The Completely Unofficial Star Wars Encyclopedia - Version 2.03 December 2000

Bob Vitas

bobvitas@mindspring.com
swenc@theforce.net

A listing of this encyclopedia can be viewed on the World Wide Web, hosted by TheForce.Net, at the following URL:
http://www.theforce.net/swenc

All text contained herein is copyright 1996-2000 by Robert Vitas, and is based on information which is copyrighted by Lucasfilm Limited. All LFL information is used without expressed permission, and without malicious intent.

Some Information on This Encyclopedia

This encyclopedia was created from all Lucasflim-licensed sources of Star Wars information. It was created without regard for what is "canon" what is not "canon" in the Star Wars universe. I did, however, place information from the Marvel Comics series in the Arcana section, since much of it is wildly outside the standard Star Wars dogma.

It was first made available to friends in 1994, after about 2 ½ years of work. I had been compiling information in a few text files, since I hadn't read any of the West End Games material when Heir to the Empire came out. Thus, I was completely at a loss as to what a Lancer-class frigate was. As it grew, I realized that this was bigger than the text files I had started with, so I tried out WordPerfect. Once I got everything converted over, and started really getting it presentable, I printed out the First Edition.

I kept working on it, especially when I learned about the scope of the West End Games material and the width of Bantam Spectra's deal to produce new novels. My free time, as I knew it, would be forever changed!

When I got the HTML plug-in for WordPerfect, I knew it was time to "go public." That first HTML converter took about 14 hours to complete the entire encyclopedia (which was about 2 Megabytes in size as a WP60 file), and my AOL account could only handle about 15 letters of the alphabet. I am indebted to those readers who started visiting my website back then, and who clamored for more information. After trying a couple other converters in an effort to get that 14-hour time down, I gave up on WordPerfect and migrated to Word 97. (This was a tough choice, since I am not Bill Gates' biggest fan by any stretch of the imagination!) The HTML code converted in about 10 minutes, from a set of files which was now about 5 Megabytes in total. All this meant that I had more time to figure out how to make the encyclopedia presentable.

I moved my ISP from AOL to Mindspring, and was able to get the full encyclopedia uploaded. However, I was limited to 450 Megabytes of transfer per month, which at first was OK. But, as the prequels started getting headlines, I would hit that mark every once in a while. When the prequels were about a year away, I would hit it every month. It was at this time that MosEisley.com offered to host my encyclopedia. I hesitated, not sure if I should move. However, as the prequels approached and I starting hitting my limit by the 15th of each month, I was getting as frustrated as my readers. So, I agreed to their offer and moved to their server. Thanks, Matt and Stan!

Of course, things always look greener across the fence, and I began to get a lot of notes from readers asking me to send them the files via e-mail. While the server was handling the HTML code pretty well, downloads were only completing about half the time. This was getting to be a hassle, as was the week where the site was down for an unknown reason. Also, space started to become an issue, prohibiting me from putting up lots of pictures and graphics. Thus, I took a sabbatical from MosEisley.com and started hunting for a new home. Amazingly, I found one almost immediately at TheForce.Net. They agreed to give me a ton of space and all the help I needed. While I had this before, I was now part of one of the largest Star Wars sites on the Internet. TheForce.Net had already recognized my encyclopedia as a cool site, and now it was on its way to become the Star Wars encyclopedia on the Internet.

This is the first edition with TheForce.Net, and I hope it reaches new and existing readers with more ease than ever. Thanks to readers like you, I've been transferring well over 4 Gigabytes of data each month! I'm also indebted to the readers who have written back, pointing out problems and offering suggestions, in an effort to make this the most complete and comprehensive encyclopedia available! I rally do enjoy reading your correspondences and answering your questions. Keep 'em coming!

It is impossible to create a document like this from such a huge body of knowledge without finding some inconsistencies and errors. Every author who has written in the Star Wars universe has commented on it and dealt with it. Lucasfilm has final say on the material I drew from, and it makes no claim that the material is 100 percent compatible with George Lucas' vision of the Star Wars universe. So, if there are errors or inconsistencies, I have tried to note them as appropriate.

It is important to note that this massive work could not have been completed (like it will ever be complete!) without help from a number of sources. They are all noted in the Acknowledgements section. I just hope i didn't leave anyone out!

I have also tried to document the source of my encyclopedia entries at all times. The bibliography at the end of this encyclopedia is quite extensive, and I have tried to indicate with each entry which source it came from. If an entry is not sourced, it means that I could not remember where I found it. If you find an unsourced or inaccurately sourced entry, please e-mail me!. The source listed is the first reference to an entry. If there are multiple sources listed, then all sources listed contributed some information to the encyclopedia. The abbreviations I have used are as follows:

Abbreviation	Description of Source Material
AC	Ambush at Corellia (novel)
AE	Alien Encounters (WEG compendium)
AESB	The Art of The Empire Strikes Back (pictorial)
AIR	Alliance Intelligence Reports (WEG Supplement)
ANA	Star Wars Episode I: Anakin Skywalker (comic one-shot)
ANNOT	Star Wars: The Annotated Scripts (reference)
AS	Assault at Selonia (novel)
ASW	The Art of Star Wars (pictorial)
AT	The Adventures of Teebo (children's book)

BF	Boba Fett (comic series)
BFE	Ewoks: The Battle for Endor (motion picture)
BGS	Battle for the Golden Sun (WEG adventure module)
BHAS	The Bounty Hunters: Aurra Sing (comic)
BI	Black Ice (WEG adventure module)
BP	Balance Point (novel)
BTM	Star Wars: Behind the Magic (computer software)
BTS	Before the Storm (novel)
BSS	Black Sands of Socorro (WEG supplement)
BW	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: The Bacta War (novel)
C	Star Wars: Chewbacca (comic series)
CCC	Crisis on Cloud City (WEG adventure)
CCG	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Premiere Edition
CCG2	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - A New Hope
CCG3	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Hoth
CCG4	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Dagobah
CCG5	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Cloud City
CCG6	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Sealed Deck
CCG7	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Jabba's Palace
CCG8	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game – Second Anthology
CCG9	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game – Special Edition
CCG10	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game – Endor
CCG11	Star Wars: Customizable Card Game - Death Star II
CCR	Crisis at Crystal Reef (YA novel)
CE	Crimson Empire (comic series)
CE2	Crimson Empire II: Council of Blood (comic series)
CFG	Cracken's Rebel Field Guide (WEG reference)
COG	Creatures of the Galaxy (WEG supplement)
COJ	Children of the Jedi (novel)
COTF	Champions of the Force (novel)
CPL	Courtship of Princess Leia (novel)
CRO	Cracken's Rebel Operatives (WEG reference)
CS	The Crystal Star (novel)
CSA	Han Solo and the Corporate Sector (WEG reference)
CSW	Classic Star Wars (comic series)
CSWDW	Classic Star Wars: Devilworlds (comic series)
CSWEA	Classic Star Wars: The Early Adventures (comic series)
CT	Jedi Apprentice: The Captive Temple (YA novel)
CTD	Cracken's Threat Dossier (WEG supplement)
DA	Dark Apprentice (novel)
DARK	The DarkStryder Campaign (WEG Campaign)
DCAR	Droids Cartoon Series (animated TV)
DESB	Dark Empire I Sourcebook (WEG reference)
DE1	Dark Empire I (comic series)
DE2	Dark Empire II (comic series)
DF	Dark Forces (computer game & player's guide)
DF2	Dark Forces II: Jedi Knight (computer game)
DFR	Dark Force Rising (novel)
DFRC	Dark Force Rising (comic series)
DFRSB	Dark Force Rising Sourcebook (WEG reference)
DH	Jedi Apprentice: The Deadly Hunter (YA novel)
DK	Darkest Knight (young adult novel)
DLS	Tales of the Jedi: Dark Lords of the Sith (comic series)
DOD	Jedi Apprentice: Defenders of the Dead (YA novel)
DOD2	A Decade of Dark Horse, Volume 2 (comic contains "This Crumb for Hire")
DOE	Domain of Evil (WEG adventure module)
DOR	Jedi Apprentice: The Day of Reckoning (YA novel)
DR	Jedi Apprentice: The Dark Rival (YA novel)
DRO	Droids and Droids II (comic series)
DRPC	Droids: The Protocol Offensive (comic book)
DS	Darksaber (novel)
DSTC	Death Star Technical Companion (WEG supplement)
DTO	Dark Tide: Onslaught (novel)
DTR	Dark Tide II: Ruin (novel)
DU	Death in the Undercity (WEG Adventure)
DW	DroidWorks (computer game)

EA	The Ewok Adventure (motion picture)
ECAR	Ewoks Cartoon Series (animated TV)
EE	Empire's End (comic series)
EGC	The Star Wars Essential Guide to Characters (reference)
EGP	The Star Wars Essential Guide to Planets and Moons (reference)
EGV	The Star Wars Essential Guide to Vehicle and Vessels (reference)
EGW	The Star Wars Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology (reference)
EOE	Boba Fett: Enemy of the Empire (comic series)
EP	The Emperor's Plague (YA novel)
ESB	Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture)
ESBN	Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back (novelization)
ESBR	Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back (NPR radio series)
ESBSB	Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back Sketchbook
ESBSE	The Empire Strikes Back: Special Edition (motion picture)
E1A1	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: The Search for the Lost Jedi (young adult play-along)
E1A2	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: The Bartokk Assassins (young adult play-along)
E1A3	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: The Fury of Darth Maul (young adult play-along)
E1A4	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Jedi Emergency (young adult play-along)
E1A5	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: The Ghostling Children (young adult play-along)
E1A6	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: The Hunt for Anakin Skywalker (young adult play-along)
E1A7	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Caprture Arawynne (young adult play-along)
E1A8	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Trouble on Tatooine (young adult play-along)
E1A9	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Rescue in the Core (young adult play-along)
E1A10	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Festival of Warriors (young adult play-along)
E1A11	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Pirates from Beyond the Sea (young adult play-along)
E1A12	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: The Bongo Rally (young adult play-along)
E1A13	Star Wars Episode I Adventures: Danger on Naboo (young adult play-along)
FNU	Tales of the Jedi: Freedon Nadd Uprisings (comic series)
FOP	The Far Orbit Project (WEG supplement)
FOSE	The Fall of the Sith Empire (comic series)
FFT	Jedi Apprentice: The Fight for Truth (YA novel)
GA	Graveyard of Alderaan (WEG Adventure)
GAS	The Golden Age of the Sith (comic series)
GCQ	Game Chambers of Questal (WEG adventure module)
GDV	The Glove of Darth Vader (young adult book)
GF	The Gungan Frontier (computer game)
GG	The Golden Globe (children's story)
GG1	Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope (WEG supplement)
GG2	Galaxy Guide 2: Bespin and Yavin (WEG supplement)
GG3	Galaxy Guide 3: The Empre Strikes Back (WEG supplement)
GG4	Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races (WEG supplement)
GG5	Galaxy Guide 5: Return of the Jedi (WEG supplement)
GG6	Galaxy Guide 6: Tramp Freighters (WEG Supplement)
GG7	Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley (WEG supplement)
GG8	Galaxy Guide 8: Scouts (WEG supplement)
GG9	Galaxy Guide 9: Fragments from the Rim (WEG supplement)
GG10	Galaxy Guide 10: Bounty Hunters (WEG Supplement)
GG11	Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations (WEG Supplement)
GG12	Galaxy Guide 12: Aliens: Enemies and Allies (WEG Supplement)
GLCI	George Lucas: The Creative Impulse (non-fiction)
GMH	Star Wars Gamemaster Handbook (WEG rules companion)
GMK	Star Wars Gamemaster Kit (WEG rules companion
GMS	Star Wars Gamemaster Screen (WEG rules companion)
GOF1	Eaten Alive: Galaxy of Fear Book 1 (young adult novel)
GOF2	City of the Dead: Galaxy of Fear Book 2 (young adult novel)
GOF3	Planet Plague: Galaxy of Fear Book 3 (young adult novel)
GOF4	Nightmare Machine: Galaxy of Fear Book 4 (young adult novel)
GOF5	Ghost of the Jedi: Galaxy of Fear Book 5 (young adult novel)
GOF6	Army of Terror: Galaxy of Fear Book 6 (young adult novel)
GOF7	The Brain Spiders: Galaxy of Fear Book 7 (young adult novel)
GOF8	The Swarm: Galaxy of Fear Book 8 (young adult novel)
GOF9	Spore: Galaxy of Fear Book 9 (young adult novel)
GOF10	The Doomsday Ship: Galaxy of Fear Book 10 (young adult novel)
GOF11	Clones: Galaxy of Fear Book 11 (young adult novel)
GSE	Goroth: Slave of the Empire (WEG supplement)
HAS	Hideouts and Strongholds (WEG supplement)

HM	Hard Merchandise (novel)
HP	Jedi Apprentice: The Hidden Past (YA novel)
HR	Heroes and Rogues (WEG supplement)
HSE	Han Solo at Stars' End (novel)
HSEC	Han Solo at Stars' End (comic series)
HSL	Han Solo and the Lost Legacy (novel)
HSR	Han Solo's Revenge (novel)
HT	Agents of Chaos I: Hero's Trial (novel)
HTF	Heirs of the Force (YA novel)
HTSB	Heir to the Empire Sourcebook (WEG reference)
HTTE	Heir to the Empire (novel)
HTTEC	Heir to the Empire (comic series)
HXW	Star Wars Handbook: X-Wing Rogue Squadron (comic reference)
IA	Instant Adventures (WEG supplement)
IC	The Isis Coordinates (WEG adventure)
ICS	Star Wars Incredible Cross Sections (book)
IDC	Imperial Double-cross (WEG solo adventure)
IF	X-Wing: Iron Fist (novel)
IG1	Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace Insider's Guide (computer reference)
IJ	I, Jedi (novel)
IR	X-Wing: Isard's Revenge (novel)
IS	Imperial Spy (YA comic series)
ISB	Imperial Sourcebook (WEG reference)
ISU	The Illustrated Star Wars Universe (art/reference)
IS1	The Phantom Menace Illustrated Screenplay
IWE1	Inside the Worlds of Star Wars Episode I (book)
JAL	Jedi Academy: Leviathan (comic series)
JAS	Star Wars Journal: Anakin Skywalker (YA novel)
JASB	The Jedi Academy Sourcebook (WEG reference)
JDM	Star Wars Journal: Darth Maul (YA story)
JE	Agents of Chaos II: Jedi Eclipse (novel)
JH	Jedi's Honor (WEG solo adventure)
JHS	Star Wars Journal: Hero for Hire (YA story)
JLS	Star Wars Journal: The Fight for Justice (YA story)
JPL	Star Wars Journal: Captive to Evil (YA story)
JQA	Star Wars Journal: Queen Amidala (YA story)
JS	Jedi Search (novel)
JTH	Jabba the Hutt (comic series)
JUS	Jedi Under Seige (YA novel)
KO	DarkStryder: The Kathol Outback (WEG Campaign Supplement)
KR	DarkStryder: The Kathol Rift (WEG Campaign Supplement)
KT	X-Wing: The Krytos Trap (novel)
L	Lightsabers (Young adult novel)
LAA	Live Action Adventures (WEG reference)
LCF	Lando Calrissian and the Flamewind of Oseon (novel)
LCJ	The Lost City of the Jedi (young adult book)
LCM	Lando Calrissian and the Mindharp of Sharu (novel)
LCS	Lando Calrissian and the Starcave of Thon Boka (novel)
LE	Lords of the Expanse (WEG Campaign)
LO	The Lost Ones (YA novel)
LW	Lyric's World (Children's story)
MA	The Mandalorian Armor (novel)
MB	Star Wars Miniatures Battles (WEG Supplement)
MBC	Star Wars Miniatures Battles Companion (WEG Supplement)
MBF	The Making of Baron Fel (comic one-shot)
MC	Marvel Comics Star Wars Adventures
MJEH	Mara Jade: By the Emperor's Hand (comic series)
ML	Mission to Lianna (WEG Adventure)
MM	The Maverick Moon (child's book - not authorized by LucasFilm)
MMY	Mission from Mount Yoda (young adult book)
MOC	Jedi Apprentice: The Mark of the Crown (YA novel)
MRR	The Mystery of the Rebellious Robot (child's book - not authorized by LucasFilm)
MTK	Masters of Teras Kasi (arcade game)
MTS	The Movie Trilogy Sourcebook (WEG reference)
MTSE	The Movie Trilogy Sourcebook Special Edition (WEG reference)
ND	No Disintegrations (WEG adventures)

NESB	The Empire Strikes Back Notebook
OE	Operation:Elrood (WEG adventure module)
OS	Otherspace (WEG adventure)
OS2	Otherspace II: The Invasion (WEG adventure)
OWS	The Official Star Wars Website – www.starwars.com
P	Promises (children's story)
PDS	Prophets of the Dark Side (young adult book)
PG	Planet Guide Compendium (WEG reference)
PGT	Player's Guide to Tapani (WEG supplement)
PG1	Planets of the Galaxy, Volume 1 (WEG supplement)
PG2	Planets of the Galaxy, Volume 2 (WEG supplement)
PG3	Planets of the Galaxy, Volume 3 (WEG supplement)
POM	Planet of the Mists (WEG adventure module)
POT	Planet of Twilight (novel)
POC	The Politics of Contraband (WEG Adventure module)
PP	Pirates and Privateers (WEG supplement)
PSG	Platt's Smugglers Guide (WEG supplement)
PTR	Prelude to Rebellion (comic series)
QA	Star Wars: Episode I - Queen Amidala (comic one-shot)
QGJ	Star Wars: Episode I - Qui-Gon Jinn (comic one-shot)
QE	Queen of the Empire (young adult book)
RA	Rebel Assault (computer game)
RA2	Rebel Assault II (computer game)
RAC	Star Wars: Episode I – Racer (computer game and strategy guide)
RASB	Rebel Alliance Sourcebook (WEG reference)
RC	SW: RPG Rules Companion (WEG reference)
RD	Rebel Dawn (novel)
REB	Rebellion (computer game)
REV	Revell model kit instructions
RF	Jedi Apprentice: The Rising Force
RJSE	Return of the Jedi: Special Edition (motion picture)
RM	Riders of the Maelstrom (WEG adventure)
ROC	River of Chaos (comic series)
ROE	Rules of Engagements: The Rebel SpecForce Handbook (WEG reference)
ROJR	Return of the Jedi (NPR radio series)
ROM	Return to Ord Mantell (YA novel)
ROTJ	Star Wars: Return of the Jedi (motion picture)
ROTJN	Star Wars: Return of the Jedi (novelization)
RP	Rogue Planet (novel)
RPG	Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game (WEG reference)
RSG	Rogue Squadron (PC/N64 Game)
SA	Shadow Academy (YA novel)
SA1	Star Wars Science Adventures: Emergency in Escape Pod Four
SA2	Star Wars Science Adventures: Journey Across Planet X
SC	Showdown at Centerpoint (novel)
SCRE	Star Wars Screen Entertainment (computer software)
SE	Shadows of the Empire (novel)
SEC	Shadows of the Empire (comic series)
SEE	Shadows of the Empire: Evolution (comic series)
SES	Shadows of the Empire Soundtrack (music CD)
SESB	Shadows of the Empire Sourcebook (WEG reference)
SF	Starfall (WEG adventure)
SFS	Strike Force: Shantipole (WEG adventure)
SFT	The Starfighter Trap (companion story to Starfighter game)
SGL	Skywalking - the Life and Films of George Lucas
SH	Scavenger Hunt (WEG adventure)
SHA	Shards of Alderaan (young adult novel)
SL	Scoundrel's Luck (WEG solo adventure)
SLS	Slave Ship (novel)
SME	Splinter of the Mind's Eye (novel)
SN	Supernova (WEG Adventure)
SOA	X-Wing: Starfighters of Adumar (novel)
SOC	X-Wing: Solo Command (novel)
SOL	Shield of Lies (novel)
SOP	Specter of the Past (novel)
SP	Jedi Apprentice: The Shattered Peace (YA novel)

SS	Stock Ships (WEG supplement)
SSE	Secrets of Star Wars: Shadows of the Empire (reference)
SSR	Secrets of the Sisar Run (WEG supplement)
SST	Shadow Stalker (comic)
ST	Star Tours (Disney theme park ride)
SW	Star Wars: A New Hope (motion picture)
SWAJ	Star Wars Adventure Journal - unspecified (WEG supplement)
SWCP	Star Wars Campaign Pack (WEG supplement)
SWG	Star Wars Galaxy Magazine
SWH	Star Wars Holiday TV Special
SWI	Star Wars Insider Magazine
SWIJ	From Star Wars to Indiana Jones: The Best of the Lucasflm Archives (book)
SWJ1	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 1 (WEG supplement)
SWJ4	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 4 (WEG supplement)
SWJ8	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 8 (WEG supplement)
SWJ9	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 9 (WEG supplement)
SWJ10	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 10 (WEG supplement)
SWJ12	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 12 (WEG supplement)
SWJ13	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 13 (WEG Supplement)
SWJ14	Star Wars Adventure Journal Volume 1, Number 14 (WEG supplement)
SWK	Star Wars Kids (children's magazine)
SWM	Star Wars Monopoly (board game)
SWN	Star Wars: A New Hope (novelization)
SWO	Star Wars: Outlander (comic series)
SWR	Star Wars: A New Hope (NPR radio series)
SWSB	Star Wars Sourcebook (WEG reference)
SWSE	Star Wars: Special Edition (motion picture)
SWTJ	Star Wars Technical Journal (reference)
SW1	Star Wars: Episode I - The Phantom Menace (motion picture)
SW1S	Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace Movie Storybook (children’s adaptation)
TA	The Abduction of Crying Dawn Singer (WEG adventure)
TAS	The Annotate Screenplays (reference)
TB	The Truce at Bakura (novel)
TBH	Tales of the Bounty Hunters (collections)
TBSB	The Truce at Bakura Sourcebook (WEG reference)
TCC	Trouble on Cloud City (YA novel)
TEP	The Emperor’s Plague (YA novel)
TFE	Tales from the Empire (collection)
TFNR	Tales from the New Republic (collection)
TGH	The Great Heap (animated TV)
THG	The Hutt Gambit (novel)
TIE	TIE Fighter (computer game)
TJP	Tales from Jabba's Palace (collection)
TJT	The Jabba Tape (comic)
TLC	The Last Command (novel)
TM	Tatooine Manhunt (WEG Adventure)
TME	Tales from the Mos Eisley Cantina (collection)
TMEC	Tales from Mos Eisley (comic book)
TNR	The New Rebellion (novel)
TOD	Twin Engines of Destruction (comic book)
TOJ	Tales of the Jedi (comic series)
TOJC	Tales of the Jedi Companion (WEG reference)
TOJR	Tales of the Jedi: Redemption (comic series)
TPM	The Phantom Menace (novel)
TPMC	The Phantom Menace (comic series)
TPS	The Paradise Snare (novel)
TSK	Twins Stars of Kira (WEG Supplement)
TSW	Tales of the Jedi: The Sith War (comic series)
TT	Tyrant’s Test (novel)
TTSB	The Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook (WEG reference)
U	Star Wars: Union (comic series)
UP	Jedi Apprentice: The Uncertain Path (YA novel)
VD1	The Phantom Menace Visual Dictionary
VM	Classic Star Wars: The Vandelhelm Mission (comic)
VOF	Vision of the Future (novel)
VP	Vector Prime (novel)

VQ	Vader's Quest (comic series)
WBC	Wanted By Cracken (WEG sourcebook)
WEG	West End Games' Star Wars Role-Playing Game sourcebooks - unspecified
WEGM	West End Games' Star Wars Role-Playing Game modules - unspecified
WG	X-Wing: Wedge's Gamble (novel)
WS	X-Wing: Wraith Squadron (novel)
WSB	Star Wars: The Wookiee Storybook (child's book - not authorized by LucasFilm)
WSV	Wretched Hives of Scum and Villiany (WEG supplement)
XVT	X-Wing versus TIE Fighter (computer game)
XW	X-Wing (computer game & player's guide)
XWA	X-Wing Alliance (computer game and player's guide)
XWBT	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: Battleground Tatooine (comic series)
XWES	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: In the Empire's Service (comic series)
XWFT	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: Family Ties (comic series)
XWM	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: Masquerade (comic series)
XWMR	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: Mandatory Retirement (comic series)
XWN	X-Wing: Rogue Squadron (novel)
XWPA	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: The Phantom Affair (comic series)
XWRS	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: The Rebel Opposition (comic series)
XWRR	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: Requiem for a Rogue (comic series)
XWWP	X-Wing Rogue Squadron: The Warrior Princess (comic series)
X1	Star Wars: Episode I Incredible Cross Sections (book)
YC	Yoda's Challenge (children's computer game)
YJC1	Young Jedi Collectible Card Game – The Menace of Darth Maul
YJC2	Young Jedi Collectible Card Game - The Jedi Council
YJC3	Young Jedi Collectible Card Game - The Battle of Naboo
YJC4	Young Jedi Collectible Card Game – Duel of the Fates
YS	Yoda Stories (computer adventures)
ZHR	Zorba the Hutt's Revenge (young adult book)

Lastly, I document A Guide to the Star Wars Universe, Second Edition, by Bill Slavicsek, as a source of information. While this encyclopedia is very similar to Slavicsek's work, I have tried to put all my Star Wars knowledge into an encyclopedic format, complete with pictures, related topics, and cross-references. Slavicsek's Guide is also a source of some information that I missed. What was troubling for me was that I started creating this encyclopedia around the time of The Last Command by Timothy Zahn. Slavicsek's Guide was released about a year later, much to my dismay! However, I still found myself lacking vital information, and kept on plugging until I was able to get it all in one place.

Stuff I Still Need to Input

The following books, comics, and other sources are currently not in the encyclopedia. A "call for papers" will go out on the main page of the encyclopedia website, asking for reader assistance in obtaining some of these. "Any hep would be hot!"

- Bounty Hunters: Scoundrel's Wages - comic one-shot
- Bounty Hunters: Kenix Kil - comic one-shot
- Classic Star Wars: A Long Time Ago... - comic series, all issues
- Dark Horse Presents Annual 2000 - comic compilation with "Aurra's Song"
- Darth Maul - comic series, issues 1 - 4
- Fantastic Technology: Droids - WEG supplement
- Lords of the Expanse - WEG boxed adventure
- Mos Eisley Boxed Set - WEG boxed adventure
- Sergio Stomps Star Wars - comic one-shot
- Star Wars: Emmisaries to Malastare - comic series, issues 13 - 18
- Star Wars Handbook: Crimson Empire - comic one-shot
- Star Wars Handbook: Dark Empire - comic one-shot
- Star Wars: Infinity's End - comic series, issues
- Star Wars Introductory Adventure - WEG adventure
- Star Wars Tales - comic series, issues 1 - 25
- Star Wars: Twilight - comic series, issues 19 - 22
- Tapani Sector Instant Adventures - WEG supplement

I'm also looking for anyone who managed to get their hands on a Sony Playstation2, and has played the latest round of LucasArts games. I'd like to get a copy of the game manuals, and any information you could gather from the game, like storyline, events, and other useful information.

Notes on Encyclopedia Entries

All entries are listed alphabetically, with the assumption that numerals come after letters. There are many cross-references to other listings, and they should all refer to a full description somewhere in the encyclopedia.

The names of human characters are listed alphabetically by last name. Being a human from Earth, I used the standard American phonebook listing for all Star Wars humans. Thus, if you want to look up Han Solo, you need to search in the S section under Solo, Han*. If a human only goes by a single name (eg., Roa), then you simply look up that single name.

Non-human names, however, are listed alphabetically by the initial part of their name. This is because I chose not to impose Earth-bound human standards on Star Wars alien races. Thus, if you are trying to locate Momaw Nadon, you need to look under Momaw Nadon. As with single-named humans, aliens who one have one word to their names are listed by that name (eg., Garindan).

If a character's race is unknown, their name is listed as it appears in the source.

Entries from any source not licensed or authorized by LucasFilm are preceeded by an asterisk (*). There's at least one of them!

May the Force be with you...

A long time ago in a galaxy far,
far away...

* A *

A Call to Reason
the title of a pamphlet created by Mon Mothma and the early leaders of the Alliance to Restore the Republic, it contained a great deal of information on the atrocities being performed by the newly-named Emperor Palpatine. It was distributed on those worlds the Alliance felt needed a nudge to push them into alignment with the Alliance. (XW)

A New Hope
title of Episode 4 of Star Wars. This is the official Episode title for the film Star Wars, which originally did not have an Episode name or number. This was added for the 1978 re-release, after work had been started on Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back.
Star Wars won the following Academy Awards:
- Best Art Direction (Norman Reynolds, Lesley Dilley)
- Best Set Decoration (Roger Christian)
- Best Costume Design (John Mollo)
- Best Sound (Derek Ball, Ben Burtt, Sam Shaw)
- Best Film Editing (Paul Hirsch, Marcia Lucas, Richard Chew)
- Best Visual Effects (John Dykstra)
- Best Original Score (John Williams)
- Special Achievement Award for Sound Effects Creation (Ben Burtt)

Star Wars was also nominated for the following awards:
- Best Picture
- Best Supporting Actor (Alec Guinness)
- Best Director (George Lucas)
- Best Screenplay (George Lucas)

(SW)

A New Order
this Imperial holovid starred Alexis Cov-Prim. (LAA)

A Vrassa
this pleasure-causing drug is standard in most medical kits. (CFG)

A-A2
this is an outdated Trast repulsor truck. (IA)

A-A5
designation of Trast's speeder truck, the A-A5 are basically unarmed troop transports. The A-A5 can move 25 troops with ease. (RASB, TLC)

A-A6z
this is the designation of a Trast speeder truck developed after the Battle of Endor. It is designed to be a cargo transport, with a maximum capacity of three individuals and 25,000 kilograms of cargo. (TSK)

A-B6
this droid was a defacto member of the Farns, although it didn't actually belong to any organic member. Female in personality, A-B6 woudl do anything the other Farns asked of her, just to remain friends with them. (GG7)

A-class Bulk Freighter
this double-hulled transport ship is similar to the Gallofree Yards Medium transport in design. It uses a pair of angled hull plates to surround the central cargo section, which can be modified to fit various configurations. The hull plates mount on the sides of the A-class freighter, where they mount on the top and bottom of the Gallofree Yards transport. A pair of main drives is mounted vertically in the rear of the shell. (HTTE, HTTEC)

A-OIC
this is a misspelling of the droid Doc's designation (used in the last issues of SOTE: Evolution). (SEE)

A-scale Rating
this measurement system describes the proximity of a received starship transponder code to a match within the Bureau of Ships and Services database. An A-1 match is a perfect match; the larger the value, the poorer the match. Anything greater than A-3 is usually regarded as falsified. (CFG)

A-SL-4557.607.232
this is the Imperial decree which legalized the procurement of slaves, under certain conditions. (GG9)

A-Wing
the generalized name of the Dodonna/Blissex RZ-1 Starfighter. It is a flat, one-man, wedged-shaped snub fighter built for the Alliance after the lost of the Hoth base and prior to the Battle of Endor. The A-Wing was designed, as it's name implies, by Jan Dodonna and Walex Blissex. Because the Alliance was short on funds, most A-Wings were custom-built in private shops. The ship Tycho Celchu flew at the Battle of Endor had its cockpit inlaid with Fijisi wood. It is 9.6 meters in length, and was designed for interception and long-range reconnaissance. A unique feature of the A-wing is the short hydro-servo bearing installed in each wingtip, allowing the pilot to tilt the laser cannons up to 60 degrees up or down. Its top sublight speed is 120 MGLT, and can maneuver at 1,300 kilometers per hour in an atmosphere. It has limited navcomp capabilities, being able to calculate only 2 jumps before requiring recalibration.

It boasts the following shipboard systems:
- MPS Bpr-99 Power Core and Fusion Reactor
- Twin Novaldex J-77 Event Horizon Engines
- Torplex Rq9.Z Advanced Avionics Control
- Microaxial LpL-449 NavCom Unit
- Incom GBk-785 Hyperdrive Motivation Unit
- Long Range Phased Tachyon Detection Array Model Number PA-9r
- Short Range Primary Threat Analysis Grid Number PG-7u
- Fabritech ANq 3.6 Target Tracker
- 2 Borstel RG-9 Laser Cannons
- Dymek HM-6 Concussion Missile Launchers (up to 6)
- Sirplex Z-9 Shield Projector (50 SBD)
- Fabritech ANs-7e Sensor Unit
- IN-3444-B Sightline Holographic Crosshairs
- Titanium Alloy Hull (15 RU)

(ROTJ, SCRE, SWSB, RASB, XW, TIE, BW)

A-Wing Slash
this New Republic naval battle technique requires split-second timing among a group of starfighters. The maneuver usually employs X-Wings which fly directly toward the defensive line guarding a capital ship. Flying just behind the X-Wings will be a group of A-Wings, hiding in the X-Wings' drive glows. The X-Wings disengage their attack at the last second, drawing the fire of the defense with them. The A-Wings can then strafe the undefended ship at will. It is very similar to a saggery-blossom maneuver. (SOP)

A-Z-Z-3
a Mon Calamari light freighter. (SN)

A-1 Deluxe
an old model Mobquet "floater," this landspeeder was not the fastest, sleekest, or most desirable speeder on the market. It was, however, extremely reliable and inexpensive. The body was seven meters in length, but was thin. Pilot and passengers had to sit one behind the other. An option on the A-1 was Corellian leather seating. (TM, GG7, CCG2)

A-121
this was an old astrogation plotter, designed and manufactured by Republic Seinar Systems during the Old Republic. (PSG)

A-175
this Red Star Shipping Action IV transport was hijacked by the Far Orbit while running a legitimate cargo for Cambrielle SolidState, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Her Captain, Joh Steen, believed that the Far Orbit was an Imperial ship, and agreed to turn his cargo over to Dhas Vedij. (FOP)

A-24
this is Incom's series of Sleuth Scout ships. The A-24 is 14 meters in length, and requires only a pilot. A single passenger can also be accomodated. It is armed with two laser cannons, and is protected by a decent set of shields. It has excellent maneuverability and sublight speed for a ship of its size and class. (WBC)

A-3D0
a Duwani Mechanicals 3DO droid, this protocol and service droid was owned by Andur and Nomi Sunrider. (TOJ, TOJC)

A-3PO
this gleaming silver protocol droid was owned by Retter Lewis, and served as a translator and assistant at Callia's. (CRO)

A-3TO
this green-plated protocol droid served as the primary contact for any mercenary or smuggler visiting The Yard or Syndicate One. (SWJ8)

a-4
this old Kuat Drive Yards ion cannon was designed for use on large capital ships. (SOP)

A-9 Vigilance Interceptor
a fast, highly maneuverable starfighter built by Kuat Drive Yards, the A-9 was pulled out of the design archives in order to help fill the gap left by the loss of so many TIE Fighters during the Galactic Civil War. However, when the Alliance defeated the Empire at Endor, many of KDY's factory worlds were the sites of rebellion and revolt. One such world was the prime manufacturing site of the A-9. When all was said and done, the A-9 found its way to the New Republic's arsenal instead of the Imperial fleet. The craft is 7.4 meters in length, and is armed with a pair of heavy turbolaser cannons. Like the TIE Fighter, the A-9 has no hyperdrive, although it is capable of speeds approaching 1,300 kph. (DE1, DESB)

A-9x
this Kuat Drive Yards thrust engine design was created for use in the A-9 Viligance Interceptor. They have self-contained power generators. (EGV)

A'Daasha, Corinna
a native of the planet Corellia, Corinna and her twin sister, Kandria, grew up in a wealthy family and never had to struggle to attain anything. Corinna, unlike her sister, grew bored and restless in this existence, and used some of her inheritance to travel among the stars. However, despite the freedom and adventure she experienced, Corinna felt somehow unhappy without Kandria. When Kandria left Corellia to join her, Corinna's spirits immediately rose. The pair eventually settled on Adarlon – Kandria's choice, to which Corinna, quickly agreed – and they established the Glow Dome complex. Corinna often tended bar herself, using a portable holoprojection unit to alter her appearance. She was also sympathetic to the Alliance, having witnessed the news reports brought in by the underground unit No-Holds-Barred. Her attachment to the Alliance provided a sense of security and purpose, something which was missing in her childhood. (WSV)

A'Daasha, Kandria
a native of the planet Corellia, Kandria and her twin sister, Corinna, grew up in a wealthy family and never had to struggle to attain anything. Unlike her sister, Kandria thoroughly enjoyed the life of luxury, but became distraught after Corinna left Corellia to see the galaxy. She decided that she couldn't be without Corinna, and decided to join her in her travels. The pair eventually settled on Adarlon – Kandria's choice, to which Corinna, quickly agreed – and they established the Glow Dome complex. Shortly after the business took off, Kandria became withdrawn and moody, and it was later learned that she had been possessed by the Derriphan known as Ziakas. (WSV)

A'driannamieq Mountains found on the planet Elom, this wide expanse of rocky peaks is the native land of the ranphyx. (GG12)

A'jidre Skrigatov
this rotund Devaronian male served as the Provincial Governor of the planet Abregado-Rae during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Skrigatov was little more than a petty gangster, so he used his goons to arrange an engagement to Brinaloy N'Vaari, the last surviving member of her family. Despite his strong sense of honor, it was later discovered that Skrigatov arranged for the assassination of the former Provincial Governor, who was actually Brinaloy's grandfather. In order to gain popular - and political - support, Skrigatov planned to marry Brinaloy and tied up the loose ends. However, she used her skills as an actress and went into hiding, cutting off Skrigatov's only hopes of winning support. (ND)

A'kazz
a Schenor rescued from an Imperial attack on a research station. He was questioned by Luke Skywalker, who hoped to use his story to sway the Schenor to the side of the Alliance. (RPG)

A'Sako
this continent, located on the planet Mutanda, was connected to Cel'Con by a thin bridge of land. (PG1)

A'Sharad Hett
this being was the son of Sharad Hett, a Jedi Master who became a recluse and hid on the planet Tatooine during the period surrounding the Battle of Naboo. When his father was assassinated by Aurra Sing, the Jedi Knight Ki-Adi-Mundi vowed to train A'Sharad as his Jedi Padawan. Sharad gave his lightsaber to A'Sharad, so that he would have a constant remembrance of his father's struggle for peace. (SWO, IG1)

A/KT
this corporation produced a variety of full-body clothing that provided the wearer with protection in a number of environments. The most popular of A/KT's outfits was the Tuff1 combat jumpsuit. (DTO, ROE)

A1 Tow
an Alliance heavy lifter group supplying Admiral Harkov during his attempt to defect to the Alliance. (TIE)

Aa'kua
this Old Corellian term means 'respect' or, more literally, 'respecting space.' When used by a Socorran, it translates to 'individual space,' and indicates the right of every native of Socorro to go about his or her own business without others prying in. A violation of aa'kua is a crime against the individual's own person, and was considered worse than murder. (SWAJ, BSS)

AA-1
the verbobrain model that is installed in C-3PO, it is built by SyntheTech. It is designed to hold the etiquette practices of millions of species, with the ability to cross-reference and analyze alien amenities. (CPL, SWSB)

AA-2
this was the model number of Vector Technologies' Keeper subdermal control system. (WSV)

AA-23
designation of the detention block on the first Death Star used to imprison Princess Leia. It was located on Level 5. (SW)

AA-23
this T-4A Lambda-class shuttle was part of the small group of ships assigned to the Alliance's Storm Unit, during their attempts to free prisoners from Imperial prison facilities. (XWA)

AA-589
designation of the X-wing Luke was flying during Thrawn's reign of terror. (HTTE)

AAA Tow
an Alliance heavy lifter group supplying Admiral Harkov during his attempt to defect to the Alliance. (TIE)

AAA-2
this SyntheTech verbobrain was developed for protocol droids during the early decades of the New Republic. (HT)

Aach
this was a codename used by one of Bail Organa's agents during the last days of the Imperial Senate. He was used only when top-level business of the Alliance needed to be conducted. Thus, his presence always meant something important to the recipient of his message. Aach was dispatched to Anchoron to tell Garm Bel Iblis of the discovery of the plans to the first Death Star. Aach's arrival delayed the beginning of Bel Iblis' speech to the assembled group at the Treitamma Political Center, and probably saved the Senator's life. The Center exploded in a ball of flame, part of a plot to assassinate Bel Iblis. (TFNR)

Aalia Duu-lang
this criminal madame operated from a base in Stassia City. (SWAJ)

Aalto
this young Jedi student was one of Bruck Chun’s obnoxious friends. (RF)

Aama
this New Republic Intelligence agent held the rank of Major. Aama was assigned to Alpha Blue, and served as one of Hiram Drayson’s senior facilitators. (TT)

Aar
this is the homeworld of the Aar’aa race. (TPS)

Aar’aa
this race of chameleon-like reptiloids is native to the planet Aar, and is known for its ability to match its skin color to its surroundings. Known as skin-changers, the Aar’aa are tall, well-muscled humanoids with pebbly-scaled skin, clawed hands and feet, and a thin ridge of skin running down their backs. Their large faces are dominated by thick eye-ridges which hang down over small, glowing eyes. (TPS)

Aargau
a planet of some importance to the Empire. It is known throughout the galaxy for its banks, and was the site of a week-long conference between Baron Tagge and the Corporate Sector companies. The result of the meeting was the formation of the Corporate Sector Authority. After the Battle of Endor, Aargau fortified itself behind planetary shields and perimeter warships. (CSA, DESB)

Aari
one of Gaeri's aides in the Bakuran Senate. (TB)

Aanor ishiia zals
this Old Corellian phrase translates into Basic as, "Love conquers all." (SWJ12)

Aarrba
this amiable Hutt ran a repair and salvage shop on the planet Cinnagar about 5,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. Aarrba was a friend to Hok and Timar Daragon, and contiually kept their starship in working order. It was Aarrba who took in Jori and Gav Daragon, after they were orphaned during the First Unification Wars, and raised them to adulthood. Aarrba continued to support them, giving them loans when no one else would, until they were unable to pay for repairs to their ship following the discovery of the Goluud Corridor. He was forced to have them arrested, in order to make them face up to their debts. When they fled the authorities, Aarrba impounded their ship and called in all their debts. Aarrba’s body was stricken with sickness, and much of his body was amputated to remove the infection. He was relegated to a repulsor-chair in order to move about. When Naga Sadow began his conquest of the Koros System, Gav Daragon returned to Cinnagar and was confronted by Aarrba. Aarrba threatened Gav with imprisonment for his crimes, but Gav’s Massassi bodyguards moved into position. Before he could do anything about it, Aarrba was killed by the bodyguards. Much later, after the Great Hyperspace War, Empress Teta gave Jori Daragon all rights to Aarrba’s repair station for her part in winning the war. (GAS, FOSE)

Aarrba's Repair and Salvage
this starship maintenance facility was run by Aarrba the Hutt, and was located near the ancient Cinnagar starport. (GAS)

Aarwynn
this huge humbaba was known in Kashoonara legend as the steed of the deity Hurrungat. The legends say that Aarwynn was "six Kashoonara high" at the shoulder, which was considerably larger than modern humbaba. (COG)

AAT Battle Tank
this Baktoid Armor Workshop craft was created for use by the Trade Federation and its droid armies. Measuring 9.75 meters in length, the AAT required four battle droids to operate it: a commander, a pilot, and two gunners. The ship was well armed, with a huge laser cannon turret-mounted atop the main section, a pair of range-finding blaster cannons to support the main laser, two anti-personnel blasters mounted with the range-finding weapons, and six projectile launchers. They can reach ground speeds of up to 55 kph and, while not shielded, have incredibly thick armor plating to protect the tank from attack. (X1)

Aavman Extravagance
this small starship manufacturer produced luxury yachts during the New Order. (CRO)

Ab'Ugartte
an alien race from an unknown world, they are not among the most friendly species in the galaxy. They prefer their seclusion. (DESB)

Aba
a Wookiee doll given to Jacen Solo by Chewbacca. (CS)

Aban
an Imperial Navy officer, Aban was a Commander when he was placed in charge of the construction of the Imperial garrison on Sedri. He formed an alliance with the renegade priest Karak, hoping to obtain the power of the Golden Sun for the Empire. The plan backfired when Karak was captured by Pek and Fala, but Aban continued to make progress. Later, after surviving the Battle of Endor and beign promoted to Captain, he was placed in charge of Grand Admiral Thrawn's Taanab Operation. He served as the commander of the Bellicose in Thrawn's fleet. (DFR, BGS)

Abano
this Aruzan dola tree farmer was Manaroo's father. He begged for her life to General Kritkeen, but the Imperial was unresponsive. He sent Abano away with false promises and a warning shot from a stormtrooper's blaster. Dengar later returned with Manaroo and rescue Abano and his family, and the Alliance hid them - and the other Aruzans - on an unknown safeworld. (TBH)

Abatrarg
this gas giant is the sixth planet in the Atrig System. It has 18 natural satellites. PG2 also calls this world Abatrang. (PG2)

Abav Ghart
this Gotal was the leader of the Void Demons gang during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Ghart had been a pirate for more than fifty years at the time of the Battle of Yavin, and started the Void Demons more than thirty years before the war. He always dressed in expensive clothing, and was distinguished by the Repulse-Hand cybernetic prosthesis. He was considered a fiend of the worst kind, willing to do anything or betray anyone for a profit. He is also referred to as Aban Ghart in Planets of the Galaxy, Volume One. (PG1)

Abbaji
a planet covered with rain forests. (SE)

ABC Scrambler
this bounty hunter's weapon was an Aural-Biological-Chemical scrambler. It was based on the design of an anti-ordnance electromagnetic probe, and emitted a full spectrum of ultrasonic waves, chemical agents, and biological irritants when fired. The spread of the scrambler's blast had a wide pattern, and disoriented its target with massive sensory overloads. This allowed the hunter to capture the target without having to fight them. (GG10)

Abdi-Badawzi
this notorious Twi'lek gangster operated from an underground fortress located beneath the Rym Mountains, on the planet Socorro. He was also one of the trio of owners of Ethra Brewery. Born to parents who were part of a merchant family on Ryloth, Abdi was unusual because of his ebony-black skin. He lost his family when a rival clan assassinated them. Abdi had learned of the plot shortly beforehand, and tried to warn his father. Hif father ignored him, and even accused Abdi of being the would-be assassin. Abdi was sold into slavery shortly before the murder of his family. The slave ship he was transported on crashed in the deserts of Socorro, and Abdi was rescued by an Ibhaan'l shaman. Upon learning of the deaths of his family, Abdi vowed to exact revenge on their killers. He made friends with the most prominent members of Socorro's underground, and eventually moved his family fortune away from Ryloth. This got his exiled form Ryloth, but he was beyond caring for that world anymore: Socorro was now his home. His ties to the Society of the Black Bha'lir gained him a measure of respect, and soon he had established a great deal of influence in the smuggling business of the planet. He even ignored the Hutts, knowing that the Black Bha'lir wouldn't tolerate Hutt interference on Socorro. Eventually, Abdi-Badawzi's criminal empire expanded, and his capable leadership ensured its continued existence. (SWAJ, BSS)

Abek's Station
this small shadowport, located just off the intersection of the Sisar Run and the Ac'fren Spur, was owned and operated by Nim Abek during the Galactic Civil War. Abek used the station as a staging area for his personal group of pirates, outside his work for Sprax.

When it was learned that Limna Yith was being held on the station, many interested parties converged on it, including a group dispatched by Sprax himself to rescue Yith. In the struggle for possession of the Kerestian, Abek's Station was severely damaged when the Imperial warship Ion Storm bombarded it with laserfire. The station was abandoned. (SSR)

Aber
this red dwarf star cast very little visible light on the planet Alpheridies. It was the primary body in the Abron System, containing the planet Alpheridies. It was located just within The Veil, on the edge of the Mid Rim. (TOJC)
(TOJC)

Abin-Ral-Xufush
this Tiss'shar trader found the life of a trader to be too boring and non-productive, and soon went into business as a pirate. He seemed to discover his potential in this new role, quickly establishing the Dark Wing fleet and gaining a reputation as a ruthless and efficient leader. (PP)

Abinyshi
this race of slender reptilians was native to the planet Inysh. Their limbs are long and supple, and their tails end in a fork. The Abinyshi developed space travel at about the same time as humans, although their technology never matched the levels of the Corellians or Duros. They used starships to colonize several nearby worlds, but their overall population never blossomed enough for them to expand further. Their numbers were greatly diminshed after the Empire discovered the reserves of kalonterium in the planet's crust. The Empire stripped the planet of its minerals without regard for the native lifeforms, and the toxic pollution it produced nearly wiped out the Abinyshi. The Abinyshi were believed to be extinct, but several individuals came forth as the Alliance gained support. (AE, SWJ14)

Ablor
this was one of the four main continents found on the planet Veron. (PG1)

Abo
an Imperial slang word used to denote any indigenous lifeform to a planet. (SME)

abo b'Yenntarr
this was the Bosph term used to describe the Force, and translated into Basic as "the power of the unknown spirits." (SWJ13)

Abonshee
this was the proper name of the planet known as Masterhome. The name Masterhome was given by the planet's native race, the Anointed People. It was discovered by the Old Republic some ninety years before the Battle of Yavin. Abonshee was a temperate, Earth-like world with an abundance of hardy plantlife and reptilian fauna. (SWCP, MB, AE)

Aboukir
this New Republic warship was destroyed at the Battle of N'zoth. (TT)

Abran
this star was the central body in the Abran System. (TBSB)

Abran Belt
this asteroid belt contained the mining colony B'knos. (TBSB)

Abrax Cognac
a pale blue, alcoholic distilled spirit. It was favored by New Republic General Salm. (XWN)

Abregado-rae Spaceport
a once-decrepit establishment, it has been refurbished since the New Republic came into power. (HTTE, DFR)

Abregado
see Abregado-Rae (HTTE)

Abregado-Rae
the primary planet in the Abregado system, Abregado-Rae is located in the Borderlands region. The homeworld of the Gado race, Abregado-Rae is a temperate world whose day lasts 23 standard hours, and whose orbit lasts 349 local days. Since the fall of the Empire, Abregado-Rae has become a civilized world, although it still maintains a large base of smugglers. The planetary government, in an effort to reducecrime and keep the peace, has severly restricted individual freedoms for its citizens. (HTTE, DFR, HTSB, EGP)

Abric
a crew member of Niles Ferrier. (TLC)

Abrihom
an Alliance platform supply station destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Abrion sector
area of the galaxy which contains Ukio. (TLC)

Abrogator
this Imperial Dreadnaught served as the flagship of the fleet dispatched to Saloch 2 in order to subdue the Lortan fanatics perpetrating the Reslian Purge. (MBF)

Absit
this planet, subjugated by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, is the homeworld of the Yatir race of humanoids. (ISB)

Absolutists
Selonians who, during the time of Trackan Sal-Solo's rise to power, were determined that the planetary repulsors should be used as a weapon to allow the Selonians to forcefully gain their independence from the New Republic. (AS)

Absorbmat
any material which can absorb liquids, absorbmats are often used as drink coasters. (HSR)

Abubaka II
this starship was often used by Alton Lochner and his team of Alliance agents. (AIR)

Abuf
this city was located on the Sesto continent of the planet Garnib. (PG1)

ABX-110
this was the model number of Loronar's tube-launched ABC Scrambler. (GG10)

Abyss
one of the two binary stars that dominate the Byss-Abyss system. (GG4)

Abyss, The
1) this was one of the many podraces which meandered through the cloud-cities of the planet Ord Ibanna during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)
2) this deep-reaching, vertical slice of Imperial City was located on Coruscant. The headquarters of the New Republic Intelligence agency, known as the Mirage, were located well below the surface of the planet, within the Abyss itself. (HT)

Abyssin
an alien race native to the planet Byss (not the same Byss that the reborn Emperor Palpatine used as his power base), these tall humanoids have long, well-muscled limbs and a single, slitted eye. The eye of the Abyssin has twin lenses and dual focal planes, which allows the Abyssin some measure of depth perception. They have incredible regenerative ability, and actually consume their own body mass and rebuild cells. An average Abyssin body cell is replaced every 80 hours. Many of the normal organs found in pairs in other races are singular in the Abyssin, but can be regenerated if injured. They are a nomadic race, with no substantial exports. Thus, the planet has been relatively ignored by traders. The primary visitors to the planet are slavers who come to export the Abyssin themselves. When two tribes of Abyssin meet, they will either enter into a Trade (if water and food are plentiful, gaunts, weapons, or young are exchanged) or a Blooding (a fight to the death for water rights). The Abyssin have greenish-tan skin and long arms that reach to the ground when they walk. Their hands end in sharp claws. Although Abyssin can live to be over 300 years in age, their ability to regenerate gradually decreases. Those Abyssin who can no longer regenerate themselves usually walk into the desert and dies. Those that refuse to die are ritually stoned by younger Abyssin. (GG4, SA)

Ac'fren Spur
this side-path of the Sisar Run connects to the run at a shadowport which isn't on any known map. It connected the Si'Klaata Cluster with Sriluur by way of Ques. Much of the Spur was harassed by the Disac pirate gang, until Ket Maliss wiped them out. Sprax believed that a cluster of pirates survived, and hid on an unspecified planet along the Spur. (SSR)

Academy, The
an elite training and educational institution, the original goal of the Academy (during the Old Republic and early parts of the Emperor's New Order) was to train personnel for various space-going tasks. Under Palpatine, though, the goal was twisted to become an Imperial training center. There is no single location, although the Academy's most renowned training center is on Raithal. The basic training program lasts 30 months. (SW, JS, COTF, ISB)

Academy of Jedi Archaeology, The a division of the ancient Jedi Knights which strove to recover the ancient Jedi teachings and lore, including the Sith knowledge. (DLS)

Acatal
this dry, rocky planet is the second in the Elrood System. A small mining company, run by Radell Mining, Incorporated, extracts raw ores from the barren wastes. Radell owns the planet. (PG)

Ace Entertainment Corporation
this corporation owned a number of upscale gambling establishments, including the Ace of Sabres on Kluistar. (WSV)

Ace of Sabres
located on the planet Kluistar, this gambler's paradise was woned by Ace Entertainment Corporation, and boasted 99 different levels and 1,001 different amusements. (WSV)

Acceleration Chair
this is the name of the g-force-absorbing seat used by starship pilots. (HSE)

Acceleration Compensator
a starship component which helps provide artificial gravity and dampens the effects of maneuvers while going at or beyond lightspeed. (SW)

Acceleration Couch
this is the name of the g-force-absorbing bench used by starship passengers. (HSE)

Accarrgm
this is a potent Wookiee liquor. (RD)

Accolux Township
this Yedagon city was supposedly attacked and destroyed by the Lords of Dismay Flightknife, during the civil war which broke out on Adumar due to Tomer Darpen's treacherous schemes. In reality, the flatcam reports of the battle were faked, in an effort to keep the Empire from learning that the Adumari had sided with the New Republic. The reports were meant to hold off any Imperial reprisal because of the Adumari choice until a New Republic fleet could arrive to defend Adumar. (SOA)

Accu-accelerator
this is part of the ignition system used on the sublight engines of many capital ships. (CFG)

Accuser
1) this Star Destroyer served the Empire as a patrol ship during the period leading up to the Battle of Endor, monitoring the shipping lanes for criminals and members of the Alliance. Under Imperial duty, the Accuser was in the Tatooine System when Boba Fett arrived with the frozen body of Han Solo. Darth Vader gave the Star Destroyer and the rest of its fleet the order to stand down and let Fett deliver Solo's body to Jabba the Hutt. Tycho Celchu was assigned to the Accuser during his first stint of Imperial duty. He was talking to his family on Alderaan when the planet was destroyed by the first Death Star. It was later one of the first Imperial-I class Star Destroyers the New Republic captured after the Battle of Endor. In a bold and reckless action, Han Solo and Lieutenant Page literally talked their way onto the bridge of the ship, and Solo himself – dressing in a stolen officer's uniform – relieved the ship's commander of duty and took control of the ship. It was later renamed Emancipator. Note that X-Wing: Isard's Revenge claims the Accuser is an Imperial-II class ship. (DE1, MTS, WG, IR, CCG11, TBSB)
2) this Ghtroc Industries Class 720 freighter was owned and operated by Kal-tan-shi, and was obtained when the Tiss'shar acquired a bounty from the Lesser Plooriod Cluster during his tenure with House Paramexor. The ship proved to be quite durable, which was a blessing for Kal-tan-shi because he was not a terribly gifted mechanic. He worked hard to ensure that the ship wasn't damaged during a hunt, but he never stopped to worry about the ship. It was armed with a double-laser cannon and a turret-mounter laser cannon. (AIR)

AccuTronics
manufacturers of various models of worker droids and droid parts. AccuTronics was a former subsidiary of Industrial Automaton. (RASB, DW, SWJ13)

Ace Squadron
Pash Cracken's A-Wing squadron, it saw extensive duty at the Battle of Thyferra. (BW)

Ace-6
this Cybot Galactica combat droid brain was used by Sienar Fleet Systems in the TIE/D Fighter. (EGV)

Achillea
one of the primary worlds of House Cadriaan, this planet was located in Tapani Sector. It was located along the Shapani Bypass, giving it a great deal of trade. (PGT)

Acib, Y'ull
this man took control of Black Sun's criminal organization, in the years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. At the urging of Grappa the Hutt, he developed a group of clones of Xandel Carivus, in an effort to place a puppet in his place on the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. Their plans backfired when the clones were defeated on Ord Cantrell, and were traced back to Black Sun. When Macus Kayniph's cloning facilities were destroyed by the New Republic, Acib began to feel that Grappa's plans were falling apart. His fears were (CE2)

Acid Root
a dangerous plant native to Wayland. (TLC)

Ackbar
Mon Calamarian Rebel Navy Admiral, later promoted to the position of Commander-in-Chief of the New Republic. He was captured when the Empire took over Calamari, and was presented to Grand Moff Tarkin as a personal slave. He followed Tarkin around everywhere, all the while collecting information about the Imperial war machine, in hopes that he could escape and provide the knowledge to the Alliance. He gained limited knowledge about the Death Star in this fashion, enough to make him fear for the safety and future of the galaxy. When Tarkin decided to move to a permanent post on the Death Star, Ackbar was to be brought along with him. However, Tarkin's shuttle was attacked by an elite force whose goal was to assassinate Tarkin. They failed only when an Imperial Star Destroyer arrived to drive off the attackers, but they managed to rescue Ackbar in the attack. From that point on, Ackbar served the Alliance faithfully, using his knowledge of Imperial doctrine wherever possible. He was in command at the Battle of Endor, guiding the space battle over the second Death Star and drawing fire from the ships that were to destroy space station's central power core. Following the formation of the New Republic, Ackbar became one of the Republic's ruling members, until Councilor Fey'lya used incriminating evidence against him in an effort to discredit Ackbar. When Fey'lya's plans were revealed, Ackbar was reinstated as a New Republic dignitary. He was away from Calamari when the reborn Emperor Palpatine attacked the planet. Later, when he and Leia were on a diplomatic mission to Vortex, his shuttle was sabotaged, causing it to crash into, and destroy, the Cathedral of Winds. This was part of Furgan's plan to bring down the New Republic from the inside, and severely degraded Ackbar's self-confidence. He returned to Calamari to help rebuild what was still unrepaired from the Emperor's attack, and was on the planet when Admiral Daala chose to attack Calamari. He and Leia were able to rally the minimal Calamarian defense, stalemating Daala's attack until help from the New Republic arrived. Ackbar chose to remain on Calamari until Furgan attempted to finalize his plans by kidnapping baby Anakin Solo on Anoth. He then left the planet and arrived at Anoth in time to rescue baby Anakin. This demonstration of the Empire's desparate attempts to regain control of the galaxy helped to crystallize Ackbar's resolve, and brought him out of his self-imposed shell and back into the New Republic's government.He remained a vital asset to the Republic throughout the Black Fleet Crisis and the negotiation of peace with the Empire, but when Borsk Fey'lya was named the New Republic's Chief of State, Ackbar decided to retire from active duty and return to Calamari. Ackbar was portrayed in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi by Tim Rose. (ROTJ, HTTE, DA, COTF, MTS, VOF, VP)

Ackbar Slash
this desparate starship maneuver was developed by the Alliance's Admiral Ackbar. The slash involved sending your warships directly through the line formed by your opponent's ships at top speed. If done correctly, and if the Force was with you, this maneuver resulted in two things. First, any of the opponent's ships who missed your ships actually shot up their own ships. Second, it scattered the opponent's ships, breaking their line. (WS)

Ackdool
this Mon Calamari was a Commander in the New Republic Navy some twenty years after the Battle of Endor. He was in command of the cruiser Mediator, during the time when it was dispatched to Rhommamool. His appointment to Commander was met with some discontent by the New Republic's elite, not because he was one of the few remaining Mon Cal in the Navy, but because they believed he was given command of the Mediator simply because he was Mon Calamari. Ackdool was forced to act when Nom Anor launched a series of warheads against the city of Osa-Prime, an attack he claimed was initiated by Rhommamoolian officials. (VP)

Ackran
Jesmin Ackbar's alias, while serving as a member of the Night Caller's crew. (WS)

Acle
this Alliance Special Forces soldier was a member of Team Razor. (HAS)

Acorvus
this planet, the third in the Lazerian System, was covered in barren desert. It was the site of the system’s penal colony, and was off-limits to non-authorized personnel. Captured dissenters and criminals were incarcerated on Acorvus. The planet has a marginally breathable atmosphere. (TSK)

Acoustic Disruptor
a device used in the Kessel spice mines to scrape off the top layer of rock and expose the spice below. (JS)

Acre's Spaceport
this was the only publicly-accessible spaceport on the planet Mon Gazza. (RAC)

Acron Multinode
a diversified corporation working with the Corporate Sector Authority, Acron Multinode produced a number of specially-bred grain hybrids for use on various worlds. (HSE)

Actinic Luminator
a high-powered light often used by smugglers. (COJ)

Action II Freighter
one of the first freighter models produced in the Action series by Corellian Engineering Corporation. Carib Devist used one to fly to Bothawui, during the build-up of warships following the Caamas Incident. Hidden inside the freighter was a squadron of TIE Interceptors. When Devist's and the Millennium Falcon were caught in the tractor beams of the Tyrannic, Devist detonated the Action II, with a series of explosions that allowed his crew to blast away in the Interceptors. The explosion freed the Falcon from the tractor beam, allowing them all to return to open space and expose the Tyrannic. (VOF)

Action IV Freighter
a trapezoidal, medium bulk freighter built by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, the Action IV measures 100 meters in length and can carry 30,000 cubic meters of cargo with a maximum mass of 75,000 metric tons. Its inner holds can be individually adapted to various pressurization and climatic needs. It has no weapons systems and no defensive shielding. They require a dedicated crew of 8, and have no passenger facilities. (HTTE, SWSB)

Action V Transport
another starship in the popular Corellian Engineering Corporation Action series, the Action V measures 115 meters in length. It requires a crew of 10, and can hold up to 80,500 metric tons of cargo. It is unarmed, and has minimal shielding. (DFRSB)

Action VI freighter
another medium bulk freighter built by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, the Action VI measures 125 meters in length and can carry up to 90,000 metric tons. It has no weapons systems and minimal defensive shielding. It requires a dedicated crew of 10, and has no passenger facilities. (MMY, RASB)

Action-Keynne XII
this is a model of Corellian transport ship. They were designed to transport highly valuable cargoes, and were one of the most luxurious Corellian ships ever built. The Action-Keynne XII was also heavily armed, with mutiple tiers of weaponry. (SOP)

Activv 1
this Drearian Defense Riot Shield was manufactured from layered metal and one-way, mirrored transparisteel. A small notch in the upper section allows a blaster to be aimed and fired from behind it. (CSA)

Actuating Blaster Module
this blaster component takes the excited gas from the Xciter chamber and converts it into a beam of intense energy and light. The energy and light are subsequently focused - a process called galvening - as it passes through the barrel of the weapon. (CFG)

AC1
Cybot Galactica's surveillance droid, the AC1 series is a repulsorlift-powered sphere to which is mounted a swivelling holocam. The sphere is just under a meter in diameter. The AC1 was designed as a mobile surveillance platform, and transmits live images as it moves about. (RASB)

Ad-cube
this small device is similar to a Holocron. It is given out by manufacturers who want to promote their products. When activated, the ad-cube displays a holographic advertisement of the product the manufacturer wants to sell. (POT)

AD-series Droid
this model of droid was often used on military bases as an armory administrator, providing specialized weaponsry and equipment repair. (ROE, GG10)

Ad'n
this is a Horansi verb, which means "'to clean one's toenails." (POT)

Adamant
1) this Victory-class Star Destroyer was sent by Grand Admiral Thrawn to intercept Mara Jade at Abregado. (DFR)
2) a New Republic bulk cruiser that was captured by Qorl over Coruscant. The ship was loaded with armaments and hyperdrive components, which Brakiss and the leaders of the Shadow Academy needed to help shore up the new Imperial Navy. It was on its way to Kuat, but was being inspected by Admiral Ackbar at the time. Qorl's forces disabled the ship's weapons and communications, but left its shields and engines operational. The ship was towed to the Shadow Academy, which was cloaked within Coruscant's system. Note that Jedi Under Seige claims the Adamant was attacked by the Shadow Academy at Kashyyyk. The Second Imperium used the hyperdrive cores and turbolaser batteries from the ship, as well as New Republic shield codes, to outfit their own ships. The resulting confusion allowed the Second Imperium to skip inside Republic defenses, until Ackbar used the shield codes against them and dropped all their shields. The Imperium's fleet was then decimated by Republic cruisers. (LO, JUS)

Adamantine
this New Republic escort cruiser supported the Borealis during Leia Organa-Solo's mission to meet with Seti Ashgad. The ship was one of the first to succumb to the Death Seed plague launched by Ashgad and Dzym, and was stolen by Ashgad's people and destroyed on a world far from Nam Chorios. Hand-held weapons from the crew were later used to arm the Newcomers on the planet, in the uprising planned by Ashgad and Dzym. (POT)

Adamastor
an aquatic planet. (AIR)

Adar
1) this Imperial Prefect controlled the planet Denevar during the Galactic Civil War. He accused Reson Nath of a variety of crimes, including abetting a known criminal and conspiring against him. The trial was presided over by Janq Paramexor, and overseen by Moff Gorliz. As was often the case in respect to the various guilds sanctioned by the Empire, Nath was subject to the rules of the Paramexor Guild of Hunters. Her punishment to face her accuser in armed combat. Adar, a thin man without much physical training, realized that he would be killed in combat against Nath, and withdrew the charges. However, Moff Gorliz had already placed a bet with Janq Paramexor that Adar would last at least ten minutes in the battle, and ordered them to begin combat. (GG10)
2) this winged reptile evolved on the hostile world of Omiddelon III. Individuals could grow to length reaching three meters, and they hunted in large packs. Adars had long, scaled bodies which had a row of short spines along the dorsal ridge. Their heads resembled scorpions, with a flat skull surrounded by a pair of strong mandibles. Adars have high metabolisms, and stored water and food in their tails. When food was scarce and their internal reserves were too low to sustain activity, adars could go into a trance-like state and wait for prey to come to them. (COG)

Adarga
an Imperial Star Destroyer operative during the Galactic Civil War. It was used in the defense of the TIE Defender development site in the Parmel System. (TIE)

Adari
this planet is the homeworld of the Adarian race. It is covered with volcanic mountains, most of which are perpetually covered with snow. Its year lasts 409 standard days. (GG12)

Adarian
an alien race native to the planet Adari, the Adarians are humanoids with unusual cranial structures. Their skulls are elongated and tall, and have a large hole which goes completely through it. They have no ears or noses, and their mouth is ringed with sharp, bony ridges instead of lips. The Adarians make up to the lack of ears with a covering of fine hairs along their skulls that pick up the vibration of sound waves. A series of glands near the skin's surface allows them to smell. Their throats can be distended and filled with air, and the resulting "long call" can be useful as a communication method or a kind of defensive action. The Adarians have a rigid caste system which dominates their society, and the have evolved an advanced technology based on the use of super-cooled carbon-ice computers. They were able to remain neutral during the Galactic Civil War by signing a non-agression treaty with the Empire, providing the Empire with unlimited raw materials in return for their neutrality. (GG12)

Adarlon
this planet, located in the Minos Cluster, functioned as the Cluster's entertainment destination. By itself, Adarlon is a rugged, mountainous world originally settled by a group of Old Republic altruists - many from Alderaan - for its beauty rather than its resources. They were particularly well-funded, and their society grew into one of entertainment rather than survival. It was on Adarlon that the holographic medium was developed as an entertainment staple, and music from the planet is also highly sophisticated. Its primary industry was centered around tourism, and its temperate climate was well-suited to the various resorts and parks which operated there. Adarlon has a day which lasts 21 standard hours, and a year which lasts 381 local days. (SWAJ, GG6)

Adarloon
this planet is home to one of the most famous opera companies in the galaxy. The famous opera singer Neile Janna is also a native of Adarloon. (SWAJ)

Adas
this ancient Sith King was the gatekeeper of the Sith holocron used by the leader of Onderon, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Adas was a huge man who had used the power of the Dark Side of the Force to conquer his homeworld some 24,000 years before the Great Sith War. Sith scholars of the period believed that Adas created the holocron more as a testament to his achievements than as a teaching device. (TOJC)

Adazian Liebke
this Weequay was a Major in the Alliance's Special Forces unit on New Kisge. A native of Sriluur, Liebke served in Dnalvec's militia, and fought in the Houk-Weequay Conflicts. Adazian was known for his ability to handle the nocturnal dark wolf, and maintained a pack of twenty during his tenure with the Alliance. Adazian was also a member of Eclipse Team's Twilight Squadron, and was an accomplished wilderness fighter. (AIR)

Adder Moss
originally found on Dagobah, adder moss has made its way to several other worlds, including Naboo. Adder moss is burned as a natural fuel, but can also be eaten as a spongy, spicy snack. (GF)

Adder's Bite
this was an alias used for the shuttle Narra when it was assigned to work with the captured Night Caller under the control of Choday Hrakness and Wraith Squadron. (WS)

Adega
1) located in the Outer Rim Territories, this was the primary world of the Adegan System and the site of an important Jedi stronghold. It borders the Cron Drift. Adega was one of the original nine Auril Systems, and is only one of six that remains following the creation of the Cron Drift. (DE1, DE2, DLS, REB)
2) this star was the central body of the Adegan System, which contained the planet Ossus. (TOJC)

Adegan Crystals
known as Ilum crystals, these minerals emit powerful bursts of light when induced by resonant frequencies. This trait makes them the most common crystals used to construct lightsabers. (DE1)

Adegan Eel
a creature found in the Adegan System. (DLS)

Adela
this starship, given the New Republic Reigstry number RN32-000439, was owned by Refka Trell. (SOL)

Adim
this planet was the site of a mining colony which was attacked by pirates. The miners hired a group of mercenaries to protect them, and the pirates then hired Andov Syn to help them. Syn singlehandedly wiped out the mercenaries. (WBC)

Adin
this planet was the site of an Imperial stronghold during the Galactic Civil War, but later became a member of the New Republic. (TNR)

Adinai
this gas giant is the sixth planet in the Lianna System, and was surrounded by eight moons. (ML)

Adipose Lice
this parasite lived on the fatty deposits of its host, causing tremendous weight loss in just a matter of hours. Experimentation in controlled reduction of bodily weight, via the injection of adipose lice, has been discussed and experimented with by many doctors and scientists. A selective toxin was injected to halt the spread of the lice. However, the adipose lice do not care which fatty tissues it attacks, and it consumes all fat it encounters. The treatment, which is extremely expensive, often causes more harm than good. (TBSB)

Adison Cray
an Alliance free agent working during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Adjeck
this major city was located on the planet Corulag. (WSV)

Adjucator
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer that was stolen from the Empire by the New Republic and renamed Liberator. It was destroyed in battle over the planet Coruscant just prior to the reborn Emperor Palpatine's emergence. (DE1)

Adjudicator
this was the brand name of a series of slugthrowing holdout pistol manufactured by Czerka Arms. The Adjudicator was commonly sold as a personal defense weapon, but many paramilitary outfits added a silencer and used it for offensive attacks. (ROE)

Adjudicator
this Imperial Star Destroyer assisted the Relentless in the subjugation of Gerrard V. During the Battle of Endor, the Adjudicator took heavy damage and was abandoned to the Alliance. (SWAJ, TBSB)

Admiral Korvin
Wilhuff Tarkin assigned this Trade Federation battleship to Raith Sienar's small fleet, during their attempt to obtain a Sekotan starship three years after the Battle of Naboo. At the time, the Admiral Korvin had not yet been handed over to the Old Republic Navy. (RP)

Admonitor
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was under the command of Captain Niriz during the years following the Battle of Yavin. It was the ship which transported Thrawn back to the Unknown Regions after his appointment to Admiral. It was never seen again, even when Thrawn returned to take control of the Imperial remnants several years after the Battle of Endor. (TFE, VOF)

Adner
this planet is the homeworld of the Adnerem race. It is known in most circles as a pleasure world, where any being can go and relax in luxury. Adner orbited a binary star, and it was rumored that more than 2,000 theme parks and pleasure houses dotted its surface. (WBC, AE)

Adner, Divina Quri
Wilek Nereus had proposed marriage to this woman, a native of Arkonne III. Unfortunately, Divina was killed by Phean Tic'Karcta, a jealous rival for Divina's business. Nereus eventually hunted down and killed Tic'Karcta to exact a measure of revenge. (TBSB)

Adnerem
this race of tall, thin humanoids was native to the planet Adner. They are distinguished by their large, triangular-shaped heads, which have a prominent bulge or knob in the center of their forehead. They have wide, flat eyes, and their thin arms end in hands which have four thin, talon-tipped fingers. The Adnerem were known for their desire to improve their socio-economic positions in life, which often required them to work for the betterment of their individual families, or steri. The average Adnerem tended to be asocial and introverted, but they were often found in small groups. A well-known phrase described the Adnerem this way: "Two Adnerem are a party, four a dinner, and six a funeral." (WBC, AE)

Ado Sector
this area of the galaxy contains the StarForge Nebula. (FOP)

Ado Spine
this hyperspace trade route connected the major planets of Ado Sector. (PP)

Adon'aris
this Twi'lek was a confidente of Ekh the Red, and worked for Orman on Lianna. (ML)

Adony Station
this Imperial depot, located on the planet Jerne, was rumored to be the resting place of the Eternity Crystal. Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa raced to Adony to discover the crystal before Darth Vader could, some time during the Galactic Civil War. Vader rigged the vault where the crystal rested - a nearly impenetrable coffer - to explode when the Alliance agents tried to open it. However, the Dark Lord was also caught in the explosion. Luke and Leia managed to escape, and Vader was buried under the rubble. He survived as well, but the crystal - and much of Adony Station - were lost. (CSWDW)

Adoris Feline
this small, catlike animal is a favorite of many freighter and long hauler crews. (OS)

Adostic Arms
this weapons manufacturer is known for its large-bore projectile shotguns. (CRO)

Adranax
this being was a noted Korfani poet. (SESB)

Adrell
this Imperial Moff controlled Kilbanis Sector from a base on the planet Manwess III. It was Adrell who first posted a bounty on Malindin Gevarak's head. (GG10)

Adriana
this gas giant is the third planet in the Tatoo System. It has four natural satellites. (GG7)

Adrimetrum, Kaiya
this woman and her husband lived on Siluria III, until the Empire invaded the world and killed her husband. Since then, she rallied her neighbors, and led successful guerilla attacks on the Empire. She even was able to removed the Imperial Governor of the planet, which got her noticed by Corwin Shelvay. Shelvay recruited her into the Alliance, where she trained with the likes of Page and Ciro. Both believed she was too aggressive and hot-headed, but she served faithfully as a Unit Commander during the Galactic Civil War. After the Battle of Endor, she accepted command of the corvette FarStar and set out to capture Moff Sarne in Kathol Sector. (GG9, KO)

Adrona
this woman was an Imperial Prefect during the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Adsila Rifts
this area of shifting dunes was located on the extreme western edge of the Doaba Badlands, on the planet Socorro. The area was known for its huge concentration of sand wells, which made it especially dangerous to traverse. (BSS)

Adumar
this remote world evolved outside the mainstream of galactic growth, and was first contacted by the New Republic some 8 years after the Battle of Endor. The planet itself was located on the inner edge of Wild Space, and was colonized some 10,000 years before the Battle of Yavin by separatists who had rebelled against the Old Republic. They had been defeated by the Republic's forces, and given the option of death or resettlement. The human natives of the planet, who call themselves the Adumari, have a complex social structure which was based on personal honor and triumph over one's enemies. The primary industries of the planet were based on the production of war materiel, and they were skilled in the manufacture of proton torpedoes. They lacked a world government when a New Republic mapping ship accidentally found the planet and first contacted them, but the Adumari quickly learned that the Republic was not the only power in the galaxy. The perator of Cartann, Pekaelic ke Teldan, offered both the remnants of the Empire and the New Republic the chance to prove themselves and earn the alliance of Adumar in what basically became a popularity contest between Wedge Antilles and Turr Phennir. The perator himself was eventually ousted in favor of his son, who was more receptive to creating a democratic world government, where his father had wanted a government controlled by Cartann leaders. In the end, Adumar welcomed the New Republic and became a member world. Adumar has two moons. (SOA)

Adumar Central Control
this was the starship traffic control center of the planet Adumar. (SOA)

Adumari
this is the name used by the human inhabitants of the planet Adumar. The descendants of a group of people who rebelled against the Old Republic and were defeated, the Adumari continued to be a rebellious society even after they settled the planet. Their records indicated that there had been at least two huge wars which reduced the people to barbarism, but their tenatcious nature had brought them back each time. They had a complex social structure which was based on personal honor and triumph over one's enemies. Any Adumari could challenge another Adumari in armed combat, which was usually fought to the death unless the victory chose to lessen the prestige of his victory. Combat was the primary sport in Adumari society, with contests in ground-based combat and aerial dogfighting. The techniques developed by the Adumari were crude by modern galactic standards, since there were very few battles that involved more than two participants, and each was usually fighting for prestige rather than learning from past mistakes. Even when the Adumari were contacted by the New Republic and urged to form a world government, the creation of the govnerment was chosen first by the perator of Cartann, Pekaelic ke Teldan, in an effort to beat his rivals to the punch. However, this Cartann-based government was met with opposition from several other nations, including the Yedagonian Confederacy and Halbegardia. In the end, it was discovered that the New Republic diplomat to Adumar, Tomer Darpen, was leading the Cartann leadership down a path he had chosen. The perator of Cartann opted to retire rather than be executed, and abdicated the throne to his son. A more representative world government was formed, and the Adumari elected to join the New Republic. (SOA)

Adumari Union
this was the name of the world government envisioned by Escalion, perator of Yedagon, for the planet Adumar. It was endorsed by the perators of Halbegardia, Thozzelling, and Tetanne, and they offered the nation of Cartann - under the leadership of a new perator, Balass ke Teldan - a chance to join it and help create its laws and policies. The Adumari Union was eventually admitted to the New Republic. (SOA)

Advanced Explosives Handbook
a compilations of songs written and played by the band Deeply Religious. It has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Adventure Hiker and Hunter
this small corporation produced a variety of rations used by military personnel and civilians while out in the field. (ROE)

Adventurer
this Verpine starship is a pre-Empire vintage with a lifting body design and hoverjets in place of repulsorlifts. It had no weapons or shields, and did not have an astromech droid for navigation. It was designed to be a small, personal sporting craft. (BTS)

Adventurer
this Crescent-class Mark II transport was owned by Aelon Reglis, after he decided that he was going to be the first member of his family to travel among the stars. He gave the Adventurer to his daughter, Lynx, as a graduation present after she graduated from the Imperial Academy. She found little free time to actually use the ship, and it only saw action when she impersonated the Alliance agent Sapphire on a mission to Kira Sector. Shortly afterward, Lynx was implicated in a plot to steal military secrets and was arrested. The Adventurer was impounded by Imperial forces and later dismantled. (SS)

Advising Circle
this section of the primary city of Kegan was used by V-Tan and O-Vieve as a base from which they ruled the planet. Every Keganite was allowed to enter the Advising Circle and voice their opinion, which would be considered in the maintaining of the General Good. (FFT)

Advisory Council
this seven-member governmental body was created by the New Republic to act as a balance to the power of the Chief of State. The Advisory Council was also a sounding board for the Chief of State's ideas. The Advisory Council could revoke the orders of the Chief of State, and could impeach the Chief of State if five of seven members voted for it. (RASB)

Advozse
this term describes a single member of the Advozsec race. (GG12, CCG2)

Advozsec
an alien race characterized by their short stature, large black eyes, and enlarged cranium. Their skulls are punctuated by a short, thick horn which protrudes from the center of their forehead. Their ears are pointed. Native to the planet Riflor, the Advozsec have evolved in the planet's dense, ash-filled atmosphere. Their large eyes allow them to see in the murky light. Riflor's constant tectonic activity has instilled a sense of skepticism and pessimism, as the Advozsec cities are continually being rebuilt after natural disasters. A herbivorous race, the Advozsec have developed technology that mirrors much of the galaxy, although they tend to build it on a smaller, more transportable scale. (GG12)

Adz*-class Destroyer
this Imperial starship design was used as a patrol ship in many outlying regions, and was developed after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Their primary armament consisted of three quad-laser cannons and three dual-cannon ion batteries. They could achieve .55 past lightspeed, and maintained six fighters within her bays. One of the primary technological advances used in the Adz-class destroyer was the inclusion of an array of slave circuitry that allowed a crew of 24 to handle virtually every system. At 150 meters in length, the Adz-class patrol destroyer required 12 gunners and could transport up to 8 passengers and 4 prisoners in its brig. (TT, CTD)

AE-35
1) a heavy-duty repulsor unit used to keep sail barges afloat. (TJP)
2) a subspace communcations realy module used in many Imperial starfighters. The communications network established by the fighters provided information during battle as well as during searches. (CCG4)

AE-442
this was Kroddok Stopa's verification code, used to communicate with the Obroan Institute's central computer. (SOL)

Aean
this is the name given to the supporters of the Ante-Endor Association by the Mrlssti. It is derived from the abbreviation A.E.A.. (XWPA)

Aefan
this race of small, orange-skinned humanoids is native to the planet Aefao. (RD)

Aefao
this planet is the homeworld of the Aefan race. The T'landa T'il recruited pilgrims from this world for the Besadii Hutts, although Han Solo once tried to dissuade the Aefans from leaving. (RD)

Aegis*-class Shuttle
this is a series of combat shuttle manufactured during the Galactic Civil War by Telgorn Corporation. The 29-meter-long shuttle was highly demanded by military groups, as it could deliver troops into a warzone and pick them up while taking a pounding. A crew of two, plus two gunners, could operate the craft and deliver up to 40 troopers and three light combat vehicles into action. Two side airlocks could also be used as boarding ramps, and the ship was armed with a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons and two front-mounted concussion missile launchers. (KO, ROE)

Aereena
this young woman was the daughter of Alarik X and Careese, the King and Queen of Lazerian IV. Her outward appearance was that of the spoiled princess, but her actual role on Lazerian IV was much more than that. Despite her parents' Imperial loyalties, Aereena was the leader of the New Republic resistance on the planet following the Battle of Endor. (TSK)

Aerie Command
this was the code name for the base of operations of the New Republic Intelligence agency's Special Threats division. It was located on Coruscant. (CTD)

Aeron
one of the Corellian orhpans rescued from Ylesia by Han Solo and Chewbacca, he was a dark-haired child. (RD)

Aeroquaria
this form of container was used by those beings who maintained contained environments for small, flying creatures. (COG)

Aerospace Engineers Incorporated
a company to which Han Solo owed 2,500 credits in his early smuggling days. Vinda and D'rag worked there, and issued the warrant for Interstellar Collections Limited to repossess Han's ship in order to recover the funds. It is located on Oslumpex V. (HSR)

Aeten II
this highly-volcanic, tectonicaly-active planet is the only known source of stygium crystals. (X1)

Aether Hypernautics
this corporation produced military-grade hyperspace motivators for use on Imperial warships, like the Nebulon-B frigate. Their headquarters were located on Corulag. (FOP)

AF Double Strobe
this Verdrellig shield generator was used on many large starships. (RM)

Af'El
homeworld of the Defel race, it is a large, high-gravity world orbitting the ultraviolet supergiant Ka'Dedus. The planet has a thick atmosphere but no ozone layer, and so unltraviolet light passes directly to the surface. Heavy atmospheric gases then block most of the remaining wavelengths of light. For these reasons, all lifeforms on the planet have evolved with the ability to see in ultraviolet light. The planet's main export is the metal meleenium. At one time, Kuat Drive Yards mined Af'El for many of its natural minerals. (DFR, GG4, CRO)

Af'El Lion
this strange beast is often found in travelling circuses. (GG6)

Af'harl
this Coynite term was used to describe those nations (or Sarrh'Tais) which were deemed renegade, or contrary to the tenets of the En'Tra'Sol. No other family or nation could work or communicate with a family branded af'harl. (AE)

Afarathu
this sect of Selonians terrorized the Corellian System some four centuries before the Battle of Endor. The sect was destroyed by Keiran Halcyon, and was all but forgotten until the Empire used its specter to incite xenophobic reactions among the human population of the system. (IJ)

Affect Mind
a technique used by the Jedi Knights, it allows them to use the Force to control, sense, and alter another being's perceptions. It can be used to create illusions in, or remove images from, the being's memory. (SWSB)

Affric
this man was the High Lord of Sarin Sector, in the Outer Rim, during the Galactic Civil War. He used the Mantis Bounty Hunter Syndicate as his own personal army, in spite of Imperial law, and made sure that the Syndicate's contracts furthered his own goals. (GG9, GG10)

Affytechan
an alien race native to the planet Dom-Bradden, the Affytechans resemble tall, sentient plants. They grow in a number of colorful configurations or leaves, petals, tassles, and tendrils, and no two are exactly alike. Their normal body temperature is 83 degrees. (COJ)

Aft Deck Diner
this restaurant is situated on the Bazaar Deck of the Kuari Princess, and advertises "cheap eats from a dozen worlds." (RM)

After the Old Life
a song written and played by the band Starburst. It was first released as part of the compilation Only In Your Dreams, and has been given a scarlet rating by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Afterthought
this continent, one of two on the planet Ropagi II, is located on the planet's western hemisphere. Like its counterpart, Forethought, the continent is amazingly flat, and covered with huge expanses of grassy plains broken by urban centers. Those native Ropagu who study the past and the history of their culture live on this continent. (TSK)

Afyon
a native of the planet Alderaan, Afyon served the New Republic as Captain of the Larkhess escort frigate. He was off-planet when Alderaan was destroyed, and vowed to make the Empire pay for its crimes. He signed up with the Alliance as a first officer on a gunship, and worked his way up to Captain. He was somewhat disgruntled by the apparent lack of recognition he and his companion starship commanders are receiving, while the pilots of the snub fighters seem to get all the glory. (HTTE, HTSB)

AG-1G
this was a less-powerful version of the AG-2G quad-laser battery, developed by Corellian Engineering Corporation. (BP)

AG-2G
Corellian Engineering Corporation's quad-laser battery, these were employed by Han Solo aboard the Millennium Falcon. (RASB)

Ag'Tra
this was the title of the ruling noble of a given Coynite nation. At the height of the New Order, there were 29 Ag'Tra representing 29 nations. All Ag'Tra were loyal to the Coynite king and queen. (AE)

Aga
1) a semi-sentient race found on the planet Zelos, the aga were used by Emperor Palpatine to allow stormtroopers to perform highly-secret tasks. Palpatine had the aga drugged until they began hallucinating, then made the greatest fears permanent with the Dark Side of the Force. The aga, much like cidwen and avogwi, were then used as guards. They viciously attacked anything or anybody that came near them. (COJ)
2) a race of huge, lumbering predators native to Zelos II, the aga have thick, gray skin, yellow eyes, and six muscular legs. The front two legs can be used as arms in battle. They average four meters at the shoulder, and are formidable beasts. They attack by first issuing a terrible screech which immobilizes its prey, then they lash out with their front two arms. (PG2)

Agamar
this planet, located in the Lahara Sector of the Outer Rim Territories, was the home of Keyan Farlander. It was the site of an Imperial invasion during the early years of Palpatine's reign as Emperor. Mon Mothma visited there following the Ghorman Massacre, in an effort to help the Agamarians understand Palpatine's evil. Later, it was the site of a hidden Alliance base, early in the Galactic Civil War. The natives of the planet are known to be rough-hewn farmers known for their stubbornness. During the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, Agamar served as a stopping point for refugees fleeing the Outer Rim worlds under attack. This support was given after Leia Organa Solo and Danni Quee pleaded with the planetary leaders for support. As the Yuuzhan Vong stepped up their invasion, Agamar remained a pathway to freedom for those Outer Rim worlds which were attacked. However, when the Yuuzhan Vong learned of the effects of bafforr tree pollen on their vonduun crab armor, they overran Agamar in an effort to extend their control to Ithor. (XW, DF, WS, DTO, DTR)

Aganof
this alien race is native to the harsh, volcanic planet Kuras III. The Aganof were a species of large, plant-like beings which lacked true sexes. They had a number of small appendages that were used for locomotion, and another set of appendages for sensory input. A row of heat-dissipating flaps and olfactory stalks lined their dorsal region, with small mouths below each flap used to capture small creatures that were attracted to the flaps. Each end of their bodies ends in a jointed limb which is tipped with a sharp claw. The lived in the caves of Kuras III, and survived without the senses of sight and hearing. These beings spent much of their free time engaged in philosophical debates and intellectual arguments, using vibrations and scents to relay their ideas. They had little concept of an alien species, and knew nothing of the Galactic Civil War. (PG3, AE)

Agapos the Eighth
this ruler of the Sunesi people was a well-liked but largely ineffective leader. Under his rule, the Empire established its presence on Monor II. His son, Agapos the Ninth, exhibited some sensitivity to the Force, and his natural abilities led Agapos to retire early. He let his gifted son take over and went into seclusion. (SWJ10)

Agapos the Ninth
this Sunesi was the son of Agapos the Eighth, Agapos was a gifted child with some sensitivity to the Force. As his talent grew, Agapos became able to heal others with a touch. He believed that his ability was simply the workings of the Maker, and that he himself was simply a conduit. When his father retired from leading the Sunesi people, Agapos the Ninth took over and began focusing their attentions on the Empire, rather than on their tribal disputes. His outspoken protest of the Empire's mining of cirrifog helped to unite the Sunesi, and the death mark imposed by the Empire made him even more respected. He was forced into hiding, though, when bounty hunters began searching for him. One pair of hunters, Chenlambec and Tinian I'att, finally managed to capture him. Chen's plan was to get him off Monor II in order to alleviate some of the Imperial pressure on the Sunesi, and to help keep Agapos alive. His teachings and writing had become popular among the worlds of the Alliance, and his philosophy was well regarded. Daye Azur-Jamin managed to meet up with Agapos on Treka Point, where Agapos told the young man that he needed to find Tinian I'att and let her know he was still alive. (SWJ10)

Agapos the Tenth
this Sunesi succeeded his father, Agapos the Ninth, as the ruler of the Sunesi people shortly after the New Republic signed a peace accord with the Imperial Remnant. (BP)

Agash
this red giant star is at the center of the Agash System. (PG2)

Agave*-class Picket Ship
this was one of the new class of starship designs approved for manufacture by the New Republic Navy. At 190 meters, it was the shortest of the ships assigned to the newly-commissioned Fifth Battle Group. Designed and manufactured by Republic Engineering Corporation, the Agave-class was operated by a crew of 28, with 8 gunners and up to 5 passengers. It was armed with a pair of turbolaser cannons and 4 laser cannons, and was equipped with a Class-1 hyperdrive. The primary mission of this ship was tactical and operational reconnaissance, and they were outfitted with powerful sensors and stealth packages. (BTS, SOL, CTD)

Agee
a winged, avian race. (TNR)

Aggaba
this Hutt was one of Jemba's assistants at the Offworld Mining Company facility on Bandomeer. After the transport ship Monument was nearly captured by pirates and left for dead, Aggaba and a group of Offworld miners accepted an offer to come work for Clat'Ha and the Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation. (RF)

Aggoron
an alien race. (SWJ8)

Aggregator
this Interdictor cruiser was part of High Admiral Teradoc's fleet in the years immediately after the Battle of Endor. He leased the ship to Ysanne Isard, for her to use against Rogue Squadron during the Bacta War. She used it to intercept the Rogues as they passed through the Alderaan System, with the Corrupter as the primary attacker. However, the Rogues were able to fully disable the Corrupter and severely damaged the Aggregator in the battle. The Aggregator jumped back into hyperspace when it realized the battle was futile. (BW)

Aggressor
1) a Super-class Star Destroyer assigned to Admiral Roek during the Galactic Civil War. It was accmpamied by five Imperial-class Star Destroyers, and was stationed in the Inner Rim until they were recalled to defend the Corellian shipyards six months after the Battle of Endor. (SWAJ)
2) a Star Destroyer dispatched to bring Kirtan Loor to Imperial Center following the death of Gil Bastra. (XWN)

Aggressor Assault Fighter
this unique Trilon design is roughly twenty meters in length, and was designed specifically for combat. Its insectile shape is easily recognizable. It has a thin main hull with two forward-facing mandibles and two retractable steering vanes. The mass of the Aggressor is higher than in most starfighters, but this is compensated for by the fact that most interior space is dedicated to power cores and weapons systems. (EGV)

Aggressor Wing
this flight group of Y-Wings was commanded by the New Republic's Colonel Salm during the period following the Battle of Endor. The Aggressor Wing was given the task of delaying the evacuation of Brentaal IV, in order to prevent the fleeing Imperials from looting the planet prior to the Battle of Brentaal. Shortly afterward, the Aggressors were instrumental in assisting Commando Team One in liberating Sate Pestage from Ciutric, then returning to the theater of battle to save Rogue Squadron from Imperial attacks. (XWES, XWMR)

Aggul Meztim-Si
a city located on the planet Veron. (PG)

Agonizer
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was under the command of Admiral Teren Rogriss. It was dispatched to Adumar to escort the 181st Fighter Group during the negotiations between the Adumari, the New Republic, and the Empire. Rogriss took the ship out of the Adumar system when the Adumari chose to side with the New Republic, then he joined the Adumari armed forces. The Agonizer later returned to Adumar under Imperial orders to subjugate the planet. However, the New Republic was able to mass a defensive fleet and drive off the Imperials. The Agonizer took heavy damage during the battle, but survived. (SOC, SOA)

Agony of Tarkin, The
this opera was written and produced by the Imperial Opera Company, shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (MJEH)

Agony's Child
this Yuuzhan Vong warship was disabled during the Battle of Ithor by the combined firepower of the New Republic and the Imperial Remnant. Its dead hull remained in orbit around Ithor as a dead moon. (DTR)

Agorffi
a large, strong alien race, they have incredible brawn and strength. Like the Wookiees, they were hunted by the Empire for use as slaves. (GG9)

Agovast, Krugh
this man held the rank of Sergeant in the Alliance military, and served as the cargo master and crew chief at the Gelgelar Free Port, under the command of Arik Stijhl. (SWJ14)

AGR
this huge agro-combine was founded on the planet Corellia during the Old Republic. (MBF)

Agricultural Corps
this vast body of volunteers and corporate sponsors was part of the Old Republic's support system for newly settled planets. Those worlds which had need of agricultural improvement – primarily terraformed worlds, but also planets damaged by industrial misuse – could petition the Agricultural Corps for assistance in bringing plantlife to their environment. (RF)

Agrilat
a planet, located near Corellia, is home to a strange crystal swamp. At one time, Han Solo and Dengar participated in a dangerous swoop race there. Dengar sustained numerous injuries, and harbored a grudge for Solo ever since. (MTS, TBH)

Agrinium
this lightweight metal was used to create a coating which was used to repait solar sails. (SWJ14)

Agrirobot
any automaton who primary functions involve agricultural skills. (HSE)

Agriworld-2079
this planet is the homeworld of the Skrilling race. The name 'Agriworld-2079' is a M'shinni designation, as the M'shinni used it as one of their many agricultural colony worlds. They discovered the Skrilling race there, and even provided the name 'Skrilling' to them. The planet had no name before the M'shinni arrived. (GG12)

Agro-Militants
a group of political activists which vied for Leia Organa-Solo's favor during the early years of her tenure as the New Republic's Chief of State. (POT)

Aguarl 3
this ocean world was the site of an Alliance populated by the Mon Calamari and Quarren following the first Imperial attack on Calamari. A Quarren spy for the Empire provided the planet's location, and a TIE Bomber attack was launched against the planet. The Alliance's newly-installed defense system took out three of the four bombers, but Ranulf Trommer was able to recover minimal control of his ship and launch concussion missiles at the base. The base took greivous hits, and had to be evacuated. (ROC)

Aguilae
the female Jawa that managed the Jawa Traders scavenger lot in Mos Eisley. She found that running a business in which she sold mechanical things was harder than she thought, given that she was a Jawa. So, she hired Mace Windu to be her salesman. (GG7, EGC)

Ah'Kra
a city on Coyn. (PG)

Ahazi
a New Republic Hajen-class fleet tender assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. It was destroyed on its final training mission near Bessimir when it overshot its hyperspace exit point. It plunged into the planet's atmosphere and disintegrated. (BTS)

Ahk'laht
this Noghri served as Leia Organa-Solo's bodyguard in the years prior to the appearance of Admiral Daala and the discovery of the Maw Installation. During a series of negotiations between Leia and a representative of the Barabel people, Ahk'laht physically manhandled the Barabel minister when he refused access to Alater-ka for the New Republic fleet. The political and personal embarrassment led Leia to send Ahk'laht back to Honoghr with the message that the Noghri were no longer indebted to the family of Darth Vader. (JASB)

Ahleazah
this Mon Calamari female was captured during the Empire's initial occupation of Calamari and forced to work with the medical corps. The rest of her family was simply sold into slavery. She did her best to ease the suffering of her people, being moved from camp to camp in order to ensure she didn't develop any relationships. When she saved the life of a minor Imperial Navy officer, the grateful officer brought Ahleazah to his starship, where she was allowed to work with and learn from the advanced medical facilities on the ship.

During her treatment of an Alliance pilot who was to undergo interrogation, Ahleazah decided that the time had come for her to act against the Empire which had destroyed her family. She treated the pilot, then got both of them to an escape pod just as the Imperial ship was leaving the Anoat System. An Alliance convoy later rescued them, and Ahleazah served the Alliance - and later, the New Republic - as a medic and healer. (HR)

Ahnjai Rahmma
High Inquisitor Tremayne's Srrors'tok bodyguard. It is unknown how Tremayne won the respect of Ahnjai and obtained a life debt, which Ahnjai strives to fulfill. (GG9)

Ahntanda, Aubro
this man was a noted slave lord. (WSV)

Ahra Naffi
an ancient term used by the ancestors of the Qella to describe themselves. The Qella were their children, although the Qella themselves had no children. (BTS)

Ahred
the Fallanassi word for "four" or "fourth." (BTS)

Ahsane, Hhalyia
this strikingly beautiful woman owned and operated The Custom Stop in Vakeyya, on the planet Socorro. Her exact origins were never revealed, but many believed her to be a former smuggler, bounty hunter, Imperial noble, or any combination of these. (BSS)

Ahsmar
an Alliance starfighter pilot assigned to complement Keyan Farlander while ambushing an Imperial convoy near Orron III. Ahsmar was killed in the battle. (XW)

Ahug
this planet, the innermost of the two worlds in the Kriekaal System, was covered with oceans of molten metals. (SWJ13)

AI Scheduler
an artificial intelligence device which is employed at most major spaceports. Its intelligence and logic circuits are used to receive incoming landing requests from starships. The scheduler then processes the incoming call against the current slate of landings, and assigns the starship a landing clearance and arrival window. (CS)

Aiaks Fwa
this Whiphid mercenary worked for Jabba the Hutt, shortly before the Battle of Ylesia. Jabba paid him to infiltrate the Ylesian slave trade as a pilgrim to Colony Seven, and when given a signal, to kill the t'landa Til priest leading it. (RD)

AIC-4
Sonda Armament's Armored Interface Craft, designed to fit in the belly of a Star Destroyer, to be deployed with troops to the surface of a planet. Its armor plating allows it to drop into hostile territory. The 4-meter-long ship requires a crew of 6, and can carry up to 44 troops. It is armed with 2 laser cannons and 2 heavy repeating blasters. (SWAJ)

Aida
this planet, the primary world in the Aida System, was a sparsely-populated planet. It was a world loyal to the Empire, and solidly under the control of Governor Io Desnand during the New Order. The Wookiees working with Chenlambec to trap Bossk provided a set of false coordinates to a Wookiee waystation that led them to Aida. A derelict starship was left there, signalling the location of Lomabu III via a series of trilling Wookiee songs. The Aida System is the closest neighbor of the Lomabu System. (TBH)

Aidan Bok
Tash Arranda once came into contact with the ghost of this Jedi Knight, after opening the tome The History of the Jedi Knights on the abandoned space station of Nespis VIII. Bok had been charged with guarding the ancient Jedi library on the station shortly before the advent of Emperor Palpatine's New Order. When Palpatine ordered the extermination of the Jedi, Bok was powerless to defeat the Sith lord. He was ashamed of his failure, and remained on the station as a disembodied spirit, trapped in the book, unwilling to become one with the Force. When he helped Tash Arranda escape from the space station and Borborygmus Gog, he reconciled his shame and allowed himself to become immersed in the Force. (GOF4, GOF11)

Aikhibba
primary planet in the Aikhibba System, this minor world is located of the Gamor Run. (DESB)

Ailon Nova Guard
this military operation, located in the Ailon System, has a prowess in battle that has been compared to the Mandalorians and the Imperial Royal Guard. They train religiously, and have a 13,000-year history of success. Their basic tenets revolved around the survival of the fittest, and they believed that Emperor Palpatine was the prime example of this. (GG9)

Ailon System
this planetary system is the home of the Ailon Nova Guard. (GG9)

Aing-Tii Monks
this strange race of creatures inhabits the furthest reaches of the Kathol Outback, near the Kathol Rift. They are one of the few travellers who actually seem to be able to navigate through the Rift, having been seen emerging from the Rift of several occasions. As a race, the Aing-Tii are tall, edentate mammals whose bodies are covered by bony plates. They have four legs, although they most often stand erect. Their heads are covered by helmet-like plates, and are dominated by two large eyes. They have no visible mouths, but use a group of long, thin tongues to sense and communicate. The tongues are used for tasting, smelling, and feeling. Much of their bony armor is covered with intricate, painted symbols that resemble the markings seen on their strangely-organic starships. Their tails, also covered with thick plates, are prehensile and often used in defense and attack. The Aing-Tii are also Force-sensitive, although they don't use it and control it the way Jedi Knights do. No one is sure exactly why, but the Aing-Tii patrol the Kathol Outback between the Marcol Void and the Kathol Rift looking for slave ships. They incapacitate the slavers with their Sanhedrim starships, then free the slaves. (KO)

Aing-Tii Sanhedrim
this was another name given to the Aing-Tii Monks of the Kathol Outback. (KR)

Ainik, Renn
this Professor of Astrographics served the New Republic as the Director of Studies at the Astrographic Survey Institute Ainik compiled a full datafile on the planets of the Corellian System and the worlds involved in the Sacorrian Traid's Starbuster Plot for the Republic's Intelligence agency. (CTD)

Ainlee Teem
this Old Republic politician, from the planet of Malastare, was one of the three candidates selected to replace Chancellor Valorum, after Queen Amidala of Naboo called for a vote of no-confidence in Valorum's abilities. (SW1, IS1)

Air Ambulance
this repulsorlift transport is used to convey injured and ailing individuals to hospital facilities as quickly as possible. Essentially a transport airspeeder, the air ambulance is crewed by a pilot, co-pilot, a medical technician, and up to two prone patients. (TA)

Air Brake
this piece of equipment is used on pod racers and other high-speed ground vehicles. It collects the air moving past the vehicle and uses it to slow the vehicle down. This is accomplished through friction and directional manipulation of the air flow. They can be non-jetted or jetted, depending on the how much the racer wants to spend. A jetted air brake adds to the stopping ability of the brake by routing the forced air through one or more reverse-thrust stopping jets. (RAC)

Air Brother
this was a name, used by members of the thranta riders who lived on Bespin during the last years of the Old Republic, to describe each other. (BHAS)

Air Cushion
this special bed is used in hospitals to help comfort burn victims. One of the few advances in medicine to come out of the Imperial armed forces, the air cushion uses a series of small repulsors to float the patients above the surface of the bed. This allows the patient to lie still without contacting their burned skin, and increases hygiene by allowing the patient to be bathed without soiling bedding. (TNR)

Air-2
TaggeCo's entry into the swoop market was a basic swoop controlled by hand controls, foot pegs, and knee pressure points. The Air-2 has a rounded front cowling with integrated maneuvering vanes and an optional windscreen. Han Solo escaped from a group of slavers on Bonadan by fleeing on an Air-2 swoop. (EGV, CCG9)

Airam Sector
this area of the galaxy was controlled by the Empire shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XVT)

Airbarge
the name name given to any of the custom-built prospector craft used by the independent tibanna gas miners of Bespin. The are usually 15-30 meters in length, and are a hodge-podge of wings, repulsors, and pod-shaped refineries. (JASB)

Aircar
another name for a landspeeder. (AS)

Airfleet
this was the name of Exocron's primary atmospheric defense force. The Airfleet employed heavily-modified airspeeders known as Skylarks to protect the huge Sky-Dreadnaughts which anchored its fleet. When the pirates and criminals of the Kathol Outback began invading Exocron airspace, it was decided that the force should be expanded to patrol the immediate space near Exocron. At this time, the Airfleet grew into the Exocron Combined Air-Space Fleet. (KO, VOF)

Airhook
this one-man, repulsorlift vehicle was developed to personal transport. It was similar in design to the STAP vehicles used by the Trade Federation. They were especially dangerous because of the highly volatile fuel cells they used. (BHAS)

Airlink
the entry portal on a crawler, or any other craft which has an external connection to another craft, and operates in a hostile or vacuum environment. (CS)

Airlock
1) it was in the spacer bar that the Wookiee Grasheel first met Shamus Falconi. The story of their meeting is long and complex, and involved a number of angry pirates and a bottle of lum. In the end, Grasheel found himself the owner of half of the Lumrunner and Falconi's partner. (SWJ9)
2) this restaurant was located aboard the deep-space repair facility 3DC/Green. (HAS)

Airspeeder
any repulsorlift vehicle that flies in the upper atmosphere of a planet, they cannot enter the vacuum of space. They are meant to be utility craft, but can be modified for battle. (ESB, DFR)

Aiteff
see 8F (SWJ10)

Aitha
this protein drink is consumed by spacers to keep their bodies healthy during long runs. It is served hot. (TNR)

Aj Koenes
this Talz rangeland manager agreed to assist the New Republic team which tried to restore Duro's natural environment during the height of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. He was continually at odds with Sidrid Kolb, the meteorologist of the group, since their projects often required similar resources. (BP)

Aj^g
this was the Biotech model of cyborg construct used by Lobot on Cloud City. Note that this contradicts the West End Games material on this device, which denotes it as Aj^6. (CCG5)

Aj^6
Biotech's top-of-the-line cyborg construct, it allows a lifeform to become a cybernetic computer interface liaison. Lando Calrissian's assistant, Lobot, was an Aj^6. They were promoted by Biotech as "Artificial Intelligence Worth Shaving Your Head For," since many Aj^6 constructs were shaven in order to implant the wrap-around computer interface. Note that Crisis on Cloud City claims that Lobot's implant was manufactured by Bioniip Laboratories. (RPG, CSA, CCC)

Ajaf
this Imperial stormtrooper was stationed at the garrison in Hullis, on the planet Halmad, during the early years of the New Republic. (IF)

AJTD-series Droid
this highly-specialized kind of droid was developed for use by the Jedi Knights. These Advanced Jedi Training Droids could be used in all kinds of classes, but were primarily used for lightsaber training. (RF)

AJTD-6
this Jedi training witnessed the fight between Obi-Wan Kenobi and Bruck Chun, shortly before Qui-Gon Jinn arrived on Coruscant to find a Padawan apprentice. The blame for the fight was pinned on Obi-Wan by Bruck, in hopes that he would get Obi-Wan shipped off to the Agricultural Corps while Bruck was chosen as a Padawan. In the end, AJTD-6 described the actual cause of the fight to the Jedi Masters, and neither boy was chosen. (RF)

Ak-Buz
the Weequay commander of Jabba the Hutt's sail barge. He was discovered by the cook Porcellus, stone dead in the kitchens, just before Luke Skywalker arrived at Jabba's desert palace on Tatooine. Porcellus, fearing that someone would blame him for the Weequay's death, disposed on Ak-Buz's body by tossing it onto one of the many scrap piles outside the palace. In reality, Ak-Buz was killed by Dannik Jerriko. (TJP)

Ak-Rev
this Weequay served as Jabba the Hutt's drum master, as well as being one of the crimelord's best hand-to-hand fighters. A native of the city of Al-Campur, Ak-Rev worshipped Am-Shak, the Weequay god of thunder. He caught the eye of one of Am-Shak's monks when he was young, and the monk taught him about hand-to-hand combat and boxing, as well as music. After leaving the monastery, Ak-Rev made a living as a street fighter, and always paid his tithes to Am-Shak. Jabba once saw Ak-Rev - who adopted the name of one of his slavemasters - playing drums at a religious ceremony, and offered him a job on Tatooine. Ak-Rev accepted, and played the huge drum in Jabba's Tatooine palace with Umpass-Stay. He also trained many of Jabba's guards. Although he survived the swath of destruction that followed Jabba's death, Ak-Rev was killed just days later when Tusken Raiders attacked his landspeeder. (MTSE, CCG9)

Akaga
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate that attempted to disable the Interdictor-class Harpax in the Ottega System. It was destroyed in the battle. (TIE)

Akana
this dry, barren planet is the fourth planet in the Elrood System. It supports only microbial life, although a colony of artists maintains a small outpost there. (PG)

Akanah
born Akanah Norand Goss, Akanah was the daughter of Joreb Goss and Isela Talsava Norand. Akanah was a descendant of the Fallanassi through her mother, Isela, who sent her to live on Carratos when the Empire first sought to take over Lucazec. Akanah lived there as a normal individual, although she was the only Fallanassi on the planet. There, she met and married Andras Pell. Pell was 36 years her senior, and the marriage lasted a year until Andras passed away. Some time later, she sensed the presence of Luke Skywalker, although she did it through the command of the White Current, rather than the Force. She travelled to Coruscant and found Luke, even though he'd hidden himself away in Darth Vader's old residence. She came to him with an offer to help him find his mother and therey ease some of his emotional burden. She took Luke to her homeworld of Lucazec, but they failed to find any information on Luke's mother. They did find a Fallanassi marking indicating where they fled to, and left Lucazec only after battling with Imperial agents left behind to intercept the Fallanassi. They continued to follow a path known only to Akanah, travelling to Teyr and Atzerri before arriving on J't'p'tan. Akanah was very secretive about their search, which worried Luke about her motives. (BTS, SOL)

Akanah Norand Goss
this was Akanah's birthname. (SOL)

Akanah Norand Pell
this was Akanah's married name, following her marriage to Andras Pell. They lived in the city of Chofin, on the planet Carratos, for a year before Andras died of old age. It was at this point that she left Carratos to find Luke Skywalker and located the Fallanassi. (SOL)

Akanseh
one of the medical officers serving aboard the FarStar shortly after the Battle of Endor. Unknown to most of his shipmates, Akanseh was a former interrogation expert with a great deal of experience in torturing individuals. When the FarStar and its crew escaped from the Q'Maere Research Facility, Doctor Akanseh opted to remainon Q'Maere and help rehabilitate the prisoners there. (KO, KR)

Akarias, Piret
this Alliance pilot was the owner of the YT-1300 transport ship known as the Meandering Star. It wsa Piret who was assigned to bring a group of Alliance agents to investigate the loss of contact with the safeworld Stronghold. He escaped the initial attack of the Charon and their warship, the Desolate, fleeing the Charon bioscientists and making his way to his ship. However, the sight of his friends being experimented on by Charon scientists drove him mad, and he was irrational when the Alliance agents discovered him. (OS2)

Akh'laht
this Noghri, a member of clan Kihm'bar, brought the news of the Empire's deception to Rukh, aboard the Chimaera. (TTSB)

Akia
this was the Aramandi word for "clan." (SSR)

Akim's Munch
this streetside cafe, located in the city of Mos Espa on Tatooine, flourished during the period in which Jabba the Hutt brought podracing to the planet. Many humanoids considered the food at Akim’s to be undercooked and stringy, but aliens like Sebulba hung out there anyway. (IWE1)

Akin-Dower
this ancient corporation was a division of Corellia StarDrive, and specialized in the production of mining equipment. (TOJC)

Akinetic Field
a force field used to bind two structures together in deep space. (ISB)

Akkik
this Jawa worked for Jabba the Hutt on Tatooine, collecting protection money from local businesses. (TM)

Akol
this religion was an extremely power entity based on the planet Gascon. The High Advisor to the King and Queen was a member of the Akol, and he held a great deal of influence over the King. (GMS)

Akonije
this species of tree grew in the jungles of Thyferra. (BW)

Akrit'tar
a maximum security Imperial prison planet located in the Calaron Sector. (HSR, CSA, REB)

Akr43
this Alliance specification describes the necessary parameters for refitting a starship’s transponder. (CFG)

Aks Moe
this Gran was a native of the planet Malastare, and rose to become one of the planet’s primary political forces. As the Ambassador of the Congress of Malastare, Aks Moe was eventually elected as his planet's Senator to the Old Republic, and proved to be a skillful politician. However, like many of the Senators of his day, Moe was nothing more than a politician, and worked strictly by the laws and protocols put in place by the Republic. As the Old Republic rotted from within, Senators like Moe continued to demand that every item be put to a vote, and the Senate became bogged down in its own inefficiency. When Queen Amidala traveled to Coruscant to protest the Trade Federation's invasion of her homeworld of Naboo, Aks Moe was one of the first Senators to demand a commission be dispatched to Naboo to investigate the situation. Aks Moe was acted by Mark Coulier and voiced by Marc Silk in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, TPM, IS1)

Akul Witig
this Quarren served the Alliance as a Lieutenant within the security corps which protected the Calamari shipyards during the early stages of the Galactic Civil war. Later, after earning the respect of his Mon Calamari superiors, Akul Witig worked undercover with Ma'w'shiye on Karideph, as a member of Eclipse Team. Witig was known as an aquatic wilderness fighter within Eclipse Team. (SWJ4, AIR)

Akwin
this aquatic race is indigenous to the planet Lazerian IV, and descended from a species of savage sea creatures tens of thousands of years ago. The Akwin are mammalians, with blue-green fur and six limbs. The upper set of limbs resemble human arms, and end in three-fingered hands. The second set of limbs also resembles arms, but they originate from the midsection and end in flippers. The lower set of limbs are normal legs that end in webbed feet. Akwins also have thick tails which end with a flat fluke, which they use to propel themselved through the water. The long, flat head of the Akwin is covered with cilia, which can be nearly any color from white to blue to black. They breath via a combination of gills and two blowholes at the tops of their heads. The Akwin raise their food on underwater ranches, and live peacefully in huge cities on the ocean floor. They have developed a sophisticated, water-resistant technology which is rarely shared with off-worlders or the native humans. The humans of Lazerian IV believe the Akwin are some sort of legend, a belief fostered by the Akwin to keep the humans from discovering them. The Akwin are aloof and condescending to races which breathe air. While the human population has little information on the Akwin - they believe them to be legends, after all - the Akwin have a great understanding of human history and culture. (TSK, AE)

AK031995
this was the ID tag of the data taken from the Gnisnal's recovered datacore. It was deciphered by Ayddar Nylyekerka. (BTS)

Al T. Nadder
this talented Devaronian mechanic owned a repair shop in the resort city of Le Yer, on the planet Abregdao-Rae, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Al T. Nadder's Repair Shop
this repair shop, located in the resort city of Le Yer, on the planet Abregdao-Rae, was owned by the Devaronian Al T. Nadder during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

AL-BRT-34-X3
this BRT-series computer was installed at the University of Calamar on Esseles some two hundred years before the Battle of Yavin. Like the rest of the BRT series, Albert (as he was known to his friends) was an efficient machine that controlled much of the school's daily operations. However, like the rest of the BRT series, Albert's programming was reduced severly, and he was left sorting registration records and scheduling classes. When Albert invited the university's faculty to a party to celebrate his 200th year of service, only three members showed up. Albert went into a sulk, and began to ruminate within its own databases. Albert stumbled upon a cell of Alliance supporters within the student body, and began to assist them in their struggles against the Empire. He even discovered that one of their number was an Imperial spy, and arranged to have him arrested and removed from the cell. During this time, Albert also discovered that much of his programming remained intact, despite the attempt to reduce it many years earlier. He devoted himself to assisting the Alliancein any way possible, keeping his true abilities a secret. (CRO)

Al-Campur
this dusty city is the capital of the planet Sriluur. (MTSE)

Al'ma'den
this was the name given to the twelve priests of the Ni'Shaw-Dak Ministry who reported directly to the Third Prophet. (AIR)

Al'Nasrl Sector
a section of the galaxy. (ISB)

Alabak's Gold
a modified Calamari jump freighter used in the rescue of Adar Tallon from Tatooine. It was similar in shape, though somewhat smaller, than the YT-1300 freighter. (TM)

Alabar
a city on the planet Esseles. (CRO)

Alabash
this young planet was located on the far edge of Fakir Sector from the Core. It was once considered too volcanic to successfully mine, until the Empire realized that the planet was prime source of alantium. The Empire tried to establish a mining colony on the planet, but the Alliance was able to send in a strike team and disrupt the colony's construction. (SWCP)

Alakatha
this is the primary moon of the planet K'vath 5, and is known as a resort world for the wealthy and powerful. It has two continents, and has a semi-tropical climate. Corran Horn and Mirax Terrik honeymooned on Alakatha, at the expense of the New Republic, as a gift for their service as well as for public relations purposes. (IJ)

Alamar
this young Ghostling child was captured, along with Princess Arawynne, by Djas Puhr and brought to Mos Espa to be sold as a slave. Alamar was just five and a half at the time. (E1A5)

Alantium
this natural ore was an important component in the formation of starships hull plating. (SWCP)

Alaras, Cinto
a native of Rya, this man was a designer and medical consultant, employed by Neuro-Saav during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. Assigned to the facilities on Tauber, Doctor Alaras earned a reputation as a contributor rather than an inventor, and was suspected by many of his colleagues of plotting to steal their designs. He was educated at the Carosi XII Academy of Medicine shortly after the Battle of Yavin, and the position at Neuro-Saav was the first - and only - job offer he received. (AIR)

Alarik X
this man was the King of Devit, the only nation found on the planet Lazerian IV, in the years following the formation of the New Republic. He was staunchly loyal to the New Order, as was his wife, Careese. Alarik was a charismatic leader, and was an expert in military matters. (TSK)

Alaspin Casino
this destruction of this casino, which led to the deaths of the Kassandre crime family, was believed to be the work of Limna Yith. (SSR)

Alater
this Imperial Navy Captain was dispatched to investigate the native insurrections against Planetary Safaris. Hunting expeditions had been decimated by attacks from the "native beasts," and Alater was sent by sector governor Paro Lanto under the Dangerous Species Act to eliminate any threat. However, Alater discovered the true intelligence of the Barabels and had Planetary Safaris banned. (GG4)

Alater-ka
a permanent underground city and spaceport found on Barab I, it is crude by most standards. It was built by Shaka-ka to honor Imperial Captain Alater, who exposed the deception of Planetary Safaris, which was hunting the Barabels despite their intelligence. (GG4)

Alazhi
this organic material, grown by the Vratix on Thyferra, is the primary component that is refined into bacta. (XWN)

Alba
this planet was devastated by a series of bloody, chaotic civil wars in the decades leading up to the Battle of Naboo. (HP)

Albar
this unit of measure describes the strength of the power-pulse emitted by a repulsorlift generator. (CFG)

Albecus
a nondescript planet located in the Core, Albecus was the site of an Alliance safehouse in the years following the Battle of Yavin. (CRO)

Alboz Sea
this large body of water was located on the planet Veron. (PG1)

Alc
this planet, the third in the Gacerian System, is covered by a dense, hot jungle. The planet is tectonically active, which prevents any major construction. However, it does have a barely habitable atmosphere. Alc is orbited by a single moon. (PG2)

Alclad
this dense, yet lightweight armor was created by the Trade Federation's manufacturing centers for use in plating their droid starfighters. (SWK)

Alcoari
this fruit is native to the planet Kashyyyk. Its milk is used by Wookiees for drinking and cooking. Is the alcoari an animal? (RD)

Alcopay
this beast of burden was used by the Oldtimers who settled the planet Nam Chorios. The alcopays were succeptible to disease, and often carried parasites which were transferred to blerds and grazers. (POT)

Aldar Beedo
this Glymphid hitman was also one of the Outer Rim’s best podracer pilots. Aldar was recognizable by his long, thin snout and gangly arms. It was Aldar Beedo who killed the Fluggrian crimelord who was Kam Nale’s father, and earned him a bounty in several systems.

Beedo was later hired by Wan Sandage to eliminate Sebulba, in hopes that the Dug's domination of the podracing circuits could be broken. However, Beedo was unable to do this during the Boonta Eve Classic race won by Anakin Skywalker. Beedo drove a Manta RamAir Mark IV Flat-Twin Turbojet racer. (TPM, RAC, IG1)

Alder, Cal
this Alliance scout was a native of Kal'Shebol. He served under Bren Derlin for a number of years, and was one of Echo Base's perimeter patrol leaders. (CCG3)

Aldera
this city was the capital of the planet Alderaan, before it was destroyed by the first Death Star. The city was built on an island in the middle of a large lake formed eons ago by the impact of a huge meteor. Many of the planet's dignitaries were housed in Aldera, and the famous Alderaan University was situated there. Bail Organa once maintained a palace in the city, where his study overlooked the lake and was surrounded by gardens. (ISU, POT)

Alderaan
Princess Leia's small starship, she piloted it under the alias Lelila in order to travel unobtrusively. (CS, TNR)

Alderaan
this planet's human inhabitants were among the most peaceful beings in the galaxy. They were in continually harmony with the world around them, and chose to build their cities on top of sandstone bluffs and on stilts in the shallow seas. Their towering cities were built this way so that they wouldn't trample the grass or destroy the seas. The inhabitants of the planet catalogued over 8,000 species of grasses on the plains, and more than that in species of flowers. At the age of seventeen, an Alderaanian was considered and adult. It was a well-known custom that the adult members of Alderaan's society never cut their hair, but allowed it to grow into long tresses. Alderaan was a staunch supporter of the Old Republic, and many of its inhabitants served in the armed forces. Following the Clone Wars and the widespread destruction caused by it, the government of Alderaan outlawed all weapons. They placed all weapons aboard a transport ship and sent the ship out on a never-ending series of random hyperspace jumps. The homeworld of the Organa family, Alderaan's role in galactici politics took a detour during the later years of the Old Republic. As Palpatine continued to gain power, the Organas began organizing a resistance to his Presidency. With the implementation of the New Order, Alderaan became one of the primary supporters of the newly-formed Alliance to Restore the Republic. However, the outspoken dissatisfaction with Palpatine's rule led to the destruction of the planet. When Leia Organa was captured aboard the Tantive IV over Tatooine, she was taken to Grand Moff Tarkin for questioning. Tarkin tried to obtain information from her, but she proved too strong. Even when Tarkin threatened to destroy Alderaan with the new Death Star, Leia lied to him about the location of the Alliance's base. Tarkin took no chances, however, and ordered the destruction of the planet. Alderaan was blown to pieces just before the Battle of Yavin, and all life on the planet was destroyed. Some 60,000 natives survived because they were off-world at the time, and were granted a unique status within the Alliance, as well as the New Republic. (SW, SWR, CPL, GA, ISU, SOL, RD)

Alderaan Alliance
a collection of the survivors of the destroyed planet, they outwardly denounced the Empire's use of force. Once the Galactic Civil War was ended, they compiled a list of all the known designers and developers of the Death Star project. They used this list to bring the developers out of hiding to stand trial for their crimes. (COJ)

Alderaan Ascendency Contention
a power struggle within the Alderaanian hierarchy that occurred in 70 PE, in which the various high houses of Alderaan could not make up their mind as to which would assume the throne of Viceroy of Alderaan. After a three separate votes yielded no outcome, the Jedi Knights were asked to mediate the contention. Jorus C'baoth was among the Jedi assigned to the Contention, and their ruling was that Bail Organa had the rightful claim to the title of Viceroy. (DFR)

Alderaan Biotics
this hydroponics company supported Alderaan's need for foodstuffs and other organic supplies until the planet was destroyed by the first Death Star. They once established an operational facility on Borleias, but the site was abandoned after Alderaan was destroyed, and the faciity was staffed with maintenance droids and abandonded. It was discovered years later by Evir Derricote, who rerouted a large amount of Imperial monies to re-establish the site. He used it to produce the initial strains of the Krytos virus until Borleias was linerated by Rogue Squadron after a pair of engagements. Alderaan Biotics later became the New Republic's primary manufacturing facility for the creation of rylca. (XWN, KT)

Alderaan Department of the Arts
this was the primary govermental agency which funded and promoted the arts on the planet of Alderaan. (GA)

Alderaan Guard
before the planet Alderaan rid itself of weapons, the Alderaan Guard was one of the main, armed police forces. (BW)

Alderaan Royal Engineers
manufacturers of ion drive systems used during the Clone Wars, they were also prominent starship manufacturer during most of the Old Republic. ARE was most famous for their luxury yachts, space stations, and exotic vessels. They were gradually muscled out of the spotlight by aggressive firms like Kuat Drive Yards, and laid low during the New Order. ARE was also part of the secret rearmament program that was initiated on Alderaan, but never got the change after the first Death Star destroyed the planet Alderaan. (WEG, EGV)

Alderaan Ruge
a very rare and expensive liqueur. (POC)

Alderaan Select Academy for Young Ladies an exclusive Alderaanian school attended by Leia Organa. (WEG)

Alderaan Star Scream
this song, written by Ballifore Figg for his band, Hyperspaze and the Jump Lanes, was a haunting movement that somehow captured the painful destruction of the planet Alderaan. (HR)

Alderaan University
this famous institute was heralded as one of the most forward-thinking schools in the galaxy, and produced some of the best minds in many disciplines. Founded in Aldera by the great thinker Collus, it was designed to isolate its students from the outside world. Collus believed that this would lead to uniterrupted stretches of time that would allow student to contemplate their studies. Over the years, many other schools were built around Collus' nucleus. These "pods" were developed, not just by Alderaanian, but by any race wanting to further their knowledge through contemplation. The Ithorians had a botanical pod, for instance. During the early years of the New Order, the University became a center of anti-Imperial dissent. Many of the Alliance's brightest minds were schooled and recruited at the University, including the poet Hari Seldona. (ISU)

Alderaanian Ale
this fermented, alcoholic beverage was brewed from the fragrant grains once native to Alderaan. (RD)

Alderaanian Death Legion
this unit of the Alliance's Special Forces was made up exclusively of men and women who were natives of Alderaan. They were given the worst sort of missions against the Empire, mainly because they requested them. (ROE)

Alderaanian Flame-rose
this plant is extinct in the galaxy, following the destruction of Alderaan, except for a group maintained by the Gree at the Lonatran Gardens. (SWJ8)

Alderaanian Medical Association
this was the controlling body of the multitude of doctors and physicians of the planet Alderaan. (CCG5)

Alderaanian War Frigate
this was a class of warship produced to serve as part of Alderaan's fleet during the Clone Wars. They were among the most powerful ships of their time, and were the pride of Alderaan's fleet. The basic design of the War Frigate measured 250 meters in length, and was armed with ten quad turbolaser batteries and four medium ion cannons. (GA)

AlderaanMotors
this ancient starship drive system manufacturer also produced high-performance power generators. (EGV)

Alderath
a planet. (GMS)

Alderath Horticultural Society
this group of botanists and horticulturalists was based on the planet Alderath. During the Galactic Civil War, they sought out and obtained a specimen of the Millennium blossom. However, the plant was stolen by a crimelord while en route to Alderath. (GMS)

Alderbathe Monastery
a noted religious retreat. (HR)

Aldereen
1) a planet loyal to the New Republic. (CPL)
2) an insectile race. (CPL)

Aldivy
this planet was the homeworld of Lara Notsil, an alias used by Gara Petothel to gain entrance to the New Republic’s armed forces. The village in which she lived was destroyed by Admiral Trigit, who captured Lara and used her as a concubine. (IF)

Aldo
this was one of the binary stars at the center of the Aldo Spachian System. (SL)

Aldo Spachian Comet
this unusual comet was locked in an orbit between Aldo and Spach, the two stars at the center of the otherwise unexciting Aldo Spachian System. The comet was unusual in that it had a huge coma surrounding a tiny ball of ice and stone, and it had four distinct tails. The tails were formed as a result of its location between the two stars, with two tails shooting straight out behind it and the other two curling aorund it. The comet was something of a tourist attraction, and was generally regarded as the only reason a being would travel to the Aldo Spachian System. (SL)

Aldraig IV
this industrialized planet was part of the Aldraig System, located in the Core Worlds. The Empire established an AT-AT productions facility, as well as a TIE Fighter hull assembly plant, on the planet, wiped out large tracts of pristine forest to make room for them. (TBSB)

Aldrete, Agrippa
this man, a native of the planet Alderaan, served as his homeworld's Senator to the Old Republic, a position he served with Liana Merian. They were part of the delegation which voted during the ouster of Chancellor Valorum, after Queen Amidala of Naboo called for a vote of no-confidence in his ability to remove the Trade Federation's blockade of her homeworld. (IG1)

Alee Aroval
this Nimbanese data forger was surrounded by rumors of great associations with the Klatooinan Trade Guild and the Hutts themselves. He never discussed his past, but nevertheless was one of the best forgers in the galaxy. He managed to obtain a Bureau of Ships Services interface plug, allowing him to make nearly perfect alterations to a starship captain's permits and licenses. Of course, his fees were commensurate with his workmanship. (PSG)

Aleema
Satal Keto's cousin, and partner in the overthrowing of the Tetan monarchy just prior to the Sith War. She and Satal Keto learned much from their tutors, but became curious about the Sith magic during a trip to Coruscant. They stole a book of Sith lore from a museum on the planet, and returned to the Empress Teta System. From the book, they learned many ways to harness the power of the Dark Side of the Force through the Sith incantations. Aleema soon discovered that she was adept at the creation of illusions. She was instrumental in bringing down the Lord Keto and his supporters, tricking them with horrible images of Adegan Eels and terrible lizards. She later put her powers to a grander scale, creating illusions of space grazers to fool the combined Jedi-Republic forces during their battle to recover the Tetan system. She was mortally wounded, however, when Nomi Sunrider detected the use of the Dark Side and tried to stop her. She recovered from these wounds, to help her cousin continue the Krath struggle for power. She eventually became the mistress of Ulic Qel-Droma, seducing him as he was seduced by the Dark Side of the Force. Ulic's desire for power and glory overshadowed Aleema's attentions, and she was scorned by him when he launched his attack on Coruscant. She then turned the ancient Mandalore warriors to the Krath, but they too left her to fight along side Ulic. Near the end of the Great Sith War, Aleema and Crado tried to destroy the combined Old Republic and Jedi fleets in the Cron Cluster. Her knowledge of the Sith lore was augmented by the use of certain Sith weapons, one of which was the ancient starship used by Naga Sadow when he eluded the Old Republic in the Denarii System. She attempted to use Sadow's crystals to rip the core from a star and hurl it at the fleet. Although she succeeded in destroying most of the starships, she failed to control the power she wielded. The liberated solar core ignited the cores of the surrounding suns, and created an intense, multi-star supernova. The supernova engulfed three Auril Systems and the planet Ossus. It also killed Aleema and Crado, along with Dace Diath, Shoaneb Culu, and Qrrrl Toq. (DLS, TSW)

Aleen
this planet was located on the border between the Colonies Region and the Inner Rim. (IWE1)

Aleph-lamed-zayin-shin
the last code key that was given to Admiral Ackbar by Leia Organa-Solo, it was used to gain entrance to the Presidential residence on Coruscant. (BTS)

Aleron
this was one of the strongest planets of the Freeworlds Region of Tapani Sector, during the height of the New Order. Much of the planet's surface was arid, and covered with a thick smog. This forced the inhabitants to develop underground cities and domed canyon dwellings. The planet's true value was found in the abundance of natural ores hidden in its crust and mantle. (PGT)

Aleudrupe
see Yagaran Aleudrupe. (EGC, AE)

Alexan
this was the codename of the Imperial Governor controlled the planet Jastro III ans its surrounding system during the Galactic Civil War. He used it during his intervention between his daughter and Selas Ferr, pretending to be a supporter of the Alliance. The Governor' daughter was in love with Ferr, despite the fact that he was a member of the rebel underground. Alexan provided assistance to Ferr, and agreed to help him rescue a group of rebel prisoners in return for the safety of the Governor's daughter. Neither Ferr nor the daughter knew Alexan was the Governor, but the rescue of the prisoners and Alexan's daughter was a success. Unfortunately, Alexan was severely wounded in the escape attempt, and died of his wounds. Only after the escape did Ferr and the daughter realize Alexan's true identity. (HR)

Alfestril System
Captain Nevik of the Devastator believed that suspected Alliance undercover agents were working in this system, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. His crew found this information in a coded transmission delivered to Agent Sollaine by Darth Vader himsefl. Sollaine executed Nevik when the Captain refused his order to travel to Corulag instead. (SWJ12)

Alfreda Goot
this Togorian bounty hunter was known for her flowing red hair, which she allowed to fall out of her blast helmet. She wore a modified version of the Mandalorian armor made famous by Boba Fett, although Alfreda's armro wasn't as sophisticated. She had installed a pair of heavy-duty climbing claws in the wrists. When she learned that Jabba the Hutt had placed a bounty on Han Solo's head, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, she decided to try and collect on it. She devised a plan in which she captured Leia Organa on Ord Mantell, and then forced Han to accept a race to the Dockside Cafe on Mos Eisley. The winner of the race would recover Leia alive. Han had no choice but to accept the wager, but he managed to meet up with Captain Sodarra and his team of stormtroopers. This incident wasn't in Alfreda's plans, so when Han showed up at the Dockside Cafe with an Imperial squadron behind him, Alfreda was forced into action. She shot at Han and Sodarra, and a brief firefight ensued. During the fight, Han was able to shoot Alfreda and kill her, thereby recovering Leia and avoiding capture. (SL)

Algae Sack
airborne communities of microorganisms that inhabit Bespin's atmosphere. (JS)

Algae Sugar
this sweetener is created from the dried extracts of certain forms of algae. It is often dissovled in water and fermented, then consumed as a alcoholic beverage. (POT)

Algae-mat
this small micro-organism lived in the atmosphere of the planet Toydaria, and was believed to be essential to the survival of the Toydarian race. All Toydarians who traveled away from their homeworld brought a supply of algae-mat with them, which they regularly sprayed into the air of their new homes. (SWK)

Algar
1) this yellow star is at the center of the Lagarna System. (PG2)
2) a planet. (POT)
3) this is the native language of the populace of the planet Algar. (POT)

Algar Mining
headquartered in Algarine, this corporation controls all the mining in the Algaran System. It has been plagued by sabotage from Imperial elements in the Algaran System. (PG2)

Algar Pleasure Dome
Wing Tip Theel was one of the few slicers who found a way to penetrate the central computer core of this facility, on the planet Algar. (POT)

Algara II
the primary planet in the Algaran System, Algara is a world aligned with the New Republic but run with the style of an Imperial world. The government requires permits, applications, and depositions for nearly everything, and every piece of paperwork carries a fee. The populace, made up of the native Xan and a number of humans, fights against the government, which supports the New Republic, wanting to institute the basic tenets of the New Order without the bureaucracy. The normal day on Algara II lasts 24 standard hours; the year lasts 360 local days. Algara II has four moons. (PG2)

Algara V
the fifth planet in the Algaran System, Algara V is a gas giant. It has 14 natural satellites. (PG2)

Algara VI
the sixth planet in the Algaran System, Algara VI is a frozen wasteland covered with frozen water and methane. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Algarian
a planet raided by the Empire, in an effort to rout all Alliance support on the planet. (COJ)

Algarine
1) a wine best served at 50 degrees, in a 40-degree glass (COJ)
2) the capital city of the planet Algara II. The planet's monorail hub is located here. (PG2)

Algark Stalk
this carnivorous fungus is native to the planet Gamorr, and resembles a 3-meter-tall umbrella. They grow in colonies in the forests, and when they mature, the cap of the stalk releases thousands of spores into the wind. The spores can also be released when an animal bumps into the stalk, and the animal can accidentally breathe in the spores. If this happens, the creature becomes an unwitting host for a new colony of stalks. (SWJ10)

Algeran Faction
this anti-Imperial group violently opposed the assention of Palpatine to the position of Emperor. Based on the planet Esseles, the Algeran Faction caused widespread damage and loss of life during Palpatine’s early years as Emperor. (SWJ9)

Algic Current
a wide-ranging ocean current on Chad III, the Algic Current flows from the planet's equator almost to its Arctic Circle. The tsaekle would migrate with the current each year. (COJ)

Algor
this planet is famous for two exports: pirates and lawyers. (SWJ9)

Algunnis
this binary star, located in Trax Sector, is something of an anomlay. Scientists believed that the double star wandered through its area of the galaxy without any planets, but picked up orbital debris as it moved. At the time of the Battle of Yavin, Algunnis is surrounded by a huge asteroid belt, made up of planets and other solar bodies Algunnis had captured and crushed with its intense gravity field. (GMK)

Ali Tarrak
this pirate was able to steal several TIE Defenders from the Empire in the Yrrna System. (TIE)

Ali-Alann
this Jedi Knight was the caretaker of the youngest of the trainees in the Temple on Coruscant, during the last years of the Old Republic. He was known among the Jedi for his steady nerves and calm demeanor. (CT)

Alien Combine
this underworld organization gave the impoverished aliens of the planet Coruscant a rebellious voice. Led by Dmaynel Kiph, the Combine provided a voice for aliens by acting as a sort of union for the creatures working in the Invisible Sector. They helped the Rogue Squadron pilots when they infiltrated Coruscant, highlighting the fact that may Gamorreans and Quarren were being rounded up for no good reason, and never returning. (WG)

Alien Protection Zone
an area of Coruscant's Imperial City set aside for the habitation of non-human labor during the New Order. It was set up to appease many Old Republic Senators who felt that the New Order unfairly treated aliens. (WG)

Alien Quarter
a sector of the Bonadan Southeast Spaceport II which is inhabited almost exclusively by non-humans. (HSR)

Aliha sel valle volgoth
this Old Corellian question translates to 'what do you want?' (SWAJ)

Alim, Jukas
a minstrel popular in the galaxy around the time of Han and Leia's marriage. (CPL)

Alima
a native of Coruscant, Alima grew up in the Empire. He was a quick study, and progressed rapidly in the Imperial Navy. He was in command of the Star Destroyer Conquest when it leveled much of Ithor's Cathor Hills before the Ithorians surrendered. However, when Alima was given the opportunity to become the Captain of Darth Vader's flagship, Alima chose a demotion instead, realizing that Vader's quick temper often made quick work of flagship Captains. His effectiveness to the Empire was not diminished, though, and Alima was placed in charge of locating C-3PO and R2-D2 after the droids escaped from the Tantive IV. He discovered Momaw Nadon in Mos Eisley, and quickly recognized his old Ithorian nemesis. He demanded that Nadon find the droids or the Empire would wipe out his gardens. Nadon could not bring himself to betray the Alliance, and when the Millennium Falcon blasted out of Mos Eisley, Nadon told the Imperial Prefect that Alima had disregarded Nadon's information pointing to the Falcon. This was as bold a lie as Nadon had ever told, but it accomplished its purpose: the Prefect executed Alima on the spot. Nadon, adhering to the Law of Life, stole genetic samples of Alima's DNA, and cloned it when he returned to Ithor. Alima's twin sons served Nadon, as punishment for their father's actions. (TME)

Alinda Solaris
this New Republic Naval Commander was the Sector Intelligence Officer for the Kalinda System. He called the Republic’s primary Naval officers together to implement Project Second Chance. (TSK)

Alion
this was one of the most heavily-guarded planets of the New Republic. It is also known for its potent neurotoxins. (SOP, IJ)

Alis Point
this planet was the site of an Alliance base that had to be abandoned. (MTS)

Alk'lellish III
this planet, located in the Sumitra Sector, is the homeworld of the ketrann. (TB, REB)

Alkur
this desolate world is the first planet in the Lazerian System. It is an extremely hot, searing world with no natural life. (TSK)

Alkhara
a notorious bandit who roamed the Tatooine wastes, Alkhara used the B'omarr palace as his base for thirty-four years, sharing the palace with the remaining B'omarr monks while he ravaged unwary moisture farmers. He allied his band of thieves with the Sand People long enough to use their strength and ferocity to wipe out a police garrison. He then killed all of the Sand People that had helped him. It was this cruel act that created the feud between Sand People and humans, a feud which continued for centuries after Alkhara's death. When the Sand People sought to exact revenge on him, he fled to the B'omarr palace. (DS, ISU)

Alkherrodyne Propulsions
this corporation believed in producing products that failed in the field after a short period of time. This "programmed obsolescence" meant that customers would have to buy another of their products in a short time, ensuring future profits. This policy got them into trouble when they released the Azaria 66 unit for sale. The Azaria 66 began exploding under normal operating conditions, and

Alkherrodyne was hit with a number of lawsuits. Alkherrodyne, looking for a scapegoat to avoid penalties and fines, fingered Klaus Vandangante as the engineer whose shoddy work led to the failure of the Azaria 66. They took Vandangante to court, and professionally and financially bankrupted him. This was a short-lived victory, though, for public concern with Alkherrodyne products led to poor sales and the eventual dissolution of Alkherrodyne altogether. (CSA)

All I Can Ever Do
Tinian I'att sang this song as a member of Sprig Cheever's band, during her escape from Druckenwell. (TFE)

All-Human Free-For-All this gladiator-like event is held regularly in the Victory Forum of the city known as Dying Slowly. In the event, four humans (the combatants are human, to make the fighting "even") are placed in the arena and ordered to fight to the death. The last combatant standing is declared the winner. The combatants are pulled from the criminal ranks, and the winner is usually given some form of freedom. In general, the three largest combatants gang up on the weakest individual, killing him before going berserk against each other. Han Solo once survived the Free-For-All, after being caught cheating at cards. This occurred when Han was a young man. The Paradise Snare dates this event when Han was seventeen, alhtough Tales of the Bounty Hunters places it some fifteen years before the Battle of Hoth. (TBH, TPS)

All-Terrain Anti-Aircraft Vehicle
see AT-AA (FC)

All-Terrain Armored Transport
see AT-AT

All-Terrain Personal Transport
see AT-PT

All-Terrain Scout Transport
see AT-ST

All-World Games
this collection of sporting events brought together the best athletes from all the Senali clans, as contestants vied to win the prestige of being the best on the planet. (SP)

Allacrete
this bulding material was strong yet lightweight, being composed of synthetic concrete and aluminum. (TA)

Alland Yards
this starship repair facility was located some distance from the Koornacht Cluster, and was aligned with the New Republic. (SOL)

Allashane, Jess
one of the Alliance's younger veterans, Jess was a member of Echo Base's cold-weather troopers. Like others who supported the Hoth base, he was trained to counter Imperial cold-environment tactics. (CCG3)

Allegiance
1) this Super-class Star Destroyer served as the Imperial command ship during the first battle of Calamari. It emerged from relative obscurity to support the reborn Emperor Palpatine's bid for galactic power, but was destroyed when the Emancipator caught it with its shields down during the Battle of Calamari. (DE1, DESB)
2) this was one of the New Republic Imperial-class Star Destroyers assigned to Han Solo and the Mon Remonda during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. Years later, the Allegiance was assigned to escort Wedge Antilles and his pilots to Adumar for the negotiations to bring the world into the New Republic. (SOC, SOA)

Allegiant
one of Bel Iblis' Katana-fleet Dreadnaughts. (DFR)

Alleth
a species of carnivorous plant native to the planet Ithor. Small specimens are mostly harmless, but larger plants will kill and eat small rodents. The alleth plant has broad laeves which are green at the edges and bright orange and yellow in the middle. When prey gets close enough, the alleth lashes out with its leaves, hoping to stun its prey. (TME, GOF9)

Allia
this Imperial Customs officer was stationed on the planet Wroona during the Galactic Civil War. (PSG)

Alliance Civil Government
one of the primary organizations which formed the Alliance to Restore the Republic, the Civil Government was headed by Mon Mothma and saw to the normal functions of a recognized government: general welfare, protection, foreign relations, and finance. (RASB)

Alliance Credit
the official monetary unit used by the Alliance, it was exchanged on par with Imperial credits on most Alliance worlds. Other worlds would exchange 25 Alliance credits for a single Imperial credit. (RASB)

Alliance Diplomatic Corps
during the Galactic Civil War, this branch of the Alliance to Restore the Republic was charged with reaching out to other races and establishing alliances with them, thereby gaining allies in the struggle against the Empire. (SWJ1)

Alliance High Command
1) the group which monitors the day-to-day activities of the New Republic. (JS)
2) along with the Alliance Civil Government, the High Command was the heart and soul of the Alliance. Led by Mon Mothma, this body consisted of all the Commanders and war ministers of the Alliance. (RASB)

Alliance Media Monitoring Project
this Alliance operation was developed to monitor Imperial holotransmissions and other forms of communication and glean any important or useful information from them. Among the information obtained during this operation was the location of several newly-discovered planets. (TA)

Alliance Military
the following table describes the ranking system used by the Alliance. The highest rank is at the top of each column. Because the Alliance military was made up of a variety of command structures, there isn't always a one-to-one mapping of ranks among them.

Alliance Army	Alliance Navy	Alliance Special Forces
General	Admiral	General
Colonel	Captain	Colonel
Major	Commander	Major
Captain	Lieutenant	Captain
Lieutenant	Lieutenant	Senior Lieutenant
Lieutenant	Ensign	Lieutenant
Sergeant Major	Chief Petty Officer	Master Sergeant
Sergeant	Petty Officer	Sergeant
Senior Trooper	Senior Deckman	Senior (First) Trooper
Trooper	Deckman	Trooper

(ROE)

Alliance of Free Planets
this was the name of a temporary government established by the Alliance's High Command, in the wake of the Battle of Endor. Lasting just a few months, this body helped define the goals, methods, and formation of the New Republic. (TBSB)

Alliance of Rebel Planets another name for the Alliance to Restore the Republic. (SWTJ)

Alliance Starbird
this was the name sometimes used to describe the "rising phoenix" insignia of the Alliance to Restore the Republic. (PP)

Alliance to Restore the Republic
the group of planets which opposed Palpatine's New Order. The name was often shortened to simply the Alliance, and was called The Rebellion by the Imperials. It grew out of pockets of resistance to the New Order, and was promoted early on by Mon Mothma and Bail Organa. Following Imperial attacks on Mantooine and Ghorman, the Alliance grew at a furious pace, linking disenfranchised humans with oppressed alien races. While it promoted peaceful union of all races and planets, the Alliance realized that military might would be key to the Galactic Civil War. With Mon Mothma as the Alliance's Commander in Chief, it was politically and strategically sound. Following his rescue from Moff Tarkin, Ackbar was named the Alliance's Fleet Commander. Crix Madine used his military training to become the Alliance's Special Forces Commander, while Jan Dodonna became the Starfighter Commander. In addition to these positions, the Alliance recognized the need for a Sector Commander, Fleet Intelligence Officers, Ordnance and Supply teams, and Support Services. The leaders of the Alliance recognized that, if the war came down to sheer numbers, the Empire would win eventually. The Alliance was very cash-poor, and relied on its member races and creeds to help fund its operations. Thus, the Alliance relied on cunning and stealth at first, winning small victories while planting seeds of doubt in the Imperial mind. Following the destruction of the first Death Star, the Alliance became more than a rag-tag coalition; it became a legitimate threat to the Empire. Palpatine saw this, and sent the majority of his war machine in search of the Alliance. By moving quickly and quietly, the Alliance evaded Imperial pursuit, but took severe losses in doing so. When the Emperor allowed the plans to the second Death Star to be leaked, the Alliance jumped at the chance to overthrow the Empire. The combined might of the Alliance's members, coupled with Palpatine's greed and conceit, overcame the Imperial yolk, and the heart of the Empire was killed during the Battle of Endor. Following the clean-up operations from the Battle of Endor, the leaders of the Alliance re-established the Republic. Dubbed the New Republic, it embodied the ideals of the Old Republic while meshing in the renewed spirit of racial diversity. (SWN, ESB, ROTJ, XW)

Alliance Veterans Victory Association
this brotherhood of retired Alliance veterans was more than a retirees' club, but something less of an armed forces reserve. The AVVA publishes the newspacket Fleet Watch. During the Black Fleet Crisis, the AVVA was led by Bren Derlin. (TT)

Alliance War Bond
this bond was issued by the Alliance, and was guaranteed to mature between five and twenty-five years after the end of the Galactic Civil War. While it was a risky investment at best, the bonds allowed the Alliance to obtain badly needed credits. (RASB)

Alliance War Museum
this Imperial City monument held the various military artifacts retrieved by Operation Flotsam and the Historical Battle Site Preservation Act. The HBSPA funded the museum, which was open to the public. The Museum's curators desparately wanted to obtain the original Millennium Falcon, but Han Solo wouldn't allow it. (BTS, HT)

Allic
this Lord served as the owner of a wondrous casino found on the planet Qiaxx. He was an unusual being, with a huge, bulbous body supported by four short legs. His upper torso was tiny on comparison, and was attached to the front of his body. Two small arms allowed him to manipulate objects. Allic's ovoid head was dominated by two wide, thin eyes. (MJEH)

Allied Tion
this is the middle of the three sectors that make up the Tion, and is located between the Cronese Mandate and the Tion Hegemony. The capital world of the sector is Jaminere, and includes Lianna, Lorrad, and Cadinth. (ML)

Alluta
a Ferroan stringed instrument. (RP)

Alluuvia
this planet was discovered shortly after the Battle of Yavin, during an exploration mission funded by Radell Mining Corporation. Its ownership was disputed by the Scourge, a pirate gang who tried to claim it as their own. Radell had sent the Gray Griffins to follow up their exploration activities, but they were captured by the Scourge and held for ransom until a group of Alliance agents rescued them. Alluuvia was an ocean world whose waters were desne with metals and minerals that made it toxic to off-worlders. Alluuvia was also the homeworld of the Anguilla. The Empire's Imperial Mining, Limited, tried to establish a mining outpost on the planet, recognizing the concentrations of alanium, doonium, and zersium were enough to fund any operation. The Anguilla, led by Anyar, opposed the Imperial occupation, and with some help from the Alliance, they were able to drive off the Imperial. Anyar eventually agreed to allow Radell Mining Corporation to mine the planet, so long as the Ithorian Iych-thae to oversee their work. (OE)

Alluvial dampers
the part of a ship's hyperdrive system responsible for regulating the emission of thrust-generating ion particles. (ESB)

Allya
a rogue Jedi, exiled by the Jedi Knights during the Old Republic and sent to Dathomir. She first trained the rancors as mounts, and was responsible for showing the first Dathomirian women how to use the Force. Allya is generally given credit for writing the first Book of Law, although subsequent leaders and even other clans have modified the Book for their own use. (CPL, CTD)

Allyan Magic
this is the term generally used to describe the usage of the Force taught by the ancient Jedi Allya to the women of the planet Dathomir. It refers to the essentially good use of magic. Like all forms of Dathomiran "magic," Allyan Magic employs spells to gather the presence of the Force to a woman. She then channels it and uses its strength to create the desired effect. (CTD)

Allyuen
Darth Vader, in an effort to discover the Alliance's primary base, sent probe droids to Allyuen. He also sent droids to Hoth and Tokmia. (ESBR)

Almakar System
a planetary system. (RPG)

Almania
this temperate world is the primary planet in the Almanian System. The planet supported two sentient races, the Je'Har and humankind. The Je'Har were a powerful people, and subjugated many human tribes. Among the humans that suffered under the Je'Har were the family of Dolph, who later adopted the name Kuellar and destroyed the Je'Har in revenge. Almania has three moons, onw of which is called Pydyr, and was a rival of its parent world. Almania had a meager economy under the yolk of the Je'Har, while Pydyr prospered. (TNR)

Almar
this minor world is the primary planet in the Almaran System. Located in the Elrood Sector, much of the planet was dedicated to the tourist trade. When the Empire invaded the sector, the Alliance was able to erase the data files in the central computer of Almar Upside, the planet's primary city. Dummy corporations were set up, and the planet remained outside of Imperial control. The Alliance then set up a number of listening posts on the planet, in an effort to obtain information on the Imperial forces nearby. Almar is a pleasant world, covered with tropical beaches, jungles, and wide plains of unusual orange grasses. (PG, TBSB)

Almar Upside
this space station, orbiting the planet Almar, houses the planet's central computer system. Considered to be the planet's capital city, Almar Upside was the only major city on or near the planet. (PG)

Almost Authentic
this was the name of a Surronian L19 freighter stolen by a group of pirates from Imperial Moff Aricos Dreleene. He had hoped to obtain an L19a special edition, but discovered that his "bargain" was a run-of-the-mill L19. He invested a huge sum of credits to have outlaw techs refit the ship to appear to be a true L19a, including modification of the serial numbers and transpoder codes, and Dreleene was able to pass it off for many years. However, a band of pirates saw the First Edition and captured it, thinking they had acquired an L19a. After learning that it was a fake, the pirates turned the Moff and the ship over to the Alliance. The Alliance refitted the ship, and renamed it the Almost Authentic. The Alliance armed the ship with the stock twin blaster cannons as well as a turret-mounted ion cannon. (SS)

Almowri
one of the seven clans of Ammuud. (CSA)

Alole
one of Leia Organa-Solo's diplomatic aides, during her tenure as the Chief of State of the New Republic. (BTS, SOL)

Aloo, Sim
this quiet, patient man served as Emperor Palpatine's senior political advisor during the period leading up to the Battle of Endor. Aloo rarely spoke out loud, but was known for his remarkable wisdom and control. (CCG11)

Alorthas
this planet, second in the Derilyn System, is a hot, rocky wasteland. (PG)

Alou Asteroid Belt
this asteroid belt separates the first and second planets in the Baralou System. (PG1)

Alpha Blue
the codename of the hidden New Republic military operation led by Hiram Drayson. Alpha Blue officially doesn't exist; it was created by Mon Mothma to work around the mechanisms of government and diplomacy when necessary. Alpha Blue served as another set of eyes and ears for the head of the New Republic, providing necessary information from discreet sources. (BTS)

Alpha Kentrum
Michael Tandre's starship, which he was forced to crash-land on Orellon II. The ruins of the ship eventually became the basis for the Temple of the Je'ulajists. (SWAJ)

Alpha Outpost
this small Imperial base was captured by Sasnak Toxis and Thar'quan as a feint to mask the Alliance's activities on Ralltiir. (CRO)

Alpha Point Zero
this was the designation of the Shell Hutts' highest level of authority. (MA)

Alpha Premier
this was the political title given to the primary leaders of the Shistavanen people. (AIR)

Alpha TR-8
this was the codename for the Imperial prison facility located on the planet Rordak. Alpha TR-8 maintained a perfect record of no escapes during the Galactic Civil War, although later inspection of the facility's plans revealed that escape was possible. At maximum capacity, Alhpa TR-8 could hold more than 5,400 prisoners, all of which were forced to work in a nearby barthierum mine. (PG1)

Alpha Team
a generic term used to describe the first survey group to determine a newly-found planet's resources and habitability. (HSE)

Alpha 13
this was the key code used by the Alliance to verify that beings were allowed to use drop point Condor. (SWJ14)

Alpha*-class Gunboat
this is the class of warship that included the XG-1 Star Wing. (XW)

Alpha-foreman
this was the term used by Kuat Drive Yards to describe the individual responsible for overseeing the various construction projects going on at the facilities in orbit near Kuat. The α-foreman was supported by several β-supervisors. (HM)

Alpha-plus Charge
this is a compact device filled with highly-explosive material, and is used most often in mining operations. Alpha-plus charges are incredibly powerful, and are used only when other, more conventional methods of excavating rock prove futile. (JAL)

Alpha-1733 Mu-9033
these were the standardized coordinates of Obi-Wan Kenobi's hut, located in the first quadrant of Tatooine. (SWR)

Alpha-3A
this was one of the clearance levels developed by the Imperial Security Bureau, and denoted a high level of clearance. (POM)

Alpha-4H
this Imperial code denoted a higher level of security than Alpha-3A. (POM)

Alpheridies
the planet that is home to the Alpheridian and Miraluka races, Alpheridies was located in the Abron System. It was first seltted by the Miraluka thousands of years before the fall of the Sith Empire, during their search for a new homeworld. (FNU, DLS, TOJC)

Alpheridian
an alien race native to the planet Alpherides, these humanoids have a complex social structure built around a single queen. This 1,000-yer-old queen is the sole female on the planet, and she mates with all the males when they reach the age of 150. She lives in a palace in the great Alpherides Ocean. (FNU)

Alsakan
this planet was founded before the advent of the Old Republic. It was settled by the colonists who brought the Kuat Explorer to the Core. Over the years, the inhabitants have made war on each other with regularity and passion, in a series of battles known as the Alsakan Conflicts. The wondrous warships used in the battles were the design basis for the Invincible-class dreadnaughts. When Palpatine rose to power and formed the Empire, Alsakan supported the New Order. It surrendered quickly to the New Republic, however, when Ackbar came to recover the planet. (DESB, CSA)

Alsakan Conflicts
a series of battles among the ancient inhabitants of the planet Alsakan. (CSA)

Alta-wave Calibrator
this piece of technology was considered illegal by the Old Republic. (IWE1)

Altagak
known as "high-speed death om four legs" on its homeworld of Altora, this reptilian creature was a solitary hunter which stalked its prey with incredible stealth. When a target was decided upon, the altagak would lunge from its hiding place and attack. During these attacks, altagaks have been clocked running at more than 80 kilometers an hour. They were considered the apex predator on Altora, which gave them long lifespans reaching 28 standard years. (COG)

Altar Moon
this Alliance modular conveyor group supported the Organarms factory, and was destroyed in an Imperial attack. (TIE)

Altar of Death
this chamber within the Charon starship Desolate was the primary temple of Charon worship. It represented the black hole which was consuming the Charon homeworld. In the center of the chamber was a huge, black stone monolith which seemed to consume the Force and any life energies near it. Any lifeform which is near the monolith is suddenly drained of its life force, in accordance with the Charon belief that all life must return to the Void. (OS)

Altar of Promises
this religious site is found just outside Colony One, on Ylesia. Located at the foot of the Mountains of the Exalted, the Altar is the site of the daily devotions performed by the t'landa Til for the pilgrims which flock to the planet. This religious ceremony is ruse perpetrated by the t'landa Til, who simply use resonant pouches in their necks to create vibrations which affect the sensory areas of the brains of other sentients. (TPS)

Altarrn
a planet that is home to the night-gliders. (HSE)

Alter
the third of the Force skills which Jedi can master, Alter is also the most difficult. It involves the Jedi's ability to modify the Force and redistribute its energy. (SWSB, IJ)

Altier
the primary planet in the Altier System. (SWAJ)

Altin Wuho
this assassin worked for Dirk Balor during the Galactic Civil War. Wuho worked with a captive nigthmare demon known as Reist, which he controlled with a lead-linde helmet and a forcefield bubble. Wuho was sent to capture Luke Skywalker in the Lapez System, and cornered Luke on Lapez 3. Wuho sent Reist in first, with a homing device to locate his position later. Wuho followed in a shuttle, and discovered that Reist had been badly injured by Luke in a fight. Wuho then engaged Luke himself, and was injured. This injury revealed to Luke that Wuho was an android. Luke took parts from the droid body to repair his own damaged ship, leaving the cybernetic corpse of Wuho behind on Lapez 3. (CSWDW)

Altoona
this is the capital city of the planet Bethal. (SWAJ)

Altor 14
this world is the primary planet in the Roti-Ow System, and homeworld of the Avogwi (Altorian Birds) and the NuiWit (Altorian Lizards). Discovered by Rego Mineral Company, it is a hot, dry planet whose lifeforms have adapted unique methods of obtaining and collecting water. Its day lasts about 94 standard hours, which contributes to the arid nature of its surface. During the 47-hour "day," any water that collected on the surface would evaporate away. (GG4, COJ)

Altora
this planet was covered with rolling plains and savannahs. (COG)

Altorian Birds
see Avogwi (GG4)

Altorian Lizards
see Nuiwit (GG4)

Altorian Milk-ale
a strange beverage fermented on Altor 14. (SL)

Altratonne
this planet was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War. It was uninhabited, which was the primary reason the Empire selected it to served as the site of a HoloNet relay station during the Galactic Civil War. (MBC)

Altratonne Prime
this star was the primary body around which the planet Altratonne orbitted. The star's regular solar flares showered the planet with ionic storms, disrupting communications. (MBC)

Altratonne Station
this was the name of the Empire's primary HoloNet relay communications base, found on the planet Altratonne. It was eventually destroyed by an Alliance strike team led by Lav Bilsek. (MBC)

Altrax
this frozen planet is the eighth planet in the Atrig System. It has a single moon. (PG2)

Altronel, Ketrian
this woman, a native of the planet Hargeeva, grew up in a blue-collar family of cloth merchants. Her parents recognized her ability to learn and study, and worked hard to ensure that she had a thorough education. Ketrian chose to study the field of geology, and was awarded a scholarship to a university attached to the Imperial Academy. She excelled there, and was best known for her revolutionary ideas in the field of metal sciences. She was also a collector of swords and knives, as she was fascinated with the ways in which metal could be shaped to form the blades. She took up fencing, and through the sport she met Stevan Makintay. The two eventually fell in love, and Ketrian “branded” him with a scar on the cheek when he tried to break up a duel between herself and another woman who made advances toward him. Mak proposed marriage to her, which led to Makintay’s disinheritance. After his father had him sent away to prison, he told Ketrian that Mak had left her for a life as a starfighter pilot. She felt betrayed by Mak, and fell deeply into her work at the Arginall Refinery. Her work with the minerals of the planet led to the discovery of how to increase the heat-absorption properties of ostrine ten-fold, which caught the attention of Nial Pedrin. She later saw Mak in a holovid depicting the results of his failed rebel uprising in Arginall City, but didn’t get a chance to confront him until sometime later. Then, Mak brought along several members of his Alliance team, in hopes of convincing her to join him and the Alliance. She refused, and was captured with him as part of an Imperial raid and shipped off to a penal colony. When she learned that Pedrin had killed her good friend, Alikka Nolan, during an intense interrogation session, Ketrian began to doubt her loyalties to the Empire. Following their “rescue” from the Imperials by the Ghawem pirates, Ket rejoined Mak and became part of the Alliance, working out of Eyrie Base. (SWJ8)

Alui Corridor
this hyperspace trade route was often ambushed by pirates, during the height of the New Order. (AIR)

Aluma
this Imperial shuttle transported important personnel to the Silver Bull during the evacuation of the SpecWar facilities. (TIE)

Alumabronze
an alloy used in making door casings and other interior structures. (LCM)

Alurion
this planet is known for its vast tar pits. (VP)

Alusteel
an alloy used in making starship hulls. (SCRE)

Alvak, T.
an Imperial Pilot, Alvak graduated with honors from the Imperial Naval Academy on Prefsbelt IV before becoming a well-decorated officer. He is a TIE Fighter pilot, serving in the Solaset Fleet during the Galactic Civil War. (SWSB)

Alvien
a stormtrooper squadron assigned to set up roadblocks in Mos Eisley to keep R2-D2 and C-3PO from escaping Tatooine. (TME)

Alvor
this planet, the fourth in the Kidron System, is a large gas giant. (PG)

Alya
Borsk Fey'lya was a member of this Bothan clan. (MBC)

Alyak
this Fyodoi female was Kalor's wife. (PG2)

Alzoc pearls
gemstones often used a knifehandles. (TB)

Alzoc III
an Imperial world during the Galactic Civil War, Alzoc III is the homeworld of the Talz. It is known for its beautiful pearls, even though the planet is mostly covered by cold, frozen plains and hard-packed snow. It has no known moons. It was removed from the Galactic Registry by the Empire in order to protect a perfect source of slaves, and was replaced early in the reign of Leia Organa Solo as Chief of State of the New Republic. (TB, GG4, COJ)

Am-Shak
one of the gods revered and adored by the Weequay, Am-Shak was the god of thunder. (MTSE)

Amamanam
this New Republic Senator was a Bdas, and was a member of the Council on Security and Intelligence. He agreed with Krall Praget, regarding the loss of the Teljkon vagabond - and Lando Calrissian, Lobot, R2-D2, and C-3PO - as a failure. (SOL)

Amanaman
1) a nickname given to the Amanin race, who are often called the Headhunters. (ROTJ)
2) the nickname given to the Amanin warrior who was living in Jabba the Hutt's palace shortly before the Battle of Endor. His actual name was unknown. (CCG7)

Amanda Fallow
one of Kaarde's ships. (TLC)

Amanda's Toy II
this starship was owned by Unlimited Horizons, Incorporated, and was known in the New Republic's Registry as RN18-950319. (SOL)

Amani
the term used to describe a single member of the Amanin race. (GG12)

Amanin
an alien race native to the planet Maridun, the Amanin are a race of tall, flat-bodied creatures. Their long, thin trunks are punctuated by thin, gangly limbs which have allowed them to become expert hunters in the jungle fringes they inhabit. Their unusal body shape makes normal walking ungainly, but their ability to climb trees and roll along the ground makes them swift in their natural environment. Vital organs within the Amani body are small, and are distributed throughout their bodies, making them difficult to kill. Important organs are also duplicated, and their brains are really a network of distributed bundles of nerves. They are a tribal people with a primitive level of technology. Most Amanin are skeptical and even fearful of high-technology items. (GG12)

Amanoa
this woman, who lived 4,000 years before the advent of the New Order, was the Queen of Onderon, and wife to King Ommin. For many years, Amanoa was unaware that Ommin had been studying the ways of the Sith. When did find out, she tried to break the hold the Dark Side of the Force had on him, but failed utterly. Instead, Ommin brought her into the Sith magicks and began training her. She had some ability to control the Force, and Freedon Nadd's presence allowed her access to the Dark Side quite easily. She became known as the "Dark Queen." She held the Onderanians away from the planet's other wild tribes until her daughter, Galia, fell in love with the Beastmaster prince. She was so enraged that she called on Nadd and the Dark Side of the Force and tried to defeat the Beastmasters herself, but Master Arca returned her to the Light Side. The removal of the Dark Side energy killed her, and she was buried with Ommin and Freedon Nadd on the Dxun moon. (TOJ, DLS, TOJC)

Amarin
this planet, located in the Allied Tion sector, is known for its dense forests. (ML)

Amazing Alonzo
this circus star was part of Kersh Lauskner's Traveling Animal/Acrobatic Arcadium. Alonzo owned and controlled a wild trompa, which he kept at bay with an electric prod. During a performance at the Gralleenya Gala, Alonzo's trompa got loose and attacked a young child. The child was rescued by Rogan, who was injured by the beast. A group of Alliance agents - on Questal to rescue Tiree - subdued the trompa before it could do any more damage. It was later discovered that the beast wsa reacting to the low-level emanations of Moff Bandor's hurlothrumbic generator. (GCQ)

Ambak
this Mon Calamari physicist proposed the existence of the Ambak Limit. (GG2)

Ambak Limit
proposed and extrapolated by the Mon Calamari physicist Ambak, this limit identifies the distance from a planet within which moons can be formed from the accretion of leftover matter. Within the Ambak Limit, the gravitational pull of the planet serves to tear apart any moon-like body. Beyond the Limit, moons can be formed or "collected" from space-borne bodies. (GG2)

Ambar, Drexler
this man was a well-known fisherman and adveturer who traveled to a large number of planets, documenting their attractions for other enthusiasts. He was noted for insinuating that the planet Neftali was completely devoid of the Force, and was an entity within itself. He later settled on Neftali and opened Ambar's Big Game, Tackle, and Gear Shop to cater to the sportsbeings who traveled to Neftali. Drexler and his wife, Keturah, had seven sons and a daughter before he disappeared on a routine check of traps near their home. Keturah and the locals searched for months, but never found him. (BSS)

Ambar, Keturah
this womanwas born to a family of fishermen on the planet Neftali, and was generally regarded as the oldest living resident of the planet during the height of the Galactic Civil War. She fell in love with, and later married, sportsman Drexler Ambar, and the pair settled on Neftali to raise a family of seven sons and a single daughter. After Drexler's disappearance shortly before their sixtieth wedding anniversary, Keturah maintained their business, Ambar's Big Game, Tackle, and Gear Shop. (BSS)

Ambar's Big Game, Tackle, and Gear Shop
found by Drexler Ambar in Cordel Cove, on the planet Neftali, this supply store offered virtually everything a being could need to go hunting or fishing on the planet. Ambar's also had a guide service, and rented out a wide selection of equipment and vehicles. (BSS)

Ambaril
this is the capital city of Chandaar. (ML)

Ambassadorial Dining Area
this part of the Imperial Palace on Coruscant was decorated in gold-leaf, and was highlighted by artifacts collected by the Emperor Palpatine. The New Republic maintained the furnishings in the hall, and used it as a Senatorial meeting place after Dolph bombed the Senate Assembly Chamber. (TNR)

Amber
1) member of Mazzic's crew, pilot of the Skyclaw. (TLC)
2) this was the name of the star which was central to the Ambria System. (TOJC)

Amber Eye
this jewel was owned by Schnil Hakoon, but was stolen by Pierce Mantrell shortly after the Battle of Yavin. A team of Alliance agents, on Kirtania to obtain Shiarha Root to combat the Direllian Plague on Tiragga, captured Mantrell and returned the jewel to Hakoon. (SWJ1)

Amber Sun Mining Corporate
a gas mining operation that works in the Bextar System. It imported Entymals as slaves to work as miners. (SWAJ)

Ambitious
this Imperial supply ship crashed into the B'knos mining colony, completely destroying it. (TBSB)

Ambria
the world which Jedi Master Thon tamed, it is a ringed world in the Stenness System. It is barren and sparse, and was once full of Dark Side energy. At one point in TOJ, Oss Willum says that Thon rid the planet Arkania of the Dark Side, instead of Ambria. When Master Thon arrived there, he pushed back the Dark Side into its source, Lake Natth. He lived there from that point until his death. The planet became a research location several millennia later, when BioTech Industries set up a campus there. It has four moons. (TOJ, DA, HXW)

Ambrian Wastes
this was the vast desert which covered most of Ambria's equatorial region. (TOJC)

Amee
this six-year-old girl was born to parents on the desert world of Tatooine. Growing up, she was a friend of young Anakin Skywalker. Like their friend Seek, Amee believed that Anakin's homemade podracer would never fly. Amee was portrayed by Jenna Green in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IS1)

Amelkin versus Tovath
this was a classic match of Quadrant, replayed for many years because of the incredible strategems involved. (IF)

Amerce
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was being refitted at Fondor, for use as part of the New Republic fleet, when the Yuuzhan Vong attacked the system. The Amerce was destroyed by the suicide runs of several groups of coralskippers, which holed the ship and left her broken and adrift. (JE)

Amethyst Shipping & Storage
a warehouse in Ilic (on New Cov) that Tav Breil'lya uses to try and avoid notice when he is followed by Han and Lando. The warehouse is a front for Garm Bel Iblis' operation on the planet. (DFR)

Amfar
this is a recreational planet. (SOL)

Amgis
a group of Alliance heavy lifters destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Amgris, Joodiel
this man, a native of Varonat, established Great Jungle Outfitters on Varonat. (SWJ1)

Amici's
this club is known throughout the Outer Rim for its fine selection of spirits, as well as its entertainment. (GG9)

Amidala
this native of the planet Naboo was just fourteen standard years of age when she was voted into office as the Queen of Naboo. However, she was already a seasoned veteran of the planet's political scene, having served for two years as the ruler of the capital city of Theed. Note that issue 6 of the Star Wars Kids magazine claims Amidala was elected Queen at the age of twelve, not just city leader. She was born to humble parents who live in a remote, mountain village, but quickly became enamored of the glamorous life of the city after visiting with her grandmother, Winama. Although this worried her parents, they also saw that she was quite special, and allowed her to continue her political training. After becoming Queen, she trained under Captain Panaka in the martial arts, and also agreed to use deception when necessary to ensure her safety. To this end, she favored heavy theatrical facepaint and an incredibly ornate wardrobe, but this was mainly for practical purposes. The facepaint and clothing helped mask her true appearance, which closely resembled that of her handmaiden, Sabe. In times of crisis or danger, Sabe often took the place of the Queen, while Amidala pretended to be a simple servant known as Padme Naberrie. Shortly after being elected Queen, she was thrust into the galactic forefront during the rise to power of Senator Palpatine and the crisis with the Trade Federation. She showed why she had been elected during the conflict, standing tall against the Neimoidians and traveling to Coruscant to petition her case to the Galactic Senate. However, political maneuvering was outside her scope, and she often deferred to Palpatine's judgement. This led her to fall into Palpatine's plan to discredit Chancellor Valorum, as she felt that the only way to save Naboo was to force Valorum out of office and replace him with a stronger figure. However, her experiences on Tatooine with Shmi and Anakin Skywalker had reduced her faith in the Old Republic anyway, and Valorum's lack of backbone in condemning the Neimoidian invasion only served to support her agreement with Palpatine's plan to remove Valorum from office. During her stay on Coruscant, Amidala realized that Jar Jar Binks – and the Gungans in general – were greatly misunderstood by the Naboo. With Binks' help, she devised a plan to remove the yoke of Neimoidian control. Once her plea had been heard, Amidala returned to Naboo and forged an alliance with the Gungan leader Boss Nass, and together they were able to repel the droid armies of the Trade Federation and free Naboo from its blockade in the climactic Battle of Naboo. Amidala was portrayed by Natalie Portman in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, TPM, JQA, IG1, SWK)

Amma
this is the capital city of the planet Bacrana. (SWJ8)

Ammar
this Imperial Moff, in charge of Portmoak Sector, was a contemporary of Abran Balfour. (GG9)

Ammuud
this planet was originally colonized by settlers from Thokos. There were seven colony ships that arrived, and the descendants from each ship formed the basis for Ammuud's seven major clans. A series of savage clan wars broke out, and lasted for nearly 10,000 years. About 100 years before the Galactic Civil War, the clans called a cease-fire, and developed a governmental system based on the Ammuud Code. Years later, the planet was under Corporate Sector Authority jurisdiction, but subcontracted to the clans. Each clan leader, or Mor, then ruled as part of the planet's government. This coalition is very shaky, as the clans tend to play against each other in a perpetual power struggle. There is a unique Code that is used among the clans to ensure some level of fairness. The planet itself is thickly forested, with large oceans and two immense polar ice caps. (HSR, CSA)

Ammuud Code
a set of rules and tenets which are used by the major clans on Ammuud to set guidelines for their interaction. The Code keeps the clans working as a coalition while it prevents them from killing each other. No one is above the Code. (HSR)

Amorris
a planet which Lando Calrissian suggests to Niles Ferrier as a possible source of stolen warships. (DFR)

Amphibion
an amphibious assault vehicle used by the New Republic on Calamari, the Amphibion was designed and built by SedriMotors. Based on the Incom XM-21, the Amphibion is a quiet surface floater. Its low profile and quiet repulsorlifts allow troops to quickly and safely enter an aquatic battlezone. The Amphibion is lightly armored, and not equipped for heavy combat duty. This made them easy to produce in large quantities. If the Amphibion was required in combat situations, it was usually supported by other craft. The Amphibion measures 7.3 meters in length, and is armed with a single antipersonnal gun mounted in the rear. Hand-held weapons are stored in lockers inside ship. The Amphibion can be mounted with an Atgar 1.4FD P-tower. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

Amphistaff
this reptile is native to the homeworld of the Yuuzhan Vong. A snake in its normal form, the amphistaff can harden all or part of its body to the consistency of stone. This makes the creature a valuable form of spear to the Yuuzhan Vong warriors. It can also narrow its neck and tail before hardening, to form a kind of razor. When relaxed, the Yuuzhan Vong warrior could use the amphistaff like a whip. The amphistaff is also highly venomous, and can accurately spit its poison into the eyes of an opponent twenty meters away. The poison blinds instantly, and causes a long, slow death if manages to seep into the target's pores. When hardened, the amphistaff was also impervious to the blade of a lightsaber. Later, in the campaign against the New Republic, the Yuuzhan Vong developed a species of amphistaff which could be implanted into a warrior's body for concealed transport. (VP, DTO, HT)

Ampliquen
a planet in the Chorios Systems. It was against Ampliquen that Seti Ashgad instigated a series of pirate attacks, in order to draw New Republic forces away from Durren and Nam Chorios during Dzym's bid to gain control of the galaxy. This attack nullified the uneasy truce that existed between Ampliquen and Budpock, although this was part of Dzym's plans. (POT)

Ampohr
a species of tree whose wood is used in furniture. (COJ)

Ampuroon
a mining district found on the planet Waskiro. (JTH)

Amrap
this desert-covered planet is the third planet in the Atrig System. It has two moons. (PG2)

An-Elto
one of the two main continents of the planet Gacerian. (PG2)

Ana
this was the only name Alex Winger knew for her mother, who died in the Imperial subjugation of Janara III. (SWJ1)

Anachro
this Hutt was the daughter of Orko, a H'uun who was an enemy of Gorga the Hutt. Gorga wanted to marry Anachro, and placed a bounty on Bar-Kooda, who was pirating Orko's ships. He hired Boba Fett to bring the pirate back in one piece, so that Bar-Kooda could be served to Orko during an engagement dinner. This pleased Orko immensely, and he gladly gave Anachro's hand in marriage to Gorga. They were married on Tatooine, and honeymooned on the planet Skeebo. There, Anachro was kidnapped by the Skavers and Kaptain Voor, who hoped to gain a huge ransom for her. Gorga once again called on Boba Fett, who encountered Ry-Kooda as well as Voor, and managed to eliminate both of them. Anachro was returned to Gorga's side, and was soon found to be pregnant. She hoped that this would bring her father and her husband together, but events unfolded around her that left her father dead and herself under attack by Ry-Kooda. Boba Fett intervened before the Koodan could reach her, saving her from certain death. She gave birth shortly thereafter. (BF)

Anagallis
this decorative plant is used in flower gardens, where it provides bursts of color and intense aromas. (TT)

Anai
this dumbbell-shaped land mass is the larger of the two continents found on the planet Lianna. (ML)

Analysis Bureau
the division of the Imperial Intelligence which is responsible for gathering data from other divisions and searching for patterns or other relevant information. It employs some of the best decryption and encryption experts in the galaxy. (ISB)

Anapolla Musical Splash
this attraction of Lamuir IV's Priole Danna festival highlights a wide range of musical styles from some of the galaxy's newest artists. (SWAJ)

Anarc
this Kitonak was the leader jizzz wailer for the band Hutt. He hired a group of freelance scouts to return him to his homeworld for the Great Celebration during the Galactic Civil War. Rather than fighting in most of the cantina brawls he participated in, Anarc would sit the combatants down and discuss with them the virtues of patience and understanding. (GMS)

Anarid Cluster
this area of the galaxy contains the planet Kelada. (SWJ2)

Anarrad
this strange pit is located in the Shadow Forest of Kashyyyk, near Rwookrrorro. Wookiee legend says something fell out of the sky and crahed into the forest, creating a deep pit-like scar through the trees and deep into the ground. The planet, according to the legends, did not heal the wound to the forest, deciding instead that the pit would be the home of the katarn. Located at the very bottom of Anarrad is the Well of the Dead. (TT)

Anavill Smuggler's Guild
this Mid Rim criminal organization established a foothold on the planet Bridin Anchorage, shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. It became part of an overall alliance known as the Mandroxan cartel, along with Manliss Enterprise and the Droxian Traders League. (GG11)

Anbow
this Imperial Major was in charge of the interrogations which took placed on the Deathblock of Tol Ado's prison facility, during the height of the New Order. (JH)

ANc-2.7
one model of Fabritech's Tracking Computer used on starfighters. (SCRE)

Ancathia Funge-flower
an exotic plant grown by many Ho'Din. (SESB)

Ancher, Karl
this smuggler often worked with Drake Paulsen. They were imprisoned together on Omman, but escaped with the help of Tait Ransom. Karl retired to the planet Socorro, where he established the Black Dust Tavern. Ancher was also one of the three primary owners of the Ethra Brewery on Socorro. The escape from Omman left Ancher with a cybernetic leg. After his retirement, Ancher was considered one of the fathers of modern smuggling on Socorro, but was also considered one of the most honest businessbeings on the planet. (SWAJ, BSS)

Ancher, Toob
this smuggler spent most of his time in the Ottega System. He was permanently disfigured when a bounty hunter's thermal detonator exploded in his face. After contracting the Black Winter disease, he was taken to Redcap by Drake Paulsen to live out his years. (SWAJ)

Anchorhead
a major city, by Tatooine standards, and a major source of supplies for the settlers and moisture farmers on the planet. Luke and his friends often gathered there, at Tosche Station. The average population of Anchorhead was about 700 beings. It is located several hundred kilometers southwest of Mos Eisley. (SW, GG7)

Anchoron
a planet located in the Corellian system, and the supposed site of Bel Iblis' death. (DFR)

Ancient and Honorable Union of the Tion Hegemony
this is the full name of the Tion Hegemony. (ML)

Ancient Order of the Pessimists
this cult grew quietly on the volcanic world of Maryx Minor. The Order always believed that the worst would happen, regardless of the situation. They were forced to hide Abal Karda, during the fugitive's flight from the Empire. Karda killed at least one of the brothers, Mabob, believing the young man was spying on him when Mabob was simply bringing his meal. He killed another brother during Mabob's funeral, claiming their chants were too loud. The Order was then dismayed to learn that both Boba Fett and Darth Vader were tracking Karda, and they believed that their end was near. However, Fett and Vader fought to a standstill and left the planet, and their struggle only killed four of the Order's brothers. The leader of the Order declared that this was an omen, which meant that they needed to start looking for the worst in every situation. He declared that the order should begin looking toward the brighter side of any situation. Several of the Order's older members declared this a heresy, and they were proved correct. Vader felt that the Order had witnessed too much, and ordered their destruction. Several turbolaser barrages from Vader's Star Destroyer leveled their hermitage and destroyed the Order. (EOE)

Ancient Quarter
this was the oldest section of the city of Otoh Gunga, on the planet Naboo. It was relatively uninhabited. (IWE1)

Ancient Republic
a song written and played by the band Deeply Religious. It was first released as part of the compilation Emperor of Air and Darkness, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Ancient Tokens of Legendary Ewok Heroes
eight sacred artifacts from Ewok history, they have been handed down from priest to shaman to priest over the generations. Most recently, they were in the possession of Logray. The tokens are the White Wings of Hope, the Red Wings of Courage, the Blue Wings of Strength, the Candle of Pure Light, a magic walking stick, the Sook rock, a magic crystal, and an ivory tooth. The tokens are bestowed upon the members of a great undertaking, as was the case when Deej and his sons escorted the Towani children on a mission to rescue their parents from the Gorax. The crystal was carried by Deej until it was obvious that it belonged to Kaink, the Ewok priestess, who used it to devine the intent of the mission and to influence the animals of Endor. The walking stick was given to Wicket, for it allowed the gullible little Ewok to see through the false surface of the magic pool, and aided him in rescuing Mace from the pool's depths. The ivory tooth was part of an ancient jawbone which was possessed by Chukha-Trok, who joined the mission after befriending Mace. (EA)

Ancient Words
this was a form of epic poetry practiced by the Sekct. The Ancient Words took many hours to recite in their entirety, as the native language of the Sekct was very complex. (POM)

Andal, Villis
this Imperial Moff controlled Elrood Sector during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He found himself unable to contain the rising tide of piracy and rebellion which sprang up after the destruction of Alderaan, even with three Imperial-class Star Destroyers at his disposal. When the Brazen was destroyed by Alliance forces while in drydock at the Derilyn Space Defense Platform, Moff Andal was removed from his position and re-assigned. (OE)

Andalese
this near-human race is characterized by small, pointed horns on their heads and symbiotic grafts which attach to their skin. (TT)

Andasala
a planet which was a haven for criminals and other underworld operatives. During the early years of the New Republic, the planet ws under the control of Valis Lorn. Andasala was originally a mining settlement established by Gesenix Mining. Promising because of the wealth of natural resources available, Andasala became a booming world by virtue of its proximity to Svivren. Its location also brought into direct contact with the Galactic Civil War, as both the Empire and the Alliance fought battles for control of the space lanes around it. These battles continued well after the Battle of Yavin, until Valis Lorn arrived. He nationalized the planet through the use of his criminal henchmen, establishing a "safe" world for its natives. The average day on Andasala lasts 25 standard hours, and its year encompasses 370 local days. (GG11)

Andasala Achievement News
this was the primary news agency on the planet Andasala. (GG11)

Andes, Murton
a member of the Empire's Intelligence corps. He was stationed for a while on Tatooine. He developed a series of contacts with Jabba the Hutt, although he was forced to break these off when he was transferred to the Al'Nasrl sector. (ISB)

Ando
primary planet of the Ando system, it is the homeworld of the Aqualish race. The Ando system contains the planet Abregado. Ando was the sight of one of Thrawn's feint attacks in preparation for his attack on Ukio; the attack was led by the Bellicose. The planet has very few solid land masses, and the Aqualish have adapted by living in sailing ships or on the small islands. The islands themselves were often nothing more that hummocks in a swampy ecosystem, and were shrouded with an acrid, steamy mist. There was at one time a sister planet to Ando, but the Aqualish wars left it barren and blasted soon after they discovered space travel. (DFR, TLC, GG4, MA)

Ando Prime
this cold, frozen world was the site of a podracing course that challenged racers with a variety of icy, nearly frictionless surfaces. The planet's primary inhabitants were the Bendu monks, who lived and worked in the Andobi Mountains. More modern settlements sprang up to the south of the mountains, and the villagers built a huge water pipeline and pump system to bring mountain spring water to their growing cities. The podraces that began here were originally staged to entertain the laborers who were building the pipelines, which took nearly a decade to complete. (RAC)

Ando Prime Centrum
1) this is the primary city found on the planet Ando Prime. (RAC)
2) this was one of several pro-circuit podraces run on the planet Ando Prime, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Andoan Ale
green, alcoholic beverage. (TME)

Andoan Mineral-fish
native to the planet Ando, this large shellfish could reach sizes of up a meter in length. Their outer shells were formed from a variety of valuable minerals and ores, making them a cheap source of raw materials. They have advanced bio-chemical processing abilities, as evidenced by the rate at which they add to their shells. The average mineral-fish lives only five years, but in that time they grow quickly. The Empire was interested in the fish for two reasons: the ores in the shell were used to form war materiel, and scientists wanted to learn how they processed raw material. Unfortunately, no one has been able to duplicate the mineral-fish's abilities. (COG)

Andobi Mountain Run
this was one of several pro-circuit podraces run on the planet Ando Prime, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Andobi Mountains
this mountain range was the home of the Bendu priests, and was located on the planet Ando Prime. Water from the springs found in the mountains is famous throughout the Outer Rim Territories for its supposed medicinal benefits. (RAC)

Andoorni Hui
this female Rodian was a member of X-Wing Rogue Squadron. She was killed during the assault on Borleias. (XWN)

Andooweel
this planet was a haven for thieves and swoop gangs during the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Andoran
this man was a regular patron of Didi Oddo's café, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. (DH)

Andov Syn
Andov Syn was one of the most famous Kerestians in history. Unfortunately, Syn was famous because he was a ruthless, deadly mercenary who coul dbe hired to perform just about any job. Syn, who wears ornate battle armor and travels in a jet-black space yacht, was once hired by a group of pirates who were trying to raid the mining colony on Adim. The miners had hired a group of mercenaries to protect them, but Syn eliminated them all singlehandedly. (GG12, WBC)

Andra
this woman was the sole member of the POWER party, on the planet Telos, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. However, she was no less determined than an entire politcal party to ensure that Telos wasn't turned into an industrial wasteland. Therefore, when Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi revealed the Xanatos was using UniFy as a front for Offworld Mining, she agreed to help them bring Xanatos to justice. She and her cohort, Denetrus, helped the Jedi expose Xanatos and his plans by showing video of the Sacred Pools during an Katharsis game. Xanatos had been using the pools - which were located in a protected, global park - as dumping grounds for the toxic wastes developed during the mining of malab and other ores. After Xanatos was defeated, Andra and Denetrus began to fall in love. (DOR)

Andras Pell
this male met and married Akanah on the planet Carratos. He owned a great deal of property and wealth, which he left to Akanah when he died. His death occured only a year into their marriage; Andras was 36 years her senior, and apparently died of old age. (SOL)

Andrasta
this Firespray-class starship was owned by Eamon Azzameen. (XWA)

Andray
this Imperial Moff was one of the few remaining Imperial leaders who survived the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn and the wave of battles that followed it. Ten years after Thrawn's death, Andray met with Admiral Pellaeon and Moff Disra to discuss a negotiated peace treaty with the New Republic. At first he thought Pellaeon was joking about trying to surrender to the Republic. (SOP)

Andreya, Lesle
this woman was a native of the planet Neree. At one time, she was an intelligence agent with the Alliance. However, after the Battle of Endor, she deserted her position and began selling New Republic computer files to the highest bidder. She was last seen on Nal Hutta, but she had the uncanny ability to blend in with any crowd. Only her Neree accent tended to give her away. (WBC)

Andris
this white spice variety is found on the planet Sevarcos. It is much more abundant than the black, Carsunum variety. Andris is used as a flavor enhancer and preservative, although it has been claimed that the spice can induce euphoric feelings. It was discovered that andris which was stored in deep, intense cold had enhanced effects. (SWAJ, TPS, ROM)

Andron System
this planetary system which contains Aralia. (GG4)

Andross
this man was a holocamera operator who often worked with Hailey LaMelle on Namore. The pair was captured by planetary officials when they tried to film a payoff between Prefect Gerom and Dasar Zorm. (HR)

Andrus, Drea
this alias was used by Bria Tharen, when she and Han Solo returned to Corellia after escaping from Ylesia. Drea was the wife of Janil Andrus. (TPS)

Andrus, Janil
one of the early aliases used by Han Solo, during his tenure with Garris Shrike. He used it later on to return to Corellia with Bria Tharen. (TPS)

Andur
a New Republic functionary, vice-chairman of the Orbital Debris Committee which was formed following the destruction of the reborn Emperor Palpatine. (JS)

Andurite
a semi-precious stone often cut into small shapes for rings. (COJ)

Anduvil
this Ogemite was one of the few females of that race to take up the occupation of trader. She inherited her father's business when he succumbed to Bledsoe's Disease. She met Luke Skywalker in the Mos Eisley cantina some years after the Battle of Yavin, and helped him track a cargo fo squills to the Jawas. Luke contracted the disease, and they wer capturde by Imperial forces. They discovered that the Empire had manufactured Bledsoe's Disease to make it easier for Imperial agents to locate Alliance bases. (CSWEA)

Anemcoro
this planet was a colony world established by the Ho'Din. About twenty years before the Battle of Hoth, the planet was caught in the middle of a civil war between neighboring worlds, and several large cities were destroyed in an "accidental" barrage of Imperial fire. A huge firestorm resulted, and much of the planet's terrascaped surface was destroyed. Very few Ho'Din escaped the raging fires that swept across the planet. (ND)

Anen
this alias was used by Atril Tabanne, when she and Wraith Squadron infiltrated the planet Storinal. Anen was a native of Bakura, and was one of the bodyguards protecting Wes Janson, who was using the alias Iskit Tyestin. (WS)

Angel
these creatures, rumored to exist on the moons of Iego, are considered the nost beautiful creatures in the galaxy, although very few beings have every actually seen one. (SW1)

Angeles, Pike
this Lordian man joined the Alliance after completing two tours of duty with the Imperial Navy, when he learned that slavery was almost fully sanctioned by the Empire he served. This went against everything he believed, and so he defected. He was assigned to the Y-Wing squadrons on Dantooine, where he was partnered with the astromech R2-S4. He also brought with him an impressive knowledge of Imperial codes and schematics, and longed to become a field agent. After winning R2-D2 from Captain Raymus Antilles in a sabacc match, Angeles traded the droid for a position as a deep-cover agent. Airen Cracken, a participant in the game, placed Pike back into Imperial service as a starship engineer. His Lorrdian heritage allowed him to assume virtually an identity at will, which allowed him to re-enter Imperial service without being recognized. He used his position to gain access to backwater Imperial bases, and simply stole ships that had come in for service. His charismatic personality allowed him to talk his way out of explaining the theft, and provided the Alliance with much-needed starships. His full Lorrdian name was Shen-and-Gretta Pikeual-Angeles of Lorrd. (CRO)

Angle Trap
this unique device was found to be effective at containing Force-sensitive individuals. The Five used them on Attahox to control Force Demons. (CSWDW)

Angler
this creature, native to the fourth moon of Yavin, it a spider-like crustacean that long legs attached to a small body. It drapes itself over the exposed roots of the Massassi trees, with the ends of its legs in the water of a river or stream. When a fish swims too close to the angler, it thrusts its legs out at the fish, spearing it with the pointed ends. The legs then work in unison to grab the fish and draw it into the angler's mouth. (ISU)

Angor Farn
this Bith worked for Sleeft Docking Bay Maintenance until he accidentally checked out the wrong freighter. The freighter he acquired was full of top-of-the-line droid parts stolen from Notsub Shipping by Sleeft. He tried to flee from Tatooine while neogtiating with Sleeft to ransom the parts, but he was not allowed to leave. He holed up in the Dim-U monastery until Coral Ohah was able to recover him. (GG7)

Angor System
Kyp Durron and his vigilante Jedi Knights were reported battling smugglers in the this system, shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (VP)

Angratha
this planet produced an abundance of frozen consumables during the Galactic Civil War. (IA)

Angroosh
a timid, blue-haired creature. (CFG)

Anguilla
this race of intelligent ocean-dwellers was native to the planet Alluuvia. The Anguilla had long, eel-like bodies which were well-muscled, and they had long arms and powerful hands. At the time of their discovery, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Anguilla were a primitive culture which had no notion of civilization as thought of by most humans. They were nomadic hunters, following the migrations of the fish schools in order to maintain a steady food supply. The leaders of each Anguilla community were determined in tests of strength. (OE)

Anic
a planet. (AIR)

Animal Circle
located near the Garden Circle on the planet Kegan, this section of the planet's primary city was dedicated to the raising of a variety of domesticated animals. (FFT)

Anirak
this female Devaronian was mated with Skerrit. (COG)

Anjeri, Padija
this Alderaanian woman contacted Drake Paulsen on Omman, and offered him 30,000 credits to transport her offworld immediately. Shortly after the Battle of Hoth, she and her team of anthropologists were trying to return a Twi'leki artifact to Ryloth before a group of Imperial agents could steal it from her. Padjia had studied at Alderaan University, and joined the Alliance after the destruction of her homeworld. She was recruited into the Alliance by one of her teachers, Oll Maa'cabe. She worked with her father, Colonel Renz, although she kept her mother's maiden name as was the Alderaanian tradition for an only daughter. It also allowed her to honor her mother's Alderaanian heritage. The Imperial hoped to use the crystallite skulls to bribe the Twi'leki government into an alliance. The Alliance to Restore the Republic caught wind of the Empire's plans, and hired Doctor Anjeri to recover the skulls in order to keep the Twi'leks from joining the Empire. (SWJ12)

Ank Ki'Shor
this planet was the site of the Seige of Ank Ki'Shor, a Galactic Civil War battle in which the Y-Wing starfighter played a prominent role. (EGV)

Ank Kit'aar
this planet is located in the Druess Sector. (CRO)

Ankarres Sapphire
this remarkable jewel was supposed to have special healing abilities. An individual who touched an injured limb with the stone soon found the wound healed. The stone was owned by Dom Pricina, until she failed to keep a vigilant watch over it while travelling on the Kuari Princess. The droid 4-LOM initially took it from her possession in order to protect it, but then realized that it could steal the stone without being caught. The droid later fenced the stone on Darlyn Boda, beginning its foray into the criminal world. When 4-LOM returned to Darlyn Boda with the survivors of the Bright Hope, he found that the stone had never been sold, so he reclaimed it and took it to his partner, Zuckuss. The Gand was recovering from breathing oxygen, and 4-LOM reasoned the stone might help him. 4-LOM also used the stone to help Samoc Farr. (TBH)

Ankura
this is one of the two major races of the Gungan species. Characterized by their hooded eyes, green skin, and small haillu, the Ankura were also quite secretive and aloof. The Ankura remained largely separate from their Otolla brethren until Boss Nass – an Akuran – decided to align himself with the Otolla in order to disseminate technology and skills. The partnership eventually led the construction of Otoh Gunga. (IG1)

Anky Fremp
a Sionian Skup living on Nar Shaddaa. (DE1)

Anlage
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was being refitted at Fondor, for use as part of the New Republic fleet, when the Yuuzhan Vong attacked the system. The Anlage was destroyed by the suicide runs of several groups of coralskippers, which holed the ship and left her broken and adrift. (JE)

Ann Gella
this blue-skinned Rutian Twi'lek female was part of Sebulba's personal entourage, purchased by the Dug from the Hutts as a personal masseuse. Along with her twin sister Tann, Ann always gave the dangerous Dug a massage prior to a pod race. Ann had enlisted the help of Mars Guo, in an effort to escape from Sebulba's slavery. Note that the screenplay for The Phantom Menace indicates Ann and Tann are Yobanas, not Twi'leks. (YJC1, IS1, IG1)

Annadale Fayde
this rock balladeer is often melancholy in her lyrics, and her career has been keenly observed. She never uses that same group of backing musicians twice. She resembles a Ho'Din. (GG9)

Annaj
destination of the Imperial fleet following the Battle of Endor. (TB)

Annance
this Imperial Captain was known to be extremely patient. He served as the commander of the Empire Forever, taking Advisor Coh Veshiv on several missions. Annance had only been with Veshiv for three months before his patience began to run out. Shortly afterward, Veshiv was captured by the crew of the Far Orbit. Annance would have normally been suspicious of Captain Vedij's orders to take over for him on Veshiv's fact-finding mission in the Ringali Shell, but had become so weary of Veshiv's presence that he considered the request a stroke of luck and gladly turned Veshiv over. (FOP)

Annealing
this was the name of the process by which the energy-charged seeds of the boras trees of Zonama Sekot were shaped by mature boras trees into new forms of boras. The creation of a Sekotan starship from seed-partners mimicked this process, as the forged seed-partners became seed-disks, which were then molded to airframes and combined with technology to form starships. (RP)

Annihilator
Bollux's alias as a gladiator droid when Han Solo infiltrates Stars' End. (HSE)

Annihilator
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of Governor Newen Streeg's fleet, which patrolled the Sisar Run during the last years of the New Order. The Annilihator skimmed the border of Hutt space during its regular patrols. (SSR)

Annissya
this woman served as a flight attendant on the Tinta Palette when it was attacked by Invid pirates. (IJ)

Annoo
an agricultural planet. (DCAR)

Annoo-dat a species of reptilian aliens native to the planet Annoo, these humanoids have drowsy eyes, flat noses, and spots on their faces. (DCAR)

Annowiskri
this being served as a medic, working for Talon Kaarde aboard the Wild Kaarde. (VOF)

Anoat
primary planet in the Anoat system. (ESB, JS)

Anoat City
primary city on the planet Anoat. Moff Rebus hid there, in an attempt to avoid Kyle Katarn, just prior to the Battle of Yavin. (DF)

Anoat Malted
this is a rich, sweet beverage has a deep, smoky flavor. (SH)

Anoat System
where the Imperial fleet chases the Millennium Falcon after it escapes from the Hoth asteroid field, it contains the planets Anoat, Gentes, and Deyer. During the time of the New Republic, the system is relatively deserted. It is located near the Hoth System. (ESB, JS, GG2)

Anobis
this planet is located near Ord Mantell. There were two main groups of native humans: those that lived and worked in the mountain mines, and those that lived and worked in the lowland plains. The miners depended heavily on trade in order to survive, and valued their relationship with the Empire. The farmers, however, were self-sufficient, and resented the controls imposed by Imperial law. At the height of the Galactic Civil War, the farmers wanted to join the Alliance, but the miners feared the loss of their trade. An intense civil war broke out, and lasted for nearly 25 years before Han Solo met with the leaders of both groups. Han was acting as the Grand Marshall of the 93rd Blockade Runners Derby on Ord Mantell. (ROM)

Anointed People
this was the name used by a race of reptilian humanoids which had reached a feudal level of society by the era of the New Order. They were native to the planet Abonshee, which they called Masterhome, and had a feudal society which split their people into two classes: the Godlings, who were the rulers and priests of the planet; and the Unwashed, which were the serfs and laborers. All of the Anointed People were ruled a supreme leader known as the Godking. Despite their fearsome appearance and disparate societies, there were very few wars in their history. After Imperial Lord Dixton tried to take control of the Godking, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Godking aligned the Anointed People with the Alliance. The Godlings assisted a group of Alliance agents in capturing Dixton and ensuring the Anointed Peoples' freedom. (SWCP, MB, AE)

Anomid
a humanoid alien race native to the Yablari System, the Anomid are born without vocal cords. This requires that the immature Anomid wear complex masks which synthesize the sounds necessary for communication with others. These masks are very large, covering all but the Anomid's eyes and forehead. They dress in long, hooded robes made from pure dendrite. Most Anomids have pale, transulcent skin and wide eyes, and their ears are large and leaf-like in shape. Anomids have six toes on each foot. Their technology is fairly sophisticated, and the Anomid have become very wealthy selling it in the galaxy. A peaceful race, they supported the Old Republic for 15,000 years before the onset of the New Order. Their own political system was divided in its support during the Galactic Civil War, but they sided with the Empire in an effort to meet their homeworlds' needs. (RM, GG12, RD)

Anorad Estuan
a renowned Dactrurian actor. (RM)

Anorelgan Slip-socker
if you don't know what one of these is, then you don't want one. (RM)

Anorik, Dek
this grizzled old smuggler was captured by Imperial forces on Gacerian. In exchange for his freedom, he agreed to lure unsuspecting, greedy salvagers to the Gacerian System, where they could be captured by the Empire and put to work as slaves in the Gacerian gem mines. (PG2)

Anoth
planet on which Han Solo and Leia Organa-Solo "hide" their children during the early years of the New Republic. It is really three fragments on an ancient planet which was destroyed eons ago, and is held together by gravity, orbiting a common center of mass. Two fragments orbit in close proximity, and are virtually uninhabitable. The third fragment is separated from the other two, and is capable of supporting life. Thus, many system cartographers consider Anoth to be the third planet in the Anoth System. The three planetary fragments orbit a small, white dwarf sun. The Anoth fragment has a day which lasts fourteen standard hours, and orbits its sun every 286 local days. Winter took care of the children there, and worked with Admiral Ackbar and Luke Skywalker to prepare defenses. The fortress was breached by Ambassador Furgan's troops, who used MT-ATs to break down the barriers and gain entrance. The base was abandoned for some years after Furgan's attack was thwarted, to see whether knowledge of the planet became widespread. When it didn't Han and Leia began to refurbish the base as a private, well-defended retreat. (JS, COTF, JASB, TNR)

Another Chance
this legendary armory ship was a massive transport ship used to carry all of Alderaan's weapons off-planet. A converted Alderaanian War Frigate, it was programmed to continually jump through hyperspace until called home by Alderaan's council of elders. It was accompanied during this time by three Alderaanian warships, which were slave-circuited together. The Another Chance was manned by a collection of droid workers, programmed to maintain the ship and protect it against unauthorized entry. Many of the stories of ghost ships near the Alderaan system report seeing this ship. The Another Chance was actually recovered by Alliance sympathizers shortly before the Alliance's defeats at Derra IV and Hoth, when Orinn Tathis returned to the Graveyard of Alderaan in an effort to locate the remote calling device. He hoped to turn the weapons carried within the ship over to the Alliance, in an effort to help them fight back against the Empire. (GA, BTS, BW)

Another Hopetown
this was the name used for the rebuilt settlement of Newest Hopetown, on the planet Ennth. (SHA)

ANq 2.4
early version of Fabritech tracking computer used on the Z-95 Headhunter. (TIE)

ANq-3.6
one model of Fabritech's Target Tracker used on starfighters. (SCRE)

Anrath
a deity worshipped on the planet M'haeli. (ROC)

ANs-5c
early model of Fabritech Sensor package used on the Z-95 Headhunter. (TIE)

ANs-5d
one model of Fabritech's Sensor Unit used on starfighters. (SCRE)

ANs-7e
one model of Fabritech's Sensor Unit used on starfighters. (SCRE)

ANs-9.5w
Fabritech's wide range sensor system used on many capital ships. (SCRE)

Ansarra
this planet is located in the Outer Rim Territories. It was the site of an Alliance base during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Ansek
a planet. (POC)

Anselm
technical member of Leia's crew sent to recover the Katana fleet, Anselm moved up the Alliance's ranks as a technical expert. A native of the planet Baffop, Anselm was in charge of prepping Luke Skywalker's X-Wing prior to the Battle of Yavin. (DFR, DFRSB)

Ansil
this holo-video character was developed on Adarlon. Ansil was a refugee who became the finest sansil player in the galaxy. (GG6)

Ansillivog
a planet. (RPG)

Ansmul
this hide of this creature was cured and used to make durable boots and jackets. (COG)

Anstares
this planet is famous for its three vast rings. (POC)

Ansuroer Sector
this area of the galaxy is the original home of the Houk race. (GG12)

Antar
a huge gas giant located in the Prindaar System. It has six natural satellites, four of which support life. (GG4)

Antar Band
this group of expereinced smugglers, thieves, and cutthroats was led by Ujin Voli, and was largest rival to the Black Sun interests of Sprax along the Sisar Run. Voli recruited criminals who had formerly worked for other criminal organizations or were former law-enforcement agents. Among the group's membership were the Ishi Tib Zirlig and the Aramandi mercenary Ar'wa Nonshik, two reasons why Sprax chose to leave the Antar Band alone. (SSR)

Antar 4
the fourth of six moons orbiting Antar, Antar 4 has an unusual rotational axis that is nearly parallel to its orbital plane, which wreaks havoc on the moon's seasons. It also affects the moon's day/night cycles, as both sides of Antar 4 sometimes exist in daylight when the planet Antar is not eclipsed by its sun. During these eclipse phases, Antar 4 receives virtually no light, except what is reflected off other moons. Antar 4 is the homeworld of the Gotal race, who have developed sensitive horns which allow them to exist on Antar 4's ever-changing face. (GG4)

Antar 5
this is the fifth moon of the gas giant Antar, and is the site of a Gotal mining operation. (GG4)

Antared III
this planet had three major starports, located in the cities of Durollia, Pegg,and Hermos. (GMH)

Antares Six
this New Republic escort frigate, under the command of Syub Snunb, was dispatched to rescue the crew of the Liberator. (DE1)

Antarian Rangers
a para-military group based on several planets, including Toprawa, they were formed to assist and aid the Jedi Knights. They were trained to be masters of any environment, in order to help the Jedi in any way possible. During the Clone Wars, whole groups of Antarian Rangers were killed off, and many of the survivors scattered and went underground. (WS)

Antbbianplourr III
the long-standing Emperor of Eiattu, he was Gror Pernon’s brother. He became Emperor during the last years of the Old Republic, and reigned until he died during the Galactic Civil War. It was at this time that he was succeesed by his son, Uthorrferrell Cartha. Antbbianplourr’s reign was characterized by the fact that he bartered away his planet’s pride and honor in order to maintain his seat during the initial wave of Imperial conquests. (XWWP)

Ante-Endor Association
a group of fanatics who spread propaganda that states the Battle of Endor never took place, and that the Empire still holds sway in the galaxy. The roots of the AEA were based on Mrlsst, spreading from the remnants of Imperial control there. Wedge Antilles and Rogue Squadron were caught up in the AEA's propaganda, and tried to convince its followers of the truth of the Battle of Endor. However, the AEA preached an elaborate tangle of fabrications about the events of the Galactic Civil War, the end result of which dictated an Imperial victory over the Alliance. (XWPA)

Anteevy
a planet locked in perpetual winter, Anteevy was the site of the Imperial robotics construction facility known as Ice Station Beta during the Galactic Civil War. The Empire refined phrik here for use in the Darktrooper program. (DF)

Antemeridian Freight Lines
C-3PO claimed to be Igpek Droon, an employee of this shipping company, when he and R2-D2 booked passage off Nim Drovis on the Zicreex. (POT)

Antemeridian Sector
this area of the galaxy, adjacent to the Meridian Sector, was allied with the Empire even after the Battle of Endor. Following the fall of Emperor Palpatine, the sector was held in Imperial sway by Moff Getelles, until he was defeated by New Republic forces in the Chorios Systems. (POT)

Antemeridias
this planet was the sector capital of Antemeridian Sector, and the base of operations for Moff Getelles. (POT)

Antenna-breaker
this is an underworld slang term which refers to the hired thugs of a crimelord. Antenna-breakers are the goons sent out to collect the fees and interest charged by their employers, and are under order to break the antennae of their victim if they can't pay up. (WBC)

Anterab
an Imperial freighter supplying Zaarin's beam weapon research platform. (TIE)

Anteru Sea
one of two oceans found on the planet Gacerian. (PG2)

Anti-blaster Energy Field
this type of energy dissipation field was developed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It was concurrently created by I'att Armaments. The theory behind the field was that the energy from a blaster bolt could be absorbed and dispersed across the surface of stormtrooper armor. The problem with the system was that the dispersion created an intense amount of heat that literally cooked the trooper inside the armor shell. I'att Armaments discovered a way to eliminate this problem with the addition of a heat dissipator unit and by imbedding zersium into the body glove worn by troopers. The body glove was also important because it protected the flesh of the trooper; the dissipation field unpredictably damaged living flesh. Moff Eisen Kerioth executed the leaders of I'att Armaments and tried to replicate the design for himself, but was unable to perfect it because Tinian I'att had appropriated several key components. (TFE)

Anti-Concepts
this strange form of idea was created by the deity Cold Danda Sire. Anti-concepts were ideas which consumes other ideas. (CSWDW)

Anti-Corr 113
this corrosion preventative was used to protect equipment from heat and environmental damage during shipment. It was developed by ColuChem scientists who wanted to transport equipment through the toxic environment of Clak'Dor VII, and soon found its way into galaxy-wide use. It takes decades to break down or evaporate, and can only be removed with powerful chemical solvents. It has the side effect of turning whatever it touches a dull shade of blue. (SWJ9)

Anti-orbital Ion Cannon
an ion cannon modified to knock out targets in orbit around a planet or moon. (ZHR)

Anti-Prophet
this is the Ugor term for anything evil in their world, in contrast to the good exemplified by High Prophet Botiv. The Ugors claim that the Squibs were formed from pseudopods of the Anti-Prophet. (SH)

Anti-register
any device which was capable of undoing the recording of a transaction maintained in a transfer register. They were outlawed on many planets, because they could be used to negate important transactions or - worse yet - modify transactions to transfer ownership to another party without payment. (HP)

Anticoncussion Field Generator
a device which creates a stabilizing field that keeps cargo or passengers from feeling the effects of collisions with energy bolts or physical impacts. They can be starship-sized, or they can be built to protect space stations. These systems are very expensive. They create an umbrella-shaped magnetic field that absorbs the kinetic energy of the objects that hit it. It protects a starship by compressing around the imacting object, absorbing its energy and dispersing it along the rest of the magnetic field. (HSE, DFR, SCRE, CSA)

Antigrav
any device which counteracts the force of gravity, such as a repulsorlift. (SWN)

Antigrav Ball
this repulsor-fitted sphere is tethered to the ground by chains or thick ropes. Its primary use is as a plant holder, allowing non-native plants to grow above the harsh ground of terraformed worlds. (POT)

Antigrav Drive
any starship power plant which allows the force of gravity to be negated, allowing the ship to rise up and through the atmosphere. They are also called repulsorlift drives, and are used in-system, so that the effects of the hyperdrive are not brought on a planet's inhabitants. (SWN)

Antigrav Lifter
this cargo moving device is used to move heavy boxes and equipment from one place to another. The cargo must be first loaded onto the lifter, which acts like a hand truck. (POT)

Antilles, Bail
this Old Republic politician was one of the three candidates named to succeed Supreme Chancellor Valorum, after Queen Amidala of Naboo moved for a vote of no-confidence in Valorum's abilities. However, Antilles and Ainlee Teem were both defeated in a general election by Senator Palpatine of Naboo. (SW1, IS1)

Antilles, Corellia
this woman was a xenoarchaeologist who spent much of her career searching out potentially dangerous artifacts, retrieving them so that the New Republic could saefguard them. On one mission, Corellia uncovered what she believed to be an ancient Gree device in the jungles of Asation. She spent much of her time in the spaceports of Satikan, hoping to find a crew to help her recover the device from its hiding place. She was forced to hide it when a group of wild Gree attacked her after she took the device from their tribal city. She barely survived the trip to Satikan, and most of her survey crew was killed in the flight. A group of Te Hasan Gree managed to intercept her, and took the device – known as the Khoz'zhak – back to Te Hasa in exchange for credits and a lesser device. (SWJ8, SWJ14)

Antilles, Jagged
Wedge's father, Jagged owned the Corellian Inter-System Marketing Station and fuel depot on Gus Treta with his wife, Zena. He and his wife were killed when the Bonestar Pirates, trying to escape from Corellian authorities, purposely lifted off while the refueling lines were still attached to their ship. The resulting explosion threatened to destroy Gus Treta, but Jagged and Zena sacrificed themselves to limit the destruction to their depot. (XWPA)

Antilles, Myri
this girl was the younger daughter of Wedge Antilles and Iella Wessiri. Myri was barely a year old at the time when Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade were married. (U)

Antilles, Raymus
a starship Captain working for the Organa family, Antilles was in command of the Tantive IV. Along with Princess Leia, he was also a supporter of the Alliance. Antilles was described as the owner of C-3PO and R2-D2 by C-3PO himself. This may have been part of the programming given to him and R2-D2 by Antilles and Princess Leia, to hide that fact that R2-D2 contained the stolen plans to the first Death Star. Antilles was killed by Darth Vader on board the Tantive IV when he refused to divulge the location of the stolen Death Star plans. Vader physically strangled him. (In the novelization of Star Wars, Antilles' name was Colton.) Antilles was portrayed by David Ackroyd for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio.
(SW, SWRN, SWR, JPL)

Antilles, Syal
1) this woman is better known as Wynssa Starflare, one of the most popular holodrama stars of the New Order. She grew up with her family - which included her younger brother Wedge - in the Corellian System, but was not enamored with the life of a starship mechanic. She longed for more, and before her twentieth birthday, Syal left her family and moved to Coruscant to pursue an acting career. Wedge was seven at the time, and he never got a chance to know her. She changed her name shortly after the death of her parents, and went on to become famous. During a party on Coruscant, she met Soontir Fel, who had been stationed on the planet shortly after the Battle of Yavin. They fell in love almost immediately, and Syal was forced to admit to Fel her true name and relationship to Wedge Antillies. Fel told her that it didn't matter, and they were eventually married. When Fel was tested by Ysanne Isard and was lost at the Battle of Brentaal, Syal fled Coruscant and hid from Imperial reprisal. Fel spent the rest of his career trying to find her. They were reunited shortly before the re-emergence of Grand Admiral Thrawn, and together they gave birth to five children, including a baby boy, whom they named Jagged. (XWM, HXW, DTR)
2) this young girl was the first daughter of Wedge Antilles and Iella Wessiri, and was named for Wedge's sister. (U)

