided support mainly as a trade organization, but also had military power to back it up. Membership in the League was given to each of the five primary planets in the Freeworlds Region: Aleron, Lamuir IV, Mrlsst, Neona, and Tallaan. Headquarters of the League were based on Tallaan. (PGT)

Lean Nutti Bar and Grill
this restaurant was located on StarForge Station. It catered mainly to the non-human spacers at the Station, and humans were often ostracized if they ate there. (FOP)

Leaper
this species of large, spherical insect was native to the planet Karra. They walker on six legs, each of which was three meters in length. The Karrans were able to control great nests of leapers, using them as soldiers in battles. (SWJ1)

Learning, The
this was the Keganite form of education. All children were required to take part in The Learning, which lasted until a child was sixteen years old. During their education, which took place in the Learning Circle, Keganite children were taught the basic tenets of the General Good. The teachers of The Learning, however, were given false and misleading information by the rulers of Kegan, V-Tan and O-Vieve. Much of this information painted a bleak and evil picture of the rest of the galaxy, aimed at maintaining the isolation of Kegan in order to avoid the tragedies of prophecy. (FFT)

Learning Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was dedicated to the teaching of the General Good. All children were required to remain in the Learning Circle until their sixteenth birthday, when they were considered adults provided that they adhered to the General Good. (FFT)

Leap
an Alliance shuttle destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Leaper
a species of jumping insects native to the planet Karra. (SWAJ)

Learz, Stoghin
this man was a member of Kuat Drive Yards' security forces, and wsa part of the team assigned to protect the Super-class Star Destroyer Zsinj called the Razor's Kiss. (IF)

Leatherwood
this was a perfume scent for woman, although it was such a subtle scent that the natural odor of most woman overpowered it. Ysanne Isard was one of the few woman who did not mask it. (WS)

Leathris
this tough material is used to make coveralls and jackets. (SOP)

Leb'Reen
a city located on the planet Ryloth, Leb'Reen was only accessible by flying through a narrow canyon rift before settling some 500 meters into the landing area. Fenig Nabon and Ghitsa Dogder once employed Shada D'ukal and her partner, Dunc T'racen, to transport a cargo of Twi'leki dancers to Durga the Hutt. They met the Mistryls in Leb'Reen, and picked up the dancers there as well. (TFNR)

Lecknag Beast
a vicious creature that lives outside of Gemthrop City, these monsters roam in large herds. The City has been walled to keep the groups of animals from killing its inhabitants. (RPG)

Lectroticker
this jury-rigged device is used to get through security card locks. It employs a sense plate from a pressure sensor and a data compiler from a life form detector. The lectroticker sends out a series of electrical pulses, and the data compiler reads where the pulse patterns match between the sense plate and the lock. The exact pattern can be manipulated using the data compiler until the lock’s code is discovered. Once an exact match is found, the lock springs open. (CFG)

Lee, Karrison
this smuggler frequented the Ace of Sabres on Kluistar, but he never seemed to win at any of the games. He was imprisoned by the Empire three times, and had the good luck to escape each time, and managed to maintain ownership of his starship, the Distant Sunrise. (WSV)

Leebo
see LE-BO2D9 (SE)

Leed
this Rutanian youth was the first-born son of King Frane, and the heir to the throne of Rutan, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. He had spent most of his life on the moon Senali, in accordance with tradition, but refused to return to Rutan on his sixteenth birthday. Frane refused to believe that Leed had made the decision on his own, and accused Meenon of forcing the boy to stay. However, the Jedi Knights Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi learned that Leed had felt out of place on Rutan all his life, and genuinely wanted to remain on Senali. Leed revealed that his father, King Frane, had once sent him to jail for refusing to take part in a hunt. Leed had even enlisted the help of his adoptive sister, Drenna, in hiding out on a remote island. After meeting with the Jedi, Leed even offered his position as heir to the throne of Rutan to his brother, Taroon, in an effort to remain with the Senali. Unknown to Leed, however, Taroon had been planning to unseat his brother all along. Taroon’s plans were too far along to stop, and a group of disguised Rutanians captured Leed an held him prisoner. Taroon hoped to blame the kidnapping on the Ghost Ones, thereby creating a void in the Rutanian monarchy which he would fill. However, King Frane wanted only Leed to succeed him. The two Jedi eventually rescued Leed and brought both brothers to Rutan, where they explained themselves to their father. Frane realized that Leed truly enjoyed the company of the Senali, and also that Taroon was not merely a “second son.” In the end, Frane discovered that Taroon would be a better leader than Leed, and he allowed Leed to return to Senali as the first official ambassador for both worlds. (SP)

Leeds
this Imperial Navy Lieutenant served on the Interrogator, under Captains Vharing and Nolaan. During a raid on the planet Qlothos, Leeds took command while Vharing slept. A TIE Bomber raid went wrongl, resulting in the deaths of sixty civilians in the planet's capital.

Among the dead were a high-ranking Kuat Drive Yards engineer and his family, who were on vacation at the time. Vharing was executed by High Inquisitor Tremayne for the error. (TFNR)

Leefari Sea

Leenik
this Rodian served as Borga the Hutt's majordomo, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (JE)

Leesa One-Eye
this human female was born on a backwater world, and grew up learning the skills of a free-trader. During a particular run, her ship was caught by an Imperial customs frigate. The officer in charge delibertely injured with a knife, slashing her face and causing her to lose the use of her left eye. She left the free-trade business, obtained a cybernetic replacement for her eye, and joined the Ropagi II security forces. She was quick-witted and impulsive, but showed that she could make snap judgments that resulted in success more often than failure. Her hard work eventually paid off,as she was promoted to the position of Security Chief of the Off-worlders' Quarter. Her run-in with the Imperial customs officer left a bitter taste in her mouth, and she did not mourn the death of Emperor Palpatine for very long. (TSK)

Leesub Sirln
this Qiraash was enslaved as a child by Imperial High Inquisitor Tremayne, because she was adept in the use of the Force. She escaped his captivity, and hid in the maze of backstreets in Mos Eisley. (CCG)

Lefken, Rars
a grizzled starship Captain, he is the owner of the vessel Lefken's Dreams. There are small creatures living in his thick beard and hair, although he doesn't seem to mind. Lefken once tried to bully the Weequay guards which patrolled the Nwarcol Point space station, and suffered such injuries that he was unable to fly for several weeks. (SWSB, SSR)

Lefken's Dreams
Rars Lefken's modified stock light freigher. (SWSB)

Legacy of Torment
this Yuuzhan Vong warship was assigned to Shedao Shai, during his attempt to continue the invasion of the galaxy. It was the flagship during the Battle of Garqi as well as the Battle of Ithor. However, after Shedao Shai's death, Deign Lian took command of the ship and ordered the destruction of Ithor. Once the planet was rendered lifeless, Lian ordered the Yuuzhan Vong fleet back to Dubrillion. Unknown to the Yuuzhan Vong, New Republic Admiral Traest Kre'fay had ordered the Corusca Rainbow to Ithor, and he used its gravity well projectors to hold the Yuuzhan Vong fleet near Ithor. Kre'fey then ordered all ships to fire on the Yuuzhan Vong fleet. The New Republic's forces decimated the fleet, and the Legacy of Torment was destroyed. The ship crashed into Ithor, setting off intense, planet-sweeping fires. (DTR)

Legal Authorization for Advanced Confinement Documents
known as LAACDocs, these papers were devised and implemented by High Inquisitor Tremayne. These were certified documents that allowed for the detention and confinement of specific individuals wanted by the Empire, and they authorized government officials to use whatever necessary to apprehend and detain beings wanted specifically for questioning by Tremayne himself. In most cases, the target of a LAACDoc was never actually arrested, just detained for questioning. The fact that very few of these beings ever were seen again was immaterial. Many local governments chafed at the idea of having another piece of paperwork to shuffle, since LAACDocs often superceded or interfered with a Governor or Moff's ability to issue a bounty on a being for their capture. (GG10)

