this was the name of the unusual creature which was later formed into a Sekotan starship. Seed-partners resembled large cockle-burrs, about the size of a child's head and covered with short, hooked spikes which it used to move about and cling to another being. In the Uniting Day ceremony, seed-partners are introduced to a prospective starship owner. If one or more seed-partners chooses the buyer, then a starship can be formed for them. If the buyer is rejected, he is no longer allowed to bond with a seed-partner. Until their are allowed to evolve, seed-partners live with their new masters day and night, attuning their biorythms to those of the buyer. It was rumored that seed-partners were formed from the Potentium. On average, one to three seed-partners joined with a buyer at any given time, then are physically melded together to form the starship. As they matured, the seed-partners split out of their husks, revealing whitish flesh beneath. Several groups of spikes merged with one another to form small three-fingered hands, and they elongated so that each seed-partner had four short legs. After the matured, seed-partners were taken with their masters to the forging pits of the Langhesi, where they were struck by sky fire lightning and quickened. This energized the seed-partners, and the Langhesi forged them into new shapes. These new shapes were known as seed-disks. (RP)

Seedar, Genna
this woman served as a medical officer aboard the New Republic starship FarStar during its hunt for Moff Sarne. She was uncomfortable with the reactions of the crew to the prolonged search through the Kathol Rift, and her fears were realized when a mutiny ensued. (KR)

Seef
this Yuuzhan Vong female served aboard the Sunulok as Tsavong Lah's attendant during the aliens' invasion of the galaxy. (BP)

Seeg
this Rodian starship racer was a rival of Siro Simito. He was also Simito's friend, and their public rivalry was carefully cultivated to enhance the popularity of their sport. Their staged fights always boosted their ratings. (CRO)

Seek
a native of the planet Tatooine, Seek was one of young Anakin Skywalker's friends. A ten-year-old boy, Seek was something of a pessimist, and believed that Anakin would never get his homemade podrace to fly. Seek was portrayed by Oliver Walpole in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IS1)

Seeker
1) a type of remote used for surveillance activities, seekers were developed to assist law enforcement agencies in tracking down criminals. A seeker could be programmed to search out and immobilze a specific target, but in general they were only moderately successful in their missions. Widespread use of seekers diminished during the New Order, although many backwater law enforcement agencies embraced them. (SW, GG11)

2) this was the brand name of Arakyd's AS-M12 messenger droid. (SESB)

Seeker Torpedo
any self-propelled detonation device which can be targetted ahead of time and, when released, will track its target until it can impact with it. (TOJ)

Seekerbot
this is another name for a remote surveillance droid. Small seekerbot are often used to watch over doors and hallways. (MJEH)

Seely
this Twi'leki female met Drek Drednar in the Darlonn Sector, and agreed to serve as a lieutenant in his pirate crew. (SWAJ)

Seendar
this Togorian was taken from his homeworld of Togoria by a group of mercenaries which eventually accepted him into their ranks. He enjoyed the excitement and adventure of the mercenary life, but found that he was uncomfortable around the technology of the galaxy. He couldn't comprehend the various forms of technology. His mercenary band was invited to the planet Narg to help train the local police force, but all non-humans in the group were relieved of their duties upon arrival. Seendar was stranded on the planet, where he roamed the streets around the Free Access Grill. He was one of the few individuals in the city of Grig allowed to carry a personal weapon, only because the local constabulary was afraid to confront him. (TA)

Seeno
one of Antar Roat's aides. (WG)

Seer
this group of Imperial probes was destroyed by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Seerdon, Kohl
this Imperial Moff was one of the first individuals to recognize the true importance of bacta to the Alliance. Many Imperial officers and leaders felt that the control of arms and foodstuffs would eventually choke out the Alliance, while Seerdon realized that the Alliance would keep on fighting until it could no longer sustain itself. He felt that, in order to eliminate the Alliance's forces, the Empire would have to control bacta. Keeping the healing fluid from the Alliance would mean that it couldn't restore its wounded troops, thereby reducing its numbers and eliminating resistance. He sought to control the world of Thyferra, but was kept from achieving his goals by the combined efforts of Rogue Squadron and the Alliance. (RSG)

Seertay, Anna
an Alliance Colonel, Seertay died with her Marines in the Cobolt Offensive. (RASB)

SeeVee
this was the nickname of Platt Okeefe's ASP-7 labor droid, used aboard the Last Chance. It had a limited vocabulary, and could only respond with "affirmative" or "negative" to any question. (SESB)

Seggor Tels
Seggor Tels was a Quarren from Calamari. He was the embodiment of the friction betweem the Quarren and their planetary neighbors, the Mon Calamari. He felt that his own race was being neglected by the Mon Cal, whom he felt were taking all the glory for the work the Quarren had done to build the planet's floating cities. He resented the Mon Cal for their dreams and their ambitions. He felt that the Mon Cal had relegated the Quarren to living the bowels of the planet's floating cities, even though they were designed that way. He resented the fact that Ackbar and the Calamarian Council wanted to make contact with the Empire. So, when an Imperial agent slipped past the planet's defenses and approached him, he felt that he could strike out at the Mon Cal by providing the Empire with the codes to evade Calamari's defenses. His hope, that the Empire would cut the Mon Cal down to size, was quickly turned to despair as the Empire enslaved by Mon Cal and Quarren without prejudice. When the Mon Cal began resisting the Imperial yoke, Seggor Tels again laughed at them. However, the forced slavery began to work at his conscience, and he began to wonder whether he should join the Mon Cal rebellion or not. When the Calamarians heard about the Alliance, Seggor Tels rallied the Quarren to join the Mon Cal, despite all their hatred, and together they drove off the Empire and freed Calamari. To this day, Seggor Tels thanks the Imperials - not the Mon Cal - for showing them how to fly to the stars and begin life again somewhere else. (SWSB)

Segken Tels
this Quarren female served Adriav Kavos aboard the Isilia as a gunner. (PG1)

Segnor's Loop
a starship maneuver in which an attacking ship makes a quick run away from its target before doubling back for a second pass. (TFNR)

Segue
this New Republic shuttle was loaned to Major Showolter, to transport the Yuuzhan Vong priestes Elan to Wayland. (HT)

Sehvorah
this minor crimelord was, at one time, deeply in debt due to a huge gambling habit he established in the Core Worlds. Sehvorah fled to the Outer Rim and started over, eventually becoming the chief executive officer of the Droxian Traders League. He caught the eye of Dunstain Manliss, but Manliss's son Artur moved to secure Sehvorah's allegiance. Many believe that the Droxian Traders League was responsible for the death of Dunstain Manliss, but others believe Artur agreed to pay off Sehvorah's gambling debts in return for the removal of Dunstain. Sehvorah recognized a good thing when he saw it, and agreed to join the Mandroxan cartel in order to reap the benefits of trafficking spice. (GG11)

Sei'lya
this Bothan witnessed the destruction of a city on Kothlis by an 850.AA maintenance droid, which had been loaded with Arakyd Seeker droids. She fled the destruction to Elshandruu Pica, and offered a reward on Cynabar's Droid Datalog to any being who could provide verifiable evidence of the responsible party. (SWJ14)

Seifax
this corporation was a dummy front for Loronar Corporation. Based on the planet Antemerdias, Seifax manufactured shielded transport shells for use in constructing Loronar's Needle attack ships. This fact was discovered by the Chadra-Fan journalist Yarbolk Yemm. (POT)

Seige of Ank Ki'Shor
this Galactic Civil War battle featured prominent use of the Y-Wing starfighter. (EGV)

Seikosha
this planet, located in the Breago System of the Borderlands Region, was an undeveloped jungle world at the outset of the New Republic. It had become something of a haven for criminals during the last years of the Empire, and the political wars which continued to rage after the Battle of Endor kept the Borderlands out of most people's minds. Seikosha was the homeworld of the Seikoshan race, and was constantly swept by violent thunderstorms and torrential rains. The average day on the planet lasted 28 standard hours, and its year lasted 422 local days. (POC)

Seikoshan
this alien race was native to the planet Seikosha. They remained neutral during the Galactic Civil War, in part because their planet was located on the border betwen Imperial and Republic space. They were a primitive culture, and strove to remain so even when smugglers and criminals from the greater galaxy began coming to their homeworld to hide from justice. The average Seikoshan was a reed-thin humanoid with green skin and a small amount of black hair on their head. They have unblinking red eyes, and had a series of ridges running from the bridge of their noses to the top of their skulls. They preferred to live without technology, although they had a highly-developed society with excellent natural engineering skills. (POC)

Seitia Prime
this planet was located near Rhamalai. (SWJ13)

Seito
one of the survivors of the Battle of Hoth, Seito was evacuated on the Bright Hope. A combat specialist, Seito was chosen by Toryn Farr to lead one of the groups which fled in an escape pod. (TBH)

Sekct
this race of amphibious humanoids was native to the planet Marca. Their population was parthenogenic, with all members being female. Every two years, a mature Sekct can lay a single egg. However, only one of every two eggs ever hatches, because the genetic makeup of the Sekct often causes damaged embryoes. In theory, those Sekct which survive are genetic duplicates of their parent.. They have brown skin, ranging from muddy brown to tan, which lightens as they age. They are short in stature, but have a well-developed sense of honor and are excellent hunters. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Sekct were in danger of being wiped out by the toxic waste-products of the Empire's hyperbaride plant located on Marca. The wastes were introducing devastating genetic changes, as well as killing the environment. A group of Alliance agents, forced to land on the planet when their ship hit a mine, helped the Sekct destroy the hyperbaride plant and oust the Empire from the planet. The Sekct were then allowed to restore their planet and their environment. One of the things which distinguished the Sekct were their two-jointed forelimbs, as each joint was capable of motion in two directions, giving the Sekct a very gangly appearance. They society was quite primitive by modern galactic standards. (POM)

Sekot
this was the Ferroan name for the living part of the planet Zonama Sekot. In reality, Sekot was a living entity in and of itself, and controlled life and death on the world. Sekot had been living in the system for billions of years, and claimed to have seen the formation of the triple-star system in which Zonama Sekot existed. Many Old Republic databases claim that the planet was simply called Sekot, a remnant of the Ferroan term. When Leor Hal first came to the planet, he discovered Sekot's presence, and believed that she was the Potentium. The two established a deep, working relationship in which both worked to ensure Zonama Sekot's privacy and safety. Sekot agreed to provide Hal with information on how to form Sekotan starships, as long as Hal used all profits to purchase huge hyperdrive cores. In this way, they prepared the planet for entry into hyperspace, an extreme escape mechanism. When Leor Hal died, Sekot maintained a hologram of him to give the Zonamans and illusion of continuity. When the planet was attacked by the Far Outsiders, Sekot was forced to use the Sekotan technology to kill them, something she deeply regretted. When Wilhuff Tarkin and Raith Sienar attacked Zonama Sekot in an effort to turn the planet over to Supreme Chancellor Palpatine, Sekot appeared to Anakin Skywalker. The young Jedi padawan had traveled with Obi-Wan Kenobi to discover Vergere's whereabouts. Sekot could take many shapes, and often assumed the guise of Vergere herself to make Anakin more comfortable. Sekot revealed that she controlled all life on the planet, and used her powers to manipulate the weather as well as the positioning of the forests. In that way, Sekot was able to hide the large-scale development of planetary hyperdrives which were installed by the settlers of the planet. In the end, Zonama Sekot was unable to thwart Tarkin's assault, and Sekot was forced to take the planet into hyperspace in order to escape. (RP)

Sekotan Starship
this was the generic term used to describe the incredibly fast starships which were produced on the planet Zonama Sekot, during the last decades of the Old Republic. These ships were organic in nature, and were rumored to be capable of making 0.4 past lightspeed. It was later revealed that these ships were "grown" to a specific master from unique seed-partners which grew around standard starship mechanical parts. The resulting starship was emotionally attached to its master, who controlled the ship by initiating physical contact with it. The development process of these ships was quite intense, and the new master had to be emotionally and mentally ready to accept the burden of ownership. Otherwise, the seed-partners would reject the master. The ships were formed by and extension of Sekot, with the help of immense tree-factories known as Jentari. While not intelligent, Sekotan starships were no doubt alive, and could not survive without the physical and emotional contact of their masters. In order to obtain a ship, a prospective buyer had to locate an agent of Zonama Sekot, who would then arrange for transport to the planet. The planet's exact location was a well-guarded secret, and after the creation process was completed, the buyer had their short-term memory wiped clean to remove any trace of information on the planet or the creation process. After the disappearance of the planet Zonama Sekot some three years after the Battle of Naboo, all Sekotan starships suddenly withered and died, and no others were ever seen in the known galaxy again. This indicated that the living ships also needed a tenuous contact with Sekot itself in order to survive. The development of these starships followed the pattern of the lifecycle of a boras tree, with the seed-partners being forged into seed-disks, then annealed into starship form. (RP)

Sektor 242 NewsLine
this small, highly-accurate, and objective news agency was based in the Outer Rim. It has traditionally been wildly pro-alien, and is deeply supportive of individual rights. These traits were only heightened by the rise of Emperor Palpatine and the New Order. (GG9)

Seku
this Twi'lek female held the rank of Captain within the Hawk-bat pirate command structure. In reality, the Ryloth native was Dia Passik. Seku was easily distinguished by the detailed tattoos which adorned her lekku. During a meeting with Zsinj, during which Castin Donn was discovered within the medical facilities of the Iron Fist, Seku was forced to shoot Donn, much to Dia's dismay. The only thing that kept her sane was the fact that Castin was already near death. (IF)

Sela
1) this thin, nervous woman served the New Republic Navy as Wedge Antilles' second-in-command abaord the Yavin during the assault on Almania. She was a crack shot and an invaluable assistant while on Coruscant. She held the rank of Major at the time of the attack on Almania. (TNR)
2) this star is the primary body of the Seltaine planetary system of Irishi Sector. (SWJ10)

Sela
a group of Imperial cargo freighters assigned to transport a number of TIE Defender prototypes to the Hininbirg. (TIE)

Selab
world on which lives the wisdom trees (or so legend has it), part of the Hapan System. (CPL)

Selab Tree
another name for the wisdom trees native to Selab. (CPL)

Selacron
this world is one of the moons surrounding Selaggis Six, and was ostensibly in the control of Imperial Warlord Zsinj. Five months before the Battle of Selaggis, Zsinj discovered that a group of colonists had taken up residence on the moon. Infuriated, Zsinj punished them as an example to anyone who would dare to colonize a world within his borders, but without his permission. He destroyed the colony entirely, leaving nothing but ruins behind. (SOC, CPL)

Selaggis
this yellow star was located at the center of a solar system containing seven planets. It was located eight light-years from Vahaba and close to the Halmad System. Lara Notsil and Tonin deleted its location from the navigational computer aboard the Iron Fist, hoping that Zsinj would be dragged out of hyperspace by its presence when he fled the battle against Han Solo and the Mon Remonda near Vahaba. Her plan worked, as the Iron Fist tried to flee but was brought out of hyperspace when it encountered the star. (SOC)

Selaggis Six
this yellow-orange gas giant orbited the star Selaggis. It had a heavy debris ring, and was surrounded by several mons. Five months after Zsinj destroyed a colony on the moon of Selacron, Zsinj was forced to flee to Selaggis when he was caught by Han Solo and the Mon Remonda near Vahaba. Lara Notsil had removed Selaggis from the Iron Fist's computers, and Zsinj's fleet was dragged from hyperspace when it encountered Selaggis. (CPL, SOC)

Seland' Ir
this Verpine was exiled from his hive, although he claimed to know nothing of the reasons behind the exile. He later joined the Karazak Slavers Cooperative as a project developer, and used his talents to organization and calculation to ensure that any KSC mission would benefit the overall guild. (GG11)

Selander
a Ripoblus modified CR90 corvette that attacked the Youst station during the Sepan Civil War. (TIE)

Selba
this Old Corellian word was used to describe a youth who was held in high regard by his elders. (BSS)

SELCORE
this was the shorten name of the Senate Select Committee for Refugees, established after the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (JE)

Seldam, Jax
this man was a native of the planet Sevarcos, and although he deplored the Alliance's operational planning, he still supported them whenever he could. He acted as a contact point for Alliance personnel on Sevarcos. Seldam also worked to destroy the operations of Lord Quintas, who was strip-mining Sevarcos in order to obtain more spice for the Empire. (SWJ12)

Seldibia
this was the third moon orbiting the planet Mutanda. (PG1)

Seldom Different
this transport was owned and operated by Elias Halbert. (BSS)

Seldona, Hari
a famous poet from the planet Alderaan, Hari Seldona was performing in the Corellian Sector when the Death Star destroyed her home planet. Her poetry had a distinctive anti-Empire theme, and this caused her to drop out of sight when Alderaan was destroyed. She kept on reading her poetry in public, though, appearing unannounced and speaking out against the Empire. Once the message has been delivered, she quickly escapes the crowds and hides. (ISU)

Seledrood
an Imperial Captain killed in battle. (ISB)

Selenius VII
a planet. (GG10)

Selesin Medicinal Electronics
this small corporation produced a range of equipment that helped doctors and field medics maintain a being's physical well-being. (FOP)

Selestrine
this woman was the Queen of the Icarii at the time when Imperial Commander Karda went rogue. Karda had been ordered to destroy the Icarri by his commanding officer, General Nim, and managed to poison the entire Icarii tribe and kill them. Karda then took Selestrine captive, hoping to gain riches and power through her ability to predict the future. Selestrine, already dismayed by the death of her tribe, tried to commit suicide by taking the same poison Karda had used on them. He discovered her plan before it could be complete, and beheaded her before the poison could destroy her head. A group of medics then encased her head in a life-sustaining casket covered with kneeb hide, and she predicted that General Nim would be killed in action. Her prophecy came true when Nim arrived to claim her head from Karda, and he killed Nim and his guards. Karda fled the Empire as a fugitive. It was during this time the Selestrine foresaw her own fate was held by a dark-shadowed man, but she saw nothing more than that. He made several stops and used several different ships in order to evade pursuit, but Selestrine began telling him of his own future. She predicted that Karda would hunted down and killed by Boba Fett exactly thirty-one days from the day he destroyed the Icarii, and she counted them down on a regular basis. This slowly drove Karda mad over the thirty-one days, during which time he had hidden among the brothers of the Ancient Order of the Pessimists on Maryx Minor. In the end, Selestrine's prophecy was proven correct, as Fett captured and killed Karda on Maryx Minor before taking posession of her disembodied head. However, Darth Vader himself was on Maryx Minor, hoping to take possession of her head. Selestrine realized that Vader was the dark man of her own future. She warned him of Vader's approach, and began taunting him as well. Fett took several strands of her bejeweled hair as a hedge against the future, and set out to defeat Vader. During the struggle between the two armor-clad opponents, Fett managed to retain possession of the small casket, until Vader cornered him at the lip of a lava pit. In an effort to throw off Vader's attacks, Fett kicked the casket into the pit. Selestrine believed she was finally dead, until Vader used the Dark Side of the Force to recover it before it could hit the lava. She then taunted Vader with visions of his own future, hoping that Vader would pay for the knowledge of his future by killing her. In this she was also proven correct, as Vader destroyed her head shortly before Emperor Palpatine ordered it delivered to him personally. (EOE)

Selid, Kleyn
the Imperial Commander guarding the Mount Tantiss project on Wayland, Seldi earned his rank at a young age. He was known for his no-nonsense approach to his duties, and rarely took time off from his job. Although he rankled at being given command of the Mount Tantiss base - considering it mere baby-sitting rather than a real command - he became involved in a battle of wills with Joruus C'baoth after the Guardian appeared on the planet. (TLC, TTSB)

Seline
this remote, outpost world was the site of a Jedi starport during the last decades of the Old Republic. Its facilities were limited, but available to any traveling Jedi who needed assistance. (RP)

Selio
this was the term used by the Krieks to describe their basic family unit. (SWJ13)

Selkren
one of the primary cities on the now-destroyed planet of Demophon, Selkren was domed to keep the harsh environment at bay. (SN)

Sellasas
this planet was under Imperial control shortly after the Battle of Yavin. In their attempt to destroy the Imperial garrison there, the Alliance inadvertently wiped out a large civilian population, including the Srrors'tok village in which Tyionsis Cex lived. (GG10)

Sellbo
the navigator of the old strahip Last Legs. (GG9)

Selle
this dark-skinned, female bounty hunter and her partner Brazzo were killed by Darth Vader on Centares, after they learned that Luke Skywalker had destroyed the first Death Star. (VQ)

Selligore
this large, elephantine creature inhabited the tropical waters of the planet Corsin. Measuring four meters tall at the shoulder and up to twenty meters in length, selligore had colorful hides and were quite harmless despite their size. They lived on the plankton and small fish of their waters. Like other aquatic mammals, selligore could survive underwater for several hours before requiring a breath. Their four feet ended in four long toes, and a fin-like fan covered their dorsal ridge. Their large ears also resembled huge fins, and their long faces ended with four thick trunks. (COG)

Sellis
Sellis was a news anchor for the Andasala Achievement News. (GG11)

Selliwyrm
a timid, snake-like creature that would just as soon run and hide than confront another creature. (SWJ12)

Selnesh
this Imperial prison planet was located in the Seltaine System of Irishi Sector. The surface of the planet was utterly devoid of life, without plants or animals, and had barren, frigid landscape. The prison was contained in several domes which kept good air in and bad air out. This arrangement was often preferred by the Empire, because it made escape from the prison nearly impossible to survive. The average day on Selnesh lasts 37 standard hours, and its year lasts 489 local days. (SWJ10, TFE)

Selona
this was the third month of the Tapani local calendar, which mapped almost directly to the Coruscant local calendar. (PGT)

Selonia
one of the five inhabited planets in the Corellian System, Selonia is an ocean world, home to the Selonian race. The planet is renowned for its poetry. Han Solo tells his children that Selonia is home to all of the Corellian System's sea monsters, because it is the only planet with oceans large enough to hold them. (AC)

Selonia
a New Republic fleet hauler damaged when a poacher's bomb - which had been disguised as a datapad - exploded in her hold. (BTS)

Selonian
one of the three primary races in the Corellian System, the Selonians are tall, strong, and quick. Often referred to as refined, the Selonians are well-muscled and covered with short, sleek fur, giving them a seal-like appearance. They have bristly whiskers on their noses, sharp teeth, and long tails. They are excellent swimmers. Taller and more slender than humans, they have long bodies and short limbs. Selonians are equally comfortable walking upright or on all-fours. Each hand or foot is equipped with retractable claws for climbing or defense. The Selonian race is believed to be descended from a predatory aquatic mammal which lived in riverside burrows, but later dug deeper into the ground and farther from water. Each burrow is inhabited by all members of a Selonian family; collectively, they are called a sept. Each sept is distinguished by its lone ferile male breeder. This male, along with the one fertile female, give birth to the sept's members. All male Selonians are born fertile; one of every hundred Selonians born is a male. Of 500 female Selonians, only one will be fertile. These fertile members of the sept, while revered for their fertility, are forced to remain in the burrows. The sterile females run the day-to-day activities of the sept. Non-familial groupings of Selonians, such as the government, are called dens. Each den is made up of sterile females. The Selonians have learned that dealing with other aliens, especially humans, is dangerous. Thus, only specially-trained females ever leave their burrows and contact the outside world. These females learn Basic in addition to the normal conversational Selonian tongue. All Selonians can also speak a modified language of sounds that is used in their burrows. Its pure sounds are not affected by echoes or other auditory anomalies caused by the burrows. (AC, AS)

Selonian Coneship
any of the hand-built Selonian transport ships, these coneships look like flattened cones. The wide end contains the ship's engines, while the small end contains the cockpit and viewports. The entire ship lands point upward, so that the ship's pilots must face upward on liftoff, rather than foreward as on most horizontal craft. The average coneship measures 20.5 meters in length, and has only enough room for a pilot and two passengers. The New Republic was forced to enact travellers' advisories in the Corellian system whenever a coneship was in flight, due to their unpredictable nature. (AS, CTD)

Selonian Enclave
the name given to the Selonian embassy building in Coronet, on Corellia. The Selonian Enclave was the sight of the first Human League attack on the Selonians in Coronet, following an attack on a Selonian neighborhood in Bela Vistal. (AC)

Selonian Fire
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was part of the fleet dispatched under the command of Admiral Ackbar to liberate the planet Ciutric from Prince-Admiral Krennel. Using the Thrawn Pincer to surprise Krennel's fleet, Ackbar had the Selonian Fire and a sister ship, the Corusca Fire, remain on the far side of the Ciutric System until called for. When Krennel activated the gravity well projectors on the Binder, Ackbar ordered the two Victory ships to microjump forward. The gravity shadow from the Binder pulled them out of hyperspace behind Krennel's fleet, allowing them to pummel Krennel's ships which were also trapped in place by the Interdictor cruiser. (IR)

Seltaya
this planet is the thrid of three world which orbit the star Ropagi. Its orbit is quite a distance from Ropagi and the inner planets, Elpur and Ropagi II. It is a frigid ball of rock. (TSK)

Selth
a member of Glott's bounty hunters. (ROC)

Seltiss-2
this modest caravel design is popular with up-and-coming Hutt figures who are only a few centuries old and have not established themselves as prominent figures. It is a large, space-going barge with a large, overhead sail and a prominent bow. (EGV)

Selton
this was a city located on the planet Naboo. Dren Melne was a native of this city. (SFT)

Seltos
this planet is located in the Seltos Syste, and is known for its production of food, lumber, and precious ores. It is a mountainous world covered in dense forests. It orbits its primary star once every 459 days, which last about 20 standard hours. (RPG, GG12, TSK)

Seltos Planetary Soldiers
this group of law enforcement agents was created when the populace of Seltos overthrew the pro-Imperial government some years after the Battle of Endor. The new government, strongly aligned with the New Republic, established the SPS to help control former Imperial leaders and other dissidents. (TSK)

Seltrayne, Melenna
this young woman grew up an a street urchin on Ord Mantell, and was recruited into the Alliance when she failed in an attempt to pick Koris Haslam's wallet. She became a loyal member of his unit, answering only to Haslam before accepting the orders of the Alliance commanders. She was a pretty, slightly-built woman with blue eyes and blonde hair, and she often used her beauty to draw her targets off their guard. (SWJ10)

Selty
one of the Black Sun criminals working with Grobber during the reign of Zekka Thyne over Black Sun's Corellian interests. (TFE)

Selu
this YT-1300 transport was owned and operated by Twin Suns Transport Service. It was piloted by Aeron Azzameen during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Seluss
this Sullustan pilot worked with the smuggler Jarril, and was Jarril's primary business partner. Seluss once managed to steal the plans to the Millennium Falcon, but he was discovered by Han Solo and forced to return them. He disappeared during the bombing of the Senate Assembly Chamber, and was nowhere to be found when Jarril returned from discussing the Smuggler's Run with Han Solo. Thus, he wasn't aboard the Spicy Lady when it was hijacked by Dolph's agents. Jarril was killed, but Seluss returned to the Run continue Jarril's inquiry into the strange happenings within the Run. He faked his hatred toward Solo to cover his tracks and arrange a meeting with Solo in the Run. He was able to tell Han about the old Imperial equipment being transported through the Run, helping Solo break the mystery of the Run and undermine the efforts of Nandreeson. (TNR)

Semag System
Grand Admiral Thrawn tried to capture Admiral Zaarin in this system, in which the Empire developed its first, working cloaking device. (TIE)

Semmac
a Bakuran Naval Captain, he served under Hortel Ossilege in the siege of Centerpoint Station. (SC)

Semqi Pefis
Vocis Kenit was assigned to this Victory-class Star Destroyer shortly after his graduation from the Imperial Academy on Lianna and his promotion to Junior Lieutenant. (FOP)

Semtin, Marl
this Imperial Captain was distinguished by the metallic cyborg implants which covered his eyes and ears. A man who was frustrated by the Imperial bureaucracy's slow pace, he often worked with the criminal underground to obtain what he needed. Semtin lost his eyes after a deal with the criminal underground went sour. The staunch Imperial was forced to accept Trandoshan eyes are replacements when a raid on BioTech Industries' base on Ambria - at his direction - failed to produce a human pair. He was in command of the Victory-class Star Destroyer Harrow shortly after the Battle of Endor, and was one of the few Imperial officers who knew of the location of the Eidolon. He had researched the disappearance of the ship, and eventually discovered the truth. He threatened to blackmail Sate Pestage, and the vizier offered him a portion of the cache as payment for keeping the secret. Semtin maintained a small detachment of officers on Tatooine in hopes of securing the Eidolon Base cache for himself, and managed to capture Firith Olan before the Twi'lek could discover Eidolon Base himself. He brought the alien back to Ryloth, in an attempt to draw off Rogue Squadron's interest in Eidolon Base. He later brought out a group of elite special forces under the command of Sixtus Quin, in order to eliminate the Rogues. Once Semtin's treachery in using Olan to further his own plans for domination were discovered by Sixtus' men, they hunted Semtin down at Eidolon Base. Sixtus executed Semtin as soon as he was captured. (XWBT, HXW)

Sen
an Imperial assault transport group dispatched to Venzeiia 2 Prime. (TIE)

Senali
1) this ocean-covered planet was a nearby neighbor of Rutan, and was once a colony world established by the Rutanians. Note that Senali is described as an "orbital satellite" of Rutan in Jedi Apprentice: The Shattered Peace, but is later described as a planet with four moons. The planet's four moons create intense tidal variation, creating swift currents in the oceans. In a violent and catastrophic civil war, Senali won its independence in a stunning upset. However, the war left both worlds devastated. The government of Rutan agreed to recognize Senali as a unique world, and both agreed to work together for peace. In an effort to continue the peace, it was agreed that the first-born child of each generation of the ruling houses on both worlds would travel to the other world once they reached the age of seven. They would remain on the other planet for nine years, learning about the other society. During this time, the children were allowed to receive visitors from, and occasionally visit, their homeworld, so that they never forgot their heritage. At the age of sixteen, the youths were allowed to return home in preparation for taking over as ruler of their homeworld. Another member of the royal family moved to the other world until the next generation was born. This arrangement worked well for many years. (SP)
2) this was the name adopted by those Rutanians who colonized the moon of Senali and then won their independence in a bloody civil war. Although they were descended from Rutanian stock, they had a silvery coloration to their skin from tiny scales which had evolved over the generations. Senali also wore their hair shorter than the Rutanians. As a society, the Senali tried to do away with titles and the trappings of office, in an effort to ensure that every member of society wsa equal. Where their ancestors the Rutanians preferred to hunt and kill for sport, the Senali chose to hunt only to obtain food. Any food which was left over from a hunt was distributed to other families, so that no part of a kill was wasted. About twelve years before the Battle of Naboo, the Senali people became divided when Prince Leed of Rutan decided to remain on Senali. One faction argued that he should be allowed to do as he wished, since it was legally his decision. The other faction wanted him to return to Rutan, thereby ensuring the relative peace between the Rutanians and the Senalis. In the end, Leed was given the chance to remain on Senali, and the leaders of the two planets re-established the peace. (SP)

Senate Assembly Chamber
1) this huge, multi-tiered auditorium was located near the Imperial Palace on Coruscant. It was crowned by a beautiful stained-glass ceiling. The New Republic used this building to convene the full Senate body on a regular basis. Much of the seating was left over from the days of Emperor Palpatine, and did not quite accommdate many alien species. It was in this building, during a full Senate meeting, that Dolph triggered the detonation devices that were hidden in many of the Senators' personal droids. The resulting combination of explosions destroyed a great deal of the Chamber, and killed a large number of Senators. The initial blasts did a fair amount of damage, but the stained glass of the ceiling was never meant to withstand such a blast. The support structure and most of the glass rained down on the beings convened there, inflicting many lacerations and cuts, many of which were fatal. (TNR)
2) this huge, oblate building dominated the center of Galactic City on Coruscant during the Old Republic. The structure measured two full kilometers in diameter. Within its walls, the Senate debated on every aspect of galactic politics. 1,024 repulsor-equipped platforms were arranged around the chamber walls, allowing a delegation to move into the center of the chamber and address the entire chamber. Radiating out behind the bay of each repulsor platform was a long chamber which provided each Senator with an environment that suited their natural worlds. The Chancellor, the Vice Chariman, and their immediate staff presided over the Senate chamber in a centrally-located spire which was topped with an open array of seats and stood 30 meters tall. In order to ensure that everything was done according to procedure, Senate cam droids floated throughout the chamber, recording speeches and monitoring votes while providing real-time coverage of all debates. These droids also piped audio to a central computer, which could send translated audio streams to the other delegates. (IG1, IWE1)

Senate Budgetary Committee
once part of the Imperial Senate, they were responsible for authorizing the dispensing of credits to various groups within the Old Republic and, later, the Empire. This committee was disbanded along with the entire Senate, by Emperor Palpatine. (WEG)

Senate Cam Droid
this was the generic term used to describe the small, repulsor-equipped droids which monitored the Senate proceedings of the Old Republic. Built to be unobtrusive, these droids had audio and video pickups which allowed them to provide real-time coverage of the Seante's proceedings. The coverage was also recorded for future reference. Audio was fed to a central conputer, which could then provide translated audio to the other Senators. A small number of these droids were assigned to individual Senators, while the majority were allowed to move about the chamber and record the debates. (SW1, IG1)

Senate District
this area of Imperial City on Coruscant was centered around the old Senate chamber. (RP)

Senate Guard
this is the order of stoic, blue-armored guards who protected the members of the Old Republic Senate. Their armor is distinctive, and is often considered to be one of the design cues used by the Imperial Royal Guards. A select unit of the Senate Guard was charged with protecting the Supreme Chancellor of the Republic. (IG1)

Senate Hill
located in Imperial City, on Coruscant, Senate Hill was formed by a series of small, unimposing monuments to the justice and glory of Old Republic. When Palpatine rebuilt much of Imperial City, he left Senate Hill alone, preferring to dwarf its significance with the sheer size of the Imperial Palace. (XWN)

Senate Justice Council
this body, formed from the ranks of the New Republic Senate, was charged with ensuring that the Republic acted legally in its endeavors. (JE)

Senate Planetary Intelligence Network
known as SPIN, this is a secret organization created by the Alliance after the death of Emperor Palpatine to uncover pockets of Imperial resistance in the galaxy. It was based on Yavin 4, until Trioculus razed the moon in his effort to locate the Lost City of the Jedi. SPIN was relocated from Yavin 4 to a location on Mount Yoda, on Dagobah, before Mon Mothman disbanded it in favor of other important missions. (GDV, MMY, EGC)

Senate Select Committee for Refugees known as SELCORE, this New Republic Senate-approved committee was formed to address the problems of the incredible number of refugees who were forced to flee their homeworlds in the face of the Yuuzhna Vong invasion. The committee held the Conclave on the Plight of the Refugees in order to gain the agreement of planets to house, feed, and protect the refugees. Their ultimate goal was to establish species-specific enclaves for the peoples of the Tingel Arm and the Corporate Sector, matching compatible species in order to help maximize space. (HT, JE)

Senate*-class Transport
this was one of the most luxurious transport ships developed during the last years of the Old Republic. (RP)

Sencil Corporation
a droid manufactured based on Churba, it was nationalized by the Empire in an effort to control Mid-Rim droid markets. (SWAJ)

Sencker, Lindu
an Imperial scientist, Dr. Sencker was approached by Geothray Camber. Camber prodived Sencker with the scandocs and specifications to the hyperspace orbiting scanner, which he hoped Sencker's team could build. Sencker's team was able to successfully implement the complex technology put forth by Camber. (ISB)

Sendarl Electronics
this Esselian manufacturer was an industrial giant in Darpa Sector during the New Order. When the fringe rebel group known as the Faceless began attacking Imperial outposts and claiming that the Empire was decidedly pro-Human, Sendarl's mainly alien workforce went on strike. The company's plants were virtually shut down, and operated only with droid labor until Kanno Sebak negotiated an end to the strike. (SWJ9)

Sendo
this Imperial General in the Intelligence Bureau's Destabilization Branch was a do-nothing officer on Prince Xizor's payroll. Sendo reported pertinent information to Black Sun for a regular fee. (SE)

Sener
this Imperial Security Bureau agent recommended that Tamaron Rill's daughter would be the perfect bounty hunter to locate Tamaron himself, who was wanted in connection with "rebellious activities." (GG10)

Seneria, Jullisa
this girl was the daughter of Yasil Seneria. While playing, she inadvertently slipped off a ledge, but managed to grab a piece of wood and hold on. Her screams were overheard by her father and a roving lepusa. Before her father could reach her, the lepusa fashioned a rope from a length of vine and dangled it down to her. After she grabbed hold, the lepusa pulled her up and out of harm's way. Then, the creature disappeared. (COG)

Senerio, Yasil
this man was a farm manager on the planet Freliq during the Galactic Civil War. He was one of the strongest supporters of the idea that the lepusa were intelligent, especially after he witnessed a lepusa's problem-solving and tool-using skills when it rescued his daughter from a ledge. (COG)

Senesca, Zev
Zev grew up on Kestic Station, near Bestne. He and his parents were sympathetic to the Alliance, and worked to supply the Alliance with arms. When the Empire discovered their gun-running scheme, the Star Destroyer Merciless was sent to destroy the station. Zev was able to escape the destruction, and joined the Alliance soon after. He singlehandedly held off three TIE fighters during the Alliance's evacuation of the Alis Point base. He later served at the Alliance outpost on Hoth, and was the snowspeeder pilot who found

Han Solo and Luke Skywalker after they had been stuck outside all night. Unfortunately, Zev was killed in the battle. Zev was portrayed by Christopher Malcom in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back. (ESB, SWSB, MTS)

Senex Sector
an area of the galaxy found in the Outer Rim Territories, it has been ruled by a number of familial houses since it was settled. It is located near the Juvex Sector and the Ninth Quadrant. (COJ)

Senex System
site of an Imperial Training Center during the Galactic Civil War. Alliance pilot Dev, during one of his training missions, ended up in the system and destroyed the fleet stationed there. (XW)

Senko Systems
manufacturers of starshi weapons components, including the Tru-Lok 5000 laser cannon. (HTSB)

Senn
this Imperial Admiral patrolled Airam Sector during the Galactic Civil War. He was in command of the Super-class Star Destroyer Vengeance. (XVT)

Senna
this is the first planet in the Kessel System, and is a smouldering, boiling rock. (JASB)

Sennari
a deadly poison often used to coat the end of darts and arrows. Jodo Kast was one of the most well-known individuals to use it. (TM)

Senni
this member of Korren Starchaser's scouting team served as a sensor officer. (SWJ13)

SensAll
this active sensor array, manufactured by Siep-Irol, was used in the Explorer submergible. (CFG)

Sense
the second of the three Jedi Force skills, the ability to Sense is how a Jedi recognizes the Force in the universe around him. This flow of the Force tells the Jedi information about their surroundings. (SWSB, IJ)

SenseLights
this form of lighting was known for its hypnotic, mood-altering patterns and colors. The technology was developed by Lytos Urtell, who created them expressly for the Glow Dome on Adarlon. (WSV)

Sensis, Maxina
this eager, young xenoarchaeologist was attached to the New Republic's Daxis Outpost, where she was the Chief of Research. Before this posting, she had planned to work as a researcher for a Corporate Sector employer. However, when she saw the promotional holovid for the New Republic Scout Service, she was hooked. She was also a close friend and respected colleague of Korren Starchaser. So, when Starchaser and his scout team discovered The Gulch in the Serianan Asteroid Belt, he brought her in immediately to investigate. A native of the Parkis System, Maxina also had a vast knowledge of the history of galactic exploration. She hoped that further scout teams would venture to the Serianan asteroids, but had to wait until the New Republic supplied them. (SWJ8)

Sensor
any of the various shipboard systems used to detect the presence of other ships or stellar bodies in the vicinity. There are many different kinds of sensors, including full-spectrum transceivers, electrophoto receptors, and hyperwave signal interceptors. (SCRE, SWSB)

Sensor Blind
unlike traditional countermeasures which try to conceal an object or interfere with sensor operation, sensor blinds attempt to disguise an object by emitting energy patterns to make it appear natural. (HAS)

Sensor Decoy
a remote probe-like device which is ejected from its parent ship and emits the same broadcast signals as the parent ship. The parent ship can then run silent, and any pursuit shis would pick up the sensor decoy and follow it. Sensor decoys are virtually impossible to determine. (WEG)

Sensor Pallet
a starship's complete scanning system, the sensor pallet consists of all the sensory systems employed by a starship. (WEG)

Sensor Star
this five-armed, aquatic mollusk was native to the planet F'tral. The five arms surrounded a central body section, which was studded with a number of sensory appendages. They live in groups of 20-30 individuals, using their collection of arms to herd small reptiles, fish, and insects. They seem to communicate via a series of subsonic tones which were inaudible to most humanoid races, but could be detected using specialized equipment. Scientists discovered that the "language" of the sensor stars included combinations of tones for concepts like “emergency,” “storm,” and “food.” This allowed determined groups to actually use the sensor star as a primitive sensor system. (COG)

Sensor Stealth
another term for running a starship without generating any emissions, in order to escape detection. This requires the ship to run on main battery power, and is extremely power-consuming. If the main generators are not put back online soon, the ship will be adrift without life support. (SWSB)

Sensor Suite
another term for a sensor pallet, it denotes a starship's complete scanning system. (HSE)

Sensor Switch
a casino coin game. (HSE)

Sensorscope
this full-spectrum transceiver was used in many droids, primarily the R2 series. It includes electro-photoreceptors, dedicated energy receptors, and heat and motion sensors. The sensorscope interfaces directly with the Intellex IV internal computer, which processes the data received. (CCG4)

Sensory Plug-in a device which allows a droid to interface with computers, sensors, and other data systems. (SME)

Senth
this is the nineteenth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "s". (SWM)

Sentient Tank
another name for a tank droid. (DE1)

Sentinel
huge beings used to guard the Emperor's palace on Byss, the Sentinels first appeared when the Emperor had hunted down and captured Ashka Boda. The Sentinels materialized on the battlefield and escorted the fallen Jedi Master to Coruscant. Since then, wild speculation has surrounded the unknown origins of the Sentinels. They are, in fact, clones which have been mutated by the Emperor's Dark Side Adepts. Odd chemicals and the Dark Side of the Force twist the poor beings into slaves that obey the Adepts until they are destroyed. (DE1, DESB)

Sentinel
1) one of Grand Admiral Thraan's Interdictor-class ships, the Sentinel was used at the Battle of Bilbringi (TLC)
2) one of three Bakura-class destroyers deployed by Hortel Ossilege, in an effort to assist the New Republic in breaking the blockade of the Corellian System. (AS, CTD)
3) this Victory-class Star Destroyer was part of the Imperial fleet which patrolled the Wroona System during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War. (PSG)

Sentinel Beetle
this small insect was engineered by the Yuuzhan Vong. They were bred in huge numbers, and were created to beat their wings furiously when an intruder is encountered. The wing-song created sounded like an alarm, and alerted the Yuuzhan Vong to the intruder's presence. (DTO)

Sentinel IV
this heavy blaster pistol was produced by the Caelli-Merced Syndicate. (BSS)

Sentinel*-class Landing Craft
this Sienar Fleet Systems' design was derived from the Lambda-class shuttle, retaining the Lambda's triple-wing design. As with the Lambda, the Sentinel's two lower wings fold during landing. The Sentinel differs from the Lambda in terms of cargo space and weapons. There are eight retractable laser cannons mounted on the hull, two concussion missile launchers, a retractable ion cannon, and a pair of retractable repeating blaster cannons mounted beneath the cockpit. This weapons system of retractable mounts means the Sentinel-class is sleek and aerodynamic when swift transport is needed, but it can handle its own in a fight. The Sentinel also has enhanced armor plating for defense. The 20-meter-long central section of the Sentinel is widened and elongated to allow for the transport of up to 54 soldiers and six speeder bikes, and drives the length of the craft to 20 meters. The Sentinel-class was introduced after the Battle of Yavin, and never became widely used in the Imperial fleet. Following the Battle of Endor, SFS allowed Cygnus SpaceWorks to build their own version of the Sentinel, and the craft became available to private, pro-Imperial concerns. In this way, it also found its way into New Republic fleets via front companies. (EG V, SWSE, CCG9, MTSE)