Antilles, Wedge
born on Corellia, Wedge spent much of his childhood working for his parents on the last planet in the Gus Treta system. His parents, Jagged and Zena, owned a fueling station there, and Wedge became proficient at starship systems. He also gained a great deal of piloting skill there, and was ready to go to the Academy when a pirate ship, the Buzzzer, under the command of Loka Hask, got spooked at the fuel depot when a Corellian Security Force fleet arrived. Hask ordered them to lift off, but the crew forgot to unhook their refueling coupling before blasting away. The resulting fuel leak was ignited, and Wedge's parents were forced to eject the fueling station in order to save the rest of the station. Note that Star Wars Screen Entertainment software indicates Wedge was away at school when the accident happened, that the accident was caused by smugglers, and that the smuggler's ship was destroyed in the resulting explosion. Both of Wedge's parents were killed in this effort, and Wedge - who was with Booster Terrik at the time - went after the pirates in an old Z-95 Headhunter. Although he managed to destroy the Buzzzer, Wedge's lack of funding led him to start taking all kinds of odd jobs, and was getting nowhere as a smuggler when he decided to join the Alliance. He quickly demonstrated his abilities as a fighter pilot, and also ran a number of reconnaissance and escort missions before being tapped as one of the X-wing pilots in the Battle of Yavin. Since then, Wedge's growing skills have earned him a number of distinctions, the greatest of which came when he was named squadron leader of the famous Rogue Squadron. While with Rogue Squadron, Wedge assisted Lando Calrissian during the Battle of Endor, and helped destroy the incomplete Death Star being built there. He remained as Rogue Leader through the restructuring of Rogue Squadron, and his squadrons provided invaluable support in the battles against Ysanne Isard and Grand Admiral Thrawn. It was during this time that Wedge also developed the idea of Wraith Squadron, which he successfully implemented and modified into a crack infiltration unit. After turning down two promotions, Wedge was promoted to the rank of General about a year before the defeat of Thrawn, and was offered the command of the Star Destroyer Lusankya. He also chose to remain with the Rogues, but was assigned, along with Calrissian, to command the captured Star Destroyers Emancipator and Liberator when Emperor Palpatine's clone emerged from Byss. He fought bravely at Coruscant and Calamari, although the Emancipator was destroyed on Calamari. He later returned to Coruscant, where his primary role in the New Republic was changed from pilot and warrior to General and clean-up supervisor following the near-destruction of the planet. This was a short-lived assignment, though, for his desire to pilot a starship quickly outweighed the ease of being a supervisor. When that effort was launched, Wedge wanted to get back into piloting. He became the escort for the ship which dropped the Eol Sha colonists off at Dantooine, and then was named Qwi Xux' bodyguard. During this time, Wedge began to fall in love with Qwi, while also returning to Rogue Squadron and assisting the Republic in the assault on the Maw Installation. Wedge was assigned to the Lusankya, which served as his base of operations, for the purposes of commanding a special task force. However, after several years of war, Wedge began to realize that he had grown apart from Qwi. What he didn't known was that she felt they had grown apart as well, so they both agreed to end the relationship and go their separate ways. Wedge decided to take a vacation and figure out what to do with his life, when he was chosen by Airen Cracken to lead the delegation to Adumar. Wedge's diplomatic skills were not the greatest, but his gut instincts proved more valuable in swaying the Adumari to join the New Republic. During the mission, he also discovered that he and Iella were in love with each other, and he quickly proposed to her. Iella accepted almost as quickly. Shortly after peace was negotiated between the New Republic and the Imperial Remnant, Wedge retired from active duty, and he and Iella set to work starting their own family. Wedge was eventually succeeded by Gavin Darklighter, although the former pilot provided assistance to Gavin during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Wedge served as Rogue Alpha during the struggle against the Vong, piloting a reconnaissance X-Wing to gather data. Shortly after the Battle of Garqi, Wedge discovered that he was not only a father but an uncle as well, after meeting Jagged Fel for the first time. Wedge was portrayed in all three Star Wars films by Dennis Lawson, who replaced Jack Klaff mid-way through production of Star Wars*. Wedge was also portrayed by Don Scardino for the The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio.* (SW, SCRE, ESBR, HTTE, JS, DA, COTF, XWN, CCG4, WS, SOC, IR, SOA, DTO, DTR)

Antilles, Zena
Wedge's mother, Zena was killed near Gus Treta when she and Jagged attempted to limit the firestorm caused by the Bonestar Pirates to their own depot. This effort saved the rest of the station, but ultimately killed them. (XWPA)

Antilles Maneuver
named after Wedge Antilles, this starfighter attack maneuver was devised at the Battle of Yavin, in an effort to save Luke Skywalker. In this maneuver, an attacking starship tries to kill an enemy who is in pursuit of a comrade. The attacker approaches the enemy while hidden in front of the comrade. The comrade's ship breaks off at the last moment, leaving the enemy in the sights of the attacker. A quick burst of blaster fire takes the enemy by surprise. (CCG9)

Antipose IX
the destination of the star yacht Arleen, according to the navigation droid Lando Calrissian rented in the Oseon System. It was part of the Antipose System. (LCM)

Antipose XII
another planet in the Antipose System. (LCF)

Antiques by Dumas
this small shop was located in Imperial City, on Coruscant, during the last years of the New Order. It was run by the antique weapons collector Plumba, until he was killed by one of Ysanne Isard's agents. (XWMR)

Antiquity
this backwater world was known to be extremely boring, by even the most primitive of space-going cultures. Antiquity was covered with mudflats and shallow seas, broken here and there by sheer mountain ranges. The planet was best known for the teggi fungus which grew in the mud. The average day on Antquity lasts 23 standard hours, and its year encompasses 372 local days. (POC)

Antishock
a drug administered to counteract the effects of physical shock or trauma. (COJ)

Antmuel VI
this planet was famous for the xenoarchaeological finds it yielded, such as the Ch'hosk Cave Drawings discovered by Angrail Ryhl. (HR)

Anton
Anton was a smooth-skinned humanoid employed by Lady Valarian as a front desk clerk at the Lucky Despot. Anton was an indentical twin to Sturn. (TJP)

Anton Standish
this New Republic Naval Admiral was the Sector Fleet Commander for the Kalinda System. (TSK)

Antone
this Bakuran technician was assigned to help Jacen, Jaina, and Anakin Solo activate the Drall repulsor during the Starbuster plot. He had a reason to help, since his aunt lived on the planet Bovo Yagen, primary planet around the third star listed on the Starbuster agenda. After the Sacorrian Triad was brought down, Antone remained aboard Centerpoint Station as a technician. It was Antone who discovered that the Station's repulsors would be inoperable without Anakin Solo's help, since every system on board had imprinted itself with his fingerprints, DNA, and brainwaves. (SC, JE)

Antruse, Eppie
this was the maiden name of Eppie Belden. (TBSB)

Antyll, Dom
this human owned and operated Docking Bay 92 at the Mos Eisley Spaceport. His clothes were always dirty and covered with grease, as if he'd just come from making major repairs to some huge piece of equipment. (GG7)

ANv-9q
Fabritech sensor package usd on the B-Wing. (XW)

ANx-y Fabritech's long-range sensor array. (EGV)

Anxarta
this city is located on the northern coast of Anai, on the planet Lianna. It supports a small starport used by private vessels and transport ships. (ML)

ANy-20
Fabritech's active sensor package. (SCRE)

Anyar
this Anguilla was the leader of the community which agreed to help a team of Alliance agents drive Imperial forces off the planet Alluuvia. However, when he learned that the Radell Mining Corporation wished to establish a settlement on Alluuvia, he became angry with the Alliance team and threatened them. The Ithorian, Iych-thae, intervened and agreed to oversee all of Radell's operations, to ensure that Alluuvia wasn't polluted as Dega was. Anyar reluctantly agreed to allow Radell on the planet, undertstanding that the planet would be better off with Radell than with Imperial Mining, Limited. (OE)

Anywhere Room
located on Hologram Fun World, this amusement attractions claimed to be able to transport a visitor to any location in the galaxy. In actually, the Room generated a three-dimensional, fully-interactive hologram of the environment. (GOF4)

Anzat
a race of humanoids that closely resemble humans, at least externally, the Anzati are more myth then reality to much of the galaxy's inhabitants. Internally, their composition differs greatly. The primary difference is that the Anzati have proboscii hidden inside their cheeks that can be extended out from their nostrils. These proboscii are used to consume the brain of the Anzati's victim. The Anzati places his face nose-to-nose with its victim, and the proboscii extend into the victim's brain, where they consume the brain and all its life energies. The Anzati refer to the brain and its energies as "soup." They are creatures of no real biological rhythm; they simply exist, and when they require rest, they drop into a deep coma-like state. (TME, TJP, GOF5)

Anzati
this is the plural form used to name the Anzat race. (GOF4, TME)

AOI-C
this was the original designation of Massad Thrumble’s custom-built medical droid, which he later nicknamed Doc. (SEE)

Aorala Sensor 100
this was BlasTech’s original motion sensor device. (CFG)

Ap Kormar
this alien played center for the Quent Assassins during the years leading up to the Battle of Hoth. After the Assassins defeated the Shad Furies 21-20 in overtime in a match in Imperial City, Ap was attacked and beaten to death by seven humans who claimed to be Furies fans. In reality, the seven were Imperial supporters, working for a distant Moff, who killed Ap as an example to other Alliance sympathizers . His death was nearly prevented by Ytavarg Aleema, but Aleema arrived too late to save Kormar. In anger, Aleema used his shockball equipment to kill the seven attackers. (CRO)

AP-1-C
this Imperial attack droid was created by Arakyd, shortly after the Battle of Endor. These droids had a humanoid torso, but in place of a head the AP-1-C had a second torso armed with a repeating blaster and an array of sensors. These droids were developed to coordinate the activities of the AP-2 and AP-3 droids. (SWG)

AP-2
this humanoid attack droid was produced by Arakyd for the Imperial forces fighting the New Republic, shortly after the Battle of Endor. Like the companion AP-3 droid, the AP-2 was designed to receive orders from an AP-1-C droid commanding a pool of soldiers. Highly mobile, the AP-2 was armed with a light repeating blaster, a pair of heavy blasters,a pair of micro-grenade launchers, and a hand-held blaster pistol. A broadband attenna was used to receive command signals from the AP-1-C droid. (SWG)

AP-3
this barrel-shaped Imperial attack droid was developed by Arakyd during the early years of the New Republic. Designed to act on the orders of the AP-1-C commander, the AP-3 was armed with a blaster cannon, six rocket tubes, and a micro-torpedo launcher. A broadband antenna allowed it to receive signals from the AP-1-C series. (SWG)

AP-300
this was the model number of Kuat Drive Yards' Asteroid Prospector. At 350 meters in length, the ship was designed to swallow whole asteroids and partially refine them within its holds. The craft was crewed by 500 officers and 36 gunners, and could transport up to fifty passengers and 80,000 metric tons of ore. Because the ores it refined were at least twenty-five percent pure, the AP-300 was armed with eight laser cannons. Four tractor beam projectors assist in moving asteroids into position to bring them aboard. (PP)

AP/3
this was the model number of an Atgar Blaster Turret. (MBC)

APA-5
this was a series of general purpose mess-hall droids manufactured during the early years of the New Republic. Kir Kanos used one to fly a Scimitar Assault Bomber in orbit around Yinchorr, after he fled the planet Phaeda. General Wessel fell for the trick, and brought the bomber aboard the Emperor's Revenge. The bomber was rigged to explode upon opening, taking out the Star Destroyer just after Carnor Jax escaped. (CE)

Aparo Sector
this area of the galaxy, with the Wyl Sector, formed the border of the Corporate Sector. It was ruled by Moff Wyrrhem. (CSA)

Apas Connector
this device is the primary electronic component activated by pulling the trigger of a blaster. The apas connectors signal the power flux dispersion unit that it is time to release a charge of gas into the Heter valve. (CFG)

APD-40
a droid produced in the years just prior to the Clone Wars, they were built from xylen chips and gold wiring, which became too expensive. They were replace by C-3 series droids. (RPG)

Aphor
a species of tree native to Belsavis. (COJ)

Aphren
this species of small insect makes a loud humming noise when it swarms together. (VOF)

Apla, Chik
this Imperial officer was part of the team which was stranded on Dolis 3 in the wake of the peace accord signed between the Imperial Remnant and the New Republic. Chik joined Moff Derran Takkar in his plan to disrupt the wedding of Mara Jade and Luke Skywalker, as a way to strike back against the New Republic. Chik was known for his skills with hand-to-hand combat, especially with knives. While on Coruscant, it was also revealed that Chick had been having a somewhat platonic affair with the Moff's wife, Anlys. He was captured by Mara during his attempt to steal her wedding dress. Anlys had given Chick the address of Jari'kyn's studio, and Chik dressed inhis finest Imperial armor to attack the Twi'lek. He was unprepared for Mara's presence, and he caused him several serious injuries before remanding him to the custody of the police. (U)

Apliria
this Alliance safeworld was scouted by Lieutenant Deeve during the ealry stages of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Aplocaph
this alien race has a species-wide yearning to travel to exotic places and meet new people. (RM)

Apocia
a hardwood tree that was once native to the planet Bethal. An infestation of greddleback termites decimated the population of apocia. (SWAJ)

Approach Vector
the flight path which is generated by a ship's navicomputer to place the ship on target to intercept a space station or another ship. (ESBR)

AP127CP
see P127. This is a short description of the Astronav P127 C\course plotter. (IJ)

AQ-5 Waveskimmer
developed by Hydrospeare Corporation, this attack hydrofoil was also known as a wave walker. It measured 14 meters in length, and was manned by a crew of three with a pair of gunners. It could also transport up to 28 troops and a metric ton of cargo. It was armed with a pair of medium blaster cannons and a pair of light blaster cannons. (AIR)

Aqua-skimmer
an underwater transportation device used on Aquaris. (CSW)

Aquadon CAVa 400
this modified Nen-Carvon CAVw PX-10 was produced by the Hydrospeare Corporation. The 5.1-meter-long craft was redesigned to work in aquatic environments, with the addition of stern thrusters and lateral thrusters to give it mobility without requiring the craft to maintain contact with the ground. It was armed with a turret-mounted medium blaster cannon, and its cockpit was designed to provide continual “heads-up” viewing by using gyroscopic stabilizers similar to those on the B-Wing starfighter. If the ship is heavily damaged, the gyro-locks release the pilot’s cabin and allow it to avoid further damage. (AIR)

Aquala
a faction of the Aqualish race on Ando, the Aquala live on floating raft cities and sailing ships. These aqualish are called the finned aqualish, since they retain their fins instead of fingers. They are considered to be of a lower social caste than the Quara Aqualish, even though they make up about ninety percent of the Aqualish population. They blamed the Quara for the steady decline in the harvests of fish from the seas, and ignited a racial war that lasted several generations. The war was ended when an exploration vessel of unknown origins landed on Ando, and the two sides stopped fighting each other and destroyed their visitors. The two groups then reverse-engineered the ship and discovered how to fly it and then build their own ships, although the process was painstakingly slow for the non-technical Aqualish. The uneasy truce was soon broken, and the two groups took their battle to Ando's sister planet, utterly destroying it. (GG4)

Aqualis Baralou Algae Processing Plant #T-18
see Aqualis Base. (PG1)

Aqualis Base
this was a food processing station which floated on the seas of the planet Baralou. Its official name was the Aqualis Baralou Algae Processing Plant #T-18, and it was publicly owned by the Aqualis Food Conglomerate. This was all a front, however, as Aqualis Base actually supplied foodstuffs to the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (PG1)

Aqualis Food Conglomerate
this large corporation was founded to generate foodstuffs from the life in the seas of the planet Baralou. In reality, this corporation was a front to hide the fact that the Alliance was actually operating the food processing facilities on Baralou. (PG1)

Aqualish
a walrus-faced race of bipeds from the planet Ando. There are two castes of Aqualish society. The higher caste has hands which are articulated webs with opposable thumbs, and is known as the Quara. The lower caste has clawed hands, rather than the webbed ones, and is known as the Aquala. The distinction between levels is very great; webbed Aqualish hold governmental and commercial positions, while the clawed Aqualish are usually left to become bounty hunters and smugglers. They are a belligerent yet technically-advanced race. The Aquala live in vast sailing ships, while the Quara live on the planet's small islands. They have a long history of civil war, and have destroyed Ando's sister planet because of it. The war was initiated by the Aquala, who blamed the Quara for the declining harvests of fish. The war lasted until an exploration ship landed on Ando. The two groups banded together and killed the ship's crew. Eventually, the non-technical Aqualish discovered how to fly the ship, and even learned how to build their own. The old grudges soon re-surfaced, though, and the two factions took their battle to Ando's siste planet. When the Empire arrived, the war-loving Aqualish tried to overthrow them. The sheer might of the Empire battered the Aqualish into submission, but it instilled a deep hatred in the Aqualish culture. (SW, GG4, TLC, TME)

Aqualish-Corellian War
this series of battles took place many centuries before the Battle of Yavin. (AE)

Aquaris
an ocean world which sided with the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. Surveys have shown that is has no land masses above the surface of its oceans. (CSW)

Aquaris Freeholders
a group of mercenaries commanded by Silver Fyre, the Freeholders eventually joined forces with the Alliance. They fought to freedom against Imperial control on Aquaris. (CSW)

Aquarius
a domed, bubbled-shaped city that is found on the planet Calamari, Aquarius was designed to allow air- and water-breathing races to co-exist together. It has a number of water-filled canals in which underwater dwellings are built. Large markets and apartments are built above the canals for air-breathers. (GDV)

Aquaspeeder
a small, repulsorlift craft used to traverse the oceans of Ando and other water-based planets. (TME)

Aquella
this planet supports human life. The natives dye and tattoo their skin with elaborate patterns during certain rituals. (JASB)

Aquilaris
this is a beautiful, water-covered world. (RAC)

Aquilaris Classic
this was the name given to the largest of the pro-circuit podraces which wound through the floating cities of the planet Aquilaris, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

AR-101
this is a model of BlasTech stun cuffs manufactured during the early years of the New Republic. (JASB)

AR-312
this scan of the planet Bimmiel was performed by Doctor Anki Pace and a group of students from the University of Agamar. It revealed the presence of a Yuuzhan Vong warrior's skeleton and remains, which had been on the planet some forty or fifty years. The warrior had been killed by a slashrat, but the body was mummified after being dragged into a cave. (DTO)

Ar'gor
a long-bladed weapon prefered by members of the Loag. (CRO)

Ar'wa Nonshik
this Aramandi mercenary worked for the Antar Band during the height of the Galactic Civil War. A former member of the Cirra akia, he was a longtime friend of Ujin Voli. During his career on Aram, Ar'wa was a guard for a low-level bureaucrat, and was never quite sure what his employer did for a living. After his boss was found dead, Ar'wa was approached by Ujin Voli and offered a position with the Antar Band. He remained loyal to Voli and the Band throughout their rivalry with Sprax and Black Sun. (SSR)

Arabanth
a planet in the Hapan system. The humans native to the planet are fond of building and solving thought puzzles. (CPL)

Arabella, Varin
this noble Lady of Tapani Sector was the leader of House Barnaba during the height of the New Order. She became the head of Barnaba at the age of seventeen, after her parents died of a mysterious illness. She was known to be a headstrong leader with natural diplomatic skills, but she often clashed with her inner council of advisors. (PGT)

Arabore
a sea-going creature native to the planet Toola, they are hunted by the Whiphid during rites of passage. The arabore is a fish-eating rodent nearly three meters in length, and with flat tusks studding its short snout. Their bodies, while thickly layered with fat, are streamlined for swimming. A young male Whiphid must kill an arabore with his bare hands to prove himself a mighty hunter, while a new Spearmaster must kill one to prove himself worhty. (GG4, SWJ10)

Arabu
a Dimok escort shuttle assigned to guard the shuttle Keydon during its rendezvous with the Ripoblus shuttle Phantele. (TIE)

Aracara
this swamp-covered planet was the site of the Alliance's DVL-181 outpost, during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Aracara Testing Facility located on the remote world of Aracara, this weapons laboratory was abandoned when the testing proved unprofitable. The Alliance took control of the facility and used it as outpost DVL-181. (HAS)

Arachnia EMRG-50 Rail Gun
this weapon has an incredible range, able to hit targets at point-black distances and up to 4,000 meters away. It has an strong recoil, which requires a strong individual to shoot it. (TSK)

Arachnoid
an insect-like race, the sentient Arachnoids resemble huge spider-like ants. Six legs propel them along, with the upper pair serving as arms. A large, bulbous end section is supported by the four rear legs, and their heads have sharp beaks. (TSK)

Arachnor
a spider-like creature found on the planet Arzid, it spins a sticky web to capture its prey. (PDS)

Aradian
this planet is the third world in the Lianna System. A mildly poisonous atmosphere covers the planet, and it is orbited by three moons. (ML)

Aradian Pulse-lifter
this atmospheric drive system is an alternative to repulsorlifts. The technology is new, and causes large disturbances in the surrounding area when activated. (BTS)

Aragon
this ancient Melodie lives beneath the surface of the waters on Yavin 8. At one time, he could read the ancient Massassi writings that litter the moons of Yavin, but the ability has faded over the years from lack of use. He learned the Massassi words as part of the training he received from his mother, Esla. Esla was her generation's keeper of legends, as was Aragon. When Anakin Solo and Tahiri ask him to help them decipher the riddle of the Golden Globe, Aragon cannot help them with the ancient writings, but he does give them the entire message contained within them. Anakin and Tahiri then translated the message into it component letters, allowing them to read more of the ancient writings. (LW)

Arah
this asteroid belt was the site of an Imperial mining operation geared toward the procurment of derillium and oridium for the V38 development project. (RA2)

Arakkus
an Imperial scientist, Arakkus led an Imperial weapons development lab until he was contaminated by experimental radiation released during an Alliance attack on the lab. The radiation was released when an Alliance attack on the installation destroyed much of the lab. Arakkus retired from Imperial service, feeling sorry for himself and angry at the galaxy. He hid near a dwarf star, but could not reconcile his suffering. Thus, he began sending out false distress signals, luring ships to him. He lured them so close to the dwarf star that they were unable to escape its gravity. thus, the ships' crews became doomed, just as Arakkus was. Known as the Graveyard of Lost Ships, this collection of doomed ships eventually orbitted the star in five interconnected rings. Arakkus refuses to try and live out a full life. When his distress call lured the Millennium Falcon to the Graveyard, Arakkus is beseeched by Han Solo and Luke Skywalker to leave the place. He refuses, claiming that he has rigged the Graveyard with negatron to explode if someone tries to remove him from it. Han realized that such an explosion would free the Falcon, but Arakkus fled into the depths of the station, rather than go back to the outside world. Han and Luke detonated the negatron, destroying the Graveyard and killing Arakkus. (CSW)

Arakyd Industries
a major manufacturer of droids, heavy wepaons, and starships, Arakyd made a name for themselves during the New Order by securing several high-profile deals with the Empire. The Viper Probe Droid was one of their greatest achievements, as it marked one of the most successful attempts to use artificial intelligence in a military application. After the Battle of Endor, Arakyd continued to remain loyal to the Imperial remnants, and produced the XR-85 Tank Droid for use when the Empire battled the New Republic for control of Coruscant. (SCRE, ESB, DFR, JS, EGV)

Arali Dil
this young Twi'lek woman was a student at Garqi Ag University, and was member of the resistance there. She was a contemprary of Dynba Tesc, and was part of the crew that helped liberate the Star's Delight. (TFE)

Aralia
a small, tropical planet located in the Andron System, Aralia is the adopted homeworld of the Ranat species. It is also the location of the amusement park Project Aralia. (GG4)

Arallute
a pungent weed found on the planet Alderaan which blooms with a purple, trumpet-shaped flower. Legend has is that, if a new bride finds one in her yard, she will soon have a child. When the petals are dried, they curl around their seeds; these dried petals have been used as baby rattles. (CPL)

Aram
this high-gravity, tropical planet was the homeworld of the Aramandi race. It was located in the Aramand Cluster. (SSR, AE)

Aramadia
Nil Spaar's embassy ship, it is a huge, spherical craft escorted by three smaller craft. One of the first Aramadia-class thrustships, it employs an Aradian pulse-lifter propulsion system for atmospheric travel. Nil Spaar took the ship to Coruscant when he went there to draw the New Republic's attention away from the Koornacht Cluster. (BTS)

Aramadia*-class Thrustship
this Yevethan warship design is a sphere-shaped craft equipped with Aradian pulse-lifters for propulsion. They are also called T-types. There were two basic models of thrustship: an unarmed troop transport and a fully-armed warship. The warship was graded at medium-cruiser-class weaponry, armed with eight main laser cannon batteries spaced around the ship to defend any angle of attack. Up to four batteries could be linked together, to concentrate fire on a single target. They were also armed with several concussion missile launchers. What made the Aramadia-class so strong in battle was the fact that their spherical shape made it easy to shield. The smooth, rounded surface allowed maximum shielding capability with minimal power input, unlike a boxy starship which required multiple genrators. The T-type thrustship measured 240 meters in diameter, and required a crew of 6,810 Yevethans along with 49 gunners. It could transport up to 1,600 troops and 10,000 metric tons of cargo. Each was armed with 8 turbolaser batteries, 3 proton torpedo launchers, 4 gravity bomb launchers, 4 missile launcher batteries, and 6 ion cannons. (SOL, TT, CTD)

Aramand's
this was the most up-scale, expensive restaurant found in Drepplin city, on the planet Glova. Owned by Tegist Byrg, the planetary Governor, Aramand's catered to some of the planet's richest, and most corrupt, political officials. (POC)

Aramand Cluster
this collection of star systems was controlled by the Aramandi race. (AE)

Aramandi
this was a race of four-armed, four-eyed humanoids from the planet Aram. Because of living for generations in Aram's heavy gavity, their bodies were short and stout. Their skin coloration ranged from light red to light brown, and their eyes were solid black. As a people, the Aramandi were governed by the religious beliefs of the Eeronon, and divided themselves into four distinct castes or akia: the Orma, Cirra, Mila, and Lota. With the advent of the New Order, the Aramandi were courted by the Empire, and given elaborate concessions to allow a simple garrison to be erected on Aram. In return, the Aramandi were basicaly left alone. (SSR, AE)

Arapia
this planet was the homeworld of the Kadri'Ra race. (SWAJ, BSS)

Araquia
an alien arachnid species native to the planet Kirtania. The misuse of the planet's resources by the humans that colonized the planet has resulted in the near-extinction of the araquia race. The average Araquia resembled a large spider, with greenish-brown skin and long legs. They lived in the lower canopy of Kirtania's deciduous jungles. Their knowledge of the plant life on Kirtania gave them a great deal of information on medicine, and their serums and anti-venoms were sought out by travelers and doctors for curing a number of rare diseases. (AE)

Arastide
this New Republic Senator was from the planet Gantho, and was a staunch opponent of the Daysong Party. (POT)

Arat Fraca
this planet is the location at which the Star Morning suddenly reappeared a year after it left Motexx for Gowdawl. (SOL)

Aratech Repulsor Company
manufacturers of speederbikes and other repulsorlift craft. Many of their designs, most notably that 74-Y and 74-Z spederbikes, remain popular throughout the galaxy. (SWSB, EGV)

Arawynne
this Ghostling princess was captured by Djas Puhr and sold to Sebulba as a slave, shortly before the Dug lost the Boonta Eve Classic podrace to Anakin Skywalker. She was seven years old at the time of her capture, but found herself as the leader of the small group captured and brought to Mos Espa. They were sold by Sebulba to Gardulla the Hutt, but were later freed by Anakin Skywalker, Dorn, Kitster, and Pala. Gardulla had planned to use the Ghostlings to help tend her underground garden oasis, but Anakin decided that they would be killed if they worked there. With the help of his friends, Anakin was able to get the Ghostlings passage off Tatooine on a smuggling ship. However, Arawynne was badly injured in the escape. (E1A5, E1A7)

Arbalest
this modified MRX-BR Pacifier was owned and operated by Tern Ashandrik. It was armed with a pair of proton torpedo launchers and three heavy laser cannons. (ND)

Arbmab
an Imperial Sergeant serving under Colonel Johans in the Hell's Hammers. He helped lead the assault on Protazk, on Spuma. (ISB)

Arbo
when Teebo was a child, the Ewok Arbo was the tribe's legend keeper. (AT)

Arbo, Elga
this Corellian woman was the owner and operator of the Redshift Runner, until she ran afoul of Gydio Lucone. She had mortgaged everything she had to make the Redshift Runner the fastest ship in the sector, and she made her living as a courier. When Lucone threatened to seize the ship, Elga refused. A struggle ensued, and Elga was fatally wounded. However, her co-pilot, Maceb Joodsen, made off with the Redshift Runner and was never seen again. (SS)

Arbo Maze
a thicket of trees found on the forest moon of Endor, it is extremely dense. Most creatures that wander into it are quickly lost. (ECAR)

Arboga
this Mon Calamari served the New Republic as Captain of the Hope. (TFE)

Arbor, Jenna Zan
this noted transgenic scientist earned fame early in her career by creating a vaccine to a space virus which threatened an entire planet. She then devoted her career to helping low-technology planets like Melasaton overcome their difficulties. Jenna was also good friend of the Belascan Senator, Uta S'orn. About twelve years before the Battle of Naboo, she reserved Didi Oddo's café for a dinner party on an anonymous tip from Fligh. However, she didn't like the atmosphere and claimed the food was too cold, and swept out of the café with her entourage. It was during this party that the Sorrusian bounty hunter who been tracking Didi sneaked into the café and laid a trap for the Oddos. (DH)

Arbra
this forest planet was the site of an Alliance base during the Galactic Civil War. (EGC)

Arc Hammer
an Imperial warship penetrated by Kyle Katarn. The long, dagger-shaped ship was a remote manufacturing facility for Rom Mohc's darktroopers. Katarn was able to penetrate the ship and defeat Mohc in combat. (DF)

Arc of Fire
this bar and grill was located on the planet Selenius VII. (GG10)

Arc Razor
this was the name of the starship owned by the bounty hunter Gyran. (SSR)

Arca Jeth
a humanoid with three fingers and a thumb on each hand, Arca was a Jedi Master from the planet Arkania. Note that in Tales of the Jedi: Redemption, Master Arca is portrayed with four fingers and a thumb. He agreed to oversee the planet Onderon, but instead sent Ulic Qel-Droma, Ulic's brother Cay, and Tott Doneeta to the planet. He later assists them on the planet, and is forced to conceal Freedon Nadd's Sith lore in a tomb on the Dxun Moon. He refuses Exar Kun's request to see the Sith artifacts from Freedon Nadd's ship. He later attends the Jedi Assembly on Deneba, and is killed in the battle by one of the Krath war droids. Ten years after the Great Sith War, Arca's spirit appeared to Ulic Qel-Droma on Rhen Var, and urged the distraught man to abandon his plans for suicide and depend on his inner strength to survive. (TOJ, DLS, EGC, TOJR)

Arcade
this is the long, main hall of the Rabaanite Gymnasium, found in the city of Ban Belos. (SWJ9)

Arcade Omicron
this diversionary establishment in Lumchugger's Hub, on the planet Bescane, is home to one of the few holozeotroscopes seen outside the up-scale entertainment centers on Coruscant. It continually loops through a holographic display of the Battle of Yavin. The Arcade Omicron also has several scenic replicators. It was here that Alliance agents found Cooper Dray, during their search for clues about the Death-Hunter cyborg project. (SWJ9)

Arcadia
this freighter was owned and operated by Darren T. Weeb during the Galactic Civil War. (ML)

Arch Canyon
this natural landmark is found in the deserts of Tatooine. The canyon is dominated by beautiful, natural stone arches that span its width. Jabba the Hutt's personal podracing course ran through Arch Canyon, on its way to Jag Crag Gorge. (TPM)

Arch of Triumph
this landmark was erected on Coruscant by the Empire, shortly after Emperor Palpatine instituted the New Order. The Arch was erected in Palpatine's honor. Han Solo, during one of his Academy training exercises, obtained the fastest time for an assigned run when he flew through, rather than over, the Arch. (TPS)

Archais
this planet is the site of legendary, mythical peaks of incredible height. (GCQ)

Archeaoastronomer
a scientist who investigates ancient civilizations who had developed space travel. (LCM)

Archer
this being was a member of the Vibroaxe Squadron of pirates. (IF)

Archimar
the New Republic military doctor assigned to the Glorious. (BTS)

ARCHIVE-H
this was the codename of the Ringali Shell's most successful infochant, active during the Galactic Civil War. ARCHIVE-H was supernaturally accurate, and commanded a high - although fair - price for his services. (FOP)

Archon
this was the name given to the highest political offices of the planet Vergill. (JE)

Archon
this modified frigate was part of an Imperial fleet which maintained the confinement of prisoners taken during the Battle of Hoth. (XWA)

Arcon Multinode Agricorp
this Corellian-owned macro-farming and food processing company was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. Arcon has major holdings in the Outer Rim Territories, and buys over 30% of the crops growing by independent Outer Rim farmers. Note that Han Solo at Stars' End names this as Acron Multinode. (CSA, HSE)

Arcona
a scaleless, bipedal race of reptiles with an anvil-shaped head and marble-like eyes. Between their eyes is a small bulbous knob that is used as a heat sensor and supplement to their eyesight. Their skin resembles fibrous wood, and ranges in color from dark mahogany through gray to ebony. They are native to the planet Cona, and require ammonia supplements whenever they are off-planet. Socially, Arcona arrange themselves into groups called Grand Nests. They are farmers by nature, tilling Cona's rich tropical environment. The absence of salt in their environment has caused them to become addicted to the substance on occasion. Such addicted Arcona are noticeable by their glowing yellow eyes, a result of a chemical interaction between the salt their optic nerves. This interaction also causes hallucinatory visions to play across the Arcona's eyes. However, increased levels of salt also break down the pancreatic ability to convert ammonia into a water-conserving enzyme, and is thus deadly to the Arcona. (GG4, SCRE, CCG)

Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation
this Cona-based mining operation was a secondary player on Bandomeer until Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi managed to expose Xanatos' part in the control of Offworld Mining. (RF, DR)

Arconan Tunneler
this was a mining device developed by the Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation. (RF)

Arctic Environments Combat Range
this Imperial Army training center was located at the north pole of Sirpar. (SWAJ)

Arcura
a nondescript planet. (SWAJ)

Arcuse
this Ubese bounty hunter was perhaps best-known for his singlehanded capture of the Exelis Hunters in the Strabin Sector. When his friend and sometime partner, Kiran Tatch, was expelled from Glorga the Hutt's employ, Arcuse decided to join him to work a freelance hunters. They worked like this for nearly twenty years before joining the Granse Confederacy. His reputation as a bounty hunter was heightened by the fact that Arcuse made very few enemies, and never left the employment of a crimelord on anything but good terms. (AIR)

Arda-1
the first planet in the Arda System. (CSWEA)

Arda-2
this small, neutral world was known for it industrial advances. They T-6 diodem was produced on Arda-2, which is the primary planet in the Arda System. (CSWEA)

Arda-3
the third planet in the Arda System. (CSWEA)

Ardan
this native of the planet Brentaal served the Imperial Navy as a Lieutenant Commander aboard the Executor. He was in command of the bridge pit crews during the Battle of Hoth and the chase of the Millennium Falcon toCloud City. As a junior officer, Ardan participated in the subjugation of several alien races, including the Ithorians and Wookiees, as well as the planets Firro and Sinton. (CCG4)

Ardana Mitt'Ayehe
this Twi'lek was the owner and leader of the Ayehe Dance Troop. (ML)

Ardanium
this mineral has the unique property of growing stronger in the presence of radiation. This makes it a perfect material for creating fuel canisters for starships, especially capital-scale ships, which require huge amounts of power. This mineral was found in large quantities on the planet Questal, and the Emperor raided the planet in an attempt to expand his fleet of Super-class Star Destroyers. Unfortunately, the supply ran out just after a group of Alliance agents overtrew Moff Bandor. (GCQ)

Ardax
an Imperial Army Colonel assigned by Furgan to capture Anakin Solo on Anoth. He was a native of Chandrila, and grew up to serve in the Imperial Navy. Known as a fair leader, Ardax was respected for his ability to put his crew's well-being in front of his own. He was a veteran of command of several ships in the Caridan System before travelling to Anoth. (DA, COTF, JASB)

Ardele, Feylis
this young woman was a member of the Commenor militia before joining the Alliance. She worked with the militia in preparation for entrance to the Imperial Academy. She never attended, though, citing philosophical differences with Imperial doctrine. She impressed Admiral Ackbar, who referred her to Wedge Antilles and Rogue Squadron shortly after the discovery of the Eidolon. Her experience with TIE Fighters and her abilities with an X-Wing earned her a position in the Rogues. She soon found herself falling in love with fellow Rogue Avan Beruss, and they worked hard to keep their relationship a secret. (HXW, XWM)

Ardellian, Tormax
this Corellian pirate was a member of a raiding party that tried to smuggle in Alliance operatives and equipment to the planet Questal, some three years after the Battle of Yavin. His expedition was exposed, and the agents and crew were imprisoned. The Alliance operatives were killed in a public execution, and the pirates were permanently detained. Ardellian managed to escape the initial assault, and he wandered around Gralleenya city for several weeks, trying to figure out how to rescue his companions. (GCQ)

Arden
1) Arden once had a romantic relationship with princess Kalieva K'ntarr. Arden left the political and commericial intrigues of Rydonni Prime for the stars, and was supposed to take Kalieva with him. She once mistook Sienn Sconn for Arden, when Sconn tried to infiltrate Rythani Products and steal a weapon prototype. (SWJ9)
2) this gas giant was the fourth planet in the Bakura System. Note that The Truce at Bakura simply named this planet Planet 4. (TB, TBSB)

Arden, Deredith
this Bakur Corporation employee held the rank of Captain, and was the commander of the first colony ship to reach the planet Bakura during the Old Republic. He served as the first leader of the Bakur Corporation, and eventually founded the city of Salis D'aar. He served as Prime Minister for eight years, building a social and economic base for the settlers to work from. He was unable to fully remove the political infighting that plagued the planetary government until it was nationalized by the Empire. (TB, TBSB)

Arden Industries
this small, starship manufacturer produced a number of freighter designs, including the Model 47 light freighter. (POC)

Arden Lyn
this former Teras Kasi master was summoned by Darth Vader to lead an assault team against the Alliance. Their goal was to defeat the leaders of the Alliance in one-on-one combat. Lyn's trademark was his cybernetic arm, which was loaded with battle implements. (MTK)

Ardent
an Alliance Mon Calamari Light Cruiser operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Ardiff
this Imperial Navy Captain rose through the ranks in the decade following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. He served as Admiral Pellaeon's second-in-command aboard the Chimaera during the initial phases of testing of the new cloaking device. Although Ardiff disagreed with Pellaeon's choice to surrender to the New Republic, his sense of duty and honor to his commanding officer made him hold his tongue. However, this did not stop him from voicing his opinion when he felt it necessary, a trait Pellaeon came to appreciate and promote. (SOP, VOF)

Arditi
an Alliance modified CR90 corvette that was destroyed while trying to disable the Harpax so that Admiral Harkov and the Protector fleet could escape and defect. (TIE)

Ardle
this Thyferran was a captain in the Thyferran Home Defense Corps. He initially served under Erisi Dlarit, but was chosen to lead the squadrons that accompanied the Corrupter to Alderaan to intercept Rogue Squadron. When the Rogues disabled the Corrupter and chased off the Aggregator, Ardle surrendered his TIE Fighters to Wedge Antilles. (BW)

Ardos
the small, dwarf star primary to the Ardos System. Hutt legends say that Ardos was in love with Evona, which was a sister star that made up a binary system. The two lovers had many children, which were the various planets of the system. When Evona was sucked into a black hole along with several planets, Ardos became angry and miserable at the loss of his loved ones. Ardos self-destructed, throwing off a huge radioactive mantle of gas, and reducing itself to a white dwarf. The ejection of radioactive matter destroyed many of the remaining planets, leaving only the Hutt homeworld of Varl. Scientists from the Old Republic and Empire believe that this story is a mere legend, and that the Hutt's destroyed much of their system in an ancient civil war. (GG4)

Arecelis Acosta
this Coynite was a member of the Alliance's Harrier infiltration team. A tall creature covered with blue-black fur, Arecelis was killed by the Dark Jedi Vialco on Nysza III during the Harrier's attempt to take out a new Imperial communications bunker near Iscera. Arecelis was a good friend of Deke Holman. (SWJ8)

Arena of Games
this gladiator stadium was established by Imperial General Alfren Hul on Derilyn. It was located in the governmental district of the city of Tekar, and was a replica of the Rols'Kus arena on Coyn. (OE)

Arena of the Mind
this unusual edifice was established by the Ropagu near the city of Ropagis, for use in the culture-wide debates which replaced open warfare in their society. There is seating for 10,000 Ropagu, which flock to the arena to witness intellectual debates between scholars and philosophers. Off-world guest speakers are sometimes invited to join the debates, and there are a number of translation facilities available. (TSK)

Arena Shockball
this version of shockball is played in a confined space, restricting movement on the playing field. (SOL)

Aressa, Tress
this woman had many parts of her body replaced with illegal cybernetic implants and replacements. She was known as one of Cloud City's best independent infochants, and controlled a large network of vessels throughout the city. She was employed by Captain Velantia of the Imperial Security Bureau to root out information on the Alliance's movements on Cloud City. (GG2)

Argai
this planet was the center of Xim the Despot's empire, and this site of his royal palace. (ML)

Argazda
located in the Kanz Sector, this planet revolted against the Old Republic about 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. Its provisional governor, Myrial, declared the Kanz Sector independent, and began to forcibly conquer other planets in the sector. Lorrd was one of these planets, whose cries for help fell on deaf ears, for the Old Republic was too busy to help. The Kanz Disorders lasted nearly 300 years before a group of Jedi Knights could be dispatched to end them. (CSA)

Argazdan
this people subjugated the Lorrdians during the Kanz Disorders. (AE)

Argdran, Mikos
this short, pudgy man was something of an infochant, playing the Elrood-Derilyn Trade Route and exchanging useful information with the highest bidders. He was once employed by Lud Chud, but doublecrossed the Rakaan crimelord by alerting Tanda Pryl and the Thunderflare of an attack by Chud's forces. The pirates were decimated at the hands of a fully-prepared Imperial Star Destroyer, and Mikos was captured. Lud Chud then discovered that Argdran had stolen a number of computer datafiles, and had a team of bounty hunters throw Mikos out of a passing cargo ship. Luckily for Mikos, a team of Alliance agents was passing by the area, on a search for Shondra Del. Lud Chud, upon learning of Argdran's survival, employed a team of Loag assassins to hunt down Mikos, and the Alliance team was forced to travel to Merisee to throw off the pursuit. The Loag were able to track Argdran by the weak signal produced by the stolen datafiles. However, Argdran and the Alliance team were rescued from the assassins by the Thunderflare, believing they were simple ore transporters. Argdran, however, was captured by the Empire on Derilyn and forced to fight in the Arena of Games. After being rescued by Shondra Del, he pledged his support to the Alliance. (OE)

Argenhald Base
this was the name of the Imperial garrison located just outside the city of Lurark, on the planet Saffalore, during the early years of the New Republic. (SOC)

Argent Lady
this new Ghtroc Cargo Empress-class freighter was owned by Cosmohaul Shipping. It was loaned to a group of freelance mercenaries by Paxtrell Snoygal, in the hopes that the mercs could stop the piracy which was plaguing Cosmohaul's transports. The Snoygal had hired a new crew to transport 100 R5 droids to Sullust. The crew turned out to be Xalto Sneerzick and his followers, who were trying to free the droids. He had inserted an "emancipation virus" into their programming, but one of his droids rebelled and shot him. The Argent Lady was pursued and captured by an Imperial Patrol Craft, but its crew was overtaken by the mercenaries and left stranded. The Argent Lady returned to Cosmohaul, but not before one of the infected R5 droids escaped in a life pod. (SWJ9)

Arginall City
this was the capital of the planet Hargeeva, and one of only six urban communities on the planet. (SWJ8)

Arginall Refinery
this small operation was one of the primary sources of the ores and minerals extracted from the mines found on the planet Hargeeva. It was controlled by the Empire during the height of the New Order, and its corporate offices were modified to serve as part of the Imperial garrison base. (SWJ8)

Argon
an Imperial Grand Moff who was swindled by the Tonnika Sisters out of 25,000 credits. (TME)

Argona
1) this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Ironhand, one of the thirteen Star Destroyers still under Imperial control some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. When Moff Disra set his plans in motion to overturn the New Republic, he ordered Argona, along with Captains Nalgol and Trazzen, to ready themselves for an assault on Bothawui, following the Caamas Incident. Argona questioned the necessity of moving three Star Destroyers to Bothawui on a long-term mission without direct support, until Disra brought out a resurrected Thrawn, played by the con artist Flim. The Imperial Captains all agreed with the plan. (SOP)
2) this was one of the largest cities on the planet Rhamalai, and was the first located taken over when the Empire subjugated the planet. (SWJ13)

Argoon
primary planet in the Newland System, it was the site of an Imperial manufacturing facility during the Galactic Civil War. It was eventually abandoned following a number of Alliance assaults. (TIE)

Argovas City
this was the capital city of the planet Argovia. (IA)

Argovia
this humid, marshy world was rich in minerals and ores. This made it a prime location for a variety of small corporations, until it came under the notice of the Empire. The Empire established a sensor network complex on the planet, using the net to tie together communications in the Endocray Sector. When the Empire decided to nationalize the sector, it used the complex on Argovia to jam communications during a sector-wide blockade. A team of Alliance agents managed to infiltrate the planet and destroy the complex, helping to end the blockade. The average day on this misty, stormy world lasts 28 standard hours, and its year lasts 345 local days. (IA)

Argus
an Alliance shuttle destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Arhan
this race of near-Humans was characterized by their frail build and long features. Their ears were slightly pointed at the top, and their eyes had a piercing quality. (CRO)

Arhul Hextraphon
Arhul was the executive secretary and master historian for the Alliance High Command. Before that, he was sold into slavery to the Zygerrians. While being transported to his new owner, Arhul's slave ship was attacked. He and his comrades huddled in fear, only to find they were in no danger. Han Solo and Chewbacca had overtaken and boarded the ship, only to find the slavers gone. Han asked Arhul if he could pilot the ship, and with a positive reply, Han and Chewie disappeared. Arhul and his companions then realized that the two smugglers had left behind the Zygerrian slavers' expensive cargo, which Arhul and his comrades used to regain their freedom. (SWSB, CSA)

Aria Callet'dira
this is the name of Gacerite battle music, used to whip Gacerite soldiers into a fighting frenzy. It was played by a military unit's musicmakers. (PG2)

Ariana
this was the capital city of the planet Garos IV, and was the site of Chado's Pub and the University of Garos. (SWJ1, SWJ12)

Aric
a creature whose tongue is a delicacy. (CPL)

Arica
Mara Jade's alias when she went undercover in Jabba the Hutt's palace in order to kill Luke Skywalker. She provided C-3PO with a good deal of background on Jabba's operation, after the droid arrived at the palace as a gift from Luke. (TJP, ROJR)

Aridus
a desert planet which was once the site of an Alliance weapons depot. Darth Vader planted an imposter on Aridus, who posed as Obi-wan Kenobi, in an effort to capture Luke Skywalker. The actor became extremely engrossed in his role, believing that he was actually defeating an evil enemy when he killed attacking stormtroopers. This drew Luke closer to him, as well as the native Chubbits that inhabited the planet. The actor eventually came to believe Vader was evil, and destroyed the Ivory Tower in an effort to distract Vader while Luke escaped. (CSW)

Ariela
a native of Alderaan, Ariela was Eyvind's fiance. The two were married on Tatooine, in a ceremony that included their human and Jawa friends. Ariela supported Ariq Joanson's belief that the humans, Jawas, and Sand People could live together peacefully, despite what the Empire said. Ariela and Eyvind were married the day that Owen and Beru Lars were killed. When a group of adolescent Sand People ransacked their wedding and killed Eyvind, she was carried away by the Sand People until Ariq rescued her by placating the young Sand People and trading water for her. The Imperial troops interrupted the bartering, claiming that they came to rescue the two, and shot a number of the Sand People. Despite the Imperial pressures, she stayed on Tatooine to run Eyvind's farm and help Ariq pursue his peace. (TME)

Arienne Desert
this vast wasteland was located south of the Trekali Mountains, on the planet Sevarcos. (SWJ12)

Aril Nunb
Nien Nunb's sister, she was the Executive Officer of the X-Wing Rogue Squadron about two and a half years after the Battle of Endor. Wedge Antilles praised her abilities as a fighter pilot, but he opposed her nomination as XO because she was an instinctual pilot with little ability to teach. He wanted Tycho Celchu to be the XO. She eventually became a pilot in the squadron, and was captured on Coruscant. She was used as one of Evir Derricote's experimental aliens for his Krytos project before she was rescued. She later assisted the Rogues during the Bacta War by piloting the Valiant warship. After several years of valiant and intelligent service, Aril was promoted to Admiral, and given command of the Victory-class Star Destroyer Protector. She accompanied Leia Organa Solo to Bastion, shortly after the start of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, to enlist the aid of Admiral Pellaeon and the Imperial Remnant. (XWN, WG, BW, DTR) located in the Albarrio System, this jungle world was the sector capital of Relgim Sector. It was on the intinerary of the Kuari Princess when Imperial Moffs Torpin and Vanko began plotting their deception of Emperor Palpatine. Members of the Alliance were also on the planet, trying to discover what the Moffs were up to while escaping from stormtroopers. The Moffs and the Alliance agents all boarded the Kuari Princess on Aris. Aris is the capital world of the Albarrio Sector. It has no native sapient species, although the wok-woks that roam the jungles have begun showing rudimentary intelligence. The jungles of Aris cover the planet in tropical rainforest, with trees growing 250 meters tall in the warmest parts. The inhabitants of the planet live in tree-dwellings formed from wide platforms and connected by simple bridges and walkways. (RM, CFG, TFE)

Aris

Aris Brace
this bulk freighter owned the Corellian Merchants Guild record for the most cargo runs over five parsecs. (SWSB)

Aris V
this planet, located in Parmel Sector, was chosen as a possible base of operations for the dishomed Laramus Base Irregulars. (GG9)

Arjan II
this droid brain is roughly equivalent to the AA-1 Verbobrain in terms of capacity. They were used in the creation of Roche J9-series worker droids. (GG7)

Arjon F.M.P.
a native of Ord Mantell, Arjon (F.M.P., to her friends) stopped on Tatooine during a layover and never made her connecting flight. She has since become a card-shark, with no real scruples and a growing loyalty to Ohwun and Chachi DeMaal. The DeMaals tolerate her presence in the entry ramp to Docking Bay 94 in Mos Eisley, where she scams her customers. (GG7)

Arjun
this Imperial Strike-class cruiser supported the attack on the Organarms facility during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Arjun, Jr.
this Imperial combat utility vehicle was assigned to the Arjun, and participated in the attack on the Organarms facility during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Ark Roose
this strange alien, known as “Bumpy” on the Outer Rim podracing circuits, was easily distinguished by his unusual skull. The top of his head was dominated by a spined frill, while his jaws were set well below and in front of his cranium. A native of the planet Sump, Bumpy favored the Vokoff-Strood Plug-G 927 model of racer during his prime. Being one of Sebulba’s cronies, Ark Roose tried to sabotage Anakin Skywalker’s podracer, shortly before the Boonta Eve Classic race, but disabled Ben Quadinaros’ machine by mistake. (RAC, IG1, IWE1)

Arkania
a planet which had a great deal of Dark Side energy, it was the world watched over by Jedi Master Arca Jeth. It is a tundra world known for its huge diamonds. It is located in the Colonies region. (TOJ, DESB)

Arkania Hyperspace
this terminal spaceport was located near the jump gate which was placed near Arkania, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

Arkanian Dawn
this infamous Thalassian Y164 slave transport ship is feared throughout the Outer Rim Territories. Rumors surrounding the ship say that no one ever survives a trip in the Dawn, for no one has ever been see after boarding it. This is, in fact, all a clever ruse put on by the Sullustan Thila, who owns the Dawn. She is an Alliance operative, and uses the mystique and fear surrounding the ship to swoop down on slave camps and collect slaves. She then transports them to Alliance safeworlds, where they can live in peace. (GG9)

Arkanian Dragon
a large creature native to the planet Arkania. (FNU)

Arkanian Jellyfish
a lifeform native to the planet Arkania. (FNU)

Arkanis
this planet was the homeworld of Devon Fuller. (GG9)

Arkanis Sector
this is a section of the galaxy found in the Mid Rim Territories. (SWAJ)

Arkayd
presumably, this is a typo in Jedi Search, which lists Arkayd (not Arakyd) as the manufacturer of the Millennium Falcon's concussion missiles. (JS)

Arkonne IIIa
a planet. (TBSB)

Arkos, Seb
this skeletally-thin man was the owner of Arky's Emporium of Forgotten Treasures, located in the city of Xakrea on Darkknell. He went most often by the nickname "Arky," and was a close associate of Booster Terrik before Booster was sent to Kessel. He was known in criminal circles as a pretty good forger, and even spent some time in the spice mines of Kessel after an arrest. (TFNR)

Arky
this New Republic Navy officer served as the task force coordinator under Etahn A'baht, as part of the Fifth Battle Group. Arky helped plan the initial blockade of the planet Doornik-319, also known as Morning's Bell. (SOL)

Arky's Emporium of Forgotten Treasures
this antique dealership was owned and operated by Seb Arkos in the city of Xakrea, on the planet Darkknell. It was located at 24335 East Ryloth Street. (TFNR)

Arl
this Imperial Navy Colonel served aboard the Lusankya, under the command of Joak Drysso. Arl was in command of the ship's starfighter squadrons. (BW)

Arleen
a pleasure yacht on which Lando's rented navigation droid last served. The droid was rented by Lando in the Oseon System in order to get him to the Rafa System. (LCM)

Arleil Schous
this aging male Defel served as one of the Alliance's primary contacts on Tatooine. He was well-regarded as a leader in Mos Eisley's alien community. His advancing age had dimished his ability to warp light, so he was unable to hide in the shadows like younger Defel. (CCG6)

Armament Rating
a scale on which the offensive nature of a starship can be measured. The basic scale is:
0 = no weaponry
1 = light defensive weapons only
2 = light defensive and offensive capabilities
3 = medium defensive and offensive capabilities
4 = heavy defensive and offensive capabilities
(WEG)

Armatin the Dread
this retired smuggler owned the slava bar in Esau's Ridge, on Tholatin, during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

ArMek
manufacturers of shipboard ion and laser weapons. (SCRE)

Armand, Lazarus
this New Republic agent was the second in command of Sector Intelligence in the Kalinda System. He was instrumental in hiring smugglers to assist in Project Second Chance. (TSK)

Armor
an Imperial shuttle used during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Armored Caterpillar
this Alderaanian insect was the larval stage of a furry, large-winged moth. The armored caterpillar burrows underground and remains hidden there for up to twelve years in a thick cocoon. These insects were the primary food source for many of Alderaan's bird species. (ISU)

Armored Defense Platform
any of the heavily-armed, orbital stations used to protect a planet or system from invasion. (HTTE)

Armored Eel
a large, segmented terrestrial slug native to the moon Yavin 4, the armored eel was a wide, flat head dominated by high eye-ridges. (ISU)

Armored Heartbeak
a song written and played by the band Red Shift Limit. It has first released as part of the compilation Limited Warfare, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Armory Droid
another term for a gladiator droid or other military training automaton. (E1A1)

Arms Load-Out Permit
this Imperial document was one of a number of documents required from any spacer who plied the spacelanes during the New Order. The procedures for obtaining the certification were documented in the Spacer's Information Manual. Known as an ALP, this document provided information on the current weapons and armament of the starship it was issued to. (SWJ9)

Armudu Spice
an additive that Niles Ferrier uses when he rolls his cigarras. It compliments the flavor of the carababba tabac. It also makes Ferrier's presence well-known, as its aroma is unmistakable. (DFR)

Armx
this bounty hunter was known for his poetry, and often wrote epitaphs for his acquisitions. (GG10)

Army of Terror
this was the final result of Project Starscream, had it ever succeeded. Borborygmus Gog had planned to develop an army of biological constructs which was quick to generate, was immune to the Force and could obtain sustenance from its victims. All earlier steps in the project were geared toward the creation of the army. Gog had implanted into the brain of each construct an explosive device, which could be detonated if the army ran amok. The plans for the army were scuttled when Gog was killed on Kiva and the only surviving member of the army, a being known as Eppon, was destroyed by Gog. (GOF6)

Army of the Republic
the ground-based arm of the Old Republic's military. (MTS)

Arnae, Dwin
this thin, mousy Imperial officer was a driven perfectionist who had hoped to set an Imperial record for the most successful apprehensions of suspected customs violators. His other goal was to set the record for most successful prosecutions against those customs violators. An extraordinary individual in his own eyes, Arnae's perfectionist attitude got him thrown out of the Imperial Navy when he uncovered some infractions on the part of his superiors. Rather than bring the matter to further attention, his commanding officer had him removed to the Sector Interdiction office on Travnin. In order to meet his own goals - which is superiors cared little for, since they were all more worried about the Alliance - Arnae continually scoured the Minos Cluster, keeping his highly-disgruntled crew on missions for months at a time. (GG6)

Arner Figgis
a respected Issorian scholar, Arner taught anthropology and archaeology depsite never truly experiencing either activity. (SWJ12)

Arnet
this Imperial Lieutenant was in command of the lead AT-ST scout walker assigned to Tempest Squadron, in defense of the shield generators garrisoned on the forest moon of Endor during the construction of the second Death Star. A combat veteran, Arnet commanded a prototype AT-ST under the command of General Veers during the Battle of Hoth. During the Battle of Endor, Arnet was assigned to devise a counterattack to any rebel activity which captured the shield generator bunker. (CCG10)

Arno
1) this stormtrooper served under Lesim on the Forest Moon of Endor, and was one of the troopers who brought in Luke Skywalker, after he surrendered. (MTS)
2) this grizzled old man was one of the original colonists who came to Tatooine. He became a friend of Adar Tallon, and was targetted by Jodo Kast during the hunt for Tallon. Arno managed to escape, and helped the Alliance locate Tallon. (TM)

Arnod
this Imperial Navy pilot was one of the pilots who pursued the Millennium Falcon through the Hoth asteroid belt following the Battle of Hoth. (MTS)

Arnothian
this Imperial General maintained a TIE Defender production facility on an unspecified world during the early years of the New Republic. He fancied himself a warlord in training, having broken from the Empire shortly after the Battle of Endor. His ability to lead a force was threatened when Ysanne Isard - having survived her own death at the Battle of Thyferra - tried to take command of the facility. Arnothian refused, but had neither the strength nor the will to fight against her. In the end, Isard had him executed for insubordination, and she took control of his facility. (IR)

Arnthout, Melnea
this woman was the leader of the first colony ship to land on Tatooine. She was faced with a number of problems upon landing on the desert world, including the crash of the supply ship Dowager Queen. She rallied her people, and eked out a settlement from the inforgiving land. She established the Bestine settlement, and opened a dialogue with the local Jawas, who were already living on the planet. They agreed to help the humans, and the colony eventually prospered. Later, Fort Tusken and Motesta were established, although Fort Tusken was abandoned after a Sandperson attack. (GG7)

Arnthout
a small farming community on Tatooine, named for the leader of the original Tatooine settlers. It averaged about 350 beings, and was located just south of Bestine. (GG7)

Arnthout Pass
this rocky roadway led travellers through the Jundland Wastes of Tatooine. (GG7)

Aro-GX
this series of security droids had a humanoid structure which stood nearly two meters tall. They were known to be extremely loyal to their owners, and were capable of a wide range of autonomous action. (SWJ1)

Aroma Disseminator
this is a special device that is usually an option on most higher-level droids, such as protocol droids. Aroma disseminators exude an odor which is pleasant to the smell of its owners. (GMH)

Arool
a species of poisonous succulent, shaped like a cactus. (TME)

Arpor-Lan
this humanoisd race was noted for its horned eyebrow ridges and a pair of short horns on its chin. (AIR)

Arqet
this ferocious, warm-blooded predator was native to the planet Pellastrallas, and was considered one of the most vicious predators in all of Agarix Sector. A solitary hunter, the arqet resembled a large, armor-plated horse, with a pair of curved horns sprouting from its temples. The feet of an arqet ended in heavy hooves, which gave it the sure-footedness to maneuver in Pellastrallas' mountains. (COG)

Arr'kya
this Bothan served as a Lieutenant in the New Republic, and was stationed aboard the Ralroost as the communications officer, under the command of Admiral Kre'fey during the Yuuzhan Vong occupation of Garqi. She was later killed during the Battle of Ithor, when a Yuuzhan Vong coralskipper got past the Ralroost's failing shields and exploded on the bridge. (DTR)

Arradi
this was one of the six major continents found on the planet Celanon. (PG1)

Arrak Snake
a native Ithorian reptile. (TME)

Arramanx
this planet was notorious for its run-down urban areas. (COG)

Arranda, Tash
an orphan from the planet Alderaan, Tash and her younger brother Zak travelled the galaxy with their strange uncle Hoole after their parents were killed when the Empire destroyed their homeworld. The children had been away on a field trip when the destruction occurred. The three were wanted by the Empire for a number of supposed crimes. Tash was thirteen at the time she began to notice a sensitivity to the Force. She was taken in by the B'omarr monk Grimpen, who drew her into his plans by making her believe she was one of the most enlightened beings of her generation. However, she was simply drawn into an elaborate scheme in which Jabba the Hutt had been using B'omarr techniques to transfer the brains of the galaxy's worst criminals into other bodies. Tash ended up with the brain of Karkas after the original host escaped, and promptly killed Commander Fuzzel. Hoole managed to get her brain back into her own body after stopping Grimpen and returning several ancient scrolls to the B'omarr monks. She later used a red-gemstone necklace - give to her by her mother - as a way to concentrate on the Force. (GOF1, GOF7, GOF11)

Arranda, Zak
this orphan, once a native of the planet Alderaan, travelled the galaxy with his sister, Tash, and their uncle, Hoole. Hoole took care of the children after their parents were killed when the first Death Star destroyed Alderaan. The children had been away on a field trip when the destruction occurred. The three were wanted by the Empire for a number of supposed crimes. Zak was a little over a year younger than Tash, and while had some affinity for the Force, Zak was extremely adept with technology. He could return most computers and systems to working order, given the right parts and some time. Zak was declared clinically dead when they stopped on the planet Necropolis to purchase a new starship. After befriending Kairn, Zak was drawn into Doctor Evazan's plans to create armies of reanimated zombies. He injected Zak with the diluted juice of cryptberries, then injected him with reanimation serum. Zak was then buried, and Evazan hoped that the boneworms would soon begin burrowing into his body to locate bone marrow. It was Zak who discovered that the B'omarr monk Grimpen was working with Jabba the Hutt to transfer criminal brains into new bodies, and rescued his sister from a similar fate while in the crimelord's palace on Tatooine. (GOF1, GOF7, GOF11)

Arrandle Mountains
this low range of mountains was located on Sevarcos, on the north side of the Desert of Kariste. (SWJ12)

Arratan
this beefy, black-bearded man was the leader of the Blood Nest bandit group, based on the third moon of M2398. He despised Captain Darillian. (WS)

Arreis
an Imperial freighter destroyed by Keyan Farlander during his first tour of duty as an X-Wing pilot. (XW)

Arrejis Mellaha
this Squib ran Serooin's Gear, on the planet Betha II, shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Mellaha, like many aliens who lived in the Outer Rim at this point in galactic history, was wary of the presence of humans or the New Republic. However, he harbored neither group any ill-will. In fact, he was prospering from selling illegal goods to his patrons, primarily because of bans imposed by the Republic. While not directly cooperating, Mellaha helped a group of Republic agents search out the Kaarenth Dissension by warning them to stay away from certain areas of Betha II's primary starport. (SWJ8)

Arrestor
this Imperial bulk cruiser was assigned to Admiral Greelanx. It served as part of the front attack line during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. Drea Renthal managed to destroy this ship by launching a series of concussion missiles into her flanks, then pummeling the ship with turbolaser fire. (THG)

Arrgaw System
this system is located on the Harrin Trade Corridor, between the Lahopa and Lazerian Systems. (TSK)

Arrikabukk
Chewbacca obtained this false identity from a Tsyklen on Nar Hekka, shortly after he joined Han Solo. (THG)

Arrow-17
an Aratech airspeeder popular in the Outer Rim. (TFE)

Arrow-23
one of Aratech's landspeeders, the Alliance modified these craft extensively, adding a laser cannon and a concussion grenade launcher to move up to 5 troopers into a hot battle zone. (RASB)

Arroway, Cheln
this man worked for Tern Ashandrik as hired muscle, protecting Ashandrik's interests on the planet Seregar. (ND)

Arroyo
an Alliance Lambda-class shuttle used to evacuate key personnel from Briggia, when it was attacked as part of Operation Strike Fear. (XW)

Arruna
this Twi'lek woman was the chosen companion of the Najib Lathaam, until he mistakenly angered Adalric Brandl by not allowing him to leave the planet Najiba during its passage through the surrounding asteroid belt. Brandl used the Dark Side of the Force to strangle Arruna and kill her without touching her. (TFE)

Ars Opus
an Imperial freighter which was carrying a cargo of R2 astromech droids, it was overtaken by pirates but later captured by the Alliance. In what appeared to be a planned maneuver, some of the R2 units were programmed to be remotely controlled. When they were used by Alliance starpilots, they suddenly lost control of their ships and were captured. (XW)

Art Beyond Dying
this was the name of the "glorious conception" honorable Blood Carvers could experience after their physical bodies died. Once the physical body was killed, the Blood Carver moved forward into the afterlife, reborn in a more wondrous form. Many heinous crimes, especially those which bring dishonor to one's family, result in a warrior's exclusion from the list of those allowed to experience the Art. (RP)

Art Galaxy Roundup
this was one of the many newsfeed articles written by Pertaal Shenvehr. Like his other columns, it contained coded messages and phrases that allowed him to pass information to Alliance field agents. (CRO)

Artel
an Imperial Security Bureau agent who worked with Wallace Fisk on Demophon. (SN)

Artesian Space Collage
an art form which consists of hanging objects suspended around a central point of interest. (TNR)

Articles of the Hawk-bats this ficticious set of by-laws supposedly governed the actions of the Hawk-bat Independent Space Force. (IF)

Artificial Gravity
most often used in spacestations and starships, artificial gravity is produced by special gravity generators to create the illusion of gravity where there exists no gravitational force, such as in deep space. (HSE)

Artillery Remote
this device is used by military field personnel to remotely fire heavy artillery weapons. (CCG3)

Artistic Integrity
this musical compilation by the band The Emperor's New Clothes featured a song that was also entitled Artistic Integrity. It was written to goad the band Red Shift Limits, who release an anti-Imperial cover of the TENC song, Totally Patriotic. (GG9)

Aruk
this Hutt was one of the most powerful members of the Besadii clan. A sibling of Zavval, it was Aruk who placed his nephew Kibbick in control of the Ylesian spice processing facility. Almost 900 years of age at the time of the inception of the New Order, Aruk was so corpulent that he was unable to perform simple movements. Aruk and Jiliac were the two most wealthy and powerful Hutts of their age, and they were continually striving to outdo each other in terms of profits. Aruk gave birth to the disfigured Hutt called Durga, and raised the child in the face of opposition from many other Hutts. When Jiliac realized that Aruk was going to cut off the supply of spice and slaves from Ylesia, he contacted Teroenza. The two devised a scheme in which poisoned nala-tree frogs - a favorite delicacy of Aruk's - were fed to the old Hutt. Aruk consumed the frogs with abandon until his system could no longer take the abuse. Aruk died form the continual poisoning, and his nephew, Durga, suspected foul play. Durga had Aruks' body frozen and sent to Coruscant for an autopsy, where the poison was identifed and isolated. (THG, RD)

Arunskin 32
a cargo skiff manufactured by GoCorp. It was tougher than the Bantha II skiff, without sacrificing cargo capacity. It measured 17.2 meters in length. (TME, GG7)

Aruza
this planet, the homeworld of the Aruzan race, was subjugated by the Empire. It had five moons. (TBH)

Aruzan
this fair, blue-skinned race of humanoids was native to the planet Aruza. The Aruzans had rounded heads covered with blue hair so dark it appears black. They had a form of group mind, which was accessed via an access port implanted behind their ears called an Attanni. They also were incapable of performing violence, and were easily subjugated by the Empire. Certain members of the race were taken to COMPNOR Redesign camps. There, their brains were heavily modified by surgical, chemical, and cybernetic techniques to turn them into a slave race of warriors. The Aruzans hired Dengar to eliminate Sinick Kritkeen, in an effort to remove the Imperial yoke. (TBH)

Aryon, Kant
Tour Aryon's husband, Kant was a retired conman. He was born into the lap of luxury, growing up the son of rich parents on Bethars. When he met Tour, he decided it was time to settle down. He became completely devoted to her, and married her about eight years before the Battle of Endor. (GG7)

Aryon, Tour
this ebony-skinned female was the Imperial governor of Tatooine during the Galactic Civil War. She was a slave to fashion, and was always seen wearing the latest clothes. Her contributions to the planet Tatooine were mainly cultural, despite her sharp intellect and quick wit. She had little regard for Mos Eisley. Tour was a native of the planet Treylon II. (TJP, GG7)

Aryx
this flightless, predatory bird is native to the planet Cerea. It was quite large in size, standing taller than most Cerean men. They are covered with white feathers broken by areas of blue and gray, and stride on the ground on long, thin legs. Aryx have a huge beak which they use to bite, hold, and tear their prey. The Cereans often domesticate the aryx for use as a mount, but they must always remember that the bord could turn on them if mistreated. (PTR)

Aryzah
this female Jedi Master was caught in the gravity well of the black holes that fill the Tyus Cluster. She eventually died there, but remained in the Cluster as a disembodied spirit. When she encountered Kinnin Vo-Shay in the Cluster, she recognized his Force-sensitivity and rescued him, then helped him escape the Cluster. She also taught him how to contact and control the Force, and accompanied Vo-Shay went he managed to break free of the Cluster. Vo-Shay, however, had no intentions of becoming a Jedi Knight. After Vo-Shay met the young man named Nyo, Aryzah realized that Nyo was also Force-sensitive, and agreed to help teach him about the Force. (TFNR)

Arzid
a planet known for its macaab mushrooms. It is also the site of a small Imperial outpost, where Grand Moff Muzzer was sentenced to serve for five years among the arachnors and tentacle-bushes. (PDS)

AS-M12
this general purpose message droid was produced by Arakyd. It was known by the brand name of Seeker, and was designed provide users with a safe, effective way to communicate across the galaxy without having HoloNet access. Designed around the Viper probe droid design, the AS-M12 droid traveled across the galaxy in a specially-designed hyperspace pod. The droid was equipped with a variety of recording and playback devices, and had several methods of identification which it could use to verify the recipient's identity. (SESB)

Asaari tree
a tree native to Bimmisaari, it can move its leaves and roots, appearing to be somewhat mobile. (HTTE)

Asagov
this was one of the largest cities found on the planet Essowyn. It was located on the continent of Sorontill. (PG1)

Asamin System
this planetary system was located along the Essien Run. (AIR)

Asation
one of the main worlds of the Gree Enclave, Asation is home to the crafters of the Gree race. It is also the gateway for visitors to the Enclave, as any being wishing to travel to one of the other Gree worlds must board the Rokak'k Baran there. It is a wet, high-pressure world covered with slimy wetlands and primitive jungles. It is believed that the Gree terraformed the world many millennia ago, using genetically-altered lifeforms to populate it. The Gree who are born to this world are much shorter than those Gree born on the homeworld of Gree. The average day on Asation lasts 18 standard hours, and its year encompasses 380 local days. (SWJ8)

Asbo
an modular conveyor used to smuggle Imperial goods into the Sepan System, it was captured by the Empire during the Sepan Civil War. (TIE)

Ascender
this is the outdated, Adumari form of a turbolift. (SOA)

Ascension Gun
this specialized version of the S-5 security blaster was often used by adventurers and scouts, although it had many other practical uses. The ascension gun used a cylinder of compressed gas to project a heavy missile at a target. The missile could be tipped with a number of barbed points or attached to a grappling hook, depending on the method of ascension desired. Attached to the missile was a length of sytherope or other strong wire. The syntherope was then attached to a small but powerful winch located on the ascension gun's barrel. Once the missile was securly in position, the gun's user could activate the winch and be pulled upward to the missile. (TPM, IG1)

Asgnat
this genetically engineered creature is used by the Lurians to burrow subterranean cities inside glaciers. (CSA)

Ash Ore
a valuable substance (DRO)

Asha
a red-furred Ewok huntress raised by the Corrina after she was separated from her sister, Kneesaa, when a hanadak captured her. Ra-Lee was killed in the attack, and Kneesaa was left alone with her father, Chief Chirpa. (ECAR)

Ashaad
a native of Eiattu, he was a Sergeant in the People's Liberation Battalion. (XWWP)

Ashanda Ray
this modified MC-18 light freighter was owned by Kinnin Vo-Shay. The ship, with Kinnin at the helm, supposedly disappeared in the Tyus Cluster some fifty years before the Battle of Endor. The ship was designed and built by a Mon Calamari friend of Vo-Shay's, and was one-of-a-kind. Like all Mon Cal designs, the Ashanda Ray had an organic look to it, resembling an ocean-dwelling creature more than a starship. It was armed with a heavy triple-laser cannon, three proton torpedo launchers, and an ion cannon. (TFNR, SWJ13)

Ashandrik, Tern
this man was wanted by TaggeCo for a number of of offenses, including theft, trespassing, and murder. A bounty was placed on his head, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, and he fled to Seregar. On Seregar, Ashandrik befriended the Marauders swoop gang, using them to deflect minimal interference from bounty hunters. He employed the Twi'leki huntress Lliandri to lured more stubborn hunters to the Trigdale refinery in the jungles near Storrd Township, where he had holed up. His knowledge of the refinery helped him outwit other hunters, whom he eliminated at his leisure. Ashandrik managed to evade captured for a long time. (ND)

Ashas Ree
this planet was located in what was once the ancient Sith Empire. Freedon Nadd fled to this planet, after killing Matta Tremayne and succombing to the Dark Side of the Force. (TOJC)

Ashash
this planet is covered with water. (BGS)

Asher III
this Alliance maintained a staging base on this planet, until the Empire tracked them down and destroyed the base shortly before the Battle of Hoth. (SS)

Ashern
this Vratix political party complemented the Zaltin and Xucphra factions of humans on Thyferra. The Ashern were considered a terrorist group by the human factions, and was supposedly responsible for introducing contamination into a Xucphra bacta lot, at the direction of the Zaltin corporation. Erisi Dlarit's uncle discovered the contaminate in lot ZX1449F. The group was also known as Black Claw, in reference to the way in which they sharpened their foreclaws and painted themselves black to hide in the shadows. The Vratix became concerned about their human counterparts during the outbreak of the Krytos virus on Coruscant, seeing that the Imperial ties to the bacta cartels were becoming stronger. It was at this time that the Zaltin faction began supplying the Ashern with weapons and credits to maintain their attacks on Xucphra-aligned facilities. When they needed addiitonal help in planning their overthrow of Xucphra, they recalled Bror Jace from Rogue Squadron by falsely claiming his father was ill. They then arranged for Jace to "die" in an accident, making it possible for him to assit them without ties to any political body. They sent Qlaern Hirf to petition Wedge Antilles to champion the acceptance of the Vratix in the New Republic, in return for help in creating their own supply of bacta. Wedge agreed, but was unable to make a move when Ysanne Isard took control of Thyferra. (XWN, SWAJ, KT, BW)

Ashern Circle
this body of Vratix leaders governs the Ashern society on Thyferra. (KT)

Ashgad, Seti
this political contemporary of Senator Palpatine was one of the future Emperor's main opponents. In political circles, he was known as the Golden Tempter, a tribute to his persuasive voice and charismatic speeches. He came from the hyperdrive design division of Incom Industries, where his major contribution was the design of the Z-95. Ashgad was sentenced to a prison term on the world fo Nam Chorios, where he came to power by filling in the void left when the Hutt Beldorian failed to maintain his hold on the populace. As Ashgad rose to power, he was subverted by the droch Dzym, who used Ashgad as his figurehead. Dzym kept Ashgad alive for many years beyond his natural lifespan by continually "recharging" his life energy, and a story was developed that Ashgad had a son. Then, still lively and youthful, Ashgad appeared as his own son and took control of the Rationalist Party on Nam Chorios. He arranged a meeting with Leia Organa-Solo, at the behest of Dzym, in order for the droch to launch his own assault on the galaxy. Organa-Solo was captured, and specially-created holo-vids dispatched to indicate she left Ashgad in good hands. Ashgad held her in his own complex on Nam Chorios until she escaped. Dzym took Ashgad and tried to flee the planet after the natives rose up in revolt, but their ship was destroyed before they made it out of the system. (POT)

Ashka Boda
an ancient Jedi Master who was murdered during the Jedi purge. He was the holder of a Holocron, of which Vodo Siosk-Baas was the Gatekeeper, at that time. Palpatine took control of the holocron and stole its secrets. (DE1)

Ashoba
this Socorran term literally translated to the phrase "hidden hive," and was used to warn travelers of nearby nests of chiru. (BSS)

Asilyr
one of the four main tribes of nomads which evovled from the original settlers of the planet Socorro, the Asilyr were considered to be excellent scouts. They were also known to be the most amiable of the four major tribes, and they believed that the sun, Sokor, was their personal enemy. (BSS)

Asilyr Tribal Lands
located on the planet Socorro, these territories were on the western edge of the Doaba Badlands near the Adsila Rifts. The nomadic tribes which lived in the area were considered the best scouts and guides on the planet. (BSS)

Ask Argothil Anything
this was one of the many newsfeed articles written by Pertaal Shenvehr. Like his other columns, it contained coded messages and phrases that allowed him to pass information to Alliance field agents. (CRO)

Askaj
this boiling-hot desert planet is the homeworld of the Askajian race. It was located in the Outer Rim, about a day's travel off the Rimma Trade Route. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game claims the name of this planet is Askajia. (TJP, CCG7)

Askajian
a humanoid race with deep familial traditions, the Askajians live on the desert world of Askaj. Their bodies have become extremely efficient at absorbing and storing water. An Askajian can survive for long periods in the open desert, returning in a thinned state. Upon consuming water, their bodies seem to inflate, hoarding the water for later use. The females have six breasts, which come in handy following the delivery of a litter of cubs. The cubs are not named until after their first birthday. Many Askajians raise tomuons for their milk, meat, and wool. The Askajians are known for their luxurious fabric, woven from tomuon wool. Weavers and dancers were revered in Askajian society. Weavers bring income to the Askajian people, as tomoun fabrics fetch a high price throughout the galaxy. Dancers were important to the religious and historical aspects of their society, maintaining the tribal histories and legends. (TJP, THG, AE)

Askar
this Bothan clan discovered the Dresselian System, and settled in the system's asteroid belt to set up mining operations. They left the planet Dressel alone, recognizing that the evolving Dresselian race didn't need any interference. They were subjugated by Imperial forces that wanted the mining operations for their own uses, during the establishment of the New Order. (GG12)

Askarian Worm
a small, wriggly creature. (SWJ9)

Asmall
this New Republic established a defense net arounf this planet, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

ASP-series Droid
a tall, spindly general purpose droid manufactured by Indutrial Automaton, the Asp-series can be configured for many purposes. The basic construction of the ASP-series is centered on a spindly body connected by hundreds of servomotors. Heavy-duty hydraulic linkages allow the droids to perform the heaviest of menial duties. (SE, SWSE, BTM)

ASP-19
a series of ASP droids modified for use as assasin droids, under the command of Darth Vader. They had been developed with AA-1 verbobrains in order to better anticipate and act upon Vader's movements. (SE, BTM, SESB)

ASP-7
a series of ASP droids manufactured to be cargo movers. Like most other ASPs, they are thin constructs supported by hundreds of servomotors and hydraulic linkages, and can lift huge crates without a problem. Most have a single ocular receptor and minimal auditory sensors, although upgrades can be found. (SWSE, MTSE)

ASP-704
this ASP-7 series droid was employed by the Imperial Prefect of Tatooine, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. It was part of a shipment of 200 units, ordered to install communications relays throughout Mos Eisley. The Mark IV Imperial probe droids that patrolled the city regarded the relays as illegal communications systems, and often called stormtroopers to investigate their perfectly legal installation. ASP-704 eventually developed a personality tic, and would strike out at a nearby Mark IV before it could interrupt its work. (MTSE)

ASP-707
a series of menial labor droids often used to transport heavy loads from one location to another. (CCG9)

Aspiration
this Victory-class Star Destroyer joined the Imperial forces shortly after the Battle of Endor, but its Captain defected with Prince-Admiral Krennel when he broke away from Imperial service. It was stationed in orbit around Corvis Minor Four, in defense of the system. It was dispatched to report on the destruction of Rogue Squadron near Corvis Minor Five, but arrived too late to report any concrete evidence. (IR)

Aspre Plunge
an exclusive resort set into the northern cliffs of Ataria Island on Spira. The needle-shaped resort itself extends over 100 meters below the surface of the ocean, and rose several stories above the top of the cliff. (SWJ1)

Asrat
this planet was the home world of a group of religious pundits who worshipped a collection of holy children. The children loudly denounced the New Order, so the Empire sent their trained assassin Dengar to kill them. Dengar's conscience suddenly began to resurface, and he opted to leave Imperial service rather than killing them. (TBH)

Assassin Droid
the name given to any number of droid types which are programmed seek out and eliminate a specific target. They can be programmed to kill an individual, or to take out an entire population. There were also the so-called war droids used as guards and soldiers in many upstart planetary armies. The IG-series of assassin droids was among the best as performed their duties. They were banned during Palpatine's rule as Emperor, after they started to be used against Imperial forces. (ESB, COTF, SWSB)

Assassins' Guild
an infrastructure set up to oversee the various activities performed by galactic assassins. It has a number of subdivisions, geared toward the specific professions, such as bounty hunters. The Elite Circle are a separate subdivision catering to large clients. Given that the majority of its members are wanted criminals, the Guild's operations and central location are a secret. (HSL)

Assault Cruiser
this form of warship was developed by the Bothans during the early years of the New Republic. Smaller in size that a Victory-class Star Destroyer, the Assault Cruiser boasted twenty percent more firepower and fifty percent more shielding and armor plating. It was leaner and less angular that the Victory-class ship, and was designed to take a beating while giving one out. The design and construction of these warships was heavily protested by many factions, since the Assault Cruiser was developed after the Imperial Remnant had negotiated a peace with the New Republic and the state of war between the two had been nullified. The ships proved to be excellent for carrying starfighters into battle, with a pair of huge hangars located amidships. The launch apertures from the ship allowed fighters to head up or down, depending on the conditions of battle, and made recovering fighters at the end of an engagement quick and easy. (DTO)

Assault Frigate
basically a modified 700-meter-long Dreadnaught-class starship, the assault frigate was stripped of its outer shell to increase engine capacity and fuel efficiency. Two dorsal solar fins were also added, increasing maneuverability and energy production. There were no docking bays on an assault frigate, but there were 20 retractible docking tubes that could be extended from the ship's holds. The assault frigate was also equipped with a great deal of droid and computer-automated systems. Thus, crew requirements for the assault frigate are just 5,000 beings, down from the 16,000 required on the original Dreadnaught. (HTTE, RASB, TTSB)

Assault Gunboat
generic name for the Cygnus Spaceworks Xg-1 Alpha-class starfighter. (XW)

Assault Shuttle
a 30-meter starship loaded with tractor beam projectors, sensor packages, harpoon guns, concussion missile launchers, and automated blaster cannons. Designed around the transportation and support of a 40 spacetrooper squadron, the assault shuttle had a crew of five and limited navicomputer capabilities. (ISB)

Assault Transport
a well-armed transport ship used by the Empire, such as the KonGar Ship Works ATR. (TIE)

Assembler
this species of space-going arachnids is capable of exisiting in hard vacuum. Their exoskeletons contain the necessary proteins to protect them from decompression when travelling among the stars. Their homeworld's name and location are well-kept secrets. However, individuals can be found floating in the gaps between planets, most notably the middle-man Kud'ar Mub'at. Each assembler is comprised of a primary intelligence node and the web it controls. Each node can create subnodes from its own neural fibers, and can use them for a number of facilities. A subnode which outlives its usefulness can be re-ingested by the assembler, and the physical and genetic material can be reused. In this way, assemblers tends to be quite possessive, and will reuse anything they find to augment their webs. Each intelligent primary node is also quite jealous of its own intelligence, and will strive to keeps its subnodes form becoming too intelligent. Successive generations of assemblers often grow from these subnodes, whoever, and the strongest subnode will often consume its creator, continuing the line. Any assembler which dies, but is not consumed, can be brought back to life by the application of power and data mixed in the correct proportion. This allowed Boba Fett to re-animate Kud'ar Mub'at in order to determine Neelah's identity. (MA, HM)

Assessor
the Imperial customs frigate which once intercepted Roark Garnet as he tried to flee Imperial space. The Assessor was also the ship that intercepted Han Solo and Chewbacca during their most fateful Kessel Run. Han was forced to dump the load of spice he was transporting, but was unable to recover it and deliver it to Jabba the Hutt. This put him deeply in debt, and forced him to hide out on Tatooine. It was commanded by Tybert Capucot. (RPG, RD)

Astal Sector
an area of the galaxy located in the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Astarta
a Captain in Isolder's entourage, she is the Prince's personal guard, and a native of Terephon (CPL)

Astenn
this was Kashan Santhe's code name, used while he was working with the Alliance cell on Lianna. (ML)

Asteria
this being was a minor crime lord during the height of the New Order. (SESB)

Asteroid Fortress
this was a form of space combat seige engine used by the Empire during the latter stages of the Galactic Civil War, as well as during the Empire's early attempts to win victories against the New Republic. (TSK)

Asteroid Hopper
this small, needle-shaped starship wsa created by the Verpine for travel between the Roche asteroids. They have no weapons of shields, since they were not designed for combat. (SFS)

Asteroid Prospector
this was the brand name of Kuat Drive Yards' asteroid refining starships, such as the AP-300. (PP)

Asteroid ships built by Stonehill Industries, used as tugs by Lando at Nomad City (HTTE)

Asteroid Theater
the location of Bithabus the Mystifier's stage on Hologram Fun World. (QE)

Asteroid 7785
this piece of rock was once part of the planet Alderaan. After Grand Moff Tarkin destroyed the planet, the resulting rubble formed a wide asteroid field known as the Graveyard. Shortly after recovering from the injuries he suffered during the Battle of Yavin, Darth Vader circulated a rumor that the Royal Palace of Alderaan had been discovered intact on Asteroid 7785. He hoped to lure Leia Organa and any other of the survivors of the battle to Alderaan, where Captain Janus Bonn waited for them. Vader then augmented the rumors by adding a story about the mining survey team discovering a survivor in the asteroid who claimed to be Bail Organa. Vader went so far as to build a replica of the Palace inside the asteroid, using motion sensors and other mechanisms to trap his victims inside. Unfortunately for Vader, a group of Alliance agents intercepted the message from Hanos Darr and Zaz Hamiroz before it reach Leia Organa, and arrived at the asteroid before she did. The trap was sprung, but without the victims Vader intended. In reality, a tiny fragment of the Royal Palace's underground stucture was discovered in the asteroid. (GA)

Asteroid-3
this was one of Mobquet's most popular racing swoops. It had a flight ceiling of 35 meters, and was quite fast. (GCQ)

Astin
an Imperial Corvette operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Astin, Fable
this tall, slender woman was a Captain in the Alliance military, and was the leader of the Harrier infiltration team. She was also a young Jedi in training. Fable was one of youngest beings ever appointed the rank of Captain, and at the age of 19 was also one of the youngest infiltration operatives. Her mother had been a Jedi Knight, and instructed Fable's father in its uses. When Fable's father was killed in a struggle with one of the Emperor's Inquisitors, Fable and her mother were forced to flee and hide from Palpatine's reach. Despite her military training and sensitivity to the Force, Fable was also easily distracted and moody. After her team suffered a loss during a mission to Nysza III, Fable was faced with the Dark Side of the Force in a confrontation with the Dark Jedi Vialco, who was guarding the Imperial communications bunker she was ordered to destroy. The bunker was taken out, but Vialco soundly defeated Fable in a short battle of wills. Later, in a chance encounter on the planet Iscera, Fable met Jaalib Brandl, and followed him back to Trulalis. There, she was introduced to Adalric Brandl, Jaalib's father, and was given instruction in the deeper use of the Force to help her defeat Vialco. Despite the needs of Harrier Team, Fable remained on Trulalis for many months, striving too hard and making more mistakes than she thought she was capable of making. During her training, Fable fell in love with Jaalib, a relationship that Adalric forbade. He sent Jaalib back to Iscera and called Vialco to Trulalis, provoking a battle that renewed their aggressions. She was unaware of Adalric's true intensions until she had defeated Vialco and refused to kill him outright. Adalric prodded her, then sent an image into her mind – that of Vialco recovering his lightsaber and lunging toward her. She spun her own lightsaber around and decapitated Vialco, only to snap out of the vision and realize that Vialco had never recovered the weapon. Adalric then imprisoned her, hoping to return her to the planet Byss as a gift to the Emperor. (SWJ8)

Astral
this was the name of Lord Allic's personal ship. (MJEH)

Astred
this man served the Alliance as a Commander of a medical corps stationed on Kirtania. (SWJ1)

Astrobatics
any sport in which starships are flown in complex patterns and maneuvers for the viewing pleasure of an audience. (LCF)

Astrogation
the scientific and practical use of stellar coordinates to calculate flight plans and trajectories in open space. (AC)

Astrogation Computer
also known as a NavCom, this device is used to determine the current coordinates of celestial bodies, and to help plot courses between them. (SW, HTTE, JS)

Astrogation Gazetteer
a regularly-published journal which describes the astrogation parameters required to fly from any planet to another planet. It keeps track of realspace and hyperspace positionings of spatil bodies, and details average trip durations. (RPG)

Astrogation Plotter
this device was used before the advent of modern, powerful navigation computers. A collection of slide rules, factor wheels, and slot charts, an astrogation plotter allowed a starhip captain to plot out a pathway through space and hyperspace. They found a moderate following among smugglers and independent spacers during the height of the New Order, as backups to their nav computers. (PSG)

Astrogation Survey Team
this branch of the Old Republic's Science and Culture Administration was charged with charting and cataloguing the area beyond the known galaxy, during the period between the fall of the Sith Empire and the Great Sith War. (TOJC)

Astrogation Today
a periodical dedicated to the science and mechanics of astrogation. (HR)

Astrogator*-class Starship
these probe ships are often called "flatfish" because of their shape. The Astrogator-class is a flat, sensor-studded survey ship, and is used to collect all sorts of data from orbit. They measured 35 meters in diameter, and required a crew of three. (BTS, CTD)

Astrographic Survey Institute
this New Republic agency was charged with the identification and survey of unexplored worlds. ASI defined the planetary coordinates used in navigation computers. (BTS, SOL)

Astrolabe
a New Republic Astrogator-class probe, it was rerouted from its normal survey mission to monitor the Koornacht Cluster just before the start of the Yevethan Great Purge. Etahn A'baht had asked his old friend, Kiles L'toth, to divert a survey ship to the Cluster before the Fifth Battle Group arrived there. However, the Astrolabe was discovered at Doornik-1142 by Vol Noorr and the Purity, which fired on the small survey ship and disabled it. The three crewmen were killed, and the entire incident was used by Nil Spaar as part of his plan to take over the New Republic. He publicly blamed Leia Organa-Solo for their deaths, since - he claimed - they were acting on her orders to scout out an invasion of the Cluster. (BTS, SOL)

Astromech Droid
these small droids were designed for use with small starfighters. They are basically self-contained navigation computers, but also are programmed for starship maintenance. Industrial Automation produced many of the best astromech droids, including the R2, R5, and R7 series. (SW, SCRE, DE1)

Astromech Heaven
this giant droid supermarket is located in the Lola Curich starport, on Lianna. In addition to selling new droids, Astromech Heaven provides service and repair facilities. (ML)

Astronav
this corporation manufactures starship course plotters used in luxury liners, such as the P127. (IJ)

Astroserver Industries
this conglomerate produced such things as tracking devices. (CFG)

Asylum Station
a name used by slave traders to denote Crseih Station. It is well-known among slavers because Hethrir uses it as a clearing house for the slaves he culls from the Empire Youth camp. (CS)

Asyr Sei'lar
this female Bothan was living in the Invisible Sector of the Coruscant underworld when Rogue Squadron infiltrated the planet prior to the New Republic's assault on it. She was a member of the Alien Combine, noticeable by her black pelt, which is punctuated by white splotches on her chest, head, and hands. She tried to come onto Gavin Darklighter, who rejected her. She labelled him a bigot, and brought him to the Combine for punishment. Asyr soon discovered that Gavin was simply scared, and was as understanding of alien species as any non-human. She was a graduate of the Bothan Military Academy, graduating a year behind Peshk Vri'syk. This training earned her the respect of the Rogues and the New Republic, and she was given a place in the squadron following the liberation of Coruscant. She and Gavin became romantically involved, but were discreet about it. She was watched by Borsk Fey'lya, who had hoped that Asyr would remain loyal to the Bothan political ideals and could provide potentially damaging information about the Rogues. She refused his demands, and remained loyal to the Squadron. When Asyr and Gavin made their relationship public and decided to adopt children, Fey'lya stepped in to block their efforts. He felt that Asyr wasn't behaving in a Bothan-enough fashion, and told her in no uncertain terms that any further dalliance with Gavin would have serious repercussions. She once again refused to accept Fey'lya's demands, but also realized that she and Gavin would be unable to have the life they wanted. She went on a rampage, flying beyond herself during the assaults on Liinade III and Corvis Minor Five, until her ship collided with an enemy fighter over Corvis Minor Five. Her loss cam as a shock to Gavin and the Rogues, who mourned her deeply. However, Asyr herself managed to survive, having been rescued by the Errant Venture. She swore Booster Terrik, Mirax Terrik, and Iella Wessiri to secrecy, leaving the New Republic in the hope of bringing about changes to Bothan society by working undercover. (WG, KT, IR)

AT-AA
this was the Imperial All-Terrain Anti-Aircraft vehicle. Similar in many respects to the AT-AT walker, the AT-AA moved on four legs. However, its stance was very low to the ground, like a huge lizard. A heavy flak pod sat atop the main section, for use against enemy aircraft. (FC)

AT-AT
Imperial All-Terrain Armored Transport vehicle, an elephantine assault tank built at the Kuat Drive Yards. These 15-meter-tall machines lumber around on four atriculated legs. They require a crew of three to operate, although much of the war machine's motion is controlled by sophisticated artificial intelligence. The AT-AT can carry up to 40 troops and 400 kilograms of cargo. Armed with two fire-linked heavy laser cannons and two fire-linked medium blasters on its head-like cockpit, the AT-AT was designed to inspire fear in the enemies of the Empire. General Veers was a proponent of the AT-AT, and purposely overlooked the fact that the AT-AT could be toppled by a cable wrapped around its legs. Although this weakness was used effectively by the Alliance on Hoth, the Empire continued to use the AT-AT to install fear. (ESB, DFRSB, TME)

AT-AT Barge
this Imperial ship was designed to carry a fully-outfitted AT-AT walker from its berth on a Star Destroyer to the surface of a planet. It was similar in shape to the MTT assault craft employed by the Trade Federation. (FC)

AT-AT Swimmer
a version of the Imperial walker that is used in aquatic environments. The main section of the body was expanded and flattened out in order to accommodate the addition of repulsor engines that helped keep it afloat. The Swimmer was heavily armored and protected from the effects of salt and water, and resembled a huge turtle. It required a crew of five, and could transport up to 40 troops and 600 kilograms of cargo. It was armed with a pair of modified heavy laser cannons which could fire underwater, and a pair of medium blasters. (GG9)

At-Computer Link
this device, manufactured by Crozo Industrial Products, allows a cyborg to use a comlink connection to a mainframe computer in the immediate area. The range is about 1,000 meters unless a relay link is established. (CFG)

AT-PT
All-Terrain Personal Transport vehicle; a squat, single-pilot transport which was developed about the time of the Katana fleet, but which was never mass-produced. It was similar to the AT-ST, only smaller in stature. It is armed with a twin blaster cannon and a concussion grenade launcher. (DFR, DFRSB)

AT-PV
this was the short name for Slythor the Squib's All-Terrain Pleasure Vehicle known as the Peeve. It was a salvaged Imperial AT-AT walker, with the legs removed and replaced with four repulsorlift engines. (OE)

AT-ST
All-Terrain Scout Transport vehicle; a two-legged version of the AT-AT, used as a scout vehicle and in areas where agility is required. The 8.6-meter-tall AT-ST was mass-produced by the Balmorrans, and was also built by Kuat Drive Yards. It has a crew of two, and can transport up to 40 kilograms of cargo. It is armed with a twin blaster cannon, and twin light blaster cannon, and a concussion grenade launcher. (ESB, ROTJ, DE2, DFRSB, EGV, CCG10)

AT-ST/A
this variant of the original AT-ST design is significantly larger than a basic AT-ST, standing over 10 meters in height. The AT-ST/A has improved gyro-balancing systems, and their legs have greater reinforcement. They are armed with a single heavy blaster cannon. (EGV)

AT-VT
a pittin Leia Organa had as a childhood pet on Alderaan. She named the pale pink creature an All-Terrain Attack Vehicle. (COJ)

ATA Pulse-wave Blaster
this hand-held, pulse-wave weapon was produced by Greff-Timms Industrial some 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. (TOJC)

Ataria City
this was the capital city of the planet Spira, located on the northeast coast of Ataria Island. (SWJ1)

Ataria Island
this island, located in the oceans of Spira, is the site of the planet's major spaceport and resorts. The island is formed on the north and west by spectacular cliffs, and by luxurious beachs on the east and south. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, the Empire maintained a small garrison on the island. (SWJ1)

Atawar
a Ripoblus escort shuttle used during the Sepan Civil War, as well as in battle against the Empire. (TIE)

Atgar Corporation
manufacturers of cheap, low-powered anti-vehicle weapons. (RPG, ISB)

Athakam
this bio-technology company worked closely with Rhinnal State Medical Academy, and developed a number of medical tools like bioscan units. (SESB)

Athallian Messenger
this legendary courier ship crashed in the Tatooine desert some forty years before the Battle of Yavin. Sandstorms were supposed to have erased any remnant of the ship, including a treasure trove of gemstones hidden in its holds. Many treasure-hunters disappeared while trying to locate it, and it was said that even the Jawas wouldn't go near the place where it supposedly crashed. (SWG)

Athega System
a system which contains Nkllon, it has no planets capable of sustaining life, but is an invaluable source of metals. (HTTE, TLC)

Ather
a manufacturing world known for its assembled computer components. (GMH)

Athiss
this world, the second planet of the Loro Babis System, was where the ancient Jedi Master Chamma first encountered the Dark Side of the Force. (TOJC)

Atin Attan
this Sullustan female was one of the eight members of the Twilight Class of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School who became part of the Alliance's Eclipse Team. She excelled in the field of geology, and was also a skilled pilot. After graduating from GOSS, she served the Alliance as a pilot instructor in the Roche Asteroid Field, and was part of the team which developed the B-Wing. (AIR)

ATL
this Air-To-Land vehicle was similar in shape to the cockpit of a Y-Wing bomber, but had a pair of retractable landing foils on either side. (DCAR)

Atlatl
this was the traditional Gungan throwing stick, a weapon developed to fling small energy balls at an enemy in battle. Although the range of the atlatl is much less than the cesta, the atlatl is much more accurate. (IG1)

Atloran
the third planet in the Panto System, Atloran is a lifeless sphere that has nonetheless been used for recreation. It is known for its zero-gravity campgrouds and amusement parks. (DFRSB)

Atmosphere Containment Field
an field-projecting device which generates an impenetrable energy field used to keep an atmosphere on only one side of the field. They can be used on space stations or capital ships to keep the atmosphere inside the docking bays until the starfighters need to launch. They can conversely be used to keep a hostile planet's storms and harsh weather out of a building. (SW, COTF)

Atmosphere Flyer
a generic term for any low-altitude repulsorcraft, such as the T-16 skyhopper. (CSW)

Atmostide
this is the name given to any amtospheric storm caused on planets which have little or no natural water. (POT)

Atomic Drive
an out-dated form of ion drive, the atomic drive was replaced by the Hoersch-Kessel Ion Drive. These drives use a fission reactor to generate electromagnetic waves that reflect off the space-time fabric of realspace, creating momentum. They are extremely radioactive, and must be stored in a pod that is kept away from the living and working areas of the rest of the ship. (SWSB)

Atomic Reactor
an out-dated form of power converter, the atomic reactor has been replaced by the fusion reactor. It employed atomic fission to generate energy, which in turn generated large amounts of heat and radiation. This made them very dangerous to use. (SWSB)

Atori, Otias
this native of Trulalis was Adalric Brandl's mentor. Otias was a famous theatrical actor before becoming a director and acting teacher. He was unable to keep Brandl from answering Palpatine's call to become a Dark Jedi, and strove to save Adalric's young son, Jaalib, from a similar fate. Otias reprimanded Brandl when he returned to Trulalis some twelve years later, although Brandl hoped that he could assist in returning to the light side of the Force. (TFE, SWJ8)

ATR
KonGar Ship Works' Assault Transport ship, the ATR measures 45 meters in length. Rated at 65 MGLT, these ships were larger and better-armed versions of the original stormtrooper transports built by Telgorn Corporation. The hull of the ATR is rated at 50 RU. Each ATR is equipped with the following shipboard components:
4 Taim & Bak H6 Turbolasers
2 ArMek SW-3 Ion Cannons
2 Krpux MG7 Proton Torpedo Launchers (4 torpedoes each) Front/Rear Projectin shields (100 SBD)
(TIE)

ATR-4
this was a modified version of the base KonGar Ship Works ATR assault transport. It was considered a member of the Gamma-class transport family. (XWA)

Atraken
this planet is the second world in the Kattellyn System, and was ravaged during the Clone Wars. The once-beautiful landscape supported Human and Ee life, but was reduced to an arid wasteland. There were few survivors. Many inhabitants fled to the moon of Trilos to live in pressurized settlements. Atraken rotates once every twenty standard hours. Its year lasts 304 local days. It has three moons. (PG2)

Atraken Hope
this is one of two ships in the Atraken fleet to survive the devastation of the Clone Wars. However, it is no longer functional, and serves as a source of parts for the Atraken Memory. (PG2)

Atraken Memory
this is one of two ships in the Atraken fleet to survive the devastation of the Clone Wars. It is barely functional, and is based at Starport Touchdown. (PG2)

Atrakenite Guild of Miners
this guild manages the day-to-day operations of the mines on Atraken's moon, Trilos. (PG2)

Atravis Sector
area of the galaxy ravaged by Moff Tarkin early in his career. It is known for its marble and bronze furniture. (COJ)

Atrig
this large, orange star is at the center of the Atrig System, located in the Outer Rim Territories. (PG2)

Atrisi System
planetary system which was home to the Kitel Phard dynasty. (ISB)

Atrisia
this ancient planet had a widely varied ecosystem. (COG)

Atrisian Assault Corps
this special forces military unit was the primary strength behind the Kitel Phard dynasty. Made up of His Majesty's Roto-gunners, the Imperial Atrisian Grenadiers, and the Queen's Own Armored Cavalry Troop, the AAC maintained the laws of the dynasty. (ROE)

Atrisian Imperial Historical Library located on the planet Kitel Phard, this vast museum maintained a virtually complete collection of the works of the royal families, dating back to the original manuscript of Sayings. (SWJ14)

Atrisian Order of the Nine Stars
this was one of the highest forms of decoration awarded to the members of the Atrisian Royal Corps. (ROE)

Atrisian Royal Corps
this was the term given to one of the Imperial Army's four major army components. Along with line, armor, and mobile corps, the Atrisian Corps was responsible for secretly infiltratin enemy positions. (ISB, ROE)

Atrisian System
the military forces placed in this system by the Empire were responsible for the creation of the FD system of artillery classification. (ISB)

Atrium
a park created for the use of the passengers aboard the Star of Empire. (GOF10)

Atrium 41
this housing block is found in the Trasli District of the city of Talos, on the planet Azterri. It has fifteen living levels, but was run-down and a virtual slum when Akanah and Luke Skywalker arrived on Atzerri. It was owned by Akanah's natural father, Joreb Goss. (SOL)

Atrivis Advancer
this Vangaard Pathfinder was owned by the Alliance, and was used to scout out new worlds to serve as Alliance bases. (CRO)

Atrivis Day
this Alliance freighter group was attacked and destroyed during the Imperial attack on the Organarms facility, during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Atrivis Resistance Group
born from the resistance groups on Fest, the ARG was created when firm communications links were formed between Fest and Mantooine, as well as with other resistance pockets in the Atrivis Sector. The command of the ARG was set up on an abandoned space station in the Gerenis System, and was fed by a complex underground information network. When Mon Mothma asked them to link their network with the growing, galaxy-wide Alliance, there was heated discussion among the ARG's leadership, but they eventually agreed, signing the Treaty of Gerenis and officially joining the War. (RASB)

Atrivis Sector
area of the galaxy which contains Generis, located in the Outer Rim. (TLC)

Atron's Mistress
Greezim Trentacal's slaving ship, it also served as his personal command center. The Mistress was a custom-built Zuraco cargo hauler, measuring 87.3 meters in length and armed with a single turret-mounted medium turbolaser. The inside of the ship was large enough to transport up to 185 enslaced beings, along with a crew of four. Trentacal rarely left the safety of the ship, and his quarters were well-appointed. (SWJ8, TFE)

Attack Bug
tihs large insect was bio-engineered by the Yuuzhan Vong for use as a projectile weapon. When an attack bug struck its target, its body exploded. This released a spray of chitinous shrapnel as well as acidic bodily fluids. (DTR)

Attack Frigate
this capital ship was essentially a large frieghter with additional weapons systems bolted on by the owner. (HTTE, WG)

Attack Pattern Beta-Zero developed by the Royal Naboo Defense Force, this arrangement of N-1 starfighters allowed the Naboo to take on a large number of swift-moving enemy ships. (SFT)

Attack Pattern Delta
the spacing and attack formation used by the Alliance's snowspeeders when attacking the Imperial walkers during the Battle of Hoth. It was developed by Beryl Chiffonage and Luke Skywalker. (ESBR, RASB)

Attack Pattern Echo-3
this was an Imperial formation used by TIE Interceptor pilots in the years following the Battle of Endor. One fighter of a group leads the rest, with one fighter to the right and two to the left in a lop-sided V formation. (XWES)

Attack Pattern Zeta-Gamma One
this starfighter flight arrangement was developed by the Royal Naboo Defense Force, during the Old Republic. It allowed a more experienced squadron of fighters to lead a squadron of green pilots into battle. (SFT)

Attack Pattern Zeta Nine
this starfighter attack formation was developed the Royal Naboo Defense Force, and was designed to have three N-1 starfighters take out a small capital ship. (SFT)

Attack Stohl
this creature was native to the planet Ichtor 8, where it was discovered by Imperial scouts who recognized its commercial value. Averaging just over a meter in length, attack stohls are warm-blooded preadators whose bodies are covered with a thick pelt of downy-soft fur. Their mouths were studded with sharp fangs, which injected a poison into the bloodstream of their victims. They were considered a pretty nuisance by the Imperials, and their curiosity first endeared them to hunters. However, it was soon realized that these slow-moving creatures could be trained as pets. For an extremely high price, a person could own a beautiful stole-like wrapping for their neck, which wouuld attack any being which got too close for personal comfort. The ownership of attack stohls was popularized by Shantee Ree, who owned one and started a campaign to ensure the survival of the species. (COG)

Attahox
this poor, stench-ridden garbage world is best known for the phosovane salts produced there. Han Solo once tried to pick up a load of salts during an Alliance mission with Princess Leia, and became entangled with the Five. (CSWDW)

Attanni
this cybernetic link is used by the Aruzan race. With a data port located behind their ears, the Aruzans can commune and share emotions via the Attanni. When two Aruzans decide to bond for life, they can share their intimate thoughts and dreams through the Attanni. The Attanni strips away emotion and lays bare the knowledge and memories of both parties. (TBH)

Attark
this Hoover lived in Jabba the Hutt's Tatooine residence. (CCG7)

Attention to the Moment Gives Knowledge
this was one of many Jedi training exercises used by the students of the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, before they were chosen as Padawan learners. The students were required to close their eyes and, using only the Force, observe their surroundings in great detail. (HP)

Attichitcuk
Chewbacca's father, this great, gray Wookiee often goes by the nickname Itchy. (WSB, TT)

Atuarre
this Trianii female was born to a life of comfort and peaceful contemplation on the planet Trian. She had no dreams of becoming a Trianii Ranger, until she fell in love with Keeheen. They were soon married, and Atuarre began training as a Ranger. Atuarre beame pregnant during her training, and had to break it off when she gave birth to Pakka. The family moved to the Trianii colony world of Fibuli, where their services as Rangers were needed. However, this idyllic family life was quickly shattered when the Corporate Sector Authority moved in an annexed the Trianii colony worlds, including Fibuli. Keeheen resisted with every ounce of his being, and he and Pakka were taken prisoner and sent to prison to ensure thier silence. Atuarre, bereft of her family, began to concentrate on becoming the best Ranger she could possibly be, and quickly was elevated to Ranger status. She then set out to find her husband and son. Atuarre managed to rescue her son during a prisoner transfer in Authority space, but could not find her mate. Pakka's traumatized state hardened her resolve to defy the Authority and find Keeheen. She joined Rekkon's team in order to discover his whereabouts, working as an apprentice agronomist. She later helped Han Solo break the secret of Stars' End by impersonating Madam Atuarre, the leader of a band of entertainers sent to Stars' End by as a replacement for another act. There, she was able to rescue Keeheen. They returned to Trianii space, where Atuarre became a physical trainer for the Ranger cadets. Atuarre is distinguishable by her striped pelt, yellow and green eyes, and her meter-long tail. She was a native of the planet Trian. (HSE, CSA)

Atunda
this was the First day of the Tapani local calendar's week. (PGT)

Aturi Cluster
during the Galactic Civil War, this section of the galaxy was a hotbed of Alliance support until the White Death Scimitar Assault Wing took out much of the Alliance's resistance. (ISB)

ATX-5
this Rendili StarDrive commercial hyperdrive was a moderately expensive way to back up a starship's basic hyperdrive. It was rated about a fourth the speed of a stock hyperdrive. (GG6)

Atzerri
this temperate planet was part of the trail Akanah followed, in her search for the Fallanassi. She and Luke Skywalker went to Atzerri after they failed to locate the Fallanassi on Teyr. The planet is the site of a shipyard at which Lando Calrissian was shown the damage that occurs to a ship's systems due to entry and exit from hyperspace. Atzerri was one of the member planets of the Free Trader Worlds. Later, Atzerri was one of the first worlds overrun by the Yuuzhan Vong. (SOL, HT)

AT3 Directive
this was the designation of an order given with the Emperor's command, and overrides nearly any Imperial protocol. (MJEH)

Aubade
this is the name of the style of music performed by jizz bands. (ROJR)

Audacious
this Lianna-class corvette was of the customs patrol fleet that worked in the Lianna System during the Galactic Civil War. When the Audacious discovered smugglers or pirates, it would herd their ships toward its sister ship, the Reliant, which remained just outside sensor range. Modified from the basic design, the Audacious measured 150 meters in length and was armed with six double turbolaser cannons. (ML)

Audio Drone
this small device is used by individuals who wish to mask the fact that they are no longer in a given location. These drones can record and playback any number of subliminal and barely audible bodily functions, including breathing and heartbeat. When set near a recording device or other surveillance system, they provide audio signals that make it appear as if the individual is still in the room, even when they are not. (MA)

Audio Performance Incorporated
this corporation produced a number of disruption bubble generators for use by bounty hunters and paramilitary organizations. (ROE)

Audit Droid
any droid programmed for business or financial applications. (QE)

Auditor
an Imperial IPV-1 patrol craft assigned to the Demophon system. (SN)

Auditor-General
this Corporate Sector Authority figure observes the operation of the CSA and roots out corruption and inefficiency. The Auditor-General works at the direction of the Prex. (CSA)

Audo, Nile
this tight-lipped, unpleasant man worked for Mal Biron on Nwarcol Point, shortly before the Battle of Endor. He often met prospective smugglers at the station, providing information to supplement that found in Envelope, if the smugglers could give him the correct code phrase. (SSR)

Audo-novel
this was a form of novel which was recorded for listening, rather than printed for reading. This allowed the reader to hear the story at their leisure, over and over again. (GG10)

Aul
this was the third of seven seasons experienced on the planet Guiteica. (AE)

Aul Tarrus Vishav
this Bitthaevrian held the rank of Major-Guardian within the m'Yalfor'ac Order. Born a slave in the Upper Bal'ta'ran Cluster, he grew to incredible size due to the continual labor he was forced to do. The skin on his arms was striped, due to a bout with sinjaffe which seemed to slow him down for only a few days. This size and strength was perceived as a threat by his slavemaster, and was ordered to be executed. He managed to escape when his guards underestimated him, and his escape made him legendary among the slaves of the bal'ta'ran crystal mines. He entered the m'Yalfor'ac Order as a footsoldier, and worked his way upward until he became the personal bodyguard of Quaal Tavier Catharius. He proved his loyalty to Tavier when he singlehandedly defeated three attackers sent by the rogue Jael Ganton Farvash, thereby thwarting Ganton's attempt to assassinate Tavier. Tarrus was revered as a hero, and was considered by many to be almost an equal of Tavier himself. Tavier bestowed upon Tarrus the Ransar Rhal Insignia, which practically ensured his position as successor to Tavier's leadership. (AIR)

Aura Blossom
a bright, deep-blue, bioluminescent flower native to the forest moon of Endor. (ECAR)

Aurea
this planet is noted throughout the galaxy for the exquisite blown-glass artworks produced by its natives. (CT)

Aurebesh
this was one of the dominant written forms of communication used throughout the galaxy, and allows any race to write the phonetics used by the Basic language. Note that Specter of the Past indicates that the Aurebesh is a language that had a somewhat better ability to convey technical information that Basic. (SOP)

Aurek
this is the first symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "a". (SWM)

Auril Systems
this group of Core star systems was originally composed of nine unique systems. During the Great Sith War, three of the systems were destroyed, creating the area of the galaxy known as the Cron Drift. The remaining six systems remain intact, including the Adega System and the spaceport world Nespis VIII. (TOJ, DE2)

Aurodium
this metal was considered a valuable commodity during the last decades of the Old Republic, and a large ingot could command more than 300 million Republic credits. The metal, especially in ingot form, appeared to burn with an inner light which refused to have a definite color. (RP)

Aurora, Odea
this jewelry maker worked to make a living in the back of a landing bay on Cloud City, but was a member in good standing of the Parliament of Guilds. She was also an Alliance sympathizer, and acted as a contact point for Alliance agents travelling to Bespin during the Galactic Civil War. Odea was orphaned at the age of six, when her mother tried to go into business as a shipper on Cloud City. Toln ne Yerres had her executed when she mistakenly transported goods stolen from Jabba the Hutt, and Odea was told to never to return to her mother's ship. She was thirteen at the time of the Battle of Hoth. (GG2)

Aurra Sing
this bounty hunter was, at one time, a student of the Force. As a Jedi trainee, she learned minimal control of the Force from the famed Dark Woman who discovered Ki-Adi-Mundi. However, Aurra was not strong enough to complete the early training of a Padawan, and was dismissed by the Dark Woman. This angered Aurra, and she hated the Jedi fiercely from that point on. After learning that she could use her minimal contact with the Force to hunt down others, she became a bounty hunter. She was noted for her ability to hunt down and kill the Jedi Knights, and she had several lightsabers in her trophy case to mark her prowess. After leaving the Jedi, she had a Rhen-Orm biocomputer implanted in her head, to help her in her hunting. She was the bounty hunter who eventually located and eliminated Reess Kairn on the Forest Moon of Endor. Shortly before the Battle of Naboo, Aurra was retained in an effort to locate and kill the secretive Jedi Master, Sharad Hett. Since she was familiar with the streets of Mos Espa, assignment was easy for her. Despite the efforts of Ki-Adi-Munid, she was able to assassinate Hett. Aurra Sing was a female humanoid with pasty, white skin, three-jointed fingers, and thin limbs, she was quite striking in her appearance. She also had an antenna plugged into the left side of her top-knotted skull. Aurra Sing was portrayed by Michonne Bourriogue in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (YJC1, IG1, SWI, BHAS)

Ausec Grogle
this Trandoshan trader was active during the years leading up to the Battle of Naboo. (E1A4)

Austan Cluster
many of the properties in this cluster of asteroids were owned by Meysen Kayson. (SWAJ)

Autarch
a Sovereign-class Star Destroyer that was under construction when the Emperor Palpatine was reborn on the planet Byss. (DE1)

Authority Cash Voucher
a plastic data card which denotes a certain sum of credits due to its holder. (HSE)

Authority Currency Exchange
an automated kiosk which takes in various commodities, such as precious metals, gems, and non-standard currencies, and converts their value into the credit standard. It then issues the owner of these commodities an Authority Cash Voucher in return. (HSE)

Authority Data Center located on Orron III, the Corporate Sector Authority's Data is a vast repository of the data necessary to keep the Authority in a position of power. (HSE)

Authority Merchant Marine
the Corporate Sector Authority's private shipping union. (HSR)

Authority Starship Code Safety Regulations
known as "askers" by the outlaw techs of the Corporate Sector, these regulations define specific attributes that all starships operating in the Sector must adhere to. These regulations affect all aspects of starship modifications, including weaponry, shielding, hull plating, sensors, escape mechanisms, landing gear, power plants, communications, propulsion and braking, cargo space allocation, and passenger accommodations. Starships that didn't meet the code were impounded, unless the owner carried an Authority Waiver that noted those systems not up to code. (CSA)

Authority Waiver
any authorization provided by the Corporate Sector Authority that allows certain inspections to be bypassed. They are most often issued to those starships under the Authority's control, so that they can bypass the normal takeoff, landing, and safety inspections that are performed on most other ships. Many smugglers have forged Waivers that allow them access to certain spaceports. (HSE)

Autin, Bront
this Imperial was a COMPNOR Art Group Monitor, serving under Kem Tija in Sanbra Sector. He discovered Tem Eliss was about to publish the University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life, and tried to detain Eliss. He was unable to capture Eliss before the academic escaped, and the Guide went into underground publication on student networks. (GG12)

Auto-caster
this ancient, repeating crossbow weapon was produced by Drolan Plasteel. (TOJC)

Auto-mover
any self-motivated transport vehicle which can be programmed move materials from one place to another. (HSR)

Auto-rover
any automated defense system that uses remote sensors to detect the presence of an intruder. These systems are often employed around satellites and space stations, to allow them extra time to prepare for an attack. (VOF)

Autoblaster
this ancient weapon was the fore-runner to the blaster cannon. Like modern blasters, it produced a high-intensity packet of coherent light which could be shot into a target. Unlike midern weapons, the autoblaster simply let fly with a salvo of bolts that were hard to aim and of relatively low power. (SH)

Autobow
this old style of weapon resembles a longbow, but has automatic loading mechanisms as well as assisted tensioning. (POT)

Autochef
any automated food preparation unit. (GG9)

Autodoc
any automated medical station. (COJ)

Autohopper
any pre-programmed vehicles assigned to a specific task. On the planet Kegan, during the last decades of the Old Republic, autohoppers were remotely-controlled skyhoppers which were used to monitor the activities of every Keganite citizen. (HSL, FFT)

Automap
this was the generic term used to describe any global positioning system used by scouts and explorers to map out unexplored worlds. This device was roughly the size of a datapad. (IA)

Autonomic Crust-piercer
this piece of mining machinery uses a huge, cone-shaped gouge to break through a planet's crust in order to reach the ores below it. The crust-piercer is essentially a long, solid pole. The cone is studded with durasteel teeth, and the entire machine is moved about on huge treads. This configuration allows it gain a great deal of momentum before plowing into the earth, at which time the grinding of the cone makes quick work of the surrounding strata. (SLS)

Autotourniquet
this medical device is used to stop the flow of blood from a limb by compressing the vessel with a force field. (ESBR)

Autowrench
any powered wrench-like hand-tool that supplies additional torque via an internal power source. (LCF)

Autumna Planitia
an expanse of land near Margess Base. (RPG)

Auyemesh
this planet is found in the Almanian System. The inhabitants of the planet were wiped out by Dolph's remote-detonation droids following his attack on Pydyr. (TNR)

AV-1A
this was a military suit of assault armor, which found its way to the black market during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Av'muru
this Ishori was the Captain of the warship Predominance. Even when Leia Organa-Solo knew of the cloaked Star Destroyers behind Bothawui's comets, Av'muru chose not to listen to her and continued to focus on what he believed was a Diamalan attack. This supposed attack came after the Vengeance group managed to infiltrate the ship and fire on Drev'starn. (VOF)

Avabush
this is one of the few forms of plantlife on the planet Baros. It is a prickly, cactus-like plant, and is the primary form of food consumed by the Brubbs. (GG4)

Avabush Spice
a spice which acts as a truth serum. When administered, it induces sleepiness in the patient. It comes from a thorny plant. (ZHR, MMY)

Avalon
this Alliance Commander oversaw the transport of Imperial prisoners on the Celestial, and arranged for the crew of the Long Shot to supplement the Celestial's crew. (OS)

Avarice
this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer was part of the fleet commanded by Ysanne Isard shortly after the battle of Endor. She used it to protect the planet Thyferra, along with the Lusankya, Corrupter, and Virulence, during her short reign there. It was commanded by Sair Yonka, who took the ship with him when he defected to the New Republic. It was then renamed the Freedom and saw extensive duty at the Battle of Thyferra. (BW)

Avarik
this Imperial Corporal served as a scout trooper with the Imperial garrison on the forest moon of Endor, during the construction of the second Death Star. Something of a loose cannon, Avarik was known as a brawler and streetfighter. He was given the assignment of monitoring yuzzum activity around the shield generator site. (CCG10)

Avaro Sookcool
this Tetsus Rodian associate of Lando Calrissian ran the Flip of the Credit, a seedy casino in Equator City, on Rodia. Avaro spoke Basic well enough, but he had a lisp which impeded his speech. He was also Greedo's uncle, but held no grudge against Lando and Leia Organa, claiming "business is business." Avaro was also a member of the Black Sun organization, reporting ostensibly to Clezo but with a direct line to Xizor himself. (SE, SESB)

Avatar-10
this Corellian Engineering hyperdrive was designed to be compatible with virtually any starship system. Although it was about half as fast as a stock hyperdrive, it was extremely reliable. (GG6)

Aved Luun
this female Jawa was the mate of Kalit, and the shaman of her tribe. She suspected that Wittin was plotting to kill Kalit, but had no proof. (CCG7)

Avenger
the nickname given to the TIE Advanced by Imperial pilots. (TIE)

Avenger
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer under the command of Captain Needa, its mission was to search out the Alliance's bases following the Battle of Yavin. The Star Destroyer participated in the suppression of over 436 planets - many of which were found in the Outer Rim Territories -and it was the lead ship in the attack on the Alliance's Hoth base. It was temporarily disabled by the Alliance's ion cannon, but it later assisted in the hunt for the Millennium Falcon. The Star Destroyer remained at the forefront of the Imperial fleet, serving as the communications vessel in the Battle of Endor and participating in the Battle of Calamari. It was later under the command of Sedriss the Executor during the period when Sedriss was initiating Operation Shadow Hand. Note that X-Wing: Alliance claims this ship was an Imperial-II class Star Destroyer. (ESB, ROTJ, DE1, DE2, SWSB, CCG4, XWA)

Avenger Squadron
this squadron of starfighters was proposed by Ysanne Isard to Corran Horn, while Horn was imprisoned at Lusankya. She told him that Avenger Squadron would be his to command against the Rogue Squadron. This, among other promises and deceptions, did not lure Horn into her control. (KT)

Averam
planet on which Winter was known as the Targeter during the Rebellion. According to Rebellion, Averam is in the Sesswenna Sector. (TLC, REB)

Averen
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Monarch. He surrendered to Admiral Ackbar's fleet after negotiations when the New Republic took control of Coruscant. (WG)

Averill
this planet, the primary world in the Averill system, was located about five lightyears from a 1,000-kilometer-wide dumping ground used by three private courier services. The couriers would dump their undelivered and expended datacards into the system. Much of the planet's economy as based on mining activities, especially when the Empire discovered a rich lode of quadrenium beneath its crust. (SWJ13)

Averist
one of the human natives of the planet Averam. (TLC)

Aves co-pilot of the Wild Kaarde, Aves served as one of Talon Kaarde's most loyal workers. He was rewarded with his own command, that of the Last Resort, shortly after the Battle of Bilbringi. Kaarde also promoted to the rank of Captain at this time. (HTTE, IR)

Avian Cryer
a predator native to Orellon II. (SWAJ)

Aviar
white, flying creatures native to the planet Drall. (AS)

Aviary, The
this was the term used by the local residents of Valrnya to describe the area of the city in which the pilots tended to reside. (IJ)

Avionics Control
shipboard computers that aid in maneuvering starfighters. They allow the pilot to concentrate on other duties. (SCRE)

Avog
this is the name given to the true leader of the Avogwi people. The position of Avog is determined by ceremonial battles, as described by Toro-toral. Although ceremonial, these battles are fought to the death. (GG4)

Avogwi
tall, predatory birds native to Altor 14, they have three opposable fingers on each wing. They are primitive and lawless, and despise technology. They are often called Altorian Birds. Much of the Avogwi society is dominated by the teachings of Toro-toral, which detail the elaborate ritual duels among Avogwi. Many Avogwi found off their homeworld are employed as bounty hunters. Emperor Palpatine subjugated a number of Avogwi during the New Order, using drugs and the Dark Side of the Force to keep the Avogwi hallucinating about their deepest fears. They were then used as vicious guards, while stormtroopers were used for more important tasks. The Avogwi are carnivorous. It is scientifically possible that the Avogwi and Nuiwit are descended from the same ancestors, although neither race will admit to it. (GG4, COJ)

Avril
a flying predator native to the moon Yavin 8, the avril is a two-meter-long creature with an eight-meter wingspan. It has a razor-sharp beak and twenty-centimeter claws which it uses to attack and kill reels. The avrils have vibrant blue beaks and talons, and dark black plumage. (LW)

Avuae Sea
located on the planet Carosi XII, the Avuae was formed when the Carosi star began to expand. The star consumed the five innermost planets in the system, and gradually began to warm up the others. Carosi XII was a frozen ball of ice, but began to melt during the expansion. Since then, the single-celled life that was dormant in the ice has blossomed, and the Avuae teems with life. It provides the displaced Carosites with a ready source of protein. (PG2)

AVX-1
this was a highly-specialized holographic storage system developed by Gentik and Harris. The AVX-1 was designed for use in espionage droids. (CRO)

Award of the Mechanic's Nightmare first given to Garik Loran by Cubber Daine, this Wraith Squadron honor was bestowed upon the pilot who returned from a major engagement, and whose starfighter had suffered the most damage. (IF)

Awer
this yellow star was the primary body in the Aweris System. It was orbited a single planet, Taboon. (TOJC)

AX-1
this was a specialized droid computer brain developed for use in espionage droids by Gentik and the Columni. There are several classes of AX-1 brains, depending on the level of droid being modified. Class IV brains were often used on small, limited-function droids like the MSE-6. (CRO)

Ax-108
this BlasTech starship blaster cannon is known as a "ground buzzer." The Ax-108 is designed to be concealed on the underside of the ship's hull. When activated, the Ax-108 drops down out of its compartment and can be aimed at the target. The Ax-108 has a 360-degree range of motion, but it has limited firepower. It is designed to take out approaching ground forces during a hasty departure from a spaceport; interstellar use is limited. (CCG)

Ax-235
this Alliance listening post was hidden in an asteroid belt in the Cron Drift. This post supposedly intercepted a transmission of the plans to the first Death Star, just before the Battle of Yavin. (XW)

Axe
this heavily-modified GAT Skipray Blastboat was owned by Siro Simito, and used in the starship races he participated in. (CRO)

Axet
an Alliance transport group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Axidite
this strong metal was used to form control boxes and other protective coverings. (E1A5)

AXM-50
this series of blaster weapons was produced by Prax Arms. It was a rapid-fire weapon capable of incredible destruction. The Alliance often added a Locris Syndicates MGL-1 micro-grenade launcher to the AXM-50, creating a formidable weapons capable of breaking through a barrier with its grenades, then allowing the user to lay down suppression fire to any enemies who emerged. Soldiers commonly referred to these kinds of weapons as "blast and smash" rifles. (ROE)

Axxila
Han Solo once described this world as "Coruscant turned inside (sic) and made into a jail where the inmates are in control." Sate Pestage fled here, after he lost control of the Ciutric Hegemony. He tried to make a deal with Leia Organa that would turn Coruscant over to the New Republic in exchange for his freedom, but Ysanne Isard had other plans. She dispatched Admiral Krennel to subjugate the planet, wiping out many of the planet's civilians for harboring Leia Organa, Han Solo, and Rogue Squadron. The vast majority of the populace was unaware of the presence of the New Republic on their world, and died for no apparent reason. (XWM, IR)

Ayddar Nylykerka
a New Republic asset tracking officer, he was part of the initial team set up to track the location of former Imperial warships. Ayddar was a Tammarian, and had many wives on Coruscant. Ayddar was responsible for deciphering the data recovered from the Gnisnal and highlighting the missing Black Fleet to Admiral Ackbar. In the wake of the Black Fleet Crisis, Nylykerka was promoted to the position of chief analyst in the asset tracking division of the armed forces. He was part of the team which was formed to obtain any and all information on the Yuuzhan Vong, during their invasion of the galaxy. During the invasion, Nylykerka was promoted again, this time to the Director of Field Intelligence. As a member of the New Republic Defense Force, Nylykerka learned that the Yuuzhan Vong were trying to destroy the Jedi Knights, but was unable to discover the reasons behind their actions. Note that Agents of Chaos II: Jedi Eclipse names this character as Addar Nylykerka. (BTS, HT, JE)

Ayehe Dance Troop
this group of Twi'lek dancers, led by Ardana Mitt'Ayehe, was popular throughout the Tion during the New Order. (ML)

Ayelixe/Krongbing Textiles
this fabric and textile manufacturer was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. They were the leading manufacturer of uniforms for the Imperial armed forces. Note that Pirates and Privateers claims the corporation's name is Ayelic/Krongbing Textiles. (CSA, PP)

Ayrou
this alien race is characterized by its blood-chilling voice. (SOP)

Ayrvn, Garim
this man was once the warden of an Imperial prison, until the Alliance raided the installation and freed the captives. Garim resigned in disgrace, and took up bounty hunting as a way to get back at the Alliance. He joined House Tresario, and vowed to recover all the prisoner who escaped with the Alliance. (GG10)

AZ
this was the designation of Incom Industries' heavy-weight, armored droid leg system. (DW)

AZ 7-62
this was a freighter owned by Twin Suns Transport Services. (XWA)

Az-Iban
this infamously paranoid pirate was captured by Morturr Heth and the surviving Disac pirates, shortly after Ket Maliss wiped out the Disac. His identity was later used by Morturr Heth to get back at Black Sun. His ship, the Rampaging Ranat, was also usurped by Heth's gang. (SSR)

Azaria 66
this propulsion unit was manufactured by Alkherrodyne Propulsion. It was engineered in accordance with their corporate "programmed obsolescence" mandate, and was poorly designed. When it started exploding in the field and lawsuits started rolling in, Alkherrodyne falsely accused Klaus Vandangante of being negligent in his engineering. Both Vandangante and Alkherrodyne were bankrupted because of the failure of the Azaria 66. (CSA)

Azarin
an Imperial General killed on Lafra when the CSPL-12 projectile launcher one of his troops was using jammed. An official investigation later revealed that the trooper was in error. (ISB)

Azbeth
sister of the Singing Mountain clan on Dathomir. (CPL)

Azbrian
Condren Foreck's home planet. (AC)

Azkulkt
this was one of the repulsorlift-equipped, floating cities found on the planet Rordak. (PG1)

Azna
a nondescript planet in the Rayter Sector. (CRO)

Azool
this ancient Falleen managed an antiques store in the Southern Underground of Coruscant. In reality, Azool was portrayed by Xizor's niece, Savan. (SEE)

Azool's Antiques
this artifact dealership was owned by the old Falleen Azool, and was located in the Southern Underground of Coruscant. (SEE)

Azur-Jamin, Daye
Tinian I'att's finacee and a Force-sensitive individual, Daye worked in the research and development division of I'att Armament. He was close to Strephan I'att, and the two of them collaborated on an anti-blaster energy field during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. When Imperial Moff Eisen Kerioth decided to steal the designs for his own work, he executed Strephan and his wife, Augusta, in front of Daye and Tinian. Daye and Tinian's bodyguard, the Wookiee Wrrl, managed to get Tinian to safety. After making sure she escaped from Druckenwell with the plans to the energy field's technology, Daye destroyed the I'att complex. Unfortunately, he was caught in the resulting desctruction and was nearly killed before he could rendezous with Tinian. He was rescued by the local underground, and eventually recovered. However, he had many body parts replaced with cybernetic implants. Rather than endanger Tinian further, Daye remained with the underground and eventually joined the Alliance. He worked for the cell led by Una Poot, and was responsible for aiding the Sunesi in their battles against the Empire. When Daye met Agapos the Ninth, the Sunesi used his ability with the Force to see what was troubling Daye, and explained that he needed to find Tinian and let her know he was alive. Several years after the Battle of Endor, Daye and Tinian were reunited. They rediscovered their love for one another, and eventually were married. Daye himself traveled to Yavin 4 to discuss further training with Luke Skywalker, and became a field agent for the Jedi. Soon afterward, Tinian gave birth to a son, Tam, who himself grew into a Jedi student. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Daye provided reports from the front edges of alien-held territory, and was on Nal Hutta following the Battle of Fondor. (TFE, TBH, SWJ10, BP)

Azur-Jamin, Tam
this Force-sensitive boy was the son of Daye Azur-Jamin and Tinian I'att, and later was a student at Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Luke asked Tam to travel to Nal Hutt and locate his father, who hadn't reported into the Jedi in several days. (BP)

Azure Dianoga
an Invisible Sector cantina located on Coruscant. (WG)

Azuroth Khell
this Kalzerian was a native of the Kost province. He became part of the resistance that grew on Kalzeron shortly after the Empire subjugated the planet. Khell and his comrades fled Kalzeron in order to train and obtain weapons, but the Empire withdrew from the planet shortly after the Battle of Endor. When the members of the resistance returned home, they were branded cowards and traitors to their people. Outcast from his own world, Khell wandered the galaxy as a hired gun and mercenary, until he was picked up by Executive Results. The leaders of this corporation were so impressed with his skills that they brought him to the attention on Saujutta-Ok-Topii herself. Saujutta recognized his potential, and placed Khell in charge of the forces that were neutralizing the enemies of Syndicate One. (SWJ8)

Azzameen, Ace
the youngest of Tomaas Azzameen's three sons, Ace was eager to begin flying for his father's company, Twin Suns Transport Services. However, his brothers never wanted to admit he was ready, so Ace often flew with his sister, Aeron. She favored him over the other two boys, although her loyalty to the entire family never waivered. Ace learned how to fly transports with Aeron shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (XWA)

Azzameen, Aeron
the only daughter of Tomaas Azzameen, Aeron was the family's computer systems expert. She was also an ingenous hacker, and could fly a transport with any of her brothers. During the last years of the Galactic Civil War, she became emotionally involved with Olin Garn, after the pilot contracted with Twin Suns Transport Services. (XWA)

Azzameen, Antan
this man and his brother, Tomaas Azzameen, cofounded Twin Suns Transport Service. His loyalty to the family ran deep, especially after he was caught on Hoth, assisting the Alliance with a supply delivery, when the Empire attacked. However, he grew to oppose his family's affiliation with the Alliance, and soon turned into a traitor. He tried to expose the family and turn them over to the Empire in a trap laid at Kessel Station, but Ace and the Alliance were able to thwart his plans. (XWA)

Azzameen, Emon
the middle of the three sons of Tomaas Azzameen, Emon was a skilled pilot with a hot streak. He was always around when a fight breaks out, and seemed to attract more trouble than one man ever could. Often, his temper got the better of his judgement, and he had to be rescued by his siblings. (XWA)

Azzameen, Galin
the eldest of the three sons of Tomaas Azzameen, Galin was known as a quiet yet brilliant man who was groomed to follow in his father's footsteps within Twin Suns Transport Service. He held strongly to his own beliefs on right and wrong, and was a background supporter of the Alliance. (XWA)

Azzameen, Tomaas
this man and his brother, Antan Azzameen, cofounded Twin Suns Transport Service. The older of the two brothers, Tomaas served as the family leader during the period between the Battle of Yavin and the Battle of Endor. Like Antan, his loyalty to the family runs deep, especially after Antan was caught on Hoth, assisting the Alliance with a supply delivery, when the Empire attacked. However, Tomaas also felt that the Empire was morally wrong, and supported the Alliance as discreetly as possible. His skills in business have gotten the family into a rivalry with the owners of Viraxo Industries. (XWA)

Azzameen Station
this ring-shaped space station was owned and operated by Tomaas Azzameen and his brother, Antan. It served as the base of operations for Twin Suns Transport Service. (XWA)

Azzi
this man was a professor of Modern History at a university on Alderaan, during the early years of the New Order. He openly opposed the tyranny of the Empire's government, and even described the sport of wegsphere as a symbol of the Empire's oppression. Azzi failed Conn Doruggan in his class, after reading his essay on Human Expansionism. (TBSB)

A1.50
this was a series of ion engines produced by the Surronians for use on the L19 heavy freighter. (SS)

A14
Aratech's one-man repulsorlift disk. This transport is simply a disk, onto which are mounted several repulsorlift pocket drives and a command module and guardrail. They are primarily used by construction worker who have to reach inaccessible areas to complete their work. It measures about one meter in diameter, and stands about 1.5 meters tall. (CFG)

A1733-N9033
this set of coordinates, located in the first quadrant of the planet Tatooine, pinpointed the location of Obi-Wan Kenobi's hovel. (SWTJ)

A2
this small ion engine is manufactured by Surronian for use on the Conqueror starship. They are smaller, and less powerful, than the A2.5 engine. (EGV)
this was the designation of a Viper probe droid guarding Zsinj's facilities on Xartun. (WS)

A2.5
this Surronian ion engine is larger and more powerful than the A2-grade engine. (EGV)

A28X
this Corellian Masternav map detailed the area of space surrounding the Sisar Run. (SSR)

A280
one of the best armor-piercing blasters produced during the Galactic Civil War, the Blas-Tech A280 rifle was reputed to be able to cut a fully-armored stormtrooper in half. Several of these rifles were stolen by Janse and brought to the Alliance shortly before the Battle of Endor. (RASB, TLC, CCG10)

A295
this BlasTech blaster rifle as favored by marksmen and snipers for its accuracy and range. It was employed by those who worked in hostile environments, and was standard issue to the Alliance forces stationed at Echo Base on Hoth. (CCG9)

A3
1) this was the designation of a Viper probe droid guarding Zsinj's facilities on Xartun. (WS)
2) this was the designation of the Tonheld Mining Corporation asteroid facility that was used by the Hawk-bats as their base of operations. (IF)

A3AA
this was a model of personal defense system designed by Corellian Technologies. (GG10)

A68 Market
located on the first Death Star in city sprawl North 7:A68, this was the home of the station's largest and most active network of black marketeers. Overseen by Gorsick Dommaro, it provided Imperial personnel with access to most forms of weapons, illegal holovids, and personal electronics. These items were obtained through a complex series of contacts and couriers spread througout the nearby sprawls. No specific location was ever identified. (DSTC)

A9-series Droid
this was a series of driller droids developed for use in mining operations. (JH)

A9G Archive Droid
developed by Industrial Automaton, this humanoid droid was designed to archive and collate large amounts of data. The primary operation of the A9G-series was as a librarian or library administrator. Unfortunately, the software controlled these droids was flawed, and many universities and major libraries overwhelmed them. The A9G series was scrapped, and the Alliance acquired several of them on the auction blocks. With a bit of reprogramming, the A9G units were modified to sift through large amounts of military information and retrieve specific documents for military leaders. (TBSB)

A99 Aquata Breather
this small, thin device is often found in survival kits and utility belts. The A99 breather, when inserted into the user's mouth, extracts oxygen from the surrounding water, allowing the user to swim underwater and "breath" through their mouth. The A99 Aquata breather resembles a small, curved mouthpiece. (SW1)

* B *

B. J. Rordan's Collectables
this old bulding, located in the Verena City starport on the planet Kirima, was owned and operated by Bren-Jules Rordan. Rordan used the business - which sold various bits and pieces of discarded junk - as a cover for his operations as head COMPNOR agent on the planet. (TSK)

B-0B
this Treadwell droid worked aboard the first starship Platt Okeefe piloted for the Klatooinan Trade Guild, the Brentaal Princess. The droid was destroyed, however, when Platt was forced to crashland on Tatooine. B-0B hadn't been properly stowed, and was dashed against the bulkheads. (PSG, SWG)

B-2332-54
the cloning sample of Luke Skywalker, taken from the hand he lost in the lightsaber duel with Darth Vader on Cloud City. (DFR, TLC)

B-3
this was a model of heavy-duty spot luma, produced for industrial use by SunnGunn. (WSV)

B-3Z
a technical droid used by the Empire. (SWSB)

B-6
this large, spider-shaped droid was one of Mala's constructs. She left it behind in the spaceport on Centares, when she and a group of other bounty hunters gathered to see if Ban Papeega could discover the name of the pilot who destroyed the first Death Star. When Mala learned that the pilot's name was Luke Skywalker, she was hunted down by Vader's troops. After jumping from a cliff, Mala was rescued by B-6 and returned to her ship. They fled to Coruscant, but were shot down by an Imperial patrol. B-6 was damaged beyond repair in the crash, but Mala reused its parts in a trap meant to delay the stormtroopers who searched for them. (VQ)

B-7 Freighter
a transport ship manufactured by Loronar. (KO)

B-9D7
this thin, humanoid doid was working for Movo Brattakin in the years prior to the Battle of Yavin. He passed himself off to C-3PO and R2-D2 as Brattakin's personal assistant, but he was much more than that. When Brattakin was killed, he put his own brain inside B-9D7's cranial cavity, effectively continuing his reign over various underworld elements while remaining a mystery long after his death. In this way, he manipulated Jace Forno and Olag Greck until B-9D7 was ultimately destroyed by Forno on Boonda the Hutt's moon. (DRO)

B-Wing
designed by Admiral Ackbar and the Verpine colonies of Slayn and Korpil as part of the Shantipole Project, the B-Wing (the B stands for blade) looks like like a flying cross, with the control pod at the top, retractable wings at the sides, and laser guns at the top and bottom. The canopy is also gyroscopically levelled by a unique stabilization mechanism that allows the entire ship to rotate around the canopy. This is difficult to maintain, and can leave the pilot disoriented if it locks up. The Quadex Kyromaster stardrive is located at the center of the cross. The whole ship flies sideways. The entire ship is 16.9 meters in length, at its longest dimension. Originally designed without a hyperdrive, it was later modified to include a hyperdrive and limited navcomp capabilities. It is limited to two hyperspace jumps before the navcomp requires recalibration. It can make 950 kilometers per hour in an atmosphere, and has been rated at 90 MGLT in open space. The B-Wing is equipped with active and passive sensors, a single laser cannon, two proton torpedo launchers, three fire-linked medium ion cannons, and two auto-blasters. The single laser cannon can be fired at low power in continuous mode, doing no damage but acting as a near-perfect targetting mechanism. While this makes the B-wing very effective, it also allows the enemy to effectively target the B-wing in return.

It is equipped with the following components:
- 3 Gyrhil R-9X Laser Cannons
- 1 Gyrhil 72 Twin Auto-blaster
- 3 ArMek SW-7a Ion Cannons
- 2 Krupx MG9 Proton Torpedo Launchers (6 torpedoes each)
- 4 Slayn & Korpil JZ-5 Fusial Thrust engines
- Slayn & Korpil HYd-997 Hyperdrive Motivator
- Fabritech ANv-9q Sensor System
- Fabritech ANq 3.6 Tracking Computer
- Long Range Phased Tachyon Array Model Number PH-5s
- Short Range Primary Threat Grid Model Number PK-8f
- Narmox HG.6w Flight Control Avionics Package
- Microaxial LpM-549 NavComp Unit
- Vinop O2K Cryogenic Power Cells and Ionization Reactor
- In-344-B Sightline Imaging System

- Sirplex Zr-41 Front- and Rear-projecting Shield Generators (125 SBD)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (60 RU)
- S-foils

(ROTJ, SFS, XW, TIE, EGV)

B-Wing/E
this modification to the original Slayn & Korpil B-Wing design - known as the B-Wing Expanded - was first proposed by Admiral Ackbar and the Verpine after the Battle of Yavin. The B-Wing Expanded had an elongated cockpit that allowed a a gunner to assist the pilot on missions. This allowed the pilot to concentrate on piloting, and resulted in the B-Wing accounting for an increased number of kills in battle. It was faster and tougher than the original B-Wing, but was somewhat less maneuverable. There were two models of B-Wing/E: the first was simply a military ship, while the second generation (known as the B-Wing/E2) was designed as a personal military shuttle. Ackbar used one of these E2-designs as his own shuttle, which he was forced to crash on the planet Vortex after it had been tampered with by Terpfen. (EGV)

B-Wing/E2
this was a new version of the two-man B-Wing, produced for the New Republic shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. (HT)

B'aerlak Beast
this was a species of jungle creature that resembled a reptiloid, three-humped camel. Many scouts and explorers used b'aerlak beasts as mounts during their expeditions. (IA)

B'das
an alien race which held membership in the New Republic. (SOL)

B’dasssa
this Akwin was one of the many scouts which kept meticulous track of the humans which inhabited the planet Lazerian IV, allowing the Akwin to completely understand their neighbors. He made frequent expeditions to Lazeria City. (TSK)

B'jorring Pond
a large, open body of water used for fishing and swimming on the planet Alderaan. (GOF10)

B'karitz
an influential Schenor noble on Rhamsis Callo, he listened to A'kazz's description of an Imperial attack on a neutral research station, and helped turn the Schenor to join the Alliance. B'karitz was also A'kazz's nest-guildmaster. (RPG)

B'knos
this asteroid, located in the Abran Belt, was the site of a mining operation that was destroyed by the supply ship Ambitious. (TBSB)

B'omarr Order
a sect of monks who inhabited the wastes of Tatooine, the B'omarr built a huge citadel in the deep desert in order to isolate themselves and concentrate on the physical denial of all senses that is central to their belief system. This citadel was later invaded by the bandit Alkhara, but the monks simply let him reside there, tolerating his presence only because they knew he would someday falter, and they could retake the citadel. The palace was later inhabited by the minions of Jabba the Hutt, who used the citadel as his base of operations. As with the bandit Alkhara, the B'omarr tolerated Jabba's presense. When Jabba was killed, the B'omarr again retook the palace. Their existence is more whispers and mysticism than concrete fact. One thing that is known about the B'omarr is that, when they reach a certain level of spiritual awareness, they have their brains surgically removed from their bodies and placed in a nutrient suspension. The reason behind this ritual stems from their belief that they no longer need their physical bodies to continue their devotion. (DS, TJP)

B’oth
this was the Morishi term for a Bothan. (SOP)

B'rknaa
an unusual race of creatures that are composed of ash and stone, the B'rknaa were discovered on the planetoid Indobok. They have a group mind, and are animated by the force emitted from Indobok's energy crystals. The B'rknaa can, when the need arises, combine themselves into a single entity. The planetoid Indobok is, itself, a huge adult B'rknaa. They mature into the energy crystals, which have the property of amplifying the power output of many generators. Jace Forno tried to take the crystals off the moon, but was foiled by R2-D2 and C-3PO. (DRO)

B'rrsk
this large rock or ball was used in the Corellian sport of phrenbi. The term b'rrsk came from the Old Corellian word for "head," and phrenbi could be translated as "to decapitate," both terms indicating the violent and physical nature of the sport. (BSS)

B’shingh
this game was created by Crat Dakerno, who modeled it after the complex wars and battles fought between the Farang and Waroot races of the planet Ab’Bshingh. A famliarity with the races’ battles, cultures and customs is essential to any player, and this makes it unusual outside military or intellectual circles. The basic object of the game is to capture your opponent’s base and maim or kill his soldiers. Each player can make one of two moves each round: a physical movement of soldiers, or a change in stance. Every fifth turn is radnomized to interject battle realism, and knowledge of the tribal rituals helps players anticipate the randomizer’s effect. (SWJ8)

B/l
this repulsorlift engine was developed by Incom Industries, and modified for use on cloud cars by Bespin Motors. (GG2)

Ba'Har
this planet, the fourth in the Coyn System, has a small, thin ring system. The name "Ba'Har" means "battle blade" in native Coynese. Ba'Har is a gas giant, and doesn't seem to support any life. (PG)

Baajik
this Chadra-Fan worked as a double agent, skirting between the Alliance and the Hutts, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Based on the planet Ord Mantell, Baajik chose his allegiances based on where the credits were best. He sold out Phoedris Bos to his eggmate brother, Cypher Bos, during the bounty hunter's attempt to capture Han Solo. Unfortunately for Baajik, Cypher Bos could not let him live whiel he knew the secret of his eggmate. Pretending to be Phoedris, Cypher Bos met with Baajik and shot him dead. (SWG)

Baarak Kalaim
this Klatooinan was known as absent-minded and unkempt, but was nonetheless an excellent mechanic and technician. He joined The Shield after being recruited by Peert Ginzork, and served them for many years during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Baas*-class Space Station
this space station was an Imperial design, measuring 900 meters in height and capable of containing a million metric tons of cargo. The design allowed for a crew of 300, which included a small security forces, and up to 100 visitors. (IA)

Baavil
this Imperial Navy Admiral was in command of the Imperial forces stationed on Byblos, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ14)

Babalabbet Swoont
this Sullustan was a highly respected cybernetic engineer in his home system. A promising career took a bad turn when Swoont ate some contaminated food and suffered slight damage to his brain. His work began to result in deviant behavior in droids, and a mining accident caused by one his droids resulted in his incarceration in a criminal asylum. The noted droid abolitionist Xalto Sneerzick recognized Swoont's ability with droids, and arranged to free Swoont from prison. Despite his insanity, Swoont became fiercely loyal to Sneerzick, and became an integral part of the Droid Abolitionist Movement. When Sneerzick decided to start raiding Cosmohaul Shipping, Swoont devotely followed him. They posed as a transport crew, and were given the task of transporting 100 R5 units to Sullust on the Argent Lady. Xalto's programming of the R5 droids caused them to rebel against even the abolitionists, and Sneerzick's entire team was shot and killed by the rebellious droids. Swoont perished along with them. (SWJ9)

Babali
this tropical planet was the site of an Obroan Institute research base, headed by Kroddok Stopa before he was killed on Brath Qella. (SOL)

Babasta Beast
the flesh of this creature was consdiered a delicacy when boiled. (WSV)

Babbadod
this colony world was visted by Star Morning, as it travelled from Darepp to Motexx. (SOL)

Babbet
an alien race. (SOL)

Babel Senjorg
this Bith merchant was an associate of Ort Hoogra-D'En, and was wanted by the Empire for supplying the Ho'Din with plant material used to manufacture his spore bombs. He was killed when he booked passage to Celanon aboard the Chalcedony on Pallaxides, when the crew fell victims to the spores used by Hoogra-D'En in his bombs. One of the bombs was accidentally set off by a bumbling Rodian, killing the pilot of the Chalcedony and others aboard. The pilot managed to get the ship to Celanon, but expired before he could land it. The ship crashed, killing those aboard who were not already dead from the spores. Babel was listed among the dead. (ND)

Bachenkall
this graduate of the Imperial Academy on Raithal served as a warrant officer in the Imperial Navy. He served under Admiral Piett aboard the Executor, acting as the ship's chief helmsman. (CCG4)

BaChorin, Elbren
this immense man was a veteran of the Imperial 865th Regiment. When the regiment was under heavy fire, most of the men fled in fear for their lives. Only BaChorin and Shelby Tribold remained to fight. Tribold was badly wounded, and BaChorin single-handedly rescued him. After retiring from active duty, BaChorin established BaChorin's Spaceways, Unlimited. (HR)

BaChorin's Spaceways, Unlimited
this seedy, rundown transport agency was owned and operated by Elbren BaChorin. (HR)

Backbreaker
this Lancer-class frigate was part of Warlord Zsinj's third fleet. (SOC)

Backpack Companion
this was another name for the ludos creature which inhabited the forests of Ganlihk. (COG)

Backshin
a creature native to the planet Vinsoth, the backshin are hunted as a food source by the Chevin. It meat is considered tasty by many other races as well. (MTS, GG12)

Backstab
a Corellian CR90 corvette captained by Jacob Nive, the Backstab was the only Eyttyrmin Batiiv ship to survive the attack of the Bombard and the Crusader. It resurfaced several years in Elrood Sector, where Nive was approached by Shondra Del with an offer to help the Alliance with Operation Elrood. After the Battle of Endor, the Backstab served as part of the Invid pirate fleet. (GG9, IJ, OE)

Bacrana
this planet was the site of a strong Alliance cell, which erupted following the Battle of Yavin. The Imperial Moff in charge, a man named Ramier, swiftly quelled the insurrection and place the capital city of Amma under martial law. (SWJ8)

Bacta
a rejuvenatory fluid that circulates healing bacteria around a wound to speed recovery. The fluid contains living organisms that help speed a patient's recovery by latching onto a wound and aiding in the regeneration process. It was first created by the Vratix, on Thyferra, by combining the chemical kavan and alazhi. The small human population on Thyferra was placed in charge of two corporations, Zaltin and Xucphra, and their small human management teams controlled huge populations of Vratix laborers. When Palpatine became Emperor, he decreed that the two corporations would be the sole providers of bacta for the galaxy, giving them a monopoly on its production but indebting them both to the Empire. Because of the monopoly and the prices they could charge, the corporations created an export-quality bacta and a Thyferran version. The Thyferran version was much more potent than its export version, which had lesser healing properties to drive up the demand. During the early years of the New Republic, Ysanne Isard tried to cripple the Republic by restricting the availability of bacta in two ways: first, she let loose the Krytos virus on Coruscant; second, she took control of the planet Thyferra. The Republic began taking great strides to preserve its supply of bacta, including reclaiming any unused bacta from patients who were immersed in a bacta tank. This practice continued for another 15 to 20 years until bacta production could be fully re-established under New Republic auspices. There was a rumor of a band of renegade Twi'lek pirates who would immerse their captives in bacta during interrogation sessions. They would then run electricity through the bacta, torturing their victims to the point of death, and then remove the electricity. They would allow the bacta to heal the victim, then start the electricity again. (ESB, SWAJ, XWN, SOP, BW)

Bacta Bypass
another name for the Shapani Bypass. (PGT)

Bacta Cartel
this is the name first used to describe the monopoly hel dby the Xucphra and Zaltin corporations on Thyferra, during the height of the New Order. When Ysanne Isard took control of Thyferra and placed the Xucphra faction in charge, the Bacta Cartel became a one-corporation operation with Imperial backing. (BW)

Bacta Patch
this special bandage has a small amount of bacta impregnated into its gauzy material. When applied to a flesh wound, such as a blaster graze, it helps heal the wound quickly. (IF)

Bacta Purge
a medical procedure in which a person's entire body is flooded with bacta internally. While a bacta tank allows external access to the bacta agents, a bacta purge givens them direct access to lungs and other vital organs. It is a last-resort treatment, since it can do more harm than good if improperly administered. (TB)

Bacta Run
another name for the Shapani Bypass. (PGT)

Bacta Tank
a cylindrical tank into which a person can be submerged for extensive exposure to the healing properties of bacta. (ESB)

Bacta War
this was the name given to the events leading up to, and including, the Battle of Thyferra. Historians trace the start of the Bacta War to the point at which Rogue Squadron resigned its commission from the New Republic, following the liberation of Coruscant from Ysanne Isard. The Rogues then began to raid bacta shipments and production facilities, stealing the rejuvenating fluid for use on Coruscant and other credit-poor worlds which required it. Isard retailiated by destroying worlds that accepted the bacta, then murdering the Vratix workers who created it. As the Rogues struck from their base on a space station in orbit around Yag'Dhul, Isard took more losses. The stakes were raised when Isard learned that the Rogues passed through the Alderaan system to through off pursuit, so she leased the Aggregator in hopes of catching them. This tactic resulted in the loss of the Corrupter, and the Aggregator was badly damaged, because both sides had been tipped off by Melina Carniss, acting as a double agent under Talon Kaarde. The Rogues took the next step, persuading Captain Sair Yonka to defect and bring the Avarice into the New Republic's fleet. Isard retaliated, and sent the Lusankya and the Virulence to destroy the Rogues' base at Yag'Dhul. Once again, the Rogues had enough warning to prepare a defense, and Booster Terrik's planning paid off. False weapons placements led the Lusankya to believe she was under attack from an immense force, and she fled when the Virulence interposed itself between the station and the Super-class Star Destroyer. The Virulence was captured by Terrik, renamed the Freedom, and turned over to Yonka to command at the Battle of Thyferra. That battle marked the end of the Bacta War. (BW)

Bad Water Pull
the exact name of this period during the year on Ergeshui is unpronounceable in Basic, but it referred to the time when the planet's moons exerted their strongest gravitational pull on the planet. The tides were exceptionally intense, and the native Ergesh went into a form of temporary psychosis. (AE)

Badeleg, Cho
this man was one of the human members of the ExGal-4 outpost on Belkadan, when the Yuuzhan Vong began their invasion. The ExGal-4 team saw the Yuuzhan Vong's advance warship land on Helska, but they believed it to be a simple asteroid. Danni Quee led an expedition to Helska to see what had happened, and Badeleg was part of the team. Their Spacecaster shuttle was quickly intercepted by Yuuzhan Vong coralskippers and disabled. Badeleg was killed on the shuttle during the assault, and never made it to Helska. (VP)

Badger
an Alliance cargo ferry group stationed at DS-5, it was destroyed when Darth Vader intercepted Admiral Harkov at the station. (TIE)

Badlands
a desert region of the Kamar. (HSR)

Badlands
this Imperial CR90 corvette was part of a convoy that was ambushed and destroyed by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Badlanders
a variant of the Kamarian race that lives in the deserts of Kamar. They have lighter colored exoskeletons and thinner chitin in order to better survive the desert heat. (HSR)

Badure, Alexsandr
an old acquaintence of Han Solo's, Badure was a veteran of the Old Republic's military, having served in the Twi'lek Spice Conflict, the Corellian Territories Engagements, and the Outer RIm Wars. After retirement, Badure went to work as a mechanic at the Academy when Han Solo was a cadet. Since then, he has worked on and off with Han and Chewie, and even saved them during the blown Kessel run that got them into trouble with Jabba the Hutt. Chewie carried a life-debt to Badure from that point on, which was repaid on the snowy slopes of Dellalt. He is reunited with Han on Rudrig, where he was trying to get off the planet and search for the Queen of Ranroon. He asks Han for transport, but Han initially refuses. After a number of close calls, he tells Han about his knowledge of the Queen, and Han agrees to help him find the ship. (HSL, CSA)

Baed Sharpshooter
a form of slug thrower manufactured on Vatta Four. (CFG)

Baem, Rodin
this man was a native of the planet Hoylin. He was an informant and computer slicer working for the Empire at the height of the New Order, and had actually earned the confidence of Darth Vader himself after providing the location of several Alliance bases. After the fall of Emperor Palpatine and Darth Vader at Endor, Baem was able to break into several New Republic computer systems and steal information. He was believed to be working for either Moff Lankin and/or Admiral Drommel. (WBC)

Baes Logia
a planet which was the site of an ongoing skirmish between Imperial forces and the Alliance. Graf Yonna, acting as Parsol d'Ahndole, killed an Imperial general on this planet, during an Alliance effort to capture him alive. (CRO, SWJ10)

Baffle
this BFL-series labor droid greeted Han Solo and Droma, after they landed on Ruan in search of Droma's family. Han believed that the droid was Bollux, but Baffle claimed no knowledge of the Corporate Sector or Doc Vandangante. Programmed for serving as a driver, Baffle could operate virtually any repulsor-equipped vehicle. In reality, Baffle had been working with black-market programming to overthrown the Salliche Ag Corporation, which had been scrapping droids in favor of organic laborers in an effort to develop products which were better suited to the Yuuzhan Vong ecology. With the help of Han and Droma, Baffle was able to override the control signals which were keeping the droids immobile. The droids rose up against their Salliche Ag oppressors and managed to unseat them. Baffle later helped Han and Droma escape Ruan by hiding them in an automated scout collector, which the droid piloted to the spaceport. It was later revealed that the droids on Ruan had a full mythology based around "the long-awaited one, only flesh and blood who would be able to help them." C-3PO discerned that Han Solo had become this being. (JE, BP)

Baffop
a temperate planet. (DFRSB)

Bafforr Trees
semi-intelligent trees native to Ithor, and worshipped by the Ithorians. Like a hive mind, the more trees there are, the more intelligent they become. When seven or more trees grow together, the Bafforr achieve a sentience. The bark of the Bafforr is smooth and glasslike, and its blue coloration is radiant and luminous. The bark coloration of saplings is deeper blue than the older trees. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Corran Horn and Jacen Solo discovered that the pollen of the baffor tree was deadly to the vondunu crab armor worn by the Yuuzhan Vong warriors. They were able to defeat the Vong in a single battle before the effects were learned by the Vong commanders. In retaliation for this usage of bafforr pollen, Deign Lian ordered the destruction of Ithor. All life on the planet, including every bafforr tree, was killed in the attack. The New Republic, however, had taken steps to ensure the survival of the bafforr, and took cuttings and young plants to several worlds, such as Borleais, in an effort to save the tree from extinction. (DA, TME, DTR)

Baftu
this Phindian male was the leader of the Syndicat, which maintained control of the planet Phindar some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. He secretly made a deal with Prince Beju of Gala, offering to provide bacta to the Prince so that he could pretend to save his planet from a false bacta shortage and gain the votes necessary to become the leader of Gala. Baftu, in return for the bacta and other funding, would then get a foothold on the planet Gala, and would be able to take control of the world for the Syndicat, with Beju as his figurehead leader. However, Baftu's plans were thwarted by several schemes, including Obi-Wan Kenobi's impersonation of Prince Beju and Qui-Gon Jinn's efforts to return the Syndicat's stolen treasury to the Phindians. He worried about Terra's concern over his dealings with Beju,and when they discovered the empty treasury, Baftu accused Terra of stealing it herself. She was killed by the Syndicat's assassin droids. Baftu himself was later captured by the Phindian resistance, led by Guerra Derida, and tried to his crimes. (HP)

Baga
a bordok kept as a pet by Wicket W. Warwick. (ECAR)

Bagitt
one of Lando's employees on Nomad City, an engine technician. (TLC)

Bagmim
this alien race joined the New Republic. They had a collective society which, while not exactly a hive mentality, worked as a committee. This led to interesting consequences when they were admitted to the Republic's Navy, for entire ships had to be crewed with Bagmims in order to allow them to make decisions as a group. They are a tenacious race, especially when confronted. (SOP)

Bagsho
this city is the site of a major starport on the planet Nim Drovis. It is surrounded by bayous.The city was also the largest of the planet's free ports. Its primary population was formed from Alderaanian colonists, and the port became one of the more important crossroads between the New Republic and the neutral worlds of the Meridian Sector. The city is divided into two sections, denoted simply as Old Town and New Town. (POT)

Bahni
a New Republic historian who feared that the remnants of the Empire would eventually overthrow the New Republic. (DESB)

Bahshi
this term is used in the underworld of Pembric II to refer to any highly-efficient killer. (VOF)

Baikh'vair
one of the many Noghri clans. (TTSB)

Baintorf
this New Republic General was in charge of maintaining Coruscant's planetary shield during the Yevethan Great Purge. (BTS)

Baji
a Ho'Din medicine man whio lived in the rain forests of Yavin Four. He has a unique, rhyming speech pattern. He collects various plants and roots for theur medicinal value, and he also cultivates those that he believes to be endangered. The plants that he fears may be extinct are shipped back to the Ho'Din homeworld of Moltok for further study. When Trioculus was blinded by the Glove of Darth Vader, the Imperial troops captured Baji and conscripted him as a medic. Baji's entire supply of Kibo seeds was lost trying to save Trioculus. He was later rescued by the Alliance, and has worked as part of DRAPAC ever since. (LCJ, QE)

Baji Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Rim Territories. It contains the Vergesso Asteroids. Note that many West End Games books, including the Shadows of the Empire Sourcebook*, name this area as* Bajic Sector. (SE, SESB)

Bak
this airless, rocky planet was the innermost world in the Bakura System. (TBSB)

BaKaar
an Alliance modified CR90 corvette that was destroyed while trying to disable the Harpax so that Admiral Harkov and the Protector fleet could escape and defect. (TIE)

Bakchou Arm
this section of the galaxy contained Fakir Sector. (SWCP)

Baker, Incavi
see Larado, Incavi (TBH)

Baker, Miagi
this man married Incavi Larado, then died suddenly. It was believed that Incavi had something to do with his death, but nothing was ever proven. (TBH)

Bakh'tor
a Noghri clan. (TLC)

Bakisian Drift
this notorious space anomaly is located in the Tragan Cluster. Its wild and random energy discharges wreak havoc with navicomputers, and hinders travel through the sector. (GG12)

Bakk
this Bloxian worked as a thug and hired gun for the Linkaas Corporation, along with his brother Chokk. Baak was inordinately proud of the fact that he was five millimeters taller than his brother. (SWJ1)

Bakken
this Snivvian pirate was one of the many who were contracted by the Alliance to ambush Imperial convoys. He had previously served as an "alien cultures consultant" to the Alliance in Zaric Sector, before decided to strike out on his own as a privateer for the Alliance. His superiors tried to persuade him to remain with the Alliance, but Bakken threatened to strike out on his own if he wasn't allowed to leave. Zaric Sector command let him go, and Bakken quickly made good on his promises to help the Alliance. (PP)

Bakku
this Reigat was a member of the Alliance's V-16 sleeper cell. He was a bodyguard and strong arm for a gang leader in the Downside of Fabrillan, and was known to be an anti-social being. Bakku was also a supporter of the Alliance, hating the Empire for trying to impose its rules on him. (CRO)

Bakkun
an Imperial cargo ferry group used to deliver supplies to the outpost in the Pakuuni System. (TIE)

Bakli, Amel
one-time governor of the planet Caprioril, he was killed - along with 20,000 other spectators - by an assassin droid during a swoop race. (SWSB)

Baktoid Armor Workshop
this Neimoidian manufacturer produced many designs of automated and droid-controlled warships for the Trade Federation's fleet. Among the designs Baktoid created were the MTT transport and AAT battle tank. Their work was characterized by bulbous, rounded lines complimenting basic utilitarian designs. (X1)

Baktoid Combat Automata
a subsidiary of the Baktoid Armor Workshop, this facility produced battle droids for the Trade Federation. (IG1)

Bakur Complex
this series of buildings and parks was used for housing, offices, and medical facilities in Salis D'aar. It was based on the grounds of the Bakur Memorial Building, once the seat of government and under the control of the Bakur Corporation. The Complex was comrpised of the Greenwell, Statuary Park, and the Memorial Building itself. (TB, TBSB)

Bakur Memorial Building
this edifice marked the center of the city of Salis D'aar, and was where all Bakuran governmental offices were located. It later formed the center of the Bakur Complex, and housed the senate chamber, the Great Hall, residences, and transportation services. (TB, TBSB)

Bakur RepulsorCorp
this was the largest producer of repulsor-equipped vehicles on the planet Bakura. (TBSB)

Bakura
1) planet settled near the end of the Clone Wars by the Bakura Corporation and ruled by a Prime Minister and Senate, it was taken by the Empire 3 years before the Battle of Endor. Note that The Truce at Bakura Sourcebook indicates Bakura was settled by humans some 153 years before the Battle of Bakura. The planet was known for its exports of repulsorlift parts, fruit candy, and liqueur. Bakura was located on the edge of the Rim worlds, the third in a system of eight planets. It is a lush, forested world not unlike Endor, with two moons. It was discovered by the Empire's Imperial Study Survey 60774. (TB, TBSB)
2) the name of the primary star in the Bakuran system. (SC)

Bakura Incident
this became the historical term used to describe the events which occurred on the planet Bakura, prior to the Battle of Endor and culminating with the Battle of Bakura. Many New Republic historians, including Voren Na'al, felt that public knowledge of the Bakura Incident would undermine the efforts of the fledgling Republic to lead the galaxy. Na'al was worried that the existence of a relatively unknown species, which had the ability to nearly defeat a Jedi Knight and entech humans, would cause a widespread panic in the galaxy. (TBSB)

Bakura*-class Destroyer
this warship was developed by the Bakurans in the years after their liberation from the Ssi-ruuvi invasion force. At 850 meters in length, they were formidable ships. They required 8,250 crewmen and 275 gunners, and could transport up to 2,000 troops and 36,000 metric tons of cargo. The Bakura-class destroyer was armed with 60 turbolaser batteries, 60 ion cannons, and 10 tractor beam projectors. They were also equipped with a hyperwave inertial momentum sustainer (HIMS) system. The power plant of this design was based on the Imperial-II class Star Destroyer, but the exterior was much more fluid in shape than the angular Imperial warship. (CTD)

Bakuran Loyalist Movement
this was the pro-Imperial faction which sprang up on Bakura following the liberation of the planet from the Ssi-ruuk and its alignment with the New Republic. (WS)

Bakuran Senatorial Academy
this was the premier educational facility on the planet Bakura, with a curriculum geared toward politics and public service. It was located in Salis D'aar. (TBSB)

Bal'ta'ran Crystals found on the planet Guiteica, this valuable mineral was mined by a few select non-Bitthaevrian coroporations, including Vulca Minerals. (AIR)

Balaidas Academy
this school is well known for its police and security science departments. It was closed to non-human races during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (SWJ8)

Balance Casino located in Vandalar City, this casino was owned by the Herglic entrepreneuer Narloch. (ND)

Balancesheet
one of the most able subnodes generated by the assembler Kud'ar Mub'at, Balancesheet was in charge of monitoring and tracking the assembler's vast accumulation of credits. As it matured, Balancesheet became more and more aware of its creator's schemes, and also grew to understand its own existence. It kept much of its intelligence hidden, but showed enough to gain Mub'at's trust. During negotiations with two parties, Mub'at would sometime allow Balancesheet to pretend to be Mub'at himself. Balancesheet would crawl into one of the carapaces Mub'at had shed, and act as if it were Mub'at itself. This worked particularly well, since Balancesheet could mimic Kud'ar Mubat's voice and speech patterns with ease. While remaining outwardly loyal to Mub'at, Balancesheet secretly developed an intelligence on par with its creator. After the destruction of the Bounty Hunters Guild, Balancesheet discovered how to disconnect itself from Mub'at's web without dying, and without alerting its creator. This allowed Balancesheet to begin its own rise to power, which started with an alliance with Prince Xizor. The Falleen saw great opportunity if he could eliminate Mub'at and have a level of control over Balancesheet, although the subnode believed it controlled its own destiny. In a daring move, Balancesheet allowed Xizor's forces to infiltrate Kud'ar Mub'at's web. After announcing its independence, Balancesheet ordered the destruction of the old web while it set about killing its creator. Xizor himself them provided a bulk transport ship for Balancesheet to use as a base of operations, and would have destroyed Fett if Balancesheet hadn not explained the hunter's continued usefulness. Balancesheet then stiffed Boba Fett of fifty percent of the bounty for Voss'on't, as "paymeny" for his life. Years later, Balancesheet learned of the connections between its creator, Prince Xizor, and Kuat of Kuat, and actually offered to help Boba Fett and Neelah put the pieces together. (MA, SLS, HM)

Balarik
this city is located on the southwestern coast of the continent of Forethought, on the planet Ropagi II. It is connected to Ebyl, Ropagis, and Torvane via monorail service. (TSK)

Balawan
this Imperial officer was assigned to create work assignments for the garrison in Hullis, located on the planet Halmad, shortly before the garrison there was infiltrated by Wraith Squadron. (IF)

Balcomb
this man was a Baron in the Tapani Sector of the galaxy, during the height of the New Order. It was said that he bore a striking resemblance to Shey Tapani himself. (PGT)

Balcrabbian
this plant is a hardy,second-generation plant often used in terraforming. It is planted after first-generation plants like crom have broken down the rocky soil into usable nutrients. (POT)

Baldavian Pocket Hare
this is a species of small, highly skittish rodent. Any cowardly individual was often referred to as a Baldavian pocket hare. (VP)

Balderdash
this is one of the main cities on the planet Adarlon. It is located quite close to the planet's primary spaceport. (GG6)

Balfed, Espan
this man was the heir to the Balfed family fortune. Unfortunately for Espan, the fortune amounted to virtually nothing, after the Balfeds were set up and framed by the House of Tagge during the Galactic Civil War. He was a Captain in the Imperial Navy, commander of a customs frigate at the height of the New Order, but even his contacts in the military couldn't reverse the decision against the Balfed family. (HR)

Balfour, Abran
this mousy man with close-set eyes and a perpetual five-o'clock shadow was the Imperial Moff in charge of Parmic Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He achieved the rank of Moff despite having no natural charisma or political savvy. Some believe that these traits were the reason he was assigned to Parmic Sector. He has consistently failed to with the respect of his subordinates, and busies himself with his personal space barge, the Lady Telura. (GG9)

Balfron
planet on which the High Stakes Casino is located. Lando Calrissian met one of the Tonnika Sisters there, and became infatuated with her. Unfortunately for Lando, "Bresenni" wanted nothing to do with him, since both sisters were working with Han Solo to pull a fast one on Lando. (MTS)

Balig
crew member of the Wild Kaarde, Balig served as a gunner. (TLC, VOF)

Balinak
this was the term used to describe a single member of the Balinaka species. (PG1)

Balinaka
an alien race native to the planet Garnib, the Balinaka are an expressive race with a rich artistic culture. Even after being subjugated by the Empire, they retained their artistic passions. They continued to hold the Wallarand, an annual, 50-day arts festival which was permitted by the Imperial garrison there because of the Balinaka's acceptance of the Empire. The average Balinaka stood four meters tall at the shoulder, and resembled a humanoid otter. They were discovered to be amphibious mammals who evolved thick fur and a layer of blubber to survive in the icy waters of the planet Garnib. They have sensitive eyes, and can see into a wider visual spectrum than most humanoids. Each Balinaka has both lungs and gills, allowing them to be able to breathe on land or in the water. A single member of this race is known as a Balinak. (PG1)

Balis-Baurgh System
this three-planet system is naturally shielded from sensors by its intense solar radiation and dense gas clouds. One of the planets in the system supports life, and its inhabitants built a space station as a symbol of their global peace. All nations helped, and created a wonderful monument to cooperation. However, the Empire quickly changed all that, usurping the station and turning it into an automated prison. (SWJ1)

Balka
this green leaves of this plant are often boiled and served with spices. (SWJ12)

Ball Creature
the spherical life-form native to the planet Duroon, the ball creatures were a race subjugated with the Corporate Sector Authority annexed their planet. Being docile herbivores, they could offer little resistance. These noctural creatures eventually appealed to the black market to obtain weapons, and Han Solo delivered a cargo of guns to them before going in search of Stars' End. (HSE)

Ballad of Shan'Gredor, The this piece of Jenet literature supposedly documented the conquest of the danchaf by Chirr't Ferr, who set a trap for the danchaf and then had his own warriors exterminate the creatures. (COG)

Ballarat
this New Republic Endurance-class fleet carrier was destroyed at the Battle of N'zoth. It was hit by a volley of Yevethan missiles, which ripped through the ship's shields and ignited its internal decks. The resulting chain of explosions blasted three squadrons of fighters out of its bays and into space. (TT)

Ballifore Figg
this Bith musician was known as "Balli the Horn" during his tenure as the leader horn player with Hyperspaze and the Jump Lanes. Ballifore was one of the band's top songwriters as well, pairing with Jardra to create some of the band's most popular - and most controversial - pieces. Much of Ballifore's music was inspired by the Alliance, for the band spent much of its early career touring in the Outer Rim. Ballifore met a number of Alliance agents and other rebels, and was touched by their raw emotion and drive. (HR)

Ballikite
this planet was thought to be the homeworld of the Rakririan race. Note that Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook*, as well as* Han Solo at Stars' End*, claim their homeworld to be Rakrir*. (AE)

Balliol
an Alliance pilot serving on one of the Alliance's CR90 corvettes. (RPG)

Ballistae
this ancient weapon slings arrows, much like a crossbow. The arrows are strong enough to pierce armor plating. (SWCP)

Ballow-Reese, Bendodi
this man was the oldest member of the ExGal-4 team on Belkadan, at the time of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. He was fifty-three, and a veteran of the Alliance. He was sent out with a group of ExGal-4 members to scout out a huge storm heading for the outpost, but they were unable to return because of the incredible ecological damage done by Carr's dweebit beetles. Realizing that they would all never make it back, Bendodi turned his oxygen pack over to Tee-ubo Doole and fled to die. When Luther De'Ono tried to follow him, he shot Luther before turning the blaster on himself. (VP)

Balluzikik
this Barabel was one of the bounty hunters who accompanied Crutag to Trinta, in an effort to capture a group of Alliance agents. Unfortunately, Balluzikik was one of the first hunters to be killed by one of Halagad Ventor's dreambeasts. (DOE)

Balmorra
an Imperial world responsible for the manufacture of many of the Empire's most destructive weapons, including the AT-ST and many of the Emperor's war droids. It was attacked by the group of Dark Jedi who tried to re-establish the Empire after the reborn Empire's death, but the Balmorrans repelled the Empire using the weapons they had built. The planet then became somewhat loyal to the New Republic, initiating trade with the government. When Sedriss rose to power, he forced the Balmorrans into an uneasy arms alliance following a battle between the various war machines produced on the planet. According to Rebellion, Balmorra is located in Sesswenna Sector. (DE1, DE2, REB)

Baloo
this vines grows among the waza trees on the planet Dar'Or. Several thousand years before the advent of the New Order, the Ri'Dar race strung nets of baloo vines between waza trees to develop small towns within the trees. The nets collected leaves and needles falling from the waza trees, over time collecting into thick mats of decomposing matter. The layers of humus have been used by the Ri'Dar to plant gardens in their aerial towns. (GG4)

Balor, Dirk
this Imperial Captain trapped Luke Skywalker in the Lapez System during the Galactic Civil War. He later employed the assassin cyborg Altin Wuho to capture Luke, which they failed to do on Lapez 3. (CSWDW)

Balrog, Clayton
Imperial Sergeant in charge of Spacetrooper Platoon 243-XT. (SWSB)

Balta-Trabaat
this small company built podracing engines and racers. (IG1)

Balthaz'
a creature native to the planet Th'irus, the balthaz' resembles a bantha in size and shape. They were domesticated by the Th'iruckai for use are pack animals and draughtbeasts. (GMS)

Balto
a native of the planet Kalarba, Balto worked for Baron Pitareeze. (DRO)

Balu, Predne
the assistant Security Officer of the Port of Mos Eisley, on Tatooine, just before the Battle of Yavin. He was a heavy-set human with black hair and eyes, and a bald, melon-like head. (TME)

Balved
a famous style of sculpture. (GG9)

Bama Vook
this Talz worked as a test pilot for Trinkatta Starships, in the years leading up to the Battle of Naboo. Boll Trinkatta assumed that Bama had been killed when Bartokk assassins working for Groodo the Hutt stole the droid-equipped starfighters that Trinkatta's corporation was building. In reality, Bama Vook had slaved the starfighters together and "stolen" them himself, in order to ensure that the Trade Federation didn't take possession of them. In order to better communicate, Bama Vook wore a voice translation unit on a thick collar around his neck. After taking the droid starships, Bama Vook disguised himself with an eyepatch, in hopes of escaping notice long enough to find the Jedi Knights who had come to Esseles. Qui-Gon Jinn soon realized that it was Bama Vook who had alerted Adi Gallia to the presence of the Trade Federation on Esseles, and the building of the droid starfighters. When he stole the starfighters, Bama Vook also obtained a prototype hyperdrive developed by the Neimoidians, presumably for use the starfighters. (E1A2)

Bamula Sector
this area of space was defended for generations by the Flamestrike Legion, until they were forcibly disbanded by the Empire. (SWJ8)

Ban Belos
this is the capital city of the planet Rabaan. (SWJ9)

Ban Papeega
this orange-feathered avian performed the interrogation of an Alliance pilot who survived the Battle of Yavin, revealing that Luke Skywalker had destroyed the first Death Star. Darth Vader executed Papeega, so that no other being would know of Luke's part in the destruction. (VQ)

Ban-Satir II
the planet on which Novanian Grog is produced. (WEG)

Banai, Rakir
this pirate and vigilante was believed to be Kitster's father, a secret that Kitster himself knew to be true but would never reveal. He was continually hunted by the Hutts, and lost his son and wife to a Hutt raiding party. Ranai later returned to Tatooine, after being employed by Jira to return Princess Arawynne and a group of Ghostlings to their homeworld of Datar. During the rescue, he was reunited with Kitster, although Kitster did not revealed his own identity to Rakir. Rakir then left Tatooine with the Ghostlings. (E1A5, E1A8)

Bancar
this planet is located in Rayter Sector. (TA)

Banche Tech
this droid developer was nationalized by the Empire and added to the Imperial Droid Corporation. (FOP)

Banda
a small, herbivorous creature. (TJP)

Bandara
known as the "sandbar dweller" in the Devaronian language, this beetle-like creature inhabited the rivers of Devaron. They were drift-feeders, gathering in huge swarms and resting on sandbars while feeding on the detritus that floats by. Seeing a swarm of bandaras on the river was considered good luck by Devaronian river pilots, since it warned them of shallow waters. During the mating season, male bandaras emit a coarse "singing" to attract potential mates, a drone which was intolerable by female Devaronians. They tried to wipe out the bandaras, but were unable to completely exterminate them. Male Devaronians, however, could tolerate the song of the bandaras, and were rumored to have employed mercenaries to help save the species. (COG)

Bandfill
a musical instrument. (TME)

Bandie
this race of humanoids was pressed into serivce as laborers. They are generally regarded as a tough stock without much intelligence, but are effective workers when given plenty of food and simple instructions. The Tervigs declared that they would sell the Bandies from their mutual homeworld of Tervissis, shortly before Leia Organa-Solo was kidnapped by Dzym and Seti Ashgad. (POT)

Bandigo
a species of vicious omnivore native to the area around Temptation Canyon on Sriluur. Bandigos resembled large, dog-like creatures with clawed limbs and wrinkled skin. They lived in the sand, and often ambushed their prey by hiding under a thin layer of sand until the prey got close enough to capture. These four-legged creatures let out long, sinister howls at night, and many historians believe that the ancient Weequay thought these howls were produced by the water nymphs which lived deep within Temptation Canyon. (SSR)

Bandits of Ggy-ynt
this pirate gang operated during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Bandomeer
this planet was at one time and agricultural world of rolling plains, until it was discovered that many valuable ores were hidden in its crust. Then, mining operations such as Offworld Mining took control, and reduced it to strip mines and industrial wastes. The planet was the homeworld of the Meerian race, who struggled to come to terms with the prosperity that cost them their natural beauty. Located in the Outer Rim Territories, Bandomeer is known for its high concentration of ionite, as well as the many predators that lurk in its wilderness. The planet's surface was roughly divided in half by a huge landmass and the Great Sea of Bandomeer. (RF)

Bandonia
the primary planet in the Bandonian System. (WBC)

Bandonian Plague
a virulent plague. (WG)

Bandor
1) this Imperial Moff who was placed in control of the planet Questal some three to four years before the Battle of Hoth, in an attempt to quell the population there. A ruggedly-handsome man with a muscular physique, Bandor worked his was up the ladder through bootlicking and treachery. He aspired to be Emperor Palpatine's rght-hand man, and it irked him that he couldn't control the Force. He served faithfully, and gladly assumed control of Questal. There were several factions, all of which were fighting over claims of the mineral Ardanium. The Emperor wanted to control the mining of ardanium, in an effort to bolster the construction of Super-class Star Destroyers, and Bandor was given control of the planet. He ruled with an iron fist, and installed several of the major criminals in positions of power. At the same time, Bandor was experimenting with the potential use of hurlothrumbic generators as weapons to use against the Alliance. The generator induced fear when activated, and this was translated by the locals has Bandor's use of the Dark Side. Bandor did nothing to dispute this, as it added to his power. He was apprehended by Alliance forces on the planet Questal before he could perfect the weapon. (GCQ)

2) this was the only major city found on the planet Bandomeer, and was thus the capital of the world. It was here that Offworld Mining Company as well as Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation had their bases of operation while mining ionite from the planet's crust. (DR)

Bandorian Colonies
these colonies were wiped out by an outbreak of the Candorian plague. The epidemic was contained before it reached beyond the colonies, and the plague was thought to have been eradicated. However, forty-six years later, the Empire unleashed it on Dentaal. (SWAJ)

Bane Malar
this mysterious bounty hunter, whose species is not known, wore a black pressure suit with a spherical black helmet. The helmet's visor is mirrored on the exterior, so as to completely hide Malar's physical appearance. Although he was an infrequent visitor to Jabba the Hutt's palace, he had nonetheless put plans in place to kill the crimelord and take control of his criminal empire. It was rumored that Malar was somewhat telepathic. (CCG7)

Banis Avenue
the site of an Imperial repair facility on the planet Dosha. (SWAJ)

Baniss Keeg
this Duro frequented the Mos Eisley cantina, ever on the lookout for a pilot needed deep-space training. He often worked with Ellors Madak as a scout for the Empire, and sometimes worked for the Corporate Sector Authority as a surveyor. (CCG, MTSE)

Banja Cake
this was a form of finger food favored by many celebrities, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (DH)

Banjeer
this Imperial Admiral served on the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He was one of the few who believed that Kir Kanos would eventually destroy the Council, in the wake of the death of Carnor Jax. Shortly after Burr Nolyds was assassinated, Banjeer was found dead in his home, the victim of a knife-wielding assassin. (CE2)

Bank of Aargauha
a Corporate Sector financial institution. (CSA)

Bank of the Core one of the original signatory sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority, the Bank of the Core is one of the galaxy's largest financial institutions. The Bank owns at least a majority interest in over 3,000 different banking corporations in and out of the Corporate Sector. They also mint most of the Authority's currency, and control over three-quarters of the loans issued in the Sector. (CSA)

Bann
this Dantari was one of Maga's closest friends and advisors. (GOF11)

Banna
this New Republic code slicer was also an average pilot. He washed out of several flight groups before becoming a candidate for Wraith Squadron. However, when he was caught modifying his scores in the central computer at Folor, he was expelled from consideration. (WS)

Banolt, Lirin
also known as Bruhas Drey, Ran Nammom, and Kier Dom, this conman often posed as an Imperial Procurement Officer, offering exclusive contracts in return to huge bribes. He worked for Sate Pestage, stealing antique art and weapons for the Imperial dignitary's personal collection. Pestage was forced to execute Banolt, when the conman threatened to blackmail him over the location of the Eidolon, during the last years of the New Order. When the New Republic discovered that Banolt had been killed, they discovered that his supposed Imperial position did in fact have some basis, as they found an Imperial holonet transceiver among his belongings. (XWBT)

Banoosh-Walores
this Senali clan was part of Meenon's family, on his sister's side. Meenon had charged then with bringing up Prince Leed, during his nine years on Senali. (SP)

Bansak, Albee
this elderly man served at the Estaria Central Starport as the chief technician. He was also a member of the local Alliance cell, and worked with Ela Harns to maintain a cache of supplies - hidden in the starport - for the Alliance. (HAS)

Bansche Tech
a major manufacturer of black-market assassin droid components. It was nationalized following the Battle of Yavin by Imperial officials. (SWAJ)

Banshee
this New Republic warship was destroyed at the Battle of N'zoth. (TT)

Bant Eerin
this ten-year-old Mon Calamari female was one of Obi-Wan Kenobi's best friends, during his training at the Jedi center on Coruscant. Obi-Wan remembered her silver eyes most of all. After Obi-Wan decided to remain on Melida/Daan and help The Young in their struggle against their elders, Bant blamed Qui-Gon Jinn for Obi-Wan's forsaking of the Jedi oath. Qui-Gon and Tahl later asked for Bant's help in searching the lake inside the Jedi Temple for a number of items and artifacts stolen by an unknown thief. Bant agreed to help. (RF, HP, UP)

Bantha
1) huge, elephant-like beasts with curving tusks, the Bantha is found on a great number of worlds with vastly different climates. The Bantha is as much at home being used as transport by the Sandpeople on Tatooine as it is in grassy plains and frozen tundra. The Bantha has been domesticated on most of these worlds, and is used for pulling heavy loads, transportation, and even as war beasts. The meat and hide of the Bantha are are much sought-after. While the origins of the Bantha are unknown, every world on which is exists claims to be its homeworld. Most banthas bred in captivity are trained as beasts of burden, and most of those are bred for desert environments. (SW, SWSB, DK)
2) this is a military slang term referring to an AT-AT walker. (SWJ9)
3) this was the nickname of a member of Vibroaxe Squadron. (IF)

Bantha Blaster
a green and pink alcoholic drink that fizzes and pops as it goes down your throat. (TJP)

Bantha Bottle
made popular at the Bantha Traxx establishment on Lianna, this canteen was filled with chilled vitawater and sold to those patrons who became parched while dancing. The canteen was resuable, so it made a perfect souvenir. (WSV)

Bantha Brakes
this was spacer's slang for a tractor beam. (SWJ13)

Bantha II Cargo Skiff
manufactured by Ubrickkian Industries, the Bantha II skiff is a sleek, pointed repulsorlift cargo platform. It requires a single pilot, and can transport up to 16 passengers. It can also carry 120 metric tons of cargo. It's maxmimum flight ceiling is 50 meters, and can cruise at speeds up to 250 kilometers an hour. It is an open-air skiff which is piloted from the rear. Jabba employed these kinds of skiffs when taking prisoners to the Sarlacc pit. (ROTJ, SWSB)

Bantha Rock
a natural rock formation located on Tatooine, Bantha Rock was named for the way it resembled a bantha when viewed from Mos Espa. (E1A8)

Bantha Traxx
located in the upper-class section of the planet Lianna, Bantha Traxx was established in the old Club Vortex building, and quickly established itself by gaining a wealthy and influential clientele. Owned by Yin Vocta, the Bantha Traxx contained a restaurant, bar, dance floor, and gift shop, all of which featured a desert motif located within traditional Liann architecture. The entrance to the establishment was well-marked, with a glowing neon bantha above the doorway. The desert motif was a nod to one of Vocta's favorite places, Tatooine, and lent itself well to the bantha theme of the restaurant. (WSV)

Bantha-blood Fizz
an alcoholic drink made from clarified bantha blood. (TJP)

Bantha*-class Assault Shuttle
this troop carrier and assault shuttle was one of the most welcomed ships ever added to the armada of the Alliance, and continued to gain popularity in the early years of the New Republic. Developed by Mon Calamari and Sullustan designers, the Bantha-class shuttle created to fly in behind a fighter screen and the take a beating while delivering ground troops into battle. It landed on a gimballed monopod, giving it a small footpit while allowing it to carry and delivery nearly thirty tons of troops and armed vehicles into a warzone. A group of turbolasers manufactured by Golan Arms stud the upper hull of the ship, providing heavy cover for the troops which disembark from it. The ship requires a living pilot, but the pilot is assisted by a droid brain, and many of the pilots often banter with the droid during missions. These pilots often refer to themselves as "bus drivers." (XWMR, HXW)

Bantha-456
this code was created by Anakin Solo, and was used to purchase the nanny droid TDL-3.5 from an online catalog. He had hoped to purchase the droid to help C-3PO, not realizing that he might get into trouble. The code was derived from the story The Little Lost Bantha Cub, a favorite of Anakin's. The code was discovered by C-3PO and Jaina and Jacen Solo when TDL-3.5 showed up to take over C-3PO's duties. (TNR)

Banthal Company
this company owns an orbital docking array near the planet Taanab, which usually handles the largest cargo ships. (SWAJ)

BanthaQuik!
this restaurant, found in Lumchugger's Hub on the planet Bescane, was a legitimate front for the operations of the forger Lucky Ordomire. Among the delicacies served here are the Tusken Special (bantha meat shish-kabobs), Calamaria Surprise (exosquidra poppets), Ithor Delight (scrambled ooglata eggs), the Rodian Platter (deeply-oiler cranker roots), and Corellia's Pride (liquid-extract fringe cake). (SWJ9)

Banthar
an Imperial freighter under the protection of the shuttle Krayt near Bonadan when it was attacked and destroyed by Alliance starfighters. (XW)

Banthine Sonic Drill
this tool is used by many mineral and ore prospectors to remove matrix and expose more valuable substances. (POT)

Banzon
a food source found on the planet M'haeli. (ROC)

Baobob, Mungo
a Mandan sent to Biitu to establish a trading post and a fuel-ore mining operation, he was a reckless adventurer whose family owned the Baobob Merchant Fleet. He owned R2-D2 and C-3PO after they were freed by Jann Tosh. (TGH)

Baobob Merchant Fleet
a starship transport company owned by the Baobob family, in the early days of the Empire. (TGH)

Baquor
this creature has a slimy, algae-like body. It inhabits the ponds of Glottal, and is a required element in Glottalphib ponds. (TNR)

Bar-Kooda
Bar-Kooda was a Koodan pirate that preyed upon Orko the H'uun. Gorga the Hutt offered Boba Fett the chance to hunt down and kill Bar-Kooda as part of a plot to win the hand of Orko's daughter, Anachro. Bar-Kooda had a muscular humanoid body, but his head was a huge, smooth bulb with protruding eyes and a wide, sharp-toothed mouth. He was known to eat his enemies. Bar-Kooda's left arm was refitted with a cybernetic prosthesis. Boba Fett used the services of Wim Magwit to infiltrate Bar-Kooda's pirate ship, the Bloodstar, and apprehended the pirate with the help of Magwit's mystical hoop, a short-range matter transmitter. Boba Fett captured Bar-Kooda and returned the body to Gorga, who served the pirate's body up as a dinner for Orko. Bar-Kooda's older brother, Ry-Kooda, attempted to exact revenge on the two Hutts, but Boba Fett intervened and killed him, too. (BF)

Bara
this wraith was one of the unique organisms that inhabit the world of Jellyfish Cove. She, like all of her race, is mobile and can prowl for prey in an ethereal form. However, she could not exist in ethereal form in the presence of sunlight, which caused them to solidify into statue-like images of themselves. Bara nearly overcame the problem when she first encountered Garve. She tried to attack him during a thick fog, but shafts of sunlight kept making her solid. Garve escaped, but only until Bara discovered that the Imperial uniforms left on Jellyfish Cove by her other victims could wrap her in sunlight-blocking material from head to foot. She dressed as an Imperial officer and gained admittance to Garve's base. When it became dark, she revealed her true form and again nearly killed Garve, but he was once again saved by sunlight which streamed through the windows. (TMEC)

Barab
the red dwarf star that is the primary sun to Barab I. (GG4)

Barab I
homeworld of the Barabels, it is very near to its primary star, Barab. Barab I orbits Barab at less than 125 million kilometers. Thus, its surface is constantly being bombarded by all sorts of radiation. This, coupled with the intense heat from the star, causes the planet's water to quickly evaporate, creating a deadly, humid surface environment. The Barabels have adapted by living in the caves the riddle the planet. The average day on Barab I lasts about 60 standard hours. It is interesting that all life on Barab I is cold-blooded. (GG4, DFR, DFRSB)

Barabel
this bipedal race of reptiloids is covered in black scales much like fingernails. Known for their hunting and tracking abilities, Barabels have heavy claws and sharp, needle-like teeth. They are a communal race, with separate groups dominated by a pack leader. Their aggression is well-known, but they are also extremely loyal to their mates and parents. They are especially fond of fighting with their nearby neighbors, the Verpine, and often captured Verpine and gave their body parts to the Kubaz. Being a moral race by nature, they have a deep respect for the Jedi Knights. (DFR, DA, DFRSB, GG4)

Barabel Fruit
this large, black-skinned fruit was very tasty. (RF)

Barabel Wars
a civil war on Barab I over choice hunting grounds, it was stopped by a group of nearby Jedi Knights. (DFR)

Baraboo
this planet is the site of the Institute for Sentient Studies. (BTS)

Barada
1) this Klatooinan was the leader of Jabba the Hutt's repulsorpool on the planet Tatooine, just prior to the crimelord's death. He had been badly scarred and disfigured on his homeworld before being sold to Jabba. The Star Wars Customizable Card Game indicates that Barada was won by Jabba in a sabacc match. It was Barada who discovered the body of Ak-Buz in the palace scrap heap. He also assisted in watching over Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Chewbacca when Jabba brought the to the Pit of Carkoon. Unfortunately for Barada, he was one of the first of Jabba's men to fall into the Sarlacc pit when Luke's plan for escape went into action. (ROTJ, TJP, EGC, CCG7)
2) another name for the Klatooinan race, used because so many Klatooinan males have been named after Barada M'Beg. (TOJ, GG12)

Barada M'Beg
this famous Klatooinan is perhaps the most revered scholar and leader in Klatooinan history. It was M'Beg who represented the Klatooinans in their ancient negotiations with the Hutts, prior to the war with Xim the Despot more than 25,000 years before the rise of the New Order. M'Beg is so well-revered that many Klatooinans name their male sons after him. This has led some other races to refer to the Klatooinans as Baradas. (GG12)

Baradas II
a planet. (GG10)

Baradis School of Technology
this school, located on Jarvanam, was actually a front for the training of Tenloss Syndicate criminals. Any Tenloss member who needed specific criminal skills was sent to Baradis for formal training. (GG11)

Baradium
a powerful but unstable synthetic element, baradium is used in thermal detonators. When ignited, the baradium generates a particle field around the exploding particles which are being emitted from the detonator. Most thermal detonators can generate a five-meter sphere; this means that the baradium is capable of incinerating everything inside a five-meter diameter sphere centered on its source. Everything outside the sphere is undamaged, as the sphere will eventually collapse when the baradium is spent. (ISB)

Baraduk
this Barabel was captured for use as an Imperial slave, but escaped from the compound on Herios IV. Before he left, Baraduk stole a cache of weapons from the Imperial armory, an act which earned him the wrath of Herios' Governor. However, Baraduk evaded capture until the governor offered him amnesty to simply leave the planet - an offer prompted by the loss of fifteen Imperial soldiers who were killed chasing Baraduk. The Barabel agreed, and left Herios IV with all the weapons he could carry. He was hunted by Galasett for many years, until he defeated the Kerestian in single combat. The two maintained a blood feud over the years. (GG10)

Baragwin
a race of hunch-backed, bipedal saurians, the Baragwin have spread throughout the galaxy. They have large heads which are as wide as their shoudlers, and thick, muscular necks. They have an incredible sense of smell, and can even determine their quarry's emotional state from the various pheromones exuded. Their homeworld has been lost over the millennia, and communities of Baragwin have evolved distinct emotional and cultural differences. Being widely scattered, they simply adopted the various technologies found throughout the galaxy, and have become knowledgeable in their uses. They have developed weapons and tools that are useable in their three-fingered hands. (GG12)

Barak, Koth
a crewmember of the escort cruiser Adamantine, Koth Barak was the first to die from the Death Seed plague unleashed by Dzym and Seti Ashgad. (POT)

Baraka
a species of tree found on the planet Garos IV. (SWAJ)

Barakas, Brakka
this human was an Elder from the planet New Brigia. He was captured by the Yevethans and forced to record a message to the New Republic. Tal Fraan devised the scheme to counteract the blockade of Preza, using perjured pleas for the New Republic to refrain from firing on Yevethan vessels to preserve the lives of prisoners. The plan worked, and the Yevethans were able to break the blockade. (SOL)

Baralou
1) this is the primary planet in the Baralou System. It is a warm world covered with oceans dotted with jungle islands and rocky outcroppings. It is the homeworld of the Krikthasi and Multopos races. Mostly ignored by the Empire, the Alliance kept a presence on Baralou to maintain a trade agreement which allowed them to obtain some of the planet's abundant algae for food. Baralou was also known for the abundance of gemstones found in its waters, inlcuding sasho gems, kuggerags, and jasse hearts. It is the first planet in the system, and has a day which lasts 22 standard hours. Its year lasts 295 local days. (PG1)
2) this yellow star is the primary star in the Baralou System. (PG1)

Baran
this man served as the chief Intelligence officer at the Alliance's Eyrie Base. He held the rank of Commander. He was not well-respected among the starfighter pilots assigned to the base, who often referred to him as "Barren-Brain" behind his back. (SWJ8)

Baranar, Haaken
this huge man was an independent scout and free trader during the early years of Palpatine's New Order. About 10 years before the Battle of Yavin, Baranar was mauled by a snow demon during a stop-over on the planet Toola. He was taken to the Great Hoary Mastmot Trading Station, and while he recovered the owner - a Wookiee named Spetbecca - was captured by bounty hunters. Haaken was unconscious at the time, and felt that he owed the Wookiee a debt for not helping out. Thus, Haaken remained on Toola to manage the Trading Station in the hopes that Spetbecca would return. (SWJ10)

Barani, Neil
this stocky, middle-aged man was the co-owner and chief engineer of the Yen-2 mining colony. He was known as a string leader, with fair principles and a guiding vision. When he discovered that the Verde Asteroid Field was rich in deposits of doonium, he decided to strike a deal with the Empire and gain his company a huge profit. Barani negotiated a deal with Major Stipling, then also provided Stipling with information about Sprax's connections to Jatayus Outbound, Xizor Transport Systems, and Black Sun. However, Limna Yith had been employed by Sprax to eliminate Barani's little rebellion, and managed to obtain a cop of the information, which became known as the Barani List. Limna Yith then destroyed the Yen-2 outpost. Barani hid in the abandoned station, hoping to avoid the wrath of Black Sun and/or the Empire. Barani later revealed that he had been forced by the vigo Green to set up Sprax for a fall at the hands of the Empire. Green had promised Barani a huge payment as long as he supplied the Barani List to the Empire. After failing to sell the list and then being rediscovered on Yen-2, Barani fled to the surface of the asteroid and allowed himself to die in the airless environment. (SSR)

Barani List
this was the codename of the datafile maintained by Sprax and Millicent, detailing the involvement of Sprax's dealings with Neil Barani and the Yen-2 mining outpost. It also contained the names of the mercenary teams sent out by Xizor and Sprax to recover Limna Yith. Neil Barani had be provided with the names by the Black Sun vigo Green, who hoped that Barani would sell it to the Empire and bring down Sprax's operation along the Sisar Run. After changing hands several times, the list was recovered by Sprax's mercenaries on Yen-2. Contained in the list was a great deal of false information created by Green and meant to destroy Barani, vigo Sprax, and Ujin Voli. There was also a great deal of misinformation meant to make anyone who read the document believe it was false. (SSR)

Barancar Port
this starport was known for its disgusting sewers and general state of disrepair. (SWJ8)

Baranda
this eel-like crreature was native to the planet Procopia. It was hunted for sport by the nobles of the Tapani Sector. (PGT)

Barbed Flyer
this Ithorian avian was know for its long, spiked tail. (OS)

Barclo
this man was a Lieutenant in the Darkknell Defense Agency, and served under Colonel Nyroska. He didn't agree with Nyroska's plans to profit from recovering the plans to the first Death Star from Moranda Savich, but when Ysanne Isard began messing with the computer systems of the Defense Agency, he began to work with Nyroska's plans. (TFNR)

Barcola
this isolated moon is a barren, desolate rock incapable of supporting life. However, it served as an Alliance research and development site for new hyperdrive technology during the Galactic Civil War, under the direction of Charls Ginsbrack. The new hyperdrive generated strange, hyperdimensional whirlpools that randomly took organic and inorganic items with it, including several of Ginsbrack's scientists. Ginsbrack himself was sucked out of existence, and the project was abandoned. (GMS)

Barderia
this boxy, Corellian-built transport ship was based on the planet Halmad, and ran a regular three-way route through the system. Around 100 meters in length, it had an exemplary record for avoiding pirates, until it was targetted by Wraith Squadron. After getting it's navigator drunk and learning of its flight plans, the Wraiths - acting as the pirate group known as the Hawk-bats - intercepted and boarded the ship not once but twice, in a seemingly adroit pari of ambushes. Its owner and Captain, a man named Rhanken, was at a loss to explain his sudden run of bad luck. (IF)

Bardo
a short, stocky human assigned by Olag Greck to guard the shipment of droids which contained C-3PO, R2-D2, and IG-88. (DRO)

Bardrin, Ja
this large man was the leader of the Bardrin Group, shortly after the Battle of Endor. He had his own daughter, Sansia, kidnapped in order to ensure his power. He then commandeered the crew of the Wild Karrde and ordered Mara Jade to "rescue" her from slavery at the hands of Chay Praysh. In reality, he merely wanted Sansia's ship, the Winning Gamble, recovered in order to maintain control of its highly-modified systems. Also, he had programmed the ship's sensors to monitor Praysh's alace defenses, and planned to use the information to storm the Drach'nam's palace on his own time. He then planned to sell the Winning Gamble to Praysh in return for some highly-secret weapons prototypes the Drach'nam's pirates had stolen from the Uoti Corporate. He also ensured that the Mrahash of Kvabja would deny ever sending a floater globe to Praysh, despite the fact that he sent one with Mara as a gift to Praysh. All these plans, he felt, would ensure that he could obtain the Uoti prototypes. However, as soon as Karrde discovered that his crew had been taken, he immediately rounded up his forces and stormed Bardrin's own palace. The Bardrin Group's guards were no match for Karrde's forces, and quickly surrendered the palace. After Mara and Sansia were freed, Karrde took the sensor data that Bardrin had taken on Praysh's palace and sent it to Luke Skywalker, in the hope that the New Republic would use it to storm the fortress and rescue the enslaved women. Sansia remained with her father, ensuring Karrde that she would punish him in her own way.(TFNR)

Bardrin, Sansia
this young woman was the daughter of Ja Bardrin. Bardrin had her kidnapped in order to remove her from a position of power within the Bardrin Group. She had been flying in the Winning Gamble, and her father desparately wanted the ship returned because of its highly-enhanced systems. Sansia was then sold into slavery to Chay Praysh. She was glad to discover that Mara Jade had flown to Torpris to rescue her, but when she learned that her father had hired Mara, she became dismayed that Mara only wanted the ship. When Mara's plans began to come together, Sansia assisted any way she could. Once they made it to the Winning Gamble, Sansia used its weapons to eliminate a group of Drach'nam guards and enable Mara to escape with her. After returning to her father's fortress, Sansia learned the true intentions behind her capture. She was so enraged that she gave ownership of the Winning Gamble to Mara Jade, and provided the sensor data it collected on Torpris to Talon Karrde. She then arranged to punish her father for his duplicity. (TFNR)

Bardrin Group
this marketing corporation maintained a long-standing rivalry with the Uoti Corporate, with each trying to outdo the other in the sales of weapons and ship systems in their home sector. It was run by Ja Bardrin shortly after the Battle of Endor. (TFNR)

Bare Forest
located on the planet Zelos II, this grove of conifer trees grew at the edge of the Valley of Umbra. Much of the valley was continually in shadow and covered with dense fog. It was in the valley that the Empire set up defensive platforms to guard their garrison base from discovery. The New Republic's Red Team Five attempted to break through the platforms and infiltrate the garrison, but an overeager leader caused them to launch their assault too quickly. The Republic's forced were nearly wiped out, and only Jai Raventhorn survived to be captured. (TFNR)

Barezz, Mar
an Imperial Security Bureau agent working on Bothan's Planet, he intercepted Tiree there but could not capture him. He continued to try and locate Tiree, in what could best be described as an obsession. (RPG, ISB)

Bargainer
this was the Qom Jha name for the leader of a nesting. The Qom Qae also used this term, which was mainly given to the eldest member of the nesting. (VOF)

Barhu
first planet in the Churba system, it is a ball of molten rock. (DFRSB)

Bari
the blue star that is primary to the planet Baros. (GG4)

Barich
this native of the planet Wakeelmui was an employee of Seinar Fleet Systems' missile division when he decided to join the Imperial armed forces. He trained as a stormtrooper, but was transferred to scout trooper training when he showed more aptitude in that area. He eventually became one of the Empire's best speederbike pilots, and served with the Imperial garrison on the forest moon of Endor, during the construction of the second Death Star. Barich dreamed of flying a starfighgter and of joining the 181st Imperial Fighter Group. However, during the speederbike chase with Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa, Barich was killed when he looked behind him to see where his pursuit was. When he turned around, he was unable to avoid hitting a huge stump and crashing. (CCG10)

Barimoq Crater
located on the planet Tasariq, this was the largest of the impact craters left behind centuries ago by a meteor shower. The modern Tasari clans meet in the crater twice a year to set policies for dealing with offworlders and revising their own legal code. Barimoq Crater was considered the cermonial capital of the planet. (AE)

Barison
Airen Cracken had to rig up a restraining bolt deactivator to free his droid Vee Gee from the natives of this water world. (CFG)

Baritha
a Dathomir witch of the Nightsisters clan, she has a gift for "forcing minds" (coersion). She was exiled from the Singing Mountain clan with Gethzerion after their attempt to assassinate Augwynne was thwarted by Kara'teel. It was Baritha who helped Gethzerion escape the immediate wrath of the clan, and she was later rewarded by Gethzerion with a place at the head of the Nightsisters clan. When the two clans brought their feud to a conclusion - shortly after Han Solo and Leia Organa arrived on Dathomir - Baritha disappeared in the battle and was never seen again. (CPL, CTD)

Barium Frizz
an alcoholic concotion created by Wuher. (TME)

Barjas, Dolk
this starship Captain worked for the Obroan Institute, and was in command of the exploration vessel Penga Rift. (TT)

Barkhesh
a jungle planet which is home to a unique microorganism which is deadly to insects but harmless to higher forms of life. The organism is used by scouting teams to keep insects away, but is only sold on Barkhesh. This planet was known for its resistance of the New Order. (SWAJ, RSG)

Barkhimkh
this Noghri served as one of Leia Organa-Solo's bodyguards on her trip to the Bothan homeworld of Bothawui, during her investigation of the Bothan financial situation during the Caamas Incident. (SOP)

Barlaz
a Corellian game. (BTS)

Barloz*-class Freighter
this Corellian Engineering Corporation freighter measured 41 meters in length, and could transport up to 120 metric tons of cargo. The Barloz was one of the most popular freighters of the Old Republic, until CEC introduced the YT-series and ushered in the modern era of freigher design. It was manned by a crew of two, with one gunner and up to four passengers. It was armed with single forward-firing laser cannon. Propulsion was provided by the NovaQuad-D system, a precursor to the drives used on the YT series. (TTSB, SS)

Barma Sector
this sector contains one of the larest concentrations of megacorporations found in the galaxy. (SWJ8)

Barnaba
this planet, the primary world of House Barnaba, was located in Tapani Sector. Its steep mountains formed deep, fertile valleys, and Barnaba was considered the breadbasket for much of Tapani Sector. Many of the noble families of House Barnaba have immense, floating castles that allow them to farm the land without having to give up space for a residence. (PGT)

Barnax
this brotherhood of warriors was known for their exquisite weaponry, including the Twenchok foil. (AIR)

Barnley
a dirty, disgusting human male on Corellia, Barnley was a member of the Human League. A large man, Barnley spotted Han Solo in the midst of a Human League demonstration just prior to the Corellian Trade Summit, and brought him to the League's jail for questioning. (AC)

Baroli
a temperate planet. (HTSB)

Baron's Hed
this once-beautiful city, located on Sulon, was surrounded a wondrous palace. After the Empire took control of Sulon, they turned Baron's Hed into their base of operations. The palace was cleaned out and turned into an operations center. After Jerec killed Morgan Katarn and obtained the location of the Valley of the Jedi, he spent a short amount of time in Baron's Hed, piecing together the ceiling tiles from Morgan Katarn's house before leaving for the Valley. (DF2)

Baron-Administrator
this was the title given to the president and leader of Cloud City and its government. Ecclessis Figg decreed that the position would be passed to the incumbent Administrator's choice. If the incumbent was unable to choose, the next Administrator would be voted into office by the members of the Exex and the Parliament of Guilds. (GG2)

Baronos Sector
an area of the Colonies region of the galaxy. (GG10)

Baroo
1) this was the primary city of the Majan people, located on the planet Baroonda. Baroo was located on the coast of the planet's largest continent, which was also called Baroo, and encircled the ancient Nazwa ruins. (RAC)
2) this was the name of the largest continent of the planet Baroonda. (RAC)

Baroo Coast Course
this was one of several podraces that were sanctioned by the pro circuit, and wound through the coastal areas of the Baroo continent of the planet Baroonda, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Baroo Heads
this was the name given to the various statues located along the coastline of Baroo, on the planet Baroonda. The huge carved heads stand in vigilant worship of the huge volcano that is located in the bay near Baroo city. (RAC)

Baroonda
this planet is a swamp world, known to planetologists for its active volcanoes. The planet's native race, the Majan, live in the ruins of their ancestors' temples, deep in the swamps. (RAC)

Baros
this planet is the homeworld of the Brubb race. It is as large, arid world with a strong gravity (about 2.9 times standard). Its surface suffers from intense wind storms, and is nearly devoid of plant life because of the lack of organic nutrients in the soil. The average year on Baros lasts 567 standard days. (GG4)

Barosa Warren
this Morellian male was credited with founding the Galactic Outdoor Survival School. A former Morellian Enforcer, it was believed that Barosa Warren was the last true Morellian in the galaxy, at the time of the Battle of Yavin. All his descendents were half-Morellian and half-human, as both of his wives were humans from Coruscant. After retiring from hisrole as an Enforcer, Barosa served the Old Republic as a scout. After serving the Old Republic, Barosa again retired, this time at the age of 118, to OM813, where he set to work on GOSS. Over the next forty years, Barosa devoted his life to getting OM813 ready to house the survivalist facility. (AIR)

Baroule, Sehn
the director of Premier Provisions, Baroule was also a supporter of the Alliance. (SN)

Barpine
this planet served as the site of Lieutenant Lon Donell's shipyards, during the early years of the New Republic. (WBC)

Barquin D'an
this Bith was the older brother of the famous Figrin D'an, and was a Kloo horn player for the Max Rebo Band. He was always bitterly jealous of his younger brother, because Figrin's music became extremely popular while Barquin's own career wallowed in mediocrity. His musica compositions were often considered excellent, but his singing and playing were regarded as average. Barquin was known as a minor player, even though he performed as an opening act for Red Shift Limit, Starburst, and Annadale Fayde over his career. He travelled to Tatooine in the hope of playing with Figrin, only to find that they were unavailable. Instead, Barquin signed on to help the Max Rebo Band play at Jabbe the Hutt's palace. After Jabba had Oola killed for resisting his desires, Barquin fled the palace as fast as he could. (RJSE, MTSE)

Barrel-scrub
a plant native to the deserts of Kamar. (HSR)

Barri
this species of unusual creature was found in asteroid belts across the galaxy. Believed to be somewhat intelligent, barri were able to survive in the hard vacuum of interstellar space. Many xenobiologists agreed that barri were intelligent enough to grasp the complexities of astrogation, since the migrations of barri were observed to be directed, rather than haphazard. It was believed that barri originated on a planet in Wild Space, and took to the stars to find more food. They subsist by licking the asteroids on which they ride, using acidic saliva and other excretions to break down the rock into digestible material. These four-meter-long creatures resemble a thick slug with four large, taloned feet at one end and their heads at the other. Many deep-space pilots have discovered that thye could form a bond with a particular barri, during which time the barri attaches itself to the ship for a ride. In return, the barri subconciously communicates with the ship’s navigator and provides assistance in astrogation. This relationship was particularly noticeable among Gotal and Ugor pilots. (COG)

Barricade, The
this pirate tactic was one of the oldest known methods for stopping a ship in space. The pirate fleet would use tractor beams to move a large asteroid or other debris into the realspace location of a hyperspace travel route. The body would then create a mass shadow in hyperspace, forcing the target ship's hyperdrive to shut down and revert the ship to realspace. Once the target was in realspace, the pirates attacked at will while the target ship's command crew was still disoriented after being dragged out of hyperspace before their destination. (PP)

Barris, Mosh
this Imperial military prefect was a subordinate of Governor Tadrin. Tadrin named Barris the ruler of Garqi while he was off-planet, which happened more and more often after the Emperor's death at Endor. Corran Horn was able to infiltrate himself into Barris' cabinet as Eamon Yzalli, working as one of Barris' aides. In this position, Horn was able to liberate many prisoners from the Garqi facility, including Lai Nootka and Dynba Tesc, and implicate Barris as a traitor to the Empire. (TFE, KT)

Barrkli
an alien species. (TFNR)

Barrog, Williar
this Imperial Captain commanded the cruiser Kana’s Steel during the Galactic Civil War. His ship was responsible for patrolling and protecting the area near the planet Narg, in preparation for the arrival of Moff Nile Owen during the attempted coup by the Farool brothers. (TA)

Barrows, The
this section of the planet Trulalis is known as “the graveyard,” for it is filled with the tombs and mausoleums of the dead. It was here that Adalric Brandl retreated after escaping Imperial control, hoping to make up for lost time with his son, Jaalib. (SWJ8)

Barry
this young, pale-skinned human worked as a delivery and pickup driver for Tikiman. A lazy youth without much ambition, Barry nevertheless works hard for the old bartender. (TA)

Barse
an Imperial Army Lieutenant, subordinate to General Covell. He was in charge of securing Kaarde's base on Myrkr. (DFR)

Barseg
this planet maintained control over the planet Lianna until the Old Republic Senate took the industrial world under its own jurisdiction. (ML)

Barsky
this swoop rider served Crev Bombassa as a hired hand and armed thug on the planet Pembric II. (VOF)

Barth
this New Republic Navy Lieutenant served under Captain Sreas aboard the shuttle Tampion. He was captured when the Yevetha ambushed the shuttle, in an attempt to capture Han Solo. Barth was kept alive, although Sreas was killed. Barth and Solo were held in a Yevethan prison for several days, until Nil Spaar brought them out. He demanded that Solo offer his wife's promise to yield to the Yevetha, on the threat of his life. Solo refused, and Spaar killed Barth to show that he would stop at nothing to control the Koornacht Cluster. (SOL, TT)

Barthierum
this ore was mined by prisoners of the Imperial prison facility on Rordak. (PG1)

Bartleton
this Obroan Institute scientist and explorer discovered the existence of the Foran Tutha star probe. Unfortunately, a member of his team inadvertently set off a fire inside the probe, destroying it before the probe could be returned to Obroa-skai for examination. (TT)

Bartokk
these deadly assassins were hired by Ambassador Yfra to kill the Solo children and Tenel Ka on Hapes. They are tall, humanoid insects which have a hive mind, and always travel in groups of fifteen in order to maintain their intelligence level. They are covered with a hard, black carapace, and have two legs, four arms, and razor-edged claws. Prior to the rise of Emperor Palpatine, the Bartokks designed and built their own starships, including a six-winged starfighter and spike-hulled freighter. (L, E1A1, E1A2)

Bartru and the Blaster Rays
this Celanon-based musical group was fronted by a Devaronian singer. Many beings couldn't tell their music from the dying wails of several alien species. (POC)

Barukka
a Singing Mountain sister who joined the Nightsisters, Barukka was the eldest daughter of the Clan Mother Augwynne. Unfortunately for Augwynne, Barukka was seduced by the dark spells performed by the Nightsisters and was exiled from the clan. During the Imperial Warlord Zsinj's occupation of Dathomir, she lived by herself as one of the forsaken, but petitioned to get back into the Singing Mountain clan. She had the power to manipulate the earth to her will. (CPL, CTD)

Barum
this Hutt word translates to "little princess." The emphasis is on the second syllable. (POT)

Barve
a six-legged creature. A famous joke involves a five-legged barve - one had been amputated - being discovered by a sentient named JoJo. The barve's owner tells JoJo that the barve can talk, drive a speeder, and babysit his children. When JoJo asks why one of its legs has been amputated, the owner replies "Well, you can't eat a barve like that all at once." (TJP)

Barzon, Carl
this man was a professor at the University of Garos, and was also one of the leaders of the resistance on the planet Garos IV. Barzon was one of the original founders of the Committee of Seven for Garosian Unification. Much of his professional career was spent investigating the natural cloaking abilities of the ore hibridium. Barzon was born on Sundari, but moved to Garos IV to further his education, and stayed on to continue teaching. (SWJ1)

Bas
this Imperial Colonel served under Admiral Pellaeon on the Chimaera during the time when Pellaeon tried to neogitiate a peace treaty with the New Republic. Bas was in charge of coordinating starfighter launch and landing. He had clawed his way up through the ranks, from a lowly TIE Fighter pilot to his position of flight commander, although his rough nature contrasted sharply with the cultured bearing of most other officers. (SOP, VOF)

Basarais
this author created many childrens' poems, including some counting rhymes. (SOL)

Basbakahn
this Noghri bodyguard accompanied Leia Organa Solo to Bastion, during her attempt to gain the assistance of Gilead Pellaeon in battling the Yuuzhan Vong. Basbakahn accompanied Leia to Duro, during the New Republic's attempt to restore the natural ecosystem of the planet's surface. When the Yuuzhan Vong attacked the planet, Basbakahn was taken prisoner by the alien invaders. (DTR, BP)

Bascko
this hyperactive Verpine owned Bascko's Droid Repair shop, located in the resort city of Le Yer on Abregado-Rae. (ND)

Bascko's Droid Repair
this repair and maintenance shop was located in the resort area of Le Yer, on Abregado-Rae. It was owned by the Verpine Bascko during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Bascome
this native Thyferran was Erisi Dlarit's wingman as part of the Thyferran Home Defense Corps. He accompanied her on the raid that destroyed the settlement on Halanit. (BW)

Base Delta Zero
Imperial code name for a military operation whose goal is the complete desstruction of all the target's "assets of production," including factories, arable land, sentient life, and droids. (ISB)

Base One
the callsign for the Alliance base on Yavin 4 during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Basic
the standard language spoken throughout the galaxy. (SW, CPL)

Basil
an inhabitant of Hosk Station, Basil was the first to mistake C-3PO's repaired cranium as the mark of the assassin droid, C-3PX. (DRO)

Basilisk
this planet was the site of the Battle of Basilisk, where the Jedi Master Sidrona Diath was killed. (DLS)

Basilisk War Droid
developed by the ancient Mandalore warriors, these automated attack ships were used to conquer star systems. The Basilisk droids were bulbous, insectile war machines that could operate on their own or with the help of a Mandalorian warrior. The Mandalorians called the war mounts. (TSW)

Basilisk
one of the four Star Destroyers stationed at the Maw Installation by Grand Moff Tarkin, it was nearly destroyed when Daala sent her 4 Star Destroyers after the stolen Sun Crusher. Following the destruction of the Hydra, Han and Kyp took the superweapon through the Maw, and Daala followed. They emerged into the firefight between the Kessel Navy and Luke and Lando in the Millennium Falcon. A Loronar cruiser, badly damaged and burning already, crashed into the Basilisk, knocking out many shipboard systems and causing a hull breach. The ship was repaired while Daala was biding her time in the Cauldron Nebula. (JS, DA)

Basin-pod
this freshwater plant grows on the surface of lakes on the planet Hirsi. It is a primary source of food for the Qwohog race. (GG12)

Baskarn
this inhospitable jungle world is located in the Outer Rim. This is the homeworld of the Yrashu race. It was also the site of an Alliance starfighter base, which was used as a point to make guerilla runs into Imperial territoriy. (SWAJ)

Baskol Yeersim
this Gran was a member of the Malastare delegation to the Old Republic Senate, during the period surrounding the Battle of Naboo. He was part of the group supporting Aks Moe and Ainlee Teem during the ouster of Chancellor Valorum. (IG1)

Baslar
this was the smallest of the four primary continents found on the planet Essowyn. (PG1)

Bass Viol
a musical instrument used in most jizz bands, the bass viol produced a deep, resonating sound. (TFNR)

Bassa Bridge
this was one of the original bridges built in the city of Theed, on Naboo, to span the Solleu River. It aged poorly, and was not safe for large amounts of traffic. The Naboo built Pergola's Bridge just upstream, to take some of the strain off the bridge. (IWE1)

Bassel Sea Salt
this is a strong form of salt-like spice. (SA1)

Bast
this Imperial Naval Chief was assigned as an aide to Grand Moff Tarkin aboard the first Death Star. Bast was well-known for his ability to correctly estimate an enemy's capabilities, something he learned while hunting big game as a youth. It was Bast who notified Tarkin of the threat posed to the Death Star by the Alliance snubfighters. (CCG)

Bast Castle
located on the planet Vjun, Bast Castle was built as Darth Vader's personal retreat during the Galactic Civil War. After the Battle of Endor, the reborn Emperor Palpatine used the castle as the headquarters for his Dark Jedi. Sedriss was the first to occupy it, and erected a large, black statue of Vader in one of the castle's anterooms. (DE2)

Bastaska
this crystalline spear is the traditional weapon of the Gutretee race. (IC)

Bastion
this planet, the capital world of the Bastion System and Braxant Sector, was the political heart of the Empire in the dark times following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Its true name is a secret kept well-hidden by the Empire. It was controlled by Moff Disra, who retained control during the rise in power of the New Republic. It was one Bastion that the surviving Moffs met with Admiral Pellaeon to discuss a possible peace treaty with the Republic. (SOP)

Bastion
1) this Imperial fuel tanker made a regular run from the planet Halmad. It was destroyed when the Hawk-bat pirates attacked the Imperial garrison in Hullis. (IF)
2) the ancient Jedi Master Chamma used this ship to travel to Athiss with three other Jedi, to investigate a distress signal they received. (TOJC)
3) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer served as the flagship for the fleet commanded by Captain Brannij. (KR)

Bastion Military Control
this was the primary nerve center of the Empire, during the era in which the Imperial capital was on the planet Bastion. All military communications and other data passed through the Control center. (VOF)

Bastra, Gil
this acquaintence of Kirtan Loor once ridiculed Loor for using skirtopanol on an Alliance captive, even though the prisoner was known to have used lotiramine. Bastra was a member of the Corellian Security agency at the time, and was in charge of assigning Imperial Intelligence agents to Loor and other operatives. Bastra's low opinion of Loor led him to assign the worst agents to assist Loor, a fact that was not lost upon Loor. Before that, Bastra was a business partner with Corran Horn's father. He worked with Corran, Iella and Diric Wessiri, and a number of other Alliance supporters. When he needed to hide them from Imperial eyes, Bastra and Corran Horn created false identification records for a group of smugglers. Then, in a staged confrontation, Bastra accused Horn of killing the smugglers in cold blood. Thus, they all managed to flee Imperial control. When Bastra defected, he led Loor on a merry goosechase across the galaxy, feeding Loor enough clues to keep him on Bastra's trail. This suited Bastra fine, because it drew Loor away from the locations of the others in his group. When Loor finally captured Bastra, he savagely interrogated him but got no information. Bastra finally died under the strain of the interrogation. (XWN)

Basz Maliyu
this Mon Calamari smuggler was believed to have been the traitor who betrayed the Syvris shadowport's location to the Empire. It was believed that Basz was once an Imperial slave, and many of his rivals attributed his ease with Imperial officers to this story. Others have said that he made friends with the Imperials to ensure his other business dealings weren't interfered with. Whatever the reason, he was shunned after the destruction of Syvris shadowport. (SWJ13, PSG)

Batattis
this modified Gymsnor-3 freighter was owned and operated by Ort Hoogra-D'En. It was armed with a pair of laser cannons and a pair of heavy blaster cannons. (ND)

Batcheela
a female Ewok, Batcheela was Warok's wife, and Teebo's mother. (AT)

Bathos
this woman, born to one of the lesser families of House Cadriaan, was the leader of House Cadriaan during the height of the New Order. She was known more for her impressive parties than her government, but she was nevertheless a more than capable leader. (PGT)

Batorine
this planet was the homeworld of the Blood Carver race. (RP)

Batta, Callow
a native of the planet Coruscant, this man was a professor of governmental and political history at the University of Sanbra for nearly two decades before being put on "indefinite leave" by the sector Moff, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Most suspected that Doctor Batta's anti-Imperial speeches earned him the displeasure of the Moff. Whatever the reason, Doctor Batta turned to a life of crime, and became a notorious pirate and smuggler by the time of the Battle of Yavin. Despite his fearsome reputation, Batta was known to hand out fizzer-sweets to the children on the starships he ambushed. Among his former peers at the University, Batta was known as an expert on Old Republic history, and a multilingual savant. (AIR)

Batta, Kaori
the son of Kylo Batta and a Chandrilan noblewoman, Kaori was an accomplished big-game hunter himself. He left Chandrila early in his life, and made a name for himself by securing a number of large beasts for display and research in zoos. Kaori surived many attacks himself, and when he met Luskin Exovar, their adventurous spirits immediately formed a bond of friendship. Kaori agreed to travel with Exovar to Neftali, working as a safari leader to take wealthy hunters out into the wilderness to hunt ice modrols. Kaori also ran The Trap within Exovar's Emporium. (WSV)

Batta, Kylo
this legendary big game hunter was native to the planet Chandrila. (WSV)

Battalion
this was Adar Tallon's patrol ship during the early years of the New Order. When he learned that Palpatine would probably have him executed for his loyalty to the Old Republic, Tallon staged his death in the Dalchon System. There, with the help of his friend Quist, Tallon pretended that the Battalion was attacked and destroyde by pirates (led by Quist). (TM)

Battle Analysis Computer (BAC)
developed by General Dodonna, a prototype of this device was used by Luke Skywalker during the Bakura Incident. It's primary function was to provide battle plans and statistics and help gauge the outcome of a battle's logistics. The BAC could be connected to an R2 unit, and the droid's holographic projection system provided realtime displays of the BAC's battle monitors. (TB, TBSB)

Battle Dog
a vicious, dog-sized creature bred on the planet Cyborrea, for sale on the black market. They are fitted with armor and cyborg implants, and are implanted with stimulators which enhance their attack responses. (DE1, DESB)

Battle Dog
this aging Quasar Fire-class warship was one of the New Republic craft assigned to Han Solo and the Mon Remonda during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. (SOC)

Battle Droid
1) Ssi-ruuvi machines enteched with human brain energy, used as combat vehicles (TB)
2) the armed footsoldiers of the Trade Federation, these thin droids were the mainstay of the Federation's armed forces. As in other situations that required a show of force, the Trade Federation spared no expense in designing these droids to fight their battles. The Federation's droids were built by Baktoid Combat Automata to resembled the dissicated skeleton of the Neimoidians themsevles. This fearsome shape stood 1.91 meters tall, was plated with white armor, and could carry and operate a wide range of weapons. A backpack mounted to the droid contained much of the droid's sensors and communications gear. They could be deployed in massive numbers by using MTT tanks to bring them to the battle site. The droids were stored in a compact, fetal position in long racks aboard the MTT, and were placed on the battlefield until a Droid Control Ship activated them. If there opponent started to turn back the battle droid force, they were programmed to call in reinforcements, such as destroyer droids. The Neimoidians placed battle droids in every area of their military, and distinguished their various uses by color. Red-shouldered droids served as security teams, blue-colored battle droids served as pilots, while yellow-shouldered droids are part of the command structure. Plain white droids were infantry and soldiers. (SW1, YJC1, IG1)

Battle Horn
one of Rendili StarDrive's bulk cruisers, the Battle Horn is a 600-meter starship manned by a crew of 2,050. It can also transport up to 200 troops. It is armed with 30 quad laser cannons and two tractor beam projectors. (DFRSB)

Battle Hydra
this alchemical beast was created by Exar Kun during his years as a Dark Lord of the Sith. The Battle Hydra is a two-headed, winged ragon with a whip-like tail which is tipped with a hooked stinger. The stinger is coated with an acidic poison. The hydra is mindless and shy when left on their own, and do not willingly attack unless goaded by the Dark Side of the Force. (JASB)

Battle of Bajic, The
this battle was a definitive Imperial victory, during the time just prior to the Battle of Endor. Darth Vader was able to decimate the Alliance fleet, creating some problems with the planning of the Battle of Endor due to substantial losses to the Alliance. (ROJR)

Battle of Bakura, The prior to the Battle of Endor, the Emperor Palpatine made a deal with an alien race known as the Ssi-ruuk. In exchange for enteched battle droids for the Imperial fleet, the Emperor would give the aliens the human subjects they needed to entech. He provided the location of the planet Bakura, which the Ssi-ruuk attacked just prior to the Battle of Endor. The Alliance, fresh from the defeat of the Emperor, recovered an Imperial distress signal, and went to Bakura in an effort to help the now-displaced Imperials. An uneasy truce developed between the Alliance's team and the Imperials, which was almost undone by internal treachery. The combined forces overcame this, however, and were able to soundly defeat the Ssi-ruuk and drive them back to their part of the universe. Many of the Imperials renounced their commissions to join the new-formed Republic. (TB)

Battle of Basilisk, The
this ancient battle between the Light and Dark Sides of the Force resulted in the death of Jedi Master Sidrona Diath. (DLS)

Battle of Bilbringi, The
The Bilbringi shipyards were an Imperial depot, although they were open to most smugglers and other shippers. Thrawn used the shipyards regularly. Just prior to this battle, Thrawn had managed to pen the New Republic on Coruscant by planting a number of cloaked asteroids in orbit around the planet. The Republic worked to locate the asteroids, and learned that they could detect them with the use of a crystal gravfield trap (CGT). The Empire had one stored at Bilbringi, and so the Republic devised a plan to steal it. At the same time, the rough smuggler's alliance was also trying to steal the Empire's CGT, in an effort to gain favor with the New Republic. Thrawn learned of the smugglers' plan, and laid a trap for the Republic. The trap was sprung, but the combined forces of the New Republic and the Smugglers's Alliance overcame the Imperial fleet. Thrawn's forces were driven away from Bilbringi. Thrawn was killed by his bodyguard following the battle. (TLC)

Battle of Binquaros
this was one of the many small struggles which occurred during the Galactic Civil War. It was generally believed that the battle was actually won by the ThunderForce mercenary unit. (HAS)

Battle of Brentaal
one of the first major skirmishes in which Rogue Squadron was instrumental, the fledgling New Republic managed to defeat Imperial forces and take control of the planet Brentaal. When Imperial Admiral Lon Isoto offered no direct resistance, Rogue Squadron took control the moon Brentaal IV, from which it could stage the liberation of Brentaal. The only serious resistance they got was from the 181st Imperial Fighter Group led by Soontir Fel, but the Rogues were able to defeat Fel and tke control of Brentaal itself. (HXW, IR)

Battle of Calamari, First
The Emperor Palpatine, reborn following the Battle of Endor into a new clone, was just beginning to stretch his new power. He called upon his weapons experts, who delivered a new superweapon, the World Devastators. He launched his initial attack at the ocean world of Calamari. The Mon Calamari - former Imperial slaves - had built many of the best starships currently used by the New Republic, and a strike at the New Republic's main shipyards would help turn the tide and get the Empire back on its feet. The Emperor's plan, however, was foiled by Luke Skywalker and Artoo-Detoo. Luke, under the Emperor's Dark Side influence, retained his allegiance to the New Republic, and fed the World Devastator's' master control codes to Artoo-Detoo, who used them to reprogram the superweapons. Instead of consuming Mon Calamari cities for raw materials, Artoo programmed them to consume each other. The Imperial fleet was decimated by the counter-attack from the World Devastators, and was forced to retreat. (DE1)

Battle of Calamari, Second
Admiral Daala, trying to gain some momentum for the crumbling Empire, launched an attack on the homeworld of the Mon Calamari. She targetted the main floating cities, which the Mon Calamari were still in the process of repairing following the First Battle of Calamari. She quickly struck when the Mon Calamari were not expecting, and was able to severely disable the Mon Calamari cities. The Mon Calamari, however, were able to destroy one of her Star Destroyers and then send a distress signal to the New Republic. Daala's anger at losing the Star Destroyer drove her to reckless attack, which was quickly negated by the arrival of a New Republic fleet. Daala chose to flee rather than press the attack, and the battle was quickly ended. (DA)

Battle of Denab
the battle in which the Imperial Fourth Attack Squadron of Victory-class Star Destroyers was routed by Alliance fighters. The Alliance methodically concentrated firepower on single Star Destroyers until one was destroyed, then moved to another ship. The slow Victory-class ships could not counteract the attack strategy, and were destroyed. (SWR)

Battle of Duro
this was the struggle between the rag-tag forces of the New Republic, sent to defend Duro and its orbital cities from the Yuuzhan Vong. The battle was predicated on several events, all of which fell into place after the New Republic announced its plans to reclaim the surface of the planet Duro. A team of scientists was formed to determine the best ways to restore Duro to its former natural state. The New Republic agreed to fund the plan, provided that the Duros High House allow refugee settlements to be established in domed cities on the planet's surface. Initially, the Duros leaders refused, but a series of well-placed bribes eventually swayed the voting in favor of the Republic's plan. The bribes came from the Peace Brigade, who convinced several shipping concerns – such as CorDuro Shipping – that the Yuuzhan Vong would allow them to retain one of Duro's orbital cities in exchange for the surface of the planet and all the refugees. Ultimately, however, the Yuuzhan Vong had no intention of letting anyone go free, especially when Warmaster Tsavong Lah learned that Jaina and Jacen Solo, as well as their mother, Leia Organa-Solo, were all on Duro. The Yuuzhan Vong desparately wanted to capture a live Jedi Knight, and the Warmaster thought he could finally capture one. Yuuzhan Vong forces moved in and attacked Duro with a swift assault, made easier by the fact that the Duros High House believed the alien invaders were simply there to take control of the surface. In a brutal attack nineteen of the twenty orbital cities surrounding Duro were destroyed by ychna ships, with just Urrdorf City escaping the destruction. New Republic navy forces managed to hold off the Yuuzhan Vong assault force in order to rescue the Solos, but Duro eventually fell to the Yuuzhan Vong. In the wake of the battle, Tsavong Lah claimed he would put an end to the hostilities and leave the Core Worlds alone, provided that the New Republic turn over Jacen Solo to the Yuuzhan Vong. (BP)

Battle of Endor
Following the destruction of Hoth's Echo Base, the Alliance scattered throughout the galaxy in an effort to evade the Empire. A group of Bothans, trying to prove their worth to the Alliance, were able to obtain information on the construction of a new Death Star. Unbeknownst to them, the Emperor Palpatine let them have the data, in an effort to bring the Alliance to him for its final destruction. The Alliance used the data and launched a two-pronged attack at Endor's forest moon and the new Death Star. The first part of the attack involved ground troops penetrating Imperial defenses to deactivate the huge energy shield guarding the Death Star. The group - led by Han Solo - accomplished this with the help of an unknown race called Ewoks. The second part of the plan involved a starship attack similar to the one used at the Battle of Yavin. This time, however, the unfinished Death Star allowed the Alliance a chance to destroy the main reactor directly, without the nearly-impossible shot at an exhaust port. The Emperor used this to his advantage, and tried to lure Luke Skywalker to the Dark Side of the Force by having him watch the battle, in which a number of the Alliance's ships were lost. It was later revealed that the Emperor was using a technique which allowed him to control the minds of much of the Imperial Navy. This, in effect, allowed the Emperor to control the entire battle, as it was his will that was guiding the gunners and pilots of the Imperial Navy.