Legally Authorized Law Authority
known as LA-LAs to their opponents and detractors, this corrupt security force was hired by the Sesharile government to protect their system. (SWAJ)

Legassi
this New Republic Navy Yoeman was a member of the Mon Calamari race, and served under Communications Chief Oran aboard the Adamantine. He was one of the first to die from the Death Seed plague unleashed by Seti Ashgad. (POT)

LeGrange
manufacturers of large-scale targeting computers. (SCRE)

Legworm
a limbed slug-like insect native to the planet Karra, the average legworm measured ten meters in length and a meter in diameter. Ten sections of the legworm's body had two long legs, and its head was studded with a pair of silvery eyes and sharp, pinching mandibles. The Karrans discovered a way to use groups of legworms in battles, allowing the insects to attack their enemies. (SWJ1)

Lehesu
a very curious and imaginative Oswaft, Lehesu swims out of the StarCave to discover what lies in the Open Sea of space beyond. He nearly dies of starvation when he encounters the Millennium Falcon. He manages to communicate his needs to Vuffi Raa, who provides him with food, and establishes a friendship with Lehesu. Due to his inquisitive nature, Lehesu is a loner in the StarCave. However, his friendship with Vuffi Raa and Lando Calrissian bring Lando back to the StarCave when the Imperial Navy blockades it. Lando brings the various nutrients needed by the Oswaft, in the forms of ordinary human refuse. Lehesu's trips to the Open Sea also bring trouble, though, for he unwillingly provides Rokur Gepta the knowledge of the StarCave. (LCS)

Leia
Yarna d'al' Gargan named one of her female cubs Leia, after Princess Leia Organa. She chose this name to honor Leia Organa, who had helped kill Jabba the Hutt. (TJP)

Leidra
this Daan woman was married to Micae, and was Nield's mother. (UP)

Leiger, Vin
this was Gavin Darklighter's alias used when the Rogue Squadron infiltrated Coruscant. Vin Leiger was a Rim native who had gotten into trouble and fled from the law. He had hooked up with a Shistavenan Wolfman named Shaalir Resh, which was the alias used by Riv Shiel. (WG)

Leisure Corridor
this tourism and trade hyperspace lane runs from Coruscant to Ebiwaan. (GG9)

LeisureMech Enterprises
this manfuacturer of automated machinery systems and computer-controlled manufacturing processes was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Leith, Aurin
this Alliance doctor was trained in the art of medicine at the Byblos Academy of Medicine, where she was taught to "first ,do no harm." She was a native of Coruscant, whose parents were supporters of the Old Republic. When Emperor Palpatine rose to power, their fortunes changed dramatically, and Aurin decided she wanted nothing to do with politics. After her training, she served at the University Faculty Medical Center on Ralltiir, where she first heard of the Alliance from a friend who survived an Imperial interrogation. Her own beliefs and feelings were dedicated mainly to helping the sick, and she grew frustrated at the Empire's bureaucracy surrounding everything she did. After joining the Alliance, Aurin was assigned to the crew of the Pharos. When she was assigned to the assault team that went to Selnesh to liberate Gebnerret Vibrion, she found that her training came into conflict with her duties. Commander Briessen told Aurin that, if she couldn't rescue Vibrion, then she would have to administer a fatal dosage of medicine to keep Virbion's knowledge a secret. Vibrion went along, as part of Lieutenant Haslam's team, with the expectation that she would recover Vibrion alive. While he succeeded in this part of the mission, he was forced to shoot and kill an Imperial stormtrooper who got between them and their escape ship. She received the Field Achievement Award, but felt that she'd violated her sacred oath to her profession. (SWJ10, TFE)

Lekku
the Twi'lek name for their headtails. It is the plural form of the term lek. (TJP)

Lekua System
a planetary system known for its colleges and universities. (LCM)

Lelila
an alias used by Princess Leia, Lelila was a childhood nickname. Leia used this alias whenever she traveled on the Alderaan, and while trying to track down Hethrir and her missing children, Leia propogated the story that Lelila was a bounty hunter. (CS, TNR)

Lellish
this alien race was native to the planet Alk'lellish III. (TBSB)

Lelmra
sight of one of Bel Iblis' bases, in use by Mazzic during the New Republic's campaign against Grand Admiral Thrawn. The planet is prone to violent thunderstorms, and these storms once caused the bi-state memory plastic buildings used by Kaarde to revert to their compact state, trapping nearly fifty people inside. (DFR, TLC)

Lemelisk, Bevel
Lemelisk began his infamous career with the Old Republic, designing starships with Walex Blissex. He had trouble controlling his naturally violent tendencies until the Republic ordered the design and development of the Victory-class Star Destroyer. Lemelisk put himself into the work, creating the basis for a new generation of capital ships that eventually grew into the Eclipse-class terrors of the subsequent clones of Emperor Palpatine. After Palpatine rose to power, Lemelisk was sequestered at the Maw Installation, and was chosen by Grand Moff Tarkin to build the first production Death Star. He was an overweight man with pale features, including spiky white hair. He was killed by Emperor Palpatine for not fully reporting any possible flaws with the first Death Star. Palpatine had him eaten alive by the piranha beetles from Yavin 4, but not before Palpatine had his mind and his memories transferred into a waiting clone. He has served the Empire ever since, in seven cloned bodies required by numerous executions for failure. Lemelisk was responsible for the design of the Tarkin warship, and repaired the flaws of the first Death Star for the battle station that was built near Endor. When the Empire began to crumble following the deaths of Palpatine and Thrawn, he became indentured to Durga the Hutt, and helped Durga create the Mineral Exploiters. The mining ships were a ruse for the real plot in Durga's mind, the creation of a new Death Star. This was the real reason for his serving Durga: to revamp the old designs and created a new super weapon. He redesigned the old Death Star, removing nearly everything but the superlaser itself. This new design was dubbed the Darksaber, since it appeared to be a huge, space-going lightsaber when the superlaser was activated. However, Durga's frugality and Sulamar's ineptness meant that Lemelisk was forced to build with second-rate, outdated materials and components. On top of that, Durga insisted that Lemelisk use the captive taurills as workers, and they were too easily distracted to perform a quality job. Lemelisk reworked many systems himself, in order to keep the setbacks hidden from Durga's eyes. In the end, too many poor systems and too much inferior material told him that the Darksaber would never function properly. When the New Republic infiltrated the Darksaber, Lemelisk slipped away in the confusion, and escaped in a maintenance pod. He was captured by the Yavaris and taken to Coruscant for trial. (DTSC, JS, DS, EGV)

Lemmer
a small, humanoid race. (RP)

Lemmi VI
this jungle planet is known as the only world on which the Millennium blossom grows. The world is inhabited by strange, huge creatures that move around on pogo-stick-like legs, crushing everything in their path. (GMS)

Lemmora kinpo
this Tahlboorean phrase translates to a very warm and friendly “hello.” (DRPC)

Len, Issan
this man was an expert in artificial intelligence and droid programming. He was known as the creator of the X0-X1 prototype, a droid he hoped to develop as a central controller of space station operations. However, as the experimental development of X0-X1 progressed, Doctor Len started to see problems in its personality. He hired Doctor Vreen away from Bioniip Laboratories, hoping to have Vreen solve the problems he had encountered. Len then contacted Walex Blissex and told him about the X0-X1 prototype, hoping to turn the technology over to the Alliance. However, Vreen soon stole the prototype and planned to sell it to the Empire. The Alliance dispatched a team of agents to protect Doctor Len, but they arrived on Cloud City too late to save him. Len was killed by F-3PO, a droid which had been taken over by X0-X1, before the Alliance agents could rescue him. (CCC)

Lendova
a Habeen Nebulon-B frigate used to transport diplomats to the rendezvous with Admiral Zaarin and the Shamus. (TIE)

Leng
this was a species of thick-barked tree native to the planet Gelgelar. Many of the people who lived on the planet used its bark for boards. (SWJ14)