Senwannus'gourkahipaff known as Sen for short, he is the senior Elder in the Oswaft society when Lando Calrissian first meets Lehesu. He is just over 1,000 meters in width, making him the largest Oswaft in the ThonBoka. During the Imperial blockade of the ThonBoka, he plays sabacc with Lando as Lando outlines a plan to break the blockade. Being somewhat more forward-thinking than his counterparts, Sen agrees with Lando's plan to fight back without violence, and it helps break the blockade in the end. Sen then asked Lehesu to become one of the rulers of the Oswaft society, fearing that his conservative nature almost cost them their lives. The apostrophe in his name represents twelve other syllables in his name, which he is too modest to use. (LCS)

Seoul
Tapper Quelev's alias when he and Talon Kaarde tried to infiltrate the Morodin safari business of Gamgalon while on Tropis-on-Varont. (EGC)

Sepan Civil War
a protracted internal battle between the Dimoks and the Ripoblus, Following the Imperial victory at Hoth, the Empire began expanding its control over these sorts of warring systems. The Empire intervened in the civil war, with the Dimoks opposing them while the Ripoblus tended to wlecome their presence. However, growing Imperial domination forced both sides to drop their gripes with the other and band together against the Empire. Both sides were defeated, and the civil war was ended. (TIE)

Sepan System
the planetary system which is home to the Dimoks and Ripoblus. (TIE)

Sepan 8
the planet, located in the Sepan System, on which Ripoblus and Dimok politicians met to discuss a joint offensive against the Empire. (TIE)

Sept
this was the name used by the Selonians to describe individual units within a den. All offspring sired by the same fertile male were considered part of the sept. (AE)

Septaas
this immense human was a member of Marl Semtin's special forces stormtrooper battalion. Septaas accompanied Sixtus Quin to Ryloth, where they were involved in virtual combat with Rogue Squadron by Cazne'Olan. The Imperials defeated the Rogues, but the simulation resulted in a no-contest when Cazne'Olan wiped out all combatants in a firestorm. Upon returning to Tatooine, Septaas defected to the New Republic when Sixtus Quin exposed Semtin's treachery. (XWBT)

Septapus
a seven-tentacled seas creature native to Z'trop, the septapus is a herbivorous creature with five glowing eyes. They are timid in nature, contrary to the fact that Han Solo claims to have been attacked by one in the past. (MMY)

Septevorres System
this star system, locate in the Outer Rim, has three stars at its center. (GG9)

Septoid
an insect native to the planet Eriadu. (CCG)

Septsilk
a wondrous fabric used to make expensive robes. (DH)

Sequencer Charge
this portable mine can be placed on the ground or near doors. Acitvated by time-delay or promixity sensors, the sequencer charge has much more destructive capability that a thermal detonator or IM mine. (DF2)

Sera
this man was a scientist who worked for Karflo Corporation, and he was a contemporary of Trem DeSelvaine. They were also intense rivals, and both had been warned by Karflo executives to tone down their struggles to outdo each other. While DeSelvaine was discovering everything he could about the Polydroxol people, Sera developed a toxin which Administrator Renerdat approved for use in killing the Polydroxol on their homeworld of Sevetta. It was rumored that Polly, the Polydroxol individual DeSelvaine studied, killed Sera and everyone aboard their research station during its attempt to escape. (SWJ12)

Serat
a temperate planet, Serat was the homeworld of the Seratians. (COG)

Seratian
this alien race was native to the planet Serat. (COG)

Serbo-bracket
this component of a repulsorlift engine is used to aqdjust the suspension properties of a landspeeder. (CFG)

Serdo
this Twi'lek was the original owner of the Firerider. He was regarded as a respectable and reputable businessbeing, providing transport services to local and Imperial officials, which helped cover his more clandestine role as spice smuggler. After making his fortune, Serdo retired, and sold the Firerider to Fizzi's Slightly Used Ships on Trevi IV. (SS)

Sere Lure
this Sluissi engineer was a member of Hydrospeare Corporation's Design Team Beta during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. As chief systems engineer, she had contacts on Sluis Van which allowed her to actually use certain facilities on the planet for Imperial research projects. She was nearly captured by Alliance operatives at the Hydrospeare laboratories on Golh, but barely escaped with her life. (AIR)

Seregar
this jungle planet was located in the Outer Rim. During the last decades of the Old Republic, several corporations established mining operations on the planet. (ND)

Serendina Wriggler
this small creature is a favorite fingerfood of many Hutts. (THG)

Serenity
Thrawn tried to trap Zaarin near this planet by leaking false fleet movements involving it. (TIE)

Serhan
this was the name of the northeastern desert found on the planet Escabar. (COG)

Seri
this Gallofree medium transport was used by the Alliance to transport bacta during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Serianan Asteroid Belt
this incredibly large belt of debris is located within the Serianan System of the Outer Rim Territories. It is situated between the first planet, Serias, and the outer three worlds, but constitutes more than half the star system's overall size. Scouts from the New Republic, led by Korren Starchaser, discovered that the asteroids were most likely the result of several planetary collisions, rather than randomly collected space debris. Many of the asteroids are marked with huge glyphs and runes. Located within the belt is a huge asteroid that contains the formation known as the Gulch. (SWJ8)

Serias
this planet, the first in the Serianan System of the Outer Rim, is the only habitable planet in the system. In between Serias and the three outermost worlds is an enormous asteroid belt which takes up more than half the star system. Sensor readings provided by Korren Starchaser and his team of scouts indicate the the asteroid belt was formed as a result of several planetary collisions. Within the belt of asteroids was a huge planetoid that contained the Gulch. (SWJ8)

Series III
this blaster pistol was manufactured by the Caelli-Merced Syndicate. It was only available for sale on Socorro, or through the black market. (BSS)

Series IV Picket Ship
this large starship was manufactured by Cindev during the last years of the Old Republic. (HXW)

Series 401 Hyperdrive Motivator
a top-of-the-line starship component produced during the early years of the New Republic. (BTS)

Serimerl
this near-human woman was a mystery to everyone, even the Hutts who employed her. Jabba and his underlings gave her the name "Serimerl," a term which denoted her allegiance to the Hutts. Jabba placed her at the head of one of his dummy organizations, and Serimerl quickly proved to be a loyal worker. Upon Jabba's death, she was unable to take a large part of the Hutt's empire. However, she commanded a great deal of loyalty, and she decided to make life hard for the Alliance and the fledgling New Republic, in an effort to avenge Jabba's death at the hands of Leia Organa. She and her followers assassinated many high-ranking officials of the New Republic, creating an undercurrent of mistrust and discontent among many member worlds. (GG11)

Sernpidal
this planet, the third in the Julevian System, was the most populated planet in its Outer Rim sector. This made it the first major strike along the Yuuzhan Vong's Vector Prime. It had two moons: a huge moon, nearly one-fifth the size of Sernipdal itself; and Dobido, which only measured twenty kilometers in diameter. The Yuuzhan Vong placed a dovin basal in the center of Sernpidal City and used it to draw Dobido into an ever-closer orbit. Eventually, Dobido crashed into Sernpidal, destroying both worlds. The impact stripped away huge portions of Sernpidal's surface, completely burned away its atmosphere, and created a belt of large planetoids in its orbit. However, this did not diminish the usefulness of the planet to the Yuuzhan Vong. They brought in a swarm of snail-like creatures to refine the larger chunks into usable materials, and set about constructing a huge warship from the rubble. The Yuuzhan Vong referred to this construction as a shipwomb. (VP, DTR)

Sernpidal City
the capital of the planet Sernpidal, this city was the impact site of the moon Dobido, when the Yuuzhan Vong sought to destroy the planet. The mayor of the city, a wisened old man, discovered the location of a dovin basal placed in the city to draw Dobido into position to strike sernpidal. He was helped by Han and Anakin Solo. When he realized that there was nothing they could do to stop Dobido's impending strike, the mayor took a thermal detonator and destroyed the creature, giving his life to provide extra time to evacuate his people. (VP)

Seron's Castle
this was the name of the pirate base established by Gornt Seron on the planet Korbin. It was hidden in the cliffs of the mountains that ring the planet's equatorial region, near Pleasant City. (WBC)

Serooin's Gear
this equipment store, located on the planet Betha II in the planet's primary starport, was run by a Squib named Arrejis Mellaha. (SWJ8)

Serpent Masters
these warriors, the paramilitary forces of Tyrann, rode flying serpents which they controlled with ultrasonic signals generated from a medallion worn around their necks. (CSW)

Serpent Rain
this intense, dramatic play was written by Thalos Lorin, and chronicled the life of a woman who became one of the Empire's bloodiest bounty hunters. (GG10)

Serpent's Smile
this old ship was one of the Victory-class Star Destroyers serving under the Warlord Zsinj, during the early years of the New Republic. When Han Solo and the Mon Remonda tried to capture Zsinj at Vahaba, he sent the Serpent's Smile and the Red Gauntlet to attack the Stellar Web. Solo responded by attached the Skyhook and Crynyd to the defense of the Stellar Web, and their firepower easily destroyed the aging ship. (SOC)

Serper, Wyron
this Alliance undercover agent was a sensor specialist, and once infiltrated the Imperial Star Destroyer Avenger. He served Hoth's Echo Base as a sensor and communications expert, using his knowledge of Imperial starship sensor images to filter out possible Imperial starships from the Hoth asteroids. (CCG3)

Serpine
during the last decades of the Old Republic, the Serpine was known for its immense gambling palaces. (RP)

Serprine
this woman was a corporate pilot for Nebula Consumables. She was strikingly beautiful, and most men considered her even more attractive in her Nebual uniform. She held independent spacers and smugglers in low regard, and often went out of her way to attract them and then use them to her own ends. (PSG)

Serrata
this gas giant is a near-star located in the Elrood Sector. It is the eighth planet in the Derilyn System. Its mass is growing, and will soon be dense enough to induce fusion. (PG)

Serrian Salt
a strong spice. (WEG)

Serridge
manufacturers of large-scale shield generators for capital ships. (SCRE)

Sertim, Darci
this woman, along with her twin sister Marci and older sister Gayle, controlled an independent group of mercenaries during the height of the Galactic Civil War. They were hired by Vost Tyne as "civilian security consultants" at the hyperbaride plant on Marca. The twins are given the position of leadership when Gayle was killed, but were told her death was at the hands of the Alliance. Neither sister was aware of the true nature of Gayle's death, and remained loyal to Tyne and the Empire until a group of Alliance agents crash-landed on the planet and discovered computer records of Tyne's involvement with Gayle's death. Darci and Marci immediately decided to help the Alliance agents, and it was Darci who suggested the enlistment of the Sekct in overthrowing Tyne. However, she was later captured by Tyne and held as a hostage against the Alliance team. (POM)

Sertim, Gayle
this woman, along with her younger sisters Marci and Darci, ran a group of mercenaries which provided security services. They were hired by Arviz Linden to protect the hyperbaride plant on Marca, and Gayle became enamored of Linden. Their relationship was discovered by Vost Tyne, who had executed Linden in order to take control of the plant. In an effort to ensure loyalty, Tyne sent Gayle off-planet on business, but had her shuttle rigged with a remote-detonated Thermex charge. Tyne told Marci and Darci that their sister was killed by Alliance agents, effectively turning them against the Alliance. Computer records of Gayle's death were later discovered by Alliance agents, who turned the information over to Darci and Marci. (POM)

Sertim, Marci
this woman, along with her twin sister Darci and older sister Gayle, controlled an independent group of mercenaries during the height of the Galactic Civil War. They were hired by Vost Tyne as "civilian security consultants" at the hyperbaride plant on Marca. The twins are given the position of leadership when Gayle was killed, but were told her death was at the hands of the Alliance. Neither sister was aware of the true nature of Gayle's death, and remained loyal to Tyne and the Empire until a group of Alliance agents crash-landed on the planet and discovered computer records of Tyne's involvement with Gayle's death. Darci and Marci immediately decided to help the Alliance agents. However, their plans were quickly discovered by Tyne, who captured the sisters and imprisoned Marci. She was later freed by the Alliance agents, and set the plant's hyperbatteries to overload and destroy the plant. (POM)

Serv-O-Droid
a defunct droid manufacturer, Serv-O-Droid built the JV-Z1 series of domestic droids. They also manufactured the CZ series of communications droids. They were one of the original non-voting contributing sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority, but went out of business shortly after signing the CSA charter. (DESB, CCG, CSA)

Servant
a model of Ubrikkian repulsorlift/ion engine used in their Talon I combat cloud car. (EGV)

Service Scout
this was the term used to describe any galactic scout or explorer who worked directly for the New Republic Scout Service. Unlike corporate scouts or independent scouts, the service scout reported directly to, and was paid by, the New Republic. They receive training from the New Republic military, and those scouts which prefer to remain soldiers are often given the chance to become a Scout Soldier. (GG8)

Service Special Energy Projector
an extremely high-powered, hand-held blaster weapon. It is small enough to be easily concealed, but it has the power output of a starship laser cannon. It has been compared in power to one of a quad-laser batteries four cannons. (LCF)

Servo-lifter
this was a type of bipedal labor droid which found widespread use during the Old Republic. (E1A4)

Servodriver
the small power tool used to tighten or loosen bolts, screws, and fastners. (SW)

Servogrip
1) a starship mechanic's tool, similar to a pair of pliers. They employ a servo-mechanism to produce greater gripping force (HSE)
2) the mechnical grips used as hands by many droids. (HSL)

Servomotor
the small device which moves a droid's appendages. (SW, COTF)

Sesfan
a Mon Calamari, he is Ackbar's representative to the New Republic's General Council. Earlier, Sesfan had joined the Alliance just six months prior to the Battle of Endor, and served as Ackbar's sensor officer during the battle. Ackbar was impressed with his abilities, and retained his services after the establishment of the Republic. He suffered from Mon Calamari Nerveshock, which he somehow contracted as an adult. The disease seemed to be in remission during much of his career, a fact that allowed him to continue as Ackbar's aide. (TLC, TTSB)

Sesid
this oceanic world, the primary planet in the Sesid System, is the homeworld of the Draedan race. (GG12)

Sespe
this star was the central body in the Sespe System. (SSR)

Sess'Inu
this was the only unconnected continent on the planet Mutanda. (PG1)

Sessehshellah
known as the Sesseh', these aliens resemble giant river otters. They have limited technology, and were no match for the Empire, which took over their homeworld of Shaymore and irresponsibly mined off most of its fossil hydrocarbon fuels. The Sesseh' asked the Alliance to help them remove the Imperial yolk, which was accomplished quickly. (RPG)

Sesswe
this city is located near Lianna, on the planet Lianna. (ML)

Sesswenna Sector
Grand Moff Tarkin ruled here for awhile, and it was here that he developed the Tarkin Doctrine of "rule by fear." (ISB)

Sesto
this was one of four inhabited continents found on the planet Garnib. (PG1)

Sestooine
Aurin Leith posed as an innocent travelled, bound for Sestooine, as part of Lieutenant Haslam's plan to infiltrate the Imperial prison on Selnesh and rescue Gebnerret Vibrion. (TFE)

Seth, Jeng
this truly psychopathic individual forms the Skulls swoop gang while growing up in the lawless back alleys of Stend VI. (GG9)

Setor
this planet was once the site of Weytin's Colony. The colony suffered from persecution and exile while there, and began searching for a new planet during the New Order. (GG2)

Sette, Urlor
this huge, well-muscled, bearded man was imprisoned at the Lusankya facility before Corran Horn was sent there. He was assigned to the mines, and supported Jan Dodonna's unofficial leadership of the prisoners. It was Urlor who brought Horn before Dodonna, when Corran was sent to the mines. Later, after Corran escaped, Ysanne Isard's clone used Urlor to provoke Rogue Squadron into a fight. She had Sette implanted with a specialized device which dumping a huge amount of neurotoxin into his bloodstream whenever Corran said his name. She then placed Sette aboard the Home One, just after the Battle of Bilbringi. Isard's clone had discovered plans for a post-battle celebration, and had Sette seek out Corran. Sette then epxlained that he had a message for Corran, but couldn't remember his own name. In this way, Isard guaranteed that Corran would be the one to "kill" Sette. In the end, when Corran said his name, Sette was viciously killed by the neurotoxin and died in Corran's arms. Iella Wessiri and Wedge Antilles traced the components used to build the injection system back to Commenor, but they were simply following evidence planted by Isard's clone. They managed to arrive ahead of the clone's schedule, rescuing several other survivors of the Lusankya and gathering a great deal of data on the clone's plans. (KT, IR)

Settlement Thirty-Two
one of the many domed cities erected on the surface of the palnet Duro, this synthplas dome served to house refugees who were fleeing the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. The dome, like other such refugee cities, was located beneath one of Duro's twenty orbital stations, protected by the planetary shield that contained the station. Thirty-two was constantly at odds with Gateway, as each dome tried to obtain the other's supplies in an escalating struggle to feed its inhabitants. The dome's integrity was destroyed when the Vong infiltrated a mutating insect straing into the settlement, which evolved quickly into a flying bug which had an acidic saliva. The bugs attacked the synthplas dome, melting holes in it. The New Republic barely got the refugees out of the dome before it was holed. (BP)

Settov Hammer
a strong alcoholic beverage. (ML)

Sev Tok
this planet, which maintained an Imperial allegience following the Battle of Endor, was the site of Xalto Sneerzick's death. (SWJ9)

Sevarcos
this planet is the second which orbits the star Lumea, and is most famous for its production of two kinds of spice: the common, white andris and the rare, black carsunum. During the New Order, the Empire established a penal colony on the planet, supplementing their production of spice while maintaining an air of seclusion to Sevarcos. Much of the planet was ruled by the so-called Spice Lords of Sevarcos, a group made up from the leaders of the various criminal empires based on the planet. (SWJ2, SWJ12)

Sevari
the human inhabitants of Sevarcos. (SWAJ)

Sevari Cabal
an Old Republic colony ship that originally settled the planet Sevarcos. (SWAJ)

Sevari Flashpistol
a small, holdout weapon. (KT)

Sevark
this is the Gree term used to describe any Gree who serves as an intermediary between Gree guild masters and non-Gree clients. They translate their clients' needs to the guild masters, and also provide general escort and translation services to visitors to the Gree Enclave. The caste of sevarks developed recently, as the Imperial expansion of the galaxy led to greater traffic through the Gree Enclave. Their services are often quite expensive, but they are the only providers of this service. (SWJ8)

Seven Flames Base
this Alliance base was located near Karra. (SWJ1)

Seventh Security Zone
a section of the galaxy containing Walalla. (BTS)

Seventy-Seven Stars
this Lantilian cruiser was owned by the Twi'lek To'iir. (SWJ10)

Severindas, Reshton
this man was the leader of the Ragnar Bounty Hunter Syndicate during the New Order. (GG10)

Sevetta
this planet was a toxic world of intense volcanic activity and a poisonous, chemical-filled atmosphere. Nevertheless, life emerged on the planet in the form of the Polydroxol species. (SWJ12)

Sevik
this Corellian conman worked with the Qwohog K'zk to swindle passage from Diergo-Rea Duhnes'rd, thereby financing a treasure hunt to the Zelosian Chine. Sevik and his partner, Hanugar, pretended to be shipwrecked vacationers, and were picked up by K'zk's crew before they reached the Chine. (TFNR)

Seville, Darion
this aging woman was the matriarch of the Seville clan, known for its criminal empire. Darion herself had a penchant for gladiator droid battles, but often used protocol droids instead of full-sized gladiators. She was nearly killed when one of her warrior droids, a conglomeration known MdZ-BLK, got tired ot the endless battles and attacked her. Her son, Yearo, ionized the droid and saved her. (CRO)

Seville, Yearo
this pirate first joined a gang at a very young age, and had killed his hundredth man by the time he was fifteen. Yearo was the son of Darion Seville, herself a ruthless matriarch, His cunning and cold-hearted nature led him to form his own gang of pirates, and he was generally regarded as the most blood-thirsty criminals in Rayter Sector during the New Order. He manipulated people extensively, and his own subordinates have become paranoid that their work would not be accepted by Seville. Yearo was a typical “swashbuckler,” carrying a gold-plated blaster and an ornate walking stick, and wearing expensive, outlandish clothing. Nine parallel scars slash across his left cheek, although it is unknown how he received the. He once saved his mother from a rogue gladiator droid attack, and had the droid sent to Gorbu the Hutt as a "gift." The droid, MdZX-BLK, eventually killed Gorbu, thereby eliminating one of Seville's rivals. Seville was contracted by the Farool Brothers to kidnap Crying Dawn Singer and his entourage, which they did successfully. (TA, CRO)

Seville, Yosev
this woman and her brother led a team of mercenaries who were hired by the government of Sirdar to eradicate the plague of winged xendrites which was taking over the planet's ecosystem. (COG)

Sevriina
this Elom term describes their underground burrows. (GG12)

Seylas, Debin
the Imperial Moff in charge of the Joralla System during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (PG1)

SE2 Service Droid
this droid was built in the centuries before the Clone Wars, and was designed to act as receptionists and gatekeepers. The remnants of the Empire used SE2 droids to maintain their databanks, such as the one on Bastion. (VOF)

SE4
see SE-4 (ROE)

SE4-T25
this servant droid worked for Radell Mining Corporation shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (OE)

SFI Systems
this droid programming developed was nationalized by the Empire and added to the Imperial Droid Corporation. (FOP)

Sficca
a plant whose beautiful blossoms were often consumed. (DESB)

SFX
this was the model number of a smoke generator produced for use in theatrical productions by GFBS. It also found use among paramilitary groups, for it helped provide cover during infiltration actions. (ROE)

Sgauru
this was one of two Yuuzhan Vong creatures, along with Tu-Scart, dispatched to Duro to destroy the refugee settlements established by the New Republic. Known as a male Beater, Sgauru destroyed the buildings and warehouses of the New Republic and Tu-Scart to follow behind and consume the rubble. (BP)

SGB-543
this was a form of gravitic pressure bandage developed by Slusani Interstellar Pharmacologies. (FOP)

SGI Systems, Incorporated
a major producer of black-market assassin droid components, SGI is headquartered on the planet Druckenwell. It was nationalized by the Empire when Palpatine assumed control of the Mid Rim's droid corporations. (SWAJ)

Sgidek
a Habeen Lambda-class shuttle operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

SGW-0027
the command code used to shut down the construction droids Wedge Antilles used to clean up Coruscant following the death of the reborn Emperor Palpatine. (JS)

SH-9
this Czerka Arms slugthrowing pistol was a favorite of Alliance Special Forces agents, because it could be easily silenced and used whenever ranged weapons weren't available. (ROE)

Sh'ner*-class Planetary Assault Carrier
this pointed, oblong Ssi-ruuvi batleship measured 750 meters in length, rivaling the Shree-class cruisers in sheer size. The Sh'ner-class assault ship was essential to any Ssi-ruuvi attack plan, although it was known that only one Sh'ner-class was sent as part of the force which invaded the planet Bakura. The Sh'ner-class was slow and underpowered for the work it was assigned, and thus was protected by Fw'sen-class picket ships and Wurrif-class light cruisers. They have been equipped with weak shields and minimal weaponry - six ion cannons and two tractor beam projectors - which further increases the need for support craft. The primary mission profile of the Sh'ner-class carrier was to drop off D'kee-class landing ships to battle sites. Each Sh'ner-class ship was equipped with six launch bays to handle the twelve D'kee-class ships it carries. The Sh'ner-class was also sparsely crewed for its size. Only 60 Ssi-ruuk form the command crew and man the entechment labs. 500 P'w'eck are used for assistance and manual labor, so the ship was riddled with stun traps. There were also 30 Ssi-ruuk gunners to man the weapons stations. The Sh'ner-class carrier could also transport up to 5,000 metric tons of cargo. (EGV, TBSB)

Sh'shak
this S'krrr warrior was his planet's champion in the years just prior to the Empire's invasion of the Ishanna System. He was also a renowned poet among the S'krrr. He was destined to meet Mika Streev in battle on the Combat Moon, should a dispute arise between S'krrr and Rabaan. He meticulously studied human anatomy and psychology, looking for any advantage he could find. Sh'shak was short for a S'krrr, measuring only 1.7 meters in height, but he was well-trained in the ways of the warrior. He meditated prior to combat, to center his thoughts on the battle ahead. When the Empire finally decided to subjugate the system, Sh'shak and Streev were already on the Combat Moon, preparing to do battle in the ritual Combat. Imperial forces, with the help of Andos Delvaren, attempted to escalate the conflict into a full-scale war by killing both combatants. Sh'shak was hunting Streev when the Imperials began hunting Streev. Streev managed to escape, convinved Sh'shak to work together and them off. Sh'shak was injured when Commander Glave shot him in the thorax, but was rescued by Streev and a group of Alliance agents. They escaped off the moon, and agreed to join the Alliance after they hunted down Delvaren and Glave. (SWJ9, GOF8)

Sh'shuun
this planet is the homeworld of the Shi'ido race. Very little is known about the planet. (GOF4)

Sh'tk'ith
this Ssi-ruuvi Elder was known as Bluescale because of his coloration. He was extremely well-versed in the physiology of humans, and was the leader of the task force dispatched to subjugation the planet Bakura. Sh'tk'ith was also charged with maintaining the obedience of Dev Sibwarra. It was discovered that Sh'tk'ith was chosen for the leadership of the Bakura mission by the Shreeftut itself, and acted as the Shreeftut's voice to the Ssi-ruuk on the mission. There were rumors that Sh'tk'ith was the true power behind the Shreeftut, but no facts were discovered before Sh'tk'ith died during the Battle of Bakura. Luke Skywalker believed that Sh'tk'ith was the exact opposite this, sent to Bakura with enough power to draw potential enemies away from Lwhekk and the Shreeftut. (TB, TBSB)

Sha
a Huttese term of respect. (JTH)

Sha'Dria
this enigmatic woman worked as a bartender at the Oasis, located within the Bantha Traxx establishment on Lianna. Her background was unknown to almost everyone but herself, and she covered her true identity with a mask she called a N'Noch. A physically attractive woman, Sha'Dria was also a good listener and had a wealth of wisdom, just a few of the reasons she was such a good bartender. She could also handle herself in a fight, and actually destroyed Haelon Tice's hand when he got too friendly with her one night. (WSV)

Sha'vah
the Noghri command for silence. (DFR)

Shaak
this unusual creature roams the plains of Naboo in great herds. They are quadripeds, although their bodies are quite immense when compared to their short, spindly legs. They have flexible snouts that are used to nibble grass and other plants, and the flesh of the shaak is considered to be a delicacy by both the native Naboo and the Gungans. Their huge body and short legs keep them out of the swamps, where they are helpless to escape. (GF)

Shaara
this young human female (about fifteen years of age) was a dancer in a Mos Eisley club frequented by Imperial soldiers. She often performed provocative dances, a sharp contrast to her innocent nature. She was simply working to support her family's moisture farm. The Imperials wanted to have their way with hre, but she fled to her family's farm. There, the Imperials killed her brother Kamma as she escaped again, this time fleeing into the southern desert. There, after a shot from her punch gun, Shaara knocks the Imperials into the Pit of Carkoon. Unfortunatelt, Shaara's speeder is disabled, and she, too, falls into the pit. All but one of the Imperials and Shaara herself are swallowed quickly. The remaining Imperial uncharacteristically saves Shaara from one of the Sarlacc's tentacles, and is captured himself. The Sarlacc then grabbed her, but instead of dragging her into its maw, it flings her out of the pit. It may have been because she was still dressed in her metallic dancer's outfit, or it may have been that the Sarlacc knew she was in trouble and helped her. No one will ever know. (TJP)

Shabba
a member of the ground team supporting the X-Wing Rogue Squadron, Shabba was a green-skinned humanoid with pointed ears. (XWRS)

Shabell
a Nightsister on Dathomir, she detected the thermal detonator Han tried to carry into Zsinj's warroom and deactivated it with a command from the Force. (CPL)

Shad
this is the capital city of the planet Melinz. (CRO)

Shad Furies
this shockball team, based in the city of Shad on Melinz, was a five-time champion of the Royal Imperial Shockball League during the last years of the New Order. (CRO)

Shadiru
this is one of the Outer Rim's most populoar hotel chains. (GG9)

Shador
this swamp-covered planet orbitted just 100 million kilometers from its white star. From space, it appeared to be a dark, cloud-covered ball of dirty green seas and yellow-brown continents. Visitors encounter a densely-forested, swamp-covered planet with an atmosphere that is too foul to breathe. Several small cities sprang up nonetheless, mounted on pylons and pilings to keep the structures out of the swamp. Gondollas and repulsor-powered boats moved people around. (SL)

Shadorian
this was the alien race native to the planet Shador. They were known to be skilled assassins. (SL)

Shadorian Dragonfly
a large insect native to the planet Shador. (SL)

Shadorian Slime Crab
a disgusting crustacean native to the planet Shador. (SL)

Shadorian Slime-larva
a noxious creature native to the planet Shador. (SL)

Shador
a Strike-class cruiser in the Valiant's battle fleet. (ISB)

Shadow
1) this stock light freighter was owned and operated by Lett Minak. (HR)
2) this Mon Calamari MC40a light cruiser was part of a fleet which was used to transport bacta for the Alliance. (XWA)
3) this was the designation of a squadron of TIE Defenders used by the Empire to protect the Bretie production facility, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

this huge, cloaked space station, found in the Core Systems, was a training center for Dark Jedi set up by Brakiss following his departure from Yavin 4. He consolidated Imperial money and discovered exiled Nightsisters to help create the station. Brakiss, at the direction of the Imperial leaders of the time, set a number of self-destruction devices on the station, for use in the event that the students of the Dark Side revolted against their instructors. These devices could also be used to destroy the station, should it come into the hands of the New Republic. Brakiss used the station's cloaking ability to maneuver it into position near Coruscant, in an effort to steal much-needed supplies from Republic transports. Raids were launched from the cloaked station, using the modified assault shuttle employed in the attack on GemDiver Station. The transport ship Moon Dash was a victim of a collision with the cloaked station.
The station continued to grow, though, under the watchful eyes of Brakiss and Tamith Kai. When the reborn Emperor Palpatine arrived on the station, Brakiss was honored. They began planning to attack the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4, but Brakiss began to doubt the Emperor’s motives when he continually snuffed the young Imperial. At the end of the attack, Brakiss went to confront Palpatine, only to find that the Emperor was really a clever ruse perpetrated by four former Imperial Royal Guards. Brakiss killed all but one of them, who managed to set off the Shadow Academy’s self-destruct systems. He escaped before the station exploded, killing Brakiss. (SA, LO, JUS)

Shadow Barnacle
an underground-dwelling creature native to Coruscant. (ISU)

Shadow Chaser
Garowyn's state-of-the-art, quantum-armored starship used to transport potential Jedi to the Shadow Academy. When Luke Skywalker and Tenel Ka infiltrated the station, they stole the Shadow Chaser as their escape ship. The New Republic confiscated the ship, but later gave it to Luke for his own use. It was put it to good use at the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 as a transport. (SA, LO)

Shadow Dancer
very little was known about this pirate ship, except that her captain had installed a number of countermeasure and stealth systems that rendered it virtually invisible to scanners and sensors. (PP)

Shadow Droid
designed by Umak Leth and Emperor Palpatine, these attack craft are basically cybernetic starfighters. They are pilotless, for the most part, but are controlled by the biologically-maintained brains of dead Imperial fighter pilots. These brains have been twisted through exposure to the Dark Side of the Force, and obey any command to the death. Shadow Droids were produced in the Deep Core during the period when Emperor Palpatine was reborn on Byss. (DE2)

Shadow Forest
this area of the wroshys trees surrounding Rwookrrorro is a densely-forested area in which the bridal-veil sucker and mock shyr compete with the rroshm and rkkrrkkrl for dominance. Deep in the Forest is located the Well of the Dead. (TT)

Shadow Keeper
this five-limbed creature lived in the lowest depths of the jungle on Kashyyyk, at the fourth level of the biosphere. It is a carnivore, and prefers to hunt for fresh meat rather than scavenge for food. They are not brave or strong enough to attack a large Wookiee, but they have a long history of being a vicious hunter. (TT, RD)

Shadow Keeper
there were only seven of these starships ever built. They were one of the deadliest fighter craft of their time, and were named for a Kasshyyk predator. (SSR)

Shadow Magic
this was the name given to the use of the Dark Side of the Force by the Nightsisters of Dathomir. The use of Shadow Magic was documented by Gethzerion in The Book of Shadows. Like all forms of Dathomiran "magic," Shadow Magic employs spells that allow the sister to gather the energy of the Force to her. She can then use its strength to create the desired effect. (CTD)

Shadow Runner
this slip-winged starship was owned by Hok and Timar Daragon, and was used to run supplies to the rebels in the ancient Koros System. In a fateful run to bring supplies to the rebels on Kirrek, the Daragons were caught in the middle of the final battle on the planet. The Jedi Knights, using battle meditiation techniques, had quelled all the hardest warriors into a cease-fire. However, a few stray minds attempted to kill as many of Empress Teta's troops as they could. In the cross-fire, the Shadow Runner was struck twice and destroyed. (GAS)

Shadow Squadron
1) this group of New Republic X-Wing fighters was assigned to the Battle Dog. (SOC)
2) this group of infiltration operatives was a part of the Alliance's Eclispe Team. (AIR)

Shadow Traproom
this archaeological discovery was found on the planet Liok. Two Obroan Institute explorers - Dreiss and Mokem - were killed during the initial excavations of the site. (TT)

Shadowhawk
this was the popular name of Ikas-Adno's XR-10 speederbike. (WSV)

ShadoWing-4 Glider
this para-wing glider was produced for recreational use by Neor-Yatten, but found widespread usage among scouts and paramilitary groups as well. It was based on original Imperial military glider designs, and included many of the safety features developed to keep troopers alive during field activities. It was equipped with geomorphous wings and a medium-duty repulsor engine, which provided the ShadoWing-4 with a high flight ceiling and incredible maneuverability. (ROE)

ShadoWing-6 Glider
this was the two-man version of Neor-Yatten's ShadoWing-4 glider. (GG2)

Shadowport
this was the term used to describe any starport that catered to the less-reputable spacers of the galaxy, and provided services without requiring official licensing or notification. (FOP)

Shadowsilk
this strong, flexible thread was often braided to form the bowstrings on bolt-throwers. (ROE)

Shadowsuit
this was the specialized form of lightweight, armored bodysuit produced for use by the Alliance's Infiltrators. It provided a variety of stealth and anti-sensor benefits, mainly derived from the use of specialized fabrics. (ROE)

Shadowtrooper
this was the name of the elite stormtrooper unit which specialized in undercover, special-forces type operations. Also known as Storm Commandos, these forces were initially trained by Crix Madine, before he defected to the Alliance. The shadowtroopers, however, were considered very useful by the Emperor himself, and remained as a part of the military structure. Like Alliance SpecForce troops, the Shadowtroopers were used to infiltrate secure areas and break open stalemated situations. (ROE)

Shadren V
this planet was the site of an Imperial base which was destroyed by the Alliance shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GG10)

Shaelo Cliffs
the Empire had a base located within these cliffs during the Galactic Civil War. The cliffs are located on the planet Harix. (CSWEA)

Shafar
this was the name given to those priests of the Ni'Shaw-Dak Ministry who worked around the planet V'shar, preaching the teachings of Ni'Shaw in individual ministries. (AIR)

Shaft, The
this was the name of the longest corridor located on the Jubilee Wheel space station. (HT)

Shag
this is Huttese slang for “slave.” (IS1)

Shag Fern
this species of quick-growing fern was native to the planet Kashyyyk. (HT)

Shah, Eyal
this red-haired man was a native of Corellia, but lived on the planet Dantooine shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He tried to capture Tash Arranda when she entered the Jedi ruins on the planet, but was stopped by the Shi'ido Hoole. He claimed to be a member of the Alliance base which was supposedly abandoned prior to the Battle of Yavin, but was fully manned when Eyal led them to the base. He hoped they could restore the base's dilaptidated freighter to working order. Eyal also told them that the Alliance had abandoned them on the planet. It was later revealed that Eyal and his "rebels" were part of an experimental cloning process that created clones in just over two weeks, rather than the year it normally took, using the rapid cloning technique. The Empire used the legends of the Jedi ruins to keep the native Dantari away from the lab, which was built beneath the ruins. Several versions of Eyal had been created. (GOF11)

Shahverdian, Rafe
this man was Denno Yanglan's only true friend, during Yanglan's service to the Empire on the planet Bakura. When Yanglan defected to the Alliance, Shahverdian joined him. (TBSB)

Shak
this Twi'lek clan ran the Kala'uun Starport on Ryloth. They were also the providers of the Twi'leki dancers sold to Durga the Hutt, through negotiations with Ghitsa Dogder. (KT, TFNR)

Shaka-ka
this Barabel hunter and tactician organized her fellow Barabels against the atrocities committed by Planetary Safaris against her people. The safari corporation petitioned the Empire to eradicate the "savages," despite the fact that the Barabel were obviously sentient. When Captain Alater and sector governor Paro Lanto exposed Planetary Safaris' deception and admitted Barab I into the Empire, Shaka-ka commissioned and built the city and starport at Alater-ka. (GG4)

'Shakal
a Hapan term translated as 'worthy.' (CPL)

Shakker
an Alliance Lambda-class shuttle captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Shakra
this bounty hunter was one of the few who accepted the challenge of capturing Bornan Thul, after the Alderaanian stole a datadisk from Nolaa Tarkona. She nearly outwitted Boba Fett by capturing Thul’s ship and boarding it, but Thul had set it to self-destruct if he were captured, and Shakra died in the explosion. Shakra was a frilled, reptiloid. (TEP)

Shala
this Hutt maintained a group of pirates attached to the Invids. Shala and much of his team were nearly killed in a attack on a spice shipment coming out of Kessel, when New Republic warships intercepted them. One of his freighters was sucked into the Maw before Leonia Tavria could arrive with the Invidious and drive off the Republic's forces. When Corran Horn began scaring the residents of Vlarnya with his "avenging Jedi"persona, Shala simply took it as a challenge and began to have his pirates perform more and more heinous crimes, in an effort to draw out the Jedi. Shala also had his demolitions expert, Rach'talik, create a trap for him. However, Shala overestimated the Twi'lek's loyalty. Rach'talik built a trap that would kill both Shala and the Jedi. When Corran attempted to remove the deadHutt switch Shala was holding, the only thing he did was scare the Hutt into dropping it. Rach'talik's laser-flechette armaments went off perfectly, reducing Shala to a puddle of laser-blasted flesh. Corran managed to escape with the help of the Force. (IJ)

Shalaman
a type of tree native to the planet Belsavis, shalaman wood was often used in furniture and in stair railings. (COJ)

Shalam
this planet opened negotiations with the New Republic some 13 years after the Battle of Endor. (TBH)

Shalamite
this is the name used by the natives of the planet Shalam. (TBH)

Shaldania Parade
this huge procession of floats, bands, and military regiments was known throughout the galaxy as the first true event of Fete Week on Coruscant. (SWJ8)

Shalik
this family of Sedrians is one of the few that lived off-planet from Sedri. They were employed by the Empire to maintain the Imperial aquaria on Kailor V. (GG4)

Shallamar
this female Barabel once accused Han Solo of cheating at sabacc on Barab One, shortly after Han had been discharged from the Imperial Navy. He had won fair and square, but Shallamar was angry. Her female Devaronian partner fled the encounter, so Shallamar attacked by herself. Han tried to draw his blaster, but the sight hung up in his holster. The fight was quickly ended when Chewbacca picked up Shallamar and flung her across the room. Han and Chewie fled into the night. After the encounter, Han filed off the blaster's sight for easier drawing. He met up with Shallamar again on Cloud City, for the huge sabacc tournament there. She had to be physically restrained from injuring Solo, because she still held a grugde against him. The casino security on Cloud City proved that Han was free of skifters and other sabacc cheating devices, and Shallamar was sent on her way. (THG, RD)

Shallence, Ellisa
this Baroness-Administrator of Cloud City was in charge of the outpost when Lobot was arrested for theft. She made the young rogue a deal: spend a lifetime in prison, or serve Cloud City as a cyborg computer interface. Lobot chose to serve the City. (GG2, EGC)

Shallow March
this planet was the site of the Shallow March Supply Post, maintained by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Shallow March Supply Post
this Imperial supply center was located in the farthest reaches of the Outer Rim Territories, but provided a vital link to remote garrisons and fleets. (CRO)

Shalm
this planet was the site of an abandoned Imperial garrison which was used as a base by Pendarran's Revenge. The base was located on the western side of Ganton Mountain. (WBC)

Shamarok
a small, flying rodent native to the planet Ithor. These creatures have the ability to mimic the voices and sounds of other creatures. (DTR)

Shamd City
this is one of two major cities on the eastern continent of Kirima, and is the site of a major staroport. (TSK)

Shamed Ones
this was the name used by the Yuuzhan Vong to describe those Vong who failed in their missions, but were too valuable to sacrifice to the gods. They were reduced in caste, and relegated to the Shamed Ones. (BP)

Shamel
this small-time spacer hired Tesslar to steal speeders for his personal smuggling ring. (GG10)

Shamus
Admiral Zaarin's modifed Nebulon-B2 frigate, it was his command ship during the Galactic Civil War. He used it to transport the various TIE prototypes he was developing. It was attacked numerous times by Alliance starfighters, but always managed to survive and perpetuate the TIE Fighter growth pattern. He used it to launch his attack on Emperor Palpatine at Coruscant. (TIE)

Shan
this herglic term was originally used to describe a Herglic's pod aunt, or any sibling of its parents. After Herglics began traveling in the galaxy, it also was used to indicate any ship on which a Herglic have never ridden. (PGT)

Shan-pakk
this Herglic phrase meant starport. (PGT)

Shana

Shando
this metropolitan area was located on the planet Lirra. (SWJ12)

Shandria L'hnnar
this operative for the New Republic attended the Imperial Institute of Higher Studies on Ferrhast. (SWAJ)

Shang Lines
this shipping and transportation corporation served the Endocray Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (IA)

Shanga, Klyn
the farmer-turned-militia Leader who led a rag-tag team of vigilantes across the galaxy to kill Vuffi Raa, who they believe was the cause of the destruction of the Renatasia System. Shanga's militia was hired by Rokur Gepta, who played Shanga's anger at Vuffi Raa for nearly destroying his system against his own need for revenge against Lando. He commands a specially-built combination of starfighters. None of the 24 ships are identical, but all are physically linked to a huge flying energy source. It appears to be a large, space-going spider when first encountered. Shanga has many titles in his rag-tag militia, including Fleet Admiral of the Renatasian Confederation. His face is covered with scars, so much so that it appears he has no original skin on his face. Shanga was a farmer in the Mathilde nation-state, and grew up as a warrior in the various interstate wars on Renatasia III. (LCF, LCS)

Shanko
three-meter-tall insectoid owner of Shanko's Hive with three pairs of arms. He also tends bar. (SA)

Shanko's Hive
an establishment on Borgo Prime, it was a cone-shaped building sealed in its own atmosphere. It was colored grayish-green. (SA)

Shankti Drive Works
this company was headquartered in the city of D'larah, on the planet Demophon. They were among the forerunners in hyperdrive manufacturing and development, and created the hyperdrive motivators used on Imperial-class Star Destroyers. Note that The Far Orbit Project denotes this corporation as Shanki Drive Works. (SN, FOP)