With the tide turning the Emperor's way, the Alliance's ground team managed to deactivate the shield, and allowed their fighters - led by Lando Calrissian and Wedge Antilles - to penetrate the Death Star's hull and destroy the power generator. The Emperor was killed by Darth Vader just prior to the destruction of the Death Star, but Vader was also mortally wounded, and died on the station as well.
As a result of the Emperor's death, the Imperial Navy had no idea how to continue the battle. The Emperor's will was no longer driving them, and they were quickly unsure how to proceed. This allowed the Alliance's ships to move in and destroy 6 Star Destroyers and rout the TIE Fighter squadrons. The remainder of the Imperial Navy limped away in a hasty retreat, allowing the Alliance to regain rulership of the galaxy. (ROTJ, HTTE)

Battle of Fondor
following closely behind the Yuuzhan Vong victory at the Battle of Tynna, this struggle saw much of the orbital shipyards at Fondor destroyed, along with thirty warships which were being refitted. The Yuuzhan Vong had leaked information to the New Republic that it was going to attack either Corellia or Bothawui after taking Tynna, and the Republic was forced to leave Corellia undefended in an effort to bluff the Yuuzhan Vong into attacking there. The New Republic Defense Force had hoped to use the repulsors on Centerpoint Station to take out the enemy fleet. However, before the Republic could launch its attack, it learned that the Yuuzhan Vong were attacking Fondor. Using swarms of coralskippers, the Yuuzhan Vong made a series of suicide runs at the planet's facilities, causing widespread damage without actively engaging the minimal security of the planet. In the end, the shipyards were left in ruins, and most of the thirty warships at the planet were destroyed. The New Republic tried to use the Centerpoint Station repulsors to take out the Yuuzhan Vong fleet at Fondor, but Anakin Solo refused to use the station as a weapon. Furious at the turn of events, Thrackan Sal-Solo fired the weapon instead. However, he lacked the accuracy which only Anakin could draw from the Force, and his shot went just wide. The intense blast of repulsor energy destroyed much of the Hapan fleet and part of the planet itself. It also wiped out the Yuuzhan Vong armada before continuing through the system unabated. In the aftermath of the battle, the Hapes Consortium pushed to completely isolate themselves from the rest of the galaxy. (JE)

Battle of Garqi
this battle was predicated on the New Republic's attempt to extract Corran Horn, Jacen Solo, Ganner Rhysode, and their Noghri fighters from Yuuzhan Vong-held territory on Garqi. The New Republic's Admiral Traest Kre'fey brought a small force to Garqi during the insertion effort, but they remained just outside the system in order to avoid detection. When Corran, flying the Best Chance, tried to escape the planet, the Yuuzhan Vong sent a small force to intercept the shuttle. Admiral Kre'fey then moved the Ralroost into position to collect the Best Chance, prompting a large retaliation by the Vong forces. A full-scale battle erupted over Garqi, with the New Republic's forces taking a beating despite recovering the Jedi Knights. Just as the Vong were about to pummel the Republic's ships, Imperial Admiral Gilead Pellaeon hypered into the system with a small fleet of his own. Pellaeon quickly interjected his warships between the Republic's flagging forces and the Yuuzhan Vong, absorbing fire while attacking the alien ships. Realizing that they would be beaten, the Yuuzhan Vong commander Shedao Shai ordered a full retreat, allowing the combined New Republic and Imperial forces to gain a minor victory. (DTR)

Battle of Heg
nearly the decisive battle in the struggle for control of the planet Bundim, the Battle of Heg saw a resounding Imperial victory over the Alliance forces trying to liberate the planet. Heg itself was leveled by Imperial forces in just three days, but the Alliance rallied and was able to overcome the Imperials and restore freedom to the planet. The occupation and subsequent liberation of Bundim took place after the Battle of Yavin. (GMK)

Battle of Hoth
Following the destruction of the first Death Star and other losses at the hands of the Alliance, the Empire began dispatching thousands of remote probe droids to all sector of the galaxy. One of these probe droids located the Alliance's Echo Base on Hoth, and a fleet of Star Destroyers, under the command of Darth Vader, were sent to destroy the base. Vader's Admiral, Ozzel, however, brought the fleet out of hyperspace too soon, and the Alliance was alerted to the presence of the Imperial fleet. Vader sent General Veers to the planet's surface with a group of AT-ATs, which decimated the Alliance forces and destroyed the main power generator. With the ground battle lost, the Alliance used their early warning of the Imperial invasion to its best use, and quickly evacuated key personnel and equipment under heavy fire from their ion cannon. The majority of the Alliance's Hoth base staff escaped to scatter across the galaxy. (ESB)

Battle of ILC-905
this fast, furious, eleven-minute engagement was first time New Republic forces had been able to attack and destroy a Yevethan Aramadia-class thrustship. The Indomitable, under the command of Commodore Brand, initiated the assault when he discovered the Yevetha were using the ILC-905 system to jump their thrustships into the Koornacht Cluster behind New Republic forces. Brand decided to take out the thrustship they encountered, but two others jumped in behind it. In the heat of the battle, the Indomitable and the Vanguard were joined by the Marauder. The thrustships Tholos and Rizaron fought back, destroying the Vanguard before Esege Tuketo and Dogo were able to penetrate the Tholos' shields and knock out its navigational systems. The thrustship spun out of control and plunged into the nearby planet, and the Yevethans fled the system. (TT)

Battle of Ithor
this was one of the most tragic battles waged between the forces of the New Republic and the Yuuzhan Vong. Preceded by only a few weeks by the Battle of Garqi, the struggle for Ithor was predicated on the fact that the pollen of the bafforr tree was deadly to the vonduun crab armor worn by the Yuuzhan Vong. Corran Horn discovered this while on Garqi, and relayed the information back to the New Republic military. Unfortunately, Shedao Shai received a report from Runsk Das on the defat at Garqi, and the Yuuzhan Vong also discovered the effects of the pollen. In an effort to eliminate this advantage, the Yuuzhan Vong launched an assault on Ithor. They met heavy resistance from the New Republic forces, which had been augmented by a fleet of Imperial Remnant ships commanded by Admiral Pellaeon himself. Pellaeon and Traest Kre'fey had worked together on the defense, which included the ground support of Luke Skywalker's Jedi Knights. As Rogue Squadron worked in space, the Jedi worked to defend the baffor groves against Yuuzhan Vong gorund forces. The combined frepower of the Republic and the Imperial kept the Yuuzhan Vong starships at bay, and the ground forces of Jedi Knights and soldiers managed to defeat Shedao Shai's own warriors. The outcome of the battle was placed in limbo, however, when Shedao Shai and Corran Horn agreed to a duel. Corran fought for the planet Ithor, while Shedao Shai fought for the remains of his ancestor, Mongei Shai. For two weeks, both sides retreated to lick their wounds and gather reinforcements, while the two combatants prepared for their fight. Corran Horn managed to defeat Shedao Shai in their struggle, but the final blow of the battle was yet to be dealt. In orbit, Deign Lian completed his treachery against Shedao Shai, unleashing a horrendous bioweapon on Ithor. Thick gobs of the bioweapon struck the planet, and quickly reduced all plant life and much of the native animal life to dead husks. Ithor was utterly destroyed, but the final blow hadn't been dealt, for Traest Kre'fey ordered the Corusca Rainbow to hold the Yuuzhan Vong fleet in position, while the augmented New Republic forces pummeled them with laser fire. The Yuuzhan Vong fleet was decimated, and the Legacy of Torment lost its drive systems and plunged into Ithor's surface, setting off planet-sweeping fires. (DTR)

Battle of Kashyyyk
this was the name given to the New Republic's effort to free the planet Kashyyyk from the control of the Second Imperium, after Brakiss and the forces of the Shadow Academy tried to steal Imperial technology from the planet. (JE)

Battle of Koros Major
Satal Keto and his cousin Aleema had formed the Krath, a quasi-militant group whose principle power lay in the use of the Dark Side of the Force. The Krath managed to assert themselves into control positions on 6 of the 7 worlds in the Empress Teta system. The sole opposition was met on the planet of Koros Major. The Krath moved an ancient military space station into orbit around the planet, and began using military and Force-based attacks to turn the Korosians to their will. The Old Republic and the Jedi Knights, fearing another Dark Jedi uprising, created a combined strike force and went to Koros Major to turn the Krath back. The Krath used a series of Dark Side illusions to lull the Republic into thinking that the battle would be based mainly on the use of the Force, but an illusory armada of starfighters contained a percentage of real Chaos fighters, who crashed their starfighters into the command ships and disabled the Republic momentarily. (DLS)

Battle of Korseg IV
this was one of the many battles that took place during the Galactic Civil War, during which the Alliance struggled to maintain its base on the mountainous world of Korseg IV. (RPG, GMH)

Battle of N'zoth
this was the final battle of the Black Fleet Crisis, in which the New Republic implemented Operation Strong Hand against the Yevetha. The Republic's ships, aided by a false fleet generated by Wailu and Akanah, took the upper hand against the Yevethan fleet near N'zoth. This cut off much of the coordination with other Yevethan warships in the Koornacht Cluster. The Yevethan warships were severely beaten by the Republic's ships, due mainly to the data gathered at the Battle of ILC-905 and the success of the Thunderhead. Then, Sil Sorannan and his Camp Pa'aal Squadron stole a large piece of the Yevethan fleet and retook it in the name of the Empire. This left the Yevetha without a central fleet and without a leader, for Nil Spaar was stranded in hyperspace by Sorannan. The remaining Yevethan ships were quickly defeated, and the Republic survived the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Battle of Naboo
although this struggle marked a high point in the history of Naboo, it marked the beginning of the end of the Old Republic. Forced by an illegal blockade of the planet by the Trade Federation, the Battle of Naboo was really a diversionary tactic. The Trade Federation, led by Nute Gunray but ultimatelt controlled by Darth Sidious, attempted to remove the taxation of trade routes by blockading Naboo. Sidious ordered a planetary invasion, and the Neimoidian members of the Federation sent thousands of droid soldiers and tanks to the surface of the planet. They were quickly able to subdue the native populace, as the humans of Naboo were quite peaceful and the Gungans hid rather than become involved. Once the planet was secured, the majority of the Federation's invasion fleet returned home, leaving a skeleton force to control the droid armies on the ground. Queen Amidala, just fourteen at the time of the invasion, fled to Coruscant to plea for aid in breaking the blockade, but received none from the stagnant Galactic Senate. All of this played into the schemes of Darth Sidious. However, he did not count on the appearance of Anakin Skywalker and the strength of Amidala's will. She devised a plan to capture Gunray and force him to call of the blockade, but it hinged on two factors of battle. The first involved the Gungans, whom she had persuaded to help in the fight. They called out the Federation's droid armies in an intense land battle that raged across the plains of Naboo. While this battle forced the droid armies into action, it left the city of Theed relatively undefended. Amidala, with Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, forced their way into the palace and overcame the Neimoidians. Meanwhile, in the space above Naboo, the Royal starfighter fleet had engaged the droid control ship. However, its shields were too powerful for the small N-1 fighters to penetrate. A lone fighter, marginally controlled by Anakin Skywalker, penetrated the ship's interior. During his attempts to flee the ship, Anakin unleashed a volley of energy torpedoes that ruptured the control ship's internal power sources. The huge ship began exploding from within, and ripped itself apart in a matter of minutes. Anakin and the fighters escaped, and the droid armies on the ground were left powerless. This came just as the droids had forced the Gungans to surrender. When they realized the droids were no longer able to function, the Gungans rounded them up and dismantled them. In the end, Naboo was freed from Federation control, and the humans and Gungans wlecomed a new era of cooperation between their peoples. (SW1)

Battle of Nar Shaddaa
this battle was ordered by Moff Sarn Shild, who ordered that all smuggling in his sector be stopped. This reneged on a series of rbibe and gifts he had received from the Hutts. Jabba and Jiliac, seeing the damage an attack on Nar Shaddaa would do, used Han Solo to bribe Admiral Winstel Greelanx into allowing the residents to win the battle. Greelanx had received a Base Delta Zero order from Shild for Nar Shaddaa, and struggled to find a way to throw the battle. When he finally came up with a plan, Greelanx then received a communique from Excomm commanding him to lose the battle. So, the tables were set for a battle of Imperial might versus a rag-tag fleet of smugglers and thieves trained on short notice by Han Solo, Mako Spince, and Lando Calrissian. They mustered every snub-fighter and freighter they could in an effort to make a stand against Greelanx's fleet. Their plan involved throwing a group of ships against the Imperials, hoping to break into their picket lines while giving the impression that the smugglers' forces were spent. A second group remained out of sight, ready to pounce on the Imperial fleet from behind. The two groups were supplemented by Drea Renthal's pirate fleet as well as a series of images projected by Xaverri. The battle started badly for the smugglers when a pair of ships jumped the gun before the counterattack could be launched. Despite the loss of two ships, the smugglers quickly gained the upper hand when the Imperial forces became over-confident. The appearance of Xaverri's illusory fleet caught the Imperials offf-guard, and allowed the smugglers to take out several Imperial warships. The battle was ended when the Peacekeeper plummeted into Nar Shaddaa's planetary shield, eliminating one of the key Imperial ships. The remaining ships were unable to exploit the hole in the moon's shield, and Greelanx ordered a retreat. The entire populace of Nar Shaddaa suffered some form of loss or injury, as did most of the Hutt *kajidic*s. Only Besadii seemed to come out unscathed, a point which Jabba the Hutt used against them when they began raising prices of processed spice. (THG, RD)

Battle of Ord Biniir
this struggle was actually two battles, both of which took place during the Galactic Civil War. In the weeks leading up to the Battle of Yavin, the Alliance's Y-Wings managed to defeat the 223rd Imperial Fighter Group and take the planet Ord Biniir from Imperial control. (Note that this is most likely the battle that is referenced in the opening crawl of Star Wars: A New Hope*.)* Shortly afterward, on the very day of the Battle of Yavin, the 181st Imperial Fighter Wing managed to destroy the Alliance forces over Ord Biniir and retake the planet. (MBF)

Battle of Pin Faan
it was during this battle, in which the Empire was victorious, that Captain Beri Tulon learned how to use the Battlefield Holographic Control Interface to group his troops into more effective units. (FC)

Battle of Selaggis
this was the penultimate conflict between the forces of Imperial Warlord Zsinj and the New Republic fleet led by Han Solo and the Mon Remonda. It was precipitated by a series of events, the first of which was Lara Notsil's defection from Wraith Squadron. She volunteered to join Zsinj's forces, but actually was acting alone to bring the warlord down. She commandeered the use of the Iron Fist's MSE-6 droid fleet, and set up systematic failures of the huge warship's computer, engine, and shield systems. After planting the notion with Zsinj that the New Republic would try to take control of Vahaba - a star system within Zsinj's control - she then began her internal attack. Meanwhile, she had also alerted the Republic of Zsinj's move to Vahaba, and Han Solo had dropped a good portion of his fleet there. He was also supported by the Interdictor cruiser Stellar Web, on loan from Imperial Admiral Rogriss, who was also chasing Zsinj. Solo's fleet nearly caught Zsinj at Vahaba, but they managed to escape into hyperspace. However, Lara had removed any reference to the nearby Selaggis star system, so the Iron Fist and her fleet were dragged out of hyperspace before they had gone more than eight light-years. Solo pursued and caught Zsinj at Selaggis Six, and the battle became a sluggin match. Zsinj was able to call in reinforcements, since the Chains of Justice and a third of his fleet hadn't been able to jump from Vahaba with the rest. Zsinj felt that the tide had turned until Solo's reinforcements arrived from Halmad. The Republic fleet pounded Zsinj, and the warlord was forced to use his last-ditch effort. Employing a mock-up starship known as the Second Death, as well as a "tunnel" created with orbital nightcloaking satellites, Zsinj fled with the Iron Fist into the tunnel as the Second Death was exploded nearby. When Solo's forces sifted through the wreckage, all they found was evidence which supported the destruction of the Iron Fist. (SOC)

Battle of Singing Mountain this was the climactic struggle in the battle for control of the planet Dathomir. Warlord Zsinj had controlled the planet for several years, stripping the moon Koratas of ores for use in producing durasteel. When the New Republic discovered Dathomir, and after Luke Skywalker discovered the ways in which the women of the planet used spells to control the Force, a complex struggled evolved. The Nightsister clan decided it was time to destroy the Singing Mountain clan, while the New Republic launched a final assault against Zsinj. The Battle of Singing Mountain saw the Singing Mountain clan finally defeat the Nightsisters, shortly after Gethzerion and her closest advisors were killed while trying to escape the planet. As the Singing Mountain sisters were victorious, so was the New Republic. Zsinj was finally destroyed in a battle over Dathomir. (CTD)

Battle of Sluis Van
Following the Battle of Endor, the Imperial Navy was scattered to the distant parts of the galaxy. The New Republic regained a great deal of galactic territory, reducing the Empire to a quarter of its former size. In these small sectors of the galaxy, various Imperial factions vied to supremacy. Grand Admiral Thrawn resurfaced in the Empire about 2 years after the Battle of Endor, and quickly gained control of the Empire and its Navy. He implemented a plan which involved a series of hit-and-run attacks on various planets in remote parts of the New Republic, at the edge of the Sluis sector. He then stole 51 mole miners from Lando Calrissian's Nomad City mining operation. The New Republic, still trying to adjust to the rapid growth of its holdings, was stretched thin trying to repair the damage Thrawn had done while trying to determine his next move. He then recovered the cloaking device that Emperor Palpatine had been creating. It was at this point, with New Republic forces spread out, that Thrawn made his first stab at the Republic. He put a disguised freighter into port at Sluis Van Central. Inside the freighter, cloaked by the Emperor's creation, were squadrons of TIE Fighters. He then positioned a number of Imperial ships just outside Sluis Van's influence, and had them emerge from hyperspace at a specified time. This coincided with the launch of the TIE Fighters from the freighter's hold. The main objective of the attack was to eliminate one of the New Republic's major shipyards, while stealing as many of the Republic's warships as possible for use in the growing Imperial Navy. This was where Thrawn used the stolen mole miners. He manned them with Imperial spacetroopers, who would bore holes into the hulls of Republic capital ships. The crews would be killed when the atmosphere was sucked into the vacuum of space. The spacetroopers, fully geared for the lifeless vacuum, then could gain control of the ships. However, due to the timely arrive of Wedge Antilles's Rogue Squadron, as well as the arrival of Han Solo, Lando Calrissian, Luke Skywalker, and some other New Republic warships, the attack at Sluis Van was negated. Han and Lando used the mole miners' remote control circuits to send startup commands to the small ships, causing them to fire their plasma jets. This then fried the captured ships' command circuits, rendering the control of these ships inoperable. Neither side was able to claim complete victory. While the Imperials were able to infiltrate the shipyards, they were quickly driven off before any more damage could be done. The Republic, on the other hand, survived its first major threat from the remnants of the Empire, but lost many ships due to the frying of their circuits. (HTTE)

Battle of Taanab
a battle in which Lando gained recognition for his daring escapades. He had been passing Taanab and had stopped to refuel when a Norulackian pirate raid damaged his ship. While the Taanabians were helping Lando repair his ship, they also told of their plight against the pirates. When one of the native bet Lando he couldn't beat the pirates, he took them up, and his amazing pilot's skill helped him destroy much of the pirate fleet and foil any subsequent raids. (ROTJ)

Battle of Tantive V
this battle pitted the forces of the fledgling New Republic against Admiral Gaen Drommel and his small fleet of ships. The Republic destroyed two of Drommel's three Imperial Star Destroyers, and captured the third ship, the Wolf's Claw. Drommel's flagship, the Guardian, took heavy damage, but managed to flee the battle. Drommel is believed to have survived the battle. (WBC)

Battle of the North
this was one of many minor struggles in the civil war between the Daan and the Melida, during which both sides fought for control of the city of Zehava. The Melida were generally regarded as the victors in the battle. (DOD)

Battle of the Plains
this minor struggle in the civil war waged between the Daan and the Melida was initiated by the Daan, in retaliation for the Melida victory in the Battle of the North nearly one hundred years earlier. (DOD)

Battle of the Rood
an battle that was part of the conflict that resulted from the Imperial invasion of the Renatasian System, the Battle of the Rood was a minor skirmish in which Kenow and Klyn Shanga fought as boys. (LCF)

Battle of Thyferra
this battle marked the end of the Bacta War, shortly after the Battle of Endor. Rogue Squadron had been waging the war on its own, having resigned its commissioned with the New Republic in order to personally avenge the deaths of many squadron members at the hands of Ysanne Isard. The Rogues managed to capture not only the Avarice but also the Virulence, the former being renamed the Freedom and leading the attack on Thyferra. Several smaller freighters and transports also lent a hand on the side of the Rogues. The Freedom bombarded the Lusankya - the primary ship guarding Thyferra - with proton torpedoes, destroying its shields and leaving it defenseless in the opening act of the battle. Rogue Squadron added its own torpedoes, and then strafed the Lusankya with blaster fire. The newly recommissioned war cruiser Valiant then joined in, raining lethal firepower on the huge Star Destroyer. Meanwhile, on the surface of Thyferra, Iella Wessiri and Elscol Loro had led a team of infiltrators to join up with the Zaltin and Ashern factions, and worked to destroy the Xucphra resources on the planet. They also managed to intercept Fliry Vorru as he tried to flee, and brought him to Coruscant to stand trial. In space over the planet, the Lusankya began to destroy the smaller ships in the Rogue Squadron fleet, hoping to take them out of the fight while making her own repairs. Then, Captain Drysso opened fire on the Freedom, crippling the smaller Star Destroyer. The Freedom managed to get in some shots of her own, effectively taking out the larger ship's shields and leaving ti defenseless. It was at this time that Ysanne Isard commanded the Lusankya to cover the escape of her personal shuttle, Thyfonian, before both were lost in the battle. Captain Drysso disobeyed the order when the Virulence reappeared, thinking that he finally had the reinforcements he needed to win the battle. However, the Virulence was now under the command of Booster Terrik, and it contained several New Republic fighter squadrons, including Ace Squadron. Led by Pash Cracken, Ace Squadron redoubled the assault on the Lusankya, and began taking sections of the ship out with their strafing runs. Drysso threatened to ram the ship into Thyferra, but he was executed by Lieutenant Waroen, who then surrendered the ship and her crew to Rogue Squadron. The battle ended when Ysanne Isard, fleeing the shuttle Thyfonian, was shot down by Tycho Celchu and Corran Horn. It was later revealed that Isard had been remotely controlling the shuttle, and survived the battle. (BW, IR)

Battle of Ton-Falk
a battle which took place early in the Galactic Civil War, in which the Alliance was able to destroy two Imperial Nebulon-B frigates and a Dreadnaught. This was accomplished because these two ships had to drop their compliments of TIE Fighters very near to the battle, since the TIE Fighters lack hyperdrives. The Alliance starfighters ganged up on the larger, slower ships, and destroyed them. This defeat led the Empire to develop Escort Carriers. (TIE, ISB)

Battle of Tynna
following in the heels of the subjugation of Gyndine by the Yuuzhan Vong, this battle saw the New Republic again powerless to stop the advance of the aliens. In the end, Tynna was taken to lend credence to the rumors planted by the Yuuzhan Vong that Corellia and Bothawui were the next targets for invasion. At the Tanallay Surge Complex, the Yuuzhan Vong unleashed a vicious bioweapon into the water supply. In almost no time, the cold blue waters of Tynna were rendered lifeless and toxic. The plan was to spread the New Republic's forces thin in an effort to protect both worlds. In reality, the Yuuzhan Vong struck at Fondor, wiping out much of the starship production facility there. (JE)

Battle of Vnas
this Galactic Civil War battle raged near the planet Duro, and the Y-Wing starfighter played a prominent role in its outcome. (EGV)

Battle of Yavin
the Alliance, in a daring move, stole secret plans to the Empire's first Death Star battle station, and hid them with Artoo-Detoo. The little droid managed to deliver the plans to the secret Alliance base on the fourth moon of Yavin, where Generals Willard and Dodonna used the plans to form an attack on the Death Star. Since the space station was designed to combat large opponents, the Generals thought that a group of small fighters could get inside the Death Star's defenses. An unshielded exhaust port provided them a target to the station's main reactor, and the Alliance lured the Empire to Yavin. Once the Death Star was close enough to Yavin, the Alliance launched its long-shot plan. X- and Y-wings were used to penetrate the Death Star's defenses, and although many Alliance pilots were killed, Luke Skywalker managed to precisely fire a photon torpedo into the exhaust port and start the chain reaction which destroyed the Death Star. (SW)

Battle of Yavin
this Alliance starship was a stolen Imperial customs frigate. It was used by New Republic intelligence operatives working from Black Curs Base. They were forced to land the frigate on Hensara III, when the frigate was intercepted by the Imperial Strike-class cruiser Havoc. The operatives eventually sank the frigate in a deep lake to avoid detection, but lacked the equipment to get it out and make it flyable. (XWN)

Battle of Ylesia
this battle was organized by Bria Tharen and her Red Hand Squadron, and was aimed at toppling the Besadii spice and slave enterprise there. Information on the Ylesian operation was provided by the Bothan Spynet, although they failed to report a ground-based turbolaser. Bria obtained financial backing from Jabba the Hutt, and used smugglers from Nar Shaddaa to pilot the drop ships. Among the smugglers was Han Solo, and the assault team also included a group of Togorians under the command of Muuurgh and Mrrov. Nine assault teams were created to attack each of the nine Ylesian colonies. The Besadii forces had been bolstered by Durga the Hutt's dealings with Black Sun, and were augmented by the Nova Force mercenaries. Jabba had employed several mercenaries to assasinate the t'landa Til priests before the actual battle began, eliminating a key source of possible resistance. Then, in a coordinated series of strikes, the rebel soldiers attacked the major slave colonies and engaged Nova Force. Most of the battles ended quickly, as the Alliance teams surprised the Nova Force and decimated them before much resistance could be put up. Then, smugglers piloted troop ships and rescue teams to the surface, but the turbolaser took out the first wave, including Jalus Nebl and the Dream of Freedom. Once the turbolaser was eliminated, the ground troops accepted Nova Force's surrender. The battle ended almost as soon as it began, and the Alliance successfully obtained huge amounts of spice and credits to fund its operations. Han and Chewbacca managed to rescue a group of orphaned children from the planet, and were returning them to Corellian - along with a load of spice for Jabba - when he was ambushed by Imperial forces. He was forced to dump the spice in order to save the children, placing him in debt to Jabba and forcing him to take Ben Kenobi's offer for transport to Alderaan. (RD)

Battle Wagon
created by the Ewok Ephram Warrick and built by Wicket, the battle wagon is a huge battering ram set upon four huge wheels. Mounted on the top of the machine is a bantha skull. (ECAR)

Battlefield Holographic Control Interface developed by the Empire early in the era of the New Order, the BHCI was designed to help commanding officers of ground forces monitor and direct their troops in hostile arenas. By placing cameras in the helmets of Imperial troops, and by linking the various audio and video feeds from these troops to a single system, the BHCI allowed an officer to have an unlimited array of views of the battlefield. This gave the officer a wealth of information that would have been unavailable from a command position on the front lines. (FC)

Battlerom
this is the essentially the flight recorder installed on every starfighter produced in recent times. The battlerom collects data primarily on the ship it's installed in, but can also gather information on fleet strengths and enemy tactics. The battleroms can then be reviewed after the battle to help learn new tactics and point out flaws or weaknesses in a pilot's flying. (IR)

Battz
this scruffy-looking forger was known around Argovas City as a man who gambled once too often, every night of the week. He was usually in debt, although his forgeries often commanded a top price. It was Battz who helped an Alliance strike team infiltrate the Imperial sensor net complex on Argovia. (IA)

Batwing
this is a small Rodian avian often used in magician's acts. (THG)

Baudo*-class Yacht
an organic-shaped starship, the Baudo-class is similar to a broad-bladed dagger in shape. The twin engine pods form a short hilt, and its downward-curving wings make up the hand guard. They also soften the triangular main hull and lend the organic look. They measure 32 meters in length. It is powered by a pair of ion engines. The Baudo-class required a single pilot to operate, and could transport up to eight passengers and 35 metric tons of cargo. The base model was armed with a turret-mounted laser cannon. (XWN, KT, PP)

Baung Squad
this was one of the groups of Imperial swamp troopers which attacked the Alliance base on Taul. They were attached to the Victory-class Star Destroyer Dominator. (SWJ1)

Bavo Six
this truth serum is used by IT-0 interrogation droids. It is administered with a greatly-enlarged needle, to increase the fear of the prison and make the serum work better and faster. It is a compound of regvis and bospridium, with trace elements in the composition R7Bo3Kr2. It induces paranoia and visual exaggeration, causing the victim to become afraid of everything. (CFG, CCG)

Bavos-I Military Space Platform
developed by Rendili StarDrive, this 1,300-wide space station was developed for use by the Empire. A crew of 600 was required to maintain it, along with 200 gunners. The Bavos-I station was armed with fifty medium turbolaser cannons, fifty anti-starfighter turbolaser cannons, and a turret-mounted bank of concussion missile launchers. It could accommodate up to 100 stormtroopers and 100 additional personnel, and could carry up to 50 metric tons of cargo. Despite its firepower, the Bavos-I was not self-sufficient because of its small cargo storage area. This required that the station receive regular supply convoys in order to remain active. (FOP)

Bavos-II Military Space Platform
based on the Bavos-I platform developed by Rendili StarDrive, this 2,500-wide space station was developed for use by the Empire. A crew of 1,600 was required to maintain it, along with 400 gunners. The Bavos-II station was armed with 100 medium turbolaser cannons, 100 anti-starfighter turbolaser cannons, and three turret-mounted banks of concussion missile launchers. It could accommodate up to 150 stormtroopers and 150 additional personnel, and could carry up to 300 metric tons of cargo. This huge increase in cargo space helped make up for the deficiencies of the Bavos-I station. (FOP)

Bavva Ale
this wretched brew was fermented aboard the Happy Failure, in a still formed from the innards of an Incom N21-3 power converter. (GG2)

Bawoonka
this Gungan horn was named for the intense, basso sound it made when blown. (E1A10)

Baxendahl
this man was a native of Lesvol, on Prishardia. He was one of many locals who actually believed Ghitsa Dogder was a Jedi Knight. He was forced to abide by her decision after he tried to sell a woman barren groat, which he claimed was viable. Ghits agreed to mediate their dispute. (TFNR)

Baxthrax
this alien species was distinguished by their tapered ears and leathery, membranous, three-lobed wings. Their hands have three large, jointed talons for fingers, and their feet have a large toe and a pair of talons. Both their hands and feet are capable of grasping objects. (E1A1)

Bay of Fflus
this coastal bay was located on the Beija Minor Sea, on the eastern coast of Beija, on Neftali. (BSS)

Bay Point
an Imperial Nebulon-B frigate used to transport prisoners during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Bay of Sypon
this inlet of the Nomers Ocean, located on the planet Brosi, was bordered by the Shoengen Coast. (AIR)

Bayah
this species of tree is native to the planet Datar, and had twisted green limbs. (E1A5)

Baylagon Technical Institute
this minor school was an avenue of education for those individuals who failed to meet the entry criteria for the Academy. (SWJ8)

Bayou Buffet
this restaurant was located in SkyCenter Galleria, on Cloud City, near the swamp environment chamber. (TCC)

Bazaar
a trade world. (GMH)

Bazaar
an Ithorian herdship, on which is located the city of Isttu. It was similar to most every Ithorian herd ship, being a huge, flattened ball which is designed to mimic the natural Ithorian jungles in a space-worthy vessel. The Bazaar is most famous for its vast markets and villages. (GA)

Bazaar Deck
located on the luxury liner, the Kuari Princess, the Bazaar Deck is home to a wide variety of shops and restaurants that cater to the ship's various alien passengers. Everything from clothing to souvenirs can be found there. (RM)

Bburru
this was one of the twenty orbital cities which surrounded the planet Duro. Leia Organa-Solo discovered that the managers of Bburru had been working with CorDuro Shipping to divert supplies which were destined for the refugees on Duro's surface. During the Battle of Duro, however, Bburru was destroyed by the Yuuzhan Vong. (BP)

BCC
this large corporation produced a variety of communications equipment for use by scouts, military, and paramilitary personnel. (ROE)

BD-1 Cutter
this SoroSuub vibro-ax is powered by an ultrasonic generator in its shaft. The crescnet-shaped blade was slung just below the main shaft. Jabba the Hutt supplied BD-1's to his guards. (CCG7)

BD-17
this was the New Republic ship's registry number of the Bakuran destroyer Defender. (CTD)

BD-27
this is the model number of a Corellian Engineering Corporation barge driver. The BD-27 was the predecessor to the Action-class series of medium freighters, and defined the basic shape of that transport. A command and crew area was set forward of the engine section, connected by a thin conduit. The entire ship can be connected to a cargo module capable of carrying 75,000 metric tons. The BD-27 measured 100 meters in length, and its automated systems required a only a pilot and co-pilot to operate. The automation often broke down, and required extensive maintenance. This ship had minimal shields and no armament. The BD-27, despite the flexibility of the removable cargo pod, was quickly replaced by larger bulk freighters, and was relegated to use in small operations. (SWJ9)

BD-80
this was the New Republic ship's registry number of the Bakuran destroyer Sentinel. (CTD)

Be'
this Theran Listener was part of the troop which adopted Callista. A thin, middle-aged man, Be' was able to control the Force enough to communicate with the Spook crystals. He served as a point man for his troop, communing with the crystals to determine Newcomer movements against gun emplacements that defended the world from intruders. (POT)

Beal, Cjaalysce
this daughter of Leniel Beal, this regal Lady was deeply in love with Iann Doaba before he first took the Long Walk. When she learned of his disappearance, Cjaalysce went into the desert to search for him. Her body was found a few weeks later, wrapped around Iann's clothing and his lightsaber. Her body was burned in a ceremonial funeral, and her ashes scattered in the desert. Rumor had it that, beneath her dessicated corpse was the indelible shadow of Iann's body. The shadow, essentially Iann's remaining spirit, followed a portrait of Cjallysce around as long as the portrait survived. Benoni Ulte eventually came to possess the portait, and claimed to have seen Iann's shadow many times. (BSS)

Beal, Leniel
this Corellian Commander was generally considered the man responsible for the colonization of Socorro, some 3,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (BSS)

Beam Drill
a mining tool. (HSL)

Beam Gem
this special stone is used in optical systems to focus or disperse a beam of light. Beam gems are used extensively in starship navigational computers to direct the flow of data over fiber optic channels. These gems come in a variety of sizes, designated by number. Small numbers represent small gems. (CFG)

Beam-tube
an early form of a laser rifle, the beam-tube is a long barrel which aims an energy projectile at a target. The weapon is powered by a generator that is worn on the user's back. (HSL)

Bear
this New Republic K-wing bomber pilot was killed during the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319, during the Yevethan Purge. (SOL)

Bear Spider
this 1.5-meter long creature resembles a long, thin bear. It lacks hair, but is covered with hair-like chitin, and a web-spinning orifice is similar to a spider's. They are nocturnal predators, weaving their webs and then sleeping while other creatures are awake. When the bear spider reawakens, it kills and consumes any creatures caught in its web. (TSK)

Bearer, The
according to the ancient Sharu legends, the Bearer will be accompanied by the Emissary when it it time for the Mindharp to be activated, when it is time for the Sharu to emerge from hiding. The Bearer is described in the legends as a dark-skinned space pilot who seems to have a great deal of luck and skill. When Rokur Gepta heard this, he sent Osuno Whett to the Oseon System to look for a pilot who fit this description. Whett chose Lando Calrissian as his first candidate, and Lando eventually fulfilled the purpose of the Bearer, releasing the Mindharp for use. (LCM)

Bearing Lifter
this Gallofree Yards medium transport saw extensive duty for the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (SWSB)

Bearus
an ancient Tetan chairman. (DLS)

Beast Lords
the title of the leads of Onderon's outcast society, each Beast Lord rules over a clan of warriors. (TOJ)

Beast Masters
the name given to the civilization on Onderon that developed from the outcasts from the great walled city. (TOJ)

Beast Riders
those members of the Beastmasters who have been trained to fly the Dxun beasts in battle. (TOJ)

Beast Wars of Onderon
a series of battles that spanned nearly 350 years prior to the first Old Republic contact with Onderon. The battles were foguth between the citizens of the city of Iziz and its outcasts, the Beast Masters. Iziz managed to survive because of its superior technology and its link to the Dark Side of the Force. The ancient Jedi Knights, under the direction of Arca Jeth and the command of Ulic Qel-Droma, interceded and brought the wars to an end. (TOJ)

Beatas
this Klatooinan mercenary once worked as an employee of Thar Lasan, until the Gotal's untimely death. He then went to work for Ploovo Two-for-One, and served as Ploovo's primary lieutenant and enforcer. He headed the group known as the Protocol Team, which provided the violent element to Ploovo's operations. (AIR)

Beater
this huge Yuuzhan Vong bio-creation was developed to batter down the buildings, warehouses, and protective bunkers created by the New Republic. A Beater was followed by a Biter, which literally consumed the rubble and turned it into a waste product that could be consumed by other creatures and turned into energy. The Beater resembled a huge, segmented snake. Each segment was protected by pale, armor-like skin. The Beater flailed its body about to cause the majority of destruction, but could also use its tiny front legs to cuase minor damage. (BP)

Beatonn
this Alliance Commander was in command of the frigate V'nnuk'rk, and was Fable Astin's commanding officer. A young woman, Beatonn's was prematurely grey from the stress of command. (SWJ8)

Beauchen
this planet was the site of a New Republic penal colony. (SOP)

Beauty
the Yevethan name of one of the stolen Black Sword warships. The Beauty was a Corellian CR90 Corvette, originally used by Nil Spaar to scout the Koornacht Cluster. (BTS)

Beauty of Yevetha
one of the many Imperial starships captured by the Yevetha and converted for their own use, this corvette was destroyed during the New Republic's attempt to blockade the Koornacht Cluster. Rone Taggar sacrificed himself and his X-wing, after being captured by the Beauty of Yevetha's tractor beams. He set the starfighter's self-destruct sequence to explode as the ship was drawn into a hangar bay. All hands were lost in the resulting explosion. (SOL)

Bebo, Kevreb
this crazy old man wandered the streets of D'vouran's primary city, rambling on about people disappearing at the hands of invisible monsters. The one-time Captain of the Misanthrope, he was the only survivor and was blamed for the ship's crash onto D'vouran. This seemed to snap his mind, although he knew that there was something wrong with the planet. He found the underground laboratory where Borborygmus Gog had kept his work hidden, and Bebo managed to acquire a small pendant which was actually a tiny shield generator. This kept him immune from the hunger of the planet. He found a sympathetic ear in the form of Tash Arranda, and he gave her the pendant shortly before he was killed by one of Smada's Gank killers. (GOF1)

Beckar
this man was the Alliance's Commander-in-Chief of the Trax Sector forces, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He ordered the disruption of the Imperial collection of foodstuffs on Draenell's Point, in an effort to stall the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. (GMK)

Becker
this dark-skinned man was a member of the Alliance, and was imprisoned on Balis-Baurgh just before Junas Turner and Grael were held there. (SWJ1)

Beckon Call
a device used as a remote control for a starship (HTTE)

Beckoning Call Starr 3
Han Solo described this planet as having a reputation for beautiful native women. (JHS)

Becoming One with the Force an ancient Jedi text written by the Master Trayos Toreggen. (TOJC)

Bedjie
this edible fungus grew in the potable water found on the planet Duro. A small pond could be overtaken by bedjie in a matter of weeks, and the refugees who fled the Yuuzhan Vong discovered that they were tasty and nutritious. (BP)

Beebleberry
a fruit used to make delicious ice cream. (LCS)

Beed
this was the name of one of the two heads of the Troig which served Jabba the Hutt as a podracing announcer, during the last years of the Old Republic. Beed, along with his companion Fode, called the Boonta Eve race which was won by nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker. Beed spoke primarily Huttese, in deference to his master, Jabba. This served to compliment Fode, who spoke the universal language of Basic. Beed was distinguished from Fode by its green skin coloration. Beed's voice was provided by Scott Capurro for Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Beedo
a Rodian relative of Greedo's who went to work for Jabba the Hutt following Greedo's death. He was a notorious syncophant, and was afraid of Jabba's wrath should he make a mistake. (ROTJ, CCG7)

Beedo's Wild Ride
this was one of several pro-circuit podraces run on the planet Ando Prime, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Beeli, Venslas
this noted pirate was one of the most feared pirates of the New Order. Little was known of his background, but except that he first appeared as an out-of-work spacer in the Outer Rim Territories. After gaining employment on a pirate ship, Beeli found his own calling: seizing other ships. He was famous for his headlong rushes into a captured ship, blasters blazing as he quickly secured it for his group. When the pirate group broke up, Beeli joined forces with several other pirates and formed the Solar Terrors. They were hunted down by the Empire and Beeli quickly surrendered. He was approached by Vocis Kenit and offered a deal: his life in return for service to the Empire. Beeli agreed to help Kenit by pretending to be a privateer team hoping to join the Alliance. In this way, Kenit hoped the Solar Terrors would hunt down the Far Orbit. To insure Beeli's cooperation, Kenit infected the Solar Terrors with Vira606, and rationed out the serum as the pirates performed their roles. (FOP)

Been L'toth
this Dornean was the son of Kiles L'toth, and eventually took his father place at the head of the Astrographic Survey Institute when Kiles assumed command of the Fifth Fleet. Been and his teams were charged with discovering the exact origins of the Yuuzhan Vong, and felt that they had to be extra-galactic in origin. L'toth rejected the theory that the Vong had evolved in the Tingel Arm, citing the area's proximity to the Corporate Sector and the Imperial Remnant, and pointing out that an advanced civilization so close to those densely-populated areas would have been discovered years ago. (HT)

Beetle Moth
an insect native to Yavin 4. (DK)

Beezer
this Alliance Corporal was chosen as a member of Han Solo's ground team that assaulted the shield generator of the second Death Star on Endor's Forest Moon. A slicer by trade, she was trained as a scout by Brooks Carlson. Beezer specialized in the use of communications and sensors, and was uncomfortable with General Solo's unorthodox techniques. (MTS, CCG10)

Begeren
the Alliance won an early battle against the Empire on this planet. (GG12)

Beggar's Canyon
a great place to fly a skyhopper on Tatooine, Luke Skywalker refined his piloting skills there. Located between the edge of the Dune Sea and Ebe Crater Valley, Beggar's Canyon was named for the hermits who lived there, before they were driven off by Jabba the Hutt. Situated near Ben's Mesa, the canyon was formed from a series of smaller, interconnected canyons which criss-cross the desert, including the Main Avenue, Dead Man's Turn, and the Eye of the Needle. Before Luke and his friends used the canyon, it was part of the Mos Espa podracing course. (SW, SE, IWE1)

Beginner's Luck
this starship was owned and operated by Pyrron Nox. (SWJ12)

Begubb
this Toydarian baron once held an entire village on Ryloth in his control, demanding an annual payment of ryll spice as payment for his "protection." When the village failed to pay on time, Begubb took the village's smartest and most talented children as his personal servants. (E1A7)

Behemoth
this was the codename used by Nawara Ven and the New Republic for Kirtan Loor, after Loor surrendered on Coruscant and agreed to testify on Tycho Celchu's behalf. (KT)

Behemoth
one of three Imperial-class Star Destroyers under the command of Lumiya, following the Battle of Endor. (SWG)

Behn-kihl-nahm
the New Republic's Senate Chairman during the Yevethan Great Purge, he also served as the chairman of the Defense Council. Leia Organa-Solo was very close to him, and nicknamed him "Bennie." (BTS, SOL)

Beidlo
this young B'omarr monk was assigned to be Hoole's escort during the time the Shi'ido worked for Jabba the Hutt, translating ancient B'omarr scrolls to pay of a debt. He was quite jovial and animated for a B'omarr, having been with the order for only a short time before Hoole arrived with his charges, Tash and Zak Arranda. Beidlo's parents had been killed in a Tusken Raider attack, and the monks had taken him in and provided for him. However, Beidlo was one of the victims of Jabba the Hutt's scheme to place criminal brains into new bodies, allowing them to continue their ways without being recognized. Beidlo's brain was removed and placed into a brain spider, while a criminal's brain was inserted into Beidlo's body. When Hoole and Zak defeated Grimpen's plans, Beidlo decided to remain as a brain spider, since he had one day hoped to become enlightened. (GOF7)
2) this Rodian worked as a bodyguard to Treytis Prash, until he was shot and killed by Celia Durasha. Celia was led by Thune to believe that Prash was a bounty hunter holding her partner, Kaj Nedmak. This allowed Thune to eliminate the two bodyguards and capture Prash. (SWJ14)

Beija
this was the name of the thin strip of land which connected the Jhunia snow plains to the Yiulimar Fjords, on the planet Neftali. It walso separated the Beija Seas. (BSS)

Beija Major Sea
this was the larger of the two Beija Seas found on the planet Neftali. It covered nearly a quarter of Neftali's surface, and was 10,000 kilometers across at its widest point. (BSS)

Beija Minor Sea
this was the smaller of the two Beija Seas found on the planet Neftali. It was only a third the size of the Beija Major Sea. (BSS)

Beija Seas
this was the term used to describe the two oceans whic dominated the surface of the planet Neftali. The larger of the two was known as Beija Major, and the smaller Beija Minor. They were separated by the thin strip of land which connected the Jhunia snow plains to the Yiulimar Fjords. (BSS)

Beju
this young man was a Prince of the Beju-Tallah dynasty some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. His mother Veda, the Queen of Gala, realized that the dynasty would not survive for long, as it had grown corrupt and was held in contempt by many of the planet's people. She chose not to simply abdicate the throne to Prince Beju, but opened up a general election to allow the people to choose her successor. Prince Beju was one of the three candidates, although he hated his mother for her blocking of his ascension. The Queen enlisted the aid of the Old Republic, who asked that two Jedi Knights be dispatched to ensure fairness in the election. Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi were sent to Gala, but they were hijacked to Phindar by Paxxi Derida before they could get there. However, while on Phindar, the Jedi learned that Beju was working to strike an alliance with the Syndicat. Beju had begun a false bacta shortage on his planet, and needed additional funding to ensure he was elected to fill his mother's place. He hoped to obtain more bacta and then return to Gala with it, in an effort to be recognized as a hero. This would then give the Syndicat a chance to take control of Gala. However, on the day Beju was to travel to Phindar to cement the alliance, Obi-Wan had been dumped on the planet Gala, supposedly without memories, by the Syndicat. He used the Force to ward off the effects of the renewal process, and managed to capture Beju's personal transport and the Prince himself. Obi-Wan then played the part of the Prince when they landed on Phindar. This allowed Qui-Gon and the Derida brothers to rally the populace of Phindar and expose the plans of the Syndicat, but not before Terra recognized Obi-Wan. Obi-Wan quickly played the part of an imperious prince and avoided a confrontation. As Obi-Wan used his impersonation of Beju to expose the Syndicat and bring it down, the real Beju escaped his bonds and managed to regain control of his and return to Gala. Later, as the Jedi discovered that the elections in Galu were being manipulated, Beju's position was tarnished by Lonnag Giba, who began taking matters into his own hands, but under the guise of commands from Beju himself. Giba attempted to assassinate Elan and arrested Queen Veda herself, all under the pretense that Beju was now in command. Beju, after learning from Viso that he was not the true heir, exposed Giba as a traitor and threw his support to Wila Prammi. Beju was selected to serve as one of Prammi's aides, in deference to his years of royal training. (HP, MOC)

Beju-Tallah Dynasty
see Tallah Dynasty (HP)

Bek, Nizuc
a native of the planet Corulag, Bek was once a bouncer at the Mos Eisley Cantina. He and Wuher became good friends, and Bek was eventually hired by Jabba the Hutt. His role was to protect visiting celebrities who came to play for the crimelord’s pleasure. Bek was known to partake of a little too much juri juice when off duty. (CCG7)

Bekk Tunit
this famous podracer was killed in a crash. It was rumored that Watto obtained one of his gloves from the crash site. (IWE1)

Beknit
Tenel Ka's Randoni alias used when she and Luke Skywalker traveled to Borgo Prime. (SA)

Bel, Sinissima
this woman worked in Jugsmuk Station, on Gamorr, selling specialty items smuggled onto the planet. (SWJ14)

Bel Att
this Iotran was a loyal and brutally efficient enforcer who worked for the Nalroni crimelord Sprax during the height of the Galactic Civil War. After learning that the Yen-2 mining colony was refusing to pay its protection money to Sprax, Bel Att hired Limna Yith and her mercenary band to help retake control of the colony. They were successful in doing so, even destroying an Imperial force on the planetoid, before Yith discovered the colony's computer records were full of information on Jatayus Outbound and its connections to Black Sun. Bel Att was forced to stop her from stealing the computer data, but Limna Yith was too fast for him. She slit his throat with a vibroblade before he could even reach his weapon. (SSR)

Bel Iblis, Arrianya
this woman, the daughter of a wealthy Core Worlds family, married Garm Bel Iblis. She was a staunch supporter of Emperor Palpatine, and her unswerving loyalty to the Empire cut Garm to the core. They often fought about the correctness of Palpatine's rule, and their two children were often caught in the middle of their verbal wars. Arrianya and the children were killed at the Treitamma Political Center, when an explosion meant to assassinate Garm destroyed the Center. (TFNR)

Bel Iblis, Garm
a legendary Corellian who sat on the Old Republic's Senate, Garm Bel Iblis was as charismatic as Senator Palpatine, but not as devious. As Bel Iblis watched, Palaptine quickly took over the Senate and the Old Republic. When the New Order was established, Palpatine sought out Iblis on Anchoron and murdered his family, although Iblis found a way to escape before they could kil him. He made contact with Bail Organa and Mon Mothman, and was influential in organizing the Rebellion and creating the Corellian Treaty. However, when Mon Mothma's charismatic personality began to take over the growing Alliance, Bel Iblis felt she was becoming too strong, and left the Alliance to fight the Empire on his own. He has led a group of freedom fighters, striking against the Empire from a number of hidden bases. Among his compatriots, he is known as the Commander. Bel Iblis continued to stab at the Empire following the Battle of Endor, although he turned his attention to the New Republic. His prejudice against Mon Mothma told him that she would soon make the Republic a dictatorship. Following a successful attack on a Ubiqtorate base on Tangrene, Bel Iblis met up with Borsk Fey'lya, who set him up with a covert supply line in hopes that he could sway Bel Iblis to rejoin the New Republic as one of his supporters. He was later discovered by Han Solo and Lando Calrissian, and he was drawn into the New Republic. He reluctantly decided to help the Republic recover the Katana fleet, and later made a peace with Mon Mothma and joined the New Republic. (DFR, DFRSB)

Bel Typolla, Reginna
known to her friends as Gina, this woman was a docking assistant at the Fabrillan starport during the Galactic Civil War. Prior to this job, she served as a gunrunner during the Medepiest Uprising. After returning to Malthor, she secretly worked for sleeper cell V-16, supplying starship cargo manifests and registry datafiles on all ships passing through the starport to her contact, who was actually Berren Sid Te'. (CRO)

bel-dar-Nolek
this immense man was the Director of the Obroan Institute during the Black Fleet Crisis, when Joto Eckels was exploring the planet Maltha Obex. He was once a prolific explorer, but retired from fieldwork to run the Institute. He believed that archaeology and exploration should not be rushed, since the artifacts that could be found had already waited several millennia. He was part of a faction of educators who felt that the New Republic had basically abandoned Obroa-skai to the Yuuzhan Vong, after the planet was destroyed in an unprovoked Yuuzhan Vong attack. He also blamed the Jedi Knights for the death of Elegos A'Kla. After the New Republic Senate explained that there was no way they could have saved Obroa-skai, bel-dar-Nolek threatened to enter into an alliance with the Yuuzhan Vong in order to recover the data stolen or lost when Obroa-skai was devastated. . (TT, HT)

Bela Vistal
a mid-sized town about 200 kilometers from Coronet, on Corellia. (AC)

Belanti
manufacturers of repulsorlift engines. (WEG)

Belaria Juice
this fruit beverage was favored by the Iotran race. (SSR)

Belarus*-class Cruiser
one of the earliest starship designs approved by the New Republic, the Belarus-class saw limited production. It was designed by Loronar from their popular Strike-class cruiser, and was a bit more efficient in terms of its crew complement but much less adaptable in terms of modularity. Its single-design construction made it cheap to produce. The weapons systems on the Belarus-class cruiser were improved laterally, with 5 turbolaser cannons, 5 turbolaser batteries, 2 ion cannons, and 2 tractor beam projectors on each flank, but the rear quarter was virtually defenseless. Five additional turbolaser cannons, an ion cannon, and 4 tractor beam projectors protect the forward quarter, while only a pair of tractor beam projectors are found at the rear. The Belarus-class measured 400 meters in length, was equipped with a Class-2 hyperdrive, and required a crew of 1,753, with 125 gunners and room for up to 410 troops. (BTS, CTD)

Belascan
this was the name used by the human natives of Belasco. Belascan women wore a trademark, bejeweled headdress whenever they traveled. (DH)

Belasco
this planet was a member of the Old Republic. (DH)

Belassar System
Hutch once piloted Princess Leia Organa on an Alliance mission to this system, telling jokes the entire trip. (JPL)

Belden, Eppie
a strong-willed woman, the former EppeAntruse was married to Bakuran senator Orn Belden, and was a member of the Bakuran resistance to Imperial nationalization. Eppie was later known as a "circuitry commando," using computers and electronics to assist in the sublimation of Imperial efforts. She was 132 standard years old at the time of the Battle of Endor, married to Orn for 101 of them, and suffering from what Imperial doctors had described as a degenerative brain disorder. In reality, she accepted an Imperial parasite that incapacitated her in exchange to her husband's protection. After Orn's death at the hands of Imperial interrogators, Eppie struggled to help Luke Skywalker and the Alliance overthrow the Ssi-ruuk as well as the Empire. Following the Battle of Bakura, the parasite in Eppie's brain was revealed and removed, and she quickly regained strength. (TB, TBSB)

Belden, Orn
this enignmatic and controverisal Bakuran senator was 164 standard years old at the time of the Battle of Endor, and was living with his second prosthetic heart. Shortly after the Empire nationalized Bakura, Orn began supporting the Alliance and its plans to overturn the Empire. Imperial Governor Wilek Nereus wanted to eliminate Orn, but the Senator's public position prohibited any direct action. Instead, Nereus modified the taxation system to virtually impoverish Orn and his wife of 101 years, Eppie. After Eppie was caught during an anti-Imperial demonstration, Nereus forced her to be implanted with a parasite that damaged her brain, rendering her virtually senseless. Orn was forced to spend most of his free time tending to her needs. After the Battle of Endor and the arrival of the Alliance on Bakura, Nereus had Orn arrested for collaborating with Leia Organa. He died during an interrogation session, although the Imperials blamed it on the Alliance team and Luke Skywalker. (TB, TBSB)

Belden, Roviden
this young man, the son of Bakuran Senator Orn Belden, was killed in one of the Imperial purges on Bakura. (TB)

Beldon
a huge, floating creature that inhabits the lower atmosphere of the planet Bespin, the beldon is a balloonlike gasbag that consumes the materials that swirl around the outer, molten layers of Bespin's core. Occasionally, the beldons will rise into the upper atmosphere, feeding on the aerial algae and plankton by dropping thin tentacles into the clouds. There are a number of gas prospectors who claim that the beldon gives off tibanna gas as a by-product of digesting rethin, metals and other elements, but this has never been proven. The management of Cloud City, however, made it illegal to hunt beldons, just in case they actually did produce the precious gas. Another unique characteristic of the beldon is that it is surrounded by a low-power electrical field. This field appears to have no purpose. (GG2, ISU)

Beldon's Eye
this sculpture rests in the very center of Cloud City. Formed from two circular curves which wrap around each other, the sculpture was an artistic representation of the eye of the beldon. It was the symbol of the Cloud City Miner's Guild. (CCG5)

Beldonna's League
this group of freelance mercenaries was hired by the Imperiak Consul-general of Kothlis to help maintain peace during the Galactic Civil War. Over time, the League became soft and complacent, and willingly took bribes to overlook certain crimes. (PSG)

Beldorion
this large Hutt once trained as a Jedi Knight. Like all Hutts, his ego often preceeded him, and he prefered to be called Beldorion the Splendid or Beldorion of the Ruby Eyes. He had a strong affinity for the Force (a trait not often found in Hutts), but had no real control. He claimed he was sent to the planet Nam Chorios with Taselda, as part of a mission requested by their Jedi Masters. However, it is believed that they went to Nam Chorios hoping to obtain additional strength in the Force. He was drawn to the planet by its unusually high concentration of the Force, and found himself vying for the control of the small settlement there with Taselda. Beldorion's limitations were obviated by his inability to form his own lightsaber, so he attempted to steal Taselda's in an effort to obtain complete control. He failed at this, but had captured the interest of Dzym. The huge droch used Beldorion much as he had Taselda, gathering strength from his limited control of the Force. In this way, Beldorion surplanted Taselda as the leader of the settlement. This arrangement lasted until Dzym took control of Seti Ashgad and put the human in Beldorion's place. The Hutt continued to live on Nam Chorios, never escaping from Dzym's ultimate power. It was Beldorion who bargained with Dymurra for the use of several Loronar synthdroids as part of Dzym's plans to take control of the galaxy. Beldorion briefly enslaved Callista, when she tried to discover the Force on the planet, but she escaped him and fled to the mountains. He and Ashgad had a well-publicized struggle for control, which lasted until Dzym forced Ashgad to capture Leia Organa-Solo. Beldorion tried to control Leia's untapped potential for the Force, in an effort to take Taselda's lightsaber and defeat Ashgad. In this effort, Beldorion managed to recover the lightsaber. He intercepted Leia and Luke Skywalker as they tried to repair a ship and take off after Dzym and Seti Ashgad, and became engaged in lightsaber combat with Leia. Leia, having trained with Callista, managed to defeat the Hutt, slicing him open and mortally wounding him. (POT)

Beledeen II
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Belek tiu
this Yuuzhan Vong phrase is used to express an apology or ask for persmission. It is accompanied by a gesture in which the Yuuzhan Vong slaps both hands to the opposite shoulders. (VP)

Belezaboth Ourn
this Paqwe, which carried the title "Extraordinary Consul of the Paqwepori," was a spy working on Coruscant for Nil Spaar. Ourn's job was to monitor the progress of the Fifth Battle Group, reporting its missions to Spaar. Ourn was the owner of the starship Mother's Valkyrie, which was purposely destroyed during the liftoff of the Aramadia. Ourn was able to relay information about the mission to take control of the Koornacht Cluster, which resulted in Spaar capturing Han Solo. However, when the role of the Valkyrie was discovered by Ilar Paqwe, the entire crew was reprimanded and reduced in social standing. Ourn himself had his appointment as Extraordinary Consul revoked by Ilar Paqwe. Rather than return home to humiliation and disgrace, he turned himself in to Leia Organa-Solo and the New Republic. He provided the device which was given to him to communicate with Spaar, allowing the Republic's communications experts to discover Yevethan plans for the Koornacht Cluster and the galaxy in general. (BTS, SOL, TT)

Belgoa
this Trunsk was the Emperor of the planet Trunska during the height of the New Order. (SWJ13)

Belia's Bosom
a smuggling ship referred to by Drub McKumb. (COJ)

Belit
this Gallofree medium transport was used by the Alliance to transport bacta during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Belkadan
this planet, located in the Outer Rim's Dalonbian sector, was the site of the ExGal-4 outpost shortly before the start of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. This was the first planet on the Yuuzhan Vong Vector Prime, and was destroyed in order to draw attention away from the Yuuzhan Vong base on Helska. The planet was, at one time, dominated by dalloralla tree jungles, and was a beautiful wilderness at the edge of the galaxy. Yomin Carr unleashed a colony of dweebits on the planet, which quickly multiplied and affected the plantlife on the planet, rendered the planet's atmosphere a stormy, toxic soup which killed all life. However, just two months after the initial invasion, Belkadan seemed to return to a normal life. Plants and animals were discovered by New Republic scouts, although Luke Skywalker and Jacen Solo discovered that the lifeforms were actually Yuuzhan Vong biological constructs tended by weakened slaves. The native plantlife had been overtaken by dense, green vines that provided nutrients and energy to the growing yorik coral. (VP, DTO)

Belkadan Beetle
this was the term used by New Republic scientists to describe the strange insect used by the Yuuzhan Vong to destroy the ecosystem of the planet Belkadan. (HT)

Bell, Areta
this red-haired woman, a native of the planet Corellia, was a member of the Alliance's Navy. She captained the transport ship Dutyfree during the evacuation of Echo Base, in the midst of the Battle of Hoth. After rising through the ranks, she was given the rank of Admiral by the New Republic, and commanded the Victory-II class Star Destroyer Swift Liberty. (IR)

Bell-bot
another name for a door being. (LCF)

Bellatrig
this is the largest moon orbitting the planet Zelos II. Zelosian superstitions about the moons that orbit the planet has kept them unexplored. (PG2)

Bellberry
a plant native to the planet Endor. (AT)

Bellicose
a Imperial-I class Star Destroyer, it was used as the command ship during Thrawn's Taanab Operation. It was later sent to attack Ando, to draw New Republic ships away from Ukio. (DFR, TLC)

Bellis IV
a planet located in Demetras Sector. (GG10)

Bellorian Ale
a malted, alcoholic beverage fermented in Elrood Sector. (OE)

Bellorin Medical Academy
this was the most prominent school of medicine on Seitia Prime, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ13)

Bellorna
a Selonian verb meaning "speak." (AS)

Bellum
this woman was known as one of Port Town's best forgers. She learned from one of Cloud City's most well-known forgers, and inherited the business when he passed away. She ran Bellum's Keys & Copies with a strong hand, despite her quiet demeanor. Her expertise in breaking locks helped a group of Alliance agents discover X0-X1's location and disable the droid. However, she was shot and killed by 6FT-DP before she could successfully locate X0-X1. (CCC)

Bellum's Keys & Copies
located in Port Town, on Bespin's Cloud City, this locksmith could open any lock of break into any security system. The owner, a woman named Bellum, was also one of Cloud City's best forgers. (CCC)

Belnar
this is the homeworld of the Khil race. (GG12)

Belnar Sector Force
this was the primary military force of the Khil people, and protected their home system from outside invasion. (AIR)

Belorphyn
this frigid world is the ninth in the Derilyn System. (PG)

Belos, Sulen
this young Corellian woman was once a girlfriend of Dael Levare, after Bria Tharen broke up with him. (TPS)

Belovia
a planet which was a member of the New Republic. (BTS)

Belrand
the capital city of the planet Adarloon. (SWAJ)

Belsavis
a frozen world on which the native jungles have been reduced to small clumps covered by protective domes. The jungles, which once filled the planet's volcanic rift valleys, produce vine-silk and vine-coffee. The domes are kept safe from the planet's geological activity by apex-mounted antigrav support systems, and have special light-amplification systems to keep the jungles warm. It has been occupied since just before the rise of Emperor Palpatine, but the domes have been in place for only 14 years. The planet has been an independent ally of the Republic for a number of years. Belsavis is located in the Ninth Quadrant, near the Senex Sector. (COJ)

Belshain
one of the two northern island continents located on the planet Kabaira. (SWAJ)

Belshar Othacuu
this unimportant Core world was the site of a secret COMPNOR base during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Belsmuth II
this planet, the second in the Belsmuth System, was the site of an Imperial technical university which was converted to a pilot training academy by Warlord Zsinj during the early years of the New Republic. The facility was assaulted by Rogue and Nova Squadrons, in an effort to confuse Zsinj about the location of Han Solo's task force. (SOC)

Belt Pirates
see Phosphura Belt Pirates. (LAA)

Belt-Runner I
this was one of the floating stations Lando Calrissian used to monitor and maintain the ships running through Lando's Folly, near Destrillion and Dubrillion. The specially-adapted TIE starfighters used to run the asteroid belt were protected by Belt-Runner I with a system known as collision shields, a combination of repulsor fields, shields, and defensive arrays to protect the small ships, all of which were operated from the remote station. When the Yuuzhan Vong moved to wipe out Dubrillion, Lando was forced to use his forces in a defensive capacity. His ships were not designed for this, however, and when Belt-Runner I took heavy fire, it was forced to withdraw the shielding energy it provided to the starfighters in order to protect itself. This was not enough to save Belt-Runner I, though, as the statoin continued to take heavy fire from the Yuuzhan Vong and was eventually reduced to cinders. (VP)

Beltane
the governor of Balmorra during the years in which Palpatine's clones tried to retake the galaxy. Following years of oppression at Imperial hands, Beltane became a supporter of the New Republic after the reborn Emperor's death on Byss. When Sedriss the Executor rose to power, Beltane tried to keep Balmorra free of Imperial oppression by battling Sedriss with the weapons produced on the planet. Sedriss bowed to Beltane in order to gain more weapons. (DE2)

Belter
this was one of the Ugnaught people's blood professions, passed down from generation to generation within a family. Belters were known for their skills in mining asteroids. (GG2)

Belthu
one of the planets visted by the Night Caller shortly before it was captured by Wraith Squadron near Xobome 6. Belthu was a wealthy world, built from mining colonies and controlled by the corporate executives. The cororate leaders were under the control of Zsinj shortly after the Battle of Endor, and provided him with durasteel in support of his war machine. (WS)

Belvarian Firegnats swarming, bioluminescent insects which create colorful patterns when viewed at night. Some say that the nightlights on Coruscant resemble a swarm of these insects. (SE)

Beme
the Alliance recruiter who signed up Keyan Farlander. (XW)

Bemis
this cold-climate creature was often hunted for its hide. (TMEC)

Bemmie
this near-human native of the planet Vorzyd 5 was a member of the Freelies. He was captured by the Imperials on the planet and torutred fro information, until he was rescued by Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa. When the other Freelies kidnapped the two Alliance agents and held them for ransom, Bemmie tried to tell the others that the Empire was the real enemy. In the ambsuh that followed, Bemmie gave his life helping Luke and Leia escape Imperial capture. (CSWEA)

Bemos
one of the few Imperial Moffs who survived during the New Republic, Bemos was one of the primary leaders of the Empire some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. He was present at the conference held by Admiral Pellaeon, during which the remnants of the Empire discussed surrendering to the Republic. Like Moff Andray, Bemos thought the idea of surrender was preposterous. When Bemos was nervous or agitated, he often fiddled with the codoran ring on his finger. (SOP)

Ben Het
a Dimok Light Calamari cruiser operative during the Sepan Civil War. (TIE)

Ben Quadinaros
this flat-bodied Toong was one of the Outer Rim's least-experienced podracer pilots. He drove a lumbering, Balta-Trabaat BT410 Quadra-Pod podracer that was propelled by four engines, instead of the usual two. Ben entered the Boonta Eve Classic podracer on a bet from Boles Roor. Just after the start of the race, which was won by Anakin Skywalker, the energy binders on Ben's pod were unable to take the strain of controlling the four engines. They let loose, and the four engines flew off in separate directions, leaving Ben unable to compete. (TPM, IS1, IG1)

Ben's Mesa
this piece of tableland, located outside Mos Espa on Tatooine, was known for its convoluted edges. It was named for Ben Neluenf, the greatest Tatooine-born podracer. During the hayday of podracing, Jabba the Hutt established the Mos Espa Circuit racecourse, which wound through the desert surrounding Ben's Mesa. (IWE1)

Bendeluum System
this planetary system had limited Alliance support during the Galactic Civil War. (GG2)

Bendine
this small corporation produced the XR12 line of personal use spacecraft. (IWE1)

Bendone
this planet is the homeworld of the Howler Tree People. (LO)

Bendu
this sect of non-confrontational monks made their home in a monastery, high in the Andobi Mountains of the planet Ando Prime. Their beliefs and their village have remained unchanged for hundreds of years. (RAC)

Bendu Village
this was the name of the settlement occupied by the Bendu monks who lived in the Andobi Mountains of Ando Prime. (RAC)

Bene
this rare mineral was found on a few desert planets across the galaxy. (IWE1)

Benelex, Corvastan
this man was the chief executive officer of House Benelex and the Benelex Bounty Hunters Guild. He was once a bounty hunter himself, and saved the son of the vice-president of the Drearian Defense Conglomerate from Thalassian slavers. Benelex himself was severely injured in the attempt, and his bounty hunter days were cut short. In order to repay the debt, the vice president funded Benelex's dream: the Benelex Bounty Hunters Guild. (GG10)

Benelex Bounty Hunters Guild
headquartered on Paquallis III, Benelex once held Jodo Kast as one of its hunters. This guild was a corporate offspring of the Drearian Defense Conglomerate, the result of Corvastan Benelex's rescue of the son of one of DDC's vice presidents. Over the years, Benelex developed an intense rivalry with the Tresario Bounty Hunters Guild. (TOD, GG10)

Beneris
this arid, rocky world is the first planet in the Atrig System. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Benevolent Guides
this was the name used to describe the roles of V-Tan and O-Vieve within the General Good of the planet Kegan. They formed a government which was largely democractic, although the Benevolent Guides ultimately decided which issues the populace could vote on. In this manner, the Benevolent Guides maintained absolute control over Kegan. (FFT)

Bengat
Manaroo once danced on this ocean world, and rafted on its storm-darkened waters in between competitions. (TBH)

Bengely
this planet is known for its seedy underground and dangerous reputation. (VOF)

Benis
a city located on the continent Kreessi, on the planet Algara II. (PG2)

Benkal Plagues
this was a series of disasters perpetrated by the Happy Blasters. (SWJ13)

Benkin
this doctor was assigned to the Imperial outpost on Lotide. He was extremely old and growing quite senile by the time of the Battle of Yavin. He was the first point of contact for the group of Alliance agents who infiltrated the Lotide outpost, claiming to be academicians from Dakot Seven. Benkin had no idea who they were, and invited them to look around the base. (BI)

Bennbus Polag
this pompous Arconan entrepreneur made his money in just about every shady scheme known in the galaxy. He worked his way up from a lowly pickpocket to becoming the leader of a backwater planet's primary settlement. As he gained experience as a leader and politician, Polag cleaned up his businesses and became more respectable. During the Galactic Civil War, the Alliance pursued Polag during their search for agent Nallok. Polag agreed to help the agents, but instead sold them to the Imperial forces on the planet. (IA)

Bennova
this con artist managed to pursuade a group of Alliance operatives to search out a ship for him, in return for a group of old Nebulon-B frigates. Bennova was really trying to recover the ship from Treetor. (RPG).

Benon
this planet, located within the Delantine system, is the world closest to the primary planet of Delantine. (SA1)

Bentail
this creature, native to the planet Shaum Hii, is a large avian used by the Kian'thar as transportation. They feed on the fish of the planet's oceans. Each Kian'thar establishes a bond with its bentail, and the rapport between them allows them to anticipate each other's actions during the round-up of derlacs. (GG12)

Benthar
this youth, a native of Starpoint on Draenell's Point, was the leader of the gang known as Benthar's Boys. After his girlfriend and second-in-command, Droxie, left him to join the Vibroblades, Benthar was kidnapped by the Vibroblades and held for ransom. There was a team of Alliance agents on the planet, investigation the construction of the Empire's suuply depot in the system, and they were drawn into the gangwar when they exposed Plessus Weege as an Imperial spy. The agents helped rescue Benthar, then convinced both gangs to stop fighting each other and start working against the Empire. (GMK)

Benthar's Boys
this gang of youths was quite powerful during the height of the New Order, but found a dangerous rival in the Vibroblades after the Empire took control of their homeworld, Draenell's Point. The Imperial presence only served to escalate their gangwar, as it brought out tensions which had remained hidden. After a group of Alliance agents rescued Benthar from the Vibroblades, they convinced both gangs to combine their efforts and fight against the Empire, instead of battling against themselves. (GMK)

Beolo
this man served as Jabba the Hutt's majordomo shortly before Narool Cuthas took the position. Beolo had his own opinion of things, and saw and heard only what he wanted to. During his employment with Jabba on Tatooine, Beolo kept a womp rat named Worra as a pet. (CCG9)

Bepp
a genetically-grown food created in Bith hydroponics tanks. Bepp is grown into a 6-centimeter pink cube, and is nutritious but tasteless. (COJ)

Ber'asco
the leader of the Charon race, Ber'asco was also the commander of the starship Desolate. He had his natural body armor augmented by his bioscientists to the point that he was virtually indestructible. His rise to power within the Charon death cult has led him to believe that he is the Final Prophet, meant to lead his people to extinguish all non-Charon life and lead the Charon into the Void. However, even after eliminating all life in Otherspace, Ber'asco had not received any answers about how to truly enter the Void. When the Alliance transport Celestial was flung into Otherspace and captured by the Desolate, Ber'asco thought that he had found the missing link to the Void. Grand Moff Ravik told him of the multitude of life that existed outside Otherspace, and Ber'asco allowed Ravik to live in return for passage to realspace. When Alliance agents attempted to rescue the crew of the Celestial, Ber'asco's plans were thwarted, but only temporarily. He survived their assault and fled back into the recesses of Otherspace, where he planned an assault on the known galaxy. He had his Charon bioscientists design a hyperdrive for the Desolate, and planned to use coordinates from the captured vessel Celestial to make his jump. However, when Ber'asco linked to the ship's computer to coordinate the jump, the mind of Grand Moff Ravik attacked. Ravik took control of Ber'asco's body, and flung his mind into the computer's recesses. Ber'asco eventually found Bane Nothos' body in cryogenic storage, and took control of it. Ber'asco pursued Ravik to Stronghold, an Alliance safeworld, where he joined with a group of Alliance soldiers to halt the Charon advance and defeat Ravik. In a physical struggle that paralleled their mental battle, Ravik crushed the human form of Ber'asco and killed both Nothos and Ber'asco, but not before sustaining large amounts of damage himself. (OS, OS2)

Berandis
this Adumari male was the assistant manager of the Challabae Admits-No-Equal Aerial Eruptive Manufacturing Concern, in the city of Cartann on Adumar. He escorted Wedge Antilles and his Red Flight pilots on a tour of the proton torpedo manufacturing facility. He was a thin man with a ridiculously curled moustache held in place with some sort of wax. (SOA)

Berason
this planet was blockaded by the Empire for its political stance regarding the New Order. Its economy was based on low-tech mining exports, and depended on food and medical supplies imported from other worlds. The Empire used Defender ion mines to keep starships away. Airen Cracken and a group of Alliance starships got through the blockade by sending out agents in vacuum suits to disarm the mines. (CFG)

Berchest
primary planet in the Berchest system, it was a major tourist attraction during the Old Republic, mainly because of Calius saj Leeloo. The Clone Wars severely reduced the tourist trade, and Berchest suffered. When the Empire came into power, Berchest was usurped as an Imperial trade trade world, and has remained under Imperial control following the Battle of Endor. It is described in The Last Command Sourcebook that Berchest is in the Anthos Sector, but The Last Command infers that Berchest is in the Orus Sector. (TLC)

Berchestian Civil Service
this was the primary governmental and administrative body of the planet Berchest. (TTSB)

Berd
this Harixian youth escaped from the Gektl Rahz with the help of Luke Skywalker, C-3PO, and R2-D2. He was adamantly against any further actions that didn't directly lead to the rescue of his mother, Myoris, who was still in Rahz's control. Together, they managed to outwit Rahz and rescue Myoris. (CSWEA)

Berea
the primary planet in the Berea System in the Elrood Sector, Berea is a rocky, mountainous world which was owned and operated by Imperial Mining, Limited. Berea was often beseiged by hail storms and violent winds, and the nighttime temperature that often drops below freezing. Many Imperial prisoners captured during the Galactic Civil War were sent to labor camps on Berea. (PG, OE)

Berea-3
this mining rig was operated by Imperial Mining, Limited, during the Empire's occupation of Elrood Sector. It was built from a standard TaggeCo. mining rig, which was coupled to a stripped-down Quasar Fire-class bulk cruiser. (OE)

Berec Tanaal
this skilled tracker and bounty hunter joined the Alliance just before the Battle of Hoth. Tanaal was evacuated from Echo Base on the Bright Hope, and was chosen by Toryn Farr to lead one of the groups which escaped in a life pod. (TBH)

Berene
this providence of the planet Lianna was involved in the last great independence war recorded on the planet, attempting to free Lianna from the control of the Kingdom of Barseg. Nothing remains of the providence or the society that lived there. (ML)

Bergamasque
this is a species of tentacled, stub-fingered creatures. (HM)

Bergamot
an aromatic plant used by Wuher and C2-R4 in brewing the perfect liqueur for Jabba the Hutt. (TME)

Bergan
this Alliance soldier was part of the group travelling with the Millennium Falcon during the search for Project Starscream. He was killed by he was consumed by Eppon on the planet Kiva. (GOF6)

Bergless
this man was the Imperial sub-prefect on the planet Korbin, until he met with an untimely death. Many felt that Gornt Seron waqs behind his death, since Bergless made no attempt to hide his distaste for the criminal. Bergless fell to his death from his office, an event which many belived was suicide until sub-prefect Neris lost his life in a similar manner after meeting with Seron. (GG11)

Bergruutfa
this creature, native to the planet Sriluur, is used by the Weequay in their ritual sacrifices to their gods. Note that Creatures of the Galaxy claims bergruutfa were native to Teloc Ol-sen. They were also used by other races as beasts of burden, and were known for their loyalty and stamina. Bergruutfas were also known to be keenly intelligent and even possess a sense of humor, learning names and commands quickly and hiding their owner's personal effects as a practical joke. The average bergruutfa stood seven meters tall at the shoulder, and had a large, bony crest surrounding their heads. Their wide snouts produce a lot of saliva, which can create puddles of mud in their wake. (GG12, ROE, COG)

Bering
this man survived for many days in the wilderness of Wyndigal 2 by wrapping himself in the skin of a croator until he could be rescued. (COG)

Berko-8
this is a high-quality solvent used to cleanse the valve nozzles on the blaster-gas canisters. (CFG)

Berleman
the NRI agent in charge of monitoring the turbolifts that descend to the underground safe rooms in Imperial City. (AS)

Berlihat, Russo
this man served Moff Bandor as technician and analytical programmer, although he often was reduced to feeding the Moff's collection of unusual creatures in the underground game chambers. Berlihat graduated from the finest Technical Academy in the Core before being employed by Moff Bandor. Berlihat himself was eventually fed to Bandor's creatures, as a punishment for his constant insubordination. (SWJ12)

Berm
an Alliance container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Bernie
the Dilonexan inspection agent who greets Lando Calrissian when he arrives on Dilonexan XXII with a load of wintenberry jelly, bollem hides, and tinklewood fishing rods. Unfortunately for Lando, the planet has no need for any of those things. Bernie also delivers a message to Lando from Lob Doluff. (LCF)

Berono
a Ripoblus escort shuttle assigned to guard the shuttle Phantele during its rendezvous with the Dimok shuttle Keydon. (TIE)

Berrann
this Barabel shockboxer was taught to fight at an early age. When he wsa old enough, he left Barab I and made a name for himself working for Jabba the Hutt. Jabba sponsored Berrann, whose unique style won him more fights than any other shockboxer in the modern era. When Jabba told Berrann to take a dive against a much weaker opponent and promised riches beyond compare, Berrann found the offer a personal affront. Berrann defeated his opponent in the first round, then fled the system with Jabba's goons on his heels. He found work with another major crimelord, hoping one day to exact a measure of revenge against Jabba. (HR)

Berren Sid Te' a Fabrillan street vendor and a strong supporter of the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Berri
this planet is the homeworld of the Berrite race. It is a hot, smog-shrouded world with higher-than-standard gravity and little natural food sources. It is located in the Inner Rim. (GG12)

Berrille Ada
this man-sized arachnoid alien ran a starship repair and outfitting business on Ord Mantell during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SL)

Berrite
a race of slug-like centaurians, the Berrites have a short stature and sluggish appearance. Their thick bodies are covered in heavy wrinkles of skin, and are supported by four stout legs and wide, three-clawed feet. Their upper torsos are humanoid, with two arms that end in spade-like hands. They have small, deep-set eyes and an open mouth, with five breather tubes along each side of their faces. They have developed geothermal energy sources, and have developed huge factories around this readily available power source. They have learned to cultivate their aspect of dullness when engaged with other races, for it allows them to scan their immediate surroundings with ultrasonic waves. This causes unknowing adversaries to understimate the Berrite abilities while allowing the Berrite to gain a measure of defense. Berrites are hermaphroditic, and have problems understanding the male/female differences. (GG12)

Berrol's Donn
this planet was the site of an Alliance base. (SWSB, TA, GMH)

Bersabba
an Alliance platform supply station destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Bertriak
manufacturers of active jamming systems for starfighters. (WEG)

Berubian
this mineral is highly sought after. Many a con artist has salted a worthless hole in the ground to sell as the real thing. Lando Calrissian was duped by such a trick, shortly after leaving the Oseon System with a shipful of gemstones. (RD)

Beruga
this Wookiee was a slave when she was inadvertently freed by Nim Abek. Since that time, Beruga has worked for Abek as a pilot as well as a saboteur, disabling those ships which Abek wanted to capture. (SSR)

Berusa
this is the first planet in the Garos System. (SWAJ)

Beruss, Avan
a member of the Illodian Beruss family, Avan was a crack starpilot who graduated honors from the Illodian Officers' Academy. He was also a decent sharpshooter, and would have represented Illodia in the Imperial Games if they hadn't been canceled with the destruction of the planet Alderaan. Instead of joining the local defense force, Avan joined the Alliance after his childhood friend, Leia Organa, began working with them. Avan had been serving as an aide to his father, Doman, using his skills to pick up the accents of various member worlds. Doman, an Imperial Senator at the time, strongly disagreed with Avan's decision, fearing Imperial reprisal if Avan's actions were discovered. Avan eventually made it to the Alliance, and following the Battle of Endor was given a position with Rogue Squadron. Most of his piloting skills had been learned in the private sector, since he never attended the Imperial Academt. He learned a great deal from Feylis Ardele about Imperial TIE Fighters, augmenting his own piloting skills. When Soontir Fel defected to the New Republic after the Battle of Brentaal, Avan was assigned to be his wingman. Like most members of the Illodian Beruss family, Avan's emotions were basically extinct, until he met Feylis Ardele. He soon found himself falling in love with Feylis, and they worked hard to keep their relationship a secret. (XWES, HXW, MBF, XWM)

Beruss, Doman
1) a flaxen-haired female Corellian serving with the Alliance, Doman was one of the founders of the New Republic. Beruss later served as chariman of the Republic's Ministry council. Like the Doman Beruss from Illodia, she was named after an ancestor. She was also Avan Beruss' great-aunt. (HTSB, XWES)
2) a member of the primary branch of the Beruss family, Doman was a native of the planet Illodia. Named for a great ancestor, Doman was a member of a long line of political figures from his homeworld, following in the footsteps of his father, two uncles, his sixth grandfather, and his ninth great-grandmother as the representative to Coruscant's government. Doman was an Imperial Senator and a friend of Bail Organa, which allowed his son Avan to become friends with Leia Organa. Many years later, after joining the cause of the New Republic, it was Beruss who urged Leia Organa-Solo to step down from her position as Chief of State, during the so-called Black Fleet Crisis. (WG, SOL, TT, XWES)

Bervin
this Alliance compatriot of Voren Na'al was killed by a Wampa Ice Creature on Hoth. (MTS)

Beryl
this woman was the aunt of Tash and Zak Arranda. She married Hoole's brother. (GOF1)

Beryllius
this silvery metal was used to create antique-looking metalware. (WSV)

Besadii
this is one of the most powerful Hutt *kajidic*s, and was ruled by Aruk during the early years of the New Order. It was Besadii that created the slave trade on the planet Ylesia, placing Teroenza in command while reaping profit both from spice production and slaves. Besadii then established a loose alliance with the Empire, supplying slaves from the Ylesian operation in return for exemptions from taxes. They tried to cripple the Desilijic clan by employing Drell pirates to attack their spice shipments, but they were discovered by the quick piloting and military knowledge of Han Solo. In the aftermath of the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, Besadii began raising the price of processed spice in an effort to weed out the lesser *kajidic*s. When Jiliac called a convocation of the ruling Hutts, Jabba eloquently used the fact that Besadii had escaped from th Battle of Nar Shaddaa without a single loss to sway a vote against Besadii. As a result, the Hutt Council voted that Besadii be fined 1,000,000 credits – to be evenly distributed among the other *kajidic*s – as well as lower the cost of processed spice. (THG, RD)

Besberra
primary planet in the Besberra System. (SWAJ)

Bescane
this cool, temperate world is located in the Obtrexta System, and is densely overpopulated and heavili\y industrialized. The surface of the planet is covered with ugly factories and boxy dwellings, and much of the environment has been destroyed in an effort to obtain raw materials. Most of the workers who toil on the planet were lured there with promises of wealth, only to find themselves heavily in debt to the company which hired them. The planet's goverment is run through the corporate offices of Galentro Heavy Works. The average day on Bescane lasts 30 standard hours, and the year lasts 332 local days. Most of the planet is divided into sections known as "hubs," each with a specialized industry or processing operation. It was here, from among the disconsolate workers, that Moff Jesco Comark kidnapped the subjects for his Death-Hunter cyborg project. (SWJ9)

Besh
this is second script character of the Aurebesh. It equates to the Basic sound of "b". (SOP, SWM)

Besh Gorgon System
this Mid Rim star system was known as the location of The Wheel. It had not planetary bodies, and was made up of a few rogue comets and several asteroids. (ND)

Beshka University
a Kalkal institute of higher learning. (TJP)

Besia Osurne
this is the capital city of the planet Sedesia. (SWAJ)

Beski, Miko
this man was born on a space station in the Duros System, and lived his entire childhood in space. He joined the Alliance shortly after the Empire subjugated the system, and enlisted to obtain Special Forces training. He eventually was promoted to Lieutenant, and was given command of Team 19, reporting directly to Captain Qarl. Beski was a quick study, and his skills kept him line for a promotion to Senior Lieutenant shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (ROE)

Besn
a planet known for its artistic participlays. (ISB)

Bespin
this cloud-covered gas giant was the third planet in the Bespin system. Along with Cloud City, it is known for the tibanna gas it exports as well as for being a major location for playing sabacc. One of the major variations of sabacc is named for the planet, another for Cloud City. It is located just off the Corellian Trade Route. It has a number of natural satellites, and is located near the Anoat System. The gas giant has a quick rotation, taking only twelve standard hours to complete one revolution. Bespin's diameter measures some 118,000 kilometers. Much of the cloud cover over Bespin is well over 1,000 kilometers thick, and surrounds an outer core of seething molten rethin and compressed gas some 52,000 kilometers deep. This outer core exceeds 6,000 degrees, and covers a ball of solid metal 6,000 kilometers across. The average day on Bespin lasts twelve standard hours, but the year lasts 14 standard years. (ESB, ZHR, GG2, ISU, JASB)

Bespin Bandit
Uz Bonearm's triangular Corellian transport ship. It is equipped with illegal, military ion guns. (DE2)

Bespin Grand Hotel
this establishment, set in the clouds of the gas giant Bespin, is famous throughout the Outer Rim for its refreshments. (GG9)

Bespin Motors
a manufacturing operation formed specifically for the creation of Cloud City, Bespin Motors was initially a subsidiary of Incom Industries. Following the nationalization of Incom by the Empire, Bespin Motors employees staged a buyout plan to cut off ties to the Empire. After the completion of Cloud City, Bespin Motors turned their attentions to the production of upper-atmospheric vehicles. They build pleasure craft, planetary transports, taxis, and patrol ships, sch as the Storm-IV Cloud Cars used at Cloud City. (SWSB, GG2, JS, EGV)

Bespin Port
one of the finest port wines created in the galaxy. (GG9)

Bespin Standard Form
basic rules of Sabacc (see Sabacc). (DA)

Bessimir
this planet was the site of the Fifth Battle Group's final training mission. (BTS)

Best Cargo
this modified freighter measured 35 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of laser cannons and a heavy laser cannon. (GA)

Best Chance
this small shuttle was hidden inside the hold of the Lost Hope, during Corran Horn's mission to infiltrate the Yuuzhan Vong presence on Garqi. The Lost Hope was purposely detonated in Garqi's atmosphere, simulating drive failure. Corran and his team then flew the Best Chance with a dead stick, pretending to be a piece of debris until they were below scanner levels. The shuttle lacked hyperdrive, and thus Corran's team would need to be retrieved once their mission was complete. (DTR)

Bestine
a small farming community on Tatooine which Luke uses as his home when questioned by the stormtroopers outside Mos Eisley. The settlement of Bestine is the capital of the planet Tatooine, and was the first settlement established when Tatooine was first colonized. It is located about 200 kilometers west of Mos Eisley. (SWN, GG7, SWTJ)

Bestine IV
located in the Bestine System, this planet was the site of a high-security Imperial base during the Galactic Civil War. The Empire dispossessed the entire population from the planet in order to create a secure environment. The planet has a number of rocky islands. (MTS)

Bestinian Skyhopper
a small, galactic craft produced on Bestine, it differs from the Incom skyhopper in that it can fly in outer space, where the Incom skyhopper is a tropospheric craft. (ROTJN)

Bestrum Algae
this species of algae was native to the planet Baralou, and was exported for use as foodstuff. (PG1)

Beszilov
this was one of the four inhabited continents of the planet Garnib. (PG1)

Bet's Off, The
this cantina was located on the Jubilee Wheel space station. Roa planned to visit the Bet's Off in order to discover information on the whereabouts of Reck Desh. (HT)

Beta supervisor
this was the term used by Kuat Drive Yards to describe the individual in charge of a starship's construction. The β-supervisors all reported to an α-foreman, who oversaw all activities in the shipyards. (HM)

Beta Mission
following the recommendation of an Alpha Team with regards to a newly-discovered planet, if colonization is an option then a Beta Mission is sent to begin the preliminary activities to ready the planet for habitation. (HSL)

Beta Olikark
this planet is known for its beautifully-patterned, natural stones. Many corporations import stone from Beta Olikark to use as flooring. (TA)

Beta Rhama
a planet known to Sam Heggs. (TMEC)

Beta Squadron
this was one of the starfighter groups which protected the planet of Levian Two, during the early years of the New Republic. (SOC)

Beta System
a star system which was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War. (GMK)

Beta*-class Assault Shuttle
designed and manufactured by Telgorn Corp, the Beta-class is the 30-meter-long precursor to the Gamma-class shuttle. These shuttles are sectional and modular, allowing them to be used in a variety of situations. They require a crew of 5 and up to 10 gunners, and can transport up to 40 zero-G spacetroopers in full armor. The Beta-class was armed with 4 laser cannons, a tractor beam, and a concussion missile launcher. The Beta-class was eventually abandoned as a troop transport - giving way to the Gamma-class shuttle, because of structural flaws generated by its modular design. These flaws tended to show up under the stress of a boarding action,and often required a complete refitting after just two years of service. (TTSB)

Beta-class Transport Ship
(COJ)

Betal
this planet is the homeworld of the Poraskors. (CFG)

Betar
an Imperial freighter accompanying the Wiggins, en route to meeting the Star Destroyer Warrior. The Betar was carrying war materiel at the time the convoy was attacked by Alliance starfighters. (XW)

Betha Tangrill
this early representative of the Smugglers' Alliance leadership council worked with Mara Jade during the conversion of the Spice Mines fo Kessel. They turned the prison-labor operation into a legitimate spice-producing company. (JASB)

Betha II
this low-gravity planet is located within the Betha System, which sits at the midpoint of the Danarc Run in Corva Sector. It is a popular world with the smugglers who ply the Run. It was believed to be the center of operations for the Kaarenth Dissension by New Republin Intelligence. The planet is really nothing more than a yellow-orange ball of rock. Its thin atmosphere contains very little moisture, leaving the surface of the planet barren and dry. Many millennia before the Galactic Civil War, Betha II was much more inviting, as its atmosphere still held water. This made is a thriving port along the Danarc Run. However, the planet's low gravity mean that it couldn't hold its atmosphere for long, and this eventually led to the drying out of the planet's ecosystem. The original colonists abandoned the world, and it was uninhabited until smugglers began using it as a based some 30 years before the Battle of Bilbringi. The average day on Betha II lasts 20 standard hours, and its year encompasses 117 local days. Very little habitation exists aboveground on the planet, since the dry surface is often swept clean by dust and sand storms. The caves and canyons of the planet have been expanded and connected with tunnels to support life underground. (SWJ8)

Bethal
this planet, located in the Colonies region, is the primary planet in the Bethal System. An infestation of greddleback termites caused the economy of the planet - which is based on apocia hardwood timber - to go under. (SWAJ)

Bethal Agricorp
a major agriculture business operating from the planet Bethal. (SWAJ)

Bethany
this barren world is the fourth planet in the Kalinda System. (TSK)

Bethars
a planet. (GG7)

Betrayal, The
the name given by the Renatasians to the period in their history when Vuffi Raa was believed to have betrayed their confidence to the invading Imperial fleet. When Klyn Shanga later teamed up woth Rokur Gepta to hunt down Vuffi Raa and Lando Calrissian, Shanga realized that Osuno Whett was the driving force behind the Betrayal, not Vuffi Raa. (LCS)

Betreasley
this was a district of farmers and laborers found on the planet Fedje. Drend Navett and Klif claimed to be exotic pet dealers from this area, when they began working to destroy the shield generator in Drev'starn. (VOF)

Betshish
this swamp world was scouted by the colonists of Wetyin's Colony, but was rejected due to the sentient race that inhabits it. (GG2)

Betsi
this huge, female Whiphid tried to pick up Tycho Celchu at the Darklighter estate, during the search for the Eidolon weapons cache. (XWBT)

Bettle
1) this smugler worked with Jaxa and Mara Jade in establishing a plan to distribute the glitterstim mined on Kessel by the Smugglers' Alliance. (JASB)
2) this woman was the daughter of Jerell, and both were members of the New Republic strike force which liberated Ralltiir from Imperial control after the Battle of Endor. (HR)

Bettok
a planet. (DFRSB)

Bevell III
Jai Raventhorn led a five-man Alliance Special Forces team to this planet, in an effort to capture four Imperial agents. Their mission was compromised, and only Jai escaped. She was promoted because of her survival, but knew that it was more propaganda than reward. (TFNR)

Bevven
an Imperial Commodore stationed on Picutorion, he was in charge of the TIE Fighters assigned to the battle. (ISB)

Bewil
this man was a native of the planet Dentaal, and served the Empire as a Captain. He was known as a computer controls expert, and assisted battle groups by manipulating computers to lure an opponent into a tactical trap. (CCG5)

Bewwil
this city was located on the Hev continent of the planet Garnib. (PG1)

Bextar System
a system of four gas giants located in the Velcar Free Commerce Zone. (SWAJ)

Beylyssa
this bounty hunter destroyed the Alliance base on Durgeon after months of preparation. (SWAJ)

Bezil
a Ripoblus Lambda-class shuttle group used during the Sepan Civil War, as well as in battle against the Empire. (TIE)

Bezzem
a green-skinned alien who met Tem Chesko in Mos Eisley. (SWG)

Bfass Tunnel
a name given by Wedge Antilles to one of the myriad of tubes and passages that were traversed in order for his assault team, led by Lando Calrissian in the Millennium Falcon, to reach the main reactor of the second Death Star. (XWRS)

BFF-1
Phylon Freight's 120-meter bulk freighter. It is a twin-hulled freighter with its main drive located between the hulls. (XW)

BFL-series Droid
this series of labor droid was produced by Serv-O-Droid, and was a follow-on model to the BLX series. (JE)

BG-J38
a thin, insectile Roche J9 worker droid was retained in Jabba the Hutt's retinue because of his expertise at holochess. He was undefeated, although he longed to escape from Jabba or be terminated. (ROTJ, CCG7)

BG-series Assassin Droid
this Old Republic-era droid was believed to have been completely destroyed by the advent of the New Republic, although several models showed up on backwater worlds. (SWJ12)

BG-12
this modified assassin droid was used by Themog to protect the Grinder Dance Hall and Moira Kruger. BG-12 was of a series of droids which hadn't been produced since the Old Republic, although it was thought to be the last of its series. Themog installed a holocamera in BG-12's thorax, and often dispatched the droid to meet with his enemies and deliver ultimatums. (SWJ12)

BG2300
this was a model of Incom sublight engine. The Norulackin pirates who tried to subjugate the world of Tanaab used these engines on their starships. (GOF4)

Bharhulai
these nomads, living in the Doaba Badlands of Socorro, are believed to be the oldest faction of the original settlers of Socorro still alive. The Bharhulai were also considered the most dangerous and territorial of the four main tribes. (SWAJ, BSS)

Bharhulai Tribal Lands
located in the northern polar regions of the planet Socorro, this area was home to the Bharhulai tribes. The borders of these lands were littered with the dessicated corpses of tresspassers and enemies, as a warning to outsiders to stay away. (BSS)

Bhesh
an Old Corellian term for impatience. It can also be spelled 'bhesj.' (SWAJ)

Bhillen
an often-domesticated creature raised for its tasty flesh. (SWJ9)

Bhir'khi Pass
this mountain valley is one of the few accessways leading to the city of Marter An, on the planet Sheris. It was the sight of a repulsortank battle between New Republic forces and Imperial forces supporting Grand Admiral Thrawn. The Imperials were attempting to take control of a major spaceport, and the Republic forces arrived slightly ahead of them and blockaded the Pass. (SWJ9)

Bhoggihalysahonues
the youngest of the three Oswaft Elders at the time when Lando Calrissian was helping them defend the ThonBoka, Boggy (as she was known by Lando) disagreed with the plan to actively oppose the Imperial blockade of the ThonBoka. She and 1,000 other Oswaft attempted to negotiate with the Imperials, and were slaughtered by the ships nearest the mouth of the nebula. They were able, however, to destroy the Courteous when they "shouted" microwave energy at the unshielded cruiser. (LCS)

Bi-state Memory Plastic
a substance that retains two unique molecular structures. This property allows it to be formed into modular forms that can be easily broken down and stored. (DFR)

BI/a15
this was the model number of Atgar's hand-held picket gun. (FOP)

Bib Fortuna
an Una clan Twi'lek, Bib Fortuna was most infamous as Jabba the Hutt's advisor and major domo. Little is known about his background, although it is known that he was among the first Twi'leki to realize that the ryll spice found on Ryloth could be sold at a large profit throughout the galaxy. Fortuna's actions drew the attention of the Empire, which descended on Ryloth and took the Twi'lek as slaves. Fortuna was condemned by his peers, his family name was disgraced and its holdings seized, and he was made an outcast and a fugitive. Fortuna began his revenge by stealing valuables from high-ranking Twi'leki officials, and was in the right place at the right time when Jabba came to Ryloth in search of slaves. Fortuna had simply planned to steal jewels and other valuables from other Twi'leki, but instead found the rubble and destruction caused by Jabba's slavers. In the rubble, he found Nat Secura and took the child to Jabba, claiming that the Hutt would find amusement in controlling the last survivor of a great Twi'lek house. It is for these reasons that the Twi'leks pronounce his name Bib'fortuna, which twists the meaning of his true name, Bibfort'una, to indicate the evil he represents. Jabba had taken Fortuna as an employee and Secura as a slave back to Tatooine. Fortuna's desire for power kept him in good standing with the crimelord. Fortuna and Bidlo Kwerve were in constant competition for Jabba's attention. When the rancor was discovered in the Tatooine desert by Jawas, Fortuna saw that Kwerve might have a better hold on Jabba's good side. Fortuna had to find a way to get Kwerve out of the picture, for it was Kwerve who had recovered the creature from the Jawas. When the two presented the rancor to Jabba, Kwerve puffed himself up in an effort to win Jabba's favor. Fortuna used it against him, making it seem like bravado and showmanship. Jabba disapproved, and sent Kwerve to the rancor as its first meal. Fortuna's first step toward fame and fortune had landed successfully. During his employment under Jabba, Fortuna's main duty was to scout out any plots against Jabba, and warn the Hutt of them. He also served as a "talent scout" for Jabba, and was responsible for bringing Oola and other dancers to Jabba's palace. In reality, Fortuna was looking out for himself. He used many of the plots as smoke screens to cover his own plots. Fortuna had grown rapidly disgusted with the Hutt, and secretly plotted with the B'omarr monks that lived in Jabba's palace against him. He hated the monks almost as much as he hated Jabba, for the disembodied brothers always frightened him. His first encounter with a "brain walker" had led to his firing a blaster at it, killing the disembodied brain. However, Fortuna realized that the monks had built the castle, and they still roamed it, keeping a great deal of secrets. Fortuna, however, was not out to claim Jabba's position as crimelord; he simply wanted to acquire enough power and wealth to return to his homeworld of Ryloth and conquer it. He planned to use Nat Secura as a sign to the Twi'lek that Fortuna was the only choice as ruler. When Luke Skywalker rescued Han Solo and Princess Leia had killed Jabba, Fortuna fled to the cargo hold of Jabba's sail barge and fled in a hidden skiff; he set off a thermal detonator as he left, ensuring the destruction of the crimelord. All of Fortuna's planned crumbled to dust, though, following Jabba's death. He returned to the palace, only to be overcome by the B'omarr monks. They removed his brain from his body and placed it in a nutrient jar, allowing Fortuna to forever contemplate his actions. He continued to monitor many of his secret accounts, and kept alive the hope that he and Nat would be rescued and placed into cloned Twi'lek bodies. Eventually, Bib Fortuna's brain walker was captured by Firith Olan, who hoped to wring information on Jabba's criminal empire for his own use. Fortuna bided his time, until Firith Olan was injured by Marl Semtin at Eidolon Base. Fortuna managed to drag Olan's body back to Jabba's palace, where he had the B'omarr monks swap their brains. Fortuna then went into seclusion, gathering his strength to make a future bid for power. Bib Fortuna was portrayed in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi by Michael Carter, and by Alan Ruscoe in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace*.* (ROTJ, TJP, KT, XWBT, IG1)

Bibble, Sio
this man was the Governor of the planet Naboo, at the time when Queen Amidala was elected. During her campaign against King Veruna, Sio Bibble was one of Amidala's chief detractors. However, as he listened to the young speak, he quickly came to realize that she was exactly what the planet needed in a leader. He soon switched camps, growing more and more loyal to Amidala and her plans. He was a courageous man who believed in Amidala's abilities, and supported her election. When the Trade Federation blockaded their world and Amidala traveled to Coruscant to plead their case to the Senate, Bibble remained behind to hold of the Neimoidians. He willfully resisted their attempts to force him to ratify a treaty that would legitimize the invasion, and maintained the planet's sovereignity until Amidala could return. Once rejoined, Bibble worked with Amidala and the Jedi Knights to capture Nute Gunray and force the Federation to withdraw. Sio Bibble was portrayed by Oliver Ford Davies in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, JQA)

Biblack
this retired smuggler owned and operated Biblack's Overhaul on Lianna. He had a good reputation as a businessman and friend, and frequented the bars of Lola Curich. (ML)

Biblack's Overhaul
this starship repair facility is located in the city of Lola Curich, and was well-known among the smugglers and outlaws who flew through the Lola Curich starport. (ML)

Bicha
this Melida was the father of Pinani. Bicha was killed in the long-standing battle between the Melida and the Daan. (DOD)

Bickey
this New Republic recruit had washed out of starfighter training shortly after Lara Notsil was transferred to the Screaming Wookiees. Bickey, like Lara, was transferred to Colonel Repness' team just days after she arrived. When she exposed Repness' blackmarket schemes, she felt a twinge of regret when she was forced to expose Bickey's falsified grades. (IF)

Bid'Jerma Dentention Block
this Imperial penal colony was located on an unspecified world. The Alliance established Outpost Cinder near this facility, in an effort to recover fifty soliders imprisoned there. (HAS)

Biddyn, Jakob
an Alliance Special Operations Group leader during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Bidlor, Myk
this slightly-built forensics specialist was hired by Durga the Hutt to determine what killed his parent, Aruk. Bidlor was paid handsomely by Durga, and eventually discovered the toxin X-1 concentrated in Aruk's brain. (RD)

Bier
this miner worked for the Offworld Mining Company on Bandomeer. He was part of the group of miners who worked the deep waters of the Great Sea of Bandomeer. Bier was one of the first casualties attributed to the presence of ionite in the planet's crust. After diving into an area of ionite ore, the instruments on his aquasuit stopped working. Bier was unable to accurately gauge the suit's operations, and died when he ran out of breathable air. (DR)

Big Bunji
a minor criminal, Big Bunji was a lavender-hued humanoid with a wide body and a huge head. His eyes were like saucers, and his hair resembled a slate-colored bird's nest. His large ears were pink in coloration, and looked like wings. once hired Han Solo and Chewbacca to run chak-root to Gaurick, agreeing to pay for all their expenses during the contract. Han and Chewie made a number of runs to Gaurick, each one more difficult because the local religious leaders deemed chak-root an illegal substance. One run turned disastrous for them, as the planet's fleet severely damaged the Millennium Falcon as it tried to escape. Han was also forced to dump the load of chak-root he was carrying to get away. Based on the promise Big Bunji made, Han and Chewie had repairs done on the Falcon, and added them to Big Bunji's account. However, they son received a bill from Big Bunji for the chak-root and the repairs to the Falcon. Han's temper flared up, and he strafed Big Bunji's pressure dome with laser bolts, eliminating its atmosphere and causing innumerable amounts of damage. Big Bunji later had his assistant, Squeak, approach Han about a job at the Mos Eisley spaceport, claiming no hard feelings remained between them. However, Han had already taken on Luke Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi. Big Bunji laid low during the Galactic Civil War, eventually setting up shop near Ord Mantell. After the initial phases of construction were completed on the Jubilee Wheel space station, Big Bunji moved his operation there. He went by the pseudonym of "Boss B" to maintain relative anonymity. Big Bunji and most of his organization managed to escape the Yuuzhan Vong attack on the station, making their way planetside to regroup. (SWR, HSE, CSA, HT)

Big Gizz
known as the Gizman, this hulking humanoid stands over 2.5 meters in height, and was the captain of Jabba the Hutt's swoop gang on Tatooine. He led his swoop gang, with Jix in tow, to take out Luke Skywalker in a dangerous swoop race through Beggar's Canyon. Big Gizz had long, shaggy hair and a well-muscled physique. He had large, pointed ears and a toothy maw. He was injured in the swoop chase when Dash Rendar arrived to help Luke, and tried to get out of Beggar's Canyon with Jix. However, Gizz knew too much about Jix's past, and so Jix killed him before they could return to Jabba's palace. Big Gizz's body was found by the B'omarr monks that lived in Jabba's palace, and was reanimated. The fatal wound that killed Gizz was repaired, and a thick metal plate was installed to cover the hole in his skull. It continually picked up stray communications signals. After being reunited with Spiker, they set off to locate Jabba's hidden trove of weapons on board the escape ship Spirit of Jabba. They hoped to become pirates on their own. Big Gizz's plate picked up comm signals from Gorga the Hutt, who had come to Tatooine to hear Jabba's will and had been left out of the major inheritance. Gorga hoped to recover some of Jabba's Mendacian funeral urns, but stumbled upon the ship first. They managed to steal the ship before Gorga could obtain it, but failed to override the ship's security system. The interactive tape took control, venting atmosphere and locking out user control. Just when they thought they were doomed, the Nemphas tried to intercept them. They were forced to crash-land the ship outside of Mos Eisley in order to escape Gorga the Hutt's minions. Spiker and Gizz survived, and made their way back to civilization. (SEC, SSE, TJT)

Big Green Fish
an expletive used by Yarbolk Yemm, as in "by the Big Green Fish." (POT)

Big Hill
a city on the planet Lucazec. It is connected to Jisasu via Crown Pass Road. (BTS)

Big Jak Targrim
this four-armed, hulking alien was the pirate leader of the Riders of the Maelstrom. His genetic structure has been altered over time by the addition of gene material from various evil criminals and warlords to make him even more ruthless and evil. This plicing of genetic patterns has resulted in Big Jak having a wildly-variable personality, as each of the genetic patterns tries to assert itself. His face was scarred in battle. Big Jak resented the intrusion of Rodin Higron's pirate group on Oasis, and schemed to capture a large ship passing through the Maelstrom. Once he was in control of a large ship, he would set it on autopilot to crash into Oasis and destroy Higron's pirates. Big Jak's chance came when the Kuari Princess made its way through the Maelstrom. The Riders were able to board the luxury liner and gain control of its bridge. His plot was foiled by the timely intervention of Alliance agents, who were on board the ship trying to thwart the plans of Imperial Moffs Vanko and Torpin. Big Jak managed to escape before the Alliance agents could capture him. (RM)

Big L a slang term used by starpilots to refer to lightspeed. (HSE)

Big Maxiboss Gurunda
this was the name of one of the statues found in the Gungan Sacred Place. It was one of the first statues stolen by Captain Swagg, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. It was later replaced when the Gungans managed to runn Swagg off the planet. (E1A11)

Big Nasty Free-For-All this competition was held at the Gungan Festival of Warriors. It pitted a great number of Gungan soldiers - often more than 400 - against each other in a race against the elements. There was a basic set of rules, but, in general, anything was fair. The initial stage of the event involved the competitors trying to capture bouncing gulliballs, and was known as the gulli-brawl. The number of gulliballs available was exactly half the total number of competitors, and so half were eliminated in the first round. The second phase involved placing the gulliballs in elevated chutes, and was known as the gulli-throw. Those Gungans who successfully deposited their balls moved onto the third phase, which involved a race through the ocean to the swamplands surrounding Lake Umberbool. Once on land, the racers had to reach a checkpoint and then dive back into the water from a high cliff. Once in the water, they had to return to the arena. The first Gungan to cross the finish line was declared the winner. (E1A10)

Big One
this was a nickname used by the Priapulin to describe the primary parent of a family. All other offspring worked for the betterment of their parents, and revered their "Big One" like a god. (RP)

Big Push, The
a slang term referring to the killing of another individual. (LCM)

Big Quince
this Sludir slavelord was a gladiator fighting in the pits on Loovria. After retiring, Big Quince continued to carry his gladiator's force pike as a reminder to all of his prowess in the pits. He once owned the lives of Platt Okeefe and Tru'eb Cholakk, until both smugglers managed to steal his personal shuttle and escape. (SWAJ, CRO)

Big Quince, The
this sleepy bar and grill was located on the planet Chrona, in the mining town of Corestrike. (SWJ12)

Big Score
this Action VI transport made a regular run to Azzameen Station during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Biggs Field
found near Imperial City on Coruscant, this airstrip was named to honor Biggs Darklighter's sacrifice during the Battle of Yavin. (SOL)

BigHaul
this robo-hauler was manufactured by Cybot Galactica. (CSA)

Biitu
a planet whose lush farmlands were destroyed early in the Galactic Civil War when the Great Heap installed a fuel-ore processor there. The processor consumed much of the planet's moisture, rendering it a barren wasteland. (TGH)

Biituian
native to the planet Biitu, these hairless, green humanoids were primarily farmers until the Great Heap destroyed their planet. (TGH)

Biituian Fen-hare
this small creature is found on the planet Biitu, and is easily frightened. (SLS)

Biivren
an Imperial industrial world that was intentially contaminated by the fleeing Imperial forces after the Battle of Endor. The Imperials also undermined several major corporations. (SWAJ)

Bijo Hammax
a Narvath member of the New Republic Intelligence agency, Bijo was a member of the Narvath resistance and a strong supporter of the Alliance. He was assigned to lead the assault team that would have penetrated the Teljkon vagabond, if Lando Calrissian hadn't gotten there first. (BTS)

Bilal
this gaseous substance is used in chemical warfare. (POT)

Bilanaka
a low-cultured, sentient races subjugated by House Vandron and made to work the breeding farms on Karfeddion. (COJ)

Bilar
a short, pudgy alien race with long arms, short legs, and no hair, the Bilars look like bald teddy bears with frozen smiles. The ears of a Bilar are quite large, and are capable of hearing in infrasonic and ultrasonic wavelengths. The ears can be swivels in different directions, allowing the Bilars to use them with great efficiency. Their eyes are large and black, and can gather light in the darkest of nights. However, they are not a dominating race, and have survived more vicious forms of life on their homeworld of Mima II by staying in large groups for safety. This behavior soon became part of their genetic makeup, and they have evolved the need for a group mind in order to function. On their own, single Bilars are dumb animals. Together, they form claqas (group minds) in which the overall intelligence of the claqa doubles with each additional Bilar mind. The average number of Bilars in a sentient claqa is four, while a genius claqa has at least seven Bilars. There is a single instance of a 10-Bilar claqa which became the entity known as Unni Yerudi. (GG4)

Bilba Tree
a species of tree native to the planet Dantooine. (GOF11)

Bilbousa
this was one of the larger port towns located on the planet Nal Hutta. (TFNR)

Bilbringi
this asteroid belt was under Imperial control until the Battle of Bilbringi. (TLC, TTSB)

Bilbringi VII
this medium-sized planetoid is part of the larger Bilbringi asteroid field. It was also the site of an Imperial shipyard under the command of General Drost, during the reign of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (TLC)

Bildog
this creature, native to the oceans of Chad, is semi-domesticated and is harvested for its tender flesh. They can grow to lengths of 150 meters or more, and measure 15 meters in diameter. Their skin is covered with a thick, sub-dermal tissue that acts like armor despite its apparent softness. The bildog is a stupid but mean-spirited creature, which sometimes makes them hard to herd. They congregate in groups of five to fifty individuals. (SWJ10)

Bildor's Canyon
a desert canyon found on Tatooine, it was the site of Wimateeka's clan fortress. It bordered Ariq Joanson's moisture farm. (TME)

Billey
a smuggling overlord and contemporary of Talon Kaarde, Billey ran much of the black market bacta on Coruscant shortly after the planet was liberated from Ysanne Isard. He was something of a legend among smugglers, surviving in the profession for more than sixty years. He believed that he was his own good-luck charm, since he seemed to be able to escape from any possible situation. His luck lasted a few years, until he was injured in a botched spice run. He was imprisoned at Goshyn, where he refused cybernetic replacements for his most-damaged parts. When Talon Karrde suggested the smugglers' alliance, Billey spent much of life in a repulsorchair in order to get around. It was believed that Billey was from Corellia, but he has never revealed his origins. (TLC, BW, TTSB)

Billi B and the Paradise Gang much of this muscial ensemble’s music was banned by the Empire. (SWJ9)

Bilsek, Lav
this Alliance armed forces Commander was placed in charge of the assault team sent to destroy the Empire's HoloNet relay station on Altratonne. (MBC)

Bimm
bipedal, half-furred residents of Bimmisaari; the Bimms are short humanoids who love to tell stories and are enamored of heroic feats. Thyey are generally a peaceful people who welcome visitors with laughing voices and open arms, and they all dress in yellow. They are also excellent hagglers, and spend much of their days shopping and bargaining with each other. (HTTE, TTSB)

Bimmiel
1) this was the name of the leader of the Imperial survey team which discovered the MZX33291 System. (DTO)
2) this world was the fifth planet from the sun which centered the MZX33291 system. Originally discovered by Imperial scouts, Bimmiel was thought to be a temperate world of grassy plains and cool deserts. However, it was later learned that the Imperials had first landed on the planet during its closest inbound pass to the sun. An xenoarcheology expedition funded by the University of Agamar learned that Bimmiel had an elongated, elliptical orbit which brought the planet well away from its sun at its furthest path, plunging the planet into a deep winter. They named the planet after the leader of the Imperial survey team which first found it. The xenoarch team had been studying the relationships between the slashrats and the shwpi when they discovered the fifty-year-old remains of Mongei Shai, a Yuuzhan Vong warrior killed on the planet five decades earlier, indicating that the Vong had been able to break through the hyperspace distrubance at the edge of the galaxy long before they actually attacked Belkadan and Helska. The students also discovered that the planet's magnetic field shifted on a regular basis, making any static map of the world obsolete in twenty to fifty years. (DTO)

Bimmini
a world that the New Republic tried to enlist shortly before the emergence of Admiral Daala from the Maw Installation. (JS)

Bimmisaari
a world that the New Republic is trying to enlist, this planet is the homeworld of the Bimm race. It is a temperate, forested world whose day lasts 26 standard hours, while its year lasts 302 local days. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Bimmisaari was overrun during the second wave of attacks.(HTTE, HTSB, HT)

Bin
this city was located on the planet Melida/Daan. It was defended by the Daan shortly after the Twenty-First Battle of Zehava. (DOD)

Bin, Drelmar
this pencil-thin, hawk-nosed human owns the kyrf plantations on the planet Korbin. He was a corporate executive until it was discovered he was embezzling funds from it. He fled, and set up residence on Korbin. There, he killed the former owner of the kyrf plantations - the man who had perfected the creation of kyrf liquor - and took control of kyrf production. (PG2)

Bin Binnari
this Professor worked at the New Republic Astrographic Survey Institute. Binnari was assigned to accompany Lieutenant Shella Harin on a fact-finding mission to Leria Kerlsil during the Human League crisis on Corellia (CTD)

Bin Essada
a not-quite-human Imperial Moff, ruling the Circarpous system from the territorial world of Gyndine. He is extremely obese, with multiple chins lapping over his collar. He has curly black hair which is accented with areas of white and am orange-colored spiral design near the top. He has dark eyes with pink pupils. (SME)

Bin-Garda-Zon
this Cerean was a rogue and a pirate, easily distinguished by his lack of two fingers on his left hand. Instead of raiding the spacelanes of his home system, though, Bin kept to his homeworld and raided the villages of his compatriots. Among the treasures Bin hoped to steal were male Cerean children and well over 100 wives, in the hope that his band would continue to grow in influence and power. Bin and his band of female pirates held the small villages of Cerea under his control for more than two decades, until Ki-Adi-Mundi returned to his homeworld after completing his early training as a Jedi Knight. Ki had been charged with eliminating the threat of Bin-Garda-Zon, but returned home to find him a vindictive old man who had been bested in the khana by one of the younger woman of his band. When the younger generation of pirates decided to submit to Ki's laws after their leader was bested by Ki himself, Bin furiously refused to let go of his control. He swore at the young Jedi, but was unable to sway his former band and was disgraced. (PTR)

Bin Gassi Racing Engines
manufacturers of podracing engines and complete racers. (IG1)

Binarian Carnivorous Plant
this species of plant is found in the jungles of the planet Binaros. It appears to be nothing more than three large, orange and red leaves surrounding a stalk-like central section. Root-like tendrils spread out from the center. The plant lies in wait for a small creature to get within the reach of these tendrils, which whip out and snare the creature. The plant then drags its prey to the bulb at the top of the stalk, which is actually a mouth-like hole filled with digestive juices. (KO)

Binarian Sabercat
this huge predator is native to the planet Binaros. Resembling an eight-legged lion, the sabercat has two large fangs studding its upper jaw. These cats also have a long tail which is tipped by a bony nodule which plays parts in defense and mating. Their fur is tan in color, and is dotted by greenish spots which camouflage it from prey. (KO)

Binaros
this planet was located in a system of young worlds was located in the Kathol Outback. The surface of Binaros was covered with dense forests that supported an incredible variety of flora and fauna, although no sentient life has evolved on the planet yet. The average day on Binaros lasts 32 standard hours, and the planet's year encompasses 110 local days. Binaros was the site of a small cult which worshipped a hermit-like deity. The small colony established by the cultists was eradicated by disease, but their single temple remained intact. Imperial forces took control of the temple, using it as a research base dedicated to producing biochemical weapons. When Moff Sarne was forced to flee Kal'Shebbol, the base was abandonded. (KO)

Binarran Cloud
an inhabited nebular region of the galaxy. (DFRSB)

Binary Bar
a tavern located in Ven-Kav, on Venaari. Cohden K'Reye once said that it was one of his favorite hangouts. (SWAJ, WSV)

Binary Cantina
a song written and played by the band Red Shift Limit. It was first released as part of the compilation entitled Dangerous Dreams, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Binary Loadlifters
a primitive droid used to move heavy objects. (SW)

Binder
this Interdictor-class cruiser was part of the fleet commanded by Prince-Admiral Krennel. He used it to trap Admiral Ackbar's fleet near Ciutric, during the New Repiblic's attempt to liberate the planet. However, as soon as Captain Phulik fired up the gravity well projectors, Ackbar implemented the Thrawn Pincer. The gravity shadows created by the Binder helped drag the Selonian Fire and the Corsuca Fire out of hyperspace behind Krennel's fleet, and the two Republic ships quickly dispatched the Reckoning. Before they could be destroyed, the crew of the Binder surrendered to the New Republic fleet. (IR)

Binder-gyves
binder-gyves are a form of handcuffs used to bind the wrists of a captive. (ROJR)

Binders
handcuffs that are connected without a link, restricting the movement of a captive's hands. (SW)

Bindu
one of the survivors of the Battle of Hoth, Bindu was evacuated on the Bright Hope. (TBH)

Bindy Bend
this location, near Ben's Mesa on Tatooine, was the site of an ancient river delta. (IWE1)

Bing, Calus
this megonite harvester was working with Sparu to steal megonite from Lady Tarkin and sell it on the black market. They had arranged to meet Han Solo on Phelarion, and transfer the megonite to the Millennium Falcon. When Leia Organa was stranded on Phelarion and became one of Lady Tarkin's servants, she agreed to help them send a message to Han, although she was unaware that it was Han himself. However, in order to escape from Imperial forces gathered on Phelarion, Calus and Sparu were forced to destroy the megonite. They reached the Falcon just ahead of the Imperials and fled off-planet. (CSWEA)

Binjinphant
an extremely rare, arboreal marsupial with a long body. (DCAR)

Binka Tree
a tree found on the planet Agamar. (XW)

Binn Ibes
this Jedi Master was a contemporary of Qui-Gon Jinn. (CT)

Binring Biomedical Product
this Imperial-aligned corporation produced field rations and other foodstuffs for Imperial troops. After it was "nationalized" by Warlord Zsinj. Binring became involved in the genetic manipulation of several non-human species in an effort to adapt them to different environments and occupations. It was based on the planet Saffalore, in the city of Lurark. When Zsinj discovered that there had been at least test subject who escaped from the facility, he ordered it closed down and all laboratory work transferred to the Iron Fist. The New Republic sent in Wraith Squadron, which successfully infiltrated the headquarters of Binring, but found that Zsinj had already moved much of the facility. However, they were able to capture Doctor Edda Gast in the attempt. (WS, SOC)

Binspo
this is a casino game found on many luxury liners. (RM)

Binx, Jantaa
this human Floubette dancer was thrown out of the Marqua Spas for performing the dance at the annual Panelan feast. The dance is done primarily by avian races, but is considered a revolting display when performed by humans. Binx was the only known human performer at the time. (SWJ9)

Bio-cap
this emergency medical device was designed to assist field doctors who dealt with severed limbs. The bio-cap was placed over the remaining stump, keeping flesh and bone alive until a bionic prosthesis could be attached. (SWJ9)

Bio-energy Array
this prototype biological weapon was developed by the Qektoth Confederation. Like many of their other designs, the bio-energy array has the ability to pass through conventional shields to attack the target below. The weapon discharges a blue, lightning-like tangle of energy at its target, much like the pulse from an ion cannon. However, the weapon requires so much power to operate that it effectively drains the starship of power. Shields and life support suffer until the weapon can be recharged. (KO)

Bio-hound
this Imperial target tracking construct is the lowest form of cyborg created. The bio-hound is a malleable blob of organic material which can change shape as the environment dictates. Impregnated in the flesh of the bio-hound are stimuli receptors which send data to a bio-comp interface. A bio-hound is “programmed” by providing it with a genetic clue from the intended target: skin cells and hair are the most common. The bio-hound is then let loose on the planet where the target exists, and it begins testing the environment for signs of the target. The bio-hound is semi-intelligent, and can change shape or solve simple puzzles to maintain its search. Once it finds its target, the bio-hound “tags” the target with a clear, odorless liquid tracer that can be easily detected by Imperial agents. Some bio-hounds are equipped with acidic poisons in place of the tracer liquid, making them deviously simple assassins. (CFG)

Bio-lense
this synthetic material is used to cover and color the iris of a humanoid eye. They can be manufactured to exactly conform to the shape of the iris and pupil, and are used by spies and undercover agents to disguise their true eye color and shape. (RD)

Bio-plasmatic Gel
developed by the scientists of the Qektoth Confederacy, this substance was a highly corrosive acid blended with a sticky gel. When launched in torpedo casings against a starship, the casing exploded and sprayed the gel all over the target's hull. The gel stuck to the hull, which the acidic corrosive began to eat through the metal plating. Unless removed, the gel eventually ate through the hull and breached the ship. The gel lost strength over a short period of time, and could be burned off the hull during passage through an atmosphere. (KR)

Bioflesh
the synthetic flesh used to cover bionic prosthetics. (TME)

Biogears Unlimited
this bioengineering company, bankrolled by the Empire, produced the first bio-hounds for Imperial use. (CFG)

Bioniip Laboratories
this manufacturer of bio-comp implants was based on Bespin's Cloud City. The leaders of the company were given positions on the city's Exex during their tenure. (GG2, CCC)

Bioscan
this device is a scanning and diagnostics package developed for use by doctors and field medics, and allowed them to identify and analyze the biological condition of a living being. (SESB)

BioTech Industries
this Corellian company produces some of the finest cyborgs for use in many applications. It also produces medpacs and other first-aid packages. Marl Semtin arranged for an Imperial raid on the corporation's Ambria campus, in hopes of obtaining a pair of human eyes to replace the ones he lost. He was forced to settle on a pair of Trandoshan eyes instead. (RPG, CFG, HXW, CRO)

Biotic Grenade
this was an explosive used in many mining operations. (DR)

Birdlizard
a term used to describe the Ishi Tib race. (ROTJN)

Birdloe
this Imperial Lieutenant was one of the highly-skilled stormtroopers working for Captain Sodarra during the search for Darth Vader's body, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. It was later revealed that Birdloe was also a spy, working for Governor Vellam. Birdloe tried to waylay Sodarra's plans to return Vader to Coruscant when they landed on Shador. There, Birdloe shot Taslo Deville and tried to kill Sodarra in the process. When he was unable to do so, Birdloe fled the scene. (SL)

Biril
one of two Invid pirates, along with Laanars, who posed as stewards aboard the Tinta Palette shortly before the Invids attacked it. (IJ)

Birkby
an Imperial freighter under the protection of the shuttle Krayt near Bonadan. It was attacked and destroyed by Alliance starfighters. (XW)

Birket
this Imperial Security Bureau agent spent much of his career trying to track down Platt Okeefe. He once ran across the bounty hunter Boddu Bocck, and his assistant was killed when one of Bocck's poison-tipped darts pierced her heart. Bocck claimed the shot was an accidental discharge, but Birket never forgot or forgave the bounty hunter. However, when his own resources failed to ensnare Platt, Birket turned to Boddu Bocck and employed him to bring down Okeefe. He used the fact that Darrik had stowed away on the Last Chance as a reason for the bounty, claiming Platt kidnapped him. Birket also requried that Bocck bring in Tru'eb Cholakk, and all three needed to be alive. Bocck managed to capture Tru'eb on Tatooine, but Platt and Darrik managed to rescue her partner and get off the planet. They captured Birket in the escape from Tatooine, and Tru'eb eventually sold him into slavery. (IDC)

Birn Da'p
this Bith and his mate, Lologin, were veteran vacationers travelling on the Kuari Princess when it was attacked by the Riders of the Maelstrom. (RM)

Birrge
this man was a sanitation worker in Hanna City, on the planet Chandrila, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Despite his age and his occupation, he was quite friendly with strangers, and often assisted spacers who were new to Chandrila in getting to their destinations. (PSG)

Birth of the Alliance this was one of many pro-Alliance holo-vids produced by No-Holds-Barred during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (WSV)

Birth-tree when an Ewok is born, a seedling is always planted in the forest. This seedling then becomes the Ewok's birth-tree. (AT)

Biscuit Baron
this largest Imperial restaurant chain is a subsidiary of TaggeCo. (CSA)

Bishop of War
once the leader of the warrior caste of Sedrians which protected the Golden Sun, the Bishop of War became the nominal leader of the Sedrians after the Empire was driven from Sedri. The position was nearly made obsolete after the break-up of the Golden Sun, when many Sedrians believed the Golden Sun had died and would never return. (SSR)

Bissillirus
Imperial Commander Resner believed that the system surrounding this star, located in Trax Sector, was the perfect place for the Empire to establish a supply depot, during his hunt for the Alliance forces in the sector. The system was discovered some 200 years before the Battle of Yavin by a group of Old Republic scout whose hyperdrive cut out in the middle of nowhere. The scouts were led by Arnoll Draenell, who mapped and named each of the five planets which orbited the star. When the Alliance discovered Governor Bursthed's plans to build a huge Imperial resupply station just outside the system, the Alliance sent out a team to disrupt its construction. Any large-scale Imperial presence in the system would have disrupted the flow of agricultural foodstuffs to the Alliance from Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Bissillirus Blasters
this Imperial squadron was part of the ground forces on Draenell's Point, during the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GMK)

Bissillirus Resupply Base
this was the name of the proposed supply station the Empire planned to build on the outer edge of the Bissillirus System, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The base would provide resupply services to the fleet which patrolled Trax Sector. The base was under construction when a group of Alliance agents learned of its presence in the system. Construction on the base was halted, and all development stopped, when the Alliance forces managed to cut off the food supply to the station and defeated the Empire's ground forces on Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Bist
a domestic farm animal raised by the Togorians for food. (GG4, TPS)

Biter
this huge Yuuzhan Vong bio-creation was developed to follow behind a Beater, and literally consumed the rubble created by the Beater and turned it into a waste product that could be consumed by other creatures and turned into energy. In many cases, the Biter rode on the back of the Beater, to ensure that it had a ready supply of raw material. The Biter would use its powerful pincers to hold onto the Beater, while the larger creature thrashed about destroying things. The mouth of the Biter was surrounded by dozens of thick tentacles, which it used to draw rubble into its mouth to consume. (BP)

Biteworm
this species of creature is predominantly nocturnal, and generally hunts from the shadows. (PTR)

Bith
the Bith are a race of pale-skinned aliens with large skulls and long, splayed fingers. Their ancestral orgins are hard to discern, because their bodies contain no trace of anything but Bith information. They have evolved into a race which excels in abstract thinking, although they lack certain instinctual emotions like fear and passion. Their huge eyes lack eyelids because they have evolved past the need for sleep, and allow them to see in minute detail. The thumb and little fingers on each hand are opposable, and their mechanical abilities are known throughout the galaxy. They are native to the planet Clak'dor VII in the Mayagil system. They quickly developed advanced technologies, among them the use of deadly chemicals for warfare. A planet-wide toxicological war between the cities of Nozho and Weogar - based on the disputed patent rights to a new stardrive - destroyed the once-beautiful planet, and left the Bith the choice of remaining bound there or expanding to the stars. Immediate survivors were formed to build hermetically-sealed cities, although they quickly realized that it would better preserve their race to travel among the stars. Bith mating is a less than emotional experience, as the Bith race has lost the ability to procreate sexually. Instead, they bring genetic material to a Computer Mating Service for analysis against prospective mates. Bith children are created from genetic material from two parents, which is combined, fertilized, and incubated for a year. (SW, SCRE, GG4)

Bith Street
a thoroughfare located in Capital City, on Omman. (SWJ12)

Bithabus
known as Bithabus the Mystifier, this member of the Bith race is a well-renowned magician who performs regularly at the Asteroid Theater in the Hologram Fun World. (QE)

Bitrose Sector
Danaan Kerr was rumored to have performed dark magics in this sector, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WBC)

Bitterness
a Mistryl code phrase. (TME)

Bitthaevrian
this ancient species of warriors was native to the planet Guiteica, located in the Kadok Regions of the galaxy. They were a physically formidable race, with muscular bodies covered with a tough, leathery hide. The joints of their elbows and knees were studded with sharp quills, which quickly regenerate if broken off or lost in combat. Their upper jaw is studded with a row six serrated teeth, and it completely overhangs the lower jaw, giving the Bitthaevrian the appearance of a deadly shark. Each member of their warrior society had three names: the season they were born in, their mother's family name, and their own personal name. Males always took their wife's family name upon being wedded. As a people, the Bitthaevrians preferred to be isolated from the rest of the galaxy, and had no longing or desire to travel among the stars. (AE)

Bitz Bug
a small insect native to the planet Agamar. (XW)

Bivoli Tempari
this very expensive culinary creation is one of the house specialties of the Imperial restaurant, on board the Kuari Princess. (RM)

Bix
this sleek droid was one Auren Yomm's team in the Colonial Games. (DCAR)

Bixby
an Imperial corvette whose crew defected to the Alliance near Dellalt, during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. It was escorting a number of transports, which were also taken by the Alliance. (XW)

Bizit
a term used by Niles Ferrier to describe people who meddle in his business. (DFR)

Bjalin, Tedris
this Imperial Navy Lieutenant was a native of Tyshapahl, and graduated from the Academy the year before Han Solo. When Solo was dishonorably discharged for freed Chewbacca, Tedris was serving under Admiral Ozzel at the affair, and displayed his disgust by first slapping and then spitting at Han. He later served under Admiral Winstel Greelanx aboard the Imperial Destiny during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. Bjalin discovered Han Solo aboard the ship, shortly after the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, as Solo tried to leave after delivering the bribe payment to Greelanx. Greelanx had just been executed by Darth Vader for accepting the bribe, and Bjalin attributed Greelanx's death to Solo. Solo managed to stun Bjalin and escape. Bjalin came to fast enough to order Solo's ship destroyed. The ship exploded, but Solo escaped in a life pod. When Bjalin learned that his family had died in the Imperial massacre on Tyshapahl, he defected from Imperial service and joined the Corellian resistance. He served with Bria Tharen during the Battle of Ylesia. (THG, RD)

Bjornson
a family of moisture farmers contemporary with the Lars and the Jensens. (TME)

BK-series Droid
this series of protocol droids was commissioned by several Core Worlds, and was the top of the line at this time of its creation. They employed AA-1 verborbains, and were roughly humanoid in shape. (SWJ10)

BK-4
this BK-series protocol droid was given to a prominent Core World dictator by Emperor Palpatine. The dictator used BK-4 extensively, but the doid's proximity to confidential information meant that its memory was continually wiped clean. The dictator added some additional programming to BK-4's central system, including the necessary skills for planetary management. When the dictator found out that Palpatine was about to replace him, he fled his planet and sought refuge on Monor II. Agapos the Eighth helped the man escape Imperial notice, and the dictator gave BK-4 to the ruler as a show of his appreciation. BK-4 was passed down to Agapos the Ninth when his father retired, and the droid has served faithfully ever since. BK-4 was Agapos' second-in-command, and was instrumental in the fight against the Empire. (SWJ10)

Bk'trugh
a Gamorrean clan, distinguished by a colored tattoo on the clanmember's arm. (RPG)

BL-17
this humanoid droid, similar in shape to a 3PO unit, was owned by Boba Fett during the early years of the New Order. It was painted similar colors to Fett's Mandalorian armor, and carried a blaster. (DCAR)

Black, Kymber
Thadius Black's wife. (SN)

Black, Perth
Thadius Black's father, he is a native of Mowgle. (SN)

Black, Thadius
a Demophonian who hired a group of Alliance agents to transport machinery off the doomed planet. He was a middle-aged man who worked in the droid component business. (SN)

Black Asp
this Imperial Interdictor-class cruiser was discovered by Corran Horn in the Chorax System. It was commanded by Captain Uwlla Iillor, who was faced with a number of unexplained personnel transfers following the loss of Borleais. She got fed up with the lack of support from her Imperial commanders, and so she took the Black Asp and defected to the New Republic. Following her defection, the Black Asp was renamed the Corusca Rainbow. (XWN, WG)

Black Bantha, The
this was one of Garik Loran's most famous pro-Imperial propaganda films. (WS)

Black Behemoth
this large carnivore was native to the rainforests of the planet Veron. They were highly territorial, and defended their lands violently when provoked. The average behemoth measured two meters tall at the shoulder, and was four meters long. (PG1)

Black Bha'lir
1) see Society of the Black Bha'lir (SSR)
2) this creature, native to the jungles of Iyred, was a huge feline predator. They mated for life, and their loyalty to their mates was almost unparalleled in the animal kingdom. It made breeding them in captivity very difficult unless both mates were captured. They were efficient pack hunters, with the females doing the actual hunting while the males protected their territories. Over time, greedy businessbeings and unscrupulous entrepreneurs took large portions of the bha'lir population as pets or guardian animals, and the overall population suffered greatly. When Iyred was deforested, much of the remaining population was rounded up and placed in refuges on other worlds, such as Duunir. (BSS)

Black Box
a Alliance escort shuttle captured during the Galactic Civil War. (COJ)

Black Butcher
this modifed Nova-drive #3-Z frieghter was owned and operated by Vin Feal. He had armed the ship with a dual laser cannon on the starboard side, along with a single laser cannon behind the cockpit. (PG1)

Black Curs
this group of outlaws and smugglers banded together in an effort to exact vengeance on the remnants of the Empire. They first appeared about six months after the Battle of Endor, and began feeding reconnaissanc data to the New Republic in the hope that they could use it to eradicate all remnants of the Empire. (SWJ8)

Black Curs Base
this was the codename for the base used by the New Republic intelligence operatives that flew the stolen customs frigate Battle of Yavin. (XWN)

Black Death
this was the name of Krovas's personal starship. Vohrkrewel Yahrkar took possession of it, shortly after Krovas' death. Note that this could be an error in The Politics of Contraband*, and Yahrkar's ship is later decribed as the* Blood Hawk. (POC)

Black Dust Industries
this Socorran holding company was owned by Karl Ancher, and was made up of a group of legitimate businesses including the Black Dust Tavern. Partial holdings were maintained by Ancher in the Ethra Brewery and Boliscon Towers. (BSS)

Black Dust Tavern
named for the thick layers of volcanic ash that cover the planet Socorro, the Black Dust Tavern was owned by Karl Ancher. It was located in Vakeyya, on Socorro. It was open at every hour, and served a variety of inexpensive drinks to a small clientele of smugglers and pirates. If there was a drink recipe Ancher's droid staff couldn't make, the being who discovered it got their first three drinks free after Ancher received the recipe. Ancher also made sure that he served his customers the best quality liquor he could find, and his collection of spirits from across the galaxy was as much a hobby as it was a business necessity. (BSS)

Black Fireclaw
this handheld weapon was wielded by Mavin, a member of the Five, on Attahox. It was used to burn its intended target. (CSWDW)

Black Fleet
see Black Sword Command. (BTS)

Black Fleet Crisis
this was the monicker used to define the era of conflict in which the New Republic battled the Yevetha for control of the Koornacht Cluster. (BTS)

Black Flight
this K-Wing grouping served the 24th Bombardment Squadron as part of the Fifth Battle Group. They participated in Task Force Blackvine, as part of the effort that punished the Yevetha for resisting the blockade of Doornik-319. It was assigned to the gunship Vanguard. (SOL, TT)

Black Force Squadron
this group of New Republic Navy officers and pilots was known for its ability to provide reconnaissance from battle arenas without being detected. (JE)

Black Hole
a highly-hallucinogenic drug used by Emperor Palpatine to discover the fears of alien races. (COJ)

Black Hole, The
1) this is a nickname given to the worst part of the Off-worlders' Quarter, on the planet Ropagi II. All sorts of criminal elements do business here, where weapons smuggling and a healthy black market dominate the underworld. (TSK)
2) this was the nickname of Opun Mcgrrrr. (GG2)

Black Hole*-class Dreadnaught
this Ugor Salvage Company reclamation ship was a huge, disk-shaped craft. Measuring 150 meters in diameter, the Black Hole-class ship was armed with a motley collection of outdated plasma torpedo launchers. Each ship had a crew of 48 Ugors, with room for 3,000 metric tons of cargo. The dreadnaughts had hyperdrive capability, albeit it inferior to current hyperdrives. (SH)

Black Ice
a Field Secured Container Vessel, the Black Ice was part of replenishment fleet DK-209 during the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance discovered that it was used to transport huge quantities of starship fuels cells to shipyards in and around Mortex Sector. The Alliance launched bold attempt to steal the ship and its fuel supply after the loss of a refinery in the Choah Belt shortly after the Battle of Yavin. In its entirety, the Black Ice measured some 7,800 meters in length, from end to end. In between the two engine pods, the Black Ice was formed from nine individual doublefield spheres. After defeating Skolos and the ship's own systems, the agents succeeded in taking control of the ship. However, the Empire had secretly programmed the ship to send out an SOS beacon upon emerging from hyperspace, and Imperial forces followed the Black Ice to the Alliance base on Fangol. The Empire attacked with a torpedo sphere, but the Alliance countered by ramming the sphere with the emptied Black Ice. The resulting destruction wiped out the torpedo sphere and much of the Black Ice, but the Alliance was given time to evacuate Fangol. Note that the Black Ice module claims the ship was designed and manufactured by Rendili StarDrive, but the Imperial Sourcebook claims that Loronar developed it.. (BI, ISB)

Black Jungle
this is the name given to the strange jungle that covers the planet Krann. Krann orbits four red giant stars, which continually bathe it in blood-red light. The vegetation of the planet evolved to have ebony leaves which absorb as much available light as possible. (TSK)

Black Knight
this was an alias used by Dannen Lifehold for his personal freighter, the Lifeline, during missions he undertook for Linkaas. (SWJ1)

Black Level
the lowest of the three entertainment and commercial level aboard the Errant Venture, the Black Level was also the seediest. (IJ)

Black Nebula
1) this nebula was used as a hideout for a group of rogue starship fitters during the Galactic Civil War. It is located in the Parfadi Sector, between Motexx and Arat Fraca. There are a pair of supermassive neutron stars within its web, making travel through the area impossible. (SWAJ, SOL)
2) this was the name used by the Jeodu Dequc for his criminal organization. The basis of his organization was the remnants of Black Sun which remained after the death of Prince Xizor. (MJEH)

Black Nine
this Imperial shipyard was constructed in orbit around Prildaz, the third planet of the system known simply as ILC-905. Located within the Koornacht Cluster, the shipyard was one of several overrun by the Yevetha when they rebelled against Imperial control. It was at the Black Nine shipyards that the New Republic ships Vanguard, Folna, and Indomitable attacked the thrustship Tholos. The Tholos and Rizaron were assigned to protect the shipyards against attack. (TT)

Black Nova Tapcafe
this tavern was owned and operated by Sherbin Tork during the Galactic Civil War. (MTSE)

Black Obsession
Thadius Black's modified Mon Calamari A-Z-Z-3 light freighter. (SN)

Black Rain
this was the name given to the heavy, acidic rain storms that blanket the planet Corbos once a year. (JAL)

Black Raptor
this was the name of Blizz Pinnix's customized racing swoop. It was a modifed Ikas-Adno XP-2000 prototype, which was technically a speederbike. Pinnix had armed it with a pair of blaster pulse cannons. Pinnix had painted the vehicle with ebony hyperpaint, highlighted by deep violet pinstripes and a stylized bird of prey emblazoned along the sides. (WSV)

Black Scum
this was a derogatory name used by the Imperial forces on Corellia to describe members of Black Sun. (TFE)

Black Sphere
this small, black stone was one of the most valued possessions of the natives of the planet of Eckless. Rumor had it that the Black Sphere held the secret of the existence of the natives, and glowed with their inner light. After it disappeared during the New Order, a bounty was placed for its return by Rusha, the diplomatic ambassador of Eckless. Rusha knew that the stone had been stolen by Hahz Fallone,and pursued him to Chazwa. It was later revealed that the Sphere held the coordinates of the planet Eckless, and was important because Fallone had removed the planet from most navigational databases in order to preserve its secrets for himself. In order to protect the Sphere, Fallone wore it around his neck. An analysis of the Sphere revealed that it was nothing more than a ball of highly polished carbonite with flecks of white impurities which formed a star-like pattern. (ND)

Black Squadron
this was the flight of hand-picked Imperial soldiers who flew with Darth Vader during the period around the Battle of Yavin. They were stationed aboard the first Death Star, and were rotated to maintain combat readiness. (CCG6)

Black Sword Command
this was the Imperial Naval fleet assigned to defend the central part of the Empire's Rim Territorial holdings. The fleet itself was not known to the New Republic until Ayddar Nylykerka deciphered the data from the Gnisnal's datacore. The Black Sword Command was somewhat of a secret, and commanded part of the Koornacht Cluster. Like most other fleets in the Imperial Navy, its shipyards were ordered destroyed and evacuated after the Battle of Endor, but the Black Sword's shiypards were commandeered by the Yevethan slaves that worked in them. Nil Spaar led the revolt, and his teams recovered 44 Black Fleet warships, none smaller than a Victory-class Star Destroyer. Three Super-class Star Destroyers were part of the Black Fleet. (BTS)

Black Sun
the massive criminal organization run by Prince Xizor during the Galactic Civil War, Black Sun was a vast empire with a multitude of interests and operations. The primary source of income for Black Sun was the sale of information, and Xizor worked hard to make sure he was in control of information that his customers wanted. Xizor also had several front agencies, such as Xizor Transport Systems, that he used to launder credits. It far surpassed anything Jabba the Hutt controlled. (SE, TFE)

Black Widow
this pirate ship was owned by Bruce Mercy. (TSK)

Black Widow Nebula
this dense cloud of gas surrounded a small proto-star. The gas cloud appeared to be dark brown or black in color, because the small star provided little light to the interior of the cloud. What little light it provided gave a deep red glow to to the central portion of the nebula. When viewed from far away, the nebula resembled a huge spider. (SL)

Black Winter
a disease which strikes many older humans. (SWAJ)

Black 2
TIE Fighter flown by DS-61-2, one of Darth Vader's wingmen during the Battle of Yavin. (CCG)

Black 3
TIE Fighter flown by DS-61-3, one of Darth Vader's wingmen during the Battle of Yavin. (CCG)

Black 4
TIE Fighter flown by DS-61-4, who fought in the Battle of Yavin. (CCG2)

Black 11
this Imperial TIE Fighter was flown during the Battle of Endor by a pilot known as "Wampa" for his icy precision. Prior to this service, Black 11 often escorted Darth Vader's personal shuttle. (CCG11)

Black-hole Shield
this was the name used by the New Republic military to describe the unique, organic shielding systems used by the Yuuzhan Vong on their coralskippers. These shields acted like black holes, sucking in laser energy and absorbing it for use in other shipboard systems. Trast Kre'fey and Gavin Darklighter developed a tactic that used proton torpedoes to try and overload the black-hole shield system, causing it to consume more energy that it should, thereby diminishing their ability to protect the coralskipper. (DTO)

Black-winged Touret
this is an avian creature native to the planet Utharis. (TT)

Black-11
this Imperial starship construction facility was located in orbit around Zhina during the Galactic Civil War. Like other such faclities in the Koornacht Cluster, it was captured by the Yevetha about a year after the Battle of Endor. (SOL)

Black-15
the codename of the Empire's orbital shipyard situated near N'zoth during the Galactic Civil War. Black-15 was designed as a construction yard, and had limited repair capabilities. It was under the command of Jian Paret in the year following the Battle of Endor, when it was assaulted by the Yevetha. The attack was masterminded and led by Nil Spaar. (BTS, SOL)

Black-8
this Imperial starship construction facility was located in prbit around Wakiza during the Galactic Civil War. Like other such faclities in the Koornacht Cluster, it was captured by the Yevetha about a year after the Battle of Endor. (SOL)

Blackfire Flight
an A-Wing squadron assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. (BTS)

Blackfruit
this was a form of carnivorous plant that used a sweet-smelling nectar to attract insects, like the nectarsect, to itself. (JH)

Blackhole
this Imperial agent worked with Darth Vader, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, to locate Alliance bases for extermination. His exact appearance was never known, for he used a distorter to project his image. He appeared as a human-shaped cloud of stars. (CSWEA)

Blackjack
an old, hand-held weapon. (CSWEA)

Blackmoon
this was the codename used by the New Republic to denote the assault on the planet of Borleias, held by the Empire after the Battle of Endor. The name Blackmoon is used to describe Borleias' only natural satellite. (XWN)

Blackstar
this pirate ship and her crew were part of the Invids. They were stationed on Courkrus, and were one of the last groups to leave when Corran Horn's "avenging Jedi" appeared. (IJ)

Blackwing Squadron
this was the Z-95 Mark I flight group which was garrisoned to protect Velery Station on Viamarr 4. (WS)

Blackwood
this wood is harvested for its exquisitely-patterned grains and burls. (POT)

Bladderweasel
a slimy, disgusting creature. (CSA)

Blade
this Imperial survey shuttle was part of survey 1982376, which discovered the planet Demonsgate within the Kathol Rift. The crew of ths ship was to rendezvous with Moff Sarne and report on their findings, but the Blade was disabled before they could leave the planet. (KR)

Blade-28
this Adumari fighter craft was the predecessor to the Blade-30. It was an atmospheric assault craft, and had no capabilities of spaceflight. Like all Blades, it was manufactured by Tarrvin-on-Kallik. (SOA)

Blade-30
this Adumari fighter craft was the predecessor to the Blade-32. It was an atmospheric assault craft, and had no capabilities of spaceflight. Like all Blades, it was manufactured by Tarrvin-on-Kallik. (SOA)

Blade-32
this was the top of the line Adumari fighter craft during the early years of the New Republic. Like the Blade-28 before it, the Blade-32 was an atmospheric assault ship designed and built by Tarrvin-on-Kallik. At 19 meters in length, it was half-again as long as an X-Wing. A single-pilot craft, the Blade-32 had a pointed bow and a unique, dual-tail design. The fuselage split just behind the cockpit into two engine pods, and the tails were connected by horizontal bars. The Blade-32 had a pair of wings which allowed for maneuverability, and had three primary weapons: two forward-mounted lasers, two backward-mounted lasers, and a pair of missile ports capable of firing up to eight missiles each. Wedge Antilles and Red Flight felt that the Blade-32 was a rugged fighter, but somewhat sluggish. (SOA)

Blade-32α
this was one of the two versions of the Tarrvin-on-Kallik Blade-32 fighter craft that could fly in space. The 32-alpha was only capable of in-system flight, where the 32-beta had a hyperdrive. (SOA)

Blade-32β
this was one of the two versions of the Tarrvin-on-Kallik Blade-32 fighter craft that could fly in space. The 32-beta, like the 32-alpha, was capable of in-system flight. The 32-beta also had a hyperdrive. (SOA)

Bladedrome
this was the Adumari term for a starport and hangar facility, named in honor of their Blade-series starfighters. (SOA)

Blaene, Malric
this squat, balding man worked as a bartender at the Lost Loves Casino on Abregado-Rae during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He was considered a gossip, and knew a great deal of false information about the rivalry of A'jindre Skrigatov and Malkoi. (ND)

Blalock
this blue-skinned near-human worked for Nim Abek aboard Abek's Station. Blalock was in charge of security aboard the station. (SSR)

Blan Mountains
located on the planet Brosi, this range of mountains loomed over the Shoengen Coast. (AIR)

Blap-biscuit
a foodstuff often served with carbosyrup. (CSA)

Blase
a goat-like creature that lived in trees on the forest moon of Endor. They are slow-moving creatures. (ECAR)

Blash'narl
this vicious predator has been observed in an intense feeding frenzy. (CSA)

Blast and Smash Rifle
this was Alliance soldier's slang for any combination weapon that provided the ability to launch a grenade at a target, while allowing for an energy weapon that could lay down a barrage of suppression fire. These weapons were often custom-made, such as the Alliance's pairing of a Prax Arms AXM-50 heavy blaster with a Locris Syndicates MGL-1 micro-grenade launcher. (ROE)

Blast Rifle
common name given to any long-barreled laser weapon. They were developed more than 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. (SW, TOJ)

Blast Synchronizer
an old, out-dated weapon. (CSWEA)

Blast-darts
this game of skill was played in many taverns and bars. (WSV)

BlastBoat 2000
this weekly starship demolition derby takes place within the city-dome found on the moon Echnos. (SWAJ)

Blastica
this word was the Rodian term for "blaster." (PSG)

Blastpike Flightknife
one of the many Yedagonian fighter squadrons which supported the Running Crimson Flightknife during the war against the forces of the Cartann nation, on Adumar. The Blastpikes were led by Wes Janson and Hobbie Klivian. (SOA)

BlasTech Corporation
manufacturers of a variety of personal and military blaster weapons, including the DL-18 abd the DL-44. (RASB)

Blaster
common name given to any hand-held laser weapon. They come in all shapes and sizes, from small holdout weapons to heavy repeating rifles. They most often employ a small power pack consisting of a ionized cryogenic cells. The power packs generate coherent packets of light, much like a ship-mounted laser. They can be set to various power outputs, from stun to vaporation. (SW, SWSB)

Blastonecrosis
a disease, characterized by a loss of appetite and fatigue, that can be masked by the use of lotiramine. Lotiramine hides the tracer enzymes that mark the disease's presence in the body. (XWN)

Blastsword
this was the traditional Adumari weapon. About a meter in length, the blastsword resembled a long vibroblade with a curved metal guard protecting the hilt. The blade itself was sharp until it reached the tip of the sword, which resembled a flared nozzle rather than a point. When the blastsword contacted a solid object, the nozzle emitted a blast of laser energy. Individual blastswords emitted different color blasts, and helped to enforce a user's individuality. (SOA)

Blastwell, Hamo
an Alliance starfighter liaison aboard the Independence when Keyan Farlander was recruited, Hamo was Keyan's escort. They later became wingmates during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Blath
this Bith doctor was employed by Chay Praysh to maintain the health of the women who worked in the crimelord's slimepits. Despite the fact that he worked for Praysh, Blath was actually sympathetic toward the women slaves, and frustrated at the poor conditions Praysh forced them to live in. (TFNR)

Blaze, Ulthar
this Alliance agent infiltrated the Imperial Security Bureau on Miser. There, he was assigned to Admiral Grendeef. In this capacity, Blaze was able to help the Alliance operatives pursuing the crew of the Wanderer recover the Isis coordinates and destroy the Desolator. (IC)

Blaze Bug
native to the planet Datar, this species of insect was bioluminescent. When crushed, the blaze bug's internal chemicals actually exploded in a small burst of fire. This made them the weapon of choice of the Ghostlings, who shot them at their enemies with blow-tubes. (E1A5)

Blazer, Anson
a native of the Corellian Sector, this was was a former Alliance Intelligence officer who earned a position within the Special Forces unit. He became a member of Shadow Squadron, as part of the infiltration team. (AIR)

Blazing Claw
this symbol, which had many variants in the galaxy, was used by pirates and corsairs throughout the galaxy. (HXW)

Blba trees
a species of tree native to Dantooine, they have wide trunks and wildly-diverging branches. (DA)

Bleak Point
this outcropping of crystalline rock was home to one of the largest Theran gun stations on the planet Nam Chorios. It was destroyed when the Spook crystals in the Needle ships surrounding the planet were contacted by Luek Skywalker. With the help of the tsil, he was able to tell the Spooks to disregard their CCIR programming and destroy their ships. They crashed into Nam Chorios around Bleak Point. (POT)

Bleaker Street
this street, located in the capital city of the planet Bastion, is lined with stores. (VOF)

Blech, Jorgan
this man was the Captain of the Bold Dove. He once made the mistake of comparing Brooser to a Wookiee, and the huge man beat Blech to within inches of his life. Blech was then beaten some more by a passing Wookiee, claiming that Blech's comments were an insult to the Wookiee people. (POC)

Bledsoe's Disease
this strange affliction was bioengineerde by the Empire, under the direction of Doctor Kaaldar, in the years following the Battle of Yavin. Specific strains of the disease could be unleashed, each causing unique reactions. In general, Bledsoe's causes the skin to burn, then begins discoloring the victim's eyes. The discoloration resolves itself into a starfield pattern, and the individual strains reveal individual patterns. Each of the patterns, however, is a star-map which showed the location of an Alliance base. Imperial forces were instructed to watch for outbreaks of the disease, then round up the victims and read the star-maps in their eyes. Thus, attacks could be made on Alliance bases without open communication of the next target. Luke Skywalker contracted Bledsoe's on Tatooine, and was taken into custody. He and Anduvil managed to escape from Doctor Kaaldar's laboratory and warn the Alliance about the use of Bledsoe's. (CSWEA)

Blendin, Jerrol
this man was one of the more corrupt members of the Cloud City Wing Guard, during the administration of Lando Calrissian. A veteran of the force, Blendin started with the Wing Guards during Baron Raynor's administration, and quickly learned to use intimidation to keep the peace. He was also easily bribed, and was on the payroll of several minor crime figures. (CCG5)

Blerd
this herd animal was a common first-generation creature introduced on terraformed worlds. It is a grazing creature whose flesh can be consumed, and its milk is also nutritious. (POT)

Blessings
this was the Yevethan name given to one of the stolen Black Sword warships. (BTS)

Blethern Gas Industries
this company produces much of the specialized gases used in the manufacture of blasters. (PG1)

Blevon
this Alliance commander served as the captain of the Liberator troopship during the Battle of Ylesia. (RD)

Blicci
this fruit is grown on the planet Dordolum. It has bright red flesh. (SOP)

Blights of Barabel
a mythical or legendary group of demons from Barabel history, they are often called upon to bring a curse to another individual. (RD)

Blim
this overweight Imperial officer served as one of Carnor Jax's personal assistants. As Jax rose to power, Blim was charged with eliminating any opposition, including assassinating those Imperial who opposed Jax's creation of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He was present during much of the interrogation of Mirith Sinn, and was ordered to follow her after Jax set her free. He accompanied Jax to Yinchorr aboard the Emperor's Revenge, and escaped the dying ship in Jax's shuttle. He followed Jax to The Squall, and was ordered to shoot Kanos if he got the upper hand in their personal duel. However, before Blim could execute Kanos, he was shot in the head by Mirith Sinn. (CE)

Blin, Vildar
this Alliance reconnaissance scout was assigned to Echo Base, just prior to the Battle of Hoth. His background was in special forces, with experience in first-response tactics. (CCG3)

BlindSide
this was the brand name of IntelStar's large-scale sensor jamming system, developed for use on starships but applicable to certain ground-based strongholds. (HAS)

Blinkodes
a game of chance played in many casinos. (WSV)

Bliss
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War, it was one of the group assigned to assassinate then-Vice Admiral Thrawn when he arrived at NL-1. (TIE)

Blissex, Walex
one of the key designers of the original Victory-class Star Destroyer, he was an Engineer for the Old Republic. He went into hiding when the New Order was initiated by Emperor Palpatine, not wanting to be judged by his support of the Republic. However, when the Alliance began making headway in its battle against the Empire, Blissex re-emerged. His daughter, Lira Wessex. laid a trap for him by having her husband send a all-systems message requesting that Blissex come to see his "dying daughter." Lira and enn Wessex had dispatched the Star Destroyer Subjugator to intercept Blissex at Kwenn space station. Although the Alliance fought against the idea, Blissex opted to visit ihis daughter, taking a small group of Alliance agents with him for support. When the plot against him was revealed, Blissex and the agents were thrown into the shpi's brig. Shortly afterward, the Subjugator was attacked by Task Force Starfall Alliance starships which were unaware of Blissex's presence. The Alliance agents fought to escape from the brig and get free of the Subjugator before it exploded. They managed to survive, with Blissex's knowledge of the Victory-class ships and the Alliance agents' resourcefulness. He later provided his full resources to the Alliance, and was given the honorary rank of General for his contributions. He worked with Jan Dodonna to develop the A-Wing starfighter, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (SWSB, SF, CCG11)

Blista-Vanee, Kren
this skeletal human was one of the advisors Emperor Palpatine brought with him to the second Death Star. Like all of Palpatine's advisors, Blista-Vanee wore elaborate robes and headdressings of purple and red. (MTS)

Blizz Pinnix
this being owned The Pit, a minor swoopchasing course located on Stend VI. Pinnix was well-known within the swoopracing community, and his racecourse design earned high praise. (BSS)

Blizzard Force
1) a division of Imperial Cold Assault stormtroopers, they are trained to work in tandem with AT-AT assault vehicles. Blizzard Force was dispatched to Hoth to rout the Alliance base there during the Galactic Civil War. (MTS)
2) the group of Imperial AT-ATs and AT-STs which were dispatched to the planet Hoth, as the lead wave of the assault on the Alliance's main generator. The Blizzard Force walkers proved too much for the Alliance forces, and precipitated the Imperial victory in the Battle of Hoth. (CCG3)

Blizzard Scout 1
this Imperial AT-ST scout walker was heavily modified to withstand cold-weather combat. (CCG3)

Blizzard 1
this is the callsign of General Veers' AT-AT, during the Battle of Hoth. (CCG3)

Blizzard 2
this is the callsign of General Nevar's AT-AT, during the Battle of Hoth. It was heavily armored by Nevar, who was paranoid of losing his life in battle. (CCG3)

Blleen
this was the name of one of the B'omarr monks who lived within Jabba's palace on Tatooine. Blleen was known as a surgeon. (TJT)

Blob Candy
a sweet treat sold on Umgul. (JS)

Blob Fish
an oceanic species native to Calamari. (DA)

Blob racing
a sporting event in which specially-bred Umgullian blobs race trough a blobstacle course. Betting is permitted. Cheating at a blob race is punishable by death. The Umgullian Racing Commission tests each blob before and after each race, and the results are made public quickly. (JS)

Blob Wrangler
an Umgullian who raises and trains blobs for racing. (JS)

Blob 11
a amethyst-colored Umgullian blob which wins the first blob race Lando witnesses while searching for Tymmo. (JS)

Blobstacle Course
the track the the Umgullian blobs must follow in order to complete a given blob race. They often consist of a number of ramps, steps, and grates the blobs must past over, under, or through. Each course is tailored to the types of blobs that will be racing on it. (JS)

Block Capsule
this small, coffin-sized container was equipped with a set of short-range rocket boosters that could carry it several hundred meters in the air. These containers were often used to launch garbage into remote locations. (GG11)

Block I
this is an ordinary hyperdrive unit. (SOL)

Block-series Thrust Coil
these coils come in a variety of sizes, depending on the amount a racers needs to multiply their engine's capacity. Block-1 coils simply transfer energy without multiplying it. The largest coil, a Block-5, raises an engine's output nearly five-fold. (RAC)

Blockade, The
this pirate maneuver placed a small fleet at the hyperspace exit point of a target vessel. The pirates blockaded the target's attempt to reach their destination, using surprise to ambush the ship and board it before a mayday call could be sent. (PP)

Blockade Runner
a term used to describe any small, well-armed ship used to break through a planetary blockade. An example is the Corellian CR-90 corvette. (SW)

Blockade Runners Derby
this starship race was held annually in the Ord Mantell system. It was considered one of the grandest and most daring races a pilot could enter. The course was run through the outer rim of the system, weaving through the outer cometary cloud. The course changed yearly, due to the orbital mechanics of the system. Han Solo won the race three times as a smuggler, and later served as the Grand Marshall for the 93rd running, However, Czethros and his minions had sabotaged the course in hopes of eliminating Solo. Han, with the help of his children, managed to evade the mines laid in the course and return safely. (ROM)

Blood Bucket
this bar was Simms Jonndril's favorite hangout, located on the planet Thorsgild. (POC)

Blood Carver
this humanoud alien species was known for its honor and social structure. They were slender and graceful, with long, three-jointed limbs; tall, thin necks; and iridescent gold skin. They were able to communicate a variety of emotions through the opening and closing of their nostril flaps, which they tattooed with a multitude of colors and patterns. These flaps also served to provide the Blood Carvers with the senses of small and hearings. They joined the Old Republic almost 100 years before the Battle of Naboo, after they were exterminated from their homeworld by the Lontars. Only a few hundred survived, and they all migrated to Coruscant. They were known as artists and assassins, two seemingly opposite traits. However, the Blood Carvers considered the art of sculpture as a form of assassination, taking away what wasn't needed to leave the best behind. When they died, Blood Carvers were ritually cremated, to return them to nature. (RP)

Blood Chowder
a meal favored by Princess Nampi. (JTH)

Blood Code
this is the name given by the Snivvian race to their genetic pattern. It has been engineered and refined over the millennia in an attempt to weed out the occurance of twin males in a single birth. The initial results were very promising. The incidence of twin males dropped almost to zero, and the Snivvians prospered. However, the strength of mind and body that resulted from this genetic manipulation made them prime targets for Thalassian slavers. The Thalassians began transporting large numbers of Snivvians off Cadomai through hyperspace, providing them to the highest bidders. It is believed that prolonged exposure to hyperspcae travel has mutated the Blood Code, for several instances of twin males have occurred recently. (GG12)

Blood Duel
this ritual was invoked whenever there were too many young Ugnaughts within a family to fill a small number of blood professions. In these situations, a fight to the death was ordered to determine which Ugnaughts would attain the professional positions. (GG2)

Blood Eels
long, fat eels (JS)

Blood Fly
a species of vicious insect native to the planet Rodia. (CE)

Blood Gutter
this Carrack-class cruiser was part of Warlord Zsinj's fleet, during his battle against the New Republic. (SOC)

Blood Hawk
this modified Mestapol Zephyr fighter was owned by Vohrkrewel Yahrkar during the early years of the New Republic. It was armed with a pair of laser cannons and a photon torpedo launcher. (POC)

Blood Hunt
this ancient Cathar ritual was undertaken by those Cathar who needed to be cleansed of evil or hatred. (TOJR)

Blood Kiss
part of a life-witch's marriage ceremony, the blood kiss seals the bond between the life-witch and her husband. The two partners each prick one finger, and place the drop of blood on the others' lips. The life-witch then is bound to Support the husband for five years, providing him with vitality and strength. Most of the time, the life-witches only marry elderly men, giving them a last gift of five more years in return for becoming heirs to the males' estates. (AC)

Blood Nest
this was the base, located on the moon of the third planet in the M2398 system, which was marginally loyal to Warlord Zsinj. The base of the Blood Nest team was housed inside the hull of an old Super Transport VI container ship, which was also marginally flyable. Arratan and the leaders of Blood Nest were sick and tired of the raids performed by Captain Darillian and the Night Caller. The name was derived from the deep red sand of the moon's primary desert. The Blood Nest intercepted the carrier Red Feathers en route to Ession, hoping to catch Zsinj's forces by surprise. Inside her holds, the Blood Nest carried three full squadrons of X-Wing fighters from the New Republic. When the ship reported structural failure, Ession's security forces required a self-destruct. As the ship destroyed itself, the -Wings lit up their engines and matched the rate of descent of the pieces, until TIE Fighters from the Implacable chased it down. They then broke free of the debris and engaged the TIEs. (WS)

Blood on the Flowers Flightknife this Adumari squadron was shot down and destroyed by Turr Phennir and his wingmates, during the negotiations between the Adumari, the New Republic, and the Empire. Only one pilot managed to survive. (SOA)

Blood Prince of Thalassia
this title is given to the leader of the most vicious of the Thalassian slavers. (SOL)

Blood Profession
this was the name used by the Ugnaughts to describe a profession which was contained within a family, passed from generation to generation without every leaving the family circle. (GG2)

Blood Razors
this swoop gang originated on the planet Biivren. Despite their fearsome name, the Blood Razors were formed to assist those inhabitants who were outcast when the big corporations took over the planet. They trafficked black market goods to the underground, avoiding Imperial notice by covering their activities with swoop chases. (PSG)

Blood-ant
this insect, native to the planet Tatooine, was known for the huge, castle-like towers it built for its homes. (JH)

Blood-work
this is an ancient term for bounty hunting. (GAS)

Bloodflea
this microscopic insect lived by biting a larger creature and consuming its blood. Bloodfleas were especially attracted to Hutts. (WSV)

Bloodhawk, Scarlet
an accomplished starship technician. (RPG)

Blooding
this Abyssin ritual is observed by two tribes in times of famine or drought. The tribes who meet at an oasis will fight until all members of a tribe are killed or incapacitated in order to secure the right to consume the water. (GG4)

Bloodprice
this Imperial Nebulon-B frigate was under the command of Captain Ors Dogot during the Yevethan Purge. It was part of the fleet controlled by Foga Brill, and was patrolling the Prakith System when it encountered the Teljkon vagabond. The vagabond had just fled the New Republic's intercept team at Gmir Askilon, and dropped out of hyperspace near Prakith. Dogot ordered his crew to intercept the ship, but the vagabond's defense systems recognized a threat and fired on the Bloodprice. The ship was destroyed, and all hands were lost. (SOL)

Bloodsniffer
1) a nocturnal, carnivorous creature native to Kamar. (HSR)
2) a predator found in the Quence Sector of the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)
3) a swoop gang founded on Xiunsrus, and named after the Quence Sector predator. The Bloodsniffers first rose to infamy when a village elder refused to meet their demands. The leader of the gang ordered the entire village destroyed. The Bloodsniffers are recognizable by their bright red jackets and swoops. (GG9)

Bloodstar
Bar-Kooda's delapidated pirate ship. (BF)

Bloodstripe
see Corellian Bloodstripe (CSA)

Bloodworm
a small annelid native to the planet D'vouran. (GOF1)

Blope
large, sedentary swamp creatures native to the forest moon of Endor. (ECAR)

Blorash Jelly
this sentient form of blob was harvested by the Yuuzhan Vong and used as a way to bind an enemy. (VP)

Blossug
was the term used to describe the proboscis of the Viska. The blossug was about forty centimeters in length, and was made up of several layers of muscle. At the tip was a hollow, jagged bone which could pierce flesh. The Viska would drive the blossug into the body of their prey, using the muscles of their snouts and skull to draw blood from their victims. (PG1)

Blount
this man was a former member of the Imperial Security Bureau who defected to the Alliance after the Battle of Hoth. A seasoned combat veteran, he was also a skilled scout and starfighter pilot. Before joining Crix Madine's ground assault team during the Battle of Endor, Blount served as Airen Cracken's wingman. (CCG11)

Blow 'em All Away
a single written and played by the band Boba Fett and the Assassin Droids. It has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Bloxian
this was a race of large, muscular, red-skinned aliens. (SWJ1)

Blubreen
native to the Ploo Sector, the Blubreen were a race of humanoid amphibians. Their skin was a bluish-aqua color, and they had short, black hair on their heads. Each of their hands had five webbed fingers, and they had five small gills on each side of their necks. (E1A1)

Blue Ale
this is a form of beer that is brewed on many worlds. (IF)

Blue Blerd of Happiness
this tavern, located in the city of Hweg Shul on the planet Nam Chorios, was a favorite hang-out for the Newcomers. When Luke Skywalker arrived on the planet to search for Callista, he stayed on a room above the tavern. (POT)

Blue Brubb
this small tavern, located in Mos Espa on Tatooine and operated during the last years of the Old Republic, was a favorite of young Anakin Skywalker and his friend Kitster. They often stopped by the tavern to drink ruby bliels in the afternoon heat, but had to be careful because it was located in the Hutt section of the spaceport. (ANA)

Blue Cliffs
this unusual color of the stone in these cliffs, located on the planet Endoraan, make it a well-known tourist attraction. (SWJ8)

Blue Desert People
large reptiles native to Dathomir, these creatures have pale blue scales, tiny forelegs, red eyes and black teeth. They are carnivorous, and fairly smart. They live in the Great Desert of Dathomir, running at night to the nearby mountains to feed. They sleep during the day in holes in the desert sand. They measured up to 2.5 meters in length, and have a large bony crest extending off the back of their head. While there is no proven evidence that they are intelligent, their daily migrations have been described in terms of sentient behavior. The Blue Desert People have excellent night vision and incredible speed. (CPL, CTD)

Blue Dwarf
an alcoholic beverage. (SWG)

Blue Five
Luke's callsign during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Blue Flight
a squadron of A-Wings under the command of Wedge Antilles during the assault on Almania. (TNR)

Blue Four
Porkin's callsign during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Blue Fox
an Imperial Nebulon-B frigate that attacked the Alliance cruiser Excelsior during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Blue Leader
1) Dave's callsign during the Battle of Yavin (SWN)
2) a callsign used the Battle of Endor. (ROTJ)

Blue Level
the middle of three level aboard the Errant Venture dedicated to commerce and entertainment, Blue Level appealed to those shippers and smugglers who found travelling on a Star Destroyer interesting. (IJ)

Blue Light
Han Solo often frequented this bar in the Corellian sector of Nar Shaddaa. It was a seedy dived that only served liquor, but the rooms were covered with posters of holo-vid heroes and Corellian landmarks which appealed to Han. After returning from the Tion Hegemomy, Han met Bria there. (THG, RD)

Blue Max
a small, cubical B2-X droid designed by Jessa's technicians to fit inside Bollux and remain hidden until needed by Rekkon's team to infiltrate the Authority Data Center on Orron III. Named for its blue color and the fact that the techs placed the maximum amount of computing power into the smallest possible space, Max was designed to access the Corporate Sector Authority's Data Center on Orron III and determine the whereabouts of people who have been mysteriously disappearing. Max also has a number of other abilities, including remote operation of Bollux. He has an exuberant, almost child-like personality. Max has a single photorecepter mounted in a turret on top of his cube. Blue Max and Bollux decided, after returning from Stars' End, that they wanted to see the galaxy, and asked Han Solo to accept them as crew members. Han overrode his instinctual distrust of automatons, after witnessing the two droids' loyalty and talent, and accepted them as crewmembers. They proved invaluable a number of times, helping to incapacitate Zlarb and his thugs on Lur. They were also able to communicate with the Millennium Falcon, and helped to keep it operating at top condition. When Han and Chewie set off to find the Queen of Ranroon, Blue Max again proved his worth, helping to translate the log-recorder, assisting Skynx in his investigation of the ship, and by finding a way to destroy the Guardian Corp of war robots. Following the discovery of the Queen, Blue Max and Bollux left Han Solo and went with Skynx to help the Ruurians finish his studies before becoming a chroma-wing flier. (HSE, HSR, HSL)

Blue Milk
this nutrient-rich beverage is served on worlds where natural resources are scarse. Planets such as Tatooine consume blue milk to supplement the water-poor diets of its inhabitants. Blue milk is also rumored to have medicinal value. (CCG)

Blue Mountains
this range of mountains is located just outside the city of Montellian Serat, on the planet Devaron. (TBH)

Blue Nebula
a run-down bar and grill located in the Manda spaceport. (DCAR)

Blue Nine
Dorset Konnair's callsign while stationed at Folor. (WS)

Blue Nova, The
this tavern was located on the deep-space repari platform 3DC/Green. (HAS)

Blue Petal Bar
this bar and restaurant was located on a floating terrace on Cloud City's Figg Plaza. (GG2)

Blue Queen
this Corsair-class cruiser is part of Dharus' fleet. It operates in tandem with the Red Lancer. (GG9)

Blue Registry
this galaxy-wide publication is used to valuate used droids. (POT)

Blue River
this waterway is located near the city of Tiems. (RASB)

Blue Six
John-D's callsign during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Blue Squadron
1) a group of Xwings during the Battle of Yavin (SWN)
2) the group of Y-Wings piloted by Bothans during the attack on the Suprosa. (SSE)
3) a group of A-wings during the Battle of Endor, Blue Squadron was assigned to the New Republic's Folor base shortly afterward. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game Death Star 2 expansion set claims Blue Squadron was made up of B-Wing starfighters which concentrated its attacks on the Executor during the Battle of Endor. (ROTJ, WS, CCG11)
4) a group of X-wings during the first Battle of Calamari. (DE1)

Blue Star Lake
a beautiful, wooded lake found on the forest moon of Endor. (GMH)

Blue Swirl
this section of the Kathol Rift was a relatively clear area which contained a few lifeless planetoids and minimal interference. (KR)

Blue Ten
Blue Leader's wingman during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)
Tetengo Noor's callsign while stationed at Folor. (WS)

Blue Three
Biggs' callsign during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Blue Tonic
one of the key ingredients in making a Reactor Core. (GG9)

Blue Twelve
Blue Leader's wingman during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Blue Two
Wedge's callsign during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Blue Wings of Strength
one of the Ancient Tokens of the Legendary Ewoks, the Blue Wings are a special headdress of blue wings, bestowed on the member of an expedition who lacks inner strength. Logray presented them to Widdle before the Ewoks helped Mace and Cindel rescue their parents from the Gorax. (EA)

Blue-ringed Sea Crab this crustacean, native to the oceans of Tinallis, was considered vermin by ecologists. Studies of the populations of various sea creatures revealed that, if allowed to reproduce at will, the blue-ringed sea crab would eventually choke out all other forms of life along the coast. For this reason, the government of Tinallis outlawed the hunting of the avian threshers, which fed on the sea crabs and kept their populations to a minimum. (COG)

Blueleaf shrubs
strong-smelling plants native to Yavin 4 and Ithor. (JS, COJ)

Bluescale
this was a nickname used to descrine the Ssi-ruu known as Sh'tk'ith. (TB)

Blufferavian
a bird-like creature native to the planet Borcorash. (SOP)

Blujay
manufacturers of B4J4 security droids. (ML)

Blumbush
this the fast-growing species of tree, native to the forest moon of Endor, which produces blumfruit. (GF)

Blumfruit
a large, red, oval-shaped berry consumed by the Ewoks. (ECAR)

Blurrg
this beast inhabits the savannas of the Forest Moon of Endor. It has been successfully domesticated by the clans of Marauders that live on the moon. They use the blurrgs as mounts, and for heavy labor. The blurrg is a reptilian creature with splayed, three-toed feet. Its mouth in overly large for its head, and is in constant motion eating all the plant material it encounters in the grasslands. The blurrg is not incredibly smart, and cannot be provoked. They have been known to run directly into small trees, knocking them down and moving on. (ISU)

Bluuis, Naren
this man served the New Republic as the Corva Sector Network Leader. Shortly before the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, his staff was infiltrated by an Imperial spy who posed as one of his aides. The spy continually fed information on Bluuis' movements back to Imperial forces, which often resulted in heavy losses for the New Republic. Bluuis lost many hours of sleep and ate poorly during this time, and was constantly under medical supervision. However, he refused to take break from his duties. After the destruction of the Kaarenth Dissension's fleet near the Spawn Nebula and the discovery of its spy, Bluuis recovered quickly. (SWJ8)

BLX-5
a series of Serv-O-Droid labor droids, the BLX-5 was a heavy-duty industrial worker. It was roughly humanoid in shape, and was first introduced about 100 years before the Galactic Civil War. (CSA, EGC)

BMC-150
this was themodel number of SoroSuub's bi-polar blaster carbine. (FOP)

Bnach
a scorched, dried world used as a labor camp for Imperial prisoners. Grand Moff Thistleborn was sentenced to three years of hard labor for his treachery against the Prophets of the Dark Side. (PDS, SWAJ)

Bnar VII
a planet. (AIR)

Bnef nIle
this Sullustan phrase translates to “good luck.” (DE1)

Bnef NIle
this small, modified freighter was owned by Niev Jaub. During the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, Jaub volunteered his services to help defend the moon. He got caught between two Carrack-class picket ships when he followed Falan Iniro out of their hiding place before the counter-attack was ordered. Seeing Iniro’s ship destroyed, Jaub took out as many TIE Fighters as he could before sustaining damage to the Bnef NIle. Rather than die without a fight, Jaub piloted the small ship on a collision course with the Vigilance, obliterating its shields upon impact. Jaub shouted “Bnef nIle!” as he did, calling “good luck” to the other smugglers. (THG)

Bnist, Haisha Su
this petty thief and agitator was wanted by the Empire for the murder of a stormtrooper, whom she killed while trying to escape being arrested. It was believed that she had several cybernetic prostheses implanted into her body to help improve her reflexes. (ND)

BNO
this weapons manufacturer specialized in grenades and other contained explosives. (ROE)

Bo Charmian Racing School
once located within the confines of the Mos Espa Arena, this school taught students the fundamentals of podracing. (IWE1)

Bo'tous
this bioweapon was developed by the Yuuzahan Vong, and was based on the original coomb spore virus. The bo'tous was designed to be carried in a host for its gestation period, then expelled in several breaths. Nom Anor had planned to destroy the Jedi Knights by having the priestess Elan pose as a hostage so that she could gain audience with the Jedi. Elan allowed a colony of the spores to be implanted in her chest. When they reached maturing, she could expel them in four controlled breaths. The bo'tous was much more virulent than the coomb spore, killing both Yuuzhan Vong and humans in mere minutes. The bo'tous grew rapidly in the presence of oxygen. Also, as the spores consumed their victims, they produced offspring in the form of infected mites. These flying mites would then attempt to find a new host, thereby spreading the disease. Unfortunately, the mites only lived for a few seconds before expiring. In the end, Elan was unable to exhale her spores in the presence of the Jedi, and instead was killed herself when she inhaled it. Elan's familiar, Vergere, provided a form of antidote to the original coomb spore to Han Solo before she disappeared. The antidote helped Mara Jade Skywalker return to health. (HT)

Bo-Pe Sommo
a freighter who was at one time given clearance to make the Byss Run, his clearance was revoked. However, he purchased a stolen security code from Shug Ninx, and tried to make the run anyway. He was killed when the Gauntlet Scanners rejected his code, immediately after Shug and Salla Zend used another illegal code and passed. (DE2)

Boar-wolf
this beast is a large, shaggy creature native to the Forest Moon of Endor. The boar-wolf has large facial tusks, a keen sense of smell, and saberlike claws. While the Boar-wolf often preys on the Ewoks, the small furry creatures have been known to trap a boar-wolf for food. (ISU)

Boav
this is a speedy sublight drive manufactured by SoroSuub. It is a simple and economic drive, although it is primarily compatible with only SoroSuub starship systems. (SWJ9, GG6)

Boba Fett and the Assassin Droids
this is the galaxy's original talent-free band. Originating on the planet Adarlon, they gained a steady cult following despite their lack of ability. They only release singles. (GG6, GG9)

Bobb, Feskitt
this bounty hunter was employed by the Empire in an effort to recover an I2-CG droid from Goratak III. The droid had intercepted information on the Alliance's starship manufacturing plant on Tar Morden, and was eventually recovered by Alliance forces. (MB)

Bobek
this young Dubravan male sought to join the Alliance. He contacted Jal Te Gniev about making contact with the Alliance and becoming a pilot, and Jal took it as a joke. He made Bobek take an "entrance exam" which involved Bobek being blindfolded and led in a random path until he fell in a hole. Bobek was humiliated in front of his friends, and sought to exact revenge on Jal. He purchased a blaster and set out to shoot him, but stumbled into an Imperial raid. As Jal tried to escape, a stormtrooper shot and killed Bobek. Jal fell deeper into despair, feeling that he had caused Bobek's death. (VQ)

Boble
a Bakuran noble Lady who agrees to watch Malinza when Gaeriel accompanies the Bakuran fleet to Corellia. (AS)

Boc
this Dark Jedi compatriot of Jerec was one of the few known Twi'leki Jedi. Boc was cunning and brash, and was known to laugh and taunt his opponents during battle. He was proficient in the use of two lightsabers at a time; his own lightsaber was a large device which could activate a single blade, or - when pulled apart - could be used as two blades. Boc, like Jerec's other Dark Jedi, was defeated by Kyle Katarn during the search for the Valley of the Jedi. (DF2)

Bocce
a galactic language used on Tatooine. (SW)

Bocck, Boddu
this man was a bounty hunter with something of a death-wish. In an effort to hone his own skills, Bocck once traveled to Rodia and hunted a group of Rodian hunters in the jungle. By himself. He wore his black hair long, with a topknot pulled toward the back of his skull. He later established a base of operations in Cloud City's Port Town. Bocck once ran into Major Birket, and an accidental discharge of a poisoned dart killed Birket's young assistant. Birket never forgot the event, even though he eventually turned to Bocck to help locate and capture Platt Okeefe and Tru'eb Cholakk. Bocck managed to capture Tru'eb on Tatooine, but his henchmen were unable to capture Platt on Cloud City. He turned Tru'eb over to Major Birket and collected part of the bounty. Bocck then returned to Cloud City. Note that Imperial Double-cross claims Boddu Bocck's hair is reddish in color. (SESB, IDC)

Boden
an unimportant planet in the Core. (CRO)

Bodgen
a swamp-covered moon orbiting an unspecified planet. (DCAR)

Bodo Baas
this Jedi Master was the Gatekeeper of the Holocron that Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa-Solo retrieve from the reborn Emperor Palpatine. He and a group of Jedi Knights were active in the Adega System about 600 years prior to the Galactic Civil War. Bodo Baas was a descendant of the Jedi Master Vodo Siosk-Baas, who was a contemporary of the Jedi Master Arca, about 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. (FNU, DE1, DE2, DA)

Bodrin
the primary planet in the Bodrin System, this rocky world is found in the Elrood Sector. The inhabitants barely make enough working as miners for the Elrood Quarry Corporation to survive. The mines operate at full output during the summer months, but the five winter months force the planet to shut down. (PG)

Bodrite
this mineral is mined by the Elrood Quarry Corporation on Bodrin. (PG)

Bodwae
this Laerdocian served as a sensor operator aboard the Errant Venture. He was part of the bridge crew during Garm Bel Iblis' assault on Yaga Minor. (SOP, VOF)

Body Bucket
this was a slang term used by armorers to describe the pieces of armor used by stormtroopers. (TFE)

Body of the Living God
this is the name for the planet Ronyards, used by the multitude of droids that live there. They consider the huge, planet-covering construct of droid parts to be the work of the planet itself. (CSWDW)

Bodywood
a pale pink wood with scarlet streaks, its color mimics that of the flesh of a race of creatures that inhabited the forests of Munto Codru. Hence, its name "bodywood." The live trees have a limited intelligence, and seem to be able to feel pain. (CS)

Boe Vixe
this Gran athlete refused to let his sister, Cera, marry Vee Naaq. (IA)

Boegis
codename of a group of Alliance Y-Wings destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Boetay
a wild animal native to the planet Garos IV, boetays roam the countryside in small packs. They tended to avoid contact with humans. They have a dark tan coloration, broken by black stripes. (SWJ12)

Boeus Sector
a section of the galaxy located in the Expansion Region. During the time of the New Republic, it was governed by Darvon Jewett, who is a supporter of the Republic. (RPG)

Bofa II
this planet was the distribution site for Imperial surveillance probes during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Bofa Treat
a sweet, dried, fruit-like snackfood. (TSW)

Boffa
a species of fruit tree native to Yavin 4. The fruit itself is often served salted. (DK)

Bog Beast
the swimming creature that tries to ingest R2-D2 on Dagobah (ESB)

Bog-hopper
this was a form of repulsorlift vehicle, similar to a landspeeder, used on the planet Seikosha. The craft had a bullet-shaped passenger area, supported by two winglike hydrofoils. The craft could transport up to seven beings, including the driver, and a little cargo. (POC)

Bog-wing
this flying predator is native to the swampy jungles of Dagobah. Measuring 1-5 meters from nose to tail, the bog-wing has leathery skin and a snake-like body propelled by large wings. The young of the bog-wing are born in mid-flight, as the mother dropds from an extreme altitude. The bog-wings use their sharp talons to grasp the small rodents and water creatures which inhabit Dagobah's swamps. (CCG4)

Boga Minawk
this anti-gravity sport became very popular at the Dona Laza tapcafe about fifteen years after the Battle of Endor. (SOP)

Bogan's Brown Nafen
this species of winged rodents was known in the popular media as butterbats. They were found on a number of tropical planets, where they consumed huge amounts of insects and small creatures. However, they were also carriers of a variety of diseases, making them a nuisance to be eliminated on many worlds. (COG)

Bogen, Ab'El
this New Republic Senator served on the Defense Council during the Yevethan Purge. (SOL, HT)

Bogey
an ice-creature that lives in the Kessel spice mines. It has a huge number of eyes and many long, pointed legs. It feeds on energy. They are bioluminescent. (JS)

Bogga
the Hutt crimelord who ruled the underworld of the Stenness System during the time before the Great Sith War. He was nicknamed 'The Merciful One' because of his tendency to give those who crossed him another chance to return to his favor. The options he usually provided were death or a very dangerous task; most Hutts would simply kill the offender. He became a sort of protector to the 'Nessie mining colonies, protecting them from pirates...for a price. He was not, however, very happy with the fact that Jedi Master Thon was living on Ambria, since Bogga had a fascination with the Dark Side of the Force. He ordered the death of Andur Sunrider, in an attempt to steal his Adegan crystals. He later attacked Thon's base, hoping to recover the gemstones, but was driven back by Nomi Sunrider. (TOJ)

Boggs, Wenny
a human who got lost in Tatooine's Junland Wastes while hunting Womp Rats. His story says that he heard a strange, alluring song from the desert, and when he found its source, it was a Tusken Raider singing in a sad, lilting voice. Although the Raider had removed his facial wrappings in order to sing, Wenny couldn't see his face. Further investigation revealed that the Raider was singing the plaintive song for a dead companion, something never before documented. (SWSB)

Boiling Caress
this Yuuzhan Vong instrument of pain employed the immersion of one's body into a vat of boiling hot liquid. (DTR)

Boiling Sea
a tourist attraction on the planet Drall in the Corellian System. Many speculate that the sea is a temporary geological formation that will disappear in a few hundred generations. In summer, the ground surrounding the small, landlocked lake become hot enough to boil off the accumulated water. Rains and winter snows replentish the sea. (AC, AS)

Bojam Rees
this tattoist made a meager living on Star Station 12, catering to the desires of spacers to acquire new tattooes. His shop was located on the station's level 17. Abal Karda paid this green-skinned alien to tattoo the tribal designs of the Duhma on his face, and paid him with a lock of Selestrine's bejeweled hair. Karda used the alias Mixxim, but this ruse was not enough to keep Bobe Fett from locating Bojam Rees and obtaining information on Karda's location. (EOE)

Boku Settlement
this settlement, located on the planet G'rho, was located near a rich vein of ore. (TBSB)

Bolabo Hujaan
this female Sullustan maintained the starship repair facility known as Bolabo's Garage. She fled Sullust as soon as she could find employment aboard a starship, and never looked back. She learned how starships worked through years of on-the-job experience, and eventually settled on Byblos to start her own operation. She was known to have been loyal to the Alliance, and often helped repair the ships of Alliance agents. However, she never did anything for free, and demanded payment up front before any repairs were started. She was also known as a smuggler, and would often steal the parts she required for the repairs done in the Garage. In order to help maintain the secrecy of the Garage, Bolabo developed a network of contacts within Byblos Starport Security, which she kept happy with regular payoffs. (CRO)

Bolabo's Garage
located deep within the confines of Byblos Tower 214, this starship repair facility was owned and operated by Bolablo Hujaan. The Garage could outfit a ship with almost any form of illegal equipment, for the right price, and Bolabo worked hard to keep its existence a secret from Byblos Starport Security. (CRO)

BolBol
the Hutt crimelord ruling the Stenness System during the Galactic Civil War. (TME)

Bold Dove
this freighter was owned and operated by Jorgan Blech during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Boldheart
this New Republic Corona-class frigate was the first New Republic ship to encounter the Teljkon vagabond. It was disabled by the vagabond about five years before Drayson sent Pakkpekatt and Lando Calrissian out to locate the vagabond. (BTS)

Boles Roor
this Sneevel was one of the Outer Rim's best podracer pilots, and was also known as a notorious drunkard and one of the best glimmik singers. Boles Roor was a two-time winner of the Boonta Eve Classic, staged every year near Mos Espa on Tatooine, and preferred the Bin Gassi Quadrijet 4Barrel 940E race. (TPM, IS1, IG1)

Bolgoink
1) this Gamorrean settlement, controlled by the mighty Bolgoink clan, was located on the Wugguh continent of Gamorr. One of the first major fairs, held during the season of Slushtime, occurtred annually in Bolgoink. (SWJ14)
2) this was one of the strongest clans of Gamorreans. (SWJ14)

Bolgoink Hold
this was the primary building of the Bolgoink settlement, was the chief residence of Vrokk and his wife Kufbrug. (SWJ14)

Boliscon, Aquato
this man was the owner of Boliscon Towers, on the planet Socorro. Considered one of the few legitimate businessbeings on the planet, Boliscon was at one time a smuggler and criminal of some renown. He retired after making a fortune running weapons and spice, and eventually purchased the Soco-Jarel Spaceport on Socorro. A member of the Society of the Black Bha'lir, he was also a great judge of starships and young smugglers. Aquato made sure that he took advantage of both when he discovered them in the Soco-Jarel Spaceport. (BSS)

Boliscon Towers
located on the perimeter of the Soco-Jarel Spaceport, this pair of five-story-tall docking hangars is the most noticeable man-made feature of the planet Socorro. The repair and modification shops within the Towers were well-known to pirates and smugglers who needed to upgrade their ship systems. (BSS)

Boll Trinkatta
this Kloodavian owned the Trinkatta Starships manufacturing facility on Esseles, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. When Adi Gallia came to Esseles to investigate the building of hyperdrive-equipped droid starfighters, Trinkatta had her imprisoned. He knew that the ships - ordered to have the hyperdrives installed by the Trade Federation - were illgeal, but he needed the business. He protested their development after a test pilot was killed. However, his own labor and security droids turned against him, and they threw him in a cell as well. They were reprogrammed by the Trade Federation, after Boll refused to deliver the upgraded ships. (E1A1)

Bollem
a creature that lives in the high mountain country. Its hide is desired for tanning to make furred leather. (LCF)

Bollen Pattern
this medical outline defines a series of neural connections which links all the body's muscles to a central location, such as the brain. The bollen pattern of an individual is essential to the implantation of a RiMPack. (CFG)

Bollom
this Tahlboorean term translates to "war." (DRPC)

Bollux
a stocky, humanoid BLX-5 robot with long arms and a broad torso, Bollux has led an adventurous existence. He was first activated at the shipyards of Fondor. Because of a number of coincidences, Bollux never received the mandatory memory wipe all droids require, and his personality continued to grow and change. He later served as a maintenance technician and also as a regimental commander during the Clone Wars. He was later deemed obsolete and sold off. He was purchased by Doc and Jessa, who did some further modifications to Bollux, and eventually gave him the nickname "Bollux." When Han Solo was contracted by Jessa to help locate the people stolen by the Corporate Sector Authority, Bollux was in use by Jessa's people as a transport disguise for the small supercomputer, Blue Max. Bollux's central plastron was modified to allow Blue Max to be placed inside Bollux's body. Bollux's name was given as a reminder of the headaches involved in maintaining him. Bollux was nearly destroyed by a laser bolt which hit him at Stars' End, but was repaired by Jessa's team and given a new carcass. He, along with Blue Max, decided that he wanted to see the galaxy, and asked Han Solo to accept them as a ship's helpers. Han overrode his instinctual distrust of automatons, after witnessing the two droids' loyalty and talent, and accepted them as crewmembers. They proved invaluable a number of times, helping to incapacitate Zlarb and his thugs on Lur. They were also able to communicate with the Millennium Falcon, and helped to keep it operating at top condition. When Han and Chewie set off to find the Queen of Ranroon, Bollux again proved his worth, finding a way to destroy the Guardian Corp of war robots. Following the discovery of the Queen, Blue Max and Bollux left Han Solo and went with Skynx to help the Ruurians finish his studies before becoming a chroma-wing flier. (HSE, HSR, HSL)