Lenk
this Imperial trooper was assigned to protect the Black Ice. (BI)

Lennar
this small-time conman and hired gun considered himself to be a real lady's man, but intruth was a mangy, incompetent man. (GMH)

Lenniera
this Core world is located in the Darpa Sector, and is the site of Fitz Roi's family estate. (SWAJ)

Lennox
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Star Destroyer Tyrant during the Battle of Hoth. Lennox was somewhat of an anomoly in the Imperial Navy, being dedicated to his ship and crew while disliking political maneuvering for power. (CCG)

Lenthalis
this planet was located in Spirva Sector, and was the capital seat of the sector during the height of the New Order. (SWJ12)

Lenushaa Gang
this loose affiliation of computer slicers was based on Cloud City during the Galactic Civil War. They were part of Wonn Ionstrike's vast network of information gatherers. (GG2)

Lenya
this woman worked as a communications operator at Settlement Thirty-two on Duro, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (BP)

Leobund XI, Bode'
this man succeeded his father as the High Lord of House Mecetti, in Tapani Sector, some twenty-one years before the Battle of Yavin. His father was poisoned, although no one seemed to care because his inept leadership had given House Melantha control of the Great

Council. Leobund made sweeping changes, and House Mecetti soon regained its position as the strongest of the Tapani Houses. Only the fear of Imperial reprisal kept him from taking further action to reduce his rival Houses. (PGT)

Leong
this man was a member of the Alliance's Special Forces operation. Leong was killed during an attempt to capture four Imperial agents on Bevell III. Leong had been a trusted member of Jai Raventhorn's Infiltrator team, and his death shook her resolve badly. (TFNR)

Leopard
an Imperial assault transport operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Lepido Program
a regular military encryption code used by the Empire. Ghent was able to crack it. (TLC)

Lepira
this young man learned how to fly a starfighter while racing in the Anoat System, before joining the Alliance. He was assigned the position of Gold Four during the Battle of Yavin, but was killed in the battle. (CCG9)

Lepusa
this creature, native to the planet Freliq, has been at the center of a debate ever since its discovery some twenty years before the Battle of Yavin. These one-meter-tall rodents seem to possess a limited form of sentience, and most natives of Freliq swear that there is an innate intelligence in the eyes of a lepusa. Xeonibiologists from other planets claim this is more sentiment and science, and that the lepusa is simply vermin. Large numbers of lepusa were originally killed when the planet was first colonized, but over time the settlers became aware of the lepusa's talents. They live in groups of 70 to 100 individuals, and seem to have a crude social order to their groupings. They were herbivorous, and ate the crops of the original colonists before "learning" that those plantings were off-limits. (COG)

Lequabis
this gas giant is located in the Expansion region. (SWAJ)

Lequar, Gor
this Imperial Admiral was in command of the Third Ado Superiority Fleet during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (PP)

Lerct Historical Institute
this school specialized in the study and education of ancient peoples and societies. (AIR)

Lerenga, Sona
this Imperial sensor operator served aboard the Wanderer. He was a promising Naval officer until his father embarrassed the Empire. Sona was punished for his father's indiscretion. (IC)

Leresai
an alien race which joined the New Republic, they attacked Bothawui after the revelation of the Caamas Document. The Leresai claimed that the Bothans were responsible for the deaths of two of their own during the riots on Bothawui, and demanded either the guilty Bothans or the deaths of ten Bothans for each Leresai. This was in accordance with Leresan law, which demanded “a claw for a claw, a horn for a horn, a life for a life.” Rogue Squadron tried to intervene, but their ships had been sabotaged by Leresan maintenance workers on Di’tai’ni, and were unable to prevent the attack. The Leresai attacked a zero-gee crystal manufacturing plant in orbit around Bothawui, claiming the lives demanded by their law, before the Peregrine could arrive. The actions of the Leresai were hotly debated in the New Republic Senate, especially in light of the Caamas Document’s contents. Note that Vision of the Future calls this race "Leresan." (SOP, VOF)

Leria Kerlsil
primary planet in the Leria Kerlsil System, it is the only world on which the life witches are encountered. (AC)

Leria Kerlsil System
a planetary system located between the Core and the Corellian Sector. (AC)

Lerna
this alias was usde by Leia Organa after she ended up in the employ of Lady Tarkin on Phelarion. Lerna was a megonite harvester who was promoted to Lady Tarkin's personal staff just before the 13th Imperial Diplomatic Conclave on the planet. (CSWEA)

Lernik De'Yago
this Rodian arms merchant stole the Nova Whisper from the Alliance, during the evacuation of their base on Asher III. De'Yago later sold the ship to a merchant aboard the Ithorian herdship Bazaar. Before he sold the ship, De'Yago coded into its computer databanks the codes to a number of bank accounts on Novquizor. (SS)

Lerrimore Contracting Company
this combine controls over 300 subsidiaries involved with household goods, appliances,and furniture. They were one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Lerrimore Droids
this corporation manufactures the KPR-series of security droids. (CCG)

LES
this acronym was used by the scouts of the New Republic to describe any newly-discovered species which "Liked to Eat Scouts." (SWJ13)

Lesai
a highly-addictive, very illegal drug produced in the Zebitrope System, lesai is created from the purple mold which grows on the back of a certain species of lizards on Zebitrpoe IV. The drug has a number of properties. It can eliminate the need for sleep in humans, as well as extending their lifespan by one-third. It also doesn't affect the human brain, so the hallucinations and delusions that result from other drugs is avoided. However, the drug makes its addicts very mechanical and amoral. They act without emotion, and don't have any care as to the consequences of their actions. (LCF)

Lesilk
known in the Alliance military as "Lockjaw Lesilk," this man was a General in the Alliance, and served as the Sector Commander during the campaign to liberate Matacorn. (HR)

Lesim
this Imperial Major was stationed on Endor's Forest Moon as part of the garrison guarding the second Death Star's shield generators. He was on duty when a pair of stormtroopers bought in Luke Skywalker, who had seemingly surrendered. Lesim wanted nothing more than to get his picture taken with the galaxy's most sought-after criminal, and Luke was forced to use the Force to coerce Lesim into taking him to Darth Vader. (MTS)

Leskwin, Joss
this Imperial Moff controlled an area of the galaxy which contained the planet Hjaff. He had trouble subduing the native Tarc and their Ivlacav Gourn navy, which had a zero-tolerance policy with intruders. He hoped to gather enough forces to eventually overwhelm the Tarc. (SWJ14)

Leslomy Tacema
this female Duros worked at the Mos Eisley spaceport as a dock master. She reviewed and approved all cargo manifests, but was forgiving of minor offenses. She was a close associate of Ellorrs Madak, and was also considered an excellent pilot. (CCG7)

Lesser Galam
the first planet in the Lan System. It is a lifeless ball of rock. (SWJ1)

Lesser Plooriod Cluster
a section of the galaxy in which Han Solo and Chewbacca had once run a military scrip exchange scam. It was one of many ill-fated jobs they took in between the time when they exposed the Corporate Sector Authority's slavery ring on Ammuud and when they were hired by Grigmin. It consists of twelve star systems located far from Imperial activity, including the Ottega System. (HSL, SWSB)

Lesser-known Sentients, Volume 3
this tome, written by the xeno-biologist Xemlorn, further documented some of the galaxy's least-known sentient species. Much of the work was questioned by Xemlorn's peers, since many of the species - including the danchaf of Garban - had never exhibited any form of sentience during other studies. (COG)