Shannador's Revenge
a two-kilometer-long Invincible-class Dreadnaught used by the Corporate Sector Authority. It intercepted a disguised Millennium Falcon when Han Solo and Chewbacca try to escape from Orron III. (HSE, CSA)

Shannessi, Jeph
this Imperial Colonel was in command of the forces controlling the planet of Minntaa, until a group of Alliance SpecForce agents assassinated him just outside his garrison base. His officers and troops were suddenly demoralized, and the Alliance was able to take control of the planet. (ROE)

Shanpa
a musical style developed on Manpha, it is centered by the music of the Growdi flute. (MTSE)

Shanpan
this was the only city on the planet Manpha that had a spaceport. (MTSE)

Shantipole
one of the Roche asteroids inhabited by the Verpine. It was the site of a research station that developed the B-Wing. (SFS)

Shantipole
the Alliance Corvette used to evacuate the Verpines working on the Shantipole Project with Admiral Ackbar. They were forced to evacuate when the project was compromised by a spy. (XW)

Shantipole Project
a joint venture commissioned by Admiral Ackbar and the Verpine colonies of Slayn & Korpil, the Shantipole Project was designed to create more effective starfighters to combat the growing Imperial war machine. The primary offspring of the Project was the B-Wing starfighter. It was nearly taken over by Captain Kolaff and the Empire during the development of the B-Wing Expanded, but Alliance agents working with Ackbar were able to drive Kolaff off. (SFS)

Shapani Bypass
this short hyperspace route branched off the Rimma Trade Route and connected Tapani Sector to the rest of the galaxy. It was also known as the Bacta Bypass, since it was originally created to provide a means by which bacta - produced on Thyferra - could reach the Core faster. (PGT)

Shaparo
this Alliance agent was part of the team which was trapped between Imperial forces and the Assassin's Guild in the Tylerin Embankment, on Archais. Shaparo’s ability to keep their damaged equipment operating allowed the Alliance team a chance to escape. (AIR)

Shape Throwing
this is the act of a non-corporeal deity, in which the deity creates a physical manifestation of itself. (CSWDW)

Shapers
this caste of Yuuzhan Vong society was known for their ability to create living technologies from raw, organic materials. (DTR)

Shaping
this was the process in which the annealed seeds of the boras tree were shaped into new forms of boras. The process of shaping seed-disks into Sekotan starships mimicked this natural process. (RP)

Shar, Ayla
a native of the planet Korbin, this woman worked as a miner and resource coordinator for Vulca Minerals before joining the Alliance. She provided the Alliance with a wealth of information on industrial sabotage and resource management, and was instrumental in the hijacking of many Imperial ore haulers. Ayla also served, for a time, as a foster agent. (AIR)

Shar Dakhan
this ancient Sith magician was one of Naga Sadow's supporters. He was one of the primary planners and organizers of Sadow's naval fleet, which was created to attack the Old Republic and expand the Sith Empire. (FOSE)

Sharad Hett
this reclusive Jedi Master chose to hide on the planet Tatooine during the last years of his life. He was hunted down by the bounty hunter Aurra Sing and killed, despite the efforts of Ki-Adi-Mundi. (IG1, SWO)

Sharalon
this woman was the main desk manager at the Regal Bothan Hotel during the height of the Galactic Civil War. She was also an Imperial Intelligence agent who had spent most of her career bringing down rebellious cells throughout the Core Worlds. She was assigned to the Regal Bothan after a debacle on Kuat. (SESB)

Shard
native to the planet Orax, this was a species of intelligent, crystalline lifeform. Their physiology was based on silicon rather than carbon, and they grew to sizes of 40 centimeters in length. They appeared to be simply crystals, but the molecular makeup of their forms resembled a complex form of circuitry which developed its own form of electromagnetic energy, and gave them the ability to think, sense, and interact. The average Shard has a long lifecycle, with the oldest clusters being several thousand years of age. After making contact with early settlers on Orax, the Shards and their human neighbors discovered a way to "disconnect" a Shard from the planet and place it inside a droid body, thereby giving it mobility and enhanced sensory input. These Shards traveled to the corners of the galaxy, attempting to gather information and then return to Orax. During the New Order, Orax was raided for crystals, and many clusters of intelligent life were destroyed, believed to be simply stones. The suriving Shards eventually aligned themselves with the Alliance, and those with droid bodies became some of the Alliance's best spies. (AE)

Shard of Alderaan
this computer slicing program was known to be capable of defeating the security measures of almost any Imperial scandoc. It was created by the Alliance agent known as "Never Die," but was stolen by pirates who worked for Begas Tok. Tok then arranged to auction off the computer program to the highest bidder. He set up an elaborate auction aboard the luxury sail barge Dune Princess, and invited representatives of the Alliance and the Empire, as well as independent interests. Unfortunately for Tok, the sail barge was beset by a sandstorm, and in the resulting confusion, Tok lost the datapad containing the program. It's exact whereabouts were never discovered. (LAA)

Sharden, Eida
this woman was a wealthy entrepreneur native to the planet Exocron. She was a long-time friend of Captain Horzao Darr, although he didn't know that she was also a member of the western pirates who loathed the Devisors and wanted technology returned to the people. When Darr suggested to Kaiya Adrimetrum that Eida could help free the crew of the FarStar, she agreed, but only if Adrimetrum would provide her with enough technical information to allow her to create modern hyperdrives and computer systems. (KO)

Shardona, Plin
this young woman was an Alliance field procurement working for the Sandwind Team after the Battle of Hoth. (SSR)

Shardra
this smuggler worked in the Corporate Sector, where she met and fell in love with Doc, the former Klaus Vandangante. They were married, and had a daughter, Jessa. Shardra did not live to see her daughter grow up, however, as she was suddenly killed in a fuel dump explosion. (CSA)

Shargael
this Imperial Moff survived the aftermath of the Battle of Endor, managing to maintain control of I-sector in the process. (POT)

Shark
an Imperial assault transport operative during the Galactic Civil War. It was protecting station NL-1 during Thrawn's visit. (TIE)

Sharka'k
this Gree craftsman created the device which became known as the Sharka'k Noor. It was the premier device in his collection, but he died on Asation before passing on its use to an apprentice. (SWJ14)

Sharka'k Noor
this ancient Gree device was created by Sharka'k, who died before he could pass on its operation to an apprentice. The device was formed from three short cylinders connected by short arms. The outer cylinders were shorter than the central cylinder, and had fingertip-shaped depressions at their tops. The central cylinder was marked by glyphs, and had a display panel. It emitted a deep, bass tone as it was used. Sharka'k designed the Noor to manipulate geological activity of the world on which it was used. It could create new volcanoes, cause earthquakes, and affect changes to the planet's core. It was originally designed as a planetary engineering tool, and Sharka'k guarded its secrets so that it couldn't be used as a weapon. Unfortunately, Sharka'k died before passing on any knowledge of the Noor's operation, and the was stored in the Gree archives for many millennia. It ws later stolen by Doctor Ils Ee, who inadvertently set off a series of volcanic eruptions on Tujiamoor with it. Doctor Ee's whereabouts, and those of the Noor, remain a mystery. (SWJ14)

Sharky
a group of Alliance YT-1300s destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Sharockk
this intelligent, attractive woman served Santhe/Sienar Technologies as a receptionist at the corporation's Lianna headquarters. She is very good at sifting out the riff-raff from the real businessbeings, and is tough as a Wookiee when it comes to keeping them out. (ML)

Sharpshooter V
BlasTech's modified blaster carbine, this weapon has been fitted with a multi-spectrum targetting sight. This addition, when coupled with the Sharpshooter's tightly-coherent energy bolt, makes the weapon deadly accurate over a long range. The combination of these two advances drains an incredible amount of power from the weapon, however. (ISB)

Sharu
many fabulous legends held that the Sharu were an ancient alien race which inhabited the Rafa System, but which mysteriously disappeared ages ago. They were a technologically-advanced race, as evidenced by the wonderful buildings and monuments they built throughout the system. They left a treasure trove of artifacts behind, many of them left to their descendents, the Toka. One of them was the Mindharp, which was rumored to be a way that the Toka could recall the Sharu from their hiding it the Toka were in dire straits. The Sharu were described as "superhumanoids" by scholars, and are believed to have lived in an incredibly long period of advanced evolution, possibly billions of years. When the first humans came to the Rafa System, they befriended the Sharu. When the Sharu were forced to disappear, some bind with the humans was broken. Those humans, the ancestors of the Toka, were unable to recover from this breaking of contact. All of this was disproved when Lando Calrissian and Mohs found the Mindharp on Rafa V. It was then revealed that the Sharu, fearing some threat to their civilization, decided to hide their knowledge and intellect until it was safe to re-emerge. They built huge structures which resembled living spaces but where really vast computer banks of stored knowledge. They devised a grand scheme in which their race could survive, but it required them to be rendered ignorant, and their knowledge stored in the computer banks. They developed the life-crystals as a device which would continually sap the intellect and knowledge from all subsequent generations, maintaining the disguise of the simple-minded Toka. A single member of each generation would be allowed access to the ancient knowledge. This High Singer would keep the hidden Sharu alive by teaching various chants and rituals to the Toka. The Singer's duty was to await the coming of the Bearer and the Emissary, or pass on his knowledge to the next generation. In order to unlock the captive Sharu intelligence, the ancients created the Mindharp, which they hid in the Great Pyramid on Rafa V, and the Key of the Overpeople, which they sent out of the Rafa System. When the threat to the Sharu had passed, the Bearer would arrive in the Rafa System with the Emissary, bearing the Key. He would then use the Key in the Great Lock, entering the pyramid and finding the Mindharp. He would then use the Mindharp to release the Sharu. The Toka Mohs was just about to pass on his duties as High Singer when Lando Calrissian entered the Rafa System. Lando and his droid, Vuffi Raa, were set up by Duttes Mer and Rokur Gepta as the Bearer and the Emissary, respectively. Together, Lando, Mohs, and Vuffi Raa retrieved the Mindharp, only to have it stolen by Duttes Mer, who believed it could control the minds of others. He activated it, thus beginning a system-wide reshaping of the land. Mer was absorbed by the Mindharp as it started activating the Sharu computer banks. The Rafa System continued to undergo massive geological and physical changes, in preparation for the return of the Sharu. (LCM)

Shas'mink
this is a Laerdocian swear-word. (SOP)

Shasa Ale
an ale favored by the natives of Ado Sector. (FOP)

Shasa Tiel
this female Ishi Tib was an accountant for SoroSuub until she was blackmailed into working for Jabba the Hutt. She served as an assistant to Mosep, but hated her job and secretly longed to escape from Jabba. (CCG7)

Shasfath Cluster
an area of the galaxy located near the Inner Rim and the Expansion Region. (SWAJ)

Shashay
this race of avians descended from birds on the planet Crytal Nest. They are humanoid in basic appearance, with colorful plumage and vestigial wings. Their wings are no longer used for flying, but will allow the Shashay to glide across a short distance. They are a graceful race, but are also given to quick tempers. The Shashay communicate with a wondrously-rich series of trills and riffs, and those

Shashay which have left the planet are known as space singers. Because of their ability to manipulate the various musical arrangements required of their songs, the Shashay have developed large brains, and have the innate ability to calculate galactic navigational coordinates. This ability also garnered them the nickname space singers. (TA)

this is a curse used by the natives of Emberlene. (SOP)

Shatoon Monastery
a religious retreat on the planet Onderon. (EE)

Shatoyo
an old Jedi Master who, at the Assembly on Deneba, spoke out on the way the Dark Side and the Sith teachings behave. (DLS)

Shattered Rock, The
this was the name given to one of the Alliance's asteroid bases, scouted by Mils Gessak and built with the help of Arago Tanca. (HAS)

Shatras
this was a race of bipedal reptilians native to the planet Trascor. These aliens were similar in size to tall humans, but were exceptionally strong. Their wide, flat heads were supported by a snake-like neck, and dominated by four bulbous eyes. This physiology allowed the Shatras to see in a 720-degree area. There were five distinct races of Shatras, including the Y'tras and the Hy'tras. (AE, AIR)

Shatuun
this planet is a largely uninhabited world found in the Kathol Outback between the Uukaablis and Nah'Malis Systems. Its surface is dominated by rugged moutain ranges which are continually strafed by intense electrical storms. This combination means that travellers between Uukaablis and Danoor rarely, if ever, stop here. This was quite all right with a pair of Duinuogwuin star dragons who decided to reproduce there. They created a home for themselves some 60 years before the Battle of Endor, but were quite reclusive in their ways. They would accept visitors they believe they can trust, since they didn't want the rest of the Outback to know they were there. (KO)

Shaum Hii
a oceanic planet located in the Tragan Cluster, Shaum Hii is the homeworld of the Kian'thar race. It is known for its loud, raucous derlac "cattle markets." (DFR, GG12)

Shaupat
this nocturnal Nabooan predator uses its claws to cut up its prey into small pieces, since its mouth is quite small. The blood of the shaupat contains an alkyl poison which is deadly to some other carnivores, helping the shaupat avoid being eaten. The bite of a shaupat is also quite painful, as their saliva has a mildly poisonous element in it as well. The Gungans have discovered that the shaupat blood can be distilled and used as a bleach-like stain remover. (GF)

Shavit
this is a swear word used by the farmers of Pakrik Minor. (VOF)

Shavree
this young woman sold a working lightsaber to the proprietors of Exotic Items, located aboard the Ithorian herdship Bazaar. She claimed it was her own lightsaber, although she was unable to communicate with the Force. (GA)

Shawda Ubb
this alien race, native to the planet Manpha, resembles a pot-bellied amphibian. They have green skin that covers their bulbous body, which is supported by spindly arms and legs. Their small heads are dominated by heavy brow-ridges, and a thin row of knobs runs from their foreheads down their necks. When cornered or attacked, Shawda Ubb can spit a paraluzing poison at their enemies. (CCG9)

Shawpee Gang
this gang of mild-mannered hoodlums patrolled the street of Mos Eisley during the last years of the New Order. (CCG9)

Shawti
one of the many Hutt colony worlds, Shawti was also a breeding world for many of their slave races. Clan Desilijic bred Klatooinan slaves on this world. (CCG9)

Shay
a native of Targonn, Shay led a series of attacks on the dictator Craw. The Targonnians he led were known as Revoltists, and tried to overthrow Craw's despotical reign. He failed to overthrow Craw, but did manage to rescue the droids R2-D2 and C-3PO from Craw's clutches. The droids were reunited with Master Zorneth, who eventually toppled Craw's empire. (DRO)

Shaymore
home planet of the Sessehshallah, it was mined extensively for its fossil hydrocarbon-based fuels. The Alliance helped to free the planet from Imperial control. (RPG)

Shazeen
a older Swimmer living in the Dellaltian lake near J'uoch's mining camp, he is Kasarax's uncle. Shazeen was the Top Bull on the lake when Kasarax decided to take control of the lake, and was bested in a race by Kasarax. This meant Shazeen had to submit to Kasarax's usurious practices. This ended when Han Solo bargained for transport across the lake. At first, Shazeen thought Hasti was Lanni, since she had dressed in the same clothes Lanni had worn a few months earlier. This spurred Han's group on, since it gave them another clue as to where Lanni might have been going just before she was killed. Kasarax demanded 40 driit each, to transport the group across the lake, which enraged Shazeen. Shazeen offered to transport them for nothing, in an effort to get Kasarax angry. It worked, and a challenge race ensued. The race quickly degraded into physical combat, in which Shazeen overcame the younger Kasarax and forced him to submit. This ended Kasarax's control of the lake. (HSL)

She-Who-Speaks
this was the name given to the leader of a tribe of the Sekct people. This Sekct was considered the wisest or strongest member of the tribe, and all decisions and negotiations were deferred to her. . (POM)

Shebba Kalshi Desilijic
a member of the Desilijic clan, this Hutt was the master of a vast plantation on Shawti. Shebba owned the Klatooinan named Umpass-stay until the Klatooinan insulted Shebba's nephew, Jabba. Jabba had Shebba assassinated and took ownership of Umpass-stay. (MTSE)

Sheckil
this man was a former warrant officer from the planet Concord Dawn, who joined the Empire as a security officer and quickly rose through the ranks. As a Lieutenant assigned to the Death Squadron, Sheckil was placed in charge of the transport of dangerous prisoners. It was rumored that he was Boba Fett's twin brother, although this was never substantiated. (CCG5)

Shedao Sahi
this Yuuzhan Vong commander assumed control of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy after Nom Anor failed to secure the intial worlds of Vector Prime. Shedao himself tasted defeat on Bimmiel and Dantooine, but regained control and decided to strike out against the Jedi Knights. Shedao was a descendant of the famed Mongei Shai, whose expedition was one of the first to venture into the galaxy some fifty years before the assault on Belkadan and Dubrillion. Shedao had hoped to recover the body of his ancestor, but Doctor Anki Pace and her team recovered the remains in order to better study the Yuuzhan Vong. After learning that the Jedi defeated and killed two members of his famly on Bimmiel, Shedao Shai felt a need to know more about the New Republic and the Jedi. Thus, when Elegos A'Kla submitted himself as an emmissary, Shedao Shai agreed to show him everything about the Yuuzhan Vong. He was questioned constantly by his second in command, Deign Lian, who was secretly working with the Yuuzhan Vong Warmaster to further the invasion's progress as quickly as possible. In the end, though, Shedao Shai was forced to strangle Elegos with his bare hands. He then had the Caamasi's skeletong gilded and sent back to Corran Horn, who had killed Shai's kin. Shedao Shai demanded retribution and the return of Mongei Shai's remains, despite the pleas of Deign Lian to abandon his "personal agenda." After the Battle of Garqi, Shedao Shai agreed to a duel with Corran on the surface of Ithor. The stakes were simple: the winner obtained possession of Ithor. Corran managed to defeat and kill Shedao Shai in the struggle, leaving Deign Lian in control of the Yuuzhan Vong forces. Despite the honor of Shedao Shai's death, Deign Lian went ahead with his own plans and wiped out all life on Ithor. (DTO, DTR)

Shelf Station 321
this Rendeel Industries deep-water processing plant was abandoned after the Quekka Trench Station was abandoned. (HAS)

Shelf Station 432
this Rendeel Industries deep-water processing plant was a sister station to the Quekka Trench Station. Station 432 was destroyed in the governmental civil war which wiped out the population of quekka fish in the area. (HAS)

Shell
this young woman was a computer slicer. She and her partner Deke once broke into a backup computer maintained by the New Republic Intelligence agency, shortly after the Starbuster Plot was exposed, and stole secret information. They were eventually caught when a tracer, planted on Deke, led Lieutenant Prace to their position. (CTD)

Shell, Kendrell
this man and his partner, Deeka, encountered a slork consuming a rotting corpse while scouting the planet Kidron. (COG)

Shell Bat
a flying reptile from Doallyn's homeworld of Geran. (TJP)

Shell Hutt
one of the most unusual factions of Hutts, the Shell Hutts resemble their brethren in every physical aspect. They are huge, sluglike creatures with tough skin and internal organs protected by dense layers of blubber. However, the Shell Hutts chose to protect themselves from external radiation – which about the only thing that will naturally kill a Hutt - by enclosing themselves in riveted metal shells. They broke away from the rest of the Hutt clans, which had failed to genetically alter themselves to protect against radiation, several millennia before the Battle of Yavin, choosing to encase themselves and perpetual their lines. The shells must be continually shed as the Shell Hutt grows, and the donning of a new shell is often a cause for celebration. Everything but the Shell Hutt's face is contained within the shell. Even their hands are hidden inside, manipulating the controls which maintained the shell's repulsor engines and directional thrusters. The Shell Hutts took control of the planet Circumtore and used it as their base of operations. They were quite paranoid about security aroundf Circumtore, and often sent delegates to meet with potential clients or enemies in orbit. These delegates had their shells stuffed with explosives, which could be triggered from within in the event of an emergency. The resulting explosion would kill the Shell Hutt and the enemy force, eliminating any threat to the continued security of their planet. (MA)

Shell One
the inner section of Centerpoint Station, surrounding the open space of Hollowtown. The entire central sphere of the station was divided into shells. (SC)

Shell-head
this derogatory term is used by the Rabaanites to describe the S'krrr race. (SWJ9)

Shellava
this was a species of tree which produced a tight-skinned, crisp fruit. (RP)

Shelltooth
this modified Gymsnor-3 freighter was owned and operated by Kal'falnl C'ndros. Armed with a single heavy blaster cannon, the ship contained a special hold where Kal'Falnl protected her clutch of eggs, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (SSR)

Shelova Week
this traditional Herglic holiday celebrates commerce and family, two things which are interrelated to the Herglic race. A prominent holiday in the Tapani Sector, Shelova Week is a time to exchange gifts, make new business alliances, discuss trade arrangements, and spend time with family members. As the human population of the sector began interacting with the Herglics, they too began celebrating the holiday, although many humans simply take vacation instead of also developing business partnetships. On the Tapani local calendar, Shelova Week fell between the months of Helona and Melona. (LE, PGT)

Shelta Sune
this female Devaronian was engaged to mary Lavek Talstin, until he got cold feet and fled Devaron. Shelta begged her mother, aunts, and sisters to find him, so they sent their husbands on a continual series of missions to recover Lavek. (CRO)

Shelvay, Corwin
this young human was full of good intentions, but he was quick to anger. He was taken as an apprentice to the Jedi Knight Darrin Arkanian, who tried to teach Corwin of the Force. Corwin was a quick student, but felt that his powers should be used directly against the Empire. Arkanian tried to get Corwin to control his emotions at every turn. Together, they traversed the galaxy, staying one step ahead of the authorities while searching for surviving Jedi Knights. During one mission, Corwin was captured and brought to Coruscant. There, High Inquisitor Tremayne tortured him in an attempt to reveal Arkanian's whereabouts. Corwin resisted until Arkanian attempted to rescue him. In a battle with Tremayne, Arkanian was cut down, and Corwin became enraged. He leapt after Tremayne and lashed out, severing Tremayne's arm and damaging his face with a lightsaber. Corwin and Arkanian fled, but Arkanian died a few days later. Corwin realized that, in the battle with Tremayne, he had touched the Dark Side of the Force. In a vision some time later, Corwin saw himself as Tremayne's twin, and this shocked him back to the Light Side. Corwin then tried to return to his home, only to find that the Empire had killed his family ten years earlier. What he didn't know is that they had spared the life of his sister, Elena. Corwin, cut loose from all the ties that mattered to him, roamed the Outer Rim until he met Devon Fuller. Fuller's hatred for the Empire touched Corwin's anti-Imperial feelings, and drove Corwin to join the Alliance. Thus, he became an invaluable operative and recruiter in the Outer Rim. (GG9)

Shelvay, Elena
the sister of Corwin Shelvay, Elena was not killed when the Empire murdered the Shelvay family. She was brought to High Inquisitor Tremayne, who sent her to COMPNOR for training. After spending time in the Imperial Security Bureau's Re-Education program, she came to believe that Corwin was the cause of the deaths of her parents. She was brainwashed into hating him, and has become emotionally unstable and disjointed because of it. However, she also became a competant ISB agent, and was assigned as an aide to Moff Balfour. (GG9)

Shemsher

this Ithorian starship was a smaller version of the hership, and was used like a tugboat to manuever the larger ships during herd meets. (OE)

Sheris
this Outer Rim world was the sight of a repulsortank battle between the New Republic and Imperial forces. The battle occurred in Bhir’khi Pass, near the end of the reign of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (SWJ9)

Shesh, Viqi
this woman, a native of the planet Kuat, was that planet's Senatorial representative to the New Republic. She was considered handsome, with flowing black hair and a slender build. She was relatively new to the politics of the galaxy, but was one of the few voices in the Senate who worked toward a solution to the Yuuzhan Vong attack which would best suit the needs of the Republic, and not individual worlds. Shesh spoke to the Senators and appealed for unity in devising a suitable response to the Yuuzhan Vong, rather than having individual worlds try to work against each other. She later entered into a deadly game of cat and mouse, pretending to be a traitor to the New Republic and dealing with both Borga the Hutt and Nas Choka to provide information on the Republic. She also used this tenuous position to spy on the enemy, and return information to the Republic on their actions. It was later revealed that it was Viqi Shesh who had provided the Yuuzhan Vong with the news of Elan's seeming defection. During this time, Shesh was appointed to be the ninth member of the New Republic Defense Force's leadership committee, and cast the deciding vote for defending Bothawui instead of Corellia. She was subpeonaed by the Senate Justice Council in the aftermath of the Battle of Fondor, and was advised by her lawyers to provide only the facts as she knew them, in order to avoid further investigation. Later, she began meeting with liaison Pedric Cuf, whom she knew to be working for the Yuuzhan Vong. Shesh insinuated herself into position to head SELCORE, which allowed her to strand great numbers of refugees on defenseless worlds, where they could be taken by the Yuuzhan Vong for slave labor or sacrifices. She also began working toward her own form of peace, and promised the Yuuzhan Vong that her agents would completely dismantle with repulsors on Centerpoint Station to prove her truthfulness. Shesharile this gas giant, the primary planet in the Shesharile System, is located in the Minos Cluster. It has a number of moons. Two of them, Shesharile 5 and Shesharile 6, are large enough to be planets, and are capable of supporting life. They are known as the Twin Planets, despite the fact that they are moons. (SWAJ, GG6)

this fifth moon of the gas giant Shesharile is large enough to be a planet itself. Along with Sesharile 6, they are known as the "Twin Planets" despite the fact that they are moons. Shesharile 5 has been devastated by the corrupt government that runs them. This moon is known for its resorts, but they are dirty and care little about the environment they are destroying. Pollution has led to ecological disaster, and the inhabitants have regressed to become warring factions. Each blames the others for destroying the twins. Much of the commerce on the moon was centered around making the Imperials that controlled the Minos Cluster happy, so when the Empire pulled out Shesharile 5 went into a swift decline. Much of the planet is run by gangs under the control fo Yerkys ne Dago. The average day on Shesharile 5 lasts 26 standard hours, and its year lasts 377 local days. (SWAJ, GG6)

Shesharile 6
this sixth moon of the gas giant Shesharile is large enough to be a planet itself. Along with Shesharile 5, they are known as the "Twin Planets," even though they are moons. Like its twin Shesharile 5, Shesharile 6 has been devastated by the corrupt government that runs them. Shesharile 6 is run by the Twi'lek crimelord Yerkys ne Dago, who also controls Shesharile 5 with a group of gangs. Pollution which has run rampant on Shesharile 5 has found its way to Shesharile 6, and the moon has been continually polluted over the years. The average day on Shesharile 6 lasts 26 standard hours, and its year lasts 377 local days. (SWAJ, GG6)

Shesharilian Vodka
this powerful liquor is fermented and bottled in the Shesharile System. (GG6)

Shesstellek
this thin Devaronian was deathly afraid of Tern Ashandrik, but sold information on his whereabouts to a group of bounty hunters in order to earn some quick credits. (ND)

Shettora
this Hutt controlled a large ring of criminal organizations in the Ringali Shell during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Shev
this corrupt Imperial Colonel was in command of the Imperial garrison on Phaeda in the years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. A tall, bald man with a neatly trimmed goatee, he was too busy accepting bribes from the local smugglers to notice that the New Republic had set up a cell on his planet. He was in a bar with his officers when Kir Kanos arrived on Phaeda. When Kanos eliminated his officers and a squadron of stormtroopers, Shev set out to capture Kanos himself, in the hope of gaining favor with Carnor Jax. Jax's commander, General Wessel, learned of the incident from one of Shev's Lieutenants, and ordered Shev's forces to stand down so that Jax could personally take care of Kanos. Shev realized that his garrison would never stand up to an inspection, and realized that his only hope for remaining alive was to have Kanos in custody when Jax arrived. To this end, he paid Tem Merkon a hefty sum for the location of Kanos and Mirith Sinn's hideout. He then ordered a full assault on the hideout, but his forces were overwhelmed by Kanos' counterattack. When Jax arrived on Phaeda, he executed Shev for his betrayal. (CE)

SHΣ1-B
this MD5 general practioner droid was taken from Jabba the Hutt's palace by Dengar, following the crimelord's death near the Pit of Carkoon. Dengar needed the droid's services, along with those of its companion, 1e-XE, in order to tend to the ravaged body of Boba Fett. Dengar had discovered the other bounty hunter shortly after Fett destroyed the Sarlacc and emerged from its belly. SHΣ1-B was not above giving its patients a piece of its mind, but it was also easily quelled into submission. When the bounty hunters fled Tatooine, SHΣ1-B and 1e-XE were left behind. (MA)

Shi'ido
native to the planet Sh'shuun, the Shi'ido are a rare race of shapeshifting aliens. The Shi'ido have the uncanny ability to fog the minds of those around them., allowing them time to alter their appearance and make those around them seeing their new form as the true form. These two traits allow the Shi'ido to co-exist with nearly any other race as if they were members of it. They can appear to be almost any species, and cloud the minds of those around them to reduce suspicions. Unlike other polymorphic species, the Shi'ido's natural endoskeleton limits their ability to shape-shift to humanoid forms only. Because of their unusual abilities, the Shi'ido are thought of as disreputable spies and assassins, roles for which they were sought after by the Empire and large, criminal organizations. In general, however, they are a no-aggressive species. Note that Alien Encounters claims the Shi'ido were native to the planet Lao-mon. (ISU, GOF4, SWJ12, AE)

Shiarha Root
this plant, native to the humid rainforests of Kirtania, produced a thick bulb. This bulb, pink in color mottled with red, contained a thick fluid. This fluid was discovered by Doctor T'jaleq Kith'Araquia to counteract the deadly effects of the Direllian Plague. (SWJ1)

Shibatthi
this New Republic Senator held Han Solo to blame for firing the shots which started the riots on Bothawui, shortly after the revelation of the Caamas Document, even though there was no supporting evidence. (SOP)

Shibric
Riij Winward claimed to be travelling from Tramanos to Shibric when he was captured by Captain Niriz while on the Hopskip. (TFE)

Shield
this Defender-class assault carrier was part of the New Republic's Fifth Battle Group, and participated in the initial blockade of the planet Doornik-319 during the Yevethan Purge. (SOL)

Shield, The
this group of freelance "security specialists" was also a collection of Alliance operatives, active during the Galactic Civil War. They started out protecting corporate couriers during intra-system travel, then expanded to act as executive bodyguards. Eventually, The Shield got into espionage and security work. Much of their work was done to protect supporters and members of the Alliance, provided that their resonable prices were paid. (CRO)

Shield Bicapsular Directrix abbreviated SBD, this is a measure of a starship shield's rate of recharge. (WEG)

Shield Generator
a power source used to create and maintain a deflector shield. They are often ground-based implements which use a focusing dish to project the shield around a ship, a building, or parts of a planet. (ROTJ)

Shield Hover
a maneuver which tests the shield integrity of a starship, the shield hover involves maintaining a starship's weight off the ground with nothing but its shields. The ship is first lifted by its repulsors, then the shields are activated. The landing gear is retracted, and the repulsors are then slowly cut off. If the shields hold, the ship then hovers above the ground. Good pilots are ready, in case the shields fail, to engage the repulsors and catch the ship before it crashes back to the ground. In some cases, either the forward or aft shield will go, while the other remains intact. This can cause the ship to bounce and flip over onto its topside, causing greater collateral damage. (AC)

Shield Projector
a shipboard component which generates and projects a defensive shield around a starship. They can be small (such as the Chempat projectors used on X- and Y-Wings) or large (such as the Serridge SEAL system). They create deflector shields which roughly follow the contour of the ship. (SW, SCRE)

Shieldship
a huge, umbrella-shaped craft used to shield spacecraft from the heat of Nkllon's sun. It was one of the first creations of the Republic Engineering Corporation. The design specifications were originally formed by Lando Calrissian. It is basically a curved, 800-meter dish on top, with a 400-meter long cylinder extending from the bottom. The underside of the dish is packed with various cooling systems, while the cylinder contains the main drive. The shieldships proved to be hard to pilot, because of their unique configuration and the rigors of keeping the large ships in place to protect smaller craft. Also, due to the harsh conditions in which they operation, shieldships require constant maintenance of their shields and cooling systems. Lando originally purchased twelve shieldships, allowing him to make three trips from the shieldship depot on Qat Chrystac to Nkllon per day. This allowed plenty of downtime for the repairs necessary to keep the ships running well. After the destruction of Nomad City by Grand Admiral Thrawn, no other shieldships have been built. (HTTE, EGV)

Shieldship 9
shieldship assigned to escort the Millennium Falcon and Luke's X-wing to Nomad City. (HTTE)

Shieljar
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. Shieljar was based on Duroon. (SWJ13)

Shif, Lufta
this woman, a native of the planet Naboo, served Queen Amidala as the minister of education. (IG1)

Shiffrin
this Outer Rim Territories world is home to a population of humans. (TTSB)

Shiftshield
any type of deflector shield which helps deflect solid material, rather than energy. They are used to deflect small meteorites. (SWN)

Shigormallan, Mishowan
a native of the planet Yelsain, Shigormallan joined the crew of a cargo hauler as a teenager. When the planetary government began taxing shipments in order to support the Empire, his commanders opted not to pay them. He found himself constantly under the scrutiny of Imperial Customs agents and the Imperial Security Bureau, He met a group of Alliance field agents during one of his detention periods, and decided to join the Alliance. He completed training in the Special Forces division, and was given a place in the Pathfinders regiment. He was hoped to get a position with the Wilderness Fighters, but attacked his new position with zeal despite the setback. He was quickly promoted from Trooper to Lieutenant, and accepted a position in Task Force Shen. He replaced a popular officer who was killed in action, and his brash, abrasive style didn't immediately mesh with the rest of the team. However, his skills proved he was more than worthy of the job, and he excelled in leading the Patfinder platoon under the command of Major Mart Stevez. (ROE)

Shild, Sarn
this former Moff controlled the Hutt space arund Nal Hutta during the early years of the New Order. A tall, sallow man with ascetic looks, Shild wore no jewelry except for a black krayt dragon pearl in one earlobe, mirroring his jet-black hair and black uniform. He received several unsolicited “political contributions” and other gifts from the Hutts, and he, in turn, left the Hutts alone to do business as they pleased. He honored this agreement until a group of rebels, smuggled onto the planet Rampa II, destroyed an Imperial outpost there. Shild then issued orders to cut off any and all smuggling in his sector, and bring the Hutts to their knees. Jabb and Jiliac sent Han Solo to bribe the Moff, but he refused to be swayed. He ordered Admiral Greelanx to attack Nar Shaddaa and wipe out the smugglers’ moon, but the assault failed for several reasons. Shild retired to his estate on Teth, only to learn that his beautiful aide - cunningly played by Bria Tharen - had left him. Rather than face the wrath of the Emperor, Shild committed suicide. (THG, RD)

Shilley’s
this dark, seedy cantina, owned by the Morganian Tan Shilley, is located in the heart of Gralleenya city, on Questal. It was the favored locale for illegal meetings and transactions, although it was considered neutral ground between law and order. The owner paid good, hard credits to both sides to keep it that way. (GCQ)

Shim-bay Crispa
this meal was a specialty of the chefs of the planet Brentaal. (SWJ13)

Shimia
this planet, located in the Outer Rim Territories, was the homeworld of the Pacithhip race. It was a remote world, but was located close enough to a major trade route to attract business. (AE)

Shimmer
this frozen world was the site of an Alliance labor camp. (SWJ1)

Shimmerlizard
native to the planet G'rho, these reptiles were named for the way their shiny scales caught and reflected light. (TBSB)

Shimmersilk
a stylish fabric used for women's clothing. (HSE)

Shimrra
this Yuuzhan Vong was the Supreme Overlord during the initial invasion of the known galaxy. (HT)

Shimsha
a pleasant-smelling flower found on Kuan. (TIE)

Shinda
this man was the Imperial Moff in command of Spirva Sector, during the height of the New Order. (SWJ12)

Shine Astara
this upscale restaurant was located in the city of Daplona, on Ciutric. The word "Shine" was pronounced "sheen," with an Imperial accent. (IR)

Shiner
this R2 astromech unit served as Myn Donos' co-pilot as a member of Wraith Squadron. (WS)

Shinev, Thuv
this man served as a New Republic Senator, representing the Tion Hegemony during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

Shinkai Abyss
an underwater chasm measuring 5,000 kilometers in length, The Shinkai Abyss was found in the oceans of Spira, cutting across much of the eastern hemisphere of the planet. Its walls are encrusted with crystals. (SWJ1)

Shinnan
this woman was a native of the planet Ennth. She was among the first to greet Zekk, when the youth returned to his homeworld in the midst of its worst devastation. She was married to the leader Rastur, and they all worked relentlessly to evacuate Another Hopetown and its environs during the earthquakes and fires. She had been a friend of Zekk's when he was a child, although she was four years older than he was. When the last of the evacuees was aboard a transport, she took a break and returned to her home to retrieve the plans she and Rastur had for rebuilding their home. She was caught in a sudden earthquake, and was killed when the old homestead collapsed on top of her. (SHA)

Ship's Operating License
this Imperial document was one of a number of documents required from any spacer who plied the spacelanes during the New Order. The procedures for obtaining the certification were documented in the Spacer's Information Manual. Known as an SOL, this document identified the starship and its owner as being cleared to operate in interstellar space. (SWJ9)

ShipFinder
this was the name of Drooim-Durtha Systems' subspace tracking device. Its developed was contracted out to Neb Ufentes, and was unique in that it was so small. The smaller size meant that it had a shorter operational lifespan before it needed recharging, but Ufentes helped prolong its life by designing it to send out bursts of particles at preset intervals rather than continuously. The interval can be programmed in, but a faster interval decreases its operational span. Ufentes had developed a prototype that would last up to eight days, but it was stolen by the crimelord Mahk'khar. In the heist, Mahk'khar killed Ufentes. (SWJ8)

Shipwomb
this was the Yuuzhan Vong name for the "breeding ground" they used to create their living warships. Because of the size of their warships, individual shipwombs were often created from the destroyed hulks of planets. (DTR)

Shire, Tanith
a supply tug operator at the Fondor shipyards, Tanith Shire worked as a slave of the Serpent Masters by crashing drone barges onto their planet for salvaging. She and her father were forced to crash-land on the desert world many years before the Battle of Yavin. She was rescued from Fondor by Luke Skywalker when he stole the plans to the Super-class Star Destroyer Executor. They fled the planet together, and returned to the only homeworld she knew. Both were quickly placed in the slave levels of the Great Well. After a time, they defeated the Serpent Masters and freed her people. She fell in love with Luke, but decided not to leave her people when he returned to Yavin 4. (CSW)

Shirka
this man was a Minister with the Ralltiiri Secretariat at the time when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. It was Shirka who refused to allowed Leia Organa-Solo and refugees from Gyndine land on Ralltiir, shortly after Gyndine fell to the Yuuzhan Vong. (JE)

Shirley
a Dilonexan woman, second cousin to Bernie the customs inspector. (LCF)

Shirmar Base
this was a staging area and processing center built by the Ugnuaghts on Drudonna. It allowed them to easy access to Velser's Ring. (GG2)

Shiro
this is a species of slow-moving, turtle-like amphibians native to the planet Naboo. The flesh of the shiro is used by the Gungans in a tasty stew. (GF)

Shiro Trap
this symbiotic pair of creatures, native to the planet Naboo, is really a tooke-trap plant which has grown onto the top part of the shiro. The relationship allows the shiro to be camouflaged by the tooke trap plant, so predators won't notice it; the tooke trap plant, on the other hand, is protected from being uprooted and eaten by clodhoppers and other Naboo herbivores. (GF)

Shirro
this burly man was the leader of the swoop gang known as the Blood Razors. He always carried a length of metal pipe, and had a special sheath for it mounted on his swoop. He had a tough exterior, but his motivations were always to keep the gang armed and provide for the dishomed of Biivren. (PSG)

Shirshir Desert
this temperate desert was located on the planet Nishr. (ROE)

Shish
one of the communications officers that worked for Booster Terrik aboard the Errant Venture. (SOP)

Shisha Oil
this viscous fluid was used in desert climates, where temperatures plummeted during the evening. The shisha oil was heated during the day by the burning suns of the planet, and then pumped through pipes which were built into the walls of a desert dwelling. The heat from the shisha oil was transferred to the building material in the wall, heating it up and radiating heat into the dwelling. (IWE1)

Shistavanen
a race of wolf-like bipeds whose eyes glow red, the Shistavenen were native to the Uvena system, and are veiled in mystery throughout the galaxy. They are hunters by nature, and are known for their abilities as bounty hunters and scouts. However, they were also isolationist as a species, and tended to discourage interaction with other species. The Empire enlisted the aid of the Shistavanen many times, in an effort to explore the farthest reaches of the galaxy. (SW, SCRE, AE)

Shiu-Shiu Race Systems
this corporation manufactured racing-quality wheeled propulsion systems for use in automated devices like droids and load shifters. (DW)

Shiwal Sector
during the Galactic Civil War, Alliance operations in this area of the galaxy were believed to have been infiltrated by the Gand Findsman Lu'daal-ud. (AIR)

Shlecho Newt
this creature was native to the Yuuzhan Vong's home galaxy. They preferred to eat coomb spores, a fact that allowed the Yuuzhan Vong to use them to detect the presence of the spores in a victim. They have a brownish-green coloration in their normal state, but turn bright crimson when they detect the presence of coomb spores. (VP)

Shlith-Dan
this Arconan criminal is distinguishable by his dark grey skin, which has several deep brown stripes. He is also addicted to salt, as denoted by his golden eyes. His addiction spans most of his life, and his later years have been spent as a dealer in salt, further deepening his dependence. His small criminal empire grew after he migrated into the Minos Cluster, where his black market network is bested only by that of Yerkys ne Dago. He hoped to locate a method of inducing a similar form of addiction in humans, and succeeded during the Galactic Civil War. He discovered a fungus which, when given to the people of Shesharile 5 and 6, created an intense addiction that nearly tore the worlds apart. (GG6)

Shnick, Tecknel
this underworld leader controls much of the shipping that leaves Travnin. (GG6)

Sho'ban Do
this near-human, a settler of the planet Pitann, was the runner-up in the presidential election that elevated Chandra Hobat to power in the Kathol Republic. Do believed that Hobat's political stance would ruin the Kathol Republic. He felt that the Republic should remain isolated from the Empire and the New Republic, and maintain its self-sufficiency. At the time Moff Sarne sent Rolf Treidum into the Kathol Outback, disguised as a New Republic fleet, to make trouble, Sho'ban Do's political position was strengthened. Do was a short, barrel-chested person with a wide face, and hoped to name himself the leader of the Kathol Tyranny. He was also the main prponent in the sport of gladiator droid wars, hoping to develop a droid army that he could use against his enemies. (KO)

Shoame, Trann
this man was the leader of the Qektoth Confederation in the years following the Battle of Endor. Shoame advocated and supported the development of biochemical weapons to use against the weakers races of the galaxy, and tested one of them on the crew of the FarStar. Shoame also negotiated for the rights toseel the biochemical weapon with an unknown agent, trading the weapon for ships from which to unleash the weapon. (KO)

Shoaneb Culu
a blind, humanoid of the Miraluka race, Shoaneb discovered that her race's innate abilities with the Force were quite strong within herself. Against her parents' wishes, she decided to leave her homeworld of Alpherides and seek out training with the Jedi Knights. The journey was hard, as the Force changed on every world she encountered, forcing her to relearn all the skills she had mastered on Alpherides. After a year or so, Shoaneb landed on Ossus, and was apprenticed to the Jedi Master Vodo-Siosk Baas. Baas felt that her insatiable desire to learn more about the Force and the Jedi was really a desire for power, but soon realized that she was extremely curious. However, despite her sensitivity to the Force, Shoaneb struggled to master the basic techniques of controlling it and using it. Lightsaber construction came particularly hard for her, as well as combat. While this might have driven off other students, Shoaneb continued to train, and eventually attained the rank of Jedi Knight. During her studies, which lasted much longer than most of her peers, Shoanbed learned a great deal about the Jedi Prophecies. She attended the Jedi Assembly on Deneba to discuss the Krath. She was killed in the Cron System, when Aleema tried to defeat the Jedi Knights by ripping the core from a Cron star. (FNU, DLS, TOJC)