Bolo-ball
a sport popular throughout the galaxy. (CS)

Bolpuhr
this Noghri bodyguard accompanied Leia Organa Solo to Rhommamool during her first negotiations with Nom Anor. When Leia and the New Republic encountered the Yuuzhan Vong on Dantooine, Bolpuhr was killed trying to save her. (VP, DTO)

Bolt Squadron
captained by Tyresi Gurtt, Bold Squadron was the premier flight group of the Eyttyrmin Batiiv Survivors. (IJ)

Bolt-thrower
this primitive weapon is similar to a Wookiee bowcaster in many ways. It uses a crossbow-like structure to launch a thick cylinder into flight at a target. While it has the power of a blaster in terms of stopping an enemy, the bolt-thrower was a single-shot, slow-loading weapon. (ROE)

Bolter
this hardy plant is often used to assist in terraforming new worlds. (POT)

Bolton
this smuggler reprogrammed his DC5-1 freight droid to provide Customs officials with false manifests, relying on their trust of the usually reliable droids. (SWJ14)

Bolvan
this man was the Captain of the Devastator, during the period in which Darth Vader was forced to exterminate a quarter of a million Falleen in order to prevent a widespread plague. Bolvan disagreed with Vader's plan to bombard the failed laboratory with turbolaser fire, arguing that a more complete assault would be required. Vader wishe the Falleen to remain alive, and ordered Lieutenant Hija to fire on the lab. (SESB)

Bom Vimdin
this male Advosze despises other members of his own species. He was pessimistic and territorial, working as a solo smuggler for corrupt officials. He was in the Mos Eisley cantina when Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker booked passage to Alderaan on the Millennium Falcon. Following the Battle of Endor, he was apprehended by agents of the New Republic while transporting Imperial agents back to Imperial space. (CCG2, WBC)

Boma Beast
a huge, yellowish-green beast which roams the jungles of Onderon. They have ferocious teeth and a reptilian skin, and resemble bears. (TOJ)

Bomat
a flesh-eating, scavenger-like pest found on the planet Aruza. (TBH)

Bombard
one of the two Victory-class Star Destroyers which were deployed to eradicate the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates. (SWSB)

Bombard Squadron
an Imperial Navy division consisting of two torpedo spheres, a skirmish line of starships, and a line of pursuit ships. In total, up to 28 ships make up a Bombard Squadron. They were assigned to planets which had successfully overcome Imperial control, and had a strong military presence. The Bombard Squadron would then lay siege to the world, overtaking the rebellious inhabitants more quickly than a prolonged ground assault. (ISB)

Bombarde
this game of chance was developed aboard the luxury gambling ship Cal Ambre. Each game of Bombarde involved shooting a captured asteroid at the large planetoid Rove, using the Cal Ambre's mass drive weapon. The moon was electronically overlayed with a gridowkr pattern, and the asteroids were fired at a random location on the grid. Bets were placed on the exact location of the impact on Rove, and odds were historically updated with each round of play. (CRO)

Bombassa, Crev
this vicious Corellian crimelord ran much of the illegal operations in the farther reaches of Kathol Sector from a base on Pembric II. Despite his tendancy toward violence, Bombassa was nevertheless quite cultured. A short, pudgy man with thin limbs and bulging eyes, he surrounded himself with bodyguards while paying much of the Pembric Security Legionnaire force from his own coffers. During their search for Jorj Car'das, Lando Calrissian and Mara Jade managed to foil an assassination attempt on Bombassa's life. They refused direct repayment, instead deferring the reward to Talon Kaarde. Kaarde later used it to secure passage to Exocron during his own search for Car'das. After the New Republic and the Imperial Remnant signed their peace treaty, Bombassa went to work for the Hutts' overseeing operation in the Tynnani and Bothawui systems. Despite his affiliations with the Hutts, Bombassa shared information about the Yuuzhan Vong's plans for Tynna and Bothawui with Talon Karrde. He claimed to be simply "looking out for number one," but asked Karrde to make sure that the New Republic knew that he was supporting their efforts. (VOF, JE)

Bomlas
this Ychthytonian smuggler tended bar on Skip 1, in the Smuggler's Run. He has lost one of his arms in a particularly savage sabacc match, and declined a prosthetic replacement. Even still, Han Solo considered his one of the fastest bartenders he ever saw. There is a caret over the 'o' in Bomlas' name. (TNR)

Bomodon
an alien race. (TME)

Bonadan
primary planet in the Bonadan System, in the Corporate Sector, its natural resources were systematically drained by the Corporate Sector Authority. Its once-beautiful landscape is now scroched and barren from years of strip-mining, pollution, and mismanagement. It is one of the Authority's most prominent factory worlds, and has ten spaceports to effectively move its resources off-planet. A large Security Police force is stationed there, to keep an eye on the incredibly dense population. Weapons are not allowed on the planet, and newcomers must be thoroughly scanned before landing. An Authority Merchant Marine academy is based there. Zlarb was supposed to deliver his Lurian slaves to the planet. It was on Bonadan that Shug Ninx recovered a mile-long section of the first Death Star prototype, which he later used in his repair facility on Nar Shaddaa. Bonadan is also the site of an Alderaanian embassy, one of two such embassies recognized by the New Republic. The other is located on Coruscant. (HSR, DE1, DE2, XW, SOL)

Bonadan Blasters
one of the galaxy's most popular - and most franchised - shockball teams. (CSA)

Bonadan Heavy Industries
this is one of the many subsidiaries of TaggeCo. (CSA)

Bonadan Spaceport Southeast II
Bonadan's largest spaceport, Zlarb was supposed to meet his contact in the spaceport's main passenger lounge, at table 121. The spaceport boasts a huge lounge which is covered by a transparent dome, allowing its occupants an unobstructed view of the spaceport's traffic. (HSR)

Bonadon
his small corporation produced a number of tractor beam generators for light duty aboard freighters and independent transports. (PP)

Bonaka Nueno
this city, located on the planet Intuci, was razed by Sonopo Bomoor. Most of its inhabitants were killed in the attack, in a mass execution in Bonaka Square. Kosh Kurp was a native of the city, and was kept alive by Bomoor in order that he could serve as a living witness to Bomoor's power and greatness. Kurp never forgot, and searched for Bomoor for the rest of his life. (JTH)

Bond-wife
this is the name used to describe the first wife of a Cerean male. The ratio of Cerean males to females it one to twenty, so in addition to the bond-wife many Cerean males take several honor-wives. The relationship between the bond-wife and the honor-wives is often strained, especially when it comes to the bearing of children. (PTR)

Bonded Armor
an incredibly strong material made by molecularly bonding two sections of metal armor plating. (ROJR)

Bonderium
this Lambda-class shuttle was stolen by the Alliance, and was used by the agents who attempted to recover the datapacks taken from Dankayo by the Elusive. The agents tried to disable the Elusive, but were unable to immobilize the ship before it could jump to hyperspace. (SH)

Bondo
the large, jovial leader of the Jinda. (ETV)

Bonearm, Dace
a human bounty hunter who worked with an IG-series assassin droid just prior to the Battle of Yavin. (TME)

Bonegnawer
a flying predator native to Tatooine, thought to be able to crush stone with its powerful jaws. (SWN)

Bonemer
a synthetic material used to replace, repair, or augment natural bone tissue. (LCS)

Bonepicker
a derogatory term used to describe the Skrilling race, given because of the scavenging nature of that race. (GG12)

Bonestar Pirates
this group of Corellian rogues was once led by Loka Hask. During this time, they were pursued by the Corellian Security forces for several crimes. An interstellar chase resulted in the pirates landing on Gus Treta to create a diversion. The diversion involved the destruction of a fuel depot, owned by the Antilles family. The devastation, caused when the pirates lifted off while still coupled to the fuel dispensers, destroyed the Antilles' depot and killed Jagged and Zena Antilles. Wedge Antilles was safely off the station when the "accident" occurred. He and Booster Terrik pursued the pirates, destroying their ship and leaving them for dead. (XWPA)

Boneworm
this creature lives on the planet Necropolis, where it feeds on the bone marrow of dead bodies. The boneworms will also feed on a living being's bone marrow, if the being remains still too long. Doctor Evazan discovered that the slime of the boneworm was the missing ingredient to his own reanimation serum, and allowed him to bring recently-dead bodies back to life as zombies. Once a body was injected with the serum and interred in the Necropolis cemetary, the boneworms would begin eating at them. When the serum came into contact with their slime, the body was reanimated when the bones are drained of marrow by the boneworm and backfilled with the serum which is in the body's veins. (GOF2)

Bongo
this is the Gungan name for a small submersible vehicle. The Gungans built several forms of bongo subs for travelling beneath the surface of the planet Naboo, out of site of the native human population. Each bongo resembles an ocean creature, primarily squid and skates. The passenger and cargo compartments are sealed from the surrounding water by small force fields, and the controls are fairly standard. The bongo sub is propelled by a grouping of long, tentacle-like devices known as electromotive tentacles which hang behind the bongo and rotate, providing propulsion Most personal-use bongos are of the tribubble configuration, measuring about 15 meters in length, including the drive tail, and can reach speeds of 85 kilometers per hour. They have seating for three, which includes the pilot and two passengers. Up to 600 kilograms of cargo can be stored in two modules, and an escape pod is often inlcuded for use in case of emergency. (SW1, IG1, E1A9)

Bongo Rally, The
this annual, underwater race was staged by the Gungans. Originating in Lake Umberbool, the Bongo Rally course was a large, water-fillde tube that wound through the waters of Naboo. The two-kilometer course was filled with loops, turns, and plorkscrew tunnels, and the tube in which the races moved was just wide enough for two bongos. (E1A12)

Bongu
this Huttese term is the word for “shoulder.” (IS1)

Bonion
the planetary governor of the planet Obinipor. (WS)

Bonn, Janus
this Imperial Captain was a native of the planet Corulag, and the son of a wealthy Imperial noble. He attended the best schools, and volunteered for service to the Empire immediately upon graduation. He rose through the ranks until he was named as an assistant to Darth Vader himself. Bonn was assigned by Darth Vader to watch over the remains of the planet Alderaan, in hopes of capturing sympathetic members of the Alliance as part of Operation Yavin Kill Two. When Vader began circulating rumors that the Royal Palace of Alderaan had been preserved in the asteroid field of Alderaan's remains, Bonn was ordered to pay special attention for the presence of Leia Organa. Unfortunately for Vader and Bonn, the primary rumors about the existence of Asteroid 7785 were intercepted before they reached Leia Organa. A team of Alliance agents on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar heard them first and decided to investigate. Bonn's forces managed to corner them, but the Alliance fought off Bonn's troopers and managed to recover the Another Chance before it fell into Imperial hands. (GA)

Bonnie
this petite female was employed by TransGalMeg Industries on Narg, as a member of their Personal Satisfaction Division. She had long black hair. (TA)

Boog
this grumpy near-human served as the co-pilot of the Port-Esta Queen, until she carried Abal Karda to Star Station 12. Boba Fett tracked Karda to the Port-Esta Queen and tried to obtain information on Karda's whereabouts. When Boog tried to drop a crate of kneebs on Fett, Fett simply broke the fall and escaped to shoot Boog dead. His Captain, a bald alien with spots on his head and long, droopy mustaches, told Fett everything before being spared by the bounty hunter. (EOE)

Book of Anger, The first volume of the Dark Side Compendium, this work by Emperor Palpatine was derived from several sources: fallen Jedi, the Jedi

Holocron he stole from Ashka Boda, and the collected works of primitive magicians. It describes the ways that a Dark Jedi can use and control anger to make him stronger and more aggressive. (DE1)

Book of Law, The
the source of the Singing Mountain clan's basic tenets. The book was created by Allya to describe the ways in which the women of Dathomir should use their power. Foremost among the laws is the tenet, "Never concede to evil." Over time, other women leaders and even other clans modified the book for their own use. If a woman ever broke the laws Allya created, she was exiled from her tribe. The woman could be given a chance to rejoin her group if, after three years in the wilderness, she agreed to once again take up the laws in the book. (CPL, CTD)

Book of Practical Lightsaber Technique published by Novacron Press (book listing 162.S*D/3/r^6.56), this tome was written by the Jedi Master Vo'ren Faalo. Faalo had developed a series of practice routines that sharpened a Jedi's control of the Force while wielding a lightsaber. Faalo described a series of cadences in which the student used steel ball bearing set atop candles. The student had to cleave the steel balls in half without melting the candles. The cadences ranged from a single steel ball and candle to hundreds, and required intense concentration. (GG9)

Books of Massassi
a series of tablets recovered from a collapsed underground passage by the Jedi students on Yavin 4 following the Battle of Endor. Streen took the task of deciphering them, and had completed sixteen of them when Luke Skywalker left for Lucazec. The tablets revealed that the Massassi measured themselves against the natural world and found themselves lacking. They had achieved domination of the jungle moon, but saw that they were insignificant when compared to the rest of the galaxy. Thus, they continued to strive for perfection, and fell victim to the Dark Side of the Force. (BTS)

Book of Shadows, The
this was the heavily-modified version of The Book of Law which was created by Gethzerion, after she was exiled from her clan. Gethzerion taught her followers that Allya had written the original book after she was old and weak, and that the laws she set down were for her own benefit, and not that of the other sisters. This book taught the use of what Gethzerion later called Shadow Magic. (CTD)

Bookchip
a datachip on which is recorded a story or volume. (AS)

Boom
this diminutive being was recruited as a crewmember of the FarStar by Krudar. However, Boom's continual experimentation with fire - and the destructive results of those experiments - soon began to grate on the crew's collective nerve. (KR)

Boonda
this Hutt was the son of Groodo the Hutt. Boonda had once applied to the Corulag Academy, but had not been chosen to attend. Groodo had been furious, and attempted to make the Academy pay. However, Groodo was intercepted by Darth Maul before he could destroy the Academy, and the two Hutts fled. After reaching maturity and going into business for himself, Boonda became known as one of the rare individuals that actually ran a legitimate business. This "failing" led him to be manipulated by Movo Brattakin, who claimed he was dealing in droids who had been deliberately sabotaged with program traps. Brattakin, working through B-9D7, sent a cargo of droids to Boonda. Among the cargo were R2-D2 and C-3PO. B-9D7 also lured Olag Greck and Jace Forno to Boonda's moon, and when all were together, Brattakin's plan was launched. He had delivered two criminals into the hands of an honest Hutt, and Boonda took great pleasure in watching them bargain for their lives. He allowed R2-D2 and C-3PO to escape. (DRO)

Boonta
a planet known for its organized speeder races, it is also the site of an orbiting scrap yard. Sise Fromm employed Boba Fett to eliminate Thall Joben during a race there, but the attempt was foiled when a bomb - planted by Fromm's gang - was exploded near Fett's speeder. Fett, angry that he had missed a chance to kill Joben, took Fromm and his gang hostage and turned them over to Jabba the Hutt. (DCAR, EGC)

Boonta Eve
this Hutt holiday was celebrated each year on Tatooine. Many of the festivities, including the Boonta Eve Classic podrace, were hosted by Jabba the Hutt. (SW1)

Boonta Eve Classic
this podrace was one of the Outer Rim’s premier events, and pitted the best racers on the circuit against each other along a course filled with rocky obstacles. The longest and most popular race on the pro circuit, "The Boonta" was run annually on the Mos Espa podracing course. The race began in Mos Espa Arena, and wound past some of Tatooine's most famous landmarks, including the Great Pit of Carkoon, Arch Canyon, Jag Crag Gorge, and Beggar's Canyon. (SW1, TPM, RAC)

Boonta Spice
a heavy spice used in Giju stew. (SE)

Boordii
a planet on which Han and Lando had to escape from a botched dolfrimia run. It is located on the Sumitra Sector. (HTTE, REB)

Boordist
the language spoken on Boordii. (TLC)

Boorn, Keog
an Imperial scout, Boorn surveyed most of the Sluis Sector. He started to survey the planet Dagobah, and nearly discovered the location of the beckon call left possibly there by some unknown Dark Jedi (later discovered by Luke Skywalker). However, the ancient Jedi Master Yoda scared him away, much the same way Obi-Wan Kenobi frightened the Tusken Raiders away from Luke Skywalker on Tatooine. (HTSB)

Bootlegger's Slide
this was the name of a specialized obstacle used in swoopchasing. The Slide was an open-air, anti-gravity channel which rendered all riders weightless and without speed limits. The lack of gravity pulled a swoop along at nearly twice its normal speed, and riders were forced to use maneuvering jets in order to navigate the Slide. A safety rail was installed in every Slide channel, allowing riders who were out of control to bump along and regain their bearings without being seriously injured. (BSS)

Booty Full
this pirate ship was a modified bulk cruiser, and was part of the fleet which was assembled under Leonia Tavira, several years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. It attempted to waylay the luxury liner Glitterstar, but was subdued by Rogue Squadron. (IJ)

Boqeri
this was the period of self-imposed isolation that a Nazzar of the Old Republic would perform to cleanse their soul and become imued with the Ulizra and the Great Structure. The boqeri lasted twelve Nazzri years. (TOJC)

Bora Boru
a Bosph smuggler operating in the Outer Rim during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ13)

Borallis Metalworking & Materials
this corporation produced a wide range to tools and materials for use in welding applications. (PSG)

Boras
1) this species of incredibly large plant was native to the planet Zonama Sekot. Boras could grow to be six hundred meters tall, with diameters well over 10 meters at their base. The foliage of the boras formed an immense canopy over the planet, colored with greens and dotted with gold, blue, purple, and red. Despite their size and shape, most xenobotanists did not classify the boras as a tree. The original colonists, however, could only liken them to trees, and used the Ferroan word boras - which meant tree - to describe them. The balloon-like leaves of the boras were used by the colonists as airsacs, which were used to create floating airships. The lifecycle of hte boras was the model after which the creation of Sekotan starships was developed. The ancient boras drop seeds to the ground, which feed on the dead limbs the boras tree drops to the tampasi floor. Then, during periods of intense thunderstorms, the boras channel raw lightning through their branches to the seeds on the ground, filling them with energy and cracking them open in a process known as forging. Once the seeds are opened, special leaves on the boras tree shape the seeds into future boras trees in a process known as annealing. In this way, no two boras trees are alike. The original Magister of the planet trained the boras to move their dense canopies over the organic factories of the Jentari, blocking the creation process from prying eyes. (RP)
2) this was the Ferroan word for 'tree.' (RP)

Borbor Crisk
this being was part of Grand Admiral Thrawn's trail into Black Sun's operations on Corellia. He was known to the law enforcement agencies as a small-time criminal whose interests remained within the Corellian System. Despite this description, it was known that Crisk hoped to topple Zekka Thyne and Black Sun to gain control of the system's underworld. (TFE)

Borborygmus Gog
this evil, mad scientist once worked for the Empire. A Shi'ido, he was the lead scientist for Project Starscream, and controlled the efforts of Doctor Evazan for much of this time. Gog was the primary developer behind the planet D'vouran, a project he began with his partner, Mammon Hoole, about twenty years before the Battle of Yavin. They received Imperial support for the project, and moved their labs to the planet Kiva. There, they tinkered with the ability to control life and death. When their experiments began to drain from the native Kivans, Hoole became alarmed. Gog, however, told the Emperor that everything was OK, and ordered the continuation of the experiments. Eventually, the experiment robbed the entire planet of Kiva of all life, including the native Kivans, and the experiment failed. Gog blamed the failure on Hoole, and continued in secret. He was though to have died on Nespis 8, after being captured by a dianoga living on the station, but reappeared on Kiva in hopes of capturing Hoole and maintaining control over Starscream. There, Gog activated the biological weapon Eppon, more to save himself from the wrath of Darth Vader than anything else. After destroying Eppon, Gog himself was executed by the wraiths of the dead Kivans, after D-V9 revealed Gog's transmission to the Emperor documenting the destruction of Kiva. (GOF2, GOF5, GOF6)

Borcatu
this creature was a small, plated rodent which was found in a wide range of environments and locations. Their bodies were protected by overlapping plates of hard chitin, and their feet were tipped with hard claws for digging. They were scavengers, living on anything they could dig up. Originally native to the Serhan desert of Escabar, it is believed that borcatu were inadvertently transported off the planet by a group of traders from the Krassh region. (COG)

Borcorash
this planet is known for the incredibly-colored sunsets which can be viewed from anywhere on the planet. The planet's atmospheric conditions result in an ever-shifting array of colors during sunset. (SOP)

Bordal
one of two habitable planets in the Taroon System, Bordal was invaded by the Empire just before the Battle of Hoth. Bordal and its sister planet, Kuan, had been locked in a bitter, decades-old war, although no one remembered the exact cause. The Bordali economy was in ruins, and the planetary government had declared martial law. The Empire, seeing an opportunity, entered the system to bring news of Palpatine's removal of the supposed dead wood of the Old Republic. The Empire blamed the planet's economic crisis on the Old Republic, and swayed the Bordali to join the Empire. The planet's primary inhabitants are human. (TIE)

Bordhell
a manufacturer of fuel slugs in the time preceeding the New Republic. Xim the Despot had stockpiled a huge number of Bordhell fuel slugs to help him protect his growing empire. The Queen of Ranroon was loaded with them when it was hidden on Dellalt. (HSL)

Borealis
one of four Corellian CR90 Corvettes under the command of Lumiya, following the Battle of Endor. (SWG)
this starship served as Leia Organa-Solo's flagship during her travel to the Chorios System to meet with Seti Ashgad. (POT)

Borderland Regions
a militarized zone between the New Republic's space and that of the Imperial remnants. This is not an official sector of the galaxy, but a name given to the remaining Galactic Civil War battle zone. (HTTE)

Bordok
a small, horse-shaped creature native to the forest moon of Endor. The Ewoks use them like mules. (ECAR)

Borecrawler
a particularly devastating insectile creature found on Virujansi. Larval borecrawlers are used as a torture and execution tool. (RC)

Boreen
this lock component controls the retry mechanism. (CFG)

Borfax
this hulking, half-human/half-reptile is found on the planet Centurious. The borfax has three eyes. It is believed that the borfax was one of the early failures of Palpatine's cloning experiments. (WEG)

Borg-implant
a computer chip implanted into warriors that links them to a central computer which controls their actions (HTTE)

Borga Besadii Diori
this Hutt was considered the most powerful of the Hutts, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. It was learned that Borga had started making deals with the Vong, working to form an alliance with Nom Anor, who pretended to be the intermediary Pedric Cuf. He resented the efforts of the Peace Brigade, since they were counteractive to the deals he tried to make. Later, Borga pledged to support Malik Carr and the Yuuzhan Vong, allowing them to stage the next phase of the invasion from Hutt Space. In return, Borga was given information on which worlds would be attacked next, allowing her to profit from the attacks. (HT, JE)

Borgo Prime
Lando Calrissian sold corusca gems to a broker on this asteroid space station. Over the years, the station has collected it fair share of murderers, thieves, and conmen. The asteroid itself is honeycombed with old mining tunnels and caves that have been long-ago stripped of an valuable ores. This network was easily modified to accommodate a spaceport. After the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, an Imperial credit-laundering operation was also esablished here, providing a steady flow of funds into the waning Imperial coffers. (SA, SOP)

Borin, Danz
this native of Nar Shaddaa was a cocky gunner and bounty hunter who was nearly as good as he boasted to be. He was in Mos Eisley when Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker booked passage on the Millennium Falcon. (CCG2)

Boring Laser
this mining device uses a laser to bore holes in rock. The holes are then filled with explosive for blasting. (SH)

Borium
a raw material mined on the planet Contruum. (CFG)

Borke's Cantina
this run-of-the-mill bar and grill was owned by Borke Valkanhayn. Located in Drepplin, on the planet Glova, the cantine was used to launder the money he received from the illegal import and sale of goodson the planet Glova. (POC)

Borkeen Belt
an infamous belt of asteroids which were the remains of a shattered planet, the Borkeen Belt was reported to be the home of Grendel, the huge space slug. The Borkeen Belt is a navigator's nightmare, and no ship has ever been know to return from it. (SWSB)

Borkyne
Jodo Kast - in actuality, a disguised Grand Admiral Thrawn - supposedly botched a mission there for Captain Niriz. (TFE)

Borleias
the fourth planet in the Pyria System, it was the site of a facility owned by Alderaan Biotics prior to the Galactic Civil War. The site was abandoned after the destruction of Alderaan, and was forgotten. Imperial General Evir Derricote discovered the abandoned base and set up a base of his own there, diverting Imperial supplies to strengthen his position on Borleias. He made almost three million credits creating lost Alderaanian foodstuffs and selling them on the black market. (XWN)

Borleias
one of the New Republic transport ships stationed on Folor shortly after the Battle of Thyferra. It suffered from a ion engine initializer malfunction while escaping from the Implacable, and was escorted off the moon by Wraith Squadron. (WS)

Borlov
this planet is the homeworld of the Borlovians. (SWAJ)

Borlovian
the timid, feathered alien race native to the planet Borlov. They have a stable, feudal society, and htey very rarely leave their home cities. They communicate via a series of whistles. (SWAJ)

Bormea Sector
this Core area makes up one half of the Ringali Shell. It was ruled by Imperial Moff Jamson Caglio during the Galactic Civil War. The Perlemian Trade Router intersects the Hydian Way in this sector. (SWAJ)

Bormea System
this star system was a major stop-over point for transport ships carrying passengers to and from Coruscant. (IJ)

Bornaryn
this was the title used by the workers and supporters of the Thul family shipping empire, led by Bornan Thul and his wife, Aryn Dro Thul. Bornan used it as the name of his shipping company. (TEP)

Borneck
this race of near-humans was native to the planet Vellity and its system. Their skin color ranges from pale yellow to orange-brown, and they were known for their patience and common sense. The Bornecks were a peaceful race known for their common sense and patience, and they known to be excellent farmers. Most Bornecks enjoy heavy labor, and hard work is considered the key to good health. Bornecks also enjoy celebrations, and the multitude of holidays and fetes brought them together into a planetary society. The average Borneck lived to be 120 standard years of age. (GMK, AE)

Borofir
this young Ghostling child was captured, along with Princess Arawynne, by Djas Puhr and brought to Mos Espa to be sold as a slave. Borofir was just three years old at the time. (E1A5)

Borolol's Claw
a tall mountain peak found on Captivity. The Claw is tall enough that it sometimes pierces the cloud cover of the moon if it gets stuck in the eye of a storm. (RC)

Borra
this huge, humanoid creature was controlled by the Gorax on the Forest Moon of Endor. A borra captured Jeremitt and Catarine Towani when their star cruiser crashed on the moon. (EGC)

Borrat
this creature, found in the subterranean realms of Coruscant but not native to the city-world, grow to be two meters in length. They have tusks, spines, armored flesh, and hard claws, making them dangerous when encountered. They tend to be solitary. (WG)

Borscii
this bushy plant is native to the planet Bothawui, and is often used in decorative plantings. (SOP)

Borsk Fey'lya
Fey'lya, recognizable by his cream-colored fur and violet eyes, was a native of the Bothan colony world Kothlis. He joined the Alliance shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He brought with him a large contingent of Bothans. He led the mission to steal the Death Star plans (although this is not verified by X-Wing: Rogue Squadron), and was rewarded with a leadership position in the Alliance which grew into a seat on the New Republic's General Council. As a councilor in the Alliance, he began playing the various representatives against each other, in an effort to gain more and more power. After the Battle of Endor, Fey'lya's manipulations came to a head when the New Republic - in an effort to gain some legitimacy - began to plan the retaking of Coruscant. Fey'lya set up the series of discussions and briefings on Noquivzor, where other members of the council would feel ill-at-ease, due to the planet's dry environment. This worked in his favor, forcing Ackbar and others to debate amongst themselves while Fey'lya entered his own opinions. Fey'lya probably would have continued to gain power this way, but his Bothan ideals got the best of him when Grand Admiral Thrawn stepped onto the scene. When he saw an opportunity to denounce Admiral Ackbar and gain control of the Republic's armed forces, he took it. He aligned himself with Grand Admiral Thrawn's plans to discredit Ackbar, and was the main proponent in Ackbar's treason hearings. When the plot against Ackbar was revealed, Fey'lya thought that his career with the Republic was finished. However, the Republic recognized that is needed strong leaders, and pardoned him. He remained a loyal Republic supporter after that, although he never lost his uncanny ability to turn a situation to his own advantage. To this end, he began forcing Asyr Sei'lar to abandon her relationship with Gavin Darklighter, for he felt that it wasn't the way a proper Bothan - let alone a hero of stature almost equal to the Martyrs - should behave. Asyr ignored him, knowing that Bothan society would have to change to meet the demands of the new galaxy. Fey'lya told her that he himself would control that change, and told Asyr to fall into line with him. She refused, and after her "death" at Corvis Minor 5, she began working to change society without him. The fact that Asyr's body was never recovered hurt Fey'lya's plans to make her into the greatest of all Martyrs, and forced him to approach Booster Terrik with a request to locate a Bothan body to use in her place. Fey'lya had no qualms about Booster's people murdering a Bothan in order to fill the need. Booster flatly refused, and beat Fey'lya with his fists to ensure he got the message. Fey'lya was forced to return to Coruscant and rethink his plans. He later served as the chairman of the Justice Council during Leia Organa-Solo's tenure as Chief of State. After the agreement with Admiral Pellaeon to effectively eliminate Imperial opposition, Fey'lya was named Chief of State of the New Republic in a sweeping power-play. He led the New Republic Advisory Council twenty years after the Battle of Bilbringi, and was in this position at the onset of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. He had arranged for a great deal of support to be voted to Senatorial positions, and received strong backing when Leia Organa Solo pleaded with the High Council to act against the Yuuzhan Vong forces. Fey'lya and his supporters dismissed her pleas as a poorly-disguised way to regain political power, but he was proven wrong when the worlds of Dantooine, Bimmiel, and Garqi were overrun by the Yuuzhan Vong. After it was revealed that he had manipulated Navy orders to avoid confrontation with the Vong, Fey'lya was forced to concede leadership to the military in order to avoid a complete take-over of the galaxy by the Yuuzhan Vong. (HTTE, DFR, WG, SOL, IR, VP, DTO)

Borstel
manufacturers of shipboard ion and laser weapons. (SCRE)

Bortras
C'baoth's home world. According to Rebellion, Bortras is located in Sesswenna Sector. (DFR, REB)

Bortrek
this fair-haired human was the Captain of the Pure Sabacc. A native of the planet Algar, he was distinguished by a scar which cut across his lips. It was Bortrek and the Pure Sabacc that intercepted C-3PO and R2-D2 when they escaped from the Death Seed plague launched by Seti Ashgad aboard the Borealis. He made extensive modifications to R2-D2, using the small droid to assist in piloting the Sabacc while Bortrek stole the droids. R2-D2 eventually overrode the ship'sprogramming and allowed the two droids to escape from Bortrek's possession. (POT)

Borvak
this clan once threatened the Bureau of Ships and Services with physical violence. BoSS, in turn, threatened to bring interstellar commerce to a halt by deleting all known transponder data of all starships unless the planetart governments helped bring the Borvaks down. The governments responded, and the Borvaks backed down against the sheer size of the force arrayed against them. Note that Galaxy Guide 12 describes this family as the Nimbanese Bovark clan. (CFG, GG12)

Bos
this New Republic Lieutenant was a ferry flight leader aboard the fleet carrier Venture during the Republic's battle with the Yevetha. He commanded Bravo Flight. (TT)

Bos sos si*?
this Yuuzhan Vong phrase translates loosely to the question, "What is that?". (VP)

Bosch
a planet. (SOL)

Boshaa-C'hi
this highly-powerful Kuat Drive Yards ion drive was originally designed for military use in starfighters. It was often purchased on the black market by deep space explorers, who needed its reliability and strength. (SWJ9, GG6)

BoShek
a human smuggler who was also in competition with Han Solo. He actually beat Solo's 12-parsec Kessel Run, but he did it without a cargo. He took this small victory in the starship Infinity, and was returning the ship to Tatooine when he encountered Imperial Star Destroyers deployed by Darth Vader to locate R2-D2 and C-3PO. BoShek forced the ship to land in the Dune Sea, and headed toward Mos Eisley. He established a secret outlaw tech lab in the city. In the cantina at Mos Eisley, he discovered Chewbacca, and was gloating to him about his new Kessel Run record when Ben Kenobi approached him about passage to Alderaan. BoShek, without a ship of his own, since he was under the employ of the Dim-U monastery on Tatooine, referred Ben to Chewbacca. Meanwhile, BoShek tried to rub in his new record on Han Solo, but he was forced to flee when the local government learned that he had downed the Infinity and wanted to hold him responsible for the breach in security. He used his encounter with Ben Kenobi to pose as a street priest preaching the good side of the Force, and after witnessing the Imperial slaughter of Het Nkik, he decided to join the Alliance. (TME, CCG)

Bosken & Bosken Company
this company started a mining operation that attempted to collect gases from Pesitiin. However, the planet's intense atmospheric storms constantly thwarted their efforts. They eventually went bankrupt. (GG2)

Bosmihi
this Kroctarian was the leader of the Unified Factions during the second decade of the New Republic, and was one of the first aliens to welcome the sham of Moff Disra and the conman Flim. (VOF)

Bosph
1) this Outer Rim planet was razed by Imperial bombardment which was rumored to be a retaliatory strike against rebellious inhabitants. In reality, the strike was designed to eliminate the Bosphs, some of whom were sensitive to the Force. Many Bosphs believed that the attack was a form of religious purge, and none ever discovered that Emperor Palpatine himself ordered their destruction.The planet itself was covered with grassy plains, broken by the scars of turbolaser fire. (SWJ13)
2) the four-armed alien race native to the planet Bosph. They had a stocky, humanoid shape, although their semi-circular heads were attached directly to their torso, without a neck. Their heads were dominated by two multi-faceted eyes and a pair of horns. Their hands and feet each had three digits, and their skin color ranged from light brown to dark gray. They were isolationists by nature, with a deep respect for philosophy and religion. Bosph leaders were known to have sensitivity to the Force, and could control it to some degree. Certain Bosphs attained greatness, and were allowed to place their own personal glyphs on objects. The Bosphs maintained their space-faring history by tattooing elaborate starmaps on their skin. After the Empire destroyed much of their homeworld, most Bosphs simply dis-remembered the Empire and its acts, instead blaming the attack on the Yenntar. (SWJ13, AE)

Bosphon Geddy
a complex musical instrument developed by the Bosphs. (SWAJ)

Bospridium
this element is one of the key components of the truth serum Bavo Six. (CFG)

Boss B
this was the alias used by Big Bunji during the early decades of the New Republic. (HT)

Boss Bunji
this was another alias used by Big Bunji, during the early decades of the New Republic. (JE)

BoSS Code
this was the name of the house band which played regularly at Bantha Traxx. (WSV)

Boss Nass
this Ankuran Gungan was the leader of his people during the Old Republic's struggle with the Trade Federation. Boss Nass was well-known among the Gungans as the individual who united the Ankuran and Otollan races. This union resulted in the dissemination of technology and sparked trade between the two races, and led to the construction of the vast, underwater city of Otoh Gunga, created from bubbles made of bubble wort and other well-kept secrets. He was a large Ankuran, whose immense body weight had compacted his skeleton into a much shorter version of the normal Gungan physique. Boss Nass was prone to nervous tics, and often grumbled his dissatisfaction by violently shaking his jowls. During the Battle of Naboo, Boss Nass tried to remain apart from the battle, leaving the snobbish Naboo to worry about the Trade Federation armies. However, when Queen Amidala came to him in the Gungan sacred place and kneeled before him in a show of peace and humility, he changed his mind. In Amidala, he found a Naboo leader who was willing to shed the prejudices of the past and work toward a brighter future for both races. He supplied the vast Gungan Grand Army to assist in Amidala's plans to oust the Federation. The Gungans rallied around him, and despite a large loss of life, they were successful in holding off the Federation's droids long enough for Anakin Skywalker to destroy the Droid Control Ship, and for Amidala to capture Nute Gunray and Rune Haako, breaking the Federation's hold on Naboo. Boss Nass was portrayed by Brian Blessed in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, TPM, IG1)

Boss Trome
this crimelord was known to employ alien species which could change their shape, and he used them in all kinds of positions. (SWJ12)

Boss Zorkiss
this fictional character was immortalized in a series of trading holocards. (GG11)

Boss-Master
Cerasi used this term to describe Qui-Gon Jinn, during her conversations with Obi-Wan Kenobi. (DOD)

Bossk
the son of Cradossk, the leader of the old Bounty Hunters Guild, Bossk was known in his early years as a highly-skilled hunter of Wookiees. This was only natural, since Trandoshans measure their skills in their ability to kill Wookiees. Bossk even had his personal ship, the Hound's Tooth, outfitted with special cages to hold Wookiees, and tanning vats to cure their hides. Bossk, however, was never able to make it to the top of the heap in the Guild, being stifled by both his father's machinations and the existence of freelance hunter Boba Fett. In nearly ever mission they both took, Fett got the upper hand and beat Bossk to the bounty. Often, Fett would then embarrass the Trandoshan, which made Bossk's lust for revenge even deeper. When Bobe Fett decided to join the Guild, Bossk feared that the other hunter was there to destroy the Guild and keep everything for himself. In this belief, Bossk was very close to the truth. However, Cradossk had noticed his son'' growing anger, and hoped to kill him off before he did any real damage. Cradossk arranged for Boba Fett, Bossk, and Zuckuss to recover Oph Nar Dinnid from the Shell Hutts, and hired Zuckuss to ensure Bossk's death. However, Zuckuss was something of a double agent, and reported Bossk's death even as the Trandoshan returned to the Guild. Lulled into a sense of security, Cradossk was unprepared when Bossk appeared. Being younger, stronger, and angrier, Bossk made short work of killing and eating old Cradossk. After the breakup of the Guild, Bossk formed the Guild Reform Committee in opposition to the True Guild. Both factions waged a hidden civil war, further reducing the ranks of bounty hunters. During this time, Bossk decided to join Boba Fett in the search for Trhin Voss'on't. The arrangement was short-lived, however, as both hunters tried to steal the Imperial from the other. In the end, Bossk was embarrassed again by Fett. Bossk retired for a short time to lick his wounds, but was discovrered in the Corellian System by Hal Horn. After killing the security officer, Bossk was caught and imprisoned by Corran Horn, but was released by Kirtan Loor. Bossk then became part of a team that tried to capture a group of relocated Wookiees on the safeworld of Gandolo IV. He had tracked Chewbacca there, and he assembled a group of bounty hunters to take control of the Wookiees. However, through the intervention of Han Solo, the Wookiees were able to escape while Bossk and his fellow bounty hunters were left stranded on Gandolo IV. Bossk eventually freed himself, and vowed to find Chewbacca again. His chance came when Vader sought out bounty hunters to capture the Falcon. He took on two unlikely crewmembers, in the Wookiee Chenlambec and the human, Tinian I'att. The two had posed as bounty hunters, in an attempt to draw Bossk into a trap set by Wookiees. They claimed to have information on a series of Wookiee waystations throughout the galaxy, and that information could be found on one of them that would lead them to Solo and Chewbacca. The ruse worked, and they were able to lure Bossk to Lomabu III. There, in brilliantly-executed series of manipulations, Bossk was captured by Imperial forces and held on the charge of attempting to kill the Wookiees held in a labor camp there. The Imperial Governor, Io Desnand, eventually freed the Trandoshan. Bossk and several other bounty hunters tried to intercept Boba Fett near Gall and capture Solo's frozen form. Bossk tried to waylay Slave I in an asteroid field, but was nearly blown to bits by Fett's marksmanship. Bossk then found work with Jabba the Hutt, as part of the swoop gang used to patrol the landing pads where other hunters brought in Jabba's enemies. Bossk was nearly killed by Fett again when the Hunter brought Han Solo to Jabba. It was during this time that Bossk tried to steal the Slave I, but ended up losing it and the Hound's Tooth to Boba Fett. Bossk did managed to take possession of the load-shifter droid which contained the falsified record of the death of Owen and Beru lars, which was created by Kuat of Kuat, but ultimately lost that to Fett as well. Later, Bossk failed to capture Lando Calrissian on Keyorin. He was 58 standard years old at the time. Bossk then became involved with Zekka Thyne, who was released by the New Republic in an effort to gain information on Coruscant. Bossk was mortally wounded in a shootout caused by Corran Horn's escape from Thyne on Coruscant, but managed to survive the wound. He was employed by Big Bunji to harass Han Solo and Roa, during their search for Reck Desh, on the Jubilee Wheel. (ESB, MTS, EGC, SEC, SSE, WG, TBH, MA, SLS, HM, HT)

Bot
Grammel's henchman, his race is unknown. He wears a hooded cloak, and is reportedly mute. He witnesses Luke and Halla discussing the shard of the Kaiburr crystal, and reports it to Grammel. (SME)

Bot-Un
a rift valley on Belsavis. (COJ)

Bothan
furry, bipedal race native to the planet Bothawui and several other colony worlds, they are political and influential by nature. They are masters of brokering information, and had a spy network that rivalled the best the Empire or the Old Republic could create. As a race, Bothans took great pride in their clans, and it was documented that there were 608 registered clans on the Bothan Council. They joined the Alliance shortly after the Battle of Yavin. While the Bothans generally stayed out of the main fighting, there were two instances of Bothan exploits. The first came when they were leaked the information about the plans and data on the construction of the second Death Star near Endor. A number of Bothans assisted a shorthanded Rogue Squadron in recovering the plans from the Suprosa, but their lack of piloting skills got many of them killed. The plans were recovered and brought to Kothlis, where more Bothans were killed in an Imperial raid to recover the plans. Again, the Bothans retained possession of the plans, and eventually turned them over to Mon Mothma and the Alliance. The second came when they helped eliminate Imperial ships near New Cov. It was later revealed that the Bothans were also involved in bringing down the planetary shields of the planet Caamas, during the early reign of Emperor Palpatine, allowing the Empire to burn the surface of the planet to charred embers. Although the Bothans searched for several years to discover the clans invovled, Imperial records were too well-guarded to provide any clues. Then, some fifteen years after the Battle of Endor, records were discovered at Mount Tantiss that told of the Bothan involvement. (ROTJ, HTTE, DFR, SE, SOP, A)

Bothan Assault Cruiser
this warship was developed by the Bothan military, for use by the New Republic, shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (HT)

Bothan Glitterstone
Jabba and Jiliac tried to bribe Admiral Greelanx with a large, flawless glitterstone ring. (THG)

Bothan Military Academy
this military institution was founded on Bothawui, and served to train those Bothans whose callings centered on the defense of their planets. It was not highly regarded, however, since the Bothans preferred to do battle in the political arena rather than with blasters and starships. (WG)

Bothan Military Intelligence
this branch of the Bothan armed forces was involved in the acquisition of data about its wartime enemies. It was related to the Bothan Spynet. (KT)

Bothan Redrash
this disease was known to afflict Bothans and some other humanoid races, but was not always contracted by individuals in contact with it. (WS)

Bothan Sector
an area of the galaxy once “liberated” by the Empire following the Noolian Crisis. (TPS)

Bothan Spynet
this elite group of spies and information brokers is of a caliber slightly better than anything the Empire - or even Black Sun, at its height - could match. This proved to be a boon for the Alliance, since the Bothans were of an anti-Imperial sentiment. It was the Bothan Spynet that discovered the plans to the second Death Star were being transported on the Suprosa. (SSE)

Bothan Way
this was the term used to describe the philosophy and guiding principles of the Bothan people. (AE)

Bothan's Planet
a planet that was mined extensively for its native ores, including lidium. The Empire tried to kill Tiree there, when he was recruiting support for the Alliance. A group of Alliance operatives was nearly killed along with Tiree, but they later rescued him from Questal. (RPG, GCQ)

Bothawui
the Bothan homeworld, Bothawui is a cosmopolitan planet which is a major hub for information trafficking. The Bothan spy network has been decsribed as second to none, and much of the information is possesses flows through Bothawui. Note that Specter of the Past indicates that the Bothawui system is located “millions of kilometers from anywhere.” It was here that many of the alien races of the New Republic gathered their warships during the Caamas Incident, representing their own opinions and hoping to exact vengeance on the Bothans involved in the destruction of Caamas. (DFR, SE, SOP, VOF)

BothiCorp
this corporation produced a number of tools which were used to bypass starship security systems, such as the VoiceBox. (SWJ13)

Botiv
this ancient Ugor is reverred as the race’s Great Prophet. (SH)

Botkins
Kell Tainer assumed the identity of this mechanic, in order to get close to the Hawkbat's Vigil while on Storinal. (WS)

Botor
a nondescript planet. (CRO)

Botor Enclave
1) a communal city located on the frozen planet of Kerensik. (DESB)
2) this political body was often at odds with the Daupherm Planet States, during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (CRO)

Botrut
a tribe of Ugnaughts living on Cloud City, the Botruts were one of the first three groups purchased by Ecclessis Figg for employment on the outpost. (GG2, MTS)

Bottom Line
the crew of this smuggling ship discovered Purr as a stowaway, after visiting the Tinnell homeworld. (SWJ1)

Bottom Viol
a musical instrument in the same family as the double viol, but with a much deeper sound. It produced musical with a combination of five strings and a collection of buttons which lined its upright neck. (TFE)

Boudolayz
this planet was the site of one of the Empire’s main archives, although it wasn't nearly as defended as the Ubiqtorate at Yaga Minor. (SOP, VOF)

Boulder-dozer
built by Rendili Vehicle Corporation, these earth-moving machines are equipped with lasers that can vaporize rocks and earth. (QE)

Boultan
a Corellian Defense Force groundside Captain stationed on the planet Corellia, Boultan tells Micamberlecto that the Navy's shipyards are being held by the Corellian Imperialists, just following Thrackan Sal-Solo's move to seceed the Corellian Sector from the New Republic. (AC)

Bounce
a game of chance and skill often found in casinos. Players fire a simulated weapon at a moving target, attempting to graze the target and bounce it around an enclosed game space. (HSR)

Bounds
this is the undeveloped area of rocky, barren land located outside of Corint City, on Pirik. (SWJ10)

Bountiful Hunter
this was one of Wonn Ionstrike's starships. (GG2)

Bounty
this was one of two Imperial container ships assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Bounty Hunter Means and Methods: Comparative Psychological Perspectives and Quantifications this paper was written by Soras Varn, and was first published in the proceedings of the Institute of Imperial Psychological Studies. It documented the wide variety of personalities and modes of operation used by bounty hunters during the height of the New Order. (GG10)

Bounty Hunters Guild
this affiliation of most of the galaxy's bounty hunters was controlled by the trandoshan Cradossk during the height of the New Order. The Guild was established to promote a consistent creed of bounty hunter ethics across a normally lawless group of individuals, while ensuring that each of them earned credits on an equitable scale. Every hunter who joined the Guild was required to abide by the Guild's Bounty Hunter's Creed, and all Guild members shared in the collected bounties. There were several independent bounty hunters, including the infamous Boba Fett, who remained outside the Guild's membership and opted not to become part of its brotherhood. It was just these kinds of independent operators that Prince Xizor proposed to Emperor Palpatine as a sort of shadow-army. Xizor belived that if the Guild itself could be smashed, then the resulting freelance hunters who survived would be the kind of hardened mercenaries Palpatine could use to ensure the fringes of his government remained in line. After Palpatine approved the plan, Xizor worked with the assembler Kud'ar Mub'at, who convinced Boba Fett to join the Guild and work from within to destroy it. Their plans worked to perfection when Cradossk's ambitious son, Bossk, killed and ate Cradossk and assumed control for himself. This angered many of the elder members of the Guild, who renounced Bossk's plans and formed the True Guild. Bossk himself took many of the Guild's younger members and formed the Guild Reform Committe. This splitting of the Guild into two rival factions foiled Xizor's plans, however. (MA, SLS)

Bounty Hunters' Creed
this is the set of rules and credos used by the bounty hunters of the galaxy. Among the foremost of rules is that bounty hunters won't kill each other during a hunt. (SHA)

Boushh
an Ubese bounty hunter, he was known as a level-headed hunter. He worked for Black Sun during the Galactic Civil War, but was caught trying to swindle more credits out of a signed contract. He was captured by Guri and eliminated, but his geared was kept for future use. That future use came when Leia Organa met with Guri, and was brought to Coruscant to meet with Xizor. Leia was given the bounty hunter's clothing as a disguise for getting past the security checkpoints without being recognized as an Alliance leader. When she escaped from Xizor's castle, she brought the gear with her, and later posed as Boushh, with Chewbacca in tow, in order to enter Jabba's palace and rescue Han Solo. (ROTJ, TJP, SE, SESB)

Bovark
this Nimbanese clan won the right to be a prime data holder for the Bureau of Ships and Services, several centuries before the rise of the New Order. Their training in nimbanese muhndees led them to directly challenge another data-holding family. There was an implied threat of violence in the challenge, which brought down the wrath of the BoSS on the Bovarks and the Nimbanese. For several centuries, no Nimbanese clan was allowed to participate as a prime data holder, and many clans lost great sums of money and power as a result. This situation was later "repaired" by the Krovalis clan. (GG12)

Bovo Yagen
1) primary planet in the Bovo Yagen system, it was named for the former Imperial Captain Bovo Yagen. Yagen had defected from Imperial service on Coruscant. The native Bovorians were at first wary of the new visitors, but in time came to appreciate his skills in diplomacy and trade. The average day on the planet lasts 28 standard hours, and its year lasts 386 local days. Bovo Yagen has a single moon. (SC, CTD)
2) the third star targetted for detonation by the Starbuster plot. New Republic records recorded one or two habitable planets in the system. It is located near the Corellian Trade Route, but far enough away that a ship traveling to the system would need to learn the route beforehand. (AS, SC, CTD)

Bovorian
this oddly humanoid race is native to the planet Bovo Yagen. They were a tribal species of stone-age technology when Bovo Yagen fled to the planet, but have since adopted the spacelanes. The Bovorian natives were so glad to have him further their development that they named all the planets in their system after members of his family. Bovorians descended from flying mammals, and retained vestigial webs of skin between their arms as reminders of their avian ancestors. The average Bovorian is covered with white hair, and their forms are slightly thinner and longer than a normal human form. Their faces are narrow and angular, with jutting chins and long sideburns. Their ears resemble leathery wings, and can be extended for better hearing. Bovorians can see into the infrared spectrum as well as the visible spectrum, and they use these abilities to actually "read" the emotions of other beings. This allowed them to deal with other species in a very patient and friendly way. Among themselves, Bovorians speak in a language of high-pitched trills and whistles which has been compared to the computer-based speech of the R2-series astromech droid. (CTD, AE)

Bovris Tapcafe
this restaurant and cantina was found on the planet Ifron. (MJEH)

Bow
this security agent worked for Salliche Agricultural Organization during the New Republic's attempts to drive off the Yuuzhan Vong. He escorted Han Solo on a tour of the facility on Ruan, during Han's attempt to rescue Droma. Bow later had to admit to his superiors that he had allowed Han into the complex, an action which resulted in the freeing of Droma as well as the shutdown of the control center which had been keeping the droid population immobile. (JE)

Bow-vine
a plant native to the rift valleys of Belsavis. (COJ)

Bowcaster
Chewbacca's crossbow-like weapon. It is not a laser weapon, like a blaster or blast rifle. Instead, it fires explosive quarrels. These weapons are unique to the Wookiees, and manufactured on Kashyyyk. (SW, RPG)

Bower
a bounty hunter native to Demophon, Bower worked with the pirate, Kasey, before the two of them joined the Alliance. He fell in love with Enid Vahr, although she was in love with Kasey. (SN)

Bowl, The
this symbol of the Cosmic Balance religion indicated a follower who lived in poverty during their life. However, as demanded by the Cosmic Balance, holders of the Bowl would get to spend their afterlife living in relative wealth in order to maintain the balance of the universe. The choice of which members of each generation held the Bowl was often made by parents, with the help of the Zanazi. (TBSB)

Bowlump
this species of hairy, preadatory mollusks lurks just below the surface of the swampy waters of Naboo. It can shoot a powerful jet of water into the air, and uses the jet to knock its prey into the water. The jet can also be used for locomotion. (GF)

Bownan York
this individual was Plat Mallar's flight instructor, when Mallar joined the New Republic Navy on Coruscant. (SOL)

Boyd's Be-There-In-a-Minute Delivery Service located in the city of Treeleaf, on the planet Plagen, the office of this delivery service was where Plako the Chikarri hired a group of adventurers to locate the Fool's Gold. (TSK)

Boyy'lo
this plant, native to the planet Nimban, bears succulent berries. (GG12)

Boz
1) this small, lizard-like humanoid was one of Ry-Kooda's lackeys. Boz held a position of relative power in the Koodan's organization, and was constantly ordering the rest of Ry-Kooda's employees around. It was Boz who delivered the news that Bar-Kooda had been killed by the Hutts Gorga and Orko to Ry-Kooda. The small lizard accompanied Ry-Kooda to Skeebo, where he believed the Koodan was killed by Boba Fett. However, Ry-Kooda emerged unscathed, and the two set off for Orkana, on Tatooine. There, Ry-Kooda was finally killed by Boba Fett, leaving Boz without a master. The little reptiloid tried to stand up to Fett, who promptly gave him a swift kick in the rear end. Boz's big mouth continued to run, swearing that he would someday get his hands on the bounty hunter. (BF)
2) this man worked as a customs officer aboard the Jubilee Wheel space station, in orbit around Ord Mantell. (HT)

Boztrok
this planet is known as a world dominated by criminal enterprise and gangsters. It was also one of the possible birthplaces of the Kooroo sect, having one of the largest of the Shrines of Kooroo. (SWJ8, SWJ13)

Bozzie
an Ewok, and Paploo's mother. She is also Kneesaa's aunt. (ECAR)

Bozzie Baranta
this alien was one of the Outer Rim's best podracer pilots. (TPM)

Bpfassh
a twin planet orbitting a star with the same name, Bpfassh is located in the Sluis sector. It was at one time the site of a Dark Jedi uprising (77-74 PE), and the locals have since then been distrustful of the Jedi. The Bpfassh have since then joined the Alliance and the New Republic. Following the death of the Emperor at Endor, Bpfassh was the site of Thrawn's first major strike against the New Republic. It was also the site of a Noghri attack on Princess Leia. Its day is variable in length, due to the unique gravitational forces the twin pieces exert on each other. The twin planets also have a large number of moons. (HTTE, DFR, HTSB)

Bpfasshi
native inhabitants of the planet Bpfassh. (HTTE)

Bpr-99
a power core and fusion reactor produced by MPS and used on the RZ-1 A-Wing starfighter. (SCRE)

BR-17
this droid was owned by Boba Fett, and helped the bounty hunter get near R2-D2 and C-3PO on Boonta. BR-17 befriended C-3PO and turned him against R2-D2, which provided enough distraction for Boba Fett to get near Thall Joben. BR-17 kill later crushed by falling machinery, as C-3PO discovered a bomb planted on Joben's speeder by Sise From. (DCAR)

BR-23 Courier
this Republic Sienar Systems courier ship was designed well before the advent of smaller, more profitable starfighters. It was a durable ship, but was considered outdated during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Nevertheless, the Alliance used them as troop transports during the war, and many civilian shuttle operations found them to be reliable transports. The BR-23 measured 20.7 meters in length. A pilot and a gunner were the only crew required, and the BR-23 could carry up to 40 passengers or 75 metric tons of cargo, depending on the interior configuration. It was armed with a pair of fire-linked, turret-mounted laser cannons. (ROE, IA)

Br'lai
this was the Kriek goddess of ocean fires. Legends held that an ancient race of starfarers once traveled to Kriekaal. Their shaman, Ssiskor, provoked Br'lai to fury, and she made the molten oceans rise up and swallow all of the visitors. (SWJ13)

Braad
this was the smallest of the three continents found on the planet Bakura. Most of the planet's namana groves were located on Braad. (TBSB)

Braaken Glass
this form of artwork was thought of as hideous by Bail Organa. (SOL)

Braceman
the title given to any of the Iotrans who are veterans of the Iotran Police Force, and have dedicated themselves to a life of bounty hunting. (GG12)

Braceman Council
see Iotran Braceman Council (AIR)

Bracha e'Naso
this smuggler took over the operation of Plothis' business, after Plothis was shot and killed during a dispute with a customer. (TT)

Brachniel
the root of this plant is often consumed for its hallucinogenic properties. The brachniel plant itself is very hardy, and is often used as a second-generation terraforming plant that can be planted after first-generation plants like gomex moss have broken down the rocky soil into essential nutrients. (POT)

Brachnis
this is one of the three stars which anchor the Chorios Systems. (POT)

Brachnis Chorios
this is the furthest planet in the Chorios system, an ice-green and lavender world. It was in orbit around Brachnis Chorios that Leia Organa-Solo agreed to meet with Seti Ashgad, some years after Leia became the Chief of State for the New Republic. (POT)

Brachno-jag
a small but nonetheless voracious creature that can strip a carcass clean in a day or so. A group of them can do the job in a few hours. Jabba the Hutt kept a number of them around in case he became angry with one of his associates. (TJP)

Braco
this spacer was based out of the planet Lianna, although his family was native to Corellia. (SWJ14)

Bradan
this former Imperial Lieutenant served under Warlord Zsinj during the period following the Battle of Endor and the breakup of the Empire. She was an expert in covert operations, but was an imposing figure of muscle and brawn. Thus, when Zsinj made his attempt to steal the Razor's Kiss from Kuat Drive Yards, he asked Bradan to allow Qatya Nassin to lead the assault team because she was a smaller woman. Bradan held a small twinge of contempt at Qatya, but vowed to forget it if they pulled off the mission. (IF)

Brafid
this Elomin worked for Garris Shrike aboard the Trader's Luck. Brafid was part of Shrike's security force. (TPS)

Bragkis
this gambling planet had a million-credit minimum betting parlor once visited by Han Solo. (SOL)

Brago
this Imperial officer replaced Adminstrator Fuguee at the Kline Colony shortly before Daye Azur-Jamin tried to infiltrate the planet. Brago was much less lenient than Fuguee had been, which explains the replacements. (SWJ10)

Brain Tendril
this defensive mechanism guards the Charon starship Desolate's main computer node. The brain-like computer, when attacked, can extract several thick tendrils, each of which is tipped with a glowing sphere. Each tendril can lash out at a target, and the spheres are capable of firing plasma bolts. Each tendril is also equipped with a pair of arm-like appendages which can grasp a target and neutralize it. (OS)

Brain Walker
a derogatory term used to describe those B'omarr monks who had become enlightened, and had shed their fleshly bodies in favor of roaming their castle as brains, sustained in a nutrient bath, animated by a set of mechanical spider-like legs. (TJP)

Brain-jagger
an addictive stimulant and hallucinogen. (COJ)

Brainiac
1) this male Siniteen was given the nickname "Brainiac" by BoShek, because he could calculate hyperspace jumps in his head. (CCG2)
2) this was a series of controller droids produced during the reign of Emperor Palpatine by Tereene. (SWCP)

Braith, Zayl
born in the Asamin System to parents who were prosperous traders along the Essien Run, this girl fell in with a group of smugglers at a young age. She joined the crew of Captain Thi Sawrtin, and was with him when the smugglers were intercepted by Gresia Vleen and the Tory's Catcher. After Sawrtin was executed, Zayl was thrown into prison on Rol Two. She managed to escape, and went to work for Tiron Til. When the Sullustan decided to start working toward monopolizing the spice trade within the Asamin System, Zayl decided not to work for Zil out of loyalty to her former comrades. She was then contacted by her cousin Callandri, who offered her a position within the Granse Confederacy. Zayl turned from smuggler to bounty hunter, and worked with her cousin to hunt down Alliance personnel. (AIR)

Brak Sector
this area of the galaxy contains the planet Bacrana. (SWJ8)

Brak Sector News
this news agency covered the events that unfolded in Brak Sector. (SWJ8)

Brakiss
a former student at Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy on Yavin 4, Brakiss was fairly gifted with the Force. Brakiss was stolen from his family by the Imperial forces that occupied his homeworld, recognizing his potential for using the Force. He was reonditioned, and was later employed as a spy, sent to determine the extend of the threat posed by the renewal of the Jedi Knights under Luke Sywalker. When Luke sent Brakiss on an illusionary quest, Brakiss could not reconcile the Light and Dark Sides of the Force, represented by Luke's Academy and the Empire. He fled Yavin 4, and went into hiding until he was discovered by Dolph, another of the failed students of Skywalker's praxeum. Dolph had renamed himself Kuellar, and was developing his own scheme to take control of the galaxy. He set up Brakiss on Telti, overseeing an automated droid construction facility. Brakiss' droids were implanted with detonators that could be set off via a remote control help by Dolph/Kuellar. Dolph also used Brakiss as a way to lure Luke to Almania, where he planned to used Skywalker as bait. Brakiss fled back to Telti, where he hid among his droids. In the meantime, Brakiss' mother encountered Luke on Msst, and explained that Brakiss was waiting to kill him on Telti. The two battled on the desert moon, and Brakiss nearly turned back to the Light Side. He failed, and returned to the droids. The secluded life among the droids was shattered when Cole Fardreamer discovered the link between the detonation in the Senate Assembly Chamber on Coruscant and the rigged droids. He exposed Brakiss' part in the plot, and Brakiss fled once again. He later set up the Shadow Academy in the Core Systems. He did so out of his deep belief that the Jedi were needed to help preserve the order of the Empire, not the Republic. Brakiss looked forward to the day when the so-called Second Imperium would overthrow the New Republic, and when his Imperial Jedi were able to defeat Luke Skywalker's Jedi. When a reborn Emperor Palpatine began controlling the Second Imperium, Brakiss gladly bowed to his true master's rule. However, the Emperor's solitary nature and lack of respect for Brakiss' accomplishments disillusioned him. He became frustrated with the Emperor when he arrived at the Shadow Academy, shortly before the attack on Kashyyyk. After the deaths of Vonnda and Ra and Garowyn in the Kashyyyk jungles, Brakiss declared the mission a success because of the computer components they had stolen. He felt that the loss of the two Nightsisters was an accepted loss. In the wake of the raid on Kashyyyk, the Shadow Academy began gearing up for an attack on Yavin 4. Spurred on by Palpatine's commands, Brakiss and Tamith Kai invaded the Jedi Academy's defenses and nearly defeated Luke's students. However, several setbacks suffered by Tamith Kai and Brakiss' Dark Jedi turned the battle in favor of the Jedi, and Brakiss appealed to Palaptine for direction. He discovered, though, that there was no Palpatine. The appearance of the Emperor was being perpetrated by four former Imperial Royal Guards. The Dark Side of the Force flooded Brakiss, and he quickly dispatched three of the four guards. The fourth escaped the Shadow Academy, but not before setting off the station's self-destruct systems. Brakiss was unable to escape from the doomed station, and died in the explosion. Brakiss was distinguishable by his smooth skin, blond hair, and the uncanny perfection. (HTF, SA, TNR, DK, JUS)

Brakka Barakas
this Brigian was the dothmir of his community on the planet New Brigia. Brakka was captured when the Yevetha overran the planet, during the Great Purge, and held on the Pride of Yevetha as a barrier against New Republic attack. (TT)

Bramior
this star was the central body in a system which was dominated by a large asteroid field. The rogue moon of Rove was captured eons ago by the system's star. (CRO)

Brand
this New Republic Navy Commodore was in command of Task Force Aster during the battle against the Yevetha. Considered a rigid leader and a somewhat gloomy functionary, he commanded the group from the Indomitable. Later, Brand was promoted to a position on the New Republic's Defense Force, helping to re-establish the military position of the Republic. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Brand was asked to sway Senator Viqi Shesh's position on the use of Centerpoint Station as a potential weapon to use against the alien invaders. Later, Brand was given command of the Yald, in preparation for the defense of Corellia. (SOL, JE)

Brand, Empatojayos
a one-time Jedi Knight, Empatojayos was hunted down as part of Palpatine's Jedi purge. He was nearly killed by Darth Vader, and was left for dead. He was rescued by the Ganathans, and fitted with a cyborg suit. The only organic parts of his body still functioning are his chest and head; his limbs could not be saved. His cyborg body was therefore equipped with repulsorlifts for mobility. The suit is also equipped with impressive life-support capabilities, and can withstand extremes of temperature and the effects of hard vacuum for an entire year. The Ganathans, seeing that Empatojayos' knowledge of the Force gave him certain supernatural abilities, elected him to be their king, a position he accepted. He is still the king when Han Solo and Princess Leia first discover the Ganath System, after fleeing Boba Fett and Nar Shaddaa a second time. Recognizing the need for the Jedi to return to the galaxy, Brand leaves Ganath with Luke Skywalker. Brand and the Jedi spent the next few months trying to stay one step ahead of the Emperor, who was trying to steal Anakin Solo for a new body. When they cornered the Emperor on Onderon, it was Brand who intervened wen Palpatine made his move. Brand grabbed Anakin and shielded him in the Light Side of the Force, while at the same time allowing the Emperor's spirit to enter his body. Brand returned Anakin to Leia, then was quickly consumed by the Dark Side energies flowing through Palpatine's spirit. Both Brand and the Emperor died on Onderon. (DE2, EE)

Brandei
an Imperial Navy officer, Brandei served as the technical services liaison for Imperial Fleet Support aboard the Executor during the Battle of Hoth. He was responsible for keeping the warship's 12 TIE squadrons serviced and combat-ready. Shortly after the Battle of Hoth, Brandei was transferred to the Judicator, where he served faithfully. He was eventually promoted to Captain of the Judicator, as part of Grand Admiral Thrawn's fleet. He was born on Mantooine, and grew up surrounded by xenophobic Outer Rim humans. When he tried to join the Academy, prejudice for the Rim's alien inhabitants stood in his way. He struggled through it all, and eventually got noticed. He served the Empire faithfully. (DFR, DFRSB, CCG4)

Brandes, Hela
this Naboo woman served on Queen Amidala's Advisory Council. She served as the minister of music and culture, ensuring that the Naboo maintained thei highest artisitic standards. Note that she is referred to as Helena Brandes in issue 6 of Star Wars Kids magazine. (IG1, SWK)

Brandifert
a fruit-bearing tree native to Belsavis, the fruit is often used in tarts. (COJ)

Brandifert Court
a street in Plawal. (COJ)

Brandis
this New Republic Midshipman served as part of the communications crew at the base on Durren. (POT)

Brandis Technical Institute
this high-tech school of higher learning was established on the colony world of Bridin Anchorage. (GG11)

Brandl, Adalric Cessius
this famous actor showed a strong aptitude for the Force. Brandl had the handsome, chiseled features of a holovid star, although time eventually took its toll. When he was discovered by Emperor Palpatine, Brandl readily accepted his tuelage and became one of Palpatine's Imperial Inquisitors and a Dark Jedi. In this capacity, Brandl killed many Jedi and other individuals at the Emperor's order. A native of Trulalis, he fathered a child - Jaalib - who also was Force-sensitive and followed in his father's acting footsteps. Brandl ran into trouble of Najiba while fleeing his position as Dark Jedi, killing the Twi'leki Arruna when he became angry at her lover, Lathaam. He was trying to get back to Trulalis, but was stuck on Najiba as it passed through the nearby asteroid field. He was transported off the world by Thaddeus Ross, after trying to cut off his own hands with his lightsaber for causing Arruna's death. When he returned to Kovit, he sought out his old teacher, Otias Atori, in an effort to return to the light side. He fled Trulalis with Ross when they were attacked by Menges, and was eventually captured by Captain Grendahl and returned to High Inquisitor Tremayne. He allowed himself to be taken, in order to protect Jaalib. It was believed that Adalric was executed, but he eventually escaped and returned to Trulalis to be with Jaalib. There, he spent five years teaching his son everything he knew about acting. When Fable Astin sought out Jaalib, Adalric felt the deep connection she had to the Force, as well as the inner struggle she felt at the loss of her battle with Vialco. He gave her the opportunity to train with him, however, briefly, so that she would be better able to face Vialco in the future. Adalric was a stern master, though, and was harder on Fable than he had been on himself, hoping that her success would help return him to favor in the Emperor's eyes. As she progressed, Adalric made a short trip to Byss, in hopes of regaining his position. Palpatine agreed, but demanded that Adalric bring a young Jedi for his own uses. Fable fit the bill, and Adalric sent Jaalib to Iscera while summoning Vialco to Trulalis. Adalric tricked Fable into killed Vialco outright, then imprisoned her. Jaalib, having discovered his father's return to the Dark Side, managed to rescue Fable and return her to Deke Holman and the Alliance. Adalric was once again thwarted. (TFE, SWJ8)

Brandl, Jaalib
the son of the Dark Jedi Adalric Brandl, Jaalib was unaware of his father's dark secret. Instead, he followed in the acting tradition of Adalric, becoming a famous actor on the stages of his homeworld, Trulalis. Jaalib had seen holovids of his father, presented to the youth by Otias Atori, Adalric's former teacher. Jaalib hoped to leave Trulalis and become as famous as his father. When Adalric returned to Trulalis to seek Otias' help, Jaalib confronted his father and blamed him for all the troubles he encountered. Jaalib railed at him, blaming Adalric for the Imperial attack which killed his mother – an attack that was aimed at recovering Adalric himself. Adalric realized that he had caused considerable damage to his son, and allowed himself to be captured. Adalric was able to return to Trulalis some time later, and tutored Jaalib on the finer points of acting and direction. Jaalib became one of the greatest members of the Trulalis Stage Company at a young age, and was later courted by the Iscerian theater. A short time later, Jaalib was on Iscera, playing the lead in For the Want of an Empire, when he met Fable Astin. At that time, Adalric was also preparing Jaalib for the role of the Edjian-Prince in uhl Eharl Khoehng. When Adalric took Fable as a student, Jaalib began to fall in love with her. However, Adalric's plans called for no such relationship, as he hoped to bring Fable to Byss as a present to the Emperor, while holding Jaalib at bay. Adalric sent Jaalib to Iscera, ostensibly to prepare the theater there for the production of Uhl Eharl Khoehng. During the flight, Jaalib found log records of Adalric's trip to Byss, and returned. When he learned of Fable's imprisonment, Jaalib would have none of it. He called Deke Holman to come rescue her, then played the greatest role of his life. When Adalric discovered his son's release of Fable, he attempted to kill Jaalib. However, he couldn't bring himself to do it. Gasping for air, Jaalib drew from the Edjian-Prince and said, "Long ... live ... the king." Jaalib later joined the Empire, hoping to bring balance to his life. He was generally regarded as a skilled commander and a charismatic leader, and was in charge of the Imperial subjugation of Ariana, on the planet Garos IV, shortly after the Battle of Endor. He hoped to restore his life by killing Tork and Alex Winger, thereby severing his ties with the Empire, in a plan which was similar to the drama of Dontavian. When the New Republic arrived and liberated Garos IV, Jaalib chose to fade into the shadow, just as Dontavian did. (TFE, SWJ8, SWJ12)

Brandy Ague
starfighter pilot slang for a hangover. (IJ)

Brangus Glee
this tall, thin alien is a native of the planet Dor Nameth. He was known for his gambling skills, and frequented the casinos and cantinas of every planet he visited. (CCG9)

Brankton
a member of the security force protecting the Kuari Princess during the Galactic Civil War. (TFE)

Brannij
this Imperial Navy Captain commanded the Star Destroyer Bastion, as part of the fleet supporting Moff Sarne's operations in the Kathol Sector. (KR)

Branox
this Hrakian drunk was assisted by R2-D2 and C-3PO during an incapacitated period while on Vorzyd 5. (CSWEA)

Branswed
this hardy plant is used by terraformers who provide fruit to settlers. The branswed grows tall, with spiky leaves studding its surface. (POT)

Brant Rumble
this cyborg Sullustan was known for his skills as a podracer. Sebulba once stole Rumble's speeder to search for the children who stole the Ghostling children he'd sold to Gardulla the Hutt. Sebulba damaged the podracer while trying to recover his own, and had to pay for repairs out of his own pockets. (E1A6, E1A7)

Branteez
this Outer Rim world was the site of a Shrine of Kooroo. (SWJ13)

Brasck
this Brubb was a major smuggling chief, working for Billey, when Talon Karrde proposed a smugglers' alliance during the New Republic's struggle with Grand Admiral Thrawn. He was working for Jabba the Hutt before Jabba was killed. When Jabba was killed, Brasck went out into the Borderlans Regions with as many followers as would accompany him, to set up his own operations. He later teamed up with Billey. Before Karrde's offer, Brasck had decided that his organization was well-equipped to obtain the bounty on Luke Skywalker, despite that it was Luke and his rebel friends who had killed Jabba and given Brasck the chance to rise to power. (HTTE, TLC, TTSB)

Brashaa
one of Hethrir's followers, and an Imperial supporter. He was able to buy Iyon's wyrwulf from Ucce, and attended Hethrir's meeting on Crseih Station, announcing the Empire Reborn. Brashaa is a miser who valued his credits more than his love, and crossed Hethrir one time too many on Crseih station. Hethrir attempted to kill him, but the intense warping of the Force near the quantum crystal star prevented Hethrir from doing any real damage. (CS)

Brashin, Malcor
this man was a career military officer, and had a nondescript career within the Imperial armed forces until he learned that his wife and daughter had been killed by Rodian thieves while he was away from home on maneuvers. In reaction to the tragedy, Brashin committed himself to the New Order and its pro-human stance. He became a zealot, and drove his troops to their limits in order to ensure the swift elimination of "unchecked anarchists and aliens." (FC)

Brasli, Culan
this man captured and tortured Ghitsa Dogder on the planet Prishardia. An employee of the Desilijic clan, Brasli was the muscle behind Counselor Ral's effort to learn more about the Orko SkyMine project. The effort was thwarted by Fenig Nabon and Kyp Durron, who rescued Ghitsa and inadvertently sabotaged the Rook. Brasli was killed when the Rook exploded after fleeing from Prishardia. (TFNR)

Brass Kirs
this Gungan served as Boss Nass' personal chef. (E1A12)

Brass Marshoo
this retired Gungan general was in charge of the kitchens at the Lake Umberbool arena bubble complex, just prior to the Battle of Naboo. (E1A10)

Bratan Engineering
this corporation manufactures cybernetic products, such as neural interfaces and speech synthesizers. (SOL)

Brath Bearing
this speeder bike component is responsible for steering, allowing smooth, rapid turns without loss of control. They are held in check by a pair of C-shaped brackets. (CFG)

Brath Qella
this planet was the homeworld of the Qella and their ancestors, the Ahra Naffi. It was known to the Qella as the Homestone, or the Place of Beginning. Orbiting the star N'oka Brath, it has a thick atmosphere, and was located near an asteroid belt. It has two natural satellites. The planet was discovered by the Old Republic's Third General Survey, some 158 years before the Yevethan Purge. By the time the Third General Survey team was able to return home, identify those worlds worth exploring, and return with an exploration crew, the planet had been almost completely glaciated. The planet's ecology appeared to have been destroyed when a series of asteroids impacted the surface. Brath Qella was forgotten by the Republic, but was later rediscovered by the Tobek, who named the world Maltha Obex. It remained under Tobek jurisdiction until the New Republic began searching for the Teljkon vagabond. The unusual ship was linked with the Qella due to the ship's use of the Qella genetic code as a code signal. Kroddok Stopa and Josala Krenn were dispatched from the Obroan Institute to explore the planet for information on the Qella, but were killed in an avalanche before additional help could arrive. The Qella kept an incredible panoramic display of the system aboard the Teljkon vagabond, in a room known as the Reflection of Essential Infinities. The room, it was discovered, was a depiction of the Qella system as it was before it was destroyed. This led to the discovery that one of Brath Qella's moons had a wildly-elliptic orbit. The Qella recognized that it was bound to impact the other moon at some point, and built the vagabond as an escape vehicle. When the cataclysm did come, the resulting debris from both moons showered Brath Qella with asteroid-sized rocks. The planet's ecosystem was plunged into a premature ice age, while the Qella fled in the vagabond. When the vagabond eventually returned to Brath Qella - then called Maltha Obex by the Tobek - it began the long process of thawing out the planet and making it habitable for the Qella once again. (BTS, SOL, TT)

Brathflen Corporation
manufacturers of the first antigrav-supported, light-amplifying domes on Belsavis, Brathflen is an Ithorian company. (COJ)

Brathflen Medcenter
a hospital located in Plawal, on Belsavis. (COJ)

Brathis, Tragg
this Imperial Moff formed a loose coalition of Imperial forces during the early years of the New Republic. Calling itself the Grand Imperial Union, Brathis' forces emerged during the Black Fleet Crisis and gave their support to Nil Spaar and the Yevetha. Although Brathis appeared in a transmission from Nil Spaar on the Republic's Channel 81, his existence was never proven. (TT)

Brauken
this man was the Mayor of Harlequin Station during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Bravado
this Alliance transport ship was dispatched to NCW-781 as part of Operation Shadowstrike. (IA)

Bravado III
this Marauder-class corvette was part of the fleet which patrolled the Kathol Republic. It was commanded by Captain Willa Udine shortly after the Battle of Endor,and was attacked by Imperial forces under the command of Rolf Treidum. Like other Kathol Republic corvettes, the Bravado III was armed with eight double turbolasers and three tractor beam projectors. (KO)

Bravo Eight
this was Dren Melne's callsign, during his tenure as a pilot within Bravo Squadron. (SFT)

Bravo Flight
this was the primary group of reconnaissance X-Wings used to maneuver fighters into bays aboard the New Republic carrier Venture. (TT)

Bravo Leader
Ric Olie's callsign during the Battle of Naboo. (SW1)

Bravo Seven
this was Essara Till's callsign, during her time with Bravo Squadron. (SFT)

Bravo Squadron
this group of Royal Naboo starfighter pilots was sent against the Trade Federation's droid control ship during the Battle of Naboo. Led by Ric Olie, they managed to fight through a good portion of the Federation's vulture droid fighter ships, but were unable to penetrate the huge control ship's shields until Anakin Skywalker destroyed the ship from within. (SW1)

Brawk
an Imperial Naval officer who is easily bribed. (RPG)

Brawl
this was the original name of the Super-class Star Destroyer stolen by Warlord Zsinj and later renamed the Iron Fist. (CTD)

Brawl and Grill
this seedy tavern and restaurant was located in the Trader's Quarter of Ord Mantell. It was here that Callandri first tried to kill Alton Lochner, but the attempt ultimately failed. (AIR)

Braxxon-Fipps
manufacturers of heavy-duty fusion generators. (VOF)

Brayl*-class Bulk Freighter
this 100-meter cargo ship required a pilot and seven auxiliary crewmembers to fly. They could transport up to 75,000 metric tons of cargo. (IA)

Braze
a term used to describe the brown haze of air pollution that is generated by Trioculus' factory barge. Trioculus was mining the Rethin Sea for metals to create war machines for the Empire. (ZHR)

Brazen
under the command of Captain Dadefra, this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was dispatched to Elrood Sector to assist Moff Andal in eliminating the pirates and rebels which preyed upon the sector's convoys. The Brazen was severely damaged shortly after Dadefra arrived in the sector, during an attempt to destroy a pirate force near the Degan Gas Clouds. The sheer number of pirates was more than expected, and they quickly knocked out much of the Brazen's defenses. The ship was able to limp back to Derilyn for repairs, but was later destroyed by the Alliance and the Friends of Paran. The destruction of the huge ship put the Derilyn Space Defense Platform out of commission for several months while it was repaired. (OE)

Brazzo
this dark-skinned man and his partner, Selle, were executed by Darth Vader on Centares, after they learned that Luke Skywalker had destroyed the first Death Star. (VQ)

Brco
this red-skinned Ilwizzt served as a Major in the G'rho Defense Force division which protected the settlement of Boku, on the colony world of G'rho, during the height of the New Order. (TBSB)

Breaking, The
this Yuuzhan Vong torture technique involved the use of mental torment over physical torment to subdue an individual before obtaining information. The captive's sensibilities and determination to survive were slowly shaved away by constant verbal degradation until the victim was mentally broken and unable to function, sobbing like a child an incapable of rational thought. Most often, the Yuuzhan Vong bombarded the victim with images of expected horrors and terrible deaths. (VP)

Breath, The
this is the Kashi name for the Force. (TOJC)

Breath of Gelgelar
this was the name given to the Force, by the priests of Kooroo who inhabited the planet Gelgelar. (SWJ14)

Breath of Heaven
an expensive, nearly pure grade of alcoholic drink. (COJ)

Breather-1
this ancient, portable atmospheric filtration system was produced for explorers and scouts by Duwani Mechanical Products. (TOJC)

Brebishem
an alien race characterized by their long snouts, wide, leaf-like ears, and mauve-colored skin. (CS)

Brebu
this Hutt was best known as the being who ordered the starship ProfitSmasher shot down, after her crew defaulted on a loan they owed to Brebu. Years later, Brebu himself returned to the crash site and turned the starship's hulk into a base of operations. (HAS)

Bredis
a Ripoblus Lambda-class shuttle group used during the Sepan Civil War, as well as in battle against the Empire. (TIE)

Breehara
this is the main continent on the planet Dressel, and is where the Dresselian race evolved. The majority of its area is covered with sub-equatorial grasses. (GG12)

Breeka
this is one of two known desert worlds on which the dewback flourishes. (XWWP)

Breen
the persona of an Imperial medic assumed by one of the Affytechans indoctrinated on The Eye of Palpatine. He helps Luke Skywalker locate two Beta-class Telgorn transports. (COJ)

Breesa, Aloren
this wealthy businesswoman managed a network of partisan businesses which supported the Alliance's activity in their Mid Rim sector during the Galactic Civil War. (IA)

Breetha, Tamaktis
this man, a native of the planet Rhommamool and a former mayor of the city of Redhaven, served on Nom Anor's personal independent Senate shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. He opposed Nom Anor's use of interplanetary missiles to strike at Osa-Prime, when Rhommamool passed closest to Osarian, but was eventually overruled by Nom Anor's own plans for the Yuuzhan Vong. (VP)

Breg
this downed Alliance pilot helped Dak Ralter escape from Kalist VI. He was fatally injured during the escape, although Dak managed to transport him to Tierfon. Breg died at Tierfon a few days later. (MTS)

Breise, Garth
this man was on the original ExGal Society members dispatched to the ExGal-4 outpost on Belkadan. He was killed by Yomin Carr when the two were sent out to repair the outpost's communications array. Carr, planning to destroy Belkadan in order to mask the Yuuzhan Vong arrival on Helska, cut the support lines holding Breise and watched the man fall to his death. (VP)

Brekken Vinthern
this Old Corellian term is used to describe the Bitter Winter disease. This disease strikes the elderly, and creates holes in their memories. (SWAJ)

Brektate
this Imperial pilot served on the survey vessel Wanderer until is crashed on Isis. Brektate was killed in the crash. (IC)

Brell, Janstren
this man was the leader of the Red & Black League, and was wanted on charges of conspiracy and fraud in several systems. He worked from a base on Herstell V, using the money he makes from his schemes to buy protection and to pay off local officials. (HR)

Brella Temior
the ringleader of the Justice Action Network, Temior was taken out of the position by the cunning Gerald Weizel. (SWAJ)

Brelor
this world was one of the many inhabitable moons which orbited the planet Commenor. Emperor Palpatine gave the moon to Jan Dodonna for his service to the early Empire, but later tried to assassinate Dodonna on the moon. (IR)

Brema News
this news service provided regular feeds to the residents of Brema Sector, including the planet Mallonore. (SWJ12)

Bremarc
this was one of the Exocron Airfleet's rocket cruisers. It was commanded by forces loyal to the Devisors, and was assigned to protect the tractor beam emplacement they used to control starships. Like most other rocket cruisers, the Bremarc was armed with six projectile cannons, 14 percussion cannons, and 24 air-to-air rocket launchers. It was escorted by a flight of eight Skyraptor fighters. (KO)

Bremen, Jak
this New Republic Colonel was based on Coruscant during the early years of the New Republic. A native of the planet Shiffrin, he grew up in his father's footsteps, learning a great deal about laws and justice from Kallin Bremen. When Kallin was executed by the local Imperial Moff during a land dispute, Jak fled the planet and ended up on Coveway. He established a life on this new world, but was once again confronted with the atrocities of the Empire. The leadership of a COMPNOR base established near his village decided that the base would be safer without local intervention, and had the entire village executed. Jak was off on a hunting trip when it happened, and returned only to find that his wife and young daughter had been killed. When, by chance, the Alliance sent a team to eliminated the base, Jak gladly offered his services as a strike team leader, showing them how to reach the garrison under cover. From that point onward, Jak pledged himself the Alliance. He rose in rank while aboard the cruiser Starveil, and was eventually placed in charge of security for the planet Coruscant after the planet was returned to New Republi control. During the first wave of Imperial attacks aimed at retaking Coruscant, Bremen commandeered the Messenger and her crew to carry a fleet rendezvous location off-planet. He hoped to get the message to the fleet quickly, so that Coruscant could be recovered. Bremen accompanied the ship's crew, Taryn Clancy and Del Sato, and helped them avoid Imperial reprisal. (HTTE, TLC, TFE, TTSB)

Bremen, Kallin
Jak Bremen's father, Kallin was a native of the planet Shiffrin. Kallin had been the chief constable of their home village, and proved himself to be a lawful and honest man. He dispensed justice with an impartial hand, and was respected by the villagers. When the local Imperial Moff decided that it was time to establish a garrison on Shiffrin, he simply usurped the land he required. Kallin protested the theft of the land, arguing correctly that it violated standard Imperial procedure for land acquisition. When his protests were ignored, Kallin planned a peaceful demonstration against the Imperials, but was incarcerated and executed along with his other "rebel co-conspirators." (TTSB)

Bren, Tomax
this Imperial Captain was in command of the Scimitar Assault Wing, which was part of the Qeimet Fleet in the Hook Nebula. (ISB)

Brenggar, Wilko
this man served as the weapons expert for the Happy Blasters, during the early years of the New Republic. He was considered to be completely insane by law enforcement officials, after having opened fire in a crowded spaceport and killing Imperial personnel and civilians with equal disregard. The Happy Blasters, led by Salem Victory, brought Brenggar into their group as a way to get out of a fight. They figured that Brenggar's reputation as a psychopathic killer would scare away many potential enemies and minor police officers. Brenggar believed in reincarnation, and was convinced that he was an Imperial Captain, an Ithorian scout, and a slaver in several of his past lives. (SWJ13)

Brenn
this was the largest city on the planet Genesia. (HR)

Brenn, Sularus
this decorated Imperial TIE Fighter pilot had 43 confirmed kills during the Galactic Civil War, earning him the Medal of Conspicuous Gallantry. He continued his distinguished service to the Empire during the early years of the New Republic. (HR)

Brentaal
this dry planet has eight continents surrounded by salty oceans. It is located at the intersection of the Perlemian Trade Route and the Hydian Way, and is the fourth planet in the Brentaal System. A commercial world, Brentaal's economic and political life was run by the noble families of the planet's ruling Houses. During the New Order, the Houses were overseen by Imperial Governor Jerrod Maclain. The planet was liberated from Imperial control shortly after the Battle of Endor by Rogue Squadron, in a conflict that became known as the Battle of Brentaal . (FOP, IR)

Brentaal Commerce Academy
this educational institution taught the youth of the planet Brentaal everything they needed to know about business in the galaxy. As a student aged, they were given a curriculum which drilled deeper and deeper into the world of interstellar commerce. (IDC)

Brentaal IV
this moon served as the base of operations for the Imperial fleet protecting the Brentaal system. During the Battle of Brentaal, Rogue Squadron managed to take control of the moon when Admiral Lon Isoto offered no resistance. After a skirmish with the 181st Fighter Group, the Rogues were able to assist New Republic forces in landing on the planet Brentaal and ousting the Imperials. (IR)

Brentaal Hall Conservatory
this was the most prestigious of the fine arts patrons in the galaxy, and was based on the planet Brentaal. The Hall was made up of several smaller groups, including the Conservatory Epic Orchestra and the Brentaal Illustrious Choir. (SWJ13)

Brentaal Illustrious Choir
this was the most prestigious vocal choir based on the planet Brentaal, and they were a member group of the Brentaal Hall Conservatory. (SWJ13)

Brentaal League
this ancient association of planets colonized a number worlds shortly before the Great Sith War. (TOJC)

Brentaal League of Guilds
this was the body formed by the various businesses and corporations which operated on the planet Brentaal. It was based in the city of Cormond. (SWJ14)

Brentaal Princess
this was the name Platt Okeefe used for the first starship she piloted for the Klatooinan Trade Guild, a beat-up Ghtroc 720 freighter. (PSG)

Brentaal Trade News
this was a major commercial and business news agency headquartered on the planet Brentaal. (SWJ9)

Brentioch
this was one of the most prominent and ancient families of the planet Brentaal, and was known as one of the strongest commercial leaders along with the Dajaal and Jo'uda clans. (SWJ13)

Brentioch, Sival
this man was the leader of the Brentioch clan some 3,000 years before the Battle of Yavin, at the period when Freia Kallea singlehandedly discovered the Hydian Way. It was Sival who financed Kallea's expeditions, and the two eventually married. (SWJ13)

Brentioch, Vessa
this woman was the Minstress of the Brentaal Hall Conservatory during the height of the New Order. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, she was chosen to portray Freia Kallea during a performance of the Kallea Cycle. This was a wonderful opportunity for Vessa, being a direct descendant of Freia Kallea through Kallea's marriage to Sival Brentioch. (SWJ13)

Bresallis
this planet's government opposed the businesses of the Hutts. (GG11)

Bresan
one of the three primary worlds of the Pimbrellan League, Bresan is much less hospitable than its neighbor, Dolstan. The atmosphere on Bresan is not capable of supporting most humanoid life, so cities are built under sealed domes and in underground cave systems. Any financial gains made from trade with Dolstan are used to finance life support facilities. (KO)

Breshkall
this was the name of Prengahl Kreen's hidden fortress, located on an unknown world beyond Lan Barell and the end of the Enarc Run. It was said to be formidably defended, to protect Kreen and his family from reprisals. However, the exact location of Breshkall was never discovered, and many felt that the fortress was simply part of Kreen's mystique. (HR)

Bresnia
the Alliance agent Karlon was killed in a battle on this planet. (SWJ10)

Bress, Novin
one of the head scientists at Binring Biomedical, Doctor Bress led the group which was sponsored by Warlord Zsinj to develop a way to impart near-human intelligence into some of the galaxy's more primitive humanoid species. It was during his tenure that Tuzin Gast tried to escape the project and free the test subjects. Although Gast was killed in the explosion that started the escape, Voort saBinring was able to escape. Bress tried to cover up the matter, and even told Zsinj that none of the subjects had escaped. This eventually led to his death, when Zsinj confronted Bress and Doctor Edda Gast - Tuzin Gast's niece - about the existence of Voort and the Ewok pilot, Kettch. Zsinj handed them both a blaster, and asked that they kill each other as punishment. Doctor Gast didn't hesitate, killing Bress in an effort to negotiate for her own life. (SOC)

Bretie
this Imperial production facility was raided by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Bretta
this planet, located in the Corporate Sector, is a mixture of civilized urban centers surrounded by pre-industrial wilds. (SWAJ)

Brevost System
located between the Krann and Cerenia Systems, Brevost is located along the Harrin Trade Corridor. (TSK)

Brewglass
a specially-formed glass used to drink Adumari beer. (SOA)

Brewtap
this was the Adumari term for a bar or tavern. (SOA)

Bri'vin
a member of Page's Commandos, Bri'vin is the team's "scrounger," in charge of procuring supplies while the team is in the field. (HTSB)

Bria
this Starmite-class freighter was the first ship Han Solo and Chewbacca ever used on their own. It was leased from Lando Calrissian, and was named after Bria Tharen. It was heavily modified, and was constantly breaking down. The ship saw duty during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, and Solo used it to deliver the Hutts' bribe to Admiral Greelanx shortly after the battle. When Han was discovered by Tedris Bjalin and blamed for the death of Greelanx, Han and Chewie were forced to make a quick escape. They were caught by the Imperial ships and fired upon, but managed to escape in a life pod before the Bria was destroyed in a hail of turbolaser fire. (THG)

Brick
one of Maarek Stele's fellow TIE Pilot trainees, Brick was slightly ahead of Stele in his training. Brick showed Stele around the Vengeance's training facilities. (TIE)

Brickbat
a cudgel-like weapon often found on backwater planets, the brickbat is a short, heavy staff made of masonry. (HSL)

Bridal-veil Sucker
this parasitic vine grows in the wroshyr forests of Kashyyyk. Distinguishable by its gray coloration, the bridal-veil sucker is the primary food source of the rroshm. These vines are native to the fifth biological level of Kashyyyk. (TT, RD)

Bridgebreak Confirmation
a form of encryption embedding developed by Ghent, shortly before the Caamas Incident. the bridgebreak embeds the encryption codes for a transmission within the transmission itself. (VOF)

Bridgeman, Axtor
this tramp freighet captain got started in the business when his father apprenticed on a freighter. He once accompanied his father on a run, and was hooked from then on. He saved up enough credits to buy his own ship, the Dynasty, but gambling and some bad decisions left him in debt. He took a loan from Yerkys ne Dago, and owed the Twi'lek a large some of credits. His luck was very streaky: at one moment he may be so lucky that everything is going his way, then the next minute the bottom would seem to drop out. This mode of operation left him with a continual debt that he was only able to pay the interest on. (GG6)

Bridin, Quarlo
this corrupt politician fled to the Mid Rim to avoid capture by the officials in several systems. He quickly assumed control of the planet Gallienis IV, convincing the native population that he would bring the wrath of the Empire downon them if they disobeyed his decrees. His takeover came just after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, and coincidence allowed him to use real events to his own needs. However, he was not a great leader, and the once lush planet soon fell into a tailspin. Bridin allowed criminal organizations to take control of much of the land, and dismal slums soon replaced the picturesque beaches. (GG11)

Bridin Anchorage
this planet was a colony world, settled in the Portmoak Sector of the Outer Rim Territories, and was located on the boundary between Imperial and New Republic space. Once known as Gallienis IV, it was a lush world which attracted a large number of tourists. It was also discovered to be rich in mineral deposits. However, after Quarlo Bridin took control of the planet and renamed it himself, its economy lagged and the living conditions dropped sharply. Note that this planet is referred to as Brindin Anchorage in Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations. (GG11)

Bridis City
this was the capital of the planet Bridin Anchorage. (GG11)

Bridis Evening Dispatcher
this was the primary newsfeed that served the Bridis City and much of the planet of Bridin Anchorage. (GG11)

Brie, Shira Elan Colla
Shira was born on Coruscant, during the years when Palpatine was still a Senator. She grew up on one of Palpatine's estates, and quickly became an intelligent, beautiful young adult. She was chosen for, and became a leading member of, COMPNOR, and came under the watchful eye of Darth Vader. It was Vader who recommended her for service in Imperial Intelligence. Her skills and loyalty were without question, and so she was chose as an operative trainee. The Emperor's scientists biologically altered her body's defenses, making her pain threshold extremely high and giving her an accelerated healing rate. Following the Battle of Yavin, Vader provided her a false history and placed her on the planet Shalyvane, were she quickly infiltrated the Alliance. She became a fighter pilot, and was involved in a mission to disable a Star Destroyer. She flew a disguised TIE Fighter, but was mistakenly shot down by an Alliance pilot. She was assumed dead in the attack, but her altered physiology kept her alive long enough for the Empire to rescue her and return her to Coruscant, where she was fitted with cybernetic prosthetics to replaced damaged limbs. Shortly thereafter, Vader again recommended Shira for advanced training, this time in the ways of the Dark Side of the Force. She took to her new training readily, and soon Shira Brie ceased to exist. In her place was the Dark Jedi, Lumiya. Instead of a lightsaber, Lumiya constructed new weapon called the lightwhip, which was more powerful than the lightsaber. (SWG)

Briessen
this Alliance commander was Lieutenant Haslam's commanding officer. (TFE)

Briff
this Rybet was Czethros' henchman during the human's early career as a bounty hunter. As such, Briff was sent to Kessel along with Czethros after Han Solo framed the bounty hunter in an effort to rescue Chewbacca. In the years after their release from Kessel, Briff continued to work for Czethros as an assistant. (ROM)

Brig
this is a generic term used to describe small personnel transport ships. The name is dervied from the fact that the small ships often have resemblances to larger starship brigs. (POT)

Brigantes
one of Nichos Marr's childhood friends, they tried to find the kretch in Plett's Well. (COJ)

Briggia
a planet which was the site of the Alliance's tactical base before it was abandoned in favor of Yavin 4. It was abandoned just after the Empire launched Operation Strike Fear, for Briggia was one of the first targets. (XW)

Briggs
this Alliance agent worked with Airen Cracken, and once helped him create a bomb by mating a positive flow detonator to a negative flow coupler. The bomb was planted by an agent called D'kar, who was killed in the almost instantaneous explosion. (CFG)

Bright
Alliance pilot slang for a TIE Advanced starfighter. (XWN)

Bright Hope
this Alliance transport ship was the last to evacuate Echo Base following the Battle of Hoth. As it lifted off from the ice world, it was disabled by Zuckuss and 4-LOM, who had entered the system to respond to the bounty on Han Solo. They felt that bringing the Bright Hope down would help mitigate the fact that they were responsible for the capture of Sector Governor Nardix. The Hope was then further disabled by one of the Imperial Star Destroyers in the system, and drifted without power. Eighteen members of the crew escaped in three operable life pods, and Toryn Farr was able to rescue the rest of the passengers, with the help of Zuckuss and 4-LOM. The two hunters realized that the Alliance would accept them more than the Empire, and would help the Gand if they could. (TBH)

Bright Lands
a name given by the Twi'leks to the side of the planet Ryloth that is perpetually facing its primary star. (WEG, TEP)

Bright Nebula
one of the New Republic transport ships stationed on Folor shortly after the Battle of Thyferra. (WS)

Bright Stars
this was an elite group of mercenaries, known for their highly-polished, chrome-plated stormtrooper armor. (MBC)

Bright Tree Village
located on the forest moon of Endor, this Ewok village typifies the Ewoks' civilization. It is located fifty meters above the forest floor, in the great Father Trees. A center, massive tree dominates the village, and is the tree for which the village is named. (DFRSB)

Brightgum
this chewable food acts as a stimulant. (BTS)

Brigia
a planet in the Tion Hegemony, and the site of a fledgling university which was part of the University of Rudrig. It has a fairly sensitive ecosystem, and all incoming ships require phase-one decontamination before landing. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Brigia was overrun during the second wave of attacks. (HSL, HT)

Brigian
the humanoid race native to Brigia, they are tall, thin creatures with purple skin and deep red eyes. (HSL)

Brii Twins
a pair of smugglers who used to work with Roa and Han Solo, they were later killed which they got stuck in a shoot-out with a patrol cruiser in the Tion Hegemony. Note that the West End Games reference Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook lists them as the Briil Twins. (HSR, CSA)

Briil, Lozira
this is one of the smugglers who used to work with Han Solo and Roa. The twin of Rewinda Briil, they were killed in a starship firefight in the Tion Hegemony. Note that Han Solo's Revenge named them the Brii Twins. (CSA, HSR)

Briil, Rewinda
this is one of the smugglers who used to work with Han Solo and Roa. The twin of Lozira Briil, they were killed in a starship firefight in the Tion Hegemony. Note that Han Solo's Revenge named them the Brii Twins. (CSA, HSR)

Bril'nilim
this Twi'lek male served the New Republic military as a Colonel. He was in charge of the troopers who supported the defense of Dantooine against the Yuuzhan Vong. (DTO)

Brila, Renia
this woman was a doctor, but was also an Alliance underground cell member. She and her husband, Tanass, operated a safehouse out of their residence at 16AA889 Starfield Road. She was a respected physician, and was recruited into the Alliance when a foster agent recognized that they truly disliked the Empire. Renia and Tanass agreed to help the Alliance, and stopped outwardly working against the Empire to help cover their actions. (HAS)

Brila, Tanass
this man owned and operated Brila Industrial Supplies. He and his wife, Renia, also were members of the local Alliance rebel cell, and operated a safehouse in their residence at 16AA889 Starfield Road. They had been married for twenty years at the time of the Battle of Yavin, and Tanass had tried to fight the Empire through legal avenues and peaceful protests. Tanass' efforts caught the eye of an Alliance foster agent, who recruited the Brilas into the local cell. The Brilas abandoned their protests and appeals and went back to living a "normal" life, all as part of their cover. There were also rumors that Tanass had laundered money for Black Sun, but this rumor was never substantiated. (HAS)

Brila Industrial Supplies
this company, owned and operated by Tanass Brila, was also a front for Alliance business. (HAS)

Brill, Foga
this Imperial warlord controlled the Prakith System during the years after the reign of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (SOL)

Brill, Sirloss
this farmer owned a large herd of laca in the Quantrax Creek region of the planet Makthierse. He tried to submit and insurance claim to cover the loss of a large number laca, which he discovered had been carried off by swarms of preying makthiers. (COG)

Brilliant
this New Republic Nebula-class Star Destroyer, stationed at Coruscant, was the first ship sent to keep the Aramadia from leaving the planet. (BTS)

Brimon Yarar
a middle-aged, dark-skinned man, he is somewhat obese. Brimon has short dark hair, and was a general in the Human League's Heritage Squad on Corellia just prior to the Corellian Trade Summit. He was working at the archeological dig Ebrihim showed the the Solo family. (AC)

Brin, D'voras
this extraordinary smuggler was known for his thick, black beard and black clothing. He wore a blaster holster that had been specially modified to allow him a faster draw, which was especially useful because of the size of the pared-down repeating blaster he carried. He always seemed to be in control, and had the uncanny knack of knowing what was going happen next. A tall, unkempt man, Brin was adept at playing both sides of the Galactic Civil War, and didn't care about who hired him as long as the credits were good. (GMH)

Brin'shak
this Twi'leki "talent scout" provided a group of Twi'lek female dancers to Durga the Hutt for his entertainment. The transfer of the dancers was negotiated through the Mistryl, who agreed to provide the transport needed to get the dancers from Ryloth to Nal Hutta. Brin'shak negotiated the transfer through Ghitsa Dogder, who met with much resentment and resistance from the Mistryl sent to fly the dancers, Shada D'ukal and Dunc T'racen. While everyone insisted it wasn't slavery, Brin'shak and his clan were under contract to receive eighty percent of the dancers; income from Durga while they performed. However, Ghitsa was not about to sell the dancers into slavery. She arranged to have it look like the Karazak Slavers Guidl stole the dancers, and also sliced into Brin'shak's computer and made it look like Brin'shak had been taking payments from Karazak all along. This ensured that the Shak clan would not be doing much business in slavery(TFNR)

Brinaloy N'Vaari
this Devaronian female was the granddaughter of a former Provincial Governor of Abregado-Rae and the last surviving member of her family. She was trained to be an actress, and was skilled in the art of impersonation. After A'jindre Skrigatov arranged the assassination of her grandfather, Brinaloy found herself being put upon by Skrigatov's goons. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, she was forced into an engagement to Skirgatov, but went into hiding to get away from him. She used her skills as an impersonator to take up the persona of a Twi'leki female, and managed to avoid a great deal of Skrigatov's manipulations. (ND)

Brindibarr
this starport city was located on the planet Torina. (OE)

Brine Eel
a vicious, predatory eel known for its fierce, intraspecies battles. (SA)

Bringe
a male Duro, and tract mate to Probos. Together, they are starcharters working for the Empire. They were charting the space beyond the Outer Rim, when they happened to be in the Mos Eisley cantina when Obi-Wan and Luke approached Han Solo for passage to Alderaan. A graduate of the Duro Academy of Deep Space Exploration, he can boast no less than 3 unguided trips through hyperspace. He and Probos know of a huge deposit of Helixell somewhere in the Outer Rim or beyond, but they have not told anyone where it is. (SW, SCRE)

Brinkan
this Imperial Moff was in charge of the Tragan Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He had arranged to collect stolen plans for the X-Wing starfighter from the traitorous Ral Shawgrim, but Shawgrim failed to deliver them. He placed a bounty on Shawgrim's head. (SWAJ)

Brintooin
this planet was used by the Empire as a recruiting station for its Hell's Hammers units. (ISB)

Brinwell, Riij
this Sector Ranger held the rank of Sergeant during the Galactic Civil War, and was stationed in Parmic Sector. (MTSE)

Brionelle Memorial Military Academy
a Republic-based institution founded on Chandrila. (DESB)

Briss, Timma
this bald-headed female was a native of Corulag, and was wanted by Pok Nar-Ten for the theft of datafiles from the Klatooinan Trade Guild. During her flight, she met up with Bolabo Hujaan, and went to work for the Sullustan as a computer slicer. (ND)

Brist
one of the three major continents on the planet Pantolomin. Note that the Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook names this continent Brint*.* (DFRSB, TTSB)

Brit, Olander
this man was a Major with the Alliance's armed forces during the Battle of Endor. He had defected to the Alliance with Panno, and served the Alliance as a communications officer. (CCG11)

Brite Boyz
this was a group of elite mercenaries who were part of the Bright Sun group. (MBC)

Britteth
this large insect is often grown on farms and killed for its flesh. The creature secretes a certain enzyme as it dies, as a reaction to the pain of its death. The more pain the creature is in when it dies, the tastier the flesh. (POT)

Brizzit
this insectoid race is native to the planet Jandoon. (CCG)

Broadaxe Squadron
this Imperial fighter group was part of the fleet assigned to the Iron Fist by Warlord Zsinj. They were assigned to assist the false 181st Fighter Group during their protection of the planet Comkin Five, which Zsinj believed was the target of a New Republic raid. The information about the raid, gained from Gara Petothel, proved accurate, and the two squadrons were thrust into battle. Gara joined the Broadaxe group for the battle, and was able to send off a coded message to Wraith Squadron during the fight. (SOC)

Broadberry Meadow
located in the city of Theed, on the planet Naboo, this secluded park could only be reached by boat. It was situated on a point of land on the edge of the city's cliff, between two tributary forks of the Solleu River. (IWE1)

Broadcap Bomb
manufactured on the planet Adumar, these are large explosives named for the shape of the debris cloud it forms. They were nicknamed Punch-and-Pops, because of the way they explode. The shell actually penetrates the ground for several meters before exploding, and were capable of taking out several city blocks. (SOA)

Brochiib
one of the Trianii colony worlds. (CSA)

Brodan
this corporation manufactured droid manipulation devices, such as heavy-duty arms and retractors. (DW)

Broest
this planet was the primary world in a system of the same name, located in the Core. It was the site of an agricultural world owned by the Salliche Ag Corporation. The workers there revolted against Salliche Ag following the Battle of Endor. (SWAJ, SOC)

Brojtal, Jared
this Imperial officer held the rank of Sub-Commander shortly before the Battle of Hoth. His son was killed at the Syndaar Military Academy, when a spore bomb made by Ort Hoogra-D'En exploded on the campus. He vowed to make the Alliance and other rebels pay for the death. To that end, he hunted Ort Hoogra-D'En down, using his contacts in the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations to learn when and where bounties were placed on his head. When Brojtal learned that the Ho'Din had holed up in his base on Pallaxides, Brojtal took the Marduk and tried to capture him there. However, a group of bounty hunters captured Hoogra-D'En before Brojtal could. (ND)

Brok
this Drach'nam was one of two guards amployed by Chay Praysh that were burned by Mara Jade during her first attempte to escape from Praysh's palace on Torpris. (TFNR)

Broken Laser Bit
this rowdy tavern was located in the boomtown of Corestrike, on the planet Chrona. (SWJ12)

Broken People, The
see Toka (LCM)

Broken Trees, The
this group of scattered islands was located on the planet Veron, between the continents of Ablor and Vusi. The Gazaran people native to Veron believe the islands to be the remains of an ancient civiliation, possibly the first Gazaran to create their own society. Legend says that a huge storm swept waves of water over the lands, destroying the civilization and scattering the Gazaran to other continents. (PG1)

Broken Tusk, The
this disreputable establishment, located on the polluted world of Reuss VII, was considered by many to be the most vile place in the galaxy. Owned and operated by the Gamorrean brothers Greel and Gorge, The Broken Tusk was formed from the hull of their stolen starship, the Tolan's Tusk. Greel wanted to name the place "Greel's Good Place to Have Drink and Eat and the Get Into Fights," but Gorge got lost after 'drink,' so Greel named the place after the broken tusk Gorge suffered in the crash of the Tolan's Tusk. At the heart of The Broken Tusk was the Dool Arena, where the brothers staged personal combats between professional and amatuer fighters from across the Outer Rim. The battles were vicious, but more often ended in surrender than death. This was Greel's idea, and over time established a roster of "good" guys and "bad" guys that kept patrons coming back for more. (WSV)

Broken 'Spanner
this modified TL-1800 transport ship was owned by the smuggler Tiv Pocarno. The ship was old and run-down when he purchased it, and he had to spend every credit he had to keep it running. When he failed to make a payment to Torel Vorne, Tiv was killed and the Broken 'Spanner was impounded by Vorne's men. They continued to use it, although the ship rarely paid for itself because of its constant need for repairs. (SS)

Broken Tusk, The
this was the name of a tavern located on Reuss VIII during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Brollyx
this Assistant Viceprex in the Corporate Sector Authority's Security division served under Mirkovig Hirken on Etti IV. He blamed the Imperial Entertainers' Guild for the destruction of the Stars' End facility. (CSA)

Brombek, Slide
this young man was an outlaw tech at the height of the Galactic Civil War. Slide is just a nickname, although he has long-since forgotten his real first name. (MTSE)

Bromial
this Doctor of Archaeology was a member of the Obroan Institute. He was to begin an exploration of the planet Kogan 6 as soon as Joto Eckels returned to the Institute with the Penga Rift. Because of the importance of Eckels' work, Bromial's expedition was put on hold for several months. (TT)

Brommstaad Mercenaries
a tough group of hoodlums which haunted Treasure Ship Row during the early years of the New Republic, they considered themselves outside the bounds of normal society. (TFE)

Bron
this man travelled to Cerea to bring as much technology to the planet as he could. He understood that the import of high-technology items was illegal, but he used the freedom afforded to off-worlders to incite the younger Cereans to demand them of their elders. Many of the elder Cereans, such as Ki-Adi-Mundi, believed that Bron was an outright liar, spinning wondrous tales of the Republic that were simply not true. However, as the elders tried to stop him, they realized that such actions would simply lend credence to his diatribes. When Ki was accused of the murder of a young male, Bron saw his chance to turn the tide of the elders. Despite the fact that the youth was actually killed when Maj-Odo-Nomor tried to use the Jedi's lightsaber, Bron continued to push his point that the elders could use technology when it suited them, but kept it from the younger members of society. He also used Maj as a sort of hero-figure, building him up in the minds of his peers as an unjustly imprisoned youth. However, it was all just a backdrop to his own schemes, which counted on the skills of Ephant Mon to import swoops and other high-technology equipment to Cerea in exchange for tecave and malium. When Ki managed to track Ephant Mon to Tatooine and discover information on the Hutt's connections to the Trade Federation, Bron backed down on his tirades and went into hiding. (PTR)

Bron, Arly
this smuggler was born on Nar Shaddaa, and operated the freighter Double Echo. He spent a large amount of his career in the Corporate Sector, and gave Han Solo the basic location of Doc's outlaw tech station. (RD)

Bron Burs
this squid-like creature was a native of the southern region of Nentan. A loner, Burs was known as a crack shot and a reliable commando whose intuition was formidable. He sometimes worked with Debnoli. (CCG9)

Bron Kand'lar
this Bothan female was a member of the Alliance's Intelligence agency, and was responsible for providing information on the activities surrounding the Bilbringi shipyards during the Galactic Civil War. She was ordered to step down from active duty after several members of her clan were killed in an Imperial raid, but she refused to grieve and remained active. However, her effectiveness began to wane, and Bilbringi's effectiveness as a source of information declined. (CRO)

Bront
this planet's ecosystem was destroyed by an Imperial bombardment. (CRO)

Bronwen
this was the name used by the Ibhaan'I tribe to describe their shamen and priests. Each bronwen was a self-exiled person, outcast from their tribe by their own volition in order to pursue their calling. They spent the rest of their lives wandering the Socorran deserts, and their survival gave them prestige and respect. This nomadic lifestyle became known over the years as the Long Walk. (BSS)

Bronzan Ramp
this was one of the entrances to the Freelie's hideout on Vorzyd 5. (CSWEA)

Bronzium
this metal was quite dense, and was often used in the creation of structures where radiation might be a threat. One of is most prominent uses was in the case-hardened bulbs which held the reactor core of the Trade Federation's droidekas. (OWS)

Brooboo Seep
this Gungan bongo racer was one of the most popular racers on the circuit, in the years leading up to the Battle of Naboo. He was noticeable by his flambouyant purple, orange, and yellow racing attire. Just before the Bongo Rally, Seep was attacked by one of Captain Swagg's droids and knocked unconscious. The droid then stole his clothing in order to move about unnoticed. (E1A12)

Brooser
a native of Celanon, this huge man was often compared to a Wookiee in size and strength, although never to his face. He was dating the floozie Jezzable during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Brope
this plant is a third-generation plant used in terraforming. It provides nutritional value to grazing animals. (POT)

Brosh
this Chiss served Voss Parck and Stent at the Hand of Thrawn compound on Nirauan, and was a member of Thrawn's House Phlanx. (VOF)

Brosi
this lushly forested world was the fourth planet in the Dostra System, and was the only inhabitable world in the Thandon Cluster. The planet was unremarkable, except for the fact that its crust and mantle were rich in zinsian, which the Corporate Sector Authority used as a dry preservative. The CSA established a number of zinsian processing plants, and annexed the planet despite the wishes of the native Brosin. The average day on Brosi lasted 26.5 standard hours, and its year encompassed 289 local days. Brosin had one natural satellite. (AIR)

Brosin
this was the near-human race which was native to the planet Brosi. (AIR)

Brosin Triumverate
see Brosin Underground (AIR)

Brosin Underground
this paramilitary organization sprang up on the planet Brosi, after the Corporate Sector Authority took control of the planet in order to mine zinsian from its surface. Led by Randle Clanse, the Brosin Underground worked to disrupt CSA activities. Despite Supervisor Wasith's best efforts, the Brosin Undeground continued to operate, from a base hidden in the Blan Mountains. (AIR)

Bross
a Gold Squadron X-Wing pilot serving the New Republic. (HTSB)

Brosso Mark II
an large, obsolete model of holoprojector. Han Solo was carrying what was supposed to be a cargo of 12 Lockfiller projectors, but a Brosso Mark II got mixed in. Han's buyer refused to take it, and so Han was stuck with it. He used his Brosso to show holofeatures to the Kamarian Badlanders. (HSR)

Brother Fivelines
this huge droid was once the ruler of the planet Ronyards. Like the other droids there, he had been sent to Ronyards to be scrapped. However, the planet-wide construct of various droid parts kept him active. He became a believer that the planet was the Body of the Living God, and felt that it would protect him in any situation. When C-3PO and R2-D2 travel to Ronyards to warn the droids of an impending Imperial meltdown of the droids there, Fivelines falls back on the belief that the planet will protect the droids. However, the Imperials cared little for Ronyards, and sent gougers to melt the droids down. Fivelines was destroyed in the Imperial invasion, but this set off a mysterious storm of droid shrapnel from the planet-wide droid construct. This storm decimated the Imperial forces, saving the remaining droids. (CSWDW)

Brother Kranch
this is one of the scrapped droids sent to Ronyards. Kranch was kept active, and became a follower of the Body of the Living God. (CSWDW)

Brotherhood of Independent Scouts
this was the primary form of guild recognized by the New Republic, for the membership to independent scouts and explorers. (GG8)

Brotherhood of the Sith formed by Exar Kun, these were disillusioned Jedi Knights who chose to learn the dark lore of the Sith (DA, COTF)

Brother-In-Law Shipping Company
literally-tranlsated name of the only exporters of life-crystals, located on Rafa IV. (LCM)

Brothic
this man was the Imperial Governor of Ciutric in the period following the Battle of Endor, and took custody of Sate Pestage after Leonia Tavira dropped him off on the planet. A minor leader, Brothic was bribed into delaying word of Pestage's arrival, thereby allowing Pestage to hide before Ysanne Isard could locate him. (XWMR)

Brovar
Han's alias when he arrives at Dathomir. (CPL)

Brownlung
this Adumari disease is more common in the working classes than the nobility, primarily because the working classes are forced to live in underground turumme warrens. It is similar to lung cancer. (SOA)

BRT-series Computer
this model of super-computer was designed to perform administrative operations on a vast scale, such as managing a huge city or even a small planetary government. Each BRT could manage the activities of 40 million beings, creating and coordinating work assignments and personnel to ensure the smooth, day-to-day operation of an urban environment. In this capacity, the BRT series eliminated the roles of thousands of lesser droids and many humans. This ability scared many politicians and business leaders, who recognized that the BRT was better able to do their own jobs, at a fraction of the cost. In response, these politicians and leaders ordered the BRT line shut down on any number of grounds, and the majority of BRT units was unplugged and physically scrapped. No more than 25 survived at the time of the Battle of Yavin, and most of those had undergone severe memory wipes to reduce their abilities. (CRO)

Bruallki
a creature known for its tasty, edible meat. (HTTE, TB)

Bruanii Sector
a section of the galaxy in which the Alliance Light Calamari Cruiser Lulsla was destroyed following the Battle of Hoth. It is located near the Tungra and Javin Sectors. (TIE)

Brubb
a green-grey skinned, reptilian race native to the planet Baros, the Brubbs are vaguely humanoid in appearance. Their faces are flat and conical, and dominated by bony ridges around their eyes. A topknot of hair sprouts from the head of the males, while the females are hairless. Their noses are used only for breathing, as their sense of smell is found in their forked tongues. They are herbivorous in nature. Females lay a single egg every Barosian year, and very often die during childbirth, so much of Brubb society is dominated by males. Brubbs are virtually deaf, which is probably genetic but is an excellent adaptation to the harsh winds of Baros. Brubbs are intensely social creatures, and organize themselves into groups known as habas. They were subjugated by Thrawn during his reign of terror. (GG4, TLC)

Bruckman
this native of Corellia was recruited to join the Alliance's commando unit by Crix Madine. An accomplished scout, Bruckman served as the point man in Han Solo's assault team which was dispatched to take out the shield generator protecting the second Death Star. (CCG10)

Bruhas Drey
this was one of the aliases used by Lirin Banolt. (XWBT)

Bruk tukken nom canbin-tu
this Yuuzhan Vong literally translates into "weaken the hinges of the enemy's fort." It was used to describe any action which helped undermine the efforts of an opponent. (VP)

Brullian Dyll
a musician who performed during the middle years of the Galactic Civil War. Kardue'sai'Malloc thought he was an amazing artist. (TME)

Brunwin, Anton
the twin brother of Sturn Brunwin, and a member of the Kiffu race. Together, they ran the front desk of the Lucky Despot hotel for Lady Valarian. (GG7)

Brunwin, Sturn
the twin brother of Anton Brunwin, and a member of the Kiffu race. Together, they ran the front desk of the Lucky Despot hotel for Lady Valarian. (GG7)

Brusc
an Imperial Navy Captain, commander of the Manticore. He was in charge of taking out the Mon Cal shipyards during the second Battle of Calamari. (DA)

Bruwose
this species of immense lizard lives in the badlands and deserts of the planet Moorja. They are nearly blind, as they live underground and their eyes have degenerated over several generations. They have large forefeet that are studded with heavy talons, which they use to dig through the rock and sand of areas like the Crumbling Lands. The talons also act as a weapon, since their pale scales are not very thick. (SWJ8)

Bruzion
a city on the planet Jendorn. (DFRSB)

Bryar Rifle
a antique version of the basic blaster, the bryar rifle shoots a single energy bolt when the trigger is depressed. It is a very accurate weapon. (DF)

Bryce-Kelley, Hawker
this man and his partner, Rypka, traveled the Outer Rim Territories, looking for fellow spacers to rescue from bad situations. Bryce-Kelley believed that the more favors he spread around, the more he could collect on later. With this in mind, he and Rypka had a uncanny knack of showing up just when a fellow spacer needed them the most. The pair traveled in the bulky-seeming freighter, the Royal Mistress. (PSG)

Bryexx
a planet in the Varvenna Sector. (TJP)

Bryn & Gweith
manufacturers of the Leveler I medium concussion missile launcher, Bryn & Gweith is a subdivision of Comar Weapons. (ISB)

Bryndas
this is the smaller of the two continents on Zelos II. (PG2)

Bryndas Islands
a beautiful chain of islands located near the continent of Bryndas, on Zelos II. (TFNR)

Bryne, Tallus
Han Solo used this alias when he entered the Corellian swoop racing championships, shortly before he left the Trader's Luck. As Bryne, he set a new record in the swoop races by flying through Tabletop Mesa, rather than over or around it. This earned him not only the trophy but a lot of recognition. When Han returned to Corellia with Bria Tharen, he was recognized as Bryne by Dael Levare, an event which precipiated his flight from Corellia. (TPS)

Bryx
this planet was conquered by the Empire before the formation of the Alliance to Restore the Republic. Its governor, a military expert named Carigan, led a series of defensive battles that nearly expelled the Imperial forces. However, in the long run, the sheer numbers of Imperial soldiers thrown against Carigan led to his defeat. (SWAJ)

BR1-Z
this ancient blaster rifle was produced by Core World Arms. (TOJC)

Bseto
this rocky desert world is the first planet in the Bseto System. (SWAJ)

BT-X2
this modified TX-1118 assassin droid was owned by Luskin Exovar, and was employed to help secure Exovar's Emporium on Neftali. Part of a shipment which never made it to its final destination, BT-X2 was known as Botax, and was accompanied by another TX-1118 droid designated NT-X2 but known as Entax. Both droids were given new programming by Exovar, who removed their assassin routines and replaced them with security routines. They worked as a team, and BT-X2 was the more aggressive of the two droids. (WSV)

BT-16
a perimeter patrol droid manufactured by Arakyd. They have a bulbous main body supported by a set of spider-like legs. (GG7, TME)

BT-2000
this automaton was considered the most technologically advanced droid in the galaxy, during the height of the New Order. Its manufacturers claimed it could manage all functions of an Imperial-class Star Destroyer by itself. (GOF4)

BTL-A4
a single-seat version of the Koensayr Y-Wing. (SWSB)

BTL-S3
a two-seat version of the Koensayr Y-Wing. (SWSB)

BT310
see BT410 (OWS)

BT346
this was the designation of an Imperial order which required all personnel to cooperate with a sub-facility task force. It was often invoked whenever the task force members were of a lower rank that the people they were interviewing. (JH)

BT410
this was a series of podracers developed and built by Balta-Trabaat, and was known on the many racing circuits as the Quadra-Pod because it used four large engines constrained by a pair of energy binders. They were tempermental vehicles which required constant upkeep. The cockpit measures 2.72 meters in length, while the engines measured 9.5 meters in length. The top speed of the BT410 was nearly 940 kilometers per hour. Note that the official Star Wars website claims this is a BT310, with engines which were 4.5 meters in length. (IG1, OWS)

Bu
this was the name given to the infant daughter of Ganeed and Garth. (SP)

Buamlon Central
this inhospitable planet was originally scouted by Barosa Warren for the Old Republic. It was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Bubbleback
this form of landspeeder was built on the planet Teyr. The bubbleback has a large, transparisteel bubble which provides the occupants a full view of the area around them. Bubblebacks were large transports, and contained a waste station and reprocessor unit for its occupants. (SOL)

Bubble Building
this is the name used to describe the spherical living chambers developed by the water-dwelling Gungans of the planet Naboo. Individual bubbles can be as small as a single room are as large as a vast audience chamber. Each is a marvel of force field technology, as the bubble is a field that keeps the water out, the atmosphere in, and allows a slow-moving individual to pass through. (SW1)

Bubble Cliffs
found on the planet Qiaxx, the Bubble Cliffs were famous tourist attractions. The white stone cliffs were riddled with huge, thirty-meter-across bubbles that were natural phenomena. In primitive times, the bubbles were used as dwellings by the ancient races of Qiaxx, and many of then were restored as historical sites by the modern inhabitants of the planet. Daily landspeeder tours of the Bubble Cliffs were managed by the Black Nebula organization, as a front for their criminal activites. (MJEH)

Bubble Spore
this unusual plant is native to the swamplands of Naboo. It grows rapidly, and is considered quite beautiful by humans and Gungans. The Gungans use the plant in the creation of bubble wort. It is named for the bubble-like seed spores the plant creates in order to spread. These bubbles float on the water as well as on the breeze, allowing the plant to establish itself over great distances. (GF)

Bubble Wort
this unique, distilled material is used by the Gungans in the creation of their bubble buildings. Although the exact process is a well-kept secret, it is known that certain natural plant fibers and animal proteins can be boiled and distilled to create the wort. (GF)

Bubbling Mud
a decent cafe' in Plawal, located off Brandifert Court. It serves a decent meat pie. (COJ)

Buboicullaar
a frog-dog living on Tatooine, Bubo was at once plotting against and assisting in plots against Jabba the Hutt. He was an Imperial operative, infiltrated into the Hutt's palace to facilitate communications between the Empire and Ree-Yees. A small transmitter had been placed in a lump of flesh on Bubo's body, hidden until Ree-Yees needed to receive a message. The Gran would then reach into the lump and extract the message display, replacing it after reading the message. Bubo detested Ree-Yees for his drunkenness and his inability to act on his own. Thus, when Ree-Yees was to receive a detonator link for the bomb he was building, Bubo ate it in front of the Gran. This enraged Ree-Yees, and amused Bubo. While all of this was going on, Bubo was secretly receiving training from one of the B'omarr monks, Evilo Nailati. Bubo learned much from the monk, and when Jabba was killed at the Pit of Carkoon, the B'omarr gladly welcomed Bubo's brain into the realm of the enlightened ones. (ROTJ, TJP)

Buck, Koren
this small-time conman worked the streets of Drepplin, on Glova, during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Budpock
a planet in the Chorios Systems. An uneasy truce between Budpock and Ampliquen existed during the early years of the New Republic, which was threatened when Dzym let loose the Death Seed plague on Meridian Sector. Dzym also incited a group of pirates that used the planet as their base, and various skirmishes broke out. (POT)

Buerhoz
Buerhoz is one of the many domed cities that dot the polluted landscape of Clak'dor VII. (GMS)

Bugdillo
native game species on Eol Sha, a crustacean eaten for its pink meat. (JS)

Builder with Vines
this Qom Jha was one of the few that had ever gotten into the caverns below the High Tower and seen the Threateners up close. He was assigned by Eater of Fire Creepers to lead Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade to the Tower, along with Splitter of Stones and Keeper of Promises, as well as the Qom Qae Child of Winds. When the group ws beseiged by fire creepers, Builder with Vines tried to prove his prowess by swooping down and eating the insects, hoping to belittle Child of Winds. Unfortunately, Builder with Vines tired quickly, and fell into the swarming mass of creepers. They made quick work of him, scouring the flesh from his bones in no time. (VOF)

Bujiboi
an cargo ferry captured by the Empire during its strike at the Galactic Electronics Pondut research platform. (TIE)

Bukeen
this city, located on the planet Aruza, was the site of a COMPNOR Redesign facility during the height of the New Order. The native Aruzans were taken here and “modified” to become warrior-like slaves. (TBH)

Bulano Serpent
a snake which has no teeth, poison, or other offensive armament. To protect itself, it gulps air and puffs up to nearly five times its normal size. This intimidation often scares off would-be predators. (SE)

Buldo
a small, skittish creature native to the planet Vryssa. (TFNR)

Bulior Repulsor Systems
this corporation developed a starfighter crash-restraint system during the early years of the New Republic. It employed a grouping a small repulsors that held the pilot in an invisible coccoon if his starship crashed. The corporation got a boost when Hobbie Klivian agreed to endorse the system. (HXW)

Bulk Cruiser
slow, minimally-armed transport ship (DFR)

Bulk Exploratory Armor known as a BEA, this form of protective gear provided a wide range of protection from heat and light. (SWJ13)

Bulk Freighter
these cargo ships are basically flying boxes with hyperdrive engines attached, and little or no armaments. (SW)

Bull-fern
a fiddle-headed fern native to Ithor. (COJ)

Bullet Train
a fast, underground transportation system developed by the Selonians. (AS)

Bullkey
one of the Black Sun criminals working with Grobber during the reign of Zekka Thyne over Black Sun's Corellian interests. (TFE)

Bullseye Navior
this strange alien was considered one of the best pod racers of the Outer Rim, and was known as the track favorite on many of the courses found on Aquillaris. Navior was a brown-skinned humanoid with a pair of round, bulbous growths coming from the top of his head. (RAC)

Bullwin, Dhar
this old man is a strong magician, and the leader of the Scitrok Warriors. Although not a Jedi, nor even a Dark Jedi, he nonetheless can tap into the Force and use it. He trained under a Scitrok master for more than thirty years before betraying his master and killing him, then taking his place. He spent the next twenty-five years of his life searching for the treasures of Koda's World, including the Eye of Koda before a group of scouts found it on Vengler. They took off to find Koda's World, and Bullwin followed them. His ship, the Logrus, was shot down by the scouts, but Bullwin managed to escape to the planet. Once there, Bullwin raced the scouts to locate the hidden temple, and was able to reach it before them. Inside, he discovered the source of magic and incredible power, and gave himself to it. He hoped to control the galaxy, but the power was maintained by the ancient Tempestro spirits. They deemed Bullwin unworthy of the power, and destroyed him. (GG8)

Bullyak
Ugbuz's mate, and matriarch of the Gakfedd tribe of Gamorreans on Pzob when the Eye of Palpatine came to life. (COJ)

Bultz
an Alliance transport group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Bulwark, The
this was the nickname given to Imperial space platform 1B6/Green, located in Darpa Sector near the border with Bormea Sector. (FOP)

Bulwark Battlecruiser designed and manufactured by TransGalMeg, this older battleship found acceptance in the Alliance fleet during the Galactic Civil War. Many felt that the ship's electronics and sensors were too finicky for regular combat, but the Alliance found that the Bulwark was more than adequately armed and shielded for battle. Most Alliance Bulwark battlecruisers served as mobile command bases for smaller fleets, which were detached from their primary battle group. (REB)

Bumpout
this is the term used by the residents of Tatooine's desert cities to describe a small room that has been added to a main structure. Often, these small rooms resembled bulbous additions, a shape that was most stable for the mud and sand mixture used to create them. (TPM)

Bumpy's Breakers
this was the name given to one of the pro-circuit podraces held annually on the planet Aquilaris. (RAC)

Bundil II
this was the name of a XQ2 platform used by the Empire as a prison base. Some of the prisoners taken during the Battle of Hoth were held there, until an Alliance force known as the Strom Unit liberated them in a daring assault on the platform. (XWA)

Bundim
Commander Resner believed that Bundim was base of operations for the Alliance forces that began rebelling in Trax Sector, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The planetary government secretly tried to remove the Imperial presence from the planet, but an inside source alerted the Empire to Bundim's plans. The Empire's response was swift, and meant to make an example of Bundim for the rest of the sector. A number of merchant ships were destroyed, and many cities were leveled in aerial bombardments. Bundim was garrisoned and subjugated in less than a week. The Alliance worked diligently to help the natives liberate themsevlves, and their efforts were nearly thwarted after the Battle of Heg. Kentara, one of the first Alliance agents captured, later returned and help complete the liberation effort. (GMK)

Bunduki
1) a race of beings which practice the martial art of teras kasi or "steel hands." (SE)
2) this planet, located in the Pacanth Reach, was conquered by the Epicanthix people. (SESB, AE)

Bunkurd Corporation
once based on Coruscant, this company operated several centuries prior to the Battle of Endor. They engineered a bacterium that could help break down the huge amount of waste coming out of Imperial City each day. The bacterium would eat the sludge and grime, converting it to more biodegradable by-products. The bacterium was responsible for a twenty-percent improvement in Coruscant's sewage problems. However, if the bacterium was consumed by humans, it would make them feel as if they had food poisoning. This became known as Bunkurd Sewer Disorder. Bunkurd later developed a way to contain the bacterium in a self-contained treatment system known as the Bunkurd Reclamation System. (WS)

Bunkurd Reclamation System
this water and sewage treatment system was developed by Bunkurd Corporation. It used the bacterium it developed for use on Coruscant, but contained it an isolated system that could be attached to existing treatment facilities. (WS)

Bunkurd Sewer Disorder
this disease is contracted when a human consumes the specialized bacterium created to combat waste disposal problems on Coruscant. The bacterium, engineered by Bunkurd Corporation, broke down garbage into biodegradable by-products. However, if consumed by humans, the bacterium caused a gastrointestinal disorder that resembled food poisoning. (WS)

Buntra Tree
this tree is native to the planet Orellon II. (SWAJ)

Bur
this individual was Dolph's naval Commander on Almania. (TNR)

Buran Borsil
this male Nord was one of the eight members of the Twilight Class of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School who became part of the Alliance's Special Forces division. He held an honorary position on Eclipse Team, due mainly to his comraderie with the other members of the team. (AIR)

Burborok
this Sedrian warrior was a follower of Karak. (BGS)

Burdock
this great philosooher was once quoted as saying, “If crime did not pay, there would be very few criminals.” (SEE)

Bureau of Operations
a divison of Imperial Intelligence which handles many of the surveillance, infiltration, counterintelligence, and assassination missions for the Empire. (ISB)

Bureau of Punishments
a divison of Imperial government set up by Palpatine, their charter allowed them to discover new and unique ways to punish those individuals and races that did not agree with the New Order. (COJ)

Bureau of Revenue
this Imperial agency was charged with setting and levying the taxes required to maintain the Empire. (GG8)

Bureau of Scouting and Exploration Services this is technically the full name of the New Republic Scout Service. (GG8)

Bureau of Ships and Services
this agency assigns unique transponder codes to all of the galaxy's starship. It is often referred to as the BoSS. A bureau office is located in most major spaceports throughout the galaxy. BoSS has been an fixture of intergalactic travel for several millenia, surviving the scourge of the Empire and the birth of the New Republic while remaining totally neutral. Most of the positions within BoSS are filled on a hereditary basis, so the BoSS is as much an intergalactic clan as it is a civil bureaucracy. It ensures its usefulness and independence in two ways: it keeps its computer files stored in nearly indecipherable codes, and it has remained neutral to any galactic confrontation. This neutrality is formed from a simple rule: whoever rules the galaxy “inherits” the BoSS. (RPG, GG7, CFG, VOF)

Bureau of Xenology
this ancient branch of the Old Republic was responsible for cataloguing the incredible variety of sentient life in the known galaxy. (TOJC)

Bureau Seals
these Imperial Customs container seals are thin plastic strips and stickers used to seal shipping containers. Within the strips are tiny microchips, as well as a special dissolving agent. The strips are bonded to the locks or latches of containers, and permanently mark the container during transport. Seals which match an Imperial inspections listing are passed through Customs without intervention. A quick scan of the microchips will reveal the seal’s identification. If the seal is roughly handled or broken, the dissolving agent is released and destroys the seal. (SWJ9)

Bureaucracy Blues
a song written and played by the band Red Shift Limit. It was first released on the compilation entitled Limited Warfare, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Bureaucrat's Triumph
this military CR90 Corvette is at the heart of the defenses for the planet Algara II. It is supported by twelve Z-95 Headhunters. (PG2)

Burellion Tiy
this Sullustan worked in the Outer Rim Territories as a used starships salesbeing. He made a living buying used ships from SoroSuub Corporation and then making them available at enticing prices to the general public. Like many Sullustans, Tiy felt that SoroSuub needed to break away from the Empire and support the Alliance. He eventually became an Alliance operative, using his contacts within SoroSuub to gather Imperial military intelligence during his travels. He then arranged to turn this information over to the Alliance. His hatred of the Empire is strong, and he once sold an Imperial garrison a group of sabotaged patrol ships. The ships gave off electromagnetic signatures that told their ships' sensors that there were X-Wings in the area. To his delight, the Imperials increased their patrols and their defenses in a virtually barren area of space. (CRO)

Burellion's Deal
this SoroSuub light transport was owned and operated by Burellion Tiy during the height of the New Order. (CRO)

Burke
an Alliance modified Corvette operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Burll-ikem-Tiz-Sah
this was the largest of the wondrous tree-cities built by the Gazaran in the rainsforests of the planet Veron. Located on the northern coast of the continent of Ganzka, this city was home to more than 350,000 Gazaran. (PG1)

Burna Trade Route
this hyperspace route wound through the Lesser Plooriod Cluster. Together with the Entana Run, it formed the boundary of Urce Space. (AIR)

Burnal Terrup
this Devaronian male served as the first assistant to Abav Ghart, and was Ghart's opposite in many respected. A member of the Void Demons for more than a decade, Terrup worn a tattered blue and orange uniform. He was a manipulative being, always seemingly one step away from becoming psychotic. (PG1)

Burning
a torture method in which a blaster is set to its lowest power output. The weapon is then used to burn the flesh from the victim's bones. The blaster's beam is set so that the bone remains intact but scorched, and the victim can see it. Very few victims have ever withheld information with this method. The person administering the torture usually starts at the toes and works their way up the leg toward the chest and head. (HSE)

Burning, The
the point in the orbit of the planet Byss in which is moves directly between the twin stars of Byss and Abyss. The planet is then baked with heat and radiation. (GG4)

Burning Bridges
a song written and played by Annadale Fayde. It was first released as part of the compilation Emotional Hostages, and has been given a scarlet rating by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Burning Deck, The
a run-down drinking establishment in the Corellian sector of Nar Shaddaa's spaceport. It is one of the three most popular hangouts for Corellian spacers, and is a dismal, crowded bar. (DE2)

Burning Pride
this Yuuzhan Vong warship was part of the fleet commanded by Shedao Shai, during the second wave of their invasion of the galaxy. It was commanded by Deign Lian, until Lian assumed command in the wake of Shedao Shai's death on Ithor. (DTR)

Burning Snake
this creature, native to the moon Yavin 13, is an effective solar collector. Unlike most creatures on the moon, the burning snakes come out during the day and bask in the sun, absorbing incredible amounts of heat and converting that energy into fuel to sustain itself. They can grow to be up to three meters in length. (GG2)

Burnout
a slang term referring to the loss of a starship's power plant. (ESBR)

Burra Fish
this fish, native to Dathomir, swims in mudholes. (CPL)

Burrbrush
a plant native to the planet Endor. (AT)

Burren, Tal
this dark-skinned man was a lowly grade-four technician who served with Major Ivak, under the command of Ysanne Isard. When Ivak was coerced by Mara Jade and subdued, Burren provided Isard several methods of recapturing Jade and punishing Ivak. He was promoted by Isard for his loyalty and ingenuity during the search for Mara Jade, eventually ending up on Isard's personal staff. (MJEH)

Burrid, Sk'kot
this member of the Alliance armed forces was part of Bria Tharen's Red Hand Squadron. He came down with a fever shortly before the attack on the Helot's Shackle. He recovered, and was part of the assault team that went to Ylesia and eliminated the Besadii operations there. However, like the rest of the Red Hands, Sk'kot was killed on Toprawa as they supported the resistance there. (RD)

Burrk
a former stormtrooper who had deserted the Empire following the Battle of Endor, Burrk was discovered by Luke Skywalker and Callista on Hoth, where he and his crew were illegally hunting Wampas for their pelts. Burrk had teamed up with two sibling Cathars, Nodon and Nonak, thinking that they were formidable hunters. They were ambushed by Wampas on a run, on which they were hosting Drom Guldi, and the Wampas accidentally hit the auto-destruct sequence for his ship. The ship exploded before they could fight off the Wampas, and they were stranded. Burrk was killed when the Wampas managed to break into the remnants of Echo Base the Burrk and his team were using as a shelter. (DS)

Burrmillet
this was one of the primary grains grown by the Salliche Agricultural Corporation on the planet Ruan. (JE)

Burrower
a genus of omnivorous creature native to the moon Yavin 8, the rodent-like burrowers come in all shapes and sizes. The smallest are the Mosshoppers, and the largest are the Lopers. (GG2)

Burrowing Detonator
this mobile, robotic explosive is used to mine open areas. They have a limited range, but their mobility allows them to be set down in an area and they disperse themselves. Like standard landmines, they bury themselves just below the surface and lie waiting for someone to step on them. Unlike landmines, they can also move periodically, making their recovery nearly impossible. (ROM)

Burthan
this element is often extruded into thin threads, which are used to reinforce metals and ferrocrete structures. It is a light-weight material. (CFG)

Burtiin
this Wookiee owned a Trast A-A2 repulsor truck, which was stolen by F'ej D'aw in an effort to get Nawnum the Hutt away from Gennan Var. (IA)

Bursk
this Imperial soldier held the rank of Sergeant Major during the Battle of Hoth. Bursk was known as a cunning planner and tactician, and led the most brutal of all the snowtrooper squadrons into Echo Base during the Empire's rout of the Alliance. (CCG9)

Bursthed
this Imperial Governor served as the leader of Bissillirus System during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, and was later promoted to governor of the planet Ruten in the years following the Battle of Endor. He was responsible for keeping the population docile while readying the planet for the contstruction of a new base. In his personal time, Bursthed maintained an elaborate collection of exotic pets, a hobby that was started when his courtiers gave him a miniature dewback after attending the annual Ruten Pet Show. (TSK, GMK)

Busurra
this crippled Wookiee, who lost an eye due to Imperial torture, was Loom Carplin's right-hand man at the Atrivis Resistance Group's base on Generis. He has a brilliant knack for organization and administration. He was usually accompanied by his translator droid, C3-L1. (RASB)

Butcher of Montellian Serat
this was the monicker given to the Devaronian Kardue'sai'Malloc, who later hid under the alias of Labria. The nickname was given to Kardue'sai'Malloc because he executed over 700 of his fellow Devaronians, at the behest of the Empire, at Montellian Serat. Kardue was eventually caught by Boba Fett, somce fifteen years after the Battle of Hoth. (MTS, TBH)

Butcher of Renatasia
a name given to Vuffi Raa by Klyn Shanga, it refered to Vuffi Raa's presence in the Renatasia System when the Imperial fleet invaded the system. (LCS)

Butcherbug
native to the planet Dagobah, the butcherbug is a multilegged, armored creature that spins a tough, wire-like web in the roots of the gnarltree. Animals that fail to detect the web and run into it are cut into pieces, which the butcherbug then consumes at its leisure. (ISU)

Butler's Cove
a previously uninhabited planet in the Stribos System, this planet was chosen by Soron Hegerty as a refuge for the Ssither that managed to escape the Demophon System. It was unrecorded in Imperial records. It had a local day of 25 standard hours, and a year of 380 local days. It was named for the pirate who discovered it; he hoped to use it as a base from which to raid the Demophon System, but he was killed on his first raid, and all information on the planet was lost. (SN)

Butter newt
a small salamander found on Bakura, it is extremely primitive and has a limited nervous system. (TB)

Butterbat
this was the popular name for the species of creature known as Bogan's Brown Nafen. (COG)

Buttonwood
this hardwood is found in rocky and desert-like environments, growing in small, tight rings that make the wood extremely tough. (POT)

Buula Nen
this Chevin crimelord operated from an asteroid base he named Buula's Rocky Home. He was feared throughout the Telanka System and parts of the Outer Rim, and maintained control of his criminal forces by planting truthful rumors about hidden explosives splrinled throughout Buula's Rocky Home. (HAS)

Buula's Raiders
this pirate gang worked for Buula Nen during the Galactic Civil War. Like most of Buula Nen's operations, the Raiders were based out of Buula's Rocky Home. (HAS)

Buula's Rocky Home
this asteroid base, located in the Vessar Asteroid Belt, was owned and operated by the Chevin crimelord Buula Nen, during the height of the New Order. The asteroid itself had two nodes, with the command center and living areas in the small node, and hangar space and weapons systems in the larger node. (HAS)

Buwon Neb
it was on this planet-hopper pilot's ship that Callista - under the name of Cray Mingla - arrived on the planet Nam Chorios. Buwon Neb made regular runs between Durren and Nam Chorios. (POT)

Buzchub
this race of creatures comes from a remote sector of the galaxy. Their location, along with their unremarkable history, has kept them out of the galactic mainstream. A peaceful race, the Buzchub are characterized by their tall, humanoid appearance and blue fur. They are incapable of speaking the Basic language, much like the Wookiees, whom the Buzchubs consider to be their "long-haired brothers." Those Buzchub which have travelled off their homeworld wear a special translator in order to converse with Basic-speaking races. (TSK)

Buzz Boys
this group of elite mercenaries often accompanied the Alliance on missions against the Empire. They assisted in the recovery of an I2-CG droid on Goratak III, after the droid intercepted data on the starship manufacturing plant on Tar Morden. (MB)

Buzz Fly
a small, annoying insect which consumes the sugars found in many fruits. (POT)

Buzz-bug
an insect that mindlessly circles around and around. (MTS)

Buzz-droid
this form of automaton was developed to move about on repulsors and attack a specified target. (SWJ14)

Buzz-knucks
a handheld weapon, buzz-knucks are worn across the knuckles, and deliver an electric charge when they make contact with another body. (DESB)

Buzzfish
a predatory fish. (XWRS)

Buzzy
one of Gamgalon's henchmen, Buzzy worked with Fleck to scour the spaceports near Tropis-on-Varonat for potential buyers. (TFE)

Buzzzer
a hornet-like insect found on the planet Eiattu. (XWWP)

Buzzzer
this was the name of the Bonestar Pirate ship, commanded by Loka Hask, that caused the Antilles' fuel depot on Gus Treta to explode. This Cindev Series IV picket-ship-turned-armed-freighter had docked at their station, but was pursued by agents of the Corellian Security Force. They ordered the Buzzzer to stand down, but Hask fled before disengaging the fuel lines. Wedge Antilles later destroyed the Buzzzer and sverely injured Hask, after tracking the pirates down in an act of revenge. (HXW)

BV-1210
this servant droid was the maitre'd at the Cedrian Terrace restaurant on Bothawui, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

Bwahl
this Hutt was considered ugly even by Hutt standards. Bwahl's skin was a dingy gray color, and he was missing an eye. Bwahl often employed independent shippers like Kaj Nedmak and Celia Durasha, in an effort to move merchandise without getting involved directly with the law. Kaj owed Bwahl a large sum of credits, after he dumped a cargo in the Gordian Reach. Bwahl forgave him, since Kaj was otherwise reliable, but the debt remained unpaid, so Kaj was forced to work it off. Kaj later decided to pay off all his debts by double-crossing Bwahl. He planned to use a shipment of Bwahl's weapons to pay off a debt to Rass M'Guy, then run enough spice to quickly pay back Bwahl. However, Bwahl discovered his plans, and sent out his agents to capture or kill him. (SWJ14)

BX-9T
this ill-tempered administrative droid was hired by Trepler Darklighter to run Docking Bay 86 at the Mos Eisley Spaceport. BX-9T is humanoid in form, with striking blue and red coloration. (GG7)

BXCS:918912
this New Republic Intelligence datafile contained information on the capital ships built by the New Republic after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (CTD)

BX77:8181636.1872
this New Republic Intelligence datafile was created to document the various starships which were involved in the Human League crisis and the breakup of the Starbuster Plot. It was appended to datafile 9912.78.3. (CTD)

By The Banks of the Warm, Pink Z'gag
a song Skynx sings to Han, Chewie, Badure, and Hasti on the planet Dellalt, it is played at cocoon-weaving time to soothe the Ruurians who are entering their pupal stage. It also serves as a welcoming song to those Ruurians who, at the same time, are about to shed their cocoons and become fliers. (HSL)

Byblos
a planet located in the Colonies region, Byblos is a densely populated manufacturing center for high technology and military items. The natives have built huge city towers, some of which have 5,000 levels or more. BlasTech, SoroSuub, and Seiner Fleet Systems all maintained corporate towers on Byblos. The average day on Byblos lasts 38 standard hours. The year on Byblos encompasses 402 local days. (CCG, SWAJ)

Byblos Academy of Medicine part of the vast array of educational facilities on Byblos, this school produced some of the galaxy's premier physicians. (TFE)

Byblos Drive Yards
this Colonies region manufacturer is best knwon for its heavy-duty transports, freighters, and construction starships. (EGV)

Byblos RepulsorDrive
this subsidiary of Byblos Drive Yards produces combat cloud cars and airspeeders for use in police forces. (EGV)

Byblos Starport Security
this was the defense and security organization established to maintain the various starport towers located on the planet Byblos. (CRO)

Byblos Tower 214
one of the multitude of starport towers located on the surface of the planet Byblos, Tower 214 was known as the home of Bolabo's Garage. (CRO)

ByblosNova
this was the primary Imperial garrison on the planet Byblos. (SWJ9)

Bynarrian Jig
a form of dance performed by Badure on Dellalt, when his team was camped while searching for the Queen of Ranroon. (HSL)

Bynder Zebb
this Twi'lek was employed as a corporate scout by TaggeCo. during the last years of the New Order. He had extensive knowledge on the various creatures that inhabited the galaxy. (MTSE)

Byrg, Tegist
this man was the planetary Governor of Glova, during the early years of the New Republic. Byrg grew up as the son of a street beggar, and apprenticed himself to a local thief. This early training helped him learn the necessary skills to build his own personal empire, and his network of associates soon elected him Governor. He was also a restaurantuer, owning Aramand's and the Orchid hotel. It was rumored that Byrg was a staunch supporter of Emperor Palpatine, and that he remained loyal to the Empire after the Battle of Endor. These rumors were eventually proven true by Robet Makina, and Byrg was removed form office when his dealings were exposed by a group of smugglers stranded on Glova. (POC)

Byrga
this Imperial Lieutenant was in command of an AT-AT walker serving the garrison of General Xarran on the planet Vryssa. Like his peers, he was killed when Boba Fett came to Vryssa to recover Rivo Xarran. The pilots who worked with Byrga detested his self-confidence and open disdain for subordinates. Fett used a magnetic grappler to reach the main body of the walker, then entered the cargo hold. He executed Byrga when the Lieutenant went to investigate the noise in the hold. Fett then executed the two pilots and took control of the walker. (TFNR)

Byrne, Tallus
one of the early aliases used by Han Solo, during his tenure with Garris Shrike. (TPS)

Byrne City
the capital city of the planet Demophon, located on the continent of Junno. Like most of Demophon's cities, it was domed to keep out the planet's harsh atmosphere. When the system's star started to go supernova, the domes became more than a necessity. It was linked, via underground tunnels, to most of the other cities on Junno. It was also the site of Byrneport, the planet's primary spaceport. (SN)

Byrothsis
in its natural form, byrothsis is extremely rare. It was used to build infrared camera lenses, but it forced camera manufacturers to charge large sums of credits for their cameras. ResSystems discovered how to create synthetic byrothsis, and allowed the use of the element in more esoteric applications. (CFG)

Byss
1) a planet located in the Deep Core that is incredibly strong with the Dark Side of The Force. Originally used as a private retreat for the Emperor Palpatine, it was touted as a paradise. Thus, Palpatine was able to get millions of people to voluntarily bring their life energies to the planet. Once they were there, Palpatine enslaved them by using the Dark Side of the Force, feeding the growing evil that existed on the planet. He then built it into a model of a society that was ruled by the Dark Side. The reborn Emperor used the planet as his stronghold for his cloning activities, and for the source of his power during his resurrection. It has a normal day of 31 standard hours, and a year which lasts 207 local days. (DE1, DESB)
2) one of the two binary stars that dominate the Byss-Abyss system. (GG4)
3) the primary planet in the binary star system of Abyss and Byss, and the homeworld of the Abyssin race. It is an arid world, with isolated pockets of fertile ground. The planet's surface is baked when it rotates in between the two stars in a strange figure-eight orbit. This requires that the Abyssin continually move to the more fertile areas. The planet's plant life has also adapted the ability to send out large taproots to collect any available water. (GG4)

Byss Bistro
a cantina located within the Imperial Freight Complex on Byss. (DE1)

Byss Run
a smuggling route often used as a marker of smuggling ability. (DE2)

Byss Security Zone
the space immediately surrounding the planet Byss, it is patrolled by Imperial warships ordered to shoot down any starship not expressly permitted in Byss' vicinity. (DE2)

Byun Tenab
this Sullustan pilot was one of the best smugglers in his sector. He was also one of the messiest in the galaxy, and the junk and rubble strewn throughout his ships would make a Squib cry. (GMH)

Byzal Canyon
located on the planet Najiba, this geological formation was popular with swoop racers. (BSS)

Bz
this is a unit of measurement used to define an amount of computer storage. (CFG)

Bzorn
this Imperial Captain captured the Ionic Ring from Professor Volz and used it against several Alliance worlds, including Randa and Kessel. When Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Chewbacca attempted to rescue Volz and the Ionic Ring, Bzorn was caught in the crossfire and was struck by a laser bolt. He didn't survive the wound. (CSWEA)

B1
a series of labor droids built by AccuTronics, the B1 was designed to perform heavy-lifting and manipulatory tasks. The B1 has become a necessary part of most spaceports, where it is used to load and unload bulk freighters and other cargo ships. The 1.5-meter droid was programmed to respond to the simplest of commands, and is incapable of learning from its environment. This eliminates the need for periodic memory wipes, reducing the operating costs associated with it. (RASB)

B14
this 613-series digger droid was owned by the Tredway family, and worked at the 24 Tredway mining facility until it was destroyed by Imperial Governor Parnell. B14 provided information on the injuries to Dena Tredway to Luke Skywalker. B14, along with B70 and P39, sacrificed themselves in order to allow Luke Skywalker, Gideon Smith, and Sidney Shortfang rescue Dena Tredway and take her to Ire Eleazari's asteroid for medical treatment. (JH)

B2-X
a series of MerenData computer interface droids, the B2-X was a cubical module with incredible memory and operational capacities. (CSA, EGC)

B3NK
this huge, well-armored droid was a prototype designed for navigational and tactical speculation. Despite its fearsome appearance, B3NK was also programmed for systems integration and computer operations. As a prototype, B3NK was untested, but was nevertheless assigned to assist Ki-Adi-Mundi in his search for Ephant Mon, Maj-Odo-Nomor, and his daughter, Slyvn. (PTR)

B4J4 Droid
this is a model of Blujay security droid. It is equipped with a repulsorlift generator, so it can go just about anywhere. The B4J4 series was armed with a pair of heavy blasters, two stun blasters, and two grapple-cable shooters that fire ShrinCord. They were used by Santhe/Sienar Technologies to guard their headquarters on Lianna. (ML)

B4Q
a series of labor droids. (TJP)

B70
this 613-series digger droid was owned by the Tredway family, and worked at the 24 Tredway mining facility until it was destroyed by Imperial Governor Parnell. B70, along with B14 and P39, sacrificed themselves in order to allow Luke Skywalker, Gideon Smi

B893a
this Alliance datafile provided a unique code sequence which could be loaded into a skifter. The new code would modify the skifter's knowledge of sabaac cards, creating a database of frequency codes used by stormtrooper helmets. The chip could then be used to anticipate which frequency a trooper helmet would used for communication. (CFG)

* C *

C Tea
a nickname given to a Calamarian tea brewed from ocean plants. (XW)

C-board
a generic term that describes any electronic or computer board. (TFE)

C-Gosf
this Gosfambling Senator served the New Republic during the tenure of Leia Organa-Solo as Chief of State. He was petite, even for the delicate Gosfambling race. He was one of Leia's supporters during the trouble with the failed Jedi student Dolph. (TNR)

C-Ratt
an alien on Nar Shaddaa (DE1)

C-V
this was the aging ASP droid used by Platt Okeefe to perform the manual labor aboard the Last Chance. (IDC)

C-V-3PO
a nickname C-3PO uses for himself while trying to sell his abilities to Owen Lars, in an effort to escape the Jawas. The "V" stands for "versatility." (SWN)

C-Viper Probe Droid
Arakud developed this streamlined version of the basic Viper probe droid, designed to operate as a security and tracking droid. It was considerably less expensive that the original Viper, and was marketed to public law enforcement agencies. (SWJ14)

C-1 Series
this is the first of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-10-L
Industrial Automation's rapid response droid, the C-10-L was built as a man-sized battle droid which could be deployed quickly to support larger missions. Each C-10-L is 1.5 meters tall, and is armed with a turret-mounted blaster cannon. (SN)

C-136
the so-called "Grandfather Gun," this is the designation of Speizocs heavy sruface-to-sruface bombardment cannon. It was essentially a huge ion cannon designed to attack shielded urban centers. Huge and unwieldy, the C-136 was eventually made obsolete by improvements in shields and lasers. A C1-36 was used by Trioculus on Kessel to blow up a dam and drown troublesome villagers. (ISB, EQ)

C-17
designation of Princess Leia's transport ship at the Alliance's Echo Base on Hoth. (ESBN)

C-2 Series
this is the second of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-227
an agri-droid motivator. (GG9)

C-3 Droid
a series of droids built to replace APD-40s. Note that The New Republic claims that the C-3 series droids were the third of the Cybot Galactica protocol droid lines. (COJ, TNR)

C-3 Passenger Liner
a 400-meter long, needle-shaped pleasure ship. It has been rated at 18 MGLT top-speed, and has 160 SBD shields and a 100 RU hull. (TIE)

C-37
this computer relay unit is required to activate a starship's power train. They are also used to power some droid models. (CSWDW)

C-3PO (See-Threepio)
this protocol droid was built from spare parts by the nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker. The droid's presence was a secret, as Anakin didn't want him taken away by his master, Watto. The number 3 in the droid's name was Anakin's attempt to indicate that the droid would be the third member of his family, beside himself and his mother. According to A Guide to the Star Wars Universe*, C-3PO was activated around 95 PE.* By the time Anakin was freed from slavery by Qui-Gon Jinn, C-3PO was nearly completed. All he lacked was an outer skin and minor modifications. Eventually, C-3PO was given a gold outer skin, and was reunited with the astromech droid named R2-D2 some years before the Battle of Yavin. The two had many adventures avoiding Olag Greck in the Kalarba System. C-

3PO was the victim of tampering by Movo Brattakin, who inserted an initiative submodule in his leg to help expose Greck and Jace Forno on Boonda the Hutt's moon. After these adventures, C-3PO was eventually assigned to use in the Imperial Senate, translating the proceedings for a number of alien ambassadors. It was during this time that he became "friends" with R2-D2, one of the Navy's astromech droids. Even though they had separate functions and programming, they maintained their version of friendship. Note that, despite what the Droids comics say about their meeting, the Star Wars Radio Drama infers that C-3PO nad R2-D2 didn't meet until C-3PO was assigned as R2-D2's translator during routine labor assigning on the Tantive IV. When the Senator Palpatine began to gain his power, the growing Alliance took Threepio under their domain and assigned him to mediate the various agreements between the Alliance and alien worlds. One such mission led him onto the Tantive IV, where he was tagging along with R2-D2 one too many times. When Artoo escaped from the ship in an escape pod, Threepio followed him, fearing that the Empire would only melt him down. Since then, he has been owned by Luke Skywalker following his auction at the hands of one of Tatooine's roving Jawa clans. Luke is C-3PO's 43rd master, having been owned by diplomats and starshipwrights before then. He has helped Luke whenever possible, and has also maintained his friendship with Artoo, although (just like old friends) they constantly bicker at each other. The novel The New Republic states that C-3PO was three models out of date, some seventeen years after the Battle of Endor. This is unusual, given that C-3PO is well over 120 years old at the time. C-3PO was portrayed by Anthony Daniels in all three Star Wars films as well as for both Star Wars radio dramas on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR, ESB, ESBR, ROTJ, SGL, DRO, TNR, SW1)

C-3PX
1) a psychotic 3PO-series droid created by Olag Greck, this droid was programmed to be an assassin. C-3PX evaded capture for a while, until it returned to Hosk Station. There, it was involved in a series of strange events when C-3PO's cranium was patched with an X-shaped marking. Both droids were taken for the assassin droid, and both ended up in Olag Greck's gladiator droid arena facing R2-D2. C-3PO survived, but C-3PX was destroyed by the power mallet mounted on R2-D2's Mandalorian battle armor. C-3PX had stun weapons and lasers built into its arms, and had a unique laser weapon built into the back of its head. (DRO)
2) this gold-plated droid was humanoid in stature, although its head lacked any sort of face. It was based on the Cybot Galactica TC-series protocol droid, but was modified by Darth Maul to contain no less than eighty-three different weapons. C-3PX served as the sentry and sometimes co-pilot of Maul's Sith Infiltrator. Maul had also programmed the droid himself, and it loyally followed his orders and could react suitably to almost any situation. After Maul had allowed himself to be captured by the Bartokks on Ralltiir, C-3PX also allowed itself to be captured, and feigned the whiny, worried tone of a protocol droid to further fool the Bartokks. After Maul learned that the Bartokks had been hired by Groodo the Hutt, he arranged for the destruction of the Ralltiir facility. It was believed that C-3PX was still inside when the building exploded. (E1A3)

C-4 Series
this is the fourth of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-5 Series
this is the fifth of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-5MO
this silver protocol droid served as the operator of a droid shop on the planet Bastion. Han Solo, Lobot, and Lando Calrissian ducked into C-5MO's store while they were being pursued by Imperial forces, hoping to break the contact the Imperials had with Lobot's impant and Moegid. They got a number of R8 astromech droids to communicate on Imperial search frequencies, blocking Lobot's link and allowing them to return to the Lady Luck. (VOF)

C-6 Series
this is the sixth of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-7 Series
this is the seventh of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-7NO
this administrative droid was assigned to the Alliance's Team 19, and worked under the direction of Sergeant Whumparrin. (ROE)

C-73 Tracker
this outdated starfighter was produced by Subpro before the Z-95 Headhunter. Most of them had been relegated to museums at the height of the New Order, but a few were maintained in credit-poor pirate fleets. The C-73 measured 11.5 meters in length, and was armed with a front-mounted double laser cannon. It was short-range fighter, lacking a hyperdrive. (PP)

C-8 Series
this is the eight of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. (TNR)

C-9 Series
this is the latest of the protocol droid series produced by Cybot Galactica. Among their improvements are heati and motion-sensitive detection devices added to their normal visual detection systems. Also, their feet were smaller than those of previous series. (TNR)

C-9PO
1) this new-model protocol droid was purchased and modified by Brakiss for use at his manufacturing facility on Telti. (TNR)
2) this copper-colored protocol droid was captured by the Red Knights of Life, shortly before Leia Organa Solo was scheduled to meet with Nom Anor. C-9PO was quickly dismantled by the Knights. (VP) this was the model number of Hoar Chall Engineering's landing craft. Built for the Neimoidians who controlled the Trade Federation, the C-9979 resembled a huge letter I when viewed from above. The four lobes of the craft held the various components of a Federation invasion force: 11 MTT transports, 114 AAT battle tanks, 28 droid troop transports, and the complete compliment of battle droids needed to control these smaller ships. The C-9979 required a crew of 88, and the Neimoidians used droids for all crew positions. The transport were deployed from the lobes by a complex system of tracks and lifts that channel them through the central section, which hangs down below the I-shaped wings. Complete deployment of all forces takes about 45 minutes. The overall wingspan of the C-9979 is 340 meters. It is lightly armed, with a pair of laser cannons mounted on the forward wingtips and four turret-mounted laser cannons spread around the main section. It lacks a hyperdrive, being purely a landing craft, but has a maximum atmospheric speed of 587 kph. (X1)

C-9979

C'aama'
this was the Morishi name for the planet Caamas. (SOP)

C'ar L'andara
this Twi'leki female once served as a dancing girl for Moff Julstan of Arkanis Sector, before she was captured by Talas Piran. Piran, however, decided that she would be more useful to him than to the Empire, and placed her in charge of the Ryloth-based slaving teams which worked for the Mytaranor Slaving Council. (AIR)

C'baoth, Jorus
a Jedi Master lost with the Outbound Flight team, Jorus was born on the planet Bortras. He graduated from Mirnic University, and attended the Jedi Training center on Kamparas before coming under the tutelage of an unknown Jedi Master. After a total of four years of training, Jorus was eleveted to the rank of Jedi Knight. Twelve years later, he became a Jedi Master. He served the Old Republic in a number of ways, most notably as a negotiator and mediator for many of the galaxy's racial conflicts. When Palpatine readied himself to usurp the galactic throne, he had Jorus cloned shortly before the launch of the Outbound Flight Project. Jorus and the other five Jedi Masters on the Project were killed when their ship was attacked by Thrawn, at the order of Palpatine himself. A clone was eventually created, but it was one of Palpatine's first attempts to bring a clone to maturity faster than a full year. Thus, C'baoth's clone was unstable. It did, however, retain its use of the Force, and Palpatine trained it in the use of the Dark Side of the Force. (HTTE, DFR)

C'baoth, Joruus
Jorus C'baoth's unstable clone, grown by Palpatine too fast in an attempt to obtain a new Dark Jedi Master. Joruus was unstable enough to have killed the last Dark Jedi on an unspecified planet. He was later assigned by Palpatine to guard the Mount Tantiss installation on Wayland. Joruus claims to have killed the Guardian of Wayland, although he was actually the only Guardian ever placed on the planet, and he routinely slaughtered the inhabitants as well as visitors to Wayland in order to secure his position. Joruus was pulled into Imperial service by Grand Admiral Thrawn, who sought C'baoth's help in creating a huge army of clones to serve the new Empire. Joruus had his own mad delusions of ruling the Empire, and was often at odds with Thrawn's plans. Joruus was partially successful in his quest to alter and shape the minds of the clones they were creating, but their plans fell for naught when the New Republic discovered Wayland. There, in a titanic battle in the throne room in Mount Tantiss, Joruss was killed by Mara Jade. (HTTE, DFR, TLC, TTSB)

C'borp
a large, orange alien working for Finhead Stonebone, he looks like a fat, round blob with four tentacles instead of arms and legs. C'borp was the chief gunner on the Starjacker. (TOJ)

C'taunmar
this Tai'ni was a New Republic armed forces General, and was in command of the starfighter base on Di'tai'ni during the conflicts that arose after the revelation of the Caamas Document. C'taunmar was later in command of the A-Wing squadrons assigned to Garm Bel Iblis aboard the Errant Venture, during the raid on Yaga Minor. (SOP, VOF)

Caamas
this planet was one of the first worlds completely destroyed by the Empire. The event happened before the Death Star was created; in fact, the royal library on Alderaan contained a great deal of information on the attack that burned every living thing off its surface. However, it was attacked in the early days of the New Order, and never became the focal point that Alderaan did. The destruction remained a mystery, though, because Caamas was protected by a strong planetary shield. No one discovered how the shield was dropped until some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Several datacards found near Mount Tantiss, on Wayland, implicated a group of Bothans in the attack, directly stating that they helped bring the shields down. The records of the actual Bothan clans involved were destroyed. The planet was wracked by intense firestorms for several years after the attack, which wiped out any living thing that might have survived the initial attack. (SOP)

Caamas Document
this was the name given to the datacard recovered from Mount Tantiss by Lak Jit, and which contained information which linked the Bothans to the destruction of Caamas. The datacard described how a group of Bothans were responsible for bringing down the planetary shields that protected Caamas, but the sections which named the Bothans was destroyed. Grodin Tierce managed to alter every copy the Empire had in its libraries, placing the names of many prominent Bothan clans in place of the true identities. Han Solo and Lando Calrissian were given an altered copy by Flim, who was posing as Grand Admiral Thrawn. Garm Bel Iblis and Booster Terrik mounted an assault on Yaga Minor's Ubiqtorate base to locate a copy at the same time Admiral Pellaeon allowed Ghent to obtain it from the Ubiqtorate's computers. The only unadulterated copy the New Republic managed to find was recovered by Artoo-Detoo, who was helping Luke Skywalker rescue Mara Jade, during their escape from the Hand of Thrawn complex on Nirauan. (SOP, VOF)

Caamas Incident
this term took on two meanings about fifteen years after the Battle of Endor. First and foremost, it referred to the destruction of the planet Caamas during Emperor Palpatine's early days in power. Second, it came to describe the reaction within the New Republic to information which implicated the Bothans in the attack on Caamas. Because Bothans had been instrumental in the formation of the New Republic, many of the member races were outraged when immediate reparations weren't made after the information was discovered. The Caamas Incident served to bring to the forefront several long-standing feuds between member races, including that of the Ishori and Diamala. These squabbles quickly spread to other races, and ignited a series of battles that the New Republic seemed powerless to put down. The remnants of the Empire, under Moff Disra, used the Incident to their advantage. They placed specialized riot groups throughout the galaxy, fomenting the suppressed alien grudges and bringing chaos to the Republic. (SOP)

Caamasi
this peaceful race was native to the planet Caamas. Strong supporters of the Old Republic, the Caamasi calm wisdom and steadfast loyalty helped keep the Republic from completely disintegrating during its final years. There were several thousand Caamasi off-world when the Empire attacked and destroyed the planet, leaving it a barren wasteland. They were powerless to protest the attack, given that it occurred during the early years of Emperor Palpatine's rule. Some of the survivors tried to establish a colonyon Alderaan's South Islands, hoping to someday rebuild their world. As a race, the Caamasi were covered in a golden, downy fur, highlighted on their faces by purple stripes. Their most striking feature was their blue-on-green eyes. (SOP, IJ, VOF)

Caamasi Remnant
this is the name given to the various communities of dishomed Caamasi which dot the galaxy. (IJ)

Caaraz
this tide-locked planet is geologically active. Both the frozen night-side and the baked day-side undergo regular tectonic movement, allowing subterranean gases, lava, and steam escape into the atmosphere. Along the terminator line between the night and day sides, this creates a thin habitable region, and it is here that the Ranth race evolved. However, very little other life has managed to survive of Caaraz, as it is continually destroyed. The planet was discovered by Imperial scouts. Two moons help provide illumination to the night-side of the planet. (GG12)

Cabal, The
1) this group was formed by the dreamer and prophet Deamos Na-Coth to search the outermost reaches of the galaxy for the legendary planet Exo. The used huge colony ships to travel across space at a time when hyperspace travel was still dangerous, and many colony ships were lost because of pirates, ion storms, mutinies, and hyperdrive malfunctions. One of the Cabal's ships, the Exocros Cabal, discovered the planet Exocron. (KO)
2) this pro-Imperial faction rose to power in the wake of the Battle of Endor. It was opposed by the Imperial Council chaired by Sate Pestage and commanded by Ysanne Isard. Much of the Cabal had holdings on Brentaal IV, which was why Isard and Pestage tried to draw Rogue Squadron to the world. They hoped to "rescue" the Cabal and its holdings, thereby proving that the Cabal was unable to control its own holdings, not to mention an entire Empire. Isard retained Lon Isoto in the position of control, to guard the moon against attack from the New Republic, knowing that he was favored by the Cabal but largely ineffectual. (XWES)

Cabalia Sea
this ocean is located on the planet Garos IV. (SWAJ)

Caballa City
this city is the capital of the planet Exocron. It is located along the coast of the planet's primary continent, and was situated near a bustling harbor. The city was laid out, designed, and built by the Devisors, and proved to most people that the Devisors were quite technically advanced. (KO)

Cabbel
this promising Imperial Lieutenant was trained at the Officer's Candidate School on Carida. He graduated just prior to the Battle of Hoth, and was assigned as the First Officer aboard the Tyrant. Cabbel was known to be an ambitious, ruthless, and efficient officer. (CCG3)

Cabet Lom
this Twi'leki male ran a starship repair aond outfitting business on Ord Mantell during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He lived and worked in a penthouse suite in the Pink Sky Casino. (SL)

Cabinet
the New Republic's governing body. (JS)

Cabrool Nuum
this grey-green-skinned humanoid had a ridged cranium. Cabrool Nuum was a second-hand starship trader with asperations of being a slave trader. Cabrool Nuum specialized in moving his merchandise quickly. He had a base on the planet Smarteel, where Jabba the Hutt tried to contact him about unloading Princess Nampi's freighter. However, Nuum was slowly going insane, but no one in his household had the nerve to kill him. His treacherous children tried to overthrow the deal and kill Nuum as well as Jabba the Hutt, in an effort to gain notoriety. Jabba smothered Cabrool, with the help of some of Nuum's guards, elevating his son, Rusk, to the head of his organization. (JTH)

Cabuloid Padhopper
this large creature has well-muscled rear legs used for leaping and jumping. (POT)

Cacta
a low-growing plant with thick thorns, native to Tatooine. (QE)

Cademimu Sector
during the Galactic Civil War, Alliance operations in this area of the galaxy were believed to have been infiltrated by the Gand Findsman Lu'daal-ud. (AIR)

Cadezia
this planet is a prosperous technology and business world located in the Trulalis System. (SWJ8)

Cadinth
this desert world is located within the Tion Hegemony. Like nearby Lianna, Cadinth's natural beauty was destroyed by intense industrialization. Sprinkled throughout the deserts are the ruins of prior civilizations. (ML)

Cadis Zak
an Imperial container group used during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Cadiy
an Imperial tug operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Cadmir, Jerem
this young, Corellian man was a member of the ExGal-4 team on Belkadan, at the time of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. He was part of a scouting team sent out to locate a huge storm which had been detected on the outpost's sensors, but the party was astonished to find that much of Belkadan had become an ecological wasteland. Yomin Carr's dweebit beetles had begun an irreversible change, and the group realized that they didn't have enough oxygen to make it back intact. In the end, Jerem was the only member of the scouting party to survive the return trip, but the only being he found at the outpost was Yomin Carr himself. Jerem tried to understand how Carr could unleash the dweebits, but Carr wouldn't let him live that long. Carr told Jerem he would have a warrior's death, then the Yuuzhan Vong snapped Jerem's neck with a single twist of his hands. (VP)

Cadomai
this harsh, frigid planet is the homeworld of the Snivvian race. Much of the planet is covered by sparse tundra. The planet is well-known for its artistic Snivvian transnovels. (ISB, GG12)

Cadrath
Maarek Stele's first wingman, he assisted Stele in performing picket duty near a waystation when they were attacked by Alliance starships. (TIE)

Cadriell
this was the capital city of the planet Achillea. (PGT)

Caelli, Vance
this man, a native of the planet Socorro, was one of the two founders of the Caelli-Merced Syndicate. (BSS)

Caelli-Merced Syndicate
despite its name, this organization doesn't deal in crime. It does, however, supply much of the Socorran System with illegal weapons, starship upgrades, and small ground vehicles. Founded by Vance Caelli and Lee Merced, the Syndicate is well-known for its exquisite and well-made wares. (BSS)

Caelus
this New Republic battle cruiser was part of the primary fleet stationed at Durren. When Seti Ashgad instigated pirate attacks on Ampliquen during his attempt to gain control of the galaxy with Dzym, the Caelus and the Corbantis were dispatched to Ampliquen. Both ships were infected with the Death Seed plague by Ashgad’s agents, and once the crews were killed the ships were disposed on on distant planets. (POT)

Caerbellak
this Imperial Moff was one of the most dangerous Imperials to survive the Battle of Endor and the fall of the Empire. He firmly believed he could bring about the downfall of the New Republic and restore the New Order to the galaxy. He began working toward this goal by removing any Republic support from his base sector, starting on the capital world of Rydonni Prime. He employed Rythani Products much the same way Palpatine did, contracting out military manufacturing and research. Caerbellak was a man who was equally adept at shady politics and military offensives, and had no qualms about using either when the need arose. He saw a chance to gain a great deal of power when Rythani began work on a prototype weapon that would help him wipe out supporters of the Republic. When the monarch of Rydonni Prime got in his way, Caerbellak fostered a relationship with his daughter, Kalieva K’ntarr. When Sienn Sconn tried to steal the prototype, Caerbellak allowed the theft to occur just as he killed the Rydonni king. With the help of Kalieva, Caerbellak became the de facto executive of Rythani Products as well as the consort of the ruler of Rydonni Prime. The prototype found its way to the New Republic, and using hidden transmitters, Caerbellak began marking New Republic outposts and research centers for destruction. (SWJ9)

Caet Shrovl
this female Shistavenan Wolfman was an albino, and was one of the pilots in Rock Squadron, serving the Kuiumin Survivors. She served as Rock Ten during the attack on the Galaxy Chance. Her albino coloration meant that she was extremely sensitive to light, and had to fully cover herself to walk around during the day. She considered her albinism the fault of the Empire, for they had experimented on her mother. She joined the Survivors because of their hatred for the Empire. Because of her self-imposed isolation, she was an easy target for Remart Sasyru, who beat her badly before being shipped to Bolt Squadron. She was one of the first Invids to test on the Tri-fighters Corran had equipped with hyperdrives, and she used this training to flee Courkrus when Corran, disguised as an "avenging Jedi," began terrorizing the pirate groups. (IJ)

Caf
a stimulating beverage. (KT)

Caffa
this stimulating beverage is best served hot. (SESB)

Cag
this species of carnivorous, predatory marsupials are the chief threat of the Brubb race. They are native to the planet Baros. (GG4)

Caglio, Jamson
this Imperial Moff was placed in charge of the Bormea Sector during the Galactic Civil War, and was one of Grand Admiral Tigellinus' supporters. (SWJ8, SWJ12)

Caglio, Vastin
this man was the eldest son of Jamson Caglio, and was engaged to be married to Rivoche Tarkin shortly before the Battle of Hoth. He hoped to gain political power by marrying into the Tarkin family, and held no love whatsoever for Rivoche. (SWJ12)

Cai
one of the Mistryls from Manda D'ulin's team that survived the ambush in Gorno, while they were trying to inspect the Hammertong project. She piloted the Mirage. (TME)

Cair Tok Noimm
this New Republic Senator was a member of the Council on Security and Intelligence. During the search for the Teljkon vagabond, she urged the council to continue searching for Lando Calrissian's team after the vagabond escaped near Gmir Askilon. (SOL)

Caira
this woman, a spacer and close friend of Melvirre, discovered a wealth of kucha-sculpt art on Terman Station, in a Huttese restaurant. (SSR)

Cairn
this was one of the largest cities on the planet Seikosha. (POC)

Cairnhound
this vicious predator was native to the planet Rentalles. They hunted in packs, and attack with a combination of sharp teeth and long talons. (MBC)

Cairnwick, Drun
this highly charismatic Alliance supporter led much of the resistance in the Minos Cluster during the Galactic Civil War. Cairnwick was training to become a Jedi Knight when the Empire took control of the galaxy. He hid on his homeworld of Adarlon, where he told his neighbors about the atrocities the Empire was committing. This incited the natives of Adarlon to rebel against Imperial control, and brought a group of stormtroopers down on his headquarters. Cairnwick had fled before they arrived, and managed to remain in hiding a few more years before he was eventually captured. He was arrested shortly after the Battle of Yavin, but still managed to rally support for the Alliance on the prison world Gesaril. He managed to rescue a group of Alliance POWs before stormtroopers could discover what had happened and seal the prison. (GG6)

Cairoka bird
white birds native to Alderaan. (CPL)

Cakhmaim
a Noghri of the clan Eikh'mir, Cakhmaim was assigned to guard Leia's twins during the reign of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Cakhmaim's services were called upon some ten years later, just before the Caamas Incident. (TLC, SOP)

Cal
a yellow star which is the primary sun for Tibrin. (GG4)

Cal Ambre
this modified Kumauri Cal-class warship was used as a luxury gambling liner during the height of the New Order. It maintained a permanent orbit in the Bramior System, near Rove and just outside the system's asteroid field. The ship's armament was reduced to a single mass driver weapon, a pair of turbolaser cannons, and six tractor beam projectors. These weapons systems serve more to ensure that no stray asteroids impact the ship than for defense. Much of its internal structure was modified to create quest quarters and casinos, while the hangar bays were extensively reworked to accommodate the small shuttles used by its patrons. The ship was run by a crew of 2,150, with 46 gunners manning the defenses. It could transport up to 9,000 pasengers in luxurious comfort, and remain in orbit for up to three months before needing to be re-supplied. The primary game of chance played aboard the ship is Bombarde, developed specifically for the Cal Ambre. (CRO)

Cal*-class Warship
an Old Republic warship, the Cal-class ship measured 3,000 meters in length. It was armed with a huge mass drive weapon mounted atop the main hull, as well as early turbolaser emplacements and tractor beams. Its design was based on the original Kumauri Battleship, but was rendered obsolete with the advent of full-ship shielding and the advancement of turbolaser technology. (CRO)

Cal-Meg, Lucinta
a Physics professor, and student advisor for Mako Spince while Spince attended the Imperial Academy. (DESB)

Cal-Seti
this planet was the site of the Ramsees Hed docking facility. (DF)

Calamar
the capital city of the planet Esseles. (CRO)

Calamar Intergalactic Spaceport
this was the largest starport on the planet of Esseles, during the last years of the Old Republic. (E1A2)

Calamar University
an Imperial school located on the planet Esseles. (JASB)

Calamari
an ocean-covered world with little solid land mass, Calamari is home to two amphibious races: the land-dwelling Mon Calamari and the ocean-dwelling Quarren. It is a tectonically stable world, without mountains. The planet is covered with deep oceans, with many islands and coral atolls. Much of the exposed land is marshy, and incapable of supporting any kind of civilization. Thus, the two native species turned to building floating cities from the ores mined from the ocean floor. Some parts of the cities are exposed above the ocean's surface, but the majority of the space in Calamari cities is underwater. It is famous for its shipyards. It has a single moon. Its day lasts about 21 standard hours, and its year spans 398 local days. (ROTJ, DE1, SWSB, GG4, DA, COTF, DESB)

Calamari
this New Republic warship was commanded by General Ceousa during the attack on the planet Almania. (TNR)

Calamari Cafe
located on the Bazaar Deck of the Kuari Princess, this restaurant caters to Mon Calamari tastes. (RM)

Calamari Xinphar
a drink favored by Ibtisam. Nrin Vakil remembered that Ibtisam had ordered one shortly after the Battle of Brentaal. (XWM)

Calamarian Knowledge Bank
a group of giant bivalve shell creatures which inhabit the Calamari oceans, they are in effect giant brains capable of storing incredible amounts of information. They listen to the daily life of the creatures around them - accumulated from a network of small, non-sentient creatures that mindlessly collect data from the Mon Cals and the Quarren - and store the data for later use. The Mon Cals and the Quarren can petition the banks for information at any time. (DA, JASB)

Calamarian Minisub
a small, submersible vehicle used by the Mon Calamari to patrol the oceans of Calamari. (GDV)

Calamarian Tanker
a cargo ship built at the Mon Calamari shipyards. (ROTJN)

Calban
a small, Outer Rim weapons manufacturer. (GG9)

Calcifier
this form of Yuuzhan Vong biocreation was used to implant yorik coral into the body of an enslaved being. The calcifier had speciallized limbs which allowed it to cut into flesh. Then, it would actually break off pieces of itself and place them inside the victim’s body. Over time, these implants of yorik coral crippled the victim and rendered them helpless. (JE)

Calculator
one of Kud’ar Mub’at’s organic subnodes, Calculator was created to determine any number of mathematical outcomes. Calculator could provide data on how quickly a ship would arrive at the web, once it had been spotted. It could also be used to determine the odds of a certain event happening. However, Calculator was not involved in the maintenance of Mub’at’s finances. This was left to the treacherous Balancesheet. (MA)

Caldara
this providence of the planet Lianna was involved in the last great independence war recorded on the planet, attempting to free Lianna from the control of the Kingdom of Barseg. Nothing remains of the providence or the society that lived there. (ML)

Calders
this heavily-muscled Imperial Major was a security warden aboard the first Death Star. He began his career as a security guard on Odik II, and was promoted to the position of warden on Despayre, where he came under the watchful eye of Grand Moff Tarkin. (DSTC)

Caldrahlsen Mechanicals
this corporation produced thrid-degree droids, specializing in litigation automata used by law enforcement agencies as well as the Empire. Their corporate headquarters were on Esseles. (FOP)

Caleisk
this was the word used to describe the monarchy of the Viska people. The position is held for life, and was inherited by birth. However, the older Viska didn't automatically inherit the throne. All of the previous caleisk's offspring were forced to battle each other, and the survivor was named the new caleisk. (PG1)

Calfta Bongi
this Aqualish was the head nurse on board the Kuari Princess. (RM)

Calibop
this humanoid race is characterized their bushy manes and strong wings. Their wings end in prehensile feathers. They have short tails that twitch whenthey're nervous or agitated. It is generally believed that the Calibops are all talk and no action, and prefer to discuss a potentially dangerous or hostile situation rather than actually doing something about it. (SOP, VOF)

Calif City
this is the capital city of the planet Dentaal. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, the city's population was decimated by the Empire, which introduced disease-ridden Candroidan hookworms into a shipment of cloth bound for the city's factories. Once the cloth was made into clothing, the hookworms infected the population with Candroidan Plague, and wiped the population out in a mere three weeks. (SWAJ, TBSB)

Calimondo Plateau
this was the highest point of land on the planet Gorsh. (PG1)

Calipp
this gas giant is the fifth and outermost planet of the Faarlsun System. It has twelve moons. (WBC)

Calipsa
this planet, located in Tapani Sector, was the capital world of House Calipsa. It was a plain, brown world from space, with little natural vegetation. However, Calipsa was rich in natural ores, and mining operations dominated its surface. (PGT)

Calitana
a Ripoblus escort shuttle working with the Berono. (TIE)

Calius
The short name for Calius saj Leeloo on Berchest. (TLC)

Calius saj Leeloo
a city on Berchest known as The City of Glowing Crystal. It is named for the incredibly beautiful crystal formations that have grown from the condensation of saline spray from the Leefari Sea. The reddish water has, over the millennia, deposited enough minerals to create the large crystal structures. Artisans and the population have further sculpted and refined the crystals. (TLC)

Calk Fen
one of Jabba the Hutt's accountants, Fen was responsible for maintaining the file on Han Solo's debt, which totaled 224,190 credits when Jabba was killed on Tatooine. (SWSB? MTS?)

Calkin, Rip
known as "Iron One" in the sport of smashball, Calkin was one of the few players to ever score 700. (POT)

Call, Borun
this infamous slaver was the first being encountered by Slar-dan ti Gardi after the Twi'lek was released from a New Republic detention facility. Call taught the Twi'lek everything he knew about the slave trade, and rescued Gardi from capture by Tauran Nartal. (SWJ8)

Calla
this tree only grew on the highest plateau of the planet Kegan. (FFT)

Callamvor Hotel
this hotel was located in Storrd Township, on the planet Seregar. (ND)

Callandri
this woman, a native of Tilam City on the planet Pendal, was the leader and founder of the Granse Confederacy. A former "advisor" to a Kuat Drive yards executive, she was employed to assassinate any rivals to the executive's position, both within and outside KDY's corporate ranks. Rumor held that she simply walked away from her last mission, to join her cousin Zayl Braith in order to work as a freelance assassin. The KDY executive sent five bounty hunters to kill her, but she eliminated them all and sent them back to the executive in a series of small freight cubicles. They founded the Granse Confederacy, and earned a spot on the Alliance's most wanted list by striking at several installations and nearly wiping out a large number of Alliance and civilian personnel. For an unknown reason, Callandir had a deep-seated desire to kill Alton Lochner, and many within the Alliance theorized that the Granse Confederacy was formed to ensure his death. (AIR)

Caller
another name for an owner, it is a handheld device which transmists a summoning signal to a droid's restraining bolt. The signal compels the droid to return to its home base. (SWN)

Callia's
this antiques shop was located aboard the luxury liner Cal Ambre. It was owned and operated by Retter Lewis, and specialized in rare and unusual religious artifacts. The shop had two levels: one which catered to the casual window-shopper, and a restricted upper level for serious buyers. Prices weren't posted on any artifact, under the assumption that if a being had to ask the price, then they couldn't afford it anyway. (CRO)

Calliandro's
this upscale restaurant, located in Equator City on Rodia, catered to those beings who enjoyed Kubaz cuisine. (SESB)

Calliose
this Red Nikto was Skahtul's principle partner during the hunt for Luke Skywalker. He and a band of mercenaries from the Klatooinan Trade Guild agreed to join the Barabel in return for a portion of the bounty. He planned to have Skahtul and her Barabels conveniently eliminated during the struggle on Kothlis, and told his mercenaries to fire at Skahtul's men instead of Skywalker's forces. Skahtul found out and ambushed Calliose, capturing him and bringing him back to the Klatooinan Guild for a bounty on his own head. (SESB)

Callista
see Ming, Callista (COJ, DS, POT, SWJ14)

Callonia
a planet. (SWCP)

Callow Batta
this professor of history was removed from his position at the University of Sanbra by Imperial forces who were made aware of his anti-Imperial sentiments. (SWJ14)

Callron, Garret
this man served as the Imperial Moff in command of Clacis Sector, during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Callum, Trey
this former Imperial officer was one of the great number who eventually defected to the Alliance. He joined the Alliance prior to the Battle of Hoth, and served as a trooper officer at Hoth's Echo Base. He was known to be extremely efficient in his use of resources, and was highly regarded for his ability to stretch the Alliance's meager supplies. (CCG3)

Callus
this man was the Alliance's sector commander in charge of Mortex Sector shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (BI)

Calna Muun
a large town on Agamar, located near Tondatha, Calna Muun was the capital city of the planet. (XW, DTO)

Calonica
a planet which was the sire of an Imperial stronghold during the Galactic Civil War. (ISB)

Calrissian, Lando
Lando Calrissian is a dark-skinned, human male from an undisclosed world. Born during the later years of the Old Republic, Lando grew into a gambler and con-artiste, smoking cigars and learning how to play sabacc and win regularly. Never one to stay in any single place too long, Lando made more friends than enemies in his early years roaming the galaxy. Ever the gambler, Lando considered himself the Commander of Staves, a sabacc card that often showed up in the fortunes told about him with the sabacc deck. When a perfect hand of sabacc won him ownership of the Millennium Falcon, Lando's life took a strange turn. He ran into Han Solo on Nar Shaddaa, rescuing the young man from Boba Fett. Lando was never much of a pilot, and allowed Han to teach him the basics. However, following the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, Lando's first flight went off-course, bringing him to the Oseon System. A few games of sabacc later, Lando had won the strange droid Vuffi Raa, and was launched into a series of adventures. As was par for the course, Lando made a few more enemies during this time, the greatest of which was the Tund Sorcerer Rokur Gepta. Gepta pursued Lando across the galaxy after Lando loosed the Mindharp of the Sharu from its hiding place; Gepta wanted the artifact for himself. After getting stuck in one of the Oseon's Flamewinds, Gepta nearly killed Lando in an elaborate plot. By this time, Lando was beginning to feel his own mortality, and when he and Vuffi Raa encountered the Oswaft, he sympathized for them enough to try and run the Imperial blockade of their home and bring them food. Gepta again nearly killed Lando at the ThonBoka, but Lando was able to overcome the Sorcerer and eliminate him. After this, Lando began honing his business skills, and he used the Millennium Falcon to start a small transport operation. It was during this time that a young smuggler named Han Solo beat him at sabacc. Lando had offered up Han's pick of the starships in Lando's personal fleet, hoping that Han would pick one of the shiny new ships over the battered Falcon. Han's nose for starships led him to choose the old freighter, and Lando was left to his newer, less friendly ships. Using his nose for business, Lando learned of the tibanna gas mines near Bespin, and set out to see them for himself. He ended up winning Cloud City in a sabacc match, and his growing business acumen allowed him to turn the mining outpost into a profitable operation. However, when Boba Fett later traced the *Millennium Falcon*back to Cloud City, Lando's string of hard-luck business ventures began. Darth Vader commandeers Cloud City in order to capture Luke Skywalker and Lando was forced to evacuate the outpost. After seeing Han Solo frozen in carbonite and Cloud City overrun by stormtroopers, Lando signed up with the Alliance, and became one of the Alliance's best generals, leading a number of missions to success, including the bombing run on the second Death Star orbitting over the forest moon of Endor. Following the destruction of that Death Star and the fall of the Empire, Lando returned to Cloud City, but was unable to make the operation profitable. Using a set of plans and ideas he borrowed from Cloud City's founder, Ecclessis Figg, Lando started The Nomad City mining operation on Nkllon. In another stroke of bad luck, Grand Admiral Thrawn first stole most of his mole miners, then disabled the mobile city in a strafing run. Lando was forced to abandon the mining operation before Nkllon's intense primary star fried it to ashes. After assisting the New Republic in the defeat of Thrawn, Lando tried his best to win the heart of Mara Jade. He succeeded only in gaining her as a business partner, as the two joined their collective resources to try and re-establish the spice mines of Kessel as a legal operation. This failed, as the galaxy no longer felt the need to indulge in artificial pleasures. Down on his luck, Lando set up camp on the planet Coruscant, and began working on Dometown, an underground city that was not too affluent but could cater to the upper-middle class. He only needed financial support, and devised a plan where he would marry a rich woman who could support his monetary needs while turning a profit with him. Lando courted several woman, but found himself drawn to Tendra Risant. He was temporarily thwarted in this endeavor by the secession of the Corellian Sector from the New Republic, as his prospective bride was a native of Sacorria. However, after the resolution of the Corellian Crisis, Lando and Tendra began to discover that their relationship transcended the galactic politics. Eventually, they were married. Lando Calrissian was portrayed by Billy Dee Williams in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back and Star Wars: Return of the Jedi, as well as for the The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (ESB, EROTJ, HTTE, DFR, COTF, AC, THG, BP)

Calsedra
this was the name given to those Viska clans which were not named lurinn by the caleisk. These clans had no power until they were chosen by a future caleisk. (PG1)

Calsk
this was the name used to describe the leader of a Viska lurinn. (PG1)

Calus
primary planet in the Calus System. The system is connected to the Wroona System via Keller's Void. (SWAJ)

Camaa
an industrial center found on the planet Fremond III, Camaa was also the base of operations for an Alliance cell on the planet. (SWJ9)

Camalon
this city is one of the major hubs of activity for the TriNebulon News agency, and was found on the planet Trantor. (SWJ8)

Camarata
this Ryn female worked on the food service team which supported Settlement Thirty-two, on the planet Duro, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. When Jaina Solo was forced out of action, Camarata honored Jaina - as a member of Rogue Squadron - by allowing her to eat first, before any of the refugees. (BP)

Camarian Crystal
a valuable form of leaded crystal used in creating exquisite glassware, Camarian crystal was also known to be very brittle and easily broken. (PP)

Camba-fruit
a Moltokian fruit used with distilled water to help preserve skin's natural suppleness and beauty. (COJ)

Cambar
this was the capital city of the planet Calipsa. (PGT)

Camber, Geothray
this Imperial Sector Plexus technician and his team developed the initial plans for the Hyperspace Orbiting Scanner. (ISB)

Cambira Ralle
this former president of the planet Esseles met with extreme opposition after the Battle of Yavin. Ralle was a hero of the Clone Wars, and remained opposed to the New Order. The other political factions all advocated joining the New Order. (SWAJ)

Cambriel, Seth
this man was known to be a wealthy entrepreneur who made millions of credits playing the stock markets, buying up companies which were about to be nationalized by the Empire, then selling out at huge profits later on. He then retired to Spira to watch the Galactic Civil War play out while sipping cocktails on the beach. He was something of a beach bum, albeit a rich one, and spent a lot of time in the casinos and bars of the Aspre Plunge. His lifestyle, however, was actually a cover, for Seth Cambriel was also a spy for the Alliance. The time spent in bars was often in the company of drunken Imperials, who were more than willing to have a few drinks with him. (SWJ1)

Cambrielle SolidState
this corporation was headquartered on Ralltiir, and produced a wide range of power cells for use by the Empire. (FOP)

Cambus Gale
this heavily-modified V-53 Hydromancer yacht was owned by Seth Cambriel. He spent a good deal of time and credits converting the small pleasure craft into a sleek racing machine, providing him with excellent performance and adequate cargo space. (SWJ1)

Cambylictus
this massive tree is native to the swamps of Endor's forest moon and the planet Naboo. The Gungan people have learned to crush the cambylictus' leaves and bark into a paste, which has a variety of medicinal uses. The bark of the tree was often used as a bandage which promoted quick healing. (GF, E1A9)

Camden
this is the primary planet in the Camden System, located in the Outer Rim Territories. (CRO)

Camie
one of Luke's friends at Anchorhead on Tatooine, she was dating the Fixer when Biggs returned to say goodbye. Her family managed an underground hydroponic garden on Tatooine, and bought most of their water from Owen Lars' farm. After Luke and Biggs left Tatooine, Camie eventually married the Fixer. Camie was portrayed by Stephanie Steele for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR, DS)

Camouflage Net
a mesh covering that protects a ground-based object from being detected. Often, the net has two parts: a baffle net of thin wire to shield electronics, and a photosensitive netting that mimics the surrounding terrain in color when activated. (CPL)

Camp Pa'aal Squadron
this was the name use by Sil Sorannan to describe the 513 Imperial prisoners who were incarcerated by the Yevetha on Pa'aal. Together, using a coordinated attack, they were able to gain control of several Imperial warships recommissioned by the Yevetha. The ships were retaken by Sorannan's crews, and the squadron fled back to Byss and the Deep Core. (TT)

Camray Eel
a large, predatory eel native to the Shinkai Abyss on Spira, the Camray was popular among the upper-class game hunters who traveled to the planet for their vacations. They average nearly five meters in length, and live deep below the surface where they feed on sliverfish. Their mouths are lined with sharp teeth, and their muscular bodies allow them to attack their prey with speed and strength. Their fearsome reputation earned them the respect of many hunters, and the acquisition of a Camray Eel spoke to a hunter's skills. Once removed from the ocean and killed, the Camray eel gives off a pungent, foul smell, and must be transported in a sealed container for delivery to a taxidermist.. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, the Alliance sometimes smuggled information and hard goods from Spira by packing them inside one of these sealed containers. (SWJ1)

Camwielder
this is the Adumari term for a reporter who uses a flatcam to record events. (SOA)

Can Lar
a Gathi who once worked for Comar, Can Lar created the original designs for the v-150 ion cannon. When Comar told him the weapon was useless as a military weapon, he quit and went to work for Kuat Drive Yards, who later built the weapon. (ISB)

Cana
this Galacian was the King of the Tallah dynasty several years before the Battle of Naboo. He ruled for thirty years before passing away some twenty years before that battle, leaving the rulership of the planet Gala to his wife, Veda. Prior to their marriage, which was arranged by their parents, Cana fell in love with a woman from the hill clans. The Council of MInistry forbid their union, but Cana married her anyway. Before the Council could break the marriage up, Cana's wife became pregnant. The secrecy of the pregnancy was maintained by Cana and Veda after their own marriage. During his rule, several of the more wealthy families began corrupting the government, taking control for themselves while distancing themselves from the poorer masses. Cana was unable to stop it before his death. (MOC)

Canas, Dorri
this middle-aged woman was born in The Stones section of Iritsa, on the planet Chazwa, but spent much of her career working to establish a peace between the natives of The Clog and those of The Stones. (ND)

Canastra IV
this temperate, ocean-covered world was located in the Core region. (COG)

Candle of Pure Light
one of the Ancient Tokens of the Legendary Ewok hereos, the Candle is a small wax candle whose flame never goes out. It is a symbol bestowed upon the youngest member of an expedition, to remind them of the goal which they strive to achieve. It was presented to Cindel Townai by Logray, when the Ewoks agreed to rescue her parents from the giant Gorax. (EA)

Candorian Plague
an especially virulent plague that was cultivated by the Empire for use against rebellious worlds. It was thought to have originated in the Bandorian Colonies, which were utterly wiped out by the plague. It was contained and believed eradicated until the Empire used in on Dentaal. (DS, SWAJ)

Candra City
one of four major starport locations, this city lies on the eastern edge of Kirima's western continent. (TSK)

Candroidan Hookworm
this parasite was particularly dangerous, because its genetic structure allowed it to support viruses that were specific to humans. These hookworms burrowed into their hosts and lodged themselves in the circulatory system, and could not be removed without killing the host. When they reproduce, the hookworms "shed" any viruses it carried, dispersing them into the host's blood supply. For this reason, saboteurs and assassins liked to infect these hookworms with plagues and set them loose in human-inhabited areas. A swarm these creatures was known to have infected Calif City, on Dentaal, with a strain of Candroidan Plague, depopulating the city in just three weeks. (TBSB)

Candroidan Plague
a virulent strain of plague carried by the Candroidan hookworm. (TBSB)

Cane Adiss
this strange creature was a gifted pilot who boasted to Jabba the Hutt that he had explored every uncharted planet in the galaxy. Adiss was employed by the Empire to discover rebellious activity in the Outer Rim. Adiss was an equine alien with a small head and giraffe-like spots. (CCG7)

Caniphant
this four-legged species of dog-like animal is characterized by their high shoulders and large, tapered snouts. They are easily trained, and make excellent guard animals. (GCQ)

Canir
the title given to the Vratix leaders of Thyferra. (SWAJ)

Cann Doon
a smuggler who used to work for Jabba the Hutt. (SWSB)

Cannibal
this was the name of Barosa Warren's personal starship. This freighter measured 24 meters in length, and could carry upto 45 metric tons of cargo and eight passengers. It required a pilot and co-pilot to operate (usually Warren and Stren Grier), and three gunners to man the weapons. It was armed with a turret-monuted twin blaster cannon, and ion cannon, and a turret-mounted tractor beam projector. The Cannibal was formed from hull components of the Kuat Systems Engineering Firespray-31 and the Ckratar Crafts Venturer-class freighter, although parts from more than thrity different manufacturers were used in its construction. (AIR)

Cannibal Arachnid
a deadly creature once native to the planet Duro. (DA)

Cannibal Plant
a carnivorous plant native to the planet F'tral, the cannibal plant has a rudimentary system of mobility. They can slowly approach another plant and feed on them. Commonly, the cannibal plant resides near a fisherplant or other hunting plan, and sinks its roots down to twine and fuse to the hunter's root. The cannibal plant can then suck nutrients from the other plant. (GG4)

Cannij Barr
this planet, located two days from Endor, was the nearest Imperial sector capital to Endor. New Republic military leaders believed that the Star Destroyer Unrepentant acquired data from the aftermath of the Battle of Endor and then jumped to Cannij Barr to report its findings. (TBSB)

Canoid
a vicious Corellian predator, canoids resemble large dogs or hounds. (TPS, THG)

Cantham House
Bail Organa's residence in Imperial City, while he lived on Coruscant. The idea of a cohesive rebellion against the New Order was formulated there. Note that this is known as Chatham House in the X-Wing computer game. (RASB)

Canthar
this Epicanthix warrior-chief was credited with uniting the myriad of Epicanthix clans into a single entity, as well as dispatching those clans who refused to join him. Canthar is also credited with taking the Epicanthix culture away from a purely barbaric society and cultivating cultural and technological advancement. (SESB)

Cantina Hangover
one of the many obstacles used on swoopchasing courses, the Cantina Hangover was deceptively simple in its design. The obstacle was formed from a long tube, inside which a mock cantina was created. Racers find themselves speeding through a maze of tables, chairs, bars, and simulated patrons. The Hangover part comes when the riders first enter the tube, which then begins to rotate around its central axis. The entire cantina begins to spin, and riders must continually alter their course to ensure that they get through the spnning maze of props. (BSS)

Cantras Gola
the PowerOn Conglomeration, headquartered on this planet, threatened to secede from the Pentastar Alignment and join the New Republic. The children of the planet's chief ambassador were kidnapped by the Karazak Slavers Guild, on orders from the Alignement, in an effort to persuade Cantras Gola to remain with the Alignment. The children were rescued by the Red Moons, and helped break the Alignment's hold on the planet. (TFE)

Canu
a deity worshipped by the Coways native to Circarpous V. He is apparently in charge of administering justice. In their simple religion, Canu makes his decision based on the outcome of a battle between the strongest warrior on each side of an issue. The victor of the battle is obviously on the correct side, since Canu helped him win. (SME)

Canyon
this world was known as a mining outpost that produced ores needed in the construction of starships and electronic systems. It was discovered by accident when a Victory-class Star Destroyer was dragged out of hyperspace in its vicinity by a rogue asteroid. The warship was grazed by the asteroid and damaged, but the only ships close enough to hear its distress signal were part of a pirate fleet. An Imperial rescue operation was mounted, and basically left the pirates alone. They recognized Canyon's natural resources, and set up the small mining operation. The pirates, led by Guldus Bemm, continued to control the world well after the Battle of Endor. The planet is an arid world of mountains and plains, which has an average day of 28 standard hours. Its year encompasses 389 local days. (SWJ8)

Canyon Dune Turn
see Tusken Turn (RAC)

Canyon Mining Facility
this was the ore and mineral extraction operation established by Guldus Bemm and his pirates, after they discovered the planet Canyon while attempting to provide aid to a damaged Victory-class Star Dstroyer. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, Administrator Guldus Bemm tried to capture Luke Skywalker by claiming that the miners discovered a strange, crystalline mineral in the mines, and called for Luke Skywalker to come and see them, as they appeared suitable for use in lightsabers. Skywalker didn't go personally, but the group of New Republic agents who did were captured by Bemm's pirates. They eventually managed to escape. (SWJ8)

Canyonade
this is a vast series of hotels, shops, restaurants, and meeting areas carved into the canyons of the planet Cejansij. The Canyonade is remarkable for its diamond-shaped clusters of nine bridges linking the opposing sides of the canyon: three main bridges span the center of the diamond, with two above and below them and a single bridge at the top and bottom of the pattern. (SOP)

Canyons of Mist located on Endor, these are steep-walled canyons worn into the rock by the passage of the Whispering River. (AT)

Capabara
the roots of this plant are a necessary part of the diet of the natives of the Tal Nami System. (GOF2)

Capital City
1) this city, of course, the capital of the planet Karideph, and is the site of the planet's only spaceport. (GG6)
2) this was the capital of the planet Omman. (SWJ12)

Capital Powers Act
a set of laws drafted and approved by Emperor Palpatine, which gave him the authority to impose martial sanctions on any civilization in the galaxy, in order to bring them in line with the New Order. (COJ)

Capital Scavenger
this news program picked up the story initially written by Cindel Towani for The Life Monitor, detailing the various accounts of New Republic armed forces who fought and died during the Black Fleet Crisis. The article, drafted by Hiram Drayson, was designed to help bolster public support of Leia Organa-Solo. (TT)

Capital Season
the time between Expansion Week and Shelova Week in the Tapani Sector, Capital Season is a social event celebrated by the upper class and nobility of the sector. It is a time for them to mingle and spy on each other, and is held on the planet Procopia. Pleasure cruises are often booked from Procopia to Vycynith, but the main events take place on Procopia. To avoid Procopia during Capital Season means almost total isolation for the noble involved, which lowers their social standing and often has economic and political implications as well. Exceptions are made on an infrequent basis for people with business outside Tapani Sector, but all business inside the sector must stop or move to Procopia. (LE)

Capital ship
any of the huge, deep-space combat craft. Star Destroyers and Mon Cal Star Cruisers fall into this category. (SWSB)

Capital Terminal
during the last decades of the Old Republic, this was one of the primary starports located in Imperial City, on Coruscant. It was used primarily by the Jedi Knights. (RP)

Capital*-class Starship
a large warship. (THG)

Capo
this Rodian was a member of the Peace Brigade, and was part of the group which infiltrated the Queen of Empire in order to recover the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan. He and Darda posed as the contacts Major Showolter was to meet aboard the ship, in the effort to safely transport Elan to the Core. Their leaders had obtained classified information from a spy within the New Republic, which allowed them to gain Showolter's confidence. However, the backstories they were given were flawed, and when Darda claimed to have been working on Gamoor, Showolter saw through their facade. In a firefight, Darda was shot and killed, but Capo managed to escape. He also killed the two agents Showolter was supposed to meet before seriously wounding Showolter himself. (HT)

Capra, Carns
this hot-headed young man joined the Alliance just after the Battle of Yavin, shortly after his father was killed in a rally on Mantooine. He wanted to get some measure of revenge against the Empire. (GMK)

Caprioril
a planet on which Mara Jade posed as a come-up flector for a swoop gang. It was also the sight of a swoop race tragedy, in which an assassin droid, sent to kill then-governor Amel Bakli, decided that it could meet its objectives by wiping out the entire swoop arena. (DFR, SWSB)

Capstan, Anni
this pilot was Jaina Solo's wingman in Rogue Squadron, during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Anni was a native of Corellia. As Rogue Twelve, Anni participated the Battle of Garqi. Unfortunately, Anni was killed shortly afterward, during the opening phase of the Battle of Ithor. Jaina quickly sent Anni's mother a notice of her death over Ithor, and Anni's mother responded quickly, inviting Jaina to Corellia. (DTO, DTR)

Captain Integrity
this was a nickname used by Denetrus to describe Andra, and derived from her struggle to do good. (DOR)

Captain's Accredited License
this Imperial document was one of a number of documents required from any spacer who plied the spacelanes during the New Order. The procedures for obtaining the certification were documented in the Spacer's Information Manual. Known as a CAL, this document provided information on the starship captain's ability to operate a starship across interstellar distances. (SWJ9)

Captain's Ladder
a Corellian CR90 corvette that was part of the Invid pirate fleet that attacked the Tinta Palette, the Captain's Ladder was a false IFF transponder code used by the Backstab. (IJ)

Captain's Pride
this Ugor Black Hole-class salvage dreadnaught was commanded by ArrGack. It was dispatched to recover any salvage following the Imperial assault on Dankayo, and battled the Thrifty for salvage rights. (SH)

Captisan, Dol
this noted Bakuran Senator was the father of Gaeriel and Ylanda Captisan. Dol and wife, Marga, were killed shortly after the Empire nationalized Bakura, when they were caught in the middle of a firefight between Imperial troops and the Bakuran resistance. Gaeriel learned years later, from her sister Ylanda, that Marga and Dol had been active members of the resistance. (TBSB)

Captison, Gaeriel
a former Imperial Senator on Bakura, she is Yeorg Captison's niece. Her most striking feature is her eyes: one is grey and the other is green. Her parents were killed in the crossfire of an Imperial engagement with an Alliance team, and she vowed to become an Imperial loyalist. This, coupled with her religious concerns with the Force made her the perfect senator on the Imperial world of Bakura, until she actually meets members of the Alliance, particularly Luke Skywalker. Luke slowly opens her eyes to the atrocities of the Empire, and she also discovers that the Force is not inherently evil when Luke helps Eppie Belden overcome her forced catatonia. Following the defeat of the Ssi-ruuk and the surrender of Imperial forces on Bakura, Gaeriel continued to work in politics, and was eventually named Prime Minister. It was during this time that her political ambitions kept her in contact with the former Imperial soldier Pter Thanas. A romantic attachment grew, and they were married 8 years after the Ssi-ruuk invasion. Together, they gave brith to a single dauhgter, Malinza, before Pter succumbed to Knowt's disease. His death followed a failed re-election bid for Gaeriel. When the New Republic asked for Bakuran aid in defending the Corellian System during the Starbuster Plot, Gaeriel was made the plenipotentiary and placed in charge of the Bakuran fleet, commanded by Hortel Ossilege. She was mortally wounded when her spine was crushed in the decisive battle near Centerpoint Station, and the flagship Intruder was rammed by three robot ramships. It was Gaeriel who pushed the detonation button on the Intruder, igniting the ship in the midst of the Saccorian fleet, just as Admiral Ackbar arrived to help. (TB, AS, SC)

Captisan, Marga
this woman was married to Dol Captisan, and was the mother of Gaeriel and Ylanda Captisan. Dol and Marga were killed shortly after the Empire nationalized Bakura, when they were caught in the middle of a firefight between Imperial troops and the Bakuran resistance. Gaeriel learned years later, from her sister Ylanda, that Marga and Dol had been active members of the resistance. (TBSB)

Captison, Tiree
Yeorg's wife, and Gaeriel's aunt (TB)

Captison, Yeorg
this man, a native of the planet Bakura, served as the Bakuran Prime Minister at the height of the New Order, and was Gaeriel's uncle. As a child, his parents had chosen him to carry the Bowl, while his brother, Dol, was given the Feather. Yoerg renounced his religion in anger, and struggled out his own life. While attending the university in Salis D'aar, he met Tiree. The two fell in love and were married, and Yeorg won a seat on the Bakuran senate shortly afterward. He served on the senate for thirty years before assuming the position of Prime Minister. When the Empire nationalized Bakura, Yeorg found himself supporting the Alliance. (TB, TBSB)

Captisan, Ylanda
this was Gaeriel Captisan's younger sister. Gaeriel always called her "Landy." Where Gaeriel was offered a full scholarship to the Bakuran Senatorial Academy, Ylanda was destined to live her life out as a Home Mother at one of Bakura's Simple Homes. WHile at the Simple Home, Ylanda spent many years with minimal food, and became gaunt and withdrawn. After the Empire was ousted from control of the planet, Ylanda revealed to Gaeriel that their parents had been members of the original Bakuran resistance, and were killed trying to free their homeworld from Imperial control. (TBSB)

Captivity
an Imperial prison facility, Captivity is a hostile moon whose violent weather and magnetic storms quell even the harshest spirits. The moon is perpetually covered with thick clouds, and the moon's surface is a mixture of towering peaks and jagged rock formations. It is located in the Grehollo System. (RC)

Capture Cable
this device is used by bounty hunters and law enforcement agencies. Sometimes called a smart cable, the flexible cord with a weighted end is shot from a launcher. The weight shoots past its target and returns, and the kinetic motion causes it to wrap the extended cable around the target. (CCG7)

Capture Droid
similar in most respects to seekers, capture droids are small, repulsor-equipped automata which were dispatched to take down fugitives and outlaws. They had powerful stun rifles built into their carapace, and heavy lifting claws to grip and carry a downed target back to its base. Capture droids tracked their quarry by scent, heat, and sight, and could operate in day or night. (E1A8)

Capture Permit
this certificate was sometimes required, in addition to an Imperial Peace-Keeping Certificate, to legally capture an individual wanted in a bounty posting. (GG9)

Capucot, Tybert
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Assessor when it intercepted Han Solo and the Millennium Falcon. (RD)

Capza
this planet, located within the Velcar Free Commerce Zone, is a lush, tropical world. It was the home of the Commerce Master Commissioner Gregor Raquoran. (SWAJ)

Car'das, Jorj
this man was an up-and-coming smuggler when the Clone Wars broke out. Car'das realized that the galaxy was changing, and decided that the time had come for him to start his own operation. He took control of Booster Terrik's operation when Booster was sent to Kessel by Hal Horn, and created a small but successful smuggling operation, although he was small compared to what the Hutts had. About fifteen years after the Clone Wars, Car'das was commandeered by one of the Dark Jedi from Bpfassh, who killed all the crew aboard his ship and demanded passage. Car'das survived the Dark Jedi's battle with the Jedi Master Yoda on Dagobah, after receiving treatment from Yoda himself. However, somehow Car'das was changed by the encounter. He began taking his organization to higher levels, creating a small empire that was involved in a number of criminal activities but not dominant in any one of them. This allowed him to become quite rich and modestly powerful, and his organization began to rival the Hutts' outfits. He somehow seemed to know the right move in any situation, and was always outthinking his opponents. It was during this time that Car'das also began amassing a huge library of datacards, storing information away like it was free credits. Then, one day, Car'das simply got into his private yacht and disappeared. His health finally started to fail, and the new life he had been given by Yoda evaporated. Car'das travelled to Dagobah to demand that Yoda put everything right. Yoda simply took his blaster and the beckon call from his ship and flung them into the jungle, then berated Car'das for wasting the gift he had been given. He also told Car'das that he couldn't help him any further, since he was busy preparing for the arrival of Luke Skywalker. Car'das couldn't return to his group, so he fled to Exocron, where Yoda had indicated he might receive help from the Aing-Tii monks. His organization continued to thrive for several months, but the lieutenants began to discuss the need for a true leader. Rather than put it to a vote, Talon Karrde - one of Car'das' most trusted students - simply took control of the organization. The other leaders weren't happy, but the new operation flourished for the next twenty years. After the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, Karrde sent Lando Calrissian and Mara Jade to search for Car'das, a search which took seven years and ended up with Car'das somewhere on the planet Exocron. The lone clue was the beckon call Luke Skywalker had recovered on Dagobah. Later, Lando thought that Car'das held information which could help the New Republic diffuse the Caamas Incident, but Karrde refused to bring Car'das into it. During the Caamas Incident, Karrde finally realized that he had to confront Car'das; if not to confront his own fears, then to recover a copy of the Caamas Document. Car'das played an elaborate ruse on him, first appearing as a withered old man bed-ridden on the planet Exocron. Car'das' fortess was built into the side of a mountain, and Karrde was surprised at the other man's advanced age. However, Car'das had been planning this for some time - ever since he learned of Calrissian and Jade's search. Car'das used Karrde's desire to locate him as a way to draw the crimelord Rei'kas to Exocron and near the Kathol Rift. Car'das and Trey David knew Exocron couldn't stand against Rei'kas's fleet, but they also knew that the Aing-Tii monks wanted to eliminate Rei'kas. By allowing Karrde to get to Exocron, Car'das and David also gave Exocron's location to Rei'kas. However, Rei'kas' fleet was destroyed by the Aing-Tii monks when it tried to attack Exocron. This maneuvering was nearly transparent to Karrde, who realized that Car'das was more than a frail old man. He returned to Exocron and confronted Car'das again, who was no longer an aged man but a healthy man of somewhat advanced age. He also revealed the true size of his fortress, with its immense library of datacards. Within it, Car'das was unable to locate a copy of the Caamas Document. He was, however, able to dig up a wealth of information on Grodin Tierce, Moff Disra, and the conman Flim. Karrde and Shada D'ukal brought this information back to Admiral Pellaeon, after saying their goodbyes to Car'das. (SOP, IJ, VOF)

Car'ulorn
this Twi'lek restauranteer owned the Kavsrach restaurant on Corsucant. (IJ)

Carababba tabac
dried leaves of the Carababba plant for smoking (DFR)

Caraboose
a large creature native to Toola, the caraboose is a food source for the Whiphid race. It is favored slightly over the motmot in that it is easier to bring down, but a single caraboose provides much less that a motmot. The average caraboose stands about 2 meters at the shoulder, and is armed with a set of antlers that it can use to slash an attacker. (GG4, SWJ10)

Carahide
this is the name of the green, chitinous surface of the Verpine body. It is composed of a thin layer of protein that deflects most slashing or stabbing attacks, and can even deflect low-powered blaster bolts. (GG4)

Carantar, Ray
this small-time smuggler made his home on the planet Marotan. Shortly after the Battle of Hoth, he agreed to help an Alliance team infiltrate the planet Sevarcos and rescue Carter Escalon from the Imperial prison on Sevarcos. He allowed the Alliance agents to act as his servants and crew during the Festival of the High Winds, helping him compete in the wind-rider race. However, Carantar made it clear that he had no sympathy for the Alliance, and made the offer just to make a few extra credits. A large, bald man with several tattooes across his hairless skull, Carantar spent a great deal of credits trying to get invited to the Festival of the High Winds. (SWJ12)

Carapace Creature
one of the vacuum-breathing lifeforms found in the ThonBoka, the carapace creature provides a food-source for the Oswaft. (LCS)

Carapod
this organic extension of the planet Zonama Sekot resembled a huge insect. They had flat, segmented bodies, and each segment had three legs. A seventh leg extended from the front of the main segment. A pair of chitinous horns surrounded the seventh leg, and were used for lifting heavy loads. Their bodies were a mottled collection of red, black and green patches, and some of the larger carapods were given mechanical implants to help them do more heavy labor. The Ferroans who worked to create Sekotan starships used the carapods as beasts of burden, employing them to transport the growing seed-partners, their masters, organic and high-tech materials to the forging and annealing pits. The carapods were mildly intelligent, and could react to simple commands from their riders. (RP)

Carbanti
manufacturers of shipboard anti-detection and evasion packages, such as electromagnetic countermeasures. (DFR, SCRE)

Carbinol
one of the ancient Senex Houses. (COJ)

Carbinol, Verus
this incompetent man was promoted to be the Imperial Governor of the planet Garnib, during the height of the New Order. He hated water, he hated ice, and he hated the cheerfulness of the Balinaka. However, he overcame these things in order to reap the benefits realized from the taxation of the sale of Garnib Crystals. (GMS, PG1)

Carbon Glass
this tough, resilient material is used to create transparent partitions. (TA)

Carbon Rope
an especially strong rope used in climbing. (DOD)

Carbon Scoring
this is the by-product of blaster bolts which strike metal surfaces on starfighters and other devices. In firefights, carbon scoring builds up on metals and interferes with internal systems. (SW, GMH)

Carbon-freezing Chamber a specialized chamber which preserves Tibanna gas for transport by freexing it inside carbonite. Lando Calrissian had one on his Cloud City mining colony. The Tibanna gas is first pumped into the chamber, and then mixed with molten carbonite. This mixture is then frozen, which traps the gas inside the block of carbonite until it is released in a reversal process. The process has often been used on living beings, as a form of torture or retribution. Darth Vader was going to use Calrissian's chamber to freeze Luke Skywalker for transport to the Emperor on Coruscant, and had Han Solo test-frozen first. If properly frozen, a living being goes into a state of hybernation until the carbonite is melted. (ESB, ROTJ)

Carbon-Ice Drive
this technology was developed by the Adarians. It is also known as the comet computer, since the system's primary components are made from supercooled, carbon-laced ice taken from comets. The Adarians use the frozen crystals of water and carbon to create the hardware and wiring used in their computer systems. The components are kept in super-cold conditions, and subtle changes in temperature are used to program the system. The Adarians have adapted their carbon-ice systems to monitor their starship systems, which are capable of hyperspace travel. The system has certain limitations, the largest of which is its size. Carbon-ice computer and hyperdrive systems can easily measure 200 meters across. Despite their limitations, carbon-ice systems are extremely powerful. (GG12)

Carbonite
a strong metal alloy used to preserve Tibanna gas and other valuable materials. Zorba The Hutt's Revenge avers that carbonite is mande from Tibanna gas at Bespin, although Dark Lords of the Sith indicates that carbonite is the chief export of the Empress Teta System. ZHR also lists carbonite as a source of fuel.
(ESB, DLS, JS, COTF)

Carbonite Constriction Net
a capture device that is shot from a specialized launcher. The net consists of a mesh of carbonite fibers attached to a number of carbonite spikes. When the net is shot at a target, the spikes deploy and spread the netting. The netting binds the target as the spikes continue at high speeds to impact a wall or other solid object behind the target. The spikes imbed themselves in the wall, drawing the net closer around the target. (DRO)

Carbonite Guilds
this ancient order of carbonite miners and distributors held great sway in the Empress Teta System before the Great Sith War. Their ranks were decimated by the atrocities performed by the Krath. (DLS)

Carbonite Inserts
a starship component. (DE2)

Carbor
this was one of the largest cities found on the planet Essowyn. It was located on the continent of Steltout. (PG1)

Carbosyrup
a thick, liquid foodstuff filled with sugars and carbohydrates. (CSA)

Carconth
this red supergiant star is the nearest stellar body to deep-space anomaly 1033. It is the second largest and seventh brightest of all the known stars in the galaxy. The Old Republic had been watching the star for any signs of it going supernova for at least 600 years before the advent of the New Order. (TT)

Cardacs
an Alliance starfighter pilot assigned to be Keyan Farlander's wingman during the Galactic Civil War. Cardacs signed up to help the Alliance rescue a number of prisoners from the Imperial detention center on Mytus VII, but he was killed in the battle. (XW)

Cardean Party
an Esselian political party which opposed the Forad party, and sided with the Esselian New Order Party in many political debates. (SWJ8)

Cardellian Mints
a flavorful, aromatic candy. (COG)

Cardinal
a playing-piece in the game of Firepath. (CSWDW)

Cardio-Muscular Package
this form of cybernetic enhancement involves the use of rybcoarse-based reinforcements to the recipient’s heart, lungs, and muscles. The package allows the cyborg to run faster, lift more, and withstand more damage. The drawback is that the recipient suddenly feels invincible, and more often than not drives the recipient to self-destruct while attempting to hyper-exert themself. NeuroSaav Corporation pioneered this technology. (CFG)

Cardo
this Sedrian was the high priest of the city of Fitsay when Karak and his followers stole a piece of the Golden Sun before being driving into the sea. Cardo himself was the leader of a group of priests who felt that the Golden Sun should be kept to the priests, being too powerful for the commoners to have access to it. Cardo treated the Golden Sun as simply a coral, not an intelligent lifeform. When Karak tried to steal the Golden Sun for himself and Commander Aban, Cardo fought valliantly to keep them out of the Great Shell

Dome. Cardo was seriously wounded by Karak's attack. Only his proximity to the Golden Sun kept him alive to warn Pek of Karak's treachery. (BGS)

Cardooine
a planet, source of Fijisi wood. (TLC)

Cardooine Chills
this ailment is characterized by coughing, fatigue, body aches, and a ravenous appetite. The illness lasts about two weeks if treated with bacta, but the victim remains weak for a month or so afterward. The Cardooine Chills is only contracted once, because the victim develops an immunity to it. (BW)

CardSafe
this relatively fancy pub was located on the planet Ord Simres. It was here that Thune and Celia Durasha captured Treytis Prash. (SWJ14)

Cardua System
a planetary system captured by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, its inhabitants were put to work mining the system's asteroid belts. (TIE)

Careese
this woman was the wife of King Alarik X of Devit, and was a loyal supporter of the New Order. (TSK)

CareLess Club
this dance club, located on Cloud City, was the site of an ever-exciting zer-gravity dance floor. (GG2)

Carella, Leanna
this former Imperial customs officer married Dav Kathis, and helped him get his independent transport agency off the ground. The couple eventually had a son, but Dav was captured by COMPNOR agents and imprisoned shortly afterward. Leanna was never told why her husband disappeared, and she spent much of her career plying the Enarc Run and looking for clues to his disappearance. (SS)

Carest 1
this lushly forested world was home to the Jiivahar race. Carest 1 was known throughout the galaxy as a tranquil vacation spot, and literally millions of lifeforms evolved on the planet. (AE)

Caretaker Virus
this computer virus was unleashed by the Ithorian, Zorneth, in his efforts to save the Smilers from exploitation. The virus was targetted to infect droids. When the droids encountered a Smiler in trouble, the virus took control of their systems and forced the droids to rescue the Smiler, no matter what the cost. The virus helped Zorneth keep the secret of savorium, but it also was planned to help him infect the galaxy with savorium. Zorneth had planned to take control of the savorium-addicted galaxy, until his untimely death prevented it. (DRO)

Cargo Empress*-class Super Freighter
this large Ghtroc Industries bulk freighter had the distinctive swept-back look of the Class 720 freighter, but was 110 meters in length. It required a crew of four to operate, had space for up to eight passengers, and could transport up to 50,000 metric tons of cargo. The Cargo Empress had minimal shielding, and was unarmed. The ship never sold well, and contributed to the eventual bankruptcy of Ghtroc Industries. Leftover stock was sold at auctions, and many Cargo Empress-class ships ended up in pirate fleets. (SWJ9, PP)

Cargo Ferry
any small craft designed to transport a single cargo container to and from storage. These 90-meter craft are often equipped with stabilizing wings, keeping the ship upright with the cargo container locked on top. These craft are slow (20 MGLT top speed), unarmed ships with minimal shielding (60 SBD, with 30 RU hull). (TIE)

Cargo Flyer
and repulsorlift craft used to transport cargo from one location to another. (CSW)

Cargo I
this was one of six Imperial bulk freighters assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Cargo IV
this was one of six Imperial bulk freighters assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Cargo Master
this was the name of a line of Aratech speeder trucks, including the Z-12 military truck. (TTSB)

Cargo X
this was one of two Imperial container ships assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Cargo-lifter
any utility craft used to load and unload cargo at spaceports. Older models employ mechanical claws, while newer models use tractor beams. (HSR)

Cargo-Mover
this brand of light-duty starship tractor beam generator was produced by Bonadon. (PP)

Cargohopper 102
this TaggeCo vertical/short takeoff and landing cargo lifter measures 5.5 meters in length. They were particularly useful in spaceports which had limited landing pad surface area. (CSA)

Carida
a large world with a greater than standard gravity and varying climate, Carida was staunchly loyal to the Empire, although it managed to pursuade the New Republic that is was undecided on the matter. Many of the original settlers left the planet because of the strong gravitational force. Some 200 years before the Galactic Civil War, the Old Republic established a military academy aimed at training armed forces. A small community grew up near the site, which grew into a full-fledged town. The tow grew to encompass an entire planetary economy which saw its heyday under the control of Furgan. The Empire controlled the planet until Kyp Durron used the Sun Crusher to destroy the system, while he was being influenced by Exar Kun. Later, Leonia Tavira twisted the event and made everyone who listen believe that Kyp had been sent to Carida under orders from the New Republic. (JS, COTF, JASB, IJ)

Carida Engines
formerly headquartered on Carida, this heavy machine manufacturer was responsible for the production of the MT-AT walker. (JASB)

Caridan
squat, barrel-chested humanoids with spindly arms and legs, they have wing-like, bushy eyebrows. They had numerous dealings with Emperor Palpatine. (JS)

Carigan
this Old Republic Governor of the planet Bryx managed to keep the early Imperial armed forces at bay when they tried to subjugate Bryx. He set up a system of ground-based guns and submersible fighters to combat the Empire. His defensive tactic were later known as the "Carigan Defense," although he eventually was overwhelmed by the Empire. (SWAJ)

Carillion-class Starship
an Imperial starship. (COJ)

Carioglyphs
the writing of the Sluissi. (DFR)

Carithlee
this Alliance starfighter pilot was a veteran of Rogue Squadron. (WS)

Carivus, Xandel
this heavy-set man served on the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He decided to align himself with Feena D'Asta, in the wake of Carnor Jax's death at Yinchorr. Carivus was also working with Nom Anor, who predicted that the Council would eventually ask him to lead it. The other Council members felt Carivus was nothing more than a pampered bureaucrat, and appointed him to lead the Council after the death of Nolyds, hoping to make him a figurehead and a tool of their own plans. Carivus allowed the events to unfold around, knowing that Nom Anor's plans were falling into place. When Lieutenant Ganner discovered that clues left behind at the scenes of the murders of Burr Nolyds and Admiral Banjeer pointed to Kir Kanos being their assassin, he ordered every available ship and soldier to be requisitioned for a manhunt. His leadership was challenged by Feena D'Asta and Lord Manos, but their efforts to vote him out of office were thwarted by the other Council members. The challenge to his leadership rattled Carivus, but Nom Anor reassured him that D'Asta would not be a problem. When they arranged to have a third Council member killed, Carivus was frightened to discover General Immodet was poisoned. He was frightened because Immodet was not their target, and had been one of Carivus' supporters. Nom Anor claimed to be unaffected. Carivus then appointed a personal guard, and ordered all non-human members of the Council arrested. He also declared Feena D'Asta a traitor and had her put on trial as an enemy of the Empire. Shortly afterward, a Black Sun group of assassins tried to kill him. They were revealed to be clones of Carivus himself, and Carivus went into hiding. He emerged long enough to announce that he was disbanding the Council in order to rule the remnants of the Empire himself. However, his imprisonment of Feena D'Asta raised the ire of her father, an Imperial Baron with a huge personal fleet of warships. Baron D'Asta led an attack on Carivus's forces, decimating them in a short space battle. Carivus was left with a tattered fleet and no support, and even Nom Anor abandoned him to his misguided plans. Carivus then ordered that Feena D'Asta be returned to her father, in the hope that the fighting would stop. However, he also made plans to evacuate Ord Cantrell if the battle continued to turn against him, planning to abandon his troops if it came to that. However, he was trapped by Kir Kanos and Mirith Sinn, after they returned the real Feena D'Asta to her father. Kanos hunted Carivus down and executed him as a traitor to the Empire. (CE2)

Carkoon
a section of Tatooine's vast Dune Sea. (ROTJ)

Carlinson
an influential Imperial Moff. (ISB)

Carlio
this Alliance agent was a member of the Sandwind Team, and was stationed on Tatooine after the Battle of Yavin. (AIR)

Carlson, Brooks
this man was a veteran pathfinder, having served with the Empire's armed forced before defecting to the Alliance with Crix Madine. He was recruited as a scout by Madine, when he was forming the strike force that would breach the shield generator bunker protecting the second Death Star near the forest moon of Endor. He held the rank of Sergeant during the Battle of Endor. (CCG10)

Carmal
this man served as Lavisar's planetary governor during the early years of the New Republic. He was partial to sunfruit liqueur. (IF)

Carmelle
this small community is located about twenty kilometers from Shulell, on Lan Barell. (SWAJ)

Carner, Lej
this young man was the son of the Imperial Army Major General who had been placed in command of the mining complexes on Garos IV. A contemporary of Alex Winger, Lej found her quite appealing, although she never returned his affection. He was shot and killed by a man named Chance, who had been part of Alex's resistance team, during a mission on Hargon's Hill. Lej discovered Alex's alliance to the underground, and tried to arrest her. (SWJ1)

Carniss, Melina
once one of Jabba the Hutt's human female dancers, Melina had risen in the ranks of his dancers to become the dance designer for the crimelord. She foiled Mara Jade's first attempt on Luke Skywalker's life in Jabba's palace, intercepting Mara and accusing her of working with Lady Valarian. Mara then used the Force to coerce Melina into shooting a Gamorrean guard, creating a diversion for an escape. Note that X-Wing: The Bacta War hints that Melina Carniss was actually Mara Jade. It was believed that Carniss sold information to Ysanne Isard about the actions of Rogue Squadron during the Bacta War. She also sold information of Isard's movements to the Rogues, which allowed them to anticipate the attack of the Corrupter and Aggregator at Alderaan. (TJP, BW)

Carnival Week
a week-long celebration on Coruscant. (COJ)

Carnivorous Mold
this orange and yellow form of fungi is native to the planet Nim Drovis. This mold is mobile when it groups into clumps, and has a limited form of intelligence that allows it to pursue prey. The groups ooze with a digestive slime that eats away flesh and dissolves into a liquid the mold can ingest. (POT)

Carnovian Eel-pup
this creature is considered a culinary delicacy by the Hutts. (RD)

Carnth
this world was under the control of the Empire during the New Order. Airen Cracken and a group of Alliance agents convinced the farmers of the world to support the Alliance, but only after a brief display of force. The farmers had been told, by the Imperial prefect, that the Alliance was nothing but a group of pirates, and they refused to help them. Cracken's team modified their blasters to fire a wide spread of stun-level beams, bringing down a number of farmers without harming them. (CFG)

Caronath
this city is the capital of the planet Merisee. (PG)

Caronil
this man was a member of Red Hand Squadron, although he died in the attack on the Helot's Shackle. (RD)

Caros* Arrow
this specialized projectile was used by the Tunroth Hunters who employed a klirun bow. (AIR)

Carosi
this once-unassuming, orange star is the primary body in the Carosus System. The star expanded into a red giant about 200 years before the Nbattle of Yavin, and consumed the five innermost planets in its system when it did. The event was foreseen by Carosite astronomers, and most Carosites on the fourth planet were evacuated to Carosi XII. Carosi and its remaining planets are located in the Outer Rim Territories. (PG2, AE)

Carosi Alpha Hospital
this medical facility is the largest such operation on Carosi XII. The Sudden Restoration brings all of its wounded here for treatment. (PG2)

Carosi Pup
this small creature is often described as "cute." (POT)

Carosi IV
this was the fourth planet in the Carosus System, and the homeworld of the Carosite race. It is was destroyed during the expansion of the Carosi star, forcing the native Carosites to flee to Carosi XII. (PG2)

Carosi VI
this planet was the sixth planet in the Carosus System, until its star expanded into a red giant. It is now the first planet, and has become a hot, rocky wasteland with no natural satellites. (PG2)

Carosi VII
this planet was the seventh planet in the Carosus System, until its star expanded into a red giant. It is now the second planet, and is a hot, desolate swamp world enveloped in a greenhouse effect. It has one natural satellite. (PG2)

Carosi VIII
this planet was the eighth planet in the Carosus System, until its star expanded into a red giant. It is now the third planet, and is covered by a dense, hot jungle drenched in a greenhouse effect. It has two moons. (PG2)

Carosi IX
this gas giant was the ninth planet in the Carosus System, until its star expanded into a red giant. It is now the fourth planet. It has six natural satellites. (PG2)

Carosi X
this gas giant was the tenth planet in the Carosus System, until its star expanded into a red giant. It is now the fifth planet, orbitted by 10 moons. (PG2)

Carosi XI
this gas giant was the eleventh planet in the Carosus System, until its star expanded into a red giant. It is now the sixth planet. It has 15 natural satellites. (PG2)

Carosi XII
this cool world was the twelfth planet in the Carosus System, a frozen, ice-covered rock just barely showing signs of life. Then the Carosi star began to expand into a red giant. The gradual increase in surface temperature has turned Carosi XII into a habitable world, now the seventh planet in the system. The metling ice has formed the Avuae Sea, which is now teaming with life. It is the current homeworld of the Carosites, who fled Carosi IV. The Carosites who now live there are ardent supporters of the New Republic. The planet is girded by the Eurae Mountains. Its average day lasts 30 standard hours, and its year encompasses 400 local days. One of the primary economic forces on the planet is tourism, with visitors from across the galaxy coming to partake of the pleasure domes found there. (PG2, POT)

Carosi XI Academy of Medicine
this prestigious medical education facility was located on Carosi XII. (AIR)

Carosite
an alien race once native to the planet Carosi IV. When the star Carosi expanded from a normal orange star to a red giant, the Carosites fled Carosi IV for Carosi XII. They are a bidepal, humanoid race. Carosites are tall and thin, with unusually long necks. They are covered with a fine coat of fur, and have long snouts and dark eyes. The lifespan of a Carosite about 120 local years. The Carosites have a unique, five-fingered hand that has two opposable digits on either side of the hand. The flight from Carosi IV has left them culturally disoirented, which meant they were easily coerced by the Empire. Since the Battle of Yavin, the Carosites have pledged their support to the New Republic, and have become quite adept in the fields of medicine and mechanics. They also became the primary trading partner of the Ebranite race. (COJ, PG2, GG12)

Caross
the capital city of the planet Togoria. (GG4)

Carp
this tall, lanky man was Zoltan Starkid's chief aide. He felt that it was unwise to deal with the Empire. (CSWDW)

Carper, Deckland
this businessman was native of Alderaan. He suddenly found himself the target of a bounty, placed on his head by an Imperial Admiral who was a childhood rival. The Admiral contracted Thune to kill Carper, in an effort to avenge a squabble he had lost as a child. Thune took the job and killed Deckland in cold blood. She then cut off his head and returned it to the Admiral as proof of his death. Thune then took possession of Carper's droid, U-THR. (SWJ14)

Carplin, Loom
Travia Chan's chief of staff during the Galactic Civil War, Carplin was a large, incredibly strong man known for his combat skills. He travelled from outpost to outpost, gathering data to feed back to Chan. He was assisted by the Wookiee, Busurra, who acted as his replacement when Carplin was away from the Generis base. (RASB)

Carrack*-class cruisers
an Imperial capital ship, the Carrack-class cruiser was built by Damorian Manufacturing. At 350 meters in length, the Carrack-class is larger than a Lancer-class ship but smaller than a Dreadnaught. It is manned by a crew of 1,092, with room for up to 142 troops. It was built to counteract the effectiveness of the Corellian Corvette, for the Empire could not obtain many of those. The Carrack ships carry up to four TIE Fighters on a set of external racks. They are also the fastest Imperial capital ships, rated at 18 MGLT. However, it was lightly armored near its power generators, which posed a problem in battle.