Lessev, Kerri
the daughter of Alderaanian diplomats, Kerri grew up on Coruscant. When her parents were rounded up and executed for trumped-up charges of treason against the Empire, she was "adopted" by Emperor Palpatine, along with the children of the other parents who were killed. She was placed in the early COMPNOR SAGroup on Coruscant, under the guideance of Crueya Vandron, and eventually became one of the program's shining starts. Lessev was later recruited into the Imperial Intelligence Destabilization branch, and she became one of Palpatine's most trusted agents. Her role was to factionalize those Imperial nobles and Moffs who tried to undermine Palpatine's efforts, thereby forcing them into competition with themsevlves, rather than allowing them to focus their effort on the Empire. However, just before accepting this role, she viewed some of the Alliance's propaganda and realized the things Mon Mothma and Leia Organa - a fellow Alderaanian - were saying were true. She realized that her parents' disappearances were more than likely the result of Imperial paranoia, and decided to help the Alliance from inside the Empire. She used her position as a Major within Destabilization and manipulated the outcomes of operations in order to benefit the Alliance. It was Kerri Lessev who was responsible for ousting Moff Varnier and removing a number of Imperial agents from Wyloff Sector. (CRO)

Lessuris
a planet. (WSV)

LesTech
this small corporation built a series of exploration droids during the Old Republic. Its corporate headquarters were located on Brentaal, and it often partnered with Danth Artifice in its designs. When the Empire came into power, LesTech and its smaller companions were forced out of business by the larger corporations. (RASB, FOP)

Lesu
this planet is located in Dail Sector. (GG11)

Lesvol
Prishardia's second-largest city, Lesvol is much more remote and has far fewer amenities than Nad'Ris. (TFNR)

Lesynn
these Fyodos avians have beautiful golden plumage and delicious meat. They roams the planet's forests, feeding on insects and some plants. Most Fyodoi hunt them for their meat and feathers, although some believe that the Lesynn are messengers from the gods, and should be left alone. (PG2)

Letaki
an alien race characterized by their eight-tentacled bodies. They have large, egg-shaped heads with four eyes and air-gill slits for breathing. (TJP)

Leth
this is the twelfth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "l". (SWM)

Leth, Umak
Imperial engineer who designed the World Devastators and the Universal Energy Cage, among other weapons of mass destruction. He is a tall, heavy-set human with long, thin moustaches. (DE1, DE2)

Lethago
this is the name given to the tall, thin offspring from the union of a human and a Kalai. (SWAJ)

Lethan Twi'lek
one of the lesser races of Twi'lek, the Lethan Twi'lek is distinguished by its deep, reddish skin color. (IG1)

Lethorn
this is the name used by the Chagrian species to describe the fleshy growths which hang down from the sides of their heads and drape over their shoulders. (IG1)

Letter of Marque and Reprisal
this was the name of the contract developed by the Alliance to define the relationship between themselves and the privateers they employed to acquire supplies and harass Imperial convoys. Fleet command, Ordnance and Supply, and the Alliance's support services were allowed to issue letters of marque on behalf of the Alliance, although they were most often issued from Ordnance and Supply because that branch of the Alliance was closest to the project to employ privateers. (PP)

Lettrani
this tree, native to the planet Keed, produced large red seeds that were covered with short spikes. The pods of the lettrani seeds were quite flexible, and would bounce a great distance when they fell from the tree. For this reason, the Keed used them as balls in the sport of lettranin. (CRO)

Lettranin
this sport originated on the planet Keedad, and developed from a game played by the Keed. They used the large, red fruits of the lettrani tree as a ball, and tried to deposit the fruit into a goal using mits and slings. Lettranin was played in a large arena, with two teams opposing each other. In many respects, lettranin was similar to shockball. (CRO)

Leukish
this is the name given to the Tenloss Syndicate's governing council. (EGV)

Levare, Dael
this young Corellian man was the son of one of Corellia's richest families during the early years of the New Order. He was engaged at one time to Bria Tharen, more from her mother's manipulations than from any sort of love. Bria broke off the engagement when she found Dael sneaking around with another woman, much to mother's dismay. When Bria returned to her family after becoming a pilgrim on Ylesia, her mother invited Dael over in order to show up Bria's new beau, Han Solo. It was Dael who recognized Han as Tallus Bryne, precipitating Bria and Han's flight from Corellia. (TPS)

Level Zip Ship
this was spacer's slang for a starship which was an easy target for theft, because it had very few - if any - security obstacles. (SWJ13)

Level-Five Droid
a droid whose programming is aimed at heavy, menial tasks such as wrecking and construction. (DRO)

Level-Four Droid
a droid whose programming is more for efficiency rather than for specific roles. Unit Zed describes C-3PO and R2-D2 as level-four droids. (DRO)

Level-One Droid
a droid that has been programmed for leadership roles and/or security positions. (DRO)

Leveler I
Bryn & Gweith's medium concussion missile launcher, this is a self-propelled weapons designed for fortification and long-range sieges. 28 missiles can be carried in the weapon; further ammunition must be carried to it. (ISB)

Levian Two
this planet was the site of a raid by Warlord Zsinj's Raptors, during the early years of the New Republic. The Republic fleet led by Han Solo arrived just after the raid ended, and was unable to protect the planet. Rogue, Wraith, Polearm, and Nova Squadrons were dispatched to the planet anyway, in order to help in a search and rescue mission for any downed members of Ravine and Beta Squadrons. Zsinj's forces then dropped out of hyperspace to assault the Republic fleet, but neither side took major losses in the skirmish. (SOC)

Leviathan
Tirsa Wargear's submersible troop carrier. (SWAJ)

Leviathan
this sleek passenger liner made regular runs from Coruscant to Telos, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. (DOR)

Leviathan of Corbos
this entity was unearthed by the miners who worked to make a living on the desolate world of Corbos. They first found an ancient skeleton, after blasting away at a particularly hard outcropping of rock. This woke the sleeping Leviathan, and it attacked the mining colony with a vengeance. The entire colony was wiped out, but not before the leaders managed to send a distress signal to the New Republic. Leia Organa-Solo asked her brother, Luke Skywalker, to send a contigent of Jedi Knights to investigate. The Levianthan is a huge, crustacean-like beast that stands on two massive legs. It has four smaller, crab-like arms. Its thick head is studded with several horns, and its four blood-red eyes sit atop a mouth studded with razor-sharp teeth. Large fin-like plates ran down the creature’s spine. A first creature was defeated by Kyp Durron, who discovered that the Leviathan could trap the Force-energies of its victims in a special nodule near its head. Meanwhile, Kirana Ti, Streen, and Dorsk 82 discovered a huge nest of larval Leviathans in the mining colony’s operations center. The death of the first creature awakened an even larger one, and the four Jedi were pushed to their limits in an effort to defeat it. The two creatures, once destroyed, released all the souls of the miners they had killed. (ROM, JAL)

Leviathor
the leader of the Whaladons on Calamari, Leviathor is an ancient beast who knows the entire history of his race. His leadership and experience has helped many Whaladons from being captured by hunters. He is also the only white Whaladon still alive. He became the leader of the Whaladons when he helped them escape from an undersea volcano eruption some years ago. (GDV)

Levier
this was a well-known and revered porcelain maker based on Corellia. (TPS)

Leviticus
this city, located on the planet Tharkos, was where Han Solo obtained information about the creation of the Millennium Falcon prototype from Zoltan Starkid’s secretary. (CSWDW)

Lewis
one of Lariss' Lieutenants. (RC)

Lewis, Retter
this unusual man was known as an antiques dealer during the height of the New Order. He was also the director of the Alliance's agent protection network, a fact that he kept well-hidden. His base of operations was Callia's a dealership he maintained aboard the Cal Ambre. He was recognized as an expert on ancient and unusual religious artifacts, and he believed that he was somewhat attuned to the Force. This allowed him to recognize the more valuable relics, which often were sold to high-ranking Imperial officers and dignitaries. He also dealt in other "hot commodities" - Imperial personnel who wanted to defect to the Alliance. He arranged for their conversion to the Alliance, alerting his network with coded phrases whenever a "hot commodity" became available. (CRO)

Leww
this Ithorian merchant owned and operated the shops Clothes for Him and Clothes for Her, aboard the herdship Bazaar, during the height of the New Order. (GA)

Lex
a native of Cirus II, Lex loaded Tem Chesko's last load of syntonium crystals. (SWG)