Shobquix Yards
this starship manufacturer built the Gauntlet and Toscan 8-Q starfighters. (CSA, PP)

Shock Cord
this flexible, elastic cord was used by climbers as a safety line. If a being fell from a height, and the shock cord was anchored, it would stretch and give before returning to its original length. This allowed the user to survive an otherwise dangerous fall. (HT)

Shock Grenade
any explosive device which uses shock waves, instead of shrapnel, to cause damage. They are similar to pressure bombs. (HSE)

Shock Raiders
this was an elite squadron of Black Sun starfighter pilots. (SSE)

Shock-back
one of the offensive positions played during a game of shockball. (SSR)

Shockball

Shooting Star
this Alliance Corona-class frigate collided with the Endor after a mistimed hyperspace jump. The jump was part of a fleet exercise, and all hands on both ships were lost. It became an object lesson for all New Republic fleets, highlighting the need for perfect execution of fleet maneuvers. (SOL)

Shoppingland
this major retail outlet is located in the center of Lola Curich starport, and has everything a tourist to the planet Lianna could need. (ML)

Shoran
this male Wookie is one of Chewbacca's many relatives. It was Shoran who received a transmission from Leia Organa-Solo describing the capture of Han Solo by the Yevetha. Shoran and Freyrr tracked Chewie down, during Lumpawarumps Test of Ascension, to recall the Wookiee to his duty. Shoran, along with Dryanta, Jowdrrl, and Lumpawarump, went with Chewbacca to rescue Solo. When the Wookiees attacked the Pride of Yevetha, Shoran and Chewbacca went in first. During the initial firefight, Shoran was gravely injured by a blaster bolt. Shoran was brought back to the Millennium Falcon by Chewbacca, but was unable to recover despite the ministrations of the New Republic. He died after being treated on the Intrepid. (RD, TT)

Shore Patrol
this branch of the Gungan Grand Army was charged with ensuring that no invaders entered the water and discovered the location of the Gungan cities. (E1A10)

Short
this was the name used by Gaph and R'vanna to describe the shorter of the two humans who approached them to forge a series of transport vouchers for refugees on Ruan. Working with his partner, known only as Tall, Short transported his charges aboard the freighter Trevee. (JE)

Short-term Memory Enhancement a technique used by the Jedi Knights to capture and replay recent events at a later time. (SWSB)

Shotarr Kass
this Tunroth warrior was orphaned by the Reslian Purge. He chose to train as a hunter in order to maintain as much of his species' culture and history as possible. Well educated in Wookiee culture as well as that of the Tunroth, Shotarr eventually was employed by the Nalroni crimelord Sprax as a personal bodyguard. He earned the nickname "The Strap" because Shotarr preferred to wear leather jerkins. Shotarr was not part of Sprax's own security force, and was often left out of many operations he felt should have been his work. This troubled him, but his loyalty to Sprax never wavered, even when Black Sun chose Ket Maliss to wipe out the Disac pirates and not himself. (SSR)

Shoten Lounge
this bar and recreation area was located on the luxury liner Stellar Mermaid. It was considered something of a spacers' bar, despite its setting on the luxurious ship. (POC)

Shownar Lullaby
this odd music is created by the wind blowing thourgh the vertag crystal spires on the planet Shownar. (GG9)

Showolter
this New Republic Major was placed in charge of the mission to bring the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan to a facility on Wayland, where the New Republic could interview her. They made it to Wayland without a problem, but the Vong launched a false "assassination" attempt on Elan's life after they arrived at Wayland. Their location was given away by Elan's familiar, Vergere, and forced Showolter to book transport for them to Coruscant. Traveling as a couple - with Elan wearing an ooglith masquer to appear human - they boarded the Queen of Empire in order to return to the Core. Unfortunately, the Peace Brigade learned of the undercover operation from a well-placed spy in the New Republic, and intercepted the luxury cruiser. In an attempt to save Elan's life, Showolter took blaster fire from the Peace Brigade's mercenaries. Badly injured, he was forced to turn Elan and Vergere over to Han Solo. Showolter eventually recovered from his injuries. (HT)

Shrag Brothers
sneak-thieves on Nar Shaddaa. (DE1)

Shredder Bat
a vicious, avian creature native to the planet Atrisia, shredder bats are extremely adaptable to a variety of ecosystems. They have a wingspan of up to a meter across, and hunted in packs of more than twenty individuals.Shredder bats use a complex hearing system, with hearing organs in their necks and behind their ears, to sonically locate their prey. They attacked their prey by diving down on it and taking bites with their sharp fangs, causing their prey to bleed to death. The bats would then land on the downed prey and use their long tongues to consume all the blood and other bodily fluids. They were considered a dangerous nuisance throughout the galoaxy, as colonies of shredder bats have been established on over 1,000 different worlds. Once in a new environment, they tend to attack everything in sight in order to establish a territory. These attacks include humans and humanoids. (ND, COG)

Shree*-class Battle Cruiser
this Ssi-ruuvi design was a heavy battleship measuring nearly 900 meters in length, and armed with 24 Ssi-ruuvi turbolasers, 24 ion cannons, 12 concussion missile launchers, and 12 tractor beam projectors. Up to 500 Ssi-ruuvi battle droids can be carried in its holds. The decks on the Shree-class are five meters tall, to accommodate the Ssi-ruuk body. The P'w'ecks that perform menial tasks on the ships have a series of accessways and tunnels in which they can operate. Stun-traps have been set in various access portals to keep the P'w'ecks from entering sensitive areas. Unlike most galactic ships, the Ssi-ruuvi designs lack anti-gravitational systems, and so they employ conductive netting to help stabilize gravity. They also lacked reliable inertial compensators, and sudden changes in direction caused inprepared passengers to be thrown against bulkheads. It also had a large entechment lab used to power the ship and its drones. Each Shree-class cruiser required a crew complement of 800 Ssi-ruuk officers, 234 gunners, 5,000 P'w'eck laborers, and 350 P'w'eck troops. It could also transport up to 5,000 metric tons of cargo. (EGV, TBSB)

Shreeftut
literally known as "His Potency", the Shreeftut was the supreme ruler of Lwhekk, and the leader of the Ssi-ruuvi Imperium and the Ssi-ruuk people. Sometime before the Battle of Endor, the Shreeftut made a deal with Emperor Palpatine to provide personal battle droids if if the Emperor would provide human prisoners. (TB)

Shreel
this graduate of the New Republic Space Academy served as one of Leia Organa-Solo's honor guard during her mission to the Chorios Systems to meet with Seti Ashgad. He served as a Yeoman aboard the Borealis, and perished when Ashgad unleashed the Death Seed plague. (POT)

Shreev
this small, winged creature is native to the planet S'krrr. They are the natural enemies of the drog beetle, which is the favored food of the shreev. The bat-like shreev are covered with blue fur, and have a snake-like tail. They were protected by the S'krrr, because they kept the drog beetle population under control. Without the shreev, the drog beetles would eventually consume all the crops grown on S'krrr. The average shreev can consume some thirty drog beetles each day. (GOF8)

Shri
one of Rei'kas' hired thugs, Shri was sent to intercept Talon Kaarde at the Ithor Loman on Dayark. The assault failed when H'sishi and Shada D'ukal managed to taken the thugs out. (VOF)

Shrike
an Imperial frigate destroyed by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Shrike, Garris
this Corellian trader and smuggler worked aboard the starship Trader's Luck, commanding a ragtag band of thieves and swindlers. He employed without prejudice, using street urchins to beg and steal while using strong alien races for extortion and loan sharking. He was infamous among the underworld for his elaborate schemes, in which he would swindle the rich and wealthy of Corellia out of their credits. He ran the Trader's Luck with an iron hand, and demanded complete loyalty or swift retribution would follow. He dressed in the style of Imperial Moffs, with several medals and decorations purchased at pawn shops. It was Shrike who pulled a young Han Solo from the alleys of Corellia, taking the boy in and using him in many of his best schemes. When Han tried to leave the Trader's Luck, Shrike killed the Wookiee Dewlanna before he was knocked cold by young Solo. Shrike never forgot the incident, and when he discovered Han on Coruscant, he intended to pay him back. Their struggle spanned several levels of the city-world's structures before Shrike gained the upper hand. Just as he was about to deal Han a deadly blow, a bounty hunter that had been trailing Han shot Shrike dead.

Han was able to escape the bounty hunter as well, dodging a charge at the last minute and sending the hunter careening into a stone structure and snapping his neck. Han then switched clothing with the hunter, placing all his false IDs in the hunter's jacket. He then burned the face off the hunter with Shrike's blaster and dumped the body into a seemingly bottomless shaft. With Shrike dead and his IDs on another body, Han was finally free of his past. (TPS)

this man was Garris Shrike's brother. As cruel and demented as Garris, Larrad was one of the bullies who maintained order on the Trader's Luck. When Han Solo attempted to flee the ship, Dewlanna the Wookiee stepped in to help him. Larrad and seveeral others noticed that Han had bypassed several security systems, and they set out to apprehend the youth. As Garris struck out at Solo, Larrad was attacked by Dewlanna. The Wookiee grabbed him by the arm and swung him around with all her might, smashing Larrad into a bulkhead and breaking nearly every bone in his body. Larrad didn't survive. (TPS)

Shrike Squadron
this was the designation of the group of TIE Fighters garrisoned at Argenhald Base, on Saffalore, during the early years of the New Republic. (SOC)

ShrinCord
this defensive substance is similar to other webbing and netting used by law enforcement agencies and bounty hunters. ShrinCord is either shot from a gun or laid atop a trap. When it hits living flesh, it begins to shrink, tightening around its target and immobilizing them. (ML)

Shrines of Kooroo
this ancient monuments were claimed by the Fellowship of Kooroo to be the original edifices built by Kooroo to focus the minds of his followers on true enlightenment. The Fellowship of Kooroo believed the enlightenment came in the form of telepathic abilities. The shrines consisted of a central, domed sanctuary surrounded by carved stone obelisks. The obelisks are all inscribed with runes and sigils, and their placement around the central building resembled the spokes of a wheel. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, reporter Andor Javin earned the wrath of the Fellowship of Kooroo by claiming that the Shrines were not religious artifacts but a form of ancient communication device created by an ancient civilization which scouted the galaxy millions of years earlier. (SWJ13)

Shriwirr
a Ssi-ruuvi Shree-class battle cruiser, it was the flagship of the Ssi-ruuk attack on the planet Bakura. The word shriwirr means "ripe with eggs" in the Ssi-ruuvi language. The Shriwirr was accompanied by 4 Wurrif-class light cruisers, 20 Fw'sen-class picket ships, a Sh'ner-class planetary assault carrier, 12 D'kee-class P'w'eck landing ships, and a Lwhekk-class manufacturing ship. A force of over 1,300 battles droids was unleashed in the system. It was captured by the Luke Skywalker and the Alliance during the Battle of Bakura, when Luke escaped from his entechment chair. The Ssi-ruuk evacuated the ship, rather than facing Luke's ability with the Force and possibly dying on an unconsecrated world, and abandoned the ship. It was later renamed the Sibwarra, in honor of Dev Sibwarra's sacrifice to alert the Alliance to the Ssi-ruuvi threat, although its crew secretly called it the Flutie. (TB, EGV, TBSB)

Shroud
1) this Arakyd Helix Interceptor starship was owned by the Shi'ido Hoole, and he used it to transport himself and his young charges, Tash and Zak Arranda, across the galaxy during the Galactic Civil War. It had been owned by Doctor Evazan, and sold to Meego to fund Evazan's reanimation serum development. When Hoole attempted to get off the planet, D-V9 discovered that Meego had sold the ship Hoole had put a downpayment on. D-V9 negotiated for the sale of the Shroud, and eventually got Meego to sell the ship even before he had wiped its memory banks clean. It was equipped with a GBp-629 hyperdrive, and Hoole later had equipped it with a slave circuit, in order to hide it during their adventures and then call it out when needed. The ship was nearly destroyed over the planet Kiva, when an automated defense system shot the Shroud down. Hoole managed to land it safely, and an Alliance team later rescued them. (GOF2, GOF7, GOF11)
2) this was the name used by the New Republic to describe the Ghtroc 720 freighter it modified for use by Luke Skywalker. It was named for the covert shroud maneuver, for which the ship became famous. The Republic's technicians gutted the basic Ghtroc 720 and chopped a landing bay inside its hold area. Most of the cargo space was dedicated to the hangar, but a small amount was kept in the bow of the ship for storage of the trac-reflective countermeasures used in the covert shroud manevuer. A repulsorlift generator was added to assist in getting particles out in front of the ship, and an rear-facing proton torpedo launcher was added. (TTSB)

Shroud Team
this group of Alliance operatives was one of the busiest groups of the Divis Arm, based in Corint City on Pirik. Led by Dutra Zeneta, the group acted as spies, foster agents, and infiltrators. (SWJ10)

Shrulldike, Gorvan
known as "Blackblood" to the Daupherm military, this man was a loyal member of the military until he decided to defect and become a smuggler. He recruited Evram Darkmere, and the two managed to steal a ship from the Daupherm government. They renamed it the Retribution, and set out to make a living as smugglers. Shrulldike had few morals, and chose to make a living transporting slaves. Darkmere objected to this career, and challenged Shrulldike for command of the ship. In single combat, Darkmere soundly defeated Shrulldike and assumed command of the Retribution. (CRO)

Shturlan
this is the twelfth of the Tunroth Hunter rankings, and is an average level of achievement. (GG12)

Shud
this was the fifth planet in the Obas System. It had five moons. (IA)

Shug Ninx
an outlaw tech on Nar Shaddaa, and an old friend of Han Solo. He is part Theelin and part Corellian human, and had only two fingers on each hand, along with a two-jointed opposable thumb. This combination left him with few choices as far as education and careers went. He found a niche as a mechanic, and saved up enough money to buy a space on Nar Shaddaa. There, he set up his own "spacebarn." This starship garage got him a few good friends, namely Solo, Salla Zend, and Lando Calrissian. They all left to pursue the stars, but Salla's accident brought her back to the spaceport moon. Their partnership was solidified over the years, during which time Shug continued to grow in expertise. His starship garage is located within the spaceport's inner depths, and its entrance is hidden by a large holoscreen. The entry is built from a kilometers-long chute built from a construction module from the second Death Star prototype. (He found the surplus on Bonadan.) He and Salla Zend left the spaceport after Han Solo destroyed one of their prized cruisers, and after Zasm Katth and Baddon Fass ransack the garage. (DE1, DESB, DE2, THG)

Shug's Spacebarn
this was Shug Ninx's starship repair facility, located on Nar Shaddaa. (RD)

Shulell
this city is the capital of the planet Lan Barell. (SWJ1)

Shullos, Trebian
this man was the Maestro of the Conservatory Epic Orchestra during the height of the New Order. (SWJ13)

Shumavar
this planet was the site of a trade conference at which Bornan Thul was to turn over the Emperor's Plague to Nolaa Tarkona. (TEP)

Shumogi
this planet was the site of an Imperial Ordnance Research Facility during the Galactic Civil War. (JASB)

Shunta Osarian Dharrg
this Osarian was the ruler of the planet Osarian, during the time when Nom Anor rose to power among the Rhommamoolians. (VP)

Shutter Shield
this form of planetary defense shield doesn't encase a planet in a sphere of energy broken only by fire gaps. Instead, the shutter shield can be opened and closed to allow starships to move through, as well as to fire weapons at orbital targets. Shutter shields are less expensive to power, but are also less effective at keeping an enemy outside as the opening of the shield creates a large hole to fly through. (HAS)

Shuttle 37
the designation of the shuttle Mara Jade and Luke use to get on board the Chimaera and rescue Talon Kaarde. (DFR)

Shuttle-skimmer
a large repulsorlift craft used to transport people and cargo across short distances. (HSR)

Shutz
an Alliance Lambda-class shuttle captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Shuzz
this huge Kubaz was part of the group working for Meres Ulcane and the Kaarenth Dissension. Shuzz worked the cantinas of Betha II's starport, inviting members of non-human races to Ulcane's rallies. (SWJ8)

Shvash
this was the name of the noxious gas which developed below the surface of the swamps covering the planet Gelgelar. (SWJ14)

Shwock Dubllon
this piece of classical music is probably the best-known piece from the Mon Calamari composer Dembaline. Considered Dembaline's most rousing music, it opened with a flourish before fading into a soft mix of discordant notes. The title, when translated to Basic, is known as Crested Wake. (VP)

Shwpi
this small herbivore was native to the planet Bimmiel. They were fairly abundant, once the planet swung into the closer portion of its elliptical orbit and began to warm up. As plant life re-established itself after winter, the shwpi were roused and began to breed. They were the favored prey of the slashrats, whose voracious appetite kept shwpi population under control. During the winter period of the planet's orbit, the shwpi hibernate until the next warm season. (DTO)

Shwuy Exchange
this minor hyperspace trade route ran between Shwuy and Fakir Sectors. (PP)

Shwuy Perimeter
this was the area of the galaxy located along the Coreward border of Shwuy Sector. (PP)

Shwuy Sector
an area of the galaxy that was heavily re-equipped by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (ISB)

Shyriiwook
this is the name of the Wookiee language known as the 'tongue of the Tree People.' It has a wide range of emotional adjuncts, and was primarily used for trade and travel. (TBH, RD)

Shysa, Fenn
this person was one of the three people, following the Clone Wars, to regularly wear Mandalorian battle armor. Boba Fett and Jodo Kast were the other two. (EGC)

Si Qurr
this noted poet was one of the surviving members of the Abinyshi race. (SWJ14)

Si Treemba
this young Arcona worked for Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation, and was transported to the planet Bandomeer aboard the Monument with Obi-Wan Kenobi. The two became good friends after Obi-Wan stood up to Offworld Mining's Hutt leaders aboard the transport ship. To Si Treemba, this was one of the bravest things a being could do, and he held Obi-Wan with high regards. When the two discovered that Offworld had been sabotaging Arcona Mineral Harvest's equipment while en route to Bandomeer, they tried to tell their superiors but were thwarted by a pirate attack on the Monument. In the aftermath, Si and Obi-Wan brought out the dealings of Grelb and Jemba, and helped bring many Offworld workers over to Arcona Mineral Harvest. After landing on Bandomeer, Si Treemba and Obi-Wan discovered Xanatos' part in the sabotage of the Home Party Mine, and helped Arcona Mineral Harvest take control of Bandomeer. (RF, DR)

Si-hen
this female bird was native to the planet Gelgelar. They were raised for their eggs, and as a source of meat. (SWJ14)

Sian Tevv
this rebellious councilor from Sullust was responsible for bringing Nien Nunb and his raiding squad into the Alliance after the Empire forced them out of the Sullust system. He was a rebel from the start, hanging around with spacers and technicians in order to learn more about starships and droids. This dismayed his parents, who were Sullustan diplomats. One of his first friends was another Sullustan youth, Nien Nunb, who taught Tevv a great deal about starships. Eventually, though, Tevv went to school and became a diplomat like his parents. He was known as one of the youngest Sullustan diplomats to ever travel to Coruscant. However, while he was there, he witnessed first-hand the real power behind the Empire, as the Senators debated over policy changes while the military subjugated world after world. He decided that Sullust would have to join the Alliance to Restore theRepublic if it truly wanted to be free. At first, Tevv was worried about what open rebellion would mean for his people. In early talks with Bria Tharen, he and Jennsar SoBilles felt that rebellion would simply mean powerful reprisal for the Empire. He was later instrumental in the development of the Declaration of a New Republic. Tevv then contracted the Krytos virus while on Coruscant, shortly after the planet was liberated from Ysanne Isard. He didn't evidence any symptoms, but underwent preventative bacta treatment to maintain his health. Because of his various dealings with the Provisional Council, Tevv was considered a possible suspect in the Delta Source leak, although he was never charged with any crimes. His innocence was proven when the ch'ala trees near the Imperial Palace were discovered to be bugged. During the hunt for Prince-Admiral Krennel, Tevv was one of the many Republic councilors who doubted the veracity of Wedge Antilles' transmission to the Republic which indicated Rogue Squadron was alive and well, though in the control fo Ysanne Isard. (TLC, HTSB, KT, RD, IR, TTSB)

Siarr Tepinnel
this vocal opponent of the Corporate Sector Authority was imprisoned at Stars' End by Viceprex Hirken. (CSA)

Sibarra
this Hutt was the brains and the funding behind Ace Entertainment Corporation and the Ace of Sabres casino. A demented Hutt with cybernetic replacements for his right arm and right eye, Sibarra was outcast from mainstream Hutt society. From that point on, he hated all other Hutts, and went out of his way to harass them in business ventures. Many believed that the only reason Sibarra was still alive during the height of the New Order was because of the skills of Dunan Par'Ell, who managed the security of the Ace of Sabres. Sibarra used the Ace enterprise to cover his more illegal activities, and he also curried favors from his high-powered guests in return for small wins at the games. Sibarra also sold the less-fortunate losers at the Ace to Aubro Ahntanda. (WSV)

Sibha Habadeet
one of the Alliance's major suppliers of micrel equipment. They specialized in bioelectronic power supplies, like the one which powered Luke's cybernetic hand prosthesis. (HTTE)

Sibiu
one of Munto Codru's younger, less experienced families. (CS)

Sibwarra
see Shriwirr (TB)

Sibwarra, Dev
a human forced to work for the Ssi-ruuvi during their invasion of Bakura, Dev was a small boy born to Force-sensitive parents. His mother, Ydra Kilwallen Sibwarra, had just begun Jedi training on Chandrila when the Emperor ordered the Jedi purged from existence.

The fled to the planet G'rho, but they arrived just before the Ssi-ruuk overtook the planet. The alien invaders captured the curious lad, and brought him to their own homeworld for five years of conditioning. After that, Dev became a spokeman for the Ssi-ruu race in their quest to entech human minds. The Ssi-ruuk brought Dev with them to Bakura, and hoped he would ease the struggle to entech its human inhabitants. However, Dev's Force-sensitive mind was discovered by Luke Skywalker, who helped Dev overcome the Ssi-ruuvi conditioning and shrug off their renewals. Dev came back to the world of humans following the defeat of the Ssi-ruuk, but he sustained mortal injuries and died at Bakura. (TB, TBSB)

Sibwarra, Ydra Kilwallen
this woman was an apprentice Jedi at the rise of the New Order, and was forced to flee her homeworld of Chandrila. She hoped to avoid Emperor Palpatine's Jedi Purge, and to save her family, which included a young son named Dev. They decided to settle on the Chandrilan colony world of G'rho. Later, Ydra was killed when the Ssi-ruuk first invaded G'rho. (TBSB)

Sic-Six
an intelligent race of arachnids from the planet Sisk, these black aliens have hard outer shells, 8 eyes, and 8 6-jointed legs. They are a highly anitsocial race, and have been unable to form a coherent government or any form of industrialization. However, they do have an advanced technology (which they consider to be better than anyone else's), and use it to capture their prey. The poison used in the Sic-six' fangs, while deadly to other members of its species and other creatures native to Sisk, is valued throughout the galaxy as an intoxicant by other races. They are descended from a race of web-lingerers which simply lunged around waiting for prey to become entangled. However, as the star Sisk collapsed and cooled their homeworld, the Sic-Six were forced to begin foraging for food. Eventually, they became the intelligent, sophisticated hunters they are today. (GG4, CCG7)

Sickhealers
this caste of Bosph was made up of those individuals which excelled at tapping into the Force to help heal others. (SWJ13)

Sid Te', Berren
this man, a native of the city of Fabrillan, was the leader of the Alliance sleeper cell known only as V-16. He lived most of his life as a lowly street urchin, but ued his standing to create a massive network of unknowning spies and informants. Sid, as he was known to his associates, detested the Imperial presence in Fabrillan. He had seen firsthand that the Empire despised entrepreneurs and individuals, and worked to provide any information he could to the Alliance. For all appearances, though, Sid seemed to be an enterprising street vendor with a large network of salesbeings. (CRO)

Sid'han
known as a mud crawler, this large reptile was native to the planet Seikosha. Resembling a small-headed crocodile, the Sid'Han were vicious predators which were capable of taking down multiple victims at once. They burrowed in the mud, sensing their prey's approaching footsteps by vibrations. When the prey was close enough, the Sid'Han lashed out with its tail, wrapped the prey before inflicting terrible wounds with its toothy jaws. They can grow to be 10 meters in length. (POC)

Sidney Shortfang
this Pada was a miner and prospector, and spent much of his career working the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt with Gideon Smith. Like all Pada, Sidney hated violence and killing, and was rather reserved. This made him the opposite of Gideon's swaggering boisterousness, but their relationship deepened because of their good fit. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, Sidney and Gideon met Luke Skywalker, and enlisted his help in rescuing Erling Tredway from Imperial Governor Parnell's prison on Tol Ado. During the rescue, Sidney was forced to kill a stormtrooper who would have surely killed Luke and Gideon. Sidney greatly regretted the action, feeling that his soul would be stained forever. Both Gideon and Luke reminded him that, if he hadn't shot the trooper, they would all be dead along with Erling. This reassurance did little for Sidney's spirit, but he remained loyal to his friends. However, Sidney was killed shortly after Luke and Erling escaped from the prison, in a firefight with Imperial troops. Luke made sure to remember Sidney's contributions when he returned to Yavin 4. (JH)

Sidral II
an Alliance freighter used to transport war materiel to a hidden stockpile during tHe Galactic Civil War. (XW)

Sidras, Mael
this Old Republic Senator who somewhat outspoken in his opposition to the New Order. Sidras was assassinated while vacationing aboard the Savage Pleasure, an action which resulted in the deaths of many other passengers. (CRO)

Sidrona Diath
an ancient Jedi Master and leader of the Republic Senate, he was born in a failed mining colony on the planet Tatooine. He rose to power during the Sith War. (TSW, IG1)

Siege of Dalron 5
when the Empire decided that it wanted to subjugate the planet Dalron 5, it laid siege to the planet using techniques developed by Jan Dodonna. The Empire was able to overtake the planet, dishoming its people. (MTS)

Siege of Kyrska
this intensely-fought, three-month struggle took place during the Galactic Civil War. It involved several house-to-house campaigns. (ROE)

Sien Siev
this New Republic Councilor was part of the new breed of intermediaries created after Ponc Gavrisom was named President. Siev was also a historical expert, with a vast knowledge of Imperial history. (SOP)

Sien Sovv
this Sullustan Admiral was the backbone of the New Republic Defense Force, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. In the wake of the debacle at the Battle of Fondor, Sien Sovv barely overcame a vote of no confidence within the New Republic Senate. (HT, BP)

Sienar, Raith
this man was the founder of Sienar Design Systems, and the designer of the basic courier ship which eventually became the Infiltrator. He was born around the same time as Wilhuff Tarkin, and the two grew up as friends within the complex social structure of the planet Coruscant. He was trained at the Rigovian Technical University, and his skills with starship design and construction were well-known, and Sienar ships were in high demand. In fact, it was one of Sienar's designs - the Expeditionary Battle Planetoid - which Tarkin eventually stole and claimed as his own which became the first Death Star. Sienar spent a considerable future buying 2,112 failed designs of his competitors, looking for new ideas which failed for simple reasons which could be adjusted to his own uses. In their early thirties, Tarkin convinced Sienar to join him in an attempt to take control of the planet Zonama Sekot. Tarkin hoped to gather one of the unusual Sekotan starships, but he also hoped to eliminate Sienar and gain favor with Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. He appointed Sienar a Commander, and gave him a small fleet led by the Admiral Korvin. Tarkin also assigned Ke Daiv as Sienar's assistant, a move which told Sienar he would be expendable if the mission failed. Until the end, though, Sienar was unaware that he was already expendable. He convinced the Blood Carver that Tarkin was only working for the good of humankind, and was able to turn Ke Daiv away from his assassination attempt. In the end, Ke Daiv was unable to recover a Sekotan starship, and Tarking decided to attack Zonama Sekot and take control of it himself. Sienar struggled against Tarkin's plans, until the planet disappeared into hyperspace. Both Tarkin and Sienar was disgraced in the eyes of Palpatine, but both worked to turn the loss to their own advantage. (X1, RP)

Sienar Advanced Projects Laboratories
this division of Sienar Design Systems created many experimental prototypes during the last decades of the Old Republic, including the Infiltrator craft used by Darth Maul. Many credit the Advanced Projects team with the earliest advancements in the use of contained hypermatter, which eventually led to the immense power core of the Death Stars. (X1, RP)

Sienar Army Systems
this brand-name used by Santhe/Sienar Technologies was introduced following the Battle of Endor. (EGV)

Sienar Coporation
new name of Santhe/Seinar Technologies, after the fall of the cloned Emperor Palpatine on Byss. (COJ)

Sienar Design Systems
this early brainchild of Raith Sienar eventually became Sienar Fleet Systems. (X1)

Sienar Fleet Systems
a division of Santhe/Seinar Technologies and once known as Republic Seinar Systems, they are the builders of the TIE family of starfighters, Interdictor-class Cruisers, and other Imperial war machines. They have the reputation of being one of the most dominant starfighter manufacturer, and their designs have become wildly successful since the advent of the New Order. (SW, SWSB, EGV)

Sienar Intelligence Systems
this subsidiary of Santhe/Sienar Technologies was developed during the early years of the New Order to provide droid programming for the Empire. It worked with smaller corporations, like LesTech, to ensure that Imperial automata were given similar personalities, skills, and traits. (FOP)

Sienar Patrol Ships
(DFR)

Sienar Ships
this was the civilian branch of Sienar Fleet Systems, and produced many freighter and transport ship designs. (CRO)

Sienar Technologies
this corporation took control of the industrial world of Lianna about 100 years before the Battle of Yavin. Shortly afterward, Kerred Santhe purchased controlling interest in Sienar and renamed it Santhe/Sienar Technologies. (ML)

Siene Symm
this male Sullustan is the co-pilot of the modified Lantillian Deluxe short hauler, the Long Shot. He is obvious from most Sullustans by his gaudy clothing, which is considered tasteless by some of his acquiantences. Siene Symm is a natural con artist, and made his living taking credits from whoever was fool enough to part with them. When the Empire abducted him, Siene Symm was put to work as a starship mechanic. This provided him with invaluable skills and a burning hatred for the Empire. When he escaped and joined Ixsthmus's crew, he threw himself into this new line of work with great pleasure, which impressed Ixsthmus. Siene Symm's cunning side has also endeared him to his new employer, for it helps make negotiations easier. (SWCP)

Sienn
this Twi'leki female, a member of the Rha clan, was abducted by Bib Fortuna and sent to the best dancing schools in preparation for her presentation to Jabba the Hutt. Sienn was younger than her companion, Oola, and Fortuna's instructors had cultivated the image that Sienn was young and vulnerable. Her lekku were tattooed with floral patterns just before she landed on Tatooine. Once there, Sienn and Oola were approached by Luke Skywalker, who offered to rescue them from Jabba. While Oola couldn't make herself leave, Sienn escaped with Luke. (TJP, KT)

Siep-Irol

this gas is one of the most common gases used for blasters. (CFG, GG2)

Sigma*-class Shuttle
this starship design was developed and manufactured by Koensayr during the early years of the New Order. The Sigma-class shuttle measured 21.6 meters in length, and could carry up to eight passengers and 100 metric tons of cargo. It required a pilot and co-pilot to operate, as well as a pair of gunners. The Sigma-class shuttle was eventually replaced by the more powerful Lambda-class shuttle. It was armed with a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons. (AIR)

Signal Your Surrender
this was the trademark song played by the band called Boss Code. (WSV)

Signaler
this subnode was generated by Kud'ar Mub'at to provide incoming ships with external information on where to land on the web. A snakelike subassembly, Signaler encircled the section of Mub'ats web set aside for starship docking, and had just enough intelligence to guide incoming ships to their berths. (MA)

Sigurd
a family of moisture farmers who were contemporaries with the Lars and Jensen families. (TME)

Sihan Peach
a fruit grown by the colonists of Sapella. (KO)

Sihha
this young Bothan male was a student at Garqi Ag University shortly after the Battle of Endor. He was a member of the resistance there, working with Dynba Tesc to throw off the Imperial yoke. (TFE)

Siin Suub
a Sullustan, and Chairman of the SoroSuub Corporation when it assumed leadership of Sullust and aligned itself with the Empire. (SWSB)

Sik'ark'kuck
this Gree work literally means "Swallower," and is the name of the largest desert found on the planet Te Hasa. (SWJ8)

Sikadian Gardens
found on the planet S'krrr, this cultural landmark was created by the insectile S'krrr. Its exact age is unknown, but historians know that the Gardens have been around for thousands of years. No modern technology is used to maintain the gardens, which were built on the site of an ancient worshipping ground. Several insect-shaped statues mark where a cult of S'krrr worshipped the insects which they believed were gods. (GOF8)

Sikes
this Alliance soldier accompanied Leia Organa, Luke Skywalker, and Han Solo to Kiva, in an effort to exposed Project Starscream. Unfortunately for Sikes, he was consumed by the biological weapon known as Eppon. (GOF6)

Sil Vaturha
this Twi'leki female was orphaned on Corellia and left to fend for herself. She was captured and sold into slavery, and was eventually purchased by Kaylo NaKuda. She found her calling while tinkering with speederbikes and swoops,and truly enjoyed the company of the mechanics and technicians who worked in Kuda's Compound. (WSV)

Sil-ar
this is one of the six races of Tiss'shar. Sil-ar Tiss'shar are characterized by their diamond-shaped markings. (GG12)

Sil'Lume
this weak, orange star is the central body in the Sil'Lume System, which included the planet Tol Ado and the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt. (JH)

Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt
orbiting the star Sil'Lume, this huge asteroid field was considered fairly easy to navigate. This was because, despite a million planetoids and billions of smaller chunks of rock in the belt, there was a great deal of space between them all. The Sil'Lume Belt was incredbily wide, taking up millions of square kilometers of orbital real estate. Nearly 900,000 of the asteroids had been catalogued by their owners, and each was assigned a number and a name. The number corresponded to the order in which it was catalogued, and the name was that of the asteroid's first owner. Thus, 24 Tredway was the twenty-fourth asteroid catalogued in the Belt, and was originally owned by the Tredway family. Most of the asteroids in the Sil'Lume Belt were owned by miners and prospectors, until the Empire took control of the Belt and began taking taxes and other tariffs from the independent owners. (JH)

Sila
this Galacian was part of Deca Brun's political campaign team, during the democratic elections to determine Queen Veda's successor. (MOC)

Silais
this Twi'lek was a representative of the Old Republic, and was dispatched to assist in bringing the planet Cerea in the Republic. He was not expecting the elders of the planet to resist becoming a member of the Republic. Silais spoke of the benefits the Republic could bring to what he considered a backwater world, but Ki-Adi-Mundi the elders remained stoic in their position. Despite their rebuffs of his efforts, Silais provided the technology which exonerated Ki of the murder of a young man and implicated Maj-Odo-Nomor. After the discovery of the Trade Federation's role in the import of technology to Cerea, Silais was recalled to Coruscant without warning. (PTR)

Sileen
a Mistryl warrior working with Manda D'ulin. She was the pilot of the Skyclaw, and survived the ambush in Gorno. (TME)

Silencer
this IntelStar communications jamming system allowed pirates, smugglers, and independent starship captains to block a nearby vessel's outside communications. (PP)

Silencer 1
this first World Devastator was built at the shipyards of Thomork. (DESB)

Silencer 7
a "mature" World Devastator, the Silencer-7 was under the command of Titus Klev during the Battle of Calamari. This huge ship measured 3,200 meters in length, and stood 1,500 meters tall. It was manned by a crew of 23,684, with 1,975 gunners, 2,000 slaves, 1,600 droids, and could transport 8,803 troops and 1,500 pilots. It was armed with 125 heavy turbolaser batteries, 200 blaster cannons, 80 proton missile tubes, 15 ion cannons, and 15 tractor beam emplacements. The World Devastators were disabled by Luke Skywalker and R2-D2 when R2 was able to tap into the Master Command Codes and take control of the ships. R2 then programmed the World Devastators to destroy themselves. (DE1, DESB)

Silent Blades
this group of pirates was eventually wiped out by Captain Kenit and the Far Orbit, but took out a full squadron of Imperial starfighters and caused considerable damage to the Far Orbit before succumbing. The survivors eventually formed the Tarnished Blades. (FOP)

Silent Water
a Mon Calamari cruiser commanded by Adar Tallon as the flagship of his Alliance fleet. (RC)

Silerian Stall
this starfighter maneuver requires a pilot to stall his ship's forward progress, causing pursuers to shoot past and in front of his ship. The pilot can then fire on them, rather than be fired upon by them. (XWWP)

Sileron
this is the first planet in the Veron System, and it has a radical axial tilt. This causes wild and violent seasonal changes. The plants and animals found on the planet have developed distinct cycles that coincide with the seasons. Sileron had two moons. (PG1)

Silicavore
native to the planet Kamur, this family of creatures consumed rocks as part of their diet. (COG)

Silika
this species of aliens was made of living stone, and was distinguished by their craggy faces and wide mouths. They were humanoid in shape, but had a third arm protruding from the center of their chests. To other species, individuals were indistinguishable. The Silika had many deep-rooted traditions, including using the same initials for children in a specific family unit, which seemed inane but were nonetheless treated with the utmost respect. (SWJ1)

Silika Water
a highly-potent alcoholic distillation created by the Silika race. (SWJ1)

Sillizar, Gurion
a human trying to exact revenge on Evazan. Evazan killed seven members of his family by first poisoning them, then operating on them. Gurion attempted to kill Evazan in his castle laboratory with three other brothers, but they all perished while trying to gain access to the castle. Gurion nearly killed Evazan, but he is killed in a fall from the roof of Evazan's castle. (TME)

Siluria III
this planet was subjugated by the Empire until Kaiya Adrimetrum rallied the inhabitants against the Imperial forces and deposed the local Governor, Quannith. (GG9)

Silurian Rodents
filthy rodents who live in dank cave connected by tunnels. (WEG)

Silver
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Silver Arch Hotel and Casino
one of the Outer Rim's most popular resort locations. (GG9)

Silver Bolt
Erisson Flask's starship. (RC, TM)

Silver Bull
this Imperial container transport was assigned to the SpecWar manufacturing facility. (TIE)

Silver Egg
this was the name of Nandreeson’s personal starship. (TNR)

Silver Flow
the name given to the period of Alderaanian spring when the millions of glimmerfish eggs hatch. The abundance of tiny silver fish flooded the waterways, creating a flashing, silver flow. The Silver Flow was held as a planet-wide holiday on Alderaan, signifying the wonderful rebirth of life each spring. (ISU)

Silver Foil
this thin cable is a common connector found on swoops. (CFG)

Silver Forest of Dreams located on the planet Kubindi, this forest is filled with giant trees which have huge, 20-meter-wide leaves. When the leaves fall in autumn, they float to the ground like giant rafts. (RF)

Silver Koanwood
this exotic tree is found on very few worlds. A stand of them is maintained in the Lonatran Gardens. (SWJ8)

Silver Sea
found on the planet Chandrila, this body of water was located near Mon Mothma's childhood home. Her mother was the governor of a port city along its coast, and she later redecorated her rooms on Coruscant to inspire her memories of the place. (KT)

Silver Speeder
a sleek racing landspeeder owned by Boba Fett, it was equipped with cutting lasers, harpoons, and a chainsaw shredder. (DCAR)

Silver Star
a luxury liner operative during the Galactic Civil War. (RPG)

Silver Station
this hidden outpost is located in the Doldur Sector. Located near the Dragonflower Nebula, it was originally established to mine the nebula of gases. It measures 400 meters in length, and is comprised of a central tube surrounded by interconnected cylinders. It was once called Machenry Station, when it was used as a mining operation. (SWAJ)

Silver Unifir
this is the official title given to the brotherhood of the Pedducian Warlords. (POT)

Silver-backed Fish
a species of fish native to the moon Yavin 8. They are consumed by adult Melodies. (LW)

Silver*-class Engine
see Type 7 Hyperdrive (RP)

Silver*-class Starship
this class of starship used Type 7 hyperdrives, which were specially designed for it by Haor Chall. (RP)

Silverblade
this was the Yuuzhan Vong's name for Corran Horn. (DTR)

Silverblade Squadron
this Alliance X-Wing squadron was based out of outpost DVL-181, on the planet Aracara. (HAS)

SilverWing Squadron designated 20/181, this was one of two starfighter squadrons commanded by Vel Terno and assigned to protect space station 2LC/Blue during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Silverwood
this tree grows in the forests of the planet Kubindi. The silverwood is named for its highly reflective bark. The bark is not mirror-like in its reflectivity, but it does seem to glow with reflected light. (SWJ10)

Silviut Corporation
this subcontaractor of Seinar Fleet Systems was used in the design of the Lambda-class shuttle. They emerged from obscurity after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn to produce the Svelte-class shuttle and the Vibre-class cruiser. (JASB)

SIM
see Systems Infiltration Manager (GOF10)

Simik System
this area of the galaxy was controlled by the Empire during the height of the alactic Civil War. (AIR)

Simito, Siro
this charismatic man was born into the Vallaido pirate clan, and spent much of his childhood manning turbolasers on pirate vessels. When he was forced to kill four of Gorbu Dalo's henchmen during a boarding exercise, he began to rethink his involvement with the pirate group. He retired from active duty, and was soon employed by Pann Tefilous as a starship racer. He excelled as a racer, and remained neutral as the Galactic Civil War spread through the Outer Rim Territories. He was forced to change his stance when Yearo Seville and his gang allied themselves with the Empire and used Imperial warships to destroy the Vallaido fleet. Simito allied himself with the Alliance and offered his services as a courier. His skills as a racer, and his fast ship - the Axe - allowed him to take sidetrips during a race, in order to make his drops and still finish at the top of the leaderboard. (CRO)

Simiyiar*-class Light Freighter
produced by the Mon Calamari shipyards, this 26.3-meter freighter was built to transport up to 150 metric tons of cargo and eight passengers, with just a single pilot controlling the ship’s functions. (AIR)

Simms, Merrick
this young starfighter pilot served the Alliance at Dantooine, in the years leading up to the Battle of Yavin. A disciplined and controlled pilot, he successfully led Alliance forces in a victory against the Empire about a year before the destruction of the first Death Star. This victory earned hi, the rank of Captain. (RA)

Simonelle
this Ingoian created Guri from the plans stolen from the Alliance's Project Decoy. A noted leader in the field of automatons, Simonelle used the nine million credits he received for Guri to create a replica droid of himself, in order to avoid Xizor's plans to ensure Guri's uniqueness. Simonelle's planning paid off, for Xizor later sent Guri to dispatch him. She effectively killed the replica droid, and Simonelle fled to an hiding. (SSE, SESB)

Simons
this man served as helmsman on the bridge crew of the Errant Venture, during the raid on the Imperial Ubiqtorate base at Yaga Minor. Led by Garm Bel Iblis, the raid was designed to obtain a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Simoom
a desert region located on the forest moon of Endor, it is the home of the phlogs. (ECAR)

Simpla-12
a remote planet. (DH)

Simple Homes
these buildings were used by the Zanazi of the Cosmic Balance religion as places were adherents could live and work in their faith. Led by Home Mothers and Fathers, every member of a Simple Home had specific duties to perform. Additionally, each member of the Home had to regularly deny themselves of some necessity in order to cleanse their spirits. (TBSB)