The Carrack-class cruiser boasts the following components:
- 10 Heavy Turbolaser Batteries
- 20 Ion Cannon Batteries
- up to 5 tractor beam projectors
- two warhead launchers
- 160 SBD shields
- 100 RU hull

(TB, JS, HTTE, ISB, TIE)

Carratos
this planet, located about 40 parsecs from Coruscant, was the planet on which Akanah first sensed Luke Skywalker. She was sent there as a child, when the Empire first invaded Lucazec, and was the only Fallanassi child sent there. (BTS)

Carrier-class Starship
a starship armed with 10 twin-laser cannons. (RC)

Carrion Sector
an area of the galaxy that was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB)

Carrow, Hawk
Roark Garnet's co-pilot on the Dorion Discus and his close companion. Garnet rescued Hawk from the Imperial infirmary on new Bakstre, shortly after crashing on the planet. (RPG, SWJ1)

Carry Ship
this is the generic term used to describe any starship which transported a less-maneuverable ship into position. These ships found wide-spread use by mining operations, as they were used to move stylus ships into position over a target planet or moon. (VP)

Carsa
one of the Imperial Navy's tacticians, Lieutenant Carsa served under Joak Drysso aboard the Lusankya during the Battle of Thyferra. Carsa was killed in the initial attacks when he monitor exploded in his face. (BW)

Carson, Farley
this New Republic Navy Commodore was attached to the Fourth Battle Group, in command of the Star Destroyer Yakez. Etahn A'baht considered him as one of his only friends during the Black Fleet Crisis. A'baht called him the nickname "Stony." During the Battle of N'zoth, Carson and the Yakez were caught between two Yevethan T-type warships. The Yakez's bow shields were breached, and subsequent fire from the Yevethan ships ignited the Yakez's weapons hold. The ship was broken in two by the explosion, and all hands were lost. (TT)

Carsunum
this rare, black form of spice is mined on Sevarcos. When consumed, it induces a feeling of euphoria and heightened abilities. When the effects wear off, the user experiences lethargy and listlessness. The spice also has a toxic effect on the user's metabolism, and withdrawal often results in death because the body can't react fast enough to the change. (SWAJ, TPS)

Cartann
this Adumari nation was one of the largest and strongest at the time when the New Republic encountered the planet. The perator of the nation, Pekaelic ke Teldan, felt that he could speak for the entire planet during negotiations with the Republic and with the remnants of the Empire, a belief which was endorsed by Tomer Darpen. However, this eventually led to a planetary civil war between Cartann and the Yedagonian Confederacy, a brief struggle which was won by the Yedagons with the help of Wedge Antilles and his pilots. In the wake of the battle, the perator abdicated his throne to his son, who vowed to help Adumar create a fair and representative world government. (SOA)

Cartann Bladedrome
one of the two fighter bases located near the city of Cartann, on the planet Adumar. (SOA)

Cartann City
the capital city of the Cartann nation, located on the planet Adumar. The surface of the city is the home of the nobility, while there exists an entirely separate city below-ground. In man-made caverns, vast manufacturing corporations create everything from bombs and blastswords to food and clothing, while the workers who toil away in the factories live in turumme warrens. (SOA)

Cartann Guard
this is the security force which protected the perator of Cartann. (SOA)

Cartann Ground Championships
an annual event staged by the perator of Cartann, the Ground Championships pit the best blastswordsmen against each other in duels to the death. The champion is the duelist who survives the final match. (SOA)

Cartariun
this mad Devaronian male took control of the planet Malrev shortly after the Battle of Endor. Cartariun was part of a technical team dispatched to Malrev to begin construction of an Imperial outpost on the orders of Emperor Palpatine himself. Palpatine had discovered the Sith temple in the forests of the planet, and wanted to use the temple to augment his own powers. The base was abandoned after the Battle of Endor, but Cartariun remained behind and began studying the ways of the Dark Side of the Force. He eventually learned how to control the minds of the Irrukiine, and trained them in elaborate wargames driven only by the power of his mind. When Rogue Squadron landed on Malrev in search of the Starfaring, Cartariun managed to capture Wedge Antilles, but only until the Rogues began battling the Irrukiine. While Cartariun was distracted with the battle, Wedge slipped away and rejoined his squadron. However, the Sullustan Dllr Nep was drawn to Cartariun's power, which he both saw and heard as beautiful music. Many of the Rogues felt Cartariun's power is some way, although most experienced a heightened set of emotions. Cartariun captured Dllr and used him has a conduit for the power of the Dark Side. Dllr resisted, but was shot and killed by the power-hungry Bothan, Girov Dza'tey. Dza'tey, and expert in the martial art of Jeswandi, then struggled with Cartariun until the Devaronian was kiled by his own Dark Side powers. (XWRR, HXW)

Carter
an Alliance security officer killed on Talasea when the Rogue Squadron base there was infiltrated by stormtroopers. (XWN)

Carto Asteroid Belt
this asteroid belted was "mined" by Drek Drednar, who instructed his pirates to tow asteroids out of the belt and into major pace lanes. The asteroids created gravity shadows in hyperspace, so travelling ships would have to revert to realspace in their vicinity. The pirates would then attack the hapless ships. (SWAJ)

Carvin, Paltr
this Imperial General was a member of the Imperial Ruling Council which sprang up in the wake of Emperor Palpatine's death at Endor. The council itself was ostensibly led by Ysanne Isard, especially after she engineered the destruction of Sate Pestage. He refused to believe Isard when she claimed Pestage was a traitor who had been working with the New Republic to obtain control of Imperial worlds. His concerns were overruled by other members of the council, who voted to remove Pestage. Once Pestage was removed from Coruscant and imprisoned on Ciutric, Carvin was installed as the leader of the Imperial council. A gray-haired man with hawk-like features, Carvin was distinguished by his all-black eyes. His tenure as the leader of the Council was short-lived however, as Isard made her play for control of the Empire shortly after Sate Pestage was executed on Ciutric by Delak Krennel. Isard had Carvin imprisoned at the Lusankya facility, where he languished until his death. (XWMR)

Carz
this moon orbits a fluorescent blue-and-white gas giant in the Carz System, an unimportant system most often referred to by its galactic coordinates. The smuggling baron Yosger maintained a base on the moon, hidden deep within the rocky crust of the world. The natural ores helped hide the base from sensor scans. (GMH)

Carzyn, Tanner
one of the many gunners who served aboard the FarStar. Despite his service to the Republic, Carzyn was strongly in support of the former Empire. He was arrested shortly after the FarStar entered the Kathol Rift. (KO, KR)

Cas'ta
this was one of the many Rellarin tribes native to Rellnas Minor. (SOP)

Casanvine
this plant is native to the planet Ebra, and grows in thick layers atop rocky ground. (GG12)

Cascade
this great, natural cavern found within the rocky mountains of the planet Stronghold was used by Alliance personnel as a hiding place in case of attack. The main chamber was hidden behind a beautiful waterfall, and a large pool of water dominated the center of the chamber. A small shaft in the ceiling allowed some light to penetrate the chamber; the light created a colorful display when it reflected and refracted from the crystals in the chamber walls. (OS2)

Cascardi Mountains
these snow-covered peaks were located on the planet Duneeden. (DH)

Case Seven
one of several battle plans laid out by Traest Kre'fey and Gilead Pellaeon for the defense of the planet Ithor against Yuuzhan Vong attack. This plan ultimately was implemented, based on the attack pattern of the Vong. (DTR)

Casfield 6
this droid-managed world was the site of a six-ship collision. The droids were using simple droid languages to talk to incoming starships, and were passing landing codes to them this way. However, this droid language caused the ships' computers to malfunction, and all control was lost. Among the ships destroyed in the collision was a starship owned by the Offen race, which had just recently begun to experiment with space travel. Their 6,000-year-old Queen was aboard the ship when it was destroyed, and she was killed. (TNR)

Casino Kuari
the more up-scale casino located on the Lido Deck of the Kuari Princess, the Casino Kuari is modelled after the Naweenen Fate Rooms found on Ord Mantell. (RM)

Casino Royale
one of the major casinos operated by the Empire on Vorzyd 5. It was here that Luke Skywalker was able to hit three consecutive targets playing Cosmic Chance. (CSWEA)

Caslo, Booldrum
this computer genius - known as a neep - was Gerney Caslo's cousin, and owned one of the largest museums on the planet Nam Chorios. He was a heavy-set man with a strange set of sight-amplification equipment bolted to his head. (POT)

Caslo, Gerney
a settler on the planet Nam Chorios, Gerney was one of the largest water sellers in the Hweg Shul area. He had a knack for getting the old, rusted water pumps - abandonded the by Oldtimers - to gush with water, which allowed the Newcomers to survive in the rocky wastes outside the city. He was also one of Seti Ashgad's strongest supporters, before he learned what Ashgad's true intentions were. When Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa-Solo revealed the treachery of Ashgad, Caslo refused to believe. Rather than hear more of the accusations, he threw a belt of grenades into a Theran gun tower. He was shot and killed in the attempt, but the grenades destroyed the weaponry. (POT)

Caspel
nickname of the BlasTech CSPL-12 projectile launcher. (ISB)

Cass
an aide to Grand Moff Tarkin on the first Death Star. He was the aide who announced that Dantooine no longer held an active Alliance base. (SWN)

Cassandra Sunrise
this alcoholic beverage is similar to a Tatooine Sunburn, only much more potent. (GG9)

Cassandran Brandy
one of the finest brandies created in the galaxy. It is created with arcane procedures, and is well-worth the effort and expense. (GG9)

Cassandran Choholl
another of the renowned Cassandran spirits, it is better even than Cassandran Brandy. (GG9)

Cassius Nolath Rha
this spice lord controlled the Equatorial Belt of Sevarcos, the planet's most profitable area of spice production. (SWAJ)

Casta Farnib
a famous member of the Alliance to Restore the Republic. (RPG)

'Caster Droid
this generic term was used to describe any repulsor-equipped droid used to broadcast images and/or sound to a remote location. (RP)

Castle Bocce
a luxurious hotel found on Tatooine, this edifice predated much of Tatooine's current human sttlements. During the later years of the Old Republic, it was lovingly restored to its original beauty, and is now a major tourist attraction. It features a casino, high-class cuisine and accommodations, and ten multi-species immersion pools. (RPG)

Castle Lands
this area of Alderaan's plains was at one time the home of the ancient killik race. They built large, complex cities out of the natural elements around them. The killik died out ages ago, but their wonderful castles remained after them. The Alderaanians held the Castle Lands in awe, and discovered eighteen unique groupings of structures that seemed to indicate eighteen periods of expansion in killik history. The artists of Alderaan flocked to the Castle Lands to experience the natural beauty of the killik buildings, although one artist took his inspiration too far. He painted a section of the Castle Lands with bright, chaotic patterns, but his work was quickly condemned by the many Alderaanians who revered the killik structures. (ISU)

Catalog of Intelligent Life in the Galaxy this reference work was commissioned by Darth Vader, and was written in two editions by Obo Rin. (GG4)

Catamite
this is a small, timid creature. (POT)

Catapult
a compact device which uses a lever arm and pulleys to cock the arm in place and let it go when disengaged. The arm has a basket, into which can be loaded rocks or bombs, which are then hurled against an enemy. (BFE)

Catch
this was the nickname given by Gavin Darklighter to his gold and white R2 unit Jawaswag. The name Jawaswag meant that Gavin believed any Jawa would love to steal the droid. However, when the droid was actually accosted by a group of Jawas, it thwarted their attempts to steal it and actually injured on of them. From that point on, Gavin called it Toughcatch. For ease of use in combat, he shortened the nickname to Catch. Like many R2 units still in service nearly twenty years after the Battle of Endor, Catch was upgraded with the R2-Delta package. (DTO)

Catchment Arc
this was a vital piece of the Ssi-ruuvi entechment technology. The catchment arc was a piece of circuitry which could be attuned to the internal magnetization of the subject under entechment. When a magnetic field was passed through the subject, it activated a magentic solution in the subject's nervous system and forced the subject's life-energy to jump across the catchment arc and into a storage battery. (TB, TBSB)

Cathacatin
this Paqwe was the last crewmember of the Mother's Valkyrie to abandon the ship on Coruscant and flee back to Paqwepori, following the disgrace of the ship at the hands of Nil Spaar. Cathacatin was a licensed breeder-keeper of toko birds. (TT)

Cathar
1) the home planet of the Cathar race (DLS)
2) a sentient race of feline humanoids. The males have full manes and two long, pointed teeth which extend down from their upper jaw. The females also have a flowing mane, but lack the male's fangs. (DLS)

Cathea
one of the Corellian orhpans rescued from Ylesia by Han Solo and Chewbacca, she was a young teenager. (RD)

Cathedral of Shade
this is the name given to the various temples and ruins used by the Kluuzot, deep in the Black Jungle of Krann. (TSK)

Cathedral of Winds
a tall, ethereal castle on Vortex. It is made of thin crystal, built so that the rising hurricane winds would whistle through thousands of holes, creating a musical experience that is never the same twice, called the Concert of the Winds. It was nearly destroyed when Ackbar's sabotaged shuttle crashed into it, but the New Republic helped the Vors rebuild it. (DA, COTF)

Cather Taan's Gun Shop
this establishment, located in Storrd Township on the planet Seregar, was known for its high-quality arms. (ND)

Cathers
this Imperial Governor controlled Demnadi, but was unable to put a stop to the rebellious activity of the planet's underground. He called for assistance in quelling a riot, but only got Major Fenris Sarhl to respond. (HR)

Cathis
this planet was the site of an Alliance Mission Group base during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Cathleen
a Mon Calamari cruiser used by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. It was once used to raid an Imperial shipping route in the Corporate Sector. (XW)

Cathor Hills
a region of Ithor in which the Bafforr trees grow in huge numbers, creating a sentient forest. Alima destroyed the forests in trying to get Momaw Nadon to reveal the secrets of Ithorian technology. (TME)

Cathorn
this Charon bio-construct was created from a large, cat-like creature which lived on the Charon homeworld. The original creature had strange armor-like skin, a feature which was transferred to the cathorn. In addition to its armor plating, the cathorn also had the spiked tail of an Ithorian barbed flyer grafted to its body. The barbed flyer was captured from a starship lost in Otherspace. Like most Charon constructs, the cathorn has incredible leaping ability. (OS)

Caton
this Imperial officer was the commander in charge of the Selnesh prison colony when Haslam and his team infiltrated the prison to rescue Gebnerret Vibrion. (TFE)

Cattamascar
the planet near which the Ssi-ruuk had to perform an emergency re-orientation of the Shriwirr prior to entering the Bakura system. (TB)

Cattena Squadron
Brenn and Dellis Tantor shadowed this stormtrooper squadron for several months before they were made "honorary" members of the team. The original members bristled at this unorthodox appointment, and never fully accepted the brothers. However, after being dispatched to Kalaan to subdue a rebellious cell, the squadron's commanding officer and Dellis Tantor were killed in battle. Brenn Tantor was promoted to Lieutenant in the field, and given command of Cattena Squadron. (FC)

Cauldron Nebula
a nebula of specific gases that were mined for use by the inhabitants of Eol Sha for a short time. Later, the hiding place of Daala's following her run-in with the Doole's Kessel Navy. The nebula is the result of seven nearby stars all going supernova at about the same time. (JS, DA, SA)

Caursito
it was on this planet that Lieutenant Mavron obtained a copy of the TriNebulon datafeed and discovered the supposed appearance of Grand Admiral Thrawn in the negotiations between Moff Disra and Bosmihi. (VOF)

Cautionary Pulser
a small device which is placed in the grip of a blaster. It monitors the weapon's power status and emits a small discharge when the weapon is nearly drained of power. The wielder feels a tingling in his gunhand. (HSE)

Cavaaks
this independent scout had met up with a few too many hostile alien races in his time. (GG8)

Cave Crawler
this is another name for the keejin. (COG)

Caveel, Spinda
this rogue scientist was known for his unusual experiments. He was best known for stealing the ideas of others and modifying them for his own use. He set up a base on the planet Murninkam, far from prying eyes. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, Caveel stole the droid AOI-C – also known as Doc – from Massad Thrumble. He hoped to use the droid's abilities to create an army of warrior-droids in order to subdue his enemies and gather control of the criminal underworld. However, his plans were thwarted when Guri – at the request of Trumble – immobilized the Pike sisters and rescued Doc. Thrumble didn't give up, and developed a new plan that involved the Pike Sisters capturing Doc and Guri's head, then using the parts to build a better automata. They tracked Guri back to Hurd's Moon, but were caught in the cross-fire between Savan's forces, Alliance forces, and Thrumble's improved defenses. The Pike sisters backed out of the deal, but Caveel threatened to kill them. As he tried to shoot them, the Pike sisters drew their weapons faster. Caveel was shot and killed. (SEE)

Caver
this creature is native to the planet Glottal. Its eggs are eaten by the Glottalphibs. (TNR)

Caves of Corips
this natural wonder was a huge series of underground caverns and tunnels. Grand Moff Tarkin once likened the interior of the first Death Star to these caves. (DSTC)

Caves of Eleuabad
located in the porous rock below the surface of Naboo, this watery system of caves was notorious for its population of sando aqua monsters. It was located just outside the city of Theed. (IWE1)

Caves of Masposhani
Beldorion was placed deep in these underground caverns without light, during his Jedi training. The exercise was designed to force young students to rely on the Force, rather than sight, in order to find their way out. (POT)

Cavrilhu Pirates
a group of marauders who wreaked havoc in the Amorris system. They were led by Captain Zothip, who manages their operations from the Void Cutter. They maintained several bases in the area, including a base deep in the Kauron asteroid belt. This base was compromised and abandoned about ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, when Luke Skywalker went in search of the clones being used byZothip. (DFR, DFRSB, SOP)

Cavv, Cryle
this man was in his late forties at the time of the Battle of Hoth. Known as an accomplished thief, Cavv supposedly studied the use of the Force under the Jedi Master Yoda. He was also a member of the Alliance, and a personal friend of Airen Cracken, having served under Cracken during the early years of the Galactic Civil War as a member of Cracken's Crew. A native of Ryvellia, Cryle and his team returned to the planet shortly after it was destroyed by the Empire. Cavv lost most of his family, except for his nephew, Sienn Sconn. It was Cavv, drawing from Yoda's teachings, who spent a great deal of time with Sconn. Cavv's lessons to Sconn included keeping Sconn's thoughts on the present and the job at hand, rather than dreaming about the future. Cracken later called on Cavv to help extract Rivoche Tarkin from Imperial-held space, with the assistance of Quillin Arkell. (SWJ9, SWJ12)

Cavv, Rannah
this young woman was Cryle Cavv's daughter. She and her mother, Tascin, were killed when the Empire attacked Ryvellia, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. (SWJ12)

Cavv, Tascin
this woman was Cryle Cavv's wife. She and their daughter Rannah were killed when the Empire attacked Ryvellia, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. (SWJ12)

CAVw PK-10
see CAVw PX-10. (HR)

CAVw PX-10
Nen-Carvon's compact assault vehicle (CAV), the PX-10 was built for the Empire to help extend its domination without spreading its manpower too thin. With the PX-10, a single stormtrooper can operate with the firepower of an entire squad. Like the HAVw A5 heavy ground assault vehicle, the PX-10 doesn't have repulsorlifts to move it about. Instead, it relies on two heavy-duty treads driven by five pairs of wheels. The PX-10 is designed to give a single trooper enough firepower to control a large territory. The primary rule of combat for this trooper is to stay within the vehicle; it's that powerful. (DFR, ISB)

Cawa
this Quarren was an expert in the science of water purification, and was a member of the team assembled by the New Republic to help restore the natural environment of the planet Duro. The work took place at the height of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, so the New Republic had brokeered a deal with the Duros High House in which refugees were allowed to live on the surface in contained domes. The refugees, in return for their lodgings, were assigned specific tasks to help the assembled scientists in their work. Cawa was continually at odds with Sidris Kolb, as the meteorologist's cloud-seeding program brought acid rain and other particulates back into the water supply, inadvertently sabotaging Cawa's own work. (BP)

Cay's Dream
this starship was owned by Ulic Qel-Droma several years after the Great Sith War. Named for the brother he killed while under the spell of the Dark Side energies of the Sith, Cay's Dream took Ulic back to Yavin 4 to view the devastation there. (TSW)

Cayble, Tolamyn
this Imperial Security agent patrolled the Elrood Sector during the height of the New Order. He was responsible for the capture of Shondra Del, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, an action which was capable because Cayble had obtained information from his vast network of informants and spies. However, he often relied too heavily on the information he received, and was often misled by false information provided by the Friends of Paran. After Del escaped from the Arena of Games on Derilyn, Cayble spent every effort trying to recapture her and bring down the resistance in Elrood Sector. (OE)

Cayr, Telsij
this blond-haired woman served as a Y-Wing pilot under the command of Horton Salm, during the initial strikes by the New Republic against the planet of Brentaal. She was shot down by Soontir Fel while trying to herd off the transport ships evacuating Imperials from the planet, but she was rescued and treated. However, her gunner, Kin Kian, was killed in the crash. Cayr suffered the partial loss of her left leg, and needed her left eye replaced with a cybernetic implant, but she vowed to return to her duties as a pilot. When she learned that Fel had joined the New Republic, she was initially upset, but she soon realized that anybody who joined the Republic was a comrade. She told Fel personally that she would fly with him, if given the chance. (XWES, XWMR)

Caz Ocean
this is one of the two major bodies of water found on Lazerian IV. (TSK)

Cazne'olan
this Twi'lek was one of the leaders of the Olan clan. A corpulent male, he was a contemporary of Nawara Ven and Koh'shak, but wasn't quite as obese as Koh'shak. He despised what his relative Firith Olan had become, but was not above forcing Wedge Antilles to battle Sixtus Quin and Septaas for information on Firith's whereabouts during the search for Eidolon Base. However, Cazne'olan showed that he believed crime didn't pay - either for Firith or the Empire - by staging the battle in a virtual world, in which all parties were consumed in a firestorm. (XWBT, KT)

CB-2B
a series of maintenance droids. (CCC)

CB-99
an old, battered, cylindrical droid which Jabba the Hutt used to store his will, just before he died. He was hidden in a secret room that only Jabba and his father, Zorba, knew about. (ZHR)

CBX-9
this hybrid protocol droid was created by T'nun Bdu from a Merendata head and a Cybot Galactica body. Although equipped with an AA-1 Verbobrain and a TranLang III communications module, the interaction of the Merendata and Cybot Galactica components results in a herky-jerky motion. Despite this, CBX-9 is a sturdy, agile, and efficient droid used by Bdu as his primary interface to the galaxy. It is rumored that CBX-9 - which has a female personality - has a great deal of influence in Bdu's decisions. (JASB)

CC-Y
an anti-radar defense unit built by Forbes. It removes a ship from another ship's radar scans, making it invisible. (MMY)

CC-7700
this older Corellian Engineering Corporation frigate was, in many respects, the predecessor tot he Corellian Gunship. The ship was lightly armed, but the CC-7700 was not meant to be a battle ship. Instead, it was designed to be a platform for a gravity well projector, with a mission profile similar to the Imperial Interdictor cruiser. (REB)

CC-9600
this Corellian Engineering Corporation warship was based on the earlier successes of the CC-7700 series, although the CC-9600 frigate was more compact and more heavily armed. The CC-9600 was designed for direct combat, with upgraded weaponry and shielding, and enough cargo and passenger space to transport two full regiments of troops. (REB)

CCIR
see Centrally Controlled Independent Replicant Technology (POT)

CD-2
this harvester argirobot was manufactured by the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

CD12
an Imperial-manufactured gas which kills the Trichoid larva if administered before the larva hatch. (TB)

CD601
this large, green, monocular construction droid helped rescue Smiley, after it had been infected with Master Zorneth's caretaker virus. (DRO)

CE-2
this was a model of light freighter produced by the Corellian Engineering Corporation. It was basically an experiment at marrying a light freighter configuration to move large cargo pods. The CE-2 measured 100 meters in length, and required a pilot and co-pilot to operate. The CE-2 was capable of transporting up to four passengers and 50,000 metric tons of cargo, and was unarmed. (SESB, PP)

CE-3K
a servant droid owned by Luke Skywalker, CE-3K accompanied Luke aboard the Jedi Explorer. CE-3K is a tall, humanoid droid. This is a reference to Steven Speilburg's Close Encounters of the Third Kind. (DE2)

Ceasing-To-Be
this was a term used by some higher-level droids to describe the death of an organic being. Most droids had no concept of death, other than a memory wipe, and couldn't understand how it affected organic beings. (HT)

Cecius
this young man served as an Imperial Lieutentant, and was skilled in the boarding and capture of enemy starships. A native of Vogel 7, Cecius served aboard the Executor during the period surrounding the Battle of Hoth. (CCG5)

Cedre system
a cluster of 6 stars about 3 light-years from Dathomir. It is a young system, and none of the stars is mature or stable enough to support life on one of its planets. (CPL)

Cedrian Terrace
this upscale restaurant was located on the planet Bothawui. (SESB)

Ceel
this Gungan General was in command of the entire Gungan army, and reported directly to Boss Nass. During the Battle of Naboo, Ceel was forced to defer to Boss Nass' wish that Jar Jar Binks be also named as a General, but would not let the bumbling Gungan hold any real duties. Ceel and his officers devised the plan of attack that had the Gungans draw out and detain the Trade Federation's droid army, while allowing Queen Amidala and her small force to infiltrate the city of Theed and capture Nute Gunray and Rune Haako. The battle waged on in an even sort of match until the droid army managed to knock out the heavy Gungan shields. At this point, Ceel ordered a full retreat, hoping to regroup his forces and attack again. However, the droid army swept over them and prevented a full retreat. The Gungans were saved when nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker and Bravo Squadron destroyed the Neimoidian droid control ship, rendering their immense battle force inoperative. (TPM)

Ceezva
this Teltior female was known to have bluffed her way into a sabacc match against the Archduke Monlo of the Dentamma Nebula, then won the rights to the entire Unnipar System. Rumor had it that she had just 500 credits to her name at the start of the match. (AE)

Cejansij
this planet, the primary world of the Cejansij System, is famous for the dwellings carved into its canyon-covered sruface. (SOP)

Cekbar
this was one of the six major continents found on the planet Celanon. Celanon City was located on its western coast. (PG1)

Cel'Con
this continent, located on the planet Mutanda, was connected to A'Sako by a thin bridge of land. (PG1)

Celador Sash
this twin-hulled transport ship was donated to Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum by a grateful trader. Decades before, Obi-Wan Kenobi had saved the trader's family, but he couldn't repay the favor after the Emperor nearly exterminated the Jedi. With the advent of the New Republic, the outdated ship found its way to Yavin 4 and Skywalker. (JAL)

Celanite
this was the name used by the Nalroni who lived in Celanon City. (PG1)

Celanon
this planet was the site of an Imperial spaceport in the Outer Rim. It is the homeworld of the Nalroni race, whose economic sense has propelled Celanon to the foremost position along the Celanon Trade Spur. Nearly every merchant on the planet was a member of some form of guild or consortium, which allowed them to monitor their pricing strategies and adjust them quickly. The guild buildings were off-limits to non-members, and especially non-Nalroni. The Nalroni went underground when Palpatine initiated the New Order, and have become even more shrewd business-beings. It has been said that if it exists, it can be found on Celanon. The average day on Celanon lasts 32 standard hours. A Celanon year lasts 387 local days. The planet's surface was covered with agricultural plains broken by a few forests and urban areas. (COJ, XW, PG1)

Celanon City
located on the planet Celanon, Celanon City was a commercial hub for the Outer Rim Territories. Located on the Cekbar continent, Celanon City was a sprawling metropolis which catered to the whims of every conceivable being. A free trader was considered a rank amateur until they had cut a deal in Celanon City. (XW, PG1)

Celanon Finance
this credit-lending institution was actually a dummy corporation set up by Imperial agent Renik during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

Celanon Semi-Dry
an excellent, but unrefined, wine. (COJ)

Celanon Spur
this prominent interstellar trade route winds through many sectors - including the M'shinni Sector - and ends at the planet Celanon. (GG12)

Celanonian Organized Protectorate
this was the name of the police force which patrolled the cities of Celanon during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Celchu, Mia
Tycho Celchu’s sister, she was killed on Alderaan when the first Death Star destroyed the planet. (XWBT)

Celchu, Skoloc
Tycho Celchu's brother, Skoloc was killed when the Death Star destroyed Alderaan. He was a fan of holovids which involved the Jedi Knights. (BW)

Celchu, Tycho
Celchu was a graduate of the Imperial Naval Academy, even though he was a native of Alderaan. He was engaged to a woman named Mia who, along with most of Celchu's family, was killed when the Death Star destroyed the planet. Note that Mia is the name given in the first series of X-Wing: Rogue Squadron comics, although the X-Wing novels name her as Nyiestra. Tycho was calling home on his twenty-first birthday, and regarded the loss of transmission to be a simple glitch. After learning the truth about this atrocious act, Celchu left Imperial service and defected to the Alliance. He became a veteran of the Battle of Hoth, he flew an A-Wing in the Battle of Endor, and participated in the Battle of Bakura. His allegiance, though, was constantly questioned by the ranking officers in the New Republic, although the fighter pilots never waivered in their support of him. He was under constant surveillance by the New Republic, because of his ability to escape from Imperial capture time and time again. He showed an innate ability to pilot a TIE Fighter, which also didn't endear him to the higher-ups. It did, though, bring a level of respect among other pilots. Tycho assisted the Rogues and infiltrated the Imperial ranks on Cilpar. He also participated in the Rogues' mission to Mrlsst, but was witnessed killing the controllers of the Phantom cloaking device and stealing its plans. The tape turned out to be a clever fake designed to discredit the Rogues and secure the Phantom device for the Empire. Once the Phantom was proven to be a smokescreen, Tycho was freed from any guilt in the matter. He later fell in love with Winter, during the recovery of the Eidolon on Tatooine. He was later chosen to fly the initial scanning runs of the planet Coruscant, flying a stolen Imperial craft in a series of sensor runs in an effort to assess the planet's defenses. He was captured by the Empire and sent to Lusankya, where he was allowed to remember his time there. He was then sent to Akrit'tar for three months before escaping and returning to the Republic. This time was secretly removed from his Republic records, further increasing the distrust among those members of the Command structure who weren't privy to the Coruscant mission. He later a member of Rogue Squadron following the Battle of Endor, but was not allowed to pilot a starfighter or any ship with weapons. Unknown to Tycho, Ysanne Isard had implanted him with a hidden codephrase that activated subliminal programming, making him an extremely effective although unwilling spy. The fact that he remembered his time on Lusankya made him different enough from other survivors that it went unnoticed until Rogue Squadron infiltrated Coruscant. Shortly before the attack on Coruscant, Celchu was believed dead on Noquivzor. He suddenly reappeared, and helped the Rogues get onto the planet. There, Corran Horn supposedly witnessed Tycho meeting with Kirtan Loor, when Celchu was actually meeting with Lai Nootka. The circumstantial evidence, coupled with Horn's disappearance, left Tycho in custody for Horn's murder. He was certain to be convicted of the crime until Horn escaped from Lusankya and positively identified the true traitor in the Rogue Squadron as Erisi D'larit. Tycho eventually fell in love with Winter, partly because she was near him more often, but mostly because of their shared Alderaanian background. When the squadron resigned its commissioned with the New Republic, Tycho chose to paint his X-Wing in the colors of the Alderaan Guard unit that maintained order in his home town. Tycho eventually became one of the squadron's leaders, especially during the time Wedge formed and developed Wraith Squadron. After Wedge was promoted to General and Tycho was promoted to Colonel, Wedge relinquished day-to-day control of the Rogues to Tycho. Tycho remained as Commander of the Rogues for several years before ceding command to Gavin Darklighter. Tycho retired shortly after Wedge Antilles, although both offered assistance to Gavin during the Yuuzhan Vong crisis. (XWRS, XWN, WG, KT, XWPA, XWBT, BW, HXW, SOA, DTO)

Celdaru
a planet that was invaded by the Empire. Sulamar claimed to have led the invasion force, in an attempt to create a greater image of himself. (DS)

Celdas
this is the capital plateau of the planet Plagen, and is the site of the capital city of Treeleaf. (TSK)

Celebration of Life
this is the Kitonak name for the period of rain which arrives in the Kurdan Desert every ten years. As rivers form, the Kitonaks plunge themselves into the water and begin the Dance of Love. During this dance, the Kitonaks remain in the temporaty rivers and drift downstream wherever the water takes them. (GG4)

Celestial
this Alliance transport ship was captained by Alain Gryphon when it disappeared from known space. The Celestial was transporting prisoners to an Alliance penal colony when its captives, including Bane Nothos and Grand Moff Ravik, broke free and took control of the ship. The Imperials, in their attempt to gain control, caused a power surge to flood the ship, disabling the hyperdrive. Gryphon tried to foil Nothos' plans by initiating a hyperspace jump despite the damage, and the ship was suddenly launched into Otherspace. There, it was captured by the Charon and attached to the huge ship, the Desolate. (OS)

Celestial Serenity
an enhanced human female Han encounters on Crseih Station. (CS)

Celomar
this Imperial officer was Moff Caerbellak's chief aide on Rydonni Prime. (SWJ9)

Cemas
an alien race. (TNR)

Cemma the Younger
this crude, psychopathic outlaw was known as a gunslinger in the backwater worlds of the Inner Rim. He was extremely handsome, which helped lull his opponents into thinking he was too young to be a quick draw. He was approached by Dhas Vedij and offered a chance to serve on the crew of the Far Orbit, after Vedij defected from Imperial service. (FOP)

Cencil Corporation
this droid developer was nationalized by the Empire and added to the Imperial Droid Corporation. (FOP)

Cene Gilvent
this Ocsinin female was known as an accomplished martial artist. She was skilled in a variety of forms of sword combat, including Teelar and Kartranin. She grew up on Saclas, raising pet slimes in order to earn enough credits to buy passage to the Mid Rim. Once offworld, she found employment with the Zuliria Museum of Antiquities, where she was charged with maintaining the many displays and properties of the museum. While working at the museum, Cene met Ther-das, who recognized her skills and asked her to join the Zulirian Swordmasters. While with the Swordmasters, she earned the respect of Mlatar Than Gra, who hand-forged her signature weapon, the Soknar. (AIR)

Censian*-class Transport
this outdated transport craft found use within the Alliance's Special Forces division as a troop transport. (AIR)

Centares
this planet was the home of the Museum of the Galactic Republic. Once Emperor Palpatine instituted his New Order, the Museum was closed. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, Darth Vader discovered the name of the pilot who destroyed the first Death Star from Ban Papeega: Luke Skywalker. (VQ)

Centaurea Pod
this plant blooms every few weeks with an explosion of pink blossoms. (TT)

Center, The
another mystical reference used by Lando Calrissian. (LCF)

Center of Everything, The a mystical reference used by The One. (LCS)

Centerpoint Party
formed of rebellious Corellians and a group of New Republic archaeologists who were forcibly removed from Centerpoint Station during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, this quasi-political faction demanded that the Corellian System be given five votes in the New Republic Senate, instead of just one. Their justification was taken from the beliefs of the Sacorrian Triad, and was based on the unusual nature of the Corellian System. Since all five planets were life-sustaining worlds drawn to the star Corell by the planetary repulsor onboard Centerpoint Station, the Centerpoint Party argued that each planet should have unique representation in the Senate. In this way, the System would have five votes, and the Centerpoint Party hoped to use them to stop the New Republic from commandeering Centerpoint Station for use as a weapon against the Yuuzhan Vong. In the aftermath of the Battle of Fondor, the Centerpoint Party garnered more and more favor in the Corellian Sector. (JE, BP)

Centerpoint Station
a spaceport located in the exact center of mass (barycenter) between Talus and Tralus in the Corellian System. It is constructed of a 100 kilometer sphere in the middle of two, 150-kilometer rods. The entire station appears to predate antigrav units, since it spins on its longest axis to provide gravity. This resulted in a constant "day" which lasted about 12 hours. The "year" on the station equalled the 392-day orbit of Talus and Tralus. Gravity on the station is virtually non-existent at the very center of Hollowtown, and gets stronger near the outer hull. When the New Republic managed to penetrate the interdiction field surrounding Corellia, following Thrackan Sal-Solo's rise to power, they found that the center of the field was located on the station. The central sphere contains a series of inner sections, called shells, that surround the huge open area known as Hollowtown. In the center of Hollowtown is the Glowpoint. Lando Calrissian later discovers that the station was built as a kind of hyperspatial tractor beam, capable if drawing an entire planet through hyperspace to the station's location. It was powered by drawing on the gravitic forces of Talus and Tralus. Many scientists and historians have concluded that Centerpoint Station predates even the Corellian System of planets, as it was the primary tool used to place the planets in their current orbits from far-flung locations. Lando later discovers that the station, by reorienting itself, can be directed to pulse its energy at the core of a star, causing it to explode. Thus, Centerpoint Station was revealed as the weapon used in the Starbuster plot. The Station supported a "native" population of 540,000 beings, most of them having migrated from Talus and/or Tralus.
After the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy, the New Republic Defense Force began making plans to reactivate Centerpoint Station, hoping to harness its energy as a weapon and use it to defeat the aliens. However, the station's operational controls had attuned themselves to the life-energy of Anakin Solo, who had helped shut down the weapon during the Corellian Crisis years before. Anakain agreed to try to reactivate the station, but refused to fire it after arguing with his brother, Jacen. Thrackan Sal-Solo, who had been part of the team trying to reactivate the station, took the shot himself. The blast was nearly perfect, taking out a large portion of the Yuuzhan Vong fleet at Fondor. However, the blast also destroyed three-quarters of the Hapan fleet at Fondor, and skimmed both Fondor and one of its moons. Afterward, when Anakin traveled to Duro, the station rendered itself inoperable again. (AC, AS, SC, CTD, JE, BP)

Central Academic Hospital
this was the primary medical facility located on the planet Mrlsst. (XWPA)

Central Avenue
this is one of the two main streets found in the city of Grig, on the planet Narg. Like most streets in the city, it is extremely difficult for off-worlders to maneuver because the natives travel with little regard for natural or designated laws. (TA)

Central Booking Station
this was the primary police building, located in the city of Thani on Telos. (DOR)

Central Committee of Grand Moffs
a coalition of all the Grand Moffs which was formed to keep communication lines open. It controlled much of the information about the Emperor, including the existence of his mutant son, Triclops. The Grand Moffs then used Trioculus as a puppet for them to gain control of the Empire after Palpatine's death near Endor. (GDV)

Central Control Computer
this huge computer was housed in a Trade Federation Droid Control Ship, and was responsible for the coordination of all droid activities. The computer monitored everything from PK work droids to the huge droidekas, as well as the vulture droid starfighters and battle droids. Primary programming was performed by the Neimoidians. (IG1)

Central Council
1) the governing body of the Anomid people who inhabit the Yablari System. Representatives are chosen from the various Anomid noble houses, corporations, and educational institutions. It creates the laws that govern all Anomid life. (GG12)
2) another term used to describe the ruling body of the New Republic, during the early years of the Provisional Council. (POT)

Central Dwelling
this was the primary residence of the Benevolent Guides of theplanet Kegan, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (FFT)

Central Gathering Hall located in Imperial City on Coruscant, the hall was designed around 300 PE. There is a huge clock located there, that marks the hours by spreading a light across the city's skyline. (HTTE)

Central Government Towers
the buildings which house the various government agencies in Calius on Berchest. Tower Number One holds Governor Staffa's offices. (TLC)

Central Instruction Processor
often abbreviated as CIP, this device controls the routing and operation of an autohopper, taking various things into account. It can be programmed to compensate for geography and weather, among other variables. (HSL)

Central Learning Chip known as a CLC, this computer processor allows robo-hacks equipped with one to memorize certain aspects of past experiences and incorporate them into future driving decisions. (CSA)

Central Lift
the device which raises and lowers a starship's boarding ramp. It is essentially a hydraulic piston. (ESB)

Centrality
1) the governing body in the Renatasian and Rafa Systems, the Centrality was responsible to most of the system's trade as well. Lando Calrissian had several bounties on his head, issued by the governors of the Centrality, during his early gambling career. (LCS, RD)
2) this area of the galaxy, located in a remote corner of the Inner Rim Territories, contains the Rafa System and the Renatasian System. They were ostensibly allied with the Empire, but there were few Imperial forces in the area because of its lack of resources. (LCS, EGP)

Centrally Controlled Independent Replicant Technology
known as CCIR and developed by Loronar Corporation for use in synthdroids, this technology supposedly produced near-human in mechanical entities. The technology was expanded by Loronar into military applications such as the Needles until the use of other lifeforms within the technology was vervealed by luke Skywalker. CCIR involved the use of shards of Spook crystals from Nam Chorios as the “brain” of the system. A large, central command post was programmed to issue commands to any and all Spook crystals attuned to the wavelength of the message. The use of Spook crystals was described to Loronar by Seti Ashgad and Dzym, who realized that the crystals were, in fact, lifeforms with a high level of Force sensitivity and intelligence. The matrix of the crystals could be re-aligned to make the Spooks subservient to the central processor, which mimicked the natural emanations of the tsil on Nam Chorios. Thus, large numbers of synthdroids could be programmed from a singel location, with much of the processing power required to make decisions remaining in the central site. In the case of the Needles, the ships could be lanuched from anywhere, since they needed no organic pilot and could therefore save space and energy. When Skywalker discovered the sentience of the Spook crystals and explained it to the New Republic, it was decided that any and all Spooks should be returned to Nam Chorios. This ultimatum was given to Loronar, which was faced with the exposure of their part in Dzym’s plans or the possibility that the Guardian tsil on Nam Chorios would simply instruct the crystals in CCIR technology to ignore their reprogramming. Thus, CCIR was relegated to a back-seat position, without its primary component being readily available. (POT)

Centrifugal Debris Extractor
this component of a starship engine is designed to remove any space-borne particles that might be caught in the engine's turbines. (IR)

Century Tank
another name for the TIE Tank, also called a TIE crawler. (DESB)

Ceok Oruo’cya
this Bothan was the First Secretary of the Combined Clans during the years leading up to the revelation of the Caamas Document. He tried to prevent Leia Organa-Solo from reviewing the Bothans’ financial situation, in light of the many problems being hidden by the Bothan banks at the time. Leia was personally unable to view the documents, but Bothan law allowed C-3PO to view them. The primary reason for this was that Leia had sold the droid to Borsk Fey’lya for just such a contingency. Oruo’cya had no choice but to let her see the documents. (SOP)

Ceousa
thie New Republic Navy General accompanied Wedge Antilles during the attack on Almania, during Dolph's reign of terror. Ceousa was in command of the warship Calamari. (TNR)

Cera Vixe
this Gran female wanted to marry Vee Naaq, but her brother Boe refused to allow it. She pretended to be afraid of the group of spacers hired by Vee Naaq ro "kidnap" her, in order to convince Boe Vixe that she wanted to remain on Kinyen. (IA)

Ceraglass
a transparent ceramic alloy that is extremely tough and durable, ceraglass is often used for viewports in military land vehicles like the Mekuun Hoverscout. (ISB)

Ceramisteel
this hard, dense material is manufactured for use in starship hulls. (CSA)

Cerasi
this teenaged girl was a native of the planet Melida/Daan. She was also a member of The Young, and was the person who rescued Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi from Wehutti and the Melida. She had close-cropped, copper-colored hair and green eyes. She was the first of the children to forsake her parents and her heritage and live beneath the city of Zehava as a "free" being. Her courage eventually inspired other youths, like Nield, and they eventually formed The Young as a way to fight back against their parents' bigotry. Her mother was killed in a battle while conducting a sniper raid, and her brother was sent to work in a munitions factory. Her father was the leader of the Melida militia, Wehutti, although she held to loyalty to him. She was stubborn to a fault, but was a brave fighter and excellent scout. She agreed to help the two Jedi locate Tahl, while Nield and the other members of The Young created a diversion. Her bravery allowed them to recover Tahl without bloodshed, and her strong will helped The Young defeat the elders and unify the government of the planet. However, unlike Nield, she understood that her heritage could not simply be destroyed. She and Obi-Wan petitioned Nield to stop destroying the Halls of Evidence, an action Nield vetoed but was overruled by the new council. Nield's ignorance of the basic needs of Zehava began to splinter The Young, and his lack of control emboldened the elders of the city. Wehutti and his band opposed the destruction of a Hall on Glory Street, and Nield fought back. In the ensuing firefight, Cerasi was shot and killed. Her death further splintered the city of Zehava, since neither Nield nor Wehutti could determine who killed her and each balmed the other as well as themselves. (DOD, UP)

Cerberus
1) this Imperial bulk cruiser was part of a convoy that was ambushed and destroyed by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)
2) this modified Nebulon-B frigate was part of the Imperial fleet sent to destroy the Alliance's partnership with smugglers, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Cerea
this temperate, forested world is the homeworld of the Cerean race. (PTR)

Cerean
this race of near-humans is native to the planet Cerea. In nearly all aspects, Cereans resemble humans. Their heads, however, are much larger than a humans, with a cranial cavity that extends some 12-20 centimeters above their foreheads. This elongated skull is topped with a flowing knot of hair. Contained within the skull is a binary brain, which gives the Cereans an advanced capacity for thinking and meditation. The biological needs of a second brain are supported in the Cerean physiology by a second heart. As a race, Cereans tended to be isolationists, preferring to live in a low-tech environment away from the bustle of the Old Republic. However, in the last years of the Old Republic, the younger generation of Cereans decided that they wanted to have things that were commonplace in the rest of the galaxy, life starships and speeder bikes. This led to a generational battle that was decided by the Jedi Ki-Adi-Mundi. (PTR, IG1)

Cerebellitis
this is a debilitating condition of the brain that affects many human replica droids that are reprogrammed from their original creation. (SEE)

Ceremony of the Waters
a Dro family tradition from Alderaan, which centers around a fountain or other water device. (TEP)

Cerenia System
one of the primary systems along the Harrin Trade Corridor, Cerenia is located between the Brevost and Lazerian Systems. (TSK)

Cerillium
this metallic compound is often used in droid plating, especially for droids designed for combat. It has a dark, lustrous appearance. (OS)

Cesta
this is the traditional Gungan military staff, which has a cup built into the top of the staff to accommodate a small energy ball. In addition to using the staff itself as a club or blocking device, Gungan warriors can fling small energy balls nearly 100 meters. The drawback to the cesta's distance is that it's not very accurate. (IG1)

Ceti 597
a planet. (RA2)

Cevva Xuz
this Rodian managed a small rebel cell on the planet Svivren, during the last years of the Galactic Civil War. Mara Jade had him targetted for execution by Captain Strok's forces, as a diversion during hunt for the crimeload Dequc. His forces seemed to know about the attack, and deftly reduced two stormtrooper squads by half before escaping. (MJEH)

CE3K-1977
Qorl's Imperial serial number. This is a reference to the Steven Spielberg film, Close Encounters of the Third Kind*, which premiered in 1977.* (HTF)

CF-30
Vudyne's flight control avionics package used on the Z-95 Headhunter. (TIE)

CG-78
an Pakuuni container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

CG-X2R
this bitter, pokey droid ran a small cafe near Docking Bay 92 at the Mos Eisley Spaceport. (GG7)

CGL 55ci
this was a concussion missile launcher produced by Bryn & Gweith during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Ch'hala trees native to Coruscant, these are slender purple and green trees used to line the Grand Corridor at the Imperial Palace. They are touch-sensitive, and display a color change through their transparent bark when touched. (DFR, TLC)

Ch’hodos
this planet was part of the ancient Sith Empire. The planet - continually bathed in red light from its nearby sun - was the site of Shar Dakhan’s fortress. (FOSE)

Ch'hosk Cave Drawings
these remarkably ancient paintings were discovered on Antmuel VI by Doctor Angrail Ryhl during the height of the New Order. (HR)

Ch'irrk Felt
this legendary Jenet warrior was one of a group which helped bring the wild packs of danchaf under control, thereby opening up the planet Garban for further development. This era of history was known to the Jenet as the Great Conquest. This Jenet is also referred to as Chirr't Ferr. (COG)

Ch'lessan, Gowan
this tall, dark, and handsome man was a member of the Alliance. A native of the planet Chandrila, he was inspired by the speeches of Mon Mothma, and joined the Alliance at the age of 18. He served under Commander Briessen as a member of Lieutenant Haslam's commando team. (SWJ10, TFE)

Ch'no
this H'drachi seer adopted the infant Mora when her family was killed. Ch'no knew that she would later be revealed as the sole living heir to the ruling house of M'haeli, but he kept that secret for a long time. His adoption of Mora put him at odds with the other H'drachi, who saw the presence of humans on their planet as a scourge. Ch'no and Mora were the only two beings which could disrupt the time-streams on M'haeli, which made travelling among other H'drachi without being seen nearly impossible. (ROC)

Ch'unkk
this Whiphid was a member of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. Ch'unkk often had a protocol droid with him, for translation purposes. He was a member of the inner clique formed by Norym Kim and Mahd Windcaller, and was quick to second the nomination of Xandel Carivus to lead the Council, in the aftermath of Nolyds' assassination. However, when Carivus ordered the arrest of all non-human members of the Council after General Immodet was found poisoned, Ch'unkk resisted and was shot to death for his actions. (CE2)

Cha-Val Sha-Vak
very little was known of this bounty hunter, who worked almost exclusively for Sibarra the Hutt. Sha-Vak kept his (or her) identity a secret by always wearing a full-face mask. Sha-Vak was hired by Sibarra to take care of the dirty work for Ace Entertainment Corporation, much to the chagrin of Dunan Par'Ell. Par'Ell and Sha-Vak were continually at odds with each other. (WSV)

Cha'a
a short, reptilian race with some aptitude for the Force. The Cha’a are humanoid is stature, and have orange scales. (GAS, HTF)

Cha'wen'he an unusual alien race native to the planet Wen'he'dinae, the Cha'wen'he resemble large, wingless birds. The simiarity ends there, for they have three sinuous necks supporting three small heads. Two heads face forward, while the thrid faces the rear. All of the creature's main sensory ograns are located in these heads. The heads can be retracted into the body, allowing the Cha'wen'he to protect them in adverse conditions. Their hides are covered in overlapping rows of scale which can be raised to allow the underlying skin to cool. They are highly intelligent, capable of solving complex puzzles and situations. However, the average Cha'wen'he is nervous and excitable, a trait evolved from their constant vigilance against their homeworld's various predators. They live in flocks, and have the rare ability to assume a species memory. The mother has the ability to pass on skills and memories to its offspring, and these skills can awaken naturally over time. (GG12)

Chaasch
this was the eighth planet of the Sulorine System. (SSR)

Chab-Ylwoum
manufacturers of the scramjet intake used as the basis for the V-Wing speeder. (DESB)

Chabak's
a popular tavern located on Zirtran's Anchor. (SWAJ)

Chachi DeMaal
Ohwun DeMaal's Duro wife, she was a native of Jivv Space City. (GG7)

Chackra
this Jeodu was one of Dequc’s personal guards. (MJEH)

Chackron Nasplek
this Mon Calamari broke with family tradition, choosing not to join the New Republic but instead starting his own business. Chackron established a courier service in Kee-Piru, and was in another system on business when the floating city was detroyed by the Empire. He persevered despite the loss of all his assets in Kee-Piru, and eventually spread beyond Calamari to other nearby systems. His courier service was well-known, and it was an understatement to say that a message delivered by his agents never failed to arrive on time. (HR)

Chad
1) the blue-white star that is the center of the Chad System (GG4)
2) primary planet in the Chad system, and fourth from the star Chad, it is the homeworld of the Chadra-Fan race. The planet's environment is mainly based on water, with a few mountains and swamps thrown in for good measure. This makes the planet generally inhospitable. During a great storm, the planet was rocked with tectonic shifting, and a series of Great Waves swept the life from the swamps. This nearly destroyed the planet's primary native race, the Chadra-Fan, but they managed to survive in the mountains. The Chadra-Fan histories document at least five Great Waves, the last of which struck just ten years before the Battle of Yavin. In Queen of the Empire*, Chad is a planet of rolling hills and farmland, and supports an extensive dairy industry.* It has 9 moons which continually pull tides in a complex swirl of currents around the planet. The average day on Chad lasts 20 standard hours, and its year encompasses 380 local days. Note that Children of the Jedi denotes this world as Chad III. (SW, SCRE, QE, GG4, SWJ10)

Chad III
see Chad (COJ)

Chado's Pub
located in the city of Ariana, on Garos IV, this pub catered the Imperial forces which occupied the city after the Battle of Endor. Despite this fact, or perhaps because of it, the underground resistance in Ariana used the pub as a place to exchange information. It was destroyed by the explosion of a thermal detonator during the Imperial evacuation of Ariana. Jaalib Brandl claimed the blast was caused by the rebellion, but Alex Winger later discovered that Brandl himself destroyed it. He had hoped to restore his standing with the Empire. (SWJ12)

Chadra
according to Tales from the Mos Eisley Cantina, this is the homeworld of the Chadra-Fan race. (TME)

Chadra-Fan
a race of small, humanoid rodents native to Chad, they have large ears, flat noses with four nostrils, and seven senses (sight, touch, taste, sound, smell, infrared sight, chemoreceptive smell). Because of their two senses of smell, Chadra-Fam rely heavily on smell as a guide and influence. The larger of their four nostrils detectes water-soluble odors, while the inner two nostrils contain specialized chemoreceptors. Because of the large number of tidal waves that have torn Chadra-Fan society apart over the millennia, they have an innate fear of death by drowning, and often the mere threat of drowning throws a Chadra-Fan into shock. They are a clan-based society in which interclan marriages are welcomed. The wedded couple is then "added" to the smaller clan, thus increasing the clan's size. Tales from the Mos Eisley Cantina says the Chadra-Fan are from the planet Chadra. (SW, SCRE, TME, GG4)

Chagarian Ale
an alcoholic beverage. (TJP)

Chaghizs torm
this Tammarian word is used to describe their unique oxygen pouch. (BTS)

Chagrian
this species of well-muscled humanoids is characterized by their unique skull structure. The average Chagrian is tall, with pale, bluish skin. Their faces are quite fierce in appearance, although they can be very loyal and trustworthy. Two large horns sprout from the front of their skull, and the bone structure which supports them gives the Chargian an enlarged forehead. In addition to these horns, a pair of thick, pointed lobes – known as lethorn - emerges from their jowls and drapes across their chest. (IG1)

Chaila
the second planet in the Garos System. (SWAJ)

Chaimun
the Star Wars Journal: Hero for Hire claims that Chaimun is the owner of the Mos Eisely cantina, which is probably a typo. (JHS)

Chains of Justice
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of Warlord Zsinj's fleet, during the early years of the New Republic. When Zsinj was attacked at Vahaba by Han Solo and the Mon Remonda's fleet, the Chains of Justice and Zsinj's third group were stuck at Vahaba when the Iron Fist hyperspaced out of the battle. Zsinj was forced out of hyperspace near Selaggis, where the New Republic fleet tracked him. He was able to call in the Chains of Justice and its supporting ships to help destroy Solo's fleet. (SOC)

Chak*-root
this bright green, fern-like plant is native to the planet Erysthes. The plant’s large, reddish roots are dried and ground up to make an illegal substance often smuggled for a large profit. It is used for smoking or chewing, much like tobacco. (SWR, HSR, HSL, CSA, GF)

Chakdin
an obscure language. (AIR)

Chakk
this was the Herglic term for a naive person. It literally translated into "a being born yesterday." (PGT)

Chakta Sai Kae
this is an Old Corellian toast. (VOF)

Chakton
this city was battled for by Imperial troops and Alliance forces shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (MB)

Chal
this man served as one of the gunners aboard the Wild Kaarde, during the Caamas Incident and the search for Jorj Car'das. (VOF)

Chalacta
this planet was located along the outer edge of the Expansion Region, and was the homeworld of the Chalactan species. (IG1, IWE1)

Chalactan
this species of near-humans is native to the planet Chalacta. They are noted as a spiritual race, who value the benefits of meditation and prayer. (IG1)

Chalcedon
a marginally habitable, volcanic planet with two colonies and a way station. Leia and Rillao go when they start searching for Hethrir, as the planet has been known to be a major stopping point on many slave trading routes. (CS)

Chalcedony
this YT-1300 transport made a regular run between Pallaxides and Celanon during the height of the New Order. On one of these runs, the crew fell victims to the spores used by Hoogra-D'En in his bombs. One of the spore bombs was set off by a bumbling Rodian, killing the pilot of the Chalcedony and others aboard. The pilot managed to get the ship to Celanon, but expired before he could land it. The ship crashed, killing those aboard who were not already dead from the spores. (ND)

Chalco
this man was a vagrant who befriended Anakain Solo during his search for Daeshara'cor. A heavyset man, Chalco had a knack for remembering things he had seen, and he was instrumental in locating Daeshara'cor. Chalco took an immediate liking to Anakin Solo, and the two became friends during their search for the Twi'leki Jedi. They were captured by her on Garos IV, but managed to overpower her and return her to Master Skywalker. In the wake of the Battle of Garqi, Chalco agreed to work with Mirax Terrik Horn to transport bafforr trees to other planets, in an effort to ensure their survival after it was discovered that their pollen was deadly to vonduun crab armor. (DTR)

Chale
this is an Ithorian vegetable often used as accompanyment in many dishes. (IJ)

Chall Bekan
this male Morseerian had strong ties to the Imperial government on Tatooine. He was assigned to keep tabs on the operations of Jabba the Hutt, and to alert the Imperials of any suspected Alliance activity. He maintained a network of alien agents to provide him with pertinent information. (CCG6)

Challabae Admits-No-Equal Aerial Eruptive Manufacturing Concern
this Adumari corporation ran a missile and torpedo manufacturing plant in the city of Cartann. Their name is based on the honor system of the Adumari, and proves to their buyers that no one makes a better product. They were especially skilled in the production of proton torpedoes, which made them popular with the New Republic when negotiations on Adumar's future started. Their facility was located hundreds of feet below the surface of the city, and resembled cave-like warrens of rectangular rooms connected by tunnels. The rooms each had a specific task to complete, and the deeper into the warren one went, the closer to the final product one got. At the farthest end of the complex were testing sites. Many of its workers lived in nearby turumme warrens which had been abandoned. This kept them out of the "normal" lifestyle of those Adumari that lived in the city. (SOA)

Challat Eater
this is a species of swarming, predatory insect native to the planet Troiken. (IG1)

Challel
a sinuous form of dance. (TA)

Challenge
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Challep
this man was the planetary governor of Agamar, during the period leading up to the Battle of Naboo. He claimed to have no knowledge of the actions of Captain Sorran and the Velumina, after the attack on Naboo's TFP-9 space station. Challep reiterated his innocence, even when presented with documents indicating Agamar's attempts to purchase N-1 fighters directly from Naboo. (SFT)

Challer
this Imperial held the rank of Tribune, and was a member of the Imperial Ruling Council which sprang up in the wake of Emperor Palpatine's death at Endor. He was a gaunt, bald man with a long goatee beard and a silver skull-cap. The skull-cap covered a jewel-like implant on his forehead. He was eventually installed as the leader of the Ruling Council, following the loss of Sate Pestage at Ciutric. However, his tenure was cut short by Ysanne Isard, who corrupted one of his concubines and had her deliver a fatal dose of poison in a drink. Challer died quickly, without any idea of what happened. (XWMR)

Chalmun
the beige-and-gray Wookiee who owned the Mos Eisley cantina. bought the cantina with gambling profits made from swindling visitors to Ord Mantell. He hired Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes following the disaster at Valarian's wedding reception. (TME)

Cham, Wenton
this Alliance starpilot was originally from Corulag. Leiutenant Cham was killed in the Battle of Yavin. (CCG)

Chambamakk
this Wookiee bounty hunter was part of Kashyyyk "honor clan," and worked to free those Wookiees who had been enslaved by the Empire. After the Battle of Endor, Chambamakk spent the rest of his career hunting down those beings who were responsible for the suffering of the Wookiees during the New Order. (HR)

Chamber of Dark Visions
a room on Scardia that Kadann uses as a meditation chamber. He also uses it as an audience hall whenever he delivers a new prophecy. (LCJ)

Chamble
this little-known planet is located in the Mid Rim Territories. It was the headquarters of Bansche Tech. (SWAJ)

Chameleon Creature
this race of spider-like humanoids has gray, leathery skin that can change color. The chameleon creatures can alter their bodily coloration to match almost flawlessly into their surroundings, making them hard to detect. Czethros employed a group of them to recover the space mines discovered by Han Solo during the 93rd Blockade Runners Derby, but many of them were killed before securing the mines. (ROM)

Chamma
a Jedi Master who was teaching just prior to the Great Sith War, Chamma was a full Jedi Knight when he first encountered the Dark Side of the Force. He and several other Jedi were investigating a distress signal from an Old Republic ship which had crashed on Athiss. When they arrived, they encountered a creature spawned from the Dark Side. In battle, Chamma found himself greatly overpowered by the Dark Side being, and felt that the Force had abandoned him when he suddenly used his anger to defeat the beings. He fled to H'ratth and went into hiding, until the Miralukan Jedi Noab Hulis found him. Hulis explained that Chamma's other companions were all killed by the Dark Side being, and that Chamma himself was cut off from the Force by the being's strength. Chamma realized that the Force had not deserted him, but that he had abandoned the Force by hiding on H'ratth. Chamma agreed to return to his training, and eventually achieved the rank of Jedi Master. He maintained his residence on H'ratth, but turned it into a Jedi training complex. There, Chamma trained Andur Sunrider, until Andur's skills required more experience. Chamma dispatched Andur to train with Master Thon on Ambria. (TOJ)

Champion
this Bothan Assault Cruiser was part of the New Republic fleet dispatched to protect Kalarba, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. It was commanded by Brevet Admiral Glie'oleg Kru, but the ship was holed while defending Hosk Station. It exploded in a blinding flash, and nearly took out several member of Rogue Squadron, including Jaina Solo. (BP)

Champion Squadron
one of General Salm's Y-Wing bomber squadrons serving the New Republic. Champion Squadron was part of Defender Wing. Shortly before the wedding of Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade, Champion Squadron was defeated in a game of slingball by a team made up of Mara, Leia Organa-Solo, Tionne, Mirax Terrik Horn, Winter, and Iella Wessiri. The members of Champion Squadron later claimed they were beaten by a team made up of swoop riders. (XWN, U)

Chan
chief Chadra-Fan surgeon at the Chadra-Fan Hospital on Chad. (QE)

Chan, Travia
Travia Chan was the commander-in-chief of the Atrivis Resistance Group. She suffered from a childhood illness that kept her in a repulsorlift chair, but her sharp mind and iron will transcended the handicap. She was one of the founders of the Fest Resistance Group, and aided in the combination of Fest and Mantooine resistance groups to create the ARG. She was known among the Imperials as the "Icewoman." A native of Generis, and a New Republic supporter, she and her people were evacuated from the planet by Pash Cracken and General Kryll when Thrawn attacked the Republic's communications base. (RASB, TLC)

Chance
this man was a member of the Garosian underground resistance, during the early years of the New Republic. (SWJ1)

Chance Castle
this entertainment facility on Nar Shaddaa hired some of the galaxy's best magicians and illusionists. It was here that a young Han Solo first met Xaverri. The Chance Castle was also the destination of Bria Lavval – a.k.a. Bria Tharen – who was nearly captured by Boba Fett on the Queen of Empire. (THG, RD)

Chance Cube
this six-sided die is used by gamblers to randomly decide the outcome of a wager. The randomness of the cube is variable, as many gamblers will weigh one side heavier than the others to influence the outcome. By coloring the sides in two, three, or six unique colors, the odds of a specific outcome can be increased or decreased. (SW1)

Chandaar
this planet is the capital world of the Cronese Mandate, and is often referred to as the Jewel of the Tion. (ML)

Chandra Hobat
this Ithorian, a resident of the moon Dayark, was elected by the peoples of the Kathol Republic to serve as president of the Republic. She was elected shortly before Moff Sarne fled Kal'Shebbol, and was later re-elected to the position. She ruled with a easy hand, her policies centered on maontaining the agricultural and social status of the Republic in the Kathol Outback. Hobat was quietly supporting the New Republic, which angered her chief rival, Sho'ban Do, who felt she was dooming the Republic. When Uta T'cha and Sal Olbeg provided information to the crew of the FarStar about Sho'bn Do's treacherous plot to create an army of droids, she was able to defeat his faction and return the Republic to order. She also freed the crew of the FarStar to leave the Republic. (KO)

Chandran Disaster
this event was a huge earthquake that destroyed much of the Chadra-Fan civilization about ten years before the Battle of Yavin. (MTS)

Chandril Tech
this corporation manufactured droid communications packages. (DW)

Chandrila
the homeworld of Mon Mothma and Dev Sibwarra, Chandrila is a forested world broken by grassy plains and urban centers. A naturally beautiful world, Chandrila has two continents surrounded by vast oceans. Located in the Bormea Sector of the Core Systems, it was one of the few worlds that openly opposed Palpatine's New Order. When Mon Mothma defected from the New Order and formed the Alliance, there was no immediate retaliation on Chandrila, although tariffs and taxes grew over the years until the inhabitants began anticipating it. The birthrate among the native human population was lower than that of te rest of the galaxy, and so children were considered very special to them. According to Rebellion, Chandrila is located in Sesswenna Sector. (DA, SWSB, TB, SWAJ, REB, RSG, HR)

Chandrila
this New Republic CR90 Corvette was part of the force sent to liberate the planet Ciutric from the control of Prince-Admiral Krennel. It supported the flagship Emancipator, along with several other Corvettes and a trio of Nebulon-B frigates. (IR)

Chandrila Moon
Leia Organa Solo used this Marketta-class shuttle to travel to Bastion during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. She hoped to meet with Gilead Pellaeon and convince the Imperial that the Vong posed as much of a threat to them as to the New Republic. It was escorted to Bastion by the Victory-class Star Destroyer Protector. (DTR)

Chandrillan Academy of Sciences this educational institution was located on Chandrila. (AIR)

Chang
a member of Elscol Loro's resistance movement on Cilpar. (XWRS)

Changing
this was the Yuuzhan Vong term for reincarnation. (DTR)

Changing Ceremony
a coming-of-age ceremony for the Melodies of Yavin 8. When a Melodie reaches the age of twenty, they return to a special pool on the moon where they remain until they change to adults. The process can take weeks, during which time the Melodie is susceptible to any form of attack. The transformation involves the growing of gills and a tail, turning the Melodie from a land-based creature to a water-breather. (LW)

Channe Dar
the Alliance Intelligence officer who discovered an espionage droid in operation on Gaulus. (RASB)

Channel
an Imperial shuttle used during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Channel, The
this was the name of a specialized obstacle used in swoopchasing. The Channel was a full-enclosed portion of the race course, and was filled with a maze of turns, sharp inclines, and sudden drops which a rider had to negotiate. Once inside the Channel, a rider was forced to find his way out. There were many possible paths through the Channel, but the easier ones were often booby-trapped. (BSS)

Channel 1
this HoloNet frequency can only be opened by three bodies of the New Republic: the Ruling Council, the President, and the Fleet High Command. The channel is used to announce important messages to all HoloNet nodes, and preempts any other holographic transmissions. Nil Spaar once infiltrated Channel 1 as part of his plot to overthrow the New Republic. (BTS)

Channel 11
this HoloNet frequency is used by the New Republic Senate. (BTS)

Channel 81
this HoloNet frequency is the diplomatic channel, used to send out information on governmental proceedings to various embassies throughout the galaxy. It was used by Nil Spaar, during the Black Fleet Crisis, to transmit illegal announcements of his struggle with Leia Organa-Solo. Spaar twisted the truth and presented it in such a way that much of the Senate began to question Leia's abilities to control the Republis. (BTS, TT)

Chanzari
a den of Selonians allied with the Hunchuzuc Republicists. (SC)

Chaos
according to Naboo mythology, this deity wreaked havoc upon the world until it was confined behind six impenetrable gates. Later, the power generator within the Theed Palace was protected by six energy gates, in reference to the myth of Chaos. (IWE1)

Chaos Fighter
a generic term used to describe the small, maneuverable craft used by the Krath. (DLS)

Chaos Troops
term used to describe the Krath's team of suicide pilots. These troops have been warped by Satal Keto's teachings, and believe that their mission is to fly their starfighters into the opposing force's ships. They become, in effect, living missiles, as their ships crash into their opponents like firy human missiles. (DLS)

Charal
a Nightsister witch stranded on Endor, she was in league with Terak the Marauder. Charal thought Terak was trying to find a way to rule the planet, and wanted to be part of it. She had long, black hair, and wore a tight-fitting set of armor. She also bore a magic ring that allowed her to change her shape at will. She preferred to assume the shape of a raven and scout the forests, but also appeared as a beautiful blond maiden in an effort to capture Cindel Towani. She overheard Cindel singing a song to Noa, a song that her mother used to sing. Charal used the song to lure Cindel into her grasp, and took the child to Terak, in an effort to learn the secret of the crystal oscillator. She rides a great black stallion. When Terak ordered the Marauders to recapture the crystal oscillator taken from them by Cindel, he ordered Charal to assume her raven form. However, he also took her magic ring from her, preventing her from changing back into a human and escaping from his power. Unfortunately for Charal, the ring was destroyed - along with Terak - when Wicket destroyed the ring with a stone. Charal was stuck in raven form from then on. Charal was portrayed by Sian Phillips in Ewoks: The Battle for Endor*. Her incarnation as the blond maiden was portrayed by Marianne Horine in the film.* (BFE, ISU)

Charbote
a plant whose roots are edible. Corellians enjoy the soggy vegetables, but they are about the only people who do! (DA)

Chardaan Shipyards
this zero-gravity starship construction site was employed by the Alliance for the construction of the A-Wing starfighgter. Following the Battle of Endor, the shipyards were destroyed by Colonel Cronus. The orbital site produced nearly all varieties of Republic starfighters before it was attacked. The shipyards held their own against Cronus' fleet, taking out two Victory-class Star Destroyers and driving the fleet away. (DS, CCG11)

Charde
this refreshing beverage is best served cold. (SOL)

Charenthoth
a planet whose distant sun provides only enough light to keep it alive, causing the planet to appear constantly darkened. (RASB)

Charger
1) a senior Starfighter Command officer on the Independence during Keyan Farlander's training. (XW)
2) this man was the leader of Charger's Irregulars. He and the group wandered the Outer Rim looking for beings who needed to hire a group of mercenaries on short notice. Charger himself was a tightly-wound spring on the battlefield, shouting orders and running between battle sites. During negotiations with potential employers, however, he was soft-spoken and polite. (PSG)

Charger
the Nharwaak CR90 Corvette group which attempted to stop the Habeen from selling hyperdrive technology to Admiral Zaarin and the Empire. The corvettes were captured by the Empire. (TIE)

Charger's Irregulars
this mercenary group was led by a man named Charger, and worked in the Outer Rim Territories during the height of the New Order. (PSG)

Chariot
this Imperial Victory-class Star Destroyer was deployed to the Minos Cluster during the Galactic Civil War. It was the largest ship in the Imperial fleet there, but was sorely lacking in armament. Only a few dozen turbolasers and 68 concussion missile tubes were operable at any given time, and the ship itself was constantly undergoing repairs to its aging hyperdrive. The Chariot was supported by an escort carrier, an Imperial transport ship, and a pair of customs vessels. (GG6)

Chariot
1) Uulsho's LAVr QH-7 repulsorlift command speeder. (DFR, ISB)
2) a large, heavily-armored Mobquet landspeeder. It is often used by political figures who fear assassination. It is nearly as large a a B-Wing fighter. (POT)

Chariot Light Assault Vehicle (CLAV)
an Imperial landspeeder modified for military use, it can carry up to three crew members. It is well-armored, which makes it slower than an ordinary landspeeder. (HTTE, SWSB)

Charkarr
this is a species of fat-bodied avian native to the jungles of Kashyyyk. (TT)

Charm Signing
developed on the planet Coruscant, charm signing is a communication method that uses hand signals. Confined to the wealthier families and, later, those with close ties to the Imperial bureaucracy, charm singing involved a series of hand motions to convey a message. In the aftermath of the Battle of Endor, charm signing was used almost exclusively by supporters of the New Order. Many of the New Republic's supporters feared that it would simply become another way for beings to miscommunicate with each other. (SOC)

Charmath
site of a vast University dedicated to the study of the galaxy's history. Arhul Hextraphon did some research there into Yoda's background for his work, Official History of the Rebellion, Volume One. After meeting with Yoda on Dagobah, Hextraphon wiped out all records of Yoda's existence from the University's computer in order to preserve his anonymity and keep the hope for the Alliance alive. (SWSB)

Charnoq
this predatory reptile is native to the planet Maridun, and is the only creature feared by the Amanin race. The charnoq is known for its climbing and leaping abilities. (GG12)

Charon
a race of arachnids that originated in a star system which was being consumed by a black hole within the realm known as Otherspace. This proximity to a black hole, coupled with the destruction wrought by the hole gave rise to a Charon death cult. The cult was a small, yet dangerous entity until the Charon developed the sublight drive. After that, the leaders of the cult began spreading their beliefs, and were able to destroy life on their homeworld as well as nearby worlds. The destruction of all life - and eventually their own - will bring the Charon in touch with the Void, which they believe is the natural progression of all beings. Under the direction of Ber'asco, who believed himself to be the Final Prophet, the Charon wiped out all life in Otherspace, but still could not become one with the Void. When the Alliance transport Celestial was deposited into Otherspace, the Charon realized that the abundance of life in realspace stood between them and the Void. Their initial attempt at entering realspace, with the help of Bane Nothos and Grand Moff Ravik, failed when Alliance agents attempted to rescue the crew of the Celestial and escaped back into realspace. (OS, GG4)

Charon Battle Armor
this strange body protection system was devised by the Charon bioscientists. It is composed of the same organic stone used to create the starship Desolate, and is powerful and deadly. It can be molded to fit a specific individual, and can be formed into clubs and knives which protrude from the basic armor. Often, a plasma cannon is added to augment the defensive capabilities of the armor. The biosensing technology built into the armor gives it the ability to acquire targets which are obscured by the environment. (OS, OS2)

Charon Bioscientist
this is one of the three basic Charon subspecies. These arachnoids are smaller than their counterparts, the warriors, and have slower reaction. However, they are much more agile than warriors. They are differentiated from the warriors by the brightly-colored cilia that cover their forelegs. The bioscientists have perfected a method for creating biological constructs which lack free will and vitality of other lifeforms. (OS)

Charon Starfighter
this small starship resembles a clump of rock maneuvering through space. The Charon designed these warships from the same biotechnology which created the Desolate. These starfighters have a bulbous main section, with a pair of thick, rounded wings extended outward. They are not capable of entering hyperspace. They are armed with a tri-laser pulse cannon, and have minimal shielding. (OS)

Charon Warrior
this is one of the three Charon subspecies, along with the bioscientists and the Leader, Ber'asco. They are much more like spiders than the others, with eigth legs which can be used as arms or legs. They often travel in an upright position, and their dark exoskeletons allow them to move with stealth in darkened areas. It is the warrior class that has fervently joined the death cult, killing millions of beings on the thousands of worlds in Otherspace. (OS)

Charros IV
this planet served as the base of operations for the Xi Char order. (X1)

Charric
this is the basic Chiss sidearm, which has several levels of power settings, similar to a blaster. They leave a more intense burn mark than a standard blaster. (VOF)

Chartash
this abundant Adumari grain is the primary ingredient in their basic alcohols. It can be fermented into a hard liquor or an ale. (SOA)

Charubah
a highly technological world, part of the Hapan System. (CPL)

Charza Kwinn
this male Priapulin was the starship captain of the Star Sea Flower, and was often employed by the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic whenver they needed to be transported in relative anonymity. The Jedi considered him one of the best pilots in the galaxy, praise he never failed to earn. Charza was entrusted by Thracia Cho Leem to carry Vergere to Zonama Sekot. A year later, Charza carried Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker to the same planet, in an effort to discover her whereabouts. Charza flew his ship against the force dispatched by Wilhuff Tarkin, who wanted to take control of Zonama Sekot and present it to Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. Charza and his food-kin and helpers barely escaped, and managed to return to Coruscant. However, as Palpatine grew in power and the New Order was established as the galactic government, Charza found himself getting less and less work from the Jedi. Following the Jedi Purge, Charza was forced into working as a smuggler in order to make ends meet. (RP)

Chasa
this hulking man owned and operated a bar on the planet Dolis 3, which was the favored hangout of Banner Sumptor and his Imperial friends during New Republic. (U)

Chasdy, Baydo
known simply as "Bay" to his friends, this man was known to be a gambler, con man, swindler, and cheat, not to mention grifter and liar. He readily admitted that he was all these and more, and spent his life looking for new ways to gamble and new women to hit on. He turned himself into a semi-respectable businessman when he purchased the HyperDive Cantina, located in Calamari's Wildwater City, but he rarely was seen at the establishment. He left the day-to-operations to Lliegis'Nevz, his Kian'thar bartender. Unknown to most everyone, Chasdy was also an Alliance Special Operations foster agent, and his regular absence from the HyperDive was due mainly to the rescue and placement of orphaned field agents. He used his personal ship, the Chaser, to move them around. (WSV)

Chase, Lowen
this New Republic starfighter pilot was captured in Kathol Sector by the forces of Moff Sarne, some two years after the Battle of Endor. Chase was a natural leader and was highly qualified as a pilot and tactician. He was imprisoned at Q'Maere, and managed to thwart all efforts at interrogation. Doctor Kraay's efforts to draw out information left Lowen in a near-schizophrenic state, and Lowen developed paranoid and egomaniacal personalities. During his imprisonment, Lowen fell in love with Corla Unser, but both agreed to hold off on forming a lasting relationship until they escaped. Their chance came when the crew of the FarStar put into Q'Maere to restock its food stores. It was Lowen who led the crew to Keleman Ciro's cell, and then helped foment a prison riot which allowed the prisoners and the FarStar's crew to escape from Doctor Kraay. He joined the crew of the FarStar, initially proving to be a leader to the prisoners rescued from Q'Maere. However, his "treatments" while at Q'Maere soon caught up with him, and he became more and more paranoid. He argued constantly with Captain Adrimetrum, and Chase's mental instability grew deeper. When Captain Adrimetrum promoted Scoryn ahead of Chase, his mind snapped and he ordered a full mutiny of the crew and prisoners. The mutiny was successful, but Chase was eventually captured and forced to stand down. Captain Adrimetrum remanded him to the ship's medical facilities in an effort to rehabilitate his mind. (KR)

Chaser
this gorset was a pet of Denel Moonrunner. (SWJ13)

Chaser
this was the name of Baydo Chasdy's modified YT-1300 transport ship. Bay had the ready section removed in order to mount huge triple-engine power plant, then added a pair of curved plates to the upper hull of the ship, giving an organic appearance. The cockpit of the Chaser was mounted between the forward mandibles, and was round in shape. The ship was armed with a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons and a heavy quad-laser cannon. (WSV)

Chasers
located within Exovar's Emporium, on the planet Neftali, this relaxation chamber was known as a "home away from home" for bounty hunters. (WSV)

Chassu, Venthan
this Corellian artist was known for his Selonian nudes, which portrayed their sleek, muscular forms while hiding their faces in a representation of their desire for privacy. He was also the artist responsible for Palpatine Triumphant. (TFE)

Chateuse VII
this planet's population was fragmented into several warring factions. It applied to the fledgling New Republic for help in resolving the on-going disputes, and Leia Organa was dispatched on a fact-finding mission to the planet. (GMH)

Chatham House
Bail Organa's residence in Imperial City, while he lived on Coruscant. (XW)

Chatty
a smuggler acquaintence of Oso Nim's, Chatty has a false eye that is yellowing with age. (COJ)

Chattza
a clan of extremely violent Rodians, they became the dominant clan when Navik the Red rose to power. The Chattza nearly eliminated the Tetsus clan, which fled twice to escape it. (TME)

ChaumScanner 5
this was a model of poison detection unit developed by zZip. It could be used to detect the presence of dangerous substances in food or water. (CRO)

Chav
a drink with a euphoric taste. It was often served hot. (DESB, KR)

Chawkroft
this Imperial noble Lady was a member of the Imperial Correctional Facilities Ministry. She was a special projects consultant, and worked with Ilm Vaz-Weplinn on the design and construction of the Stars' End facility. She negotiated with the Corporate Sector Authority to franchise Stars' End for Imperial use, and worked to finialize details on the stasis booths and the overall Stars' End blueprints. (CSA)

Chay Praysh
this Drach'nam ran a slaver consortium from a base on Torpris, during the early years of the New Republic. He was known for his intense hatred of women, especially humans, and kept those that he captured in the slimepits of his base on Torpris. He preferred to be called by the title "First Greatness," something that rankled his competitors. His subordinates were also known as Greatnesses, with ordinals identifying their position within Praysh's organization. The slimepits housed thousands of krizar pupae, which Praysh grew and nurtured for use in guarding his fortress. The women were forced to monitor the growth of the pupae and remove those which were ready to hatch. Any form of disobediance was met with several lashings of a neuronic whip, the weapon of choice for Praysh's Drach'nam guards. When Mara Jade came to Torpris in an effort to rescue Sansia Bardrin, Praysh had her enslaved like any other human female. The Togorian female H'sishi claimed that Mara was a Uoti Corporate spy, and managed to gain an audience with Praysh. In the midst of the discussion, H'sishi managed to return Mara's lightsaber to her, and Mara quickly eliminated Praysh's guards. Praysh himself managed to escape the brief struggle. However, the luxury yacht Winning Gamble - which Sansia had been flying when she was captured - contained detailed information on the defenses of Praysh' palace. This information was turned over to Luke Skywalker and the New Republic, which raided the fortress and rescued the slaves. Praysh himself was imprisoned for his crimes. (TFNR)

Chazrach
this species of stocky, reptilian humanoids had been conquered and enslaved by the Yuuzhan Vong centuries before the Battle of Yavin. They were intensely loyal, and several Chazrach had earned social elevation to the warrior caste for their bravery in combat. Quite often, the Yuuzhan Vong sent in swarms of Chazrach as the first wave of an assault, thereby saving the strength of the Yuuzhan Vong warriors in the succeeding waves. (DTR)

Chazwa
primary planet in the Chazwa system, also part of Thrawn's false clone traffic link. It is located in the Orus sector. (TLC)

Cheater
another kind of skifter used to alter sabacc cards, the cheater is a small, 4-centimeter disk which can be hidden in a shirt-sleeve. It can alter a card's value, or lock it in place. (LCM)

Checksum
one of Zorba the Hutt's audit droids on Cloud City. (QE)

Chedak
manufacturers of shipboard subspace radios. (SCRE)

Chedgar
this New Republic pilot was washed out of several squadrons before becoming a candidate for Wraith Squadron. Unfortunately, Chedgar felt that he was the victim of a conspiracy to keep him from flying again, and he didn't make the cut for the Wraiths. (WS)

Cheeb
a pack animal that lives in the oceans of Varn. They have been known to collectively attack the larger lossors to obtain food. (HSR)

Cheelit
this planet was ruled by Dohl during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWDW)

Cheever, Sprig
Twilit Hearth's husband, Sprig preferred to wear non-descript clothing to hide his true nature as a member of the underground movement in Il Avali. He was noticeable by his neat goatee. He and Twilit were the basis of a cantina band that often played at Happy's Landing, which was where he met Tinian I'att and Daye Azur-Jamin. Spring was the band's KeyBed player, and Twilit was the lead singer. When Tinian's grandparents were executed by Moff Kerioth, Sprig and Twilit helped her escape from Druckenwell by disguising her as the band's singer. Twilit remained behind to guard their escape. (SWJ10, TFE)

Chelah Voh
this Ho'Din female was a lifelong friend of Brinaloy N'Vaari. (ND)

Chell
Chokla's lover, Chell was also one of the Five. Chell was killed when Chewbacca escaped from the Menagerie and freed the Wuzzek. The Wuzzek had built up a strong hatred of the Five, and killed all of them one by one. (CSWDW)

Chelo
this Senator from the planet Gerrard V served in the Imperial Senate before it was disbanded by Emperor Palpatine. (SWAJ)

ChemDetect
this was the brand name of a series of field-use chemical sniffers produced by NeuroSaav. (ROE)

Chemeti
a group of Imperial starships operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Chempat
manufacturers of shipboard shield projectors. (SCRE)

Chemtrox
an extremely lethal form of gas used in chemical warfare, Chemtrox produces an incredibly horrible death. (TFNR)

Chenlambec
this silver-tipped brown Wookiee was one of the few who lived off the planet Kashyyyk during the New Order. Known as fierce and unrelentling, he was a bounty hunter and tracker by trade who only took dead-or-alive assignments and usually brought back proof of the deceased. Under this guise, many of the bounties which had ‘escaped’ him were secretted away on Alliance safeworlds. Chen - as he was called by his friends - was referred to as “the Raging Wookiee” to other Hunters. Chenlambec worn a bandoleer of black reptile skin, possibly as a warning to Trandoshans who would try to kill him for sport. Chenlambec was forced to flee Kashyyyk after he killed an Imperial officer who was beating a Wookiee child. He late rbefriended Tinian I’att and became her Ng’rhr, taking her in as his apprentice. The two worked well together, saving each other’s life many times while strengthening their friendship. They worked together for the chance to hunt down the Trandoshan Bossk, and eventually formed a loose relationship with the reptile during the hunt for Han Solo following the Battle of Hoth. (TBH, SWJ10)

Chepat
manufacturers of starship shielding systems. (IJ)

Chepatite
an impact explosive. (TFE)

Cheran, Viera
this woman was known to the members of Rogue Squadron as "Chief" during the last years of the Galactic Civil War. She served as the squadron's chief technician, and was stationed on the moon of Kile shortly after the Battle of Hoth. There, she ensured that the squadron was ready for the attempt to recover Han Solo's body from Boba Fett. It was during this time that she was approached by an operative who offered her 10,000 credits to ensure Luke Skywalker was killed. (SESB)

Cherek
this is the first combination symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic combination "ch". (SWM)

Cherfer
this dim-witted yet vicious herd predator was native to the deserts of the planet Elom. Measuring up to 1.5 meters tall at the shoulder, cherfers are born aggressive and continue to become meaner as they mature. Cherfers are equine in stature, with muscular bodies covered by rough, brought-colored fur. Their heads are dominate by elongated snouts which are covered by a bony plate that continues to grow as the cherfer ages. They hunt in groups known as vlaktors by the Elomin, taking down their prey in a swift stampede. (SOP, COG)

Cherioer
this Wookiee was one of many free beings who were wanted by the Empire for rebellious activity. A 25,000-credit bounty was placed on Cherioer's head, established because of his assistance to the Alliance throughout Zaric Sector during the Galactic Civil War. It was believed that Cherioer agreed to transport Malindin Gevarak away from Imperial entanglements, further deepening the bounty on his head. (GG10)

Cherishites
this was the name of a quasi-religious sect which settled the planet Rhamalai some 400 years before the Battle of Yavin. They believed in living simply, in harmony with the planet. Subsequent generations established laws to protect those beliefs. The original 500 colonists were considered dissidents of the Old Republic, and chose to settle only a small part of Rhamalai as an experiment in communal living. After the advent of the New Order, they began working toward establishing a planetary government, but their efforts were cut short when the Empire first established an outpost on the planet. Shortly afterward, Rhamalai was subjugated, and one male from each family was conscripted into Imperial service. (SWJ13)

Chertyl Ruluwoor
this sterile female Selonian was sent to the Corellian Security Force for cross-training, as a sort of cultural exchange. She was in CorSec about the time Corran Horn was serving. Chertyl was tall - nearly 2 meters or more - and had short, dark black fur that flashed silvery-blue in the right light. When it came time for the annual Awards Ball, the Corellian humans had targetted her as the winner of their annual pool. This pool chose the least-likely female to get a date for the ball, and "awarded" her to the winner of the pool. Corran liked Chertyl, and secretly bought up all the pool tickets, claiming that she would steal the hearts of the other officers. Thus, he won the pool, and got to take Chertyl to the Ball. He showed her the time of her life. Although she was infertile, she wasn't incapable, as Corran found out following the Ball. They shared a wonderful evening in each others' arms, but the morning brought a startling revelation. Chertyl's flesh actually began to burn from contact with Corran's acidic sweat, and Corran discovered he was allergic to her fur. They were forced to cut off their physical relationship, but remained friends from then on. (WG)

Chesko, Tem
a cargo hauler whose ship was hit by an asteroid and disabled in the depths of space. He had no companionship for almost ten years before discovering the droid MILL-247-EE onboard. She kept his mind off the woman he loved, and together they drifted through space until they found a habitable planet. There, Chesko grew old and withered. MILL-247-EE kept him company, and when his heart gave out, she donated her own mechanical heart to him. (SWG)

Chessa
this companion of Dirk Harkness was killed by Imperial stormtroopers on Kelada. The stormtroopers believed she was part of a rebel cell, and opened fire on Chessa and her companions. Chessa and Dirk had formed a loving relationship over the years, and she often sang songs for him. Her death hardened Dirk's resolve to punish the Empire, and he struck out at Imperial forces any way he could. (SWJ1, TFNR)

Chev
this humanoid race is native to the planet Vinsoth, but have been subjugated by the Chevin. They resemble pale-skinned, violet-eyes humans, but there are many physical differences. Chief among them is the fact the Chevs have two hearts. Also known as Chevin Humanoids, Chevs have been known to live as long as 300 years. Chevin have taken to dying the short, coarse hair of their Chev slaves to indicate ownership. They have nimble fingers and muscular bodies, and have the ability to learn complex technologies. The Chev race has been enslaved for so long that most forget the reasons for their enslavement and simply accept it. However, recent generations have begun looking for ways to defeat their Chevin masters. Some Chevs have left Vinsoth to pursue careers in business elsewhere. These Chevs as respected in their circles, and seem confident. (GG12)

Chevappa
this clan of Wookiees supported Attichituck and Chewbacca. (C)

Chevin
a race of elephant-like humanoids from the planet Vinsoth. They have long heads sit at the end of a thick neck that curves downward, allowing them to forage for food without having to bend over. Some have large facial tusks which impede their vocal abilities. Chevin have thick, grey skin that allows them to tolerate a wide range of temperatures. They are adroit hunters, working in teams to corner their prey. They have dominated the planet Vinsoth, and have enslaved the Chevs. Many Chevin villages wander across the surface of the planet, migrating with the seasons to maintain food supplies and avoiding harsh weather. The Chevin leadership supported the New Order during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (GG12, ROTJ)

Chevram
this is the Snivvian ruling council. Members are elected to the Chevram every twelve Snivvian years, and a new executive ruler is chosen from its ranks each year. (GG12)

Chewbacca
Born on Kashyyyk around 183 PE, Chewbacca (Chewie, for short) grew up without a great deal of human intervention. He excelled the various hand-to-hand combat skills a Wookiee is taught, and also gained a great deal of mechanical aptitude. At the age of 80 (WEG has him leaving at age 50, SCRE at 80), he left Kashyyyk to explore the stars. For 60 years (WEG says 140, SCRE says 60 years), he answered to no one but himself, until the Empire declared Wookiees a slave commodity. Chewie captured as a rogue Wookiee and imprisoned, where her heard about the Imperial mandate, and he spent the next 30 years doing hard labor in the Empire's slave camps. Note that this assumes the Empire existed for more than 30 years, which is debatable. Chewie was doomed to a short life when he was rescued by an Imperial Navy trainee named Han Solo. Chewie claimed a lifedebt to Han, and the two fled Imperial observation and began living underground as smugglers. Chewie's physical strength and mechanical abilities made him a formidable partner, and he and Han had many adventures during the 15 years prior to taking on Obi-Wan Kenobi and Luke Skywalker for passage to Alderaan. Chewie's actions in rescuing Princess Leia and helping Han Solo give Luke some breathing room during the Battle of Yavin earned him a commendation from the Alliance. His life-debt to Han Solo kept Chewie active. Following Han's need to repay Jabba the Hutt, he continued to help the Alliance, becoming a part of the ground assault team that disabled the shield generator on Endor's Sanctuary moon, allowing the Alliance to destroy the second Death Star. Following the formation of the New Republic and Han's resignation from the Republic, Chewie and Han continued to assist the Republic as pilots, and Chewie was forced to expand his hnor family to include Princess Leia following her marriage to Han Solo. Chewie's family continued to grow after the births of Jaina, Jacen, and Anakin Solo. Chewie became a guardian of Jacen and Jaina after their return from Anoth, but the siblings eluded him and got lost in the underground of Imperial City. Chewie and C-3PO managed to find them. On a vacation flight to Kessel with Han, Chewie and Han were shot down over the planet and forced to work in the spice mines. Their escape led them to the Maw Installation, and a group of Wookiee slaves still under Imperial domination. After convincing the Republic's leaders that they needed to establish an occupation of the Installation, Chewie also lobbied for the Republic to rescue the enslaved Wookiees. He was granted permission to accompany the occupation team and free the Wookiees. He was successful in rescuing the Wookiees, and helped get them out of the Installation before Daala destroyed it. Even though Han retired from active duty to spend time with his family, Chewbacca never left his side. His life-debt to Han had grown to encompass the entire Solo family. During the initial stages of Yuuzhan Vong invasion, Han, Anakin, and Chewbacca were on Sernpidal, helping Lando Calrissian with a shipment. They were on the planet when the Yuuzhan Vong used a dovin basal to draw the moon Dobido into an impact trajectory with Sernpidal, and were assisting with the evacuation effort when Anakin and Chewie were trapped on stony outcropping. Recognizing that Dobido was going to crash any second, Chewbacca flung Anakin onto the landing ramp of the Millennium Falcon, ensuring Anakin's survival. When Han realized Chewie didn't get onboard, he ordered Anakin to fly back while he searched for Chewie. Anakin, torn between his love for Chewie and the cargo hold full of refugees, was forced to retreat before the Falcon was destroyed. Chewbacca died on Sernpidal while giving the highest service to his life-debt. Han grieved for a long time before he could come to grips with the realization that Anakin hadn't killed Chewie, but that the Wookiee had saved them all. Chewbacca was portrayed by Peter Mayhew in all three Star Wars films. (SW, ESB, ROTJ, HTTE, VP) this was the name given to the stone-crushing machinery which was used to break up the surface of a planet in order to extract and refine the soil for terraforming. (BP)

Chewer

Chewstick
this snackfood was like gum, and could be flavored any number of ways. (OE)

Chi Wave
this sport is available on many luxury cruise ships. (RM)

Chichak
this hyper-active Gerb was the first of his kind to meet the members of the Fernandin Scouting Expedition who were looking for a new location for Wetyin's Colony. (GG2)

Chickatili
this species of lagomorph was native to the planet Berea, and was named for its peculiar mating calls. (TBSB)

Chid
this man was a chef on board one of the luxury cruise ships owned by Tinta Lines. He considered himself enough of an artist to go by one name, and he taught Corran Horn a number of things about how to prepare and serve food. (IJ)

Chidee Na Maak
this Duros worked as a starship mechanic on Starforge Station, and was the son of the original founders of the StarForge Shipyard. He assumed ownership of the Shipyard when his parents died, and continued their tradition of excellent workmanship at a premium price, assuring him of a healthy profit. During the early years of the Galactic Civil War, his skills in repairing the YT-1210 were well-known to the galaxy's smugglers and shippers. Chidee once offered Chewbacca a huge sum of money to work for him, rather than stick with Han Solo, but the Wookiee refused. (XWM, PP)

Chidinka
a plant native to the planet Kirdo, chidinka reeds are hollowed out by the Kitonak and used as musical instruments. (GG4)

Chidinkalu
a Kitonak musical instrument formed from the hollowed-out reeds of the chidinka plant. (GG4)

Chiewab Amaglamated Pharmaceuticals Company
one of the original Signatory Sponsor of the Corporate Sector Authority, CAPC owns nearly 600 systems in the Corporate Sector. The conglomerate produces medical, chemical, and pharmaceutical products, and specializes in deriving new products from materials found on unexplored worlds. (CSA)

Chiewab Nutrition
this subsidiary of Chiewab Amaglamated Pharmaceuticals Company produces products that supplement the daily nutritional requirements of many different species. (CSA)

Chiffonage, Beryl
a noted Alliance tactician, Beryl was a Lieutenant Colonel in the Alliance military and a valued member of the Alliance's command team. Her expertiuse was in developing attack and defense patterns for individual Alliance bases of operations. It was Beryl who worked with Luke Skywalker to develop the tactical maneuvers used by Rogue Squadron to combat the Imperial AT-AT walkers that invaded the Hoth Echo Base. (RASB, AIR)

Chiilak
these huge, six-limbed creatures are native to the glacial regions of the moon Misnor, where they grow heights of over two meters. Chiilaks are more than a match for Wookiees in strength, and are excellent swimmers. Their upper four limbs are used as arms, and their hands have a thick middle digit and two smaller, opposable fingers. Their feet are clawed , and all six "paws" are webbed for use in swimming. Their pelts are thick, providing protection from the cold environment in which they exist. Generally white in coloration, chiilaks tend darken in color as they age. They are omnivorous, and will eat just about anything they can catch. Hunting of chiilaks was allowed under Imperial aw, but actually surviving the hunt and returning with a chiilak pelt was never a foregone conclusion. (COG)

Chiithii'n
a Sullustan Lieutenant Commander in the Alliance, he was rescued by Keyan Farlander and the Rescue shuttle group. (XW)

Chikarri
this race of man-sized, squirrel-like creatures is native to the planet Plagen. They are highly-intelligent, and are known to be extremely thrift. Jokes up and down the Enarc Run say that a Chikarri's wealth was described by the age and patching of their clothing. Chikarri are also known to be kleptomaniacs, and not very brave. It was the Chikarri who sold port rights to Plagen to the Klatooinan Trade Guild, bringing a galaxy's worth of trade to their world. (TSK, AE)

Chikkel Atik binmett nikk jchimmen kha
this Jawa saying loosely translated into Basic as, "Follow the Bantha to water, but watch where you step." (SWJ12)

Chikra
this is a term used by Gorb Drig as a nickname for Mara Jade. It is a Houk word that is used as a term of endearment for small Houk children. (MJEH)

Child Conquerer
this nickname is used to describe Faarl the Conquerer, who was only nineteen at the height of his power. (WBC)

Child of Winds
this young Qom Qae was the first of his kind to encounter Luke Skywalker, when the Jedi Master arrived on Nirauan to search for Mara Jade. He offered to enlist the aid of the Qom Jha in Luke's search, but his father, Hunter of Winds, objected. Child of Winds opted to disobey his father and help Luke, after the Jedi indicated that Mara was a good friend who needed his help. The young Qom Qae continued to be invaluable, persuading the Qom Jha to help and helping Luke and Mara move around the compound by carrying them. When he learned that the Threateners would leave the Qom Qae and Qom Jha alone if Luke and Mara left and the Chiss were ignored, Child of Winds returned to his nesting to bring this news to his father. Hunter of Winds bargained with Eater of Fire Creepers, and the two resolved to work together in the future. Mara then gave Child of Winds a potential adult name, "Friend of Jedi." (VOF)

Child-Pattern
known as a CP, the child-pattern is a projection of what the offspring of two Bith would become. Generated by the Computer Mating Service, a Bith's DNA is compared to that of a dozen possible mates in order to determine the best possible matches. (GG4)

Childermoss, Vor
this tyrannical leader of the Exalted Torcaigne pursued Han Solo and Leia Organa after they fled from Attahox, where they became trapped within the Hellhoop. They were captured, and Vor sneered at Suzal's apparent lack of power. He attempted to shoot the leader of the Five, but Mavin stepped in with his black fireclaw. He shot Leelu and Childermoss in the blink of an eye. (CSWDW)

Children of Najiba
this is the name given to the asteroids which surround the planet Najiba. The reason behind the asteroid belt's formation has never been discovered. (TFE)

Children of the Fountain
this name is used by the Klatooinan race to describe itself. It refers to the fact that the Klatooinan culture is based on the premises of endurance and strength exemplified by the Fountain of the Ancients. (GG12)

Childsen, Shann
this Imperial Lieutenant served on the first Death Star. He was known as a bully by his fellow officers, and was demoted after a superior blamed him for a clerical error. He was an ardent believer in the New Order's anti-alien policies, which assisted in his selection as a security officer. He was in command of detention block AA-23 on the Death Star when Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Chewbacca infiltrated the area to rescue Princess Leia. He was killed in the firefight. (CCG2)

Chilla
his woman was an Alliance agent, working undercover at The Rusty Bucket tavern on Iyuta, in preparation for the launch of Operation Retribution. After the Rusty Bucket burned down, Chilla moved into a position with The Giant Step on the Strip. She was captured by Imperial agents, but was eventually rescued by the Alliance agents who were on Iyuta to destroy the communications center in Takari. (SWCP)

Chiller
an Alliance Corvette destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Chimaera
this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer commanded by Captain Pellaeon. It was used as Grand Admiral Thrawn's flagship, after Thrawn returned from the Unknown Regions to take control of the Empire some five years after the Battle of Endor. It is a ship which has survived numerous battles, most notably the Battle of Endor and the Battles of Sluis Van and Bilbringi. After Thrawn's death, Pellaeon retained command of the Chimaera, and used it as the command ship of the remaining Imperial fleet. After the resolution of the

Caamas Incident and the discredting of Moff Disra and Grodin Tierce, the Chimaera served as the site of the peace negotiations between Pellaeon and New Republic President Gavrisom. (HTTE, TLC, HTSB, VOF)

Chimbak Wine
this vintage was produced on the planet Alderaan during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RP)

Chin
a member of Talon Kaarde's crew, and the handler of Kaarde's vornskrs. He was first people to figure out the ysalamiri could be removed from their trees and maintained on portable racks. He is a native of Myrkr, and was in command of Kaarde's operations there. He wore a Froffli-style haircut. (HTTE)

Chin-harp
a musical instrument developed by the Weequay,the chin-harp uses a specially-activated chord hammer to create sounds. (TFNR)

Chine
see Zelosian's Chine. (TFNR)

Chine-kal
this Yuuzhan Vong commander was in charge of the Creche', the yammosk ship which took on prisoners from Gyndine to help nurture a newborn yammosk. Chine-kal was distinguished by his clothing, which depicted and - in the case of the raptor in his turban and his strangely organic cape - was made up of animals. When he discovered that one of his captured slaves was actually Wurth Skidder, Chine-kal hoped to attain favor with Tsavoong Lah and the Yuzhan Vong leadership by presenting the Jedi to them. However, the Creche' was attacked at Kalarba by Kyp's Dozen, and Chine-kal was forced to flee. He headed for Fondor, hoping to meet up with the main fleet and rescue the yammosk on board. Instead, Kyp's small squadron followed them to Fondor and infiltrated the Creche'. They arrived too late to save Skidder, but managed to kill the yammosk and defeat Chine-kal. Chine-kal remained aboard the dying ship, but was killed when the blast from Centerpoint Station ripped through the Fondor System and incinerated the Creche'. (JE)

Chinesti
Mirith Sinn tried to mislead Carnor Jax by telling him that Kir Kanos had fled to his city, located on the planet Phaeda, after Colonel Shev's troops failed to capture Kanos. Jax knew she was lying about Kanos' location, and tortured her further to get more information. (CE)

Chinshassa
this city, located on the planet Shalyvane, was a center of Alliance activity during the Galactic Civil War. It was here that Darth Vader placed Shira Brie, so that she could infiltrate the Alliance. (SWG)

Chintassa Grass
a thin grass that is often seasoned and boiled as a food source. (XW)

Chip
a small, silver droid who is programmed to look after the young boy Ken, Chip is about 1.5 meters tall. He is programmed to keep Ken safe and out of trouble, but is often unable to do so. The name Chip is a shortened form of Microchip. (LCJ)

Chip Missile
this was the generic term for any weapon which used non-warhead projectiles, such as the MerrSonn PLX-2M launcher. (IR)

Chir'daki
1) this Twi'leki term is translated into Basic as "deathseed." These small spores come from a parasitic fungus, and they invade a victim and destroy it from within. (BW)
2) this starfighter design was created by the Twi'leki race, and was named after the spore of a parasitic fungus. They are just as lethal as the deathseed spore they are named for. Hyperdrive-equipped and powered by twin ion engines at sublight speeds, the Chir'daki have maneuverable wings powered by small S-foils. They are armed with quad laser cannons, but proton torpedoes were optional because of their shortage during the early years of the New Republic. (BW)

Chiraneau
this former TIE Fighter pilot was promoted by Admiral Piett to the rank of Admiral, shortly before Piett recruited him to serve as the deep-space communications expert aboard the Executor during the Battle of Endor. Like the rest of the crew of the Executor, Chiraneau died when the ship crashed into the surface of the second Death Star. (CCG11)

Chirlan
this is the name given to the 19th of the 27 ranks of Tunroth Hunters. (GG12)

Chirloff
this humanoid was the head clown in Kersh Lauskener's Travelling Animal/Acrobatic Arcadium. He was responsible for hiring and firing of the clown ranks. (GCQ)

Chirome
head Chef aboard the Kuari Princess. (RPG, RM)

Chirpa
this Ewok was the leader of his tribe's Council of Elders for forty-two seasons before the Battle of Endor. He was reluctant to believe the Alliance's ground assault team on Endor's forest moon, fearing them to be part of the Imperial force which was destroying their environment. However, after seeing C-3PO's magic and realizing their good intentions, Chirpa agreed to assist them in ridding the moon of the Imperial presence. He carried a staff made from the spine of a large lizard, and had a pet iguana. Chirpa was portrayed by Jane Busby in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi. (ROTJ, MTS, CCG10)

Chirq
this is a Corellian word that describes a bright shade of red. (IJ)

Chirr't Ferr
see Ch'irrk Felt (COG)

Chirrion Base
one of the 752 Imperial bases located in the Rolion Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB)

Chirru
a creature that can regenerate lost body parts. Popular fiction says they can even regenerate their own heads. (SE)

Chiru
this species of insect was native to the planet Socorro, and was known for its vicious nature. Named with the Socorran word for "deadly," the chiru was known to live in colonies of more than 100,000 individuals. They were attracted to vibrations, such as that of a starhip repulsorlift engine, and would swarm an unsuspecting traveler who went out into the desert in an unmuffled landspeeder. Their lifecycle was punctuated by the intense seasons experienced on Socorro. When the planet plunged into deep winter, huge portions of the chiru population were killed in the cold. Those that survived came out of hibernation as summer approached. The increasing heat triggered their mating instinct, and within months the colonies were fully populated again. (BSS)

Chiru
this Socorran term means "deadly." (BSS)

Chiss
this race of blue-skinned humanoids was from an unspecified planet in the Unknown Regions. They are all well-muscled and tall, with jet black hair and glowing red eyes. While their history has been marked by nearly continual warfare and conquest of other worlds, the Chiss are generally not violent. They prefer to extend themselves only from a defensive posture, and viewed the idea of a pre-emptive strike against an enemy as if it were murder. Within Chiss society, children matured very quickly, never truly having an adolescent period before becoming adults. Many of the scientists at the Astrographic Survey Institute believed that the Chiss were among the first races to come in contact with the Yuuzhan Vong, some fifty years before their initial invasion. They theorized that the Chiss understood the Vong's military power, and began augmenting their own war machine to prepare to repel an invasion fleet. Unfortunately, the Chiss remained isolated in the Unknown Regions, and wouldn't allow contact with the New Republic after the Battle of Ithor. (VOF, DTR, HT)

Chiss Expansionary Defense
this was the primary means of defense developed by the Chiss. Led by such commanders as Thrawn, it patrolled the Chiss sectors of the Unknown Regions in the years before the Clone Wars. (VOF)

Chitter
this large, blue-skinned, bird-like alien was studying at the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 when Anakin Solo first attended the academy. (LW)

Chitterweb
a raucous creature native to the moon Yavin 4. (JE)

Chituhr
an Ewok, and the animal trainer of the Jinda tribe. (ECAR)

Cho Leem, Thracia
this woman was a Jedi Master, and a contemporary of Mace Windu. She was easily distinguished by her close-cropped grey hair and her aquiline features, which offset her short stature. Her strength was in healing and in the training of female Jedi Knights, and often ignored male padawan candidates. She was often away from Coruscant on her own explorations, but was always aware of the progress of young Anakin Skywalker. In fact, she was one of the few Masters who chided the Jedi Council for being too stodgy to truly advance Anakin's training. However, in the aftermath of Vergere's disappearance and the discoveries found on the planet Zonama Sekot, she left the Order and disappeared herself. (RP)

Cho Nor Hoola
this dish was considered a Hutt delicacy. Many non-Hutts thought it tasted like cooked rubber. (SSR)

Cho P'qun
this New Republic Navy Engineering Chief served under Commander Zoalin aboard the Adamantine, and was killed on board the ship by the Death Seed plague. (POT)

Choah Belt
the Alliance maintained a fuel refinery in this asteroid system until shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The Empire discovered its location and destroyed it, forcing the Alliance to try and hijack the Black Ice. (BI)

Choarn
this fearless, blue, eel-like creature scavenges the seas of the planet Calamari. They can sense the presence of blood in the water from great distances, and will attack anything in the ocean, including other packs of choarn. The Quarren have developed a number of ways to cook the choarn as a food source. (DU)

Chobbick
a lowly, ill-regarded alien creature. (JTH)

Choco
a battered old R2 unit discovered by R2-D2 in the Great Heap's droid harem. (TGH)

ChoFi
this tall, heavily-muscled alien stood over 2 meters in height. A Senator for the New Republic, he was one of Leia Organa-Solo's closest friends, having been elected early in the existence of the New Republic. (TNR)

Chofin
Akanah grew up in this settlement, found on the planet Carratos. (SOL)

Chog
this insectoid alien was a famous clothing designer who lived on Coruscant during the early decades of the New Republic. Leia Organa-Solo asked Chog to submit a design for Mara Jade's wedding dress, and the alien created an intricate gown based on a computer model formed from Mara's measurements and other data. The dress resembled a scaled and feathered creature, and was not removed as a candidate by Mara. (U)

Choi
1) a planet which is home to the Choi race (TJP)
2) an alien race from the planet Choi. (TJP)

Chokan system
a system mentioned in the port access codes of an old YT-1300 found in the Imperial scrap yard on Dathomir. Han remembers that there was some sort of plague that existed there. Both he and Prince Isolder worked as smuggler there at one time or another. (CPL)

Choke-collar
this restraining device was used to control an individual, most often a slave. Once the collar was secured around the being's neck, it was impossible to remove without the proper access code. The master could control the collar with a small remove, causing it to constrict at the touch of a button. If the wearer got too far from the control unit, the collar would recognize that it was no longer in range and begin constricting. The remote controls of many collars were also equipped dead-man switches, which would immediately signal the collar to start constricting if the master holding the remote was killed. (TFNR)

Choker
this is another name for the somago. (COG)

Chokk
1) this Klatooinan was one of Jabba the Hutt's early bodyguards. (IG1)
2) this Bloxian worked for the Linkaas Corporation as a thug and hired gun, along with his brother Bakk. (SWJ1)

Chokla
Chell's lover, Chokla was also a member of the Five. Chell and Chokla discovered that Chewbacca had escaped their Menagerie, and freed its denizens. As they turned to warn the other members of the Five, the Wuzzek attacked. Chokla managed to escape and warn them, but Chell was killed. Chokla, however, was hunted down with the rest of the Five and killed by Wuzzek. (CSWDW)

Chokolate
a form of hot chocolate. (IR)

Choob
a dim-witted creature. (TFE)

Chooba
a small, burrowing creature native to the planet Kirdo, the chooba is the primary source of food for the Kitonak. A single chooba can sustain a Kitonak for almost a month. The Kitonak hunt them by standing still and mimicking a sulfaro plant, the favorite feeding site of the chooba. The chooba are nomadic, always searching for a growth of sulfaro on which to feed. (GG4)

Choobies
this is a vulgar slang term for the genitals. (TTSB)

Chooca
a plant which produces a tasty legume served as a snack or appetizer. (TJP)

Chood
this young Enzeen was living on D'vouran when Tash and Zak Arranda arrived there with their uncle, Hoole. He greeted them when they disembarked, although he was actually hoping to lure them into the wilds and allow the planet to feed on them. Chood was killed in a struggle over the Heart of D'vouran with Hoole, when he fell off a platform and into the pit. (GOF1)

Choraw
this old, blind Jazbinan was assigned by Prepredenko to guide Luke Skywalker in his search for Syayna. Choraw claimed to be able to negotiate the old sun crystal mines by memory. (VQ)

Chorax
this planet is the only planet orbiting a small sun in the Chorax System, located between Folor and Talasea. Much of the planet is covered with thick vegetation broken by wide lakes, and the world was known as a haven for smugglers and pirates during the New Order. (XWN, RSG)

Chordak
this Rodian pirate is somewhat more cultured than his average relative, but still has a mean streak. Chordak did not use violence for the thrill of violence, which was a departure from the Rodian norm. He plied the spacelanes in his freighter, the Oo-ta Goo-Ta, travelling though the Minos Cluster and springing traps on unsuspecting transports. His usual plan of attack was to wait in a spaceport, searching for a suitable target. He then placed an explosive charge on the transport, which he could remotely detonate. He then followed the transport through hyperspace to its destination, where he would detonate the explosive. The crippled ship would then be easy prey. Chordak had hoped to catch the attention of the Imperial forces which occupied the Cluster during the Galactic Civil War, but never received an Imperial commission. (GG6)

Chordokeylo
a musical instrument which can be modified via the addition of tonal datacards to play different types of music. Talon Karrde gave one to young Valin Horn as a birthday present. (SOP)

Chorh-dha
this Rodian was a member of the Chattza clan, and was a member of the Black Sun organization during the Galactic Civil War. Chorh-dha worked directly for Green, but was actually working for Clezo. As Clezo established his power base, he hoped to assassinate Navik the Red and replace him with Chorh-dha. This would allow Chorh-dha to become a Black Sun puppet, and would bring in the most powerful Rodian clan to the criminal organization's empire. (SESB)

Chorios II
this is one of the primary stars in the Chorios Systems. It is the primary star of the planet Nam Chorios. (POT)

Chorios Systems
a group of star systems found in Meridian Sector, the Chorios Systems are a group of star systems clustered close together. Among the stars are Chorios II and the trio of inner stars: Brachnis, Nam, and Pedducis Chorii. (POT)

Chorka's Chop House
this restaurant was located on the planet Andasala. (GG11)

Chorkun
this Imperial Moff controlled Portmoak Sector until he was mysteriously eliminated by an unknown assassin. It was rumored that his killer was Kassar Kosciusko. (CRO)

Chorlian Sector
this area of the galaxy was represented in the New Republic. (SOP)

Chortose
1) this short, plump, fur-covered race is native to the planet Chortose. The Chortose resemble small, large-eared Wookiees, and are extremly curious. (GG6)
2) this planet is the homeworld of the Chortose race. (GG6)

Chosen One
1) this individual is prophecied by ancient Jedi legends whose origins have been lost over the millennia. The basic premise of the prophecy is that a being will be born of the Force, seemingly brought into the world simply by the presence of midi-chlorians. This being would be incredibly connected to the Force, with a high level of skills even before training. Eventually, the prophecy proclaims that the Chosen One will bring balance to the Force throughout the galaxy. (SW1)
2) this was the name of a fanatical cult leader whose followers sought to expand terrorist activity on the planet Lannik, in the decade leading up to the Battle of Naboo. This Chosen One hired the bounty hunter Aldar Beedo to eliminate Even Piell, the Jedi Master who singlehandedly fought off seven terrorists during a skirmish. (IG1)

Chosen Ones
this term was used by the t'landa Til that ran the false religion on Ylesia. To the pilgrims who flocked there, the Chosen Ones were the most devout and pious of their numbers. Their devotion was honored with a blue sash indicating their position as Chosen. They were told that they were to be the emissaries of the colony, when in fact they were sent off as prime slave labor to the spice mines of Kessel or Ryloth. Particularly beautiful humanoids were sometimes shipped off to Imperial pleasure houses. (TPS)

Chou-shou
a large beast, often refered to in a humorous way when one is hungry, as in "I could eat half a chou-shou." (SME)

Choya
this starchy vegetable is grown on the planet Lianna, and is often combined with grains to form a thick battle that can be fried or baked into a shell. Any sort of meal can then be served in the shell. Choya can also be dried and used as flour to make bread. (ML)

Choyd
this lupine creature was the son of Palud, but he didn't believe in the Alliance. Choyd chose instead to run with the Freelies on Vorzyd 5. He later came to hate the Alliance when Palud was killed helping Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa escape Imperial capture. He was part of the Freelie team that kidnapped them and held them for Imperial ransom. (CSWEA)

Chrag'mak'al
this Givin pirate was, at one time, a priest among his people and an expert in "transfinite hyperspacial mathematics." He dreamed of being rich, and resigned his priesthood after the Fractal Heresy. He soon found work as an astrogator aboard a bulk freighter, but his xenophobia forced him to find other work. He was later employed by a the Duros who owned the Tesserahedron, which Chrag'mak'al eventually purchased out from underneath the Duros and manned with Givin officers. He used the Givin's ability to survive for a short period in hard vacuum to his advantage during boarding operations, breeching his victims' ships and allowing the interior atmosphere to bleed out, killing all aboard but leaving the ship open to Givin takeover. (PP)

Chrellis System
this system's asteroid belt provided a suitable base for the Alliance. The Chrellis base was used just before the base on Yavin 4, until a passing Imperial fleet set up shop near the system. (RASB)

Chrenda
this city, located on hte planet Merakai, was the site of a Khil spaceport. It was destroyed by the Empire after the Khil staged a demonstration against Imperial rule at a TIE hangar. (GG12)

Chromasheath
an iridescent fabric similar to leather in its appearance and uses. (HSE, CSA)

Chroma-wing Flier
the adult stage the native Ruurians go through. The fliers are single-minded creatures who exist to eat, fly, and mate. This makes them invaluable to their species' survival, but they are incapable of leadership. (HSL)

Chromite
a blue-white ore that was mined on New Brigia. (BTS)

Chromasheath
this strong fabric was used to create a minimal form of armor. (FFT)

Chromostring
this patented synthetic chemical was created by BioTech, and is used in synthflesh. It quickly determines the victim’s genetic structure and modifies itself to match it. This allows skin grafts to grow quicker, and greatlt reduces the chance of rejection. (CFG)

Chromovon
this planet was the site of an Imperial prison facility during the height of the New Order. (PG1)

Chrona
this planet was located in the Inner Rim, near the Vaathkree Trade Corridor. Chorna was the only habitable world in the Chrona System, providing agricultural resources for many neighboring systems. It had little axial tilt, thereby maintaining a consistent growing season almost year-round. The average day on Chrona lasts 25 standard hours, and its year lasts 348 local days. Much of the planet was controlled by crimelords and gansters as the New Order dawned upon the galaxy, the result of the economic boom experienced when lodes of chornamite were discovered during the last years of the Old Republic. (SWJ12)

Chronamite
this valuable mineral was discovered on the planet Chorna. Unfortunately for the farmers of the planet, chronamite was also discovered to be poisonous to the banthas and other livestock they raised for food. In its unrefined state, chronamite was a shiny, black rock. Once refined, the strong metal was used to create anything from ceiling supports to starship hulls. (SWJ12)

Chronometer
the Star Wars equivalent of a clock, the chronometer can be adjusted to match the diurnal patterns of almost every world in the galaxy. Most of the mass-produced chronometers are initially set to Coruscant standard time. This term is often shortened to simply 'chrono.' (SWSB, JS)

Chrysalide
another name for Chrysalis Beast. (DE2)

Chrysalis Beast
a huge beast that the reborn Emperor Palpatine uses to guard his Citadel on Byss following his second reincarnation. They were created from the energy of the Dark Side of the Force, and grow in undergound chambers. They resemble rancors in shape, although they are much larger and have more humanoid characteristics. Palpatine unleashed the beasts when the New Republic launched a sneak attack on the Emperor's citadel using Balmorran Viper Automadons. The beasts were able to channel away the effects of the Vipers' weapons due to their attachment to the Dark Side, and easily destroyed the war droids and the Republic soldiers inside. (DE2)

Chrysopaz
a valuable gemstone. Lando received a number of them as part of his reward for returning Dack Tymmo to Duchess Mistal. Note that The Far Orbit Project denotes this stone as "chrystopaz." (SWN, JS, FOP)

Chryya
Darth Sidious dispatched Darth Maul to this planet, in an effort to ensure that the spice business on the planet was turned over to the Trade Federation. Upon learning that the trade was to be given to the Federation, the natives of Chryya destroyed all the spice-making equipment and factories, rendering the economy provided by the spice worthless. Maul had not anticipated that the natives would act on their prinicples, and was punished by Sidious for his failure. (JDM)

Chu'la
a Socorran nickname used by Kaine Paulsen. (SWJ12)

Chu'unthor
this ancient Republic Fleet Systems cruiser was huge, at nearly two kilometers in length and forty meters in height. The Chu'unthor was used as a sort of mobile space station used by the ancient Jedi Knights. It provided ample space for 10,000 Jedi, along with training and medical facilities. It could be dispatched to anywhere in the galaxy to help resolve conflicts. Many of its corridors and training centers had clear, transparisteel covers that allowed the Jedi to have a full view of the galaxy. The Chu'unthor served faithfully until it was dispatched to the planet Dathomir, where the Jedi were in battle with the Force-wielding Nightsisters. After a truce was formed between the two sides, the Chu'unthor - which held a good deal of Jedi lore and teachings - was abandoned by the Jedi, who left the planet. One of the creators of the truce, the Jedi Master Yoda, asked that th ship be left alone until a young Jedi came to free the planet from the Nightsisters. Three hundred years later, Luke Skywalker fulfilled this prophecy. (CPL, EGV)

Chuba
this rubbery amphibian is native to the swamps of the planet Naboo. The chuba resembles a large, splay-footed frog, and subsists on a diet of green glie and smaller animals. They are considered to be delicacies by the Gungan race, and are often eaten by nuna. (SW1)

Chuba
this is a Huttese pronoun which means “you” or “your,” depending on its usage. (IS1)

Chubar
this was the name of a Bilar which starred as the main character in a series of animated children's holovids which were popular during the early years of the New Order. The clever pet of a young girl, Chubar had a high level of intelligence not often associated with members of the Bilar species. The voice of Chubar was provided by Garik Loran. (SOC)

Chubb
one of Fidge's pets, Chubb was a small reptile that buried itself in the ground. (TGH)

Chubb Scutt
an alien on Nar Shaddaa. (DE1)

Chubbit
a reptile race native to the deserts of Aridus, the Chubbits were drawn into the Alliance when Darth Vader planted an actor on Aridus. The actor was to portray Obi-Wan Kenobi, in an effort to trick Luke Skywalker to the planet. The actor became Vader's nemesis, though, when he began to believe in what Kenobi and the Alliance stood for. The Chubbits were taken by the false Kenobi's passion and valor, and assisted him in the destruction of Imperial troops. The average chubbit stands about a meter tall, and has mottled green skin. (CSW)

Chuckluck
a raucous creature native to the moon Yavin 4. (JE)

Chuff
a gelatinous food source. (TJP)

Chug ‘n’ Chuck
a bar and grill frequented by Drovian soldiers in the city of Bagsho, on Nim Drovis. Most sorts of smugglers, small-time criminals, and prostitutes could be found here. (POT)

Chugg
this immense Reigat was employed as the chief of security at The Pits, working for Kaylo NaKuda. A former racer for Team NaKuda, he suffered a severe set of injuries in a race and was "a few gems short of a lightsaber," in the words of NaKuda. Despite the injuries, Chugg remained loyal to NaKuda, and traveled to Stend VI to serve as NaKuda's bodyguard. The security job soon followed, after Blizz Pinnix witnessed his loyalty to NaKuda. (WSV)

Chukha-Trok
an Ewok woodsman about whom many stories and songs have been written. He lived alone in the forests of Endor, until the Towanis crashed on Endor. When Mace and Cindel went to rescue their parents, Lorgay gave them an ancient ivory tooth. When Mace encountered Chukha-Trok, he could not understand why Chukha-Trok wouldn't join their expedition. He challenged Chukha-Trok to a contest of skill in throwing axes, which Chukha-Trok won. After that, he and Mace became friends. When Deej produced the ivory tooth, they discovered that it fit an ancient jawbone worn bu Chukha-Trok, who understood that he was needed on the mission. Unfortunately, Chukha-Trok was killed in the battle with the Gorax. Chukha-Trok was portrayed by Kevin Thompson in The Ewok Adventure. (EA)

Chule
this was the second planet in the Bissillirus System. A featureless world which appeared to have absolutely no geological activity, Chule is covered by a huge plain broken by oceans. A cold world, Chule's day lasts an average of 49 standard hours, and its year lasts 145 local days. (GMK)

Chulku
this Ewok was supposedly obtained by Tycho Celchu on the planet Kidriff Five, during a raid on a warehouse full of exotic pets being sold on the planet to supporters of Warlord Zsinj. Tycho recognized that a real, live Ewok would be needed to convince Zsinj of the existence of Lieutenant Kettch in the Hawk-bat Independent Space Force, and felt that they could teach Chulku the basic responses needed to fool the Warlord. When Wes Janson learned of Chulku, he felt that Wedge Antilles had been crazy to pull the stunt, but agreed with the need to fool Zsinj. However, it was Janson himself who was being fooled. With the help of the other Wraiths, Wedge arranged for Chulku to escape just as he and Wes were going to start working with him. In an effort to capture the runaway Ewok, Wes tripped over some cleaning chemicals and doused himself. Wedge knew that the chemicals had been purposely spilled by Dia Passik, but suggested that they strip and smear Ewok fool on themselves to hide the smell. Wes, completely fooled by the charade, did as Wedge suggested. Wes thought he had captured Chulku, but discovered that he had found the stuffed Ewok doll Wedge used to simulate Kettch. Then, Wedge called all the Wraiths to order, and Janson was left naked, covered with Ewok food, and holding the stuffed Ewok. The entire operation had been Wedge's revenge for Wes's use of the stuffed Kettch in several escapades aimed at Wedge himself. (SOC)

Chumani
an Old Corellian term for friend. It can also be used to insult someone you don't know, referring to the person as a weakling. (SWJ12)

Chume
Hapan term for 'Queen Mother.' (CPL)

Chume'da
Hapan term for 'son of the Queen Mother.' (CPL)

Chun, Bruck
this Jedi apprentice was a contemporary of Obi-Wan Kenobi, during the time they spent at the Jedi training center on Coruscant. Chun was a typical bully, who believed that he had more aptitude in the Force that anyone, including young Obi-Wan. He nicknamed Obi-Wan "Oafy-Wan" after he tripped and fell, bringing Chun down with him in the process. Bruck was two months younger than Obi-Wan, and was easily distinguished by his ice-blue eyes and shocking white hair. Chun hoped to impress Qui-Gon Jinn, when the Jedi Master arrived to take a new Padawan apprentice, and arranged for Obi-Wan to be sent to Bandomeer after claiming he started a fight. While Obi-Wan was dispatched to the Agricultural Corps on Bandomeer, Qui-Gon didn't choose a new Padawan, and Bruck was left on Coruscant. Bruck continued to grow in skills, however. When Qiu-Gon returned from Melida/Daan with Tahl, he agreed to take part in training exercises with the most advanced students. Bruck Chun managed to keep Qui-Gon off-guard for a long time during one battle exercise, earning the Jedi Master's respect. However, in the end, Qiu-Gon's patience and experience defeated Bruck's youthful energy and exuberance. However, despite his adherence to the Jedi code, Bruck was implicated in a series of thefts of Jedi artifacts. He was discovered to be working with a non-Jedi accomplice by Qui-Gon and Tahl. His accomplice turned out to be Xanatos, who had developed a business relationship with Bruck's father on Telos. During Xanatos' attempt to destroy the Jedi Temple and escape, Bruck was forced to battle Obi-Wan to cover Xanatos' flight. During a lightsaber duel in the Room of a Thousand Fountains, Bruck slipped on a wet rock and fell off a cliff, hitting the rocks below and breaking his neck. He was killed instantly. (RF, UP, CT)

Chun, Vox
this man was Bruck Chun's father. Vox served as the Treasurer of the planet Telos during the time his son was at the Jedi Temple on Coruscant. Vox was also on Xanatos' payroll, and helped the former Jedi rise to power on Telos. After learning from Xanatos that Bruck had died on Coruscant, Vox wholly supported Xanatos' plans to implement the Galactic Criminals Act. Vox was unaware of how Xanatos had twisted the truth to his own ends, however. In the end, after Xanatos was exposed as a fraud and defeated, Chun was thrown in jail for his part in the bankrolling of UniFy and Katharsis. (DOR)

Chunky
this was the nickname given by Tyria Sarkin to her R5 astromech unit. (WS)

Chunder
this is a Drovian slang term for excrement. (POT)

Chup-Chup
this young Talz was the son of Bama Vook. He was kidnapped by the Bartokk assassins sent by Groodo the Hutt to recover the droid starships built by Trinkatta Starships. Obi-Wan Kenobi rescued the young Talz, though he was amazed to learn that Chup-Chup stood over 2 meters tall as a youth. (E1A2)

Churabba
this ancient Hutt had a cunning business mind, and in control of the Si'Klaata Cluster some 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. She was there when the Cult of M'dweshuu once again rose to power on Kintan. It was believed that she admired the Cult for its ability to galvanize the Nikto race, even as she sought to destroy it to gain control of the Nikto race. She ordered that the Cult's main headquarters be bombarded, killing off many of the Cult's leaders and leaving the Nikto people without a strong leadership. The Nikto then signed their support over to her. (GG12)

Churba
fourth and primary planet in the Churba system, it is known for its leading-edge technology and its cosmopolitan atmosphere. It is located in the Mid Rim Territories. (DFRSB, SWAJ)

Churba Sector
planetary system that includes Barhu, Churba and New Cov. (DFR)

Churban Brandy
a wonderful fermented spirit from the Churba System. (WG)

Church of Infinite Perception
this quasi-religious organization grew out of the tight control exercised on the planet Pergitor after extensive mining resulted in volcanic eruptions. The eruptions spewed toxic chemicals into the atmosphere, permanently poisoning it. Travel was restricted to and from Pergitor by the ruling class, and trade was similarly restricted. The youth of the planet began to rebel, and when young members of the aristocracy became involved, the movement started to gain strength. Under the guidance of the Preceptor, the youths of the Church fought against the government for fifteen years before finally overthrowing the government and establishing an authoritarian theocracy. Rumors abound that the Church and its victory over the former government was masterminded by Emperor Palpatine. The Church maintains a tight grip on the planet’s people, and established a set of rigid laws. (GG6)

Church of the First Frequency
this religious sect was formed on Otranto. They were ousted from the planet by the Imperial Grand Inquisitor Torbin, but its surviving members rallied around their beliefs. They attacked Torbin's palace, and he was only saved by the timely intervention of the Tynnan Odumin. However, Torbin was killed a month later on Weerden. (CSA)

Churhee, Vlaydm
this founder of Churhee's Riflemen died in the Y'Trella System after Imperial forces failed to provide the Riflemen with adequate backup. (GG9)

Churhee's Riflemen
this Outer Rim mercenary unit specialized in low-profile operations on the fringes of Imperial space. They operated primarily in Sarin and Parmel Sectors. The Riflemen were virtually wiped out on the Y'Trella, after Imperial forces failed to provide adequate backup. Many of the surviving members, including Rathe Palror, aligned themselves with pro-Alliance factions. (GG9, SWJ12)

Churi Bird
this is a species of large avian native to the forest moon of Endor. (CCG10)

Chute-slide
a transport conduit, the chute-slide uses a specially-mounted container to slide through a chute to a lower level. (LO)

Chyler
this woman served the Imperial Security Bureau by placing agents and Aqualish spies among the workers and natives of Cloud City. She was promised a position within the ISB when the Empire took control of the mining outpost, but never realized it. (CCG9)

Chynoo
a planet whose inhabitants built a specially-modified SoroSuub speederbike transport to honor Joruus C'baoth while he was there. (DFR)

Chyntuck
this onion-like vegetable is native to the planet Kashyyyk, and is used by Wookiees in cooking. (RD)

Cian Marook
a Hrasskis Senator in the New Republic, it was Marook who first openly questioned the placement of Etahn A'baht as commander of the Fifth Battle Group. He has been a Senator for five years prior to the Yevethan Great Purge. He was one of three Senators who supported Nil Spaar, but was not one of the group which fled Coruscant after Spaar left. He was serving on the Defense Council during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster. (BTS, SOL)

Cica
this city was the largest on the planet Entrus, both in terms of population and in terms of the density of casinos and gambling halls. Moving about the city was easy, for every street corner had an interactive, holographic map of the city. (GMK)

Cidwen
1) a semi-sentient race used by Emperor Palpatine to allow stormtroopers to perform highly-secret tasks. Palpatine had the cidwen drugged until they began hallucinating, then made the greatest fears permanent with the Dark Side of the Force. The Cidwen, much like Aga and Avogui, were then used as guards. They viciously attacked anything or anybody that came near them. (COJ)
2) a species of flying, insectile predators native to the planet Atraken. Only a dozen or so exist, most having been killed during the Clone Wars. The cidwen are black, and have sharp beaks and vicious claws. They measure a half-meter in length, but their wingspan is twice that. (PG2)

Cificap VII
Imperial slavers trying to deliver Habassan prisoners to the frigate Mayhem were intercepted by Alliance forces near Cificap VII. (XW)

Cifronicc
an obscure language. (AIR)

Cigarillo
a small Star Wars cigarette. (LCM)

Cigarra
a Star Wars cigarette (DFR)

Cilghal
a female Mon Calamari Ambassador to the New Republic, she is found to have a good deal of sensitivity to The Force. She joined Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy, and became a Jedi healer. Her ties to her uncle, Admiral Ackbar, and her outstanding service to the Mon Calamari people eventually led her into politics, and she became Calamari's Senator to the New Republic. When the Diversity Alliance rose to power, Cilghal suggested that the New Republic send a delegation to Ryloth to determine what they were trying to do. This came on the heels of the testimony of several of Skywalker's young Jedi students, who had been imprisoned by the Diversity Alliance against their will. Later, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Cilghal returned to the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 and took Tekli on as an apprentice. During this time, Cilghal discovered that the fear of further invasion, coupled with the knowledge that the New Republic was nearly powerless to stop the aliens, was creating a great deal of stress illness throughout the galaxy. (DA, COTF, TEP, BP)

Cilpar
a planet which remained under Imperial control following the Battle of Endor. It was later liberated with the help of Wedge Antilles and the Rogue Squadron. It was covered with dense jungles which hide a series of ancient ruins and temples. (XWRS)

Cimigo
a YT-1300 transport ship destroyed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It was part of the Alliance convoy sent to station DS-5 to assist Admiral Harkov's defection from the Empire. (TIE)

Cindev
manufacturers of a series of picket ships. (HXW)

Cinnagar
1) the largest city on all the worlds in the Empress Teta system. (DE1)
2) this is one of the seven worlds in the ancient Koros System, which would eventually become known as the Empress Teta System. The planet became the central world of Teta's empire, and her palace was located in its capital city. (GAS, FOSE)

Circarpian Snake
native to the swampy world of Circarpous V, these reptiles lay eggs that are considered a culinary delicacy in many circles. (GOF8)

Circarpous IV
fourth planet in the Circarpous system, and home to a group of people sympathetic to the Alliance. The natives feared to openly side with the Alliance, due to the strong Imperial presence in the system. (SME)

Circarpous Major
primary star in the Circarpous system of 14 planets. (SME)

Circarpous V
known as Mimban by its inhabitants, it is the fifth planet in the Circarpous system, it is the site of a secret Imperial mining operation. Homeworld of the Mimbanites, Circarpous V is part swamp, part jungle, and part bog. (SME)

Circarpous X
the tenth planet in the Circarpous system, and home to a small outpost colony with possible Alliance sympathizers. There is also a monitoring station there which interrogates all large traffic moving into the system. Their sensors are geared toward star cruisers and other large ships, but an X-wing or two could slip past. (SME)

Circarpous XII
the twelfth planet in the Circarpous system, and home to a small outpost colony with possible Alliance sympathizers. (SME)

Circarpous XIV
the fourteenth planet in the Circarpous system was home to an early Alliance outpost base. (SME)

Circarpousian Swamp Fly
a small insect native to the swamps of Circarpous V. (GOF9)

Circarpousian Water Snake
a large snake native to the swamps of Circarpous V. (GOF7)

Circle Route
this pathway through the deserts of Tatooine connected Mos Eisley and Anchorhead, and avoided the outskirts of the Jundland Wastes. (SWTJ)

Circuitry Commando
this was Alliance soldier slang for any resistance member or freedom fighter skilled in the use of computers and electronics. (TBSB)

Circumtore
this ring-shaped, artificial planetoid was inhabited by the Shell Hutts, who ran their criminal operations from a base on the world's surface. (MA)

Circus Horrificus
this travelling menagerie displayed various exotic creatures throughout the galaxy. Malakili spent a good deal of time working for the Circus Horrificus before Bib Fortuna and Bidlo Kwerve had him waylayed under Jabba the Hutt's name. They had heard of Malakili's abilities to handler strange and dangerous alien creatures, and wanted him to handle the rancor they were going to present to Jabba. (TJP)

Ciro, Keleman
one of Kaiya Adrimetrum's contemporaries in the Alliance, Ciro was the Captain of the FarStar during its early mission into the Kathol Sector. Ciro believed Kaiya was too aggressive. However, after Ciro was captured and reporting missing in action, it was Adrimetrum who was promoted to fill his command. Ciro was taken by Moff Sarne to the Q'Maere Research Facility, where he was severely tortured and interrogated over several weeks. It was then that the crew of the FarStar came to Q'Maere looking to restock its food stores. (KO, KR)

Cirra
this Aramandi akia, or clan, was known for its aggressiveness and combat skills. (SSR)

Cirra Mace
this ancient, ceremonial weapon was the primary icon of the Cirra akia of the Aramandi. The mace was stolen during the early years of the New Order by a Seela. The thief was caught, but the mace was never recovered. It was said to have been put up for auction on Genesia, and purchased by a Nalroni merchant, but no evidence was ever found by Cirra warriors. (SWJ14)

Cirrifog
this is the name given to the thick, pearlescent microcrystals found in the atmosphere of Monor II. Billions of these microcrystals can be found in a single cubic meter of air, and breathing them is hazardous to most races because it shreds the delicate tissues of the lungs. The native Sunesi have evolved the ability to breathe it, and it plays a large part in the change from young Sunesi to adulthood. Juveniles of the species cannot survive long without it in their atmosphere, and require it in order to create the protective coccoons used during their metamorphosize into adults. The cirrifog was found to be useful in certain applications during the early days of the New Order, shortly after Eujustus Kline discovered it. The Empire began mining the microcrystals, and extracted so much of them that the juvenile Sunesi were threatened. Agapos the Ninth spoke out against the Empire, and was condemned to death. (SWJ10)

Cirrus Colonies Incorporated
this corporation produced a wide range of prefabricated buildings and construction materials for use by settlers and explorers. Their products were known to be inexpensive and extremely durable, and simple to set up and install. Many of their structures cam equipped with particle shields which helped protect them in hostile environments. (SSR)

Cirus II
Tem Chesko's cargo hauler was built on this planet. (SWG)

Cisgat
this Ryn tried to bum a ride to the planet Rhinnal from Han Solo and Roa, while they were on the Jubilee Wheel space station searching for Reck Desh. (HT)

Citadel, The
a ruin in Plawal, on Belsavis. (COJ)

Citadel
a group of Alliance freighters assigned to pick up the materiel and Mon Calamari slaves rescued from the Star Destroyer Warrior. (XW)

Citadel of B'omarr
this was a name used by some to denote Jabba the Hutt's palace, located in the wastes of Tatooine. It was given this name because it was originally built by the B'omarr monks. (TJT)

Citizen Service Corps
this is the bureaucratic, officious, local police force that controls the planet Teyr. The CSC heavily favored locals over offworlders in the disputes they handled. (SOL)

Citros Snow Cake
a tasty pastry. (SOP)

City Bigspace Refreshment Bubble
this bubble building was part of the city of Otoh Gunga, on the planet Naboo, and provided a wide variety of restuarants and refreshment vendors. Originally commissioned by Boss Nass, City Bigspace was designed to impress visiting dignitaries and tourists. (IWE1)

City of Glass
a song written and played by Annadale Fayde. It was first released as part of the compilation Darkness on the Land, and has been rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Cityblock
this was the name used by the urban planners of the planet Brentaal to describe major urban subsections of the planet. Each cityblock was designated with a letter of the Aurebesh and a number, corresponding to the cityblock's location on a pre-set grid. (FOP)

Citypath
this was the name used by the urban planners on Brentaal to describe the roads used to navigate through cityblocks. Citypaths carried more foot traffic than standard routes. (FOP)

Ciutric
this planet, the fourth world in the Ciutric System, was the capital world of the Ciutric Hegemony. It was the center of several trade routes between worlds of the Hegemony. It was here that Sate Pestage fled after being labeled a traitor to the Empire by Ysanne Isard. (XWMR, IR)

Ciutric Hegemony
this cluster of star systems and twelve member worlds contained the world Ciutric. The Hegemony was the holding of Sate Pestage during the years of the New Order, and he fled to Ciutric after Ysanne Isard began to assert control over the Empire. Pestage was murdered on Ciutric by Prince-Admiral Krennel, who took control of the Hegemony for himself and established the title of Prince-Admiral. (IR)

Civilian Battle Award
this medal of honor was given by the Alliance to those non-military personnel who performed above and beyond the call of duty, in the assistance of the Alliance's war effort. (XWA)

Civilian Service Personnel
this was the name given to those humans who were conscripted in the Imperial armed forces whenever the Empire subjugated a planet. (SWJ13)

Cjaalysce'l
this small city was located in the western Doaba Badlands, on the planet Socorro. Named for an Old Corellian greeting, it was built within a thick wall, meant to keep out the Bharhulai bandits who raided the frontier city from their tribal lands 115 kilometers to the north. (BSS)

Cjaalysce'l
this was an Old Corellian greeting which meant, "you are wearing the road well." In more modern days, the greeting was meant to indicate that the receipient's reputation had preceded them, and that they seemed to be doing well for themselves. (BSS)

Ckratar Crafts
this minor starship manufacturer was noted for the production of the Venturer-class freighter. (AIR)

CL-14
an old-model Koensayr hyperdrive motivator unit. (EGV)

Clabburn
this legendary space pirate and smuggler was described as a hairy humanoid with oily green skin. He hid out in the Hoth asteroid belt, lying in wait for ships to fly too close to it. He was never found, because he kept hopping around the asteroid field, relocating his base and hiding until he could strike again. Clabburn was known to leave a space slug living in his abandoned bases, further eliminating any pursuit. (ISU)

Clacis Sector
this area of the galaxy was controlled by the Empire during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Claer
this Core planet was the site of an exclusive prep school for the children of rich aristocrats. The school was run by COMPNOR, but it still had a cell of Alliance supporters. (CRO)

Claf
an Alliance escort shuttle group destroyed during the capture of Imperial outpost D-34 following the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Clafdatha, Mordaph
a Captain in the Imperial Navy during the Galactic Civil War, he was ordered by Darth Vader to create a detailed report on the various Alliance starfighters' strengths and weaknesses. Along with Jord Krass, Clafdatha created document number V492771R225Y. (XW)

Claim Beacon
this form of satellite is used by scouts and explorers to mark the location of worlds they discover. It broadcasts a message of ownership to anyone who comes into the system, thereby marking it as claimed. Many unscrupulous scouts will search out these beacons and disable them, replacing another scout's beacon with their own. Many paranoid scouts will place a thermal detonator inside their beacons, which will be triggered if another scout tries to deactivate it. (GG8)

Claine
Callista's uncle on Chad III. (COJ)

Clak Beepbox
a musical instrument developed on Clak'Dor VII by the Bith, and often found in jizz bands. (TCC)

Clak'Dor
homeworld of the Bith race, it was once a beautiful world. The Bith, however, nearly destroyed the planet in a chemical war. It is the seventh planet in the Colu System, in the Mayagil sector. (SCRE, GG4)

Clak'Dor 4
this planet is another world populated by the Bith. (XWRR)

Clamont, Jakke
this well-known big-game hunter worked as a ranger in an Imperial preserve for many years, but left when he realized that he'd rather kill the animals than protect them. He found employment among the wealthiest Imperials and crimelords who wanted an unusual creature for their private zoos. Instead of hunting animals, which was relatively easy, Jakke captured them alive and returned them to his employer. He would not, however, hunt sentient beings. (HR)

Clancy, Taryn
a member of the Core Courier Service, she was trying to deliver information about a rendezvous location to the New Republic fleet, but was caught on Coruscant during one of the many early battles for the planet. She was in command of the courier craft Messenger along with her partner, Del Sato, although the run to Coruscant was only her fourth as commander on the Messenger. (TFE)

ClanRing
rumored to have been crafted by the first Riileb female ever to exist, this piece of jewelry was held by the eldest member of the MotherClan. It denoted her position as leader of the Riileb people. (SWJ13)

Clanson
this man worked as an Intelligence agent for the Alliance. Major Sisquoc requested that Clanson accompany him to Dlor 3, where they hoped to confront Barosa Warren. (AIR)

Claqa
a Bilar term for the grouping of minds into a sentient individual. In general, the individual Bilars in a claqa must be born within minutes of each other in order to develop the mindlink and share their thoughts. (GG4)

Clar
this arid planet was covered with a variety of desert environments, from hot sands to ice-swept plains. (AIR)

Clarani
this elderly female Ryn was on the Jubilee Wheel when it was attacked by the Yuuzhan Vong. Her husband was killed in the attack, but Clarani managed to escape. She was later stranded on Duro, at Settlement Thirty-two, where she took in Jaina Solo. (BP)

Clarendox
this was the name of an up-scale restaurant located in Imperial City, on Coruscant. (MJEH)

Claris
a member of the New Republic's Intelligence Agency, Claris was part of the team sent to Verkuyl with Cobb Vartos and Selby Jarrad to help liberate the planet from Imperial control some three years after the Battle of Endor. However, he was captured before he and his team could set up and detonate their explosives, planted at the capital's main communications station. After the Republic fleet came t Verkuyl, a second wave of agents liberated Claris and his team from the Imperial prison. (TFNR)

Clariv Shipyards
this small starship production facility was loyal to the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Claron
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. Claris was based on Svivren. (SWJ13)

Clars
this Twi'lek served Nilya Fek'ra as a doorman at her corporate headquarters on Cotellier. (GMH)

Class 1 Defense Unit designed by Imperial Captain Kist, and manufactured by Ulban Arms, this defense droid was originally created to augment the ground forces of the Empire. The Empire originally rejected the idea, but a nearly exact copy of the Class 1 unit showed up in the Corporate Sector, where it was used extensively by the Corporate Sector's Espos. The Class 1 Unit moved about on four articulated legs, and was armed with a medium blaster and a mdeium anti-vehicle cannon. It was later learned that the Corporate Sector Authority used armies of these droids to subdue the Trianii. (SWJ14)

Class 1000 Cruiser
this Kuat Drive Yards design was used by the Empire to patrol non-agressive systems. The 1000's measured 300 meters in length, and were armed with 28 turbolasers and 12 ion cannons. The basic crew complement was 580, with 80 gunners. (GG6)

Class 2 Droid
a multi-phasic robot. (LCM)

Class 5 Droid
a mathematical robot often used as a starship navigator. (LCM)

Class 580 Freighter
this light freighter was produced by Ghtroc Industries, and could transport up to six passengers and 200 metric tons of cargo. It measured 37 meters in length, required a single pilot, and was armed with a single laser cannon. (FOP, PP)

Class 720 Freighter
a tortoise-shaped transport ship manufactured by Ghtroc Industries, this 35-meter-long ship had a square central section. A forward cockpit stuck out from the front. Two forward loading platforms were located at the two front corners, while the ship's stardrive was located in the rear. It had space for a crew of 2, plus up to 10 passengers. It could transport 135 metric tons of cargo. The stock Ghtroc freighter was equipped with basic shielding and a single forward-mounted double laser cannon. Unlike most other freighters, the 720 did not improve or enlarge the abilities of its forerunner, the Class 580 freighter. (RPG, SN, FOP)

Class-A Thermal Detonator
this detonator has a blast-radius of about 20 meters. (CCG7)

Class-4
this was the designation of a Tykannin power converter. (EGV)

Class-6 Escape Pod
manufactured by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, these escape pods are similar in size and shape to the Faberstien-Lago design. The Class-6 pod had room for six beings, and had simple drive and sensor systems that determined the nearest inhabitable world and pushed the pod toward it. Note that The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels indicates that the CR90 Corvette is equipped with Class-6 escape pods, although the Star Wars Screen Entertainment package says it used the Faberstien-Lago design. (EGV)

Class-7 Repair Vessel manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards, these 560-meter ships were used to supply, repair, and minimally defend mining operations. These ships had limited hyperdrive capabilities, and were armed with a single turret-mounted turbolaser battery. (SN)

Classet, Zinn
this man was one of a group of bounty hunters contracted by the Empire to hunt down the Alliance agents who were investigating the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. He wore a set f distinctive red-and-green battle armor. (GMK)

Clat the Shamer
this empathic mutant assassin once worked for the Guild of Vindicators. He was given the assignment to destroy Darth Vader for belittling the Guild. He tracked Vader to Cheelit, where the Dark Lord was playing Firepath with Lady Dohl. Unfortunately for Clat, he was walking into a trap. Vader had manipulated him to Cheelit, and when Clat entered Dohl's Hive Palace to capture Vader, he ended up on the Firepath board. There, Vader let him see what had happened to him, then captured him like any other Firepath piece. Clat was then consumed in a pillar of flame. (CSWDW)

Clat'Ha
this beautiful woman, with red hair and green eyes, was the chief operations manager for Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation's operations on Bandomeer. She was constantly struggling with the underhanded tactics of Offworld Mining Company, but managed to befriend Obi-Wan Kenobi when he was sent to the Agricultural Corps there. After the arrival of Qui-Gon Jinn aboard the Monument, they managed to defeat a group of pirates and sway a group of Offworld miners to come work for them. After landing on Bandomeer, and exposing Xanatos' plan for Offworld, Clat'Ha managed to obtain nearly exclusive rights to Bandomeer's ionite mines. (RF, DR)

Clatear
this alien race has a 600-year-old feud with the Nhoras race. Five separate generations of Jedi Knights failed to resolve the conflict, and the Empire simply let them be. The Clatear were heavily suppressed by Imperial forces, and thus learned how to fight better than the Nhoras. When the revelation of the Caamas Document brought forth many inter-species feuds, the Clatear decided that the time was right to attack the Nhoras and end the feud. (SOP)

Clavier
an Pakuuni Corvette destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Claw
this bounty hunter was the most feared in his sector. He used cybernetically-enhanced creatures as scouts and trackers, and never had a bounty get away. The Claw was finally stopped on the planet Yaronn by a group of freelance mercenaries, whom he had lured to the planet in hopes of killing them. The Claw believed that they were responsible for the death of his brother, and Imperial officer who was arrested and killed in a prison fight. He offered them a challenge, giving them an hour's head start to avoid him. The mercenaries managed to double back on The Claw and apprehend him. (GMS)

Claw
1) a CR90 Corvette used by pirates who worked for the discoverer of Butler's Cove, this ship tried to waylay the Alliance agents escorting Dr. Hegerty to Refgar. (SN)
2) this Interdictor-class cruiser was part of the small fleet provided to Captain Vocis Kenit during his search for the Far Orbit. After the Empire's failure to stop the Alliance's use of pirates and privateers, the Claw was reassigned to the small group of starships which was trailing the Suprosa, just before the ship was captured by the Alliance. (FOP, XWA)
3) this Kazellis Light Freighter was owned by the bounty hunter known as Cragus 12. It was armed with stock weaponry, but modified to have faster sublight and hyperspace drives. The ship's interior was refitted to include magnetically-sealed and blast-proof cells for holding captives. (SWJ1)

Clawbirds
light-colored birds native to Wayland, they are known as stana to the Myneyrhsi. These small avians have wings which are tipped with sharp spines that can inject a slow-acting poison into a target. They attack in swarms, with one wave bringing down their prey while another protects the kill from hidden scavengers. (TLC, TTSB)

Clawcraft
this was the form of starfighter developed by the Chiss in the early years of the peace accord between the Imperial Remnant and the New Republic. Named for their appearance, clawcraft were constructed from the cockpit and engines of a standard TIE Fighter. Instead of solar panels for wings, the clawcraft had four arm-like projections sprouting from the sides of the cockpit, each tipped with a laser cannon. (DTR)

Clawmice
a small creature found on many desert planets. (RA2)

Clawswift
this avian, native to the planet Naboo, had a pair of pedipalps which hung down from its body when it was flying. (RP)

Clawthorns
scrubby plants native to Yavin 4, the clawthorns have large, hooked thorns growing in their limbs. (COTF)

Clay
a family of moisture farmers contemporary with the Lars and the Jensens. (TME)

Claymore Mine
an antipersonnel mine used to disable enemy troops. They can be set to explode after a specific time delay, or to detonate when touched. (DF)

CLD-50
manufactured by SoroSuub, this transport crate was outfitted with a cryogenic freeer unit. This allowed shippers to keep certain cargoes cold or frozen during transport. (PSG)

Clean Land, The area south of Nystao on Honoghr; Khabarakh's home village (DFR)

Cleansing, The
this is another term used by the Yevetha to refer to the Great Purge. (TT)

Clear Lake
this was one of the few landlocked bodies of water found on the planet Senali. (SP)

Clearance Blue
the security code phrase for the deactivation of the shield generator protecting the second Death Star near Endor. (ROTJN)

ClearSkyes Boutique
located in the city of Xakrea, on the planet Darkknell, this shop served as a front for an Imperial Intelligence drop site and computer terminal during the height of the New Order. (TFNR)

Cleaver
an Alliance Corvette destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Clegg Holdfast
this alien was one of the Outer Rim's least-experienced podracer pilots, despite the fact that he was also a reporter for Podracing Quarterly. His own research with the podracing circuits led him to race in a Keizar-Volver KV9T9-B Wasp racer. Holdfast was a tall, lanky humanoid with six bony horns rising from the top of his head. He was native to the planet New Plympto. (TPM, RAC, IG1, IWE1)

Clendora
Lando Calrissian once won the deed to a Clendoran brewery as as result of the Battle of Taanab. (SWAJ)

Clenna
this grizzled man was formerly a Sergeant in the Imperial Army, where he dreamed of becoming a drill instructor. However, he spent most of his career in the classroom learning military theory, and decided not to re-enlist when his hitch was over. He returned to his homeworld of Yalln, but was bored without any form of activity. He eventually took a job working for Barosa Warren at the Galactic Outdoor Survival School, where his anti-Alliance sentiments meshed well with those of Warren himself. While at GOSS, Clenna found himself learning almost as much from Warren as he was teaching his own students. (AIR)

Clenswash
this tank is used for bathing. (RM)

Cless, Mavin
this man was a respected culinary expert who reviewed many restaurants in the Outer Rim Territories. He sometimes ran afoul of minor crimelords who owned these restaurants, and had to adjust his reviews accordingly. (GG11)

Cleven
this smuggler was an acquaintence of Pyrron Nox and Gideon. He was killed shortly before the Battle of Hoth, after making a run from the planet Kessel. (SWJ12)

Clezo
this Rodian was one of Prince Xizor's vigo's, or one of his closest lieutenants. Clezo wasn't flashy or ruthlessly cruel, but he nevertheless posted a consistent profit each quarter. He had ties to many bounty hunting organizations, including House Tresario, and plotted to assassinate Navik the Red and install his own puppet - Chorh-dha - as the leader of the Chattza clan. (SE)

Cliffborer Worm
this cobra-shaped creature is native to the planet Tatooine. They have long, vestigial rear legs. They inhabit the rocky outcroppings that are sprinkled throughout the desert. (ISU)

Cligot
this Imperial Navy Yeoman was one of the few females who served under Ors Dogot on the Bloodprice. She was killed when the ship was destroyed by the Teljkon vagabond. (SOL)

Climateria
one of the many attractions of the SkyCenter Galleria on Cloud City, the Climateria was housed in a circular section of the park. The Climateria was divided into twenty pie-shaped sections, with transparisteel walkway tubes between them. Each section depicted a different sort of climate, with the approriate flora, fauna, and environmental conditions all on display. The climates were a consolidation of climates from planets which are known for their wondrous ecologies. There was a swamp climate, a rain forest climate, an ocean climate, and a desert climate already up and running when Cojahn was murdered by Black Sun. Each climate was extremely realistic, and participants could expect to get wet, dirty, or sandy, depending on which environments they visited. (TCC)

Climbing Claws
these metal claws are used by the Mistryl warriors for climbing anything from trees to buildings. They fit the hands like gloves, and allow the Mistryl to drive the claws into a surface and gain a handhold. (VOF)

Climbing Fern
this quick-growing fern inhabits the upper levels of the forest on Yavin 4, spreading out from the branches of Massassi trees in brilliant green cascades. Each frond measures almost two meters in length. (GG2)

ClimbSuit
this was a generic term used to describe any set of clothing - in pieces or a full-body unit - which assisted the wearer in climbing activities. They are often coated with FrictionGrip to assist in ascending steep structures. (ROE)

Clinging Tree
this species of plant is native to the planeyt Yuga 2, and fills that world's Planetary Park. (MTS)

Clink
this was the nickname of Myn Donos' R2 astromech droid, during his tenure with Wraith Squadron. (SOC)

Clip
an Alliance container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Clive
the older of the two cooks aboard the Courteous when Lando Calrissian arrived to sell them cigars and play sabacc. (LCS)

Clivis Damand
this New Republic Intelligence officer was the Sector Intelligence Chief for the Kalinda System. He recommended that the Republic implement Project Second Chance. (TSK)

CLL-8
this was Cybot Galactica's version of a binary load lifter. (SWJ14)

Cloak
this was the name of the group of Alliance ATR-6 transports used to knock out an Imperial sensor net, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Cloak Leader
the callsign for the lead spacetrooper piloting the mole miners in the Battle of Sluis Van. (HTTE)

Cloak of the Sith
the region of space surrounding the Roon System, it is filled with dangerous meteors, asteroids, and planetoids. (DCAR)

Cloaking Device
the Empire devised the first working cloaking device just before the Battle of Endor. Note that this contradicts the Star Wars: Episode I - Incredible Cross-Sections book, which indicates that Darth Maul's Sith Infiltrator had a cloaking system which employed stygium crystals. However, its abilities were overshadowed by its cost, and it was never fully implemented. The one major drawback to the original cloaking device was that it was unstable during hyperspacial travel. This fact was not known to Admiral Zaarin, who attempted to steal a version for the Alliance. He took a cloaked CR90 corvette into hyperspace to escape Vice Admiral Thrawn but the cloaking device ruptured and destroyed the corvette as it entered hyperspace. Several years after the Battle of Endor, Grand Admiral Thrawn recovered the technology from Mount Tantiss and used it twice: once at the Battle of Sluis Van, to hide the contents of his false freighter Narsisstue; and again when he mounted them on asteroids and set them loose in orbit around Coruscant. Up until this point, the only feasible use of a cloaking device was on somewhat stationary objects. There were several limitations to using the device on a starship, the foremost of which was that the cloaked ship was as blind to the outside world as the ship was to observation. This presented a problem to early engineers and designers, but was overcome by the advent of the Imperial Computer Combat Predictor. It didn't alleviate the fact that the cloaked ship was blind, but tried allow it the opportunity to shoot down attacking craft. (HTTE, TLC, TIE, SOP, X1)

CloakShape Fighter
developed by the old Kuat Systems Engineering company, the CS fighter was a slow, underpowered, but quite durable starfighter. A few of them survived the Galactic Civil War, seeing duty in smuggler fleets. The CS Fighter was a simpled design, easily modified for specific uses. Very few unmodified ships can be found. The CS could be modified in a number of ways, mainly with the addition of Curich Engineering's rear wing and stabilizer conversion kit. This kit, which improved maneuverability and allowed the addition of a hyperdrive sled, was so popular that many people forget it wasn't part of the original design. The ClaokShape fighter measured 15 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of laser cannons and two concussion missile launchers. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

Clodhopper
a race of herbivores native to the planet Naboo, these grasshopper-like creatures hate the water. The Naboo consider them pests, since they often ravage crops and destroy farmlands. The Gungans, on the other hand, consume them as tasty snacks, and use their hard shells to make musical instruments. (GF)

Clog, The
this was the most densely-populated section of the city of Iritsa, on the planet Chazwa. Buildings in this area of the city were built with whatever materials were available, giving it a ramshackle appearance. However, the natives of The Clog were fiercely loyal to their homes, and despised the wealthier beings who lived in the area known as The Stones. (ND)

Clog-dweller
this was the name adopted by the beings who lived in The Clog section of Iritsa, on Chazwa. (ND)

Clomv
this Jeodu served as one of Dequc's personal guards. (MJEH)

Clondex
this medicine was instrumental in keeping the sufferers of Zithrom's Disease alive, although the drug was not a cure. (TFE)

Clone Keepers
the name given to the scientists and functionaries working in the reborn Emperor Palpatine's cloning installation on Byss. (DE1)

Clone Wars
a major battle during the last years of the Old Republic, in which the Jedi Knights worked with the armed forces of the Republic to repel a threat to the galaxy. (SW)

Clone
genetically reproduced beings used by the Empire during the Clone Wars. Average growth period was 3-5 Imperial years, and there is an accepted doctrine that the shortest time needed to create a stable clone is 1 year. There has been speculation that a method was found that could allow them to be grown in 15 to 20 days; however, insanity was possible in the rapidly-grown clones. (SW, DFR, DE1, TLC)

Clorr
a prisoner working in the spice mines of Kessel at the time Han and Chewie are shot down while on a diplomatic mission to the planet, following the Battle of Bilbringi. He was killed by one of the spice mines' denizens while working with Han and Chewie in a deep mine. (JS)

Clothes for Her
this clothing store was located on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, and catered to the needs of females of all species. Owned by Leww, it was the companion store to Clothes for Him. (GA)

Clothes for Him
this clothing store was located on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, and catered to the needs of males of all species. Owned by Leww, it was the companion store to Clothes for Her. (GA)

Cloud
a song written and played by the band Red Shift Limit. It was originally release as part of the compilation Limited Warfare, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Cloud Ape
this simian beast is recognizable by the hooting sound it makes when it calls to its companions. (TBH)

Cloud Bridge
this location on the planet Teyr is found on the western end of the Teyr Rift. It is also the last station on the southern spur of the Rift Skyrail. It is one of the narrowest sections of the Rift, and is also one of the most spectacular. (SOL)

Cloud Car
small, atmospheric craft that are powered by repulsorlifts and ion engines. The best-known cloud cars are the Storm IV twin-pod models built by Bespin Motors. These are the same types of cloud cars used by Lando Calrissian on Cloud City. (ESB, SWSB)

Cloud City
a tibanna gas mining colony in orbit over Bespin run by Lando Calrissian, Cloud City was originally built by Ecclessis Figg and the fledgling Bespin Motors company. It is essentially a huge, saucer-shaped city floating in the Life Zone layer of Bespin's atmosphere, some 60,000 kilometers from the planet's core. The saucer - an incredible sixteen kilometers in diameter - is kept stable via a long repulsorlift unipod which hangs below the saucer. This configuration makes Cloud City seventeen kilometers in overall height. The unipod keeps Cloud City afloat by using 3,6000 repulsorlift engines. There are 392 levels to Cloud City, and a surface-level concourse at its top. Its location keeps it out of the mainstream of interplanetary commerce, but that allows it some necessary freedoms. It is known for its productions of tibanna gas, as well as for its casinos and open-air plazas. Due to its small size, in relation to full-scale mining operations, Cloud City was able to remain outside Imperial jurisdiction and separate from the Mining Guild. Lando Calrissian won control of the outpost in a sabacc match, but continued the mining operations and realtive anonymity of the station. Note that Galaxy of Fear 4: The Nightmare Machine claims that Lando won it shortly after the Battle of Yavin. However, when Darth Vader learned that Luke Skywalker might go to the outpost to rescue his friends, the Empire took control of the city. After Luke was able to escape from Vader, Vader left an Imperial garrison there. Grand Admiral Thrawn later used this garrison as a base of operations in his war against the New Republic. The outpost was again freed of Imperial control following Thrawn's defeat, but Cloud City's reputation had been forever tarnished. (ESB, HTTE, GG2, EGV, GOF4)

Cloud City Casino Sabacc
a Sabbac variation in which one card from each hand is selected for a spin-change, and the closest player to +/-23 or 0 wins the hand and gets the difference in points. In this form, all wild cards are forfeit. (DA)

Cloud City Central
this was the largest and best-equipped hospital located on Bespin's Cloud City. (GG2)

Cloud City Miner's Guild
this was the loose association of small corporations which mined the various gases which swirled in the atmosphere of Bespin. The Guild remained separate from the Galactic Miner's Guild, so that they weren't forced to pay surtaxes and weren't subject to Imperial control. (CCG5)

Cloud City Museum
this museum was home to some of Lando Calrissian's favorite artworks, until Zorba the Hutt won Cloud City in a rigged sabacc match. Then, after freezing Trioculus in carbonite, Zorba had his inert form displayed in the museum. (MMY)

Cloud Crupa
a singing bird. (TFE)

Cloud Dance Restaurant
located in the upper levels of Cloud City, the Cloud Dance extended in a ring from a tall, cylindrical tower. Transparisteel windows in the outer walls gave patrons a 360-degree view of Cloud City and the atmosphere of Bespin. The floors and ceilings were also made of transparisteel, giving patrons the feeling that they are floating above the planet. An opaque walkway roamed the perimeter of the restaurant, providing access to all the tables. A beautiful sculpture - a glass sphere with cloud-like gases roiling inside - stood in the center of the restaurant, providing the dancing clouds referred to in its name. (TCC)

Cloud Jumpers
these soliders are part of the Exocron Airfleet, and use repulsorlift jump packs similar to a rocket pack. However, the packs don't propel the wearer as much as they allow the wearer to make incredible leaps of up to 200 meters at a time. (KO)

Cloud Police
the law enforcement agency protecting Cloud City. They are overseen by the Governor of Cloud City. Given the outpost's neutral standing during the Galactic Civil War, the Cloud Police are also neutral, trying not to find fault with either the Empire or the Alliance. (ZHR)

Cloud-Mother
an Ithroian herdship, it was best known for its hospitals and glass manufacturing plants. The ship was voted as the primary reception site for New Republic representatives during the herd meet following the destruction of the Maw Installation. It boasted some of the best guest facilities, as well as one of the largest herdship shuttleports. (COJ)

Cloudberry
a plant which has both blossoms and spikes. Each blossom becomes a sweet fruit, unless there are too many spikes; this makes the fruit tiny and sour. (TB)

Cloudland Peaks
a tourist attraction on Selonia, Cloudland Peaks is actually a chain of five islands which rise out of the ocean so high that their tops disappear in the clouds. (AC, CTD)

Cloudsnake
this reptile has armor-like scales that overlapped to form a smooth carapace near its head. (GG10)

Clubs, The
a cluster of bars and casinos located in Byrne City, on Demophon, the Clubs were heavily-guarded establishments that catered to the underworld of the planet. Run by Ace Lorle, they Clubs able to operate due to the lack of backbone in Jared Fronz. (SN)

Club Prosperine
located on the continent of Kreesis, on Algara II, Club Prosperine is the planet's largest resort facility. Its simply screams luxury in all of its appointments, which are exotic, entertaining, and expensive. (PG2)

Club Vortex
this dance club was located in the upper-class section of the planet Lianna, but went out of business shortly before the institution of the New Order. The building remained vacant for a year before being purchased by Yin Vocta and Vector Technologies. It was soon transformed in the Bantha Traxx restaurant and dance club. (WSV)

Cluster Plug
this power of power plug was used on pod racers. It employed a cluster of power sources to provide energy to the racer's engine. It was a more efficient design than the rotary plug. (RAC)

Cluster Trap
designed by the New Republic, a cluster trap is a nondescript blister on the hull of a capital ship. Hidden inside the blister are any number of high-powered concussion grenades. When starfighters are close enough, the capital ship's weapons crew can activate the cluster trap, sending the grenades spewing into space. If done right, the grenades explode in the midst of the starfighters. (DFRSB)

Clustership
named for the grouping of yorik coral sections which comprised it, this Yuuzhan Vong starship was developed to house immature yammosks as they grew. (JE)

Cluster2 Plug
this second-generation power plug was used on pod racers. It could nearly double the power output of the basic cluster plug. (RAC)

Clutch
New Republic fighter pilot slang for a Tri-fighter, named because of the way the three wings seem to clutch the ball-shaped cockpit. (IJ)

Clyngunn
this ZeHethbra was a major smuggling chief during the early years of the New Republic. Originally an athlete, Clyngunn was a champion unarmed-combat expert who represented ZeHethbra in the Stratis Games on Hallrin IV. He held many records in the inter-species Multi-Sentient Unarmed Combat Rounds. After leaving athletics, Clyngunn quickly became disenchanted with the relative boredom of "real life." He bought his own ship and began running cargoes. He met up with Billey, and started running guns and spice. When he was once boarded by a customs agent who discovered the true nature of his cargo, Clyngunn managed to evade arrest when the agent realized that Clyngunn was a champion athlete. Clyngunn provided the agent with his autograph, and was set free. (DFR, TLC)

CL69
this is a model of Ubrikkian landspeeder. (FOP)

CM-5
this is a concussion missile employed on K-Wing bombers. (TT)

CM-9
this concussion missile is similar to the CM-5 in configuration, but it delivers a much larger payload. (TT)

Cmaoli Di
this planet is located in Brema Sector. Historians note that Cmaoli Di was the first planet in the sector to be overtaken by the Pinacism movement. (SWJ12)

CN-15
this was the model number of Fabritech's camouflage netting system. (ROE)

Cnorec
an Imperial Lord still holding onto dreams of the rebirth of the Empire. He was working under Hethrir to try and establish the Empire Reborn, supprting Hethrir by purchasing slaves from the Firrerreo. Like many of his kind, Cnorec had managed to stockpile a large amount of credits following the downfall of the Empire, and still maintained a decent income despite the New Republic's plans to cut him off. He was killed by Hethrir just before Hethrir's death. Hethrir had seen that Cnorec was losing faith in the vision of the Empire Reborn, and did not want them man in power any longer. (CS)

Coalition for Improvements
this branch of the Empire was created after Palpatine began restructuring COMPNOR to his own design. It mission was to monitor those star systems that needed to improve their allegiance to the Empire. (ISB)

Coalition for Progress
this branch of COMPNOR was in charge of ensuring that there were no impediments to the furthering of Palpatine's Empire. (FOP)

Cob-caree
this Saffa worked for Gamgalon as a Morodin-safari leader on Varonat. (TE)

Cobak
a Bith bounty hunter hired by Zorba the Hutt to impersonate Bithabus the Mystifier and capture Princess Leia. (QE)

Cobolt Offensive
this Alliance military offensive involved the theft of a Imperial scandoc coding computer and the destruction of the base it was stolen from. Using a variant of the Erasmus gambit, Alliance soldiers infiltrated Imperial supplys ships to gain access to the base and knock out its shields. A good number of the Alliance's best soldiers died making the offensive a success. (RASB)

Cobra
one of Lando Calrissian's starships, he owned it before he obtained the Luck Lady. (EGC)

Coby
son of Lord Toda of Tammuz-an, Coby was a spoiled, nine-year-old Prince when R2-D2 and C-3PO encountered him, early in the New Order. (DCAR)

Cockpit Daredevils
a game of skill played in many up-scale cantinas, the player must use his skills to shoot down incoming enemy starfighters. (JHS)

Code Force Seven
the code phrase used by Lando Calrissian to indicate to Lobot that he was in trouble and needed assistance. Calrissian used Code Force Seven to escape Imperial custody and attempt to recover Han Solo from the bounty hunter, Boba Fett. (EGC)

Code Fourteen
this signal was used by Jedi Master Yoda to alert the other Jedi Masters of trouble in the Jedi Temple on Coruscant. (UP)

Code Grave
this Alliance signal indicated that a mission was to be aborted. (CSWEA)

Code of the Claim
this is a method of settling a claim dispute between two independent scouts who register the same claim. If any other scouts come forward to claim the same planet - legally or by jumping a claim - before the credit has been paid and the claim established, then each scout must agree to a Mutual Claim Registration and split the reward. Although not the fairest solution, it is often the only solution when two parties claim the same planet. (GG8)

Code of the Stars
this was an old-fashioned spacer's code of ethics which involved the use of floggings, spacings, and harsh discipline to keep a crew in line and prevent mutinies. (OE)

Code Quasar
this transmission signal was generated by the Alliance, and provided to those pirate and privateer vessels who were working for the Alliance. The Code Quasar signal, when verified against the active database of independent ships working for the Alliance, provided a measure of security and autoanomy whenever a marauding vessel was encountered near Alliance-held space. (PP)

Code Silver
this was the priority signal Darth Vader gave to the troops searching for Luke Skywalker. If any troops discovered Luke's exact location, they were ordered to send Vader a Code Silver transmission with the information. (VQ)

Code Three Recall
this was a general code used by the New Republic to recall military personnel from rest-and-relaxation to active duty. (XWMR)

Code White
this alert was issued by the staff of the Q'Maere Research Facility, in the event that a rowdy patient needed to be detained by ann on-duty personnel. (KR)

Code 1-5
the code signal used by the Alliance for the completion of an evacuation of the Echo Base on Hoth. (ESBN)

Codec
this was the designation of a group of Imperial L-class container ships used to supply the Bretie production facility during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Codeq Santhananan
this being was a contact Dengar used many times. Based in Mos Eisley, on the planet Tatooine, Santhananan ran a private information service. Beings could send and receive messages through Santhananan, always with discretion and confidentiality. However, Santhanana was executed by a former customer, just inside the vestibule of the Mos Eisley Cantina. His business was picked up by an untrustworthy Q'nithian aeropteryx. (MA)

Codex
1) this ancient Jedi artifact was created by the Cthol race. Resembling a small, metallic pyramid, the Codex was designed to measure and manipulate the Force. It is a dull gold color, and is covered with mystic engravings and small crystal-studded patterns. When used by a properly trained Jedi, the Codex glows slightly and hums. Among its many uses, the Codex can locate disturbances in the Force. It can also augment a Jedi's ability to call upon and use the Force. Continued use of the Codex makes the user susceptible to the Dark Side of the Force. When used, however, the Codex sends tremendous shock waves throught the Force. This is what first attracted the Dark Jedi Halbret to it. When it was later found by Pann, the Codex had become brittle and easily damaged. (GMH)
2) this form of DarkStryder technology was discovered by the crew of the FarStar, hidden inside an unusual alien construct deep in the Kathol Rift. In shape, the Codex is a small pyramid with a metallic surface. It was light in weight, and could be damaged by rough handling or by being dropped. It enhanced the Force-sensitivity of its user. The Aing-Tii Monks were very interested in obtaining the Codex, and trained Makezh to navigate the Rift in order to find it. They considered the alien construct and the Codex itself to be sacred and untouchable to themselves, but Makezh was immune to their religious beliefs. (KR)

Codoran
this valuable metal was often used in jewelry. (SOP)

Codru Bat
a small, four-winged bat native to Munto Codru. (CS)

Codru-Ji intelligent, humanoid natives of Munto Codru, the bipedal Codru-Ji race is characterized by their four arms. When immature, the Codru-Ji take the form of a wyrwulf. This is a pupal stage for the Cordu-Ji, and they sleep in a prone position (as most dogs do). The wyrwulf form can communicate through a series of barks and grunts. When the being is of sufficient age, the wyrwulf form cocoons itself, and then metamorphs into a full-grown adult Codru-Ji. The adults must sleep upright, due to the changes brought about by the formation of their four arms. Special slings have been developed to support the slumbering adults. The form of the Codru-Ji communicates in a complex series of high-pitched whistles and sighs, although they are also able to speak in the low-range sounds of most humanoid races. They are known for their political intrigues, abductions, and coups. They seem unable to operate in a simple political environment, instead choosing to convolute their politics with various familiar affiliations. They are also recognized as the best kidnappers in the galaxy, and have established a code of ethics for the kidnap and ransom of political opponents. (CS)

Coelle
this Togorian worked with Theol Dunoche during the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Coen
this CR90 corvette was owned by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Coercion
this Imperial Star Destroyer was under the command of General Klime, who used it to patrol and control the Ishanna System and sevreal surrounding systems. (SWJ9)

Cofferdam
this tube is used to connect two starships whose airlocks are not of the same configuration. One ship extends the cofferdam, which is a flexible, ribbed tube, toward the other. It is rigidly mounted to the first ship, and has a number of ways to connect to the second ship. It can use chemical, mechanical, magnetic, or negative pressure to create a seal. (BTS)

Coffey
a Nharwaak CR90 corvette used to try and delivery new hyperdrive technology to the Alliance. (TIE)

Coffeine
a strong, hot, stimulating beverage. (LCM)

Cognition Hood
this Yuuzhan Vong creation allowed a starship captain or pilot to communicate directly with his ship, thereby making even order or command an instantaneous action. (DTR)

Cognitive Matrix Package
this droid brain component is often used in MD-0 droids to allow them to analyze a patient's brain activity to determine sanity. It can also be used to modify a patient's brain activity through psychiatric analysis. (KT)

Coil, The
this ancient, S-shaped riverbed wound through the desert near Ben's Mesa, on Tatooine. (IWE1)

Coilwood
this shrub, native to the planet Vryssa, grows in dense groupings. (TFNR)

Cojahn
this former smuggler worked with Lando Calrissian to realize their dreams of owning an amusement park. The result of their work was the SkyCenter Galleria on Cloud City. Cojahn hoped to expand the Galleria to other locations across the galaxy, in hopes of supporting his wife and two daughters. However, when Black Sun tried to take control of the Galleria, Cojahn refused to give in and was killed by Czethros himself. It was meant to look like he accidentally fell from a balcony, but Lando refused to believe it. (TCC)

Colbon, Chanty
this con artist and swindler bought passage on luxury starships, such as the Kuari Princess, and charmed the rich passengers out of a great deal of their money. Chanty was aboard the Princess when it was attacked by the Riders of the Maelstrom. (RM)

Colclazure
an Imperial Ensign serving Captain Pellaeon on the Chimaera, Colclazure was Pieterson's commanding officer (HTTE)

Cold, The
a reference to anything intolerable, used by Labria. (TME)

Cold Assault Troops
see snowtroopers (SWSB)

Cold Danda Sire
this deity once threw its shape during the Galactic Civil War, to prove it was as powerful as Horliss-Horliss and Tilotny. Cold Danda Sire was capable of creating anti-concepts, ideas which consumed the concepts of others. Cold Danda Sire manifested itself as a planet-like ball. In an unusual battle, the deities tried to outdo each other by solidifying the bodily flesh and organs of a squadron of stormtroopers who had discovered Leia Organa on a desolate world. However, they soon became bored with the sport and left Splendid Ap to return the humans to their natural state. (CSWDW)

Cold Dawn
a song written and played by the band Starburst. It was first released as part of the compilation Only in Your Dreams, and has been rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Colders Watch
this bulk freighter was owned and operated by Beezrul Granf. (SWJ1)

Coldtime
this is the Gamorrean name for the winter season on the planet Gamorr. It is a harsh period of freezing temperatures and blowing winds, and most Gamorreans remain indoors at all times. This forces the warlike males to soften a bit, and much of the courtship and romance between the sexes occurs during coldtime. (SWJ14)

Colicoid
this is a species of chitinous, insect-like creatures which have a highly-developed level of technology. However, they are also incredibly brutal as a species, and are known to barbarically stop any travellers through their system and eat them. They are extremely skilled in the creation of autmatons, and were the primary developers of the destroyer droids used by the Trade Federation. These droids, known as droidekas, resemble the Colicoid physiology, even mimicking the Colicoid ability to roll up into a ball and surprise their prey. The Colicoid species is native to the planet Colla IV. (VD1, IG1)

Colla IV
this planet, located along the border of the Colonies Region and the Inner Rim, was the homeworld of the Colicoid species. (VD1, IWE1)

Colla-Di
this series of caves and caverns were located on Arda-2. The entrance to the Colla-Di is hidden by the Great Torgur Falls. (CSWEA)

Collafa
this natural spice was used by poisoners, since its chemical make-up altered when it came into contact with certain cooking oils. The resulting elements could cause mental instability in human eaters. (SESB)

Collision Shield
developed by Lando Calrissian and the technicians he employed at Lando's Folly, this shield system allowed starfighters running through the asteroid belt to bounce off asteroids instead of crashing into them. The shield system included defensive arrays and repulsors, all of which were monitored and maintained from a remote station above the asteroid belt. (VP)

Collo Fauale
Mirith Sinn's New Republic agents fled to a hidden base in this mountain pass, on the planet Phaeda, after being routed by Colonel Shev's forces. The pass was then destroyed by Carnor Jax, who ordered the Steadfast and Emperor's Revenge to bombard it from orbit. (CE)

Collomus
this New Republic Intelligence officer held the rank of Brigadier, and served under Carlist Rieekan in the Operations Office. He was involved in the intial planning of the mission to intercept the Teljkon vagabond at Gmir Askilon. He was one of the first people to interview Belezaboth Ourn, after the Paqwe turned himself in to the Republic. (SOL, TT)

Collor Pondrat
manufacturers of racing engines. (X1)

Collus
one of the galaxy's most forward-thinking philosophers, Collus was responsible for the creation of Alderaan University. Collus served the Old Republic as a sage and philosopher. He took his brightest students and formed the University in Aldera, which expanded as various leaders built adjacent schools near Collus' central university. He believed that knowledge without application was wasted knowledge, and that information gleaned from textbooks was inferior to information gained by direct experience. (ISU).