Lexas Systems
this collection of star systems was known as a haven for smugglers during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Lexiaus Beast
the hide of this creature is highly prized for furniture and other personal items. (TFE)

Lexicon Convertor
this ancient Hutt device was used to translate languages electronically, in realtime. The Hutts usedit extensively in their negotiations with the Klatooinans, the Nikto, and the Vodrans some 25,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (GG12)

Lexlar
a meter-tall race of hair-covered hominids. (RPG)

Lexonite
this powder-like substance is a deadly poison created on the planet Nigel IV. It was used by several Imperial terrorist factions to attack New Republic worlds. (TSK)

Lexoplast
a durable, stain-repellant substance used for kitchen counters and bars. (COJ)

Lexrol
located in Trax Sector, this planet was the primary world of the most densely-populated system of the sector. The system's government was extremely loyal to the Empire during the height of the New Order, due mainly to the fact that Imperialization of the world resulted in a much more stable government and improved economy. The Empire established a supply depot in the system during the Galactic Civil War. (GMK)

Lexus Primal
this was the name of Raquid Krev's cargo freighter. (GG11)

LF9
a weak ion engine produced by the Alderaan Royal Engineers. They were used on the Victory-class Star Destroyer. (SWSB, EGV)

LGR-series Droid
this form of automaton was developed by Industrial Automaton as cooking droids. They became known as Elgars. (GG7)

LG70
this was a brand of spacer's loading gloves produced by Vlanth Shipping Suppliers. (PSG)

Liadden
this young woman was apprenticed to the smuggler To'iir during the height of the New Order. Liadden also served as To'iir's mate aboard the Seventy-Seven Stars. She was a native of the planet Moer, and joined To'iir to obtain training and information about the galaxy. She hoped one day to own her own starship and travel to the wondrous planets To'iir often avoided. (SWJ10, SESB)

Liak
this Wookiee was relatively small for his species, and had long golden-brown fur. On Kashyyyk, his good friend Zherriak was killed during an Imperial slave raid. Liak and his other companions killed their captors, took possession of an Imperial starship, and fled the planet. Many of his companions returned to Kashyyyk to help lead the underground, but Liak joined the Alliance. He became a commando, and was part of the special forces team headed by Lieutenant Haslam which liberated Gebnerret Vibrion from Selnesh. (SWJ10, TFE)

Lialic II
this CR-90 corvette was part of the fleet which the Empire maintained in Kathol Sector. Commanded by Captain Rolf Treidum, the Lialic II helped Moff Sarne control the sector after the Battle of Endor. When Sarne returned to the Kathol Outback, he ordered Treidum to take the Lialic II and delay the progress of the New Republic ship FarStar, so that Sarne's plans could reach fruition. Treidum renamed the corvette the Lance of Endor and began raiding Outback colonies in the guise of a New Republic warship, hoping to sway the local populace against the Republic. The ship was equipped with outdated weaponry and shields, and was taken out of drydock to combat the New Republic before it could be refitted. Treidum had great success in raiding the worlds of the Outback under the guise of the Lance of Endor until he was exposed by the crew of the FarStar at Danoor. There, after Makezh managed to get a message to the Aing-Tii monks, the corvette was rammed by a Sandhedrim warship and destroyed. Also destroyed was an Imperial-class Star Destroyer it was escorting. (KO)

Liana
a parasitic plant native to Circarpous V. (SME)

Lianorm Swamp
this swampland was located on eighty-five square kilometers of shore, spreading from the shores Lake Paonga to the Gallo Mountains, on the planet Naboo. (IWE1)

Liann
this is the term used to describe the human population of the planet Lianna. In defiance of the industrial urbanization of Lianna, the Lianns built wonderful buildings which were vibrantly colored and ornately landscaped. Most homes have a great room with a sunken floorpit that serves as the focal point of the room. (ML)

Lianna
1) an industrial world located in the Allied Tion sector of the galaxy, Lianna has been under the rule of outside forces for much of its history. It was originally conquered by the Tion warlords, then was controlled by the Kingdom of Barseg as the Old Republic brought peace to the galaxy. The Senate basically ignored Lianna, though, and it continued to be ruled as a traditional territory. Some three centuries before the Battle of Yavin, the Old Republic Senate decided that the planet, under the rule of Barseg, was not being allowed to flourish. The Senate took control, but the planet continued to be misused as an industrial center. Two hundred years later, Seinar Technologies established its presence there, but the company was taken over by Kerred Santhe in a hostile maneuver that created Santhe/Sienar Technologies. Santhe moved the company's headquarters to Lianna. Under the control of Kerred's granddaughter, Valles Santhe, the planet remained independent, although it was a supporter of the New Order. The Lady Santhe quickly instituted home rule following the Battle of Endor. The New Republic respected the decision, but surviving Imperial forces launched a series of reprisal attacks on the planet. The Lady Santhe threatened stop building TIE Fighters if the attacks didn't stop. The threat, plus some well-placed bribes, allowed Lianna to remain neutral by special charter of the Empire. Lianna has 1 moon, a day which lasts 22 standard hours, and a year which encompasses 370 local days. (DESB, ML)

2) this yellow star was the central body of the Lianna System. (ML)
3) the capital city of the planet Lianna and located on the continent of Anai, it is located across the Lona Cranith River from Lola Curich. (ML)
4) Mara Jade's alias when she posed as one of Palpatine's dancing girls. (DFRSB)

Lianna Guard
this Imperial Guardian-class cruiser was part of the fleet assigned to Admiral Greelanx, and was under the command of Captain Lodrel. During the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, the ship was destroyed by a pair of concussion missiles fired by Rik Duel from the Rimrunner. (THG)

Lianna*-class Corvette
this starship was developed by Santhe/Sienar Technologies on the planet Lianna. Several of these ships were used to patrol the Lianna System during the Galactic Civil War. The basic design measured about 150 meters in length, and required a crew of 65. Armament varied by use. (ML)

Lianna-6
this was the designation of the Imperial space dock orbiting Lianna during the Galactic Civil War. (ML)

Liar's Cut
a card game of chance and skill often found in casinos. (HSR, WSV)

Liat Tsayv
this Sullustan was a member of the crew on board the Pulsar Skate. He was Mirax Terrik's co-pilot. (XWN)

Liberation Day
this Coruscant holiday celebrated the Alliance's victory in the Battle of Endor. (DTO)

Liberator
1) formerly known as the Imperial ship Adjucator, the Liberator was an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer captured by the New Republic, and commanded by Luke Skywalker until it was destroyed in battle when it crashed into the surface of the planet Coruscant. (DE1)
2) a Nebulon-B frigate used by the Alliance to recover stolen Imperial documents from the shuttle Talon. (XW)
3) an Imperial frigate which, under the command of her Captain and the agreement of her crew, was scheduled to defect to the Alliance near Bespin. However, the ship arrived at Bespin a complete wreck, with no surviving crew. Apparently the victim of a hyperspace accident, the Empire used the damaged craft as a warning about what would happen to any ships which tried to defect to the Alliance. (RASB)
4) a pirate ship which patrolled the Lohopa System in the years after the Battle of Endor. It was involved in a battle with New Republic forces which were attempting to break up the Imperial lexonite shipping lanes. A modified light freighter, the Liberator was a small ship, armed with a single turret-mounted heavy laser cannon. (TSK)
5) this was the name given to the Trader's Luck after the Corellian resistance bought at a scrap auction, after the ship was abandoned when Garris Shrike was killed on Coruscant. The Corellians loaned it to the Alliance for use during the Battle of Ylesia. (RD)

Liberator Cruiser
designed and built by SoroSuub, this small capital ship was often underestimated by its enemies. The sleek, V-shaped design was compact, yet was heavily armed with ion cannons and hevay turbolaser batteries. The interior of the Liberator was large enough to transport three full regiments of troops and six starfighter squadrons, making the Liberator one of the most advanced warships produced during the height of the New Order. (REB)

Liberator*-class Troopship
this ancient starship was used during the last years of the Old Republic. (TPS)