Simpson, Mason
this noted mathemetician was a professor at the Salis D'arr Academy. In the aftermath of the Battle of Bakura, Simpson was consulted by the New Republic to investigate the Ssi-ruuk's mathematics. Simpson and his team discovered that the Ssi-ruuk once used a system based on the number twelve, ostensibly because they had a total of twelve digits on their hands and feet. However, Simpson's team learned that the Ssi-ruuvi computers were base-10. Simpson concluded that the Ssi-ruuk simply got lazy, and simply adopted technology from the greater galaxy. (TBSB)

Simran Hit-trap
this device is used to screen visitors to a building or room. It is used to detect the presence of weapons and explosives. (MJEH)

Simsoft
this is military slang for the software which gets loaded into a flight simulator. It defines the mission, the opponent's strength and configuration, and the the artificial intelligence necessary to similate the opponent's actions. (XWES)

Simus
this ancient Sith Lord was one of the most powerful of his era. He trained the Sith magician Naga Sadow while in his prime. However, he was defeated in battle by Marka Ragnos and fated to die. Simus had other plans, and used the Dark Side magic of the Sith to preserve himself. His head was encased in a specialized, crystalline container, and he existed this way for another century before Ragnos died. When Ludo Kressh and Sadow began fighting over the rulership of the Sith Empire, it was Simus who urged Kreshh to consider the possibility that Jori and Gav Daragon were truly hyperspace mappers, and not advanced scouts for the Old Republic. When Kressh refused, Simus gave his support to his former student, Naga Sadow. This trust proved to be short-lived, for Sadow had Simus killed as part of the deception surrounding his plans to become the Dark Lord of the Sith. (GAS)

SimuTunnel
a point-to-point hyperspace connection, these pathways - in conjunction with S-threads - were used to connect the various star systems linked via the HoloNet. (ISB)

Sin Suub
this Sullustan was one of the chairbeings of SoroSuub Corporation, during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Sinded
General Crix Masst was assassinated by Morteos on this planet. (WBC)

Sinewy Ana Blue
this smuggler plied the trade from a base in the Smuggler's Run. She earned her nickname from the blue replacement tooth she wore. She is an old acquaintence of Han Solo, having dealt a number of sabacc matches in which Solo won a great deal of credits. She always thought he was lucky, but couldn't ever link up with him. Eventually, as the Empire crumbled and the Hutts lost control of the Run, Ana went to work for the Glottalphib crimelord Nandreeson. She worked with Zeen Afit, Kid DXo'la, and the Wookiee Wynni, and was secretly in love with the rogue Davis. She met up with Solo once again when he came to the Run to investigate Jarril's death. Like her colleagues, she pretended to befriend Solo in an effort to bring him to Nandreeson. However, her conscience got the best of her, and she helped Han rescue Lando Calrissian from Nandreeson. Her life took a rough turn, though, when stolen droids - meant to be on Coruscant as part of Dolph's plans - exploded all over the Run. Ana was injured, but Davis was killed in the explosion. (TNR)

Sing, Advisors, Sing!
this was one of the trivial, pro-Imperial dramas produced by Ahric Korownosek and the NovaCluster Players, during the height of the New Order. (SS)

Singfruit
this unusual tree grows on the planet Di'wor. When it pollinates, the tree gives off a strange song as an attractant. The annual pollination atrracts tourists from around the galaxy. The tree itself produces a tasty fruit. (SOP)

Singing Mountain home of a witch clan by the same name, on Dathomir. (CPL)

Singing Mountain Clan
this clan of Force-using witches on Dathomir was one of the first to be raided by Brakiss and Tamith Kai, during their early "recruiting" for the Shadow Academy. (DK)

Single Trooper Compact Assault Vehicle
this small, armored land machine was designed for use by Imperial stormtroopers. It was developed with enough defenses and firepower that a single stormtrooper could use it to control a large amount of space on undeveloped worlds which cuold offer little resistance. (MMY)

Single-celery Soda
this is a favored beverage of the Ugor race. (SH)

Sinidic
Drom Guldi's aide, he was a nervous little man with faded blonde hair and faint wrinkles covering his skin. He is killed by a Wampa on Hoth, when the beast slipped inside their base unnoticed and attacked him in a storeroom. (DS)

Siniteen
this humanoid race is characterized by their huge cranis, which are ridged and convoluted as if their brains were directly under their skin. They have incredible mental abilities, and can process huge calculations in their heads. (CCG2)

Sinjaffe
this childhood disease sometimes struck young members of the Bitthaevrian race, and was almost always fatal. (AIR)

Sink Crab
a life form native to the rocky islands of Bestine IV. (SWSB)

Sinkar
1) located in the Lawreys System, this frigid world barely supported life. Much of the oxygen on the planet was frozen on the planet's surface, making carbon-based life impossible. However, the planet was the homeworld of the Sinkar race. The Empire garrisoned the planet, although the exact reason for their presence on the planet was never discovered. (SWCP)
2) this species of helium-based slug creatures was native to the inhospitable world of Sinkar, and resembled huge, black amoebas. These huge creatures crawled across the surface of Sinkar, living on solar energies and minerals scraped from the ground. They were believed to live for an extremely long time, and many believed that their minds held many of the secrets of the universe. However, the Sinkar were also known as slow and ponderous thinkers, and obtaining even tiny bits of information from them could take years. (SWCP)

Sinking Stone
a Stellar Mag V mining vessel used on Jatee. (SN)

Sinn, Jahren
this man, a farmer from the planet Nez Peron, married Mirith Sinn. He was elected to speak for the farmers of his nation, in an effort to convince the planetary government to align with the New Republic. When Imperial forces demanded that Jahren provide them with supplies, he refused, and was executed for hindering their efforts. (CE, CE2)

Sinn, Mirith
this strikingly beautiful, red-haired woman was the leader of the New Republic's forces in the sector of space controlled by the Imperial garrison on Phaeda. Her base of operations was on Phaeda itself. A one-time native of the planer Nez Peron, she was married to Jahren Sinn when Imperial forces decided to stop at his farm for supplies. They tried to take what they wanted from Jahren, but he refused. The Imperial troops shot him dead on the spot, and Mirith escaped only because the troops were too busy stealing supplies to notice. She dedicated her life to the destruction of the Empire, joining the Alliance just before the Battle of Endor, and rising quickly to the rank of Commander. However, her skills were more in Intelligence and counter-insurgence rather than battle tactics. When Tem Merkon told her about the existence of Kir Kanos, she decided to bring the former Imperial into her organization. She was met with resistance from Massimo, who challenged her to a duel. When Colonel Shev discovered location of her stronghold on Phaeda, she tried to rally her troops but instead sent part of her force too far. She ignored the warnings of her second-in-command, Sish Sadeet, and nearly lost the battle. Kir Kanos took control of the fight, quickly dispatching Shev's stormtroopers. She offered to get him off-planet on the Millennium Falcon, for she was a friend of Han Solo. Kanos declined, and Sinn set about moving her forces to Collo Fauale. She also donned a cloak and tried to draw Imperial forces away from Kanos' escape, hoping to use Merkon's treacherous double-cross to her advantage. She was captured in Kanos' place, but was severely tortured by General Wessel's forces and Carnor Jax himself. After Jax let her go, she followed Kanos to Yinchorr where she and Sish Sadeet eliminated Blim before he could kill Kanos. They then tried to take Jax alive, but Kanos killed him in combat. When Sish Sadeet tried to kill Kanos for not keeping Jax alive, Kanos also killed Sadeet in defense. He then left Yinchorr to plan his next move. Mirith, angered by the loss of Jax and Sadeet, vowed to hunt down and destroy Kanos. She employed the services of Grappa the Hutt, in an effort to locate and eliminate Kanos. While inhis employ, she discovered that Grappa held the real Feena D'Asta captive. Mirith's fiance had done business with Feena's father. She tried to free D'Asta, and was assisted in her rescue by a cloaked assassin. However, Mirith was confronted by Grappa himself, who had learned from Massimo that she was secretly trying to break Grappa's piracy ring which had been plaguing New Republic ships. Grappa had both Mirith and Massimo turned over to the Zanzibar for betraying his trust. She was rescued from certain death by Kir Kanos, and they left Massimo to die a traitor's death. They then fled the Zanzibar camp, and Sinn was rescued by Kennede's son. She later rescued Kanos from Grappa the Hutt, when she imprisoned Grappa and recovered the real Feena D'Asta. Mirith then contacted the Baron D'Asta and returned his daughter, then helped Kanos eliminate Xandel Carivus. She tried to convince the Baron to side with the New Republic, but he chose to lead his sector of space by himself. They did remain friends, however. She met with a similar failure when she tried to convince Kir Kanos to stay with her. He chose to leave, knowing in his heart that he would always be an Imperial while she was loyal to the Republic. (CE, CE2)

Sinosai
native to the planet Ithor, this highly intelligent predator had unusual teeth. The outer covering of the teeth was shed like skin, and each tooth maintained several layers at one time. (TBSB)

Sintalta, Derembus
this man served the Alliance for many years, after years of distinguished service to the Old Republic. He continually refused to be promoted to a desk job, in order to remain working as a field agent. Shortly before the Battle of Hoth, Sintalta held the rank of Commander, and served in Midnight Squadron, the heavy weapons division of Eclipse Team. (AIR)

Sinthia Pulchatt
this Kibnon spice merchant worked as a liaison between her own boss and Jabba the Hutt. She worked in Mos Eisley. (GG7)

Sinton
a planet which was subjugated by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, General Sulamar claimed to be in command of the Imperial forces that route the planet's defenses. (DS)

Sio
this species of tree towered above the jungles of its native planet, Joralla. (PG1)

Sionian Skup
a race of bio-engineered humanoids of human stock. They have small, close-set eyes, thin, brittle hair, and cheese-colored skin. They are known throughout the galaxy as master thieves. (TME)

Siphariu*m
the Imperial shuttle used to take Kirtan Loor from Borleias back to Imperial Center. (XWN)

Sir
a large, red alien C-3PO and Kalarba's baron meet on Hosk. He has a square, noseless face with a wide, toothless mouth. (DRO)

Sirdar
this planet was overrun with winged xendrites, after a small population of the avians was brought in to control the insect population. (COG)

Siren III
this modified Aavman Extravagance 11-S space yacht was owned and operated by Leger DeMain. Much of the ship's original infrastructure was gutted and rebuilt to accommodate the traveling revue, with the entire bow dedicated to a large stage. The original 24 staterooms were converted to dressing rooms and living quarters for the members of DeMain's troupe. The middle engine was removed and replaced with a mocked-up cargo hold, and a small shuttle hidden among the escape pods for emergency escapes. (CRO)

Sires Vant
this Devaronian male was known as a criminal and loanshark during the early years of the New Republic. He was a member of Valis Lorn's organization, and controlled much of the underworld money-lending on the planet Andasala. (GG11)

Sirhka
this Noghri was one of the group which accompanied Corran Horn and Jacen Solo to Garqi, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Sirhka later assisted in helping Ganner Rhysode recover from the facial wounds he suffered in battle with Krag Val. (DTR)

Siri
this young girl was a Jedi trainee, and a contemporary of Obi-Wan Kenobi shortly after he was chosen to be Qui-Gon Jinn's padawan. She was actually two years younger than Obi-Wan, but her skills with the Force and in lightsaber combat moved her forward in her class to Obi-Wan's level. She was considered to be quite beautiful by the male students of the time, although she chosen to wear a boyish haircut and clothing to mask her looks. Siri found that she hated Obi-Wan after he had forsaken the Jedi to become involved in the Melida/Daan civil war. After the destruction of Xanatos, she was chosen by Adi Gallia to be a padawan, and they were assigned by Master Yoda to accompany Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan to Kegan to witness first-hand how a master and an apprentice worked together. Despite her skill and grace, Siri was impatient to move forward in her training, and often bristled in the presence of Obi-Wan's own patience. They were captured and held by the Keganites in the Learning Circle, in an effort to keep the Jedi from taking O-Lana back to Coruscant for training. The two quickly found a way to work together, and Siri learned more from Obi-Wan than she thought she could have. Eventually, they escaped the Keganites and helped bring Kegan into the galactic community. (CT, FFT)

Sirl, Marten
this man was the father of a twelve-year-old girl who received a cybernetic replacement for her injured arm, thanks mainly to the work of Jondrell Inx. Sirl remained indebted to the pirate, and helped Inx evade capture by the bounty hunters dispacthed by Prefect Rinn. (GG10)

Sirlul
a Quarren Commander serving under Admiral Ackbar on Home One, Sirlul was Ackbar's personal assistant. (WG, KT)

Siroma
one of six Kathol Republic Marauder-class corvettes sent to rescue the Bravado III from attack, shortly after the FarStar offered assistance. The 195-meter vessel was armed with eight double turbolaser cannons and three tractor beam projectors. (KO)

Sirpar
this arid world has a heavier-than-standard gravity, and was used by the Empire as an Army training post. It is the homeworld of the Eklaad race. (SWAJ)

Sirplex
manufacturers of shipboard shield projectors. (SCRE)

Sirrakuk
Lowbacca's younger sister, she was a free spirit who didn't want to conform to her family's idea of normal. Although she didn't resent her brother's ability with the Force, she chafed at the idea of simply working in the local factories on Kashyyyk. In open defiance of her family's wishes, she shaved her fur in intricate patterns in order to make herself different. She hoped that her parents would realize her desires for an adventurous life. Sirra wanted to spend her life among the stars, much like her uncle Chewbacca. She shared this dream with her best friend, Raabakyysh. Sirra was shaken by the disappearance of Raaba, who was never found after the young Wookiee tried to prove her adulthood by venturing into the lower jungles without Sirra. Shortly afterward, Sirra decided that it was time to prove her own adulthood. Lowie returned to Kashyyyk to accompany her, but their plans were cut short by the Shadow Academy's raid on the Wookiee factories. The Imperials succeeded in gaining essential computer and starship components used by the New Republic, but Lowie and Sirra had their own success. They battled the Nightsister Vonnda Ra in the depths of Kashyyyk's jungles, and both Sirra and Vonnda Ra fell into the clutches of a syren plant. With the help of Jacen Solo and Tenel Ka, Lowie managed to rescue his sister before the plant captured her. Vonnda Ra was eaten by the plant, but not before Sirra managed to obtain some of the tough, silky fibers from the plant's interior. Thus, she had proved her bravery to Lowie and her parents, and was recognized as an adult for her bravery. As the struggle with the Diversity Alliance intensified, Sirrakuk was captured and held on Ryloth with Lusa, Lowbacca, and several other non-human friends of Jaina and Jacen Solo. They were eventually freed. (DK, TEP)

Sirta Kum
this Ho'Din physician was once an assistant to Doctor T'jaleq Kith'Araquia. (SWJ1)

Sisar Run
this hyperspace trade route was controlled by Sprax and Black Sun during the Galactic Civil War. The Run cut through the heart of the Periphery, linking Tharin Sector with Hutt Space. It ran along the borders of Hutt space, a situation which led to animosity between the *vigo*s Sprax and Durga. It started at Nwarcol Point, where it connected with the Salin Corridor, then traveled through Sriluur to Terman Station before terminating at Sespe. (SSR)

Sisar Terminal
another name for Nwarcol Point. (SSR)

Sise Fromm
an Annoo-dat, Sise Fromm was a powerful crime boss from the planet Annoo during the early years of the New Order. He controlled most of the planet by fear, having sent the Trigon One weapons satellite into orbit around the planet. He wanted Thall Joben and his friends killed for angering him, and so he employed Boba Fett to kill them in the speeder races on Boonta. Fromm, covering all his bases, also planted a bomb on Joben's speeder. When Fett tried to kill Joben during the races, he activated a magnet in order to draw Joben nearer. However, the magnet dislodged Fromm's bomb, and Fett was nearly destroyed. In his anger, Fett captured Sise Fromm and his entire gang, and turned them over to Jabba the Hutt. (DCAR)

Sish Sadeet
this green-skinned Trandoshan was a member of the New Republic's forces, and was assigned as Mirith Sinn's second-in-command on the planet Phaeda. A suspicious creature, Sadeet thought it very unwise for Sinn to bring Kir Kanos into their group. However, he accepted her orders. This did not stop him from disliking Kanos, especially when the human scoffed at the defenses Sadeet had established to protect their hideout. In the end, Sadeet learned that the real traitor to their operation was Tem Merkon, and after the New Republic had freed Phaeda from Imperial control, he accompanied Mirith Sinn to Yinchorr. She hoped to find Kanos again, and Sadeet hoped to regain an ally. They arrived just in time to eliminate Blim, who was trying to shoot Kanos. Kanos then killed Jax in battle. Sadeet and Sinn had hoped to take Jax alive, in order to extract information about the Empire from him. When Kanos killed him, Sadeet grew angry and tried to attack Kanos. The former Imperial Guard anticipated Sadeet's attack, and speared the Trandoshan with a jab of his double-bladed sword. Sadeet died next to Jax, and Mirith vowed to kill Kanos for the unnecessary death. (CE)

Sisk
1) the red dwarf star which is the primary sun for the planet Sisk, it was once a large orange star that underwent a partial atomic collapse. This caused the normally lush planet of Sisk to cool, reducing it to a barren, cold world. (GG4)
2) a planet which is home to the Sic-six race, it is the primary planet orbiting the star Sisk. It was a lush, warm world until the star Sisk suffered a partial atomic collpase. The planet was then rapidly cooled, and most of its natural flora and fauna died out. (GG4)

Sisquoc
this Samuac graduated from the Galactic Outdoor Survival School before joining the Alliance as a scout and tracker. His wilderness skills eventually earned him a promotion to the rank of Major, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. He later served the Alliance at the Suolriep Sector headquarters on his homeworld of New Kisge, serving as an instructor and field agent. (AIR)

Sissk
a group of Trandoshans, the Sissk were the primary builders of the Stouker concussion rifle. All such weapons are hand-built. (DF)

Sistra Mountain
a mountain found on Yavin 8, Sistra has an almost religious connotation for the Melodies. (LW)

Sith
this ancient race of insect-like humanoids was characterized by its dark, red skin, cranial horns, and long bony chins. There were several subspecies of Sith, each with its own place in their society. Some were slaves, other were warriors, and the highest caste of all were the magicians. They lived in a remote sector of the ancient galaxy, and were unknown to most until a group of Jedi Knights discovered their existence. The early Sith regarded the Dark Jedi as gods. The Force-sensitive Sith magicians proved to have control over the Dark Side of the Force, and the Jedi took many of their tomes and teachings back to study. They hoped to determine ways to avoid the Dark Side, but a group of Jedi found the allure of the Dark Side and the Sith teachings too powerful. They rose up against their Masters, but were not yet powerful enough to defeat them. The Dark Jedi were banished from the Old Republic, and chose to flee across the galaxy to the worlds of the true Sith. Over the millennia, the two groups intermingled, until very little pure Sith blood remained. One of the early Dark Lords of the Sith was Marka Ragnos, who was succeeded by Naga Sadow. Freedon Nadd was a later Dark Lord who was caught by the Jedi Knights on Onderon and entombed there. Nadd's spirit invaded the body and mind of Exar Kun, who eventually became a Dark Lord himself. They developed a rigid hierarchy of magicians and warriors, with the leadership of the brotherhood falling to the current Dark Lord of the Sith. The Sith wrote expansive volumes on the control and use of the Dark Side, and described incredible manifestations of power. Later, they were able to created amulets and weaponry that could assist the user in controlling the Dark Side. These devices amplified the Dark Side, making the user incredibly powerful. Much of the Sith lore was hidden on various worlds when the ancient Jedi Knights first sought to eradicate the Sith. Some was stored on Korriban, some on the moon of Yavin 4. Since that time, the term Sith has come to represent this ancient brotherhood which learned how to harness the Dark Side of the Force and twist it to perform many evil acts. A new breed of Sith Lords was founded some 2,000 years before the Battle of Yavin by a rogue Jedi Knight who yearned to learn more of the Dark Side of the Force. Together with about 50 followers, this rogue fled the Old Republic and established his own Sith order. With galactic domination on their agenda, these new Sith Lords quickly became distrustful of each other and abusive of their dark side powers. In a short time, they had nearly wiped themselves out again. One Sith Lord remained, a man by the name of Darth Bane. He swore that the Sith would never again vanish from the galaxy, but also made certain that they never grew beyond their means. He established a rigid code by which there could only be a single Sith Lord and a single Sith apprentice. When the Lord finally expired, his current apprentice was promoted and allowed to take their own student. This pairing continued for the next several centuries until Darth Sidious rose to power as the Sith Lord. Sidious eventually took Darth Maul as his apprentice, and hoped to take control of the galaxy by bringing the Old Republic down from the inside. However, Maul was destroyed by Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Sidious' plans were thwarted. Decades later, Emperor Palpatine established Darth Vader as the last Dark Lord through the rigorous training he gave Vader. (SW, DA, FNU, DLS, TSW, GAS, FOSE, SW1, TPM)

Sith Archives
this hidden storehouse of knowledge was the repository of all information known to the Sith. It was formed shortly after Darth Bane established the Sith brotherhood. (JDM)

Sith Hall
this section of the ancient Galactic Museum on Coruscant contained a wealth of artifacts and texts which were used by the Sith Empire. These artifacts were created by the original Sith species, many of which died out after the fall of the Sith Empire 1,000 years before the Great Sith War. (TOJC)

Sith Infiltrator
see Infiltrator (IG1)

Sith Scorcher
this was one of the more popular mixed drinks served at The Glow Dome, on Adarlon, and was set afire before being served. (WSV)

Sith Speeder
this was a specialized, circular, one-man speeder developed for use by Darth Maul. Designed to be compact and fast, this speeder resembled a circle with the upper arc removed. The rider sat in the concave section of the speeder, and had hand and foot controls with which to maneuver the speeder. This speeder was unarmed, something that was not a deficit for its rider due to their skills in the Dark Side of the Force. This speeder was also easily stored in the forward section of Maul's Infiltrator starship. (SW1, IG1)

Sithspawn
1) an expletive used by Wedge Antilles. (XWN, KT)
2) this was the name used to describe any creature which had been altered by Sith rituals and magicks into something hideous and terrifying. These creatures were bred from naturally-evolved stock, but were heavily tainted by the Dark Side of the Force. (TOJC)

Sitting Duck
this small ship was Una Poot's hidden escape craft, docked on Silver Station. (SWJ10)

Sivantlie Base
this was the name of the temporary base, located on Coruscant, used by Wraith Squadron as they planned their assault on Warlord Zsinj. (IF)

Sivar
this man owned and operated the Suprosa during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

Sivorian Sea
this vast ocean was famous for its deep, emerald-green waters. (JH)

Sixth Decant
this section of the galaxy was held by the Alliance shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (CSWEA)

Sixty Hour War
this was the brief conflict during which the Empire subjugated the various rebellious factions on the planet Derilyn. During the War, the Empire wiped out the city of Paran in an effort to wipe out the rebels. (OE)

Sizinnian
this Snivvian spent most of his adult life trying to read and understand the Journey of the Minds. To this end, the slightly insane Snivvian lived deep in the sewers of Eyar City in a collection of chambers he called his "Inner Sacntum." Sizinnian would often become emotionally unstable whenever Eyar Treatment Systems came through to clean the sewers, reaching a peak of paranoia and fearing that everyone was out to steal his research. (HAS)

Sizzton, Andar
this bounty hunter was contracted by the Empire to search out the group of Alliance agents investigating the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The Empire actually contracted five boutny hunters, in an effort to ensure that the agents were captured. Sizzton was the only hunter who trailed the agents to Entrus from Draenell's Point. For a number of reasons, Sizzton's hunt was known to the Alliance agents, which made him nervous because he wasn't sure their actions weren't meant to draw him into a trap. (GMK)

Sk
this is a unit of measure, and describes a large amount of computer data. (CFG)

Sk'rirak
this female Tarong was the younger sibling of K'derek, and has light and dark olive green plumage. Like her brother, she was a skillful merchant before she became an information gatherer for the Alliance. Sk'rirak and K'derek sold their information for droids and jewelry. (GG12)

Skagras
a primary city on the planet Dohu VII. (SWJ1)

Skahtul
this female Barabel bounty hunter was the first to stumble onto Luke Skywalker following the Battle of Hoth. Skahtul had been trained by another bounty hunter who had taken her on as a guide, and allowed her to pursue her own freedom as long as she never tried to hunt him down. She and her band had heard of both the Imperial bounty on Luke, issued by Darth Vader, and Prince Xizor's bounty. As a Barabel, she held a deep respect for the Jedi Knights, but capturing Luke and turning him over to the highest bidder was just good business. Luke managed to escape from her before she could deliver him to either Vader or Xizor. Shaktul was later contacted by Xizor's niece, Savan, in the hopes that the Barabel could track down the human replica droid Guri. She staked out Doctor Thrumble's labs on the world, noting the increased defenses after Kar Yang failed to capture Guri. Note that she is called Skahtul in the Dark Horse Comics version of Shadows of the Empire. (SE, SEE, SESB)

Skalus
this Imperial Consul-General was assigned to maintain and control access to the Gree Enclave. He hated the posting, and cared little about maintaining the balance of trade in the Enclave. He was purposely inattentive to his duties, and hoped that the backlog of uncollected taxes would get him reassigned to another world. (SWJ8)

Skandit
a squirrel-like creature that lives in forests of Endor's Sanctuary Moon, the skandits have black, furry masks. They use slingshots and whips to ambush unwary travelers. (ECAR)

Skandrei Bandits
this group of cutthroat pirates was extremely active in the Kathol Outback during the early years of the New Republic. They maintained a fleet of capital ships and support craft that was rivaled only by the Imperial Navy fleet assigned to Kathol Sector, making them a formidable opponent. This firepower made them virtually unstoppable, and they attacked wherever and whenever they chose. (KO)

Skann
this planet is located in Astal Sector. It is famous for its Skannbult Likker. (GG9)

Skannbult Likker
this alcoholic drink is made from surplus dust-corn and dry gene wheat on the planet Skann. It has been described as the galaxy's most volatile form of fire-water. (GG9)

Skarten
a Kalkal academic who, along with Ra Yasht, wrote the paper Torture Observed: An Interview With Jabba's Cook. This work brought both of them instant tenure at Beshka University, much to the chagrin of P'tan. (TJP)

Skatecoaster
this small boat-like vehicle is driven by a small repulsorlift engine. Large enough for a single rider, it is easily slowed by placing a foot on the ground. (SA1)

Skavers
this swoop gang of Skeebos operated from a base in the Southern Crags of the planet Skeebo. They were considered outlaws, but we secretly working for Kaptain Voor. They kidnapped the H'uun Anachro, during her honeymoon on Skeebo, and held her for ransom. Their plans were thwarted when Gorga the Hutt employed Boba Fett to rescue Anachro. (BF)

Skee
a Tetsus Rodian, noted for his ability to hunt and kill the Manka cat. (TME)

Skeeb Desert
this is the largest desert found on the planet Skeebo. (BF)

Skeebo
1) the Hutt Gorga and his new bride, Anachro, spent time on this planet during their honeymoon. Anachro was kidnapped and held for ransom by Kaptain Voor and the Skavers. (BF)
2) this ancient race of spotted-skinned humanoids has lived on the planet Skeebo for several millennia. (BF)

Skeebo City
this is the capital city of the planet Skeebo. (BF)

Skeeg
this creature is infamous for its incredibly noxious smell. A mollusk, skeegs were native to the planet Vendara, where they lived in the warm swamps and rainforests. Their were considered unique in the mollusk world because of the shape of their shells. Over time, the calcareous material exuded to create the shell forms a pair of movable wings. However, these wings provide no assistance to the locomotion o the skeeg, which simply moves by contracting and expanding the muscles of its fleshy foot. What the wings do allow the skeeg to do is catch its prey. When an insect lands on the skeeg's back – attracted by the scent exuded from glands on its rearend – the skeeg used its wings to reach up and grab it. Then, using spines on its body, the skeeg injects a poison into its prey to immobilize it. Once the prey stopped moving, the wings helped move the insect to the skeeg's mouth for consumption. (TPS, COG)

Skeel
this well-muscled Cerean youth was the leader of the band of techrats which hung out with Kordren and Maj-Odo-Nomor. In order to hide his identity while riding swoops out on the plains, Skeel often painted his face white with black markings around his eyes. He led the raid on Ki-Adi-Mundi's house to steal groceries, shortly after Sylvn joined their band. Skeel's desire for technology, and the thrill of racing a swoop, often clouded his judgement, and when he and Kordren tried to race within the walls of the Outsider Citadels, Skeel lost control of his swoop and crashed into a dead-end wall. He was killed instantly, and Kordren was hospitalized after leaping from his swoop before it hit the wall. (PTR)

Skeendo Tunnels
this network of abandoned mining tunnels and canyons is found in the Southern Crags of the planet Skeebo. A city was built from the wreckage of starships scavenged from the Skeeb Desert by the Skavers. It was here that the Skavers held Anachro for ransom. Boba Fett was able to infiltrate the tunnels and rescue the H'uun. (BF)

Skeete, Jaspar
the last City Governor of D'larah, Skeete was notorious for his poor crisis management. The fact that Demophon and its star were doomed during the Galactic Civil War placed Skeete out of his comfort zone. (SN)

Skefta
this game of chance was popular in the Outer Rim Territories, where much of the gambling done during its play was controlled by the Hutts during the New Order. (MA)

Skerrit
this male Devaronian, spouse of Anirak, was one of many who smuggled bandaras off Devaron in order to breed them for eventual return to the planet. His work helped offset the desire of the female Devaronians to exterminate the bandaras. (COG)

Sketto
this large, flying, carnivorous insect is native to the deserts of Tatooine. It can reach lengths of up to a meter. (GF)

Skevon
this gas is one of the most common gases used for blasters. (CFG)

Skidder, Wurth
this brash young man was a graduate of Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4. He was part of a group which followed Kyp Durron and formed an almost vigilante brigade of Jedi Knights, bringing their own form of justice to remote parts of the galaxy. He was one of the first Jedi to fly the XJ version of the T-65 X-Wing, a vehicle he used to bring down the Rodian mercenaries of the Osarian First-Force, against the wishes of Leia Organa Solo. Later, during the Battle of Ithor, Wurth was severely injured in battle with the Yuuzhan Vong on Ithor's surface. He survived, and vowed to return the fight to the Vong. He was part of the delegation sent to Gyndine to help relocate refugees, where he allowed himself to be captured by the Yuuzhan Vong. He tried to convince the young yammosk aboard the Creche' that Randa the Hutt was plotting to Chine-kal, while Sapha planted the idea in Randa's mind that Chine-kal was going to kill him. The plan was to create confusion aboard the clustership, but only succeeded in killing Fasgo and attracting the attention of Chine-kal. Chine-kal captured Wurth and planned to present the Jedi as a present to Tsavong Lah. After being attacked by Kyp's Dozen at Kalarba, though, Chine-kal fled to Fondor. He grew angry with the Jedi, and Skidder in particular, and physically abused him. Skidder was broken badly by the torture, and barely survived to discover that Kyp had found him at Fondor. Before he died, Wurth asked Kyp to rescue Randa, who had been playing the Yuuzhan Vong for information to give to the Republic. (VP, DTR, JE)

Skids
Esege Tuketu's weapons officer in the Fifth Battle Group, Skids controlled their K-Wing's bombs. (BTS)

Skiff
a repulsorlift utility vehicle like those employed by Jabba the Hutt. They average about 9 meters in length, and are piltoed by a single driver who uses directional steering vanes to maneuver it. (ROTJ)

Skifter
a fake sabacc card that can change its suit and value with a touch of one corner. (DFR, DA)

Skile Curve
this power-pulse pattern is generated on a computer monitor when a repulsorlift generator is correctly calibrated for proper output. The skile curve is a multi-humped curve which lessens over time before jumping back up slightly. (CFG)

SkillWare
this was the name given to the computer code which provided a droid with the ability to perform certain actions. It was copyrighted by Sienar Intelligence Systems during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Skimboard
a repulsor-equipped board used by children and some athletes to move about. They are also called hoverboards. (GOF2, GOF7)

Skimmer
another name for a landspeeder. (SW)

Skin Buster
this was the working name of a biochemical substance created by the Genetech orbital lab over Gorsh. This red goo was created from an irritating sap which caused severe burning sensations on the skin of most humanoids. If left untreated, the victim often went insane, screaming from the pain. (PG1)

Skine Bounty Hunter College
this Outer Rim syndicate was a small-time operation which speciallized in locating vagrant fugitives. (GG9)

Skine Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Outer Rim. (GG9)

Skinkner
one of the Black Sun criminals working with Grobber during the reign of Zekka Thyne over Black Sun's Corellian interests. (TFE)

Skinto, Mygo
this young woman resembled any of the multitude of children dishomed by the Galactic Civil War and the struggle to control her homeworld of Norne. Mygo could pass as a boy or a girl, and appeared to be a simple orphan. In reality, Mygo was old enough to have children of her own, although she had dedicated herself to making sure the children of Norne were given a chance to survive the battles. She also worked to ensure that the children of Norne weren't exploited and used as slaves or indentured labor. Mygo herself was an orphan who lost her parents when their space yacht disappeared. She was passed among various aunts and relatives until she was old enough to set out on her own. She was hampered by the fact that her physical growth stopped by the time she reached her teens, leaving her with the appearance of a child. She eventually went underground, establishing a series of warrens below the city where "her children" could hide out while still receiving the nourishment and care they required. Mygo was sympathetic to the Alliance, and often passed on information she gained to agents she knew. (CRO)

Skinwing
an avian creature native to the planet Trinta, the skinwing is a reptilian bird with leathery wings and a deafening screech. They have a large, bony head which ends in a long, tooth-filled beak. (DOE)

Skip 1
the first of the Smuggler's Run asteroids to be colonized, it is the 35th asteroid in the Run. Despite being the most efficient of the Skips, it continually oozed a greenish-yellow slime which could not be stopped. A Bothan tried to stop it once, but the asteroid began to shake to its roots, causing a large amount of damage to the smugglers' haven. Skip 1 serves as the gateway to the Run, and contains an abundance of docking bays and repair facilities. (TNR)

this Smuggler's Run asteroid was rocked with a series of explosions when Dolph detonated his specially-built droids. The droids were meant to be on Coruscant when they exploded, but a number of smugglers stole droids to keep or sell on the black market. A great deal of damage was caused by the explosions, and there were a number of casualties. (TNR)

this Smuggler's Run asteroid was rocked with a series of explosions when Dolph detonated his specially-built droids. The droids were meant to be on Coruscant when they exploded, but a number of smugglers stole droids to keep or sell on the black market. A great deal of damage was caused by the explosions, and there were a number of casualties. (TNR)

Skip 5
Han Solo, Chewbacca, and the Sullustan Seluss convened on this Smuggler's Run asteroid to discuss their reactions to Jarril's death and talk about their next move. Han and Chewie were in the Run, investigating not only Jarril's death but the unusually large amount of credits flowing through the Run. Skip 5 is riddled with caves strewn about in the stony planetoid, but is too hot for most species to inhabit. Some of the caves were large enough to house six luxury liners, and they believed that the strange cargoes passing through the Run were stored here. All they found was a group of resident Jawas and the smuggler Davis. Skip 5 was rocked with a series of explosions when Dolph detonated his specially-built droids. The droids were meant to be on Coruscant when they exploded, but a number of smugglers stole droids to keep or sell on the black market. A great deal of damage was caused by the explosions, and there were a number of casualties. (TNR)

Skip 52
this asteroid, part of the Smuggler's Run, is continually wracked by vicious, swirling rock storms. (TNR)

Skip 6
this asteroid, which is nothing more than a huge mudball, is found within the Smuggler's Run, and was the base of operations for the Glottalphib crimelord Nandreeson. He had it hollowed out and reformed into the perfect replica of Glottal, down to huge swarms of watumba bats and parfue gnats. His lair was hidden deep within the asteroid, and only by traversing a complex series of tunnels and caves could one get in or out. (TNR)

Skip 72
this Smuggler's Run asteroid was rocked with a series of explosions when Dolph detonated his specially-built droids. The droids were meant to be on Coruscant when they exploded, but a number of smugglers stole droids to keep or sell on the black market. A great deal of damage was caused by the explosions, and there were a number of casualties. (TNR)

Skip 8
Chewbacca once landed the Millennium Falcon here and decided to sleep inside the ship. This prompted the smugglers of the run to attack him for believing himself above their ranks, and Han Solo had to rescue the hapless Wookiee. (TNR)

Skipper
1) the generic term used to describe any small craft used to travel between Skips within the Smuggler's Run. These ships are quick and maneuverable, a necessity when dodging asteroids. (TNR)
2) a species of wild bird known for its ability to avoid being caught. (TFNR)

Skipray Blastboat
heavily-armored starfighters designed to be fast and powerful. They are long, streamlined ships, about twice the length of an X-wing. They never became as popular as TIE fighters, and became obsolete in the mind of the Empire. They are now found in smuggler defense fleets. They have rear-mounted engines, and have a ventral fin for stability. (HTTE, DFR)

Skip-tracer
a slang term for a collections agent. (HSR)

Skirtopanol
a drug which is used to reduce a prisoner's resistance to any interrogation. When it reacts with the drig lotiramine, it causes chemical amnesia and, sometimes, death in the prisoner. (XWN)

Skitter
this small creature, native to the planet Verkuyl, is known for its attraction to metal and other shiny objects. (TFNR)

Skitterfly
a small insect native to the planet Hirsi, skitterflies live on the surface of the freshwater lakes. (GG12)

Skloob
a Brigian term for urination. (HSL)

Skoa
this refreshing beverage is best served cold. (SOL)

Skodhan, Rya
this woman was a native of Mantooine, where she grew up as a street urchin and thief. After learning to deal sabacc and taking three months' pay from Airen Cracken, he recruited her into the Alliance. She later got a job dealing sabacc at the Imperial Palace Casino on Ord Mantell, where she could make contact with a great number of Imperial officers. She then steals information from their rooms - after learning its location with idle chatter during the game - and provides to Alliance agents who show up at her table. After establishing an agent's identity by dealing the agent a winning hand,and having the agent lose it intentionally, she deals the agent a hand that contains a coded message. (CRO)

Skoff, Emiel
this aging human male was a respected instructor at Darakin University before the Empire took control of its curriculum. Skoff left the university, rather than face persecution at the hands of Imperial agents, and set to work trying to discover a way for the Alliance to defeat the Empire. He believed that a heavily outnumbered force such as the Alliance could always prevail in battle. He also said that a reliance on technology provided a false sense of security. He once tried to locate information on a planet in the Gesaril system which was hidden by the Empire. Skoff cared little for appearances, and rarely bathed or changed his clothing. He wrote most of his notes on paper, rather than use a datapad. (GG6)

Skolos
this man served as the chief engineer aboard the Black Ice. He wasn't loyal to either side during the Galactic Civil War, but saw the Alliance team which tried to take control of the ship as a group of pirates. Skolos eventually turned the ship's computer systems against the Alliance, hoping to use her defense systems to eliminate them. Skolos caused a number of failures in life support and communications, then turned the maintenance droids on the Alliance agents. When he couldn't stop their actions, Skolos fought them to the death. He threw every form of grenade he could at them, but was eventually forced to surrender. (BI)

Skor II
this small, dense planet is the second world in the Squab system, and is the homeworld of the Squib race. It is located in the Calaron Sector. It has a virtually unlimited supply of natural resources, but they tend to be found in concentrated deposits. The temperate world has forests, oceans, and mountains, and is temperate enough to support most forms of life. (GG4, REB)

Skorr
Skorr was a hulking humanoid with pale, pebbly skin and pointed ears. His was seems to have been disfigured,and he wore a metal half-mask. He worked with the Rybet, Gribbet. He kidnapped Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa, in an effort to draw Solo out. He left Luke's lightsaber behind a proof that he held them. A homing beacon inside the lightsaber gave him a measure of control if Solo left the planet too quickly. Solo managed to liberate Luke and Leia, but was followed by Skorr and Gribbet when they fled the planet. Skorr continued tracking the homing beacon in the lightsaber until Han ejected it in a lifepod. Skorr followed the life pod, believing Solo was in it. He ended up within the midst of an Imperial fleet on maneuvers in the system, and was shipped off to the spice mines of Kessel. He later escaped from Kessel, and vowed to get revenge on Solo. He tracked him to Hoth, where the Alliance was investigating the planet's suitability as a base. Skorr captured Han, Luke, and Chewbacca, with the help of Bossk and Zuckass. They agree to meet Boba Fett on Ord Mantell, where they would turn Solo over to the bounty hunter for transport to Jabba the Hutt. They were intercepted by Darth Vader's fleet near Ord Mantell, and barely made it to the surface. While hiding in a moisture plant, they were ambushed by Raskar, who managed to free the Alliance agents and thwart Skorr's plans. (CSW)

Skoth
this dried-up riverbed is found on the planet Prakith, and was the source of valuable ores. The mines which studded the riverbed were controlled by the Imperial warlord Foga Brill. (SOL)

Skra'akan
this huge ocean creature is found in the polar regions of the planet Calamari, but a sighting is incredibly rare. It resembled a massive, thick-bodied squid in that it had a number of long tentacles, but it also had a great mouth that it used to consume its prey. (CCR)

Skrag
a Corellian swear word. (TFE)

Skreej, Tamtel
the alias used by Lando Calrissian to gain entrance to Jabba the Hutt's palace. EV-9D9 discovered Calrissian's presence when she became paranoid about the appearance of R2-D2 and C-3PO following a number of strange droid problems in Jabba's palace. She thought that Calrissian was in the palace to recapture her. (TJP)

Skreeka
this is a somewhat disreputable city found on the planet Atzerri. It is much less refined than Talos. (SOL)

Skreeker
a small creature native to Belsavis, skreekers are nocturnal. (COJ)

Skrilling
an alien race which evolved on the planet known simply as Agriworld-2079, the Skrillings are humanoid scavengers of large size and stature. They have baggy skin covering their large bodies. Their poor, small eyes sit above eight breather tubes that take the place of a nose. These tubes are studded with olfactory buds that allow the Skrillings to rely on their sense of smell instead of their poor eyesight. Their mouths are filled with sharp teeth. They feed on the carcasses of the various grazing beasts of their homeworld, filling a niche in the ecological system. This has led many other races to regard them simply as disgusting, annoying beasts with no real intelligence. They avoid conflict, and were discovered by a M'shinni exploration ship. The Skrillings had no name for their world, so the M'shinni simply named it Agriworld-2079. It has been determined that the name 'Skrilling' is in fact a M'shinni term that means 'bone picker.' The Skrillings had been a nomadic race, but the segmentation of agricultural land by the M'shinni forced them to form loose villages. Skrillings have a unique talent that allows them to continually ask the same question in many different ways, wearing their opponent down but never angering them. This allows them to ingratiate themselves into any situation, and is the method they used to gain transport on M'shinni cargo ships and escape Agriworld-2079. The Skrilling race developed minimal levels of technology before the advent of the M'shinni, and have evolved minimally since then. (GG12)

Skritch
Gudb's pet gorm worm, Skritch was responsible for the death of Andur Sunrider. (TOJ)

Skronkie
this species of small insect makes a loud humming noise when it swarms together. (VOF)

Skuhm
the hide of this creature, native to the planet Muzara, was used to make protective clothing and carrying bags. (TOJC)

Skull
starfighter pilot slang term for a Z-95 Headhunter. (IJ)

Skull of Thalemute
this remarkable xenoarchaeological find was discovered by Doctor Angrail Ryhl. (HR)

Skull-Biters Flightknife
one of the many Cartann fighter squadrons which opposed Wedge Antilles and the Running Crimson Flightknife during the war against the forces of the Yedagon nation, on Adumar. They were defeated by Wedge's forces in battle, and surrendered. (SOA)

Skull-Stone
this pendant is worn by members of the Guild of Vindicators. (CSWDW)

Skulls
this swoop gang, founded on the planet Stend VI, was started by Jeng Seth. They have since relocated to the Hook Nebula. (GG9)