Colmar, Davaire
this human male was a Lieutenant with the Alliance. He had strong features that belied his quiet, extremely competant personality. Before joining the Alliance, Colmar was a rising star in the Imperial Special Training Corps. As a member of the corps, he participated in the Siege of Dalron IV, during which he received a severe head wound and was left to die. When he came to, he wandered the countryside aimlessly, all the while reviewing the battle in his head. He came to the realization that the Empire had failed to protect its own people, and he deserted the corps. He joined the Alliance on Dalron IV. (GG9)

Colo Claw Fish
this huge, flat, elongated fish is found in the depths of Naboo's seas. It have two rows of phosphorescent nodules which travel along either side of its 40-meter-long body, which it uses to attract its prey. The front end of the fish is dominated by a long, tooth-filled snout studded with large eyes that can see into the murky depths. Large, claw-like appendages sprout from either side of its mouth, which the colo uses to capture and hold its prey while it takes huge bites. (SW1, IG1)

Colo's Ship
this was one of six Imperial bulk freighters assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Colonial Constabulary
the Rafa System's police force. (LCM)

Colonial Games
a series of athletic events that are staged between the various colonies of the Roon System. (DCAR)

Colonial News Net
this news organization, headquartered on Findris, was the primary source of galactic information for the Findris Sector and much of the Colonies region. (CRO)

Colonies, The
this is the name given to the areas of the galaxy just outside outside the Core Worlds, which were settled during the early expansion periods of the Old Republic. The Colonies eventually grew into industrial and metropolitan centers, but these were heavily raided during the Emperor's New Order. During the early years of the New Republic, many of these worlds were freed from Imperial control and used as launch points for the Republic's fight to regain Coruscant. (SWSB, EGP)

Colony Authority
this New Republic agency was a sister group of the Bureau of Scouting and Exploration Services, which was better known as the New Republic Scout Service. The Colony Authority was responsible for setting up and supporting new settlements on remote planets. (GG8)

Colony Class 23669
a heavy-duty power generator, the 23669 costs nearly 25 million credits. (SWJ9)

Colony Eight
one of the Ylesia slave and spice colonies, it was destroyed by Tuga SalPivo shortly before the Battle of Ylesia. (RD)

Colony Five
this Ylesia slave and spice colony was led by Pohtarza, shortly before the Battle of Ylesia. (RD)

Colony Four
this Ylesia colony was infiltrated by the Hyallp Noy Waglla, shortly before the Battle of Ylesia. (RD)

Colony Nine
the last of the Ylesian colonies to be built, it was still not operational when Jabba the Hutt sent Sniquux to infiltrate it. The Rodian laid a series of traps for the t'landa Til there and then startled them into them. (RD)

Colony One
this was the primary spice-processing center on the planet Ylesia. The center was ostensibly the site of the religious order founded by Teroenza, although the devoted followers were used as slave labor. The t'landa Til kept the slaves blissfully unaware of their slavery by making them attend daily devotions at the Altar of Promises, where the creatures use their neck pouches to emit sonic vibrations that affect the sensory areas of the slaves' brains. The colony is located between the Mountains of the Exalted and Zoma Gawanga, and was 147 kilometers away from Colony Two. It was here that the Alliance struck the first blows of the Battle of Ylesia, engaging Nova Force in a brief firefight that left much of the mercenary group dead. (TPS, RD)

Colony Seven
this Ylesian slave and spice colony was infiltrated by Aiaks Fwa shortly before the Battle of Ylesia. (RD)

Colony Three
the third colony established by Teroenza on Ylesia, it was created after Han Solo and Bria Tharen nearly destroyed Colony One during their escape. Bria and her band of freedom fighters returned to Colony Three, seeing that it was not as sercurely guarded as the first two colonies, to rescue the enslaved pilgrims there. (THG)

Colony Two
the second of three planned false religious colonies established by the Hutts and the t'landa Til on Ylesia, it was here that Mrrov was held in thrall until Muuurgh rescued her. Colony Two, sited on the northeastern edge of the Zoma Gawanga, was located 147 kilometers from Colony One, across the Gachoogai River and the Mountains of Faith, and was nearly identical in layout to Colony One. (TPS)

Color-crawler
a small alien creature which exudes a colored slime as it travels. The slime can be used to color a great many things, including hair, cloth, and paint. (CS)

Colossus Wasp of Ithull
a huge insectoid alien, about the size of a large transport ship. The insects are so huge that the dead are scavenged by the various transport guilds in the Stenness system, and their exoskeletons are scrapped out. These hollow shells are then fitted with interior holds, navigation systems, hydraulics, and crew quarters. The exterior is then plated, and sublight and hyperspace drives are attached so that the entire carapace can be used as a fast cargo ship. They were virtually indestructible, since the round shape tended to deflect laser blasts. The pirates of the Stenness System later developed small ships which could latch onto and pierce the outer hull so that they could enter the cargo holds and steal the cargo. When alive, the wasps fed on stellar radiation, raw proto-materials, and the multitude of silicon-based lifeforms which lived in the vacuum of space. (TOJ, TOJC)

Cols
this planet was covered oceans and waterways. (COG)

Cols Kalaides Harvest Guild
this guild monitors and regulates the population of kalaides in Harvest Bay, on the planet Cols, working to maintain a balance that allows ideal water conditions and better harvests of fish. (COG)

Colsa
this barren, rocky world was the second planet in the Dostra System. It had a single moon. (AIR)

Colton
1) a member of the support staff of the Royal House of Alderaan, Colton was the owner of C-3PO and R2-D2 during the early years of Palpatine's rule as Emperor. He brought the two droids to one of Palpatine's balls, where C-3PO mistook Darth Vader for a GuardDroid. Colton demoted C-3PO to preschool teaching duty for the offense. In the Star Wars novelization, it is inferred that Colton was the Captain of the Tantive IV*, although the the* Star Wars film script, the Captain's name was Antilles. (SWN, EGC)
2) this New Republic Naval Ensign served aboard the FarStar during its travels through Kathol Sector. (KO)
3) this New Republic Lieutenant served as the weapons officer aboard the Home One, serving under Admiral Ackbar during the liberation of Ciutric. (IR)

Colu
this large white star is the primary star in the Colu System. (GG4)

Colu System
planetary system in the Mayagil Sector, it contains Clak'Dor. (GG4)

ColuChem
this Bith chemical research group created the compound Anti-Corr 113. (SWJ9)

Columi
these aliens, native to the planet Columus, are a peaceful, non-agressive race with a vast intellect stored in their huge heads. One third of their height, and most of their weight, is found in their heads, which are wreathed with throbbing blood vessels. The brain of the Columi is divided into over 100 lobes, each dedicated to an independent function. The collection of intelligence has long-since rendered their limbs useless, and they have to be transported in antigrav harnesses. The eyes of the Columi are capable of seeing in the entire electromagnetic spectrum, and can "hear" by analyzing the frequency of sound and radio waves. Their technology centers on the use of radio waves, generated by their immense brains. All Columi hardware is created to be activated and manipulated with radio waves. They use droids and other machinery to perform their physical work. Being one of the first species to develop an advanced society and technology, they were greatly dismayed to find the rest of the galaxy inhabitted by "barbarians." Also, the heaviness of standard gravity was hard for the Columi to overcome, so off-world travel is kept to a minimum. Those Columi found off Columus are either scholars, business leaders, or gamblers, and can be almost impossible to beat. They apparently freely joined the Empire, although mainly in order to retain their isolation. (CPL, GG4)

Columni
this corporation developed highly-specialized droids brains for non-standard uses. (CRO)

Columus
this planet is the homeworld of the Columi race. It is a small world with a light gravitational field and very little tectonic movement. It is a flat, muddy world with no natural erosion. (GG4)

Columdra Sector
an area of the galaxy containing Nyasko. (DESB)

Com
an Alliance container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Com scan
a specialized sensor sweep modulated to detect the energy generated by message transmission signals. (ESB)

Com-box
this communications equipment is used in areas where natural surroundings make radio communication useless. Com-boxes are connectde via a fiber-optic link, which uses light impulses to transmit messages. (IC)

Com-Repeater
this was the brand name of MicroThrust's advanced sensor scrambling device. (ROE)

Com-Scan
a section of the Empire which deals with communications. A Com-Scan center is located in each Star Destroyer and all large Imperial warships, to facilitate the sharing of information during battle situations. (ESB)

CoMar Combat Systems
manufacturers of surface-to-air weapons, CoMar is located in the Corporate Sector. (ISB, POT)

Comar Antiatmospheric Gun
a specialized weapon that creates disturbances in the surrounding air, forcing airborne craft to the ground. (TME)

Comaren
a re-orientive drug. (COJ)

Comark, Amber
the daughter of Moff Jesco Comark, Amber was friends with a librarian in the Imperial archives during her early years. When the librarian was exposed as an Alliance agent, Amber could only watch as the librarian was arrested and interrogated. The death of the librarian was reported to Amber by her father, and only served to highlight the atrocities the Empire considered normal behavior. Amber decided to assume the role played by the librarian - as the special agent known as Tigress - but she had neither the training nor the contacts of the librarian. Her information was much less reliable, and Alliance Special Operations began to doubt Tigress' loyalties. When Amber discovered that her father was the mastermind behind the Death-Hunter project, she began filtering data about it to the Alliance. She provided information on the use of Plexus courier droids, as well as hints of strange kidnappings, through her astromech droid, R2-B4. She remained near the project, and was able to assist a group of Alliance agents in exposing it. She met them on Bescane, after the loss of Cooper Dray, and they were led on a chase which ended on Zeta Zero Nine. It was there that the Alliance agents, along with Lady Amber, defeated her father and eliminated the primary Death-Hunter development files. (SWJ9)

Comark, Jesco
this Imperial Moff was the creator of the Death-Hunter project. A native of the planet Chandrila, he was nonetheless easily swayed by Senator Palpatine's writings and speeches, and was one of the few Chandrilans who embraced the beliefs of the unassuming Palpatine. When Palpatine instituted the New Order, he awarded Comark with the position of Imperial Governor of Chandrila despite the protests of Mon Mothma. She lobbied that Comark had no political experience in governing a planet, and Comark eventually yielded to her. He then took a position within Renik, and began diverting its resources into the Death-Hunter project. He was finally brought down by Alliance agents at his secret base on Zeta Zero Nine, as a result of the information provided to the Alliance by his own daughter, Amber. In a battle within his underwater base, the Alliance agents were able to free nearly all of the kidnapped humans who were being used to create the Death-Hunter cyborgs. They destroyed the facility, and it was believed that Moff Comark perished in the destruction. (SWJ9)

Combat
this is the traditional method of deciding disputes between the S'krrr and Rabaanite peoples. It was initially created some 6,300 years before the Galactic Civil War, as a way for the two races to coexist in relative peace. Under the rules of Combat, the strongest warrior from each planet is selected to battle the other in single combat. The battle takes places on the Combat Moon, and the two combatants must fight to the death. The victor's planet is declared the winner of the dispute. (SWJ9)

Combat Aquaspeeder
developed from the basic Incom T-47 airspeeder, this Hydrospeare Corporation design modified the airspeeder for use as an aquatic attack craft. Unlike most Hydrospeare designs, however, this craft found use within the Alliance. This craft was armed with a turret-mounted quad-laser cannon as well as a power harpoon. The cockpit was modified to allow for a second pilot, and the entire fuselage was streamlined to give it better maneuverability underwater. (AIR)

Combat Arachnid
a twelve-legged insectoid native to the planet Carida, these crimson and maroon beasts had hard shells covered with needle-like spines. Their outer shell is extremely hard, and they have piston-like jaws that devour their prey quickly and efficiently. They communicate via a series of hypersonic transmissions. (TJP)

Combat Assault Vehicle (CAV)
this is a small, single-person comabt ship which uses a repulsorlift, instead of wheels and treads, to move about. (DFR)

Combat Command Center
this area was the heart of an New Republic warship, and housed the battle analysis computers and a wealth of tactical sensors. (IR)

Combat Moon
this is the name given to the only natural satellite of the planet Rabaan. It is a barely habitable world, with a thin atmosphere supporting minimal plant and animal life. The Combat Moon is tectonically active, and great rifts and jagged peaks mark its drab, gray surface. Despite its proximity to Rabaan, it was declared neutral ground by the Rabaanites and S'krrr, who used the moon as the battlefield on which to settle their differences. A champion from each world would be sent to the moon to battle for the resolution of any dispute between the two races. It was on this moon that Imperial Commander Glave met Mika Streev and Sh'shak, who had prepared to do battle for their worlds, in the first stage of the Imperial invasion of the Ishanna System. (SWJ9)

Combat Sense
a technique employed by the Jedi Knights, it allows a Jedi to focus most of their attention on the battle at hand. The Jedi sees enemies as bright images, and can direct the flow of the battle while viewing enemy positioning. (SWSB)

Combat Utility Vehicle
any small (15 meters), maneuverable ship used to supply weapons and other consumables to space outposts. These craft have a top speed of 35 MGLT, and are armed with 2 laser cannons and 2 ion cannons. They are usually unshielded, with weak, 8 RU hulls. Thus, they are never far from their motherships. (TIE)

Combined Clans
this is the governing body of the Bothan race. It is made up of the leaders of the various Bothan clans. They were responsible for all aspects of Bothan life, including security and finance. They made a series of poor financial decisions following the Battle of Endor and the formation of the New Republic, and suddenly found themselves in debt. A clever manipulation of financial data made it appear that the Bothans were still in control of large sums of credits, but they were sorely impoverished at the time. This situation was exacerbated by the revelations of the Caamas Document, when they could not make any form of restitution to the Caamasi without bankrupting themselves and shaking up several major galactic stock exchanges. (SOP)

Combined Clans Center Building
this is the huge, spacious business center of the Combined Clans, located in Merchant's Square, in the city of Drev'starn on Bothawui. Much of the Bothan financial empire is centered in this edifice. (SOP)

Come-up Flector
this was a backwater term for a person who patrolled a starport or other point of debarkation, searching for potential buyers of services they don't really need. (HTTE, TFE)

Comeg
an Imperial Admiral whose fleet patrolled the Core Worlds during the Galactic Civil War. (DESB)

Comestibles and Curatives Administration this group was established by the New Republic to ensure that the various corporations producing foodstuffs for the galaxy were operating with the interests of the galaxy in mind. (JE)

Comet Casino
a bar and restaurant located on Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Comet Squadron
an A-Wing group serving the New Republic under General Crespin. (WS)

Comfan
this personal comfort device was used on the planet Adumar to keep oneself cool. It was a small, hemispherical device with a handle. The flat side was crossed with vents, and the round side held the handle and an intake vent. A small motor drew air through the intake and pushed it out through the vents. In the city of Cartann, handling the comfan was an art, and each gesture had a hidden meaning. (SOA)

Comkin Five
this planet was known for its production of candies and medicines. The two industries were inextricably tied to each other. The world was controlled by the Warlord Zsinj during the early years of the New Republic, and was targetted for action by Han Solo's task force hunting the warlord. (SOC)

Comlaser Link
a form of communications which requires visual contact between the sending device and the remote location. (AS)

Comlight
similar in size and shape to a comlink, this device uses bursts of light to send a signal. Flashes and coloration can be used in a sort of code to signal another individual far away. The comlight is somewhat more effective than a comlink in situations where slience and stealth are necessary, but only in those situations where a bright light wouldn't be noticed. (IG1)

Comlink
a small, cylindrical device that is spoken into. The user's voice is then transmitted to a certain destination (which can be programmed in) or to a broadcast address. They also function as receivers, allowing the user to hear the reply. (SW, HTTE)

Command Control Voice
a vocal pattern, usually of a master or primary supervisor, which is programmed into a droid's receptors. This vocal pattern can be used to send special control instructions to the droid. (SWR)

Command Performance
this Rendili-Surron Starlight freighter was owned by Ahric Korownosek. He used to transport his acting troupe, the NovaCluster Players, to their many engagements. The cargo sections had been modified to accommodate the troupe's costumes and props, and the library was stocked with all sorts of holodramas. (SS)

Commander, The
Garm Bel Iblis' alias in his own anti-Empire group. (DFR)

Commando Team One
this group of New Republic infiltration agents was led by Kapp Dendo during the period following the Battle of Endor. (XWMR)

Commando Team 4
the team of Noghri commandos sent by Grand Admiral Thrawn to intercept Princess Leia on Bpfassh, following Thrawn's attack there. They tried to trick Han and Leia into a mockup of the Millennium Falcon, but were routed when Han realized that the ship was a fake. (HTTE)

Commando Team 8
the team of Noghri commandos sent by Grand Admiral Thrawn to intercept Princess Leia on Bimmisaari, during the New Republic's first set of diplomatic talks there. The Bimms were bribed to keep their presence a secret, but the Noghri were destroyed when Luke and Leia realized what was happening. (HTTE)

Commando Team 22
the team of Noghri commandos sent by Grand Admiral Thrawn to intercept Princess Leia on Kashyyyk, following the failure of the first two attempts to capture Princess Leia. She was trying to hide from Thrawn by mingling with the Wookiees, but the Noghri tracked her to Kashyyyk and attacked. Chewbacca's friend Salporin was killed in the attack, but so were all but one of the Noghri. Khabarakh was the sole survivor, and the uselessness of the attack turned him from the life of a commando to that of a New Republic sympathizer. (HTTE)

Commelina
this colorful, flowering plant is used in decorative gardens. (TT)

Commenor
this planet, located near the Corellian System and sitting on the outer edge of the Core Worlds, was a trading outpost and spaceport. Han tells Luke that he traded his chivalry for a 10-carat chrysopaz and three bottle of brandy there. According to Star Wars: Rebellion, Commenor is located in the Corellian Sector. (SWN, REB, WS)

Commenor Holocom
this communications installation and repair business was based on the planet Commenor during the early years of the New Republic. (IR)

Commerce Concourse
this was the primary business facility located in Hreas Port City, on Lenthalis. Shortly before the Battle of Hoth, a series of riots broke out between rival gangs, around the Commerce Concourse. (SWJ14)

Commerce Way
this was the name of an avenue on Coruscant, after the New Republic re-established the planet as the central world of the Republic. (JE)

Committee of Seven for Garosian Unification known as COSGU, this group of underground leaders formed shortly after the Empire took control of the planet Garos IV. Formed by Carl Barzon and Magir Paca, the seven-member group coordinated the resistance during the last years of the Galactic Civil War and until Garos IV was liberated. (SWJ1)

Common Charter
this document lays out the basic tenets and operational guidelines of the New Republic. A number of articles lay out the general statutes. Article Five describes the right of the Chief of State to declare a state of war against a known enemy. Leia Organa-Solo invoked this Article during the Black Fleet Crisis, forestalling the vote of recall against her during the Third Electoral and declaring war on the Yevetha. Article Nineteen indicates that any planet without a native population cannot be controlled by the Republic. Anyone can settle the planet without political affiliation. (TT)

Common Room of Honoghr
the meeting place of the Noghri government in Nystao. It is also referred to as the Grand Dukha. (DFR)

Communal Pool
this is the name of the monthly gathering of the Ergesh elders. The Communal Pool worked to establish the basic laws by which the Ergesh lived. (AE)

Communications Cable
this form of cable carried voice and data between two locations. Considered a precursor to the holonet transmissions of the modern era, comm cables were a point-to-point communications media. In order to talk to another person, one had to have a comm cable between their locations. An individual location might have had hundreds of comm cables running to other locations. (SOA)

Communications Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was dedicated to maintaining the communications network of the planet. It led into the Study Circle. (FFT)

Communicator mini-Droid known as a CmD, this small device is essentially a droid brain enclosed in a case with a detachable keyboard. They are used primarily as interface devices to other computers and droids, but they can also transmit and receive data from remote locations. With some programming, a CmD can be employed as a lock picker. All communication with the CmD is through the keyboard or a frequency-matched comlink, since the device has no audiomembrane or voice module. (TA)

Commuter
this Ubrikkian gravsled measures 3.5 meters in length. It was the basic commuter vehicle used by the Corporate Sector Authority, because it was cheap and reliable. It has room for two passengers, and the cockpit is protected by a windscreen. (CSA)

Commutrans
this form of urban transportation involves the use of repulsor-cars riding through transport tubes connected in a network that allows travel between many locations throughout a city. (ML)

Compare Storerooms
this was a mnemonic game favored by name protocol droids. (SOC)

Compensator Computer
a device which allows a starship's communications systems to build new circuits in case normal circuits are destroyed. It has been seen that they are useful to non-technical ship owners, but the more experienced technicians think their ability is overstated. (DFR)

CompForce
this was the military branch of COMPNOR, created to provide Emperor Palpatine with a loyal group of armed forces in the event that stormtroopers were unavailable. (ISB)

Complete History of Corvis Minor, The a multicard set of literature that, due to the nondescript history of Corvis Minor, is rarely read; the box was used by the Imperials to hide a blaster in every residential floor of the Imperial palace. (TLC)

Compmatch
an upscale casino game. (RM)

COMPNOR
formed by the Emperor Palpatine at the beginning of his reign, The Commission for the Preservation of the New Order (COMPNOR, for short) was created to provide the galxay's idealistic youths a vehicle for removing the chaos of the Old Republic's death. Palpatine quickly saw the advantages of the youth movement, and began subtly twisting it to his own use, as a vehicle for instilling the basic tenets of the New Order into everyday galactic life. (ISB)

Compound Flex-5
this was the brand name of Merr-Sonn Munitions' detonite gel, which was impregnated into plastic adhesive tape to form detonite tape. (ROE)

Compton
an Imperial frigate operative durign the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Computer Combat Predictor
this starship weapons system, developed by Imperial engineers in the decade after the death of Admiral Thrawn, was designed to assist a cloaked starship. At its most advanced design, a cloaking device hid a starship from outside view, but also left the starship blind as to its surroundings. Thus, if it was discovered while cloaked, a starship was unable to safely maneuver, let alone anticipate an attack. The Predictor was developed to assist in predicting the attack of incoming starfighters, interfacing with the weapons systems to fire autoamtically in a set pattern. Supreme Commander Pellaeon tested the initial version of the Predictor ten years after Thrawn’s death, and found the system still lacking any true accuracy. (SOP)

Computer Mating Service
this Bith establishment (known as CMS) is responsible for the matching of the DNA of prosective mates, in order to generate a series of child-patterns (CPs) projecting the outcome of their union. This allows the Bith mates to create the best possible children for their continued existence. (GG4)

Computer Probe
any device built to gain access to a computer system and probe it for information. Blue Max was built as a computer probe, in the hopes that he could penetrate the Corporate Sector Authority's databanks on Orron III and retrieve information on the missing people. (HSE)

Computer Spike
any device used to covertly gain access to information stored in a mainframe computer. They are programmed to gain access to data and then continually modify themselves to avoid detection. The problem with this is that the spike degrades in efficiency as it works, until it has completely rewritten itself and it is completely useless. Each spike, therefore, can only be used once. (CFG)

Comran
one of the crewmen serving Captain Hajj aboard the Star of Empire, Comran was killed after the Systems Integration Manager program took control of the ship. As Hajj and his crew were climbing a gangway to reach the communications room, someone dropped a repulsor engine down the shaft. It struck Comran and carried him to his death at the bottom of the shatf. (GOF10)

ComTech Eavesdropper
a communications jamming pack developed by MicroThrust. The Alliance's Infiltrator units often modified these devices to broadcast a general presence of trouble in the area, without giving away a concrete position. (TTSB)

Comus
a member of the rebel underground in Il Avali, on Druckenwell, Comus was proficient at creating false identification for other members. He created Ids for Tinian I'att and Twilit Hearth to use when they got Tinian off Druckenwell following the deaths of Tinian's grandparents. (TFE)

Con Queecon
the phrase used by the Ranat race to describe themselves, it translates to "The Conquerors." (GG4)

Cona
a planet in the Teke Ro system, it has a lush, tropical environment. Due to its lack of axial tilt, the environment is pretty much the same over the entire surface. The atmosphere has a high concentration of ammonia, and any oxygen is found locked in the bedrock. Often, the only water found on the planet is collected and stored by the native plantlife. The planet's primary sentient lifeform, the Arcona, survive in small comunities which harvest the plant pods for their water. The Glove of Darth Vader describes Cona as having ammonia-filled jungles, which are home to star dragons. (SCRE, GG4, GDV)

Conar, Miech
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the New Star when the frigate was hijacked by the crew of the Far Orbit, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (FOP)

Concert of the Winds
when the hurricane season comes to the planet Vortex, the winds whistle through the Cathedral of Winds' many holes and spires, creating this unique musical experience. The winged Vors often fly around the spires, helping to create the music by opening and closing different sets of holes. (DA)

Concertinium
a small musical device. (POT)

Conclave
this group of Ssi-ruuk held the spiritual power on their homeworld of Lwhekk. According to records, the Conclave had power equal to that of the Elders' Council. (TBSB)

Conclave on the Plight of the Refugees this summit, held in the Government House of Ord Mantell, was convened by the New Republic to discuss ways in which the refugees fleeing the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy could be properly housed, fed, and relocated. (HT)

Concord Dawn
Jaster Mereel's home planet. (EGC)

Concussion Bow
an ancient projectile weapon that uses a small concussion charge to impel a small, arrow-like projectile at a target. The stock of the weapon is rifle-shaped, and is used like a rifle. (DE2)

Concussion Missile
a detonation device which, although not as powerful as a proton torpedo, is much faster. They employ an armor-piercing tip mounted on a compact energy pack. This tip allows the missile to penetrate a ship's hull, while also serving to ignite the weapon's energy pack. Upon striking a target, an atom smasher is activated near the energy pack, imploding the atoms and generating a huge amount of energy and heat. This first melts the target, then explodes it. (ROTJ, SWSB, DFR, SCRE)

Concussion Shielding
another name for particle shielding. (CPL)

Concussion Sphere
an ancient form of projectile weapon, these bombs were the early counterparts of concussion missiles. (TOJC)

Condemnation
this Imperial Victory-class Star Destroyer was destroyed shortly before the Battle of Endor, when the Azzameen family assaulted a Viraxo Industries platform and rescued Antan Azzameen. The ship was destroyed during the Azzameen's escape from the platform. (XWA)

Condensor Unit
a neurotronic circuit device which radiates large amounts of heat from a small input source. They are standard in most survival kits, where they are used for cooking and heating. (SW)

Condor
1) this starfighter pilot served under Esege Tuketu as a K-wing bomber pilot. He was one of the many K-wing pilots who refused to attack Yevethan warships during the blockade of Doornik-319. He and the others believed that the pleas from Yevethan prisoners were, in fact, real. Unfortunately for the Republic, the pleas were perjured under the direction of Tal Fraan, and served to deter the Fifth Battle Group from destroying Yevethan ships. (SOL)
2) this was the codename of the Alliance's drop point, located in the M132L4 System, during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ14)

Condor Dragon
another name for the mantigrue, a dragon-like creature native to the Forest Moon of Endor. (ISU)

Condren Foreck
a famous athlete from the planet Azbrian, Condren is also the heiress to her aging father's vast fortune. For this reason, she is approached by Lando Calrissian as his second choice for a rich wife. A pale, thin woman with frizzy hair and a whiny voice, Condren was approached by Frang Colgter and married him before Lando arrived on Azbrian. She failed to contact him before the wedding, and so Lando was forced to cross her off his list. (AC)

Conergin
this medicinal drug is a strong anesthetic. (TFE)

Cones of Silence
this was the name of Ujin Voli's personal starship. (SSR)

Confal
this Alliance Muurian transport was destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Confederene
this was the governing body of the planet Isht. (VOF)

Conference of Uncommitted Worlds held on Kabal, this was a meeting of the neutral worlds during the Galactic Civil War. (CSW)

Conform-Foam
this material is used to form bedrolls and temporary furniture, as it quickly conforms to a being's physical shape and supports their body. (SSR)

Conform-lounge Furniture
a type of furniture which molds itself to the user's shape, enhancing the user's comfort. (HSR)

Congene
this is one of the former names of the Star Morning. (SOL)

Congress of Malastare
this was governing body of the Gran which controlled the planet Malastare during the last decades of the Old Republic. (IS1)

Coniel
this young slave boy was rescued from the sand drains of Mos Espa by Anakin Skywalker, during Anakin's attempt to free Arawynne and the Ghostlings from Gardulla the Hutt. (E1A8)

Conjeni
this race of starfish-shaped sentients is covered with reddish fur. They have two eyes on the top-most arm of their bodies, and a smooth-lipped mouth. The middle two arms serve as normal arms, and end with three thin fingers and a tentacle-like thumb. The lower two arms act like legs. (TSK)

Conjo Fighter
a form of atmospheric fighter which was used by local militias during the height of the New Order, the Conjo was produced by Aratech as the Y41-C2LC Fighter. It measured fourteen meters in length, and was armed with a concussion missile launcher and a pair of laser cannons. The Y41-4LC version of the Conjo was similar in design, but was armed with four laser cannons. The Y41-T was known as the Conjo Trainer, and essentially a slower version of the base Y41-C2LC version. This craft was designed to purely atmosphereic flight, and was driven by a repulsorlift engine system. (TBSB)

Conjo Trainer
this version of the Conjo atmospheric fighter was known by the model number Y41-T. It was similar to the Y41-C2LC fighter, but was slower. (TBSB)

Conjurer
a playing piece in the game of Firepath. (CSWDW)

Connection Trace
this is a method of determining a target's location by analyzing the strength and position of an incoming transmission. It is much easier to locate a target if the target is transmitting a signal, although a directed transmission can be used to locate the receiving end through various triangulations. (SW1)

Conner net
an electrically-charged metal mesh used to immobilze a target, Conner nets come in a variety of shapes and sizes. Large Conner nets are used to detain ships, by dropping the net onto a ship and allowing the net to weld itself to their hulls. Smaller nets can be placed in passageways and triggered with motion sensors to drop onto intruders. This is a much less humane use, of course. (TLC, VOF)

Conner Ship Systems
designers and manufacturers of conner nets. (TTSB)

Conners
this Alliance starship crewman served under Alain Gryphon aboard the Celestial. Conners was killed when the ship was captured by the Charon in Otherspace, during the initial wave of attacks. (OS)

Conno
this young Ghostling child was captured, along with Princess Arawynne, by Djas Puhr and brought to Mos Espa to be sold as a slave. Conno was just five years old at the time. (E1A5)

Conor
this Imperial trooper served under Administrator Brago, after Brago replaced Fuguee at the Kline Colony outpost. In reality, Conor was an Alliance agent named Urek who had infiltrated the colony after Brago's rise to power. It was Conor who supposedly shot down Daye Azur-Jamin's message pod, which told the Sunesi where to retrieve a cache of smuggled weapons. Urek later helped Daye and his companions escape from the colony's prison. (SWJ10)

Conqueror Assault Ship
this Surronian starship has an organic, streamlined shape. The overall design has a small pod in front for the bridge and commadn center, which is connected to a large, bulbous engine and power section by a thin neck. The Conqueror measures 28 meters in length, and the sleek, curving hull provides it with maneuverability that belies its size. It is armed with a pair of ion cannons mounted on the command section, and a turret-mounted double laser cannon. The Conquerer could transport up to 25 metric tons of cargo and a single passenger, in addition to its crew of a pilot and co-pilot. (EGV, PP)

Conquest
the Imperial Interdictor-class Cruiser which was patrolling the space near Ithor for smugglers. It happened to discover the Ithorian culture and its knowledge of ecology, and obtained a vast base of knowledge from the Ithorians. Tales from the Mos Eisley Cantina describes the Conquest as an Imperial-class Star Destroyer under the command of Captain Alima. This fits in with the Star Wars: Customizable Card Game, which indicates that the Conquest was one of the two Star Destroyers which chased the Millennium Falcon from Mos Eisley. (SCRE, TME, CCG2)

Conroy, Allyse
Moranda Savich used this pseudonym to get close to Hal Horn on Darkknell, during the search for the plans to the first Death Star. Horn had been wearing a Jostrian choke-collar, placed on his neck by Ysanne Isard, in order to guarantee his cooperation. Moranda and Garm Bel Iblis needed to get him free in order to get to the plans, so Moranda pretended to be Allyse and ran up to him in the middle of Xakrea. She flung her arms around his neck in a big hug, then secretly unlatched the collar. (TFNR)

Conservatory Epic Orchestra
based on the planet Brentaal, this presitigous orchestra was a member of the Brentaal Hall Conservatory. (SWJ13)

Consolidated Learning Systems
this manufacturer specializes in consumer electronics and appliances. They also provide high-profile business and military computer systems. CLS is one of the many non-voting contributing sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Constable of Homunculi
a special Dark Side Adept, the Constable is the leader of the Emperor's Clone Keepers on Byss. (DESB)

Constrainer
an Imperial Interdictor-class Cruiser. (DFR)

Constrictor
a corvette under the command of Warlord Zsinj. He dispatched it to protect the Night Caller during a raid on Talasea, but the New Republic and Wraith Squadron were waiting for them. As the Wraiths pummeled the Imperials, the crew of the Constrictor decided to surrender. (WS)

Construction Crawler
a crane-like device which was used to perform maintenance on tall buildings. The crawler ran along a track that was mounted to the building, and as it moved along the track it worked. Crawlers could clean, fix, and modify the buildings they were attached to. (LO)

Construction droids
huge, 40-story tall machines that are capable of gathering raw materials, synthesizing them into parts, and then building structures. They were built early in Emperor Palpatine's reign, and are still in use by the New Republic. They are often equipped with implosion wrecking balls, plasma cutters, and huge shovels and hammers. Each of these droids is programmed to operate along a specific path, reducing everything it encountered to rubble. This rubble is further smelted and reduced to its component elements within nuclear furnaces. These raw materials are sent on to processing plants within the droid, which modify the materials and create brand new construction materials. These can be assembled in the wake of the droid's path into new buildings based on preprogrammed designs. (DE1, JS, JASB)

Constructor Pods
small, crablike ships built by the Mon Calamari, they are used to build the star cruisers at the Mon Calamari shipyards. (DA)

Consular Ship
any starship registered to a member of the Imperial Senate, they were immune to spaceport and deep-space inspections. When the Emperor dissolved the Senate, he took away the ability to register as a consular ship, thus eliminating any secrets. (SW, SWR)

Container Ship
any of the huge supertransports utilizing standardized cargo containers to move huge amounts of cargo across the galaxy. These ships are very expensive and very slow, and require the use of a smaller transport ship to offload their cargo to its destination, since they are incapable of landing at any spaceport.
There are various classes of container ship:

- A-class a 75-meter-long, trapezoidal box with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- B-class a 55-meter-long, hexagonal tube with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- C-class a 75-meter-long, tapered hexagonal tube with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- D-class a 50-meter-long, six-pointed cube with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- E-class a 50-meter-wide, hexagonal cone with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- F-class a 50-meter-long, partitioned container with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- G-class a 25-meter-long, dumbbell-shaped container with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- H-class a 20-meter-long, saucer-chaped container with 50 SBD shields and a 20 RU hull
- I-class a 40-meter-long, three-sided container with 50 SBD shields and a 10 RU hull
- J-class
- K-class
- L-class

(XW, TIE, XWA)

Container Transport
any ship designed to moved the various configurations of cargo containers. These 100-meter-long ships have a specialized central section which can grasp and hold several containers for movement to and from storage. They have been rated at 30 MGLT, with no weapons and minimal shields (50 SBD, 35 RU hull). (TIE)

Containment Bubble
a starfighter life-support system, the containment bubble is activated whenever a cockpit breach is detected. Using force fields, the bubble surrounds the pilot with a small envelope of breathable air that matches the shape of the cockpit. The containment bubble is incapable of protection against full vacuum, but will allow a pilot to repair the damage to the cockpit and restore normal operations. It also has a limited duration of about an hour, depending on the size of the power pack it is attached to. (IR)

Contel
an Imperial container transport operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Contemporary Galactic Architecture
a popular data-magazine published during the height of the New Order. (GMH)

Contender Squadron
this group of New Republic A-Wings served aboard the Allegiance during the defense of Adumar. (SOA)

Contest, The
this Silika battle of intestinal fortitude required that a challenger and his opponent consume a wide range of alcoholic beverages, with bets made at each round as to which contestant will pass out first. The challenger was allowed to choose the drinks, but was honor-bound to consume it the exact same way as his opponent. The rules of The Contest required that the loser accept his loss, and not take revenge on the victor. There was also a great deal of ceremony involved in the challenge, which each contestant had to follow or risk disqualification. (SWJ1)

Continuum Void
this tapcafe, located in the city of Xakrea on the planet Darkknell, was the place where Alliance agents planned to turn over the plans to the first Death Star to an aide of Garm Bel Iblis. After Bel Iblis was nearly killed in an explosion on Anchoron, he decided to travel to Darkknell and recover the plans himself. (TFNR)

Contract Sabacc
an obscure form of sabacc played by two teams of players. (BW)

Contracts Guild
this bounty hunters' brotherhood was formed on the planet Wroona. It was one of the less legitimate guilds targetted by Imperial Governor Norrin for elimination. (SWJ9)

Control
1) the first of the Force skills which Jedi Knights are able to use, Control is an internal skill which can be used to recognize the Force in oneself and in the universe. (SWSB, IJ)
2) this was the codename of the Cavrilhu Pirate who monitored security at the Kauron asteroid base. Control was one of the inventors behind the Jedi-containing rooms built into the base. The room used a tight grid of bars which emerge from opposite walls of the chamber to pin a person inside. The bars are pressure-sensitive, and will firmly grasp anything they come in contact with. The room was also equipped with gas-emitting jets, which could be used to flood the chamber with deadly gases. They could also be used in reverse, creating an airless vacuum in the room. When Zothip flew to Bastion, in an effort to obtain compensation for the loss of a battle cruiser at Pesitiin, Control was the only member of the gang to survive the combined defense of Major Tierce and Karoly D'ulin. He had become tired of following in Zothip's misguided footsteps, and allowed the pirate captain to get himself killed. Control then assumed control of the Cavrilhu Pirates himself. He broke off the primary relationship with Moff Disra and the Empire, but agreed to keep producing Preybird forr them. (SOP, VOF)

Control
an Imperial Corvette operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Control Brain Network
this is the heart of the Trade Federation's droid army. Contained in the massive bulk of a Federation droid control ship, the Control Brain Network coordinates the activities of all droids deployed by an invasion force. (X1)

Control Guide
this branch of the Keganite Enforcement Guides was charged with maintaining the order of the Learning Circle as well as the Relearning Circle. (FFT)

Control Leash
a device used by handlers of wild or dangerous species. It allows the handler to control their captives from a distance, administering controls and punishments without physical contact. (HSR)

Control Mind
a technique discovered by the Jedi Knights, in which the Force is used to take control os another person. It was considered a product of the Dark Side of the Force. (WEG)

Control Zone
this cyborg prosthesis manufacturer produces limbs which are primarily used as weapons, such as the Repulse-hand. (CFG)

Controller FP
SoroSuub's personal force pike. (ISB)

Contruum
this planet was the homeworld of Airen and Pash Cracken. (CRO, WG)

Contruum's Pride
this freighter was discovered by Rogue Squadron to be working with the Imperial ship Vengeance Derra IV on Mrisst. The two ships worked together to throw off pursuit while smuggling. It was identified as an Imperial ruse because freighters usually aren't named after virtues. Pash Cracken, also a native of Contruum, couldn't identify the ship. (WG)

Contumely Club
an eating and drinking establishment that caters strictly to non-humans. Droids are also excluded. (RPG)

Convarion, Ait
this Imperial Navy Captain served during the attacks at both Derra IV and Hoth before being given command of the Corrupter. As a Captain, Convarion was charged with terrorizing rebellious worlds in the Outer Rim. After the Battle of Endor, he aligned with Ysanne Isard and brought the Corrupter to Thyferra to help protect the Bacta Cartel. He was known as a cruel and calculating opponent who worked hard to end every engagement quickly, despite the odds against him. When Convarion failed to recapture the Xucphra Alazhi, Xucphra Meander, and Xucphra Rose from the Rogue Squadron, Isard demanded that he round up and execute the families of the Alazhi as a demonstration of her power and his allegiance. He balked, but Fliry Vorru saved him by having already done the job. The test was not removed, though, as Isard ordered Convarion to take the Thyferran Homde Defense Corps and attack the settlement on Halanit. He died on the Corrupter when it was disabled by the Rogues over Alderaan's asteroid belt. The ship could not be saved before it drifted in to the asteroids and was torn apart. (BW)

Cooha
this tall, avian predator evolved on the low-gravity world of Ganeid II. Standing nearly two meters tall, the cooha had a long spiked finger on each wing and a set of slashing teeth set in its beak for tearing flesh. (TBSB)

Cool Shot
one of the Millennium Falcon's false registrations. (RPG)

Coolie
one of Luke Skywalker's aunts, she never wanted to have a good time. (COJ)

Cooling Station
this was the name of a series of automated drink dispensers, used in many bars and cantinas across the galaxy. These machines were loaded with a variety of alcoholic beverages and mixers, and were programmed to create in infinite variety of concoctions. (WSV)

Coolth
this chemical was used to maintain the temperature of buildings which were constructed in desert environments. Coolth was pumped throughout the building's walls in a huge grid of thin pipes. As the cold coolth passed through the grid, it kept the interior walls of the building cool, while blocking the exterior heat from entering. (IWE1)

Coomb
this form of bio-engineered spore was created by the Yuuzhan Vong. It was released to certain individuals within the New Republic, prior to the Vong's initial invasion into the known galaxy. In all but one case, the victim who took in the coomb spore died within days. Only Mara Jade Skywalker was able to resist the effects of the coomb spore, primarily through the concentrated use of the Force. Her survival was a source of frustration for the Yuuzhan Vong, especially its creator, Nom Anor, as it meant that the Jedi Knights were a much stronger foe than they had realized. A modified version of the coomb spore was planned for use, known as the bo'tous. (VP, HT)

Coomb Spore
developed by Nom Anor and the Yuuzhan Vong, this virus breaks down the victim's molecular structure and causes a quick, horrible death. However, it was not communicable. Nom Anor had planned to use it on the humans of the galaxy, but could not develop a way to make the virus self-replicating, becoming more of a disease than a poisonous virus. The spores themselves were the favored food of the shlecho newt. Mara Jade had been infected with the spores, as Nom Anor tried to fathom the strength of the Jedi Knights. She survived for several months, using the Force to keep the disease at bay. (VP)

Coomputu
this dry, frigid world is the fourth planet in the Garnib System. It had a single, small moon. (PG1)

Cooper's Swoopers
this swoop gang was founded by Cooper Dray on the planet Bescane. (SWJ9)

Cooperative Council of Independent Planetary Governments formed in the aftermath of the Diversity Alliance, this New Republic initiative was created from representatives from every species and every world known to the Republic. Its charter was based on the agreement that every member would work together for the good of all species and the detriment of none. (TEP)

Coordinated Galactic Time
based on the current time on Coruscant, this is the basis for all timestamps throughout the galaxy. (IJ)

Copper Coast
this area of the planet Sriluur was the site of the planet's Imperial garrison during the Galactic Civil War. It was located on the Meirm Sea, and was named for the incredbily high concentration of copper in the sands and the surrounding ocean. Unlike the bleached-white sands that are found in every other seaside location on the planet, the Copper Coast has a ruddy color that comes from the natural copper. However, the high concentration of copper and other minerals in the sands and water is picked up in the early morning mists that blanket the coast, coating everything in sight - including the port of Meirm City - in a somewhat caustic fog. (SSR)

Copper League
this was one of the many wegsphere leagues which played in matches during the height of the New Order. (TBSB)

Cor
this race of small felines is native to the jungles of the planet Gargolyn IV. They guarded their villages against invasion, and were aided in their defense by a huge creature that had been captured by an ancient Cor shaman. The beast once roamed the jungle and ravaged Cor settlements until the shaman bound the creature to the land itself. In reality, the Cor shaman was adept in the use of the light side of the Force, and future generations of Cor had enough sensitivity with the Force to keep the shaman's work vital. The beast was contained as long as the Cor didn't move from their villages, but when Karflo Corporation sought to move them out in order to build a new manufacturing plant, the beast was unleashed. It destroyed everything Karflo tried to do, until Karflo relented and allowed the Cors to return to their villages. (GMS)

Cor'ric Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Cor'tan
a season on Zalso. (SWAJ)

Cora shells
Han Solo used cora shells to serve pudding to Princess Leia, while en route to Dathomir. (CPL)

Coral
a Corellian transport ship captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Coral City
a Calamarian floating city. (SWSB)

Coral Depths City
another floating city on Calamari, it was one of the attack points for three squadrons of TIE fighters in Daala's attack during the second battle of Calamari. (DA)

Coral Ohah
this strong-muscled individual was one of the directors of Sleeft Docking Bay Maintenance in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. He was responsible for several illicit activities undertaking by Sleeft, including the theft of top-notch droid parts from Notsub Shipping. When the Bith Angor Farn mistakenly took the freighter containing the parts, he tried to escape from Ohah and ransom the parts for a huge sum. However, Farn never got off Tatooine. He tried to hide out in the Dim-U monastery, but Ohah received some help from Alliance agents in extricating Farn and recovering the parts. (GG7)

Coral Vanda
a subocean luxury casino operated on Pantolomin. Captain Hoffner ran the vessel, until Han Solo and Lando Calrissian tried to locate him. Niles Ferrier got to the ship first, and spirited Hoffner away. The ship, manufacturer by the Pantolomin Shipwrights, has four upper casinos (the Kossi Room, the Tralla Room, the Deston Room, and the Brint Room, all named for Pantolomin's major land masses), an extensive passenger section, and four lower casinos (the Ventel Room, the Rugot Room, the Saffkin Room, and the Hassi Room). The walls of the Coral Vanda are lined with scarlet greel wood, and most of its gaming tables are inset with sanriv gemstones. Transparisteel viewports were everywhere, affording unobstructed views of the ocean. There are sixteen luxury suites and four "adventure rooms" that allow the user to recreate exotic locations. The Coral Vanda can accommodate up to 600 passengers. (DFR, DFRSB, EGV)

Coralline
this beautiful stone, renowned for its sculptability, was found on the planet Hargeeva. (SWJ8)

Coralskipper
this form of Yuuzhan Vong starfighter was created from yorik coral in much the same way as a worldship, only on a much smaller scale. They performed a number of missions, including fighter cover for the worldships as well as maintaining the placement of the membranous organic sails used to propel them. The coralskippers were armed with volcano missiles, which it seemed to spit out of its hull. The pilots of coralskippers were linked directly to their craft by another form of ooglith cloaker, one engineered to resist vacuum and provide life support to the pilot. Individual coralskippers could refuel and rearm themselves by "eating" rocks. (VP)

Corasgh
an alien race living in the Koornacht Cluster, the Corasgh that lived there were exterminated by the Yevethan Great Purge. The Corasgh live in nests. (BTS, SOL)

Corazon, Rigis
this aspiring businessman purchased Cryseium Incorporated from Huegu Eib after the Empire rose to power. He grew the company into one of the leading food producers for the planet Demophon. This helped Rigis make a few enemies, and one of those enemies succeeded in murdering him in an attempt to rid Tyed Kant of Gryseium Incorporated. (SN)

Corazon, Sabel Axis
Rigis Corazon's daughter, she took over the Gryseium corporation when her father retired. She launched a furtive plan to undermine the competition on Tyed Kant, in order for Gryseium Incorporated to become a monolpolistic producer of food for Demophon and the surrounding systems. This plan, codenamed Mynock, was foiled by a group of Alliance operatives who were in the Demophon System just before the system's star exploded. (SN)

Corbantis
this New Republic battle cruiser was part of the primary fleet stationed at Durren. When Seti Ashgad instigated pirate attacks on Ampliquen during his attempt to gain control of the galaxy with Dzym, the Caelus and the Corbantis were dispatched to Ampliquen. Both ships were infected with the Death Seed plague by Ashgad’s agents, and once the crews were killed the ships were disposed on on distant planets. The Corbantis was scuttled on Damonite Yors B, but seventeen crewmembers managed to stay alive by huddling near the reactor core. Despite the radiation sickness they were exposed to, the emissions from the damaged power core probably killed off the Death Seed plague and allowed them to survive until Han Solo and Lando Calrissian rescued them. (POT)

Corbit, Jacen
this man was in charge of the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations during the height of the New Order. He was ordered by Moff Landric to hunt down the thief known as the Tombat. Corbit brought in Zanza Gata to get the job done. (SWJ8)

Corbos
this desolate Outer Rim planet was the site of an experimental mining colony, established in the years following the death of Emperor Palpatine's clones at Byss. Attempts had been made to colonize the world for several thousand years, but all had failed. The weather on Corbos is extreme, and the ore-processing facility had to be established in low orbit in order to keep it from being destroyed by storms. This meant that the ores produced on Corbos generated very little profit for the miners. In what is known as the Black Rain season, the planet is drenched in a heavy, acidic rain that prohibits any outdoor work. It was here that the miners discovered a species of incredibly huge, Force-sensitive creatures that wiped out the entire population of 793 colonists and required several of the new Jedi Knights to defeat. Tionne discovered that the creature was responsible for many of the destroyed colonies. The planet is orbited by two moons. (JAL)

Cordel Cove
this was the name of the primary spaceport and city on the planet Neftali. It was located beneath Orane Mountain, on the thin strip of land which separated the Beija Seas and connected the Jhunia snow plains to the Yiulimar Fjords. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, the starport was owned by Abdi-Badawzi and operated by his daughter, Memcha-Badawzi. Memcha maintained a squadron of Whiphid guards for security purposes, led by Grenal. Cordel Cove was located near a volcanic flow which created udergound grottoes filled with hot springs, which attracted a large number of tourists. It was also the site of an annual swoopchasing race which was considered part of a galactic "triple crown" group of courses. (BSS)

Cordel Cove Winter Carnival
this annual event took place on the planet Neftali, and celebrated the beauty of the icy world. Swoopchasing, ice races, ice sculptures, and various sports highlighted the event, which was the largest such festival in the sector. (BSS)

Cordine
this medicine is often administered via a patch applied to the skin. It is prescribed for patients of Zithrom's Disease, to help hold off the degenerative effects of the disease. (TFE)

Cordioline Trehansicol
this chemical is used to combat infestations of insects such as metalmites. It is sold under the brand name CorTrehan. It must be laid out in such a way that the insects can move around it, but encounter it wherever they feed. The most often used pattern is a series of curlicues leading to a central food source. It has a thick, sweet-sour smell, and takes almost two weeks to effectively kill off a metalmite brood. (VOF)

CorDuro Shipping
this interplanetary transportation corporation was contracted by the New Republic's Senate Select Committee for Refugees to deliver supplies to the refugee domes on the planet Duro, during the Yuuzhan Vong's invasion of the galaxy. Their headquarters were located on Duggan Station. It was later discovered that they were diverting shipments to the orbital cities instead of delivering them to the refugees, as part of a plan formed by the Duros High House which allowed the Vong to have the planet Duro in return for the freedom of one orbital city. CorDuro had been working to divert supplies to Bburru, and had been bribed by the Peace Brigade to sway the voting in the Duros High House. CorDuro had hoped to obtain advance warning of a Yuuzhan Vong attack on Duro from the Peace Brigade, which would allow them to escape the battle with one of the planet's orbital cities intact. As the plans moved forward, CorDuro moved from conspirator to collaborator, and agreed to help ship any captured refugees to Yuuzhan Vong detention camps. (BP)

Core Construction
this Coruscant-based construction firm was actually a front for Black Sun. Although they produced quality buildings, Core Constructions often underbid the competition to win the contract, then had a series of cost overruns that simply fed credits into Black Sun's coffers. (SESB)

Core Courier Service
a delivery service which promised on-time delivery to the various worlds of the Core, during the early days of the New Republic. (TFE)

Core Foodstuffs
primary food producers for the Core Worlds, they maintain a vast network of serf-like holdings to supply the huge quantities of food required by the Core's populace. (DESB)

Core Galaxy Systems
this corporation was one of the original shipwrights of the Old Republic, along with Alderaan Royal Engineers and Rendili StarDrive. 500 years before the Battle of Yavin, CGS was bought out by Kuat Drive Yards. The name Core Galaxy Systems was retired. (EGV)

Core News Digest
this newsnet reported on the various business and industrial aspects of the Core Worlds, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Core Post
this is the official name used by scouts and explorers to denote the center of galactic government and, therefore, the official recognition of all claims. By default, Core Post was located on Coruscant, in Imperial City. (GG8)

Core Star Liners
one of the more prominent passenger transportation providers which plied the spacelanes of the Core Worlds during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

Core Systems
the planets, such as Coruscant, that made up the center of the galaxy as defined by both the Republic and the Empire. (SW, DE1)

Core World Arms
an ancient weapons and personal protection systems manufacturer. (TOJC)

Core Worlds
another name for the Core Systems, this area of the galaxy borders the Deep Core and contains some of the wealthiest and most populated worlds of the galaxy. (EGP)

Core Worlds Engineering
this large corporation produced some of the most luxurious skyhooks used on Coruscant. (SESB)

CoreDataFiles
this company was a subsidiary of Millennium Entertainments. (CSA)

Coreguard Security Services
this operation provided security services to many corporations on the planet Corulag, during the height of the New Order. Most of its employees were simply bounty hunters, but the CSS tried to maintain a legitimate front. (SWJ12)

Corek, Bel
this Alliance starfigher pilot was a Captain the military, and served as the commanding officer of the Silverblade Squadron of X-Wings, based out of outpost DVL-181 on Aracara. He had graduated from the Imperial Academy, and never found dogfights boring. He was able to blend is youthful exuberance with combat experience, teaching his squadron to be confident, not cocky. (HAS)

Corell
primary star in the Corellian System. (AC)

Corellia
homeworld of Han Solo and Garm Bel Iblis, Corellia is located in the Corellian System, in the Corellian Sector of the galaxy, somewhere near the Core Worlds. It was once a democracy (in the days of Berethon e Solo), and reverted temporarily to a monarchy when Korol Solo tried to raise himself to kingship. Following his hanging, Corellia returned to being a republic (about 250 years before Han was born). Since then, it has become an introverted world, keeping mainly to intself and not getting involved with outside politics. The planet has a temperate ecology, with many large oceans. (SW, DFR, CPL, AC)

Corellia Star
this YT-1300 stumbled upon the Imperial V38 development project late in the Galactic Civil War. Its crew was killed near the Dreighton Nebula, but not before they contacted a flight of Alliance B-Wings. The Alliance pilots were able to recover the freighter and discover more information on the V38 project. (RA2)

Corellia StarDrive
this corporation was formed by a former Corellian Engineering Corporation executive, and had an illustrious - though brief - history. Corellia StarDrive was founded about 1,000 years before the Great Sith War, and created civilian and military craft to rival CEC. In fact, the Old Republic Navy chose many CSD designs over CEC. This success was brought to a halt when a freak shuttle crash killed the entire CSD design team. The corporation never fully recovered from the loss, and was purchased by CEC about 2,000 years after its creation. (EGV)

Corellia Traffic Control
the arm of the Corellian Defense Forces which monitors all space traffic coming and going in the Corellian Sector. (AC)

Corellian
the human inhabitants of Corellia. The traditional Corellian wedding dress is green in color. (SW, RD)

Corellian Ale
a full-bodied brew. (GG9)

Corellian Bloodstripes
this Corellian award is represented by a three-centimeter-wide broken stripe if piping that runs along the outer seam of a pair of trousers. There are two levels of bloodstripe awarded. The Second-level bloodstripe is gold, and is rarely given out. The First-level bloodstripe is red, and is usually awarded posthumously because of the heroic deeds required to earn it. Most bloodstripes are earned for courage under fire. The wearer, though, is recognized for simply being a human in the right place at the right time, enduring unusual hardships. The wearer is by no means a superhero. Han Solo is one of the few examples of a living Corellian who has earned First-level bloodstripes. He earned his Second-level bloodstripes for rescuing Chewbacca; he has never disclosed the reason he was awarded the First-level bloodstripes. He prefers to wear the yellow stripes, so as not to receive inquiries on them. (HSL, CSA)

Corellian Brandy
an interstellar spirit, used as the main ingredient in a Twistler. (DFR)

Corellian Cafe
a bar and restaurant located on Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Corellian Carousel
this starship maneuver was invented by owners of YT-1300 light freighters. To help compensate for the lack of visibility due to the off-center placement of the cockpit, many YT-1300 owners will put the ship into a slow spin during landing. This spin - opposite the position of the cockpit - allows them to get a feel for their location and proximity during landing in tight spaces. This maneuver was later modified to allow pilots to check their position in heavy traffic situations, as well as during a firefight. (TT)

Corellian Chemical Corporation known as CorChemCo, this leading producer of industrial chemicals is a subsidiary of Chiewab Amalgamated Pharmaceuticals Company. (CSA)

Corellian Clam
a mollusk which is extremely difficult to open. (SE)

Corellian Consort
this Imperial Space Rescue Corps starship was known for its captain, Commander Everik Dondarvan. They held the records for most successful rescue operations (56) and the largest total number of persons rescued (543). (HR)

Corellian Cross
a medal given by the Alliance to those starpilots who displayed bravery and selflessness in battle. It was designed to commemorate the signing of the Corellian Treaty. (XW)

Corellian Defense Force
the quasi-military armed forces that guard the Corellian Sector, the CDF has many branches and divisions, all geared toward keeping the law in the Corellian Sector. (AC)

Corellian Double-brandy
a twice-fermented version of the basic Corellian brandy. (RM)

Corellian Engineering Corporation
manufacturers of some of the galaxy's best starships and stardrives. An ancient corporation, CEC has grown over the millennia to become one of the three largest producers of starships, along with Kuat Drive Yards and Sienar Fleet Systems. CEC has the advantage of being successful in the civilian market, as well as the simple fact that Corellians are incredibly adept in the areas of starship design. Their military designs are also quite successful. CEC became one of the Corporate Sector Authority's original Contributing Sponsors when the New Order allowed the Authority to gain control of the Corporate Sector. (SCRE, SWSB, CSA, EGV)

Corellian Flame Miniatures
a combination of shaped transoptical fibers, light-producing plants, and Goorlish light sources used as art. (DFR)

Corellian Gambit
a Sabacc system in which the suits fit together in different patterns. The last hand is unique, in that one card - chosen by each player - can be locked in place before the cards are spun. (DA)

Corellian Gunship
these expensive fighter ships are 120 meters in length, and are heavily armed with 8 dual turbolaser batteries, 6 quad laser batteries, and 4 concussion missile tubes. The remainder of the ship is made up of its fast engine plant and a small crew quarters. (RASB, TLC)

Corellian Heavy Lifter designed by the Alliance, this transport ship was based on the CR-90 corvette. The central section of the CR-90 was modifed to accommodate a pair of heavy clamps, which could be used to hold large cargoes for shipment. (FC)

Corellian Horticultural Digest
one of the leading journals on the cultivation and propagation of plants and flowers, this magazine is published in Coronet City. (IJ)

Corellian Inter-System Marketing Station
this was the general store and fueling depot owned by Jagged and Zena Antilles. It was destroyed by the Bonestar Pirates. (HXW)

Corellian Limpet
this small mollusk was known to attach itself to a starship and multiply quickly. If left alone, the limpets would eventually clog exhaust nacelles. In addition, the mild acid they exuded to attach themselves to starship hulls eventually weakened the hull plating, which deteriorated the hull's integrity. (C)

Corellian Masternav, Incorporation
this Corellian corporation produced some of the galaxy's best astrogation maps during the New Order. (SSR)

Corellian Merchants' Guild
this is one of the largest private trade organizations in the galaxy. It is open to all native-born Corellians, as well as to owners and crews of Corellian-built starships. Many corporations elect a Corellian as their Chief Executives in order to gain access to the CMG's resources. The CMG will provide to its members a huge list of services, including information, trade contacts, repair facilities, messaging, and financial services. The CMG operates a multitude of Guildhouses throughout the galaxy. All are well-known for their services as temporary residences, clubs, and bars. (GG9)

Corellian Overdrive
this phrase, sometimes used by Han Solo and Lando Calrissian, is used to denote the need to do whatever it takes to complete a job. It ranges from finagling the rules to rearranging operational parameters, but doesn't mean cheating in an honest game. (ROJR)

Corellian Reserve
a vintage of whiskey fermented on Corellia. (TFNR)

Corellian Run
this hyperspace pathway originated at the planet Corellia, and struck out through Froz and Nubia before passing by Tynna and Kalabra to Tatooine and Ryloth. (BP)

Corellian Rum
an interstellar spirit (CPL)

Corellian Sanctuary established on Coruscant , this small, domed building was designed to honor those Corellians who died off-world. Because the Diktat of Corellia would not allow members of the New Republic to land on the planet, natives who died while away from Corellia could not be repatriated. So, exiled Corellians built the Sanctuary. Corellians ritually cremate their dead, then use industrial-grade compressors to compact the ashes into a synthetic diamond. The diamonds provide immortality to the dead, and are placed in the black walls of the Sanctuary to represent the stars in Corellia's sky. (BW)

Corellian Scavenge Rat
this large rodent, native to the city sewers of Corellia, is known for its ability to save nearly everything it can't eat. (MA)

Corellian Sea-ray
a creature native to the oceans of Corellia. (XWN)

Corellian Sector
1) a group of 24 star systems, of which the Corellian System is the most important. The Corellian Sector is located within the area of the galaxy known as the Core Worlds. In general, it is an inward-looking group of systems. The sector was particularly introverted during and after the Galactic Civil War, when it did everything possible to stay out of the political and social upheaval. The planets and their inhabitants have been labeled paranoid and distrustful because of their introversion. Much of this was attributed to the enforced laws of the old Empire, which demanded that the humans, Selonians, and Drall in the sector co-exist in relative peace, maintaining the outward appearance of cooperation. (AC, EGP)
2) one of many sectors of the Nar Shaddaa spaceport, it is also one of the busiest. (DE2)

Corellian Sector Fleet
the warships of the Corellian Defense Forces' Space Defense Service. (AC)

Corellian Security Force
known as CorSec, this was the primary law enforcement agency on the planet Corellia during the New Order and the early years of the New Republic. During the reign of Emperor Palpatine, the leaders of CorSec ordered that their divisions accept the insertion of an Imperial Intelligance officer to monitor and coordinate activities with the local Imperial garrisons. After the Battle of Endor, the Diktat of Corellia broke from the New Republic, and transformed the force in the Public Safety Service. (TFE, IJ)

Corellian Seed Poppers
this type of garnish was used to bring out the natural flavors of delicate foods. (SWJ12)

Corellian Shipbuilders Union
this was an affiliation of the various starship manfucaturing laborers who worked for Corellian interests. Like most unions, the CSU worked to ensure better wages and benefits for its members. During the Galactic Civil War, the CSU was a quiet supporter of the Alliance. (CRO)

Corellian Slip
this starfighter maneuver is a countermaneuver which can be very dangerous for inexperienced pilots, but has saved a number of skilled pilots in battle. (CCG)

Corellian Space Cruiser
this Corellian Engineering Corporation starship was the precursor of the Corellian Gunship and the CR-90 corvette. Measuring 115 meters in length, the cruiser had three Dyne 577 sublight engines and a Longe Voltran Tri-arc CD-3.2 hyperdrive. (X1)

Corellian Spiced Ale
one of Han's favorite beverages (CPL, DA)

Corellian Stock Exchange
this was the primary sotck market that served Corellian businesses. (GG11)

Corellian System
the primary planetary system in the Corellian Sector, the Corellian System is an anomolous system in that it has 5 habitable planets (Corellia, Drall, Selonia, Talus, and Tralus; they are known in the system as the Five Brothers) orbiting the system's primary star, Corell. Some scientists and astrophysicists have hypothesized that the system was "built" by a higher power, since the planets all have similar, strange orbits, and all support life. The three primary species in the system - human, Drall, and Selonian - have moved about quite a bit during the system's life, and all are equally at home on any of the five worlds. (AC)

Corellian Tanamen Fever
this flu-like illness is common on the planet Corellia. It is rarely fatal, especially if caught in its early stages. Even advanced stages can be treated with bacta and cured. Symptoms include high fever, extreme thirst, and loss of equilibrium. (TPS)

Corellian Technologies
this Corellian corporation specialized in personal defense systems. (GG10)

Corellian Territories Engagements
Alexsandr Badure participated in this series of Old Republic conflicts. (CSA)

Corellian Thunder
1) this heavily-modified Ghtroc freighter was owned by the smuggler Davrin. He used it to transport Sienn Sconn and a Rythani Products weapon prototype off Rydonni Prime. (SWJ9)
2) this Corellian Engineering gunship was part of the Alliance fleet which patrolled Trax Sector shortly after the Battle of Yavin. It was dispatched to assist in the destruction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. (GMK)

Corellian Trade Spine
this hyperspace pathway originated on the planet Corellia, but was eventually extended to begin at Coruscant. It linked a group of trading worlds, from Duro outward to Anoat and Bespin, along which much of the galaxy's space traffic flows. The Duros had many maintenance stations located along the Spine. (TLC, DA, BP)

Corellian Trade Summit
a momentous meeting of New Republic agents and the Corellian government to discuss the opening of trade with the Corellian Sector, it was spearheaded by Leia Organa in 37 NE. (AC)

Corellian Treaty
the agreement which solidified the three major factions of the early Alliance. Bail Organa and Mon Mothma had brought the three main resistance leaders together, and Garm Bel Iblis mediated the talks, which resulted in the common set of ideals which formed the Alliance. Since Bel Iblis is a Corellian, the document was called the Corellian Treaty. (DFR)

Corellian Twister
an alcoholic beverage. (TSK)

Corellian Whiskey
a highly-intoxicating beverage. (RPG)

Corellidyne Holographics
this Corellian company produced some of the galaxy's most advanced doubler suits. (GG10)

Corellisi
the Old Corellian term for a Corellian. (SWAJ)

CorelliSpace
this starship manufacturer produced the Gymsnor-3 freighter. (SWJ9, KT)

Corestar
a Quadrex repulsorlift engine. (GG7)

Corestrike
this town sprang up on the scrub plains of the planet Chrona, near the site of the first chronamite mines. (SWJ12)

Corestrike Credit Repository and Ore Exchange this was the sturdiest building located in the boomtown of Corestrike, on the planet Chrona. It served as the town's only banking institution, where prospectors could assay their chronamite finds and store the credits they earned. (SWJ12)

Corestrike Hotel
located in the boomtown of Corestrike, on the planet Chrona, this was the only hotel in the area which provided miners and visitors with their own rooms and real beds. (SWJ12)

Corewatch
this was the code name of an Alliance agent who worked deep undercover in the Core Worlds. Very few members of the Alliance knew about Corewatch, and the agent's presence may have dated back to the origin of the Alliance. In reality, Corewatch was Bonic Tarracus, and was know to many as an extremely reliable agent. His confidence - and the Alliance's confidence in him - was shattered when he was unable to recover the 177th Light Infantry team inserted to blow up a munitions depot. Corewatch went AWOL, but later returned to acive duty. However, his effectiveness was greatly diminshed, and many in the Alliance's command structure felt he had been co-opted by the Empire and forced into double-agent duty. It was even rumored that he had become Ars Dangor's personal valet, although this was never proven. (CRO)

Corf Sarb
this Enu gangster ran a number of gambling halls and a smuggling operation on his homeworld of Deylerax. He was a former Imperial employee who embezzled funds from the Empire to start his own operation, and was known to be willing to kill anyone to protect his business. (WBC)

Corfai
the site of New Republic supply bunker, this planet is located in the Corellian Sector. (DFR, REB)

Corg System
this star system was known for its treacherous asteroid field. (AIR)

Corgan
this New Republic Colonel served under Etahn A'baht during the blockade of Doornik-319 and the Yevethan Purge. He was one of A'baht's staff tactical officers aboard the Intrepid. (SOL, TT)

Coriallis
Taryn Clancy and the Messenger fled Coruscant with Del Sato and Colonel Bremen, hoping to get to this planet and send a message to the New Republic fleet before being captured by Imperial forces. (TFE)

Corint
a temperate planet. (SWAJ)

Corint City
the capital city of the planet Pirik. It is divided into several districts, such as the Talamp Industrial sector and Lowtown. (SWJ10)

Corintium
this ore is mined on the planet Pirik. (SWJ10)

Corioline Marlee Theater
this Alderaanian theater was known for its grandeur and architectural design. (SOP)

Corkscrew, The
this ancient, winding riverbed was located at the end of Jett's Chute, and emptied onto the Hutt Flats. (IWE1)

Corlass
this planet's history is full of pirates who plied not only the spacelanes but the planet's oceanic shipping lanes. (SWAJ)

Corlioon
Han Solo and Lando Calrissian were spotted at the corner of Corlioon and Regisine, in the captial city of the planet Bastion, during their search for a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Cormond
this city, located on the planet Brentaal, was the business center of the Brentaal League of Guilds. (SWJ14)

Cormun
this independent spacer reported in Cynabar's Droid Datalog on the use of an 850.AA maintenance droid in the destruction of a city on Kothlis. (SWJ14)

Cornin, Ala
this female New Republic Senator was rescued from Imperial forces on the planet Gacerian. (PG2)

Coromon Island
located on Fresia, Coromon Island is the site of Incom Insutries' headquarters. (RPG)

Corona
a suburb of Coronet, on the planet Corellia. (AC)

Corona
1) Zeen Afit's clunky old freighter. (THG)
2) this Corona-class frigate was the first of its kind manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards, and saw duty in the Core Worlds for the New Republic. (CTD)

Corona Footwear Company
the company which manufactures boots and shoes for the Corellian Defense Force. (AC)

Corona House
the governor-general's residence in Coronet, it is a 20-story building. The governor-general's offices are on the 6th floor; a landing platform is located on the roof. (AC)

Corona Limited
this Mobquet luxury groundspeeder measures 10 meters in length, and has room for up to 6 passengers. It is available in 500 colors that span various visible spectra (many are undetectable to humans), although black is the most popular. (CSA)

Corona*-class Frigate
this was one of the earliest starship designs approved by the New Republic, although it saw limited production. It is not considered one of the new class of ships produced for the Fifth Battle Group, such as the Sacheen-class escort frigate. Built by Kuat Drive Yards, it was modeled after the KDY Nebulon-B frigate, and was designed to carry up to three squadrons up starfighters into battle. The Corona-class frigate measured 275 meters in length, required a crew of 782 with 56 gunners, and could transport up to 80 troops. They were hyperspace-capable, and were armed with 10 turbolaser cannons, 10 laser cannons, 4 ion cannons, and a pair of tractor beam projectors. (BTS, CTD)

Corona*-class Transport
manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards, these 28.4-meter ships could hold up to 80 metric tons of cargo and could accommodate up to six passengers. Manned by three crewmen, the Corona-class had minimal hyperdrive and shield capabilities. These ships were armed with a single laser cannon. The Corona-class was Kuat's attempt to compete with the Corellian Engineering YT-series, but it was generally regarded as overpriced and underpowered for its class. (SN, PP)

Coronar
this planet was the site of an Imperial Intelligence center during the Galactic Civil War. (SH)

Corondexx
this was a small weapons manufacturer which produced snare guns, pulse rifles and other blasters during the Galactic Civil War. Note that this corporation is sometimes referred to as Corondex. (GG10, GG11)

Coronet
the capital city of the planet Corellia, it contains a number of small buildings surrounded by large parks, plazas, and open areas. The beauty of the city is offset somewhat by its run-down spaceport. It was in this spaceport that Han Solo was abandoned as a child, and later "rescued" by Garris Shrike. The city is known for its gleaming towers and graceful domes. (AC, TPS)

Coronet City Museum of Fine Art located in Coronet, on Corellia, this museum had a collection of Venthan Chassu's works. Corran Horn's mother volunteered much of her free time to the museum. (TFE)

Coronet City Zoological and Botanical Gardens
one of the many beautiful museums and gardens found on Corellia, this establishment was the best of the best. They were very supportive of the wondrous work Rostek Horn did with his flowers, and supplied him bantha dung and other commodities in return for his specimens. (IJ)

Corp Commander
the war robot in charge of defending the Queen of Ranroon on Dellalt. He controlled the other robots in the Guardian Corp. (HSL)

Corporate Complexes
this was the name given by the Saurton to the territories which were controlled by the various mining consortiums which worked on the planet Essowyn. Each complex was established to give a specific corporation complete control over the territory's resources. (PG1)

Corporate Sector
this area of the galaxy originally was set aside by the Old Republic for corporations to use for mining raw materials. It was created after the experiment at corporate control in the Expansion Region failed. Several hundred systems - all devoid of intelligent life - made up the original Expansion Region Corporate Sector, and corporations could purchase the use of entire systems under the watchful eye of the Republic. Huge corporations began moving into the area, hoping to acquire a piece of the huge profits it was generating. The corporate executives were bound by the Old Republic's Senate until Emperor Palpatine rose to power. Under the New Order, executives convinced the Emperor to expand the Corporate Sector to include nearly 30,000 star systems. Eleven new intelligent species were discovered, but their existence was kept secret by the power-hungry corporations. The executives agreed to pay Palpatine a percentage of their corporate profits if he would allow them to manage the sector by themselves, to which Palpatine agreed. Thus was born the Corporate Sector Authority and the CSA Security Police force. The current Corporate Sector is bordered by the Aparo and Wyl Sectors. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, much of the pathway known as Vector Prime traveled through the Corporate Sector, and planets such as Brigia and Ruuria were overrun as the Yuuzhan Vong moved toward the Core. (HSE, CSA, HT)

Corporate Sector Authority
a conglomerate chartered to exploit the natural resources of the worlds in what would later be called the Corporate Sector. Before the Authority was first set up, the Old Republic set aside a group of systems in the Expansion Region for and experiment in corporate control. The profits were enormous, but the internal corporate chafing at Republic regulations led to mismanagement and abuse of the planets and their inhabitants. The various worlds encompassed by the experiment began to experience civil revolts at the corporational misuse, and the Old Republic ordered the Senate to take control of the Sector. In order to placate the corporations who balked at the new control mechanisms, the Old Republic created the Corporate Sector and the Corporate Sector Authority. The Authority was made up of several Signatory Sponsors, Contributing Sponsors, Additional Voting Sponsors, and Non-voting Contributing Sponsors. Each of the fifty-five voting sponsors was allowed to elect one delegate to the Authority's Direx Board. The Direx Board was overseen by the ExO, an Authority figure chosen from outside the ranks of the voting sponsors. The Authority, at this point, had control of several star systems that were devoid of life. When Emperor Palpatine instituted the New Order, the corporate executives petitioned him to allow them direct control over sector resources. Palpatine agreed, in return for a portion of their corporate profits. In theory, the Corporate Sector Authority then owned everything in the Corporate Sector, and was in charge of mining it, guarding it, and using it. The Authority often used slave labor or other forced-labor to obtain the materials from their sources. They even set up a number of scams in which entire races were duped into coming to the Sector for vast fortunes, only to be permanently indentured to the Authority. (HSE, CSA)

Corporate Sector Contract Standard
this is a language used by many businessbeings who work in the Corporate Sector. (TT)

Corporate*-class Modular Unit developed by Loronar, this station construction module was extermemly popular with colonists and scouts. Desgined to provide a high-level of protection in extreme environmental conditions, the Corporate-class unit could be configured for use in any number of ways, since each section provided its own life support, power, food, and water. (HAS)

Corporation Wing
part of the Bakur Complex, where the Prime Minister's offices are located. (TB)

Corpse-grub
this disgusting Corellian insect is named for the fact that they swarm to a carcass and consume it minutes, all the while excreting a noxious effluvia. (THG)

Corri
this gas giant is the fourth world orbiting the Outlier System star of Sacor. It has twelve moons. (CTD)

Corridan System
this planetary system, located in the Koornacht Cluster, was defended by the Black Sword Command during the Imperial Civil War. It was located in the Rim Territories. (BTS)

Corridor, The
a smuggler's access to the surface of Belsavis, The Corridor consisted of an atmospherically-stable portion of Belsavis' southern hemishpere. Smuggling ships entered low-orbit through this hole, and then landed on the ice, away from the volcanic vents and rifts. A series of tunnels led from the 10-12 remote landing pads to various parts of the domed valleys. Nubblyk perfected the tunnnels during his tenure as town boss of Plawal. (COJ)

Corridor Ghoul
one of the mutated creatures that evolved under Imperial City on Coruscant, the corridor ghouls were discovered by agents of the NRI when they went looking for underground structures to use as safe rooms. They left the ghouls alone, for the most part, using them as a form of natural defense against intruders. The ghouls are four-legged creatures that stand about a meter tall. They have pale skin, large ears, long teeth, and no eyes. They use their ears, in concert with a series of high-pitched screams, to echo-locate their prey. (AS)

Corridor 6
where Luke and Lando intercept Niles Ferrier at Sluis Van Central. (DFR)

Corrina
a race of tiger-like creatures found on the Forest Moon of Endor. These creatures took in Asha, when she was a child, and raised her to be a fierce warrior. (ECAR, EGC)

Corros
this man was a friend of Chessa's, and was based on the planet Kelada. Corros was also a General with the Alliance, and was known as the man who recruited Dirk Harkness into the Alliance, shortly after Chessa's death. (SWJ1)

Corrosion Slug
this species of mollusk exudes a corrosive slime as it moves. (CSW)

Corroth
a planet. (TOJC)

Corrsk
this Trandoshan male worked for Nolaa Tarkona during the latter days of the Diversity Alliance. When the New Republic sent a delegation to Ryloth to investigate the Alliance's true goals, a struggle broke out among the various factions of Jedi Knights and aliens. In a battle with Lowbacca, Corrsk managed to injure the young Wookiee during his escape from Ryloth. However, Corrsk was with Nolaa Tarkona when the various plagues in Evir Derricote's lab were unleashed. He died a horrible death along side the Twi'lek. (TEP)

Corrupter
1) this Victory-II class Star Destroyer was part of the fleet commanded by Ysanne Isard shortly after the battle of Endor. It was commanded by Ait Convarion. Isard used it to protect the planet Thyferra, along with the Lusankya, Avarice, and Virulence, during her short reign there. The Star Destroyer was sent to intercept Rogue Squadron when they took control of a bacta convoy led by the Xucphra Alazhi, and was forced to destroy the freighter. As punishment, Isard sent the Corrupter to destroy the settlement on Halanit. It later went to Alderaan to intercept the Rogues there, with the assistance of the Aggregator, but was completely disabled by the sudden appearance of the Valiant. It drifted into the asteroids that used to be Alderaan wand was destroyed. (BW)
2) this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer was part of the Empire's fleet, just before the Battle of Endor. The Alliance disrupted the resupplying of this ship in order to force it to withdraw from battle until it could be brought back up to working order. (XWA)

Corsa-Vinn
this Ghtroc 720 freighter was owned by Grumme Vinn, and had been in his family for years. It was originally purchased as a smuggling ship, but Grumme Vinn worked hard to make a living as an honest trader. (PSG)

Corsail, Rake
this pirate was the leader of a group which made regular runs to Questal during the Galactic Civil War, but were captured and imprisoned by Moff Bandor. His group was swindled by a shady docking supervisor, and couldn't pay their fees when the Empire took control. They were imprisoned as examples. They were eventually freed by the group of Alliance agents that rescued Tiree. (GCQ)

Corsair
a fast ship developed by Incom. (TME)

Corsair Squadron
one of the two starfighter squadrons the New Republic relied heavily on when Rogue Squadron resigned its commission to fight the Bacta War, along with Gauntlet Squadron. These X-Wings were later assigned to the Mon Karren, during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. (WS, SOC)

Corsair*-class cruiser
this 18-meter heavy assault starfighter was built by SoroSuub. It was armed with two turbolaser batteries and a pair of ion cannons. (GG9)

CorSec Plaza
the address of the large complex owned and operated by the Corellian Security Force. (IJ)

Corsin
a planet located in the Greater Plooriod Cluster. It was a planet known for its devotion to life, but it was subjugated by the Empire and occupied during the Galactic Civil War. It was also the site of famous swoop races. According to Rebellion, Corsin is located in Sesswenna Sector. (MTS, REB)

Corstris
a forest world Han visited with the Alliance. (TLC)

Cort, Farl
this man was one of the leaders of the settlement on Halanit, shortly before it was destroyed for accepting bacta from Rogue Squadron. A short, balding man, Farl was greatly concerned with the outbreak of a disease which resembled the Cardooine Chills. When Gavin Darklighter escaped from the Corrupter and made it back to Halanit, Cort befriended him and helped him get Gavin's X-Wing repaired. However, when the Corrupter attacked Halanit in retaliation for taking bacta from the Rogue, Cort was among the huge loss of life at the hands of the Thyferran Home Defense Corps. (BW)

Corthel
this highly-reflective gas was mined for a number of reasons. Its presence in the atmosphere of a planet made the planet appear to sparkle and flash when viewed from space. (GMK)

Cortheum
this rock, present in the crusts of planets which have corthel-laden atmospheres, is mined for a number of uses. Among its primary uses is in the manufacture of photo-receptors used as droid eyes. (GMK)

Cortina
this planet's government was full of bluster and self-importance when it applied for membership in the New Republic. It backed down before it was officially admitted. (BTS)

Cortosis
the Jensaarai sect used strands of this ore to layer their unique armor. Using the Force, they wove the cortosis into the shapes of vicious, predatory animals, making their armor forbidding as well as better able to defend themselves. (IJ)

CorTrehan
this is the brand name of cordioline trehansicol. (VOF)

Cortyg
this is a strong alcohol produced by the Wookiees. (RD)

Corulag
a planet in the Deep Core, located in the Bormea Sector. It is the primary planet in the Corulag System, and is a temperate world covered with forests and plains. A satellite of the Academy is located in the capital city of Curamalle. The planet's economy was maintained because of its position, located along the Perlemian Trade Route, as well as the presence of the Academy buildings. In many respects, Corulag was one of the most cosmopolitan worlds of the Empire. (DFRSB, SWAJ, E1A3, HR)

Corulag
a New Republic modified bulk cruiser used in the assault on the Imperial base on Blackmoon. (XWN)

Corulag Academy
the name of the Imperial Academy satellite school located in Curamelle. It is rivaled only by the school on Raithal. Like all branches of the Imperial Academy, the Corulag Academy started out as a prestigious university established during the height of the Old Republic. (SWAJ, E1A4)

Corulag University of Economics this was one of the finest business schools located in the Core. (TBSB)

Corus-Calis Glacier Ridge located on the planet Elbara Nine, this natural glacier-formed chasm was riddled with an abundance of caves and tunnels. The Alliance established their GlitterFall base here. (HAS)

Corusca Bank
this financial institution, headquartered on Coruscant, is most famous for a clerical error which placed Emperor Palpatine at the top of a public list of loan defaulters. Although the list was available for only two standard hours, Palpatine discovered it and began searching for the perpetrators. He immediately remived the entire board of directors, and went looking for more. In an effort to lay blame on a single individual and reduce the attrition rate, Corusca pinpointed Onibald Daykim as the culprit. Daykim fled, and Corusca was eventually allowed to do normal business again. (JASB)

Corusca Fire
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was part of the fleet dispatched under the command of Admiral Ackbar to liberate the planet Ciutric from Prince-Admiral Krennel. Using the Thrawn Pincer to surprise Krennel's fleet, Ackbar had the Corusca Fire and a sister ship, the Selonian Fire, remain on the far side of the Ciutric System until called for. When Krennel activated the gravity well projectors on the Binder, Ackbar ordered the two Victory ships to microjump forward. The gravity shadow from the Binder pulled them out of hyperspace behind Krennel's fleet, allowing them to pummel Krennel's ships which were also trapped in place by the Interdictor cruiser. Years later, the Corusca Fire was one of the leading ships in the defense of Dantooine against the Yuuzhan Vong. It was responsible for protecting the refugees fleeing from Dubrillion to Agamar, and nearly destroyed a Yuuzhan Vong worldship in the battle. The only reason it was at the battle in the first place was because its captain, Rimsen, was a native of Agamar, and learned that Leia Organa Solo had petitioned Agamar for help when the New Republin turned a blind eye to the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Rimsen ignored his patrol orders and flew to Dantooine, saving the refugees from almost certain destruction. (IR, DTO)

Corusca Jewels
formed from the intense heat and gravity inside Yavin's core, these extremely hard stones have never been found or duplicated in other gas giants. Individual stones are formed from carbon and metallic hydrogen, which are compressed by millions of atmospheres of pressure near the planet's core. The intense pressure actually removes electrons from the hydrogen and carbon, fusing them together and securing the metallic hydrogen's silvery-gray brilliance. The harsh environment of Yavin often sweeps gems off the core's surface, as does the foraging of grazers in Yavin's lowest atmosphere. The turbulent storms pick them up and actually polish them, and some of these jewels eventually land on the planet's fourth moon. Gantoris used them to construct his lightsaber while under the influence of Exar Kun. Later, Lando Calrissian set up the GemDiver Station operation, and emplyed heavily-armored mining ships to plumb the atmosphere of Yavin for the gems. (DA, SA, GG2)

Corusca Rainbow
this is the name given by the New Republic to the defected Interdictor cruiser Black Asp. It was part of the fleet assembled to defend Agamar during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, protecting the flow of refugees who were fleeing the front lines of the assault. Traest Kre'fey ordered the ship to travel to Ithor and hide behind one of the planet's smaller moons during the Battle of Ithor. After the Yuuzhan Vong had unleashed their bioweapon on the planet, Kre'fey ordered the Corusca Rainbow to fire up her gravity wells and keep the Yuuzhan Vong forces from leaving. The Rainbow and all surviving Republic ships then opened fire, destroying much of the Yuuzhan Vong fleet, including the Legacy of Torment. (WG, DTR)

Coruscani and I
this was one of the trivial, pro-Imperial dramas produced by Ahric Korownosek and the NovaCluster Players, during the height of the New Order. (SS)

Coruscani Ogre
this race of simians inhabits the undercity of Imperial City, on Coruscant. The ogres are covered with a thick pelt of shaggy hair, and are heavily muscled. Their heads are large, misshapen, and triangular, and are split by a wide mouth filled with jagged teeth. They are semi-intelligent, and not very finicky about what they eat. Their exact origins are unknown. (JASB)

Coruscant
located at galactic coordinates (0,0,0), this planet in the Core Worlds was home to the Old Republic. It was renamed Imperial Center by Emperor Palpatine. When the New Republic was born, the planet was renamed to Coruscant. Located some 10,000 light-years from the actual galactic core, Coruscant had two moons and orbited a small white sun. The planet's entire landmass has been covered - over the thousands of generations spanning galactic history - by multiple levels of the buildings that make up Imperial City. Several of these immense skyscrapers reach over 6,000 meters into the atmosphere. This means that there is little land available for growing food, and no natural rivers or lakes to provide water. To solve the dilemma of feeding and watering millions of inhabitants, many of Coruscant's architects build self-contained ecosystems into their buildings. Engineers have developed a series of huge pipes through which polar ice water is pumped to the cities. Nearly everything on the planet is recyclable, from clothing to packaging and machinery. It was the center of all the Old Republic's activities, and helped describe Galactic Standard time. The Imperial Senate was convened there. When Palpatine assumed control of the Senate and the rest of the government, he established that Coruscant would remain the center of his Empire. He began a massive work effort to shape Coruscant to his desires, including installing a large number of surveillance systems. Following the Battle of Endor, Mon Mothma moved the New Republic onto Coruscant and again re-established the center of the Republic there. This came after the planet was liberated from Ysanne Isard, and the New Republic overcame the threat of the Krytos virus. Unbeknownst to all, Isard's infamous Lusankya prison facility was hidden in the Super-class Star Destroyer Lusankya, which was buried beneath Imperial City. Following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, the Imperial Inner Circle began attacking Coruscant in an effort to regain the center of the galaxy for the Empire. This attack was driven back just before the Emperor was reborn as a clone, but the damage to the planet's resources was horrendous. Also, the immediate space surrounding the planet was littered with starship wreckage for many years to follow. Once the reborn Emperor was destroyed, the New Republic began cleaning up the planet to make it more presentable as the center of the galaxy. The standard hour and year are marked by Coruscant's local hour and year. The normal Coruscant day is divided into 24 hours, and its year lasts 368 local days. According to Rebellion, Coruscant is located in Sesswenna Sector. (HTTE, DE1, JS, HTSB, ISU, WG, KT, REB, IWE1)

Coruscant Command
the defensive network monitoring all inbound and outbound traffic from the planet Coruscant. (AS)

Coruscant Control
the traffic control network monitoring all inbound and outbound traffic from the planet Coruscant. (DA)

Coruscant Daily NewsFeed
this politically-correct news agency reported on the various aspects of high society life on Coruscant. (SWJ9)

Coruscant Energy
this was the primary source of electrical power on the planet Coruscant. (JE)

Coruscant Game Fowl
this small bird was raised in controlled farms on the planet Coruscant, and was considered a culinary delicacy. (SOA)

Coruscant Global Newsgrid
this news agency is based on the planet Coruscant, and provides information from around the planet. It is highly tuned to the New Republic and its governmental doings, and was one of the first agencies to show the Aramadia when Nil Spaar lifted off from Coruscant. (BTS)

Coruscant Guard
this was the name used to describe the stormtrooper police units assigned to protect Imperial interests on Coruscant and other Core Worlds during the height of the Galactic Civil War. They have an elaborate suit of armor which is red in color, and was based on the basic unit worn by stormtroopers. The helmet was specially-designed in order to help differentiate them from standard troops. (ROE)

Coruscant Hourly
one of the many news services which broadcast information about the New Republic from Coruscant. (SOP)

Coruscant Opera
this was the galaxy's finesst opera company, performing during the early decades of the New Republic. (JE)

Coruscant Prime
this is one of the major newsgrids available to inhabitants of the planet Coruscant. The service ran a series of inflammatory articles aimed at Leia Organa-Solo and the Ruling Council during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Coruscant Rimward
this planet was a marginally-technological world located in the Outer Rim. It was a backwater planet that tried to live up to its namesake's high standard of living on an Outer Rim level, but more often than failed in its attempts. (XWN)

Coruscant Standard Carat
this was the accepted measurement used throughout the galaxy to determine the relative weight of a precious metal or stone. It was roughly equivalent to one-fifth of a gram of pure material. (PP)

Coruscant Standard Time
this was the galactic standard time reference, and was used to indicate the current time on the planet Coruscant, no matter where a being was in the galaxy. Many planets provided two time measurements: local time and Coruscant Standard Time. (WEG)

Coruscant Star of Valor
this medal was one of the first commissioned by the New Republic. It was created shortly after - and to comemmorate - the liberation of Coruscant from Imperail control. It was first awarded to the members of Rogue Squadron, for their dedication and loyalty during the liberation of the planet. (KT)

Coruscant Taxi
this is the generic term used to describe the small repulsorcraft that are used to moved beings between the buildings of Imperial City on Coruscant, although the basic design can be used almost anywhere. They average 8 meters in length, and have a top speed of 191 kph. The ship requires a single pilot, and can transport up to 5 beings depending on their species. Like all the craft that travel Imperial City's byways, it has a speciallized automatic pilot that employs magnetic grids to keep it from straying in the huge flows of traffic which dominate the skies of Imperial City. (X1, TPM)

Coruscant University an institute of higher learning located in Imperial City. (AS)

Coruscant Wate
this was the primary source of purified water on the planet Coruscant. (JE)

Coruscant*-class Heavy Courier
this Corellia StarDrive starship was similar in many respects to the Hoersch-Kessel Delaya-class courier: a highly-aerodynamic craft designed to transport personnel between planets. The Coruscant-class ship was larger, and had different sections for its components. The engines were arranged in two banks set at right angles to each other, allowing for greater maneuverability without supplemental thrusters. The main wing had retractable sections that provided increased maneuvering in atmosphere, but could be folded for landing. The Coruscant-class also had more cargo space than the Delaya-class, which meant that ground vehicles could also be transported with personnel. The ship measured 150 meters in length, and required a pilot and gunner to operate. It could transport up to six passengers and 25 metric tons of cargo, and was armed with a front-mounted pulse-wave cannon, three laser cannons, four proton torpedo launchers, and a pair of short-range concussion-sphere launchers. (EGV, TOJC)

Coruschal WeaponWorks
this weapons manufacturer produced several lines of sliugthrowers, including the Dagger Combat Pistol. (FOP)

Corva Sector
located in the Outer Rim, the Corva Sector is home to the Delari and H'Ken planetary systems. (SWAJ, SWJ8)

Corva Yag
this planet was the site of the grisly murder of 300 colonists, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. While the resulting public safety briefings claimed the deaths were due to a batch of sabotaged 87-RM collector droids, many felt that the colonists had stumbled upon a secret Imperial laboratory and were "silenced." (SWJ13)

Corvair
a model of landspeeder produced by SoroSuub during the last decades of the Old Republic. (HT)

Corvani Rum
this was Suroc's favorite liquor. (GG11)

Corvanni IV
this planet was located in the Neshig Sector. (GG10)

Corvis
crew member of the Wild Kaarde during the early years of the New Republic. Note that Specter of the Past refers to him as Corvus. (HTTE, SOP)

Corvis Minor Five
this planet was part of a planetary system with a lackluster history, and was one of the member worlds of the Ciutric Hegemony. A large, gray-orange gas giant, Corvis Minor Five had many small moons, including Distna. (TLC, IR)

Corvis Minor Four
one of the three inhabited worlds of the Corvis Minor System. It was a water-rich tropical world which produced several exotic xenobiological products considered luxuries by other worlds in the Ciutric Hegemony. (IR)

Corvis Minor Three
one of the three inhabited worlds of the Corvis Minor System. It was a semi-arid world with temperate zones at the poles, and produced several exotic xenobiological products considered luxuries by other worlds in the Ciutric Hegemony. (IR)

Corvus
an Imperial Interdictor-class starship used during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Corwell
a Bakuran noble Lady who agrees to watch Malinza when Gaeriel accompanies the Bakuran fleet to Corellia. (AS)

COSGU
see Committee of Seven for Garosian Unification (SWJ1)

Coslen Dantoinal
the meat of this creature is considered a delicacy, and is served on some of the galaxy's finest luxury starliners. (RM)

Cosmic Balance, The
a religion embraced by the Bakurans, the Cosmic Balance was believed to have been first formed on the planet Hemei IV. It was symbolized by a half-black, half-white ring. Followers of the Cosmis Balance believed that the Jedi Knights upset the universal balance through their use of The Force. The universe was ruled by the Cosmos, and there is a faith in a Cosmic Wheel which is always turning and re-establishing balance. (TB, TBSB)

Cosmic Chance
this casino game allows a player to try and manipulate random rays of light to strike a predetermined target. Luke Skywalker once played Cosmic Chance on Vorzyd 5, striking three targets in a row by using his then-immature ability to bend the rays with the Force. This attracted a great deal of attention, since hitting a single target is rare enough. It also drew Imperial notice, and Luke and Leia Organa were intercepted in a travel tube. (CSWEA)

Cosmic Egg
a religious icon of the Kitonak race. (TJP)

Cosmic Wheel
a cornerstone of the religion of the Cosmic Balance, the Wheel is always turning, attempting to re-establish the galactic balance. (TB)

Cosmic Wisdom, The
a mystical reference used by Wuher. (TME)

CosmiComm
an intergalactic paging service provider. (SOL)

Cosmohaul Shipping
this cargo transportation company was beset by a number of pirate attacks, many of which seemed to have Imperial backing. The pirates turned out to be Xalto Sneerzick and his crew. A group of freelance mercenaries assisted Cosmohaul and the New Republic in halting Sneerzick's raids. (SWJ9)

Costumer
this was the nickname used by Leia Organa-Solo to describe one of her images analysts. Assigned to her by Nanaod Engh, the Costumer was in charge of creating Leia's makeup and clothing. (TT)

Cosuf
a Sullustan transport ship, it was assigned to carry diplomats to a rendezvous with Alliance diplomats prior to the Battle of Yavin. (XW)

Cotellier
this planet is a hot, dry, desert world. From space, Cotellier has a deep red color. It is orbited by an emerald green moon which has three rings of ice and rock encircling it. There is very little standing water on the planet, and dust storms frequently ravage the surface. The only industry on the planet is the mining of Nova crystals. (GMH)

Cotetchtle
this Ishi Tib served as the quartermaster aboard Urias Xhaxin's pirate ship, the Free Lance. (PP)

Cothron
this Imperial Lieutenant was assigned to the garrison in the city of Hullis, on the planet Halmad. He was known as a poor sabacc player, and was also a belligerent drinker. He was one of the Imperials captured by Wraith Squadron at Ola's, during their attempt to steal TIE Interceptors for use by the Hawk-bats. (IF)

Cotterdam
see Cofferdam (PP)

Coufee
an ancient Yuuzhan Vong weapon, the coufee was a large, double-edged knife. Developed in the earliest days of the Yuuzhan Vong warrior class, it was a crude but nonetheless effective weapon. (VP)

Council of Chieftains
this was the planetary governing body formed by the Eklaad to mediate disputes and plan for future actions. After the Empire established a presence on Sirpar, the Council of Chieftains was disbanded. (AE)

Council of Elders
1) the group of leaders of an Ewok tribe. (ROTJ)
2) this was the name of the ruling body that governed the day-to-day activities of the planet Alderaan. It was the Council of Elders that decided to store all of Alderaan's weapons aboard the starship Another Chance. (GA)

Council of First Knowledge
this Council of the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic was charged with advising the Jedi on matters which required the oldest of the ancient Jedi lore. The Council worked from one of the four towers of the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (IWE1)

Council of Gordek
this four-member council was established by the Orfites to rule the various tribal *sahh*s. Each member was chosen by popular vote, and those elected to the Council served for life or until the Council decided that a new vote would be held. (AE)

Council of Ministers this was the primary advisory body of Galacian politics, supporting the monarchy but wielding little actual power. (MOC)

Council of Reconciliation
this Council of the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic was charged with seeking out peaceful resolutions to the conflicts which raged across the galaxy during the last decades of the Old Republic. Like the Council of First Knowledge, the Council of Reconciliation worked in one of the four smaller towers of the Jedi Temple on Coruscant. (IWE1)

Council of Security and Intelligence
this New Republic Senatorial group's identity was so secret and hidden that rumors of its existence were often viewed as invalid or bold-faced lies. They met in a shielded room deep below Imperial Palace, and were in control of the use of Alpha Blue. (SOL)

Council of Sisters
a convention of the ruling women of the Singing Mountain clan on Dathomir. A council is convened in times of need, to decide the position of the clan on specific matters and to decide which paths to take. (SA)

Council of Ten this division of the Tapani Sector's Great Council actually had thirty-five members. It was made up of an inner circle of the wisest of the Great Council's representatives, and was charged with handling the foreign policies, financial policies and internal security of the sector. (PGT)

Council of the Wise
this M'shinni governing body controls the world on which it was formed. Many such councils exist on the various M'shinni agriworlds. The Council is made up of the eldest members of each Rootline. (GG12)

Council of 127
this is the primary political body of the Jenet race, and is made up of 127 councilors who work with a Premiere to make decisions. Members of the council are not elected, but the exact selection process is not known. Jenets can tell if an individual serves on the Council by their name. (GG4)

Counter Puncher
this pirate ship was a converted Imperial Customs frigate. It crew defected, led by Tor Skylow, during the Imperial occupation of the Minos Cluster. Skylow allowed any staunchly Imperial crewmen to be jettisoned in escape pods, but the ship was hers. She and her new crew took the ship to Yelsain for modifications, in order to remove any Imperial designation or inference from the ship's outline. The Counter Puncher measured 35 meters in length, and Skylow's crew consisted of 6 officers and 6 gunners. It was armed with six heavy laser cannons. After the defection of the crew, the Counter Puncher was targetted to be captured by Tylen Silroan and the Warlord. Silroan defected to the Alliance during the attempted capture. (GG6, SWAJ)

Counterpunch
this Imperial Carrack-class warship was part of Zsinj's third fleet, during the early years of the New Republic. The ship was destroyed by the security forces of the planet Vispil, whose governmental leaders refused to keep taking the bribes Zsinj paid them for use of the facilities on the planet. (SOC)

Countermeasures Package
a set of starship evasion materials that help a ship avoid pursuit. Han had some new ones installed in the Millennium Falcon before letting Leia take it to Endor to meet Khabarakh. (DFR)

Courage
1) this was one of the Thranta-class warships slaved to the Another Chance to protect it from being taken by hostile forces. Like its companions, the Fidelity and Valiant, it would accompany the Another Chance as it jumped through hyperspace to avoid detection. One of the Thranta's would enter realspace before the Chance to engage any resistance, the second would accompany it for protection, and the third would help draw off pursuit. (BW)
2) this Skipray Blastboat was owned by the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4. Luke Skywalker and Jacen Solo flew it to Belkadan after the initial thrust of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion was thwarted at Helska, and discovered that the planet had been turned into a breeding ground for the Vong's biological constructs. (DTO)

Courage of Sullust
this Gallofree Shipyards Medium Transport was operated by the New Republic, and was used to ferry the Rogue Squadron X-Wings from Coruscant to Ryloth during the Krytos crisis. The Rogues hoped to negotiate with the Twi'leks for quantities of kor ryll, for use in treating the victims of the Krytos virus. The Courage of Sullust was filled with ryll for the return trip, with Rogue Squadron providing escort. (KT)

Courane
this New Republic cruiser was stationed at Durren, in the early years of the New Republic. Along with the Fireater, it was dispatched to Cybloc XII to investigate the spread of the Death Seed plague there. (POT)

Courataine
an alien race whose gelatinous form must be contained in a protective exoskeleton. This exoskeleton must be manufactured, as the Courataine cannot naturally generate one. They breath a very thin atmosphere on their home world, and must have a special processor built into their exoskeleton suits in order to survive off-planet. (HSR)

Courenth
this gaseous substance is used as an engine coolant. (CFG)

Courier Communications
this corporation produced a wide range of communications scanners and other devices for use by scouts and paramilitary personnel. (ROE)

Courier/Scout
an Incom starship. (WEG)

Courkrus
this planet, the fourth in the Khuiumin System, was the home of the Survivors pirate fleet. It is a dry world settled in the early years of the Old Republic. It is sometimes called simply Khuiumin 4. It has two moons. (IJ)

Court Gazette
a Senatorial journal produced during the Old Republic on Coruscant, it kept up with the day-to-day business of the Senate, as well as any gossip surrounding it. (COJ)

Court of the Fountain
Mos Eisley's highest-class restaurant, it was a sprawling palace made fom stone and stucco, a leftover from better days. Jabba the Hutt owned the restaurant. (TME)

Court of the Royal Residence this was the name given to the perator's palace in the city of Cartann, on the planet Adumar. (SOA)

Courteous
one of the cruisers blockading the ThonBoka to keep the Oswaft from entering Imperial space, the Courteous was the closest ship to the mouth of the nebula. Lando Calrissian made his final stop their, masquerading as a simple trader before making a run for the nebula. The Courteous was forced to fire on the Millennium Falcon as it blasted away, and appeared to have destroyed the freighter. The Courteous was later destroyed when it and the other cruisers nearest the mouth of the nebula tried to kill Bhoggihalysahonues and her supporters. The Oswaft "shouted" at the Imperials to negotiate, and the microwave energy released by the Oswaft penetrated the Courteous's thin shielding and destryoed it. (LCS)

Cov-Prim, Alexis
this woman was a star of several Imperial holovids, and was famous during the height of the New Order. She had extravagant tastes, and in order to fund them she worked with the bounty hunter Malthorn to obtain credits any way they could. Among their schemes was Alexis' marriage to five wealthy men between the time of the Battle of Yavin and the Battle of Hoth. Each man died shortly after the weddings. Alexis was named the sole beneficiary in each man's will, thereby providing her with a steady stream of credits. It was later discovered that Malthorn killed the new grooms, making their deaths look as natural as possible. When she learned of the auction of the Shard of Alderaan by Begas Tok, Alexis and Malthorn traveled to Tatooine in an effort to locate husband number six. (LAA)

Cova
this pilot, a native of Tun Wala on Arda-2, was injured in a military exercise just before Luke Skywalker arrived on Arda-2 to investigate the misuse of T-6 diodems. His position in the fleet was taken by Zon Zorad. (CSWEA)

Covado
a plant used in Ithorian salads. (GA)

Covallon
a race of lupine sentients, Covallon evolved form swift quadrepedal plains predators. They are an empathic race, able to sense the emotions of other beings around them. While they prefer to move about on all fours, Covallon can walk upright, and their front paws are equipped with fingers capable of fine manipulation. They have a large mane of fur behind their bony heads, and their skulls are topped with a single curved horn. Their bodies are covered with striped fur. (CRO)

Covell, Freja
this man served as an Imperial Army General, attached to the Chimaera's crew, during Grand Admiral Thrawn's reign of terror. A native of the planet Corulag, Covell trained under General Veers, and was a battlegroup leader in the attack on the Alliance's Echo Base on Hoth. When his walker was destroyed, he rallied a group of snowtroopers and attacked the main base. Captain Pellaeon promoted him to General and attaced him to the Chimaera after the Battle of Endor, and Covell was placed in charge of many of the fleet's ground offensives, including the attack on Myrkr. However, when C'baoth needed to have ground forces in his assault on Wayland, C'baoth took control of Covell's mind with the Force. This worked well, until they reached Wayland and encountered a ysalamiry null-Force bubble. The loss of the Force ripped away Covell's mind when the link was broken, and Covell was killed. (HTTE, DFR, TLC, DFRSB)

Cover Flight
this New Republic E-Wing squadron was an escort wing of fighters assisting the 24th Bombardment Squadron during the Battle of ILC-905. (T)

Covert shroud maneuver
an escape tactic that employs a ship hidden inside a larger ship. When the larger ship is caught by a tractor beam, the crew tries to auto-destruct the larger ship into a cluster of trac-reflective pieces (which confuse the tractor beam targetting system) while escaping in the smaller ship. (TLC)

Coveway
this Outer Rim planet was settled by a colonization expedition many years before the rise of the Empire. The planet was not the most idyllic world, but the colonists were hardy and persevered to create a world of their own. When the New Order began making inroads into the Outer Rim, they decided that Coveway needed its own garrison. The local commander wiped out an entire village of settlers in order to ensure the security of the base. (TTSB)

Covies
a nickname given to the inhabitants of New Cov. (DFR)

Covis, Spane
a member of the Alliance team working on Nar Shaddaa just before the Battle of Yavin, Covis was a member of the Special Forces. He was a sentry on guard when the Imperials, on a tip from Greedo and Spurch Goa, invaded the Alliance warehouse. The early warning provided by Covis allowed the Alliance to defeat the first wave of Imperials and escape before the Imperials brought in their Death Engine. (TME)

Cowall, Tetran
this man was Garik Loran's chief rival, during their years as actors for various companies working for the Empire. Both were rivals at everything, from movie roles to pilot training. They were both holofeature stars, but Cowall's popularity dwindled as he grew older and more homely. Cowall, eventually, joined Imperial service as a pilot, although his skills were not very good. It was to Tetran Cowall that Ton Phanan's small fortune would have gone upon his death, if Loran hadn't had his facial scars surgically removed. He found employment with Warlord Zsinj, who placed Cowall in command of a squadron made from TIE Interceptors piloted by six humans and six droid starfighters known as TIE Raptors. The droids allowed the human pilots to perform above their skills by offloading certain duties, which provided the outward appearance that Cowall's squadron was the 181st Fighter Group. After Zsinj was defeated at Selaggis Six, it was revealed that Cowall had been impersonating Baron Soontir Fell, in an effort to draw Wedge Antilles and Rogue Squadron into a more personal fight. In the aftermath of the Battle of Selaggis, Cowall revealed the depeption to Wedge. (IF, SOC)

Coway
a race of small, fur-covered humanoids native to Circarpous V. They are thought to be distant relatives of the Mimbanites. They live in the abandoned Thrella Wells. They are slim humanoids with downy grey fur. Their eyes are sunk deep into their skulls. They wear rudimentary clothing, and have a limited ability to create weapons. Their level of technology is low, but they seem to have some experience with the surface-dwelling races. They seem to have a simple leadership scheme in which three members of the society make the decisions. (SME)

Cowlpup
a small but ferocious creature often used to guard buildings. (BTS)

Coyn
this planet is the primary planet in the Coyn System, located in the Elrood Sector. It is located at the crossroads of the Elrood-Derilyn

Trade Route and the Coyn Run. Coyn is the homeworld of the fierce, warrior race known as the Coynites, who hold honor and ritual above all else. The average day on Coyn lasts 20 standard hours, and its year lasts 380 local days. This temperate world is blanketed with forests, marshes, and plains broken by beautiful mountain ranges. (PG)

Coyn Run
a shipping route that runs through the Coyn planetary system. (PG)

Coyn'skar
this weapon was a form of ceremonial polearm used by Coynites in combat. (OE)

Coynite
the fierce, warrior race which was native to the planet Coyn, the Coynites stand nearly three meters tall. Their bodies are covered with fine fur, which ranged in color from white or gold to brown and black. Their heads were crowned by a mane of longer hair, and the length of the mane indicated the individual's social status. Coynites are natural warriors, and almost always wear some form of battle armor and weapon. Xenobiologists have guessed that the average Coynite could live to be 250 standards years old, but most males died in combat by the time they were 55. They hold to a rigid system of ritual and honor codes known as the En'Tra'Sol, that governed not only battle but politics. Offworlders have been killed for not adhering to this code. The Coynites respected and admired the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic, since the Jedi Code was similar to the En'Tra'Sol in many respects. One code is known as the Cradle Law. (PG, SWAJ, AE)

CR-2
this model of blaster was used by the Naboo Security Guards in the years surrounding the Battle of Naboo. It was a small, compact weapon. (IG1)

CR-43 Low-Ride
this model of swoop was produced by the Caelli-Merced Syndicate, and was specially designed for use in swoopchasing. It measured 2.44 meters in length, and was designed to have a ride height of no more than 3.05 meters, in accordance with the regulations of sanctioned swoopchasing. (BSS)

CR-43X
this was a treet-legal version of the Caelli-Merced racing swoop. (BSS)

Cr'ee'ei
this Ssi-ruuvi Lwhekk-class manufacturing ship was sent as part of the fleet that invaded Bakura. It produced battle droids for the Ssi-ruuvi navy, but exhausted its ability to produce battle droids during the seige. The word cr'ee'ei literally translated to “maker ship.” (TBSB)

Crab, Finious
this less-than-reputable trader purchased the Lambarian Crab from Matas Havel. Believing himself to be a competent mechanic, Crab tore out the redundant systems in the YT-2400 transport and installed his own weapons systems. He also tore out the safety backups in order to feed more power to the heavy double laser cannon he installed. Unfortunately, Finious' skills as a mechanic were not the best, and on a run to Eriadu the life support systems failed. When the Lambarian Crab was discovered by Linx Mallicker and Fillio Androu, Crab was a dessicated corpse. (SS)

Crab Nut
a legume found on Yavin 4. (DK)

Craci System
located just within the boundaries of the Corporate Sector, this five-planet system is home to the Cracian Thumper. (RASB)

Cracian Thumper
a creature used for transportation on any number of worlds, the Thumper originated in the Craci System. The name "thumper" was given to the beast because it looks like it should thump along when it runs. However, the Thumper is one of the quietest animals known, and makes virtually no noise when it moves. In addition to making good mounts, the Thumper is also a valuable companion in a fight, using its clawed forearms and feet, as well as its thick tail, to combat enemies. (RASB, DFR)

Crack-loo
a game of chance played in most casinos. (SL)

Cracken, Airen
Airen Cracken was born on Contruum some fifty years before the Battle of Yavin. He grew up his parent’s farm, and was particulary adept at modifying and fixing machinery. He later opened a mechanic’s shop, and repaired everything from landspeeders to holoprojectors. He married a Corellian woman namde Josta, and they had two children before the Empire took control of Contruum. Airen and a group of supporters took to the hills, in an effort to thwart the Imperial forces at every turn. Josta set up safehouses, while “Cracken’s Crew” crippled stardocks, sabotaged mining operations, and destroyed supply depots. As the Imperial commander began spending more and more time searching for specific saboteurs, the natives of Contruum developed their own militia. A hard-fought war was begun, and in the end, the Imperial Moff pulled out rather than waste more effort trying to subdue Contruum. Cracken recognized that the Empire was not as kind to other worlds in the galaxy, and decided to leave Josta and Contruum to fight for the Alliance. He provided valuable input during the early years of the Alliance, particularly in the areas of special forces operations. His knack for modifying devices to perform auxiliary tasks made him an invaluable teacher, and his bravery in the face of Imperial foes twice earned him the Nebula award. Cracken continued to serve the cause following the Battle of Endor, and became a respected statesman and military advisor for the New Republic. He was responsible for the New Republic's position when the Rogue Squadron pilots resigned their commissions, and also negotiated the transfer of the Virulence to Booster Terrik. When the Battle of Thyferra had been decided, Cracken informed Wedge Antilles that the Rogues' resignations were never actually processed, and they could have them back if the so desired. After they trained the first group of the Thyferran Aerospace Defense Force, they returned to the New Republic and took up the mantle of Rogue Squadron again. (HTTE, TLC, WG, CFG, BW)

Cracken, Dena
this young woman was Airen Cracken's daughter. She had just started school about a year before the Battle of Hoth. (SWJ12)

Cracken, Josta
this woman was Airen Cracken's wife. (SWJ12)

Cracken, Pash
a highly-proficient starfighter in the Republic, Pash was the son of Airen Cracken. He flew A-Wings early in his career, and quickly moved up the ranks to become a squadron commander. However, the people serving under him felt that his seeming invulnerablity and ability to survive any situation made them equally invulnerable. Pash's squadron soon started taking losses, and was placed under Varth's unit. Pash used this modification to apply for Rogue Squadron to help save good pilots. He served Wedge Antilles when the Rogues infiltrated Ciruscant, as a prelude to the New Republic taking the planet back from the remnants of the Empire. He later returned to Varth's command, eventually serving at Generis just before the battles against Grand Admiral Thrawn. Pash is the namesake of the Cracken Twist. (TLC, WG)

Cracken Twist
an escape maneuver developed by Pash Cracken in which a team of escort ships maneuvers into an assumed flight path that is altered based on the countdown to the start of the new maneuver. If the maneuver is to start on the count of 2, the correct flight plan is found by adding 2 to the second number of each coordinate. (TLC)

Cracken's Crew
this is the nickname used by those Contruum rebels who fought alongside Airen Cracken, following the Imperial occupation of the planet. They constantly wreaked havoc with Imperial supply depots and mining operations, and sabotaged stardocks and landing bays. They often left grafitti behind which declared “Cracken’s Crew Says Hello.” (CFG)

Cracken's Field Guide
a manual of starship construction, maintenance, and modifications used by The Alliance. (TB)

Cracken's Flight Group
the name given to the A-Wing pilots who served under Pash Cracken before he joined Rogue Squadron. The original Group was comprised of the pilots that defected form the Imperial Academy with Pash. During their escape, the Group managed to destroy the Victory-class Star Destroyer Exsanguinator, making them the stuff of rumors and stories. Pash's ability to survive nearly any engagement became legendary, and the pilots serving under him believed themselves equally invulnerable. This served only to reduce their sharpness, and many pilots started getting careless and killed. The Group was assimilated into Varth's command, and Pash joined the Rogues. (WG)

Cracknel
an appetizer. (TJP)

Cradle Law
under Coynite honor code, the Cradle Law is the most binding. The law states that no male Coynite may marry, own land, or disobey their father's wishes until he becomes an adult. (SWAJ)

Cradossk
this ancient Trandoshan was the leader of the Bounty Hunters Guild during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. Long beyond his prime physical condition and extremely paranoid, Cradossk was nonetheless an imposing figure, and his wily intelligence allowed him to maintain control of Guild and its scheming members. Like his father before him, Cradossk had emerged from his egg and consumed his siblings, ensuring his own survival. His own spawn, Bossk, had done no less, and Cradossk was sure that the younger reptile would treacherously try to kill him. Thus, he continually worked the members of the Guild into loose, hidden alliances to eliminate Bossk. These plans invariably failed, and Bossk remained a thorn in his father’s side. When Boba Fett, acting in concert with Kud’ar Mub’at, asked to join the Guild, Cradossk saw it as a way to bring prestige to the Guild and to reign in one of its primary opponents. Cradossk failed to comprehend Fett’s plans until it was too late. By then, infighting among the Guild’s older members and its younger members was at a head. Bossk took control fhte younger, more hot-headed faction and managed to confront his father alone. In a great struggle, Bossk managed to kill and eat his father, thereby ensuring his control of the remains of the Guild. (MA, SLS)

Crado
this Cathar Jedi was apprenticed to Vodo Siosk-Baas, along with his lover, Sylvar. He idolized Exar Kun, seeing Kun as a strong source of power and skill. When Exar Kun rose to power as a Dark Lord of the Sith, he took Crado as a possessed apprentice when the Sith holocron exploded and sent shards of Dark Side energy into Crado. Under the spell of the ancient Sith, Crado accompanied Oss Willum to Ambria to kill Master Thon. In a vicious battle with Nomi Sunrider, Thon, and his lover Sylvar, Crado and Oss Willum tried to use the Dark Side creatures of Lake Natth to do their bidding, but were defeated. Crado nearly killed Sylvar because of the Dark Side influence, then fled to escape them while Oss Willum was captured. Crado returned to Exar Kun, then accompanied Aleema to the Cron Cluster, where they tried to use an ancient Sith weapon to destroy the arriving Old Republic fleet. Aleema succeeded in decimating the fleet, but could not control the weapon. In the end, she caused ten stars in the Cron Cluster to explode, killing herself and Crado. (DLS, TSW)

Crag, The
this rocky pinnacle of stone jutted up from the green landscape of the planet H'ratth. The ancient Jedi Master Chamma used to bring his students to The Crag, in order to have them concentrate on the Force. (TOJC)

Cragus 12
this bounty hunter was wanted by the New Republic for the murder of personnel and the destruction of property. No on knew his real name or true identity, for he alway wore a full-body suit of armor and a blast helmet. Limited bioscan data indicated that Cragus 12 had a number of cybernetic protheses, including a Repli-Limb arm and Neuro-Saav Cardio-Muscular and Hifold Sensory packages. (SWJ1)

Cralliard
this bounty hunter worked for Moff Bandor, stalking the Game Chambers of Questal. Cralliard's race was unknown, but he was a well-built, hairless humanoid who dressed in furs and skins. An excellent tracker, Cralliard stalked the prisoners of the chambers and shot at them from places of cover. He would then move to the next cover position, drawing the prisoners into a futile chase while exhausting and disorienting them. (GCQ)

Cran
this was an Imperial unit of volume. (BF)

Cranan 12
this little-known planet is the primary world in the Cranan System. (SWAJ)

Crandor Ijjix
this member of the Norat Sovereignity was captured during the Yevethan Purge and forced to record a message for the New Republic by Tal Fraan. The message was a plea to the ships of the Fifth Battle Group to halt their attack on Yevethan starships during the blockade of Doornik-319. Fraan correctly surmised that Republic pilots would break off their attack if they were made to believe prisoners were alive on the Yevethan ships. However, there were no prisoners, and the Yevethans decimated the Fifth Battle Group during their successful resistance of the blockade. (SOL)

Cranker
this plant's roots are a delicacy to the Rodians, especially when they are deeply oiled. (SWJ9)

Crans
this man was one of Zothip's pirates. He was taken out by Karoly D'ulin on Bastion, while they were guarding Moff Disra's offices. (VOF)

Crash, The
this cantina, found in the city of Vlarnya on Khuiumin 4, was the primary hangout of the Khuiumin Survivors. In keeping with its name, the Crash was decorated with bits and pieces of starfighters shot down by the Survivors, or pieces of crashed starships the Survivors escaped from. (IJ)

Crash-foam
this protective restraint material is used in starfighers and other personal ships. When a ship is forced to crash-land, crash-foam is expelled in the event that the ejection seat is not present or fails. The foam fills the cabin, completely surrounding the pilot. It insulates the pilot from the shock of the crash, but can be quickly removed once the pilot is on solid ground. (POT)

Crater Lodge
the nicest place to stay on Crseih Station, it was where Han, Luke, and C-3PO stayed until they were forced out by the contingency of Imperial supporters who came to commit themselves to Hethrir's Empire Reborn. (CS)

Crater of Debate
located on the planet Fyodos, this location is found within Galidyn lands. The Galidyn take arriving offworlders to this crater, so that the visitors can explain who they are and why they've come to Fyodos. (PG2)

Cratnik
an insectile race of being with large eyes. They consume their food raw,and raise a species of small mammal as a staple for their diet. (DOE)

Cratsch
a Bakuran carnivore, the cratsch was a ferret-like creature which preyed on the birds that lived in the namana groves. The cratsch had a prehensile tail, which it used to hang in the trees and wait for birds to alight nearby. When cornered on the ground, a cratsch would fight to the death, making it difficult to capture a live specimen. (TB)

Cravers
a carnivore, often used as a reference in the phrase, "Throw him to the cravers." (DFR)

Craw
the Dictator-Forever of the Targonnian people, he was eventually overthrown with the help of R2-D2 and C-3PO. He ruled from a palace hidden behind a force-field, and instituted a 99% tax rate on his citizens. He also forced children to start working at the age of 6. He captured the droids in an effort to help unlock the secrets of savorium. The Targonnian Shay tried to overthrow him, but failed. Shay did, however, rescue the droids, who later assisted Zorneth in successfully deposing Craw. (DRO)

Craw-maw
this avian was native to the planet Ruan. When the Salliche Agricultural Corporation began retooling its operations in hopes of pleasing the Yuuzhan Vong, it genetically altered craw-maws to be wingless and mute, and used them to create droppings which were later turned into fertilizer. (JE)

Crawler
1) lumbering, tread-driven transport vehicles used on the Crseih station asteroids. They are heavily shielded from the system's intense X-radiation. (CS)
2) a species of two-dimensional lifeform that inhabits the frozen liquid near the core of the gas giant Yavin. There are believed to be more than 130 distinct species of Crawlers, all living near the "surface" of the core. (GG2)

Crawlfish
a creature native to the moon Yavin 4, crawlfish are known to be edible to humans. (GG2)

Craxtet Redhand
this pirate was one of Big Jak Targrim's Riders of the Maelstrom. Craxtet was second-in-command to Targrim, and got his name from the Mandalorian crushgaunt he wears. (RM)

Crazy Van Kyle
this being was the leader of the Hurt Vectors swoop gang. (ND)

Creation of Monsters, The Third volume of the Dark Side Compendium. (DE1)

Creature Chess
a slang term for the Dejarik game. (JHS)

Creb
an Imperial TIE fighter pilot from Bettok, Creb served on the Chimaera from his first assignment. He fought in the Battle of Endor, and worked with the Black Wing Squadron under Grand Admiral Thrawn. (DFRSB)

Creche'
this speciallized Yuuzhan Vong clustership was designed to care for a young yammosk, until it was fully grown and ready for deployment. The Vong used the life-energies of prisoners captured on Gyndine to nurture the yammosk aboard the Creche'. The ship was commanded by Chine-kal during this time. Many of the captives who were forced to tend the yammosk died after the young creature's mental contact. After Chine-kal discovered Wurth Skidder's true nature, he traveled to Kalarba to deliver the Jedi to Tsavong Lah. However, before they could reach the Yuuzhan Vong commander, the Creche' was attacked by Kyp's Dozen. Chine-kal fled to Fondor, hoping to get the damaged ship to the main Yuuzhan Vong fleet in time to save the young yammosk. However, the ship barely survived to Fondor, where it was attacked again by New Republic forces. The Creche' was unable to withstand the assault, which inlcuded Kyp Durron's execution of the yammosk, and the ship tore itself apart. When the blast from Centerpoint Station ripped through the Fondor System, the Creche' was incinerated. (JE)

Credal, Risiev
this man, a native of the planet Jofoger, was an accomplished tactician who served the Alliance for several years before his disappearance, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Credal trained under the watchful eye of Beryl Chiffonage, and even served under Jan Dodonna on Dantooine before the Alliance base on that world was abandoned. He was escorting an Alliance patrol in the Anoat System when he took his starship and simply disappeared. The Alliance was unsure whether he defected to the Empire or simply retired to a remote planet. (AIR)

Credcoin
this is a form of Adumari money. (SOA)

Creddrone
this slang term refers to the lowest drudges working in the Corporate Sector for minimal wages and living in the poorest of conditions. (CSA)

Credit Standard
the basis for all monetary transactions in the galaxy. It defines a standard denomination around which all races and planets can easily interact in business and pleasure. (HSR)

Cree'n'aak literally meaning "seat of power," this was the name of the Shreeftut's palace on Lwhekk. The building so immense that many Ssi-ruuk considered it to be its own city. (TBSB)

Creed
this bounty hunter was hired by Themog to scare off or kill any of the mercenaries hired by Mortris Gallorr to help remove the criminal element from the planet Chrona. (SWJ12)

Creel, Iving
this native of the planet Concord Dawn was a well-known Pleader. It was Creel who handled the case of Jaster Mereel. (TBH)

Creeper
1) this ten-limbed creature was one of the Yuuzhan Vong's many biological constructs. Six of its limbs served as legs. Two of the other four were quite thin and ended in fronds which could induce pain when they touched flesh, and the other two were heavy and ended in sharp pincers. These four were held upright as the creature sidled from left to right in order to move. The top of the creature's body was soft,and was used to carry young yorik coral buds. Three compound eyes sat atop a thick central stalk which could move around to allow the creature to see. The creeper's job was to take young yorik coral buds and implant them into the living body of a slave-host. The yorik then kept the slave from revolting while it fed on the host's vital fluids and energy. (DTO)
2) this species of vine is native to the planet Datar. It is noted for its large, horn-shaped leaves and soft white color. (E1A5)

Creeve
an Imperial Captain, he was in charge of keeping Troomis busy. (RASB)

Crell, Ardon
know as “Vapor” to his associates, Ardon Crell was a member of the local moisture farmers’ union number 253, near Mos Eisley on Tatooine. He paid Jabba the Hutt a regular sum to assist in protecting the moisture farmers from Sand People raids. (CCG7)

Crelnut
this legume was grown on the planet Gelgelar. (SWJ14)

Cremlevian War
one of the most legendary battles ever fought in the Yuuzhan Vong galaxy, it provided the impetus for the Yuuzhan Vong to grow strong and powerful. When the tide was turning against the various tribes of the Yuuzhan Vong, Yo'Gand united the tribes and used a strong dovin basal to destroy the planet Ygziir, the homeworld of their enemies. The tactic eventually became known as Yo'Gand's Core. (VP)

Crescent of Valor
this award was presented by the Alliance to those personnel who perform with bravery and valor while under fire. The medal is an embossed crescent upon a field of stars, suspended from a blue ribbon. (ROE)

Crescent*-class Transport
a starship manufactured by Hyrotil, the Crescent-class transport measured 30 meters in length and would be operated by a single pilot and up to eight passengers. The Crescent-class ship was a delta-winged craft, with a central fuselage sitting along the centerline of the broad wings. It was designed to appeal to the affluent young beings who wanted to travel among the stars in relative luxury. There were two versions of the Crescent-class produced, a basic civilian version and the Mark II military version. Despite its size, the Crescent-class could only transport up to 80 metric tons of cargo. The civilian version was unarmed, while the Mark II was armed with a light blaster cannon as standard equipment. (SS, CRO)

Crescent*-class Mark II Transport
this was the military version of the Crescent-class transport, armed with a single light blaster cannon. (SS)

Cresh
this is the third symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "c". (SWM)

Creshaldyne Industries
this corporation produced a series of camouflage suits used by scouts and paramilitary personnel. (ROE)

Crespin, Edor
this New Republic General was a native of the planet Corulag, and a former member of the Imperial Navy. A tall, lean man with an impassive face, Crespin was given command of the starfighter training base on Folor shortly after the Battle of Thyferra. Crespin's most notable feature was the mirror-surfaced patch he wore over his prosthetic eye, which was an omnious, glossy black orb. It was rumored that he lost his eye in an engagement with the Warlord Zsinj, on a world on the border of Zsinj's holdings. Crespin commanded Comet Squadron before being promoted to General, and thought Garik Loran could never do enough for the Republic to make up for his contributions to the Empire. In this he was proven wrong, and got a chance to see how wrong first-hand, when Crespin was given command of the Tedevium and the Screaming Wookiee Squadron following the arrest of Atton Repness. As the commander of the frigate, Crespin was added to the fleet which supported the Mon Remonda during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. They arrived during the final act of the battle for the Razor's Kiss, and Crespin assumed temporary command of Nova Squadron as well. They pummeled Zsinj's ships with a massive wall of energy, destroying the Razor's Kiss and nearly taking down the Iron Fist. (WS, IF)

Crested Wake
this is the Basic translation of Dembaline's Shwock Dubllon. (VP)

Crevasse City
this city, found on the now-destroyed world of Alderaan, was unique in that it was nearly invisible above the surface of the planet. It was built entirely within the confines of a series of weather-worn canyons and fissures. This is a prime example of how the Alderaanian people worked with their environment to create living space. (ISU)

Cridark II
a planet. (TBSB)

Criminal Gallery
this exhibit in the Galactic Museum had displays of some of the worst criminals ever brought to justice by the Alliance and the New Republic. (KT)

Crimmins
one of the survivors of the Battle of Hoth, Crimmins was evacuated on the Bright Hope. A combat specialist, Crimmins was chosen to be one of the first to escape the ship in a life pod. (TBH)

Crimson Fury
this was one of the ships attached to Red Hand Squadron, and assisted the Retribution during the attack on the slave ship Helot's Shackle. (RD)

Crimson Jack
this space pirate intercepted Han Solo and the Millennium Falcon as he was making his way to Tatooine. Crimson Jack and his pirates looted all of the reward money Solo had received from the Alliance, and left he smuggler with nothing but his ship. (EGC)

Crimson Nova Pirates
this group of outlaws worked near the planet of F'Dann IX. They were hunted by Imperial forces, led by Pter Thanas and the Dominant, and were able to keep the Imperials at bay for some time. (TBSB)

Crinbid
a game of chance found in most casinos, it is played on a horseshoe-shaped warp-top table. (DFR)

Crion
this incredibly rich man was Xanatos' father, and was a native of the planet Telos. He was the wealthiest, and most powerful man on the planet, but he couldn't offer his son what he really wanted: to become a Jedi Knight. When Qui-Gon Jinn discovered Xanatos, Crion allowed the boy to be taken for training. However, he secretly maintained contact with his son. In Xanatos' absense, Crion became more and more greedy, and put into motion a plan to overtake a neighboring planet and steal its resources. Xanatos was drawn into the plan, until Jedi Master Yoda sent Xanatos and Qui-Gon back to Telos on a mission. The exact nature of the mission was not provided, but Qui-Gon quickly discovered the plot set in motion by Crion. Qui-Gon tried to expose the old man and his son – Qui-Gon's own Padawan apprentice – but the people of Telos instead formed two distinct fashions and sparked a civil war. In the battle, Qui-Gon was forced to cut down Crion with his lightsaber, first cutting the fingers from one of Crion's hands before dispatching him. Xanatos watched in horror, then recovered one of the rings from his father's severed fingers. He touched the hot metal to his cheek, leaving a crescent-shaped scar as a reiminder of Crion's death and Qui-Gon's seeming treachery. (DR)

Crism
a crystalline mineral found on the planet G'rho. (TBSB)

Crispic
this fried snack is often served at cantinas. (MJEH)

Criton's Point
access to this planet is restricted by its government, the Pentastar Alignment, as well as the Velcar Free Commerce Master Commissioner. It is the home of the mysterious Library of Xer, which is in the process of being excavated by a small scientific team. Rumor has it that, located in the center of the Library, is a tree which is strong in the Force. Its day lasts 28 standard hours; its year lasts 400 local days. (SWAJ)

Crivor
this man served on the crew of the FarStar as a kitchen cook and dishwasher. (KR)

CRM908A
an Pakuuni container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Croator
native to Wyndigal 2, this unusual avian stood well over two meters tall. Much of their height was due to their long, double-jointed legs. They had vestigial wings which resembled tiny hands, and long, flexible necks. Their was brightly colored, served to help protect the croator from the ultra-violet sunlight which bombarded the planet. A tuft of feathers protected their heads, while a thick cape of feathers protected their bodies. They lacked a true beak, instead having a long, dangling proboscis which they used to vacuum up their food. They reproduced asexually, laying their eggs and then moving on. Travelers to Wyndigal 2 discovered that the skin of the croator could be fashioned into a poncho or coat, providing a great deal of protection from the sun's light. (COG)

Croc of Gold
the first ship purchased by Devon Fuller, the Croc of Gold was a small freighter destroyed near Tashtor Seneca by Imperial forces. (GG9)

Croig
this aging Durosian was the owner of Croig's Fix-It Barn. It was rumored that he had connections to most of the smugglers in the Chorios Systems. (POT)

Croig's Fix-It Barn
this small, speeder repair shop is located in the city of Hweg Shul, on Nam Chorios. The owner gave Luke Skywalker a job there, during Luke's search for Callista. Croig's was the largest repair shop on the planet. (POT)

Croke
the smallest lifeform Lando Calrissian ever encountered, the Crokes are a race of slug-like multipeds. Resembling large snails without their shells, the Crokes also have 12 hairy, black legs. They measure less than a meter in length. They are vicious, intelligent creatures who are masters at camouflage and deception. (LCS)

Crollia
this barren ball of rock is the sixth planet in the Corellian system. (CTD)

Crollick
this Imperial Governor was in command of the Koornacht Cluster during the Galactic Civil War. He maintained control of the occupation force left in the Cluster to man the Black Sword Command's shipyards. He did not survive the Yevethan raids that took place shortly after the Battle of Endor. (TT)

Crom
this first-generation plant is a favorite among terraformers. Like gomex moss, crom survives without much water, and can break down rocky soils into basic nutrients. This converted soil is much more useful for planting second-generation plants like brachniel. (POT)

Cromag
this huge humanoid beast was "owned" by Mosh Pelkan. Cromag was the primary combatant in Pelkan's gladiator pit, and fought every and any challenger. Many of the challengers were prisoners of Moff Bandor. Cromag had over-developed shoulders and arms, and his ape-like face was dominated by huge eyes which caught every movement near him. Cromag fought in the pit, riding a series of repulsor-disks to keep above an electrified floor. Weapons were at his disposal, when he needed them, hung on the walls of the pit. Cromag was ultimately confident in his abilities, and rarely used weapons where his hands would suffice.
(GCQ)

Cromf
this Garoos was a freelance scout and bounty hunter employed by Mazzic to bring in Lak Jit, after the Devaronian escaped from Wayland. He arranged to deliver the thief to Shada and Mazzic at the Dona Laza tapcafe. (SOP)

Cron
this ancient kingdom was made up of fourteen planets. Eventually, the Cron kingdom became the heart of the Cronese Mandate. (ML)

Cron Cluster
this ancient grouping of stars is located in the Auril Sector. It was amidst six of the original nien Auril Systems. Much of the Clusters was destroyed during the Great Sith War, when Aleema tried to rip the core from one of the stars. She wanted to hurl the star into the midst of an Old Republic fleet, in an effort to destroy the fleet. She succeeded in this, but she also ingnited the remaining stars in the cluster. All ten stars went supernova as a result of the explosion, and formed what was later known as the Cron Drift. The explosion also destroyed three of the Auril Systems, and devastated the planet Ossus. (TSW)

Cron Drift
this area of the Auril Sector, in close proximity to Nespis VIII, the Adegan System, and Carida, is the site of the remnants of a multi-star supernova. (Dark Apprentice says that the supernova contains four stars, but The Sith War comics say that the supernova engulfed ten stars.) During the Great Sith War, Aleema tried to use the Dark Side of the Force to rip the core from one of the stars in the Cron Cluster. She had hoped to destroy the Old Republic fleet that was pursuing the Sith followers, but she hadn't prepared for the possibility of the core igniting all the other solar masses in the Cluster. All of the stars ignited, going supernova at the same instant. Aleema was, of course, killed in the blast, and the Cron Drift was born. The current stars in the system made up six of the original nine Auril Systems. The rest were destroyed in the explosion. Following the genesis of the New Order, Ploovo 2-for-1 operated his criminal business from the Cronf Drift. Han Solo and Chewbacca tried to run a clotheslegging operation there, but it failed. After the New Republic defeated Grand Admiral Thrawn, it was discovered that Terpfen had been 'programmed' to meet the Caridan ambassador Furgan within the Drift. (HSE, HSL, DA, DE2, XW, TSW)

Cronal
this Dark Jedi was a scientist as well and an adept with the Force. He attempted to twist the Trailian race into Dark Side monsters via genetic manipulation and Dark Side magic, hoping to bring down the New Republic. His plans were thwarted by a group of New Republic agents, accompanied by Jedi Knights, discovered his castle and defeated him in combat. However, the agents never found his body. (GMS)

Cronau Radiation
this flash of light precedes any starship that exits from hyperspace. The flash is instantaneous, lasting less than a second but making it obvious that a ship had just exitted hyperspace. (TT)

Crondre
a planet in the Ando system, and the sight of one of Thrawn's last attacks prior to his attack on Coruscant. It was attacked by the Star Destroyer Nemesis. (TLC)

Cronese Mandate
this is the first of three sectors which make up the Allied Tion. Made up of 464 habited worlds including the fourteen worlds of the kingdom of Cron, the Cronese Mandate was ruled by the House of Cron. (ML)

Cronus
an Imperial Colonel who survived the death of the Emperor, Cronus was Delvardus' second-in-command. He became the de facto leader of Delvardus' fleet when Daala executed all of the Imperial warlords at Tsoss Beacon. He aligned himself with Daala and Pellaeon after seeing Delvardus' body and a holorecording of the summit. Cronus was a small but well-muscled man, with a full head of black hair. Daala appointed Cronus to be the commanding officer of the 112 Victory-class Star Destroyers she had rounded up following the execution of the warlords. He took the fleet on a galaxy-wide rampage of terror, striking at unprotected worlds and killing countless numbers before splitting up his fleet. He took twenty ships to Yavin 4, to assist Daala in her attack there, while the remainder of his fleet continued its rampage. Cronus was killed at Yavin 4 when a crippled Corellian gunship rammed his Star Destroyer, the 13X, and destroyed it. (DS)

Crooked Tail
a Dulok on Endor, Crooked Tail was a blue-grey colored creature who opposed the rule of king Vulgarr. He had his own ambitions about being king of the Duloks. (AT)

Croptime
this was the Gamorrean name for the fall season on the planet Gamorr, when the wars between clans are brought to a close so that the male boars can return home and begin harvesting their crops. (SWJ14)

Crosear, Gil
this New Republic commando was a native of the planet Dantooine. He successfully led an infiltration of the Imperial base on Sarahwiee. (SWAJ)

Crosh
this creature is valued for its hide in the Kathol Outback. The shimmery hides are used to make coats and jackets which were quite fashionable. (VOF)

Cross
starfighter pilot slang term for a B-Wing. (IJ)

Cross Crosslet
this award was presented by the Alliance to those individuals whose actions while under fire far exceeded the normal standards of bravery and valor. In 45% of all cases, the Cross Crosslet was awarded posthumously. The medal itself was a gold cross embossed on a platinum background. (ROE)

Cross-Galactic Mining
this corporation mines the Grillis Asteroid Belt in the Atrig System. It also controls the exporting of kyrf from the planet Korbin. (PG2)

Crosswind Saloon
this large, two-story building was a bustling restaurant and hotel, located in Storrd Township on the planet Seregar. Even after most of the larger mining operations moved off-planet, the Crosswind Saloon remained a popular place. (ND)

Crow
Kyle Katarn's starship. Dark Forces story writer Justin Chen often referred to this ship as the Mouldy Crow*, which was eventually shortened to just Crow*. (DF)

Crowal
this Imperial Moff controlled the planet Valc VII of the Imperial Remnant, following the peace accord made with the New Republic. One of the few females to attain the position of Moff, she was a member of the old school, and believed that the Republic should be left alone when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (DTR)

Crown of Rulership
this was the name of the large hat worn by Boss Nass, and signified his position within the leadership of Otoh Gunga. (IG1)

Crown Pass Road located on the planet Lucazec, Crown Pass Road connects Big Hill and Jisasu. (BTS)

Croy
this independent spacer, based out of Nar Shaddaa during the height of the New Order, had a cargo scanned by a Hound-W2 SPD-series droid. It found contraband in the holds, and earned Croy some time in the brig. (SWJ14)

Croym
this Dark Jedi Master discovered the location of the Heart of the Universe and hoped to use it to take control of the galaxy. He secreted the gem away in his tower castle, located inside a barren, cold asteroid. The tower was sealed from the vacuum of space, and was surrounded by a maze of physical and mental traps. Anyone trying to gain access would have to fend their way through random blaster bolts, energy fields, Dark Side creatures, and incredible illusions. Croym lured a group of Alliance agents to his asteroid by making information about the Heart available to them, hoping to discover a Force-sensitive being among them he could twist into as assistant and slave. Unfortunately, the agents managed to see through Croyn's illusions and defeat the maze to recover the Heart. (GMS)

Crozo Industrial Products
this corporation designs and manufactures computer access tools for cyborgs. One of their most popular products is the At-Computer Link. (CFG)

Crseih Station
a space station located on the fringes of the galaxy, Crseih is a collection of asteroids connected by tunnels and accessways. It was built by the Empire (under Palpatine's New Order) as a research outpost. It was built near the dying Crseih star system. The goal of the outpost was to discover a method by which the intense forces of the nearby black hole could be harnessed and used as a weapon. The station was placed under the command of Hethrir by Darth Vader, following his appointment to Procurator of Justice. Hethrir added to the station's mission, using it as a prison. Hethrir's cruelty toward his prisoners caused a rift in the Force which, when coupled with the station's proximity to the crystal star, brought the being Waru into the galaxy. When the Empire fell, after the Battle of Endor, it was believed that the station was deserted by the Empire. However, it was only Hethrir who left, biding his time in secrecy until he could build the Empire back up. Waru remained behind, and developed a great following. Hethrir eventually re-surfaced, and used the station as a sales point for his slaves. He later convened the first session of the Empire Reborn there, only to be thwarted by the New Republic. When Waru consumed Hethrir, Waru returned to his own galaxy. The station is a hot, balmy workplace, since the shielding which protects the station from the black hole's intense X-radiation give off tremendous amounts of heat. Since the Imperial influence has left, the remaining residents have developed their own society, much of which is based around the religion of Waru. Following Waru's return to his own galaxy, the station was moved away from the dying Crseih system and now orbits Coruscant. The New Republic arrested all of the Imperial supporters on board. (CS)

Crseih
this double star system once consisted of a blue-white supergiant star and its twin, a small yellow star. When the supergiant exploded, it caused two reactions: first, it collapsed onto itself, generating a large black hole; second, it caused the small yellow star to begin crystallizing. The smaller star, which continued to orbit its double, was now being drawn into the black hole and subjected to the hole's intense X-radiation, further hastening its crystallization. When the Empire built Crseih Station nearby, the crystal star was well on its way to being swallowed by the black hole. The intense energy surrounding the system altered the fabric of the Force so radically, that it allowed the anti-Force being Waru to enter the galaxy. The warped Force also affects those with Force-sensitivity, causing them to become listless and suicidal. Luke Skywalker succombed to the intense energies while on the Crseih station. (CS)

Crumbling Lands
this was a rocky, arid region of the planet Moorja. The sedimentary rock of the region had been hollowed out over time by underwater streams and rivulets, and is very unstable. The substrata has also been tunneled out by the boring bruwoses that live in the area. (SWJ8)

Crunchbug
a small, chirping insect native to Courkrus, and a favored delicacy of Shala the Hutt. (IJ)

Crupa
this nocturnal flying creature is native to the planet Garos IV. (SWJ12)

Crusader
one of the two Victory-class Star Destroyers which was deployed to eradicate the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates. It was commanded by Zlece Oonaar. (SWSB, IJ)

Crutag
this Taloron Hunter was known to boast that he had never failed to capture a target, and hated being compared to Boba Fett. This was because many felt Crutag wasn't as skilled as Fett was. Crutag once pursued a group of Alliance agents from Kwenn Space Station to Trinta, hoping to obtain the huge bounties on their heads. Crutag and his mercenary band traveled in the specialized starship Scent of Fear. Once on Trinta, Crutag was sought out by Halagad Ventor. The former Jedi Knight wanted to draw on the dark energies of Crutag's mind, hoping to increase his own connection to the Dark Side of the Force. However, Crutag and his team were defeated by the Alliance agents and eliminated, cutting off Ventor's new link to the Dark Side. (DOE)

CRX Tug
see Xylines-class Spacetug (PP)

Crying Dawn Singer
this vivid white Shashay was distinguished by his red crest and a splash of red on his chest. He was short for a Shashay, and had a large beak and wide eyes. Unlike most Shashay, Crying Dawn Singer was a free spirit, and didn't fit into their normally-regimented life. He was one of the galaxy's most famous space singers, and traveled through much of Rayter Sector with his entourage performing for Imperial dignitaries. He was one of the few Shashay which were allowed to leave their homeworld by the Nestmothers, since the credits he earned were returned to Crytal Nest to benefit the entire race. During the Galactic Civil War, the Farool brothers kidnapped him on the planet Najarka. They attempted to gain favor in the eyes of the Empire by blaming the kidnapping on the Alliance. Singer was held on the planet Narg, where he was eventually rescued by the Alliance. (TA)

Crynoid
this small arachnid was native to the planet Neftali, and was known to the locals as the snow spider. They were white in color, which helped them blend into the snowy environment, and they had ten segmented legs. These insects were not considered aggressive, but would bite if provoked, injecting a painful poison that short-circuited a victim's neurological systems. (WSV)

Crynyd, Arvel
this Alliance starfighter pilot crashed his A-Wing into the Executor's command bridge during the Battle of Endor. The resulting explosion caused incredible amounts of damage to the Star Destroyer's control systems, and the gravity of the Death Star pulled it to its fiery demise. (EGV)

Crynyd
named for Arvel Crynyd, the Alliance starfighter pilot who caused the destruction of the Executor in the Battle of Endor, this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of the fleet assigned to Han Solo and the Mon Remonda during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. In the attempt to trap Zsinj at Vahaba, the Crynyd and the Skyhook were assigned to protect the Interdictor cruiser Stellar Web. (SOC)

CryoBan
a chemical used in battle, it can be launched in a canister-type projectile. When dispersed, it freezes on contact, incapacitating those affected. (ISB)

Cryocooler nickname for the MerrSonn Gk3 heavy weapon heat dissipation unit. (ISB)

Cryogenic Power Cells
shipboard power sources designed to store the energy created by the starship's reactor core. The energy from the reactor is stored in spherical containers at near-absolute-zero temperatures until needed. (SCRE, SWSB)

CryonCorp
manufacturers of personal scanning devices, such as the EnhanceScan. (CCG9)

Cryovial
this is the name given to small tubes which can be used to transport chemicals or specimens. The cryovials are surrounded by a freezing agent which is activated with a twist or shake. Once activated, the chemicals reduce the temperature of the vial's contents to the freezing point, allowing them to be transported without fear of spoilage. (CCR)

Crypt of the Ancients located in the center of Necropolis' largest cemetary, this huge crypt was supposedly the resting place of the witch Sycorax and her son. The building was heavily carved, with rows of dragon-like faces across the front and a massive iron door at the entrance. (GOF2)

Cryptberry
native to the planet Necropolis, this large red berry is poisonous if consumed by humans and other humanoid species. Evazan used the juice from these berries to poison the subjects he used during Project Starscream. (GOF2)

Crystal Fern
these silicon-based crystalline formations are strange, transparent growths that are found in some asteroid belts. The best crystal fern specimens have been found in the Hoth asteroid belt, where they have been known grow between neighboring asteroids. The average fern is several meters in height. When conditions are right, they can continue to grow outward, forming tangled webs. The ferns' ability to grow like this, spanning asteroids, has led to theories that the fern is an actual lifeform. The crystal ferns are sought by collectors, scientists, and profit-seekers, although they are incredibly hard to harvest without causing major damage to their structure. (ISU)

Crystal Gravfield Trap Receptors (CGT)
these sensory devices use a synthetic crystal grid to detect fluctuations in the gravimetric plane. They are very effective, but can be inconclusive if used near a large spacial body, such as a planet. They can also be rigged to reflect sensor scans, and are operable from thousands of kilometers away. (HTTE, TLC, LCSB)

Crystal Jewel
this casino is located below the surface of Coruscant, just outside Imperial City. It had changed hands at least fifteen times before it was renamed the Crystal Jewel, and it was the site of the sabacc match in which Han Solo won the planet Dathomir from Omogg the Drackmarian. Under the name Crystal Jewel, it was where Jarril agreed to meet Solo to discuss the strange dealings going on in the Smuggler's Run. They felt the repercussions of Dolph's bombing of the Senate Assembly Chamber there. (TNR)

Crystal Moon
a restaurant opened in Mos Eisley by Porcellus and Malakili following their escape from Jabba the Hutt's palace. The restaurant quickly became known as the best place to eat in the Outer Rim. (TJP)

Crystal Oscillator
part of a starship's powertrain, it is a small, thick cylinder which initiates the flow of energy to the ship's power core. (BFE)

Crystal Reef
this floating Mon Calamarian city was the largest of the resorts established on the planet in the wake of the Battle of Endor. It travelled near the planet's polar caps, providing its clientele with spectacular views of the icecaps and calving icebergs while offering the latest in casinos and gambling games. It was from a base on Crystal Reef that Czethros hoped to begin distributing the spice he mined, once he took control of Kessel. However, all of Czethros' plans were thwarted by the young Jedi Knights from Luke Skywalker's praxeum on Yavin 4. They destroyed the initial cache of spice hidden in the arctic polar caps, and then helped remove the Black Sun operatives hidden within the city. (CCR)

Crystal Reef Amusement and Tourism Council this was the controlling body which managed the resort city of Crystal Reef, on the planet Calamari. (CCR)

Crystal Snake
a transparent reptile native to the jungles of Yavin 4, the crystal snake can be detected two ways: by locating its beady, black eyes, or by watching the light as it refracts through the snake's body. The bite of a crytsal snake is mildly poisonous to most humanoid races, inducing sleep almost immediately. The snake's scales seems to be composed of diamond film. (HTF, JUS)

Crystal Spires
beautiful crystal formations found on the planet Cyimarra. (SWAJ)

Crystal Valley
found on the planet Lazerian IV, this naturally-guarded valley is doubly protected by twelve of the King's Own Guard. Located on the King's estate, this winding valley is the only known site on which empeth crystals grow. (TSK)

Crystalboy
one of Boba Fett's former employers, he managed to get Slave I out of a New Republic storage facility during a liquidation auction. (DESB)

Crystallite
this white stone was often used to create wondrous carvings, for the stone seemed to glow from within. Rumors held that crystallite was formed from the ashes of a long-dead Twi'leki hero by the Nercathi clan. The ashes were supposedly compressed under extreme pressure to form the crystals,and the crystals were used in carvings which comemmorated an ancient Twi'leki hero. Each carving, representing the skull of the hero, stood for one of the three Twi'leki clan ceremonies - Jasshi'rr, Waala, and Keysshi. (SWJ12)

Crystallizer
a medical instrument used to stop the flow of blood from a wound. (QE)

Crystalplex
often referred to simply as plex, this is a strong, transparent building material. (COJ)

Crystalweed
this leafy, crystalline plant is raised underground by the Elom race. (GG12)

Crytal Nest
this planet is the homeworld of the Shashay race. It location was kept hidden by the Shashay and the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance maintained a fragilee relationship with the Shashay, who agreed to allow members of their society to act as navigators on Alliance starships in return for anonymity and assistance. Note that this planet is named Crystal Nest in Alien Encounters. (TA, AE)

CRX Tug
this is a nickname for the Cuirilla-Rayl Xylines-class spacetug. (TA)

CR90
A hammerheaded, fast transport ship built by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, often used as blockade runners because of their speed and mobility. They have a modular interior, which can be modified for specific needs. They have a standard crew complement of 46-104, depending on the mission. Some military missions require a crew upwards of 165 men. These ships are 150 meters in length, and can make 60 MGLT at sublight speeds. They are regarded as extremely vulnerable, however, since the primary solar collector and stabilizer fin are located dorsally, and when disabled can cripple the ship's ability to maneuver. (SW, SCRE, SWSB)

The CR90 boasts the following shipboard systems:
- 6 Taim & Bak H9 Dual Turbolasers
- 8 Faberstien-Lago 37s Emergency Escape Pods
- 4 Faberstien Maximum Capacity Life Ships

- 2 Pax Hustana Variable Array Sensor Units
- Mason-Branger 7085 Ionization Reactor and Regulator
- Corellian Engineering Corporation Subspace Hyperdrive
- Corellian Chain Management NavCom Unit (26640 limited non-AI processing)
- Phoah-Kingsmeyer 484-J4e Screen Control and Shield Projector (rated at 100 SBD)
- Ferro-Magnesium Ceramic Hull (rated at 50 RU)

During the Galactic Civil War, many Corellian Corvettes were modified to make up for the original design's weaknesses. The main solar collectors and stabilizer fins were incorporated into the hull, creating a long, pod-like shape instead of the angular shape of the original design. Most other shipboard components remained intact. (TIE)

CS-12 Stun Master
this defensive weapon produced an intense electric shock when it encountered flesh. It was produced by SoroSuub, and resembled a tiny lightsaber. (OE)

Cseria
this Elom term describes the community mayor. All of the cserias meet yearly to discuss the problems being dealt with by Elom society. (GG12)

Csino, Fisk
this man was a Major with the Alliance's Special Forces division, and was the commander of the Nishr Taskforce during the Galactic Civil War. (ROE)

Csolcir
a Corellian mushroom. (IJ)

Csoli-Corli
manufacturers of starshpi sensor systems. (RM)

CSPL-12
BlasTech's personal, disposable projectile launcher. Nicknamed the Caspel weapon, it can fire canisters containing smoke, gas, or chemical agents. It can be modified to launch grenades by adding on the PL/1G adapter. It has a range of up to 250 meters. (ISB, TSK)

CST-Blue
this Alliance shuttle group was assigned to the Organarms facility. It was destroyed when the Empire attacked the facility during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

CST-Red
this Alliance shuttle group was assigned to the Organarms facility. It was destroyed when the Empire attacked the facility during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

CS142995
this was Iella Wessiri's identification number while she was a member of the Corellian Security Force. (XWFT)

CS20 Board Plate
manufactured by VargeCorp, this panel covered the main cockpit controls of a starship to protect against unwanted use. Custom-molded to individual cockpit designs, each CS20 plate slips over the controls and seals off access to them. A starsip owner can later key in their password and remove the plate to uncover the ship's controls. (PSG)

CT-11
Phylon Freight's 5-meter space tug. (XW)

CT3
this concussion helmet was produced for personal security by Core World Arms, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

Cthol
this ancient race was extremely interested in the sciences as well as the Force, and they developed the Codex out of their curiosity with how the Force affects the material world. When they first activated the Codex, it attracted the attention of the Dark Jedi Halbret, who travelled to the Cthol homeworld to seek out the source of the strange energy he flelt. When he discovered the Codex, Hakbret uttery destroyed the Cthol race and stole the Codex for his own uses. (GMH)

Cu-pa
this brightly-colored beast was a distant cousin of the tauntaun, but had evolved as a warm-weather creature. There were found on the planet Nam Chorios, where they were used with limited success as mounts by the Therans and Oldtimers. Their mental capacity was vastly inferior to that of a tauntaun, which is not very bright to begin with. The coloration of the cu-pa ranges from pink and pale blue to tan and golden, and many have combinations of these colors. (POT)

Cucul
a predatory creature found on the planet Ossel II, the cucul are hard-skinned amphibians resemble floating logs. They lie in wait for an Ossan to stumble near them, then strike out and capture the unsuspecting beings. (GG4)

Cueva Desert
located on the planet Sriluur, this great expanse of sand consumes most of the planet's northen hemisphere. It is continually blsted by relentless sandstorms, and has earned the nickname of the Cueva Badlands. (GG12)

Cuf, Pedric
this man claimed to be a simple intermediary, helping to negotiate an alliance between the Yuuzhan Vong and the Hutts. In reality, Pedric Cuf was the Yuuzhan Vong executor Nom Anor, who was working with Malik Carr to cement the alliance with the Hutts. Later, Nom Anor used the Pedric Cuf alias to continue discussions with the renegade Senator, Viqi Shesh. (JE)

Cuirilla
a little-known planet. (CRO)

Cuirilla-Raye
this small corporation produced the Xylines-class space tug. (TA, PP)

Culroon
a human inhabitant of the planet Culroon III. (SWSB)

Culroon III
a planet known during the Old Republic, but for the most part ignored. The people of the planet were continually at war, and never got a chance to develop any advanced technology. When Emperor Palpatine wanted to subjugate the planet, he sent a garrison there. However, the Culroon people were able to obtain energy weapons from spacefaring, and they united under a man named Kloff to oppose the Imperial yoke. (SWSB)

Culroon Minstrel
a luxury cruise liner catering to 50-60-year-old Core World residents who want to see the Mid Rim Territories. Zardra almost caught Dharus aboard this Jensoni-class starliner. (GG9)

Culsion Gas
a gas used in many manufacturing processes. (SWAJ)

Cult of M'dweshuu
this ancient Nikto brotherhood was formed shortly after the Nikto race discovered the existence of the M'dweshuu Nova, well before the formation of the Old Republic. Many Nikto believed that the powerful ability of the Nova to affect life on Kintan was worthy of admiration, and developed a cult formed on the basis that they were as powerful as the Nova. The Cult rose quickly to power, and controlled much of the planet in the years leading up to the arrival of the Hutts in the Si'Klaata Cluster. With the arrival of the Hutts, the Cult lost much of its control, and was thought to have been disbanded. However, some 21,000 years later, the Cult re-emerged, and once again gained the support of the Nikto people. The Cult rose quickly, and Churabba the Hutt was forced to take military actions against the Cult to ensure her control. She bombed the Cult's headquarters, killing many of its leaders and leaving it to die. Much of this battle went unnoticed by the Old Republic, which was deep in the throes of the Sith War. It is believed that remnants of the Cult survive even today, hoping once again to rally the Nikto against their Hutt masters. (GG12)

Cult of Those Who Redeem
this brotherhood was formed on the planet Merisee, in the wake of the Jedi victory over the Loag during the Old Republic. The Cult was a secretive organization which vowed to help others and remove evil from the planet. They also protected Merisee against the possible re-appearance of the Loag, and worked hard to ferret out an Loag survivors and eliminate them. (OE)

Cunbus Locb
tihs disreputable Sullustan was known as a gambler with a penchant for fine art. His personal ship, the Distant Wind, was decorated with the finest sculptures and holopainting. When he discovered that Imperial Moff Ammar possessed the Stars and Moons flatsculpt, Locb arranged to cheat Ammar out of the artwork in a round of sabacc. When Ammar learned that he had been swindled, he initiated an all-out search for Locb. In the end, Locb was cornered and then killed in a firefight. No sign of the Stars and Moons was ever found, on Locb himself or inside the Distant Wind. This was because Locb had stashed the artwork in a secret compartment, and Ammar's forces failed to discover it. In a strange twist of fate, Ammar put the Distant Wind up for auction, with the Stars and Moons still hidden inside. (SS)

Cundertol
this Bakuran Senator served on the New Republic's Defense Council during the Yevethan Purge. He was strongly xenophobic, but hid it well during Senate and Council sessions. However, Cundertol was also prone to drunken stupors, consuming great quantities of Doan wine when he couldn't handle Senatorial pressures. He detested Etahn A'baht, and once referred to the commander of the Fifth Battle Group as General "Eating-A-Boat." Note that this jibe only works if one of the following is true: the Basic language is very close to the English language, or "eating a boat" is an English translation of a Basic joke. (SOL)

Cuor
this Brosin word described the single braid of shoulder-lengthhair worn by most Brosin females. (AIR)

Cuplatt, Felben
this employee of Cosmohaul Shipping was a staff aide to Vice President Crizby Rumbo. It was Cuplatt who monitored the loss of cargoes to pirates. Cosmohaul had been receiving escorts from the New Republic, since many of the attacks on Cosmohaul ships were waylayed by supposed Imperial agents. The New Republic was forced to withdraw its escorts to shore up defenses on military fronts, and Cuplatt was left with the task of finding mercenaries to escort the cargo ships and ambush the pirates. (SWJ9)

Cupric Islands
this chain of islands, located on the planet Sriluur, is a major agricultural center of the Weequay race. (GG12)

Curamalle
this capital city of the planet Corulag is the site of an Academy satellite school. (SWAJ)

Curdik
this Whiphid swordsbeing was born mute, on the planet Toola, and learned to communicate via a datapad and his weapons. During the early years of the New Order, he took a job working as a scout for off-world hunters, and eventually left Toola to see the galaxy. He eventually landed on the planet Zuliria, and was hired by the Arcona Ther-das to join the Zulirian Swordmasters. (AIR)

Curich Engineering
this small starship component manufacturer built starfighter modification packages, such as the maneuvering fin that was often added to the Kuat Systems Engineering CloakShape fighter. It is one of the subsidiaries of Santhe/Sienar Technologies. (DESB, ML)

Curiosity
this ship was known to be owned by a criminal, although authorities could never identify the owner or capture the ship. (GG2)

Curlin
this independent scout and tracker made no bones about the fact that he enjoyed discovering new worlds in order to make money. (GG8)

Current Terms and Conditions this pamphlet is continually updated by the information libraries on Obroa-skai. It details the rules and regulations that deal with obtaining information from the libraries. (SOL)

Curse of Sycorax
this ancient curse could be revisited upon the modern natives of the planet Necropolis if certain traditions were not adhered to by them. The Master of Cerements was reponsible for ensuring the curse was never invoked. The curse stems from the ancient witch, Sycorax, who claimed she could bring the dead back to life. When the ancient natives of Necropolis believed she was a fake, they killed her own son and demanded that she bring him back to life as proof. Sycorax died of a broken heart, but not before she leveled the curse on the planet's inhabitants. The Curse of Sycorax states that, should the natives of Necropolis ever ignore their dead, the dead would rise up and take control of the planet. The curse suposedly knows no boundaries, and could engulf the entire planet. Doctor Evazan used the legendary curse to hide his experiments in reanimating the dead. The bodies he successfully reanimated added to Pylum's fear that the curse was being breached. (GOF2)

Custom Cargo Hauler
a 79.3-meter-long transport ship designed for a crew of 2 pilots and 2 gunners, the Custom was produced by TaggeoCo's Mobquet division as a way to get into the starship production business. This ship could carry up to 700 metric tons of cargo and up to eight passengers, and was easily customized to various cargo configurations. Early models were armed with a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons, while later versions were armed with two medium turbolasers. (DESB, PP)

Custom Model-Q Foley
a model of racing cloud cars, Han Solo owned one when he was living in his repulsorlift house on Bespin. (ZHR)

Custom Stop, The
located in the city of Vakeyya on Socorro, this establishment was one of the most popular restaurants and casinos on the planet. The facade of the building and the front offices were maintained to give the casual observer the impression of a real customs office, but regular and invited guests knew that the real entrance was "just down the hall." It was owned and operated by Hhalyia Ahsane during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (BSS)

Customs Red Alert
this was the New Republic's term for an incoming shipment of illegal and dangerous cargo. (SOP)

Cuthas, Naroon
this dark-skinned human, noticeable by his long hair and moustaches, was Jabba the Hutt's majordomo before Bib Fortuna acquired the position. The Essential Guide to Characters says that Jabba killed Cuthas when his usefulness wore out. However, Tales from Jabba's Palace indicates that the aging Cuthas was demoted, and became Jabba's personal talent scout. He discovered the Max Rebo Band one night in Mos Eisley. (TJP, EGC)

Cuticulin
this was the organic material which formed the exoskeleton of the Kamarian race. It was strong enough to act as body armor, and also served to hold water in during extended periods in the desert. (AE)

Cutlass
this Imperial Patrol Craft survived the fall of Emperor Palpatine and remained near the planet Sev Tok. It intercepted the Argent Lady after Xalto Sneerzick's emancipation virus went amok among some R5 droids. The captain of the Cutlass figured it was an unarmed cargo vessel, despite the fact that the crew was seven people short due to a logistical problem. The Cutlass's crew boarded the Argent Lady, but the freelance mercenaries hired by Felben Cuplatt managed to overtake them and escape with the Argent Lady intact. (SWJ9)

Cutter, Hugo
a member of the Red Moons mercenary unit, Cutter was a former student at the prestigious Imperial Engineering Academy. Recognizable by his thin build and unruly red hair, Hugo was expelled from the school because of his fascination with blowing things up, rather than creating them. His parents were part of the Imperial nobility, and they tried to reduce the embarrassment of having their son expelled by locking him up in an attic. Cutter eventually escaped, and joined the Alliance. He used his demolitions skills - which were ad-hoc and spur-of-the-moment at best - for the Alliance, and met Andrephan Stormcaller. Stormcaller recognized the unique potential of Cutter, and recruited him to join the Red Moons. He was part of the team sent to Gabredor III to rescue the children of the Cantras Gola ambassador from the Karazak Slavers Guild. A high-ranking New Republic general once said that "Hugo Cutter is best described as a high-yield bomb looking for a target without a guidance system." (SWJ8, TFE)

Cutter, Mendel
this man was a member of the Phosphura Belt Pirates during the Galactic Civil War. A former employee of Industrial Automaton, he was highly skilled in the construction and programming of droids. (LAA)

Cutter's Way
this Lantillian short hauler was modified by its original owner, from a pleasure ship to a freighter. One of the modifications was the addition of a power flux surger hard-wired into the system, which can provide on-demand power for shields and weapons. This additional power pushes these systems well beyond their normal rating without much overall degradation. (SWJ9)

Cutting Blaster
this laser device is used to cut through materials during excavation or construction. Despite its name, it is not designed as a weapon. (SOL)

Cutting Edge, The
Doctor Evazan's business operation located in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. He called it a "creative surgery" shop. (MTS)

Cutting Lens*-class Reconnaissance Craft
this was an Adumari reconnaissance and intelligence ship. (SOA)

Cuvir
an Imperial Lord placed in control of the planet Firro during the Galactic Civil War. He was killed on Wor Tandell when he caught Tiree reporting Imperial fleet movements to the Alliance. Tiree was forced to eliminate Cuvir. (SWSB, MTS)

CUV 18fl
an Imperial transport ship supporting the Harpax when it was searching for the Protector and Admiral Harkov. (TIE)

CV-481
this was the callsign of one of the stormtroopers assigned to Captain Sodarra's team, during their atyempt to recover Darth Vader's body from Ord Mantell. CV-481 was helpful during the repair of the Millennium Falcon on Mon Torri. (SL)

CVI
this was a model of small repeatong blaster produced by BlasTech for mounting on small vehicles, like speeders. (HAS)

CV14-B
this concussion vest was produced for personal security by Core World Arms, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

CX-5011 PeopleMover
this Incom Industries personnel transport ship measured 42 meters in length, and could move twenty passengers and 75 metric tons of cargo. A single pilot controlled the ship, which was armed with a single laser cannon. (POM)

CXC-5
a 70-meter storage shell built by Extent Systems. It is a long, trapezoidal cargo container. (XW)

Cy'een
a deep-sea creature native to Chad III, these huge, long-necked fish-lizards vocalize a mournful song. Many people on the planet made their living moving with the herds of cy'een, harvesting the plants and smaller fish for food. Unlike most other species of the planet, the cy'een are infinitely wild and untamable. The phrase "riding the cy'een" became a local expression for any challenging or dangerous task. (COJ, SWJ10)

Cyanogen
this dense, yellowish gas is deadly to most any species which survives in oxygen atmospheres. Certain creatures do live in cyanogen-based atmospheres, but are unable to survive in oxygen. (FOSE)

Cyax
this star was located in an uncharted area of the galaxy held sacred by the Hutts, containing Da Soocha. The star Cyax was the brightest nighttime star in the skies over Varl, and the Hutts believed that the star's system held an ocean planet that teamed with godlike intelligence. (DE1, DESB)

Cyberfuse
a small device which prevents starship components from being damaged by surges from the power core. (DA)

Cyberlock
a robotic lock often used on detention cells. (JS)

Cybernetic Love Affair
a song written and played by Annadale Fayde. It was first released as part of the compilation Emotional Hostages. (GG9)

Cyberostatis
a condition in which a droid is shut down due some trauma it experienced. (HSE)

Cyberpilot
any automaton programmed to control a starship. (HSL)

Cybloc
this huge gas giant had several moons, many of which were habitable. It orbits the star Erg Es 992. (POT)

Cybloc XII
this twelfth moon of the planet Cybloc was the site of a New Republic Navy fleet base. Much of the personnel and native life was killed there when Dzym and Seti Ashgad released the Death Seed plague on the Meridian Sector. The moon’s rotational period very nearly matched that of Cybloc itself, resulting in a day-night cycle which was extremely long. (POT)

Cyborg Operations
a division of Jabba the Hutt's crime organization on Tatooine, it was run by Eve-Ninedenine (EV-9D9). Its mission was to program the various droids working for Jabba by any means possible. (ROTJ)

Cyborrea
this planet is the homeworld of the Cyborrean race, and is known for its Nek Battle Dogs. (DE1, DESB, MBC)

Cyborrean
this bellicose species was native to the planet Cyborrea. They were a bellicose people, and were almost always at war with each other. When not engaged in battle, they hunted the vicious creatures of their planet to keep their skills sharp. (MBC)

Cybot Galactica
manufacturers of the popular 3PO series of protocol droids, Cybot Galactica was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (SWSB, CSA)

Cycer, Del
an unusually tall human, Del Cycer is also very thin. Standing better than two meters tall, he is also noticed by the abundance of rings he wears on his fingers. Del plays sabacc with Lob Doluff and Lando Calrissian in the Oseon System. (LCF)

Cyclea Station
this outpost, located on the planet Somavva, was a haven for free-traders and independent shippers. (SWJ13)

Cycy Loctob
an alien on Nar Shaddaa (DE1)

Cydorrian Driller
a species of tree which has leathery bark, wide leaves, and a root system that grows extremely deep and far-reaching. (TME)

Cyduct E-23 Booster developed by Seselin Medicinal Electronics, this device helps augment a being's ability to ingest fluids. (FOP)

Cygnante
this Sienar Ships Mark I transport was owned and operated by The Shield. The craft had been equipped with a pair of double lasers and a turret-mounted laser cannon. It was heavily upgraded to withstand battle, and was given at least five false transponder codes in case The Shield was intercepted by Imperial forces. (CRO)

Cygnus Spaceworks
manufacturers of Lambda-class shuttles and starship components, Cygnus has strong ties to Sienar Fleet Systems and the Imperial Navy. They filled the gap in starship requirements for mobile transports and shuttles, since SFS concentrated on small starfighters and Kuat Drive Yards concentrated on capital ships. They took the original SFS Lambda-class shuttle design and created a number of variants, such as the Xg-1 StarWing gunboat and the Delta-class shuttle. (XW, EGV)

Cyimarra
this planet is home to a wonderful natural formation known as the Crystal Spires. The planets Corellia and Corulag both sent delegates to Cyimarra to gather data on the spires. They hoped to recreate them on Coruscant. (SWAJ)

Cynabar
this was an alias used by Platt Okeefe to prowl the newsnets during the Galactic Civil War. Her secret was discovered by Andor Javin and his V1-CH droid, after searching through hundreds of thousands of combinations of syntax, language, and grammar. The droid discovered that the word “Cynabar,” when translated into Ithorian and then displayed using Huttese character system, reveals something that looks like “Plttke.” Javin then put the pieces of puzzle together, noting that Cynabar and Okeefe both disappeared from Nar Shaddaa when the Empire nearly caught Cynabar on the vertical world. (SWJ8)

Cynabar's Droid Datalog
this newsnet forum was produced by the smuggler Platt Okeefe, under the pseudonym of Cynabar, to provide her fellow smugglers with information and opinion on the various automata found in the galaxy. (SWJ13)

Cynabar's Infonet
this underground newsfeed was created by Platt Okeefe, in an effort to keep free traders and smugglers aware of the actions of the Empire and the true state of the galaxy during the height of the New Order. (SWJ13)

Cyperill
a type of tree that grows on Chad, the leaves of the cyperill appear almost like hair. (QE, GG4)

Cypher Bos
this Nalrithian bounty hunter almost captured Han Solo on Ord Mantell, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Cypher Bos wore a set of highly-polished plate armor, which helped hide his appearance. He also had a series of cybernetic pain inhibitors implanted along his spine, in order to allow him to absorb more punishment. During his hunt for Solo, he killed his own eggmate brother, Phoedris Bos, who was known to be sympathetic to the Alliance. Cypher Bos then posed as Phoedris and nearly captured Han – along with Leia Organa and Luke Skywalker – but they managed escape. Their escape led them into the sights of the bounty hunter Skorr. (ROM, SWG)

Cyrillia
this planet was known for its production of pit droids during the decades prior to the Battle of Yavin. The natives of the planet had virtually cornered the market for pit droids, producing incredibly resilient models at a cheap price. (OWS)

Cyrlus
an Alliance platform supply station destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Cyrospac-77
this was a model of waveskimmer produced for civilian and small military usage. This 7-meter-long craft required a pilot and gunner to operate, and was armed with a turret-mounted twin laser cannon. (HAS)

Cyrs, Jobany
this descendant of Kirr Cyrs was a native of Socorro, and was hired by the Alliance to scout the planet's suitability as a base of operations. A freelance scout by trade, Jobany was sympathetic to the Alliance's cause during the Galactic Civil War, and helped them scout many bases. However, his ancestry gave him a deep sense of nostalgia, and his scouting reports often read like travelogues. He traveled the galaxy in the modified Vangaard Pathfinder Outward Bound. (BSS)

Cyrs, Kirr
this man was one of the first beings to scout the planet Socorro. He was also the historian of the first colony established on the planet. Kirr Cyrs was generally credited with saying that all life born on Socorro eventually dies on Socorro. (BSS)

Cyru
security guard at the LoBue casino (HTTE)

Cyslo
this New Republic Lieutenant and helmsman served under Admiral Areta Bell aboard the Swift Liberty, during the assault of Liinade III. (IR)

CZ
a series of droids manufactured by Serv-O-Droid for communications and translation. These humanoid automatons have large eye-like pods on their heads and boxy features. They are somewhat outdated, but were proficient in scrambling and encrypting transmissions. Some were programmed as security or defense drones that warned their masters of imminent attacks. (CCG, CCG7)

Czic
this Drach'nam was one of two guards amployed by Chay Praysh that were burned by Mara Jade during her first attempte to escape from Praysh's palace on Torpris. (TFNR)

CZ-3
this Serv-O-Droid communications droid was present in Mos Eisley when Luke Skywalker sold his landspeeder to pay Han Solo. CZ-3 was a white, humanoid droid. (CCG)

CZ-4
this CZ-series droid was part of Jabba the Hutt's droid pool. (CCG7)

Czerka Arms
manufacturers of hold-out blasters, flame weapons, and handheld projectile weapons. (RASB, ROE)

Czethros
this tall, broad-shouldered man had close-cropped, moss-green hair. A silver cyborg implant wrapped completely around his head, and had several access ports jacked directly into his skull. The implant covered his eyes, and a single red optical laser allowed him to see. One of the more powerful lieutenants in the Black Sun organization, Czethros was imprisoned in the Kessel spice mines after being arrested by Imperial officers on Ord Mantell, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Czethros and his companion, Briff, had been trying to capture Han Solo by threatening to kill Chewbacca. Solo countered by stealing Czethros' starship and flying into several Imperial no-fly zones and committing other infractions. Han returned to Ord Mantell and rescued Chewbacca just before a squadron of stormtroopers arrested Czethros and Briff. Czethros found employment on Kessel as an assistant to Moruth Doole, and later returned to Ord Mantell upon his release. Czethros never forgot his Black Sun connections, and soon found employment with Durga the Hutt. After Durga's demise, he decided to lay low and became a respectable businessman, and was influential in the yearly planning of the Blockade Runners Derby. This served as the perfect front from which to rebuild Black Sun in his own image. It was Czethros who then arranged for Solo to act as Grand Marshall of the 93rd Derby, all the while plotting his revenge against Han. His initial plans failed, but Czethros was undaunted. He knew that he was rebuilding a criminal empire through the remnants of Black Sun, and would soon have enough resources to eliminate Solo once and for all. Czethros continued to expand his organization, learning from all of Black Sun's previous mistakes. He tried to take control of much of Cloud City's revenues, including SkyCenter Galleria, but was again foiled in his plans by Lando Calrissian and the Solo children. Sometime later, Czethros placed key Black Sun agents in high positions around the galaxy, and developed a plan which used precision communications to simultaneously activate them. On cue, they would disrupt New Republic governments and provide enough distraction for Czethros to move in and take control. First, however, Czethros tried to take over the spice mines of Kessel. His plan nearly succeeded, but the Jedi Knights Jaina Solo, Zekk, and Lowbacca managed to foil his communications plan and eliminate the threat. New Republic forces were quickly dispatched to Kessel, and Czethros was forced to flee. He was unable to get away cleanly, however, and fell into a vat of molten carbonite after tripping over a dead mine worker. His frozen form was recovered by the New Republic and taken into custody. (ROM, TCC, CCR)

C2-R4
1) a droid who approached Wuher in the alleyways of Mos Eisley, seeking asylum from the Jawas just before Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker booked passage aboard the Millennium Falcon. C2-R4 resembles an R2 unit in its basic shape, but it is covered with various bulbs and box-shaped appendages. Two whip-like extensors and two armatures sprout from the droid's central section, and much of its dome has been replaced with a toothy grill. He was modified over the years to perform a number of household and kitchen tasks, but was abandoned on Tatooine. The Jawas wanted to take him apart for scrap, but Wuher rescued him after seeing Greedo killed in the Mos Eisley cantina. Wuher had just gotten the idea to use Rodian pheromones in the liqueur he was brewing Jabba the Hutt, and he asked C2-R4 to help him brew it. (TME)
2) this was a series of barrel-shaped automatons. (JE)

C223
a group of Alliance containers used to supply Admiral Harkov and the defecting Protector fleet in the Ottega System. (TIE)

C285
this is the model number of Aratech's "Power-Spread" power dispersion unit, used on Imperial Sky Swoopers. (CFG)

C3 Computer
built by Comar for use in the Tri-Tracker, the Countermeasures Compensation Computer attempts to account for the jamming and evasion devices used by its targets. The C3 extrapolates the target's continued trajectory and feeds that into the targetting device. (ISB)

C3-L1
Busurra's protocol droid. (RASB)

C4-CZN
a mobile ion field gun. (TME)

C4LR
this series of litigation droids was designed and manufactured by Caldrahlsen Mechanicals during the New Order. (FOP)

C442
a group of Imperial container ships captured by the Alliance. (XW)

C5
a series of droids built with five arms, a single optic scanner on a stalk, and a single wheel for locomotion. (TJP)

C558
a group of Imperial container ships captured by the Alliance. (XW)

* D *

D & S Supercircuit
this was a model of extremely fast, high-speed starship navigational computer, available during the height of the New Order. (SL)

D-Mot
this was the name of Raquid Krev's security droid. Krev used the droid to guard his ship, the Lexus Primal. A group of spice-jackers once fooled the droid into letting them onto Krev's ship by disguising one of their members as Krev himself. D-Mot allowed the false Krev to deactivate itself, thereby allowing the spice-jackers to steal the cargo. (GG11)

D-Prog
a shortened name for the Corporate Sector System Development Programs, which provided aid to frontier worlds forgotten by the Old Republic. D-Progs were a product of COMPNOR, and were one of many examples of COMPNOR's ability to exploit the Old Republic's weaknesses. (ISB)

D-tape
see Detonite Tape. (ROE)

D-type Fighter
this is the basic Yevethan starfighter design. The D-type was named for its delta-wing formation. They were 12 meters in length, and were flown by a single pilot. Each was armed with three laser cannons, mounted on each wing and the tail. Like TIE Fighters, these ships were not hyperspace-capable, but they did have shields. (SOL, CTD)

D-V9
this silver-plated humanoid droid was Hoole's research assistant. Equipped with an OmniTask brain, Deevee faithfully tagged along when Hoole and the Arranda children got into trouble with the Empire. He successfully negotiated with Meego for the purchase of the Shroud, then used the data in the ship's computer memory to create an anti-serum which negated the effects of Doctor Evazan's reanimation serum. This saved the planet of Necropolis from the assault of Evazan's zombie army, and freed his human friends from Evazan's schemes. After encountering the Nightmare Machine on Nespis 8, D-V9 took a blaster bolt meant for Tash. After several more misadventures, Deevee decided that he had had enough. After some grueling repairs, Deevee retired to work at a Galactic Research Facility on Koaan. Hoole manumitted D-V9, allowing him free access to the facility. (GOF1, GOF2, GOF6, GOF7)

D-127X
an Alliance probe droid, operating as a sentry in the Atrivis Sector. It alerted the inhabitants of the planet Mantooine of an impending Imperial invasion. The droid was destroyed, but not before it relayed information on the Imperials to Mantooine. (RASB, XW)

D-3P-O2
this specially-programmed protocol droid served Vost Tyne as a secretary at the hyperbaride plant on Marca. It was completely loyal to Tyne, and was programmed with a Core-accented voice. (POM)

D-34
an Imperial outpost in the Javin Sector, it was used heavily just after the Battle of Hoth as an intercept point. The Imperials attempted to drive the fleeing Alliance ships into the Javin Sector and past D-34. The station was eventually captured by the Alliance, with the help of the Mugaari pirates. The Empire later recovered it. (TIE)

D-4
this was the designation of the New Republic Navy’s antiradiation mitigation procedure, used when a starship’s main reactor is damaged. (POT)

D-4R5
a humanoid droid which was assigned to Governor Grigor on M'haeli, D-4R5 was shot, and his memory wiped, as a device for Ranulf Trommer to use to infiltrate Mora's confidence. She was able to completely repair the droid, and it was put to use by the Alliance supporters on the planet. (ROC)

D-4R6
this protocol droid was owned by Merrik, on M’haeli. (ROC)

D-89
this New Republic Intelligence ferret ship was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group as a trailer for the Teljkon vagabond. It was used by Pakkpekatt to violate the twelve-kilometer zone around the vagabond, after the fleet's interdiction picket was set up. Later, when the Lady Luck gained entrance to the zecured zone, D-89 was sent in to try and intercept the pleasure yacht using the same code. Unfortunately, the code had changed, and D-89 was destroyed by the vagabond before it finally managed to jump to hyperspace. (BTS)

D/Crypt Information Services
this semi-legitimate business operated from a base in Mos Eisley, on the planet Tatooine, during the height of the New Order. It provided slicing and other data-retrieval services for any being with enough credits to afford them. Bossk used them to help break into

Slave I's computer banks, when the Trandoshan found the ship in orbit shortly before the Battle of Endor. (MA)

D/Square Decoder
this decryption and deciphering system was used in military and police databanks, as well as Imperial Ubiqtorate bases, and was quite powerful. It was designed and manufactured by Fedukowski. (VOF)

D'aelgoth Sector
Han Solo and Xaverri once conned the Assistant Secretary to the Imperial Moff of this sector out of all his money while implicating him in a treasonous crime. (THG)

d'Ahndole, Parsol
this man was an adventurer and hero of the early days of the Old Republic. His exploits were later the fodder for several holofeatures. (CRO)

D'asima, Paloma
this old woman was one of the Eleven Elders of the People of Emberlene, in the years following the Battle of Endor. On the recommendation of Karoly D'ulin, Paloma travelled to Yaga Minor to meet with Moff Disra and Grodin Tierce to discuss an alliance between the Mistryl and the new Empire. Flim, disguised as Grand Admiral Thrawn, was also present, throwing Paloma off her guard. Both Disra and Tierce were aware that Garm Bel Iblis had planned to raid Yaga Minor for a copy of the Caamas Document, and had arranged for the meeting to take place during the assault. They hoped it would prove to Paloma that the Empire was serious about taking control of the galaxy. (VOF)

D'Asta, Baron
this man served as one of the most powerful and wealthy members of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. During the reign of Emperor Palpatine, D'Asta had done business with Jahren Sinn on Nez Peron. His place on the Council was filled by his daughter, Feena, when he became ill at an advanced age. However, he still held a position of power among the Imperials, controlling the area of space known as the D'Astam Sector. Some five years later, he was enraged to learn that Xandel Carivus had Feena imprisoned on nebulous charges of treason, and sent his fleet of warships against those controlled by Carivus. D'Asta's fleet was too powerful, and reduced Carivus' forces quickly. When Carivus released Feena, the Baron was loath to give up the battle, but did so to recover his daughter. (CE2)

D'Asta, Feena
this silver-haired woman rose to power as a member of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council, taking her father's place when he became ill. She had a plan to make peace with the New Republic, in order to help the Council gain some legitimacy, but met with stern opposition from Nolyds. When Nolyds was assassinated by a bomb hidden in a message disk, the other Council members decided that it must have been an inside job. They placed D'Asta on their list of suspects, but had no direct proof of her involvement. She later asked for a vote of no-confidence in Xandel Carivus' ability to lead the Council, but was only supported by Lord Manos. It was later revealed that the real Feena D'Asta had been kidnapped by Grappa the Hutt and cloned by Macus Kayniph.The clone was then inserted into the Council, in an effort to further the interests of Grappa and Black Sun. Kayniph sold her to Grappa the Hutt. Meanwhile, the clone was accused of treason against the Empire by Xandel Carivus and arrested. Back at Grappa's lair on Genon, Mirith Sinn tried to rescue the real Feena, whose father had been in business deals with Sinn's fiance. Sinn was caught, and Grappa gave her to the Zanzibar. Meanwhile, the arrest of D'Asta's clone forced her father to strike out against Xandel Carivus. He mustered the might of his own Imperial fleet and decimated Carivus' forces in a short battle. On Xo, Kir Kanos rescued Mirith Sinn, and she returned to Grappa to take custody of the real Feena D'Asta. Mirith brought Kir Kanos and the real Feena back to Ord Cantrell, where she presented her to Baron D'Asta. He was unsure of who to believe until Kanos and Sinn explained the plan, beginning with Carnor Jax's initial schemes. (CE2)

D'Astan Sector
this was the area of the galaxy controlled by Baron D'Asta and his fleet. (CE2)

D'farian
this alien race, a member of the New Republic, sided with the Diamalans in the Caamas Incident. (VOF)

D'gant
this man was an executive of a Vendusii Crystal mine during the Galactic Civil War. (HR)

D'harhan
this being was a member of a near-human species which implanted various mechanical systems into their bodies, often replacing major limbs and organs with cybernetic weapons. They coordinated their actions via an internal communications package. D'harhan was also a bounty hunter, and was well-suited to the task. His body was covered by heavy, black armor which protected the power and support systems for the huge laser cannon which served as its head. The weapon had an enormous bore, and was studded with sophisticated optical systems that allowed D'harhan to “see” its surroundings as well as target its prey. The subsystems of the laser were draped down his back, along his spine. The immense weight of all these systems would have overbalanced a normal creature, but D'harhan also had a segmented, armored “tail” which extended from his lower back and hips. Heavy, black gloves protected D'harhan’s hands, and thick-soled booted supported his feet. In order to communicate, D'harhan used an archaic keyboard attached to its central processors, and typed out its words. The words were interpreted and “spoken” by a vocabulator module. Boba Fett, the closest thing D'harhan had to a friend, had been present as his creation, and partnered with the near-human on a couple of occasions. D'harhan was known to shoot first and not bother to ask questions later. The last occasion was the hunt for Oph Nar Dinnid, in which D'harhan was forced to give up his weapons systems in order to land on the planet Circumtore. This nearly killed D'harhan, for his weapons systems were his primary essence. Fett maintained his life support with minimal power until his skills were needed. Then, a hidden weapons cache unloaded from within the Shell Hutt fortress, and D'harhan’s main laser cannon was reactivated. D'harhan managed to eliminate a huge number of the mercenaries hired by Gheeta to protect the Shell Hutts, but their combined firepower eventually felled D'harhan. Boba Fett then used the near-human's laser cannon – which was still operational – to destroy Gheeta. It was believed that D'harhan was the last of his kind. (MA)

D'ian Orchid
a lush, tropical vine which produces beautiful flowers. (HSR)

D'Ink, Dineas
this man was just 10 years old when the Sixty Hour War wiped out the city of Paran. His parents were killed in the assault, and he was taken in by the Empire. Imperial forces brainwashed him with propaganda, and D'Ink grew up believing in the righteousness of the New Order. At the age of sixteen, he was recruited by Tolamyn Cayble and joined the Imperial Security Bureau. A smug and self-centered man, D'Ink volunteered to go undercover and infiltrate the Friends of Paran. He gained the confidence of its members very quickly, saving their lives several times in brief struggles with Imperial forces. However, he later led Imperial forces directly to the Friends of Paran base in Knellis. He was cornered by the Alliance team supporting the Friends, and died in a brief but intense firefight. When he didn't report back to Cayble, Cayble believed that D'Ink was still trying to capture the rebels. This allowed the Friends of Paran and the Alliance team to escape Derilyn and destroy the Star Destroyer Brazen. (OE)

D'kar
this Alliance agent one worked with Airen Cracken. In order to escape a group of lizard-men who had captured them, the group drew straws to see who would plant a bomb to distract the creatures. D'kar drew the short straw, and set out to explode the bomb. The only available "bomb" was created by plugging a positive flow detonator to a negative flow coupler. The "bomb" exploded the instant D'kar connected the two pieces, and was killed immediately. The rest of the group escaped. (CFG)

D'kee*-class Landing Ship
this Ssi-ruuvi starship was carried into battle by the Sh'ner-class planetary assault cruiser. Twelve D'kee-class ships could be carried in each Sh'ner-class ship deployed. The D'kee-class ships were piloted by four P'w'eck servants and eight P'w'eck gunners who are remotely controlled by a Ssi-ruuk aboard the Sh'ner-class ship. In addition to this crew complement, 100 collectors traveled on the ship to round up potential entechment subjects. The D'kee ship was armed with 100 paralysis cannisters, which it dropped over population centers as it plummetted through the atmosphere. The cannisters explode some 3,000 meters in the air, releasing large amounts of a Ssi-ruuvi paralysis toxin. The toxin was effective in two ways: skin contact and inhalation. The paralyzing effect lastsedabout eight hours, during which time the victims were alert but unable to move. Once the toxins had been released, the D'kee-class ships then descended to collect up to 10,000 entechment subjects each. (EGV, TBSB)

D'lak
this Twi'leki spice merchant was a minor dealing in the Outer Rim, buying and selling spice along the Corellian Trade Spine. He was known to be a fair-weather friend to independent spacers, willing to employ them but unwilling to help them if they got into a jam. (PSG)

D'larah
one of the most affluent cities on the planet Demophon, it was not as restricted as other cities during the New Order because the city's governor was related to an Imperial official. The city of D'larah was designed with pleasure in mind, and is visualy appealing. (SN)

D'larah Palm
a tree which has been genetically altered to grow in the domed city of D'larah, this palm has bright crimson leaves and produces a deep red fruit which has a sweet milk. (SN)

D'oemir Bear
this huge, carnivorous mammal was native to the Jhunia snow plains of the planet Neftali, and was hunted for its meat and fur. They were the apex predator on Neftali prior to the appearance of humans and Whiphids, and was nearly hunted to extinction. They were solitary hunters, and the sharp drop in their numbers resulted in their being protected. Hunters were still allowed to take d'oemir, provided that they paid up front for a license and a guide. The average d'oemir bear measured two meters in height when fully erect. (BSS)

D'olop Range
a range of mountains found on the planet M'haeli, the D'olop are the location of many of the planet's best dragite mines. (ROC)

D'rag
a Starshipwright working for Aerospace Engineers, Inc., who with Vinda puts out a collection request for the 2,500 credits owed to them by Han Solo. They have issued eight requests for payment, and Han had ignored them all until Spray showed up to repossess his ship. (HSR)

D'Skar
this planet is the first planet in the Coyn System. It is a hot, rocky, volcanic wasteland. The name "D'Skar" means "dagger" in the Coynese language. (PG)

D'skar
this was the name of the traditional Coynite dagger used in combat. (OE)

d'Tana, Keil
one of the early aliases used by Han Solo, during his tenure with Garris Shrike. He later tried to use the alias in order to sell the Talisman to Truthful Toryn, but the Duros was already aware of the fact that the ship was stolen. He saw through the alias, but offered to take the ship off Han's hands for scrap prices. Han was forced to accept the offer. (TPS)

D'trel
at the height of the New Order, this was the most powerful of the Gorothite j'ber clans. (AE)

D'ukal, Shada
a Mistryl warrior, she was part of Manda D'ulin's team during the middle years of the New Order. When the team was paid to secure the Hammertong project, the mission went sour and Manda was killed. Shada and Karoly D'ulin managed to recover the Hammertong, but were forced to Tatooine in a stolen strike cruiser. In trying to secure passage, Shada impersonated Brea Tonnika and went into the Mos Eisley cantina just before Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker arrived to book passge to Alderaan. In a bizarre twist of fate, the real Brea Tonnika had left just three hours before Shada arrived. This tipped off Riij Winward, who was on guard at the Mos Eisley jail. He let Shada free, but could not get her to give up the Hammertong. She eventually found a way to get a section of the weapon off Tatooine and into the hands of the Alliance. Shada later became the bodyguard of the smuggler Mazzic, using her sharp-edged skills and knife-like fingernail inserts to keep Mazzic safe. The Mistryl society had allowed her to be employed by Mazzic, hoping to obtain wealth for Emberlene as Mazzic's organization grew. When the smuggler's company failed to live up to their expectations, the Mistryl sent Karoly to intercept Shada and return her to Emberlene for re-assignment. Shada balked at this, and a struggle ensued. Shada managed to defeat Karoly and flee from both Mazzic and the Mistryl. She then tried to meet up with Leia Organa-Solo to offer her services as a warrior to the New Republic. She tried calling, but her calls were always rerouted. So, she infiltrated a secret meeting between Leia and Talon Karrde at the Orowood Tower, but she ended up working for Karrde as part of the mission to find out where Jorj Car'das was hiding. After finding Car'das on Exocron and defeating Rei'kas, Shada learned from Car'das the true history of Emberlene. He offered her a datacard that contained the names of the mercenaries who destroyed the planet, as well as offering a second datacard. Shada decided that it was time the Mistryl moved on from their needs for revenge, and took the second card. It contained histories of Flim, Grodin Tierce, and Moff Disra, which she and Karrde returned to Admiral Pellaeon to use. After the Caamas Incident was resolved and a peace treaty was placed on the table, Shada agreed to work for the new Intelligence agency Karrde set up to share information between the Empire and the New Republic. (TME, TLC, SOP, VOF)

D'ulin, Karoly
a Mistryl warrior, she was Manda D'ulin's sister and a part of Manda's team shortly before the Battle of Yavin. When the team was paid to secure the Hammertong project, the mission went sour and Manda was killed. Karoly and Shada D'ukal managed to recover the Hammertong, but were forced to Tatooine in a stolen strike cruiser. In trying to secure passage, Karoly impersonated Shenni Tonnika and went into the Mos Eisley cantina just before Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker appeared, trying to book passage to Alderaan. In a bizarre twist of fate, the real Shenni Tonnika had left just three hours before Karoly arrived. This tipped off Riij Winward, who was on guard at the Mos Eisley jail. He let Karoly free, but could not get her to give up the Hammertong. Karoly was later sent to Borcorash to "recover" Shada, for the Mistryl felt that Mazzi'c organization wasn't helping them anymore. Shada defeated her in a brief struggle and escaped. Karoly continued to pursue her, nearly catching her on Coruscant before Shada joined Talon Karrde. Karoly continued her pursuit, although she had very little to go on. She stowed away on the Lady Luck when Lando Calrissian, Han Solo, Lobot, and Moegid traveled to Bastion to try and recover a copy of the Caamas Document. There, she stumbled across Zothip and his team, and decided to see if she could settle an old score with them. Instead, she found herself in the midst of a power struggle between Zothip and Moff Disra. When Zothip and his men tried to fight their way out, Karoly took the opportunity to attack. She and Major Tierce took out several of the pirates, and Karoly managed to kill Zothip with a knife to his spine just as he tried to assault Disra. After Control managed to take over the Cavrilhu Pirates, Disra and Flim - disguised as Thrawn - offered Karoly and the Mistryl a chance to serve the new Empire. Karoly agreed to bring Paloma D'asima to Yaga Minor, in order to discuss an alliance. The alliance was killed before it could be created, though, when Admiral Pellaeon arrived on the scene and exposed Disra, Tierce, and Flim for their true selves. Karoly then accompanied D'asima back to Emberlene. (TME, SOP, VOF)

D'ulin, Manda
a Mistryl team leader, she was approached by Dr. Kellering to help guard the Hammertong project. However, in trying to ascertain the job's scope, she was killed in an ambush. Her sister Karoly took over command of their group, and managed to obtain the Hammertong. (TME)

D'vouran
this strange planet was bioengineered by Borborygmus Gog for the Empire as part of Project Starscream. D'vouran appeared to be a normal, temperate world with rollin ghills, dense forests, and salty oceans. It had a breathable atmosphere, and Gog had it peopled with the enigmatic Enzeen race. It was discovered when the Misanthrope crashed into it and sent out a distress call. The accident was quickly covered up, although the planet was rumored to be the richest and most beautiful planet within 1,000 light-years, rumors which helped fuel its tourist trade. The tourists to the planet often had trouble finding it, since the planet seemed to move about on its own, and had no native system. In reality, the planet was somewhat symbiont with the Enzeen, a relationship engineered by Gog in an attempt to create life. The Enzeen were outwardly friendly, which allowed them to draw visitors into the forests. There, the planet would open itself up and swallow the visitors, bringing them to the Heart of D'vouran and deriving sustenance from their bodies. In return, the Enzeen were allowed to siphon off a small portion of D'vouran's life-force for their own sustenance. Eventually, the planet outgrew its creators, consuming the scientists who remained on the planet and breaking free of their control. It traveled like this until Mammon Hoole caught up to it. In fury, the planet tried to consume Hoole's ship as it fled, but only consumed itself in a spasm of rage. It suddenly reappeared, seveal light-years away, shortly afterward. (GOF1, GOF2)

D'we'mouk
this ancient Nikto represented his people in their negotiations with the Hutts, before the birth of the Old Republic. He signed the agreement which indentured the Nikto people into Hutt servitude for eternity. (GG12)

D'Wopp
a male Whiphid, and Valarian's chosen mate. He is a hunter of some renown. He tries to skip out on his wedding night to hunt down Han Solo, after Jabba the Hutt put out a bounty on Solo's head. This enraged Valarian, and a huge fight broke out at their reception. D'Wopp was returned to his homeworld of Toola in various parts. (TME)

Da Soocha
a planet with five moons in the Cyax system, in the Huttese language, Da Soocha means 'Waking Planet.' It is a water-covered world, which lended some credence to the Hutt legends of the Cyax system including a planet with an intelligent, godlike ocean. However, from all initial probes, Da Soocha's ocean is as normal as any other ocean. Admiral Ackbar had planned to rescue his fellow Mon Calamari from the Emperor's World Devastators by transporting them to Da Soocha. (DE1, DESB)

Da Soocha 5
Da Soocha's fifth moon, home of the New Republic's Pinnacle Base. It was chosen for the Pinnacle Base following the outbreak of civil war on Coruscant, primarily because its location was unknown to everyone but the Hutts. It is called the Pinnacle Moon because of its unique landscape. The huge gravitational pull of Da Soocha has created large tidal forces on the moon. These tides eventually washed away all loose sediment, revealing huge spires of rock that were spewed from volcanoes eons ago. These pinnacles are home for the Ixlls. The moon was destroyed by the resurrected Emperor Palpatine when he fired his Galaxy Gun at the moon, in an effort to eradicate the New Republic. (DE1, DESB, EE)

DA-series Droid
this form of automaton was developed by the New Republic and used as scavengers at battle sites. As directed by Operation Flotsam and the Historic Battle Site Preservation Act, these droids were used to gather information information from any recovered physical evidence from a battle site, prior to release for public viewing. These droids were often accompanied by SM-series scavenger droids, which collected the physical evidence for them. (CTD)

Da'Gara
this Yuuzhan Vong Prefect was in command of the primary invasion force launched at the known galaxy. Da'Gara was charged with executing the initial assaults on those planets which were the first Vector Prime objectives. His career was ended quickly after the loss of the Helska base, and his failure nearly ruined the career of Nom Anor. (VP, HT)

Da'k, Winslau
this former Jedi student was on his way to a bright future, until he passed within the presence of Darth Vader. From that time on, Winslau sought to learn more about the Dark Side of the Force. Winslau outsmarted his Jedi Master and imprisoned him on Morcanth, using his prowess with the Force to obtain wealth and luxury. When a group of New Republic agents and Jedi students infiltrated Morcanth, Winslau was defeated in combat. The agents released his old master, who was frail and dying but able to escape. (GMS)

Da'nor
one of the most unusual planets in the galaxy, Da'nor is located in the Delantine system near Romm. It is unusual in that it goes through four seasonal changes each day, as it orbits not only the Delantine sun but two other small stars. The planet undergoes incredible change, and the plant and animal species which inhabit the world have adapted to the changes in order to survive. The primary species of creatures which live on the world are the ectotherms and a species of large, predatory birds. (SA2)

Daala
an Imperial Navy Admiral (the only female in any Imperial command position) in charge of the Maw Installation. She was educated at the Academy on Carida, and excelled at everything her teachers could throw at her. Unfortunately, being female in the Imperial Navy meant that she was constantly overlooked for promotions and awards. This angered her, but she struck back silently, creating an alter ego for herself in the Academy's computers. Her alias quickly became known as one of the Empire's brightest naval minds, and even Grand Moff Tarkin took notice. When he arrived at Carida to take this military prodigy under his wing, he was stymied by the fact that the physical person did not exist. He dug deeper into the computer records and discovered Daala's ruse. Though he was Imperial to the core, Tarkin realized that her genius could not be wasted any longer. He took Daala with him as a personal attache, and promoted her in the field. Her promotion to Admiral was presented by Grand Moff Tarkin, and Palpatine may have been unaware of it. She was placed in command of the small fleet guarding the Maw Installation, where she stayed for ten years, cut off from the outside galaxy. When the Maw Installation was discovered by Han Solo and Kyp Durron, she was forced into action against a vast, unknown enemy and with limited, outdated resources. Her initial strikes against the New Republic were successful, but she lost three-quarters of her fleet in the process. She fled to the deep Core Systems, hiding from the New Republic while trying to unite the various Imperial warlords who also hid there, squabbling amongst themselves. She eventually met up with Pellaeon, and the two of them executed the warlords in a summit meeting that was supposed to bring them all together. The mass executions were Daala's last resort, but she chose to do it. She took command of the combined Imperial fleet, and set out to eliminate the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4. She also arranged for part of her fleet to take out a number of important New Republic locations. Her plans nearly succeeded, but the combined might of the Jedi Knights and the New Republic proved too much for her fleet. The seventeen ships under Pellaeon were physically flung from the system; Cronus' ships were dispersed on secondary missions; and her own flagship, the Knight Hammer, was sabotaged by Callista before she could claim ultimate victory. She evacuated the ship as it plunged into the core of Yavin, and was rescued by Pellaeon's ships at the fringes of the system. Once aboard Pellaeon's ship, Daala resigned her rank as Admiral and turned the fleet over to Pellaeon. She re-appeared on Cybloc XII, shortly after the Death Seed plague had wiped out the New Republic forces there. She found R2-D2 and C-3PO among the decomposing bodies. She had been retired on Pedducis Chorios, but was offered an advisory position by the piratical warlords that rules the planet. She hoped that the droids would reveal information on the battle in the Meridian Sector, but was dismayed to learn that Moff Getelles was among the combatants. She detested his condescending ways, and agreed to help out the New Republic by attacking Getelles. In the aftermath, she was reunited with Liegeus, and the two returned to her outpost on Pedducis Chorios. (JS, DA, COTF, DS)

Daalang
this planet was the site of a trade conference during the Galactic Civil War. Han Solo was escorting Leia Organa to the conference when they became entangled with the Five near Attahox. (CSWDW)

Daan
this people was one of the two major factions which inhabited the planet of Melida/Daan. Throughout the history of their planet, the Melida had seen the Daan as feral beasts, and used a legacy of perceived wrong-doings to continue their civil war. The older members of both societies fought to avenge losses sustained centuries before, using their children as laborers in munitions factories while they killed each other in battle. They had been involved in a war with the Melida for thirty years before Obi-Wan Kenobi and Qui-Gon Jinn traveled to their planet to rescue Tahl. (DOD)

Daan Council
the governing body that controlled the actions of the Daan, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. (DOD)

Dace Diath
a dark-skinned, humanoid Jedi Knight who served in the Battle of Koros Minor, and was present at the Jedi Assembly at Deneba. A native of Tatooine, Dace followed his father, Sidrona Diath, along the path to becoming a Jedi Knight. He learned the ways of the Force under the tutelage of Master Vodo Siosk-Baas, and fought bravely on Onderon against the Naddist uprising there. He nearly died on Ossus, though, during a training flight with Cay Qel-Droma. They were testing the Star Saber attack ship when Dace concentrated on the ship's targetting computer but ignored his flight path. His ship was destroyed when it impacted a rocky spire, but Dace managed to eject from the explosion, using the Force to levitate away from it. He later assisted the Jedi Knights during the Great Sith War, and was among the group that pursued Aleema and Crado into the Cron System. When Aleema tore one of the stars apart, Dace was vaporized in the resulting explosion. (FNU, DLS, TSW)

Dachat
the Nelroni Marauders established a base on this planet, which was located along the Hyabb-Twith Corridor. The Dachat base allowed the Marauders to prey upon the governments of both Hyabb and Twith, while taking their pick of the ships which traveled between them. Following the loss of their main base on Voon, the Nelroni were driven off Dachat by the ancient Jedi Knights. (TOJC)

Dack
this possible Jedi candidate was located in the Imperial computers by R2-D2 and C-3PO, but was disregarded because he cheated rather than sensed the winners of blob races. He was a micro-electronics expert. Seeking to become wealthy and never have to work again, he rigged the Duchess Mistal's search for a consort so that the computer selected him as the candidate. She could not bear to be away from him, and so she wouldn't let him out of her sight. He fled to Umgul in an effort to escape their marriage, and tried to rig enough blob races to afford passage farther from Dargul. He was apprehended by Lando Calrissian during a blob race, as Lando was trying to determine if Tymmo were a candidate for the Jedi Academy. What Lando discovered was that Tymmo had been implanting micro-motivators into the blobs in order to coerce them into winning. Since cheating at blob races incurred the death sentence on Umgul, and since Tymmo wanted to live more than he wanted to die, he surrendered to Lando was returned to Mistal. (JS, JASB)

Dack Track
an Umgullian blobstacle course commissioned by Duchess Mistal of Dargul, and built by Slish Fondine. It was built to commemorate Dack's return to the Duchess's side. (JS)

Daclo Koat-xi
a New Republic Commander who led a field operations team into the galaxy to learn more about the World Devastators. (DESB)

Dactrurian
an alien race. (RM)

Dactyl
this yellow ammonia crystal is vital to the survival of Arconans who are away from their homeworld. Dactyl is used as a dietary supplement to stave off the effects of low-ammonia atmospheres. Even short periods of time without a regular supply of ammonia will kill an Arconan, so a steady source of dactyl is maintained during travel. (RF)

Dade, Lilla
a scout in Page's Commandos, her job is to drop behind enemy lines and open a path for the rest of the team. (HTSB)

Dadeferron, Dixon
Torm's father, he was turned into the Corporate Sector police force by Torm for infractions loosely based on the land-use disputes between the Dadeferron family and the Authority. Torm's real motivation was to gain control of the Kail Ranges. (CSA)

Dadeferron, Torm
a native of the planet Kail, Torm and his family were independent landowners within the Corporate Sector. He was jealous of the power his father held as the owner of the Kail Ranges, and wanted it for himself. When his family became involved in a series of land-use disputes with the Corporate Sector Authority, Torm was approached by Authority agents and offered the chance to own the Ranges outright if he would held convict his father of some wrong-doing. Torm agreed, and soon his father, Dixon, and his brother, Trevim, were arrested and removed from Kail. Torm's involvement with the Authority didn't end there. He joined up with Rekkon, ostensibly in an effort to locate his father and brother who had "suddenly disappeared" after the land-use battle. However, this story was just a cover for his real work as an Authority operative whose mission it was to infiltrate Rekkon's group and eliminate it. Torm succeeded in killing Rekkon aboard the Millennium Falcon, but not before Rekkon was able to discover the location of Stars' End. Torm was later discovered by Han Solo as Rekkon's killer, and Han quickly deposited Torm into outer space, without a pressure suit. (HSE, CSA)

Dadeferron, Trevim
Torm's brother, sent to Stars' End with his father, Dixon, as part of the plot to place Torm in control of the Kail Ranges and remove the dispute over the use of the Ranges. (CSA)

Dadefra, Alistar
this man was the Imperial Navy Captain who commanded the mission to wipe out the Eyttyrmin Batiiv pirates. He used the tractor beams on his Victory-class Star Destroyers to hold the pirates' corvettes at bay while spacetroopers boarded them and killed the occupants. He then started lang-range jamming, cutting the smaller pirate ships off from their commands. The Star Destroyers then opened fire at will, followed by an intense concussion missile barrage launched at the surface of the planet Khuiumin. The Imperials sustained 86 casualties while wiping out nearly 8,000 pirates. After the success of the mission, the 53-year-old Dadefra was promoted to the command of the Imperial-class Star Destroyer Brazen, and dispatched to Elrood Sector to wipe out the rebellion and piracy which sprang up after the Battle of Yavin. He spent a great deal of time disciplining Captains Pryl and Zed, working to defuse their rivalry in order to center their efforts on destroying the Alliance. When the Brazen was ambushed by pirates, Dadefra managed to limp back to Derilyn for repairs. Unfortunately, the Alliance was able to destroy the Brazen. It was unknown if Dadefra was aboard the ship when it exploded. (SWSB, OE)

Dadrus
this gas giant was the outermost of the three worlds in the Marcellus System. It had five moons. Note that the report from Vost Tyne to Aaz'del Hutrick referred to this planet as Dardris. (POM)

Daedalon System
a planetary system. (TPS)

Daedalus Corporation
this mining outfit operates on the planet Korbin. (PG2)

Daekun
this was the largest of the underground cities located on the planet Aleron. (PGT)

Daelar vuv Tertarrnek
this Covallon was one of the Alliance's deepest cover agents, pretending to be the pet of Moff Harlov Jarnek. The Imperial Moff, a prime example of a xenophobe who couldn't see anything not human as intelligent, thought vuv Tertarrnek was an interesting pet and nothing more. vuv Tertarrnek, on the other hand, understood everything the Moff said, and was able to provide the Alliance with a bounty of information on troop and starship movements in Tandon Sector. However, vuv Tertarrnek's position as a pet made it hard to transmit data back to the Alliance without being caught, since Jarnek liked to keep his pet at his side to impress others. vuv Tertarrnek maintained his position at the Moff's side by using his empathic sense to match his actions to the Moff's needs. (CRO)

Daele, Hart
this Jedi Knight was known as a theoretical mathematician. He was especially gifted in the playing of Divoran Holochess. He was a native of the planet Damualer Triac. (GG9)

Daeshara'cor
this Twi'leki female was one of the first of her species to attend Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4. As a child, she was orphaned when her mother was enslaved, and she spent a lot of time in starports, talking to pilots and learning how to exist outside society's mainstream. Daeshara'cor never forgot the loss of her mother. After joing the praxeum, she struggled mightily with her training, though she believed that Luke's trainings were being lost on Kyp Durron. Daeshara'cor, however, still harbored anger over the loss of her mother, which eventually led her down a path toward the Dark Side of the Force. Shortly after the Yuuzhan Vong first invaded the galaxy, Daeshara'cor was given the mission to determine if any data files from the Maw Installation survived its destruction. After learning how the Yuuzhan Vong enslaved other beings and turned them into mindless slaves, she chose not to board the ship and began her own search for a superweapon to destroy the Vong. She planned to travel to Vortex, hoping to lead the Jedi away from her path. However, Anakin Solo and Chalco located her on Garos IV. Daeshara'cor was forced to capture them and hold them ransom. Anakin, with Chalco's help, managed to escape and capture Daeshara'cor, and they returned her to the Jedi gathered on Ithor. She apologized for her actions, and was eventually forgiven by Master Skywalker. She later fought side by side with Anakin in the Battle of Ithor, but in the end she was mortally poisoned by the bite of a Yuuzhan Vong amphistaff. Anakin could nothing to save her. As her life expired, Daeshara'cor gave herself up to the Force, and her physical form disappeared. (DTR)

Daf Spearmaster
this Whiphid was part of a mercenary band hired to train the TransGalMeg security force on the planet Narg. However, when the natives of Narg realized that Daf wasn't human, he was released from service. Since that time, he has remained on the planet, frequenting the Free Access Grill and spending his evenings talking with Lin Konpost. Daf realized that his chances of a good living were limited on Narg, but feared that Imperial control of the galaxy would make his life even worse. (TA)

Dafid, Wex "TIE-Die"
an Alliance tactical training officer who taught the new starpilot recruits on board the Independence. He earned the nickname "TIE-Die" for his many ways to destroy the Imperial starships. (XW)

Dagelin Minor
this inhabitants of the planet were nearly wiped out by a strain of the Hardan Plague carried to the planet by a swarm of Bogan's Brown Nafen which had been imported to control an outbreak of dhuru flies. All but two percent of the population succombed to the disease. (COG)

Dagger
1) an Alliance transport assigned to pick up the defectors from the Bixby near Dellalt. (XW)
2) this Trade Federation starship participated in the Battle of Naboo. (OWS, SFT)

Dagger, The
developed by Mercevian Nagua - and often known as the Mercevian Nagua Manevuer - this pirate tactic involved the use of a saboteur to disable a target ship's hyperdrive at a specific time, bringing the ship out of hyperspace near a pirate fleet. It was a risky maneuver for the agent placed aboard the target ship, because being discovered often meant certain death. A variation of this maneuver had the saboteur actually seize control of the bridge and bring the ship out of hyperspace themself, delivering it to the pirate fleet. (PP)

Dagger Combat Pistol
this was a slugthrower produced by Coruschal WeaponWorks during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Dagger-D
this form of starfighter was produced by the Duros for police work within the Duros System. (BP)

Daggerblade
this Imperial System Patrol Craft showed up suddenly in the Endor System, just after the Battle of Endor. It destroyed the Alliance Corvette Old Republic before escaping. (TBSB)

Daggerlip
this predator is native to the jungles of Cona. (RF)

Daggert
this small, beautifully-striped fish is native to the oceans of Naboo. They are prolific breeders, and evolutionary response to their short lifespan. (GF)

Dagobah
primary planet in the Dagobah system, this swamp planet was home to Yoda. It is located in the Sluis sector. Near the end of the Bpfassh Dark Jedi Insurrection, one of the fleeing Dark Jedi hid on Dagobah. No one knows what happened to the Dark Jedi, but it is surmised that he died there. Furthermore, his knowledge of the Dark Side of the Force caused the planet to be bathed in Dark Side energy. This might also explain why the Jedi Master Yoda was able to hide on Dagobah during Palpatine's purge of the Jedi, since his Light Side strength would have been masked by the amount of Dark Side energy on the planet. The planet's day lasts 23 standard hours, and its year is 341 local days long. (ESB, HTTE, HTSB)

Dagobah System
located in the Sluis sector, and contained the planet Dagobah. It doesn't appear on any of the Alliance's charts, when Luke tries to search out Master Yoda, even though it was involved in the Dark Jedi uprising which began on Bpfassh. (ESBN)

Dagobah Tech
a school, set up by the Alliance on Mount Yoda on Dagobah, it is where the youth of the Alliance can go to get technical and other forms of training. The Jedi Prince Ken attended classes there. (MMY)

Dagore, Winfrid
this native of Teth was a commander in her planet's armed forces during the early days of the Alliance and the resistance against the Empire. She met with Bria Tharen to discuss her planet's open rebellion, but she felt that Teth was "safe" because of its location in the Outer Rim. (RD)

Dagri
one of the four moons orbitting the planet Onderon. (TOJC)

Dahome
this Alliance Nebulon-B frigate was destroyed when the Empire attacked the Organarms facility during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Dahvil
little is known about this planet, which is located in the Rayter Sector. (CRO)

Dahvil-Fodro Hyperspace Promenade
this starship race was run annually, and required racers to travel from Dahvil to Ord Dorlass, then to Tintel, Azna, and then Fodro. (CRO)

Dahz Thulaka this notedly malevolent Twi'lek lived and worked deep in the bowels of Starlyte Station, where he performed a variety of dark experiments. Talandro Starlyte was aware that Thulaka captured unsuspecting visitors to the Station and used them in his experiments, but was somehow unable to stop it. Thulaka discovered, during his time studying to become a doctor, that he was sensitive to the Force, and dedicated most of his time to researching the mystical energy field. However, Thulaka lacked the patience to correctly develop an affinity with the Light Side of the Force. When the Dark Side called to him, Thulaka jumped in quickly and was shortly dominated by it. He began using his medical skills and his knowledge of the Force to try and create his own army of deformed creatures, capturing unwitting victims and performing strange and unusual experiments on them. These creatures often died quick, horrible deaths, since Thulaka lacked the power to maintain them. After settling on Starlyte Station, Thulaka found an abundance of "raw material" and set up a lab in the deepest section of the station. (WSV)

Dail Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Daine, Cubber
this Corellian served the Alliance and the New Republic as a starfighter mechanic. He was one of the chief mechanics at Echo Base on Hoth, and was later assigned to be Wraith Squadron's mechanic when that squadron was first formed. He was often described as just under average height and just over average weight. He was a family man, and had a six-year-old daughter stationed on Folor with him. (WS)

Dainsom
a native of Algarian, Dainsom was an Imperial trooper who served aboard the Super-class Star Destroyer Executor, guarding highly-secure areas from unauthorized entry. He was promoted to the Executor after performing at a high level of service aboard the Thunderflare. (CCG5)

Dairkan Starliner
a luxury ship used to transport passengers between planets. (WG)

Daiv
Benedict Vidkum's brother-in-law, Daiv worked for the construction company that build Prince Xizor's castle on Coruscant. (SE)

Dajaal
this was one of the most prominent families of the planet Brentaal, and was known as one of the strongest commercial leaders along with the Brentioch and Jo'uda clans. (SWJ13)

Dajus, Jessa
this woman was a member of the navigational crew of the FarStar. She was implicated as having ties to the underworld by Gorak Khzam, when the Rodian defected from the crew on Uukaablis. During the FarStar's patrol of the Kathol Outback, she suffered strange headaches that suddenly appeared and, often just as suddenly, disappeared. The closer the ship got to the Kathol Rift, the stronger the headaches became. During this time, she also distanced herself from the crew, much to the consternation of Captain Adrimetrum. She also kept secret a good deal of information on Moff Sarne himself, which she discovered during several computer searches. When the crew of the FarStar located and recovered the Codex from an alien construct inside the Kathol Rift, Jessa experienced an intense hallucination about a spider-like creature consuming an entire planet before taking her inside its embrace. She slipped into a coma and could not be revived until the ship discovered the planet Demonsgate. Then, Jessa suddenly woke up and began ranting about knowing the location of the "DarkStryder Planet" and Moff Sarne's hidden base. (DARK, KO, KR)

Dakar
this alien managed the hangar bays on Exis Station, nearly 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Dakar had solid-black eyes and a series of folds where his nose and mouth should be. He was a friend of the scavenger Hoggon, and gave him information on where the Jedi Knights were meeting during the Exis Convocation. (TOJR)

Dakerno, Crat
this Imperial strategist was part of the task force sent to quell the continual uprisings between the Waroot and Farang tribes on the planet Ab'Bshingh. He studied the complex customs and rituals of the two factions, and used this knowledge to create the board game B'shingh. (SWJ8)

Dakkar the Distant an unpleasant Mos Eisley cantina owner who employed Shaara as a dancer. (TJP)

Dakot Tech
one of the multitude of schools found on Dakot 7 at the height of the New Order. (BI)

Dakot 7
this planet was known as a center of academia in Mortex Sector. (BI)

Dakshee
this planet is located in the same sector as Dentaal, and was a hotbed of rebellion during the New Order. (SWAJ)

Dakuyl
this planet is the sister world of Verkuyl, and was planned to be used as a secondary alazhi plantation. These plans were implemented by the Empire, and were placed on hold after the Battle of Endor. (SWJ13)

Dal
this red giant is one of four stars that are located at the center of the Opiteihr System. (TSK)

Dalastine
this planet was the location of an Alliance base in the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Dalastine IV
this gloomy moon orbitted the planet Dalastine. (GG9)

Dalchon System
it was here that Adar Tallon faked his death. (TM)

Dalei, Brii'n
this man was a contemporary of Drake Paulsen. Like all other Socorran smugglers who died, Brii'n Dalei was given a funeral within the rock formation known as the Judges of the Dead. (BSS)

Dalgeer
this Sullustan was a security officer for SoroSuub, until he coul dno longer reconcile SoroSuub's connections with the Empire and some of its policies. He joined the Alliance, and was happy to volunteer his services in the construction and management of a base within the volcano of Mount Deldarca. His dedication and energy earned him the respect of the base's personnel, and in turn they named the base 'Dalgeer's Rim.' (HAS)

Dalgeer's Rim
this was the name of an Alliance base located in the Mount Deldarca caverns. Since Deldarca was an active volcano, it provided a measure of protection against detection. The base of the volcano was riddled with tunnels and caverns left behind by flowing lava, which made the location ideal for the Alliance since much of the excavation work had been done naturally. Dalgeers' RIm served as a staging area and secondary fighter base for the starfighters in the system. Power for the base was developed by tapping into the incredibly hot lava flowing beneath the mountain, providing a virtually endless supply of geothermal energy. The base was named fr its first commander, the Sullustan Dalgeer. (HAS)

Dalhney, Hric
a native of Alderaan, Dalhney was the Deputy Minister of Security serving Bail Organa. He and Winter travelled to Cloud City to meet with Bria Tharen, to discuss whether or note Alderaan would join the growing rebellion and fight the Empire. Hric was a strong believer in Alderaan’s pacifist position, and would support the rebellion but could not commit Alderaan to any combat. (RD)

Dalisor Merchant Fleet
this intergalactic shipping conglomerate was destroyed by the Lortans, which spread the Reslian Plague throughout its ranks. (GG12)

Dalkash Ale
a flavorful ale brewed on the planet Lianna. (ML)

Dalla the Black
see Solo, Dalla (CPL)

Dalla
a Hutt acquaintance of Han Solo on Coruscant, running a casino in a building that is squashed beneath 90,000 years' worth of debris. (DA)

Dalliance
this YT-1210 freighter was owned and operated by the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4, during the second decade of the New Republic. Corran Horn and Ganner Rhysode flew it to Bimmiel to investigate the disappearance of an Agamarian xenoarcheology class. (DTO)

Dallin, Hal
this man served as part of the Alliance’s Green Squadron of X-Wing fighters, out of Eyrie Base. (SWJ8)

Dalloralla
this species of tree was native to the planet Belkadan. The average dalloralla was thirty meters in height, and they grew in dense, jungle-like groves. The entire dalloralla tree population was wiped out by the Yuuzhan Vong, when they destroyed the planet Belkadan in order to draw attention away from their base on Helska. (VP)

Dallows, Rhys
this man was learning how to fly the Naboo N-1 starfighter, as part of the small group of Naboo pilots who made up Echo Flight. He was something of a smart-aleck, and was friends with Dren Melne. However, his loyalties were to the Naboo, and when Dren tried to force Echo Flight to turn over their N-1 starfighters to Captain Sorran and the Velumina, Rhys came to the aid of Essara Till. For his actions, Rhys was promoted to a position within Bravo Squadron. He was thrown into battle when the Trade Federation blockaded Naboo, forcing Queen Amidala to flee the planet. Upon her return, Rhys and the rest of the pilots flew their starfighters against the Federation's Droid Control Ship during the Battle of Naboo. Note that this character is named Rhys Darrow in the final installment of The Starfighter Trap, on the LucasArts website. (OWS, SFT)

Dalos IV
a planet located in Nilgaard Sector, Dalos IV is a hot, humid world covered with shallow oceans and a single continent. It was a small world, measuring just 7,000 kilometers in diameter, and was originally settled as a penal colony. During the early years of the New Order, many criminal families moved to Dalos IV to escape the persecution of the Empire. (ND)

Dalos Peninsula
this point of land, located on the planet Verkuyl, was the site of Verkuylian BactaCo's corporate headquarters. Much of the peninsula was cleared for use in housing the workers and residents of the planet. (SWJ13)

Dalron IV
Davaire Colmar defected to the Alliance on this planet. (GG9)

Dalron 5
a planet which was devastated by the Empire during a long siege. The planet's inhabitants fled, and were discovered by Lak Sivrak. The Empire put the strategies of Jan Dodonna to work here, which hardened Dodonna's resolve to assist the Alliance in defeating the Empire. (MTS)

Daltar
little was known of the planet, until it was discovered by Darth Vader to be an Alliance listening outpost. The outpost was later destroyed by Imperial forces. (REB)

Daluba
the tyrant Tonkoss Rathba was a native of this planet. (VP)

Daluuj
a planet near Calamari with a wildly unstable weather system, Daluuj was the site of an Imperial training center. When the Empire made its first attack on Calamari, Admiral Ackbar and his troops fled Calamari and tried to rendezvous with the Alliance, but they were attacked by Imperial cruisers. Ackbar and his people fled their ship in escape pods, many of which landed on Daluuj. They were later rescued by Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Leia Organa. (CSW)

Damarind Corporation
this galaxy-wide conglomerate of jewel merchants had an exclusive contract with the Empire to harvest corusca gems from the Yavin System. They went bankrupt because their orbiting gem collection station, known as the Damarind Fishing Station, failed to collect gems in sufficient numbers to offset costs. (GG2)

Damarind Fishing Station
this was the Damarind Corporation's corusca gem collection station in orbit around Yavin. It failed to bring in enough gems to keep the company solvent, and Damarind went bankrupt. (GG2)

Damasc
this Tahlboorean term means “father.” (DRPC)

Damatal Holonews
this was a pro-Imperial newsnet service which was based on the planet Esseles. (SWJ8)

Damaya
a Dathomir witch of the Singing Mountain Clan. (CPL)

Dambrizi, Solimon
this young man was a native of Corulag, where he was a member of the police force in Adjesk. While on the force, Solimon was known for his uncanny intutition. When he stumbled upon a book of Jedi lore, Solimon realized that his "sixth sense" was actually The Force. He resigned his commission with the police and set out to learn more about The Force. He fashioned his own lightsaber during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, and spent much of his life searching for other Force-sensitives. (WSV)

Dame Fortune
this was the name of a goddess of good luck only moderately worshipped by just about every spacer in the galaxy. (SSR)

Damio
manufacturers of custom-combination sensor systems for starships. (RM)

Dammon University
a major educational center located near the Sienar Fleet Systems research and development laboratory on Corulag. (FOP)

Damonite Yors B
this planet, the fifth in its system, is a frigid world wracked by methane ice storms. It was here that Seti Ashgad’s forces destroyed the Corbantis after they captured Leia Organa-Solo. (POT)

Damorian Manufacturing
builders of the Carrack-class light cruiser, Damorian is a small corporation based on the planet Esseles. They have also had success in the transport ship market. (ISB, EGV)

Damorind Securities
this corporation produced large detention devices such as force cages. (GG10)

Damualer Triac
this planet is home to the Millennium Oak. (GG9)

Dana
1) this Alliance secret agent infiltrated the Imperial ranks and was serving on the Star Destroyer Relentless when she learned that Captain Parlan had issued a bounty for the life of Adar Tallon. She was preparing to bring this information to the Alliance when her cover was blown. She managed to escape into the Kwenn Space Station when the Relentless docked there, but was killed by the bounty hunter Jodo Kast before she could transmit the information. (TM)
2) this Galacian was a member of the hill people who lived outside the city of Galu, and was one of Elan's chief lieutenants. (MOC)

Dana Dregond
this native of the planet Kamori was a master painter at the Glanthe school. Dregond was killed in the series of earthquakes that devastated the Zethusian plains. (SWAJ)

Danadine
this planet is located in Dail Sector. (GG11)

Danalis
this poor young girl was a native of Corellia. She was an orphan who had been abandoned and left for dead. She had lived in an alley, competing with the vrelts for space, before Garris Shrike “rescued” her. He promised her that he would provide reconstructive surgery to repair the numerous vrelt bites that marred her face, if she would work for him. She agreed, but soon found out that Shrike was a stern taskmaster. At about the age of fourteen, Danalis also realized that Shrike was never going to provide the surgery he promised. Rather than face another day working for nothing, Danalis committed suicide by entering an airlock on the Trader’s Luck and cycling it - without a pressure suit. (TPS)

Danarc Run
this hyperspace trade route cuts Corva Sector almost in half. (SWJ8)

Danaru
this rich, tasty beverage is fermented from terrberries, spicy nuts, and stored in Parein Sweetgreen fruit shells. At first, the drink is highly refreshing. However, the alcohol content hits you hard about a hlaf-hour later. It originated on Parein II 4. (GG9)