Liberty
1) the Mon Calamari Star Cruiser assigned to protect the Tantive IV. Later, it served as a military transport vessel for the technical units supporting the forces which took part in the Battle of Endor. It was the first Alliance ship destroyed by the second Death Star during the initial stages of the battle. (XW, ROTJ, CCG11)
2) one of the Yevethan warships sent to purge the planet Polneye. (BTS)
3) this New Republic Majestic-class battle cruiser was part of the 106-ship Fifth Battle Group. It was one of the ships that participated in the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319. A husband and wife paricipated in the battle as pilots, and were killed in the fight. (SOL, TT)

Liberty Road
this song, written and played by the band Starburst, was rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Only in Your Dreams. (GG9)

Liberty Star
this New Republic assault frigate participated in the Battle of Bilbringi against Grand Admiral Thrawn's forces. (IR)

Librarian Assembly
this group of Jedi scholars maintained the various holocrons, scrolls, and Sith writings collected during the time of the Old Republic. It was led by Yaddle during the last years of the Old Republic, prior to the Jedi purge. (OWS)

Library, The
located within Exovar's Emporium, on the planet Neftali, this relaxation chamber was known contain millions of hardcopy documents as well as datafiles from all subjects, many of which were banned by the Empire. (WSV)

Library of Systems
this New Republic database catalogued and documented all known planets and their surrounding star systems. The primary focus is on those worlds which are affiliated with the New Republic. (GG8)

Library of Xer
this mysterious citadel is the capital city of the planet known as Criton's Point. It is rumored that deep in the center of the city is a vault which contains a tree which is very powerful in the Force. (SWAJ)

Libro
an Imperial transport group assigned to the TIE Advanced plants in the Omar System. (TIE)

Licha In
this Gree world was one of the first to suffer from the degeneration of Gree society, several millennia before the Battle of Yavin. In the most ancient days of Gree civilization, Licha In was a nexus for hypergate transportation and the terminus for most of the farthest-reaching hypergates. The native Gree of the planet, as they became more reliant on technology, separated into small city-states that competed for supremacy based on their ability to control their technology. Rulers of the city-states fought wars for food, slaves, and devices, and have isolated themselves from the rest of Gree society. Most modern Gree consider their Lichan relatives to be backward and ignorant, and the primary examples of what happened when the Gree lost the ability to create new technology. A temperate world of large islands, Licha In rotates on its axis once every 24 standard hours. Its year lasts 364 local days. (SWJ8)

Lictor*-class Dungeon Ship
based on a Mandalorian design, Rendili StarDrive's Lictor-class dungeon ship is a 764-meter-long prisoner transport vessel. Sections were designed with variable environments to create conditions which were as uncomfortable as possible. Other will-breaking devices present were sirens, electric shockers, and various gas emission systems. When the Empire began using these ships to transport captured Jedi Knights, they installed energy shields based on the Universal Energy Cage around each partition. Life support systems were also run at minimal levels. Each Lictor-class ship was given enough of a navigational computer to hold two jump coordinates: the prisoner transfer planet and the final destination. This provided a defense against prisoners hijacking the ship. Each Lictor-class ship was equipped with 10 quad turbolaser batteries a 2 tractor beam projectors. They were manned by a crew of 860, 46 gunners, and 800 security wardens. They could transport up to 9,000 prisoners; 1,000 of them could be housed in special holding cells. (DE1, DESB)

Lidium
an ore that was once mined on Bothan's Planet. (RPG)

Lido Deck
the entertainment deck on the Kuari Princess, the Lido boasts a competition-sized sodium hydroxide/mercury swimming tank. (RPG, RM)

Liekas Tendo
this Morath mining engineer was captured by the Yevetha during the Yevethan Purge and forced to record a plea for amnesty. The plea was used during the New Republic's blockade of Doornik-319. Part of Eri Palle's plan, several such perjured recordings were used to keep Republic starfighter pilots from firing on Yevethan warships, on the off-chance that they might actually kill innocent bystanders. The plan worked, as there were no prisoners on board the Yevethan ships, which pummelled the Republic's forces. (SOL)

Lien Seal
this interdiction field is used in starports. A bubble-shaped force field, it is used to impound starships when their owners fail to pay their bills. (SOL)

Lifath
the Yevethan term for 'proctor of information.' (BTS)

Life Bearer
another name for a life Witch. (AC)

Life Bubble
another name for a life pod. (LCM)

Life Crystal
the chief export of the Rafa System, the life crystal is a gem which has starnge and wonderful properties. It has the ability to alter a human's normal life expectancy, sometimes multiplying it fourfold. A life crystal can also affect the holders dreams, and has been known to cure certain mental conditions. They are grown only on 11 planets and a few asteroids, all of which have environments which duplicate that of the Rafa System where the crystals originated. T. Lund Phuna wears a small life crystal around his neck. The true purpose of the life crystals was revealed when Lando Calrissian, Vuffi Raa, and Mohs discovered the Mindharp. When they learned of the incredible ruse maintained by the Sharu race, they learned that the life crystals were really a device used by the Sharu to collect the intelligence and knowledge from all subsequent generations of Sharu, keeping them effectively hidden from the threat they perceived so many eons ago. The life crystals drained the energy from the Sharu as well, adding to the image of a simple, old Toka and maintaining the Sharu deception. The reason life crystals don't have the same effect on off-worlders is that the life crystals are too far from the Sharu computer banks. Without the close linkage, the life crystal absorbs the intelligence and life energy from those near the crystal's holder, channeling it into the holder. (LCM)

Life Day
a Wookiee holiday. (RD)

Life Form Indicator
a starship sensor program that uses inputs from other shipboard sensors to determine the existence of lifeforms nearby. The computer can also determine populations and species, given the right sensory data. (WEG)

Life in the Big City
this song, written and played by the band Starburst, was rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. It first appeared on the compilation Only in Your Dreams. (GG9)

Life Monitor
a small device worn on the wrist which monitors the wearer's vital signs and physical status. They can also be set up to monitor the life status of a group of individuals, with unique indicators tracking each member. (EA, BFE)

Life Monitor, The
this newsgrid service was run and managed by Cindel Towani, during the early years of the New Republic. Hiram Drayson called in a favor from Cindel, hoping to run a story that would bolster Leia Organa-Solo’s appearance during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Life Orchard
any of the specialized growing environments for life crystals. They must perfectly mimic the Rafa System's ecology, or the life crystals won't grow. (LCM)

Life To Come, The
this was the term used in the Cosmic Balance religion to describe the afterlife, in which all inequities suffered in life would be redressed. Thus, a follower who lived in wealth would spend the afterlife in poverty. These members were given a stylized feather by their parents. Those followers who were to live in poverty - thereby assuring their good fortune in the afterlife - were given a stylized bowl by their parents. (TBSB)

Life Tree
the tree which is grown to harvest life crystals, life trees resemble hexagonal posts. The thick boles appear to be fibrous, glassy, pigmented trunks growing from 2-12 meters tall, depending on the growing conditions. They grow atop a wide disk; the underside of the disk is covered with the thin, kilometer-long root systems which grow straight down into the soil and keep the tree upright. The branches of the tree are made from the same crystal-like material as the trunk, and grow straight out from the trunk. The very end of each branch angles sharply upward, and ends with a single life-crystal. The lower branches are older, and the crystals they produce are larger than those of the younger, upper branches. They life crystals have to be removed by a laser, and grow back in about a year. (LCM)

Life Witch
a strain of human females who have the power to prolong a male's life by five years, the life witches exist only on the planet Leria Kerlsil. They announce their heritage by using the title 'Ver' in addition to their surname (as in Karia Ver Seryan). They prefer to call themselves life bearers, since their powers allow them to extend a male's life by five years, if the male agrees to marry the life witch and perform the blood kiss. If the male agrees to the blood kiss, the life witch is then indebted to Support the male for five years, giving him the vitality and strength of a young man. After five years, though the life witch must withdraw the Support or die. She must the recover her strength before she can marry again. The male is doomed to die either way, for he can no longer survive without the life witch's Support. All life witches are sterile, incapable of bringing a child into the world. Thus, they are very rare even on Leria Kerlsil, spontaneously occurring every so often. (AC)