Skurvis
this Krish worked as a bodyguard to Treytis Prash, until he was shot and killed by Celia Durasha. Celia was led by Thune to believe that Prash was a bounty hunter holding her partner, Kaj Nedmak. This allowed Thune to eliminate the two bodyguards and capture Prash. (SWJ14)

Skusk
an aromatic plant that Wuher uses to create the perfect liqueur for Jabba the Hutt. (TME)

Skutch
Meeka Reen's lieutenant, he was placed in charge of guarding Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa when they were taken from Ryko Vant in the wastes of Jerne. He was kiled on Adony Station during the attempt to open the vault containing the eternity crystal. The vault had been rigged by Darth Vader to explode and kill Luke and Leia. They escaped, but Skutch was not so lucky. (CSWDW)

Skutu, Trel
known in Imperial circles as "Scourge," Trel was a flight leader for a wing of TIE Fighters during the Galactic Civil War. He believed that the starfighter and its pilot were the real victors in a space battle, not the slow capital ships. (MTSE)

Sky Cannon
this strange device was located within Mount Yeroc, on Tahlboor. The cannon resembled a huge spotlight, and generated an intense beam of energy when activated. The cannon was controlled by Chief Nimodro for many years. Although he knew that his ancestors had used the cannon to communicate with the planet, he never really understood what they meant. He knew that the beam of energy was blindingly bright, and seemed to be most powerful near the planet's surface. The true use of the cannon was eventually revealed by R2-D2 and C-3PO, when the droids were in the service of Counselor Harthan. Shortly before an all-out war between the Troobs and Hobors, R2-D2 determined how to activate the cannon's communication functions. He used it to project a huge image of C-3PO above the surface of the planet, an image which was visible and audible several miles away. The cannon was actually built by an ancient, though highly technical, Tahlboorian civilization. They designed it to harness the power of the planet's inner core to carve the surface of the planet to their own design, hoping to create a paradise for themselves. They had planned to use the cannon to adjust the orbits of Tahlboor's moons, thereby modifying the tides, but they did not survive to see this goal achieved. Jake Harthan also learned of the sky cannon's abilities, and sought to undermine his father's work in order to gain control of the cannon. Thanks to the droids, he failed, and the Hobors and Troobs moved closer to achieving peace. (DRPC)

Sky City
this city is located on the northern-most end of the Landra continent of Lianna. (ML)

Sky Fire
this was the Langhesi name for the huge bolts of lightning which were called down by the boras and the Jentari during the process of forging their seeds. (RP)

Sky Mine
this form of explosive weapon was developed during the last decades of the Old Republic. Sky mines were deployed in orbit by a delivery ship, then activated. They were given rough targetting parameters, often with transponder code masks, and then hunted down their targets. They had excellent maneuverability, and chased after their target until they ran out of fuel or were destroyed. Since sky mines were mobile, and could lock onto a target of their own volition, starfighter squadrons had to have their missions coordinated with the parameters used to program the mines. (RP)

Sky Seraphs
a group of deities worshipped by Doallyn. (TJP)

Sky Stone

Sky Swooper
this repulsor-augmented hang glider was designed and manufactured by Nen-Carvon for the Empire., and was used to travel above the jungles of Aris. They have a twin blaster mounted on the frame, above the flier's head. The Imperial forces occupying Aris found sky swoopers invaluable transports. (RM, ROE)

Sky-Dreadnaught
this huge airship was the primary warship of the fleet that protected Exocron from invasion. It was essentially a 200-meter long airspeeder, consisting of a central air-foil spar connected to two huge, finned cylinders. The crew consists of 340 officers and 120 gunners. The gunners handle outdated but nevertheless effective weaponry like 18 projectile cannons, 38 repeating percussion cannons, and 2 static ion field dischargers. These ships are incapable of travelling beyond Exocron's immediate atmosphere, with a flight ceiling of about 10 kilometers. They were escorted by squadrons of Skylark airspeeders, which could be landed in the central spar. (KO)

Sky-scan Sensor
a portable sensor which can be mounted on high ground and used to monitor the approach of an enemy. (HSR)

Skyarch
this is an architectural structure that resembles a group of suspended bridges. Made famous by the Grand Rim Promenade on Cejansij, skyarches span most of the Canyonade and link the opposing sides of the Promenade. The skyarch consists of nine walkways which are held in place without the use of repulsorlift technology. This is what makes them almost unique in the galaxy. There are nine walkways in all, arranged in a diamond pattern. The three middle walkways connect the Promenade, and there are two walkways above and below, then one more above and below those two. The skyarch had been in place for nearly three centuries prior to the Battle of Endor. (SOP)

Skybarge
Fadoop's patched-up aircraft. (HSL)

Skybird
a popular model of racing swoop manufactured by Ubrikkian, the Skybird was designed to compete with the Nebulon-Q and Flare-S swoops. Despite the fact that it could attain speeds of 650 kilometers per hour or more, it was more expensive that the other models and had a flight ceiling of just 35 meters. (RPG)

SkyBlind
this Loronar reconnaissance ship found acceptance among galactic scouts, for its design and capabilities allow many scouts to explore new worlds with a great deal of concealment. The SkyBlind is a 21-meter sphere which can carry a pilot and up to seven passengers, along with about fortty cubic meters of cargo. The SkyBlind is shielded, and is armed with a single proton torpedo launcher. The spherical shape allows most long-wave sensor scans to pass around it, providing a measure of stealth. The cargo space is often limited by half, however, because one of the SkyBlind's unique features is the inclusion of a small, spherical landing craft. The landing craft is six meters in diameter, and can transport the SkyBlind's entire crew to the surface of a planet. Where the main SkyBlind ship is an interstellar craft equipped with a hyperdrive, the landing craft is a repulsor-powered module and must have sufficient gravity to operate. The landing craft is air- and watertight, is minimally shielded, and has no weapons. Both the SkyBlind main ship and its landing craft are equipped with sensor-masking technology, allowing them to move into a hostile situation without drawing attention. (GG8)

SkyCenter Galleria
this amusement center was built on Cloud City by Lando Calrissian and Cojahn after the failure of Hologram Funworld, about 19 years after the Battle of Endor. Lando used the profits from GemDiver Station to build it, and hoped it would be the first of many centers throughout the galaxy. It boasted restaurants, shopping centers, holomazes, experience chambers, and thrill rides. He brought Jaina and Jacen Solo, as well as the other Jedi trainees at Luke Skywalker's praxeum, to Cloud City to try it out and give it a "test-drive." When he arrived, though, he discovered that Cojahn had been murdered by agents of Black Sun, who wished to gain control of the Galleria. (TCC)

Skyclaw
1) a Preybird-class attack ship owned by Mazzic. Its hull was painted to resemble a huge bird of prey surrounded by red flames. (TLC, LCSB)
2) one of two disguised starfighters used by Manda D'ulin's team of Mistryls. (TME)

Skycrawler
this was the affectionate term used by Leia Organa-Solo to describe any child who would be born to Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade Skywalker. (BP)

Skydome Botanical Gardens
a huge terrarium on Coruscant, designed, financed, and built by an Old Republic philanthropist (JS)

Skyhook
1) the codename of Princess Leia's mission to retrieve the plans of the first Death Star (SWR)
2) the name given to any of the orbital platforms used by the wealthier residents of Coruscant as a stopover point in travelling from the ground into space. Thet are connected to a planet's surface by a long, flexible, elevator tube. Some were simply small landing pads on which beings could wait for further transport. Others were lavish constructions nearly the size of asteroids. Emperor Palpatine's skyhook was particularly lovely, as it had been created as a botanical refuge from Coruscant's urban buildings. Prince Xizor tried to steal Palpatine's gardener for his own skyhook, Falleen's Fist, but the being had an "unfortunate accident" before his met his new employer. (SE, SSE)

Skyhook
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of the fleet assigned to Han Solo and the Mon Remonda during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. In the attempt to trap Zsinj at Vahaba, the Crynyd and the Skyhook were assigned to protect the Interdictor cruiser Stellar Web. (SOC)

Skyhopper
1) another name for Incom's T-16 pleasure/utility craft. It is a tropospheric craft, and shares a number of common systems with the X-Wing T-65 (SW)
2) any craft designed to operate in a planet's atmosphere, such as the Bestinian Skyhopper. (ROTJN)

Skyhouse
a form of architecture in which the entire house is levitated on repulsorlifts. The house then appears to float in the sky. (ZHR)

Skylane
this is generic term that was developed on the city-world of Coruscant. There, skylanes referred to the complex magnetic pathways which were established to regulate traffic moving throughout Imperial City and around the planet. There were a mutlitude of levels of skylanes, and each level was dedicated to a specific direction or speed. Any craft wishing to travel on the planet must have a navigational computer which could be slaved into the skylane's magnetic controls. Once a destination had been selected, the skylane control would move the craft along the magentic pathways, changing levels and directions as needed, until the craft reached its destination. This automated control kept traffic accidents to a minimum, which was important on Coruscant where thousands of craft of every size and ship moved around the planet each hour. (IG1)

Skylark
this form of combat airspeeder was developed for use by the military police of the planet Exocron. They have a cylindrical shape highlighted by eight wing-like stabilizers. They are equipped with primitive wave-form communications terminals, and are armed with a single projectile cannon and two percussion cannons. (KO)

Skylight Squadron
this group of TIE Fighters served aboard the Allegiance during the defense of Adumar. (SOA)

Skylow, Tor
this former Imperial Navy officer convinced her crew - a group of customs inspectors on tour - to defect. They took over control of their frigate, and placed anyone who chose not to defect into the escape pods. The pods were jettisoned near Travnin, with Skylow informing the authorities of their whereabouts. The Empire responded to the defection by claiming Skylow and her crew cruelly left the Imperial to die. Skylow and her crew then fled to the Yelsain system, where they refitted the frigate and renamed it the Counter Puncher. They turned to waylaying Imperial supply ships, taking their cargoes but leaving the crews alive and intact. The goods they stole were then sold on Yelsain for cheap prices. In return, the natives of Yelsain hid Skylow's team whenever they were pursued. She has had several cyborg implants added to her athletic body, but the exact modifications are not known. She is the prototypical noble pirate, down to her flowing red hair and lavish dress. (GG6)

Skynara
this planet is located in Skine Sector. It was located at one end of the Five Veils' Tour Route. (GG9)

Skynx
a Ruurian expert on pre-Old Republic history in the Tion Hegemony, Skynx was still in his larval stage when Badure approaced him to help translate the log-recorder from the Queen of Ranroon . He agrees to help Badure, for Skynx had a yearning to experience a true, human adventure before moving into his pupal stage. He is adept at playing the musical instruments of his people. Skynx proved a valuable asset, helping to translate the ship's log-recorder and later tricking Gallandro into following him into the Queen's holds. This activated the ship's anti-weapons systems, killing Gallandro before he could kill Han Solo. When the mystery of the Queen was uncovered, Skynx left to return to his studies, hoping to complete them before he was forced to spin his cocoon and metamorph into a chroma-wing flier. (HSL)

Skynxnex, Arb
this tall, thin human was imprisoned on Kessel as a young man for his involvement with the criminal organization Black Sun. The crime

he was arrested for was theft, and he escaped the death sentence because he was young and healthy. He became part of Moruth Doole's spice-smuggling operation. He was assigned to the prison for his long record theft and assassinations, and grew in favor under Doole's watchful eye. Doole used Skynxnex as his liaison to the smugglers who transported loads of spice. Skynxnex was killed shortly Han Solo and Chewie crash-landed on Kessel, when they and Kyp Durron escaped from the mines. (JS, WG, JASB)

Skypath Industries
this textile firm maintained an outlet on Dravian Starport. (GMH)

Skyraptor
another combat airspeeder developed for the Exocron Airfleet, it is superior to the Skylark in terms of agility and armament. The Skyraptor is armed With two percussion cannons and four air-to-air rocket launchers. (KO)

Skyreach Hotel
a chain of hotels operated in the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Skyrung Manufacturing headquartered in the city of Syward, on the planet of Lavisar, this corporation was a licensed builder of Lambda-class shuttles for the Empire. (IF)

SkySlayer
this is the name given to one of Aratech's light assault ships. The SkySlayer measured 20 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of quad-laser cannons and four blaster cannons. It required a crew of seven. (SH)

Skywalker, Anakin
Anakin grew up as a slave in the markets of Mos Espa, on Tatooine. Eventually, he grew into a brash young pilot who joined the Old Republic as a fighter pilot, gaining recognition during his education at the Academy and then during the Clone Wars. His uncanny skill as a pilot did not escape notice, and he was approached by Obi-Wan Kenobi, who was a Jedi Knight who fought with Anakin during the Clone Wars. Kenobi thought that he could teach Anakin how to become a Jedi just as well as Yoda had taught him, but he was unable to keep up with Anakin's desire to learn more. For Anakin was still a brash young man, and the barriers of patience and hard work seemed to stifle his growing proficiency in the Force. It was about this time that Senator Palpatine also noticed the young Anakin. Sensing the Force within him, Palpatine also sensed Anakin's desire to learn quickly. He introduced Anakin to the wonders of the Dark Side of The Force, and Anakin was hooked. He realized that, with the power of the Force behind him, he would be able to provide for himself and his pregnant wife. There would be nothing to hinder him, and his security seemed assured. He became Palpatine's student, and the fall from the Light Side to the Dark Side happened so quickly that Kenobi was powerless to stop it. Kenobi pleaded with Anakin to return to the Light Side, but Anakin would have no part of it. After a heated argument, Anakin and Kenobi confronted each other in a vicious lightsaber duel. They were evenly matched physically, but Obi-Wan's knowledge of the Force was much greater than Anakin's, and Kenobi was able to maintain his strength. A coincidence led to their battle nearing a pit of molten lava, and Anakin misplaced his footing. He fell into the pit, and was seared alive. Obi-Wan, seeing that he had a single chance to save his friend and return him to the Light Side, pulled the burning Anakin from the pit. He returned to the Old Republic, where a tram of cybernetic surgeons worked furiously to save him. The newly-promoted Emperor Palpatine spared no expense in trying to save Anakin. This was noted by Kenobi, who realized that Anakin would see Palpatine as a savior. Kenobi then fled with Anakin's wife, hiding her and her unborn twins on remote worlds, out of the Emperor's watchful sight. Palpatine, upon Anakin's recovery, re-introduced Anakin to the Dark Side of the Force. This eventually led to Anakin's acceptance of the Sith training and lore, and sometime during this training Anakin Skywalker ceased to exist. He became Darth Vader, and rose to become a Dark Lord of the Sith. As such, he also became Palpatine's minion, and became the Emperor's tool. Sometime after the Battle of Yavin, Palpatine was able to discover that Anakin had had a son. He used this knowledge to help secure his hold on the former Anakin Skywalker, as well as a way to help turn Luke to the Dark Side. The Light Side of Anakin Skywalker seemed to try and return to the surface, and Vader was faced with a crisis. During the Battle of Endor, Luke managed to get the Light Side of Anakin to re-assert itself, and as the Emperor was trying to kill Luke, Anakin rose up and threw the Emperor down the Death Star's power shaft. The life-support systems that kept Darth Vader alive, however, were seriously damaged by the Emperor's Force lightning, and failed. Anakin died soon after Luke removed the facemask to allow Anakin to see his son with his own eyes. Anakin was portrayed by Sebastian Shaw in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi*, and by Jake Lloyd in* Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW, ESB, ROTJ, SW1)

Skywalker, Luke
Luke is the son of Anakin Skywalker, and the twin brother to Princess Leia Organa. He was separated from his sister just after their birth, in order to conceal his potential Force-sensitivity from the Emperor and Darth Vader. He was hidden on the planet Tatooine by Obi-Wan Kenobi, and lived his early years under the watchful eyes of Owen and Beru Lars. Luke was an eager boy, and was always flying his T-16 skyhopper in the canyons near his home while dreaming of being a starpilot at the Academy. Known as Wormie by his friends, he was a reckless youth whose best friend was Biggs Darklighter. When Biggs went off to the Academy, and later the Alliance, Luke felt that he was being mistreated by his Uncle, who annually refused to allow Luke to enroll. Fate and fortune intervened, however, when Owen purchased two well-worn droids named Artoo-Detoo and See-Threepio. With their purchase, Luke was catapulted into the midst of the Alliance. Obi-Wan Kenobi began to instruct Luke in the use of The Force. Luke then rescued Princess Leia from the first Death Star with the help of Han Solo. Following Kenobi's death, Luke destroyed the Death Star by calling on The Force. Later, Luke was visited by Kenobi's spirit, and directed to the planet Dagobah, where Luke trained under the Jedi Master Yoda. Following Yoda's death, Luke became the last of the Jedi Knights. He used his new-found strength to defeat Emperor Palpatine and turn Darth Vader from the Dark Side of the Force, returning Anakin Skywalker to the Light Side. In the years following the formation of the New Republic, Luke was instrumental in the New Republic's defeat of the Ssi-ruuk, the reborn Palpatine, as well as Imperial Admirals Thrawn and Daala. Luke continued his training on his own, and eventually became a Jedi Master. He set up a new Jedi Academy on Yavin's fourth moon, and began teaching the ways of The Force to a new set of Jedi Knights. During the period following the revelations of the partial Caamas Document found on Wayland, Luke travelled to Nirauan to search for Mara Jade. Mara was reported missing and out of touch, after tracing the paths of several unusual starships. They discovered the Hand of Thrawn complex, and managed to eliminate any potential threat it held to the New Republic. During their escape, Luke and Mara worked together with the Force, and both were opened up to the other's inner thoughts and feelings. This deepened and strengthened their relationship to a point that neither could ignore. Just before leaving Nirauan, Luke proposed to Mara. She agreed, and they were married, first in a solemn ceremony performed by Kam Solusar and witnessed only by the Jedi, and later in a public ceremony when they returned to Coruscant. Luke and Mara then left the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4 in the hands of the new Jedi Knights and travelled the galaxy teaching potential Jedi about the ways of the Force. Luke proposed to the New Republic that a new Jedi Council be established, but many members of the Senate feared that the Jedi would become too powerful. Shortly afterward, Luke and Mara were forced to bring the Jedi into battle when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. Despite their ties to the Force, the Jedi were unable to defeat the alien invaders. Several Jedi, led by Kyp Durron, struck out on their own to fight the battle their own way, much to Luke's dismay and to the consternation of the Senate. However, even in battle, Luke was surprised to find that Mara was pregnant with a son. Luke Skywalker is portrayed by Mark Hamill in the three Star Wars Ailms, as well as for the Star Wars and The Empire Strikes Back Radio Dramas on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR, ESB, ESBR, ROTJ, TB, DE1, TLC, COTF, SOP, VOF, VP, DTR, BP, U)

Skywalker, Luuke
a clone created by Joruus C'baoth from the hand Luke lost during his duel with Darth Vader on Cloud City. The clone, as were all of the clones that were grown too quickly in their Force-resistant vats, was mentally unstable. Luuke was defeated by Mara Jade, who fulfilled the prophecy laid on her by Emperor Palpatine, although not in the way he believed it would be. (TLC)

Skywalker, Shmi
this woman's family was captured by pirates when she was very young, and sold into slavery. She was passed form owner to owner over nearly three decades before being sold to Gardulla the Hutt. Shmi is best-known as the mother of Anakin Skywalker, although she remembers no man participating in Anakin's conception. Instead, she simply discovered she was pregnant and gave birth to the boy. Being a slave, there was no uproar over the fact that she was unmarried and did not know the father. After Gardulla lost a bet to Watto, Shmi and Anakin became the property of the ornery Toydarian. As Anakin grew, shmi knew that there was something special about her son. She hid as much of it as she could from Watto, hoping that the beast wouldn't use Anakin to his advantage. When Qui-Gon Jinn travelled to Tatooine, Shmi understood that Anakin was to leave with him. She could no longer hold the boy back from his destiny. When Anakin won the Boonta Eve podrace, Qui-Gon managed to win the boy in a bet with Watto, but was unable to gain Shmi's freedom. She remained behind on Tatooine, hoping to see her young son again someday. Shmi Skywalker was portrayed by Pernilla August in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Skywalker Epoch
this was a name used by some historians to describe the modern era of the galaxy, into which Anakin Skywalker and his chidren, Luke and Leia, were born. (TOJC)

Skywalker Technical Maintenance Service
a ruse used by R2-D2 to hide from the Imperial stormtroopers in Mos Eisley, he and C-3PO posed as maintenance droids from this false start-up company in order to gain access to a machine shop. They told the owner that they would fix his energy lathe for free, as part of a one-time, promotional offering. (SWR)

Skywalker Tour
this was the name of a tour developed by the government of Tatooine shortly after the Battle of Endor. It was created to draw more tourists to the desert planet, and claimed to highlight all the locations Luke Skywalker visited before he became a hero of the Alliance and the first of the new Jedi Kngihts. Stops included the old Lars homestead, the Mos Eisley Cantina, and the site of the wreck of Jabba the Hutt's sail barge near the Pit of Carkoon. (SWTJ)

Sla Kar
the name of the lowest class of citizens on the planet Demophon, the name derived from the term "slacker," and was applied to the slaves and poor degenerates of the planet's society. (SN)

Slaf
this racing sport's participants ride plastic sleds down a slafcourse defined by impellor fields. The slaf is actually one of the many portals on the course into which the racers can maneuver to collect points. The object is to make it to the end of the slafcourse with the most points. (RM)

Slafcourse
a racetrack which is used for recreation, the participants have to navigate plastic sleds around an obstacle course defined by various impellor fields. The slafcourse can alternate between being open and being tunneled. At various points on the course, slafs (portals) can be entered by the players who want to gain more points. The slafs are the obstacles, and it is not always easy to get into them. Many racers get thrown off the course if they miss them. (RM)

Slag Flats
this ancient, female Ithorian was one of the original settlers of the planet Tatooine. She was exiled from Tatooine for being a known criminal, and was the ringleader for a sizable organization. After landing on Tatooine, she established a minor crime ring in Mos Eisley. She lived near Tower Ridge, and once helped Adar Tallon when he first arrived on Tatooine. Momaw Nadon fell in love with Slag during his stay on the desert planet, which helped him overcome his own homesickness. Slag was later murdered by Jodo Kast, who was trying to capture Tallon and recover the bounty on his head. (GG7, TM)

Slag Pit, The
a run-down drinking establishment in the Corellian sector of Nar Shaddaa's spaceport. It is one of the three most popular hangouts for Corellian spacers, and is a dismal, crowded bar. (DE2)

Slane, Kirney
this was one of the many aliases used by Gara Petothel. Kirney was the daughter of a Coruscant hotelier, and had studied economics before she decided to get married and start a family. Kirney spent much of her time talking with the wives of influential businessbeings, picking up pieces of information otherwise unavailable to Gara Petothel. The alias was abandoned for several years, until Gara - then known as Lara Notsil - fled the service of the New Republic and Wraith Squadron after her true identity was revealed by Garik Loran at Kidriff Five. Kirney reappeared on the planet Corellia, and sent a communication to Myn Donos letting him know she was there. (IF, SOC)

Slapswitch
a switch that is activated by simply swiping the hand across its face. (AS)

Slar
native to the planet Port Evokk, this predator inhabited the forests and used its muscular legs to pounce on its prey. Measuring a meter and a half tall and three meter in length, including its prehensile tail, a slar had long, taloned arms and a menacing facial structure. They were generally fearsome in appearance, and had an unusual blue-green skin coloration which mirrored that of other creatures native to Port Evokk. It is believed that many herbivores with the same coloration evolved over time because their predators thought they were slars, and so avoided them. Their feeding patterns were erratic, making them unpredictable hunters, and their ability to attack and kill most humanoid races made them targets for elimination. (COG)

Slar-dan ti Gardi
this Twi'leki criminal was captured by New Republic patrol officer Dasha Fanron and imprisoned for a mere two months before being released. He later joined Borun Call and learned the slave trade. Gardi spent much of the rest of his career harassing New Republic agents in the field, selling any that he managed to capture into slavery. He was recognizable by his gaunt frame and blue-green skin tone. (SWJ8)

Slard
this four-legged feline was native to the planet Enaleh, where it preyed on the flying helas. (COG)

Slarm
Stroon's first mate, and assistant in the Starhunter Intergalactic Menagerie. (DCAR)

Slash Squadron
one of the fighter groups protecting the Backstab, it was made up of pilots from the Khuiumin Survivors. (IJ)

Slashrat
this species of predator was native to the planet Bimmiel. These large, eel-like creatures traveled through the sandy desert areas of the planet, swimming like fish through the grit. They attacked in packs, swarming their prey and tearing it to shreds. Like their favored prey, the shwpi, the slashrat population flourished while Bimmiel was in the closest part of its elliptical orbit and the planet grew warm. Much of its body, from its wedge-shaped head to its short limbs and tail were covered with chitinous scales and downy grey fur, and its tail was flattened to help propel it through the sand. They exude a basic set of pheromones known as different types of sweat, one of which marks an area of attack (known as killscent) and one which marks the location of a dead slashrat (known as stink). (DTO)

Slatha essach sechel
this Illodian phrase translates to 'keep it to yourself.' (TT)

Slather
created by the Gungans, this slimy chemical compound resembled grease, and was used by miners. The miners covered their bodies with Slather in order to slide through small openings in the rocks. It later found widespread use as a lubricant. (E1A12)

Slava Dancing
an exotic form of dance. (TT)

Slave
any being held against its will and forced to labor for its owner, the possession of slaves was generally outlawed by the Old Republic and its eventual successor, the New Republic. Emperor Palpatine's New Order didn't exactly condone it, but neither did it outlaw the practice. Any being could be made into a slave, and usually had a small transmitter inserted into its body. The exact location of the transmitter was hard to find, which meant that an individual slave had no idea how to remove it. If a slave tried to escape, its owner could send a signal to the transmitter. At a low setting, the transmitter would jolt its host into unconsciousness. At a high setting, the transmitter could destroy its host. (SW1, WEG)

Slave Circuit
this is basically a remote control mechanism for a starship. It be as simple a landing assistance command or a fully-rigged maintenance and operation program. (DFR)

Slave Quarter
this was the name of the compact are of hovels used to house the slaves owned in the city of Mos Espa, during the last years of the Old Republic. (IG1)

Slave I
Boba Fett's personal ship, Slave I is a highly-modified Kuat Drive Yards Firespray-31 cargo ship. Unique in its design, very little of the original Firespray-31 that forms Slave I remains, as Boba Fett made changes to support his lifestyle as bounty hunter. Many of the modifications, performed at Kuat Drive Yards, were designed and supervised by Kuat of Kuat himself. This was partly because of Kuat's innate technical skill, but also so that the leader of KDY could keep an eye on what went into the ship's new form. Slave-1's outer hull was reinforced with plating and ray shielding, to compensate for reduced particle shielding. The hull is formed from a magnetically-polarized metal, making it the perfect electromagnetic receptor. This allows the ship to collect magnetic energies from the surrouding space - including the signals and pulses of pursuing ships - and reflect them as so much static. This jams the pursuer's sensors, making Slave I nearly invisible. Boba Fett has also dampened the ship's particle vapor trail to further eliminate proof of its passage. The ship appears to bear only a pair of twin-mounted blaster cannons on the tip of the command/cargo section, although rumors abound about hidden ion cannons, concussion missile launchers, and a powerful tractor beam. The ship's engines have been modified for speed. The Kuat Systems Engineering F-31 sublight engines provide an intense burst of power when first activated. This reduces maneuverability but increases the likelihood of Fett's capturing his quarry before it can escape. These are paried with four KSE X-F-16 power generators to provide that burst of speed. The ship's hyperdrive has also been updated, allowing for quick jumps to outrace a victim to their destination. The ship's interior has never been seen, but it is rumored to have a large enough hold to contain a force cage. Various hull reinforcements are also rumored to be present, to keep the cage from being jostled by larger races. There isn't a great deal of cargo space, for much of it has been given over to housing the ship's engines and power generators. Always one to plan for contingencies, Fett also had several duplicates of Slave I created for his use. These dummy ships looked and acted like the real thing, but were mere shells. Boba Fett used Slave I to track Han Solo to Bespin. From there, Fett took Solo's frozen body to Tatooine for delivery to Jabba The Hutt. Following his emergence from the Sarlacc, Boba Fett to his ship to Nar Shaddaa for reparis, but it was disabled at Nar Shaddaa during Palpatine's first resurrection. It sat at the spaceport receiving more repairs until Han Solo and Princess Leia returned to Nar Shaddaa searching for Vima-Da-Boda. Boba Fett was able to reactivate Slave-1 and its new Incom shields, only to receive a good deal of damage to one of its wings in a collision with the Millennium Falcon. (ESB, MTS, DE1, DE2, EGV, SLS)

Slave II
Boba Fett's backup ship, this modified MandalMotors Pursuer patrol vehicle was weaker than Slave I, but it served its purpose well after the Alliance confiscated Fett's primary ship. However, what it lacked in punch it made up for in speed and maneuverability. The original engines had been replaced with twin Mil-StarIV engines mated with three x41 maneuvering thrusters mounted in the port-side strut. It had a forward-firing ion and twin blaser cannons, as well as a rear-firing proton torpedo launcher. Slave II also had enhanced sensors, but lacked Slave I's stealth capabilities. Slave II was severely damaged over Byss when Boba Fett tried to pursue Han Solo and Salla Zend near the planet. Solo took the Millennium Falcon into a dive toward the planet's surface just as the planet's shield generators kicked on. Slave II hit the shields and glanced off them, ripping off the portside stabilizer and causing massive system damage. Luckily for Fett, the ship's shield generators were at full-power. Fett drydocked Slave II after this incident, returning to the use of Slave I. (DE1, DESB, DE2, EE, EGV)

Slave IV
Boba Fett owned this starship some fifteen years after the Battle of Endor. He used it to track down Kardue'sai'Malloc on Peppel, and return the Devaronian to Devaron for judgement. He also used the ship to track down Bornan Thul, in response to a bounty placed on the shipping magnate by Nolaa Tarkona. (TBH, TEP)

Slave/Owner Card
this form of identification was required by Imperial law. Any alien who was a member of an enslaved species was required to be accompanied by its owner while traveling or working outside the owner's establishment. The owner is required to show the card whenever it was demanded by Imperial agents. (CRO)

Slavelord Boulevard
a street in Kessendra. (GDV)

Slaver Syndicate
this large bounty-hunting syndicate was based on the planet Karazak. It speciallized in capturing large alien races such as Wookiees, Gamorreans, and Agorffi. They collected individuals with bounties on their heads, bought their ownership rights, and resold them as slaves. (GG9)

Slaver's Line
a thin cord made up of special circuitry, the slaver's line is used to link a number of captives into a single group, controlled by a director. The line attaches to collars worn by the slaves, and transmits the punishing impulses from the director the collar. They are illegal, since slavery has been outlawed since the time of the Old Republic. (HSR)

Slayer, The
this is one of the nicknames of the Yuuzhan Vong god Yun-Yammka (VP)

Slayn
one of the Verpine colonies which helped Ackbar develop the B-Wing starfighter. (RASB)

Slayn and Korpil Corporation
a company formed by the neighboring Verpine colonies which helped Ackbar develop the B-Wing starfighter. It was a well-known source of starships during the time of the Old Republic, and remained loyal to the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. Following the Battle of Endor, Slayn and Korpil helped design the V-Wing combat speeder. (RASB, DESB, EGV)

Sled Fox
this was the largest predator found on Berea, living in the tundra and preying on a variety of birds and small creatures. The sled fox had only two true legs, and had vestigial hind appendages which it used to steer its body as it slid down icy slopes. This form of locomotion earned the fox its name. (TBSB)

Sleeft Docking Bay Maintenance
this Mos Eisley corporation controlled several cargo storage locations near the spaceport. They once tried to steal high-quality droid parts from a shipment that belonged to Notsub Shipping, but an ambitious Bith named Angor Farn tried to steal it. Farn was eventually caught by Coral Ohah and a group of Alliance agents. (GG7)

Sleemo
this is a Huttese word used to deride or embarass another individual. Roughly translated into Basic, it means “slimeball.” (SW1, YJC1)

Sleen
this monitor-like lizard is an omnivorous feeder native to the planet Dagobah. Tsleens seek damp, dark environs which are strong with the Force. (CCG4)

Sleep Coffin
a hibernation bed used to keep a person in suspended animation during a long, sublight stapce flight. (CS)

Sleep-inducer
this wrist-mounted weapon is favored by Twi’leks. It is a close-range weapon which is jabbed into the target’s flesh. A small trigger releases a sleep-inducing fluid into the victim, knocking them unconsious. (THG)

Sleeper Bomb
a detonation device used to cripple a starship in deep space. It is attached to the ship's hull in such a way that it can continuously and innocuously drain power from the ship's core. When it reaches a certain power level, the bomb begins to draw an increasingly greater portion of the ship's power as it approaches detonation. With a shaped charge and the correct power level, the bomb explodes, ripping a hole in the ship's hull. The impending depressurization quickly and effectively kills the ship's crew and leaves her stranded in space. (HSR)

Sleft-chuffni
a species of huge floating gasbags native to the gas giant Taloraan. The sleft-chuffni can grow to be 200 meters in length, and drift along capturing airborne algae with their hanging tentacles. They are the primary source of food for the fleft-wauf. (SWAJ)

Sleight* Box
this normal-looking cargo crate has a low-power repuslor coil matrix and power supply built into the casing. This allowed the user to transport a very heavy object in a crate that, when lifted by customs agents, seems to contain something very light. In essence, it neutralizes the weight of the object inside. A crate full of thermal detonators would weigh virtually nothing when transported in a sleight box. They are fairly expensive, and used primarily by smugglers. (TFE)

Slenn
an Imperial Vice Admiral, Slenn was placed in charge of the invasion of Datar during the Galactic Civil War. When he mistakenly made the Alliance team aware of his invasion fleet, the Alliance was able to rally and defeat the Imperials. Darth Vader executed Slenn for this mistake. (TME)

Slerog Fenn
this greedy Rodian tried to take financial control of the Gelgelar Free Port by offering services equal to those of Loro Ecls, but at a reduced price. Fenn had a number of criminal connections, which helped pay for his facility – known as Fenn’s Warehouse – and to help offset his cutthroat prices. (SWJ14)

Sleuth
the brand name of Incom's A-24 scout ship. (WBC, LAA)

Slice, The
a wedge-shaped section of the galaxy with its point in the Core Worlds and expanding outward. The edges of The Slice are defined by the Corellian Trade Spine and the Perlemian Trade Route, and extends into the Mid Rim and Beyond. (RPG)

Slice-hound
a creature native to Corellia. (CCG)

Slicer Chip
a small information chip which allows the holder to bypass certain computer-driven systems, based on the chip's programming. They can be used to bypass door locks and security fields, to name a couple of uses. (COTF)

Slicer
this is the term used to describe a computer hacker. (HTTE)

Slicer droid
a machine which is programmed to infiltrate computer systems (COTF)

Slicewire
similar in form to a garrote, slicewire is a strong, flat wire held between two batons. The wire itself is only a molecule wide, and is finely serrated on both edges. It is capable of cutting through most solids, as the wire can withstand large amounts of abuse. (ROE)

Slick
a nickname Han Solo acquired while still a cadet in the Academy, it refers to a time when Badure has rigged an old U-33 loadlifter to purposely malfunction for training exercises. Han Solo was one of the cadets on the mission, and when the ship began to malfunction, Han took over and landed the crippled vessel. The officer in charge began calling Han 'Slick' because of his knowledge of the ship and his ability to land it. (HSL)

Slidewalk
a moving sidewalk used to transport people from one area to another. (BTS)

Sliideptra
native to the rainforests of Tel IV, the sliideptra was a species of annelid worms with three sets of eyes and an internal air sac used to collect and expel poison gas. Their yellow-white coloration has been described as "particularly distasteful" to humans. These creatures hang from tree branches by wrapping a series of tendrils around the branch, the hanging upside down. When it senses prey nearby, it expels the poisonous gas and waits for the prey to breathe it in and expire. The sliideptra shambles itself into position above the dead prey, then unwraps its tendrils until it can touch the prey. The sliideptra then extends its head and drools saliva over the prey, and then waits for preliminary digestion to begin. After an hour, the flesh of the prey become semi-liquid, and the sliideptra can then begin sucking it up. In this way, a sliideptra can feed on a carcass for several days, simply retracting its tendrils and resting in the tree in between feedings. (COG)

Slim
starfighter pilot slang term for an A-Wing. (IJ)

Slime-bug
a disgusting creature native to the planet Aracara. (HAS)

Slime-wart
an unintelligent creature. (TME)

Slimego
this Rodian bounty hunter accompanied Crutag to Trinta, in pursuit of a team of Alliance agents. He and Slimego were intent on taking the rebels dead or alive, although Crutag wanted them alive to obtain a larger bounty. Slimego was captured by the Alliance agents and stranded on Trinta, along with Slizzik. (DOE)

Slimp
the eyes of this creature are considered a culinary delicacy by the Hutts. (BF)

Slingball
this sport was popular during the early decades of the New Republic. Played in an indoor arena, two teams used curved gloves throw a ball back and forth, in an effort to get close enough to the other team's goal to throw the ball in. (U)

Slips
this was the name of Mara Jade's V-1 astromech droid, used aboard the Jade's Fire. (VOF)

SlipSheet
this thin sheet of metal has many uses. (CFG)

Slipter
this company maunfactured small, personal-use landspeeders. (VOF)

Slith
a primitive, reptilian race native to the deserts of Yavin 13, the Slith are limbless carnivores have large mouths filled with spiked teeth. They move about by "swimming" through the sand and over the rocks, but can also move laterally with incredible speed. They have a nomadic society, with small tribe of no more than 15 individuals moving across the desert in search of food and water. (GG2, LW)

Slitherhorn
this instrument was considered part of the repertoire of a jizz band, during the last years of the New Order. (CCG9)

Sliverfish
this schooling fish was native to the planet Spira, and was the favored food of the Camray Eel. (SWJ1)

Slizzik
this Barabel was part of the team assembled by Crutag the Taloron Hunter, during his attempt to recover the bounties on a group of Alliance agents. She and her husband joined Crutag's gang some three years before the Battle of Yavin. Slizzik and Slimego were intent on taking the rebels dead or alive, although Crutag wanted them alive to obtain a larger bounty. Slizzik was eventually captured by the Alliance agents and stranded on Trinta with Slimego. (DOE)

Sljee
1) a planet, the homeworld of the Sljee race (CSA)
2) this low, slab-shaped alien race was native to the planet Sljee. Their bodies were surrounded with a number of prehensile tentacles, and olfactory antennae projected from its upper surface. These aliens use their antennae to smell out other lifeforms, since they have no true eyes. They have not yet adapted well to the multitude of alien lifeforms in the galaxy, and humans particularly confound their sense of smell. (HSR, CSA, AE)

Sloane, Baruche
this Corporate Sector Authority Fleet Commander was in control of the starships which tried to wrestle the Kalinda System from the hands of the pro-Imperial forces and New Republic forces already in the system. Sloane led the battle group from the command ship Enforce. A tall, stern man with gray eyes and a grim expression, Sloane's loyalty to the CSA was unwavering. He commanded respect, and didn't appreciate failure. (TSK)

Slochan
a lush plant native to Belsavis. It bears a sturdy fruit, which allows it to be packaged by droids, instead of humanoids. (COJ)

Sloom, Regec
this smuggler was hiding from the Empire on Gelgelar when he first met Cev Malanx. They formed a quick friendship, and became smuggling partners. They plied the Outer Rim – based out of Betha II - until it became unpopular to do so, then fled for the Core Worlds after helping the New Republic locate Meres Ulcane. (SWJ8)

Slootheberry
a fruit used to make wrinkle cream. (COJ)

Sloppet
an obnoxious Rylothian vermin. (JTH)

Slork
1) a bad-smelling bird native to Corellia. (TFE)
2) this species of foul-smelling beast was native to the marshlands of Kidron. They were solitary scavengers which marked out their territories and defended them from others of their kind. They consumed just about anything, from garbage to carrion to industrial wastes, and fed ravenously when hungry. In general, though, slorks are harmless to other species.Because of their diet, slorks possess an intensely noxious scent, making them exempt from the food chain because no other predator could stand to get close to them. Slorks use their noses to sense their environment by "breathing" vibrations, and a slork with an injured nose was essentially blind to their environment. (COG)

Slorth
this is a type of slovenly creature which, although large in size, is fairly low on the evolutionary scale. (TBH)

Slosin, Mox
this man served Emperor Palpatine as one of his High Inquisitors, terrorizing the Lesser Plooriod Cluster during the height of the New Order. Slosin was known as one of the Empire's most sadistic and cruel individuals, rivalling High Inquisitor Tremayne in sheer reputation. Slosin spent much of his time searching out Alliance cells in the Lesser Plooriod Cluster, traveling in his Trenchant-class cruiser Ironhand, and controlling the Cluster from his palace on Urce. (AIR)

Slow Dancing Star
this song, written and played by Annadale Fayde, first appeared on the compilation Darkness on the Land. It was rated scarlet by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Sludbug
a slow-moving insect. (COJ)

Sludgenews
this term originated in the Corporate Sector, and referred to sensationalist journalism and the gathering of news on just about any controversial or inane subject. Much of it revolved around the exploits of holovid stars and sports figures, but also reported on women who claimed to be carrying Emperor Palaptine's children and on the fact the Darth Vader was still alive, just hiding out until he could return to reinstate the Empire. Much of it was blatantly false information meant to stir up more controversy, but the masses bought their newsfeeds with gusto. (SOA)

Sludir
a centaurian race native to the planet Sluudren, the Sludirs are a violent, military race with a history of warfare and combat. They have six short, muscular legs supporting a heavy body. Their upper torso has two arms, and their long skulls are marked by a large, tooth-filled mouth. Their skin is naturally thick and dense, providing them a natural armor that they take great pride in. They evolved a primitive, tribal society based on a complex feudal system containing several rigid castes. Each caste has its own codes and rituals, but primary among all of them is the honor of battle. To the Sludir, combat is the surest test of individual power. No Sludir has ever fled from battle. They also have an intense desire to further their families, and the securing of an heir is extremely important. However, the Sludirs' immense strength and unusual appearance made them prime targets for slavers and mercenaries. The Empire did nothing to assist the Sludir, declaring them a legitimate slave race. Thus, many Sludir found off Sluudren are either slaves or criminals. (GG12)

Sludir Soap
this mushy substance was created by the Sludir to patch their natural, armor-like skin. (GG12)

Slug Beast
a large, brown creature native to the lower levels of the Kashyyyk forest ecosystem. Resembling little more than a large patch of slime, the slug beast hangs itself over tree branches and waits for its prey to stumble onto it. It then reacts by heaving its bulk upward, capturing its prey by wrapping itself around it. It then exudes digestive juices into the cavity it creates, dissolving its prey and then absorbing the nutrients. (DK)

Slug Named Grendel, The
a book written by Rogar Farnoster, about the doomed mission of the starship Darkfire to hunt down the legendary space slug Grendel. (SWSB)

Slug-rat
this foul creature is native to the plabet Ruten. It resembles a rat in its initial appearance, but is completely hairless and has a long, slimy body. The slug-rat has four legs that move it quickly along, and its toothy bite is almost always rabid. They breed quickly, and have thwarted every attempt at extermination by the Ruten natives. The average length of a slug-rat is about one meter. (TSK)

Slug-rifle
an out-dated weapon that shoots a metal projectile at its target. (HSL)

Sluggo the Hutt
this was the psuedonym used by the founder of the jizz band Hutt. He was obviously not a Hutt. (GMS)

Slugthrower
a small tool that can be used as a weapon (DFR)

Sluis Control
the transportation monitoring center at the Sluis Van Shipyards. (HTTE)

Sluis Sector
area of New Republic control containing Sluis Van, Bpfassh, Dagobah, and the Praesitlyn communications station (HTTE)

Sluis Van
primary planet in the Sluis sector. (HTTE)

Sluis Van Central
Rebel space station orbiting Sluis Van. (HTTE)