Dance of Love
this Kitonak mating ritual takes place during the Celebration of Life. The Kitonaks submerge themselves in the temporary rivers formed when the Kurdan desert floods every ten years, joining with their mates and becoming pregnant. Ten years later, during the next flood, the mates rejoin in the waters and give birth to a young Kitonak. (GG4)

Dance Swarm
this Fefze ritualistic gathering involves various Fefze swarms meeting to propagate they species. During the dance, males fertilize the eggs of females, which are then formed into a stickly globule. The two parents need not be from the same swarm, and many different females contribute to the globule. The dance has become somewhat stylized over the history of the Fefze race, and has taken on many of the characteristics of a koncco dance. Sculpture and other accesories have also been added to the dance, and it has become a tourist attraction to watch. (GG4)

Dancer
Grael used this term to describe labor droids. (SWJ1)

Danchaf
this creature, native to the planet Garban, was known to the Jenets as a tree goblin. Many xeno-biologists considered the danchaf to be simply animals, while the Jenet argued that they exhibited problem-solving and reasoning skills when not being observed by off-worlders. The average danchaf resembled a two-meter-tall humanoid, with broad shoulders and clawed feet used for climbing. A large horn-like scale protected each shoulder. The danchaf were considered vicious predators, hunting in packs of 10 or more. The Jenet maintain legends which indicated that the danchaf were once the rulers of the planet Garban, marauding the planet in huge packs before Jenet warriors were able to decimate the population and drive them back. (COG)

Dancing Duinuogwuin Inn
this hotel was located in the richest part of the capital city of Deysum III. (GMK)

Dancing Pit, The
the dancers' prep room in Jabba's palace. (TJP)

Dancitorium
this is the generic term for a zero-gravity dance hall. (SWJ9)

Dancreti
this planet was covered with tropical jungles and swamps. (COG)

Dandalas
this planet is located in the Koornacht Cluster, in Farlax Sector. (SOL)

Dandelion Warriors
a group of warriors native to the Forest Moon of Endor. (EGC)

Dandi
this Imperial Xiytiar-class transport was destroyed by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. It was part of the fleet which supplied the Bretie production facility at the time. (XWA)

Dando
one of the caretakers of the Imperial base on Jellyfish Cove, Dando succumbed to the wiles of the ethereal wraiths that inhabited the nighttime hours. He was consumed while outside the protective confines of the base. Bara later used his uniform to try and attack Garve. (TMEC)

Dangerous Dreams
a compilation of songs written and played by the band Red Shift Limit, it also includes a single entitled Dangerous Dreams. Both have been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Dangerous Species Act
an Imperial decree, this act allowed the Empire to eliminate any species it deemed dangerous to any Imperial operation on a planet. It was meant to apply only to non-sentient species. (GG4)

Dangor, Ars
Ars Dangor was one of Emperor Palpatine's closest advisors. He was one of Palpatine's cronies during the Old Republic, when Palpatine was an unassuming Senator. It was Dangor who announced to the galaxy that Palpatine had initiated martial law throuhgout the galaxy, and that the Grand Moffs would have direct control over their own systems (as Tarkin announced to his team aboard the first Death Star). He also publically announced the disbanding of the Imperial Senate. (ISB, DSTC)

Danid, Burr
this man was a student of the Royal Imperial Guard training facility on Yinchorr, at the same time as Kir Kanos and Carnor Jax. He was considered one of the best students in training at the time. When Emperor Palpatine visitied the facility with Darth Vader, Danid was chosen to battle the Dark Lord in one-on-one combat. Although his technique was flawless, Vader easily defeated Danid. He cut off Danid's right forearm, then kicked him over the edge of The Squall's raised platform. (CE)

Danith Jalay
this smuggler owned the Elegant Interlude, and maintained a residence on Nar Shaddaa during the early years of the New Order. (THG)

Dankayo
this unremarkable world was the site of an Alliance administrative base which coordinated activities in three separate sectors. Records of every undercover agent and their operations were maintained there, as well as the location of many Alliance safeworlds. The base was somehow discovered by Imperial forces, and the base was destroyed by the combined firepower of the Star Destroyers Avenger, Devastator, and Relentless. The Alliance received word of the impending assault, and evacuated the base before it was reduced to rubble. Some datapacks were left behind and discovered by the crew of the Elusive, but they were eventually recovered by a group of Alliance agents. (SH)

Dankin
crew member of the Wild Kaarde. (HTTE)

Dannal
one-time governor of the planet Gerrard V, Dannal served the planet during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Dannik Jerriko
a 1010-year-old Anzati assassin, Jerriko was known in the underworld as the Eater of Luck. As an Anzati, Jerriko operated with almost total anonymity; thus, he preferred to work for people who needed other bounty hunters, killers, and assassins taken out. He felt a greater thrill from drinking the soup of someone who defied his right to kill than from someone who cowered in fear. While stopping over on Tatooine, he visited Mos Eisley. There, he knew, he could get some of the best soup from some of the galaxy's most notorious criminals. When Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker entered the cantina, Jerriko was at the bar, smoking a nic-i-tain hookah. After the events surrounding the death of Greedo, Jerriko resolved to hunt down Han Solo and drink his soup. His chance came when Jabba the Hutt recovered Solo's carbonite-frozen body. Jerriko was eager to enter the palace, and would have done so on his own if he hadn't been approached by the Lady Valarian and Eugene Talmont, both of whom wanted him to spy on Jabba. Jerriko took both jobs, and entered the palace. He tried desparately to drink Han Solo's soup, but was deprived of it when Solo was rescued by Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa. Then, Jerriko went a little mad, and resigned himself to drinking Jabba's soup. After learning that Jabba had perished at the Pit of Carkoon, Jerriko went even more mad, killing anyone he could find in the palace. He then fled, and took on a number of bounty hunting jobs. (COJ, TME, TJP, EGC)

Danoor
this planet, located in the Nah'Malis System of the Kathol Outback, was colonized about 100 years before the Battle of Endor. The colonists were scientists who wanted to dedicate their research to studying the Kathol Rift. When word reached other planets in Kathol Sector of Danoor's natural beauty and resources, other groups established settlements there as well. Shortly before Emperor Palpatine created the New Order, a stray asteroid from the Duhrib Belt smashed into Danoor, killing much of its native population and destroying large areas of the settlements. Contact with Danoor was cut off for several years, as the Empire left the world to itself. Danoor is a temperate world of varying topography. Its day lasts 25 standard hours, and its year lasts 201 local days. The planet was ruled by a group of Ministers, each of which represented about half a million residents. It was the Minsters, searching for a way to pay for its operations, who invited many corporations to establish branches on Danoor. However, many of the Ministers made concessions in order to draw corporate leaders to Danoor, and so the corporations have an incredible amount of political sway. After Rolf Treidum and the Lialic II attacked the FarStar near Danoor, he then launched a devastator torpedo at the planet. Following the destruction of a huge area of the planet, the Ministers of Danoor told the New Republic to stay away and not bring any more war and destruction to their world. (KO)

Danos
an Imperial Lieutenant in charge of new recruit training. (ISB)

Dansun, Fasha
this woman was rescued from the scientists at Qu'mock Station by the crew of the FarStar. She had spent much of her career studying the cultures of Kathol Sector, and had ventured out into the Marcol Void to work with in the Kathol Outback before being captured by the Qektoth Confederation. She had a quick wit and a bubbly personality. She opted to join the crew of the FarStar once she regained her strength. (KO)

Dansuun Priory
this business and law school is located on the planet Rhinnal. (JASB)

Danta, Iry
this Imperial officer was part of the team which was stranded on Dolis 3 in the wake of the peace accord signed between the Imperial Remnant and the New Republic. Iry joined Moff Derran Takkar in his plan to disrupt the wedding of Mara Jade and Luke Skywalker, as a way to strike back against the New Republic. Danta spent many years as a field operative, living in the gutters and sewers of Alliance and New Republic worlds, gathering information and performing various acts of sabotage. Moff Takkar assigned Danta the job of infiltrating the wedding site and locating an escape route, for the Imperials to use after halting the ceremony. Danta was later captured by Chewbacca, along with Chala Venan, putting an end to their efforts to disrupt the wedding. (U)

Dantari
this nomadic race is native to the planet Dantooine. They roam the coastal plains in small, peaceful tribe. Little is known of the Dantari culture, as they have kept to themselves and remained aloof from the Alliance personnel which were garrisoned there during the early years of the Alliance. Later, the Eol Sha colonists were unaware of the Dantari, and were eradicated by Daala's forces before contact could be made. They had dark hair and wide, flat faces. (JASB, GOF11)

Danteel
this planet is located in the Core Worlds. (SWJ8)

Danthe Artifice, Limited
this corporation developed droid personality matrices, and was a major supplier of programming to Arakyd. They were based on the planet Corulag. (FOP, SWJ12)

Dantooine
this planet has a long history with the Republics and the Alliance. In ancient times, it was the site of a Jedi training center under the command of Jedi Master Vodo Siosk-Baas. One of its most prominent students was the Dark Jedi, Exar Kun. During the period of the Emperor's New Order, it was the site of Rebel base, but it was abandoned before the Empire could determine the base's location. It has two moons and a dry savannah environment. Tash Arranda and her brother, Zak, discovered the ancient Jedi ruins there, with the help of the Dantari Maga. Maga refused to enter the ruins, for the garoo of the Dantari tell legends which said those who entered the ruins never came out. Tash discovered that the Empire was using the ruins - and the legends surrounding them - to create a new batch of clones, using a cloning laboratory which was established by the ancient Jedi Knights. In the year following the resurrection of Emperor Palpatine, Dantooine was the planet to which the Eol Sha colonists were relocated, but it was devastated in a stellar attack from Admiral Daala. The average day on Dantooine lasts 25 standard hours, and its year encompasses 378 local days. (SW, DA, DLS, JASB, GOF11)

Dantooine
this New Republic CR90 Corvette was part of the force sent to liberate the planet Ciutric from the control of Prince-Admiral Krennel. It supported the flagship Emancipator, along with several other Corvettes and a trio of Nebulon-B frigates. (IR)

Dantooinian Garfish
this species of fish, native to the planet Dantooine, is harvested as a source of food. (MA)

Danuta
a planet which housed a secret Imperial base early in the Galactic Civil War. It was also the site of a data center which stored the plans to the original Death Star. Kyle Katarn was able to infiltrate the base and steal the plans. (DF)

Danvar II
a planet which is home to a race of scaled bipeds with long snouts and a flair for murders and assassinations. (HSE)

Dap Nechel
this short, bearded alien served as an engineer aboard the Kuari Princess at the time when Detien Kaileel was arrested for his support of the Alliance. (TFE)

Daplona
this city was the capital of the planet Ciutric. The planet's primary shield generator was located in the city, but was taken out by the combined forces of Requiem Squadron - under the command of Wedge Antilles, alias Antar Roat - and the ground forces of Major Telik. During the assault, Corran Horn also liberated the remaining survivors of the Lusankya from their prison in the city. (IR)

Daplona River
this slow-moving river wanders through the country surrounding the city of Daplona, on Ciutric. (IR)

Dar
this hot, rocky world is the first planet in the Derilyn System, found in the Elrood Sector. (PG)

Dar Bille
this Yevethan was Nil Spaar's second-in-command during their assault on the Black-15 shipyards. He continued to serve Nil Spaar during the Great Purge, and was the primate of the starship Pride of Yevetha. (BTS, TT)

Dar'Or
a planet found in the Dar'Or System, in the Jospro Sector, Dar'Or is a low-gravity forested world known to Imperial astrogators as OM973. Dar'Or is the homeworld of the species known as Ri'Dar. It is also an Imperial Species Preservation Zone, because it is home to a number of endangered and dishomed species, including the elix and indola. Water covers about sixty percent of the planet, with the land masses being composed of sub-tropical forests of waza trees. (GG4)

Dar-cloak
this warm wrapping retains body heat. (SOL)

Dar-Es
an Imperial Corvette group destroyed by Keyan Farlander after Gart's death. (XW)

Dar-2
Mendarn Arms' ion cannon, similar to those used on the GAT-12j Skipray blastboat. (HTSB)

Daraada, Gaevril
this Imperial Major was placed in charge of the military on Venaari, during the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Darada System
Jev Sunrider was the Jedi watchman of this system, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

Daragon, Gav
a native of Kirrek, Gav and his sister Jori charted the ancient space lanes for traders and haulers some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. They had been orphaned at an early age when their parents were killed in the First Unification Wars fought by Empress Teta, and brought up under the watchful eye of Aarrba the Hutt. Gav once tested high in Force-sensitivity, but never was able to obtain full training. The lure of interstellar travel called to Gav and his sister, and they were able to obtain a ship with the help of Aarrba. However, luck was not something the Daragons were endowed with. They were continually in debt to Aarrba, and thought that they had finally broken even when they discovered a risky route known as the Goluud Corridor. They were black-balled by the Navigational Guild and disowned by Aarrba, and tried flee Cinnagar through the Starswarm Cluster, damaging their ship and forcing them to land on Korriban. They were then thrust into the middle of the power struggle between Naga Sadow and the Sith Lords when the Sith Lords thought they were advanced scouts from the Old Republic's Navy. Gav was swayed by Naga Sadow, who held the young man on Khar Shian in order to "protect" him from the other Sith Lords. Sadow allowed him to explore the ancient Sith magics, encouraging Gav's Force potential to grow. Sadow allowed him to train in the use of a huge wall of automated systems, giving him just enough information to lead Gav to believe that he was controlling Sadow's fortress. In reality, Sadow was training the young human in the use of several weapons systems linked to Sith magic. When Ludo Kressh attacked Khar Shian, Sadow told Gav to use the systems to cut off transmissions to the renegade Sith Lord. What Gav actually did was activate a remote detonator on Kressh's ship, causing the craft to explode in a brilliant fireball. It was at this point that Gav realized he and his sister had been manipulated by Sadow. However, he was gaining power with the Force that he never thought he'd have, and when Sadow offered him a position of power in his fleet, Gav agreed. He led part of the assault on Cinnagar, but was confronted by Aarrba. When his Massassi bodyguards cut the poor Hutt down, Gav was shocked at the brutality. When he discovered that his sister had witnessed what he had done, he fled in terror to Primus Goluud, hoping to confront Naga Sadow. There he disabled Sadow's meditation sphere, causing the Sith Lord to lose his concentration. The images Sadow had been projecting into his forces dissipated, giving the combined Jedi-Republic forces new hope. Sadow was furious, and tricked Gav into the failing sphere. Gav's distraction allowed the Republic to launch an attack on Sadow's forces, but Sadow used Sith magic to rip apart Primus Goluud. Gav remained in the sphere, providing the Republic fleet with an escape vector to avoid the explosion. He was killed in the disaster. (GAS, FOSE)

Daragon, Hok
this man was the father of Jori and Gav Daragon, and was a successful supply runner for the ancient rebels of the Koros System. Along with his wife, Timar, they made regular supply runs to planets like Kirrek, providing much-needed supplies while turning a tidy profit in their starship, the Shadow Runner. However, on one fateful mission to Kirrek, they were caught in the crossfire of a raging battle between the rebels and the forces of the Old Republic, and were shot down. Before they could land, though, another volley struck their ship and destroyed it, killing them in the explosion. (GAS)

Daragon, Jori
a native of Kirrek, Jori and her brother Gav charted the ancient space lanes for traders and haulers some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. They were orphaned when their parents were killed in the First Unification Wars, and brought up under the watchful eye of Aarrba the Hutt. Like her brother, Jori had some Force sensitivity, but was the weaker of the two siblings. Also like Gav, she never pursued any formal training. The lure of interstellar travel called to Jori and her brother, and they were able to obtain a ship with the help of Aarrba. However, luck was not something the Daragons were endowed with. They were continually in debt to Aarrba, and thought that they had finally broken even when they discovered a risky route known as the Goluud Corridor. They were black-balled by the Navigational Guild and disowned by Aarrba, and tried flee Cinnagar through the Starswarm Cluster, damaging their ship and forcing them to land on Korriban. They were then thrust into the middle of the power struggle between the ancient Sith Lords, who believed they were the advanced scouts of an Old Republic war fleet. Naga Sadow managed to sway her allegiance, and held her on Khar Delba in order to "protect" her from reprisal by the other Sith Lords. Sadow later returned the Starbreaker 12 to her, telling her that Gav was dead and that she needed to return to the Republic before the other Sith Lords launched an attack on the Republic. Sadow then used the information from the Starbreaker 12' navigational computer to gather information on the Old Republic. When she returned to Cinnagar - which was the only destination she had stored in the ship's computer - she was arrested and charged with every conceivable crime in relation to her escape from Cinnagar. No one believed her claims that the Sith Empire was about to attack, and she was shipped off to Ronika as punishment for her crimes. She managed to escape on an ore drone ship, but was shot down over Empress Teta's palace on Cinnagar. Once captured by Teta's guards, Jori produced a Sith amulet she took from Korriban. This persuaded Odan-Urr and Teta to believe her story of an impending Sith attack. She later was reunited with her brother Gav, but only after he and his Massassi warriors had killed Aarba. She tried to talk to him and bring him back from the Dark Side of the Force, but was unsuccessful. She followed him to Primus Goluud, but was unable to rescue him from the failing meditiation sphere he'd taken from Naga Sadow. As Gav provided an escape route from the unstable star, Jori tearfully said goodbye to him as the exploding star consumed him. Later, she stood by Empress Teta's side as they attacked Naga Sadow's forces near the Denarii Nova, in the final act of the Great Hyperspace War. Upon defeating the Sith and returning to Cinnagar, Teta gave Jori the rights to own and operate Aarrba the Hutt's starship repair facility for her assistance in the war. (GAS, FOSE)

Daragon, Timar
this woman was the mother of Jori and Gav Daragon, and was a successful supply runner for the ancient rebels of the Koros System. Along with her husband, Hok, they made regular supply runs to planets like Kirrek, providing much-needed supplies while turning a tidy profit in their starship, the Shadow Runner. However, on one fateful mission to Kirrek, they were caught in the crossfire of a raging battle between the rebels and the forces of the Old Republic, and were shot down. Before they could land, though, another volley struck their ship and destroyed it, killing them in the explosion. (GAS)

Darakin University
this Minos Cluster institution was controlled by the Empire during the New Order. They surgically modified the curriculum, removing courses which encouraged free speech and open debate and replaced them with courses that dealt with Imperial dogma and theory. (GG6)

Darama
this Yevethan term translates to "blessed one," and was often used to describe Nil Spaar during the Yevethan Purge. (SOL)

Darda
this man was a member of the Peace Brigade, and was part of the group which infiltrated the Queen of Empire in order to recover the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan. He and the Rodian, Capo, posed as the contacts Major Showolter was to meet aboard the ship,in order to ensure that Elan was safely transported to Coruscant. They obtained the callsigns required to gain Showolter's confidence, and eve got detailed backstories. Unfortunately for Darda, the information provided to him was old, and he claimed to Major Showolter that he had been working out of Gamorr. Showolter recognized that Darda wasn't a New Republi agent, and shot Darda in the chest. (HT)

Dardris
see Dadrus. (POM)

Dareb
this Imperial pilot was Commander Orvak's wingman. The two pilots were assigned to take out the shield generators protecting the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4, prior to the Shadow Academy's main attack. They flew in specially-modified stealth TIE Fighters, and skimmed in low over the trees to escape detection. When they encountered the small shields protecting the compound, Dareb failed to completely miss the lowest edge of the shield. His craft was damaged and spun out of control, crashing into the jungle and killing Dareb. (JUS)

Darek System
Kirtan Loor found that Rogue Squadron had jumped from this system into the Hensara System when they attempted to rescue the Battle of Yavin. (XWN)

Darepp
this planet was locatde at the intersection of hyperspace lanes known as the Foless Crossroads. (SOL)

Darez Wuht
this Duros served the Duro Defense Force as a Admiral, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Admiral Wuht was known to be sympathetic to the plight of injured military personnel, and was placed in command of the refugee camps on his homeworld of Duro. However, he proved to be incapable of managing the civilian situation. The Ryn who were stranded on Duro took to calling him “Admiral Dizzlewit,” because he continually ignored the refugees. During the defense of Duro, Admiral Wuht took command of his flagship, the Poesy, and attempted to stop any ship which tried to flee the Yuuzhan Vong attack on orders from the Duros Defense Force. However, he realized that the Duros had been deceived by the the combined forces of the Peace Brigade, CorDuro Shipping, and the Yuuzhna Vong, when Mara Jade Skywalker and Jaina Solo revealed the actions of Drugard Brarun and Nom Anor. Wuht quickly reconsidered his position, and joined the New Republic in its fight to save Duro. (BP)

Dargon
an Imperial Dreadnaught attacked by Alliance ships in the Yllotat System. (TIE)

Dargul
Umgul's sister planet, home of Duchess Mistal. The planet's inhabitants mate for life. (DA)

Dargul Dianogas
this was one of the many shockball teams active during the height of the New Order. (SSR)

Darian Gli
the Markul contact Melvosh Bloor was supposed to meet inside Jabba the Hutt's palace on Tatooine. Salacious Crumb used Bloor's lack of knowledge of Gli to lead Bloor into thinking that Crumb was his contact. Gli was working for the Lady Valarian at the time, although Bloor never found him. Gli had previously helped Ra Yasht and Skarten research their academic paper on Porcellus the cook. When Jabba discovered Gli's assistance to the two academics, he had Gli killed and served up as dinner. (TJP)

Darillian, Zurel
this Imperial Navy Captain was a native of Coruscant. The house that he and his wife lived in was destroyed when Ysanne Isard extricated the Lusankya from its underground berth, and his wife died in the destruction. He was the Captain of the corvette Night Caller until the ship was infiltrated by Wraith Squadron. When Voort saBinring tried to disrupt the crew quarters by blasting them with a laser bolt, he was firing into what was actually the bridge because the of the ship's extensive modification from normal CR90 specifications. The laser blast ripped through the bridge, killing Darillian and plastering his remains on the ceiling of the bridge. The rest of the crew was so stunned, they could not mount a defense against the Gamorrean and surrendered. Garik "Face" Loran then assumed the identity of Darillian while the Wraiths continued to answer Zsinj's orders. He embellished the story of Darillian's wife's death by claiming that Darillian was actually in love with Isard. (WS)

Darius Squad
this group of Alliance troopers was part of the security force protecting the outpost on the planet Taul, shortly before it was destroyed by the Victory-class Star Destroyer Dominator. (SWJ1)

Dark Book of Imperial Justice
a book used by Trioculus to learn the laws of the Empire, he selects a passage from it for his wedding to Princess Leia. (QE)

Dark Eye
this was the name used to describe the small, black patrol droids used by the Sith shortly before the Clone Wars. Each eye had a pair of camera lenses and a communications package, along with a compact repulsor drive. Weaponry could be mounted in a number of configurations. In many respects, the Sith dark eye was a predecessor to the Imperial probe droid used during the Galactic Civil War. In addition to the basic probe droid package, the dark eye was plated with energy-absorbing stealth armor, which allowed it evade most sensor scans. (SW1, IG1)

Dark Grahn
one of the galaxy's most notorious mercenary leaders. (GMS)

Dark Jedi
term used to refer to those Jedi Knights who have fallen from the Light Side and become seduced by the power and ease of the Dark Side of the Force. Many of them were Sith masters as well, drawing strength from both sets of lore. (DLS, DE1, HTTE, TLC)

Dark Lizard
a three-meter-long reptile which was corrupted by the Dark Side nexus on the planet Trinta. Unlike the dreambeasts of Halagad Ventor, the dark lizard caused real physical damage when it attacked. (DOE)

Dark Lord of Beldarone
the title used by Flint after his training under Darth Vader. (EGC)

Dark Lords of the Sith
any of the most powerful students of the Sith teachings were candidates to become Dark Lords of the Sith, the equivalent of an all-powerful Jedi Master. The original Dark Lords descended from true Jedi Knights many millennia before the Great Sith War. They were cast out for their forays into the use of Dark Side magic, and exiled on the planet Korriban. There, they interbred with the native Sith race, growing stronger and more powerful as a result of the genetic combination. They expanded their realm into several nearby systems, and individual factions grew out of the isolation. The laws of the Sith dictate that only one Dark Lord can rule at any time. A ritual of ascension was performed, with the candidate being subjected to the bites of three deadly insectoids. If the candidate survived - through the use of intense Sith magic - they were declared the next Dark Lord of the Sith. They were forever marked by the bites, with a flaming sun scar on their forehead. Naga Sadow was one of the first Dark Lords to break away from the established ascension rituals, claiming himself Dark Lord after the death of Marka Ragnos without the consent of the other ruling Lords. Several centuries later, Freedon Nadd was unlucky enough to begin learning the Sith teaching under a young Dark Lord, and yearned to take the position from him. It is for this reason that Nadd went to Onderon. The ancient remains of the Dark Lords before Exar Kun were entombed on Korriban. Darth Vader is thought to have been the last of the Dark Lords. (SW, TOJ, DLS, TSW, GAS)

Dark Nebula
this Imperial Star Destroyer once tried to blockade the planet Ergeshui. (PG2)

Dark Nova
this low-price, low-class bar was located on the southern continent of the planet Marotan. (SWJ12)

Dark Revenge
this modified Corellian gunship was Dharus' command vessel. It was heavily armed, and once defeated an Imperial Star Galleon-class warship. (GG9)

Dark Riders, The
this swoop gang was formed by Lieutenant Irlyn Resk on Stend VI, in response to the government's request for assistance in suppressing the violence of other swoop gangs. The Empire funded the recruiting of a team of Storm Commandos for the group. They traveled on modified Ikas-Adno XR-10 speederbikes, and patrolled the major urban areas in an effort to reduce swoop gang violence. (WSV)

Dark Side Adepts
the reborn Emperor's New Imperial Council is made up of several of his fellow Dark Side followers. These individuals are known as the Dark Side Adepts, and they served the reborn Emperor in many ways. He planned to have them dispersed throughout the galaxy, to spread his new regime. (DE1)

Dark Side Compendium
the reborn Emperor's book of Dark Side lore, it was supposed to have hundreds of volumes when completed. Only 3 volumes completed when the reborn Emperor was defeated by Luke Skywalker. (DE1)

Dark Side Dragon
see Hssiss. (TOJ, TOJC)

Dark Side Familiar
any creature which has a basic touch with the Dark Side of the Force but is too limited to use it, these beasts often accompany those beings who wish to use the Dark Side of the Force in some way. A powerful Sith Lord could have a familiar, as could a lowly crime lord. The familiar acts as a channel for the Dark Side energies. (TOJ)

Dark Side of the Force
The Force, being an energy field, has opposing sides which normally balance each other. The Dark Side of the Force is the more seductive of the two, for its power and strength are easily obtained by the apprentice. However, the Dark Side is a cruel master, for in return for its ease of initiation, it continually drains its servants' life-energy. Among the highest achievements in the mastery of the Dark Side is the succession from student to master. While this is also true of the Light Side, the Dark Side requires that the student utterly destroy his master to prove his abilities. (SW, ROTJ, SWJ8)

Dark Side Nexus
any point in the spatial continuum that contains a great deal of Dark Side energy. These places were often guarded by Jedi Knights, so that the energies did not seduce passersby. Such a nexus was located on Dagobah, and Yoda forced Luke Skywalker into it, to confront his heritage. (DESB)

Dark Skinwing
a modification of the natural skinwing of Trinta, the dark skinwing was corrupted by the Dark Side nexus on the planet. (DOE)

Dark Star Hellions
a notorious swoop gang operating in the Outer Rim Territories, the Dark Star Hellions were named for the Moshaw Dark Star found in Sesswenna Sector. They were known to raid a planet over a period of several days before returning to their home base. (DFRSB, PP)

Dark Tongue
an alien creature native to the planet Trinta, the dark tongue was a huge, black lizard which had been corrupted by the Dark Side of the Force. It was named for its dark black tongue, and it had a mouth filled with stiletto-like teeth. (DOE)

Dark Vendetta
this modified HT-2200 freighter served as the based of operations for the Tarnished Blades pirates. It was armed with a pair of pulse laser cannons, a pair of quad laser cannons, and a light ion cannon. It was supported on its missions by a pair of Preybird-class fighters. (FOP)

Dark Warriors
see Taung (SES)

Dark Wing
this was the name of the small pirate fleet established by Abin-Ral-Xufush during the New Order. It consisted of a bulk cruiser, three CR90 corvettes, and 20 assorted starfighters. Their ultimate goals were never known, but they had several tactics which made them stand out. They almost always freed the crews of the ships they attacked, unless the crew resisted capture. Then Abin-Ral-Xufush ordered his pirates to execute them immediately. Slave cargoes were always stolen by the Dark Wing fleet, although they were never seen again. Many believed the slaves were absorbed into the pirate fleet's crew. (PP)

Dark Wolf
this is a ferocious, nocturnal beast found on the planet Sriluur. Some Weequays have been known to tame one, and they are considered among the strongest of their kind. (AIR)

Dark Woman
this mysterious Jedi Master discovered the existence of Ki-Adi-Mundi when the Cerean was four years of age. Despite his age, she was able to convice the Jedi Council to train him, and he was eventually schooled by Yoda himself. The Dark Woman was also known for her inability to train Aurra Sing. Through no fault of her own, the Dark Woman could not get the future bounty hunter to become attuned to the Force. The Dark Woman was distinguished by her silvery hair and strong features. She visited Ki-Adi-Mundi on Coruscant, just before he left for Tatooine to seek out Sharad Hett, to warn him of the dangers she had forseen. (PTR, IG1, SWO)

Darkfire
Flandon Sweeg's starship. (SWSB)

Darkknell
this backwater world was the site of an intense struggle to recover the plans to the first Death Star. It was here, in the city of Xakrea, that Garm Bel Iblis managed to beat Ysanne Isard in a race to locate the stolen datacards. (TFNR)

Darkknell Defense Agency
this was the primary police force which protected the planet Darkknell during the height of the New Order. Their vehicles were painted red and white, in an obvious pattern to denote their location. (TFNR)

Darkknell Special Security
a branch of the Darkknell Defense Agency, Special Security dealt with undercover operations and other missions that required stealth. (TFNR)

Darkkoninn
the berries of this plant, native to the planet Gorsh, were highly poisonous to most humanoid species. (PG1)

Darklighter
one of the survivors of the Battle of Hoth, Darklighter was evacuated on the Bright Hope. (TBH)

Darklighter, Biggs
a boyhood friend of Luke Skywalker's on Tatooine, Biggs was born into a wealthy family of food merchants on Tatooine. His father gave him everything he wanted, except love, and Biggs struggled to fit in with the other young adults at Anchorhead. He became good friends with Luke Skywalker, however, when Luke saw through the rich-boy image to the real person inside Biggs. When Biggs' father's position and wealth provided a chance for him to attend the Academy, Biggs was hardly in a position to decline. He said goodbye to his friends and went off to the Academy, graduating with honors receiving a commission aboard the Rand Ecliptic. Biggs served under the Evader squadron aboard the Ecliptic, along with Hobbie Klivian, under Captain Heliesk. Both of them had contact with the Alliance, and helped Biggs became aware of the atrocities of the Empire. After a brief stop-over on Tatooine to say goodbye to Luke and his other friends, Biggs, Hobbie, and some others mutinied at Bestine and jumped ship to join the Alliance, with the help of Captain Heliesk. When the time came to do battle with the Empire at Yavin, Biggs was named one of the X-wing pilots in Red Squadron. On Yavin 4, he was reunited with Luke just prior to the battle. In the Alliance's final run at the Death Star's polar trench, Biggs was killed while protecting Luke's back from the onrushing Imperial TIE Fighters. Biggs is portrayed by Garrick Hagon in Star Wars*., and by Kale Browne for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio.* (SW, SWR, MTS, CCG)

Darklighter, Gavin
a native of Tatooine, he was a member of Rogue Squadron. He was a cousin of Biggs Darklighter. He was only sixteen when Wedge Antilles suggested that he be allowed to join. He was responsible for creating the emblem of Rogue Squadron, which featured a twelve-pointed, red star surrounding the blue symbol of the Alliance. Radiating from the points of the star were X-Wing fighters. When the Squadron resigned its commission with the New Republic after the liberation of Coruscant, he painted his X-Wing to resemble a krayt dragon. As the Rogues liberated Ciruscant, Gavin found himself drawn to the Bothan pilot, Asyr Sei'lar, and they became romantically involved. Their relationship was nearly shattered when Gavin's X-Wing was damaged during the capture of the Xucphra Alazhi. He limped to Halanit, only to have the Corrupter and the Thyferran Home Defense Corps track the colony down. Erisi Dlarit made him believe it was his own flight that led the Imperials to Halanit, but it was really Ysanne Isard tracing the shipment of bacta to its source. Gavin assisted the settlers as much as he could, but he was unable to stop the destruction of their outpost. After several more battles and as their relationship deepened, Gavin and Asyr decided to get married and adopt children. Unbeknownst to Gavin, Asyr was blocked in her attempt to locate a Bothan child by Borsk Fey'lya. She resolved to bring about change to the Bothan society, but was unsure how to do it. When she collided with an enmy fighter over Corvis Minor Five, everyone believed she was dead, including Gavin. He mourned her deeply, but resolved himself to continue her noble ways. He was unaware that she survived the crash, but that was Asyr's wish. In the years that followed, Gavin grew more and more into a capable leader. Gavin eventually married Sera Faleur, and the couple adopted two boys who had been orphaned by the campaign against Grand Admiral Thrawn. Later, the couple gave birth to a daughter, a third son, and eventually a second daughter. Shortly after the birth of his second daughter, Gavin was chosen to succeed Wedge Antilles and Tycho Celchu as Commander of Rogue Squadronsome twenty years after the Battle of Endor, and was in command of the squadron when the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy began. (XWN, KT, BW, IR, DTO)

Darklighter, Huff
Biggs Barklighter's father, Huff owned dozens of moisture farms on Tatooine, and bought water from other farmers at cut-rate prices. Some of the water he used in his own hydroponics facilities, while most was sold to other settlers at a high profit. He used his ability to locate water to become one of the planet's largest food magnates. In turn, he used his wealth to make sure Biggs got everything he deserved from life. Huff was not above bribing the local officials - both terrestrial and Imperial - to maintain his stature. He held his son in highest regard, and truly believed that Biggs was the only hero of the Battle of Yavin. Huff went so far as to say that Wedge Antilles was less than a hero for leaving the battle, despite the fact that Wedge was ordered out by Luke Skywalker. Huff tried to obtain ownership of the Lars moisture farm on Tatooine by initiating an alien landowner tax. The tax was geared toward breaking the alien Throgg's financial reserves, but Gavin's father intervened and bought the farm before Huff could enforce the tax. Huff's dealings with the Imperial prefect on Tatooine allowed him a greater latitude in his dealings, and he worked hard to keep his competition at bay. However, Huff wasn't perfect. He was tricked and swindled by Lirin Banolt, but managed to obtain an Imperial data disk containing information on the Eidolon Base weapons cache. The plans were stolen from his residence, but were eventually recovered by Rogue Squadron. The Essential Guide to Characters lists Huff's name as Hutt. (MTS, EGC, XWN, XWBT)

Darklighter, Jula
Gavin Darklighter's father and Huff Darklighter's brother, Jula was almost a twin to Huff in facial appearance. Jula, however, was a hands-on farmer who lacked the corpulence of wealth, and he did not have a moustache. He was unusually composed and restrained when in the company of Huff's lack of manners. (BW)

Darklighter, Laval
Huff Darklighter's third wife, she was Gavin Darklighter's aunt in two ways. She was actually his mother's sister, and married to his uncle. After Biggs' death, Huff wanted to make sure that he had heirs. Biggs' mother died shortly after he was born, and Huff's second wife didn't want any children. Laval, though, bore three children for Huff. (BW)

Darklighter, Rasca
this woman was Gavin Darklighter's sister. She opposed the military build-up created by the Bothans in the wake of the death of Thrawn and the Caamasi Incident. Her distaste for war and the military rose primarily from the fact that her husband had been killed during the battle against the Yevetha. She took her children and moved in with Gavin, originally just until they got their lives back together, However, Gavin and his wife Sera Faleur allowed them to remain as long as they wished. (DTO)

Darklighter, Silya
Jula Darklighter's wife, Silya was the sister of Laval Darklighter. They had similar appearances, but Silya was much more doting to her sons, especially Gavin. (BW)

Darklighter, Trepler
this member of the Darklighter family of Tatooine owned and operated Docking Bay 86 at the Mos Eisley Spaceport. (GG7)

Darklighter Spin
named for, and developed by, Biggs Darklighter, this X-Wing maneuver was proven effective at the Battle of Yavin. By putting the X-Wing into a spin about the axis of the fuselage while firing all four lasers at once, Biggs found that a pilot could take out multiple targets on a single strafing run. (CCG9)

Darkmere, Colin
a New Republic Intelligence officer, Brigadier Darkmere was placed in charge of discovering any and all information about the Emperor's World Devastators. (DESB)

Darkmere, Evram
a native of Daupherm, this man was the son of a notorious female pirate, and was forced to raise himself and his younger brother, Garreck, when their mother was killed in a battle between the Daupherm Planet States and the Botor Enclave. Evram was conscripted into the Daupherm Merchant Space Fleet, and rose from being a cabin boy to an officer before being drafted by the Daupherm military. After his five-year tour of duty was up, he assisted his former Captain, Shrulldike, in stealing a Daupherm cruiser and setting out on their own. They named their new ship the Retribution and planned to become smugglers, but Shrulldike eventually turned to running slaves for a living. Darkmere chafed at this course of action, and eventually defeated Shrulldike in combat to take control of the ship.

Evram decided to challenge Shrulldike after meeting Nelson Flin and Arsitta Kushoe. Kushoe convinced Evram to support the Alliance, and he found himself unable to continue running slaves. He reformed his crew, and began more respectable cargoes. He also passed on important information to Nelson Flin and the Alliance, using his underworld contacts to gather data on Imperial movements in the sector. (CRO)

Darkmere, Garreck
this young man was Evram Darkmere's younger brother. Garreck was forced to live in orphanages after their mother's death, being too young to be conscripted into the military. (CRO)

Darkness on the Land
a song written and played by Annadale Fayde. It was first released as part of a compilation of the same name, and has been rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Darkon III
this planet was used as a stopover point by Dannen Lifehold, during his travels between Evas VI and Dohu. (SWJ1)

Darksaber
the name given to the modified Death Star design created by Bevel Lemelisk for Durga tha Hutt, the Darksaber station was an elongated version of the original. Durga used his pet taurills to help steal the plans from the original Death Star from the hidden computer files that were maintained by the New Republic on Coruscant. The Darksaber station was stripped of a number of unnecessary items, including TIE fighter hangers, crew quarters, AT-AT storage, and docking bays. Lemelisk rightly believed that Durga had no need of these; he just needed a superweapon with which to control the galaxy. The rounded cylinder of the Darksaber housed a longer, more powerful superlaser, which drew increased power from the station's existing generators simply because they didn't have to support all of the other systems. The superlaser was aligned along the longer axis of the station (much the way Umak Leth mounted the superlaser on the Eclipse-class Star Destroyer), and when activated the entire station and its beam resembled a huge, spaceborne lightsaber. Thus, Lemelisk dubbed the station "Darksaber." The Darksaber was constructed with the materials collected by the Orko SkyMine ships Durga had built. The living spaces of the station were designed to house hundreds of Hutts and their retinues. The project was beset with mishaps, due to the frugality of Durga, the ineptness of Sulamar, and the distractibility of the taurills who did the construction. Only Lemelisk's persistence kept it moving. However, when Durga finally took control of the ship, his frugality got the best of him. The station never made it out of the Hoth asteroid belt, as its superlaser failed to punch a path through the space rubble. The Darksaber was crushed between two huge planetoids and exploded. (DS)

Darkstick
this Kerestian weapon resembles a flat piece of metal about two centimeters thick, seven centimeters wide, and fifteen centimeters long. One end is rounded, the other is squared off. This part of the weapon is the handle, and has a power stud located about midway along its length. When depressed, the stud activates the weapon, extruding a pure black blade of light that bends slightly as it projects outward. The activated weapon resembles a boomerang, and can be wielded in the hand or thrown. The deep black blade will cut through most any material, making it difficult to catch when thrown. (GG12)

DarkStryder
this unusual form of technology was discovered in the Kathol Rift by Kentor Sarne, but he had no idea how it worked or what it did. He spent Imperial resources - without reporting their true mission - trying to determine the operation of various pieces of DarkStryder technology, but teams of scientists and technicians were still unable to fathom its use. (DARK, KR)

DarkStryder Fire Creature
this unusual apparition was formed by a piece of the DarkStryder technology, and resembled a living cone of flame. It could reach sizes of twenty meters in height, and was controlled by what appeared to be a coil of metallic cord. The bounty hunter Mist obtained control of the DarkStryder device, and attempted to use the fire creature against the crew of the FarStar. (KR)

Darktroopers
1) elite stormtrooper squads assigned to Operation Shadow Hand, they had been specially trained to use the Dark Side of the Force (DE2)
2) the creation of Imperial Admiral Rom Mohc, the Dark Troopers were specially-enhanced stormtroopers. There were three stages of darktrooper development. Stage 1 involved the troopers wearing just the protective exoskeleton, equipped with knife-like armor and an arm-mounted personal shield generator. Stage 2 darktroopers wore the same exoskeleton, but were armed with assault cannons and rocket packs. Stage 3 darktroopers were never fully developed. Rom Mohc was the only known user of the Stage 3 design, which incorporated enhanced shields. (DF)

Darktrooper Team Two squadron assigned to search Shug Ninx's starship garage and discover information on the Millennium Falcon. (DE2)

Darkwoode
this species of tree grew to immense sizes, populating lish jungles. (WSV)

Darlen
this woman was a native of Alderaan. She was part of a group of Alderaanians who traveled to Yavin 4, following the destruction of the first Death Star, to meet with Princess Leia Organa. She was extremely loyal to Leia, and was adamant about restoring the memory of Alderaan. Leia later learned that Darlen was romantically involved with Tolok, and they implicated in the theft of computer data from the Massassi Base. (IS)

Darlyn Boda
this planet is known for its criminal underworld. The droid 4-LOM sold the Ankarres Sapphire to a fence on this world. Later, the droid and his companion, Zuckuss, brought the ninety survivors of the Bright Hope to the Alliance underground on the planet. Darlyn Boda is a damp, swampy world covered with dark, muddy forests. During the New Order, the planet was controlled by the Empire but had a strong Alliance cell working within the underground. (TBH)

Darm, Umolly
this Newcomer lived in Ruby Gulch, on the planet Nam Chorios, and was one of the freedom fighters aligned with Seti Ashgad against the Oldtimers and Therans. She had a small affinity for the Force, and was quite successful in locating Spook crystals. This made her a valuable part of Dzym's plans. It was Umolly that helped Luke Skywalker verify that Callista had indeed arrived on Nam Chorios. (POT)

Darmic, Maranne
Haber Trell's partner, she served as the co-pilot aboard the Hopskip. Born on Coruscant, she was the daughter of Dreja Darmic, and developed her love of starships while watching him work on Imperial ships. After his arrest, she fled Coruscant aboard the Hopskip, and developed a friendship with Haber Trell. In the two years before the Battle of Yavin, she and Haber began secretly supporting the flesgling Alliance. (TFE, SWJ12)

Darna
a Yevethan term for 'retinue' or 'close followers.' (BTS)

Darnov
this senior Alliance officer posed as Bria Lavval's – a.k.a. Bria Tharen – manager, Renkov, when she traveled aboard the Queen of Empire. He was killed by Boba Fett when the bounty hunter laid his trap for Bria. (RD)

Darpa Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Core worlds. (SWAJ)

Darpa SectorNet
this is the primary news agency of Darpa Sector, and was pro-Imperial in bias during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ9)

Darpen, Tomer
this man, a native of the planet Commenor, served the New Republic as a councilor and liaison to new worlds. Prior to being a diplomat, Darpen served with the Tierfon Yellow Aces, but his skills as a pilot were minimal. He was always running sabacc games and selling liquor, but never seemed to do anything truly illegal. He was given the nickname "Ejector" by his squadron-mates, including Wes Janson, during a mission on a low-gravity moon. Darpen's Y-Wing was shot up and had lost most of its flight controls, but he managed to land it on the ground. When the fighter came to a stop after rolling several times, the ejector seat on the Y-Wing finally activated, sending Darpen into space. The moon's low gravity couldn't hold him, and he achieved escape velocity and had to be rescued by a shuttle. He was given the honorary rank of Ace for surviving the crash. Starfighter Command gave him the opportunity to look elsewhere for a role, and he was tapped by the Diplomatic Corps. Upon the discovery of the world of Adumar, Darpen was selected to be the liaison between the Adumari government and the New Republic diplomat to Adumar, which turned out to be Wedge Antilles. However, Darpen was operating on his own agenda, rather than that of the New Republic, when he started dealing with the Adumari. Darpen wanted to ensure that the planet and its people joined the New Republic at any cost, rather than assessing the pros and cons of their admission. When the Adumari opened up negotiations to both the Republic and the Empire, Darpen was forced even further from New Republic policies in order to gain the trust of the Adumari. When Wedge refused to play by the Adumari rules and shoot down every pilot who challenged him, Darpen became furious. When Wedge's tactics of using low-powered lasers in starfighter combat - allowing the Adumari to learn from their mistakes, and starting to modify the Adumari mindset - Darpen became irate. Darpen began working with the perator of Cartann, Pekaelic ke Teldan, to establish a world government, but pushed the perator down a path which had Cartann as the center of the government. He urged the perator to take control of the planet, with out without the consent of the other nations. Wedge opposed this new form of government, adn refused to abide by Darpen's rules. Darpen then told the perator of Cartann that Wedge was acting on his own, and was no longer worthy of consideration. The perator ordered Wedge's execution, which forced Wedge and the other pilots with him to flee to the Yedagon Confederacy in order to prepare for the war Darpen had instigated. In the end, Hallis Saper revealed that she had evidence of Darpen's schemes, which forced the perator of Cartann to re-evaluate his position. Unable to face the dishonor he had perpetrated at Darpen's insistent, the perator abdicated in favor of his son, who promised to implement a fairer model of world government. Darpen was arrested by New Republic Intelligence agents and imprisoned for his treachery. (SOA)

Darpheon
this was one of the many city-states found on the planet Yarrv. It wsa ruled by Baron Karin during the Galactic Civil War. (GMS)

Darr, Hanos
this miner was part of the group which traveled to the rubble left behind after the destruction of the planet Alderaan, several months after the Battle of Yavin, in an effort to locate ores. Darr was also one of the few beings who "saw" the Royal Palace of Alderaan hidden in the asteroids, and when he realized that it was just a story meant to lure Leia Organa back to Alderaan, Darr decided to warn the Alliance. He and Zaz Haqmiroz managed to get aboard the herdship Bazaar and transmit a message. However, before he could deliver the message, Darr was killed by the assassin droid XS3. Before he died, he passed on Hamiroz's name to a team of Alliance agents. (GA)

Darr, Horzao
this man was the Captain of the Sky-Dreadnaught Maxion, serving in the Exocron Airfleet. His career started when he was twelve, after stowing away on a sky transport. He was discovered, and was indentured to the ship's captain to pay for his passage. After graduation from the Airfleet's academy, he commanded the relief ship Loristar during several key supply runs during the unification wars that rolled through Exocron. His valor and command skills earned him the appointment to the Maxion, and many feel that he would be the best candidate for the supreme commander of the Airfleet. However, Darr resisted any promotion that meant he would not be able to command a ship. (KO)

Darrik
this youth was a native of the planet Brentaal, although he longed to break out of his life of luxury and see the galaxy. One of many sons of a wealthy shipping family, his early childhood was spent herding his siblings and cousins to their classes at the Brentaal Commerce Academy. When he finally couldn't stand it any longer, sometime after the Battle of Yavin, he stowed away aboard Platt Okeefe's Last Chance and ended up on Cloud City. Platt believed he was a spy for either the Imperial Security Bureau or BoSS, but eventually came to believe Darrik's story. She agreed to help a fellow native of Brentaal in exchange for his labors. In return, Darrik became something of an apprentice. While on Cloud City, Darrik was able to shoot the Rodian bounty hunter Tolga before he could kill Platt, earning her trust and admiration. The pair then defeated Beylyssa before traveling to Tatooine to meet up with Tru'eb Cholakk. It was Darrik's quick thinking that helped them free Tru'eb from Major Birket, allowing them to complete their deal with Tharrand. Platt agreed to keep Darrik on as an apprentice. (IDC)

Darrin Arkanian
this Sullustan Jedi Knight was an idealist and a dreamer. He cherished life above all else, and strove to be a model of peace and contemplation. When Emperor Palpatine began hunting down the Jedi, Arkanian went into hiding, and took Corwin Shelvay as an apprentice. They were branded as outlaws and fugitives, and they roamed the Outer Rim in searching of surviving Jedi Knights. When Corwin was captured by High Inquisitor Tremayne, Arkanian infiltrated Coruscant to rescue his student. He was caught by Tremayne, and they engaged in a lightsaber duel. Arkanian lost, and was fatally injured before Shelvay could rescue him. Arkanian died a few days after they escaped from Coruscant. (GG9)

Darron, Vict
this former Imperial Navy officer threw in his lot with Delak Krennel, when Krennel fled Imperial service and took control of the Ciutric Hegemony. Commander Darron was given command of the Direption in order to secure the borders of the Hegemony, but on the condition that he raze the village on Liinade III which the ship's former commander, Captain Rensen, refused to destroy. Darron believed that the loss of life was as vile as Rensen did, and arranged for the inhabitants to evacuate the village before the bombardment occurred. Darron managed to survive Krennel's wrath by explaining to Krennel that the dishomed villagers would do more to spread the word of Krennel's supremacy than dead villagers would. In a twist of fate, Krennel dispatched Darron and the Direption to protect Liinade III from attack by the New Republic, when the clone of Ysanne Isard warned him of the attack. Krennel's forces, under Darron's command, nearly defeated the New Republic's fleet until the Freedom arrived to save the Republic fleet. Darron was forced to surrender or lose his ships. (IR)

Darsie
this was the name of a backwater world. (MJEH)

Darsk Ristel
Corran Horn's alias when he infiltrated Coruscant as part of Rogue Squadron, Darsk Ristel was a Kuati telbun owned by Ris Darsk. (WG)

Dartessex IV
a planet. (GG10)

Darth Bane
this ancient Sith Lord was the last of his kind to survive the catastrophic struggle that consumed his order, some 2,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Recognizing that the Sith order was doomed to fail if it became too large, Bane waited until all the other Sith were destroyed by their brethren or the Jedi Knights, then established a set of rules that were dominated by the pretense that there could only be two Sith active in the galaxy at any time: a Master and an apprentice. Eventually, Bane took his own apprentice, and set his new order in motion. Future Sith Lords were taught the virtues of patience, planning, and secrecy. (TPM)

Darth Maul
this Sith Dark Lord was the apprentice of Darth Sidious, the mysterious force behind the Trade Federation’s blockade of Naboo. Sidious explained to Maul that he found him as a baby on the planet Iridonia, and took him in when his parents disappeared. Note that issue seven of Star Wars Kids magazine claims that the Zabrak are from Iridonia. This leads one to believe that Darth Maul was a member of one of the races of Zabrak. Over the years, Sidious discovered that Maul's inner self was full of anger and fury, and trained the youth in the ways of the Sith. Sidious used sensory deprivation and other unusual punishments to harden Maul's anger into a solid core that grew strogner when it touched the Dark Side of the Force. Maul was a student of the Dark Side of the Force, and wielded a two-bladed lightsaber much like Exar Kun did some 3,950 years earlier. Maul’s lightsaber was actually two lightsabers fused together. Each had its own separate components, allowing him to use a single blade if the weapon became damaged. Darth Maul was obvious by his heavily tattooed, horn-studded face, piercing yellow eyes, and rotting teeth. Sidious dispatched Maul when he learned from the Neimoidians that two Jedi Knights had been dispatched to negotiate a settlement to the blockade. When the Jedi – Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi – fled with Queen Amidala to Tatooine, Darth Maul followed at a safe distance. He nearly defeated Qui-Gon, but was unable to control him before they fled for Coruscant. Not to be outdone, Sidious then sent Maul to capture them on Naboo. There, while Queen Amidala’s forces attempted to capture Nute Gunray, Darth Maul confronted both Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon in the Theed palace’s power generation station. In a fierce battle, the three swordsman battled to a draw before they were separated by the station's laser defense systems. When the defenses dropped, Maul and Qui-Gon were left alone to battle, and the Sith Lord defeated the Jedi with a quick jab of his blade. However, his victory was short-lived. When Obi-Wan was able to escape the laser system, he attacked with a renewed sense of purpose. His exuberence nearly cost him his life, when Darth Maul forced the young Jedi over the edge of a power shaft. Obi-Wan recovered and, using the Force to recover Qui-Gon's lightsaber, caught Maul off-guard. The Jedi sliced his lightsaber through Maul's midsection. The fatally injured Sith Lord toppled into the shaft and was lost forever. Darth Maul was acted by Ray Park and voiced by Peter Serafinowicz in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1, JDM, SWK)

Darth Sidious
this Dark Lord of the Sith was the driving force behind the Trade Federation, during the time it tried to subjugate the world of Naboo. He had control of specific elements of the Galactic Senate, and put in motion an intricate set of schemes to take control of the galaxy. He had trained his apprentice, Darth Maul, and was ready to bring his plans to fruition when Chancellor Valorum dispatched two Jedi Knights to Naboo to negotiate a settlement. Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi thwarted his initial plans, and forced him to send Darth Maul after the pair. Meanwhile, Sidious continued to manipulate the Neimoidians, pushing the situation at Naboo as far as he could. When Queen Amidala returned to Naboo to deal with the situation herself, Sidious saw his carefully laid plans fall apart as the Neimoidians were defeated and the planet freed of its blockade, and Darth Maul was killed in battle by Obi-Wan Kenobi. (SW1)

Dartibek System
the planetary system which contains Moltok. (GG4)

Dartshooter
a small, handheld weapon which shoots a small dart at its target. The dart can be modified to hold tranquilizers or poison, adding to its effectiveness. (HSL)

Darv, Lenri
this Imperial customs inspection officer was one of the more corrupt of his kind. He readily accepted bribes to look the other way and allow illegal cargoes to pass through his station. (GMH)

Darven, Kade
this stocky, cigar-smoking man was a New Republic infiltration agent dispatched to Seikosha when it was learned that the Empire was trying to establish a presence on the planet, shortly after the Battle of Endor. He established a number of friendly relationships with the Seikoshans, and agreed to help them rid their planet of the Empire and the criminal element which had taken control of it. He greatly wanted to obtain the droid R1-T4 and provide its memory banks to the New Republic. In the end, the smugglers who brought the droid to Seikosha helped Darven recover it before it could fall into enemy hands. (POC)

Darvis
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. Darvis was based on Mrlsst. (SWJ13)

DAS-430
this is a model of Mennotor electromagnetic projectile launcher. It is similar in design to the basic stormtrooper blaster, except that it fires projectiles instead of blaster bolts. The projectiles can be modified in many ways, to contain explosives or toxins. (CCG3)

Dasadar
the Ysanna word for anyone who uses the Dark Side of the Force. (DE2)

Dasha Defano
one of the many gunners who served aboard the FarStar. A Wroonian, she was close friends with Ranna Gorjaye and Thanis Gul-Rah during the hunt for Moff Sarne. She believed that her relationship with Thanis was more romantic than it actually was. (KO, KR)

Dashade
this race of reptilian humanoids had smooth, dark skin and hairless heads. Their lipless mouths with filled with large, sharp teeth, and they had beady eyes. The Dashade were native to the planet Urkupp, and were believed to have died out some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin when the Cron System was destroyed in the Great Sith War. An ancient Falleen, who had 38 Dashade enforcers in his employment, cryogenically froze them for later use. One of the Dashade was revived each century or so, and put to use. The last known Dashade from this group was the shadow killer Ket Maliss. (SSR)

Daslkehnt
a planet. (GG11)

Dassid
son of the great Duro Queen Rana. He wore a golden crown. When he died, the crown was implanted with a device which would kill any person trying to steal the crown from Dassid's gravesite. Dustini accidentally activated the anti-tampering device on Dagobah, while trying to gain the Alliance's help in defeating the Empire. (MMY)

Dassid Cree'ar
this Duro was a noted plant geneticist, and was part of the team assembled by the New Republic to assist in the restoration of the natrual environment of the planet Duro, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. His team worked with other groups, notably Doctor Williwalt's, to create bacterial sludges which ingested the foul water and soil of Duro and converted it to clean organic matter. His teams had also created six miniature ecosystes on the planet's surface, forming the first arable land on Duro since the planet was abandoned. Doctor Cree'ar himself, however, never attended Leia Organa-Solo's staff meetings, instead submitting his reports beforehand for her perusal. His fellow scientists grew weary of his continual absenteeism, despite the fact that his work was progressing ahead of schedule. It was later revealed that Doctor Cree'ar was, in fact, the Yuuzhan Vong agent Nom Anor, who had been wearing the gablith masquer in order to imitate a Duros. Nom Anor used bio-engineered organisms of his own shaping to provide him with results, as well as creating a series of tunnels and cave beneath the planet's surface for his own private laboratory. (BP)

Dast, Ravallian
this woman was a bounty hunter who took only illegal assignments. She believed that the Empire was an illegal and immoral government, and refused to be bound by the laws of the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations. Dast also worked for the Alliance, although she expected to be paid for her work. (GG10)

Data Board
a larger, binder-sized version of a data pad. (JS)

Data Books
this small shop, located on the Ithorian herdship Bazaar, provided travelers with access to a wide range of current best-sellers and classic literature. (GA)

Data Card
a credit card-sized information system which each individual in the galaxy must have. It contains the individual's name and home location, certain biological and historical data, and an individual's net worth in credits. (HTTE)

Data Compiler
this is part of a life-form detector. It uses a small, hand-switch to manipulate incoming data, allowing the user of the detector to scan for certain forms of life or a wide scan. (CFG)

Data Cube
similar to the technology of a Holocron, the datacube is a cube-shaped information storage and retrieval device. (TME)

Data Pad
a small, often hand-held device which is used as a remote data collection system. The user can enter information into the data pad's memory, and can then either remotaly transmit it to a central computer, or hook it directly to the central computer for download at a later time. (HTTE)

Data Plaque
another name for a data card. (HSE)

Data Wafer
another name for a data card. (COJ)

Data-Sifter
this droid programming package was produced by Industrial Automaton, for use in the AG9 series of droids. (TBSB)

Datadot
a small, round memory chip that is easily concealed. (TME)

Datagoggles
developed by the Neimoidians, these goggles could be connected directly to the user's eyes, providing constant streams of visual data. They were often used by the pilots of control ships. (IWE1)

DataLine Press
this publisher was authorized to print material about the New Order using specialized datapad formats. (GG9)

Datar
a planet which has three moons, Datar is the forested homeworld of the Ghostling race. The Alliance was ambushed here by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance team fought valliantly, having been warned of the invasion by detecting the Imperial fleet early enough. They defeated the Imperials and escaped. (TME, E1A5)

Datarie
in the last decades of the Old Republic, the datarie was the standard monetary unit. It was valid in all but the most remote systems. (SW1)

Dathcha
this Jawa trader and adventurer was famous for having taunted a krayt dragon in the open Tatooine desert, and returned to tell about it. He longed to get off Tatooine and explore the galaxy. It was Dathcha who fired the disabling laser bolt at R2-D2 in the deep desert. (CCG)

Dathomir
a planet where the outcasts from the Old Republic were sent to die, it is the home of the Rancor, and home to a group of Force-sensitive witches who use spells to control The Force. It is located in the Quelii system, where Zsinj has established a prison colony and a new shipyard. The planet's gravity is somewhat lighter than standard. It is full of the Dark Side of The Force, moreso than Dagobah. Han 'won' the planet from Omogg in a sabacc game; its value is somewhere around three billion credits. It has 3 continents in a vast ocean. (CPL)

Datinni greb zroom
this Jawa warning is inscribed on the stocks of many of their weapons. Its exact meaning is not known. (CCG)

Datunda
this was the fourth day of the Tapani local calendar's week. (PGT)

Dauber-wasp
an insect which uses its claws to latch onto birds and other flying creatures. (XWN)

Daubird
this avian lives in the Shadow Forest, hiding in the vegetation which surrounds Anarrad. (TT)

Daughters of Allya
the name which the Dathomir Witches use for themselves, it is based in the history of Dathomir, when an exiled Jedi named Allya was sent to Dathomir. She helped train the woman in the use of the Force, and the descendant witches now call themselves the Daughters of Allya. There are nine clans of witches on the planet. (CPL)

Daughters of the Empath Princess this group of psychics plied their wares in the city of Talos, on Atzerri. (SOL)

Daughters of the Ffib
this was an autocratic, exclusively female religious order, active during the last decades of the Old Republic. A sect of the main Ffib religion, they established a mission on the Forest Moon of Endor, in order to bring the Ewoks into their fold. After the destruction of the Ffib at the hands of Reess Kairn, the Daughters of the Ffib employed Aurra Sing to hunt down Reess Kairn and eliminate him. (BHAS)

Daultay Dofine
this Neimoidian was one of Nute Gunray's Captains, and embodied everything that was negative about his race. He was lazy, only moderately competent, and greedy, and achieved his status primarily because of his high birth. When the Trade Federation blockaded the planet Naboo at the order of Darth Sidious, Dofine was the only member of Gunray's collective to question the orders of the Sith Lord, and for that he was removed from the ruling class of the Federation and assigned to the Droid Control Ship over Naboo. During the Battle of Naboo, Dofine was killed when Anakin Skywalker managed to damage the control ship's reactor core, triggering internal explosions that tore the ship to pieces. Daultay Dofine as acted by Alan Ruscoe and voiced by Chris Sanders in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IS1, IG1)

Daunted Gypsy
this SoroSuub Jermagium tramp freighter was used by the New Republic to insert a group of agents into the population to foment pro-Republic sentiments. This occured some years after the Battle of Endor, when the Imperials on the planet were ousted from power by the natives of the world. They formed a new government with allegiance to the Republic, but met with Imperial resistance. The Gypsy was armed with three double laser cannons, and had a top-model hyperdrive. (TSK)

Dauntless
this Star Destroyer was part of the special task force supporting Moff Vanko's sector of control. It was commanded by Captain Orsk during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (RM, CCC)

Dauntless*-class Cruiser
this was the second-largest battleship in the Alliance fleet during the Galactic Civil War. The Dauntless-class was developed from a series of luxury liners, which were beefed up with formidable armaments and heavy plating and shielding. The result was a sleek, battle-ready platform which served on the front line of many space battles. (REB)

Daupherm
this planet was the capital world of the Daupherm Planet States. (CRO)

Daupherm Marines
this was the primary military force maintained on the planet Daupherm. (PP)

Daupherm Merchant Space Fleet
this was the primary space-going trade organization based on the planet Daupherm, and serving the Daupherm Planet States, during the New Order. (CRO)

Daupherm Planet States
this coalition of planets maintained a political allegiance to one another during the Galactic Civil War. They were constantly at odds with the Botor Enclave, and many skirmishes between fleets from both sides were fought. (CRO)

Dauren
an Imperial Lieutenant serving Ambassador Furgan on Carida, Dauren graduated from the Imperial Academy on Raithal just a few months before the New Republic reclaimed the planet. He then served as an advanced communications officer on Corulag until that world was abandoned by the Empire. Before being assigned to Carida, Dauren served under Grand Admiral Thrawn as well as the reborn Emperor Palpatine. Dauren had become the Communications Officer for the planetary defense system on Carida just before Kyp Durron used the Sun Crusher to destroy the system. (COTF, JASB)

Daushoroc
this Eirruac and his partner, Tamoss, was a trader who dealt in gems, artifacts, and curiosities. Both were former slaves who had helped each other escape their Imperial masters, and set their fellow slaves on a safeworld before striking out on their own. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the pair traveled to Tatooine in order to seek out the Athallian Messenger. They were forced to make peace with a tribe of Tusken Raiders just to gain access to the area of the desert which supposedly held the Messenger's scarred hull. (SWG)

Dav're, Jarmat
this man was one of Kuat Drive Yards' most successful starship designers, even though he never completed a single development project. His work was found on small star yachts as well as the Super-class Star Destroyer. After making several inquiries into anti-Imperial operations in the nearby sector, an Imperial Security Bureau agent started tailing him. Jarmat fled KDY, traveling under the alias of Renak Tivs and hiding out on an uncharted, tropical planet. (HAS)

Dave
a Rebel fighter pilot killed during the Battle of Yavin, he once flew with Anakin Skywalker. He is known as Dave in the credits for Star Wars*, but Decipher Games names him* Garven Dreis. Dave was portrayed by Drewe Hemley in Star Wars*.* (SW, CCG)

David, Trey
this man was Horzao Darr's second-in-command in the Exocron Combined Air-space Fleet. It was David who intercepted Talon Karrde when he arrived in the system to locate Jorj Car'das. When he and Car'das learned of Karrde's approach, they knew that they could use it as a way to draw the slaver - and their enemy - Rei'kas toward the Kathol Rift. They allowed Karrde to locate Exocron, thereby allowing Rei'kas to find the planet. When Rei'kas attacked, David made sure that none of his ships fired on them. He retreated toward Exocron, much to the disbelief of Karrde and his crew. When the Aing-Tii finally made their presence known, it was a quick firefight. In the end, the fleet Rei'kas has sent in was decimated, and Exocron was once again safely hidden. (VOF)

Davirien
this jungle world is the homeworld of the roverine species of insect. (VOF)

Davis
this blonde-haired smuggler inhabited the Smuggler's Run, and operated out of Skip 5. He had a working relationship with the Jawas there. When Han Solo and Chewbacca were captured by Iisner while on Skip 5, Davis intervened and got them out of the situation. Davis had been developing a relationship with Sinewy Ana Blue over his years on the Run, but that came to a halt when several droids suddenly exploded throughout the Run. The droids were part of various cargoes paid for by Dolph, who had planned to have them explode on Coruscant. Instead, they were stolen by the smugglers of the Run. Davis happened to be too near one of the exploding droids, and was killed instantly by the blast. (TNR)

Davla
this was the largest land mass - and the only true continent - located on the planet Procopia. It was covered with verdant forests. (PGT)

Davnar
this planet is the native world of the kalidor. (XW)

Davrilat
this complicated religion was founded on the sanctity of harmonics. (CCG9)

Davrin
this thin Corellian was the captain of the Corellian Thunder. (SWJ9)

Dawferim
this Kerensikian clan was constantly at war with the Botor Enclave. (DESB)

Dawferm Selfhood States
analogous to the Botor Enclaves, this is a group of Kerensik natives. (DESB)

Dawn
a Mugaari transport destroyed when the Empire subjugated the Tungra Sector. (TIE)

Dawn Beat
one of Kaarde's ships. (TLC)

Dawndaddy
a creature native to Endor, it gives a loud call when the sun first comes up each day. (AT)

Dawnstar
a form of gemstone found in the Hapes Cluster. (JE)

Daxis Outpost
this New Republic station was located in the Outer Rim Territories, near the Serianan System. (SWJ8)

Day of the Hunter
this Rodian ceremony lasted a full day on Rodia, and venerated the bounty hunters of Rodian history. (HR)

Day of the Sepulchral Night
this is the Zelosian name for a complete solar eclipse which occurs on the planet Zelos II. When one of the planet's four moons eclispes the sun Zelos, the darkened skies suddenly reveal the presence of the other three moons. They appear as if by magic as the planet is plunged into total darkness. The Zelosian fear of the dark is extremely heightened during this eclipse, and so this day is especially frightening to them. (PG2)

Dayark
this moon, which orbits the gas giant Nepe, in the Episol System of the Kathol Outback, is the most populous world in the Kathol Republic. An agricultural world, Dayark also served as the capital of the Republic and the seat of its government. It is tide-locked to Nepe's orbit, and so the sunward side of the moon is the only habitable area. (KO)

Daykim, Onibald
one of the feral humans living underneath Imperial City in the early years of the New Republic, he is the "king" of his group. He was a low-level servant of the Imperial Palace branch of the Corusca Bank, during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. A small accounting error committed by his staff resulted in the name of Emperor Palpatine going to the top of a public list of loan defaulters. Although the incorrect list existed in the public domain for a few hours, Palpatine nonetheless found out about it,and fired the entire board of directors before demanding the identity of the culprit. Daykim fled to the undercity, rather than face Palpatine's wrath, and has existed there ever since. He maintains a strong and hale body, but he has lost all of his teeth and his hair has begun to fall out from years of living underground. (DA, JASB)

Daykim's Kingdom
the fanciful name given to Onibald Daykim's underground community on Coruscant. Located below Imperial City, it is populated with former Imperial bureaucrats and servants who fled the wrath of Emperor Palpatine. (JASB)

Daysong
this splinter group of the Rights of Sentience Party was formed to combat the subservient use of organic lifeforms in such menial tasks as guards and protectors. Daysong reasoned that the work could be done by droids, rather than forcing another being into the duty. Daysong had even gone so far as to argue the rights of synthflesh. When Leia Organa-Solo disappeared in the Meridian Sector during her visit to meet Seti Ashgad, the Daysong party sliced together a fake holo-transmission of her in an attempt to gain control of the Central Council. (POT)

Dayta
an Alliance transport group intercepted in the Javin Sector while fleeing from the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Dazouri
this was a race of polymorphous beings which could shape their bodies into two distinct forms. (SWJ12)

Dazzle Company
one of the two divisions of the ThunderForce mercenary unit. Flash and Dazzle Companies each have eight full platoons of soldiers, and each had nearly 200 members in the unit. (HAS)

DB Generator
shortened term for a disruption bubble generator. (TB)

DB-4 Starliner
this 126-meter craft was built by Dobrutz. Many of these ships were pressed into service as a troop transports by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (TT)

Dborian
this planet is the fifth world in the Lazerian System, and was the site of a mining colony that supplied the system with many natural ores. Two moons orbit the planet. (TSK)

DBX-11
this mynock exterminator droid was stationed on the Black Ice shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Chief Engineer Skolos programmed DBX-11 to recognize the Alliance agents who were attempting to take control of the Black Ice as mynocks, and DBX-11 set out to exterminate them. The agents eventually convinced the droid that they were not, in fact, mynocks, and DBX-11 revealed that Skolos was behind the series of malfunctions which plagued the Black Ice. (BI)

DCJ-45
Incom repulsorlift generators used on the T-16 Skyhopper. (EGV)

DCM-8
Arakyd's missile platform patrol droid, these military automata was designed around a group of 12 mini-concussion missile launchers. These small droids measure about 1 meter in length, and are deployed as a perimeter defense. (SN)

DC5-1
this is a series of freight droids manufactured by Serv-O-Droid. (CSA)

DD-19
this droid served aboard the FarStar as an overseer. (KO)

DDX Pulse Modulator
(GG9)

DD6
a Merr-Sonn Munitions blaster pistol. (GG9)

De-Purteen
this luxurious city was located on the planet Ord Cantrell. It was the site of some of the most luxurious resorts in the galaxy. (CE2)

De'etta System
this star system was located in Sanbra Sector. (AIR)

De'Ono, Luther
this rugged young man was in his mid-twenties when he was named part of the ExGal-4 team sent to Belkadan. He was part of the search group sent out to locate a huge storm which had been detected on their sensors. When Bendodi Ballow-Reese realized that the ecological damage to Belkadan - caused by Yomin Carr's dweebit beetles - was going to kill them before they could return, he turned over his oxygen packs and fled into the jungle. Luther thought he was crazy and tried to follow, by Bendodi shot Luther in the chest, then Bendodi shot himself. (VP)

Dead Bantha Gulch
this ravine was located just inside the Jundland Wastes near Mos Eisley, on the planet Tatooine. It was named by Platt Okeefe and Tru'eb Cholakk, who hid out in the gulch and found a bantha skeleton at the bottom. The gulch itself was riddled with caves and ravines in which the smugglers could hide their cargoes before a sale. The gulch was considered taboo to the Sandpeople, who feared the dead bantha. (IDC)

Dead Man's Hand
this Muurian transport was owned by the Azzameen family, and was part of the fleet operated by Twin Suns Transport Service. The Dead Man's Hand was the ship used to break Eamon Azzameen out of an Imperial prison ship, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Dead Man's Turn
this section of Beggar's Canyon on Tatooine is a sharp right turn at the end of the Main Avenue. (SE)

Dead Rebels
this band played in Mos Eisley following the Battle of Endor. It was made up of an awful-sounding group of aliens. (XWBT)

DeadHutt Switch
this is a fail-safe device used by many Hutt crimelords. It is a remote control device which has a single button. The button is held down by the Hutt, as long as it is alive. If the Hutt were to become incapacitated or die, it would release the button, triggering any number of remotely-located explosives, all of which are set off by a signal from the deadHutt switch. (IJ)

Deadly Vision
a song written and played by the band Starburst. It was first released as part of the compilation StakeOut. (GG9)

Deadon Ice Temples
this wondrous, xenoarchaeological site was discovered by Doctor Angrail Ryhl. (HR)

Deak
one of Luke's friends at Anchorhead on Tatooine. Deak was portrayed by David Paymer for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR)

Deal, The
this Basic phrase was the loos translation of the name of the Vaathkree religon. The Vaathkree were fanatic barterers and traders, and much of their society revolved around making deals. The Deal documents the code of barter and trade which every Vaathkree mucst adhere to, and is taught to immature Vaathkree - known as Stonesingers - during their early life. (AE)

Dealslang
this underground form of language grew out of the haggling and bargaining often required when dealing with criminal elements. (LAA)

Deamos Na-Coth
this ex-slave grew up in the heyday of the Old Republic. He was later a military leader, philosopher, and part-time prophet who believed in the existence of an ancient paradise planet called Exo. He founded a group known as the Cabal to search the outermost reaches of the galaxy for Exo, but many of the ships were lost. Na-Coth died nearly bankrupt, but his followers continued to search for Exo. (KO)

Death
this is the name of a town on the planet Jubilar. Fifteen years before the Battle of Hoth, it was known as Dying Slowly. (TBH)

Death Engine
a close-combat assault vehicle developed by the Empire, the death engine is a crab-shaped, repulsorlift-equipped mobile laser platform. It is virtually indestructible. (TME)

Death Fence
any form of highly-electrified fence system used to protect a garrison or other base. Although it could be ordered in different heights, most of these fences were ten meters high. (TFNR)

Death From Above
this was the name of one of the Imperial squadrons dispatched to take Kwymar Sector, during the Galactic Civil War. (MB)

Death Hurdles
this computer game simulated a race in which the player had to control a swoop through a dangerous course of continually moving and shifting obstacles. In a two-player version, the second player controlled the obstacles, and could move them at random. (JE)

Death Mark
a warrant for the recovery of an individual by any means possible, including the death of the individual. The death mark is usually issued for the return of an individual for execution by the issuer. Jabba the Hutt placed a death mark on Han Solo for the loss of a shipment of spice. (ESB)

Death Mark
this old frigate was welded onto Zirtran's Anchor some time ago. Now, it serves as a haven for bounty hunters. (SWAJ, LAA)

Death or Glory
a song written and played by the band Strarburst. It was first released as part of the compilation Only in Your Dreams, and has been given a scarlet rating by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Death Seed
this plague was virtually unstoppable when it was first discovered. The basis of the Death Seed is the creature called a droch, which can steal the life force energy from its victim once it bites the victim. If allowed to remain attached, the droch can quickly burrow into its victim. Once inside, it is absorbed into its victim, but continues to drain life energy from it. The victim dies from unknown, though obviously viral, causes. Bacta therapy was found to quicken the disease, because the bacta only provided the droch with a renewed source of life energy as the victim healed. The Death Seed was controlled by the huge droch Dzym, which maintained a link to the lower drochs while obtaining life energy from their vicitms. When Dzym and Seti Ashgad began their quest for galactic domination, they unleashed the Death Seed plague on the Meridian Sector. Only through Luke Skywalker’s communication with the Spook crystals on Nam Chorios was the plague defeated. The crystals agreed to be shipped off-planet, where they could help focus natural sunlight on the parasitic creatures. The Death Seed managed to wipe outnearly three-quarters of the sector before it was controlled. (POT)

Death Squadron
this grouping of capital ships was formed under the command of Admiral Ozzel, and was created to capture Alliance starships fleeing the Battle of Hoth. (CCG3)

Death Star
satellite-sized battle station designed by Tol Sivron at the Maw installation, and was built by Bevel Lemelisk and Imperial Engineering. Grand Moff Tarkin had asked for a superweapon with which he could control the entire Outer Rim Territory, and the Death Star was the result. It housed a huge superlaser which combined the output of multiple lasers into a single, focused beam. A huge focusing lens was built to accomplish this; it located on the upper hemisphere. The superlaser was designed to be targeted at anything from a capital ship to a planet. This objective was known only to a select few, for Tarkin and the Maw's top scientists decided that they should downplay the role of superweapon to keep the project on schedule. They told the project engineers that the station would be used to break down dead planets in an effort to reach the core of elements easier. The funding for the original Death Star came from funds diverted form the Departments of System Exploration and Public Works. The interior of the initial Death Star was planned to have 84 unique levels, each 1,428 meters in height. Each level was subdivided into 357 sublevels. The entire design was then divided into two hemispheres, each with twelve zones. The crew of the first Death Star design was 27,048 officers; 774,576 troops, pilots, and crewers; 378,576 support and maintenance crewers; 400,000 support droids; and 25,000 stormtroopers. The human inhabitants were provided with an array of parks, shopping centers, and entertainment facilities, since the average length of service aboard the station was to be six years without leave. At the north pole of the station was constructed a 100-story tower, which was heavily shielded and virtually impenetrable. This tower held Palpatine's operational headquarters, for those times when he was aboard the station. According to Imperial sources, this first Death Star took too long to construct, exceeding Palpatine's every deadline. It was built in orbit around the prison world Despayre. Labor for the construction was taken at will from the prison below. When the first Death Star was complete, Tarkin ordered the superlaser tested on the planet Despayre itself. Needless to say, this initial test exceeded even Tarkin's wildest dreams. However, despite its formidable weaponry, the original design was flawed, as is vented its main reactor directly to the outside. This allowed the Alliance to fire proton torpedoes into the exhaust shaft and destroy the station. The original station was 120 kilometers in diameter. The second model was modified to eliminate these flaws, and was slightly larger than the original at 160 kilometers in diameter. However, during its construction in orbit around Endor's forest moon, the Alliance succeeded in knocking out its primary shield and destroyed the main reactor, exploding the unfinished station. The outer hull was made from quadanium steel for protection. For defensive measures, the Death Star was to house 4 capital ships, 7,200 TIE fighters, 3,600 Lambda-class assault shuttles, 2,480 blast boats, 1,860 drop ships, and 13,000 support craft. These included 1,400 AT-ATs, 1,400 AT-STs, 178 Mobile Command Bases, 1,420 repulsortanks, 1,420 repulsorcraft, 355 Floating Fortresses, and 4,843 Juggernauts.

The original Death Star had the following design features:
5 Access trenchs (2 at the poles, 2 midhemisphere, and 1 at the equator)
Surface City Blocks
Main Reactor Core with surrounding Power Cells
2 Ready Power Cells (midsection)
2 Hyperdrive Motivators, driven by 123 generators (midsection)
2 Sublight Drives (midsection)
2 Computer Cores
Deep Armory and Hangar Bays (bottom hemisphere)
Command Core (upper pole)
2 main Hangar Bays (upper pole and upper hemisphere)
Deep Storage Bays
Dry Bulk Storage Bays
Liquid Bulk Storage Bays
5,000 turbolaser batteries
5,000 heavy turbolaser batteries
2,500 laser cannons
2,500 ion cannons
768 tractor beam generators
(SW, ROTJ, JS, COTF, SCRE, DSTC, SWTJ)

Death Star Bluff
a card game played in many casinos. (WSV)

Death Star II
see Death Star

Death Star Rising
a song written and played by the band The Emperor's New Clothes. It was first released as part of the compilation Artistic Integrity. (GG9)

Death Star Diva
one of several musically awful songs written and played by the band called Dead Rebels. (XWM)

Death Watch
a group of elite warriors from the Mandalore Systems. (EGC)

Death-Hunter
this cyborg assasin was the brain-child of the Imperial Moff Jesco Comark. Comark used his position as the head of Renik to syphon funds into the Death-Hunter project, and used Renik agents to kidnap strong, healthy humans between the ages of 15 and 25 for cyborging. Comark realized that the Empire couldn't continue to use bounty hunters to do its dirty work, and developed an army of cyborged killers. He was able to obtain strong human subjects from the working population of Bescane, kidnapping individuals whenever the need arose. Comark also used the shipyards at Jaemus for his project, having them modify Sector Plexus courier droids for use as Death-Hunter transports. The Death-Hunter was an incredible combination of technological and physical abilities. The Death-Hunter's eyesight was augmented with low-light and macrozoom enhancements. Hearing was increased with specialized receptors. Lifeform sensors were implanted to improved tracking ability. Several communications options were available to the cyborg, including a wideband receiver and a tightband antenna. The Death-Hunter project was exposed by Moff Comark's own daughter, Amber Comark, who was operating under the guise of Alliance special agent Tigress. Much of the Death-Hunter project was destroyed when Alliance agents, working with Amber Comark, were able to eliminate Jesco Comark's base on Zeta Zero Nine, in the Wastes. (SWJ9)

Death's Head
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer under the command of Captain Harbid, the Death's Head was part of Grand Admiral Thrawn's fleet. It was dispatched to the Palanhi System to apprehend Han Solo, but was unable to capture them there. Later, the Death's Head participated in the attack on Ord Pardron. (HTTE, DFR, TLC)

Deathblock
this was the name of the deepest part of the Imperial prison on Tol Ado, and was where the most intense interrogations were carried out. It was said that no one lived more than two hours after being transferred to the Deathblock. (JH)

Deathmoon
the name of one of Fyodos' three moons, its original name was lost following the Great Cleansing. Fyodoi society indiactes that the cycle of the Deathmoon induces intense, superstitious fear among the surviving Fyodoi. (PG2)

Deb-deb
a fruit tree that grows in the oases on Tatooine. (COJ)

Debble, Garv
this New Republic archaeologist insisted that relics plundered by the Empire from other worlds should be returned to their proper owners. Debble and his team were appointed to investigate and document all the artifacts and information discovered in the Empire's Mount Tantiss facility, following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. He was nearly thwarted in this effort by Ekhrikhor, who wanted all of the Emperor's belongings destroyed. Leia Organa Solo eventually intervened and allowed Debble to complete his work. (TTSB, SOP)

Debble Agreement
this compromise was worked out by Leia Organa-Solo and Garv Debble with the Noghri which were cleaning up Honoghr. The Noghri had wanted to eradicate every speck of Imperial presence on the planet Wayland, before they relocated there after the clean-up activities proved futile. The agreement was a spur-of-the-moment, private deal that allowed certain artifacts to be recovered. One unusual outcome of the agreement occurred after it was discovered that Emperor Palpatine maintained a variety of alien artifacts in the cloning facility on Wayland. The New Republic tried to keep the facility a secret, but alien races demanded that they be allowed to come to Wayland and recover their lost artifacts. In order to support the influx of aliens, the city of New Nystao was greatly expanded beyond housing the agents of the New Republic. (SOP, HT)

Debit-101
an audit droid working for Zorba the Hutt on Cloud City, Debit has been programmed as a specialist in business strategy. (QE)

Debnoli
this good-natured pilot and frequent patron of the Mos Eisley Cantine, Debnoli was known as an excellent marksman. When the Empire impounded his ship, he set out on a mission of revenge, hoping to strike back at the Empire in any way possible. (CCG9)

Deboora, Marse
this man was married to Sinya Deboora, and lived on the planet Seltos. Marse was a firm supporter of the New Republic, and was unaware of his wife’s pro-Imperial stance. He was convinced of her position, however, when undercover agents from the Republic infiltrated Seltos to keep her from gaining power. (TSK)

Deboora, Sinya
this woman, the wife of Marse Deboora, was the Magister of Trade for the planet Seltos. She was also a staunch supporter of the Empire, and worked to maintain Imperial control of the planet. When the populace rose up and overthrew the government some years after the Battle of Endor, Sinya and Lieutenant Hensworth tried to regain power. However, a group of New Republic agents, working as part of Freedom Strike Seltos, was able to thwart their efforts. (TSK)

Debrelle
this attractive near-human female worked as a clerk in the Mos Eisley branch of Zygian Savings and Loan. (GG7)

Deca Brun
this Galacian male was one of the primary candidates for succeeding Queen Veda, just before she abdicated the throne. His supporters often clashed with those of Wila Prammi, although neither camp seemed to oppose Prince Beju. Deca Brun was considered the popular favorite, having been a hero of many battles. He lacked political experience, though, and many questioned whether he could bring about the reforms he promised to make. He ran under the slogan that all Galacians were one people, and he was just another on eof them. Obi-Wan Kenobi later discovered that Brun's campaign was being financed by Offworld Mining Corporation, which was led by Xanatos. The funding was being relayed to Brun by Lonnag Giba, through a false front known as the Galacian Mining Corporation. Brun had claimed that his funding was coming from small Galacian interests, in order to enhance the "We Are One" motto. (MOC)

Decalegs
this insect, found on the planet Kubindi, is a staple in Kubaz cooking. (SWJ10)

Deceleration Equalizer
a starship component that functions to help keep the ship's contents from been jostled around during deceleration. (DE2)

Deception Sect
this religious group was made up of those Yuuzhan Vong who worshipped Yun-Harla. (HT)

Decicred
a credit coin issued by the Empire. The obverse of the coin displayed the visage of the Emperor, while the reverse displayed the Imperial emblem. (SE, RD)

Decisive
one of the Imperial-class Star Destroyers in Prince-Admiral Krennel's fleet, the Decisive was paired with the Emperor's Wisdom during the blockade of Liinade III. Later, when Krennel began planning his conquest of Coruscant, he placed the two ships - along with his flagship, the Reckoning - at the forefront of his assault force. However, Krennel's forces were halted before they left Ciutric by a New Republic fleet led by Admiral Ackbar and the Home One. The Decisive took heavy damage from the combined firepower of the Home One and the Emancipator, and was knocked out of the battle early. Its crew eventually surrendered to the New Republic. (IR)

Deck Sweeper
this was a model of stunning blaster produced by Merr-Sonn during the height of the New Order. (PP)

Deck 98 Nexus 326-KK location aboard the Chimaera where Search Team 102 was killed while searching for Luke, Mara, and Talon Kaarde. (DFR)

Declaration of a New Republic
the document which sets the foundation for the New Republic, after the Battle of Endor. Released in the month following the battle, it was signed by Mon Mothma, Leia Organa, Borsk Fey'lya, Ackbar, Sian Tevv, Doman Beruss, Kerrithrarr, and Verrinnefra B'thog Indriummsegh. (HTSB)

Declaration of the Alliance of Free Planets this document set down the basic tenets upon which Mon Mothma and the Provisional Council planned to lead the galaxy under the New Republic. It was surpassed just four weeks later by the Declaration of a New Republic. (TBSB)

Decon III
Industrial Automation's heavy-duty decontamination droid, the Decon III stands about 1.3 meters tall. It is equipped with visual, infrared, and analyzation sensors, a heavy scooper, and a retracable arm. It moves about on treads. (DFRSB)

Decontamination Droid
Decon Droid for short, these machines are deployed into areas which - for natural or industrial reasons - are inaccessible to most lifeforms. These droids use a series of catalytic and chemical processes to break down the contaminants, removing them from the area and making it habitable again. (DFR)

Decor
this was starfighter pilot slang for the designations of rank each officer wore, and the respect and honor they deserved from other pilots. It was used disparagingly, because it meant flight officers had to keep their opinions to themselves. Many Captains and Commanders preferred to go "no decor" when not on a mission or in the presence of VIPs, since it maintained morale among the squadron-mates. (SOC)

Deddite
an Imperial freighter stationed near Bonadan, under the protection of the shuttle Krayt when it was attacked by Alliance starfighters and destroyed. (XW)

Dedelin
an Imperial Navy Captain who was imprisoned on Captivity for being critical and outspoken about the atrocoties of the New Order. (RC)

Dedicated Energy Receptors
these sensory devices detect electromagnetic emissions in their surroundings. They are accurate and effective at locating Nav beacons, comlink transmissions, and lasers. (SWSB, CCG4)

Dee Savyest
this Mrlssti was one of several who worked on projects relating to the original Death Star project. The projects were peripheral to the original plans, but were integrated later on. Like many of the Mrlssti who discovered the final use of their work, Dee broke down and believed that he was personally responsible for the destruction of Alderaan. (XWPA)

Deeb
one of the four moons orbitting the planet Ambria. (TOJC)

Deegan
a New Republic Lieutenant working with Wedge Antilles on the Coruscant clean-up crews following the civil wars there. (JS)

Deej
an Ewok on Endor, married to Shodu. He and his sons, Widdle and Weechee, discover the Towani's crashed shuttle and take the children under their wing. His youngest son, Wicket, becomes good friends with Cindel. Deej helped the Towani children rescue their parents from the giant Gorax, and was given the White Wings of Hope by Logray, and the father and senior member of the rescue party. However, Deej was later captured by the Marauders when they attacked the Towani camp. He was freed by Wicket, Cindel, and Noa, and helped defeat the Marauders. Deej was portrayed by Dan Frishman in both of the Ewoks films. (EA, BFE)

Deeka
this stoic scout accompanied Kendrell Shell on a mission to Kidron, where they encountered a slork consuming a rotting corpse. (COG)

Deel, Fargus
one of the best Corellian swoop racers, Fargus Deel was popular during the early years of the New Republic. He rode a SoroSuub Pirate racing swoop. (DFRSB)

Deep
an Imperial CR90 Corvette used during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Deep Core
a major stronghold of the Empire for decades, this area of the galaxy contains Byss. It is located between the Galactic Core (where the Core Worlds are located) and the very center of the known galaxy. It is the area of the galaxy with the greatest density of stars, and the intense gravitational mass of the Deep Core was thought to be impenetrable until Palpatine discovered a handful of safe hyperspace pathways. At this center of the galaxy is a huge black hole. (DE1, EGP)

Deep Core Haulers freighters licensed by the new Empire to haul cargo into the Deep Core system of planets. (DE1)

Deep Core Security Zone
sectors of the Deep Core which have been sealed off from normal space traffic. Byss is located within the Zone. (DE1)

Deep Ocean Operations Camp
an Imperial Army training center located in the tropical seas of Sirpar. (SWAJ)

Deep Pockets
this ore processing facility was owned by Lando Calrissian, and worked in orbit over the planet Varn some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. Calrissian had added a casino and observation gallery to the huge ship shortly before the Caamas Incident shook up the New Republic. Calrissian had been hit quite often by pirates, and he made a loose agreement with the Diamalan ambassador Miatamia to protect his fleet. (SOP)

Deep Spacer
this bar catered to the spacers who passed through Meirm City on Sriluur. (SSR)

Deep-X Explorer
this is the full name of the Uulshos Dpx space yacht. (SWJ9)

Deephopper
this beat-up Ghtroc freighter was owned and operated by Marka Durn. He was constantly upgrading and automating this ship's systems, with the help of his astromech droid R2-C9. (IA)

Deeply Religious
this is the definitive "banned" band, as their fast, exhilarating, and cynical music was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Deeply Religious
a song written and played by the band Deeply Religious. It was first released in a compilation of the same name, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

DeepSpace Industries
manufacturers of deep-space exploration droids. (RPG)

Deepwater*-class Light Freighter
this was a Mon Calamari transport ship design, which predated the standard Mon Calamari light freighter and was one of the first commercially-available Mon Calamari designs. It was designed for use by the Mon Calamari Commercial Expeditionary Service, and some 10,000 of the DeepWater freighters were produced. However, the Empire quickly dissolved the Expeditionary Service, and the DeepWater freighters were auctioned off to private parties. Like all Mon Calamari designs, each DeepWater freighter is slightly different. One unique feature of this freighter was that it was submersible, and could travel to a depth of a kilometer with some adjustments to its shielding configuration. The DeepWater-class freighter measured 45 meters in length, and was controlled by a pilot and co-pilot. It could transport up to six passengers and 85 metric tons of cargo, and was armed with a single laser turret in its stock configuration. (SS)

DeeveError! Bookmark not defined.
this Arpor-Lan was one of the Alliance's premier scouts, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Deeve held the rank of Lieutenant, and was credited with bringing several worlds from the Unknown Regiosn and Wild Space into the Alliance, and was instrumental in the establishment of safehouses on New Alderaan and Apliria. Following the Battle of Endor, Deeve joined the New Republic Scout Service, serving aboard the scout ship Founder. The discovery of new worlds and civilizations never ceased to amaze him. (GG8, AIR)

Defector
this Nebulon-B frigate was part of the Alliance fleet which patrolled Trax Sector shortly after the Battle of Yavin. It was dispatched to assist in the destruction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. (GMK)

Defeen
the Defel who was working at the Imperial reconditioning facility on Duro. Defeen was in charge of Experimental Section Two, with special emphasis on reprogramming Triclops. After the escape of Triclops and the netrayal of the Grand Moffs, Defeen was promoted by the Prophets of the Dark Side to the position of interrogator supreme on Scardia, where he tried the Grand Moffs for treason. (MMY, PDS)

Defel
a wraith-like race that absorbs normal light through its fur and skin, appearing to be nothing more than a shadow. In ultraviolet light, they appear as short, muscular lupine humanoids with thick fur and unusual, three-jointed fingers. They live underground on the planet Af'El, mining the various metals in the planet's crust and outer core. They can see equally well in normal and ultraviolet lighting, and their eyes appear to glow red in normal light. (DFR, DFRSB, CCG)

Defender
1) Drearian Defense Conglomerate's sporting blaster. Princess Leia used one on the Tantive IV. (RPG)
2) Merr-Sonn's high-altitude ion mine. The Defender was used extensively by the Empire to blockade rebellious worlds. The mines were deployed in orbit, and were equipped with cloaking revvers and scatter beams to render themselves nearly undetectable. Any ship travelling within 10 kilometers of the mine triggered the device, which fired ion energy at the ship similar to an ion cannon. The disabled ship was forced to float in space until boarded by Imperial forces. (CFG)
3) this in-system starfighter was developed by the New Republic in the wake of the Battle of Endor, although it saw its greatest popularity after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. The primary mission of the Defender was to defend planets against Imperial raids. Although it lacked the speed of a A-Wing, the Defender was well-armed and highly maneuverable. It two wings were mounted on S-foils, and could stowed alongside the fuselage during routine patrols or extended outward and downward when in attack posture. It was armed with three laser cannons, one one the nose and one on each side of the fuselage. In order to save space and weight, the Defender was not equipped with a hyperdrive. (SOP, SWG)

Defender
one of three Bakuran Bakura-class destroyers deployed by Hortel Ossilege in an effort to assist the New Republic in breaking the blockade of the Corellian System. (AS, CTD)

Defender*-class Assault Carrier
this starship design was one of the new classes approved for use by the New Republic Navy. It measured 700 meters in length, and was based on the Majestic-class cruiser. Its primary mission profile was as a fighter platform, since it was only armed with 20 anti-fighter laser cannons. Like the Majestic-class cruiser, the Defender required a crew of 4,050, but only 20 gunners and the capacity to transport up to 700 troops. They had Class-1 hyperdrives. They were originally designed to transport three full squadrons of Defender starfighter, but many were modified to carry E-Wings. (SOL, CTD)

Defender*-class Star Destroyer
known to the New Republic military as a "pocket Star Destroyer," these new-class ships were 65% the size of an Imperial-I class Destroyers but had the firepower of the Imperial-II class. They were the best-defended ships in the galaxy at the time of the Battle of N'zoth, with virtually impervious armor plating and shields. The Defender-class could transport a full wing of starfighters for assault missions, as well as a wing of long-range fighters. They saw limited production as the New Republic down-sized its military after the negotiation of peace with Admiral Pellaeon and the Empire. Each Defender-class ship was armed with 40 heavy turbolaser batteries, 40 heavy turbolaser cannons, 20 ion cannons, 8 tractor beam projectors, and 8 concussion missile launchers.The Destroyer required a crew of 6,795, with 244 gunners and the capacity to transport 1,600 troops. (CTD)

Defender Wing
the Y-Wing bomber squadrons assigned to General Salm. The wing consisted of Champion, Guardian, and Warden Squadrons. (XWN, KT)

Defending Your Freedom
a song written and played by the band The Emperor's New Clothes, first released as part of the compilation entitled Totally Patriotic. (GG9)

Defense Research and Planetary Assistance Center
DRAPAC for short, this is an Alliance facility set up on the top of Mount Yoda on Dagobah. (MMY)

Defense Council
this body of the New Republic's post-Provisional government was responsible for the day-to-day security of New Republic space. (SOL)

DefenStar Limited
one of the largest planetary shield and orbital defense system manufacturers in the galaxy, DefenStar is a non-voting contributing sponsor of the Corporate Sector Authority. They created the customized, interlocking shield system that surrounds the main Imperial Academy worlds, although it has never been revealed where they are or how the system works. (CSA)

DefenStar 5000
Hibomehrt-Wyrrgex planetary shield relay system, each unit provides cover for 100 square kilometers of surface area. (DESB)

Deffan
this man worked for the Fernandin Scouting Expedition, and was in charge of the initial scouting efforts which sought to find a suitable planet for Wetyin's Colony. (GG2)

Defiance
1) an MC80a star cruiser, it endured an attack from the Star Destroyer Immortal. It later served as the command ship of the Alliance's rear guard fleet during the Battle of Endor, coordinating the crossfire attacks against Imperial warships. (XW, CCG11)
2) an Alliance cruiser patrolling near Bestine IV when the Star Destroyer Merciless attacked the Alliance base on the planet. The cruiser barely escaped the attack. (MTS)
3) the first MC90 cruiser used by the New Republic, it was used as the New Republic's flagship, and also Ackbar's personal vessel, following the Battle of Endor and the 'retirement' of Home One. (DE1, DESB)

Deflection tower
a system of high-intensity deflector shields mounted on a configurable tower, these devices are the basis for many planetary defense systems. (SW)

Deflector shield
a force field that either repels or absorbs energy. (SW)

Defstat
a series of levels of readiness used to define the operations of the Death Star battle station. Defstat Zero indicated the normal operation of the station. Defstat One indicated that the station was on alert, and all defenses were upgraded to operational station. This level is only a warning level. Defstat Two indicates that an enemy craft has been identified in the space surrounding the Death Star's position. Defstat Three was the highest level, indicating that the station was actively engaged in combat. (DSTC)

Dega
this world, the primary planet in the Dega System of the Elrood Sector, was the primary mining colony for Radell Mining Corporation until the veins of minerals and ores dried up during the early years of the New Order. The miners left the planet, leaving rusting equipment and a polluted ecosystem behind. Smugglers have taken refuge on the planet, hiding in the safest mining tunnels. Dega's day takes up 19 standard hours, and its year encompasses 295 local days. (PG, OE)

Degan Explorations
this company is a subsidiary of Chiewab Amalgamated Pharmaceuticals Company. Degan was responsible for searching out new worlds that Chiewab could exploit for their chemical resources. (CSA)

Degan Gas Clouds
this pockets of interstellar gases and molecular matter isolated the Dega and Osirrag Systems from the rest of Elrood Sector. However, the gas clouds were segmented, and travel between Dega and Kidron was actually quite easy. (OE)

Degathem
an Imperial freighter supplying Zaarin's beam weapon research platform. (TIE)

DeGerrillion
Marg Sonat and Pari' Notgoth were both nearly killed on this planet, when a criminal enterprise they schemed up went awry. (POC)

Deggaruls
this was one of the repulsorlift-equipped, floating cities found on the planet Rordak. (PG1)

Deif
this Corellian criminal served Black Sun under Zekka Thyne, before the alien was imprisoned on Kessel. (TFE)

Deign Lian
this Yuuzhan Vong warrior was from a prestigious family of warriors, and served as Shedao Shai's second-in-command during the subjugation of Dubrillion and Destrillion. However, Deign Lian himself had shown none of his family's ruthlessness in battle when he was assigned to the Legacy of Torment. Deign constantly questioned Shedao's commands, unable to fully understand the military and psychological aspects of the invasion plans. This did not stop him from plotting with the Yuuzhan Vong Warmaster in their home galaxy, reporting on Shedao Shai's every move and highlighting his every mistake. Meanwhile, he obeyed Shedao Shai, although occasional lapses brought anger and physical retaliation from Shai. After Shedao Shai died in a duel with Corran Horn on Ithor, Deign Lian assumed command of the Yuuzhan Vong forces and unleashed a bioweapon on Ithor, reducing virtually all forms of life to bacteria-ridden husks. He then made to return to Dubrillion, where he awaited orders from Tsavong Lah. However, Traest Kre'fey ordered the Corusca Rainbow to activate her gravity well projectors, keeping the Yuuzhan Vong ships near Ithor and reducing their ability to defend themselves with dovin basals. In the end, the ships of the New Republic decimated the Yuuzhan Vong fleet. Deign Lian was killed when the Legacy of Torment exploded under heavy fire. (DTR)

Deila
this young woman was a member of The Young, and a contemporary of Nield and Cerasi. After the elders of the Daan and Melida were defeated, Deila was named to the new government's Young Security Squad, serving as Obi-Wan Kenobi's second-in-command. After Nield exiled Obi-Wan, Deila tried to remain loyal to Nield. When he ordered her to allow Mawat to retrieve the weapons Obi-Wan had stored, she allowed him to do it because Nield was the governor. However, she learned from Joli that Mawat wanted to take control of Zehava for himself. Joli and Deila hid after Mawat ordered them to take up arms, hoping to flee the inevitable war that was brewing. They then provided information to Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, telling the Jedi of Mawat's deception.(DOD, UP)

Dejarik
a holographic game played on a circular board. Chewbacca had a dejarik table on board the Millennium Falcon. (CCG, CCG2)

Dejgi
the back feet of this creature were considered to be good luck charms, and were often worn on a short chain. (GG11)

Deke
this young man was a computer slicer, and worked with Shell to steal data from a New Republic Intelligence agency computer shortly after the Starbuster Plot was exposed. They were eventually caught when a tracer, planted on Deke, led Lieutenant Prace to their position. (CTD)

Deke, Thickston
this Alliance Commander was in charge of the ground forces dedicated to protecting the city of Chakton from Imperial forces, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (MB)

Dekk
manufacturers of high-quality power couplings. (TME)

Dekk-6
top-of-the-line Dekk power coupling. (TME)

Dekok
at the advent of the New Republic, this was one of the twelve continents of the planet Kriekaal. It was located in the northen hemisphere, and was controlled by the Kherkhaman tribe. (SWJ13)

Del, Shondra
this Alliance agent was instrumental in bringing together the rebellious forces in Elrood Sector, and was responsible for recruiting Jacob Nive and the Khuiumin Survivors into the struggle against Moff Andal. She spent much of time in Elrood Sector posing as the independent Captain of the freighter Stars of Elrood, which allowed her to remain in contact with Gwynn, the owner of Gwynn Dispatch and Shondra's primary contact. Under cover, she worked with the Friends of Paran, supplying them with goods and armament while cultivating their ties to the Alliance. Eventually, the Friends of Paran led her to Jacob Nive. (OE)

Dela System
Lando Calrissian's destination after winning the Millennium Falcon in a sabacc match. Unfortunately, Lando's piloting and astrogation skills were poorly suited for hyperspace travel, and he ended up in the Oseon system instead. (LCM)

Delacrix System
this planetary system orbited a configuration of three stars. During the last decades of the Old Republic, there was a thriving trade between all the inhabited worlds of the system. (FFT)

Delan, Gendal
a native of Pendarr III, this man was the leader of the military group known as Pendarran Warriors. They assisted the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic during the Clone Wars, and were later targeted for elimination during Emperor Palpatine's purge of the Jedi. Gendal was killed by Imperial agents, leaving his son Kolor an orphan. (WBC)

Delan, Kolor
a native of the planet Pendarr III, Kolor was the son of Gendal Delan. When Emperor Palpatine rose to power and eliminated the Jedi Knights, he also eliminated the Pendarran Warriors. His purge included Kolor's father, Gendal, and Kolor grew to hate the Empire with every fiber of his being. When he was old enough, the orphaned Kolor formed his own military operation, Pendarran's Revenge. This new group assisted the Alliance several times during the Galactic Civil War, but after the Battle of Endor, Kolor turned his attention to the New Republic. It was unknown if he held a grudge against the fledgeling government, or if someone hired Pendarran's Revenge to act against them. (WBC)

Delantine
this planet sided with the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War, and was supportive prior to the Battle of Yavin. The planet was rich in ores and minerals that were used to create parts of many weapons, which made it a strategic asset. After the battle, the Alliance chose Trux Zissu to act as the planet’s governor. The natives of the planet spoke no less than sixteen different languages. The year on Delatine lasts just over 365 local days. (SA1, SA2)

Delahrg, Riggins
this man was the Imperial Governor of Tallaso during the Galactic Civil War, and was known as the consummate conman. He enjoyed a good life onTallaso, but was always a big fish in a little pond. Following the Battle of Endor, the Empire forgot about Tallaso, and Delahrg was overthrown in a coup de etat. He fled to Vandron, where he bluffed his way into a position on the planetary government. That government crumbled, and Delahrg was once again without a job. However, he found steady work as a politician-for-hire, selling his verbal skills and knowledge of Imperial politics to the highest bidder. (HR)

Delari Prime
this primary planet in the Delari System, located in the Corva Sector, was a bountiful world until it was hit by an asteroid several millenia before the Galactic Civil War. Since then, it has become a desert wasteland. The Empire established a communications base on Delari Prime, but it was abandoned after the Battle of Endor. The base was eventually sold to an elderly archaeologist. (SWAJ)

Delassin VI
this oceanic world has a strong heritage of seagoing merchants and sailors. They have taken repulsorlift technology and used it to make life on the sea easier. (SWAJ)

Delaya
another planet in the Alderaan System. It was home to an Alliance satellite transmission station which orbitted the planet. Carlist Rieekan was inspecting the station when the first Death Star blown up Alderaan. (MTS)

Delaya*-class Courier
this ancient Hoersch-Kessel starship was highly aerodynamic, having a number of large steering vanes and airfoils. These were tied into a computer system that could adjust each one's angle for maximum maneuverability. The ship's twenty-one engines were arranged in groups of three, and each group was connected to a servo-mechanism that allowed them to be independently positioned for direction and maximum thrust. The Delaya-class could attain speeds of 950 kilometers an hour in atmosphere. The stock ship was lightly armed, and had minimal hull plating. These could be added for combat use, although the Delaya-class was designed to transport personnel from planet to planet. The Delaya-class courier measured 70 meters in length, and required a pilot and co-pilot to operate. The ship had room for up to 8 passengers and 10 metric tons of cargo, and was often armed with a front-mounted proton torpedo launcher and a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons. (EGV, TOJC)

Delban Faxicorp
this Nimbanese droid manufacturer is headquartered on Nimban itself. (GG12)

Delcas HoloVid
this entertainment company was actually a dummy corporation established by Imperial agent Renik during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

Delckis, Rannd
Alliance Communications Officer on the Flurry at Bakura, Delckis was a native of the Virgillian System and a veteran of the Virgillian Civil War. Delckis was born into the aristocracy, and even attended the Imperial Academy. After graduation, Delckis served on the Stormwind as a junior communications assistant. Fatefully, the Stormwind was ordered to the Virgillian System to put down rebellious activity on the primary planet's forested moon. Delckis was forced to accompany his commanding offcier, Captain Jarroth, to the moon's surface, where he witnessed the brutal interrogation of suspected freedom fighters. Rather than return to the oppression of the Empire, Delckis defected and stayed behind when the Stormwind took off. However, Delckis was not welcomed into the ranks of the freedom fighters with open arms, given his family history and his initial support of the Empire. Tessa Manchisco, however, recognized his skills and his loyalties, and requested his presence onboard the Flurry. Rannd proved to be an invaluable resource, providing the Virgillians with expertise in the use of Imperial sensors and the HoloNet. Unfortunately, Delckis was killed when the Flurry was destroyed during the Battle of Bakura. (TB, TBSB)

Deld, Corlin Quarle
this man was Daven Quarle's grandfather, and one of the principle owners of Verkuylian BactaCo. He was considered one of the leaders of the planet Verkuyl, until it was nationalized by the Empire. He was known as a cautious, even paranoid, businessman, and the headquarters of Verkuylian BactoCo were riddled with secret passageways and hidden rooms. It was Deld who bought the planet Verkuyl originally, recognizing the potential profits of the vast alazhi forests. He built the factories and hired the workers, and was known as a fair and honest leader despite the fact that he held the workers as indentured workers on ten-year contracts. When the Empire nationalized Verkuyl, Deld erased the entire computer database on Verkuylian BactaCo, in an effort to ensure the Imperial forces wouldn't see his business dealings. (TFNR)

Delderaan
a planet which was home to an ancient race of primitive tribemen. (GG2)

Delephran
this shipping corporation was harrassed by pirates in the Vexta Belt, until it mobilized its own militia and wiped them out. (SWAJ)

Deleta
the Telosian gladiator was one of the combatants in the game of Katharsis. (DOR)

Delevar
this Alliance soldier was the only rookie chosen for inclusion in Han Solo's Endor assault team. He served under Bren Derlin, but he was a nervous, trigger-happy youth. He nearly gave the commandos' position away trying to take pot-shots at the Imperial forces, but Derlin was able to restrain him each time. Note that the Star Wars CCG - Endor expansion claims Delevar was a veteran of the Battle of Hoth. He was a scout and medic for Solo's assault team, and prided himself on being an effiicent soldier in General Madine's commando forces. (MTS, CCG10)

Delfii System
it was in this deepspace system that the Alliance to Restore the Republic held a military summit to discuss the assault on the second Death Star, just prior to the Battle of Endor. (TIE)

Delgad
this smuggler worked the Minos Cluster, and was based on the planet Travnin. (SWJ14)

Delgas Medical
a pharmaceutical corporation headquartered on Kabaira. (SWAJ)

Deliverance
this starship was owned by the Corellian resistance during the years leading up to the Battle of Yavin. It was donated to the Alliance, and was part of the fleet supporting Red Hand Squadron and the Retribution. (RD)

Della, Gaylan
this Alliance agent's cell was based on the planet Veron, but was compromised by Imperial spies who managed to infiltrate its ranks. Della himself was captured, but was later rescued by an Alliance team sent to Veron to investigate his disappearance. (PG1)

Dellalt
a planet located within the Tion Hegemony, Dellalt was at one time part of a strategic cluster of pre-Old Republic Expansionist growth. It was during this period that the planet came under the watchful eye of Xim the Despot, who hoped to use it as his base of operations when he began his galactic conquest. He built huge vaults on the planet's southern continent, and the starship Queen of Ranroon was en-route to deliver a huge shipment of war materiel when Xim fell at the Third Battle of Vontor. The Queen was hidden in the mountains near the vaults, until it was discovered by Han Solo and Badure. Since then, a large mining operation has flourished on Dellalt, but it started to stagnate under the ownership of J'uoch and R'all. As with much of the Tion Hegemony during the rule of Emperor Palpatine, Dellalt was virtually forgotten. Dellalt has two natural satellites, and is home to the Swimming People, a race of aquatic sauropteroids. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Dellalt was overrun during the second wave of attacks. (HSL, HT)

Dellaltian
name given to the human inhabitants of Dellalt. (HSL)

Dellaltian Bank and Currency Exchange
one of the few major banks in the Tion Hegemony. (HSL)

Delle II
this planet produces much of the galaxy's supply of hemmel. (SWAJ)

Delline, Lynia
a member of the Alliance recruiting team that went to Agamar, Lynia discovered Keyan Farlander and introduced him to Captain Beme. She is a half-human, although she never revealed her full ancestry. (XW)

Dellis Yuls
a Quarren working for Ororo Transportation as its Chief of Security, Yuls was killed by Guri when she came to discuss Xizor's displeasure at Ororo's entry into the spice trade. (SE)

Delorf
a legendary race of aliens which were supposed to have inhabited a system near the Galactic Core, the Delorf were a pastoral race who never cared for technology. Among them, some Delorf were able to sense hostility and evil in another being, regardless of race. The Delorf then performed a ceremony known as renik to cleanse the individual. (ISB)

Delphine
a Dimok cargo hauler used during the Sepan Civil War, as well as in battle against the Empire. (TIE)

Delphus
this corporation produced large-scale deflector shield generators for use on capital ships. (FOP)

Delrian
a prison planet used to incarcerate the worst of criminals. Doctor Evazan was imprisoned there, until her escaped to the Hindasar System. (MTS)

Delta Base
Mors Odrion and Rekara were assigned to this Alliance base shortly after the Battle of Yavin. It was located on the moon of New Kisge, in Sulorine Sector. (BGS, SSR)

Delta Case
this was Admiral Traest Kre'fey's plan for extricating Corran Horn and his team from Garqi, during the Yuuzhan Vong occupation of the planet. It involved a new tactic of battling against coralskippers, forcing them to maneuver and drawing power away from they dovin basal shields. (DTR)

Delta Flight
this was one of two training squadrons created by the Royal Naboo Defense Force, dedicated to training starfighter pilots for the Space Fighter Corps. Graduates of the training program for Delta Flight were assigned to Echo Flight for further training. (SFT)

Delta Seven
this sector of the planet Jerne saw many battles during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWDW)

Delta Source
a leak in New Republic security that used a maintenance droid and ch'hala trees to produce an organic microphone. Deep inside the tree, attached to its taproot, is a communications tube that has fiber sensors implanted to the tree and a comm link. (HTTE, TLC)

Delta 1
this was one of two zinsian procesing plants located in the Nihun Valley, on the planet Brosi. (AIR)

Delta 2
this was one of two zinsian procesing plants located in the Nihun Valley, on the planet Brosi. (AIR)

Delta*-class Shuttle any fast transport shuttle, such as the JV-7 from Cygnus Spaceworks. (TIE)

Delta*-class Transport
a transport ship designed by Telgorn Corporation. (XW)

Delta-9 Base
this top-secret base was maintained by the New Republic, in the wake of the Battle of Endor. Rogue Squadron and elements of the Republic's fleet were staged there, in preparation for the assault on Brentaal IV. Its exact location was never revealed. (XWES)

DeLuxe
a Carbanti-built starship. (MMY)

DeLuxFlux
manufacturers of hyperdrive motivator systems during the Clone Wars, they are located in the Corellian Sector. (SWSB)

Delvardus
one of the high-ranking Imperial officers that survived the death of the Empire, Delvardus set up his own fleet deep in the Core Systems. He was one of the many warlords fighting for control of the Empire, and was present when Daala convened the warlords at Tsoss Beacon. Delvardus was a tall, skeletal man with dark brown hair and bright white eyebrows. He had been secretly using Imperial funds to built his own Super-class Star Destroyer, known as the Night Hammer. He had proclaimed himself Superior General, but like all the other warlords whose squabbling had kept them from making any real headway against the New Republic, he died at Tsoss Beacon when Daala poisoned him. (DS)

Delvaren, Andos
this tall Rabaanite warrior was forever known as the second-best of his caste. He wore the warrior’s red bandoleer, and had been awarded the sunburst sigil of a combat artst. However, Andos was continually bested by Mika Streev, and this rankled Andos deeply. He desired to be the best, to have the power and prestige that came with being his planet’s chosen champion. To this end, he agreed to help the Empire subjugate the Ishanna System. Andos hoped that this would allow him to kill Streev and become Rabaan’s champion. He brought the Imperials to the Combat Moon just as Streev and the S’krrr Sh’shak were about to do battle. Andos brought with him a contingent of stormtroopers led by a man named Jan, and tried to lure Streev away. Streev was too quick, and he killed Jan before advancing on Andos. Andos realized that Streev was going to kill him as well, and fled the battle. (SWJ9)

DeMain, Leger
a native of Erysthes, this man was known as one of the galaxy's premier illusionists. In his youth, Leger was a virtual slave to the Corporate Sector Authority, toiling in the chak-root fields until he managed to escape by hijacking an Authority ship and fleeing with his family and friends. He later adopted the name of Leger DeMain, and pursued his dream of acting in holofeatures. He became one of the galaxy's most recognized entertainers, leading a travelling revue whose shows ended with his feats of illusion. They traveled the galaxy in DeMain's ship, the Siren III. In the much-hyped "Escape at Cloud City," DeMain nearly perished when his escape trick almost failed. He recovered from the physical wounds, but his stature as an entertainer was greatly diminished. He willingly made contact with the Alliance and offered his services as an informant, and used his status as an entertainer to gain access to Imperial facilities and obtain vital information. (CRO)

Demar
a planet. (SS)

Demartinn
this native of Andasala hired himself out as a sharpshooter. (GG11)

Dematoil
this was the traditional Bitthaevrian cudgel weapon, resembling a custom-designed morningstar or mace. It's heavy ball was covered with thick spikes made from quills of warriors the dematoil's owner had defeated in combat. (AIR)

Dembaline
this Mon Calamari was a noted composed of classical music. (VP)

Demesel
this planet, located in the Outer Rim's Meram Sector, was best-known as the base of operations for the Glasfir Ring. It was originally founded by a consortium of Inner Sphere businesses, and served as a trading center for a mulitude of Outer Rim frontier worlds. Business to and from the planet virtually dried up with the onset of the Galactic Civil War, and Demesel quickly became just another backwater world known for its criminal underworld. The average day on this temperate world lasts 22 standard hours, and its year lasts 285 local days. (GG11)

Demigue
this planet is located quite a distance from Gascon. (GMS)

Demigue Terror
this was the primary hyperspace route between the planets Demigue and Gascon. It was known as the Demigue Terror because it was frequented by pirates and hijackers. (GMS)

Demilla City
this location, found on the planet Ralltiir, was the center of Salisbury's commercial sector. (SWJ9)

Deminol
a planet. (COG)

Demior, Halacc
this wiry man was employed by Retter Lewis as a bodyguard and accountant for the antiques shop Callia's. Despite his small stature, Halacc was an accomplished hand-to-hand fighter, a skill he learned as an Alliance soldier. Halacc supports Lewis' work with the Alliance's agent protection program as well as working for Callia's. (CRO)

Demnadi
this planet was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War, but was also a hotbed of rebellious activity. (HR)

Demnadi Relief Operation
this was the name used to describe the Imperial plan to assist Governor Cathers quell the rebellion on Demnadi. Cathers asked for help in quelling a riot, and the Empire sent in Major Fenris Sarhl to assist. (HR)

Demoal, Lan
this young man was a freelance reporter who tried to find a major story to break along the Sisar Run, shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (SSR)

Demolinn
a bodyguard assigned to Rivoche Tarkin following the civil war which erupted on Coruscant after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (DESB)

Demon's Brow
a natural rock formation found on the planet M'haeli. (ROC)

Demon's Lair
this is the name given to the roughest section of the city of Talos, on Atzerri. (SOL)

Demonsgate
this planet was located near Yvara, within the veil of the Kathol Rift. The planet was named for the volcanic activity which raged across its surface, which often ignited the gases in its atmosphere and appeared to be aflame when seen from space. Despite this inhospitable environment, Demonsgate had a healthy and diverse range of lifeforms. A day on Demonsgate lasted 31 standard hours, and its year encompassed 224 local days. It was on Demonsgate that the Aing-Tii Monks recovered the Codex from the navigator Makezh, fighting off bounty hunters and Imperial forces to obtain the device. (KR)

Demonsquid
this dangerous ocean predator is native to the planet Aquaris. (CSW)

Demophon
1) primary planet in the Demephon system, its primary star went supernova during the Galactic Civil War. It was the first planet in the system, which had a normal day of 32 standard hours and a year which lasted 201 local days. The planet had two continents in a vast ocean. It was named for Arles Demophon, one of the founders of the Scout Service. It was rumored that the Empire had sabotaged the system's stellar observatory, allowing them to keep the inhabitants quiet before they discovered their sun's imminent death. This would have allowed the Empire to continue to obtain rutgar-4 from Jatee, before the system's population tried to escape the coming cataclysm. (SN)
2) the red-dwarf star that was the primary sun of the Demophon System, it went supernova and exploded during the Galactic Civil War. (SN)

Demos Traxen
this serpentine being was an Imperial bounty hunter sent to Kallistas to capture Pallas Quintell shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He booked passage on the Red Fang with Tarquin Zian. Upon his arrival, Traxen learned that Quintell had already been captured. He blamed his failure to secure the rebel agitator on the Twi'lek captain, who spent much of the trip trying to avoid Imperial entanglements. (GG10)

DEMP gun
manufactured by MerrSonn for the Empire, the anti-Droid ElectroMagnetic Pulse gun is used to disable droids when only the droids are targetted. The pulse is modified to penetrate a droid's shielded circuitry and "stun" it. The pulse has little or no effect on most life forms. Mekuun also produced a version of this weapon. (ISB, TB, COJ)

Den Sait Glass
a member of Klyn Shanga's Renatasian viligantes, searching out Vuffi Raa. (LCF)

Denab
site of an Alliance rout of Imperial I-class Star Destroyers during the Galactic Civil War. The battle exposed the Victory's slow sublight speed as a weakness. (SWR)

Denarii
this rare double star was one of the ancient galaxy's most beautiful sights. Many millennia ago, the smaller of the two stars fed on gases stolen from the larger. The Denarii double star was destroyed by Naga Sadow, resulting in the Denarii Nova. (DLS)

Denarii Nova
an area of the galaxy characterized by the exploding stars that spread arcs of stellar fire throughout its environs. It was created when the ancient Sith Lord Naga Sadow tried to elude the pursuit of the Old Republic, some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Using the Sith stones set into his unique starship, Sadow harnessed the Dark Side of the Force and tore the two Denaari stars apart as the Old Republic's fleet moved in. The fleet was destroyed, and Sadow was able to escape. Aleema tried to use the same technique a thousand years later, during the Great Sith War, and created the Cron Drift. She, however, failed to escape the destruction and was killed. (DLS, TSW, SA, L)

Denbo
this planet was the site of a Viraxo orbital facility, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Dendrite
the Anomid use this raw material to create the flowing cloaks they wear in public. (RM)

Dendroid Vines
a plant species native to Dellalt. (HSL)

Deneba
a desert planet famous for its being the site of a great Jedi Assembly of 10,000 Jedi Masters who met to discuss the great surge in the power of the Dark Side during the time of the Krath. (DA, COTF, DLS)

Deneba Bush
native to the planet Deneba, this shrubby plant collected leaves that fell from other trees and held them with finger-like sticks. When its prey approached, thinking the bush was a harmless tree, the deneba bush would drop all its leaves and grab its prey. The deneba bush would them pull the prey into its mouth and consume it. (E1A7)

Denebian Holochess
a casino game. (RM)

Denedin
this man was in charge of a mining operation on Sabrix, extracting radioactive elements from the earth to enhance the coffers of the Sabrin Ring. Denedin himself was skimming profits for himself, until Prestor Mec exposed his embezzlement. Denedin was given an early retirement, courtesy of some Hutt hitmen. (GG11)

Deneelian Fizz-pudding
a desert best served cold. (DK)

Denetrus
this young Telosian man helped Obi-Wan Kenobi and Qui-Gon Jinn bring down Xanatos and destroy the game called Katharsis. He was known as a small-time criminal, but his loyalties were unswerving once he gave them. He helped Andra and the POWER party by smuggling and stealing the supplies and parts they needed to keep up their protests against the government. He later discovered how to slice into UniFy's computer database, and helped Qui-Gon bring down UniFy, Katharsis, and Xanatos. Despite their constant squabbling, Denetrus and Andra eventually fell in love. (DOR)

Denevar
this was a temperate world. (GG10)

Denfraadi
this peaceful, human tribe is native to the planet Taloraan. They live in gondolas slung from the gasbags of 100 sleft-chuffi. (SWAJ)

Dengar
a human bounty hunter commissioned by Darth Vader to locate the Millennium Falcon. He failed to locate Han Solo, but he built a loose partnership with Boba Fett. He grew up as a swoop racer on his native planet of Corellia, and was a member of the Ferini team before he was defeated by Han Solo in a private race. Dengar was severely injured in the race when he lost sight of Solo and flew underneath him. When Dengar tried to pull up, he slammed into Solo's swoop, causing severe facial and cranial traumas. He recovered, thanks to the prodigious efforts of the local health corps and the technical resources of the Empire. He was fitted for several cybernetic implants, including new eyes and a series of neural pathways to augment his damaged systems, and given a new set of memories and "programming." The Empire cut out his hypothalmus gland and inserted a central computer module to control the new systems. The Empire expected him to be a faithful assassin, and despite the erasure of his mind and emotions, Dengar continued to develope a great hatred for Solo. He spent a number of years recovering from the injuries suffered in the swoop crash. However, he memories began to intrude on his consciousness, and Dengar left Imperial service after being told to kill the holy children on Asrat. He decided to try his own hand at bounty hunting, and spent a number of years in remote sectors of space known only as 'Payback' while memories of Han Solo began to resurface. The Empire put out a warrant for his arrest. It was during this time that he first met Manaroo, after killing Kritkeen on Aruza. The old rage he felt against Solo caused Dengar to take bounties which bore resemblances to Solo, and Kritkeen was one of them. Dengar later answered the summons of the Empire when the bounty went out on Solo's head, as Darth Vader gave him one chance to remain free if he captured Solo. Dengar failed to capture him, always one step behind Boba Fett. When Manaroo shared herself with him via her Attanni, Dengar suddenly got an insight on what it was like to be human again. He helped rescue her parents before landing in Mos Eisley. When Manaroo was captured by Jabba the Hutt's henchmen, Dengar plotted to kill the crimelord. He insinuated himself into Jabba's palace, outwardly helping to protect the Hutt from Alliance reprisal at the capture of Solo. When Fett approached him to celebrate Solo's capture and imminent death in the Pit of Carkoon, Dengar agreed and consumed some drugged Twi'leki liquor. He passed out, missing the trip to the Pit of Carkoon that should have ended with the deaths of Solo and Luke Skywalker. Instead, Jabba had him tied to the desert floor near the Teeth of Tatooine. Dengar managed to escape, driven by his fear that Manaroo was dead. She wasn't, and she later found him as she seached the desert in a speeder she had stolen. They traveled to Mos Eisley, and Dengar slowly recovered from his wounds. He also agreed to marry Manaroo. In an effort to find enough money to pay their mounting bills, Dengar went out to the desert to find the remains of Jabba's sailbarge. He tried to locate Jabba's ident chip in the wreckage, but instead found the nearly-dead Boba Fett crawling from the sand. In return for saving his life, Fett agreed to be Dengar's best man. After he married Manaroo and nursed Fett back to health, Dengar and Fett set out to hunt down Han Solo again. When they found him on Nar Shaddaa, they thought they had it made. Solo's escape further confounded Dengar and Fett, who were stranded on the spaceport moon. (ESB, DE1, MTS, DESB, EGC, TBH)

Dengar
this is a sort of Ewok battle cry. (ECAR)

Dengula
this Hutt was one of the lesser slavelords who owned property in Mos Espa, some 32 years before the Battle of Yavin. (E1A5)

Denirid, Jondrix
a native of Bridin Anchorage, this young man attended the Brandis Technical Institute during the early years of the New Republic. His father, Thalis, and his mother emmigrated to the planet during the Galactic Civil War. (GG11)

Denirid, Thalis
this man moved his family to the colony world of Bridin Anchorage during the Galactic Civil War. Although he was glad to be away from the war, he was saddened by the amount of illegal activity on the planet. (GG11)

Denlathia
this Imperial planet was retaken by the New Republic about four years after the Battle of Endor. The Star Destroyer Tempest was one of the few ships to survive, and brought its contents to Garos IV. (SWAJ)

Denna
this young man was a student of xenoarcheology at the University of Agamar during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Denna was part of the team which traveled to Bimmiel with Anki Pace, to serach for Jedi artifacts. He and Vil were sent out to repari some equipment but failed to return. It was believed that they were captured and enslaved by the Yuuzhan Vong. (DTO)

Dennaskar
this planet was the site of a secret Santhe/Seinar laboratory. (SWAJ)

Dennia
manufacturers of starship laser weapons, such as quad-laser cannons. (TT)

Denscris
a material with an incredibly high melting point. (SE)

Dent, Gans
this man was one of the associate directors of Galladinium Galactic Exports during the height of the New Order. (SWJ12)

Dentaal
this planet was the site of a raid by Crix Madine, when he was still a member of the Empire. The Imperial Governor, Taliff, had been deposed by the Dentaal Independence Party, which had declared the planet a free world. Madine was told to make the rebellious world cooperate, and to do so he planted the seeds of a Candorian plague there. Madine followed his orders, but he never felt good about doing it. During a series of military maneuvers on the planet, Madine simply disappeared from the Imperial armed forces. The Empire later blamed the plague, which killed nearly every living being on the planet, on the Alliance. The Alliance, however, discovered that the plague was similar to a plague that was unleashed on Sedesia. (DS, SWAJ)

Dentaal Independence Party led by Hancc Rellow, the DIP was formed when the Empire took control of the planet Dentaal. Governor Taliff completely disbanded the ruling House of Dentaal, allowing the Empire to be in full control of the planet's politics. The surviving members of the house met in secret and formed the DIP, which eventually ousted Taliff in a bloody coup and reclaimed Dentaal for themselves. This action resulted in the Empire's own form of retaliation, in which Crix Madine and a team of commandos unleashed the Candorian plague on the planet. (SWAJ)

Dentamma Nebula
this gaseous cloud was ruled by a royal house. (AE)

Dentani Starport
this starport was under the control of Governor Desh during the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Dentarian Ripple
a deceivingly strong alcoholic drink. (GMH)

Denuab Venithon
this Ithorian and his twin brother, Dorin, were among the most vicious pirates of the New Order. This made them a great aberration to the normally placid Ithorian people. Formerly members of such notable groups as the Fivaran Organization, the Bandits of Ggy-ynt, and the Yarnak Gang, the Venithon Twins joined the Hy'thor Pirates shortly before the Battle of Yavin. The Twins left the Fivaran Organization after a failed raid on the Alliance Special Forces vessel Hauler VI, and fled to the Hy'thor gang, where they quickly established themselves as cruel leaders. They were even made special ambassadors to Safonne Pendon's gang. Whereas Dorin was belligerent and bullish, Denuab was somewhat reasonable and diplomatic. (AIR)

Denuhi-8
this planet is the site of a Baragwin colony. The Baragwins of Denuhi-8 are known as friendly, cautious individuals. (GG12)

Denym
a tough, sturdy fabric used for work clothes. (LCM)

Depa Billaba
this slender Chalactan Jedi Master was a member of the Jedi Council, and was part of the group that deliberated over the possible training of young Anakin Skywalker. She was rescued from a band of space pirates when she was just six months old. Her rescuer turned out to be Mace Windu, who recognized her strength with the Force and brought her back to Coruscant. There, she grew up among the other Jedi trainees, and eventually became a Jedi Knight. She chose to honor her parents by living by the native culture of Chalacta, and embraced many of its religious tenets. She wore the Mark of Illumination, given to her upon her achivement of the rank of Jedi Knight. Depa was known in the Council for her insights. Depa Billaba was portrayed by Dipika O'Neil Joti in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (TPM, IG1)

Department of Information
this New Republic agency was in charge of registering and documenting all claims made by scouts and explorers who discover new planets. (GG8)

Department of Personnel
this New Republic agency was charged with maintaining the employment records of any being working for the New Republic. The Department of Personnel was in charge of paying salaries, hiring and firing, and assigning work locations. (GG8)

Department of Supply
this New Republic agency was charged with ensuring that there were sufficient resources - droids, ships, survival gear, food, etc. - available for the discovery and/or colonization of new planets. (GG8)

DepotSec
this was the somewhat derogatory term used to describe the small security forces assigned to guard Imperial supply depots during the Galactic Civil War. (IA)

Depp
a local Tatooinan term for death, as in "buy the Depp." It was coined following the death of Prefect Orun Depp at the hands of an assassin droid. (TJP)

Depp, Orun
this minor Imperial Prefect served under Tour Aryon. He was a bureaucrat who specialty seemed to be the administration of land deeds. He was suddenly killed by an assassin droid. (TM, GG7)

Depp, Sylvet
Orun Depp's brother, Sylvet worked as a clerk in the Mos Eisley branch of Zygian Savings and Loan. (GG7)

Deppo
raised on Eriadu, Deppo grew up racing swoops and tinkering with their components. His parents threw him out when he was 11, and so he was forced to take odd repair jobs. He was caught stealing a speederbike owned by the bodyguards of Governor Tarkin's niece, and was forced to work in the motor pool. His skill with mechanics earned him additional training, and he worked his way up to the position of an Imperial engineer working on the World Devastators. When the ship he was working on was attacked, he escaped in a lifepod and was rescued by the Alliance from the seas of Calamari. (DE1, DESB)

Deptronic Infusion Tank used aboard all Mon Calamari starships, these spheres provide the needed environment to maintain Mon Calamari health outside of their native oceans. (SWTJ)

Dequc
this Jeodu, who maintained a base of operation on the planet Qiaxx, tried to revive the Black Sun organization after the death of Prince Xizor at Coruscant. Emperor Palpatine sent Mara Jade to eliminate himon Svivren, where he had been trying to gather the support of other crimelords in the development of Black Nebula. In the Basic tongue, the word ‘Dequc’ means “whitehead.” Dequc had many of his lieutenants impersonate him, hoping to drive off assassins. After using Captain Strok’s troops as a diversion, Mara quickly infiltrated Dequc’s offices in Wrils and beheaded one of his stand-ins. However, she found out that she had not executed Dequc, and was forced to rework her plans. It was during this time that Emperor Palpatine was killed over Endor, and Mara was imprisoned by Ysanne Isard. She infiltrated Dequc’s palace on Qiaxx, and used a bust of Prince Xizor to care out her plans. Mara Jade hid an remote control device inside it, along with her ligthsaber, in hopes of entering Dequc’s private chambers in order to execute the crimelord. She claimed that Xizor had hidden a treasure map inside it, and when Dequc opened it, she activated the remote control. The device ignited the lightsaber, piercing Dequc’s head and killing him instantly. (MJEH)

Dera Jynsol
the fourth candidate on Lando Calrissian's rich wife list, she is a native of Ord Pardron. (AC)

Deral Reiko
this Reussi was an informant who grew up in Torel Vorne's criminal organization. He evolved into an efficient asset locator, and has developed his own information agency. In this capacity, he supplies bounty hunters with information of newly-posted bounties. (GG9)

Derbit
this small creature is often kept as a pet. (JAL)

Derdmin
an Imperial system patrol craft operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Derdram
a member of Imperial Intelligence’s Internal Security division, Derdram was assigned to the Executor when the massive ship was placed under the command of Darth Vader. Derdram was responsible for making sure that Imperial personnel were safe from Alliance saboteurs. (CCG4)

Derek
one of Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron X-Wing pilots, serving during the early days of the New Republic. (XWRS)

Derel, Minas
this man worked on the planet Pirin as a licensed expeditor, which meant that he helped bounty hunters locate the most recently-posted bounties. He tried to match the target to the hunter, in order to maximize the chances of success. Derel skimmed a percentage off the top of the total bounty collected as his fee. (GG10)

Derelkoos Desert
located on the planet Klatooine, this desert is famous for the Fountain of the Ancients. Found in the center of the desert, the Fountain rests in a bowl-shaped depression. From this depression, liquid wintrium seeps. The wintrium forms fabulous, enduring shapes and patterns as it hardens over many centuries. The Fountain holds many cultural significances for the Klatooinan people. (GG12)

Derellium Wine
a native Lianna vintage of wine. (ML)

Derillium
a mineral mined at the Arah asteroid mines. (RA2)

Derilyn
this is the primary planet in the Derilyn System, located in the Elrood Sector. The planet was subjugated by the Empire in a mere three days, and an entire sector army was stationed there. The various races that inhabit the planet - Coynite, Gamorrean, Human, Meris, and Teltoris - were cautious not to upset the Empire, but longed for their freedom. The Derilyn day lasts 27 standard hours, and the year lasts 350 local days. It has a varied ecology. (PG)

Derilyn Space Central
this agency provided traffic control and protection for the starships which traveled to Derilyn. When the Empire subjugated the planet and interdicted the space from Derilyn to Berea, Derilyn Space Central was overtaken and restaffed with Imperial officers. (OE)

Derilyn Space Defense Platform
this huge space station was placed in orbit around Derilyn by the Empire, when it tool control of Elrood Sector and interdicted the space from Derilyn to Berea. (OE)

Derilyn Travel Waiver
this permit was required by any starship which traveled between Derilyn and Berea, during the Imperial occupation of Elrood Sector. (OE)

Derilysa
this is the capital city of the planet Derilyn. (PG)

Derkolo
this predator was native to the inhospitable world of Sileron. They hunted in packs, using their sharp claws and their inherent fearlessness to bring down all forms of prey. (PG1)

Derlac
this airborne creature is raised by the Kian'thar on Shaum Hii. Derlacs graze on the plants and animals that live near the surface of the oceans, and are prized for their flesh. Derlacs can grow to be fifteen meters in length. They are noisy beasts, and the cacophony of the derlac "cattle markets" is well-known throughout the galaxy. (GG12)

Derlag's Cantina
this small cantina was located in Mos Espa, some 32 years before the Battle of Yavin. (E1A5)

Derlin, Bren
a native of Tiisheran and a major in the Alliance at the time of the Battle of Hoth, Derlin was in command of the security of Echo Base. Bren was the son of Galen Derlin, and because convinced that the Empire was evil after the murder of his father. He immediately joined the Alliance, in order to bring justice back to the galaxy. It was Derlin who ordered the base secured, even though Luke Skywalker and Han Solo were still missing out in the snow-covered wastes. Derlin served as Han Solo's second-in-command during the assault on the second Death Star's shield generator on the Forest Moon of Endor. He remained with the armed forces after the Battle of Endor, and was eventually promoted to Colonel before serving on Coruscant when Thrawn attacked the planet. He earned the rank of Brigadier in the New Republic Defense Fleet before retiring. He later became the commander of the Alliance Veterans Victory Association, and maintained a position of trust and power within the New Republic. Major Derlin was portrayed by John Ratzenberger in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back. (ESB, TLC, TT, ROJR, TTSB)

Derlin, Galen
this man was one of the most famous senators of the Old Republic, and a close friend of Bail Organa. He withdrew from politics altogether when Emperor Palpatine rose to power, returning to his homeworld of Tiisheraan in order to get away from the corruption of the Empire. However, he ws hunted down and assassinated by Imperial forces as a reminder of the power of the Empire. (TTSB)

Dermal Autostripper found in many spas and resorts, this device is used by a number of alien races which continually shed their skin. (HSL)

Dermatoglyphic Identification
this form of indentifying individuals was developed by Jaso Corporation, and is often regarded as the finest physical identification system in the galaxy. Although not as precise as retinal scanning, it uses a database which is much more readily available to other systems. Dermatoglyphic identification takes a skin sample from the subject's thumb or fingers, and a number of tests and analyses are performed on the sample. Cytoplasmic biopsies and chitinous accretion analysis are the most useful tests for those species which do not have dermatoglyphic patterns. This form of identification cannot distinguish between clones or other beings with identical genetic material, and scar tissue or artificial skin grafts produce no results at all. One species which was abused by dermatoglyphic identification was the Wookiee race, because their hands and feet were often scarred during attempts to escape capture by Imperial slavers. Thus, the Imperials took skin samples from the sensitive skin on the Wookiees' nose. (TA)

Dermeg
an Imperial governor overseeing activities on Ansillivog. He is a middle-aged male with thinning, though striking, blond hair. (RPG)

Derora
this was one of the inhabitable moons located in the Birjis System. (SWJ12)

Derr
the fifth planet in the five-world Demophon System, Derr was destroyed when the system's primary star exploded as a supernova. (SN)

Derra IV
site of an Imperial ambush of an Alliance supply convoy, just prior to the Battle of Hoth. Although Vader's forces annihilated the Alliance convoy, it was learned later that the ambush had been devised by Admiral Thrawn, in one of his first campaigns as an Imperial officer. (ESBR, MBF)

Derra-114
an encryption scheme used by the New Republic in the first years after the Battle of Endor, it was cracked by Apwar Trigit's forces shortly before he attacked Folor. (WS)

Derra'makin
this Marasan Grand Daern was exiled from Marasai during the reign of Emperor Palaptine, and hid on one of the Marasai colony worlds. (GG12)

Derraiv
this planet was the sight of a major battle some time before the Battle of Hoth. (WEG)

Derrbi Wastelands
a rocky area of the planet Romar. (SWAJ)

Derricon
this planet was loyal to the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ13)

Derricote, Evir
a native of Kalla, Evir was an Imperial officer who found himself on the short end of many opportunities. He was one of the original members of the 181st Imperial Fighter Wing, and was in command of the ships when Soontir Fel was relegated to the 181st. As a Colonel, Derricote was simply a figurehead after Fel's arrival, for Fel's military genius quickly overshadowed Derricote's. This served Derricote just fine, as he would have rather spent more time with his mycosia flowers than in a cockpit. However, after decisive victories at Ord Biniir and Derra IV, Derricote was prompoted to General and Fel was promoted to Colonel and took his place. It was Derricote who discovered the forgotten Alderaan Biotics facility on Borelais. He maneuvered his way into an assignment in the Pyria System, following the ambush of an Alliance supply convoy at Derra IV, and was eventually stationed on Borleias. He was a large, overweight man. He used a series of false requisitions and orders to funnel funding and security from the remnants of the Empire to fund his secret operation at the nearly-forgotten Alderaan Biotics hydroponics plant. He then supplied many black-market reellers with a continual flow of Alderaanian delicacies, and made almost three millions credits before being discovered by Kirtan Loor. Derricote also used similar tactics and bookkeeping maneuvers to strengthen the defenses around Borleias. He later was assigned by Ysanne Isard to develop the Krytos virus, using the aliens found in the Invisible Sector of Coruscant. It was later learned that he was using Diric Wessiri as an enslaved assistant, allowing Derricote to remain out of the actual contamination area. Once the Krytos virus was unleashed into the water system of Imperial City, Isard had Derricote imprisoned in the Lusankya facility. She feared that he might expose her if he was captured. He was killed in a scuffle with Corran Horn, who was also imprisoned at Lusankya. Horn was trying to escape, and was followed by Derricote. The prisoner Jan had seen Derricote slip away, and arrived as Derricote attacked Horn. Jan managed to deflect Derricote's initial attack, giving Horn time to smash Derricote's skull with a shovel. It was later discovered that Derricote had a hidden storehouse of viruses aimed at various species throughout the galaxy, including the human race. (XWN, WG, KT, TEP, MBF)

Derrida
this Ketton spy operated on Kwenn Space Station during the early years of the New Order. Known to members of the Alliance as a sly and cunning adversary, Derrida found herself in a kind of duel with Alliance operative Kassar Kosciusko after foiling five separate Alliance operations on Kwenn. She also framed Lieutenant Commander Zhir-Khan, falsifying Kwenn records to make it appear as if Zhir-Khan had betrayed the Alliance. Derrida was a known associate of the Kubaz spy Garindan, having spent some time on Tatooine before relocating to Kwenn. (AIR)

Derriphan
these nightmarish creatures were born of the Dark Side of the Force, and were named for the Sith word meaning "devourer." These creatures consumed the very thoughts and experiences of living beings, leaving behind the bodies without the living essense they once contained. In order to feed, however, a Derriphan had to enter the body of its victim, take control of the victim's mind, the drain off the essense of the victim. These creatures were believed to have been extinct, having died out after the Great Sith War. However, a few Derriphan managed to survive the battle, and existed during the Galactic Civil War. Those who claimed to have actually seen a Derriphan said that the creatures resembled miniature black stars, roiling with energy. (WSV)

Derris
an Alliance shuttle group captured in the Bruanii Sector following the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Derwayne, Vella
this dark-skinned woman was one of the youngest Imperial Security Bureau protocol officers ever. She was noted for the fact that she had turned in her own parents for conspiring against the New Order. Vella distinguished herself in the area of reforming juvenile delinquents in the Core during the height of the New Order. (HR)

Deryvian Snake
a hissing reptile. (SWJ9)

Des'mar
this was one of the two primary factions of the Saurton race. They considered themselves to be forward-looking visionaries who welcomed the prosperity brought to Essowyn by the mining operations which worked in the asteroid belts. They were in the minority in terms of numbers, but far exceeded the Quenno in wealth and power. (PG1)

Desaclates
this Exocron Airfleet cruiser captured a rogue Imperial probe droid near the planet, but was attacked by a group of pirates hoping to retrieve the droid. The crew of the FarStar assisted the Airfleet, under the command of Horzao Darr, and managed to drive off the pirate corsairs. Unfortunately, the Desaclates was severely damaged and crashed into the ocean of Exocron and was lost. The pirates managed to obtain the probe droid, but the ship on which it was being carried was caught under the Desaclates and was also destroyed. (KO)

Desanne
this man was a native of Kalist VI, and served the Empire as a Commander in the armed forces. Because of a political blunder which occured shortly before the Battle of Hoth, Desanne was stripped of his official duties and relegated to acted as a liaison for travelling Imperial dignitaries. (CCG5)

Desargorr
this planet, part of the Allied Tion, is known for its beautiful mountain ranges. (ML)

DeSelvaine, Trem
this Karflo Corporation scientist performed a series of experiments on a Polydroxol, hoping to discover if the creature was intelligent. He worked for Administrator Renerdat, although he thought the Administrator a fool for trying to wipe out the Polydroxol just to obtain profits from mining Sevetta. DeSelvaine's work was possibly the first real examination of the Polydroxol, and his work with a Polydroxol individual produced a great deal of information on their biochemistry, morphing abilities, and intelligence. Unfortunately, the Polydroxol individual - which he had nicknamed Polly - learned of Administrator Renerdat's plans to kill it and all members of its race on Sevetta. Polly escaped, and killed all personnel aboard the Karflo research station. Despite his empathy for Polly, the Polydroxol associated DeSelvaine with the others and killed him as well. (SWJ12)

Desert Bloom
this mixed, alcoholic drink was popular at the Bantha Traxx establishment on Lianna. (WSV)

Desert Delight
this was one of the favorite items on the menu at Bantha Traxx, located on the planet Lianna. (WSV)

Desert of Kariste
this small desert was located on the planet Sevarcos, between the Arrandle and Trekali Mountain ranges. (SWJ12)

Desert of Salma
a wasteland on Endor, full of pools of acid and dry lakes. The Gorax has built his fortress on its outskirts. The Desert is located just beyond the Yawari Cliffs. (EA, ISU)

Desert Plain
this flat expanse of sand separated the southern Dune Sea from Ben's Mesa, on the planet Tatooine. (IWE1)

Desert Sands
the detachment of Imperial stormtroopers keeping law and order on Tatooine about the time of the Battle of Yavin. (SCRE)

Desert sponge
similar to the oceanic version, these creatures survive on Tatooine by collecting moisture. (COTF)

Desert Starlight
a song written and played by the band Red Shift Limit. It was first released as part of the compilation Limited Warfare, and has been banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Desertwind
this was the pseudonym given by Ylenic It'kla to the third Jedi who accompanied the Caamasi and Nejaa Halcyon to deal with Nikkos Tryis and the Jensaarai. The name was derived from the man's scent, which has powerful connotations for Caamasi. (IJ)

Desetur
this was one of the six major continents found on the planet Celanon. (PG1)

Desevro
this planet is part of the Allied Tion sector. (ML)

Desh
1) this Imperial Governor was in control of the planet Gandrossi VI, in the Perrin Sector, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Desh lost a large sum of credits in a sakresh game to the Devaronian merchant Ulicx Vinaq. In retaliation, Desh had Vinaq's ship loaded with Imperial arms, then issued a warrant for the Devaronian's arrest, claiming that the merchant stole the weapons from Desh's armory. (GG10)
2) this natural element was combined with terenthium to produce a super-light allow which was used by OmoTact Corporation to manfuacture skyships like the Roahks 7m. (GG2)

Desh, Reck
this former smuggler was known for his flambouyant appearance, which including body piercings and tattooes. He also favored electrum jewelry. A former acquaintance of Han Solo and Roa, Desh tried his luck as a mercenary for hire during the early years of the New Republic. He even went so far as to sell his services to the Yuuzhan Vong, shortly after the Battle of Ithor. He joined a group of renegades known as the Peace Brigades, and set out to foment unrest and distrust of the Jedi Knights. Han Solo and Roa tried to track him down, shortly after the destruction of Obroa-skai. After Roa was captured on the Jubilee Wheel by the Yuuzhan Vong, Han ran into Reck during the Peace Brigade's ambush of the Queen of Empire. The Brigade had hoped to recover the priestess Elan and return her to the Yuuzhan Vong, despite the Vong's own plans to have Elan infiltrate the Jedi Knights. Elan was recovered by Han Solo, but Reck and his mercenaries managed to expose her and take her to their ship. Han pursued, and found that Elan had exhaled a breath full of bo'tous, which had killed the entire crew of the Peace Brigade's ship. Reck was among the dead. (HT)

Deshfinop
this was a species of large, leathery-winged, avian mammals. (HR)

Design Team Beta
this noted group of scientists and engineers who worked for Hydrospeare Corporation was generally credited with the development of the Explorer submersible as well as an aquatic version of the AT-AT walker. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, Design Team Beta was based at a research facility on Kailor V, was headed by Doctor Tolum Harous, and included Mosara Thiirn, Diran Miciluz, and Sere Lure. (AIR)

Desilijic
this is one of the most powerful Hutt kajidics. (EGC, THG)

Desnand, Feebee
this plump woman was Io Desnand's wife. Feebee wore false eyelashes that were so large they resembled black-veined butterfly wings. She favored full-length, animal-skin jackets. When Io had the Trandoshan bounty hunter Bossk in captivity on Aida, she asked him to skin the beast to obtain a lizard-skin gown. (TBH)

Desnand, Io
this Imperial Governor was in control of the Aida and Lomabu Systems during the Galactic Civil War. He maintained a penal colony on Lomabu III, where he held several hundred Wookiees. He had planned to use the Wookiees as bait in a trap to capture a major portion of the Alliance fleet. However, Tinian I'att and Chenlambec had lured Bossk to Lomabu III at the same time, hoping to trap him by claiming the Trandoshan was there to poach Wookiee pelts. Desnand's plans were foiled when Tinian and Chen trapped Bossk before he could launch his own plans. Desnand almost skinned the Trandoshan alive before Bossk managed to escape. (TBH, HM)

Desolate
the biologically-engineered starship used by Ber'asco and the Charon death cult to remove the "disease" of life from the realm of Otherspace. Like a massive organic castle in space, the Desolate is an amorphous mass of strange, weblike constructs measuring over 450 meters at its longest point. It acts like a magnet to any ships traveling in Otherspace, drawing them to it and collecting them in a weird belt which surrounds the ship. Those ships which contained information on new species of life were physically attached to the Desolate so that Ber'asco could obtain information necesssary to destroy them. The weapons systems of the ship are hidden in rocky pods which open to allow the firing of projectile weapons. The Desolate is a strangely dead ship, in keeping with the Charon beliefs surrounding the Void. Consequently, the Desolate seemed to be a black hole which consumed the Force. There were four main decks surrounding the central core, with a series of hollow tubes connecting adjacent levels. A docking bay of sorts is separated from the vacuum of space by a penetratable membrane which seals itself as ships pass through it. The main bridge was the site of a large, brain-like computer node. Ber'asco used this node to communicate with other lifeforms. The lowest part of the ship seemed to be a manufacturing facility for the Charon red mist. After the Charon were first defeated by Alliance agents while in Otherspace, Ber'asco had his bioscientists create a hyperdrive for the Desolate, so that it could jump into realspace and attack the galaxy beyond. However, when Grand Moff Ravik's mind took control of Ber'asco's body, and Ber'asco's mind took control of Bane Nothos' body, the battle between the two caused a small amount of damage to the ship's control systems. Rather than emerging over the planet Stronghold, the Desolate smashed into the world, sustaining huge amounts of damage as it skidded over the rocky surface. The ship was abandoned on Stronghold, after Alliance soldiers overcame the Charon and defeated Ravik. (OS, OS2)

Desolation
this Dreadnaught-class heavy cruiser was part of Warlord Zsinj's third fleet. (SOC)

Desolation Alley
this was the name used by the inmates of the Galactic Correctional Authority's penal colony on Oovo IV to describe the prison's cellblocks. (RAC)

Desolator
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was assigned to Admiral Grendeef and the Miser base. It was destroyed when Alliance agents, trying to recover the Isis cordinates from the crew of the Wanderer, reprogrammed the Star Destroyer's navigational comupter. The Desolator made a sudden jump to hyperspace, and re-emerged at the center of the rogue star G-138. All hands were lost, including Admiral Grendeef. (IC)

Despayre
a planet in the Horuz system, it was used as a penal colony by the Empire. The planet was covered in thick jungles that were fed by wide rivers and shallow seas. An abundance of lifeforms inhabited the jungles, and many were predacious. Captives in the penal colony were held in check with the threat of leaving them outside the colony's walls to fend for themselves. It here that the Empire found a willing, if unruly, source of labor for the construction of the first Death Star. The huge battle station was erected in orbit, without regards to the prisoners or the planet. The prisoners didn't realize it at the time, but the huge amount of scrap and debris that was created and left in orbit effectively sealed the planet off from outside contact, since no sane pilot would fly his ship through the chaf. When the prisoners became too unruly to effectively work on the Death Star, Tarkin went to Kashyyyk and captured some Wookiees to use as slaves. Once the battle station was complete, Tarkin ordered the new superlaser tested immediately. The Empire's first successful use of the weapon came when Tarkin fired on Despayre itself, killing all of the native life, the slave labor, and destroying the planet. (MTS, DS, DSTC)

Despecto
a Selonian word meaning "honorable." (AS)

Despot
a Sovereign-class Star Destroyer under construction prior to the Emperor Palpatine's rebirth on Byss. (DE1)

Desstious
a planet. (WBC)

Destination: Adventure!
this passenger liner plied the spacelanes of the Periphery along the Sisar Run during the Galactic Civil War. It provided a number of tourist and vacation packages, as well as starships repair and resupply facilities. The ship's actually owners were part of the Black Sun criminal organization. (SSR)

Destiny
this Imperial warship, part of the fleet commanded by Carnor Jax, was dispatched to Zaddja to locate and eliminate Kir Kanos. (CE)

Destion
a Mugaari transport destroyed when the Empire subjugated the Tungra Sector. (TIE)

Deston
one of the planet Pantolomin's larger islands. (DFRSB)

Destrillion
this planet was a twin to the world of Dubrillion. Both were located near the asteroid system known as Lando's Folly. Brown and dirty from space, Destrillion is an inhospitable world. Lando Calrissian, during his tenure as owner of Lando's Folly, set up great processing plants on Destrillion, where ores from the asteroid field could be turned into usable materials. (VP)

Destroyer Droid
these large, mobile weapons platforms were created by the Trade Federation to augment their legions of battle droids. Destroyer droids were built on a platform that could curl in upon itself and roll into battle. Once deployed, the destroyer would unfold itself, steadying its massive form on three stout legs. Its arms were studded with laser cannons and projectile launchers, and its head was filled with sensitive sensors and detectors used to local its targets. Models developed shourtly before the Battle of Naboo included small shield generators, and a series in development had independent, programmable computer brains that freed them from the necessity of a Droid Control Ship. The destroyer droids were also known as droidekas, and were produced by the Colicoids of Colla IV. The form of the destroyer droid mirrors the forms of the Colicoids themselves, including the ability to roll up into a ball and surprise their targets. (SW1, VD1, IG1)

Destroyer-I
this was one of Kuat Drive Yards' ion engine designs. They saw duty as the primary sublight drive systems on Imperial-class Star Destroyers. (EGV)

Destroyers, The
this band sometimes played at Bantha Traxx, on the planet Lianna. (WSV)

Detainer
this Interdictor-class cruiser was under the command of Lieutenant Lon Donell during the early years of the New Republic. He used it to drag Republic ships from hyperspace, then captured the ships for his own fleet. Donell was forced to man the ship with less than a full crew, because his own troops were small in number. The Detainer was also short on support ships, carrying only a single TIE Fighter squadron, a pair of Skipray blastboats, and two Gamma-class assault shuttles. (WBC)

Detainment droid
floating prison guards equipped with four arms. (DE1)

Detan, Narn
this New Republic Captain was placed in charge of re-establishing the government of a small colony in the Geal System. During the action, his troops enocuntered the bounty hunter Moxin Tark. Tark had been following Detan ever since the remnants of the Empire had placed a bounty in his head. Tark executed Detan in front of the New Republic troops, and managed to escape and claim the bounty. (WBC)

Detention Task Force
this study group was formed within the Corporate Sector Authority to analyze the costs and methods of imprisonment in various Authority and Imperial prison facilities. They determined that the New Order would likely lead to rebellion, and that a new breed of prison would be required to maintain larger numbers of criminals. They proposed the Stars' End project, and were involved in the initial design. The conclusion of the task force was that criminals could be stored in stasis booths, maintained in suspended animation until their sentences were up. This cut down on most operational costs - like food, clothing, and accommodations - while ensuring the safety of the prisoners. (CSA)

Dethro Glok
this being controlled much of the scrap trade which sprang up on the planet Ord Ibanna, after the gas mines there were abandoned. He was known as a ruthless leader, although he was strictest about maintaining the repulsorlifts which kept the cities of the planet afloat long enough to be salvaged. (RAC)

Dethro's Revenge
named for Dethro Glok, this was one of the many podraces which meandered through the cloud-cities of the planet Ord Ibanna during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Detien Kaileel
this Kabieroun served as the Kuari Princess' chief of security during the later years of the New Order. He fled his homeworld of Kabieroun several years before the Empire began subjugating the world, and studied police science at Balaidas Academy before the Empire closed it to non-humans. Detien then spent twenty or so years as a detective for the Mid-Rim Sentinel Agency before hiring on with Galaxy Tours as a security officer. A good friend of Celia Durasha and Dap Nechel, neither knew that Kaileel was also a supporter of the Alliance. On several runs with the Princess, Kaileel had been delivering guns and supplies to the underground on Mantooine, which had attracted the attention of Adion Lang and the ISB. When he was arrested aboard the Princess, Celia tried to rescue him from prison. She didn't believe that the rebellion was correct until Kaileel revealed that the Empire had destroyed Alderaan. When he was captured by Lang, his resistance led to his demise as Lang shot him before he could board his shuttle and escape. (TFE, SWJ8)

Detonite
the most common explosive used in grenades and detonators. It is produced in moldable, fist-sized cubes. (SWSB, DESB)

Detonite Tape
this was a specialized form of explosive which found a wide market during the Galactic Civil War. D-tape (as it is referred to in the business) is a basic adhesive tape which has been impregnated with detonie gel. While not as destructive as a shaped charge, detonite tape was more flexible and adaptive to the shapes of doors, windows, and hatches. (ROE)

Dev, Yanix
to the casual acquiantence, Yanix Dev was an upstanding businessman who could have run any number of Inner Rim corporations. In reality, Dev was an egotistical distribution manager for the Karazak Slavers Guild. He liked to refer to himself as a "body broker." (GG11)

Deva
a form of music created and perfected on Adarlon.I (GG6)

Devaron
this temperate world is home to the Devaronians and their cousins, the Devish. The terrain of Devaron is made up a low mountain ranges with deep valleys, shallow lakes, and thousands of rivers. (GG4, SCRE)

Devaronian
these aliens are one of the most unique races in the galaxy, as their male and female sexes are so vastly different in appearance and temperament. The males are docile, non-aggresive creatures with smooth, hairless skin and short horns on their heads. They takes great pride in their horns, and groom them quite regularly. The females, on the other hand, are covered in calico fur and do not have horns. They are aggressive by nature, and tend to dominate their culture. It is believed that they are descended from a race of primates that lived in the mountains of Devaron, their homeworld, and that their horns were a genetic mutation that proved useful in fending off predatory brids. Devaronians are carnivores and in general, have an efficient metabolism, consuming nearly every bit of food they eat. This means that they don’t go to the toilet as often as other races. Devaronians were one of the first races to discover the secrets to space travel and develop stardrives. (SW, SCRE, GG4, TBH)

Devaronian Blood-poison
this strange gemstone is a strange silver color. When the stone is rubbed into an open wound, or used as a weapon to pierce flesh, it inflicts a painful poisoning into the bloodstream, which lingers for weeks unless treated immediately. (TPS)

Devastator
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer famous for its capture of the Rebel ship Tantive IV, the Devastator was Darth Vader's personal flagship until the Battle of Yavin. Prior to Vader's command, the Devastator. was the flagship of Lord Tion, who commanded it during the destruction of an Alliance based on Ralltiir before his defection. It was later assigned to the fleet commanded by Darth Vader aboard the Executor. (SWR, SWSB)

Devastator Torpedo
this weapon was developed during the last years of the Galactic Civil War by the Empire. Rolf Treidum and his fleet of ships patrolling the Kathol Outback used one of these weapons on the planet Danoor, after Waric Nane failed to keep the FarStar and her crew on the planet. The torpedo was launched at the planet, and created a blast radius of about 5 kilometers. Everything within the blast was obliterated. The only drawback to the use of the devastator torpedo is that its launching system takes several minutes to recharge between shots. (KO)

Devato
this searing ball of rock is the first planet in the Lianna System. (ML)

DeVay, Varel
this young woman was the xenobiologist serving aboard the FarStar during its attempts to intercept Moff Sarne in Kathol Sector following the Battle of Endor. She grew up on a Core world, the pampered daughter of wealthy parents, and could have attended any university she chose. Despite her parents' wishes, she decided to follow her own path and study xenobiology. After graduation, she took a job working for a small company on Kal'Shebbol, but found herself actually working for Moff Sarne as a bioweapons developer. When the New Republic liberated Kal'Shebbol and forced Sarne into hiding, Varel opted to serve aboard the FarStar rather than return home. (KO)

Devers
this Imperial soldier was killed on Eiattu when Nrin recovered from his wounds. (XWWP)

Devil
a pirate escort shuttle group destroyed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Devil's Doorknob, The
this was the name given to the opening through which The Corkscrew emptied onto the Hutt Flats, part of the Mos Espa Circuit racecourse found on the planet Tatooine. Podracers had to flip their vehicles on their sides in order to pass through the Doorknob. (IWE1)

Devir
this Krytollak empress ruled her people during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. She had access to Imperial observers who helped her govern the planet Thandruss, in response to the Krytollak support of the New Order. (GG12)

Devish
another race of Devaronians, the Devish resemble their cousins outwardly, but there are several social and physical differences. The male Devish are born with sharp teeth used for hunting. The females are born with the sharp and blunt molars, and can survive on food that would kill most males. About one male in every fifty is born with both sets of teeth, making him a kind of solitary but useful hunter. Those Devish, male or female, with two sets of teeth, have the molars on the outer set and the sharp teeth on the inner set. The molars can be retracted, leaving the sharp teeth clear for ripping meat. (TME)

Devisors
this social strata was the higher of the two which developed over the millennia on Exocron. Descended from the original engineers aboard the Exocros Cabal, the Devisors were responsible for maintaining a safe and "good" level of technology for the rest of the planet's inhabitants. The Devisors believed that technology and space travel were inherently evil, and made sure that nothing new would come to harm the other colonists. This division of the population made the Devisors the unstated rulers of Exocron. However, there were several pirate groups and corsairs who believed that the Devisors were holding the people of Exocron from joining the rest of the galaxy. One group, led by Eida Sharden, managed to finally break the Devisors' hold on the population. After assisting Horzao Darr and Kaiya Adrimetrum in freeing the FarStar, Pagda Gevtes was captured and the Devisors were reduced in stature. (KO)

Devist, Carib
this tallgrain farmer from the Dorchess Valley of the planet Pakrik Minor was actually one of the sleeper agents dispersed throughout the galaxy by Grand Admiral Thrawn, and was a member of cell Jenth-44. Carib was “activated” by Grodin Tierce, shortly after the revelation of the Caamas Document. Like his brother, Sabmin, Carib was also a clone of Soontir Fel, bred for his piloting skills in case Thrawn needed additional pilots in his war against the New Republic. However, Fel's love of the outdoors and his family somehow made it into his makeup, and the Devists decided that they didn't want to fight when the orders came through. They opted to negotiate with Leia Organa-Solo for their freedom. Carib agreed to help the New Republic by taking a doctored recording of an alien starship to the nearest Ubiqtorate base, in hopes that it would be rerouted to Bastion. Han Solo and Lando Calrissian could then travel to Bastion and retrieve a copy of the Caamas Document. In the meantime, Devist agreed to served as the diplomatic representative to the New Republic from Pakrik Minor. He threw in his full support of President Gavrisom, and was used as a rallying point. He was also able to identify several Imperial ships among those gathered around Bothawui, and was instrumental in the discovery of the Tyrannic. (SOP, VOF)

Devist, Daberin
Carib Devist's son. (VOF)

Devist, Keena
Carib Devist's daughter. (VOF)

Devist, Lacy
Carib Devist’s wife. (SOP)

Devist, Sabmin
this tallgrain farmer was the brother of Carib Devist, and was also a sleeper agent in cell Jenth-44, planted by Grand Admiral Thrawn. Sabmin was the first agent on Pakrik Minor to receive Imperial notification that the agents had been activated, and organized the agents for action. Like his brother, Carib, Sabmin was also a clone of Soontir Fel, bred for his piloting skills in case Thrawn needed additional pilots in his war against the New Republic. However, Fel's love of the outdoors and his family somehow made it into his makeup, and the Devists decided that they didn't want to fight when the orders came through. They opted to negotiate with Leia Organa-Solo for their freedom. (SOP, VOF)

Devit
1) this nation, encompassing the three continents of the western hemisphere of the planet Lazerian IV, was the only nation on the planet. (TSK)
2) this city, found on the continent of Laz on the planet Lazerian IV, is the capital of the nation of Devit. (TSK)

DeVitt, Chase
a native of Corellia, this many ended up on Socorro with only a few credits to his name. He was brought to the planet by Drake Paulsen, but his good looks and roguish style earned him a quick position in the criminal underground. His skills with sabacc cards got him hired by Tiranga the Hutt, who employed Chase as a "luck-buster." Whenever a customer of Tiranga's Loft got too lucky and started winning, Chase was sent in to call their bluff. His success rate at stopping these runs created a healthy rivalry between Chase and some of the galaxy's best sabacc players, and his ability to beat them has helped fill Tiranga's coffers. (BSS)

Devlia
this small, heavy-set Imperial Admiral survived the Battle of Endor and controlled a the Rachuk Sector for a few years afterward. He was Uwlla Iellor's commanding officer. He is a very opinionated person, and his opinion is usually wrong, although he works hard to make people see that it is the only opinion. He was killed in the New Republic raid on Vladet. (XWN)

Devlikk
this is a species of heart-shaped, green-skinned aliens was native to the planet Ord Radama. The average lifespan of a Deevlikk was around ten standard years. (IG1, IWE1)

Devonian
one of the New Republic assault shuttles participating in the assault on Borleias. It later assisted the retaking of Coruscant by transporting troops to the planet's surface. (XWN, WG)

Devotion
a recommissioned Black Sword warship used by the Yevetha to purge the planet Polneye. It was a Victory-class Star Destroyer. (BTS)

Devotion of Yevetha
Tal Fraan served aboard this Yevetha warship, leading a group of human slaves. (SOL)

Devvol, Fez
this man was the manager of Aqualis Base during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He developed relationships with the Krikthasi in order to make his work on the planet easier. (PG1)

Dewback
large, omnivorous, dinosaur-like lizards found in the deserts of Tatooine and Breeka, dewbacks are named for the sweat they exude during periods of rest. The dew-like sweat collects along the scales of their backs, and is often collected for medicinal purposes. They are solitary animals for most of the year. They congregate in the Jundland Wastes each year to participate in a huge, orgiastic mating ritual. The eggs are then left behind. They young must fend for themselves once hatched. Faster and more agile than a Bantha, Dewbacks can be trained for use as mounts. However, any domesticated Dewback must be set free each year for the mating season. They are also used as a food source by humans and Tusken Raiders. Dewbacks are active during the heat of the day, but become sluggish during the cold desert nights. (SW, JS, SWSB, GG7, XWWP, GF)

Dewback Kord
this man was the chief mechanic for the starship Hawkbat. (WS)

Dewback Storage Warehouse located in Coronet City on Corellia, Corran Horn and Riij Winward hid Captain Niriz' cargo here during their travels with Grand Admiral Thrawn, who was disguised as Jodo Kast. (TFE)

Dewlannamapia
this 600-year-old female Wookiee joined Garris Shrike on the Trader's Luck as a chef, following the exiling of her husband, Isshaddik. Known to her friends as Dewlanna, she befriended Han Solo, and kept watch over him. It was this love that Han never forgot, and eventually led to his association with Chewbacca. Dewlanna was the one who discovered that Han's last name was Solo, during one of Shrike's fits of drunken bragging. When Solo attempted to escape from the Luck and start his own life, Dewlanna gave him a bagful of credits. When Shrike caught Solo, Dewlanna stepped into make sure Han got away. She killed Larrad Shrike before taking a blaster bolt from Garris. The injury proved fatal, and Han promised that her death would not go in vain. (TPS)

Dewplates
a thick-growing jungle plant native to Dathomir. (CPL)

Dexsrti Skin Pox
despite its name, this parasite attacked its host from the inside, lodging in the digestive system until fully grown. Then, they migrated into the bloodstream and lodged themselves in the subcutaneous tissues of muscles. Once there, they resembles rosy lumps on the skin, giving them their name. The infection of Dexsrti Skin Pox was treatable with medication. (TBSB)

Deyer
homeworld of Kyp Durron's parents. It was a terraformed world, with raft cities anchored in manmade lakes, located in the Anoat System. It was once a successful fish-farming colony, aquaformed to make the most of the fish. Located near the Ison Corridor and the Corellian Trade Spine, it was within easy access of many Old Republic supply lines. The colonists ruled themselves under the auspices of the Old Republic, but the rise of the New Order saw widespread misuse of the farming facilities. The Empire polluted the waters and killed off the fish. Since the fall of the Empire, Deyer has become just another backwater world. Its days lasts 28 standard hours, and its year lasts 389 local days. (JS, JASB)

Deylerax
this planet is the homeworld of the Enu race. (WBC)

Deysum III
this planet, located in the Trax Sector, served as the Imperial sector capital shortly after the Battle of Yavin. A huge naval installation was erected on the planet. At the time of the Battle of Yavin, Deysum III had been abused by corporations and urban sprawl, and much of the planet was covered with swamps of deadly chemicals and toxic waste. The inhabitants of the planet were forced to erect huge domes to cover their cities and keep out the toxic gases the built up over the centuries of misuse. (GMK)

Dezix
this Imperial Security Bureau agent was assigned to the first Death Star, leading the group of agents monitoring the station. He had the ability to be inconspicuous when it suited him, but he was also ruthless and cunning to a fault. (DSTC)

Dezon
an Imperial Lieutenant, Dezon worked a pit officer on the Interdictor-class ship Constrainer. He had been conscripted into the Empire against his will, but grew to at least honor the Empire he worked to restore. (HTSB)

Df
this unit of measure is used by weapons manufacturers, and describes the range (in kilometers) over which a single tube charge loses eight percent of its energy. It was initially developed by the Sumrias race, and says that the weapon loses half its charge at 8 Df. (ISB)

DF.1
designation of the Golan Arms spray blaster. (ISB)

DF.9
Golan Arms' anti-infantry battery, the DF.9 is a turret-mounted medium laser weapon. The turret can be mobilized for deployment, but the weapon's mechanics require it to be constantly maintained. It has a proton-shielded control cylinder, and the weapons sit on top of it. (ISB, CFG)

DF.9/B
a follow-on to the Golan Arms DF.9, the DF.9/B is essentially a DF.9 battery mounted on a four-meter tower. This weapon is a fixed-installation weapon only, and rapidly gained popularity during the Galactic Civil War. (ISB)

DFA 998
this anti-infantry laser battery was manufactured by Golan Arms during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

DFS-1104
this was one of the Vulture droid starfighters which was assigned to the Trade Federation's command ship, during the initial stages of the blockade of the planet Naboo. (YJC4)

DFS-1138
this was one of the Vulture droid starfighters which was assigned to the Trade Federation's command ship, during the initial stages of the blockade of the planet Naboo. (YJC4)

DFS-327
this was one of the Vulture droid starfighters which was assigned to the Trade Federation's command ship, during the initial stages of the blockade of the planet Naboo. (YJC4)

DF101-008
this New Republic datafile was appended to datafile DF76-882, and contained information on the D-type starfighter used by the Yevethans. (CTD)

DF76-882
this datafile was created by the New Republic Intelligence agency to monitor the various forms of starships used by the Yevethan species. (CTD)

DF76-901
this New Republic Intelligence datafile was appended to file DF76-882, and contained information on the Aramadia-class Yevethan thrustship. (CTD)

DH-17
one of BlasTech's Imperial weapons, the DH-17 resembles an E-11 blaster, except that its nozzle is cone-shaped. (CCG)

Dhalbreth Square
located in Imperial City on Coruscant, this park contains a pond full of glowfish. (SHA)

Dha Werda Verda
this ancient text was first discovered – inadvertently – by Mungo Baobab, who recovered the famed Roonstones. They were later deciphered in the Baobab Archives. Encoded into the crystal structure of the stones was the first version of the text ever found. Research into the origins of Dha Werda Verda indicate that it was written some 5,000 years before the Taungs marauded the ancient peoples of the planet Coruscant, known as the battalions of Zhell. The epic story recounts the bloody battles between the Taungs and the Zhell, and focuses on the final battle, which turned when a volcano erupted and rained deadly ashes onto the main Zhell city, wiping them out. However, the cloud of ash which formed as a result of the blast filled the skies for two years after the Taung's took control. This cloud cast a shadow over their lives, and the Taung adopted the name "Dha Werda Verda," which literally translates to "The Warriors of the Shadow." Throughout their history, the Taungs have referred to themselves as the Dark Warriors, another translation of Dha Werda Verda. (SES)

Dharus
this Outer Rim privateer operated along the Territory's Leisure Corridor. Dharus was an orange-brown-skinned humanoid of unknown origin. His eyes glowed a deep scarlet. He was a fun-loving thrill-seeker, but was also wanted by the Empire. Zardra once tried to claim the bounty on Dharus' head, and nearly caught him on board the Culroon Minstrel. Dharus escaped, but was eventually brought to trial by the Empire. He was let go on circumstantial evidence, and has secretly worked for the Alliance ever since. (GG9)

Dharus' Buccaneers
this was the name used to describe the pirate force which worked for Dharus. (PP)

Dhashaan Shield
this mercenary outfit was hired by the Nhoras race to assist in defending their world from attack by the Clatear. (SOP)

Dheendo
this Rodian was at one time an average bounty hunter working for the crimelord Tyu. He never had the cunning and bloodthirstiness that most members of his species have, and so he left Tyu's employment and joined the Alliance. Dheendo made his way into Shroud Team, serving under Dutra Zeneta as their chief foster agent. He idolized Dutra Zeneta, and worked to be as wise as he thought Zeneta was. (SWJ10)

Dhislug
this creature is native to the planet Algara II, and reaches lengths of three meters or more. These python-like mollusks exude a burning, acidic slime which helps them kill their prey. Their eyes are useless. Instead, they use two antennae to locate prey, which they draw into a toothless mouth after the acidic slime has started to break it down. (PG2)

Dhol
this octopus-like ruler of Cheelit was an avid Firepath player. She existed in a floating glass globe. When Darth Vader tried to escape from the Guild of Vindicators, he attempted to lure them to him by playing Firepath with Dhol. She agreed, and Vader played the role of inferior to a tea. She played a masterful game, but Vader's game was better. The assassin Clat the Shamer was lured onto the gameboard, where he was quickly defeated by Vader's pieces and destroyed. To further punctuate his victory, Vader incinerated Dhol in a blast of fire from the gameboard. (CSWDW)

Dhoora
a Corellian Transport ship captured by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Dhum
this Dathomiran rancor was the offspring on the female known as Tosh to the Singing Mountain clan. Dhum was killed by the AT-ST walkers of Warlord Zsinj. Tosh responded by tearing the cockpits off the scout walkers. (CTD)

Dhuru Fly
this species of insect was native to Dagelin Minor, and were considered a nuisance. The planetary authories decided to wipe out the insects by importing a swarm of Bogan's Brown Nafen, hoping that the flying insects would consume the flies. Unfortunately, the nafen were carrying a strain of the Hardan Plague, which eventually killed 98% of the planet's population. (COG)

DH107
Herzfall Corporation's head-mounted communications device, it resolved the jamming problems encountered when using SoroSuub's DH77 headcomm. They were used in stormtrooper helmets. The DH107 had a special decoding sequence built into its firmware, which was activated when the helmet was placed on the trooper's head. It randomly changed frequencies according to a platoon shifting sequence, which made tracking the transmission nearly impossible. The sequence could only be halted by throwing a small tongue switch as the trooper removed the helmet. Otherwise, the decoding sequence would be erased, rendering the communications system useless. Airen Cracken once found that, if a person linked a sabacc skifter to the DH107 module, the skifter could relay information about what frequency was most likely to be used next. (ISB, CFG)

DH77
SoroSuub's version of a lightweight communications device which can be attached to headgear (helmet, headset, etc.). Designed for use in stormtrooper helmets, they were replaced by Herzfall's DH107 because the DH77 was easily jammed by high energy particle emissions. (ISB, CFG)

Di-crome
this reflective material is often used on camouflage coverings, such as tents and shelters. When inert, a fabric impregnated woth di-crome reflects all light around it. When electrically charged, however, the di-crome coating absorbs ambient light. The fabric then appears to take on an exact duplicate of the environment around it, blending in and becoming almost imperceptible. (ROE)

Di'tai'ni
this planet, the homeworld of the Tai'ni race, was aligned with the New Republic, and maintained a starfighter base. (SOP)

Di'wor
Mara Jade tracked the Cavrilhu Pirates that were fleeing their Kauran asteroid base to this planet before losing them completely, shortly after Luke Skywalker infiltrated the Kauron base. The planet is famous for the singfruit trees that grow there. (SOP)

Dia Passik
this Twi'lek female was born Diap'assik. After being sold into slavery, Dia learned to fly starships from her owner, who naively believed she was an air-headed female. When her owner was visited by a being with an armed shuttle, she escaped by stealing the shuttle and blowing her owner's ship, the Violet Hem, out of the sky. She fled to the New Republic, turned over the shuttle, and applied for starfighter training. She even asked to join Wraith Squadron, after hearing of their assault on the Implacable, and joined the squadron shortly before they were assigned to take out Warlord Zsinj. Dia brought a wealth of knowledge about flying starships, but also great deal of information on the activities of smugglers and pirates. She proved herself to be an excellent fighter pilot, both in simulations and in actual combat. She was given the position of Wraith Four, acting as Wes Janson's wingman, following the deaths of Falynn Snadskimmer and Eurrsk Thri'ag. When the Wraiths were assigned to the Mon Remonda in support of the hunt for Warlord Zsinj, she rejected the offer of friendship from Nawara Ven, since she hated everything to do with the planet Ryloth, including those members of the Twi'lek species who managed to avoid slavery. She was also instrumental in the deception of the Hawk-bat Independent Space Force, portraying Captain Seku. In this guise, however, she was forced to execute Castin Donn, who had stowed away on their mission to meet with Warlord Zsinj and was discovered. She complied, realizing that Castin was already near to death, but the action left her with intense psychological scars. She eventually recovered from the shock of killing Castin, and participated in several Hawk-bat raids, including assisting Warlord Zsinj in his attempt to steal the Razor's Kiss from Kuat. Over time, she fell in love with Garik Loran, although they were forced to keep their relationship a secret until decorum allowed. (IF, SOC)

Diablo's Cut
a treacherous part of Beggar's Canyon on Tatooine. (EGC)

Diamal
this white-maned race of sentients was involved in a minor shipping security dispute with the Ishori, shortly before the Caamas Incident. The Diamals didn't trust the Ishori patrol ships which escorted Diamalan transports into Ishori ports. Han Solo and Luke Skywalker tried to resolve the conflict, but were unable to do so. Instead, the dispute grew into a large-scale political battle with the revelations of the Bothan involvement in the destruction of Caamas. The Diamlan Senators firmly believed in the "forgive and forget" solution to the problem, while the Ishori wanted justice to take more physical form. They are a very honorable race, and respected the heroes of the Galactic Civil War. They are also very stoic, often described as unemotional. (SOP)

Diamala
this is the common name used to describe the collective Diamal race. (SOP)

Diamond Level
the highest of the three entertainment and commercial levels aboard the Errant Venture, the Diamond Level catered to Booster Terrik's more discerning customers. Booster Terrik found a young couple who fancied themselves to be smugglers on the Diamond Level, who agreed to help smuggle Corran Horn back to Corellia during his search for Mirax Terrik. (IJ)

Diamond-boron Armor
this armor plating was developed by the Empire late in the Galactic Civil War. It was used to cover missiles, allowing them to be virtually indestructible until they are detonated. (SE)

Diamonds
a song written and played by the band Starburst. It was first released as part of the compilation Only in Your Dreams, and has been rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Dianoga
the snake-like creature that inhabited the first Death Star's trash compactor, it had seven tentacles and a single eyestalk. Its origins have been traced to the planet Vodran, a swampy world where the dianoga has had to develop a tranparent camouflage in order to escape from the planet's large predators. The dianoga, also called a garbage squid, has migrated off the planet, following the scent of garbage to starships and stowing away. They grow to be an average of 5-6 meters in length, although specimens of 10 meters are not unheard of. Their bodies, when unfed, become transparent. They change to reflect the colors of their food once they have eaten. (SW, MTS)

Dianoga Pie
a disgusting meat pie made from dianoga flesh. (DE2)

Dianoga Swamp Trap
this was the name of a specialized obstacle used in swoopchasing. It was basically a form of the Rancor Pit, but the second wall was suspended over a quagmire which was populated with dianoga. This was considered an outlaw obstacle, and wasn't sanctioned by the governing bodies of swoopchasing. (BSS)

Diap'assik
this was Dia Passik's birth-name, which she forsake when she was sold into slavery for credits. (IF)

Dice Ibegon
a female Lamproid encoutnered by Lak Sivrak in the Mos Eisley cantina. Dice was Force-sensitive, and a member of the Alliance. She and Sivrak formed a spiritual bond, and Sivrak was drawn further into the Alliance. When she was killed during the Battle of Hoth, her Force-image was left to roam the galaxy and give Sivrak support. She chose to revisit him and bring him spiritually back to Mos Eisley, where each time he reaffirmed his belief in her and the Alliance. When Sivrak was killed in the Battle of Endor, both of the Force-images joined Yoda, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Anakin Skywalker in the celebration. (TME)

Didi's Café
this was the name of Didi Oddo's café. (DH)

Diehard
this species of insects has survived the devastation of the Clone Wars on the planet Atraken. Their resistance to all the forms of destruction has earned them the name "diehard." They also exist on the moon Trilos. The diehards attack by burrowing up from the ground, attacking their prey from below. They are aggressive hunters. (PG2)

Dielo
this red-haired woman served as Jiliac’s majordomo during the early years of the New Order. (THG)

Diergo-Rea Duhnes'rd
this Weequay and his beloved, Solum'ke, spent a romantic vacation on Zelos II, and were convinced to assist the Qwohog K'zk into searching for treasure in the Zelosian Chine during the Day of the Sepulchral Night. Solum'ke loved the idea of hunting for treasure, and talked Diergo-Rea into financing the trip. They succeeded in locating the treaaure, and began to remove as much as they could before the water levels rose with the tides. However, they were double-crossed by K'zk, who left them to die when the tides began filling the treasure chamber. The two Weequay were eventually rescued by another group of vacationers, but found themselves flat broke. They hoped one day to return to Zelos II and recover more of the treasure. (TFNR)

Differential Regulator
this droid component controls access to the automaton’s information. (DE1)

Diffuser
also known as diffuser pads, these devices are placed over items which need to be hidden. When scanned, the diffuser deflects the scanning energy around the hidden object, making the scanner believe that there is nothing beneath it. (IJ)

Diflu
this underground cavern complex is the largest of the cities established on the planet Dolomar. (TTSB)

Digit Six
an Imperial ship in the Battle of Bakura. (TB)

Digit/Bakura
this group of Imperial IR-3F patrol craft was dispatched to the Bakura System, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (TBSB)

Digit/Bakura II
part of a a group of Imperial IR-3F patrol craft dispatched to Bakura, shortly before the Battle of Endor, the Digit/Bakura II was later usurped by the Bakuran government in the wake of the Battle of BaKura. (TBSB)

Digit/Bakura III
part of a a group of Imperial IR-3F patrol craft dispatched to Bakura, shortly before the Battle of Endor, the Digit/Bakura III was later usurped by the Bakuran government in the wake of the Battle of BaKura. (TBSB)

Digit/Bakura V
this Imperial IR-3F patrol craft was part of a group stationed at Bakura shortly before the Ssi-ruuk invaded the system. Later, after a weapons malfunction, the shift was left adrift during the Battle of Bakura. Han Solo had planned to ram the ship with the Millennium Falcon, hoping to push it onto a collision course with the Dominant. The maneuver proved unnecessary, however, after Commander

Pter Thanas ordered the Dominant to move out of the Imperial offensive position. The Digit/Bakura V was later usurped by the Bakuran government in the wake of the Battle of BaKura. (TBSB)

Digworms
a nocturnal, carnivorous creature native to Kamar. (HSR)

Diktat
the title given to the Chief of State in the Corellian Sector during the time that the Empire ruled the galaxy. It was believed that he fled to the Outlier Systems when the Empire crumbled. (AC)

Dilbana
this planet was ostensibly ruled by Jiliac the Hutt, during the early years of the New Order. (THG)

DilnIexa
a planet known for its cigars. Possibly a typo in LCS, it might refer to Dilonexa. (LCS)

Dilonexa System
a huge planetary system consisting of 40 planets. The inner 22 are intensely-irradiated by the system's primary star, a gigantic blue-white fireball. The outer 17 planets are too far away to receive any heat from the star, and are froxen wastes. The middle planet is perfectly situated to allow life to exist there. (LCF)

Dilonexa XXIII
the middle planet in the Dilonexa System, it is composed of large quantities of lighter elements. Thusly, it has very few natural metals, and must import them in massive quantities. Dilonexa XXIII is an agrarian world; since there are very few bodies of water larger than a small lake, the land has been cultivated into vast farms. It is approximately 25,000 kilometers in diameter. Due to its large land masses, the planet used to be ravaged by huge, city-sized tornadoes that streaked around the entire planet. This required that a series of large weather-control satellites be launched into orbit, in order to keep the farms running without a major disaster each year. (LCF)

Dilorr, Tergeth
this former Imperial conscript jumped ship the first chance he got, and spent much of his early life wandering from planet to planet, hoping to join the Alliance. He worked with Ort Hoogra-D'En for a time, earning a paycheck while hopefully meeting up with the Alliance. This association earned Tergeth a bounty, when the Ho'Din's spore bombs killed several hundred Imperials over a period of months. (ND)

Dim-U
a religion that grew out of the theory that the Bantha, being such a simple, easily-adaptiable creature, was the source of a hidden message from some all-powerful being. The priests of the Dim-U religion devoted their lives to searching for the Bantha's message to the galaxy. Each priest carried a staff carved from the tusk of a bantha. At the top of the staff was a small carving of a bantha itself. A group of these priests brought banthas with them to Tatooine, as part of the first colony ship that arrived on the planet. (TM, GG7)

DiMatolin
this was the brand name of a medical supply. (FOP)

Dimel Attack Ship
this 95-meter-long warship was produced by Ulig Abaha Limited. It was manned by a crew of 23, with 43 gunners. It could accommodate up to 34 troops and 660 metric tons of cargo. (CSA)

Dimensional Engineering
this field of science and technology was developed by the Gree many thousands of years ago. It centers on the use of spatial and time dimensions, and allows the Gree to move through space with their unusual starships. (SWJ8)

Dimilatis
this herb was native to the planet Gala, where it grew in the sea plains surrounding the Galacian Sea. In small quantities of raw leaves, it was harmless as a flavoring. When dried and used in larger or more regular quantities, it caused the user to becomed addicted. The user then wasted away as if from illness. In this way, dimilatis was used as a poison against Queen Veda, during her attempt to have her successor chosen via popular election. (MOC)

Dimmit Station
this city, located on the planet Budpock, was where Yarbolk Yemm was able to gain passage on the Impardiac to Cybloc XII for R2-D2 and C-3PO. (POT)

Dimok
1) the homeworld of the Dimok race (TIE)
2) one of the two major civilizations established in the Sepan System, the Dimoks were deeply involved in a civil war with the Ripoblus when the Empire decided to intervene. The Dimok opposed the Imperial intrusion from the initial Imperial overtures, while the Ripoblus tended to side with the Empire. That all changed following a series of Imperial fleet maneuvers that tried to cow both sides. The Dimok eventually agreed to cease the Sepan Civl War and join with the Ripoblus, at least until they could drive out the Imperial fleet. (TIE)

Dimok
a starship group destroyed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. They were in control of the Youst weapons lab at the time. (TIE)

DimSim
this device was a portable holographic projection unit that projected a "shield" of darkness over the wearer's face. The DimSim looked like a large hand that wrapped its fingers around the front of the skull. Each finger held part of the holo-unit, and heled maintain the shield. This device allowed the wearer to see out beyond the shield with minimal interference, while others were unable to see the wearer's face. DimSims found a widespread use among thieves and hijackers during the end of the Galactic Civil War and into the age of the New Republic. (GG11)

Din, J'fe
this holovid star was widely popular in the Larrin Sector, despite the Empire's best efforts to bring her down. Her most popular show, Starflash, provided viewers with a regular series of hair-raising adventures. In reality, J'fe and her producers were strong supporters of the Alliance, and sent out a variety of coded messages to Alliance agents in Larrin Sector during each episode. J'fe made sure that the messages were undetectable by the average viewer, but obvious to the agents who were looking for them. Many historians believe that J'fe and Starflash quickened the downfall of the Empire in Larrin Sector by a year or more. J'fe and her team later went on to produce Imperial Truth, a show which debuted after the Empire was forced out of Larrin Sector and which described the true nature of Emperor Palpatine's evil government. (HR)

[Dinante Fli'r]
the primary religion on the planet Moltok, its clergy also controls the governing of the planet. Its precepts are based on a belief that the Ho'Din evolved from mobile plants, but were changed into animals as punishment for their sins against the [Dinegia], or the force of nature. The Ho'Din who follow the tenets of the [Dinante Fli'r] believe that they can return to their origins as plants if they complete the [Flik'a kirki], or the virtuous circle of nature. (GG4)

Dindo, Lefty
this Corellian criminal misused a monomolecular blade and lost his right hand. (TFE)

[Dinegia]
in the [Dinante Fli'r] religion of the Ho'Din, this is the passive force of nature which controls all life. (GG4)

Ding
one of Gorga the Hutt's closest advisors, Ding was also one of Gorga's most trusted spies. Ding was left on Tatooine to guard Anachro during the H'uun's pregnancy. When Ry-Kooda attacked Gorga on Tatooine, Ding tried to flee the carnage but was recalled to service by Gorga after Anachro gave birth. (BF, TJT)

Dinger
this starfighter pilot served the New Republic as a member of Rogue Squadron during the second decade of the Republic's tenure. Dinger was killed during the Republic's investigation of the attack on the Free Lance by a Yuuzhan Vong warship. The Vong were still in the area, and destroyed several starfighters before being driven off. (DTO)

Dingorie
a predatory canine native to the planet Lan Barell. (SWAJ)

Dining on the Wild Side: Unforgettable Culinary Experiences in the Fringe this autobiographical account of restaurant reviews was written by Mavin Cless. (GG11)

Diniz Sea
this ocean is found on the planet Delassin VI. (SWAJ)

Dinko
a revolting animal which is small enough to fit in the palm of a man's hand. They have powerful rear legs, four arms, and glittery fangs. They also have a noxious scent and are poisonous. Han Solo gives on to Ploovo 2-For-1 as a "gift" following a run he did for Ploovo. Attached to the Dinko was the Cash Voucher that paid for Ploovo's expenses. (HSE)

DINN
this starship switch is often mated to a droid or droid brain for easier connection to the navigational computer. (POT)

Dinn
1) this Horansi word is the past participle of the verb ad'n. (POT)
2) this Nalros word describes a group of small, hard-shelled insect. (POT)
3) this Gamorrean term is an adjective meaning "inclined to drool excessively." (POT)
4) this Gacerian word means "one who is always getting married and divorced." (POT)

Dinner Squadron
this was one of the more humorous names proposed for what would eventually become Wraith Squadron. It was used just once, during a mission over Commenor meant to distract Admiral Trigit. The mission was a success, making Dinner Squadron one of the few fighter groups with a "perfect" record. (SOC)

Dioche Sauce
an accompaniment often served with bantha meat. (TJP)

Diodem Tower
a corporate landmark found in Tun Wala, on Arda-2. (CSWEA)

Diollan
a race of featherless, birdlike aliens with leathery skin. (DESB, TME)

Dioxis Gas
this green gas is deadly to most carbon-based life forms. (SW1)

Dipill
a stress-reliever (SME)

Diplomat Hotel
located on Coruscant, this immense hotel offered diplomats from other worlds their choice of atmospherically-controlled rooms, in an effort to cater to their individual preferences. (IWE1)

Diplomatic Insititute
an ancient university, located on Coruscant, which taught students in all aspects of political and diplomatic relationships. (TOJC)

Diputs
an Imperial freighter stationed near Kalla VII during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Dira
a Twi'leki clan. (TFNR)

Dira Shal
this Iotran was a prominent weapons manufacturer, as well as the Chief Constable of the Gettiarn SpaceStation. (GG12)

Directional Landing Beacon
a device which sends out a signal with a fixed origin point. This signal is then used by shipboard NavCom units to provide distance and directional information for landing or navigation. Most of the galaxy's spaceports use them, and most of the beacons are listed in galactic navigation charts. (SME)

Director
a device which is used by slavers to control a group of slaves. These highly-illegal devices attach to a slaver's line and use the line's circuits to delivery impulses to individual slave or to the entire group. The strength of the impulse is set on the director. (HSR)

Direllian Plague
this often fatal disease can be counteracted by the administration of Shiarha root. The disease and its cure were first catalogued by Doctor T'jaleq Kith'Araquia. (SWJ1)

Direption
this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer was part of Prince-Admiral Krennel's fleet. It was commanded by Captain Rensen, who was ordered by Krennel to raze the village which was home to a person who attempted to assassinate Krennel. Rensen refused the order, and was executed. Command of the ship was then turned over to Commander Darron, on the condition that he raze the village. Later, during the defense of Liinade III, Darron was forced to surrender the Direption in order to avoid losing the ship entirely, when the New Republic's forces pummelled Darron's fleet. (IR)

Direx
the title given to the members of the Corporate Sector Authority's Direx Board, there is one Direx from each of the voting coporations that make up the CSA. (CSA)

Direx Board
the 55-member organization with manages the day-to-day business of the Corporate Sector. The establish and control overal Authority policy and econmic goals. The Board also has approval rights on the various Authority budgets. Each member comes from a corporation working under the auspices of the Corporate Sector Authority. The Direx Board is run by the ExO. Of the 55 seats, 37 are filled by voting sponsor corporations. The other 18 seats rotate among the non-voting, contributing sponsors. (CSA)

Dirtdock
this slang term was used by officers of the Corellian Security Force to describe Treasure Ship Row. (TFE)

Disac Pirates
this group of pirates made a living along the Sisar Run, until the Nalroni crimelord Sprax had his forces eliminate them. Sprax requested that Ket Maliss - who was working directly for Prince Xizor - take on the job, and the bounty hunter was extremely successful. (SSR)

Discril*-class Attack Cruiser
this warship was built on the planet Daupherm, for use in the Daupherm defense fleet. The Discril-class measured 85 meters in length, and required a crew of 150 with 51 gunners. It could also transport up to 60 troops and 7,800 metric tons of cargo. It was armed with five turret-mounted laser cannons, four tri-particle beamers, and three tri-laser cannons. (VOF, CRO, PP)

Dish-Dok
see Distt Dok (PG1)

Disim
this tropical planet is a twin to the planet Iri, and is located in the Epidimi System. Like its twin, Disim is covered with dense forests and humid rainforests. The system was discovered by the Old Republic some 5,000 years before the Galactic Civil War, and discovered that both worlds had produced species of avians which had similar genetic structures. The Old Republic explorers tried to get the two species to mate, in an attempt to verify their genetic compatability. The experiment was a success, and a new species was created from the union of the two. However, the new species flourished while the two parent species died out. This new species, known as the Tarongs, now dominates both worlds. (GG12)

Disintegrator Field
a defensive shield that consumes matter and disintegrates it. (COTF)

Disk, The
another mystical reference used by Lando Calrissian. (LCF)

Disk Vectrals
the round caps at the end of a Y-Wing's engines, they have two intersecting fins which are linked to the avionics control package to provide maneuverability. (SCRE)

Diskio Khzrry
this Xi'Dec and its sibling, K'lial, were the only surviving members of their family, which was well-respected in the Xi'Dec community. The rest of the family was killed while vacationing on the Savage Pleasure, during an Imperial assassination attempt. Following the death of the family, both K'lial and Diskio threw in their support for the Alliance. Using their species as a cover, they scoured Grohl Sector looking for other Xi'Dec to recruit into their family. While searching for Xi'Dec, they also appropriate rebel agents and whisk them to safehouses before Imperial officers can capture them. Diskio is the more insectile of the pair, using this dextrous limbs to deactivate locks and security measures. (CRO)

Dismantled Droid Disposal Device
one of the many Ugor waste collections corporations. Like all such operations, they are loyal to the Holy Ugor Taxation Collection Agency. (GG4)

Disorver
this Imperial dreadnaught was part of the fleet which patrolled the Killaniri System during the Galactic Civil War. (PG1)

Disra
this Imperial Moff survived the Battle of Endor, the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, and the debacle of Admiral Daala, steadfastly holding onto the Bastion Sector and a small contingent of subordinates. Ten years after the death of Thrawn, Disra found himself in a position which allowed him to rise to power. He had been funneling Imperial credits into building a fleet of Preybird-class starfighters manufactured by Zothip and the Cavrilhu pirates. Disra supplemented the cost of the Preybirds by supplying Zothip with cloned soldiers from Imperial stores. Then, using Flim - an actor who strongly resembled Thrawn - Disra quickly took control of several parts of the remaining Imperial fleet. (SOP)

Disruptor
a type of blaster which fires in a wide pattern, they are illegal in most parts of the galaxy because they reduce solid matter to its constituent molecules. (HSE, CCG9)

Disruptor Beam
outlawed during the height of the Old Republic, disruptor beams were security devices which emitted a thin beam of coherent red light. The beam was capable of cutting a being in two without expending much energy. (HP)

Disruptor
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was the lead ship of Warlord Zsinj's third fleet. (SOC)

Disruption Bubble Generator
developed on the planet Bakura, this small device was used to temporarily disrupt the effectiveness of nearby communications monitors. The generator produced a spherical “bubble” zone which was impervious to sonic and other auditory scanning devices, providing the user with temporary protection from eavesdropping. (TB, TBSB)

Disrupter Ray
a primitive weapon that uses ion energy pulses to knock droids and other computer-based machinery out of order. (CSW)

Dissek
this man, a native of Alderaan, held the rank of Lieutenant within the Hawk-bat pirate command structure. In reality, Dissek was Kell Tainer. (IF)

Distant Rainbow
a Starwind-class pleasure ship belonging to Mazzic, the Distant Rainbow was heavily modified, and served as Mazzic's mobile base. (TLC, LCSB)

Distant Sunrise
this heavily-modified freighter was owned and operated by Karrison Lee. (WSV)

Distant Wind
this modified XS-800 freighter was owned by Cunbus Locb. The ship was impounded by ImperialMoff Ammar, after it was learned that Locb had stolen several pieces of artwork from him. The artwork, never found by Ammar or his forces, was hidden inside the ship. Ammar later grew frustrated with his search and put the Distant Wind up for auction. The ship was armed with a double lase cannon mounted on the bow and a turret-mounted laser cannon. (SS)

Distinguished Flight Medal
a Imperial Naval award given to outstanding pilots. (ISB)

Distna
this planetoid, one of the moons of the planet Corvis Minor Five, was believed to be hollow by New Republic scientists. The Intelligence agency believed that Prince-Admiral Krennel was building Pulsar Station within the moon, based on data recovered from Liinade III. Ysanne Isard's clone believed that Krennel's forces could capture Rogue Squadron with this information, and set up an ambush for them. They nearly succeeded in taking the squadron, until forces led by Colonel Vessery - under the direction of the real Ysanne Isard - destroyed Krennel's forces and recovered the Rogues. (IR)

Distol
this was one of the largest cities found on the planet Essowyn. It was located on the continent of Sorontill. (PG1)

Distorter
this holoprojector was used by Blackhole to mask his true appearance. (CSWEA)

Distt Dok
this was one of the wondrous tree-cities built by the Gazaran in the rainsforests of the planet Veron. It was located on the southern coast of the continent of Ablor. It is also referred to as Dish-Dok on certain maps. (PG1)

Ditanium
a natural element used in the armor-like plating that covers military buildings. (ISU)

Dithanune
this planet is the homeworld of the needle beast. (CRO)

Diva Funquita
this large, red-haired slave was owned by Gardulla the Hutt. A trained dancer, she was also Gardulla’s chief aide and majordomo. (IG1)

Diva Shaliqua
this woman was one of Jabba the Hutt’s favorite slave dancers. She was in his control during the years leading up to the Battle of Naboo. (IG1)

Dive, The
this seedy bar was located in Drepplin city, on Glova. The name fit the bar quite well. All forms of gambling were allowed on the premesis, and fights were extremely common. (POC)

Dive-ball
this is a Mon Calamari sport. (SWJ9)

Diversity Alliance
this loose, political extremist group was made up from several non-human races and planets about 14 years after the Battle of Endor. At the least, they stood for the freedom of all non-human races. At the worst, they demanded the extermination of the human race. The leader of this group was the Twi’lek Nolaa Tarkona, and the group’s headquarters was on Ryloth. The Diversity Alliance broke up in thw wake of Tarkona’s disappearance. (TEP)

Divin
this Old Republic Lieutenant was the first commander of the Ordnance/Regional Depot on Ord Antalaha. (PP)

Diviner
this group of Imperial probes was destroyed by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Divis Arm
this section of the galaxy was a hotbed of rebllious activity during the height of the New Order, led by Dutra Zeneta (SWJ10)

Divoran Holochess
a form of holochess in which 15 holographic armies are used by each of two players. The game is played on a multi-level board. The object is to capture all 15 of your opponent's Emperor pieces. (GG9)

Divto
a long, three-headed snake native to Endor's forest moon. It captures its prey by stunning it with a venomous bite. (DFRSB)

Divv
this man was employed by Yin Vocta as a spy, keeping tabs on the activities of Jabba the Hutt. After Divv discovered the names and locations of all Jabba's spies on Lianna, Vocta retained Divv's services as an assassin killing them all. (WSV)

Divvik
this vicious creature lays its eggs in the bodies of living hosts. After they hatch, the egg-shaped pupae of this creature are considered a delicacy by the Hutts, but there is a short period of time in which the divvik are edible. After hatching from their pupal stage, they grow almost immediately into adults. The adults are nothing short of killing machines which prefer to dine on living flesh, despite the fact that they are less than a foot tall. The ball-shaped adults move about on two long legs, and use their arms to help them climb and grasp objects. Their whip-like tail is tipped with a dagger-like claw. The skin of the adult divvik is impervious to blaster fire, and their bite contains an acidic poisonous saliva which causes paralysis in most species, and can eat through plastisteel over time. If injured or otherwise cut, the divvik releases a toxic gas from their digestive system. The only safe way to eliminate a divvik is to suffocate it, but this often takes a long time. (PTR)

Dixton
this Imperial Lord was promoted to Governor General of the Fakir Sector of the galaxy, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He was forced to land his shuttle, the Resurgence, on Masterhome to repair damage sustained in a battle with an Alliance starship. While on the planet, Dixton was captured by another group of Alliance agents and the Anointed People, and sent to prison. (SWCP)

Dizenk-Olvod Ocean
this was the largest ocean found on the planet Veron. (PG1)

DJ-88 (Dee-Jay)
the powerful caretaker droid programmed to protect the Lost City of the Jedi and teach the young students there, Dee-Jay was built to resemble a scholarly human, complete with a metal beard on his face. Dee-Jay was responsible for raising the boy Ken. His outer casing is white, and he has red, ruby-like eyes. (LCJ)

Djalla, Jib
this young, human, Fallanassi male was one of the group that fled to Griann, on the planet Teyr. Along with Tipagna, Norika, and Novus, they were no longer in Griann when Akanah and Luke Skywalker searched Teyr for them. (SOL)

Djas Puhr
this male Sakiyan was once employed by Sebulba as a slave herder. As Sebulba made his way around the podracing circuit, Djas Puhr was responsible for acquiring new slaves for the Dug's brisk slaving business. After Sebulba's defeat by Anakin Skywalker in the Boonta Eve Classic, Djas Puhr found himself unemployed, and decided to use his skills as a bounty hunter. He used Mos Eisley as a base during the Galactic Civil War. He had incredible peripheral and infrared vision, coupled with keen senses of smell and hearing. All of these attributes made him a feared hunter. (CCG, E1A5)

Djinn Altis
the Jedi Master who went to Chad III and found Callista. He was one of the Jedi who served aboard the Chu'unthor before it was destroyed on Dathomir. Rumor has it that Altis died on Dathomir, in a battle with the Nightsisters. (COJ, DS)

Djirra
this Imperial logistics officer was a Lieutenant when the Empire garrisoned Cloud City. Djirra was earlier in charge of determining how to use carbon-freezing techniques to place a being into hibernation. (SESB)

Djo, Augwynne
Mother of the Singing Mountain clan on Dathomir, and Teneniel's grandmother. (CPL)

Djo, Teneniel
a Dathomir witch of the Singing Mountain clan, gifted with the use of the Force storm. She finds Luke and Isolder after they land on Dathomir, and she claims ownership of Isolder. She later gives part of her own life energy to save a Nightsister in the hopes that she could be saved and turned back to the Light Side. She and Isolder were later married, and Teneniel moved to Hapes with Isolder. Once on Hapes, she and Isolder gave birth to a daughter, Tenel Ka. Teneniel Djo continued to live with Ta'a Chume, although the Queen Mother continued to rankle at Isolder's choice for a bride. However, Ta'a Chume eventually stepped down as Queen Mother, and Teneniel assumed the rank. (CPL, JE)

Djorra
this purple vine is native to the planet Garqi. (TFE)

DJS-31871-ER93AU
this was Platt Okeefe's pilot's license number. (IDC)

Djun
the planet on which Vill Goir taught Kam Solusar the use of the Dark Side of The Force. (DE2)

DK-209
this was the codename of the Imperial replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

DL-III NightFang
this was the designation of Golan Arms' laser turret emplacement. (HAS)

DL-18
a sleek, hand-held blaster built by Blas-Tech. They were quite plentiful during the later years of the Empire, and often found their way into the hands of the Alliance. One of the many places that saw a flood of DL-18s was the planet Tatooine, and the weapon earned the nickname “Mos Eisley Special.” (RASB, DFR, CCG7)

DL-44
a heavy, hand-held blaster model built by Blas-Tech. Han Solo uses a modified version of this type of blaster. (SW, DFR, RASB)

DL-6H
this was a model of heavy blaster pistol produced by BlasTech during the New Order. (FOP)

DL-68
this was the model number of BlasTech's cutting blaster, designed for use by scouts and explorers. It produced a "cold blast" of energy, which was a prolonged burst of low-powered cohesive light capable of cutting down a tree. The "cold blast" is not strong enough to throw up sparks or start a fire during its use, but requires a great deal of power. (GG8)

DL-87
this was the model number of BlasTech's Firespray blaster. (PP)

Dlarit, Aerin
this native of Thyferra was one of the higher managers in the Xucphra bacta corporation. He was also appointed a General in the Thyferran Home Defense Corps when Ysanne Isard took control of Thyferra. He had no real duties, but was a perfect public relations man for Isard. He was also Erisi Dlarit's father, which made him a prime target for Rogue Squadron's ground forces during the early stages of the Battle of Thyferra. They made an assault on the Dlarit estate, which was set on a small knoll at the base of an extinct volcano and protected by a ring of Comar TriTracker batteries. In an effort to stir up the Vratix and embarras the Bacta Cartel, Aerin was executed by Elscol Loro and Iella Wessiri and left in his den, slumped over the desk and completely naked. (BW)

Dlarit, Erisi
a native of Thyferra, she was selected to become a member of X-Wing Rogue Squadron because she was also a member of the Xucphra faction, and was thought to have been complementary to the addition of Bror Jave to the Squadron. However, it was later discovered that Dlarit was actually working as a spy for Ysanne Isard and the Imperial factions which supported the bacta cartels. She was planted to provide information on the New Republic's reactions to the Krytos virus, which would guarantee that the bacta cartels would continue to monopolize the market under Imperial control. She was discovered as a spy when her ship malfunctioned and was captured by the Lusankya as it escaped from Coruscant. Her astromech reported no malfunction, and relayed the deliberate flight plan that took her into the Lusankya's holds. Once back on Thyferra, Erisi was appointed a flight leader among the Thyferran Home Defense Corps, and became romantically involved with Fliry Vorru. Their romance was short-lived, though, as Vorru was taken prisoner by Iella Wessiri and Elscol Loro, and Erisi was forced into defending her homeworld in the Battle of Thyferra. She managed to destroy Nawara Ven's X-Wing, but the Twi'lek managed to eject before being engulfed in flames. She was rewarded by becoming the target of Corran Horn, who managed to fire on her before she could escape to hyperspace. Horn's shots were on-target, and Erisi was killed when her ship simply disintegrated. (XWN, WG, KT, BW)

DLC11A
an Pakuuni container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Dles IV
this planet was the site of an Alliance penal colony during the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Dllr Nep
a Sullustan X-Wing pilot, Dllr served under Wedge Antilles as part of Rogue Squadron following the Battle of Endor. He joined the fledgling New Republic after Sullust began moving toward a relationship with them, and found the galaxy much to his liking. He was particularly interested in the various musical styles of the galaxy, although his taste in music often got on his fellow Rogues' nerves. When the Rogues were dispatched to search for the Starfaring near Malrev, Dllr began hearing the most beautiful music coming from the planet. He thought the music was a product of the planet, and could even see the music in front of him. However, the music was actually the power of the Dark Side of the Force being channelled by the mad Devaronian, Cartariun. Cartariun used the Dark Side to lure Dllr to his temple, where Cartariun began channeling more energy with Dllr's belief in the music. Dllr was mentally linked to Herian I'ngre by this music, which both had heard. However, Herian recognized the Dark Side before she could be overtaken. She willed Dllr to resist, which he was able to to for a short time. However, in the end, Dllr gave himself as the ultimate sacrifice. He absorbed the Sith energy wielded by Cartariun and tried to turn it against the Devaronian, but was shot in the back by Girvo Dza'tey. Later, having survived the blast, Dllr helped Herian to safety. However, both sacrificed themselves in eliminating Cartariun, flying Herian's X-Wing into his temple and destroying it. (XWRS, XWRR, HXW)

Dlor 3
this planet was the site of a secure passage seminar, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Alliance Major Sisquoc hoped to confront Barosa Warren at the conference, in order to determine why Warren hated the Alliance. (AIR)

DLT-19
this long, sleek blaster rifle was manufactured by BlasTech, for use by Imperial stormtroopers. (CCG)

Dmaynel Kiph
this Devaronian from the planet Coruscant was the leader of the Alien Combine of the Invisible Sector. (WG)

DM/C3
this Alliance protocol droid was codenamed Dagger, and was planted in Imperial Moff Vanko's office as Vanko's personal decoding droid. In this capacity, DM/C3 could provide the Alliance with valuable information on fleet movements, while at the saem time planting false reports in Vanko's mailbox. It was DM/C3 that alerted the Alliance to the secret meetings between Vanko and Torpin aboard the Kuari Princess. DM/C3 was smashed to bits when the Riders of the Maelstrom took control of the Princess, but managed to remain active long enough to provide the Alliance agents on board the ship with the ship's lockout control codes. (RM)

Dnalla
this woman was one of the leaders of the Friends of Paran, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (OE)

Dnalvec
this is a port city located on the planet Sriluur. (SWAJ, CRO)

DNX-N1
this planet was located in the depths of Wild Space, and was charted but largely unexplored. It was known to be the homeworld of the Filar-Nitzan race of gaseous beings. (AE)

Do-ro'ik vong pratte
this was the traditional battle cry of the Yuuzhan Vong. It was a call for unbridled ferocity and the release of the most basic emotions and instincts of a warrior. Literally translated into Basic, it meant "woe to our enemies." (VP, JE)

Do'naal
this bearded man was an Alliance agent who was also believed to be an Imperial spy, during the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance's fears were realized after Do'naal turned in agent Vewin on Kelada, as well as agent Rixen on Kuat. (SESB)

Doaba
this Old Corellian word means "peace." (BSS)

Doaba, Iann
this ancient warrior was a Jedi Knight, and was one of the original colonists to settle the planet Socorro. He fell in love with Cjaalysce Beal, and actually killed a man who tried to steal her love from him. His conscience, laden with guilt, led him to exile himself from the rest of the colonists. His self-imposed exile - dooming himself to wander around the open desert - later became known as The Long Walk among the Ibhaan'I shamen. When Cjaalysce learned of his exile, she fled into the desert in search of him. She was lost for many weeks, until her dessicated body was found on a rocky outcropping. Beneath the body, searchers found Iann's robes and his lightsaber. They also found an indelible shadow of his form, and it was generally believed that Iann's grief was so great that it consumed him. The shadow, the past vestige of Iann's spirit, was rumored to have attached itself to a portait of Cjaalysce, and was witnessed wherever the portait was shown. Benoni Ulte came into possession of the portait during the early years of the New Order, and himself claimed to have seen Ian's shadow hovering about it. (BSS)

Doaba Badlands
a desert region of the planet Socorro, the Doaba Badlands cover nearly three-quarters of the planet's surface. Hidden water reserves under the surface provide pockets where plants can grow, including the zsajhira berry. They were named for Iann Doaba, a great warrior who disappeared in the desert after exiling himself in the first recorded instance of the Long Walk. (SWAJ, BSS)

Doaba ol'val tru an Old Corellian phrase used as a greeting. It wishes the recipient peace and hope. It could also be used to say goodbye to a loved one, and was often intoned during funerals to release a being from their earthly body before traveling to the afterlife. (SWAJ, BSS)

Doallyn
one of the hunters who answered Jabba the Hutt's call for the capture of a live krayt dragon, Doallyn is a native of the planet Geran. He has strange, bluish skin and light eyes, and the skin on his face was horribly scarred from a attack by a Corellian sand panther. As a native of Geran, Doallyn required hydron-3 in the air he breathed. Thus, when he came to Tatooine, a trace-breather was added to the helmet he wore as part of his hunter's armor. Doallyn was captivated by the sights and sounds of Mos Eisley, and sampled too much liquor when he arrived. He ended up in a high-stakes game of wildstar and woke up to find he had signed on as one of Jabba's palace guards for a year. Jabba kept Doallyn dependent and loyal by doling out daily doses of hydron-3. When Jabba left for the Pit of Carkoon to execute Luke Skywalker, Doallyn was left behind. There, he befriended Yarna d'al' Gargan. They both were met by Tessek when he returned from the Pit with news of Jabba's death, but neither listened to Tessek when he stated he was in charge of the palace. Instead, they fled the palace and headed to Mos Eisley, to rescue Yarna's cubs. Along the way, Doallyn made use of his knowledge of the krayt dragon to kill one that got in their way. He took the pearls from the beast's belly and saved them for Yarna, who used them to pay for the release of her cubs. The group then left Tatooine, stopping first on Geran before deciding to live as free traders aboard their starship. (TJP)

Doan Wine
this good spirit induces a state of shock when imbibed in great quantities. (SOL)

Dobah
a female Phlog, Dobah was the mate of Zut and the mother of Hoom and Nahkee. (ECAR)

Dobbatek
this Imperial officer was serving under the Black Sword Command when the Yevetha took control of the shipyards in the Koornacht Cluster. He was imprisoned on Pa'aal, and became one of the major leaders of prisoner cells which rose up against the Yevetha during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Dobberty
this pilot flew with Bolt Squadron for the Khuiumin Survivors. After Corran Horn - under the alias Jenos Idanian - took control of the squadron, Dobberty served as Remart Sasyru's wingman. (IJ)