Life Zone
this was the name of the 30-kilometer-deep layer of Bespin's atmosphere which is capable of supporting life. It was found 150 kilometers inside the outer edge of Bespin's atmosphere, and had a stable temperature and chemical makeup. Cloud City was situated within the Life Zone. (GG2)

Life-power
this is the name given by the Wookiee race to the spirit inside each Wookiee. (RD)

Lifehold, Dannen
this smuggler operated from a base on Dohu VII. Originally born on a Mid-Rim world, he stowed away on a smuggling freighter bound for Alderaan when he was fourteen. He was discovered by the ship's owner, Captain Twolz, who agreed to keep Dannen on as long as he worked for his passage. Twolz treated Dannen like a son, and over a period of five years he taught the boy everything he knew. Dannen became a marksman and gunner, eventually surpassing even Twolz's skills. After Twolz was killed on Niian, Dannen and Krell teamed up for a short time, during which Dannen indebted himself to Linkaas in order to purchase his own ship, the Lifeline. Dannen worked for eight years to pay off the ship, working with his mechanic, Feq. After Feq's death at the hands of an over-zealous Imperial inspection officer, Dannen began to hate the Empire. It was Lifehold who rescued Brion Peck's assault team from Rafft, after a homing beacon placed on their ship gave them away. (SWJ1)

Lifeline
this was the name of Dannen Lifehold's personal ship, a modified YT-1300 freighter armed with a single, turret-mounted laser cannon. (SWJ1)

Lifeline Project
developed by Brophar Tofarain and Lofryyhn, this plan used the six Imperial-issue probe droids aboard the corvette FarStar as communications relays. They could be set in position at intervals within the Kathol Rift, providing a chain of relays to allow the FarStar to remain in contact with the outside galaxy. Unfortunately, the intense energy generated by the Rift created a great deal of interference, so it was decided to focus the probe droids on being able to send messages from the FarStar to the outside galaxy. This left the FarStar without a way to receive communications. (KR)

Lifeline Technologies
this corporation produced a variety of spacesuits for use during extravehicular missions. (FOP)

Lifemoon
this is the name of one of Fyodos' three satellites. Like the others, its original name was lost in the Great Cleansing. Fyodoi lore indicates that the cycle of the Lifemoon is the best time for celebrations, marriages, and coming-of-age rituals. (PG2)

Lifesaver 1000
this Seinar Fleet Systems hyperdrive unit was designed specifically for use as a backup system. It was rated at one-fifth the power of a normal hyperdrive, and required extensive overhauling after each use. Many pilots steered clear of using this unit, as it more often than not broke down and left its owners stranded in deep space. (GG6, TFNR)

Liff, Weeffil
this criminal ran the Weeffil Liff's Trading Center on Ord Mantell. The business served as a front for his criminal organization, which was a subordinate piece of a larger organization owned by Liff's boss. (GMH)

Lift Skeleton
this was the generic term used to describe any self-powered exoskeleton used by laborers to move heavy crates and cargoes between starships and hangars. (SSR)

Lift Tube
a cylindrical tube which is used to transport cargo or passengers into or out of a ship, transport, or building. They often employ repulsorlifts or vacuums to lift and drop their cargo. The Jawas on Tatooine use them to "suck" the scrap they collect into the bellies of their sandcrawlers. (SW)

Lift-mine
these repulsorlift-equipped antiship mines float above the ground. They can float at a specific altitude, or can be programmed to travel within a range. They are not capable of horizontal movement. The Empire used this form of detonation device to blockade important mountain valley locations. (CFG)

Lift-wing Racing
a sport which used a small sail, stretched across a rigid frame, to allow a racer to glide through the air. The frame provided minimal lift and maneuverability, but allowed the racer to guide the frame toward the finish line. (RP)

Liftcar
an elevator-like device used to get cargo up and down in a wroshyr tree. It is operating with kshyy vines. The newer ones have emergency repulsorlifts built in. (HTTE)

LifeLine
this small corporation produced a variety of protective gear and clothing for use by starship captains, including the TechMaster II vacuum suit. (PSG)

Liftlock
a starship mechanic's tool. (HSE)

Liftwing Carriers
old Imperial transport ships. (CPL)

Ligg Panat
this female Krish pilot joined the New Republic's Rogue Squadron shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the glaxy. Panat was killed when the New Republic engaged the Yuuzhan Vong over Dantooine, in an effort to protect the refugees fleeing from Dubrillion. (DTO)

Light
this was the term used by starfighter pilots of the New Republic to indicate a Yuuzhan Vong light attack cruiser. (DT)

Light Attack Fighter known as the LAF-250, this was a small, Selonian starfighter with minimal shielding and small laser cannons. (AS, CTD)

Light Corvette
this Rendili StarDrive vessel was used by the Empire as a customs ship. It measured 180 meters in length, and required a crew of 52 plus six gunners. The Light Corvette was armed with six double turbolaser cannons, and could transport up to 20 troops and 500 metric tons of cargo. Note that Galaxy Guide 6: Tramp Freighters names these ships "Imperal Customs Vessels." (FOP, GG6)

Light Dust
a sacred powder that nourished the Tree of Light. (ECAR)

Light Festival
an Ewok celebration which honors the rejuvenation of the Tree of Light. (ECAR)

Light of Reason
this strange ship was Seti Ashgad's flagship. It was composed of a multitude of smaller ships linked to a central propulsion system. The ship was designed to break into its constituent parts when it arrived at Nam Chorios. The reason for this was to evade the weapons emplacements of the Therans, who had programmed their defenses to fire on ships over a certain size and mass. Ashgad used the ship to meet with Leia Organa-Solo near Nam Chorios, and he also used it to transport weapons and synthdroids from Loronar Corporation to Nam Chorios. (POT)

Light Patrol Ship
developed by Sienar Fleet Systems, this 38-meter-long cruiser was known for its speed and defenses. It wasn't very maneuverable, though, and often required additional support craft on a mission. The was manned with a crew of three with three gunners, and could transport up to eight prisoners in its brig. The Light Patrol Ship could carry up to 100 metric tons of cargo and a month's worth of supplies, and was armed with a pair of forward-facing laser cannons and three turret-mounted laser cannons. (FOP)

Light Side of the Force
The Force has two opposing energies which balance and offset each other in the natural world, a Dark Side and a Light side. While the Dark Side is easy to harness, it demands life-energy from its servants. The Light Side, however, takes much more training and persistence to harness, but it does not demand as much life-energy from its followers. (SW)

Light Spirit
a benign entity worshipped by the Ewoks. (ECAR)

Light Sport
Drearian Defense Conglomerate's sporting blaster rifle. (RPG)

Light Table
a flat, circular device which is used to display holograms and holographs. It has a parabolic holoprojector in its center, and has a set of external controls which manipulate the data displayed over the top of the table. (ROTJ)

Light-mass Core
this is a form of power source used in many modern, mobile weapons systems. (MA)

Lightboard
this Adumari device is used to display the readouts from the lightbounce sensor system. (SOA)

Lightbounce System
this Adumari sensor system uses lasers to determine the presence of objects nearby. Like sonar or radar, the lightbounce system is fairly archaic in the modern galaxy. (SOA)

Lighter
any small, light-duty transport ship, they can easily be armed for combat. (HSL)

Lightfight
this was Alliance military slang for a ground battle fought with laser weapons. (ROE)

Lightflash Squadron
this group of New Republic X-Wings served aboard the Allegiance during the defense of Adumar. (SOA)