Sluis Van Shipyards
this orbital shipyard is controlled by the Sluissi. In a stationary orbit around Sluis Van, the shipyard is a long, multi-segmented station with a wide central tunnel. Each of sixteen modules contains starship repair facilities, along with living accommodations and shops. (HTTE, HTTEC)

Sluissi
native to the planet Sluis Van, these creatures are humanoid from the waist up, but have snake-like tails below the waist. The Sluissi have long been supporters of the Republic, and have shared their technology freely with other member planets. They are known as a plodding, methodical race which has an easy-going attitude and never seems to get excited. (HTTE, DFRSB)

Slusani Interstellar Pharmacologies
this medical corporation produced a variety of bandaging and sterilization products. (FOP)

Slushtime
this was the term used by the Gamorreans to describe the spring season on their homeworld of Gamorr. It was named because the climate was usually rainy and dismal, and runoffs of melting snow turn the ground into muddy quagmires. It was during Slushtime that most of the fungi and mold grown on the planet begin to grow, taking hold in the damp ground and dank hollows. Most Gamorrean offspring are born during this season, and most Gamorrean weddings take place at the midpoint of slushtime. The end of slushtime, denoted by the gradual drying out of the mudflats, signals the beginning of wartime, and sparks the raiding of other villages. (SWJ14)

Sluudren
this rocky, Outer Rim world is the home planet of the Sludir race. (GG12)

Slyte
an alien race. (COJ)

Slythor
this Squib was a major crimelord who worked from a base on Korad during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He considered himself the "High Exalted Ruler of Korad,´a position few doubted because no one wanted to live on the junk-covered planet. He traveled about the planet on the Peeve, a pleasure craft created from a salvaged Imperial AT-AT walker. (OE)

SM-series Droid
this form of automaton was developed by the New Republic and used as scavengers at battle sites. As directed by Operation Flotsam and the Historic Battle Site Preservation Act, these droids were used to recover any physical evidence from a battle site, for investigation by the New Republic Intelligence agency, prior to release for public viewing. These droids were often accompanied by DA-series analysis droids. (CTD)

Sma'Da, Drawmas
this immense human was known for his ability to predict the outcome of the battles waged during the Galactic Civil War. Through his self-proclaimed Invisible and Ineluctable Casino, he offered the galaxy's richest beings to wager on the outcome of the multitude of confrontations between the Alliance and the Empire. No battle was too small for Sma'Da, who became quite accurate in determining the odds for each side of the battle. He was too good, in the eyes of Emperor Palpatine, who put out a substantial bounty for Sma'Da's capture. In order to avoid being taken, Sma'Da remained in his own home, and only ventured out to the establishment of Salla C'airam, where weapons were not allowed. This didn't deter Zuckuss and 4-LOM, who installed a small power source in the droid's head which took the place of its primary motivator. This meant that the droid would be unable to move once it was removed, but it meant that Zuckuss would be able to get a working blaster inside C'airam's bar. The plan worked to perfection, as Sma'Da was completely unaware of his imminent capture. Zuckuss managed to capture Sma'Da, and obtained a second motivator for 4-Lom from C'airam, before turning in the man for the bounty. After being released from custody, Sma'Da accepted a bet from Manaroo. The wager was based on whether Dengar would survive the mission he and Boba Fett undertook, to discover the plans of Kuat of Kuat. Sma'Da had little faith in Dengar, and took the bet. In the end, Dengar survived, and Sma'Da was forced to pay them a handsome return on Manaroo's original bet. (HM)

Smada
a Hutt gangster, Smada used the planet D'vouran as his base. The small gang wars that erupted on the planet allowed him to take control and rise to power. Smada maintained a group of Gank Killers as bodyguards and enforcers, and once tried to recruit Mammon Hoole into his schemes. He hoped to use the Shi'ido as an assassin, and would do almost anything to acquire Hoole's services. The Shi'ido refused, and Smada then captured Tash and Zak Arranda in an effort to get Hoole's agreement. Still Hoole refused, although he did try to rescue the children. In a struggle near the Heart of D'vouran, Hoole managed to recover the children, while Smada fell into the pit and was consumed by the planet. (GOF1)

Smarck
this wilderness planet was the home of Black Sun's operations, during the era of the New Republic followed the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (CE2)

Smart Blanket
a blanket which has special sensors and circuits which allow it to monitor the user's body temperature and the surrounding conditions to adjust the blanket's ability to heat and protect the user. (CS)

Smarteel
Cabrool Nuum had a base here, before Jabba the Hutt killed him. (JTH)

Smartfuse
this is a type of detonation fuse that can be programmed to go off after certain criteria are met. The most common is a time delay of up to two months from activation. The fuse can also be set off by temperature, moisture, or pressure changes. (CRO)

Smartrope
a strong cord tipped with a heat-seeking device, it is very useful for ensnaring prey or an opponent. Boba Fett's Mandalorian armor has at least one installed, which he used to try and hold Luke during Luke's escape from Jabba the Hutt and the Pit of Carkoon. (ROTJ, HTTE)

Smarx, Plo
this Doctor was in charge of Hydrospeare Corporation's Design Team Beta, until he was imprisoned for sedition and espionage by the Empire. (AIR)

Smashball
a sport that Han Solo followed after the defeat of Admiral Daala, he bet on the outcome of certain games with Lando. It involved 25 players wearing skates. (COJ)

Smath, Sodilayno
an employee of TransGalMeg Industries, this small, dark-skinned human operated the souvenir shop located in Narg Starport. Smath was rude and loud, but he didn't make his living selling trinkets. Instead, he was the primary source of information and black market goods at the starport, and the bluster he expresses is more of a cover. Despite his high prices, Smath's information was quite often reliable. (TA)

Smeberellich
a Twi'lek deity. (JTH)

Smelly Saint
a smuggling ship known to run illegal copies of agricultural droids in the Kimm Systems. It is a light stock freighter, not capable of long hauls. (COJ)

Smiler
any individual affected by the herb savorium. They were described as the only truly contented individuals in the galaxy. A smiler is characterized by a totally accommodating nature, and would do anything for anyone. For this reason, they were prime targets for slave labor, since they would work until they were exhausted and worked for free. (DRO)

Smileredon-Verdont
known as Smiley, this annoying Squib had a vastly enlarged view of his position in life. Despite the fact that he was traded at age seven for a mining borelifter, and spent much of his life as a drifter in the Minos Cluster, he would gladly tell you that he was raised on the Wholesale and trained in the Mystic Martial Arts of Squib Combats and Transactions. He was briefly employed on a freighter in the Minos Cluster, and claimed that he and his partner tamed with wild forests of Yelsain by themselves. (HR)

Smiley
a nickname used to describe Klorr Vilia, after he had become affected by his own creation, savorium. He was kept impounded by Master Zorneth, who was one of the few who knew the secret of savorium because he was present when Vilia first ingested savorium. Smiley was kidnapped by the Dictator-Forever Craw, who wanted to have the secret of savorium for his own evil uses. Smiley was rescued by R2-D2 and C-3PO, with the help of Shay and the Revoltists, but later perished when Zorneth's starship self-destructed while under attack by Craw's forces. (DRO)

Smith, Gideon
this boisterous, independent prospector spent much of his career working the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt. He and his partner, Sidney Shortfang, took a great deal of work with the Tredway family on 24 Tredway. When they learned that Erling Tredway had been captured by Imperial Governor Parnell and imprisoned on Tol Ado, shortly after the Battle of Yavin, they enlisted the help of Luke Skywalker in rescuing him. They learned that Erling's sister, Dena, had been sent to 24 Tredway to convince Erling to stop his rebellious activity in the Belt, but found Dena had been injured in Parnell's attack on 24 Tredway. They brought Dean to Ire Eleazari, then returned to Tol Ado to rescue Erling. However, in their initial flight from the Deathblock, Gideon was bounced from their boss-buggy while they were being chased by Imperial forces. Gideon went down shooting, but was quickly cut down by Imperial stormtroopers. His death meant a great deal to Luke, and he sadly remembered Gideon's contributions when he returned to Yavin 4. (JH)

Smitken
this man was the Port Import Inspector at the Drepplin starport, during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Smoke Screamer
this combination sonic screecher and smoke bomb was often used by Puggles Trodd. When detonated, the smoke screamer gives off thick, black clouds of smoke along with an ear-piercing wail. (TM)

Smoking Blaster
this smuggling ship was once employed by Nilya Fek'ra to transport security droid logic matrices to the rebels on Cotellier, during the Galactic Civil War. The ship's computer memory also held information on Yosger's operations, which resulted in Yosger's pirates attacking and waylaying the ship en route to Cotellier. The Smoking Blaster was a modified Loronar medium transport ship, measuring 75 meters in length and armed with four twin laser cannons. The ship had been in service for 50 years prior to the Battle of Endor, although its owners were heavily in debt to Yosger for the ship. (GMH)

Smoking Jets
a pre-fab bar and grill on Spaceport Row in Plawal. Like most of its kind, the Smoking Jets was build from 3 pre-fab cubes linked together in a line, with the connecting walls knocked out. (COJ)

Smoky Crystal
another name for Spook Crystals. (POT)

Smoky Dreams
Bria Lavval sang this song with Umjing Baab and his Swinging Trio aboard the Queen of Empire. (RD)

Smoor
this plant is often used by terraformers as a food source. It grows in harsh climates. (POT)

Smoppy
a putty-like substance used by the Twi-leki. (JTH)

Smugglers' Alliance
in the years following Grand Admiral Thrawn's defeat, the tenuous collaboration between the galaxy's best smugglers was consolidated into a formal alliance which agreed to assist the New Republic in any way possible. Mara Jade served as the liaison between the Republic and the Alliance. (COTF)

Smuggler's Hideaway
a bar and restaurant located on Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Smuggler's Kit
this small, black-box device is attached to a starship's hyperdrive and identification transponder. It changes the starship's identification codes and registry information each time the ship jumps into hyperspace. (SOL)

Smuggler's Pie
this meal, which is basically a careful combination of left-overs, derived from the basic smuggler's dinner which consisted of whatever was available when the smuggler was hungry. (TNR)

Smuggler's Rest
this tavern is located on Nar Shaddaa. It has rooms available for rent, and is generally described as sleazy. Bria Tharen stayed here, while planning the Alliance's attack on Ylesia. (RD)

Smuggler's Reverse
a starship maneuver in which a ship under attack suddenly stops and swings around 180 degrees to face its attackers. (VOF)

Smuggler's Run
this collection of asteroids was once controlled by the Hutts. It served as a base of operations for many smugglers who couldn't afford the relative luxury of havens like Nar Shaddaa. The Smuggler's Run has been in use for several centuries, and has remained unchecked due to its hazardous entrance through the asteroids. Several asteroids have been hollowed out or riddled with caverns to support life, and have been nicknamed Skips. The Skips were numbered in the order in which they were inhabited. A few minor crimelords developed personal empires within certain asteroids, but their influence rarely extended beyond a single rock. After the deaths of Jabba the Hutt and Emperor Palpatine, the Run became freed of Hutt control and began to operate on its own. During this time, the failed Jedi Dolph found an ally in the crimelord Nandreeson, and together they began shipping Dolph's rigged droids through the Run to points on Coruscant and other New Republic worlds. Many smugglers took jobs working for Nandreeson and Dolph, but many of them suddenly disappeared when they got too involved. (TNR)

Smuggling Guilds
the unofficial title used by the various groups who are running smuggling operations from Nar Shaddaa. (DE1)

Smythers
this Imperial Lieutenant served under Captain Alijah Orr in the Mestra System. He constantly hounded and bullied Renea Luies, especially after Orr began his personal against smugglers. Smythers hoped to get promoted by quickly and energetically carrying out Orr's orders. He tried to catch Shamus Falconi smuggling weapons, but was unable to do so successfully. (SWJ9)

Snackquarium
this device was developed by the Hutts, and served as a living environment for the aquatic creatures they loved to snack on. (TPS)

Snagel
a member of the Imperial Select Committee. (ROC)

Snaggletooth
a derogatory name given to the Snivian race. (SW)

Snake-Eyes
Scarlet Bloodhawk's Ky'lessan second-in-command. He turns her and her Alliance friends over to the Empire for a nomial fee. (RPG)

Snakes' Den
this starport area, located on the planet Camden, was named for the fact that the starport served as a crossroads for the trade of the Outer Rim's fringe society. (CRO)

Snap Baton
this weapon appears to be a short, stocky cylinder when not in use. However, it can be snapped open with a flick of the wrist, extending the shaft into a meter-long club. The snap baton was used by law enforcement agencies which were limited in their use of laser weapons. (ROE)

Snaplaunce
this local policeman was a large, eight-foot-tall Ithorian which had relocated to the planet Nam Chorios. Snaplaunce worked with the human Grupp in maintaining the peace of Hweg Shul. He believed that Beldorion was nothing but a Hutt crime-boss. It was Grupp and Snaplaunce that intercepted Luke Skywalker and removed him from the rocks and spears of the Oldtimers that attacked him near Taselda's house. Snaplaunce provided Luke with information on Callista's travels through the city. (POT)

SnapShoot
this was the brand name of Greff-Timms Industrial's DT3 quick-draw pulse-wave blaster. (TOJC)

Snedarl Electronics
this contractor developed a number of electronic equipment systems for the Empire. (FOP)

Sneerzick, Xalto
this human was the son of a brilliant droid designer. His early years were filled with loneliness broken only by the company of droids, which Xalto came to love as his real family. As he grew, Xalto started to believe that all droids were at least somewhat sentient, and deserved to be treated as equals to organic lifeforms. Xalto's education followed his father's footsteps, and he became a genius in droid mechanics. His behavior turned fanatical and irrational in his later years, and a tattoo of a cog and a lightning bolt on his right hand signifies his complete devotion to freeing all droids throughout the galaxy. He founded the Droid Abolitionist Movement, and a small team of confederates gathered around him, including Babalabbet Swoont, Zoonia Tantra, and a blue droid known as G-3PO. A loud and fiery speaker, Xalto was highly charismatic. When he discovered that Cosmohaul Shipping was transporting large numbers of droids, he and his followers began pirating Cosmohaul ships. He and his team infiltrated Cosmohaul's crew pool, and managed to gain access to the Argent Lady and its cargo of R5 droids. Xalto added his "emancipation virus" to the droids, and hoped to set them free. However, his droids' programming caused the droids to rebel even against him. His group on the Argent Lady was tracked and killed by the R5 droids before a group of freelance mercenaries could stop them. (SWJ9)

Sneeve
this planet, located in the Expansion Region, was the homeworld of the Sneevel race. (IWE1)

Sneevel
an alien race, the Sneevel were native to the planet Sneeve. (IG1, IWE1)

Sneeze
this unpredictable young man was a member of the Friends of Paran resistance group on Derilyn, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He considered himself a soldier and all-around trouble-maker, and claimed to be able to smell Imperial forces a mile away. Sneeze and Kailage Lanis were good friends, although both were captured by Imperial forces during the Alliance's attempt to expose Operation: Elrood. (OE)

Sniffer
1) a BlasTech weapons detector consisting of a cube-shaped, handheld scanner. (CSA)
2) one of Leia Organa-Solo's bodyguards, he was given the nickname Sniffer because his job was to preceed Leia wherever she went. He carried a backpack filled with various electrical and chemical sensors to detect threats to Leia before she encountered them. (BTS)

Snigvine
this thorned, creeping plant is a third-generation variety used on terraformed worlds. It is a hardy plant with a dense root structure that helps anchor the soil. (POT)

Snil, Tarrant
this customs officer worked in the city of Lay Pa-Sidian, on the planet G'wenee. Snil was targetted by Grappa the Hutt for weaseling out of a bribe the crimelord had paid him, stealing from him, and generally interferring with Grappa's business. After Zee Ethda failed to capture him, Grappa sent Kil Kenix, unaware that Kenix was really Kir Kanos. Kenix quickly dispatched Snil's bodyguards, and easily took Snil into custody. Snil was then transported to Genon, and was given to the Zanzibar for one of their blood-sacrifices. (CE2)

Snillik
a thick liquer that Lando often orders when a sabacc match requires alcoholic consumption. He chooses snillik because it tastes awful, so he must sip it slowly. It is produced somewhere in the Core Systems. (LCF)

Sniper
this was the name of an Imperial attack craft developed in the wake of the Battle of Endor. A cross between a swoop and an airspeeder, the Sniper was a fast, maneuverable repulsorcraft that was protected by heavy armor and armed with a twin blaster cannon, a twin medium blaster cannon, and a concussion missile launcher. These curve-winged vehicles could attain speeds of 600 kilometers an hour, mainly because the designers fitted an immense ion afterburner just behind the cockpit. This enhanced drive system gave the Sniper a characteristic whine whenever it flew into battle. (SWG)

Sniquux
this Rodian was one of the mercenaries employed by Jabba the Hutt to infiltrate Ylesia just prior to the Alliance's assault on the planet. Sniquux was sent to Colony Nine to make sure that the t'landa Til working to get the colony operational never succeeded. Just before the Battle of Ylesia, Sniquux laid several traps of monofilament wire and portable speakers. From the speakers, he sounded the call of a thota, and stampeded the t'landa Til. The huge beasts panicked, running into the monofilament fibers and shredding themselves to ribbons. (RD)

Snit
Droopy McCool's real name. (TJP)

Snitworm
a noxious slug. (JTH)

Snivas, Jerik
a native of Lianna, this greasy-haired man served as an investigator for the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigations for many years. His successes, both in the field and in in the bureaucracy, earned him a posting as an officer in the Kwenn Station IOCI facility. However, several shady deals caught up with him, and he quit the IOCI in order to avoid being investigated himself. He remained on Kwenn Station, brokering information to the highest bidder. He also expedited the postings of bounties, matching them to specific hunters in order to minimize the paperwork a hunter was required to do in order to take on a bounty. It was later learned that Snivas had been working for Tern Ashandrik, sending less-qualified hunters to Seregar in order to help maintain Ashandrik's freedom. (ND)

Snivvian
an alien race native to the planet Cadomai, the Snivvians are short-statured humanoids with protruding lower jaws studded with short fangs and tusks. Their toothy maws have earned them the nickname "Snaggletooth." Their physiology is indicative of their environment, although it is somewhat unusual. The harsh, frigid conditions on Cadomai have given them thick skin instead of heavy fur. This skin is formed of special membranes that open and close pores to regulate heat loss, in response to temperature differences. Snivvians don't sweat, since their skin doesn't exude moisture. They also don't suffer from frostbite. The adaptations of the Snivvians to their enviroment makes them excellent scouts and trackers. They have evolved a high level of genetic technology, a result of their intense desire to breed out undesirable characteristics. The Snivvian biology produces two offspring at every birth. Normally, the birth results in one male and one female child. However, a flaw in their genetics - the so-called Blood Code - produces twin males once every several million births. Only 200 such births have been recorded in Snivvian history, but all have led to trouble. The flaw reveals itself in one of the male twins, and ususally causes the male to become emotionally unstable. It mutates the male throughout his lifetime, resulting in an sociopathic individual capable of destroying Snivvian civilization. Thus, the Snivvians strove to discover the possibility of twin males and what causes one male to be flawed. However, this genetic technology has given them a false sense of security, and their strength as a race led them to become enslaved by the Thalassians several centuries before the Galactic Civil War. They were rescued by the Old Republic, which helped introduce them to hyperspace travel. This continued travel through hyperspace has somehow caused genetic changes in the Snivvians, and the possibility of male twins is on the rise. As a race, they have begun to recede, desparately trying to prevent the birth of unstable male twins. (GG12, CCG7)

Snogar
this species of creatures inhabit the ice world of Ota, where they were constantly repairing their heating machines to stay warm. These shaggy humanoids are a primitive race that have devolved from a highly-technological race. These ancient ancestors are known among the Snogars as the Old Ones, and supposedly developed the heating machines. The Snogars barely survived life on Ota. Sometime follwoing the Battle of Yavin, they were able to capture Luke Skywalker and Boba Fett, and demanded that the two fix their machinery. The two escaped, but returned to the Snogar city to rescue Han Solo. In the ensuing battle, the Mole appeared and pinned Fett to a wall with a magnet while the others escaped from the Snogars. (CSWEA, EGC)

Snogrutt
this Gamorrean developed the large, ultrasonically-enhanced axes used by Jabba the Hutt's guards. (CCG7)

Snoopscoot
this was fighter pilot slang for any recoinnaissance craft, such as the Incom T-65R, designed to get in and out of a system to collect data without being discovered. (IR)

Snoova
this infamous bounty hunter was a Wookiee. He learned the trade while we was indentured to Asteria, but eventually earned his freedom. Snoove kept the fur on top of his head cut in a spacer's flat-top, with the hair on the sides and back of his head pulled into a long ponytail. Snoova was captured by the Twi'leki crimelord Lonay, as part of Prince Xizor's plans to capture Luke Skywalker and discredit Darth Vader. Chewbacca pretended to be Snoova when he and Leia Organa infiltrated Coruscant to meet with Prince Xizor. (SE)

Snopps III, Regenald Hanniper
this man was the youngest son of Zafiel Snopps, but was nothing like his father. Regenald failed to gain entry to the Imperial Academy, despite some string-pulling by his father, and he lacked the focus needed to be a true officer. He believed himself to be the most important person in the galaxy, and was known to be paranoid about his delusions of grandeur. He spent much of his time trying to entertain himself, often gambling on luxurious worlds like Spira, threatening to call in his father's Imperial forces wheneer things didn't go his way, in order to reassure himself of his own importance. (SWJ1)

Snopps, Zafiel
this Imperial governor once presided over the Corluag House of Citizens, ensuring that the planet remained under Imperial control during the height of the New Order. Before this, Snopps was a Senator to the Old Republic. (SESB, SWJ1, SWJ12)

Snoruuk
this mobile mushroom is found in the forests of the planet Gamorr. They grow in rings of up to 30 individual plants, and each plant has a "foot" that it uses to cross the forest floor. The Gamorreans have discovered that, if you have enough patience, the snoruuk can be herded like other creatures by tapping on their caps. The ring moves away from the vibration. The snoruuk is a staple food of the Gamorreans. (SWJ10)

Snot Vampire
a derogatory term for the Anzat race of predators. (TJP)

Snow Demon
native to Toola, these flying predators have white talons, massive sharp teeth, and a purple tongue. Their long tails are covered with hair. Snow demons average 1.5 meters in length, with a wingspan of up to 3 meters. Like the Whiphids, snow demons prey on mastmots, which often brings the two species into competition. These creatures hunt in flocks, and fly with the use of wings combined with a methane-filled gas bladder in their digestive tract. (CPL, SWJ10)

Snow Falcon
an extinct species of birds. (DA)

Snow Hawks
a division of Imperial Cold Assault Stormtroopers. (SWSB)

Snow Nara
a pleasure barge that operates on the ice-world of Toloran, the Snow Nara caters to those tourists who wish to go ice skiing, sightseeing, and ice dragon hunting. (DFRSB)

Snow Snake
a vicious creature found on the planet Ota, snow snakes are covered in a deep indigo fur and have pointed snouts filled with sharp teeth. (CSWEA)

Snow Stork
a species of large, white-plumed bird native to Berea. (TBSB)

Snow Wolf
this large, white predator is native to the higher volcanic mountains of the ocean world Kabaira. (SWAJ)

Snow-borer
a this specialized repulsor-craft was used dig through ice and snow to form tunnels. Mining operations and explorers used them to reach solid ground beneath the surface of icy worlds. (MOC)

Snowspeeder
converted Incom T-47 airspeeder used on Hoth by the Alliance as a low-altitude fightercraft. They had to be specially modified to operate in the extreme cold of Hoth's ecology, as well as to survive military duty. They are heavily shielded, and the standard cockpit has been replaced with a Y-wing cockpit pod. They are two-man ships, and have two heavy laser cannons (one on each wing) and a rear-mounted harpoon cannon. The modifications performed by the Alliance limited the T-47's ceiling to only 175 kilometers. (ESB, SWSB)

Snowtrooper
another name for an Imperial Cold Assault stormtrooper, this is a specially-trained stormtrooper who has been conditioned to work in extremely cold conditions. They have modified body armor which generates heat and recycles oxygen. (ESB, SWSB)

Snoygal, Paxtrell
this old man was a representative of Cosmohaul Shipping. He had spent the majority of his life plying the space lanes for the Old Republic, but has since seen better days. He lost most of his teeth, and his breath became very bad. He lost his left eye under unknown circumstances, but had it replaced with a jeweled senor. Snoygal was directed by Felben Cuplatt to hire some freelance mercenaries to protect Cosmohaul transports. Snoygal provided the mercs with the Argent Lady from which to run their operation, which resulted in the discovery of Xalto Sneerzick's crew and their defeat. (SWJ9)

Snubfighter
another name for an X- or Y-wing. (SW)

Snubship
another name for an X- or Y-wing. (SME)

Snufftalon
this huge Wookiee was employed as an enforcer by the owner of Shilley's, on Questal. (GCQ)

Snurf
a small parasite. (JTH)

Snyle, Sarchen
this meticulous Imperial customs agent worked at the Brentaal starport during the Galactic Civil War. He was secretly sympathetic to the Alliance, and often overlooked suspicious cargoes whenver they were bound for Alliance bases. He appeared as gruff and angry as any other customs officer, and made sure he badgered each starship captain with the same vigor, no matter what their allegiance. However, working in tandem with Morrina Reugus, Sarchen would make sure that Alliance starships in the port received a lighter scrutiny than other ships. (CRO)

So Much for Tact
this song, written and played by the band Deeply Religious, first appeared on the compilation Advanced Explosives Handbook. It was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Soarer
a huge, winged alien native to Ammuud, these reptilian avians have long, sharp beaks and large claws. While they are severely limited in intelligence, they are still cunning predators who use speed and surprise to capture their prey. They are carnivorous, often feeding on grazers. (HSR)

Socco
this world of barren, rocky wastes is the second planet in the Outlier System based around Sacor. (CTD)

Socker, Nap
this smelter was one of the colonists of the planet Name Chorios. He was in business with Tinnin Droo. When Dzymand Seti Ashgad began inciting the Newcomers to revolt, Socker was badly burned when a Force storm suddenly ignited the smelter. The burns and trauma he suffered resulted in the loss of his legs. (POT)

Society of the Black Bha'lir
this guild organization was made up of smugglers and pirates who had adopted the planet Socorro as their base of operations. They maintained a high standard and strict work ethics, and all members were required to adhere to them. The Society was also the primary members of the government on the planet Socorro, although leadership of the planet is divided among the four main tribes and other criminal organizations. The Society also maintained a presence in the Omman System, and was a bitter rival of the Hutts. Note that Secrets of the Sisar Run indicates that this society is of Corellian - not Socorran - heritage. (BSS, SSR)

Soco-Jarel Station
located within the Ibhann'I Tribal Lands near Vakeyya, on Socorro, this was the planet's major city and the location of landing pads and hanger bays. It offered smugglers and pirates high-quality repairs at reasonable rates, as well as a wealth of residences and safehouses to live in. Among the natives of Vakeyya, the starport was known as the "stargate of the city," for all visitors to Vakeyya must pass through it. (SWAJ, BSS)

Socorran Shield
this was a nickname used to desribe the Society of the Black Bha'lir. (BSS)

Socorro
this planet was the innermost of two worlds orbiting the red giant Sokor. A planet over very little natural value, it was named for the Old Corellian term which meant "scorched earth." It was an arid world covered with eons of volcanic ash. It has long been a safe haven for pirates, free-traders, and outlaws. The planet was first settled during the Old Republic, some 3,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Six colony ships originally set out to settle the planet, but two were lost on the trip. The colonists evolved over time into several nomadic tribes and a population which preferred to stay in the cities. (SWAJ, BSS)

Sodarra
this Imperial Captain was in command of a team of highly-skilled stormtroopers shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Sodarra and his team were dispatched to Ord Mantell by the Emperor himself, when it was learned that Darth Vader's TIE Advanced cockpit had been located there - with the Dark Lord himself inside and unconscious. They managed to recover the cockpit before Governor Vellam, and fled Ord Mantell in a CR90 corvette. Vellam dispatched the Eradicator to intercept them, and they were shot down over Mon Torri. There, they encountered Han Solo and Chewbacca, who were flying the Millennium Falcon to Tatooine to intercept Alfreda Goot. Both ships were damaged, although Alfreda provided the necessary parts to repair the Falcon. Sodarra then tricked Han Solo into believing that the cargo he and his men were carrying was a prototype cloaking device that he and his men had stolen from Governor Vellam, shortly after they defected from Imperial service. Sodarra claimed that they had planned to sell the prototype to Ploovo Two-for-One, but the crimelord doublecrossed them and they were on the run. Han, meanwhile, was racing against Alfredo Goot, in an effort to recover Leia Organa. Han believed Sodarra's story, and agreed to help the "ex-Imperials" get to Shador, where they would drop off the cargo. On Shador, they were double-crossed by Lieutenant Birdloe, who was actually a spy for Governor Vellam, but they managed to flee the planet and reach Tatooine. There, Han discovered the true nature of Sodarra's cargo shortly before he rescued Leia. Han and Sodarra reached a "gentlemen's agreement" that allowed both parties to walk away from the situation. Sodarra and his men then arranged for passage to Coruscant with Vader's body. (SL)

Sodbeast
this slow-moving creature is found in the Kidron System. (POT)

Sodonna
this is the smallest city on the planet Teyr which had its own spaceport. Sodonna was one of the terminus stations of the River District Flyway, and it straddled the Noga River. Nearly 500 years before the birth of the New Republic, Sodonna served as the gateway to the Inner River District of Teyr, but the city's splendor and importance have since dwindled. (SOL)

Sodonna Syndic
this was the ruling body of the city of Sodonna, on the planet Teyr. (SOL)

Sodrab
this Imperial Carrack-class cruiser was part of the fleet which protected the Damorian repair yards near Esseles. It was destroyed by the Alliance just prior to the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Soe
one of the multitude of species of scalefish which inhabit the seas of Naboo. (IG1)

Soft Landings Inn
this flophouse was located on Quarter Moon Street, in the third quadrant of the Senate District on Coruscant, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. Despite its shabby appearance, it was known as a place where spacers could get a few hours' rest in between runs. (DH)

Sogthane
this is a gas made by the Gungans from xosha grass. (GF)

SOIT
see Standard Officers Intelligence Test (FC)

Sojis
this Imperial Navy Lieutenant served under Ors Dogot on the Bloodprice. He patrolled the area of the galaxy known as Sector 5, working under the command of Warlord Foga Brill. Sojis, like all the rest of the Bloodprice's crew, was killed when Dogot ordered the ship to intercept the Teljkon vagabond. The vagabond's defenseive mechanisms were brought on line, and the ship fired on the Bloodprice. The starship was destroyed. (SOL)

Soknar
this custom-made weapon was created by the master smith Mlatar Thon Gra for his friend, Cene Gilvent. It was forged to take advantage of the best properties of history's finest weapons, including the Barnax Twenchok, the Drevun Six's Somreth tri-blade, and the Coynite sat'skar. (AIR)

Sokor
this unstable, red giant star is the primary body in the Socorro System. It is belived that when Sokor expanded to its current state, it destroyed the innermost three planets of the original system, creating the Thrugii Asteroid Belt and thrusting the planet Neftali into a wider, erratic orbit. (BSS)

Solacton
this was the primary planet in the remote Solacton System, a place where several minor hyperspace routes intersected. These routes connected the Sisar Run to the Iotran Expanse. (SSR)

Solaest Uprising
a revolt that occurred during the Galactic Civil War, it was suppressed by the Imperial Navy. (SWSB)

Solar Flair
this Ghtroc 720 freighter was owned by the Alliance, and loaned to Devon Fuller during the Galactic Civil War. It was an old ship that had been heavily modified and continually pushed to its limits. (GG9)

Solar Flare
this modified YT-1300 freighter was owned by the tramp freighter captain Trynic. The ship's engine section was modified to accept a larger hyperdrive, and the space between the forward mandibles was used as additional cargo space. A pair of turret-mounted laser cannons occupied the dorsal and ventral weapons pods, while a turret-mounted heavy blaster cannon replaced the portside escape pod. (GG6)

Solar Terrors
this pirate group was formed by Venslas Beeli and several other pirates, during the early days of the New Order. The Terrors were infamous for their ability to capture other starships, which was their primary method of acquiring new ships for their own use. The Terrors were captured by Imperial Captain Lev Kepzen and the Feral, and used in the effort to locate the Far Orbit. The Empire forced the Terrors to act like privateers hoping to help the Alliance out. (FOP)

Solar Wind Squadron
this group of New Republic B-Wings served aboard the Allegiance during the defense of Adumar. (SOA)

Solarflower
a flowering plant which grows to incredible heights. (TME)

Soldier's Life is a Sorry Thing
this song was written by Rorax Falken for the band, Ghost Jedi. (XWPA)

Solenbaran Merchant Route
this remote hyperspace trade passage connected the planet Saclas with other, more profitable, worlds. (AIR)

Soleric
this Imperial Navy Commodore was in command of the small fleet which patrolled the Induparan Crown Worlds during the Galactic Civil War. After the Alliance started employing pirates to ambush Imperial starships, Soleric's forces were hard-pressed to maintain control of the systems. (PP)

Solferin Shipping Company
a Bothan-owned interstellar transport corporation, their branch office on Dordolum was the target of rioters which were incited by Klif and Drend Navett. (SOP)

Solgg Chemical Company
this mining operation was responsible for the discovery of cirrifog in the atmosphere of Monor II. They established a base there, naming the world Kline Colony after its discoverer, Eujustus Kline, and mined the microcrystals for the Empire. (SWJ10)

Soli
this plant was grown on the planet Telos as a source of cereal grains. (DOR)

Solidarity
one of six Kathol Republic Marauder-class corvettes sent to rescue the Bravado III from attack, shortly after the FarStar offered assistance. The 195-meter vessel was armed with eight double turbolaser cannons and three tractor beam projectors. (KO)

Solitary World
a musical composition played by Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes. (TME)

Solk, Chanto
an old acquaintence of Han Solo, Chanto Solk made a great deal of money during the Galactic Civil War by anticipating the demand for starships, and selling to the side that needed them. When his health started to fail, he married Karia Ver Seryan, a life witch on Leria Kerlsil, in 28 NE. She Supported him for five years, and in return was named the heiress to his fortunes. Solk died in 32 NE, when Karia was forced to withdraw her Support. Chanto Solk was Karia's 49th husband. Note that Cracken's Threat Dossier indicates Solk's first name is Chantu. (AC, CTD)

Sollaine
this man was easily distinguished by the cybernetic replacements he used for arms, because he made no pretense to disguise them. Sollaine chose not to have them covered with synthetic skin, making his appearance that much more fearsome. During the height of the New Order, Sollaine was in command of the Imperial Security Bureau, and was appointed by Emperor Palpatine himself to ferret out the location of Alliance spies who had infiltrated Imperial service. Sollaine was recommended for the work by Darth Vader, shortly before construction was completed on the Executor. In reality, Vader simply wanted Sollaine out of the way, and Sollaine never forgave the Dark Lord. Sollaine tried to intercept Rivoche Tarkin on Corulag, shortly before the Battle of Hoth, ignoring the list of suspected Alliance agents provided by Vader. When Vader learned of Sollaine's execution of Captain Nevik, the Dark Lord intercepted Sollaine at Corulag and executed him with a clean swipe of his loghtsaber. (SWJ12)

Solo, Anakin
Han and Leia's second son, he is incredibly strong in the Force, especially for a child so young. By the time he is three, Anakin's gifts have become obvious to his uncle, Luke Skywalker. By the time he is seven, he has demonstrated a remarkable ability to make anything mechanical work, regardless of whether he understands the device's purpose or its components. His siblings, Jacen and Jaina, have discovered his abilities, and use them to bypass locks and security cameras. They even tried once to have Anakin create a working droid from various scrap components. Unfortunately, the primary motivator Jacen found was faulty, and the droid blew up. Anakin figured prominently in the discovery and activation of some of the Corellian planetary repulsors during the reign of Thrackan Sal-Solo on Corellia. He continued to show great aptitude with the Force, and when his siblings returned from their initial studies on Yavin 4, Anakin was allowed to go as well. He was eleven at the time, and was immediately befriended by Tahiri. Together, they discovered the Golden Globe beneath the Palace of the Woolamander and the existence of the ancient Jedi Master Ikrit. He returned to Yavin 4 following the attack by the Shadow Academy, and helped rebuild the Great Temple by veiwing its rubble as a huge puzzle to be solved. Anakin, as well as his brother Jacen, trained directly with Luke, when Luke began moving the new Jedi Knights back to the pre-Empire format of teaching. Both brothers had different ideas on what the future of the Jedi should be. Jacen agreed with Luke, that the formation of a new Jedi Council would help bring the vigilantes under control. Jacen also believed more in the spiritual aspects of the Force, while Anakin held to the physical uses of the Force. They clashed often, claiming their intense lightsaber duels were simply training. When the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy, Anakin was forced to act on his beliefs, and doggedly protected Mara Jade Skywalker on Dantooine. After saving her, Anakin learned that he was needed at Centerpoint Station. Archaeologists and engineers at the Station had been trying to reactivate it, but discovered that the Station had attuned itself to Anakin’s fingerprints, brainwaves, and DNA. It wouldn’t activate without him. The New Republic hoped to use the repulsors onboard the massive station to wipe out the Yuuzhan Vong fleet, but Anakin refused to be the wielder of such power. Thackan Sal-Solo took the shot instead, but only succeeded in destroying much of the New Republic’s fleet at Fondor, including most of the Hapan fleet which supported it. Thrackan was portrayed by the media as a hero, while the Jedi Knights were vilified for their lack of action. In the wake of the Battle of Fondor, Anakin’s training was taken up by Luke himself, in an effort to refocus Anakin’s powers. (DE1, COTF, AC, GG, LW, SHA, VP, JE, BP)

Solo, Berethon e
one of Han's early ancestors, he introduced democracy to the Corellian Empire. He lived nine generations before Han, some 300 years before Han was born. (CPL, TPS)

Solo, Dalla
born on the planet Duro, Dalla Solo was Han Solo's grandfather. He was forced to change his name to Dalla Suul to avoid notice following the hanging of his fatherm Korol Solo. He was a kidnapper and pirate, known to the galaxy as Dalla the Black. His illegitimate daughter was Thorm Hrekin's mother. This contradicts the heritage put forth in The Paradise Snare*, which documents Denn Solo as Han's grandfather.* (CPL, TPS)

Solo, Denn
this man was a native of the planet Tralus. Denn Solo never liked human servants, and always had droids working for him. He married Tira Gama, and she was pregnant when a group of pirates attacked the outling worlds of the Corellian System. She gave birth to twins just before the attack on Tralus. She managed to flee with a daughter, whom she later named Tiion, and they hid in the hills. Denn fled with a son, but they were lost in the battle. After Thrackan Sal-Solo and Han Solo discussed it, they came to the conclusion that Denn Solo was actually Han's grandfather, and that the son he fled with was Han's father. This contradicts The Courtship of Princess Leia*, which documents Dalla Solo as Han's grandfather.* (TPS, CPL)

Solo, Han
Han Solo was born on Corellia. He was a good student, and caught the eye of Imperial Senator Garm Bel Iblis with his pointed questions during a school political rally when Han was 11. Some of his friends goaded him to ask Bel Iblis about the growing xenophobia in the Senate, as well as the apparent internal corruption in the Old Republic. This helped Han get an appointment to the Academy on Carida, where he excelled. Following his graduation, he was considered for Naval Officer's training, but he was sidetracked by Imperial atrocities against the Wookiee race. On a particular mission, Han tried successfully to rescue a Wookiee slave named Chewbacca. Chewbacca claimed a life-debt to Han even as Han was receiving a dishonorable discharge from the Imperial Navy. They were forced to flee Imperial control and live their lives at the fringes of the lawful world. For a number of years, Han tried to shake Chewie, who was always at his side. Even though Han took the worst kinds of jobs, Chewie stuck with him. Eventually, Han realized the depth of a Wookiee life debt, and accepted Chewie as part of his life. Han was awarded a second-level set of Corellian Bloodstripes for his bravery and selflessness in rescuing Chewbacca. (It is unknown at this time how Han earned his first-level Bloodstripes.) They turned to smuggling, using Han's starship knowledge and Chewie's muscular and mechanical skills to quickly gain recognition in the smugglers' world. Han's skills at gambling became equally sharp, and in a famous Sabacc match, he managed to win the smuggling ship Millennium Falcon from Lando Calrissian. With a ship and a partner, Han had many adventures. He spent a number of years based on Nar Shaddaa, working with Shug Ninx and falling in and out of love with Salla Zend. He left that life behind to work in the Corporate Sector, and spent a number of years there with Doc, Jessa, and Roa. After all these adventures, Han ended up in the domain of Moruth Doole and Jabba the Hutt. Han was one of many pilots who were contracted to make the Kessel Run and smuggle spice out from beneath Imperial control. Han made the run a number of times, once in under twelve parsecs. However, his last run almost cost him his life. He was set up by Doole, who was in the process of being set up by Jabba the Hutt, and the Imperials were tipped of as to the time of Han's Run. In order to escape the Imperials, Han was forced to dump Jabba's spice and flee. This earned him a death mark from Jabba, and Han was again forced to go underground. In an effort to make some extra credits and pay off Jabba, Han accepted Obi-Wan Kenobi's offer of 17,000 credits to transport Kenobi, Luke Skywalker, R2-D2 and C-3PO to Alderaan. The mission was sidetracked as the Millennium Falcon was captured by the first Death Star. Han and Luke rescued Princess Leia Organa, and brought her to Yavin 4. Han tried to leave with his reward money and pay Jabba off, but his conscience interfered again. He destroyed Darth Vader's wingmen and gave Luke the time he needed to destroy the Death Star. Following the Battle of Yavin, Han spent time with the Alliance, helping them gain key victories against the Empire while trying to stay one step ahead of Jabba's mercenaries. He was even promoted to the rank of General in the Alliance. After a close call with a bounty hunter on Ord Mantell, Han again tried to return and pay Jabba, only to be forced to Cloud City while escaping Darth Vader and the Imperial Navy. During this time, he and Princess Leia began to fall in love. This trip reunited Han with Lando Calrissian, but led to Han's being tracked by Boba Fett, imprisoned in carbonite, and returned to Jabba for the reward money. Han was freed by an elaborate plot by Luke Skywalker on Tatooine, and Han rejoined the Alliance to lead the ground assault on the forest moon of Endor. His timely destruction of the second Death Star's main shield helped the Alliance destroy the space station and the Emperor, thus ending the Imperial Civil War and restoring the Republic. Following the formation of the New Republic, Han and Leia tried to continue their relationship, but Leia's duties often interfered. Han resigned his commission with the New Republic, but stayed on as a freelance pilot. Following the Battle of Bakura and the fighting on Dathomir, Han and Leia were finally married. Their marriage produced twin children - Jaina, a daughter; and Jacen, a son - as well as a second son, Anakin. Leia's Force sensitivity was passed onto all of the children, and this made them prime targets for the Jedi clone Joruus C'Baoth and the reborn Emperor Palpatine. Han and Leia continued to protect their children against the Imperial threat. During a vacation from his wife's Republic world, Han and Chewie were shot down over Kessel, and captured by Moruth Doole's forces. He was forced to work the spice mines for Doole, which led him to discover Kyp Durron and the Maw Installation. Han's friendship with Kyp helped avoid serious damage when Kyp was corrupted by Exar Kun's spirit. Despite the fact that Han had resigned from service to the Republic after his marriage to Leia, he was often pressed into service. One of those times occurred during the Yevethan Purge. After Etahn A'baht was unable to blockade the Koornacht Cluster, Han was temporarily promoted to Commodore and placed in command of the Fifth Battle Group. This move was designed to keep Leia's supporters, as well as the supporters of Borsk Fey'lya, from arguing over the position and focused on the battle. However, the deceit of Tig Peramis provided this information to Nil Spaar, who sent several of his Interdictor cruisers to intercept Han's shuttle before it reached the fleet. Han was tortured and interrogated by Spaar himself. Later, Han was instrumental in the resolution of the problems in the Corellian Sector, overcoming the Human League and the actions of his cousin, Thrackan Sal-Solo. Han and Chewbacca continued to serve the New Republic, despite the fact that they had resolved their commissions long ago. However, Han met his match when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. During a rescue mission to Sernipdal, Chewbacca was stranded on the planet while trying to ensure that Han and his son, Anakin Solo, made it to the Millennium Falcon. Chewie died saving them, and Han immediately blamed Anakin, who had been piloting the Falcon. He soon realized that there was no fault to be givenin Chewie's death, since the Wookiee was simply honoring a life-debt with all his strength and energy. This did nothing to soothe Han's heart, though, and he distanced himself from his friends and family while trying to come to terms with his grief. He found an outlet when Roa asked him to help locate Reck Desh. Han took off for Ord Mantell, only to have Roa captured by the Yuuzhan Vong. As Han fled the Jubilee Wheel, he found an unexpected ally and friend in Droma, a nomadic Ryn. However, Han's relationship with Leia deteriorated when he explained that he was headed back out to find Roa and help Droma locate his family. Their estrangement only worsened in the aftermath of the Battle of Fondor. Han remained behind, helping to get Droma and his family settled on Abregado-rae, then helping Roa recover from his captivity. Leia continued to work with SELCORE, and refused to meet Han on Coruscant. After the loss of Kalarba, Han ran into Leia on Duro, and they decided to stop being foolish and restore their lives. Han Solo was portrayed by Harrison Ford in all three Star Wars films. Han Solo was portrayed by Perry King for the Star Wars and The Empire Strikes Back Radio Dramas on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR, ESB, ESBR, ROTJ, CPL, HTTE, JS, COTF, SE, CSA, SOL, HT, JE, BP)

Solo, Jacen
Han Solo and Leia Organa Solo's first son, born on Coruscant in 28 NE. He is very strong with the Force, as is his twin sister, Jaina. Jacen has the special ability to communicate with animals. When he and his sister turn 14, they attend Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy on Yavin 4. While there, Jacen develops an extensive collection of the jungle moon's exotic fauna, many of which escape the cages built for them by Jacen's sister, Jaina. When he finally constructed his own lightsaber, Jacen chose focusing stones which produced a glowing, emerald green blade. He later trained directly with Luke himself, as Luke began moving the new Jedi Knights back to the pre-Empire style of teaching. Luke also trained Jacen's brother, Anakin, although both brothers had different ideas on what the future of the Jedi should be. Jacen agreed with Luke, that the formation of a new Jedi Council would help bring the vigilantes under control. Jacen also believed more in the spiritual aspects of the Force, while Anakin held to the physical uses of the Force.They fought often, verbally and with lightsabers, both claiming their intense sessions were simply training. He traveled with his younger brother, Anakin, to Centerpoint Station, just before the Battle of Fondor, but urged Anakin not to use the Force to fire it. When Thrackan Sal-Solo fired it instead, and nearly destroyed the combined Republic and Hapan fleets, Jacen felt himself lost in his struggle to understand the Force. After having an intense vision of the galaxy, teetering on a single balance point that he alone controlled, Jacen tried to stop using the Force altogether. His family tried to bring him out of this mental state, but Jacen doggedly refused. However, when his mother was threated by the Yuuzhan Vong on Duro, Jacen realized that he had reached the balance point in his vision. Drawing on the Force, he managed to escape with his mother and get her to safety. (TLC, CS, HTF, DK, VP, BP)

Solo, Jaina
Han Solo and Leia Organa Solo's first daughter, born on Coruscant in 28 NE. She is five minutes older than her twin brother, Jacen, and is equally strong with the Force. She has certain mechanical abilities, much like her father, but not as strong as her brother, Anakin. When she and Jacen attend Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy on Yavin 4, at the age of 14, she collects all sorts of old technology from the original Alliance base, using some of it to create cages for Jacen's exotic collection of creatures. Others she keeps to see if she can repair them. Jaina created a lightsaber of violet light while studying at Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy on Yavin 4. She later trained directly with Mara Jade, after Mara's marriage to Luke, when Luke began moving the new Jedi Knights back to the pre-Empire style of teaching. A real student of the Force, Jaina found it hard to be around her mother when she tried to use the Force. Jaina felt that Leia used her skills with the Force as a kind of toy, nothing really serious and often clumsy in operation. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Jaina put her skills with the Force to work as a member of Rogue Squadron, flying an X-Wing into battle against the aliens. She survived a number of engagements, but was forced to eject from her fighter during the defense of Kalarba. She was caught in the explosion of the Champion, and suffered blinding damage to her eyes which left her with fuzzy vision for several weeks. She was shipped off to Duro, to make room for more desparate injuries, and helped her father in the evacuation of Settlement Thirty-two. Over time, her eyesight returned. Solo, Jarik this street urchin from the Corellian sector of Nar Shaddaa once claimed to be a relative of Han Solo's. He claimed that his father, Renn, was Han's father's second cousin. Han didn't believe for a minute that the youth was his relative, but his own years of eking out an existence as a beggar told him to take Jarik in and keep him off the streets. Roa eventually confirmed that Jarik was nothing more than a street kid. Jarik accompanied Han and Chewbacca on many adventures in the Bria, including several Kessel Runs. When Han decided that he had to leave Nar Shaddaa to escape an impending marriage to Salla Zend, Jarik stayed behind to pursue a new girlfriend and a job at Shug's Spacebarn. Although the girlfriend left him, Jarik continued to work for Shug Ninx. When Han returned to recruit smugglers fo the assault on Ylesia, Jarik joined up, having lost his girlfriend but maintaining his skills. He joined the team which attempted to destroy the turbolaser emplacement protecting the planet, but was killed in the firefight which preceded the Alliance's victory. (THG, RD)

The Qwohog convinced them to finance a treasure hunt to the Zelosian Chine, and Solum'ke quickly agreed. Despite finding the treasure, they were double-crossed by K'zk, who left them to die as the tides rose around them. Solum'ke and Diergo-Rea were eventually rescued by another group of vacationers, but were flat broke. (TFNR)

Solus, Dapp
a native of Nar Shaddaa, this man never grew up from playing pirate games as a child. The problem for those he didn;t consider to be friends was that he still played them like a child, with reckless abandonl, but as a grown-up he had size, strength, and experience to back up his enthusiasm. After stealing a ship and wandering the galaxy for a few years, he met up with Salem Victory. The two of them collaborated on the design of the Starcat, and eventually formed the Happy Blasters. He was a competant and ruthless right-hand-man to Victory's brains and vision. It was rumored that Dapp had several cybernetic implants, but no one ever learned exactly which partsof his body had been replaced. (SWJ13)

Solusar, Kam
a Jedi Knight, son of a Jedi slain by Darth Vader. He spent years hiding from the Empire in the most remote parts of the galaxy. When his whereabouts were discovered by a group of Dark Jedi, he was tortured and forced to embrace the Dark Side of the Force. The reborn Emperor used him as one of his personal Dark Jedi on Byss. When Luke first met him on Nespis VIII, Luke sensed his strength in the Force behind the Dark Side facade, and challenged Kam to a game of Lightsider. Luke won, and convinced Kam to return to the Light Side. Kam eventually returned to Luke, joining the Jedi candidates on Yavin 4. He became one of Luke's most gifted apprentices, and became a full Jedi Knight several years after the death of Palpatine's clones. Kam fell in love with Tionne, and the two were married shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. They acted as the administrators of the Yavin 4 facility for many years, and Kam himself presided over a solemn Jedi wedding for Luke and Mara Jade, before the pair were wedded in a public ceremony on Coruscant. (DE1, DA, DTO, U)

Solusar, Ranik
a Jedi Knight killed by Darth Vader during Palpatine's Jedi Purge. Ranik had a son, Kam, whom he taught in the ways of the Force. (DE2)

Somago
this carnivore was related to the raen sovra, but lived far from the electrically-active vinna forests on Tenek. Known as a choker, this creature has a muscular body which is uses to constrict its prey. Somagos would hang in the branches of trees and wait for prey to wander by. It would drop out of the tree and latch onto its intended prey with its sharp claws. Once attached, the somago would entwine its body about its victim and begin to constrict its muscles, effectively choking the prey. There were several forms of somago, including the sheet somago, saddle somago, and tapestry somago, each identified by its body shape and attack method. The rarest form is the helmet somago, which has a bell-shaped body which was adapted to capturing humanoid prey. Xenobiologists specualte that the helmet somago is an evolutionary throwback to the time when humanoid life lived on Tenek. Once the somago chokes the life out of its prey, it then fed on the dead body with several small mouths on the underside of its body. (COG) this music and dance club, located on the planet Mrlsst, was one of the may holoconcert sites played by Ghost Jedi. It was here that Rogue Squadron first met Koyi Komad. (XWPA)

Sourthal, Bakki
this eager young man wanted to be a starfighter pilot, and planned to attend the Imperial Academy. However, his father believed that the Empire was too powerful, and his outspoken position was noticed during Bakki's initial interviews. He was refused admission to the Academy, so Bakki decided to join the Alliance. A handsome man with a totally fearless personality, Bakki once told his comrades that he would have been a holovid star if the Alliance hadn't taken him. Bakki was promoted to Lieutenant Commander shortly before the Battle of Hoth, and was placed in command of Red Squadron of X-Wings in Fakir Sector. When not on active alert, Bakki also served the Special Forces branch of the Alliance as a field agent.. (SWCP, AIR)

South Conical Mountains
this was the name used to describe the arrangement of seven cones - one large cone surrounded by six smaller cones - at one end of Centerpoint Station. It was believed that the cones formed the primary repulsor generation system for the Station, since the arrangement of cones resembled that of ancient repulsor devices. (JE)

South Horn Flightknife
one of the many Yedagonian fighter squadrons which supported Wedge Antilles and the Running Crimson Flightknife during the war against the forces of the Cartann nation, on Adumar. (SOA)

South Islands
this island chain on the planet Alderaan was home to a group of Caamasi refugees during the reign of Emperor Palpatine. (SOP)

South Market
this section of the city of Iritsa, located on the planet Chazwa, was the primary shopping area used by those beings who lived in The Stones. (ND)

South Mudflats
this mud-covered area of the planet Antiquity ran for thousands of kilometers. (POC)

Southern Crags
this desolate, remote area of the Skeeb Desert was located near Skeebo City. It was here, in the Skeendo Tunnels, that the Skavers created their base of operations. (BF)

Southern Enclave
a section of Coruscant's Imperial City where Prince Xizor had a former mistress buried in a building foundation, after she failed to cut off their relationship. (SE)

Southern Nikto
this is the common name for the M'shento'su'Nikto race. (GG12)

Southern Underground
this city-area on Coruscant, located in the southern hemisphere, was populated with beggars, homeless beings, and criminals. It was extremely dangerous for an outsider. (SE)

Southern Wastes
an area of the planet Uba IV which was controlled by the Vorsazg clan during the height of the New Order. (SESB)

Southwest One
one of two starports located on the Anai continent of Lianna. The starport is located to allow easy shipment of the minerals and ores extracted from Lianna's barren wastes. (ML)

Southwest Two
one of two starports located on the Anai continent of Lianna. The starport is located to allow easy shipment of the minerals and ores extracted from Lianna's barren wastes. (ML)

Sovar
this man worked for Platt Okeefe as a "cargo solicitor," during many runs to Tatooine during the Galactic Civil War. (SWG)

Sovar Imperial Hotel
this upscale hotel was located near Calliandro's, in Rodia's Equator City. (SESB)

Sovereign
the first Sovereign-class Star Destroyer created for the reborn Emperor Palpatine, it was never completed. (DE1)

Sovereign-Class Star Destroyer
these huge, 15-kilometer-long warships were to be the penultimate Imperial weapon, surpassed only by the Eclipse-class Star Destroyer. Designed to instill fear, the Sovereign-class ships were equipped with an axial superlaser designed to destroy planets in much the same way the Death Star's laser eye would. Manned by 601,670 crewers and 4,075 gunners, the Sovereign-class also boasted 500 heavy turbolaser cannons, 500 turbolaser batteries, 75 ion cannons, 100 tractor beam projectors, and 5 gravity well projectors. (DE1, DESB)

Sovereign Protectors
highest-ranking Imperial Royal Guards, the Sovereign Protectors are a highly trained and motivated group of elite guards. Individuals are chosen for their fitness, stamina, and strength, as well as their loyalty to the Emperor. They are tutored by the Dark Side Adepts in the use of the Force, but they have control of only the most elementary abilities. (DE1, DESB)

Sovler
this creature is known for its disgusting eating habits. It enjoys consuming small rarks. (VOF)

Sovra
this was a species of small, poisonous creature. (SWJ14)

Soypro
a meat substitute. (SE)

SP-80
a series of programmable, single-puprose droids. (COJ)

SP.9
this was the mobile version of the Golan Arms DF.9 anti-infantry battery, which was most often used by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. The SP.9 found little outside support, however, because it was extremely large for its firepower, and was difficult to transport. The SP.9 required a pilot and three gunners to operate. (ROE)

Spaar
this Yevethan clan rose to power just after the Battle of Endor, as the Imperial presence in the Koornacht Cluster began to dwindle. Nil Spaar became the primary power among the Yevetha, killing the former Viceroy in order to make his own way into the position. (SOL)

Spaarti Cylinders
canisters that contain the genetic material used to clone the warriors during the Clone Wars. Discovered after the Emperor's second death, the breeding program was resumed by Thrawn. (DFR)

Space Barge
any heavy-duty short-range transport ship used to shuttle cargo between faster hyperdrive transports or orbital installations. (SWSB)

Space Dock
this was the brand name of Rendili's mobile starport platform, developed during the early years of the New Republic. They have the advantage of being mobile, and are moved among planets with ease. (VOF)

Space Fighter Corps
this was the small group of Naboo Defense officers who used N-1 starfighters to patrol their home system. (IG1)

Space Grazers
an alien lifeform, thought to be extinct for thousands of years before the Great Sith War. Aleema used Dark-Side illusions of them to try and deter the combined Jedi-Republic force that was sent to liberate the Empress Teta system. They were said to be space-faring, floating in the ether between the stars and eating any unsuspecting ships that passed near them. They resemble huge amoeba-like slugs with jellyfish-like tentacles hanging below them. (DLS)

Space Pirate Boogie
a dance Han Solo taught to Leia at his housewarming party on Bespin. (ZHR)

Space Pirates of Iridium
this group of Old Republic bandits raided spice haulers using power gems. They were finally stopped by the Jedi Knights. (CSW)

Space Poker
this is a card game popular among pilots and other military individuals. The deck of card is covered with different spacial bodies, such as planets and moons. Each round is marked by the use of propulsions and turbos to try and improve a players hand. The primary goal is to get the best combination of spacial objects among the cards in your hand. A full planetary system is one of the best hands. (SA1, SA2)

Space Rescue Corps
this branch of the Old Republic military was charged with maintaining the safety of space travellers everywhere. Even after the rise of Emperor Palpatine and the Imperial Navy, the Space Rescue Corps was allowed to provide rescue services to registered starship owners. The SRC painted their rescue vessels with a striking red and black pattern for easy recognition. (FOP)

Space Singer
this is the term used to describe those Shashay who act not only as musical performers, but as starship navigators. The term was first created when a Shashay starship was forced to land on Kashyyyk after experiencing a malfunction. The Wookiees helped the Shashay crew repair their ship, but the only thing the Shashay had to offer as repayment was an evening of song. In an alternate usage, Shashay navigators are called space singers. The song of the Shashay is a complicated combination of trills and riffs, and the mental acumen required to memorize and perform the song lent itself to the ability to manipulate navigational coordinates. The Alliance employed the Shashay as navigators during the Galactic Civil War. (TA)

Space Skeet
a target-shooting activity which uses low-power laser rifles to shoot specialized targets launched into space. The shooter shoots from behind a transparisteel barrier, while the target is launched into space. When the laser beam strikes the target, it explodes in a bright flash, indicating a hit. (RM)

Space Slug
a pink, snake-like creature capable of living in the vacuum of space, space slugs sustain themselves by digesting the minerals in asteroids. Much of the slug's body is smooth and pliable, but the rearmost portion of the slug is covered with root-like tendrils that burrow into the rock of the asteroid and serve as the primary method of obtaining nutrients. It is known that they are a silicon-based organism, much like the mynock. Space slugs, also like mynocks, reproduce via fission into two new organisms. Many scientists claim that space slugs eat mynocks for sustenance, although larger slugs have been found with colonies of mynocks living inside them. The average space slugs attains a length of around 100 meters living in the weightlessness of hard vacuum. For this reason, there have been plenty of verified reports of huge slugs reaching lengths of 900 meters. Space slug flesh, being inorganic, has many technological uses. Their skin is also used, in a ground-up form, as a commercial abrasive. (ESB, SWSB, ISU)

Space Tape
this adhesive has a multitude of uses. Like duct tape, it has a strong substrate and dense, tactile glue. (POT)

Space Warper
a starship built by Novaldex. (MMY)

Spaceboat
another name for a lighter. (HSL)

Spacecaster
an outdated form of orbital shuttle. (VP)

Spaceguide
this was the official publication of the New Republic Scout Service. It documented the goals and ideals of the Service to prospective and new members. (GG8)

Spacelane Bureau
a branch of the Old Republic Navy, the Spacelane Bureau patrolled the ancient jump beacons used to demark hyperspace travel routes, ensuring their accuracy the safety of their routes. (TOJC)

SpaceOps
this division of the Alliance's Special Forces group was typically ship-based personnel which speciallized in combat which took place aboard a starship. They were considered the 1st Regiment of the SpecForces of the Alliance. (ROE)

Spaceman's Rest
a bar located in Teguta Lusat, where Lando Calrissian goes in search of a sabacc game while trying to gather information on the Treasure of Rafa. (LCM)

Spaceport
any facility which provides starship landing, repair, and modification facilities. The Imperial Space Ministry defined five levels of spaceport classification:
- Landing Field: any flat, level area with the barest minimum of services. There is no flight tower to control tarship traffic.
- Limited Service Starport: a step up from a landing field, limited service starports have some form
f control tower, limited storage space, and only the basic services.
- Standard Class Spaceport: this facility has a full-staffed control tower, and offers all the basic ervices plus restocking facilities and a small shipyard.
- Stellar Class Spaceport: these facilities can handle most of the common starship designs, and rovides landing and docking facilities for them. A number of shipyards are available for repairs, and a fully-staffed Customs office is on-site.
- Imperial Class Spaceport: luxurious and modern, this facility offers a wide range of landing and ocking facilities, as well as maintenance areas and storage facilities. Any and all amenities required by a starship's passengers and crew area readily at hand. Customs facilities are top-notch, and security is extremely tight.
(GG6)

Spaceport Bar
a well-known chain of Outer Rim hotels and bars. (GG9)

Spaceport Express
this Mos Eisley messaging service was formed by Monom Gantrum, with help from Norun Gep. Gantrum worked a deal on the side with Lady Valarian, which allowed her to scan his manifests for interesting cargo in return for other favors. (GG7)

Spaceport Hotel
this was generally considered one of the nicest hotels in Mos Eisley, on the planet Tatooine. (SWTJ)

Spaceport Region
this section of Celanon City was dominated by the vast starport which served the planet Celanon. The central spaceport control tower measured 140 stories in height. (PG1)

Spaceport Row
a street filled with bars and restaurants serving the various traders, shippers, and smugglers that come to Plawal and Belsavis. (COJ)

Spaceport Security Authority
this was the generic term used to describe the security forces which guarded the largest spaceports in the galaxy. They were most prominent at Imperial-class spaceports. (IR)

Spaceport Speeders
the used landspeeder lot in Mos Eisley where Luke Skywalker sold his old speeder to pay for passage to Alderaan aboard the Millennium Falcon. (GG7, TME)

Spacer
slang term for a starship pilot. (SW)

Spacer's Bar
this was one of the Outer Rim's most accessible chains of restaurants and hotels. (GG9)

Spacer's Bistro
a bar and grill location on Byss. (DE2)

Spacer's Garage
a starship repair facility on Nar Shaddaa (DE1)

Spacer's Information Manual
this Imperial document was required reading for any being who operated a starship during the New Order. It outlined the necessary documents required for any spacer, as well as providing information on any possible scenario under which a starship may be boarded. However, many Imperial Customs agents relied more on first-hand knowledge of particular spacers and situations in boarding situations. (SWJ9)

Spacer's Lounge
a cantina located in Imperial City, on Coruscant, during the early decades of the New Republic. (HT)

Spacer's Rest
a cantina located near the main starport serving the planet Wroona. (PSG)

Spacer's Street
one of the main thoroughfares in the capital city of Cilpar, located near Mos Tommro Spaceport. (SOP)

Spacetroopers
specially-trained stormtroopers used for zero-G battles. They are trained as deadly commandos, second in stature to only the Imperial Royal Guard. Their specially-modified body armor acts as protection, propulsion, and weapons system. They are rightly referred to as walking tanks. (COTF, ISB)

Spach
this was one of the binary stars at the center of the Aldo Spachian System. (SL)

Spacia
this species of tree was native to the planet Achillea, and was used in the creation of luxurious furniture items. (PGT)

Spacing
a form of execution in which the victim is cast into the vacuum of deep space without any protection. (HSL)

Spadda
this Hutt ganglord ran his business from the Aikhibba System. (DESB)

Spaeth
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of a Dreadnaught that was assigned to patrol near M'haeli. (ROC)

Spang
this Outlaw Tech was the leader of a group of unemployed Imperial engineers who developed the Hornet Interceptor for the Tenloss Syndicate. (JASB)

Spangled Veil Nebula
this gaseous formation is located near Exodo II and the gas clouds of Odos, in the Meridian Sector. (POT)

Spanner
this was the nickname of Luskin Exovar's E3 companion droid. Those who knew Exovar the best could not recall a time when Spanner wasn't with him. Spanner was sensitive to the plight of droids, especially during the height of the New Order, and wasn't afraid to use its heavy lifters to take out a measure of revenge against anti-droid beings. Spanner rarely spoke aloud, and then usually only to Exovar. (WSV)

Sparkle-bop
a term used to describe the sugary pop music which was popular during the early years of the New Republic. (POT)

Sparks
a New Republic Navy crewman serving under Harona on the starship Glorious. (BTS)

Sparky
this maroon and white R5 astromech droid was assigned to the X-Wing starfighter used by Jaina Solo during the evacuation of Dubrillion. After Jaina became a full member of Rogue Squadron, Sparky served as her counterpart until the defense of Kalarba. During the struggle to protect Hosk Station, Jaina's X-Wing was destroyed. She managed to fire her ejection seat and get clear of the explosion, but Sparky was destroyed in the blast. (DTO, BP)

Spart, Keevy
this young Corellian man was aboard the Tinta Palette when Corran Horn fled from Corellia, during his search for Mirax Terrik. Keevy dreamed of becoming a starfighter pilot, but the demilitarization following the deaths of Grand Admiral Thrawn and the reborn Emperor Palpatine left him with little hope of realizing that dream. (IJ)

Sparu
this megonite miner was secretly hoarding the moss with Calus Bing, in an effort to create their own fortune. They were forced to detonate the moss in an effort to escape the Imperial forces on Phelarion. (CSWEA)

Spasso, Garvan
this untrustworthy, low-life trader made a living smuggling holotapes and exotic spices between Kalab and Glova, during the early years of the New Republic. (POC)

Spatch-Cote
a substance carried on most small starships. It is used to fill and seal small hull dmage. (COJ)

Spathen, Framjem
a post-Clone Wars holo-feature star, he had surgically-implanted muscles added to his physique. (COJ)

Spatz
a game of chance played in many Imperial casinos. (SWJ1)

Spawn Nebula
Meres Ulcane attempted to flee to this nebula, after being discovered on Betha II by agents of the New Republic. Via hyperspace, the nebula is only a half-hour from the planet Betha II. It was here, located in the shadow of the nebula, that the Kaarenth Dissension hoarded a fleet of starships for use against the New Republic. A spherical space station was maintained to keep the fleet in constant readiness.A team of New Republic agents managed to locate Ulcane and track him to the nebula, where they were able to destroy the repair station and much of the fleet it supported. (SWJ8)

Spawn Ship
this was the Yuuzhan Vong name for one of their grand cruisers, which had been outfitted with a secondary module which contained dovin basals. This configuration allowed the main ship to take a great deal of fire, while the moduel simply absorbed it. (HT)

Spawnworld
this is the Yevethan name for the planet N'zoth. (CTD)

Spax, Ben
no one knew this young man's background, and many believed he found the Alliance all on his own. Spax joined the ranks of the starfighter pilots in the Alliance, although he was recruited for Intelligence work by Airen Cracken. (GMK)

SPD
insectoid maintenance droids (TLC)

SPD-series Droid
these Industrial Automaton droids are common among security and law enforcement agencies.Known as scanning patrol droids, they were box-like automata that roll on treads, similar to the MSE-6 droid. The SPD-series also has a number of retractable appendages that it uses to search out security breaches. They are often better known by their brand name, the Hound-W2. (TTSB, SWJ14)

SPD-R4
this model of so-called "spider droid" has highly-flexible appendages that allow it to navigate inside power cores and engine blocks to affect repairs where no human could reach. (DSTC)

Spear
a group of Alliance YT-1300s destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Spear V
this is the designation of a mid-grade computer spike manufactured by MicroThrust. It is more efficient that the Piercer IV, but not as good as a Lancer spike. (CFG)

Spearmaster
traditionally, the best hunter among the Whiphids on Toola is named the Spearmaster. The Spearmaster is, by default, the leader of the nomadic tribes of Whiphid. (GG4)

SpecForce
this was the shortened name used by the Alliance's Special Forces division. Among the various disciplines of the SpecForce soldier were SpaceOps Troops, Pathfinders, Urban Combat Specialists, Wilderness Fighters, Technicians, Infiltrators, and Heavy Weapons Specialists. At any given time during the Galactic Civil War, there were ten or more SpecForce divisions scattered across the galaxy. The primary division was the Command Division, which was attached to the Alliance's High Command and governed the overall activity of the SpecForces in action. (ROE)

SpecForce Officers Training Manual
this was the Alliance's collection of information used to educate and train potential officers of the Special Forces division. It included doctrines and operational information for leading and conducting warfare. (ROE)

Special Enforcement Officers
these law enforcement agents were culled from the best of the Sector Rangers, and given more wide-spread authority and detention powers. They focused on kidnappings, counter-espionage, and anti-terrorist operations. (GG11)

Special Insertion Team
this was the name given to the elite group of stormtroopers and Imperial soldiers who could secretly infiltrate any installation and disable it. These teams were well trained and highly skilled in all forms of combat, and were sent in to eliminate resistance in very hostile situations. They were often on missions for months at a time, establishing themselves before beginning their assault. (SLS)

Special Navy Forces
this joint effort between the Empire's Ubiqtorate and its Navy was developed with several missions in mind. First, the Navy hoped to train dangerous soldiers to act as advance forces to use when landing on a new planet. The Navy hoped to be able to eliminate the need for Army ground assault forces. The Ubiqtorate hoped to create a group of mobile intelligence operatives with specialized skills and training, who could be assigned virtually any mission on a moment's notice. Known as SpecNav, these forces were trained at the D8-Red base in the Ringali Nebula, but never saw action. Following the Battle of Endor, any troopers stationed on D8-Red were quickly reassigned posts elsewhere to help bolster the fragmenting Empire. (FOP)

SpecNav Forces
see Special Navy Forces. (FOP)

Speco
this planet was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

SpecOps
this was the shortened name of the Alliance's Special Operations division. A complimentary unit to the Special Forces division, SpecOps took on missions that were thrown together with little up-front planning. (ROE)

Specter Squadron
this Alliance starfighter group was stationed at the Renforia base. Their emblem was a solid black square marked with white gridlines. (CCG)

Spectrader Ring
an infamous group of outlaws, once led by Andews Rolo. (RC)

SpecWar
this Imperial military manufacturing facility was attacked by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. Imperial forces were able to drive off the Alliance fleet. (TIE)

Spee
a planet which is home to a lisping species of reptiliods. (RPG)

Speed Globe
this sport is played with a medium-sized ball which is pliable to the touch but rather heavy. Inside is a small computer system which is programmed to move the ball about to avoid being caught by the members of two opposing teams. Once the speed ball was caught, the team had to line up in a chain and pass the ball from player to player until they could place it in the goal. The other team could try to get the ball out of their hands, and the ball itself continued to try and get away. (GOF9)

Speeder Bike
small, one-man needle-shaped transports, these are like fast repulsorlift motorcycles. The front of the bike holds the maneuvering systems, while the rear holds the power source. A seat and rider controls are located over the power source. They were built as cheap, quick, personal transports and recreational vehicles, they can be easily adapted to law enforcement and military purposes. (ROTJ, DFR, SWSB, ISB)

Speeder Bike Races (Speed Kills)
this song, written and played by the band Deeply Religious, first appeared on the compilation Emperor of Air and Darkness. It was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Speeder Ferry
this repulsorcraft is used to transport multiple air- and landspeeders from one location to another. Primarily used by junkyards and speeder dealers, the speeder ferry slaves the dependent speeders to its navigation and propulsion systems, and moves them all at once. This allows the ferry to transport even non-functional speeders to their next destination. (KT)

Speeder Scooter
a small, repulsorlift transport built by Ubrickkian Industries, the speeder scooter is nothing more than a chair with an engine attached to it for propulsion. (SWSB)

Speeder Transport
any large shuttlecraft used to move V-wings. (DE1)

Speedy
a Sullustan starfighter pilot assigned to Keyan Farlander's squadron. He was called Speedy by the human pilots because they could not pronounce his Sullustan name. (XW)

Spefik
Ranulf Trommer and his TIE Fighter squadron destroyed an anti-orbital ion cannon on this planet. (ROC)

Speizoc
manufacturers of terrestrial scanners and anti-vehicle weapons. (DFR, COJ)

Spek-Man
this near-Human was one of the key members of Alliance sleeper cel V-16, and was one of the few members of the cell personally known to Berren Sid Te'. Spek-Man spoke in a mixture of Basic and droid languages, although most of his speech is only understandable by droids. He had the attention span of a three-year-old Rodian, but was incredibly adept with anything mechanical or droid-related. He supplied much of the sleeper cell with its parts and droids, once a contact has been established. Spek-Man hated the Empire, although his motivations were never revealed. Many believed that the cybernetic arm and leg he wore were the result of an Imperial attack, but this was never proven. (CRO)

Spel, Hamiz
this Imperial agent was a member of the Intelligence Analysis bureau. (SWJ9)

Spenter
an Alliance X-Wing pilot killed in action over M'haeli. (ROC)

Sperin
this planet was located in the Palaquin System of Bajic Sector. (GG11)

Sperinad University
a famous institute of higher learning founded on Esseles. (SWAJ)

Spero
a Ho'Din living in the Southern Underground of Coruscant during the Galactic Civil War. He was a trusted friend of Leia Organa's, and helped her locate Prince Xizor's palace. (SE)

Spetbecca
this Wookiee ran the Great Hoary Mastmot Trading Station on Toola during the early years of the Empire. The Wookiee took in Haaken Baranar, after the free trader was mauled by a snow demon some ten years before the Battle of Yavin, and helped get the big man back to health. However, a group of bounty hunters captured Spetbecca and took him away. Baranar remained on Toola, maintaining the Trading Station in hopes that Spetbecca would return. The Wookiee, however, was not seen again. (SWJ10)

Spetzna
this cellulose-based foodstuff is highly indigestible to those species that have trouble assimilating cellulose. (RM)

SPF 14897
this Mark III bulk transport ship was owned and operated by Santhe Passenger and Freight. It was under the command of Mils Lolinc when the Empire used the transport as bait in a trap set for the Far Orbit. The ship was supposed to be carrying military-grade control modules to Raithal, but when the Far Orbit captured her, the hold was full of stormtroopers and SpecNav forces. (FOP)

Spherical Compass
this ancient star-traveller's tool was used to locate and navigate a starship whenever a navigational computer was unavailable. All directions and locations were based on the assumption that Coruscant's position is (0,0,0). (RF)

Spice
a controlled substance which has certain addictive properties. The primary source of spice are the Spice Mines of Kessel, which produces a spice known as glitterstim. Another kind of spice is called ryll, and is mined on Ryloth. Both have medicinal value as well as their recreational purposes. Ryll is a very dangerous form of spice. (SW, JS, COTF, SWSB)

Spice Blades
this was the name used by Lord Cassius Nolath Rha's personal guards. (SWJ12)

Spice Eel
a thirty-meter-long creature native to the spice mines of Sevarcos. (SWAJ)

Spice grub
a creature that generates spice as a byproduct of its digestion. They have a particular affinity for humanoid flesh, and Moruth Doole used one to eliminate the Kessel prison's warden when Doole learned that the warden was working for Jabba the Hutt. He then froze the warden in carbonite. (JS)

Spice Liquor
a potent form of alcohol made from fermented spice extracts. (GG9)

Spice Lords of Sevarcos
this was the name adopted by the leaders of the major criminal empires based on the planet Sevarcos. (SWJ12)

Spice Mine Run
this annual pro-circuit podrace was run on the Mon Gazza Speedway. (RAC)

Spice Mines Avenue
a street in Kessendra. (GDV)

Spice Narcosis
a condition experienced by many Sevari who leave their native world of Sevarcos. The atmosphere of Sevarcos is laden with spice particles, and the Sevari have become used to it over time. However, if a Sevari leaves Sevarcos without carrying a supply of spice to breathe, he can enter a state of spice narcosis. (SWAJ)

Spice Shippers' Fellowship
this spacers' guild was based on the planet Wroona until Imperial forces declared their operation illegal and raided their guild hall. The Fellowship fled Wroona, but failed to maintain its stature. (SWJ9)

Spice Spider
another name for the energy spider of Kessel. (JASB)

Spice Terminus
this location defined one end of the Llanic Spice Run. It was here that most of the spice brought into or out of the Outer Rim was processed. (GG9)

Spice Worm
an unusual creature native to the planet Sevarcos. (SWJ12)

Spice-jacker
this was the term used to describe those pirates who illegally obtain spice by hijacking other smugglers and stealing their cargoes. The use of spice-jackers by crimelords increased during the early years of the New Republic. (GG11)

Spicewood
a pseudonym used by Ylenic It'kla to describe Nejaa Halcyon, it was based on the man's scent more than anything else. (IJ)

Spicy Lady
this highly-modified YT-1300 light freighter was owned and operated by the smuggler Jarril. He had widened the forward mandibles to accept a full-sized A-Wing fighter. The A-Wing could be remotely-operated from the main ship, and was designed to be an escape ship. Jarril could dump the bulking YT-1300 and flee in the swift A-Wing if captured by the authorities. However, this is not the case, as Jarril once proved. Given the remote operability of the A-Wing, Jarril can remain behind in the freighter, piloting the A-Wing on an escape vector while remaining with his cargo. The A-Wing can later be recovered, if possible. The ship was hijacked by agents of the failed Jedi Dolph, and Jarril was killed. A series of messages implicating Han Solo in the bombing of the New Republic's Senate Assembly Chamber were left in the Spicy Lady's memory banks, and the ship was left adrift. It was discovered by Lando Calrissian, who towed it to Kessel to search through it. The A-Wing had been stolen, and Jarril had been shot in the head, but otherwise the ship was intact. (TNR)

Spider Walker
see MT-AT

Spider-rat
a multi-legged rodent. (SHA)

Spider-roach underground insect native to Coruscant. (DA)

Spiders
a swoop gang that patrolled the city of Gallisport. (SWAJ)

Spiderwalker
this Charon bio-construct was a grotesque mixture of human and Charon genetic material. It was an ape-like creature with eight legs and a cluster of alarmingly human eyes atop its head. It is extremely agile and strong, and was a formidable opponent during hand-to-hand combat. (OS2)

Spike
this man was part of the demolitions team which was sent to Ralltiir by the New Republic to liberate the planet from Imperial control. (HR)

Spike Force
this was the Imperial strike force assembled by Admiral Pellaeon to assist the New Republic in driving the Yuuzhan Vong from the planet Garqi. The squadron was made up of Chiss fighter pilots under the command of Jagged Fel, loaned to Pellaeon's forces by Soontir Fel himself. (DTR)

Spiker
this humnoid alien was one of Jabba the Hutt's swoop gangmembers. Spiker was in the group the Jabba - at Prince Xizor's request - sent after Luke Skywalker on Tatooine. Spiker is recognizable by purple skin and his long, thin, spike-covered head. He also wears purple, spike-covered leather armor that matches his skin. Spiker was killed while trying to steal Han Solo's frozen form from Boba Fett, when the bounty hunter arrived on Tatooine. A firefight ensued, and Spiker was shot down. Fett, however, was unharmed, for he had placed Zuckuss in Mandalorian armor and sent the Gand out in his place, to draw off an ambush. Spiker was later revived and restored by the B'omarr monks of Jabba's palace, and he met up with the similarly reanimated Big Gizz. They attempted to recover a tape which contained information on the whereabouts of Jabba's hidden escape ship, the Spirit of Jabba, which itself was filled with weapons and supplies. They thought they could become pirates and take control of their own destinies. However, they were forced to crash-land the ship outside of Mos Eisley in order to escape Gorga the Hutt's minions. Spiker and Gizz survived, and made their way back to civilization. (SEC, SSE, TJT)

Spilferithimus-narlamos
this young Squib - who prefers to go by the nickname Spilfer - was sent to assist the Alliance in recovering the datapacks stolen by the Elusive. They planned to use a gravity-well projector to pull the shipout of hyperspace, but they had to steal the projector from the Ugors. Spilfer is easily distinguishable by the odd assortrment of trinkets and baubles he has attached to his clothing. Among them is a ceremonial Fizz-Pop can, which identifies him as a Squib diplomat. As a diplomat, Spilfer had the authority to sign treaties for the entire Squib race. (SH)

Spill Air
this is racer slang for the super-heated gases that are created by a hot engine. Spill air can be bled off in order to cool the engine or prevent engine fires. (IG1)

Spin-and-Win
a jingling casino game. (ZHR)

Spin-dizzy
an activity on Vorzyd 5. (CSWEA)

Spin-sealing
this process involved subjecting certain gases to intense temperatures and pressures in order to alter its chemical properties. Often, spin-sealing produces gases which intensify the energy of light which pass through them. (GG2)

Spinara Plateau
found on the planet Carida, this landmark was the site of an Imperial Military Academy. (JASB)

Spinax III
this ocean-covered world is part of the Allied Tion. (ML)

Spince, Mako
the son of an Old Republic Senator, Mako never wanted to rush things. He led an aimless life that nearly got on track after the Clone Wars. He knew that he had the talent to make it in the Academy, but he put off applying until he had had enough fun on Corellia. He met Han Solo at the Academy (despite the fact that Solo was ten years younger), and the two became known as pranksters. Mako once tried to blast the seal of the Academy off its mascot moon, but only succeeded in destroying the entire planetoid. He was expelled immediately, and his family cut him off from any inheritance. He used his contacts from the Academy to set himself up as a smuggler, and encountered Solo again after Solo's expulsion from the Academy. They worked for awhile out of Nar Shaddaa, until Han decided to seek his fortune in the galaxy. Mako, meanwhile, had been plying the smuggling lanes of the Ottega System. He wound up on the wrong side of a battle with the Na-Quoit bandits, and was permanently crippled in the battle. He returned to Nar Shaddaa, where he took on work as a traffic controller. When Solo returned, Mako tried to make a quick credit and turned Solo in to Boba Fett, but Solo escaped. When Zasm Katth and Baddon Fass arrived at the spaceport looking for the Millennium Falcon, Spince was forced to work for them. He later spotted the Falcon trying to escape the spaceport and alerted the crew of the Star Destroyer Invincible to their presence. Han did not appreciate the way Spince turned on him, and tried to evade the Invincible's tractor beam by hiding behind the spaceport control tower. The Star Destroyer's tractor beam locked onto the tower, instead of Han's ship, and ripped it from the spaceport. Mako Spince was killed when the disabled Star Destroyed crashed into the surface of Nar Shaddaa and exploded. (DE1, DESB, DE2, RD)

Spine Dragon
a creature which is native to the planet Kintan. Like many other creatures on the planet, it evolved from a species which was altered by the intense radiation the coursed through the system as a result of the M'dweshuu Nova. (GG12)

Spinefish
this species of fish is native to the planet Vodran. (GG12)

Spinnerpit
this casino game resembles roulette. (MJEH)

Spinward Sector
this section of the galaxy is home to the polwocz. (ISB)

Spira
this planet has very little axial tilt, so its climate is very stable. It was a lush, tropical world with no natural predators. It was first scanned by Old Republic explorers nearly a thousand years before the Battle of Yavin, and the wealthy citizens of the Core have been coming to Spira for a long time. Its surface is mostly ocean, broken here and there by chains of islands. Weapons are forbidden on the planet. The average day on Spira lasted about 25 standard hours, and its year encompassed 377 local days. An ancient shipwreck was located west of The Point, a remnant from a time before the planet was first settled. No one knew who owned the ship or why it crashed, but over the years the wreck was salvaged for parts and left as an artificial reef. (SWJ1)

Spira Regatta Open
this annual race took place across the oceans of the planet Spira. At the time of the Battle of Hoth, the Regatta had been run for 345 years. (SWJ1)

Spira Security Police
this was the small police force which patrolled Ataria Island and maintained the peace on the planet Spira. The wore very casual uniforms, as befitted the tourism which maintained the planet's economy, but were nonetheless impecably dressed. (SWJ1)

Spirador
this planet, the primary world in the Spirador System of the Tandon Sector, was the capital world of the sector and was the seat of Imperial power during there during the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance placed a stealth-shielded probot in the system, which allowed Daelar vuvTertarrnek to relay information to the Alliance. (CRO)

Spiral
this Alliance CR90 Corvette saw duty during the years before the Battle of Yavin. (CCG2)

Spiral Arm
a section of the galacy. (COJ)

Spiral*-class Assault Ship
this needle-shaped craft was developed for use by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It was designed to get a boarding party into a shpi which resisted being boarded. The pointed nosecone of the Spiral-class ship was loaded with tekonite, which vaporized on collision. This allowed the pilot to ram the needle-shaped ship into the hull of its target, penetrating the hull without injuring the boarding party. Once the ship had penetrated its target, the boarding party exited through the vaporizde nosecone. The Spiral-class was considered to be expendable. (BI)

Spirit of Jabba
this was the heavily-armed escape ship Jabba the Hutt hid in Glass Mountain, on Tatooine, in case he ever had to flee from a rival or enemy. It was well-stocked with all the food and drink Hutts like, and was armed with a pair of ion cannons, a number of tractor beams, proton torpedo launchers, and laser cannons. The ship also contained a holographic security system that could detect the presence of beings on the ship and interact with them. It was activated when the beings who stole the ship failed to key in the appropriate code sequence on the main computer. The system, which projected a huge image of Jabba himself, then took control of all ship's systems and took measures to eliminate the thieves. If the proper code sequence was entered, the system would shut down and return control of the ship to the pilot. Spiker and Big Gizz, after being re-animated by the B'omarr monks, activated the system when they stole the Spirit of Jabba from Gorga the Hutt. The ship's atmosphere was then vented, and they feared for their lives until they were intercepted by the Nemphas. They were forced to crash-land the ship near Mos Eisley, but only after dumping out its cargo – which contained several priceless Mendacian funeral urns from the early Krung dynasty. The Spirit of Jabba was left in the desert for scrap. (TJT)

Spirit of Mindor
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Spirit Tree
the Ewoks rever the Spirit