Dobbis
this was the name of one of the statues located in the Gungan Sacred Place. It rested on a shelf of stone, overlooking a rapid stream and waterfall. (E1A11)

Dobbolick
this Tahlboorean verb means "stop." (DRPC)

Dobido
this was the smaller of Sernpidal's two moons, measuring just twenty kilometers in diameter. The Yuuzhan Vong planted a dovin basal in the center of Sernpidal City and used it to draw Dobido into an ever-closer orbit around Sernpidal, until the moon crashed into the planet and destroyed it. (VP)

Dobrow
this man was one of the Imperial sleeper agents placed on Pakrik Minor as a tallgrain farmer by Grand Admiral Thrawn. Dobrow was in charge of maintaining the TIE Fighters hidden on the planet, in preparation for eventual use. (SOP)

Dobrutz
this company maufactured the DB-4 starliner. (TT)

Doc
a female phlog, Dobah was the mate of Zut. Together, they had two offspring, Hoom and Nahkee. (ECAR)

Doc
1) formerly known as Klaus Vandangante, Doc was an only child born on the planet Coruscant. He was doted on by his widowed mother, Carmilla Vandangante, living in luxury and privilege. As a youth, this was maddeningly boring, and he rebelled by programming the droids to stop feeding him food he didn't like. His mother and tutors discovered his "new talents," and restructured his lessons. Klaus soon became a gifted student, and graduated with honors.Following graduation, Klaus was offered a job with Alkherrodyne Propulsions. He quickly accepted, but was unprepared for corporate life. Alkherrodyne had a company policy of programmed obsolescense, something that Klaus didn't learn in school. He chafed against the ideals of creating useful, reliable tools and the need to maintain the bottom line. When Alkherrodyne's Azaria 66 began exploding in the field, they needed a scapegoat to blame it on. They chose Klaus, who was summarily fired and taken to court. After several legal battles, Klaus Vandangante was financially and professionally bankrupt. The fact that Alkherrodyne also went bankrupt was of little consequence, for Klaus no longer existed. He began wandering the galaxy as the spacer called Doc, and found himself in Corporate Sector space. There, he met the beautiful young smuggler Shardra, who introducde him to her own network of spacers. He found work as a starship mechanic, showing an incredible ability to make any modification work reliably, and his results were highly effective. He fell in love with Shardra, and the couple soon gave birth to a daughter, Jessa. However, Shardra's sudden death in a fuel dump explosion once again rocked Doc's world. This time, however, he had Jessa to fall back on, and he dedicated himself to her education and growth. She, like her father, showed a great mechanical aptitude, and she stayed on with him to further his outlaw tech business. He and Jessa recruited the best techs they could find, and have been helping everyone from smugglers to the Alliance. This is how they got tangled up with Han Solo, a brash young pilot who was constantly repairing his ship, the Millennium Falcon. However, Doc's repairs soon came under the scrutiny of the Corporate Sector Authority, who had laid out the regulations for starship modifications. Much of Doc's work involved skirting these regulations and most of his modifications were deemed illegal. Doc suddenly disappeared, part of the sector-wide sweep of criminals placed in the Stars' End detention facility.Han Solo trusted Doc to make most repairs to the Falcon, and went to see him when the loss of his sensor dish in a weapons run to Duroon. However, Doc had already been kidnapped for incarceration at Stars' End. When Han learned this, he agreed to help Jessa rescue Doc. Han and his group of adventurers were able to infiltrated the detention center and rescue the captives, including Doc, who returned to his modification business with Jessa. (HSE, CSA)

2) this was the nickname given to the FX-series medical droid modified by Massad Thrumble. Doc – originally designated AOI-C - was a one-of-a-kind, and had the upper section of the FX series mounted on a treaded base. Thrumble programmed the droid with top-of-the-line medical and surgical skills, and gave it the necessary tools to perform surgery on any number of species. Doc considered the reprogramming of Guri- who rescued the droid from Spinda Caveel – to be a “wonderful technical challenge.” (SEE)

Docent Vant
this tall, blue-skinned Twi’lek female was one of the Jedi instructors at the temple on Coruscant, during Obi-Wan Kenobi’s early training. She had but a single headtail, which was ornately tattooed. It was Docent Vant who brought Obi-Wan the news that he had not been chosen as a Padawan, and must leave the temple on his thirteenth birthday. (RF)

Dock
an Imperial freighter used to carry TIE prototypes to the Cygnus performance trials that were raided by the Alliance in an attempt to capture the Cygnus executives. (XW)

Dock Plat
an Imperial freighter stationed at Zaarin's beam weapon research platform. (TIE)

Dock 47
Where Kaarde and Dankin are instructed to park the Wild Kaarde at the Bilbringi shipyards. (TLC)

Docker
this subnode, a twin to the subnode Handler, was generated by Kud’ar Mub’at to coordinate the landing of ships carrying visitors to the assembler’s web. (MA)

Docking Bay A13
this is where the Mud Sloth put down in Talos spaceport, on Atzerri. (SOL)

Docking Bay 2037
docking bay on the first Death Star where the Millennium Falcon is held. (SW)

Docking Bay 3733
located within Coruscant's Eastport facility, this docking bay was leased by Vyyk Drago during the early decades of the New Republic. In this way, Han Solo was able to avoid a minimal amount of attention. (HT)

Docking Bay 41
Located at the spaceport on Etti IV, Han Solo uses the ID of the starship parked their as his own, in an effort to elude the authorities and escape after giving Ploovo 2-for-1 a Dinko as a gift. (HSE)

Docking Bay 45
the docking bay at the Etti IV spaceport where Han parks the Millennium Falcon. while stopping over to pay off Ploovo 2-for-1. (HSE)

Docking Bay 94
resting place of the Millennium Falcon at the Mos Eisley spaceport, prior to Han meeting Obi-Wan and Luke. (SW)

Docking Pad 15
location on Coruscant where Luke parks an old transport ship, so that a wing of X-wings can be loaded into it's hold for relocation to the site of the Katana fleet. (DFR)

Docking Platform 25
where the Bilbringi Control parks the Etherway just before the Battle of Bilbringi. (TLC)

Dockside Cafe
this was an upscale restaurant and bar located in the city of Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. (SL)

Doctor Cornelius
one of Evazan's aliases. (SWR)

Doctor Death
another of Evazan's aliases. (GOF2)

Dodbri Whiskey
this is an awesomely strong spirit. (SOP)

Dodger
an Alliance Nebulon-B Frigate assigned to destroy the Rugle transport group. (TIE)

Dodo Bodonawieedo
this Rodian played the slitherhorn for the Max Rebo Band. Dodo was born on a shuttle that was en route to Tatooine, after his parents fled the wrath of Navik the Red. Dodo learned to respect his clan from his mother, and learned to love music from his father. He grew up in the streets of Mos Eisley with his best friend, Falk, but was forced out of his home when bounty hunters from Rodian killed his parents and burned the house. He and Falk then grew up as part of the Shawpee Gang, and they were fond of frocking jawas and stealing ronto steaks. Over the years, he grew into one of the minor information brokers in the spaceport city. After they left the Shawpees, Dodo and Falk joined Jabba the Hutt's ring of informants. Falk was eventually killed for spying, but Dodo remained with Jabba's group, and even joined the bands that played in the palace. After Jabba's death, Dodo sneaked into the palace and stole some valuable treasures before fleeing Tatooine forever. (RJSE, CCG9, MTSE)

Dodonna/Blissex
this small company, formed by Jan Dodonna and Walex Blissex, are the manufacturers of the RZ-1 A-Wing starfighter. (SCRE)

Dodonna
named for General Jan Dodonna, the Dodonna was a flagship assault frigate in the New Republic's fleet. The ship was part of Wedge Antilles' flight group, which he commanded from the Yavaris, during the search for General Madine and the Darksaber. (DS)

Dodonna, Jan
Jan Dodonna was one of the Old Republic's foremost military tacticians. Along with his friend and comrade Adar Tallon, they were a formidable pair. Tallon's ability to manipulate ship-to-ship combat complimented Dodonna's logistical mind and siege tactics. Dodonna was one of the first Star Destroyer Captains for the Old Republic. When Dodonna first heard of Tallon's death, he retired. Soon after, Palpatine's New Order was implemented, and the military records of the Old Republic's finest officers were scrutinized. Dodonna was deemed too old to retrain, and was ordered for execution. A timely intervention by the Alliance, coupled with the knowledge of him impending execution, turned Dodonna toward the Alliance. He defected to the Alliance, and became one of their greatest strategists. Deep in his heart, he felt the need to help the Alliance turn the tide, for he saw the Empire using is greatest strategies against the Alliance, primarily in the Siege of Dalron V and the infamous Project Asteroid. He was placed in charge of the attack on the first Death Star, and agonized without sleep over the plans delivered by Leia Organa. His keen insight discovered the flaw in the reactor shaft, and he organized the snubfighter battle around it. With the Death Star gone, Dodonna was placed in charge of defending Yavin 4 until a new base could be found. He discovered that his son, Vrad, had been severely injured in an attack on the Super Star Destroyer Executor, and later died of his injuries. He helped destroy a wing of Imperial TIE Bombers that attacked Yavin 4, but was critically wounded in the battle. He was captured by the Imperials, and was imprisoned at the Lusankya facility. Known as the "Old Man," Dodonna was the unofficial leader of the prisoners working in the mines when Corran Horn was sent there. Jan helped Corran escape the facility, but couldn't escape with Horn without endangering the other prisoners. When Horn made his attempt, Jan noticed that Evir Derricote was attempting to follow him. Jan pursued Derricote and deflected his first attack on Horn. Corran was able to kill Derricote with the very shovel Derricote attacked him with. Jan remained behind when Corran left, and was probably transported to Thyferra when the Lusankya left Coruscant. Dodonna and the other prisoners were transported to the planet Ciutric by Ysanne Isard's clone, where they were held and drugged to ensure their compliance. Isard's clone pretended to move them every so often, using elaborate chambers and neurological drugs to make them believe they were travelling through hyperspace. In fact, they never left the planet. After the Battle of Bilbringi, the New Republic joined forces with the real Ysanne Isard, and was able to launch an assault on Ciutric. Dodonna and the remaining Lusankya prisoners were rescued by Corran Horn. Dodonna was eventually reunited with Adar Tallon, who had been discovered hiding on Tatooine and persuaded to join the Alliance some years before. The two, along with Vanden Willard, were known as the "Gray Cadre" among the Alliance's military. Note that The Truce at Bakura depicts Dodonna as an active member of the fledgling New Republic, and as the developer of the Battle Analysis Computer. After his rescue from Ciutric, Dodonna went on to become a competent statesman for the New Republic before he retired to New Alderaan, thinking that most of the battle with the Empire was over. He was quite surprised at the advent of Grand Admiral Thrawn and the new life shown by the remnants of the Empire, and so he came out of retirement and became one of the New Republic's most trusted military advisors, helping to turn the tide during the Battle of Calamari. Dodonna is portrayed by Alex McCrindle in Star Wars. (SW, DE1, DESB, EGC, CSW, KT, IR)

Dodonna, Vrad
the son of Jan Dodonna, Vrad fled from an encounter with the Executor just before the Battle of Hoth. He escaped from the battle in a shuttle and hid behind a nearby moon until the battle was completed. Vrad had a great fear of dying in battle, which he tried to conceal from his father. He faked battle damaged to his shuttle with a blaster and returned to Yavin 4. Han Solo and Luke Skywalker were able to see through the deception, but couldn't decide how to approach General Dodonna about it. In an effort to make up for his perceived cowardice, Vrad volunteered to take the last power gem into battle against the Executor. Dodonna named Luke as his backup, which worried Luke. Luke confronted Vrad about his suspicions, but Vrad knocked him unconscious. They had to put their differences aside as the mission began, but Vrad panicked when he encountered the ship again. He was able to penetrate the Star Destroyer's defenses and momentarily drop some of its shields, but the power gem's effects were short-lived, and the Executor survived. Vrad then landed on a small moon and dropped off Luke, them returned to ram the Star Destroyer with his own ship, sacrificing himself in hopes of doing more damage to the Executor. Following Vrad's death, Luke was promoted to Commander. Note that the Star Wars Radio Drama indicates Luke wasn't promoted to Commander until Narra's death. (CSW)

Dodt, Parin
this was Pash Craken's alias when he infiltrated Coruscant as part of Rogue Squadron. Parin was an associate of Antar Roat. (WG)

Doehn, Argon
this Alliance agent was contacted by Mygo Skinto shortly before the battle of Miztoc City. Mygo offered Doehn her services as an informant, and many in the Alliance's command structure believed they won the battle because of Mygo's help. (CRO)

Doellin
a female Gran deity, often associated with luck. (TJP, THG)

Dofey
this Imperial stormtrooper was stationed at the garrison in Hullis, on the planet Halmad, during the early years of the New Republic. (IF)

Dogder, Ghitsa
this woman was a Hutt counselor for most of her career, although she freelanced as a smuggler with Fenig Nabon during the early years of the New Republic. She had a Coruscanti accent, but not the bearing of a noble. She was at one time a counselor for the Desilijic kajidic, but had since worked for the Besadii clan. Ghitsa's family had been acting as Hutt counselors, helping facilitate business between the Hutts and the Core Worlds, for nearly 150 years. She had met Fenig on Socorro a couple of years after the Battle of Endor, and they formed a loose partnership. When Ghitsa negotiated the services of a group of Twi'leki dancers for Durga, it struck her as an act that was morally wrong. Every the schemer, Ghitsa contracted the Mistryl to help transport the dancers, then verbally abused and goaded the Mistryl pilots. This was all in an effort to have the Mistryl become angry and force them off the ship. That way, Ghitsa could claim to Durga that the dancers had been stolen, ensuring that the Mistryl would help get them to safety. Ghitsa had Fen reprogram the Fury's ID codes to those of the Indenture, then told Durga that the Karazak slave ship stole the dancers. In fury, Durga expelled Ghitsa from her position as Hutt counselor, another outcome she had hoped to achieve. Shortly afterward, the Star Lady was stranded on Prishardia, the victim of sabotage by Culan Brasli and the Desilijic clan, and Ghitsa posed as a Jedi Knight in order to con the locals out of their hard-earned credits. She was waylayed, and had to be rescued by Fen and Kyp Durron. However, Ghitsa managed to steal information on the Orko SkyMine project from Counselor Ral, and later turned it over to Talon Karrde for distribution to the New Republic authorites. (TFNR)

Dogo
this New Republic Navy E-Wing pilot worked with Esege Tuketu to take out the Black Nine shipyards during the Battle of ILC-905. Dogo was Tuketu's escort, and fired into an overlap of the shipyard's shielding, providing Tuketu a target to fire at. Tuketu dropped several bombs into the overlap, creating a shield overload and destroying the shipyards. (TT)

Dogot, Ors
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Bloodprice, serving under Warlord Foga Brill. He is killed when his ship tried to intercept the Teljkon vagabond in Sector 5. The vagabond had just fled Gmir Askilon, and was discovered by the Bloodprice. The vagabond recognized the Imperial ship as a threat, and fired on it. The intense burst destroyed the ship, taking all hands with it. (SOL)

Dohu VII
this seventh planet in the Dohu System is the homeworld of the Silika race of living rocks. (SWJ1)

Doikk Na'ts
one of the Bith members of Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes, Doikk plays the Fizzz. He is leery of working humans, and prefers the company of droids. (CCG2, TME)

Dojundo
this ancient Hutt was responsible for the discovery of the planet Vodran. (GG12)

Dok, Shanda
this Alliance operative was part of the first wave of agents which tried to support the rebellion on Fitca Prime, during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. She was captured and brought before High Inquisitor Mox Slosin, but refused to provide any information on the Alliance. She later died during the intense interrogation sessions. (AIR)

Doko prek anuda ten?
In the Old Corellian smuggler's vocabulary, this question asks 'Can you speak this language?' (TT)

Dokrett, Voba
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Gorath, part of Foga Brill's fleet in the Prakith. He pursued the Teljkon vagabond when it passed through the system. (TT)

Dokus
an Imperial trooper stationed on Tatooine during the Galactic Civil War. He served under Harburik as part of the local police force. (ISB, GG7)

Dola
this near-sentient tree, native to the planet Aruza, produces small flowers which are sensitive to touch. If approached abruptly, the flowers retreat into thin shoots. However, if tenderly coaxed out, the flowers can be harvested for the thick juice they exude. The Aruzans then process the juice into an antibiotic fluid. (TBH)

Dolas, Sarra
Lando Calrissian was smittened with this woman some years after he took control of Cloud City. Once, during a match in which Sarra sat with Narka Tobb instead of Calrissian, Lando actually folded a hand he couldn't win and opted not to bluff his way out. Lobot remembered it, for it was the only time he could remember the gambler not bluffing. (TT)

Doldrums
this star was nicknamed by the New Republic for its featureless, uninhabited planets. Located on the inner edge of the Rim territories, Wedge Antilles used it as a destination for Wraith Squadron during their hyperspace navigational training. (WS)

Doldur
this planet is the primary world in the Doldur System, and is the sector capital for the Doldur Sector. It was an area of intense rebellion during the Galactic Civil War, but it was ruthlessly suppressed by Moff Eisen Kerioth. By controlling imports of foodstuffs and other necessities, he quelled the uprisings and made the planet a model of Imperial efficiency. (TFE)

Dolfrimia
a valuable substance often smuggled around the galaxy. (HTTE)

Dolis 3
this planet, which was locked in a perpetual winter because of its distance from its sun, was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. The Empire maintained a presence on the planet, even after the peace accord signed between Leia Organa-Solo and Admiral Gilead Pellaeon. It was here that Moff Derran Takkar planned to disrupt the wedding of Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade. (U)

Dolla
this Outer Rim Territories world served as one of the Empire's primary staging areas during the build-up of warships in the wake of the Battle of Yavin. (GG10)

Dolomar
this planet was the capital world in a galactic sector held by the New Republic which resisted Thrawn's attacks more strongly than Ukio or Ando. A world of frozen glaciers and ice-capped mountains, the colonists who settled there were forced to build underground cities to escape the bitter cold. (TLC, TTSB)

Dolovite
a metal mined on Nkllon (TLC)

Dolph
this native of Almania was somewhat Force sensitive. At a young age, he witnessed the brutality of the Je'Har, as they ravaged his village and took his parents prisoner. He managed to avoid capture, only to witness his parents' deaths. The Je'Har had them tied to posts and left to suffer in the harsh, summer sun outside their palace. It took his parents a week to die of hunger, dehydration, and sunstroke. He never forgot this, even when he began training as a Jedi under Luke Skywalker. One of several students who left the praxeum, Dolph returned to Almania with a plan to avenge his parents and gain control of the galaxy. Dolph felt that the Light and Dark sides of the Force were descriptions used by the Jedi to limit their students. He felt that Darth Vader returned to the Light Side only because he had nothing left to live for. Using the failed Jedi Brakiss as a tool, and gathering a substantial force around him, Dolph assumed the monicker of Kuellar, an ancient Almanian army general who was ruthless in his approach. As Kuellar, he exterminated the Je'Har by planting specially-built droids in their midst. He adopted the use of a Hendanyn death mask after discovering one among the ruins of the Je'Har temples, and began collecting similar masks from around the galaxy. The droids he used to defeat the Je'Har were built by Brakiss, and contained remotely-controlled bombs. The droids had been two years in the making and distribution. Dolph detonated the droids at a specific time, wiping out all but the Je'Har leaders. The leaders he captured and tortured for a week, avenging the deaths of his parents. Next, he used similar tactics to wipe out the population of Pydyr, the affluent moon of Almania. He then placed similar droids - as well as specially-rigged flight computers for new X-Wings - in the possession of the New Republic. He used a series of smuggling contacts in the Smuggler's Run to deliver the bombs. He succeeded in destroying the Senate Assembly Chamber, and began to terrorize Leia Organa-Solo via the Force. As the New Republic began to discover what he was all about, he drew Luke Skywalker and Leia to Almania. There, he hobbled Luke and tried to capture Leia. However, the intervention of Han Solo and a shipment of ysalamiri blovked Dolph from the Force, and allowed Leia to break through his visions and clearly see him. She shot him in the head with a blaster, ending his reign of terror. (TNR)

Dolstan
one of the three primary planets in the Pimbrellan League, Dolstan was the original planet settled by the Pinacists. A dry world covered with plains and deserts broken by salt-water lakes, Dolstan's soil is nevertheless fertile. Farming is one of the primary activities on Dolstan, and the planet provides much of the food for the Pimbrellan League's many colonies. (KO)

Doluff, Lob
the Administrator Senior of the Oseon System, Lob Doluff knew that Lando Calrissian had won a huge profit in the system while playing sabacc. He invited Lando back to the system from Dilonexa XXIII to play some more sabacc. Lob Doluff is a pear-shaped man with a dark beard and a bald head. He has been described as having an ingratiating manner, and although he is an enthusiastic sabacc player, he isn't very good. He collects flowering plants as a hobby, concentrating on those species that are beautiful, fragrant, and persistent. He is also heavily addicted to the drug lesai. Doluff had been trying to arrest Bohhuah Mutdah for awhile, and saw Lando as a way to get near him. When Lando killed Kenow on Oseon 6845, Doluff charged him with carrying a concealed weapon - a capital offense - but gave him an out, provided Lando would transport Bassi Vobah and Waywa Fybot to Mutdah's asteroid during the Flamewind. (LCF)

Dom-Bradden
the homeworld of the Afytechan race. A contingent of Imperial stormtroopers were stationed there, awating pickup by the Eye of Palpatine, but they were lost like most of their contemporaries. (COJ)

Domain
this was the basic political and familial grouping recognized by the Yuuzhan Vong. Individual families grew in power as their members performed heroic deeds. (DTO)

Dome of the Mother Jungle
a vital part of every Ithorian herdship, this chamber dominated the lower section of the ship, and was protected by a transparisteel dome. Within the dome was contained a piece of the Ithorian jungle, lovingly maintained by the Ithorians who traveled aboard the herdship. (GA)

Domed City
see Aquarius (GDV)

Dometown
an underground city that was built by Lando Calrissian and a group of investors on Coruscant, Dometown was designed to provide a tranquil place to live for the beings who worked in the hectic city above. However, the populace of Coruscant never warmed up to the idea, and the operation went bankrupt. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, the New Republic Defense Force began fortifying Dometown, hoping to use it as a refuge for the leadership of the New Republic. It was believed that they could survive an invasion of Coruscant within its walls, but some members of the Defense Force felt that the work on Dometown undermined the efforts of the New Republic to remain positive in the face of incredible destruction. (AC, JE)

Domi
this ancient Galacian was a member of the Hill People, and one of Elan's strongest supporters. It was Domi who knew about Elan's true past, which he revealed to Qui-Gon Jinn after Giba attempted to assassinate her. (MOC)

Dominant
an Imperial Carrack-class cruiser used by Pter Thanas as command ship during the battle with the Ssi-ruuk. The ship was originally commissioned about ten years before the Battle of Endor, and was sent to join the Imperial defense of Dufilvian and Filve. However, it was damaged in battle against the Crimson Nova pirates near F'Dann IX, and recalled for repairs. It was later assigned to the Filve reserve fleet before being sent to subjugate Bakura. Because of the lack of resistance put up by the Bakurans, the Dominant was left behind as the flagship of Thanas' Imperial fleet. It was the Dominant which Thanas used to destroy the Flurry. After the Alliance was able to overwhelm the Imperial fleet, Thanas surrendered the Dominant to the Alliance. The Dominant was armed with ten heavy turbolasers and twenty laser cannons, but lacked the normal tractor beam projectors. (TB, TBSB)

Dominator
1) this Victory-class Star Destroyer eliminated an Alliance training base on Taul. It was specially modified to be driven by the latest hyperdrive technology and more powerful thrusters, and was assigned to support the fighter wings active during the Battle of Endor. (SWJ1, CCG11)
2) this heavily modified Interdictor cruiser was used by Loka Hask as his flagship, after he joined the Imperial Navy and tried to hunt down Rogue Squadron. (XWPA)

Dominus
this ancient Jedi Master was the teacher of Zona Luka, until she killed him while under the commanding spell of Exar Kun's Sith powers. (TSW)

Domisari
this Corellian woman lived on the Nespis VIII space station shortly before the Battle of Yavin. She had been hunting for hidden treasure, primarily the legendary Jedi library. She left Corellia several months before the Alliance victory at Yavin, after hunting fire crystals in the No-ad System. After Zak and Tash Arranda arrived at the station with their uncle, Mammon Hoole, Domisari was killed by the Anzati, Dannik Jerriko, who revealed that she was actually an assassin hired by the Empire to kill the Arranda children. (GOF5)

Domit Pie
a Kitonak delicacy. (COJ)

Dommaro, Gorsick
this Imperial Lieutenant, stationed on the first Death Star, controlled the A68 Market. (DSTC)

Domodroid
any of the various models of servant droids. (RPG)

Don, Onstruk
this man was the leader of the Imperial resistance on Algara II following the Battle of Endor. He was disgusted with the class system, because of its rigidity and the injustice it shows to the Xan. He faked his own disappearance, and operates the resistance from a hidden base. Like most members of the resistance, he believes the tenets of the New Order can be modified to include all races. (PG2)

Don't Go Inn
this was the name of a cantina found on the planet D'vouran. Mammon Hool hoped to find a mechanic there to fix the Lightrunner, after landing on the planet. (GOF1)

Dona Laza tapcafe
Aves' location prior to the Bilbringi assault (TLC)

Donabelle, Lysire
this woman was a member of the ExGal Society, and was part of the ExGal-4 team that witnessed the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. She was one of the few who witnessed the true face of Yomin Carr, after the Yuuzhan Vong had eliminated the rest of the ExGal-4 team. She had worked to repair the communications array, fighting the increasingly-noxious atmosphere, when Carr cut the line below her repairs. Carr then pulled her oxygen lines from their backpack, allowing the atmosphere to filter into her helment and kill her. Carr then killed her partner, all so that the Yuuzhan Vong's advance worldship could secretly establish a base on Helska. (VP)

Donadi
an alien race which has a unique form of meditation. The Donadi can lower themselves into a trance-like state which allows them to see beyond a picture into the image within it. This trait has given rise to the famous Donadi stain-paintings. (BTS)

Donadi Stain-painting
an artistic technique developed by the Donadi race. The painting appears to most other races as a series of splotches on a huge canvas. To the Donadi, who can enter a deep meditative state and alter their own perceptions, the outward image is just a preview of the image hidden within. The inner image is undetectable by other races. (BTS)

Donar
a native Ithorian plant which produces sweet-smelling, purple blossoms. (TME)

Dondarvan, Everik
this man held the rank of Commander, and was the captain of the Imperial Space Rescue Corps ship Corellian Consort. Dondarvan and his ship and crew held the records for the highest number of successful rescues (56) and the largest total number of persons rescued (543). He was known for high standards of discipline. (HR)

Doneer
this race of insectile beings was native to the planet Doneer'so. They were known as excellent technicians and builders, and were meticulous and extremely hard-working. While they are not adept at original thinking and design, they have incredible skills at taking existing plans and implementing them. This made the Doneer the finest ship-builders in the Fakir Sector, during the New Order. They live in city-hives on the planet, many of which were sympathetic to the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (SWCP)

Doneer'so this planet, the primary world of the Doneer'so System in Fakir Sector, was the homeworld of the Doneer race. (SWCP)

Donell, Lon
this Imperial Navy Lieutenant was the first officer on the Detainer, until he managed to assumed command of the Interdictor cruiser. He used the ship as a pirate would, projecting gravity wells into hyperspace to drag New Republic ships out of hyperspace for capture. This tactic allowed Donell to obtain supplies as well as starships, which he used to form his own personal fleet. (WBC)

Donn, Castin
this young, eager man joined Wraith Squadron shortly before the Anew Republic began tracking down Warlord Zsinj. A native of Coruscant, he was known as a computer slicer and systems specialist. A blond-haired youth, he had been a quiet supporter of the Alliance until the Emperor was killed at Endor. He managed to obtain an Alliance transmission of the destruction of the second Death Star, and broadcast it on the HoloNet before the Empire could put its own propaganda spin on the event. Caston joined the celebration which broke out across Imperial City, and was present when stormtroopers opened fire on the Alliance supporters. He watched in horror as a young was shot in the head, and barely managed to catch her baby before it hit the ground. This unnecessary, brutal act was etched in his mind, and he fled Imperial reprisal by forging himself a new identity and took the first transport off Coruscant. He then sought out the Alliance and offered them his technical skills. He later applied for starfighter training, and managed to pass despite the fact that he regularly shirked most of his non-flight duties and had a mild xenophobic streak. Wedge Antilles took a chance on him, hoping that this overall attitude would shape up. Wedge went so far as to assigned Castin to quarters with Hohass Ekwesh, in an effort to make Castin see that the galaxy is made up of all kinds of beings, not just humans. Castin was assigned the position of Wraith Two, as Wedge's wingman, following the death of Jesmin Ackbar. As the squadron's computer expert, Castin developed a portable program which would allow them to detect the location of the Iron Fist and help pinpoint Warlord Zsinj's location. Wedge forbade Castin from joining the Hawk-bats on their mission to meet with Zsinj, but Castin disobeyed orders and stowed away with the group. After planting his code, he discovered Zsinj's genetic experiments in the Iron Fist's deeper sections, but was also caught and brutally beaten by a group of stormtroopers. He was brought to Zsinj, who ordered General Kargin - alias Garik Loran - to kill him. Kargin hesitated, but Captain Seku shot Castin dead. This act left Seku, who was really Dia Passik, with a great sense of loss. (IF)

Donnerwin
this man served as Lando Calrissian's chief command officer at his Varn mining facility. (VOF)

Dono
this Squib relayed information on the whereabouts of the Imperial transport ship Elusive. Dono was a slave laborer on the Elusive. (SH)

Donos, Myn
a native of Corellia, Myn Donos was one of the first pilots in Wraith Squadron. As a member of the Corellian militia, Donos earned his Corellian Bloodstripes as a sniper. As a Lieutenant with the New Republic, Donos was given command of Talon Squadron shortly before being placed in the Wraiths. When Talon Squadron was almost completely lost in an Imperial ambush on Gravan Seven - Donos being the sole survivor - he was demoted, but came under the attention of Wedge Antilles when he first formed Wraith Squadron. He was, at one time, awarded Corellian Bloodstripes by the military on Corellia, but he stopped wearing them shortly after the debacle on Gravan Seven. He also became quite morose, and was very introverted during his early days with the Wraiths. In the battle that saw the destruction of the Implacable over Ession, Donos got a measure of revenge for Talon Squadron. He discovered Apwar Trigit's TIE Interceptor fleeing the dying ship, and chased it down. Before Trigit could surrender, Donos launched a pair of proton torpedoes at him. Trigit's ship was destroyed, and Trigit died in the resulting explosion. Shortly afterward, Donos began to fall in love with Lara Notsil, unaware that she was actually Gara Petothel, the woman who provided Trigit with the information he needed to eliminate Talon Squadron. When Garik Loran inadvertently revealed her deception to the Wraiths at Kidriff Five, Donos tried to kill her, but nearly destroyed Wedge instead. Antilles chose to report the firing of Donos' weapons as "accidental," provided Donos received medical and psychiatric treatment. With the help of his friends and comrades, Donos came out of his tailspin and rejoined the squadron as they prepared to attack Zsinj near Kuat. Following the battle with Zsinj at Selaggis Six, Myn accepted a position with Rogue Squadron, choosing to fly rather remain with the Wraiths who joined New Republic Intelligence. (WS, IF, SOC)

Donson
an Imperial Security Bureau agent who worked with Wallace Fisk on Demophon. (SN)

Dontal
an Alliance starfighter pilot who was killed in the offensive against Operation Strike Fear near Briggia. (XW)

Dontavian
this character from classic literature lost everything - his father and mother, his country, his allegiance - and could not come to terms with it. His father had been blind, and disguised himself as a Tusken Raider on Tatooine in order to avoid being captured. Dontavian himself faded into the shadows, hoping to correct the wrongs of the world from the darkness. During the course of his downfall, Dontavian plays at a game of Jj'abot, which mirrors his own life. (SWJ12)

Dontopod
a species of grazer native to the moon Yavin 8, the dontopod was by far the largest of its kind. (GG2)

Dontworry
an illegal hallucinagenic drug. (COJ)

Doobba, Von
this man was the fanatical leader of the Pinacists, at the height of the New Order. (SWJ13)

Doodnik Cafe
located in Tyne's Hokey, this establishment once employed R2-D2 and C-3PO as waiters. They were eventually fired and auctioned off to Jann Tosh. (DCAR)

Dooje Brolo
one of the many Yuuzhan Vong prefects assigned to the first wave of the Praetorite Vong's invasion force, Dooje Brolo worked with prefect Ma'Shraid in command of third warship to enter the galaxy. He also commanded a thousand coralskippers, which provided a defensive screen for his worldship. (VP)

Dool Arena
this reinforced cage was formed in the heart of The Broken Tusk, a bar and restaurant located on Reuss VIII. Dug into the ground and surrounded by plasteel walls, the Dool Arena was used to stage hand-to-hand combat between various opponents, for the pleasure of the patrons of the Broken Tusk. All combat in the arena was governed by the Dool Rool, which simply stated “no ranged weapons allowed in the arena.” Everything else was fair game. It was later discovered that many of the lesser-known combatants who fought in the Arena were actually Imperial prisoners who refused to break under interrogation. Fights were often staged after-hours, with the audience being made up of a select group of top Imperial officers and their staffs. In events which became known as Survival Day fights, the captives were given two options: turn over the information, or defeat Tull Raine in one-on-one combat. (WSV)

Dool Bug
an insect native to the planet M'haeli. (ROC)

Dool Rool
this rule, created by Greel, governed all combat which was held in the Dool Arena. The Dool Rool stated that "no ranged weapons were allowed in the arena." That's it. Everything else was fair game. (WSV)

Doomet
a Bothan shuttle destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Doom Slayer
this series of assassin droid was designed and manufactured by Sythluss Leethe. The design was based on a standard Sluissi security droid, and resembled an adult Sluissi when fully extended. At rest, the Doom Slayer rolled itself up into a tight, well-armored sphere. Leethe protected the droid with a lightweight armor, into which he placed a series of microcircuits, and which was painted with a special chemical paint. This combination allowed the droid to sense the electromagentic environment around it and alter its coloration to blend in with its background. When in attack mode, the Doom Slayer unfolds its tail, which housed a modified BlasTech T-21 light repeating blaster. A trio of MGL-1 microgrenade launchers give the spherical body the appearance of a face. Two manipulator arms could be extended from the body, to graps objects or victims. Because of the high cost of building the droid, Leethe would only use it to collect bounties worth 100,000 credits or more, in order to recover his operating costs. It was rumored that he had been contracted to use the Doom Slayer to kill Jabba the Hutt, and collected his fee before Leia Organa killed the crimelord herself. The spherical body of the Doom Slayer measured a meter in diameter, and its tail added another meter to its overall length when extended. Leethe sent one of these droids to Gelgelar to destroy the Alliance's drop point in Gelgelar Free Port, but the droid was destroyed by Ihvin Jayme and Maglenna Pendower. (SWJ14)

Doonium
a heavy metal used by the Empire in most of the construction of its war machines. (GDV)

Doonium Acid Mines
an explosive weapon which sprays an area with liquid doonium acid when detonated. (ZHR)

Doop Bug
found in the cities of Tatooine, the doop bug resembles a large, flat beetle. (TPM)

Door Annunciator
any device which allows a person outside a room or house to vocally announce his or her presense to the inhabitants of the room. (AC)

Door-being any automaton programmed to greet guests at some of the more luxurious hotels in the galaxy. (LCF)

Doornik-1142
a brown dwarf star in the Koornacht Cluster. The Astrolabe was destroyed near it. Note that Shield of Lies describes Doornik-1142 as a planet. (BTS, SOL)

Doornik-207
this planet, located in the Koornacht Cluster, was inhabited by a colony of Corasgh until it was exterminated by the Yevethan Purge. (SOL)

Doornik-319
the New Republic designation for the Kubaz world of Morning's Bell. The Yevetha know it as Preza. (BTS, SOL)

Doornik-628 System
this planetary system, located in the Koornacht Cluster, contained a number of habitable planets. The fifth planet was known as J't'p'tan to the Fallanassi. It was exterminated by the Yevetha. (SOL, TT)

Doornik-881
this planet, known to the natives as Kutag, was the site of an Imperial factory farm usurped by the Yevetha. (SOL)

Dootch
a game of chance played in many backwater casinos. (SWJ14)

Dopey
this New Republic Navy K-Wing pilot was killed during the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL)

Dopplefly
this creature is often kept as an exotic pet. (VOF)

Doppler Compensator
this unit is part of a starship's navigational control system. (RM)

Doppraymagno Scanner
a multifunction scanning device. (SE)

Dor
this young man was a member of The Young. He was in charge of medical issues, as part of the new government established after The Young defeated the elders of the Daan and Melida. (UP)

Dor Gal-ram
this ancient Sith warlord sided with Naga Sadow following the death of Marka Ragnos, although he believed Luda Kressh had the best interests of the Sith in mind. Working with Horak-mul, he became one of Kressh's secret agents, and was instrumental in uncovering Sadow's treachery in assuming the position of Dark Lord of the Sith. They later led the attack on Sadow's fortress on Khar Delba, which was a decoy base. The lack of retaliation made Dor Gal-ram overconfident, and ordered further attacks. It was at this point that several of Dor Gal-ram's crewmen - still loyal to Naga Sadow - mutinied and killed Gal-ram. This marked the end of Kressh's attack on Sadow, leaving Sadow firmly in command of the Sith Lords. (GAS)

Dor Nameth
this planet is the homeworld of a tall race of dextrous travelers. (CCG9)

Dora Prefecture
a city on the planet Bethal. (SWAJ)

Dorajan
this planet is covered with dense jungle. (SESB)

Doran Spaceways
this was the false owner of the "passenger" shuttle Doran Star, when Kell Tainer landed the shuttle in Revos to intercept the crew of the Hawkbat. (WS)

Doran Star
this was the false identification of the shuttle Narra, used when Wraith Squadron infiltrated the planet Storinal shortly before the Night Caller was to rendezvous with the Hawkbat. The Doran Star was a passenger shuttle owned by Doran Spaceways. (WS)

Dorat, Chel
this Imperial Admiral retired to the planet Jerrilek, and lived in an estate near Graleca. (SWAJ)

Dorax Dog
a ferocious beast used as a guardian. (TFE)

Dorchess Valley
located on the planet Pakrik Minor, this is one of the primary farming areas for tallgrain. (SOP)

Dorcin
a planet? (WEG)

Dordol
this alien species is native to the planet Dordolum. (SOP)

Dordolum
this planet was the site of one of the first riots sparked by Klif and Drend Navett, shortly after the revelation of Bothan involvement in the destruction of Caamas. (SOP)

Doreenian Ambergris
this substance was used to make a heady perfume. The strength of its aroma made it a favorite among spice smugglers, who hid shipments of the illegal material inside or among boxes of ambergris perfume. (TPS)

Dorenian Beshniquel
a musical instrument, often referred to as a Fizzz. It is a short, single-reed wind instrument. (TME)

Dorian Club
this bar, located on Narigus III, was where Sam was supposed to meet up with Lauren, after the two stole the Kubaz Insect from Rock'co and were separated during their escape. Sam never showed up, because he had been captured by Rock'co and killed. Sam sent the statue to Lauren by courier. (GMS)

Dorian Passion Fruit
this tasty, juicy fruit is found only on the planet Dantooine. (GMS)

Dorian Quill
an alcoholic beverage aged 12 years or more. (TME)

Doriana, Kinman
this man was one of Senator Palpatine's closest advisors. It was during the time of the Outbound Flight Project that Doriana became Palpatine's most trusted aides, when he accompanied the task force sent to eliminate the Jedi. Instead of a quick assault, the Imperial fleet was decimated by the Chiss Expansionary Defense force under the command of Thrawn. Thrawn destroyed all but one of Doriana's warships before Doriana could plead for an audience. When he did, he managed to convince Thrawn of the dangers of the Outbound Flight Project. Thrawn's forces wiped out the Jedi, and Doriana returned to Coruscant and described to Palpatine the events he witnessed. (VOF)

Doreilla's Mystress
this bulk freighter was owned and operated by RenTrans during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

Dorin
1) this planet, located in the Expansion Region, was the homeworld of the Kel Dor race. The planet's atmosphere is very unusual in that it supports life with just the barest traces of oxygen. This requires that Kel Dor travelling away from Dorin must wear anti-ox masks to filter out oxygen. (IG1, IWE1)
2) an alien species. (IWE1)

Dorin Venithon
this Ithorian and his twin brother, Denuab, were among the most vicious pirates of the New Order. This made them a great aberration to the normally placid Ithorian people. Formerly members of such notable groups as the Fivaran Organization, the Bandits of Ggy-ynt, and the Yarnak Gang, the Venithon Twins joined the Hy'thor Pirates shortly before the Battle of Yavin. The Twins left the Fivaran Organization after a failed raid on the Alliance Special Forces vessel Hauler VI, and fled to the Hy'thor gang, where they quickly established themselves as cruel leaders. They were even made special ambassadors to Safonne Pendon's gang. Where Denuab was somewhat reasonable, Dorin was belligerent and vicous, with bullying attitude. (AIR)

Dorion Discus
Roark Garnet's ship. (RPG)

Dorja
an elderly Imperial Navy Captain under Grand Admiral Thrawn, he was the commander of the Relentless. He came from a family of starship commanders from the planet Coruscant, being the seventh in a long line of naval officers. He was granted command of the Relentless prior to the Battle of Endor, although his cautious style of command has often been questioned by other Captains. He was with Pellaeon following the Battle of Endor, and although he agreed with the decision to retreat, he did not approve of Pellaeon's assumption of command. Dorja's lack of initiative at the Battle of Endor meant that he was relegated to a secondary position in Grand Admiral Thrawn's Navy, and this rankled even more. Dorja stayed on, though, in hopes that he could one day assume command of the fleet and return the New Order to its rightful position in the galaxy. Dorja survived the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn and the series of defeats the Empire suffered to the New Republic, and was one of the thirteen Captains who remained in controlof their Star Destroyers ten years later. He was then called upon by Moff Disra to intercept Admiral Pellaeon at Morishim, but Dorja was not given the specifics of the mission. At the same briefing, Dorja was stunned to see Thrawn join the discussion. Masterfully portrayed by the con artist Flim, Thrawn seemed resurrected, and Dorja was completely fooled by the performance. He agreed to go to Morishim and intercept an Imperial courier, which turned out to be Colonel Vermel's ship en route to extend a peace treaty to Garm Bel Iblis. (DFR, DFRSB, SOP)

Dorlar
this Brubb worked for Barosa Warren at the Galactic Outdoor Survival School on OM813. Dorlar was an instructor and part-time recruiter for Warren, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Dormand
this family moved into North 5, 26 Down, after the Fallanassi fled the city of Griann, on Teyr. They lived there after a massive cyclone nearly destroyed the city. (SOL)

Dormo-shock
a coma-like, natural reaction to severe trauma. An individual who has experienced a physical trauma often enters dormo-shock. (ESBN)

Dorn
1) this is the fourth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "d". (SWM)
2) this young Bothan boy was a contemporary of nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker, and was a slave in Mos Espa just like Anakin. The two were good friends as well. Dorn was owned by Jabba the Hutt at the time, and the Hutt was training him to be a spy. When Jabba learned that a group of Ghostling children had been stolen from Gardulla the Hutt, Jabba decided to have Dorn infiltrate Gardulla's slaves and locate them. If he failed, Jabba would kill him. What Jabba didn't know was that Dorn was one of the children who helped the Ghostlings escape. Dorn was nearly captured in the escape, but made it safely to Bantha Rock. There, he fled Tatooine with the Ghostlings and Pala aboard Rakir Banai's ship. (E1A5, E1A8)

Dorna, Kissek
this Alliance starfighter pilot was one of the original Tierfon Yellow Aces, and served with Wes Janson and Jek Porkins. A former freighter pilot from the planet Alderaan, Kissek went into a panic attack when a routine mission became a dogfight with the Yellow Aces outnumbered two-to-one. Janson and Porkins were forced to chase him down because of their proximity to Imperial space, fearing that he might compromise the mission. When Kissek wouldn't listen to reason and turn around, Janson took a shot at him. The laser blast cracked Kissek's cockpit, venting all atmosphere and killing him. Kissek's widow found out about his death before the Yellow Aces could talk to her, and she blamed them for his death and for ruining the family name. She changed her name,and that of her children, to Tainer and moved from their hometown, hoping to rebuild their lives. Kissek's son, Kell, eventually joined the Alliance himself. (WS)

Dornea
this planet is the homeworld of the Dornean race. (BTS)

Dornean
this alien race, native to the planet Dornea, are tall, leathery-skinned humanoids with specialized eyefolds. Their eyefolds and shoulders are studded with quills, providing extra defenses against attackers. In the Dornean society, the male is responsible for taking care of the children until he is needed to defend the family. (BTS, CTD)

Dornean Brandy
a fine, distilled liquor created on Dornea. (BTS)

Doro
this young man was 28 years old, ten years older than his counterpart Alex Winger, during the rebellion on Garos IV shortly after the Battle of Endor. He died in an Imperial ambush, during just his second field mission, near the Tahika Cliffs. (SWJ1)

Dorok
this pirate makes his home base on the planet Lanthrym, where he is the prominent crimelord. (PG)

Dorr-Femi-Bonmi
this Cerean elder was in league with Bron, Ephant Mon, and their pro-technology faction which was trying to gain a foothold on the planet Cerea. He was hoping to make a profit off the eventual sale of swoops and other high-technology items, and made a deal with the off-worlders to allow for certain items to be imported to help fuel the desire for more. On a tip from the Ortolan Ydde, elder Nar-Somo-Dali discovered Dorr's deceit and had him arrested for sedition. During his sentencing, Dorr told the elders that the swoops which were ridden by Kordren and Skeel were sabotaged. (PTR)

Dorrak
a city on Derilyn. (PG)

Dorriella
this planet was subjugated by the Empire during the New Order. (SWJ9)

Dorsis
Hal Horn had once tracked Moranda Savich to this world, but was unable to capture her before she was able to flee. (TFNR)

Dorsk 80
Dorsk 81's genetic predecessor, he frowned on his descendant's uniqueness. (DS)

Dorsk 81
81st member of a family which has been cloned from the same batch of genetic material. His cloning was flawed, however, and he gained the use of The Force. Dorsk is a native of the planet Khomm, and is a thin, smooth-skinned alien; he has no lips, and his skin is mottled with green and yellow. His nose is flat, and his ears lay flat against his hairless skull. After attaining the rank of Jedi Knight, he returned to Khomm, only to find his relatives and his race still stagnant and unwilling to accept his success. He and Kyp Durron left the planet and discovered Admiral Daala's fleet massing in the Core Systems. They fled the Core, racing back to Yavin 4 to warn the Jedi Academy. In a confrontation between the might of Pellaeon's seventeen Star Destroyers and the Force, Dorsk 81 channeled the combined strength of more than thirty Jedi and literally pushed the Star Destroyers out of the system. He was physically unable to withstand the great power of the united Force, and was burned from the inside out by the wave of energy sent against the fleet. (DA, COTF, DS)

Dorsk 82
a genetic descendant of Dorsk 81, Dorsk 82 was living on Khomm when Dorsk 81 returned there after becoming a full Jedi Knight. He had been trained to manage the cloning facilities on Khomm. Dorsk 82 showed some aptitude with the Force, and traveled to Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 in hopes of realizing his potential. He was befriended by Kyp Durron, who found Dorks 81's lightsaber and presented it to him. Shortly after joining the school, Dorsk 82 was influential in the defeat of the Leviathan of Corbos. (DS, ROM)

Dorthas Tal
a prison on the planet Saccoria. It was here that Thrackan Sal-Solo was imprisoned for eight years, for his part in the Corellian Crisis and the Starbuster Plot. (AC, JE)

Doruggan, Conn
an Imperial Captain of Alderaanian descent, Doruggan served on the planet Bakura shortly before the Battle of Endor. Prior to attending the Imperial Academy on Raithal, Doruggan was a star wegsphere player on his homeworld. Doruggan was attending the Imperial Academy when Grand Moff Tarkin destroyed Alderaan, but Doruggan blamed Princess Leia Organa for the disaster. Doruggan believed that Leia's refusal to cooperate resulted in the use of force, and defended the Empire to his friends. After graduation, Doruggan served under Wilek Nereus on Hakartha Station and on Berea before being reassigned to Bakura with Nereus. Doruggan was part of the group which arrested Eppie Belden, and when Leia Organa traveled to Bakura shortly after the Battle of Endor, he considered her a threat. (TB, TBSB)

Dorva Vine
this Corellian plant is grown in gardens for its beautiful blooms. (TPS)

Dorvalla
this planet was the Imperial captial of Cadavine Sector, during the height of the New Order. (SESB)

Dorynn
this city is located on the eastern coast of the continent of Laz, on the planet Lazerian. (TSK)

Dorzo
this Rodian served as Jiliac the hutt's majordomo. (TPS)

Dosha
this planet is one of the homeworlds of the Trandoshan race. (SWAJ)

Doshao
this Yuuzhan Vong subaltern was escalated by Nas Choka for his brave work at Dantooine, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (JE)

Dostra Major
this yellow star, located in the Thandon Cluster, was the primary body in the Dostra System. (AIR)

Doth Brandy
this well-aged alcoholic spirit is considered a delicacy by the rich and powerful. It compliments the taste of tranna nougat, and is often consumed with the sweet candy. (TT)

Dothmir
this is the Brigian term for a communal leader. (TT)

Double Echo
Arly Bron's beat-up freighter. (RD)

Double V Formation
this method of employing a group of AT-AT and AT-ST walkers was developed by Arndall Lott. A group of ten salve-rigged AT-STs forms the first V, and helps clear a path through enemy forces for the second V. This second V is composed of four AT-ATs, which can get very close to their target if the AT-STs eliminate the lighter opposition. The benefit of this attack pattern is that the forward AT-STs can move to prevent flanking actions by the enemy with relative ease, or can be dispatched to mop up remaining enemy troops while the AT-ATs destroy the primary target. (WBC)

Double Viol
this stringed musical instrument is formed from a pair of hollow, resonating boxes that are separated by shaft. This shaft is strung with tonal cords which are plucked or strummed to produce music. (JASB)

Double Worlds, The
the name given to Talus and Tralus, two planets in the Corellian System that orbit each other around a barycenter. (AC)

Double-Blind
this was the brand name of Arakyd's sensor jamming system produced for use on space stations. (HAS)

Double-Down
a card game played in a number of casinos and gambling halls. (WSV)

Double-draw Fendoc
an obscure game of chance. (BW)

Doublefield Generator
this device is a form of forcefield generator which creates two opposing, spherical fields. The most obvious use of the doublefield came on the Loronar Field Secured Container Vessel, which employs Prexton doublefields to create spherical containers for cargo. (ISB)

Doubler Suit
this specialized form of personal protection uses a miniaturized, potable, three-dimensional holovideo recorder/projector and a specialized bodysuit. A being must allow itself to be recorded for an hour, during which time the doubler suit records the movements and physical dimensions of the being. The recording is then downloaded into a computer which turns the recording into raw data. When the wearer wants to go into the field in disguise, he or she wears a special bodysuit lined with thousands of microsensors. The raw data from the recording is fed to these microsensors, and allows the user to create a double of himself through the miniature projector. (GG10)

DoubleSec Corporation
this manfuacturer built gravity field compensators for large starships. (RM)

Douglas III
a planet which is home to the jackelope. (LCM)

Doulos
one of the three barren moons of Atraken. (PG2)

Doune
this Herglic was known as a notoriously lucky sabacc player during the early years of the New Republic. Doune maintained his base of operations on the planet Morado. After Doune won nearly everything the young human Nyo had, he entered into another match with the legendary Kinnin Vo-Shay. Vo-Shay quickly won more than 200,000 credits from Doune, and turned the money over to Nyo so that the young man could purchase a lightsaber. Doune then beat them to Nar Shaddaa and bought the weapoyo wanted. In a second sabacc match, Doune managed to win Vo-Shay's amulet, believing that the amulet somehow gave V-Shay an edge. Little did Doune know that the amulet was simply a gift from a female acquiantance of Kinnin's and had no magic powers whatsoever. (TFNR)

Dous'tine
this sculptor was a native of Loretto. Dous'tine was once commissioned by Prince Xizor to create a bust of the Falleen crimelord. The statue was confiscated by Dequc and displayed in his Black Nebula headquarters on Qiaxx. Mara Jade hid an remote control device inside it, along with her ligthsaber, in hopes of entering Dequc's private chambers in order to execute the crimelord. She claimed that Xizor had hidden a treasure map inside it, and when Dequc opened it, she activated the remote control. The device ignited the lightsaber, piercing Dequc's head and killing him instantly. (MJEH)

Dovecote
this old mansion, located in Koved City on Siluria III, was owned by Kaiya Adrimetrum and her husband. Following his death during the Imperial occupation of the planet, she used it as the focal point for planning her assault on the Imperial Governor, Quannith. (GG9)

Dovin Basal
this unusual piece of Yuuzhan Vong technology acts on the gravitational properties of a target body. They can be used like repuslors, to maintain a position above the ground, or in a reverse action to maintain contact with the ground. Individual dovin basals were spherical in shape, measuring about three meters across. They could lock onto a specific gravity source - even one surrounded by others - and focus their lock with extreme precision. The more focused the lock, the stronger it became, even across hundreds of thousands of kilometers. This allowed the Yuuzhan Vong to employ them as perpetual sources of thrust for their yorik coral worldships. Dovin basals resemble a large, dark red heart with deep blue spikes surrounding its body. Several battles into the invasion, the New Republic's starfighter pilots realized that the dovin basals also provided coralskippers with unusual shielding. Rogue Squadron discovered that the stronger a coralskipper's shielding, the less maneuverable the fighter was. They used reverse logic, and forced the skips to maneuver more in a dogfight, thereby reducing the effectiveness of the dovin basal shielding. (VP, DTR)

Dovlis, Reldo
this Imperial Navy Captain served aboard the Peacekeeper, and was part of the fleet which was sent to take out Nar Shaddaa. Dovlis was an older, less imaginative officer than Soontir Fel, the other Captain serving under Admiral Greelanx during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. Dovlis was the first commander to realize that the smugglers were using illusory ships to discourage the Imperials, but he quickly discovered that real ships were hidden among the fakes. The Peacekeeper took a large amount of damage to its starboard engines, and soon found itself without power. Dovlis ordered the engines brought back on-line when the ship began drifting toawrd Nar Shaddaa. The failsafes were overridden, but the spasmodic thrust the engines provided only pushed the ship closer to the moon. When they gave out altogther, the Peacekeeper plunged into Nar Shaddaa's planetary shield. Dovlis died in battle, taking out a section of the moon's shield with his own ship. (THG)

Dovos, Shas
this man was native of Onderon, and a dedicated student of metallurgy who stumbled upon an old text of Sith magicks nearly 1,000 after the fall of Sith Empire. Shas had found the book in an ancient Onderonian temple in the wilds near his village, and started reading it. The book intrigued him, as it dealt with the formation of a heavy, spiked set of jet-black armor. While many considered the armor a work of art, Shas knew that much of the armor was imbued with Sith alchemy. After ten years, he finished the armor, and event which unleashed the Sith spirit trapped in the text. The spirit used its own Sith powers to meld Shas's essence to that of the armor, creating a new creature it named Warb Null. Shas Donos, from that point onward, ceased to exist. (TOJC)

Dowager Queen
the first colony ship to arrive on the planet of Tatooine, it was forced to make a crash-landing when it arrived. The wreckage was left where it landed, and the city of Mos Eisley grew up around it. Hundreds of years laster, the Queen's remains form a series of homes and hiding places for the city's homeless. (TME, ISU)

Dowd, Bilman
this man was a member of the same bounty hunters' guild as Boba Fett. To Fett's knowledge, Dowd had been a member longer than even Fett himself. A tall, thin, elderly man, Dowd met Fett on Devaron when the bounty hunter captured Kardue'sai'Malloc. His role as representative was to collect the guild's ten-percent handling fee. (TBH)

Downside
1) this is one of two cantinas located in New Atraken City. (PG2)
2) this was the name of the slum areas of the cityof Fabrillan, on Malthor. (CRO)

Downside
one of two transport ships used by Ackbar to supply Project Shantipole. (XW)

DownTime
a recreational facility frequented by many members of Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron while in training on Folor. (XWN)

Dox Ocean
this is one of two major bodies of water on the planet Lazerian IV. (TSK)

Doxet
this continent, found on the eastern hemisphere of the planet Lazerian IV, was somewhat independent of the nation of Devit, although the natives of Doxet allowed King Alarik X of Devit to rule on planetary matters. (TSK)

Doxeti
this is the capital city of the continent of Doxet, and was the seat of the quasi-independent Doxet government. (TSK)

Doxin
a corpulent scientist at the Maw Installation, he is in charge of high-energy concepts and implementation. He was killed when the Maw Installation's prototype Death Star was torn apart in the Maw's black holes. (COTF)

Doxxen Tea
a steeped brew favored by the Shashay. (TA)

Doyle
a Habeen shuttle used to evacuate their research base during the attack by the Nharwaaks. (TIE)

Dozen-and-Two Avengers
this was the name of Kyp Durron's vigilante group, led by himself and Miko Reglia. They represented the "Two" in the name - the only two Jedi in the group - while the other members were simply rogue pilots. They were nearly destroyed after discovering the Yuuzhan Vong presence near Helska. A swarm of coralskippers launched a massive wave of volcano missiles, which took out many of the non-Jedi Avengers in the opening seconds of their battle. Miko was captured by the Yuuzhan Vong, and Kyp fled to a remote sector and stranded. In the wake of their destruction, the Dozen-and-Two were reduced Kyp and a few others. Kyp recruited new members, but simply called the group Kyp's Dozen. (VP, JE)

Dozen Rules, The
this code of conduct was developed by Urias Xhaxin, but was similar to most such codes maintained by pirate captains. Basically, the rules were: be flexible and stay mobile, never pick a fair fight or one against someone your own size, never hunt in your own back yard, gamble at all times, make a name for yourself, stick to the shadows whenever possible, stick to the job at hand, always make sure you have a well-thought-out plan that can handle the unexpected, the target's crew is not the enemy, maintain initiative at all times, keep your crew well, and remember - there are no sure things. (PP)

DPU7
this is a model of starship heat sink. (RM)

DPx
this is the designation of Uulshos' Deep-X Explorer space yacht. This 12-meter long craft was targeted to be a pleasure craft, but found a following with scouts who converted it for deep-space exploration. The DPx required a single pilot to control, and could handle 50 metric tons of cargo and up to five passengers. The DPx is a flat starship, with a pair of wings extending out from the central section. The central section houses the cockpit, passenger areas, and engines. (SWJ9)

DR-X55
this lift-mine was created by Norsam for the Empire. It had a range of operation from 10 meters to 40 meters, and measured a meter in diameter. The DR-X55 can move quite fast, and can bring itself within detonation range in a matter of seconds. (CFG)

Dr'aan
this Sullustan was discovered at the abandoned Alliance base by Tash Arranda and her surrogate uncle, the Shi'ido Hoole. Dr'aan seemed to be an exact double of Dr'uun, and was later revealed to be a clone produced by the Empire by an experimental, rapid-cloning technique. (GOF11)

Dr'uun Unnh
this Sullustan pilot was a member of the Alliance. When he was not in a starfighter, Dr'uun Unnh was a thorough and meticulous naturalist. He created a number of in-depth studies of planetary ecologies, and was delighted when the Alliance shifted its base of the fourth moon of Yavin. He spent a great deal of his ground time exploring the jungles. However, this proved to be his downfall, for he was out in the jungles when the Alliance began its assault on the first Death Star. He never made it into the battle, but was killed when Qorl's TIE Fighter crashed on the moon. The crippled fighter slammed into the camp he was occupying. He was buried on Yavin 4. Dr'uun's body was discovered by the Empire, and a sample taken to Dantooine, where it was cloned in an experimental rapid-cloning process. (ISU, GOF11)

Dr'xureretue
this Ishi Tib owned and operated Docking Bay 87 at the Mos Eisley Spaceport. Known to his associates as "Drue," he is an easy-going businessperson who is uncompromising and never forgets a debt. (GG7)

Dra III
a planet known for its indigenous hunting beasts, the nashtah. (HSR)

Draagax
this creature was native to the planet Relkass, and was known to be a nasty predator. They were generally omnivorous, feeding on razorgrass and small rodents, although they preferred to feed on the Relkass sentinel plant. This posed a problem for the inhabitants of Relkass, as the narcotic in the sentinel plant caused the draagax to go into a predatory frenzy, killing any warm-blooded creature on sight. The average draagax resembled a tall rodent, standing nearly two meters tall at the shoulder and having long ears and sharp teeth which could inject a debilitating poison. Their large eyes were adapted to seeing in the visible and infrared spectra. (COG)

Drach'nam
an alien race known for its size and strength more than its intelligence. They have pale, pinkish blood. (TFNR)

Drackmar
primary planet in the Drackmar system. (CPL)

Drackmarian
these reptiles have scales colored in a number of hues, and large sharp teeth contained in s vicious-looking snout. They must breath methane in a special helmet when away from their homeworld. They are humanoid in appearance. (CPL)

Dracmus
a female Selonian captured by Thrackan Sal-Solo on Corellia as she attempted to disrupt a Human League gathering. He eventually acceeded to her request for parole, although he kept her under watch. When Thrackan captured Han Solo, he pitted Han against Dracmus in a hidden location, simply to enjoy the fighting. Dracmus and Han were then forced into the same cell. (AS)

Dradan
this race of tall, spindly humanoids was exterminated by the Empire for harboring Jedi Knights during the early years of Emperor Palpatine's rule. (DOE)

Draedan
an alien race native to the planet Sesid, the Draedans are amphibious humanoids with scaled skin, webbed fingers, and a finned tail. Their toes are not webbed, Draedans can live out of the water, but must keep their skin moist of suffer greatly from dehydration. They have gills in their necks for breathing in the water, but also possess lungs for use out of the water. They live in the oceanic forests of lataren trees, and are expressive, emotional creatures capable of wild celebrations and cunning attacks. Their heritage is littered with territorial conflicts, which continued even after their discovery by the Old Republic. This continued during the reign of Emperor Palpatine, with some Draedan nations supporting the Imperial presence and others offering assistance to the Alliance. (GG12)

Draenell, Arnoll
this man was in command of the Old Republic scouting expedition which was stranded in the Bissillirus System after their ship's hyperdrive cut out. In order to make repairs, Draenell scouted and mapped the five planets of the system choosing to land on the wourld which became known as Draenell's Point. Draenell also named the other planets in the system. Draenell and his crew managed to repair their ship and continue their expedition, but were destroyed shortly afterward in an encounter with the Inchichtok race. (GMK)

Draenell Industries
this was one of the largest manufacturers on the planet Draenell's Point. It was based in the city of Juntrack. (GMK)

Draenell Planetary Council named for Arnoll Draenell, this was the system-wide goverment which led the Bissillirus System until the Empire took control of Trax Sector. Four years before the Battle of Yavin, the Council ceded control of the system to the Empire. (GMK)

Draenell's Point
this cool, agricultural world was located in the Bissillirus System, and was a convenient stopover point for traders and travelers in Trax Sector. The planet was named for Arnoll Draenell, the leader of the Old Republic scouting expedition which stumbled upon the system. During the Galactic Civil War, Draenell's Point supplied a good deal of agricultural foodstuffs to the Alliance. (GMK)

Draenell's Spies
this was the name used by the Alliance ground forces which were on-call to support the strike teams disrupting Imperial group forces during the attempt to destroy Bissillirus Resupply Base. (GMK)

Draflago
an alien race that lives in the mud of their home planet, and must immerse themselves in mud to survive off-planet. (HSL)

Draggis
manufacturers of high-power blaster rifles. (TT)

Dragite
this valuable crystal is mined in the D'olop mountains on the planet M'haeli. They have properties similar to Adegan crystals. (ROC)

Dragnoor
this domed city was the planetary capital of Deysum III. (GMK)

Drago
the Alliance shuttle which went to Stars' End to rescue a group of prisoners of war. It captured the Imperial freighter Genue as it was delivering the prisoners to the detention center there. (XW)

Dragob
this Sedrian warrior served as one of Karak's personal bodyguards. (BGS)

Dragon
an Alliance CR90 Corvette destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Dragon Battle Armor
this personal combat protection was once manufactured by SoroSuub. (SWAJ)

Dragon Cave
located in Far Distance, on the planet Zonama Sekot, this large cavern was located near the base of an active volcano. The name derived from the intense steam which burst forth from the cave as the lava vaporized water. (RP)

Dragon Kite
a form of kite created on Coruscant, the dragon kite was used in a combat competition between two kite fliers. (XWRS)

Dragon Pearl
this was the name of Jiliac the Hutt's personal starship. A heavily-armed space yacht, the Dragon Pearl was also modified to hold six Z-95 Headhunters in its holds. The ship was commandeered by Han Solo and Mako Spince, to assist in the defense of Nar Shaddaa. The ship sustained major damage during the initial skirmishes, but helped bring down the Vigilance. With dwindling resources, Jabba had the ship repaired to operational status, in an effort to draw Jiliac out of her maternal slump. (THG, RD)

Dragon Pearls
another name for the beautiful gizzard stones recovered from the last chamber of a krayt dragon. (TJP)

Dragon Snake
this species of fire-breathing, subterranean reptile lives in the caves of Corulag. (SST)

Dragon-bird
a vicious, deadly creature native to Onderon. (FNU)

Dragon-slug
a creature found only on Hoth, the dragon-slug is a fire-breathing worm which consumes lumni-spice as food. It creates huge tunnels in the rock and ice as it searches for the spice. It is for this reason that lumni-spice is rare and difficult to harvest. (CSW)

Dragon's Pelt
the name, given by the Ewoks, to the vasts grasslands that cover portions of the Forest Moon of Endor. (ISU)

Dragon's Spine
a range of mountains found on the Forest Moon of Endor. (ISU)

Dragon's Teeth
this natural landmark is found on the planet Hapes. The Teeth are a range of jagged rocks that jut from the blue-green ocean waters near Reef Fortress. (L)

Dragonbird Gardens
these beautiful gardens are located on the Imperial world of Aargau. Baron Tagge used the gardens as the backdrop for his discussions with other members of the Galactic Corporate Policy League. It was here that they began seeing that Palpatine could help them regain ultimate control of the Corporate Sector and free them from the restrictions imposed by the Old Republic. (CSA)

Dragonflower Nebula
a spectacular gaseous formation located in the Doldur Sector. It is a pink aurora containing five dark, pulsing vertices. The hidden mining outpost of Silver Station is found on its outskirts. (SWAJ)

Dragonsnake
a carnivorous predator native to the swamps of Dagobah, the dragonsnake is a long, armored creature with sharp fangs and razor fins. The dragonsnake usually waits in the swamps, floating like a log until some other creature wanders too close to the water's edge. It then lashes out with its fangs and fins, capturing its prey and dragging it into the water. Once it controls its prey, the dragonsnake holds it under the water, coiled in its long body, until the prey drowns. The dragonsnake has been known to attack and kill the massive swamp slugs that share the swamps with it. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game: Dagobah claims that the dragonsnake is often mistaken for the swamp slug. (ISU, CCG4)

Dragship
this was New Republic fighter pilot slang for an Interdictor-class cruiser. (XWMR)

Draigon
native to an unspecified world near Bandomeer, these huge avian reptiles are covered in silvery scales. They have piercing yellow eyes and teeth like crystal daggers. They have no arms, just their immense wings and strong legs. Each wing is tipped with a single claw, and they subsist primarily on fish and small mammals. Resembling a flying Ithorian razor shark, draigons will fight to the death to protect their homes, hunting grounds, and young. (RF)

Draigon-slug
this species of large, snake-like reptilian was found on many planets. It inhabited swamps and other noxious envirnoments, preying on the smaller creatures it captured. These creatures had large eyes and green scales, and could breath a jet of fire if cornered or angered. Many disreputable crimelords kept draigon-slugs in their dungeons as guards. (E1A3)

Drainsweeper
a reckless relay race run as part of the Colonial Games. (DCAR)

Draisini
this Mining Guild ore hauler was owned by the Mining Guild, which sprang up during the early years of the New Republic. Commanded by Captain Forma, the Draisini was attacked and captured by pirates working for Grappa the Hutt. (CE2)

Drake, Breslin
this Major served the New Republic Intelligence agency shortly after the Battle of Endor. He was part of the team which debriefed Baden Lathe's reporting on Leia Organa's negotiations with the Hapans and her kidnapping by Han Solo, and was part of the team investigating the Imperial Black Fleet after the Yevethan Purge. Drake was also a counterintelligence agent aboard the corvette FarStar, during the search for Moff Sarne in Kathol Sector. (CTD, KR)

Drake Squadron
this Imperial fighter group was supposedly attached to the Night Terror, and was under the command of Captain Maristo. (SOC)

Draklor
a Star Galleon under the Death's Head's battle group. It was used to transport troops and Master C'baoth to Wayland, during Grand Admiral Thrawn's plans to decimate the New Republic at Bilbringi. (TLC)

Drall
1) one of the 5 inhabited planets in the Corellian System, it is also one of the Five Brothers. Many scientists had speculated that the Corellian System was somehow created by forces other than nature, since it had 5 inhabitable planets in close proximity, orbiting the same star. This was proven during the reign of Thrackan Sal-Solo and the Starbuster Plot, when Ebrihim and his aunt Marcha unearthed the repulsor on Drall, with Anakin Solo's help. (AC)
2) the humanoid race native to the planet Drall, these aliens resemble tall, thin Ewoks. The average Drall is the size of a young child, and is covered with short, dense fur ranging from gray to black, with brown and red variations as well. Their ears lay flat against their heads. They are a very dignified and sensible race, with individuals reaching maturity at just 15 years of age and gaining confidence quickly. (AC, AE)
3) an oily, red-skinned alien race. (HSL)

Drallan Enclave
the name given to the diplomatic embassy building used by the Drall in Coronet, on the planet Corellia. (AC)

Drallist
the name given to those extremely nationalist Dralls who want to rid the planet of humans and Selonians. They rose to being about the same time as the Human League. (AS)

Dram
a creature whose emerald-green hide is often used as a table covering. (LCM)

Drammel
this Nebulon-B frigate was part of the Imperial fleet which protected the Bissillirus Resupply Base during its construction, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GMK)

Dranae Shai
this Yuuzhan Vong warrior, a relative of Shedao Shai, confronted Corran Horn after the Jedi had rescued a group of slaves with the help of Ganner Rhysode. Rhysode himself was supposed to have fled, but returned to rescue Corran. Corran had nearly defeated Dranae, although the Vong warrior had mortally wounded the Jedi with a bite from his amphistaff. Corran used the Force to attract a group of slashrats to Dranae's struggling body, and the vicious creatures swiftly consumed him. Corran eventually survived, thanks to Ganner's rescue, and became a prime target for Shedao Shai's vengeance. (DTO)

Drang
one of Kaarde's pet vornskrs. (HTTE)

Drankin
this New Republic Senator was elected to governmental service after the dissolution of the Provisional Council. (SOL)

Drapsha
this cellulose-based foodstuff is digestable to certain species that can assimillate it. (RM)

Draria
the Alliance lost track of Zayl Braith after she left this planet. (AIR)

Drark, Jovan
this young Jedi Knight accompanied Tenel Ka to Bilbringi, shortly after the Battle of Fondor, to assess the Yuuzhan Vong threat to the system and its shipyards. (BP)

Draskha
this Hutt crimelord once paid Sienn Sconn 100,000 credits to steal Rythani Products' latest prototype weapon from Moff Caerbellak. Draskha's personal empire began to grow after the fall of Emperor Palpatine and the birth of the New Republic. (SWJ9)

Drashtine Initiative
one of the many small settlements that were petitioned and argued by the New Republic Senate shortly after the revelation of the Caamas Document. The proponents of the Initiative argued for allowing the Bothans to avoid immediate financial restitution for the destruction of Caamas. The Sif'krie government cast the decicing vote on the Initiative, blocking the Frezhlix Senator from adding his voice to the opposition. This led to a series of Frezhlix attacks on Sif'krie pommwomm shipments. (SOP)

Drathul
this Yuuzhan Vong Prefect was in command of the worldship Harla during the invasion of the galaxy. Despite Nom Anor's failure at Helska and the loss of the priestess Elan, Drathul grudgingly decided to keep Anor at the forefront of the invasion. (HT)

Draughckt
a Gamorrean acquaintance of Gerrick. (RPG)

Draukyze system
site of one of Thrawn's hit-and-run attacks. (HTTE)

Dravian Hound
another name for the nashtah. (CSA)

Dravian Starport
this orbital space station is located between the planets Syned and Cotellier, and serves as a way station for ships passing between them. Its remote location - it was situated in open space, away from any inhabited system - meant that a traveler had to want to travel there. Its location attracted all kinds of rogues and smugglers. The various levels of the station were packed with casinos, hotels, restaurants, and all kinds of goods dealers. (GMH)

Dravione
this planet, located in the Allied Tion, is dotted with ruined fortresses from the sector's early history. (ML)

Dravis
a smuggling chief working for Billey, Dravis was a graduate of the Imperial Academy and accomplished pilot. His father hoped Dravis would follow in his footsteps and join the Scimitar Wing, but Dravis had other plans. Although nothing has ever been confirmed, rumors persist that he stole an Imperial shuttle and fled to the Outer Rim Territories to escape from an unwanted child he had fathered. He was an old acquaintance of Han Solo's, who thought that Talon Kaarde had taken over Jabba the Hutt's empire. (HTTE, TLC, TTSB)

Dravvad, Chelch
a native of the planet Corellia, this man was a New Republic Senator and a member of the Advisory Council when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. He supported the Jedi Knights and their efforts to defend the galaxy against the Yuuzhan Vong. During the initial phases of the plan to draw the Yuuzhan Vong to either Corellia or Bothawui, Dravvad resented the fact that Borsk Fey'lya accused the Defense Force of singling out the Bothans for attack by leaving Bothawui undefended. (VP, JE)

Drawcard
this personalized card allows an individual to obtain credits from specified banking kiosks. (WG)

Drax Squadron
a stormtrooper squadron assigned to search through Mos Eisley and locate R2-D2 and C-3PO on Tatooine. (TME)

Draxlor Company
this Imperial soldier squadron was on-call to support the ground forces who battled Alliance forces on Draenell's Point, during the Alliance's attempt to destroy the Bissillirus Resupply Base. (GMK)

Draxton-12
this was a kind of portable fusion generator produced for use by explorers and scouts. The Draxton-12 was considered a small-yield generator, producing temporary solutions to power outages. (SSR)

Dray, Cooper
this 25-year-old swoop racer maintained his popularity only as long as he was winning. When he decided to race just for the thrill of it, he discovered an audience on the planet Bescane who simply wanted to watch him race. He settled down there, and was eventually contacted by an Alliance operative. When Imperial agents killed the operative in front of his eyes, Cooper vowed to make the Empire pay. He joined the Alliance as an undercover agent, using his contacts on Bescane to move contract workers off the corporate world. It was Dray who helped the Alliance locate agent Tigress, because he had become aware of the kidnappings of workers by Imperial Forces. During a swoop chase with Imperial forces, Dray was lost. Tigress, also known as the Lady Amber Comark, believed that he was kidnapped and cyborged as part of the Death-Hunter project. When the Alliance agents infiltrated Jesco Comark's base on Zeta Zero Nine, they found Dray in the midst of an intense torture session. He was rescued by the Alliance agents. (SWJ9)

Draybeast
an eight-legged creature used to pull carts on farms. (HSL)

Draygo, Vykk
this alias was used by Han Solo, following his escape from Garris Shrike and the Trader's Luck. As Vykk Draygo, Han was employed by Teroenza as a pilot. Vykk fell in love with Bria Tharen, although eventually Han revealed his true identity to her. They escaped from the Ylesian colony and fled to Corellia and then Coruscant. Vykk Draygo was pursued by a multitude of bounty hunters, as was Han Solo, because of the damage he caused when they fled the colony. Han dropped the Vykk Draygo alias after fleeing Ylesia, although he maintained all the identification papers. (TPS)

Drayhar's Cantina
a disreputable establishment found in Eponte Spaceport. (SWAJ)

Drayk
this individual was the abbot at the Dim-U monastery during the Galactic Civil War. He ran the monastery with a military style. (GG7)

Drayson, Hiram
this New Republic Admiral was in charge of the Republic's mission to find the Katana fleet. He used to be in charge of the planetary defenses on his home planet, Chandrila, where he met Mon Mothma. She asked him to assist with defenses when the Alliance was formed, and then asked him to stay on with the New Republic as Admiral of Coruscant's capital ship fleet. Following the death of Thrawn, Drayson was placed in charge of Alpha Blue, and was one of the New Republic's highest-ranking military officials during the Great Purge. He was known in military circles as the Old Ghost of Coruscant. As the New Republic's government firmed up in the wake of the negotiation of peace with the Imperial remnants, Drayson decided it was time to retire. He married his long-time love, Joi Eicroth, but the marriage didn't last and they soon separated. (DFR, DFRSB, BTS, VP, HT)

Draz
this extremely vicious species of canine is native to the planet Korbin. They are a product of a long-forgotten breeding experiment aimed at producing an attack animal. The experiment was a success, but so much so that no one could control the draz. They escaped from their creators and now roam the wilds of Korbin. The draz are covered with steel-gray fur that stands on end when they attack, making them look larger than normal. They are unpredictable hunters. (PG2)

Drazin
this Imperial Corporal served as a stormtrooper during the last years of the New Order. A native of Bespin, Drazin was dispatched with the garrison sent there after the Battle of Hoth, and was responsible for shooting C-3PO when the droid discovered the Imperial presence on Cloud City. Drazin later served as part of Commander Igar's honor guard during the occupation of Endor's Forest Moon, during the construction of the second Death Star. (CCG10)

Dreadnaught
this ancient starship design was produced by Core Galaxy Systems as a military cruiser. The CGS Deardnaught measured 900 meters in length, and was crewed by 45 officers and 20 gunners. Up to 50 troops and 3,000 metric tons of cargo could be transported aboard the ship, which was armed with a heavy turbolaser, 4 tractor beam projectors, and eight laser cannons. (TOJC, EGV)

Dreadnaught-class Heavy Cruiser manufactured by Rendili StarDrive prior to the Clone Wars, these Old Republic ships required a huge number of crewmembers (16,000+) to run. They were about 600 meters in length, with a roughly cylindrical shape. The basic idea behind the dreadnaught is that it can deployed to maintain a planetary occupation.Six weapons blisters were arranged around its midsection, and it had a clamshell-shaped bow. They have been rated to speeds of .4 past lightspeed, with a top speed of 14 MGLT. The Dreadnaught is armed with 10 turbolaser batteries, 20 quad laser cannons, 10 laser cannons, one warhead launcher, 160 SBD shields, and a 80 RU hull. Note that The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels says the Dreadnaught had a slow, Class Two hyperdrive rating and weak shields, facts supported by the West End Games sourcebooks but not by Dark Force Rising. (DFR, SWSB, ISB, TIE)

Dreadnaughts
one of Han Solo's favorite smashball teams, they are not a very good one, though. (COJ)

Dream Emporium
this was the name of the entertainment complex located in the primary starport of the planet Etti IV. It catered to both the local Etti population and to the members of the Corporate Sector Authority. (SESB)

Dream Runner
this Corellian Engineering gunship was part of the Alliance fleet which patrolled Trax Sector shortly after the Battle of Yavin. It was dispatched to assist in the destruction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. (GMK)

Dream Snake
a dreambeast creature created by Halagad Ventor on Trinta. (DOE)

Dream Weed
a dangerous, carnivorous plant native to Togoria. (SL)

Dreambeast
this unusual creature is created by users of the Dark Side of the Force, and its appearance generally conforms to the most feared image in its opponent's mind. The range of appearances a dreambeast can assume is virtually unlimited, and they can appear to take damage as a real creature. They also seem to inflict real damage on an opponent. When the illusion is finally dispelled - essentially, when the dreambeast is killed - the physical wounds it inflicted will disappear. However, mental trauma often ensues, rendering the opponent unstable for the forseeable future. (DOE)

Dreamscape
this Force projection placed an opponent in a world created in the mind of the wielder. The illusion is often broken when the opponent tries to break through it, but until that time, it appears to be entirely real. (DOE)

Drearian Defense Conglomerate manufacturers of a full line of sporting blaster weapons. (RPG)

Drebbick, Chorin
this Imperial Security agent worked in the Infitration section during the early years of the New Republic. He pretended to be an aide to Lydenn Carridon, in order to intercept the droid R1-T4 when it was transported to Janelle Serap on Seikosha. Always impeccably dressed and groomed, Drebbick was known as a cold, calculating individual who would kill anyone or anything that got in his way. (POC)

Drebbin
this creature lives on the planet Dathomir. (CTD)

Drebble
this crime boss had a small operation which he ran from Keyorin. He once emplyed Bossk and IG-88 to capture Lando Calrissian, but they were unable to secure him. (EGC)

Dred Imperative
a starship which ran a regular shipping route to Demophon, before the planet was destroyed. (SN)

Dreddon
this Hutt sold weapons throughout the Outer Rim Territories during the last decades of the Old Republic. Dreddon once sold a huge lot of military surplus to the Toydarian junk dealer Watto, a lot which included the Tyrian struts used by Anakin Skywalker on his podracer. (SWO, IG1)

Dree, Tantos
a bounty hunter who travelled with Roark Garnet. (RPG)

Dreeble
a space pirate working with Tirog. (RPG)

Dreebo
an alien working for Bogga the Hutt, he was an extremely poor fighter pilot. For some reason, Bogga had employed him in the small protection fleet he maintained. Dreebo was killed when Finhead Stonebone attacked Gruna's Wasp transport. Dreebo tried to knock out Stonebone's ore suckers, but missed every shot and was eventually shot down himself. (TOJ)

Dreeka
a species of fish which makes a chirping sound, the dreeka are native to the planet Ithor. (TME)

Dreel
this Chiss, who served Voss Parck and Stent during the ten years leading up to the Caamas Incident, was the first to link Mara Jade to Thrawn. He reported back, and then tried to make contact with Mara. She received the transmission, although she couldn't understand it all, but made the connection with Thrawn's full name. This led her to Nirauan, where Parck could interview her face-to-face. (VOF)

Dreena
an uninhabited world in the Hapes cluster, visited by Isolder and his father when Isolder just a boy. (CPL)

Dreffon IV
a planet. (GMH)

Dreggusom
this was one of the repulsorlift-equipped, floating cities found on the planet Rordak. (PG1)

Dreighton Nebula
a spectacular nebula in an unimportant sector of the galaxy, the Dreighton Nebula is avoided by many space travelers. The nebula has been said to be haunted, and many ships that have traveled through it have mysteriously disappeared. Ru Murleen discovered an Imperial weapons research station there, and found that the Empire was responsible for the numerous missing starships. (RA2)

Dreis, Garven
Dreis was an Alliance starpilot, serving at the Dantooine base before volunteering for service as the leader of Red Squadron during the Battle of Yavin. He was the only pilot, besides Luke Skywalker, to even attempt a shot at the Death Star's thermal exhaust port, although his shot deflected on the surface instead of going down the shaft. He was later killed in the battle. Dreis was portrayed by Drewe Hemley in Star Wars. (CCG)

Dreiss
this former scientist was an explorer working under tenure with the Obroan Institute. He and Mokem had stumbled onto the Shadow Traproom on Liok, but both were killed in the strange room before they could perform more in-depth analysis. (TT)

Drejil
this sea creature is a staple of Calamari cuisine. (GG11)

Drek Drednar
this pirate and his band operate from an underground base on Taraloon. (SWAJ)

Dreleene, Aricos
this man served as the Imperial Moff of Toblain Sector during the height of the New Order. He once tried to purchase a Surronian L19a freighter, but was surprised to find that his craft was actually a regular-version L19. Unable to obtain a true L19a, he decided to create a fake. He invested a huge sum of money to have a series of outlaw techs upgrade the ship, which he had originally named the First Edition. He was able show off his prize to other Imperial dignitaries, and no one could tell that the ship was a fake. In the end, hoever, Dreleene was ambushed along the Warchigade Trde Route by pirates who believed he was flying an L19a. The pirates maliciously recored Dreleene's whining attempts to claim the ship was a fake, and then placed then on Cynabar's Infonet. The Empire disowned Dreleene, choosing let him wallow in an Alliance prison. (SS)

Drell
this race was known for the starships it built, which were often used by pirates. The ships were shaped like a chisel and had a stubby aft section. (TPS)

Drellis Syndicate
this moderately large criminal organization was active during the early years of the New Republic. They were believed to be responsible for breaking Brahle Logris out of prison on Tamazall, during Grand Admiral Thrawn's reign of terror. (GG11)

Drelosyn
this Imperial biker-scout was a native of the planet Coruscant. He grew up racing swoops through the underworld of Imperial City, and was a natural fit as a scout trooper. His reckless method of handling a speeder bike derived from his background as a swoop jockey, and he was still tempering his skills when he was promoted to the rank of Corporal and assigned to the garrison on the forest moon of Endor, during the construction of the second Death Star. (CCG10)

Dren-garen, Taym
a native of Tatooine, Taym supplied the Tusken Raiders with weapons, and helped instigate several attacks on human settlements. This helped draw the attention of local authorities away from his employer, Jabba the Hutt. (CCG7)

Drenna
this young Senali girl was the daughter of Garth and Ganeed. She became good friends with he adopted brother, Prince Leed of Rutan, and she supported his plans to remain on Senali. When King Frane tried to have Leed returned to Rutan, Drenna tried to hide Leed from the Jedi Knights, Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, who had traveled to Senali with Taroon to speak with Leed. Eventually, Leed agreed to meet with them, and Drenna found herself liking Taroon. Any friendship they might have had was nearly destroyed when it was learned that Taroon had tried to have Leed kidnapped in order to secure his own position on the throne, even after Leed had offered him the chance. In the end, however, the cooler heads of the Jedi allowed King Frane to see Taroon’s potential as a leader, and Leed was allowed to return to Senali. Drenna then offered to remain on Rutan, so that Yaana could return to Senali and be with her family. King Frane agreed. Drenna’s strength and courage were not lost on King Frane, who hinted to Taroon that she would make an excellent Queen. When King Frane decided to allow Taroon to succeed him as King, the relationship between Taroon and Drenna was allowed to evolve. (SP)

Drepplin
this starport city was also the capital of the planet Glova, but only had a native population of about 20,000 during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Drepplin Street
this was the primary thoroughfare of the city of Drepplin, on the planet Glova. (POC)

Dreshig, Ballin
this weathered man was known as one of the most notorious computer slicers and fixers of the New Republic. His "calling card" was an electronic tag with some form of wry humor imbedded into it. (GG11)

Dresk Kist
this Slith shaman was the first of her kind to make contact with the Alliance, when a team of Alliance agents assisted Pippa Rosheen in fighting the disease which was inadvertently brought to Yavin 13 by the Fernandin Scouting Expedition team looking for a new location for Wetyin's Colony. (GG2)

Dresscol
this small, white-dwarf star is located in Trax Sector. The planets which orbit the star were deemed uninhabitable by Imperial scouts, so the Alliance established a base on the moon Qetix IV. The base served as a starfighter repair base, supporting the capital shipyards of the nearby Ventil System. (GMK)

Dressel
this world is the primary planet in the Dressel System, and is the homeworld of the Dresselian race. It is a world perfectly suited for human life, being a temperate world of vast plains. It was discovered by the Bothan Askar clan, who recognized the emerging Dresselian race and left them alone. The Askars settled in the Dresselian Asteroid Belt instead. (GG12)

Dresselian
an alien race native to the planet Dressel, the Dresselians are tall, thin humanoids with heavily-wrinkled skin. They are often referred to as prune-faces, a description of their long, wrinkled skulls. They are a tenacious race, discovered some 200 years before the Galactic Civil War by the Bothans. The Bothans recognized the potential of the Dresselians, and left them to evolve on their own. However, the Empire took control of the Bothan mining interests in the system and subjugated the Dresselian race. Throughout their enslavement, the Dresselians remained dedicated to their own independence, and followed the Bothans in support of the Alliance. They have developed steam-level technology, but have willingly accepted the blasters and repulsorlift technology offered by the Bothans. (GG12)

Dresselian Asteroid Belt
this swath of rocky debris lies just inside the orbit of the planet Dressel, and was discovered by the Bothan clan, Askar. They settled in the asteroid belt itself, allowing the Dresselians to continue their evolution unobstructed. However, the Empire wanted the mineral wealth of the asteroids, and dishomed the Bothans. The Imperials also set up mining headquarters on Dressel, subjugating the Dresselian people in the process. (GG12)

Dresselian Beer
a foul-smelling, cheap beer. (IG1)

Dressto
this small, avian creature was native to the upper levels of the rainforests of Veron. (PG1)

Drev
1) a city on the planet Zelos II, located on the western coast of Galleros. (PG2)
2) this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who first discovered the murder of 300 colonists on Corva Yag. Drev was based on the planet Elrood. (SWJ13)

Drev Jalok
this starship captain owned a cargo ship that was on it was to the planet Altier when it was ambushed by Drek Drednar. (SWAJ)

Drev'starn
this is the capital city of the planet Bothawui. The Combined Clans Center Building is located here, as well as the planet's largest shield generator. The Vengeance group, under the command of Klif anf Navett, managed to infiltrate the shield's power supply and drop the shields, just before Moff Disra could implement his plans for the destruction of Bothawui. The attack was thwarted when the Tyrranic was discovered to be cloaked behind a comet, ready to pounce on the New Republic ships gathered there. (SOP, VOF)

Drev'starn Department of Criminal Discouragement this was the name of the Bothan police force that patrolled the city of Drev'starn. The officers and investigators wore distinctive green and yellow uniforms. (VOF)

Dreve
a planet. (GG11)

Dreven
this smuggler added information to Cynabar's Droid Datalog, documenting the misuse of TDL nanny droids as assassin droid by corporate executives. (SWJ14)

Drever Corporation
this Parmic Sector weapons manufacturer specializes in small blasters, blaster cannons, and plasma cutters. It was operated by Jensen Drever II during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Drevin
this corporation produced a variety of anti-gravity pools for recreational and sporting activities. (GG2)

Drevk
this smuggler believed that a clean, orderly ship would deflect suspicion if the ship were ever boarded by Imperial Customs officers. He maintained a small fleet MN-2E droids to keep his ship tidy. (SWJ14)

Drevun Six
this famed brotherhood of warriors was known for its trademark, three-bladed Somreth weapon. (AIR)

Drextar Pym
this native of the planet Excarga, was the leader of a panel that prosecuted former Imperial officials for their war crimes. He was the target of a series of terrorist attacks from a former Imperial commando. (SWAJ)

Dreyba
a great Hutt artist, and a contemporary of Jabba the Hutt. (CCG7)

Dreyf
this Imperial Intelligence Commander served under Admiral Pellaeon in the years after the death of Thrawn. He investigated the dealings of Lord Graemon and Moff Disra, searching for any misdealings that might shake up the remnants of the Empire. He found several instances of misappropriated funds in the records on Muunilinst, all of which Disra flatly denied involvement with. It was Dreyf, under Pellaeon's orders, who rifled Disra's desk and obtained datacards which helped implicate the Moff in several of his misdealings. (SOP)

Drez
a vocal Imperial Admiral who argued that the destruction of the first Death Star was the result of poor anti-starfighter screening. He proposed the construction of the Lancer-class frigate as a solution. (ISB)

Drezzle Sauce
this rich sauce is often used as a salad dressing. (SESB)

Driblis Fruit
an edible fruit. (TLC)

Dricella, Brelln
this Professor of Astrography was the Chief Astrographer at the New Republic Astrographic Survey Institute at the time of the Black Fleet Crisis and the Battle of N'zoth. Dricella was called upon the by Republic to prepare a comprehensive datafile on the Duskhan League and the Koornacht Cluster, to help understand the Yevethan threat. (CTD)

Dricklefruit
this fruit is preserved in ornate jars. (SH)

Driessel Flower
a flowering plant native to Drall. (AS)

Drift, The
this is the name given to the dust cloud which separates most of the star systems in Elrood Sector from the Kuras System. Because of its size, it makes travel to and from the Kuras System extremely difficult. (PG, OE)

Driggs
Marcha's Drall caretaker at Mastigophorous. (AS)

Driit
the currency used on the planet Dellalt when Han Solo lands on the planet, searching for the Queen of Ranroon. (HSL)

Drilbian Wine
a tasty fermentation enjoyed by Siene Symm. (SWCP)

Drinking Cup
a natural, bowl-shaped pit open to the sea, located on Trogan. The in-rushing ocean causes a swirling whirlpool to form during tidal shifts. (TLC)

Driscull, Tev
this Corellian commodities shipper was the original owned of the Lantillian Short Hauler known as the Nova Whisper. He lost the ship when it was stolen by the criminal Dharus near Elshandruu Pica. (SS)

Driver Droid
an automaton programmed to operate ground vehicles. (LCM)

Drivveb
this species of grazing, herd animal was native to the planet Rordak, and was a staple in the diet of the Viska. (PG1)

Drixar
this Wroonian served as a starport security officer on the planet Bothawui during the height of the Galactic Civil War. An associate of Garin and Sharalon, Drixar was als an informant for a major crime syndicate, although neither of his friends knew which one. (SESB)

Dro
1) Callista's uncle, he hated to have a good time, and didn't want anyone else to have one, either. (COJ)
2) an Alderaanian family (TPS)

Dro, Aryn
see Thul, Aryn Dro (TPS)

Droch
this small, repugnant, insect-like creature was first used by the Grissmath Dynasty in an attempt to wipe out the political prisoners on Nam Chorios. The drochs bite their victims and latch on, much like leeches. Also like leeches, the drochs have the ability to drain the lifeforce from a creature. If removed quickly, the droch will have only taken a small amount of force, and the victim feels slightly woozy. If allowed to remain in contact woth the flesh, a droch will burrow into its victim and be assimilated. However, rather than simply dissolving, the droch somehow entwines itself with its host, becoming an unseen but demanding part of its victim. It can continue to drain lifeforce, while the host simply dies from the loss of force. In this fashion, the droch is virtually undetectable, and the victim appears to have died for no reason. The droch which continues to grow strong by taking life energy from various victims can grow to large sizes, about a half-meter in height. These larger drochs have the ability to control smaller drochs, and can also obtain life energy from its subservient drochs. For this reason, the natives of Nam Chorios tried to keep the drochs from spreading beyond Nam Chorios, although a single outbreak did occur. Drochs flourish is dark, shadowy areas, for natural and reflected sunlight tends to drain their power. It was known as the Death Seed plague, and although it was eventually controlled, it was not known how it was finally defeated. (POT)

Droe
this female Cerean was one of Ki-Adi-Mundi's older sisters. (IG1)

Droecil
this remote planet had a small but fervent cell of Alliance support. (SWAJ)

Drog
this species of large, black beetle is native to the planet S'krrr. The drog travel in swarms, and will eat anything in their path. They will even scavenge for food, and have few natural enemies. They were known to the insectile S'krrr as one of the main pollinators of the multitude of plants found on their planet, and are therefore carefully maintained by gardeners. Their only true enemy, besides the S'krrr, are the shreevs, which consume about thirty drogs each per day. Thus, the S'krrr gardeners work to maintain a balanced population of shreevs and drogs. Drogs reproduce prolifically, requiring that shreevs be kept around in order to help control the drog population. Many xenobiologists have claimed the the S'krrr themselves are descended from the drogs, although this has never been scientifically proven. What is known is that a cult of S'krrr worshipped the drogs with god-like awe. (GOF8)

Droga, Jeng
this Dark Side adept was one of Emperor Palpatine's students, and was the pilot of the Emperor's personal yacht, the Emperor's Shadow. It was believed that Droga went insane and vanished, along with the Shadow, shortly after the Emperor's death at the Battle of Endor. (SWJ14)

Drogue
this was the term used to describe any sort of repulsor-equipped workstations used by technicians and repairmen to reach lofty emplacements. They are U-shaped enclosures which have plenty of room for tools and parts storage. (GG11)

Droid
any of the various automatons in use for a number of tasks throughout the galaxy. There are 5 basic droid classifications:
- First-Degree programmed for physical, mathematical, and medical sciences
- Second-Degree programmed for engineering and technical sciences
- Third-Degree programmed for social, diplomatic, or tutoring interaction (C-3PO is a third-degree droid)
- Fourth-Degree programmed for security and military applications
- Fifth-Degree programmed to handle menial and non-intelligent tasks (salvage, mining, sanitation)

(SWN, SWJ14, FTD)

Droid Abolitionist Movement
this fanatic group, led by the fiery Xalto Sneerzick, promoted the belief that all droids were sentient creatures, and should be freed from subservience. The movement reached its height when Xalto and his followers grew bold enough to attack Cosmohaul Shipping transports, but died when some of Xalto's "emancipated" droids felt threatened by him. The droids killed Sneerzick's entire team. (SWJ9)

Droid Control Ship
this is the name of a unique Trade Federation battleship which has been heavily modified for use in controlling the immense automated armies of the Federation. Based on the same Hoersch-Kessel Drive cargo platform, the droid control ship resembles the ring-like battleships it supports. However, the control ship is different in that powerful sensory rectennae and broadcast transmission towers stud the rear of the ship, allowing the droid control ship to hover in high orbit – up to 16,500 kilometers away – while maintaing transmission link-ups with ground-based forces. Once the other battleships have deployed their droids, they often move out of the system entirely until the invasion is over. This leaves the droid control ship behind to handle the operations of the droid army. Armament and the on-board complement of droid hardware is similar to that of the Federation's battleships. However, shielding is much great on the control ship, providing an added measure of defense. (SW1, X1)

Droid Harem
the Great Heap's Castle on Biitu, he kept captive droids there and pampered them before consuming them. (TGH)

Droid Modification Team
specially-trained technicians who rework, retool, and reprogram droids for specific tasks. (GDV)

Droid Tipping
a phrase originally developed by the Gungans, this activity essentially involved knocking over an inactive droid. The phrase was created at the end of the Battle of Naboo, after Anakin Skywalker had destroyed the Trade Federation's Droid Control Ship. Without a signal to give them directions, the battle droids on the surface of Naboo suddenly were deactivated. Several Gungans, including Jar Jar Binks and Captain Tarpals, realized that the droids were unable to fight back, and began knocking them over. Soon, all the battle droids had been "tipped" and thrown into scrap piles. (IWE1)

Droid Uprising, The
this era of Bakuran history occurred shortly after the planet was first settled by the Bakur Corporation. The H'Lokk Consortium had infected Bakur's droids with a virus that would instruct the droids to sabotage the settlers' colonization efforts. The virus' programming was flawed, however, and removed the non-violence failsafes of the droids. The droids began killing people, and with a week the Bakuran settlers had destroyed all the droids. The settlers lost forty percent of their original number, but the droids were disposed of, halting H'Lokk's plans.

Droideka
this is the Neimoidian name for the destroyer droids they used to intimidate their enemies. (IG1)

Droidfest Of Tatooine
an annual event in which the various Jawa clans combine to create a huge used-droid sale. (ZHR)

Drok It
an expletive used by Han Solo. (CSA)

Drokko Kira
known as Drokko the Elder, he is the father of Modon Kira and grandsire to Oron Kira. He is one of the oldest members of the Beastmaster society on Onderon when Ulic Qel-Droma arrives on the planet. He suffers from a wound he received when he battled against the Dark Side in Iziz and was cast out. The wound has never healed, and Drokko would not talk until Ulic arrived, when Drokko pleaded with Ulic to finally bring the Dark Side down. (TOJ)

Drolan Plasteel
this ancient corporation produced a variety of products used by non-military personnel, including infrared goggles and other forms of eye protection. (TOJC)

Drom
this was the capital city of the planet Vulta. (TOJC)

Droma
this Ryn befriended Han Solo on the Jubilee Wheel, albeit to Han's dismay. Han had been working with Roa to seek out Reck Desh, and Droma and his companions were searching for passage to Rhinnal to look for another group of Ryn, including Droma's sister. Instead, they were all caught up in the Yuuzhan Vong attack on the station, and Roa was lost. Droma helped Han escape the station, and they parted ways, only to be reunited aboard the Queen of Empire. Ever in the path of danger, Droma and Han were suddenly in the midst of a Peace Brigade ambush of the ship, in an effort to recover the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan. After Major Showolter was injured, Han and Droma agreed to transport Elan and Vergere to Coruscant. Droma proved to be something of a nuisance, but Han found himself liking the unusual humanoid. In many ways, Han felt that he was just allowing Droma to fill the void left by Chewbacca's death, but Droma nonetheless proved to be an ally. Droma was also responsible for saving Han's life - not once, but twice - during their flight from Ord Mantell and their transport of the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan. It was Droma who recognized that Vergere was a species from the known galaxy, not a creature the Yuuzhan Vong brought with them. His telling of Han's future with a deck of sabacc cards also helped Droma realize that Elan was not a defector, but instead part of a plot to kill the Jedi Knights. After Han decided to go back out to search for Roa, he agreed to help Droma continue the search for his sister. After missing the group of Ryn on Ruan, Droma was arrested by Salliche Agricultural Corporation for forging transport documents for refugees who had been working on the planet. In reality, the documents had been forged by Droma's relative, Gaph. Han was forced to rescue him, with the help of the droid Baffle, and then later freed several thousand droids who had been inhibited by Salliche Ag. (HT, JE)

Droma Sector
an area of the galaxy held by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, the Alliance poisoned a shipment of grain that was destined for troops there. (XW)

Droman
this Imperial drill sergeant was to the small outpost on the planet Rhamalai during the height of the New Order. When the Empire officially subjugated the planet in order to take control of is agricultural output, Droman found himself training the new conscripts taken from the civilian ranks of the planet. (SWJ13)

Dromath
this New Republic Navy Captain was one of Lai Nootka's primary contacts. It was Dromath who first discovered Corran Horn's ability to fly an X-Wing, after he helped liberate Nootka's freighter, the Star's Delight, from Garqi. Dromath was killed several years later, during the New Republic's struggle to defat Grand Admiral Thrawn. (TFE, DTR)

Dromath, Rade
a native of the planet Garqi, this man was the son of Dynba Tesc and Captain Dromath. He later greeted Corran Horn, when the Jedi arrived on Garqi during the Yuuzhan Vong occupation of the planet. He had been managing the meager resistance to the Vong presence, carrying on his mother's legacy of fighting against those who would usurp power. With Corran's appearance on Garqi, along with that of Jacen Solo, Rade hoped to garner Jedi sanctioning for the vicious work of his resistance team. Corran didn't give it to him outright, but he allowed Rade to ensure the safety of the general populace from Yuuzhan Vong attacks. After the discovery that the pollen of the bafforr tree was deadly to the Yuuzhan Vong's vonduun crab armor, Corran had to return to Coruscant. Rade promised to continue working toward the liberation of Garqi until the New Republic could lend military assistance. (DTR)

Drome
the Imperial Captain assigned to maintain security on the Hammertong project. (TME)

Dromii
a group of Imperial modular conveyors operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Drommanarg
this is a form of snuff used by those individuals who didn't prefer to smoke. (TA)

Drommel, Gean
an Imperial Admiral in command of the Guardian, Drommel was a native of the planet Oplovis. He and his ship were on station at Coruscant during the Battle of Endor, and when word of Emperor Palpatine's reached the capital world, Drommel took his fleet and fled to his home system. He tried to establish his own empire following the death of Palpatine, waging a short but effective campaign against New Republic safeworlds with the assistance of Captain Dor Reder. Drommel's forces were defeated by the New Republic in the Battle of Tantive V, but Drommel escaped with the Guardian. (WBC)

Dromon
an Ripoblus Nebulon-B frigate destroyed by the Empire during the Sepan Civil War. (TIE)

Dromor Motors
this repulsorcraft manufacturer was based on the planet Lianna. They produced a line of escort speeders used by the Imperial dignitaries on the planet. (ML)

Drompani System
Colonel Uday traced a piece of the recording of an alien ship - provided to the Empire by Carib Devist - to a secondary recording made in this system. The recording had been cobbled together by Han Solo, in an effort to discover the location of the planet Bastion. (VOF)

Drone Barge
any automated cargo ship which has no organic crew, used to ferry cargo between a planet's surface and an orbiting installation. (HSE)

Drong II
this remote planet, the homeworld of the Drongian race, was the primary planet in the Drong System. (TBSB)

Drongian
this alien race was native to the planet Drong II. (TBSB)

Dronseen
Talon Karrde once asked Mara Jade to pick up a shipment from this planet, during her search for the Cavrilhu Pirates that fled from Kauron. She was unable to make the pickup before she had to return to the Wild Karrde. (SOP)

Droo, Tinnin
this Nam Chorios colonist set up a smelter's shop in Hweg Shul with Nap Socker. When Luke Skywalker first attempted to use the Force on the planet, the backlash Force storm nearly destroyed the smelter's shop. Tinnin Droo suffered burns over most all of his body. (POT)

Drooim-Durtha Systems
this manufacturer created many tracking devices, for both terrestrial and interstellar use. (SWJ8)

Droom's Gambit
a series of movements within a game of Firepath. (CSWDW)

Droon
this Imperial Admiral was outwardly loyal to Governor Torlock of Corulag, but he was secretly in love with Torklock's daughter, Frija, who was plotting to eliminate the Governor and take control of his holdings. Droon was also a historian, and was well-versed on the history of the Old Republic and the rise of the Empire. He captured Jix when the mercenary was sent by Darth Vader to deliver a message, and panicked when Jix brought up the subject of the Dark Lord. He tried to kill Jix and eliminate Torlock's human replica droid by dropping them into a cave inhabited by a dragon snake, but Jix killed it and returned to the surface. As Droon killed the real Frija in an attempt to implicate her as the leader of their plot, Jix knocked him unconscious and brought him back to Coruscant to face Vader's wrath. Jix also brought along some of Droon's weapons collection, which included several Jedi lightsabers. When Jix explained Droon's plans to Vader and turned over the lightsabers, Vader executed Droon with the weapon for his duplicity. (SST)

Droopy McCool
pudgy, white alien playing the horn in the Max Rebo Band, Droopy was a member of the Kitonak race. When Evar Orbus was the leader of the band, Orbus purchased Droopy on Ovrax IV. He went simply by the Snit back then, but following Orbus' death, Droopy allowed Sy Snootles to choose a new name for him. She came up with Droopy McCool, and he kept it. When the band was forced to accompany Jabba to the Pit of Carkoon, they managed to escape from the sail barge before it could explode. Following the death of Jabba the Hutt, Droopy fled the crimelord's palace to live in the deep Tatooine desert, which reminded him very much of his home planet. He was never seen again, although many farmers claim to hear the soulful wailing of his pipes in the night air. (ROTJ, TJP)

Drop, Ivr
this Corellian man served as the leader of the AGR agro-combine, during Soontir Fel's teenage years. He was forced to send Soontir to the Imperial Academy on Carida, after Fel stopped Ilir Post from assaulting Pamr during the Harvest Festival. (MBF)

Drop Point
this was the Alliance's term for any location which was maintained for the secret delivery of goods and materiel. These locations could also be used by the Intelligence division as a field office. The basic role of a drop point was to ensure that field agents were continually supplied, allowing them to remain in the field for months at a time. (SWJ14)

Drop Shaft
this elevator tube uses a gravity field to raise and lower cargo or passengers. (CSA)

Drop Ship
any fast-moving transport ship used to ferry troops and cargo to a planet's surface from a larger capital ship. (DFR)

Drop-sled
this is a form of drop ship, which is essentially an enclosed platform. The base of the platform is heat-shielded to protect it during its descent through the atmosphere, and a set of braking engines keeps it from crashing into the surface. These drop ships were used primarily by the Empire. (TA)

Dropp
this was the largest of the inhabited continents found on the planet Garnib. (PG1)

Drost
Drost rose through the ranks of the Empire on a normal course. He had achieved the rank of High Colonel just prior to the Battle of Picutorion, where he was placed in charge of the Imperial troops. There, he was forced to allow two of his men - Ganig and Stecker, who were suspected Rebel sympathizers - to die in battle rather than survive and defect. After the Battle of Endor, Drost found service under Grand Admiral Thrawn,. He was promoted to General, and was placed in control of the Bilbringi shipyards. (ISB, TLC)

Drov
this Ithorian, along with his partner Guerglenar, were Crying Dawn Singer's backup singers. When the Shashay was kidnapped on the planet Najarka, Drov and Guerglenar were both killed and taken to the Imperial Biological Research Center there, where they were prepared as trophies. (TA)

Drovian
1) one of two races native to the planet Nim Drovis, the Drovians breathe through a mucous membrane in their necks. There limbs are a combination of articulated pincers and tentacles, which stem from a bottom-heavy torso. They had developed into a loosely-connected group of tribes when they were first contacted by the Old Republic. Since that time, they have evolved into a semi-sophisticated race which had acquired the habit of sucking raw zwil through their membranes. The Drovians have been at war with the Gopso'o for as long as anyone can remember. It is rumored that the civil strife began over whether the root word for "truth" was singular or plural. (POT)
2) this is the native language of the Gopso'o. It is also spoken by the Drovians, but they have adopted Basic as their primary language. (POT)

Droxian Manufacturing
a branch of the Droxian Traders League, this manufacturing corporation specialized in the design and construction of specialty droids, such as gambling automata. (GG11)

Droxian Traders League
this Mid Rim criminal organization established a foothold on the planet Bridin Anchorage, shortly after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. It became part of an overall alliance known as the Mandroxan cartel, along with the Manliss Enterprise and the Anavill Smuggler's Guild. (GG11)

Droxie
this teenager was a native of Draenell's Point during the Galactic Civil War. Much to the chagrin of her parents, Droxie joined the Vibroblades shortly after the Battle of Yavin. She had been the steady girlfriend of Benthar, leader of the rival gang known as Benthar's Boys, and was his second-in-command until the Empire garrisoned their planet. For her own reasons, she left the Boys and allied herself with Herafin and the Vibroblades. After a group of Alliance agents helped rescue Benthar, Droxie developed a crush on their leader, letting them all know that she was simply drawn to leaders. (GMK)

Droyk
this is a Corellian swear word. (VOF)

DRPV-78
this was a model of personal rocket pack produced by Greshnohr. (GG10)

Drreelb
this mythical creature is often depicted in sculpture. (TPS)

Dru, Dall Thara
this woman, a native of the planet Raxxa, was a member of the New Republic Senate. She was also the Chairperson of the Senate Commerce Council. She was one of Leia Organa-Solo's supporters during the Black Fleet Crisi, although she mistakenly believed Leia would prevail because Luke Skywalker would bring the Jedi Knights into the fight. (TT)

Druckenwell
this Mid-Rim planet, the primary world in the Druckenwell System of the Doldur Sector, is a mining world on which the ruling elite is out-numbered substantially by the general working populace. The social and economic divisions between the two groups is astonishing, and was made even greater during the Imperial occupation. Most of its cities are overcrowded, and the few wetlands that separate them are subject to pollution. The average day on Druckenwell lasts 32 standard hours. The average year lasts 309 local days. Located along the Corellian Run, Druckenwell was forced to bring its small naval force to full alert, after the Yuuzhan Vong attacked Kalarba and Hosk Station. However, the small force was no match for the alien invaders, who overran the planet before taking Falleen. (SWAJ, BP)

Drudo
this being was the owner and chef at the End of the World tavern on Koda Space Station. (GOF7)

Drudonna
one of Bespin's twin moons. Along with H'gaard, they are often referred to as The Twins by natives of Bespin. Drudonna is a lifeless ball of ice measuring only 2.5 kilometers in diameter. (GG2, ZHR)

Drufeys
this lean man was distinguished by his lazy eye, but that was the only thing that was lazy about him. Drufeys was an excellent security agent and technician who was employed by the Binring Biomedical company owned by Warlord Zsinj. When Zsinj laid a trail of evidence meant to lead the New Republic's Wraith Squadron on a mission to infiltrate the facility, Drufeys was placed on alert with Doctor Edda Gast. It was Drufeys who first discovered their presence on the roof of the building. (SOC)

Druggat
this form of currency was used on Tatooine, in the last years of the Old Republic. It was a small denomination. (TPM)

Drugon
this huge water creature is fairly agile for its size, but is nonetheless unable to turn quickly. They are a deep red in color, and are found on several planets, including the location of the Valley of the Jedi. (DF2)

Druess Sector
this sector of the galaxy is located in the Mid Rim Territories. (CRO)

Drummond
this Imperial Major served as the warden of the Alpha TR-8 prison facility on Rordak during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He had earned the position after serving at the prison facility on Chromovon for several years. (PG1)

Drunken Bantha
this bar was located on Ord Mantell. (SWG)

Drunken Drummer
a bar and restaurant located on Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Drup Asteroid Field located outside the orbits of the three planets in the Drup's Star System, this asteroid field is the home of Woern's Asteroid. (WBC)

Drup I
this searing ball of rock is the first planet in the Drup's Star System. (WBC)

Drup II
this gas giant is the second planet in the Drup's Star System. It has 5 natural moons. (WBC)

Drup III
this volcabic world is the third planet in the Drup's Star System. It has two natural moons. (WBC)

Drup's Companion
this is the smaller of the two stars which are at the center of the Drup's Star System. (WBC)

Drup's Star
this star is the primary of the two stars that are found in the Drup's Star System. It is larger than its twin, Drup's Companion. (WBC)

Drutash Grub
this small creature is consumed as a Sullustan delicacy. (XW)

Druyza
native to the planet Socorro, this large herbivore was raised for its meat and hide. They lived near the water, which provided bouyancy to their heavy bodies. In case of attack, herds of druyza would plunge into the water and submerge themsevles to hide. Docile and furless, the druyza were distinguished by the two curved tusks which jutted down from the upper jaws. Many Socorro nomads domesticated the druyza and used them as beasts of burden or transportation. (BSS)

Dry Gene Wheat
this crop, grown on the planet Skann, is one of the key ingredients in Skannbult Likker. (GG9)

Dryanta
this Wookiee, one of Chewbacca's many cousins, was an accomplished pilot. In the early days of the Imperial occupation of Kashyyyk, Dryanta served under Katarra in the Wookiee resistance. When Chewie returned to Kashyyyk to attend to Lumpawarump's Test of Ascenion, he left the Millennium Falcon in the hands of Dryanta and Jowdrrl. The two Wookiees worked on implementing several improvements to the aging ship, including a 360-degree viewscreen and upgraded weapons systems. (TT, RD)

Dryon
this Dim-U High Priest commanded the monastery on Tatooine during the Galactic Civil War. He tried to appear superior to the regular priests by bathing more often, and wearing nicer clothes. (TM)

Drysso, Joak
this staunch Imperial supporter served as the Captain of the Virulence in the years leading up to the Battle of Endor. When the Executor was destroyed at Endor, Drysso took the Virulence and ran, hoping to make it to Imperial space before the Alliance's forces could catch him. He then served Ysanne Isard, and was eventually promoted to the command of the Lusankya, making way for his executive officer, Lakwii Vaarscha, to take command of the Virulence. When Isard ordered the destruction of the Rogue Squadron space station at Yag'Dhul, she sent both Varrscha and Drysso to do the job. However, Drysso was maneuvered by Booster Terrik into a position that locked the Lusankya in the space station's tractor beams, and Terrik brought all weapons to bear on the Super-class Star Destroyer. The Virulence interposed itself between the Lusankya and the space station, allowing Drysso the opportunity to escape. He took the chance offered to him, believing that Varrscha and the Virulence were destroyed. In fact, the ship was captured by Terrik. Drysso returned to Thyferra, and was defending the world when the Rogues initiated their attack. As the Battle of Thyferra began, the Lusankya took heavy fire from the recommissioned Star Destroyer Freedom, but managed to disable the smaller ship. Drysso then pummeled the Rogues' flee of freighters and smaller ships until the Virulence reappeared. Drysso believed that the tide had finally turned his way. However, the Virulence was under the command of Booster Terrik, and its starfighter bays were full of A-Wings under the command of Pasj Cracken. Once again, the Lusankya took heavy fire until it was left adrift. Drysso threatened to ram the ship into the planet below, but he was shot by Lieutenant Waroen before he could execute this plan. Ysanne Isard later revealed that she had ordered Drysso to flee Thyferra, knowing that he would never leave his post. She sent Drysso to his death so that she would eventually have a chance to recover the Lusankya, once the New Republic had refitted her. (BW, IR)

DS
the Alliance CR90 corvette group that escorted Alliance diplomats to a rendezvous with the Sullustans just prior to the Battle of Yavin. (XW)

DS-181-3
this Imperial starfighter pilot was assigned as Soontir Fel's wingman during the Battle of Endor. Piloting Saber 3, this pilot was known as "Fel's Wrath," and trained under Fel at the Prefsbelt Imperial Academy. (CCG11)

DS-181-4
this Imperial starfighter pilot served as Major Phennir's wingman during the Battle of Endor. He was recruited into the 181st fighter wing after scoring twelve kills during the subjugation of the planet Calamari. (CCG11)

DS-5
this Alliance deep-space outpost was Admiral Harkov's primary rendezvous point when he defected to the Alliance. Unfortunately, he was intercepted there by Darth Vader and executed. (TIE)

DS-61-2
the TIE Fighter pilot assigned to fly Black 2 as Darth Vader's wingman during the Battle of Yavin. He had the nickname "Mauler Mithel."

His TIE Fighter was 27 flames painted on its hull, one for every kill of an Alliance starship. He also had a holo of his son, Rejii, mounted on the control yoke. (CCG)

DS-61-3
the TIE Fighter pilot assigned to fly Black 3 as Darth Vader's wingman during the Battle of Yavin. He had the nickname "Backstabber." He had a Corellian slice-houn painted on his TIE Fighter. (CCG)

DS-61-4
this Imperial TIE Fighter pilot was known as the "Dark Curse," and was assigned to the first Death Star. He was one of the pilots who served in the offensives against Ralltiir and Calamari, and served as an alternate to Darth Vader's two primary wingmen. DS-61-4 flew TIE Fighter Black 4 during the Battle of Yavin, and managed to score a hit on Luke Skywalker's X-Wing. (CCG2)

DSS-0956
this was the identification number of the Desert Sands Stormtrooper who failed to recover R2-D2 and C-3PO from the Lars homestead on Tatooine. (MTS)

DT3
this was the model number of Greff-Timms Industrial's SnapShoot quick-draw pulse-wave blaster. (TOJC)

Dual 20PCX
this is a two-chambered fuel injector used on pod racers and other high-speed ground craft. (RAC)

Dual 32PCX
this is a two-chambered fuel injector used on pod racers and other high-speed ground craft. (RAC)

Duality, The
this was a popular Tarrack cult founded on the principles of joy and service. (TT)

Dubeh
this Fyodoi is Kalor's son. (PG2)

Dubesor
a native insult used on Antipose XII, it is also a secret code word used by Lando Calrissian to gain entrance to Bohhuah Mutdah's spaceport on Oseon 5792. (LCF)

Dubrava
this swampy, semi-tropcial world was the homeworld of the Dubravan race. Jal Te Gniev was sent to this backwater planet as an Alliance recruiter after he stole an X-Wing and crashed it, in an attempt to prove he was as good a pilot as Luke Skywalker. (VQ)

Dubravan
this humanoid race is native to the planet Dubrava. They have bright green skin and glowing eyes. There is no nose on their face, and their heads are covered with shaggy hair. (VQ)

Dubrillion
this planet was a twin to the world of Destrillion. Both were located near the asteroid system known as Lando's Folly. A blue-and-green world from space, Dubrillion is a lush planet that is the exact opposite of Destrillion. Lando Calrissian, while the owner of Lando's Folly, used Dubrillion to house living facilities and luxury suites. Unfortunately for Lando, the Yuuzhan Vong moved into the asteroid field and set up a sort of base camp. They picked off several ships traveling to and from Dubrillion, but in general allowed the natives of the planet to flee for the Inner Rim. However, as soon as the New Republic began to evacuate the planet, the Vong attacked the remaining natives, decimating the fleeing refugees before the rest escaped. Eventually, the Yuuzhan Vong, under the command of Shedao Shai, established a new base of operations on Dubrillion. (VP, DTO, DTR)

Dubrillion Aquarium
this vast collection of Dubrillion's native ocean life was taken over by the Yuuzhan Vong and used as a base of operations by Shedao Shai. The Aquariums appealed to the Yuuzhan Vong reverence of life, and were kept more or less intact. (DTR)

Duce
an Alliance container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Duchess
Armanda Durkin's piratical alter ego. Duchess has been harassing Notsub Shipping freighters, stealing their contents and escaping in the Vengeful Sandstorm. (GG7)

Ducilla
this female Duros was the sister of Durgard Bruran. She was one of the most outspoken Duros during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, vehemently questioning the New Republic's lack of defense against the alien invaders. Ducilla despised the idea of diversity which was embraced by the Republic, claiming that symbiosis among the various alien races was only stagnating the government's ability to act. She preached for a single governmental regime, not unlike that of the Empire, in order to bring about an end to the Yuuzhan Vong. (BP)

Duct Unlimited
this major manufacturer of starship life support systems was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Dud Bolt
this alien, a Vulptereen with a long, crocodilian snout, was one of the Outer Rim's best pod racers. He has been secretly hired by Sebulba to protect the Dug during podraces. Dud Bolt favored the podracers built by his own people, and drove an RS557 model for many years. (RAC, IG1)

Dudu
this was the Gungan term for manure. (E1A9)

Duel, Rik
a smuggling friend from Han Solo's and Lando Calrissian's early years on Nar Shaddaa. (DESB, THG)

Duelist
this form of vibrorapier was produced by LaserHone during the height of the New Order. (PP)

Duenna Derida
this old Phindian woman was a member of the Syndicat which controlled the planet Phindar during the Old Republic. She was also an agent of the local resistance movement that rose up against the Syndicat's control of the planet, and assisted Guerra and Paxxi Derida in their plan to infiltrate the Syndicat's stronghold and recover food, supplies, and valuables. The two brothers were able to enter the palace with the help of Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi. Duenna was extremely loyal to the brothers and their cause, even in the face of renewal threats from Terra. Guerra and Paxxi later revealed to the Jedi that Duenna was their mother, and that Terra was their sister. Duenna had joined the Syndicat in order to try and restore Terra's original memories, but was unable to do so. This put her in considerable risk, but she endured it as long as there was hope for her children. (HP)

Dufilvian sector sector of the galaxy containing Filve. (HTTE, TLC)

Dug
this alien race resembles a small horse, although it is completely hairless. The Dug have leathery, grey skin and small, beady eyes. They can easily walk on their hind legs, their forelegs, or all fours. They used their four hands to help them move through the trees of their homeworld of Malastare. Much of their language is punctuated with knuckle rapping and foot stomping. (SW1, TPM, SWK)

Duggan Station
this was one of the twenty orbital stations built by the Duros above their homeworld of Duro. (BP)

Dugo Bagy
this Sullustan con artist and low-life was known to Han Solo as a source of information on Lando's Folly. Han caught up with Dugo Bagy on Reecee. He told Han of Lando's plans to mine Kerane's Folly in the Hoth asteroid belt. (VP)

Duha Spear
this was a traditional Duros weapon. (BP)

Duhma
this alien race has several tribes. Each tribe's members tattoo their faces with an elaborate design which indicates which tribe they live with. They live on the dark side of their planet, and their eyesight has deteriorated over the generations. Any Duhma travelling off-planet must wear a visor in order to block out the glare of the lights. (EOE)

Duhrib Belt
this is an asteroid belt found in the Nah'Malis System of the Kathol Outback, located between the fourth and fifth planets of the system. (KO)

Duinarbulon Star Lancers
this legendary group of warriors were believed to be simply myths for many millennia prior to the Battle of Endor. Many archaeologists who sought proof of their existence often searched first for Duinarbulon Stones, the source of the Star Lancers' powers. (TTSB)

Duinarbulon Stones
thought to be simply a rumor, these stones were believed to be the source of power used by the Duinarbulon Star Lancers. (TTSB)

Duinuogwuin
a Force-sensitive race of huge, snakelike creatures, the Duinuogwuin average 50 meters in length, with multiple pairs of legs on a scaled body. They also have gossamer wings and floppy, elephantine ears, and have earned the nickname 'Star Dragons.' Their homeworld is unknown, but they show up in almost any environment, even the vacuum of deep space. They are an honorable race, and there are rumors of the very ancient Duinuogwuin serving as Jedi Knights. It is rumored among the xeno-archaeologists who study them that a large percentage of young dragons are born as wild, vicious beasts. Each Duinuogwuin is monosexual, and the procreate by combining a haploid gamete with that from another dragon. No one knows where it is, but the Star Dragons maintain a hidden graveyard where they go to die. Several scientists have observed the Duinuogwuin expelling super-hot belches of gas that can scorch plastisteel. (DFR, DFRSB, GG4, GMS)

Dukedoom
this Virgillian ship was part of the fleet that joined the Alliance at Sullust, just before the Battle of Endor. It was the only Virgillian ship damaged in the hyperspace jump. (TBSB)

Dukha
Noghri meeting places on Honoghr. Each of the dukhas has been decorated with the clan's genealogical history. (DFR)

Dulai
an economic state found on the planet Kirtania, Dulai is in direct competition with Surana and Kinkosa City. (SWAJ)

Dullourr
one of Plourr's sisters, Dullourr and her sibling Kassen were abused by the Priamsta before being murdered. (XWWP)

Dulok
a distant relative of the Ewoks, the Dulok race is also native to Endor. They are lanky, ill-proportioned versions of the short, squat Ewoks, and have large, pointed ears and sharp fangs. They have pink skin covered with gray fur, and are rude and dishonest. (AT)

Dulrain
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Intrepid patrol cruiser, and was responsible for patrolling the Gesaril System during the Empire's occupation of the system. (GG6)

Dulvoyinn Bloodcat
this vicious creature is named for its blood-red pelt. (SWJ9)

DUM-series Droid
see Pit Droid (OWS)

DUM-4
this Mos Espa pit droid was part of the pool that worked the podraces at Jabba the Hutt's racecourse. DUM-4 was severely damaged during the Boonta Eve Classic race which was won by Anakin Skywalker, when Ody Mandrell brought his pod into the pits for service. When the pod's port-side enginer suddenyl flared to life, it sucked in DUM-4 and dragged the droid through its innards. DUM4 was spit out the back, while Ody Mandrell's pod was ruined. (TPM)

DUM-9
this pit droid was assigned to Anakin Skywalker's podracer, during the famed Boonta Eve Classic race won by Skywalker. (IG1)

Dunari
this corpulent man was a close friend and one-time busines associate of Tomaas Azzameen. Since then, Dunari has risen to power as the owner of one of the most notorious casinos in the galaxy. However, he remained loyal to the Azzameen family and to Twin Suns Transport Services. (XWA)

Dunari's Casino
owned by Dunari, this casino was a favored hangout of Eamon Azzameen. Shortly before the Battle of Endor, the Alliance recruited a group of smugglers to help provide arms and ships for the coming battle, during a series of meetings at this casino. (XWA)

Dunari's Rest
this was the name of the hotel which provided accommodations to the visitors to Dunari's Casino. (XWA)

Duncow
this milk-producing bovine was native to the planet G'rho, and was domesticated by the settlers who inhabited the planet. (TBSB)

Dune Biter
a species of desert creature is native to the planet Tatooine. Swarms of these tiny beasts roam the dunes, looking for carrion on which to feed. A swarm of dune biters can clean a bantha carcass in a few days. (TJT)

Dune lizards
a reptile native to Tatooine. (TLC)

Dune Princess
this luxurious sail barge took passengers on a cruise of the natural wonders of Tatooine. The barge became profitable after the emergence of Luke Skywalker as a hero of the Alliance. It was owned and operated by Heater, who was given special dispensation by Jabba the Hutt to operate the cruise ship. Heater went to great lengths to ensure that the Dune Princess was considered neutral ground by her passengers, and made sure that there were no firefights or collected bounties aboard the ship. However, Heater also ensured that every being who got on the sail barge left afterwards. (LAA)

Dune Sea
an area of open desert on Tatooine. Ben Kenobi lived in the western part of the Dun Sea. (SW)

Dune Sea Sabacc
this variant was developed by the settlers of Tatooine, although the Jawas are the only players who seem to understand the rules. R'kik D'nec claimed to be undefeated in playing this form. (CCG7)

Duneeden
this was a smow-covered planet located near Coruscant. (DH)

Dunhausen
a lean, crafty Grand Moff serving the Empire beyond the end of the Galactic Civil War, Dunhausen wears earings that are shaped like blasters. (GDV)

Dunn Jassigan
this being was one of the galaxy's most renowned military analysts. (ROE)

Dunns
a Mugaari Lambda-class shuttle destroyed when the Empire subjugated the Tungra Sector. (TIE)

Dunoche, Theol
this man and his Togorian partner, Coelle, were wanted by the Twi'leks of Kala'uun for stealing ryll spice and for selling Twi'leki females into slavery. He was a native of the planet Bespin, and despite the bounty on his head, he actually rescued the Twi'leki females from slavery and provided them with jobs through his old friend, Etsero. (ND)

Dunstal Noft
this Shistavenan Wolfman was a former smuggler who found employment as an honest pilot working for Damarind Corporation. As a trawler Captain, Noft plied the atmosphere of Yavin, searching for corusca jewels. (GG2)

Dunwell
a crazed human sea captain living on Calamari, he had been hunting whaladons - and Leviathor, specifically - for many years prior to the birth of the New Republic. He was a heavy-set man with and neatly-trimmed white beard. He employed a crew of Aqualish hunters to help capture the Whaladons, even though the killing of Whaladons was outlawed on Calamari. Dunwell was a trusted friend of the Central Committee of Grand Moffs, and supplied them with Whaladon meat. (GDV)

Dupe
Alliance starpilots' slang for a TIE Bomber. (XWN)

Duplicator
an intergalactic copying machine. (HSL)

DuPre, Kylan
this New Republic Lieutenant was one of Admiral Drayson's most trusted chief aides, at the time of Grand Admiral Thrawn's rise to power. Kylan had previously served as a quartermaster aboard the Stormstrike, which was part of Chandrila's home defense fleet. It was there, during a routine inspection of cargo on Mon Mothma's command ship, that DuPre first met Drayson. A surprise TIE Fighter ambush left the command ship damaged and a power conduit overloading. DuPre threw himself in front of Drayson when the conduit exploded, saving the Admiral and earning him his respect. After DuPre recovered from numerous shrapnel wounds, Drayson named him an aide. Kylan is a near-human male, and remained loyal to Drayson in hopes of earning his own Admiralty. His hunger for command eventually earned him a measure of disrespect and loathing from his peers. (TLC, TTSB)

DuR-4
this is a heavy-duty shield generator manufactured by Novaplex. (EGV)

Dura-armor
composed of neutronium, lommite and zersium molecules set in a certain matrix, dura-armor is industrial-strength protections which can absorb and re-direct blaster energy. (ISB)

Duracomp Scanner
this starship computer system is used to scan a planet for metallic content. (TA)

Duracord
a strengthened fiber rope used in netting. It is a good conductor of electricity, and was often used in stun nets. (E1A2)

Duracrete
a building material that can be poured into forms. It then hardens into a nearly impervious surface. (DA, SWSB)

Duracrete Worm
found on Coruscant, these burrowing creatures have adapted to living within the duracrete walls of buildings. (ISU)

Durafab
a strong fabric used to make tents and portable shelters. (IA)

Durafly
manufacturers of sublight and hyperspace drive systems. (SWCP)

Duraka
a city-area of Coruscant notorious for its gangs. (BTS)

Durake, Laita
a native of the planet Kirima, Laita worked for the Imperial Customs Office there before the Galactic Civil War broke out. After the Battle of Endor, her position within Customs was lost when the Empire pulled out of the Kalinda System. When Customs officials returned to Kirima, Laita regained her position, which she took very seriously. She served under Captain Fouc aboard the Customs ship Impounder. (TSK)

Duralloy
a metal that is used to plate starship hulls. (SWSB)

Duran Feather-lily
this exotic plant is found on just a handful of worlds, although a large population is maintained at the Lonatran Gardens by the Gree. (SWJ8)

Durane, Giles
this man was a noted bounty hunter during the era of the New Order. (SWJ14)

Duranex
this strong, lightweight material is used in the creation of jumpsuits and work coveralls. It is very tough, and withstands the harshest uses. (POT)

Duranium
a metal with an incredibly high tensile strength, often used to make the bars for prison cells or cages. (TJP)

Duraplas
a material used to make protective gear such as helmets and light armor. (HSR)

Duraplast
this strong, lightweight material is used to manufacture shipping crates. (WG)

Duraplex
this strong, transparent material is used for windscreens on landspeeders and swoops. (EGV)

Durasha, Bern
one of Celia Durasha's brothers, Bern was serving the Empire in Generis Sector when she was a navigator aboard the Kuari Princess. (TFE)

Durasha, Celia
this woman, known for her striking red hair, was one of the Lieutenants who served the Kuari Princess. Celia grew up the child of a graduate of the Imperial Academy, and dreamed of attending herself. However, her father, Reise Durasha, never forwarded her application for entry. He told her that the Academy no place for a woman. He then sent Celia's brothers in their turn, keeping her at home. She ended up attending Baylagon Technical Institute, and was hired by Galaxy Tours shortly after graduation. She served as the navigator of the cruise ship Majestic, and single-handedly saved the ship during a pirate attack. This got her noticed by the company, which promoted her and assigned her as navigator of the Kuari Princess. It was aboard the Princess that she became good friends with Dap Nechel. Known as Crimson to Detien Kaileel, she was disturbed to learn of his allegiance to the Alliance. When he was arrested on the Princess, though, she began to understand his loyalties. She also began to question her own stance when Kaileel's captor turned out to be her childhood love, Adion Lang. She was torn about who to believe when Kaileel revealed the truth about the Empire's involvement in the destruction of Alderaan. She sided with Kaileel, and nearly succeeded in helping him escape. However, they were intercepted by Lang, who shot Kaileel and killed him before he could escape. Celia took the shuttle and fled into the Maelstrom. Years later, she met up with Kaj Nedmak on Oasis after stowing away on his ship, and the two decided to go into the shipping business together. Celia liked his roguish actions, but feared his debts would catch up to him. It was for this reason that she reluctantly went along with his plan to use weapons they were transporting for Bwahl the Hutt to pay of a gambling debt to Rass M'Guy. Her fears proved correct, and they were forced to crashland on Ord Mantell. Celia feared Kaj was dead, and discovered Thune's hideout in the wilderness. Celia was duped by Thune into believing that Treytis Prash was the bounty hunter who captured Kaj, when in reality it was Thune herself. In a harrowing escape, Kaj and Celia enlisted the help of Prash and Thune's droid, U-Thr. Celia and Kaj returned to smuggling, this time with U-THR's help. (TFE, SWJ8, SWJ14)

Durasha, Jak
one of Celia Durasha's brothers, Jak was a Navy ensign attached to the Relentless during the period surrounding the Battle of Yavin. (TFE)

Durasha, Raine
Celia Durasha's twin brother, Raine was a graduate of the Imperial Academy. He was part of the garrison stationed on Ralltiir during the suppression of rebellious activity there, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. When the uprising occurred as the plans for the first Death Star were moved through Ralltiir, Raine was killed in the firefight. (TFE)

Durasha, Reise
a native of the planet Lankashirr, Reise was Celia Durasha's father. He served the Empire - and the Old Republic before it – like the nine generations before him, and was a commander in the Imperial Navy. He sent all of his sons to the Academy, but told Celia that she couldn't go because "the Academy's no place for a woman." (TFE. SWJ8)

Durasheet
a strong paper-like substance. (HSR)

DuraShelter
this small, easy to set up shelter was manufactured by Adventure Hunter and Hiker. It incorporated di-crome reflection coating which, when charged, helped the shelter blend into its environment. (ROE)

Durastar
this starship was part of the small fleet which the Jedi Knights used to move about the galaxy during the early years of the New Republic. Daeshara'cor was to have taken this ship to Bimmisaari, to investigate the Yuuzhan Vong presence on the planet, but she was never listed as being aboard the ship. The Durastar suffered a hyperdrive failure short of Corellia, and all passengers had to be abandoned. Daeshara'cor was not listed among the evacuees. (DTR)

Durasteel
a building material created from lommite, meleenium, neutronium, and zersium. (SWN, SWSB, CTD)

Durateel Corporation
this Coruscant-based construction firm was actually a front for Black Sun. Although they produced quality buildings, Core Constructions often underbid the competition to win the contract, then had a series of cost overruns that simply fed credits into Black Sun's coffers. (SESB)

Durba
this Dantari was one of Maga's closest friends and supporters. (GOF11)

Durelium
this ore, found in the Mestra and Tava Yagen asteroid fields, is an essential material used in the construction of hyperdrives. (GG6, CTD)

Durese
the native tongue of the Duro race. (MMY)

Dureya
this Imperial Grand Moff ordered the suppression of rebellious activity on Gra Ploven. The Forger was sent to the planet, and its turbolasers were used to super-heat the planet's water supply and boil the native Ploven alive. (SOL)

Durga Besadii Tai
a Hutt - the only offspring of Aruk the Hutt - was a minor crimelord who rose to power a decade after Jabba the Hutt's death. Durga was larger than Jabba, and was distinguishable by the large, dark green birthmark on his face. Aruk took a huge chance in raising Durga, given that the birthmark would make his socially unacceptable. Durga was only 100 standard years of age when the Empire reached its height, serving Aruk until the old Hutt was poisoned by Jabba and Jiliac, through Teroenza. Durga suspected foul play, but couldn't prove it, so he had Aruk's body frozen and shipped to Coruscant for an autopsy. Durga exercised his right to take control of the Besadii clan, but met with strong opposition. The mysterious deaths of several Besadii Hutts quieted the resistance, deaths which Durga had arranged through a tenuous alliance with Black Sun. As Durga rose in power, Prince Xizor realized that he could control a good portion of Hutt business by controlling Durga. The Hutt was continually cautioned against selling Besadii out to the Falleen prince, but the need for Black Sun's help became too great. In the midst of his dealings with Xizor, Durga forced Jiliac's hand under the Hutt Old Law, and successfully dispatched the Desilijic leader. Xizor, working in the background, stifled Durga's investigation and manipulated him into a business deal in which Xizor gave the information in return for data on Nal Hutta's shields and weaponry. Durga fell deeper into Xizor's debt when he hired Nova Force to help defend Ylesia, an operation which led to the deaths of much of Nova Force's personnel and the complete loss of the Ylesian operation. The complete loss of Ylesia led Durga to eventually become one of Prince Xizor's vigo's, commanding his own moderate empire. He and many of his retainers allow any number of taurill to accompany them wherever they travel. Durga obtained the secret codes Jabba had hidden in his Tatooine citadel. The codes provided Durga with access to the New Republic's central databases on Coruscant. He had also contracted the brilliance of the latest clone of Bevel Lemelisk, whom he promised carte blanche to rebuild a better weapon. However, like many Hutts, Durga was always searching for bargains, and many of the systems and components were poorly made or outdated. It was Durga who executed Crix Madine aboard the Darksaber, and it was on the doomed station that Durga died, when it was crushed between two huge planetoids in the Hoth asteroid field. (DS, SE, THG, RD)

Durgard Brarun
this Duro was the Vice-Director of CorDuro Shipping, during the height of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. He was one of the growing group of Duro who protested the fact that the New Republic placed refugees on the surface of Duro in return for their labor in restoring the planet's natural environment. His sister, Ducilla, was a vehement opponent of the New Republic, and spent most of her time speaking out against the Republic's lack of defense against the Yuuzhan Vong. He even told Luke Skywalker that he would rather have Emperor Palpatine running the galaxy, since the Imperial war machine would probably have been better able to repel the alien invaders. He did nothing to support SELCORE's activities, and was one of the first beings approached by the Peace Brigade in an effort to short-circuit the work of the New Republic in favor of the Yuuzhan Vong. He agreed to provide the Yuuzhan Vong with the refugees transplanted to Duro as payment for the promise that Duro would be left unharmed if the Yuuzhan Vong used it as a base from which to strike at the Core Worlds. However, outside forces rallied to save Duro, and Durgard Brarun was captured by the Yuuzhan Vong and brought before Tsavong Lah. Durgard tried to plead his innocence in the resistance, but the Warmaster would have nothing of it. Durgard Brarun and a number of other CorDuro officials were eventually fed to the creature known as Tu-Scart. (BP)

Durgeon
this planet was the site of an Alliance base during the Galactic Civil War. The base was wiped out by the bounty hunter Beylyssa. (SWAJ)

Durhant
this man was one of the Ministers who formed the government of the planet Danoor, shortly after the Battle of Endor. He was a contemporary of Waric Nane. Like his fellow Ministers, Durhant believed that the Lance of Endor was, in truth, a New Republic ship sent to maraud the Kathol Outback. After hearing from Kaiya Adrimetrum and the crew of the FarStar, though, he began to see the truth. (KO)

Durindfire
an alcoholic concoction that uses a phosphorescent agent to make it light up. (WG)

Durindfire Gem
this precious stone was bought and sold by the Empire to help finance the first Death Star project. They are found only on Tatooine, and very few of the valuable specimens ever left the planet. The Alliance was able to track the movements of large numbers of these gems to determine the various development sites used by the Empire. They also used this information to track down the origins of the Phantom project. (XWPA, TFE)

Durinium
this alloy is resistant to sensor scans, and is valued by smugglers for lining suitcases and small hiding areas. (RD)

Durkii
a hideous, three-meter-tall, monkey-faced reptile. (DCAR)

Durkin, Armanda
the owner of Notsub Shipping, she was a wealthy power broker and shipping magnate based in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. She liked to gamble on risky ventures, and was able to make these investments pay off more often than not. She and her husband hav been insured by Maltsett Insurance, even though Maltsett declined to pay for damages and injured to her husband caused in a mysterious fire. Maltsett cited an obscure legal reference in their refusal to pay, and was won the hatred of Armanda in return. In an elaborate revenge scheme, Armanda has developed the alter ego Duchess, and steals shipments from herself in order to make Maltsett pay for the losses. (GG7)

Durkteel
this planet is the homeworld of the Saurin race. (CCG2)

Durmag
this Gamorrean was once employed by Abdi-Badawzi as an enforcer, but was traded to Ploovo Two-for-One to pay for a debt. Durmag thoroughly enjoyed his new role on Ploovo's Protocol Team, since Ploovo had a large number of beings who needed "reminders" of their delinquent payments. (AIR)

Durmin, Tajis
this Imperial soldier was trained in combat techniques and weapons skills. He was part of the first Death Star's complement of trooper guards. (CCG)

Durn, Marka
this man was a trader who plied the Nanth'ri Trade Route during the Galactic Civil War in his beat-up Ghtroc freighter, the DeepHopper. He was a friend of the Alliance, although he dropped dead shortly after locating the treasure of Celis Mott. He was known in spacer circles as a top-notch navigator, and had automated much of his starship's systems with the help of his droid, R2-C9. (IA)

Duro
1) this planet, located in the Corellian Sector, is the homeworld of the Duro race. Han Solo's grandfather, Dalla Suul, was born on Duros. The Duro race had established a vast starship construction industry, nearly equal to that of Corellia. The government of the system is made up of a consortium of starship construction corporations, with all necessary political decisions being made by the corporations' stockhoders. Thus, any Duro which owns stock in these companies can participate in the governing of the system. The planet Duros itself is uninhabited, since the Duros have covered it with automated farms. The former population, and all visitors, live in twenty orbiting cities that provide easy access to the starship construction facilities. Note that Mission to Mount Yoda claims the planet was later used by the Empire as a dumping ground, and became so toxic that the Duro who lived there were forced to move into orbiting space stations. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, the Duros High House agreed to place domed cities on the surface of Duro, in order to house the refugees fleeing the aliens. In return, the Senate Select Committee for Refugees agreed to employ the refugees in activities which would restore the planet's natural environment. Despite the underhanded efforts of CorDuro Shipping and SELCORE, the scientists and refugees began to eliminate the toxins and restore the planet's ecosystem. Despite the assurances of SELCORE and CorDuro Shipping, the Yuuzhan Vong ultimately attacked Duro, hoping to destroy the orbital cities and captured thousands of refugees and Duros as sacrifices. In the batlle, all of the cities were destroyed, with the exception of Urrdorf City. (SCRE, GG4, CPL, MMY, REB, THG, BP)

2) a humanoid race characterized by their blue skin, red eyes and long, thin faces. There is no nose on their face. They are a calm, peaceful race (although the Star Wars Screen Entertainment software claims that they are reckless innature) and are considered dependable workers and gifted storytellers. Most Duros are interested in space travel, and are employed in one of the many industries that deal in travel between the stars. Those Duros who remain near their homeworld work for one of the many starship construction facilities that orbit the planet Duro. Many of the Duros found off-planet are graduates of the Duro Academy of Deep Space Exploration, and can navigate a hyperspace jump with limited star charting. During the Galactic Civil War, the Duros were ostensibly loyal to the Empire, although the Empire established observation centers at many starship yards to keep an eye on them. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, many Duros felt that the New Republic was too lax in its defense against the alien invaders, and several Duros claimed that the galaxy would have been better prepared to defend itself if Emperor Palpatine had still been in power. (SW, SCRE, GG4, BP)

Duro Academy of Deep Space Exploration
a Duro school dedicated to passing on the knowledge of travelling in hyperspace. (SCRE)

Duro Defense Force
known as the DDF, this was the military braintrust which was charged with protecting the planet Duro during the New Republic. (BP)

Duro Relocation Colonies
a series of planetary sites selected to migrate the native Duros from their toxic world. Pii 3 was once selected and used as a colony, but was later abandoned. (SWAJ)

Duro Sector
a area of the galaxy. (WBC)

Duro-crud
this was a slang term defined by the New Republic to describe the muck which covered the surface of Duro, during the effort to reclaim the planet's natural environment. (BP)

Durollia
this city, located on the planet Antared III, was the site of one it's major starports. (GMH)

Duron
it was on this planet that Obo Rin first learned of the Charon race. (GG4)

Duroon
a planet in the middle of one of the Corporate Sector Authority's steer-clear areas. It has a single Authority installation. Duroon has three natural satellites and a varied, temperate to semi-tropical environment. An active volcano fissure runs across the planet's east-west axis, venting large amounts of steam, magma, and radiation. Han Solo and Chewie deliver a smuggled shipment of guns to a race of aliens enslaved on the planet by the Authority, who want to revolt against the Authority. (HSE)

Duroplastic
a high-density plastic. (KO)

Duros High House
this was the primary governmental body of the planet Duro and its orbital cities, during the early decades of the New Republic. The Duros High House struck a deal with the Senate Select Committee for Refugees (SELCORE) during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, taking on refugees in return for their labor in restoring the natural environment of Duro and in repairing the surface manufacturing facilities. However, it was later discovered by Tresina Lobi that the Duros High House did not want the reclamation project, but several votes on the body were bought out by independent shipping concerns like CorDuro Shipping. (BP)

Duros Sector
one of many sectors of the Nar Shaddaa spaceport, it has been unused since the early days of the Empire. (DE2)

Duros Space Run
this hyperspace route connected the planet Duros with other major commercial centers. (GMH)

Durosian
another name for the Duro race. (COJ)

DuroTech
this starship manufacturer was known for its design of the Mneffe-class Superluminal shuttle. (ND)

Durquist
this Conjeni pilot was part of Bruce Mercy's band. Along with Morph, Durquist piloted the Starburst during pirate missions. (TSK)

Durrei
this Dark Jedi was a native of Elrood, and helped rally Imperial forces in the Corva Sector after the Battle of Endor. He collected ancient Jedi relics and other mystic artifacts. (SWAJ)

Durren
this planet, located in the Meridian Sector, was the site of the New Republic's primary Naval base in the Sector. (POT)

Durren Orbital
this space station served as the New Republic's primary Navy shipyard in the Meridian Sector. It was located in orbit around the planet Durren. (HT)

Durren Central Planetary Council
this was the primary governmental body which provided leadership for the planet Durren. The Council was a strong supporter of the New Republic, and was the focus of a revolt instigated by Seti Ashgad and Dzym, during the droch's attempt to gain control of the galaxy. (POT)

Durron, Kyp
a native of Deyer, Kyp was taken prisoner by the Empire when his parents were arrested for speaking out against the destruction of Alderaan. Kyp was shipped off to Kessel, and forced to work the spice mines. When Han Solo and Chewbacca are shot down over Kessel and also forced to work the mines, Kyp becomes friends with Han, and together they escape the mines, only to discover the Maw Installation. Upon returning to Coruscant, Kyp is asked by Luke Skywalker to join his new Jedi Academy, for Kyp shows a great deal of Force sensitivity. Kyp agrees, and begins training on Yavin 4. Following Gantoris' death, Exar Kun's spirit then takes control of Kyp's will. Kun shows Kyp the power of the Dark Side, but Kyp's basic nature twists the knowledge. He believes that, even though the power stems from the Dark Side, it can still be used against the Empire. Kun's spirit does nothing to alter this perception, and assists Kyp in retrieving the Sun Crusher from Yavin's gas core and allows Kyp to draw on his power as Kyp begins destroying Imperial worlds. It is when Kyp destroys the Caridan system that Han finally catches up with Kyp, and convinces the young man to return to Yavin 4. Luke then worked with Kyp to return him to the true nature of the Force. As his powers grew, Kyp became a respected member of the Jedi Knights. He befriended Dorsk 82 when the young alien traveled to Yavin 4 for training, and the pair were dispatched to Corbos when the miners there unearthed an ancient creature. Kyp managed to defeat a small Leviathan, but the creature's death awakened an even larger one. The combined efforts of Kyp, Dorsk 82, Kirana Ti, and Streen managed to defeat it. He soon became one of Skywalker's new Jedi Masters, but began to question Skywalker's training methods and philosophy. Kyp believed the Jedi were above the common being, and could roam the galaxy and dispense justice as they saw fit. He continued this philosophy with his first student, Miko Reglia, when the formed the Dozen-and-Two Avengers. However, the Avengers were unprepared for the onslaught of the Yuuzhan Vong, and the small squadron was nearly destroyed at Helska. Only Kyp remained, and he vowed to exact a suitable retribution on the alien invaders. In this endeavor, Kyp found himself again at odds with Master Skywalker, who refused to condone Kyp's vigilante plans. Kyp set out again on his own, forming Kyp's Dozen. They tried to rescue Wurth Skidder from the Yuuzhan Vong clustership Creche', but arrived too later to save him. Kyp destroyed the immature yammosk which was controlling the ship, leaving it for dead in orbit around Fondor. (JS, DA, COTF, JAL, VP, JE)

Durron, Zeth
Kyp's brother, sent to the Imperial training center on Carida and killed when the planet was destroyed by Kyp. (JS, COTF)

Dursa Conegan
this Alliance Special Operations officer served under Crix Madine during the Galactic Civil War. Conegan was ordered to investigate the work being done on the Death-Hunter project, in the Jaemus System, after special agent Tigress stopped sending back reports. (SWJ9)

Dusat, Jord
a human colonist living in Ingo, he was a rebel and a troublemaker. He was also a fairly accomplished landspeeder racer. He worked for Thall Joben, who was his best friend, as his personal mechanic. (DCAR)

Duskhan League
the Yevethan government ruling in the Koornacht Cluster. It was formed following the takeover of the Black-15 shipyards, and was led by Nil Spaar. Thirteen worlds in the Cluster were considered full members of the League, and included N'zoth, Wakiza, Zhina, Tizon, Doornik-207, Z'fell, Faz, and Kutag. (BTS, SOL)

Dust Fever
this illness was common among young children on Tatooine. Luke Skywalker had it when he was about nine years old. (JLS)

Dust-corn
this crop, grown on the planet Skann, is one of the key ingredients in the creation of Skannbult Likker. (GG9)

Dust-happy
this is Corellian slang for anyone addicted to spice. (TFE)

Dustangle
a Duro archeaologist, and Dustini's cousin. (MMY)

Dustini
a Duro, he was helping the archeaologists preserve the Duro history in the Valley of Royalty when Kadann started stealing their artifacts. Dustini was elected to leave Duro and seek help from the Alliance, which he did. (MMY)

Dustrose
this was the pseudonym given by Ylenic It'kla to the flame-haired, female Jensaarai he battled with Nejaa Halcyon and the Jedi known as Desertwind. Dustrose was a compatriot of Nikkos Tryis, and was the first to die in the confrontation. (IJ)

Dutan Kelliv
this Arcona was a cousin of Dutan Lee, and was a supervisor at Gallisport's SoroSuub munitions factory, and often provided classified information on shipping schedules and and security procedures to Dutan Lee. (SWJ9)

Dutan Lee
this Arconan arms dealer was a fixture in the Minos Cluster for almost twenty years. His entire nest was primarily involved with manufacturing and exporting mining equipment and supplies. Those family members who didn't work within this operation held positions of authority within the Cluster. He used the family mining business as a front, and supplied weapons to criminals and Alliance agents with equal passion. His primary base of operations was never in the same place twice, providing him added protection from Cluster criminals and Imperial forces. Steady customers discovered his new locations through a complex network of informants. His arms dealings were often undermined by his youngest sister, Dutana Leara. (SWJ9)

Dutan Mining Supply Exports
this mining equipment and supply dealership is the legitimate front for Dutan Lee's weapons smuggling operation. It was located in the city of Gallisport. (SWJ9)

Dutana Leara
this Arcona was the youngest sister of Dutan Lee. She was addicted to salt, and tended to talk too freely while under the influence. All of the Dutan nest was involved with Dutan Lee's arms dealership, and Dutan Leara often provided information on his dealings to Minos Cluster authorities. Her babblings led to a number of failed arms deals. (SWJ9)

Dutch
Jon Vander's nickname as an Alliance starfighter pilot. Dutch was portrayed by Angus McInnis in Star Wars. (SW, CCG)

Dutra Zeneta
this aging Jin served as the commander of several Alliance special agent teams, notably Scandium and Shroud Teams. He was one of the few survivors of the Weelte-ir Massacre, as well as the Vidicx and Loac Campaigns. After the deaths of his team in the Wellte-ir Massacre, Alliance Command was worried that he was suicidal. However, he requested and received permission to use Shroud Team as a foster agent group, and worked hard to make sure isolated agents made it home. His primary skills were in the areas of tactics and infiltration, and those agents that served under him did so with intense loyalty. (SWJ10)

Dutyfree
this Alliance transport ship was captained by Areta Bell during the year leading up to the Battle of Hoth. Captain Bell commanded the ship during the evacuation of Hoth, and was escorted through the Imperial blockade by Wedge Antilles and Luke Skywalker. (IR)

Duu'ranh
this is a sentient race of humanoids. (TT)

Duunir
this Society of the Black Bha'lir purchased huge tracts of land on this jungle planet, using them as refuges for the remaining black bha'lir they rescued from Iyred. (BSS)

Duwani Mechanical Products
this ancient manufacturer produced the 3DO series of protocol/service droids some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

DVL-181
this Alliance outpost was known as the Quagmire by the soldiers who were stationed there during the Galactic Civil War. Located on the swamp planet Aracara, it served as a staging area for X-Wing fighters in the sector. DVL-181 was created from the abandoned Aracara Testing Facility. (HAS)

DV5
this was one of the Empire's many security classification levels. (BI)

DW-5
this was a model of holdout blaster developed by BlasTech during the early decades of the New Republic. (BP)

Dwarf*-class Freighter
this 150-meter freighter was built by Rendili Star Drive. It could transport up to 1,500 metric tons of cargo. It required a crew of 400, and was armed with 9 quad-laser batteries and a single turbolaser. The Dwarf-class had a gently-curving hull reminiscent of various Mon Calamari designs. (WG)

Dweebit
this small, reddish-brown beetle was developed by the Yuuzhan Vong as an environmental weapon. The Yuuzhan Vong used swarms of dweebits to destroy the ExGal-4 outpost on Belkadan, providing cover for their landing on Helska and their invasion of the known galaxy. Groups of dweebits lived in the root systems of the plants of Belkadan, exuding a chemical mix of excrement into the soil. As the plants received nourishment from the soil, they "exhaled" a noxious mix of gases into the atmosphere.Since the dweebits were prolific breeders, they eventually established huge underground populations. As they multiplied, they affected virtually every form of plant life on the planet, fouling the air of Belkadan at an ever-increasing rate. The noxious atmosphere eventually began generating intense storms and rendering the planet a toxic wasteland. (VP)

Dweezel
this is a gooey pastry made by the natives of Mos Espa, on Tatooine. (TPM)

Dwelling Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was dedicated to the housing facilities of the Keganites. (FFT)

Dweomilis Advisory Foundation
this defense system think-tank and policy advisor board was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. Dweomilis works with companies like BlasTech and Santhe/Sienar Technologies to help define and administer defense manfuacturing. It was rumored that Dweomilis was a major contributor to the Empire's cloaking device program. (CSA)

Dwess
this weasly Rodian worked as a spice merchant in Mos Eisley during the Galactic Civil War. (GG7)

Dwoob
a large creature native to the planet Gamorr, the dwoob was raised by the Gamorreans for its tough hide. Dwoobs were also used as draft animals, but their ornery nature made them difficult to control unless the driver was experienced. (SWJ14)

Dx-9
Telgorn's first Delta-class transport ship. It is 20 meters in length, and has a normal crew complement of 5. The Empire used these transports to move stormtrooper squads. It boasts the following shipboard components:
8 Taim and Bak KT4 Laser Cannons
4 ARMek SW-2 Ion Cannons
2 Krupx MG7 Proton torpedo LauncherS (5 torpedoes each)
Front/Rear Projecting Novaldex Shields (rated at 80 SBD)
Quadanium steel armored Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 40 RU)
(TIE)

Dx-9s
Telgorn's second-generation Delta-class transport ship. It is 25 meters in length, and has a normal crew complement of 5. The Empire used these transports to move stormtrooper squads. It boasts the following shipboard components:
8 Taim and Bak KT4 Laser Cannons
4 ARMek SW-2 Ion Cannons
2 Krupx MG7 Proton torpedo LauncherS (5 torpedoes each)
Front/Rear Projecting Novaldex Shields (rated at 80 SBD)
Quadanium steel armored Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 40 RU)
(XW)

Dxun Beast
a huge, winged reptile native to the Dxun moon of Onderon. They have flat, wedge-shaped heads with 10 horns, two short arms, a huge wingspan, and long tails. They are extremely territorial, and will violently defend their lands. The Jedi Master Arca hoped to use them to protect the Sith knowledge obtained from Freedon Nadd by placing all Sith artifacts on the Dxun Moon. Exar Kun was able to use the Dark Side of The Force to strike the Dxun down and gain entry to the storehouse. (DLS)

Dxun Devourers
Another winged denizen of the Dxun moon, these flying creatures are somewhat smaller than Dxun Beasts, but doubly vicious. They also have two arms, but they lack the horns that the Beasts have. Instead, they have a long, jutting lower jaw, which is pointed. This lower jaw is used as a attack weapon. (DLS)

Dxun
one of four natural satellites of the planet Onderon, Dxun was the closest to the planet, and the home of the Dxun Devourers and Dxun Beasts. In a precise balance of nature, the Dxun moon orbits extremely close to Onderon on a regular basis. Its orbit is so close that the atmospheres of both bodies begin to mix, allowing the vicious beasts to migrate from the moon to the planet. For this reason, it was known to the Onderonian natives as the "demon moon." At the order of the ancient Jedi Master, Arca, a tomb for Freedon Nadd and his Sith artifacts was built on the Dxun moon of Mandalorian iron. (DLS, TSW)

DX#4/R2P
this data card format was created by the Empire. It restricted information on data cards to Imperial access only. (GG9)

DY-225
a BlasTech heavy blaster pistol. (GG9)

Dyanthis Vine
a dark-leaved, creeping plant. (POT)

Dyer
this Imperial Colonel was assigned to coordinate the defense of the control bunker on the forest moon of Endor, as part of the garrison stationed there during the construction of the second Death Star. A natural leader, he worked well with Moff Jerjerrod during the initial planning phases of the installation's security measures. Among the defenses they developed was the reserve force of stormtroopers and other personnel maintained outside the main bunker, which could arrive shortly after an invading force and wipe them out. (CCG10)

Dying Slowly
this is the former name of the town called Death, located on the planet Jubilar. It was the capital city of the planet's Regional Sector Four. (TBH)

Dymek
manufacturers of starship weaponry and detonation devices. Note that this corporation was described as Dymex in Balance Point. (SCRE, EGV, BP)

Dymex
see Dymek (BP)

Dymurra, Gnifmak
this Loronar Corporation executive was in control of the manufacturing operations in the Meridian and Antemeridian Sectors, in the years after the Battle of Endor. His primary function was as CEO for the Core systems. It was Dymurra who was contacted by Beldorion, who offered the executive wealth and prestige if he assisted in Dzym's plans to control the galaxy. Dymurra agreed, and provided several synthdroids as well as arms to Dzym's forces. These forces, aligned with Seti Ashgad, attempted to gain control of Nam Chorios and launch the drochs into space, but their plans were foiled by Leia Organa-Solo and Luke Skywalker. Leia obtained memos and correspondances which implicated Dymurra in the plot, which were corroborated by the information discovered by Yarbolk Yemm. The executive was imprisoned for his part in the affair. (POT)

DynaCorp
this pro-Imperial mineral and fuel refinery operation was based on the Grande Hyet island of Esseles. (SWJ9)

Dynamic Automata
this corporation was a minor player in the galactic droid marketplace. (SESB)

Dynamic Synergetics, Incorporated
this corporation established a hyperbaride processing plant on the planet Marca, shortly before the downfall of the Old Republic. The Empire nationalized the plant, and wiped all records of Marca from existence, in order to keep the plant operating despite the potential hazards to the native Sekct. (POM)

Dynamitron
an old Jedi training tool built from precisely-poised levers and wheels. The purpose of the dynamitron was to have the student use the Force to set the dynamitron in motion. It involved a series of complex mental manipulations. (COJ)

Dynasty
this modified Corellian YT-1210 light freighter was owned and operated by Axtor Bridgeman. The ship's weapons consisted of a single, turret-mounted laser cannons and a pair of concussion missile tubes. (GG6)

Dyne
this manufacturer produced sublight engines for starships, during the last years of the Old Republic. (X1)

Dyril
this gawky, gangly man worked with Hoke as the repair and maintenace team of the Q'Maere Research Facility, during the time Moff Sarne used the facility as a penal colony. (KR)

Dysart
a species of grazer native to the moon Yavin 8. (GG2)

Dysis
the middle of three continents - in terms of size - on the planet Algara II. It contains ths cities of Kel and Tauve. (PG2)

Dysk Moosea
this minor criminal worked for the Exalted Torcaigne on Attahox. (CSWDW)

Dyson, Harkin
this alias was used by Hiram Drayson when he met Joto Eckels on Coruscant. Eckels was returning with the remains of the Qella recovered by Kroddok Stopa and Josala Krenn, and Dyson was the collector to whom they were delivered. It was Dyson who had picked up the funding for Eckels' mission to Brath Qella, after both the New Republic and the Obroan Institute withdrew support. Drayson delivered them to Joi Eicroth for analysis, under the auspices of Alpha Blue. (TT)

Dystra, Myleena
this woman was a native of Coruscant, and was a member of a wealthy and influential family. She could attend the best schools, and lived in a grand estate, until her parents were arrested for being suspected Alliance agents. Most of the others were released, but Myleena never saw her parents again. An orphan, she was sent to a COMPNOR readjustment camp and forced to learn about the New Order. Little did she know that her parents were truly Alliance agents. She discovered this when an Alliance SpecOps teams liberated her from the camp and took her to a safeworld, where Alliance doctors reversed much of the Imperial brainwashing she had endured. She devoted the rest of her life to working toward the ideals of her parents, and eventually became an agent in the New Republic's Security Force. (HR)

Dyyz Nataz
a former police officer in his home system, Nataz was a tough cop who was sent out to deal with violent sociopaths. He became a Sector Ranger, and ran into Spurch Goa soon after. They worked together on a case involving a counterfeit credit ring, only to discover that Jabba the Hutt had set it all up to remove the Rangers. Gank Killers ambushed them and killed their other partner, Thaffe, before Nataz and Goa went berserk and killed the Ganks. The two then sent the Ganks' ship on a collision course with Jabba's palace asteroid, causing innumerable damage but missing Jabba in the attempt. This stunt earned Nataz the nickname "Megadeath." They were expelled from the Rangers and hit out on Nar Shaddaa, laying low to avoid Jabba and doing jobs on the side. Dyyz's race was not known, for he wore a full-body suit of ancient Ithullan armor and a rusty, skull-shaped helmet. (DE1, DESB)

DZ-9
this model of shield generator was a low-power unit, providing the barest of protection for small ships. (TT)

Dzass IV
a planet. (WSV)

Dzym
this droch, a native of the planet Nam Chorios, was nothing more than an unremarkable member of his species before Zubindi Ebsuk tried to artificially grow drochs larger in order to please Beldorian the Hutt. The droch race already had some latent sentience, and Zubindi's chemical and genetic manipulations brought out a high level of intelligence in Dzym. For 250 years, Dzym grew strong and powerful, initially using physical contact to drain the lifeforce out of people before learning how to use other drochs to do the work for him. Realizing that he couldn't storm the galaxy without a fight, Dzym attempted to enslave members of the Chorian population in order to meet his needs. Beldorian the Hutt was his first choice, but the Hutt proved to be too weak. When Seti Ashgad was imprisoned on Nam Chorios, Dzym quickly stepped in and took control. Using the Force in a crude fashion, Dzym fashioned himself a human appearance and posed as Ashgad's secretary. Dzym used the human to incite the more recent inhabitants of Nam Chorios to revolt against the Oldtimers, especially the Therans, and eventually was able to make contact outside the system. Using Ashgad as his mouthpiece, Dzym forged an alliance with Loronar Corporation, providing Spook crystals in return for weapons and political backing. The true goal was for Dzym to get off-planet and spread the Death Seed. As Loronar began developing CCIR technology, Dzym continued to wield his influence. When Ashgad seemed to be beyond his years, Dzym began providing his with added lifeforce, and they devised a story that Seti Ashgad had a son to explain the human's rejuvenated appearance. The droch then realized, with the fall of the Empire and the rise of Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa-Solo, that his time had come. He used Ashgad to lure Leia to Nam Chorios, where he hoped to detain her long enough for the New Republic's Provisional Council to squabble about her successor. In the meantime, Loronar began producign Needles and synthdroids, and provided Dzym with enough firepower to engage the Republic fleet. Using his subservient drochs, Dzym infected the New Republic's fleet by tarnsporting them on Ashgad's body, while creating panic and rebellion on worlds throughout the Meridian Sector. The droch's plan would have worked except for Leia's escape from captivity and the presence of Luke Skywlaker on Nam Chorios. Together, the discovered Dzym's plots and exposed them to the natives of the planet. Dzym and Ashgad tried to flee the planet and start their war on their own, but they were destroyed when Luke managed to communicate with the Spook crystals in the Needles. They turned on Dzym's ship and destroyed it. (POT)

D11
this Kuat Drive Yards freighter was the follow-up to the successful D9 Runner. The D11 had better armament than the D9, and was much faster. (SSR)

D20
a variety of propellant gas used in extra-vehicular space suits. (SOL)

D4V
slightly small than an R2-unit, this determined little maintenance droid was part of the minimal droid pool at the Empire's hyperbaride plant on Marca. (POM)

D435
this G-1 series droid worked for the Tredway family on the 24 Tredway mines, in the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt. It was able to save Dena Tredway, getting her to the asteroid's medical facility, shortly after Imperial Governor Parnell destroyed the asteroid base. After Dena was delivered to Luke Skywalker for transport to Ire Eleazari's asteroid, D435 deactivated itself to avoid Imperial capture. (JH)

D8-Red
this was the designation of a secret base maintained by the Empire's Ubiqtorate in the Ringali Nebula. D8-Red was built on a stable planetoid, and was home to the Special Navy forces. (FOP)

D812
this Alliance scouting and reconnaissance team was led by Mils Gessak, and searched for forward outposts during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

D9 Runner
this was a series of light freighters produced by Kuat Drove Yards. The D9 Runner measured 23 meters in length, and coudl transport up to 4 passengers and 75 metric tons of cargo. The D9 Runner was one of KDY's first freighter designs produced during the New Order, and found great acceptance for its low price and reliability. It was eventually replaced by the D11 model, which was faster and better-armed. (SSR)

D9020616
this data file, created by Mon Mothma, was part of Leia Organa-Solo's personal archive. It contained the official decree that allowed Alpha Blue to exist as a secret governmental agency. (BTS)

D99-X
this maintenance droid was abandoned when its starship was destroyed in space. It became what is commonly known as a void droid, and patrolled the Paradise System Junkyards. (SH)

* E *

E-Droid
see Evolution Droid (CCC)

E-elz, Entoo Needaan
this small, slender man served as the primary contact for anyone dealing with Jorj Car'das, in the years following his disappearance into the Kathol Outback. He preferred to go by the name Entoo Nee. He met up with Talon Kaarde on Dayark, and offered to bring him to Exocron. Kaarde was forced to decline, after being intercepted by some of Rei'kas' goons. Entoo Nee later met them at Rintatta City, on Exocron, when Karrde finally made it to the planet. Entoo Nee led them to Car'das' compound, and introduced them to an aging old man. When Karrde returned later, after defeating Rei'kas and his pirate fleet with the help of the Exocron Combined Air-Space Fleet and the Aing-Tii monks, Entoo Nee allowed them to greet the real Jorj Car'das. (VOF)

E-series Droid
1) antique short, humanoid droid used for household tasks. They have round heads with eyes and nose, but no mouth. They tend to work together, making friends and becoming inseparable. (DRO)
2) a series of protocol droids. (BTS)

E-Wing
this starfighter, which employs the R7 astromech droid, was the first starfighter to be fully designed and built under the auspices of the New Republic, and was created by FreiTek Incorporated. The ship, while visually like the X-Wing, has a pair of stable wings. It dishes out punishment and can take it equally well. It uses the R7 droid to take advantage of a redesigned hyperdrive system. The weapons systems leave something to be desired, being based on a synthetic Tibanna gas that isn't as good as the real thing. The New Republic employed two models of the E-Wing. The basic A-Model is 11.2 meters in length, and is armed with three heavy blaster cannons and a proton torpedo launcher. The B-Model is nearly identical to the A-model, except that Mon Calamarian techs have tripled the power input to the weapons systems. This makes them extremely powerful, but if the couplings fail and the weapons overheat, they can be extremely dangerous. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

E-Web Blaster
MerrSonn's EWHB-10 heavy repeating blaster. BlasTech also produced a version of this weapon. (ISB, RPG, TLC)

E-Web (15) Heavy Blaster
this was the upgraded form of the original EWHB-10 blaster. They are virtually indistinguishable to most users, although the E-Web(15) uses a Gk7 CryoCooler and a small shield generator. (TTSB)

E-11 Trooper Rifle
a BlasTech military laser weapon used by stormtroopers, it has a quarter-centimeter aperture. It can be fired continuously, but only at low-power settings. They were so heavily produced that, between stolen shipments and weapons scavenged from battlefields, the Alliance had almost as many of these rifles as the Empire. The weapon was cloned by SoroSuub as the Stormtrooper One rifle. (SME, CCG, CSA)

E-11/S
this modified version of the standard E-11 stormtrooper rifle had a slug thrower mounted just below the blaster barrel. A lever allowed the user to toggle between firing blaster bolts, slugs, or both at the same time. (GG11)

E-11A1
this heavy blaster was produced during the early decades of the New Republic. (HT)

E-11B Trooper Rifle
this modified version of the basic BlasTech E-11 rifle was developed by the BlasTech employees who defected to the Alliance shortly before the Battle of Endor. An enhanced cooling system was used to allow for a greater rate of fire. The weapon saw use in the Alliance's struggle to capture the Imperial shield generator during the Battle of Endor. (CCG10)

E-15A
this BlasTech asssault rifle was standard issue to New Republic soldiers during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

E-16/x
this small ion engine was developed by Incom for use on the T-16 Skyhopper. (EGV)

E-2
the designation of an ancient series of asteroid mining ships designed by Byblos Drive Yards. The E-2 miner is an insectoid ship that looks small. However, the E-2 is actually 110 meters in length. Instead of using tractor beams to move asteroids, the E-2 is equipped with eight rugged claws which can dig into stone and grasp an asteroid beneath the main body of the miner. Each E-2 is also equipped with plasma drills to cut away useless rock to reveal the ore within. A crew of 14 manned the ship, with four gunners handling the plasma drills. The removed stone is sucked up into a central vacuum system that deposits the material in a sorting area. Valuable ores are sent into storage bays, while other material is sent to a processing plant to be turned into fuel. Each E-2 miner has a command crew of four, a bridge crew of ten, and over 100 miners. Finhead Stonebone was one of the first to recognize the potential of E-2 miners in his pirating operation in the Stenness Systems some 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. He modified his E-2s to attack the ore haulers made from Ithullian Colossus Wasp carapaces. (TOJ, EGV, TOJC)

E-3PO
this chrome-plated protocol droid was part of the Imperial garrison which was stationed on Cloud City. E-3PO's assigned role was that of human-to-alien translator, a role he fulfilled when he relayed to Ugloste the necessary modifications to allow carbon-freezing to work on humans. (CCG5)

E-5
this tall, thin droid was produced by Baktoid Combat Automata as an assassin droid, and as a direct replacement for the battle droids used by the Trade Federation during the Battle of Naboo. They were given mediocre verbobrains, allowing them to have a measure of independence that removed the need for a Droid Control Ship. (RP)

Ealor
this was a temperate planet, located in the Bysis System, covered with temperate forests and grasslands. (COG)

Ean
this New Republic Navy officer served as Wedge Antilles' tactical officer aboard the Yavin, during the assault on Almania. (TNR)

EAR
this piece of surveillance equipment was used to eavesdrop on remote conversations. (PGT)

Earl of Vis
this man, the cousin of an ancient king of Naboo, built a large banqueting rotunda in the city of Theed. (IWE1)

East District Trail
a travel route on Lucazec. Like many other roads on the planet, it is little more than two wheel ruts in the dirt. (BTS)

East Minor
this section of Coruscant's Imperial City is famous for the Trophill Gardens. (SOL)

East Platform
Boba Fett's landing site at Cloud City (ESB)

East Vacaliv
this seasonal wind storm ravages the southern latitudes of the planet Iotra. (GG12)

Eastport
one of three major spaceports located in Imperial City on Coruscant. (BTS)

Eater
an alien creature, the eater is a species of furred, warm-blooded, reptilian predator native to Masterhome. (SWCP)

Eater of Fire Creepers
this Qom Jha was the Bargainer of his nesting, and was one of the many who welcomed Luke Skywalker to Nirauan. However, he resented the presence of Mara Jade, because of her former allegiance to the Empire. Eater of Fire Creepers was also distrustful of the Qom Qae nesting led by Hunter of Winds, because the other Bargainer failed to deliver the plea for help to Luke. (VOF)

EB-89
this was the model number of a series of starship engine maintenance droids produced by the Empire. (BI)

Eba
a Wookiee doll given to Jaina Solo by Chewbacca.
(CS)

Ebareebaveebeedee
this Squib reclamation ship Commander was known as the "Illustrious Chieftain of the Junkyards." He had ruled the Squibs as king for more than 40 years before the Battle of Yavin. He was responsible for the placement of Squib spies on capital ships, creating a network of informants who could inform the Squibs of the location of Imperial garbage dumps and battle sites. This allowed the Squib race to flourish during the later years of the New Order. He commanded the momship Thrifty, and negotiated with the Alliance for information on the whereabouts of a gravity-well projector that could be used to detain the Elusive. (SH)

Ebe Crater Valley Gorge located on the planet Tatooine, this landmark was situated on the Mos Espa podracing course. (RAC)

Ebe Endocott
this Triffian was recognized as one of the best podracers of the Outer Rim. He had three semi-pro victories on the Malastare racing circuit before he moved up to the big leagues, and entered into the Boonta Eve Classic on Tatooine. There, he eventually lost the race to Anakin Skywalker. (RAC, IG1)

Eberon Spider
a predatory arachnid with a poisonous bite, the eberon spider performs a brief display before it attacks. (JHS)

Ebiwaan
this planet, located deep in Imperial space, forms one end of the Leisure Corridor. (GG9)

Ebla Beer
an alcoholic brew favored by Captain Huba. (DRO)

Ebon
a rare, black wood. (TFE)

Ebon Coursers
this was a group of seven bounty hunters who worked as a team during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ1)

Ebra
this planet is the homeworld of the Ebranite race. It is the second planet in the Dousc System, and is covered by seemingly endless, rugged mountains. The crust of the planet is riddled with caves and canyons. (GG12)

Ebranite
this humanoid race has evolved in the harsh canyons of the planet Ebra. The Ebranites have six, multi-jointed arms that allow them to climb the rocky canyon walls. Each arm ends in four long fingers and two opposing thumbs, which provide sure grips in almost any situation. Their two legs are short and heavy, having evloved in support of their large upper bodies. Thus, Ebranites have difficulty walking upright and prefer climbing over walking. They are fiercely loyal to their families and their clans, and early Ebranite civilization was marked by clan wars. The clans have since become interconnected, and the advancement of their race has been remarkable. There are clans that have remained at war with each other, much to the dismay of the leadership council. The Ebranite race's ancient wars were violent, for the Ebranite physiology pumps huge amounts of adrenaline when they are under stress. They are calm peaceful under most circumstances, but can be whipped into a combat rage in almost no time. They have a primitive technology, and were subjugated by the Empire and put to work in the lu-ramin mines. Many fled their homeworld ot join the Alliance. (GG12)

Ebranite Lu-ramin Oilmead
this beverage is created with lu-ramin as its base. (GG12)

Ebrihim
the elderly male Drall hired by Princess Leia to tutor her children during the Corellian Trade Summit, Ebrihim is a rotund Drall with fierce, jet-black eyes. He doesn't take the Force seriously, although he does believe in it. He has a wide range of knowledge about the Corellian Sector, and planned to take the Solo children on a number of field trips before Thrackan Sal-Solo seceeded the Sector from the New Republic. Ebrihim is accompanied by his droid, Q9-X2. (AC)

Ebyl
this city is located on the western penisula of the continent of Forethought, on the planet Ropagi II. It is connected to Ropagis, Torvane, and Balarik via monorail service. (TSK)

Ec Pand
this planet was the primary world of the Ec Pand System, which was part of the Induparan Crown Worlds during the height of the New Order. (PP)

Ecclessis Figg Variation
Sabacc variation in which, in the final round, all odd-numbered face cards are subtracted - rather than added - to a player's final score. (DA)

Echani
this deadly martial art was practiced by the Royal Imperial Guard during their training on Yinchorr. It involved the use of a pair of short, sharp-bladed knives. (CE)

Echnos
this is the formal name of the fourth of six moons orbitting the gas giant Tinn VI. Thus, it is often referred to as Tinn VI-D. It was discovered by a group of Old Republic explorers who had to make an emergency landing. The strong magnetic pull of Tinn VI forced them to re-emerge from hyperspace to realspace, an event which continues to happen from time to time. Thus, many hyperspace routes give the planet and its moons a wide berth, but Echnos managed to grow into an important trace center in its sector. The inhabitants of Echnos have built a huge, 2000-story city-dome under which they exist. The dome seals in atmosphere and maintains eight airlocks for entry and egress of starships. (SWAJ)

Echnos City
the capital city of the moon Echnos, it is the sight of a weekly blastboat demolition derby. (SWAJ)

Echo Base
code name for the Rebel base on Hoth. (ESB)

Echo Eight
this was Keela Egast's callsign, while she was a member of Echo Flight. (SFT)

Echo Five
this was Rhys Dallows' callsign, during his tenure as a member of Echo Flight. (SFT)

Echo Flight
this group of starship pilots was subordinate to Bravo Squadron, and was made up of pilot trainees within the Royal Naboo Security Forces. The trainees who were admitted to Echo Flight had to pass the education given within Delta Flight. They flew in standard N-1 starfighters as well as Naboo Police Cruisers, but their ships were painted blue to indicate their training status. Shortly before the Battle of Naboo, the command and training of Echo Flight was turned over to Essara Till. During the defense of station TFP-9, Echo Flight was to be assigned to protect the station, once the Velumina was driven off. (SFT)

Echo One
this was Evenyl Yob's callsign with Naboo's Echo Flight. (SFT)

Echo Seven
Han's patrol callsign at the Rebel base on Hoth. (ESB)

Echo Six
this was Harlaan's callsign, while he was training with Echo Flight. (SFT)

Echo Station 3-8
Alliance outpost on Hoth which first sights the Imperial probe droid. (ESBN)

Echo Station 3-T-8
Alliance outpost on Hoth which first sights the Imperial walkers. (ESB)

Echo Station 5-7
Alliance outpost on the north ridge of Hoth's Echo Base, site of the Imperial walkers' first attack. (ESB)

Echo Three
Luke Skywalker's patrol callsign at the Rebel base on Hoth (ESB)

Echo Two
Kerl's callsign, during his tenure as a member of Echo Flight. (SFT)

Echolocator
a device which uses reflected sound waves to locate a target. (COJ)

Eckels, Joto
this contemporary of Kroddok Stopa held a doctorate degree while teaching at the Obroan Institute. He was performing research on Hoth when Stopa requested his assistance at Brath Qella. He took his research ship, the Penga Rift, to Brath Qella, but was too late to save Stopa. He did manage to recover the bodies of Stopa and Krenn, as well as begin the excavation of several Qella bodies. These he returned to Coruscant, turning them over to the investor who financed his mission, Harkin Dyson. (SOL, TT)

Eckener, Hugo
this man served as the Minister of architecture on the Naboo Advisor Council serving Queen Amidala. (IG1)

Eckless
this planet was subjugated by Hahz Fallone some twenty years before the Battle of Yavin, when he began mining the planet for minerals and ores. The native population fought back and managed to oust him from control, but he stole the Black Sphere before he left. (ND)

Eclipse
the first Eclipse-class Star Destroyer, the Eclipse was used as the flagship for the reborn Emperor Palpatine. It was destroyed when the Force storm Palpatine sent to destroy Luke Skywalker turned on Palaptine himself. The storm consumed Palpatine and eradicated the Eclipse. (DE1)

Eclipse II
this Eclipse-class Star Destroyer was built by the second reincarnation of Emperor Palpatine, following the loss of his first ship, the Eclipse. Palpatine took the Eclipse II to Onderon, in an attempt to obtain the body of Anakin Solo for clones. A New Republic assault team, led by Chewbacca and Kam Solusar, infiltrated the ship and reprogrammed its navigation systems. They fled the ship as it jumped into hyperspace, bound for Byss. When it emerged from hyperspace, the Eclipse II crashed into the new Galaxy Gun, which began to fires its projectiles in its death throes. One projectile was launched successfully, and it ploughed into the planet Byss, destroying it and all of the Imperial ships in orbit around it, including the Eclipse II. The New Republic assault team barely escaped. (EE)

Eclipse Rider
this YT-1300 freighter was rented by Wedge Antilles and Ooryl Qrygg to scout a possible source of X-Wing parts on Rishi, shortly before the Battle of Thyferra. (BW)

Eclipse Sail Barge
Gefferon's premier pleasure sail barge. (RPG)

Eclipse Team
this was the designation of one of the Alliance's Special Forces groups. (GG12)

Eclipse-class Star Destroyer
this huge warship was designed by Emperor Palpatine himself, and was years in the planning at the Kuat Drive Yards. Twice the size of its forerunner, the Super-class Star Destroyer, the Eclipse-class was 17,500 meters in length. Manned by 708,470 crewers and 4,175 gunners, the Eclipse-class was designed to instill fear, much like the Death Star. It was the first Imperial ship to use the awesome axial superlaser. This immense weapon, a single laser based on the eight-laser Death Star superlaser, was capable of destroying an entire planet from orbit. It employed a series of focusers and generators to form the single laser. The Eclipse-class was also equipped with 550 heavy laser cannons, 500 turbolaser batteries, 75 ion cannons, 100 tractor beam projectors, and 10 gravity well projectors. Fifty TIE Interceptor squadrons, eight TIE Bomber squadrons, and 100 AT-ATs were nestled in hangars that could hold an entire Victory-class Star Destroyer. It was made from all-black hull components, making it nearly invisible to the naked eye. (DE1, DESB)

Ecls Industries
this small corporation produced a variety of equipment which used tiny repulsorlift engines, such as sleight boxes. (PSG)

ECM-598
this Chiewab Amalgamated Pharmaceuticals medical kit was considered a must-have for scouts and military field personnel. It was small and lightweight, yet contained a complete array of tools and a large supply of medicinals. It also had a built-in tutorial program for non-medics. (ROE)

Economics of Hyperspace Troop Movement
Han Solo was working on this presentation when Mako Spince destroyed one of Carida's small moons. (THG)

Ectotherm
this species of intelligent reptile lives on the planet Da'nor. They are cold-blooded creatures that resemble small, winged iguanas. They have no natural form of communication. The ectotherms battle a race of large birds for the food and shelter on their world. (SA1, SA2)

Eczar
this planet was known as a financial haven for a variety of legal and criminal individuals. (AIR)

Edalm, Darryn
this Imperial researcher mistakenly rediscovered the original surveys of the planet Karra, and believed that an undiscovered varmigio lode was still hidden within the planet's crust. He failed to read the follow-on reports from the Mineral Assets Partnership, which showed the planet had no such reserves of varmigio. However, Edalm's research and presenation convinced his superiors of the mineral wealth of Karra, and Edalm was promoted to Governor of the planet. When it was discovered that the planet had no natural resources to provide, the Empire denounced Edalm and withdrew its support of the Karra mines. He was ordered to relinquish control of the planet, and feared that he would be executed. A shuttle was dispatched to collect him, but it crashed before leaving Karra' atmosphere. Edalm surrendered himself to Doctor Elth Nardah, hoping to avoid execution. After Nardah's death, Edalm was imprisoned on Shimmer. (SWJ1)

Edan
this Imperial Moff was one of the few which maintained control of his holdings during the New Republic. He was present at the conference on Bastion, some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, at which Admiral Pellaeon discussed the possibility of negotiatinga peace treaty with the Republic. He felt that there would be no 'peace,' only the destruction of the Empire if they tried to negotiate with the Republic. (SOP)

Edatha
this planet is the home of a race of feathered creatures. (SOL)

Edcel Bar Gan
this Old Republic Senator, a native of the planet Roona, was the first Senator to support Queen Amidala of Naboo's motion for a vote of no confidence in Supreme Chancellor Valorum. He was a small, green-skinned creature. The Young Jedi Card Game - The Jedi Council expansion names this character Edcel Bar Gane. (TPM, IG1, YJC2)

Eddel
this quick-witted race of beings was native to the planet Fehern, in Trax Sector. They had an advanced technology during the height of the Old Republic, and were known for their unusual trading ships which plied the spacelanes of the sector. However, when the Empire first established a presence in the sector, their forces quickly subjugated the technologically-advanced Eddel. In the resulting war, much of the Eddelian technology was destroyed, and the Eddel were reduced to serving as slaves. (GMK)

Eddriss Sark
chief of the Alliance's Intelligence organization. (SWSB)

Edge, The
one of Lando Calrissian's mystical references. (LCF)

Edgefields-on-Varonat
this city grew up in the plains the ring the jungles of the planet Varonat. It was one of the planet's two major cities, along with Tropis-on-Varonat. (SWJ1)

Edgelwood
a strong wood used to build houses, it is found on the prison moon Captivity. (RC)

Edgewood, Janson
this New Republic Commander discovered the growing base of power being formed by Jor Idrall on Tatooine. (WBC)

Edian
this dark-skinned man was one of the many Wing Guards who were loyal to Lando Calrissian, when he was the Baron-Administrator of Cloud City. A Sergeant in the Wing Guard, Edian felt a great disdain for those officers who accepted bribes or other forms of corruption. (CCG9)

Edict
Daala's Imperial shuttle at the Maw Installation. (JS)

Edict of Jiaan, The
this was one of two successful and damaging documentaries written by Armennion Ullgusta, and rumored to have been produced by Pret Swain. The documentary documented many aspects of the purge of the Jedi Knights, and earned Ullgusta a place on the Empire's most-wanted list. The Edict of Jiaan was also banned by the Empire. (BSS)

Ediorung
a planet known for its dynamic holosculptures. It is also known for its icefish. (ISB)

Edjian-Prince
this is regarded as the most difficult role to play in the Corellian tragedy Uhl Eharl Khoehng. The actor who plays is perfectly is assured of greatness. Adalric Brandl was given the part at the age of thirty, and hoped that his son, Jaalib, would eventually grow into the role. The Edjian-Prince was the determined son of a king who dies, leaving his small forest kingdom to the Prince. The Prince was not satisfied with the small holdings he inherited, and began to send woodsmen into the forest to chop down trees and make room for growth. However, the forest was ruled by the Eharl Khoehng, who tricked the Prince into sending all his subjects into the forest. The Edjian-Prince, consumed with the need to cut down the forest, sends every last citizen into the woods, until he is alone and frightened by the Eharl Khoehng. The Trickster King sends dreams of peace and safe passage to the Prince in dreams, and the Prince feels that he has one last chance to gain the forest. However, the Eharl Khoehng tricks him, trapping him in the forest for ten years before finally appearing. The Edjian-Prince learns that his subjects have been turned into the trees of the forest, and the only way to restore them is to acknowledge the Eharl Khoehng as king. The Edjian-Prince goes mad and refuses, then burns the forest to the gorund. He then submits himself to the Eharl Khoehng and mutters, “Long ... live ... the king.” (SWJ8)

Edonaaris
this is a little-known planet, which is covered with swampy jungles. (SWAJ)

EDWX-843
this Mandroxan Exports device shoots a cloud of phased particles which are attracted to other metals. When fired at a droid, the EDWX-843 disabled the droid by building up an electrical charge that disrupted the neural flow of the droid's computer systems. (GG11)

ED4
Cybot Galactica's series of storage and transceiving droids. (ISB)

Ee
a race of small worm-like creatures native to the moon Trilos, some Ee exist on the planet Atraken. The Ee grow no longer than six centimeters, and have a grayish color that darkens near their heads. Their bodies are covered with all manner of sensory nerve endings, allowing them to detect changes around them. The Ee consume minerals and fungus on Trilos, burrowing through the rock to reach various veins of minerals. The Ee digestive process them converts the raw minerals into highly-refined ores, which are excreted. The Ee are intelligent, and determined that they can produce certain forms of ore based on which raw materials they ingest. The Ee also have tremendous egos, bolstered by the fact that they have certain Force-like mental powers. These powers include telepathy, telekinesis, changing temperature, and memory alteration. The Ee society has five distinct segments:
Purifiers, which are adept at producing various alloys
Weavers, which take processed materials and form them into machines
Thinkers, who have a knack for theories and principles
Mindbenders, which have strong mental talents
Bulwarks, which are the protectors of Ee society.
Note that Ee technology is highly-advanced, but it is all of a scale that can be used by the Ee. (PG2)

EE-3
a Blas-Tech blaster rifle model. Boba Fett used a sawed-off, modified version of this type of weapon. (RASB, MTS)

Eeksa
this Ithorian was a pet dealer on the planet Torina, during the height of the New Order. She ran Eeksa's Rare Exotics and Pets, and assisted a team of Alliance agents in locating Shondra Del shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (OE)

Eeksa's Rare Exotics and Pets
this pet store, located in Brindibarr on the planet Torina, was owned and operated by the Ithorian Eeksa during the height of the Galactic Civil War. The shop specialized in the acquisition of all kinds of unusual creatures, many of which were barely controllable. (OE)

Eelysa
this young woman was a native of Coruscant. Born after the Battle of Endor, her Force sensitivity was never abused by Palpatine's ambitions. She later attended Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4. She was highly-attuned to the Force, despite the fact that neither of her parents were Force-sensitive. (TNR)

Eeronon
this was the ancient and strict religion practiced by the Aramandi race. It documented the four castes of Aramandi society, and explained how leaders were to be elected. The Eeronon also held the following commandment for each and every Aramandi akia: all clans must work for the day when they can leave Aram and settled their own star systems. At the time of the Galactic Civil War, only the Orma akia had successfully done this. (AE)

Eet Ptaa
a Jawa clan leader whose fortress was once attacked by Sand People and destroyed. (TME)

Eeth Koth
this Zabrak Jedi Master was a member of the Jedi Council when Qui-Gon Jinn recommended that young Anakin Skywalker be tested for training as a Jedi Knight. Born in squalor on the Smuggler's Moon of Nar Shaddaa, Eeth Koth wasn't discovered until he was four years old. However, his determination and clarity of mind convinced the Jedi Council to accept him as a trainee. As a Jedi Master, Eeth Koth was known for his ability to withstand pain. Eeth Koth was portrayed by Hassani Shapi in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Effluvial Rinser
found in many spas and resorts, this device has a number of uses for humans and aliens. (HSL)

Effrikim
these two-headed worms were a favorite snack of Jabba the Hutt, although the endorphins they produced caused drowsiness when ingested. (TJP)

EG-4
this power droid was donated to the Alliance by the Bothan resistance. It was designed to be deployed on inhospitable worlds, and was used at Hoth's Echo Base. A pair of modified power sockets were mounted on top of EG-4, providing easy access. (CCG3)

EG-6
a series of power droids, similar to the GNK series. They were manufactured by Veril Line Systems, and were marketed as ambulatory ower generators built to support equipment and vehicles. The Jawas that captured C-3PO and R2-D2 had also recently acquired a EG-6 droid, and had wiped its memory. The droid was stumbling around their Sandcrawler hold with the other droids. (TME, CCG)

EG-67
this EG-6 droid was stranded at the Mos Eisley Spaceport during the Galactic Civil War. (GG7)

EG-9
this flat-headed, humanoid automaton performed a number of duties aboard the Trade Federation command ship, under the leadership of Nute Gunray at the blockade of Naboo. Like his counterpart PK-4, EG-9 was disdainful of lowly protocol droids. (IS1)

Egale
an Alliance Enbulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Egamo
this doctor was part of the team assembled by Moff Sarne to work as the prison colony established on Q'Maere. Egamo was known as a second-rate psychiatrist with skills in treating neuroses. (KR)

Egast, Keela
this young pilot was member of Naboo's Echo Flight, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. As Echo Eight, Keela was shot down by Dren Melne, during the defense of station TFP-9, but her fighter was recovered and she survived the attack. She was later promoted to a position within Bravo Squadron. (SFT)

Egg-seed
this was considered a delicacy by the Toydarians. (IWE1)

Egging
this is the term used by the Brubbs to describe pregnancy of a female. The experience of egging often kills the female Brubb. (GG4)

Eglatt
this alien race is from an extremely hot world, and can withstand incredible temperatures. (GG2)

Ego
an Imperial Major, and commander of a squadron of stormtroopers serving under Moff Fasel. (XWRS)

Egoa
the fruit of this tree is a required food of the natives of the Tal Nami System. The tree itself grows nearly a meter a day. Any trader who tries to swindle another is tied to the tree, with his feet in the roots and his hands in the branches. As the tree grows, the devious trader is literally pulled apart. (GOF2)

Egome Fass
the large Houk enforcer employed by J'uoch and R'all on Dellalt. He is killed by Chewbacca in a hand-to-hand battle at J'uoch's mining camp. (HSL, GG12)

 Egoreg
a Captain in the Alliance, and head of the super vaporator project on Tatooine. (MRR)

Eharl
this Old Corellian term is derived from the Socorran word for an elf or trickster, and comes from popular Socorran mythology. (SWJ8)

Ehjenla
ths small planet, located near the center of the Kathol Outback, began emerging from an ice age during the last centuries of the Old Republic. Much of the planet remained locked under polar ice caps after the Battle of Endor. Ehjenla is the homeworld of the Tuhgri race. (KO)

Ei'shuun Aa Effect
this hyperspacial effect occurs whenever a star's gravitational curves are not uniform, as in the case of a trans-dimensional energy streamer. Parts of the star seem to emit their own hyperspace shadow, which is then dragged back into the main gravity well of the star. All the while, realspace particles are unaffected. This paradox causes immense distrubances within a localized area of hyperspace, where the "walls" between realspace and hyperspace are stretched extremely thin. (SSR)

Eiattu 6
this jungle planet was the home of Plourr Ilo. It was controlled by Moff Tavira and, later, is young wife Leonia, shortly after the Battle of Endor. The planet liberated of Imperial control when Plourr returned to claim the throne she gave up years before. (XWWP, XWRR)

Eibon Scimitar
one of Xim the Despot's largest starships, it was eventually destroyed. (DESB)

Eichler
an Imperial freighter under the protection of the Warspite near Dellalt. (XW)

Eicroth, Joi
this scientist worked for the New Republic's Alpha Blue team. She was romantically involved with Hiram Drayson, a relationship they kept secret for more than thirteen years because of their working duties. It was Joi Eicroth who performed the first autopsies and investigative analysis of the Qella bodies recovered from Maltha Obex by Joto Eckels. She discovered the existence of the Eicroth bodies, which were named for her. Eicroth eventually married Drayson, but their marriage was a short one. Eicroth remained a valued member of the Alpha Blue team, and was part of the task force created to determine the origins of the Yuuzhan Vong. Unfortunately for the New Republic and Doctor Eicroth, a living Yuuzhan Vong body was hard to locate. Whenever individuals were captured in battle, they ultimately committed suicide rather than become subjects of study. (TT, HT, BP)

Eicroth Body
this biological formation, identified by Joi Eicroth, is a small, capsule-like body encased in solid protein. These bodies contain the three unique genetic cell structures characteristic of the Qella, as well as the various combinations of the 62 chromosomes that define the Qella. The contents of each and every Eicroth body is virtually solid genetic material, and five percent of the Qella body is made up of these bodies. It was believed that each Eicroth Body contained the complete genetic blueprints of the Qella race, including its history and consicousness. The smallest bodies were no larger than a grain of sand, while others were the size of plates. Unlike the normal genetic code - which has four letters, two-letter words, and three-word sentences - Eicroth bodies have genetic material with six unique letters grouped in six-word sentences. The formation of the Eicroth body is duplicated on three distinct scales. There are somatic cells which make up the Qella flesh, lesser Eicroth bodies which make up the basic genetic material, and greater Eicroth bodies which contain instructions for creating starship-sized eggs (such as the Teljkon vagabond) for transporting unborn Qella. (TT)

Eidolon
this prototype Strike-class cruiser was built in secret by Kuat Drive Yards for the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It was designed to carry squadrons of TIE Fighters into battle. The Eidolon was lost on its maiden voyage, although it was later learned that the ship had been blind-jumped into hyperspace because it was barely spaceworthy. All this backstory allowed Sate Pestage to use the ship as a hiding place for a storehouse of weapons and armaments, to be used in case Emperor Palpatine' rule of the galaxy was ever destroyed. The ship ended up buried on Tatooine, with its weapons cache still intact. Its whereabouts were known only to Sate Pestage, who kept the location a secret until Lirin Banolt stole a data disk containing the plans to the ship and its location. Its location was also known to Marl Semtin, who discovered that it served his purposes as a remote base. The Imperials lost the ship when Rogue Squadron managed to secure it before Huff Darklighter or Firith Olan could secret away the weapons. (XWBT)

Eidolon Base
this is the name used by Marl Semtin to indicate the location of the Eidolon and its weapons cache on Tatooine. It was discovered by Rogue Squadron and recovered from Imperial control. (XWBT)

Eighteenth Battle of Zehava
it was during this struggle between the Melida and the Daan that the Daan built a network of tunnels below Zehava city, expanding sewage tunnels and drains to gain secret access to Melida-held portions of the city. The Daan eventually won the battle, reducing the amount of territory held by the Melida. (DOD)

Eighth Ilthmar Gambit
an offensive maneuver used by Spray, and identified by Bollux, during a holochess match with Chewbacca. The gambit involves sacrificing a highly-rated gamepiece in a single-handed penetration of the opponent's defenses, drawing his defense out and setting him up for a hidden, but more coordinated, attack. (HSR)

Eighth Nebulan Scout Corps
this was an independent scouting agency which operated during the last years of the New Order and into the era of the New Republic. They tended to be more realistic in their approach to scouting than the New Republic Scout Service. (GG8)

Eikh'mir
a Noghri clan. (TLC)

Eilnian Sweet Fly
this insect is native to the planet Glottal, and is a favorite food of the Glottalphibs. The more mature the sweet fly is, the better they taste. (TNR)

Ein, Parco
this Imperial Governor controlled the planet Verkuyl, along with its production of alazhi, during the early years of the New Republic. Ein put out an advertisement to all corporations, inviting them to propose to him their plans for a bacta refinement facility on Verkuyl. He hoped that an independent though controlled corporation would be able to maintain production from the rebellious local labor force. (TFNR)

Eirrauc
this alien race was distinguished by its six limbs and long, four eyed face. Native to the planet Eirrauus, the Eirraucs move cross the plains of their homeworld via a “leaping run,” employing the hind and middle pairs of legs to move about. The middle pair of limbs could also be used as arms, to assist the front arms in manipulation. The Eirrauc were omnivorous, feeding on grasses and fruits as well as carrion. They gathered food with their tongues. A peaceful people, the Eirrauc were unprepared to defend themselves against the Empire, and were swiftly subjugated and enslaved. (SWG)

Eirrauus
this grassy, temperate planet was the homeworld of the Eirrauc race. (SWG)

Eirtae’
this young Naboo woman served as one of Queen Amidala’s loyal handmaidens. Eirtae’ was born to wealthy parents in a remote, river valley town, and was no stranger to the life of luxury led by Queen Amidala. In fact, Eirtae' knew a great deal about court protocols, and often instructed the other handmaidens - as well as Queen Amidala herself - on the ways of the palace. Like the other handmaidens, Eirtae' was chosen by Captain Panaka for her strength, loyalty, and resemblance to Amidala. Eirtae was portrayed by Friday Wilson in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, JQA, IG1, VD1)

Eislo
Klif told Moranda Savich that he could obtain a group of ratter thists from this planet, during the Caamas Incident. (VOF)

Eislomi III
this planet, located in Eislomi Sector, was the site of a HoloNet relay station. (VOF)

Eistern
this Imperial Navy officer served on the Intimidator during the Galactic Civil War. When the ship was captured in the Koornacht Cluster by the Yevetha, Eistern was imprisoned on Pa’aal. He was one of Sil Sorannan’s most trusted companions, and helped Sorannan lead the Imperial insurrection during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Ejagga Pakkpekatt
this Hortek Colonel served the New Republic as part of the Intelligence agency. He was placed in command of Glorious and was sent to intercept the Teljkon vagabond about twelve years after the Battle of Endor. He was constantly at odds with Lando Calrissian, but often recognized the worth of Lando's opinion. He did not approve of Lando's bold move to gain entrance to the vagabond, and was even less happy with the escape of the vagabond near Gmir Askilon. The flight of the vagabond rendered the Kuari a derelict, caused numerous deaths and injuries, and left him without a clue as to the whereabouts of the ship. Calrissian, Lobot, R2-D2, and C-3PO were also aboard the vagabond when it fled. This combination of events led the New Republic to recall the majority of Pakkpekatt's fleet, although he was given a few ships to chase the vagabond and rescue Calrissian. He eventually took control of the Lady Luck and was brought to the vagabond when C-3PO activated its slave circuit. The ships jumped around from the Prakith System to the planet Brath Qella, where the true purpose of the vagabond was revealed. (BTS, SOL, TT)

Ejection Seat
any device which allows a pilot or crew member to jettison from a disabled starship. They often involve ejecting a pilto who is already wearing a pressure suit, and have minimal life support. (SWSB)

Ekand
this New Republic Navy Lieutenant was the senior officer at the New Republic Defense Fleet's office on Utharis. (TT)

Ekh the Red
this man was Orman's second-in-command, but only because he was loyal to Orman. His criminal skills were somewhat lacking. (ML)

Ekhrikhor
a Noghri of the clan Bakh'tor, Ekhrikhor was the leader of the group that followed the Millennium Falcon to Wayland, after it was discovered that Grand Admiral Thrawn was using the facility to make clones. After the New Republic liberated Wayland from Imperial control, Ekhrikhor tried to destroy the multitude of artifacts found inside Mount Tantiss, claiming that everything within was part of the memory of Palpatine and should be eradicated. Garv Debble protested, and Leia Organa Solo eventually had to step in and allow Debble the opportunity to complete his work. Ekhrikhor abided by Leia's decision, even if he didn't agree with it. (TLC)

Ekibo
this planet was settled by Trianii colonists. It was later usurped by the Corporate Sector Authority when it expanded its borders under the New Order. (CSA)

Ekisp
Bohhuah Mutdah's elderly servant, he was unaware that Rokur Gepta had killed his real master. (LCF)

Eklaad
a race of quadripedal aliens native to the planet Sirpar. They have prehensile snouts and are covered with tough, armored hides. Eklaad live in tribes that exist in a stone-age level of technology. The elders of the Eklaad tribes met one a year in an annual Council of Chieftains, but the invasion of the Empire put a stop to that. As a race, Eklaad were timid and non-aggressive, and rolled themselves into armored balls when confronted with a dangerous situation. They were herbivorous. (SWAJ, AE)

Eksoan
manufacturers of heavy weapon power sources. (ISB)

EKX-10
a BlasTech blaster rifle. (GG9)

EL-434
this assassin droid developed a reputation as a nasty killer that enjoyed its work, although little was known about its origins. This droid was designed around a moto-ball base that supported a clam-shell cranium and long, articulated arms. Its critical systems were well-armored, and it kept itself in peak condition. EL-434 found its way into the employ of the Empire, which used it to eliminate Alliance bases and destroy Alliance personnel. EL-434 was captured by the Alliance on one such mission, after they were alerted to EL-434's arrival. The droid overrode its self-destruct programming, reasoning that it could better assist the Empire by gathering information on Alliance safe-worlds. EL-434 was on the transport ship Celestial when it was commandeered by Bane Nothos and Grand Moff Ravik, and EL-434 suddenly found itself in Otherspace, imprisoned on the Desolate. The Charon bioscientists wanted to disassemble EL-434, in an effort to understand how a non-organic construct could override its programming and increase its own abilities. EL-434 escaped during the Alliance's attempts to escape from the Desolate, although the droid was unable to escape the Charon ship when the Alliance did. (OS)

Ela b'Yenntarr
this was the Bosph name given to those members of their species who could use the Force. The term translated into Basic as "the chosen of the unknown spirits." (SWJ13)

Elaginn
a former spice-jacker and leader of his own gang, Elaginn went crazy and bound himself to a chair. He then jumped out a window, leaving the running of his gang to Romort Raort. (DESB)

Elamposnian Monks
this religious brotherhood practices strict chastity. (POT)

Elan
1) this Galacian woman was a member of the hill clans, and remained outside the control of the city of Galu. However, she rose to become her clan's leader, and was considered to be a candidate to succeed Queen Veda despite her lack of concern for Galacian politics. Queen Veda revealed to Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi that Elan was actually the daughter of her husband, King Cana, who had defied the Galacian political ministers and married a woman of the hill clans. When she remained outside the democratic elections Veda proposed, both Deca Brun and Wila Prammi courted her support. Elan refused to acknowledge any of the candidates, keeping the hill people separate from the inhabitants of Galu. She was distinguished from other Galacians by her darker eyes and skin tone, closer to the nighttime colors than to the brightness of the moonlight. Elan was known as a healer among her people, and helped Qui-Gon Jinn recover from wounds he suffered while fighting off bandits in the hills. She told him that her father, Rowi, had been a noted healer among the hill people, and that her mother, Tema, had never traveled to Galu. Domi revealed the to Qui-Gon that Elan was the true heir, shortly after Lonnag Giba attempted to assassinate her. She agreed to travel to Galu, and eventually threw in her support - and that of the Hill People - to Wila Prammi. Despite acknowledging her heritage, Elan chose not to take the Tallah surname until she was ready to accept it. (MOC)
2) this Yuuzhan Vong priestess accompanied Harrar on his mission to oversee the invasion of the known galaxy, after the loss of Shedao Shai's fleet at Ithor. She was considered beautiful by both Yuuzhan Vong and human terms, having a shapely figure and long, raven-black hair. Her father was a personal advisor to Supreme Overlord Shimrra. She agreed to become a hostage, as part of a plan to begin wiping out the Jedi Knights. She allowed herself to become a host for a group of bo'tous, a bioweapon which could be exhaled in a confined space, killing all beings who breathed it in. She herself knew that survival was not guaranteed, but knew that her mission would place her in a position of greatness with the Deception Sect. The plan was for Elan to be captured and request political asylum, as well as a meeting with the Jedi Knights. She offered them the antidote to the disease which had been killing Mara Jade Skywalker, as an indication of her sincerity. In a battle staged to provide cover, she and her familiar, Vergere, jettisoned from a Yuuzhan Vong warship and was rescued. She was initially questioned on Wayland, but a planted "assassin" tried to kill her. She was then escorted to Coruscant by Major Showolter, but their ship - the Queen of Empire -was attacked by the Peace Brigade. The mercenaries hoped to return Elan to the Yuuzahn Vong, to prove their loyalty and worth. Showolter was injured, and Han Solo was asked to escort her. Han was unable to escape with Elan, and they were discovered by Reck Desh and the Peace Brigade. Elan was brought to the mercenaries' ship, in preparation for returning her to the Yuuzhan Vong. Elan took matters into her own hands, exhaling one breath of the bo'tous to kill the mercenaries. However, when she tried to kill Solo as well, she found herself trapped in the hold of the Millennium Falcon with the bioweapon. She quickly succombed to the death it brought. (HT)

Elan Mak
this Fluggrian was one of the newest podracers on the Outer Rim Territories's professional circuit, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. The name Elan Mak was actually an alias, as this being was really Kam Nale. Elan Mak favored the relatively slow Kurtob KRT410C podracer, which he modified for his own skills. (TPM, RAC, IG1)

Elarles
a waiter in the bar on Circarpous V where Luke and Leia meet Halla. (SME)

Elassar Targon
this high-strung Devaronian male joined the New Republic's Wraith Squadron, after the loss of Lara Notsil. A graduate of the Republic's Fleet Command Academy, he had a loose, joking manner that fit in well with the Wraiths. When his initial introduction, using the standard armed forces protocol, failed to impress the Wraiths, he addressed them as "master of the universe" and quickly earned their friendship. (SOC)

Elastex
this fabric was used to create form-fitting clothing. (JE)

Elba
a grain crop used to produce elba beer. (CSA)

Elba Beer
a brew that Chewbacca likes to drink. (HSR)

Elba Water
a non-alcoholic beverage created from elba. (TFE)

Elban, K'cri
this man was a respected hero of the Clone Wars before he retired from military duty and went underground, shortly befor Emperor Palpatine's rise to power. He eventually established K'cri's Cafe on Cloud City, and was known on the outpost as a good guy at heart. (GG2)

Elbara Nine
this ice-covered planet was the site of the Alliance' GlitterFall Base. The Empire maintained a Naval staging area near Elbara Nine, but the location saw little use during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Elcorth
this planet, located in the Koornacht Cluster, was inhabited by a colony of Morath and Andalese pholikite miners. It was overrun by the Yevetha during the Great Purge. (TT)

Elder Brother, The
a name used in the Corellian System for the planet Corellia. (AC)

Elders
1) the oldest members of the Ewok society, they preside over each Ewok tribe (ROTJ)
2) the triumverate of Oswaft that ruled in the ThonBoka before the Empire blockaded the nebula (LCS).

Elders' Council
this political body was made up of those Ssi-ruuk who were the most revered citizens of the planet Lwhekk. It served the Shreeftut as a body of advisors and counselors. Only those Ssi-ruuk who were born on Lwhekk could sit on the Elders' Council. (AE)

Eldon, Darv
this Imperial Navy Captain served under Admiral Greelanx. Eldon had been a friend of Soontir Fel's from the days of their training at the Imperial Academy, a friendship which lasted ten years until Eldon's death. He commanded the Carrack-class picket ship, the Vigilance. During the initial skirmishes of the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, Eldon was killed when the Vigilance was destroyed. (THG)

Eldratz
this form of spice is so deadly that even the Hutts refuse to sell it. Quarlo I'Shibix and his workers were involved in a large smuggling ring to move eldratz on and off the planet Krann, until they were discovered by New Republic agents. (TSK)

Eldritch
this submersible starship was purchased by the Corellian Security Force as part of a sting operation. The crew of the craft were given false identification which allowed them to meet with the criminals they were trying to catch, and a relationship was built. The criminals invited the CorSec agents to their underwater base, then opened fire on the Eldritch. All aboard were killed, and the Eldritch was never seen again. (HAS)

Eleanor, Krispus
an ancient nobleman of the Kashi Mer, he started Eleanor Propulsion as a hobby. (TOJC)

Eleanor Propulsion
this ancient corporation was based in the Kashi system, and was founded by Krispus Eleanor to provide customized, personal, luxury transportation. Most of their designs were for ground-based transports. (TOJC)

Electnode
this term describes the position held by Marasan governmental officials. Each electnode has an uplink to the Mindnet, which is used to provide data to the Grand Daern. (GG12)

Electra
an Alliance Lambda-class shuttle captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Electrite
fist-sized crystals which are used as leads in detonation devices. (TB)

Electro-bars
similar in performance to electro-wire, electro-bars are used toprotect windows and openings from unwated intrusion. The bars are formed into a grid that is placed over the opening. An electrical current is then run through the bars, creating a huge electric shock when a being touches them. (DOD)

Electro-cuffs
a form of handcuffs or binders that produces an electric shock whenever the wearer exerts pressure on their bond. (MOC)

Electro-jabber
a high-voltage stud prod used to control crowds, these are also called Force Pikes. (ROTJ)

Electro-photon Receptor this sensor system gathers photonic emissions from its surroundings and provides anaylsis of the possible location of lifeforms. (OS)

Electro-pulser
this metal rod was part of the machinery the Syndicat used to erase the memories of the Phindians as part of the renewal process. A pair of electro-pulsers were used, one to press against each temple on the Phindian's head, and they each sent waves of destructive energy through the Phindian's brain. (HP)

Electro-rangefinder
this sophisticated weapons sighting system was used on Imperial AT-AT walkers. The electro-rangefinder was connected to a ceiling-mounted system, and descended when called for by the commander of the walker. He then used it to locate and target his objective. The range finder provided him with distance and telemetru information, which could be fed directly into the AT-AT's targetting computer. (CCG3)

Electro-stave
this was an ancient form of a stun baton. (TOJC)

Electro-wire
this form of heavy wire is used to protect prisons and other high-security areas. It is attached to the tops of walls and structures in tight loops, then the wire is connected to a power source. An intense current of electricity then flows through the wire, producing an heavy shock to any being that touches it. (DOD)

Electrobinoculars
while these devices provide the same kind of image enhancement functions as macrbinoculars, they differ from macrobinoculars in that electrobinoculars allow image enhancement features that macrobinoculars do not. (SWN, ESB)

Electrocution Death Flightknife
one of the many Yedagonian fighter squadrons which supported Wedge Antilles and the Running Crimson Flightknife during the war against the forces of the Cartann nation, on Adumar. (SOA)

Electrocution Worm
this is another name for the raen sovra. (COG)

Electrodictionary
a hand-held translation device. (SE)

Electroglobin
this organic material is what allowed a Polydroxol to survive in the poisonous atmosphere of the planet Sevetta. Electroglobin was a form of electrically-charged, gaseous plasma which flowed like blood through their amorphous bodies. (SWJ12)

Electrolocomotion
this was the biological equivalent of a repulsorlift engine, and was the method which beldons and other atmospheric creatures travel. By manipulating their own electric fields, these creatures push against the magnetic and electrical fields of a planet, thereby moving short distances without actually moving their bodies. (GG2)

Electronet
this sticky webbing of current-conducting fibers is used to detain a being at a distance. The webbing is launched at the target inside a small warhead which explodes shortly before impact. This releases the webbing, which wraps itself around the target. An electrical shock can be administered by the firer using a small remote control. (GG10)

Electronic Freightways
this mysterious company has no address, no board of directors, and no contact information. Any deep research has led to another company by the same name, which went out of business well before the Clone Wars. Electronic Freightways, nevertheless, contracts a great number of independent spacers to carry its cargoes across the galaxy. Spacers discover unusual requests suddenly pop up on their datapads, indicated where to pick up the cargo and how much the job with pay. The company always seemed to have in-depth knowledge of the spacers they employ, and ensure the confidentiality of their cargoes by packing them in heavily reinforced crates. (PSG)

Electronic Translator
a handheld device which is used to read written text or process vocal speech and provide the user with an understandable translation. (SWN, DLS)

Electrophoto Receptors
a starship sensor system that uses all available forms of light to generate a two- or three-dimensional image of the surrounding space. They are used for short-range monitoring and targetting. (WEG)

Electropole