Lightfoil
this form of dueling weapon was popular in Tapani Sector. It was modeled after the lightsabers of the Jedi Knights, but was much smaller and not as powerful or energy-efficient as the Jedi weapon. However, they were just as dangerous. The original lightfoils were formed after a cache of lightsabers were found in the holding of House Pelagia several years after the Jedi Purge. They became popular among young nobles, but Emperor Palpatine soon learned of their existence. He sent his Dark Side Adepts to confiscate the blades, but not before the basic technology was copied and used to create lightfoils. A separate social structure emerged in Tapani Sector because of the formal rivalries between houses, known as the Saber Rakes. (PGT)

Lightmoon, Gibbon
this New Republic flight technician was one of the initial designers of the covert shroud freighter/fighter system used by Luke Skywalker during the Republic's struggle with Grand Admiral Thrawn. (TTSB)

Lightning
1) an Alliance transport ship assigned to rescue the technical staff of Cygnus Spaceworks from Imperial imprisonment (XW)
2) an Imperial Nebulon-B frigate operative during the Galactic Civil War (TIE)
3) a converted New Republic Prinawe Racer used to trail the Teljkon vagabond. It was ordered to return to drydock after the mission failed to intercept the vagabond at Gmir Askilon. (BTS, SOL)

Lightning Gun
a weapon built by the Ganathans, the lightning gun fires coherent electrical pulses at its target. (DE2)

Lightning Rod
the battered supply ship owned by Peckhum, he used it to transport supplies to the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4. When the New Republic's leaders realized that Luke Skaywalker's praxeum needed a reliable source of supplies, they gave Peckhum a newer ship. At this time, he turned the Lightning Rod over to his apprentice, Zekk. Zekk used it to strike out on his own as a bounty hunter, but soon relaized that he should be at the Academy. So, he returned, and used the ship to find Bornan Thul and fight the Diversity Alliance. (HTF, SHA)

Lightning Squadron
this group of New Republic Y-Wings was assigned to the Battle Dog during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. They often supported a sister squadron of Cloakshape fighters, also based on the Battle Dog. (SOC)

Lightrunner
this was Mammon Hoole's personal starship. He used it during his search for Borborygmus Gog and Project Starscream, but was forced to also use it as transport for his young niece and nephew, Tash and Zak Arranda, following the destruction of Alderaan. The Lightrunner was damaged when its hyperdrive cut out upon detecting the presence of D'vouran in its vicinity, and Hoole was forced to land the ship on the unusual planet. When the planet began consuming everything in sight, Hoole and his charges were forced to flee in the Millennium Falcon with Han Solo and Luke Skywalker. They were dropped on the planet Necropolis, where Hoole eventually purchased the Shroud. (GOF1, GOF2)

Lightsaber
traditional Jedi weapon, used much like a sword. It consists of cylindrical handle in which sophisticated circuits channel a beam of light through a series of jewels, which modulate the blade's size and amplitude. It was considered one of the Jedi students' final challenges to construct their own lightsaber. Many Jedi Masters stressed the lightsaber as a true test of their apprentice's progress, for the the lightsaber's power is great. A true Jedi Knight only uses the lightsaber for defense, never attack, and there is a great deal of patience involved with learning this. Some Masters also use the lightsaber as a way to get their apprentices to focus their minds on the Force, for it takes a great deal of skill to wield one. The mechanics of a lightsaber are simple, although the application of them takes great skill and concentration. A novice Jedi Knight should be able to create his first lightsaber in about a month. A trained Jedi Master can, in a hurry, could construct one in a few days. Note that the Star Wars Journal: The Fight for Justice indicates that a Jedi is given his lightsaber on his first day of training. Every lightsaber contained these basic components: a power cell, a handgrip, an activation plate or stud, a safety switch, a blade-length adjuster, an emitter matrix, and recharge socket, a lens assembly, at least one focusing crystal, a power conduit, and an optional belt ring. When activated, internal power cells create photoelectric energy which is focused through one, two, or three multi-facted crystals. The energy is formed into a tight, parallel beam of coherent packets. These packets are emitted through a positively-charges, continuous energy lens which projects the packets away from the lightsaber. The packets are almost immediately attracted back to the lightsaber by a negatively-charged, high-energy flux aperature, and then continually recycled to create the glowing blade. The packets are recycled by a superconductor back into the power cell for re-energizing. The entire process is completely contained. No energy is lost, since the light in the blade is recaptured. No heat is generated, either. The only energy loss occurs when the blade strikes an object. When Obi-Wan Kenobi began teaching Luke Skywalker how to use his father's lightsaber, Kenobi began by showing Luke the basic body positions used by the Jedi. There were seven attack positions, and four defensive positions. Each attack or defense position flowed into the next, creating a smooth, continual motion. To perform them all in sequence takes concentration, skill, and stamina. (SW, SWR, SWSB, TOJ, SE, JLS, TOJC)

Lightside Explorer
Andur Sunrider's personal starship, the Lightside Explorer was purchased by Andur from a Vultan dealer on Nak Shimor. The ship was a Vaya-class scout ship, which Andur later refitted for civilian use in transporting his family. (TOJ, TOJC)

Lightsider
a game at which Luke Skywalker bested Kam Solusar. (DE1, DA)

Lightstaff
a weapon once used by the Jedi Knights. (DLS)

LightStealth-18 Reconnaissance Ship
this reconnaissance craft was built by Kuat Drive Yards for the New Republic Navy. It first saw duty at the Battle of Tynna. Known as the LSR, the ship was built for speed and stealth. The surface of this craft bristled with a multitude of low-profile sensor suites, rectennae, scanners, and communications arrays. In order to maintain the ship's power needs, a capital-scale power generator was installed as the main power plant. The New Republic believed that the ship was virtually invisible to the enemy, but Nas Choka's forces were able to detect it and track its actions. The Supreme Commander chose to leave the ship alone, letting the New Republic believe that the ship was undetected and giving them a false sense of security. (JE)

Lightwhip
a Dark Jedi weapon created by Lumiya as the final step in her training under Darth Vader. She created it from information found in an ancient Sith tome. (SWG)

Lignyot
nicknamed used by members of the Empire's cryptanalysis agency. (ISB)

Liinade III
this planet, a member world of the Ciutric Hegemony, was an agricultural center known for its caf synthesizers and comlinks. Liinade III was developed during the last decades of the Old Republic, and its growth continued during the New Order and into the New Republic. It was targetted for raids by the New Republic, during its hunt for Prince-Admiral Krennel, in an effort to debase his control of the Hegemony. Corran Horn discovered a laboratory which was designing a new form of Death Star, dubbed Pulsar Station, and the republic believed the lab was set up by Krennel. In fact, the lab was established by Ysanne Isard, in an effort to undermine the efforts of Krennel and Isard's clone to break the Republic. After liberating the planet, the New Republic sent several supply convoys to the world. Krennel attempted to blockade the planet, in hopes of causing more damage to the Republic. (IR)

Liintaar
this planet was the site of an Alliance communications relay station which was used during the Galactic Civil War. (MBC)

Liintaar Station
this was a major Alliance communications relay station, located on the planet Liintaar. (MBC)

Lijarak Mines
this mining operation was located on the planet Anic. (AIR)

Lijarak Mines Incident
this was the name of a struggle between the Alliance and the Empire, on the planet Anic, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. The Alliance suffered defeat on Anic, and few of its personnel escaped alive. (AIR)

Lijuter
this planet, located in the Reibrin System of the Ansuroer Sector, is the location of the largest Houk colony in the galaxy. The Empire established a orbital research station near the planet's second moon, in an effort to breed the perfect slave from Houk genetic material. It is not known if the Empire succeeded in this endeavor. (GG12)

Lijuter Congress
this is the primary Houk governmental body. Each of the 31 Houk colonies has a representative on the Congress. (GG12)

Likashan
an alien race which joined the New Republic. (SOP)

Likka
an alien creature native to Masterhome, the likka were domesticated and trained as mounts for use by the warriors of the Godlings of the Anointed People. Likka resembled large crocodiles, and were bad-tempered at best. Specialized reins were attached to the likka' eyelids in order to control the beasts. (SWCP)
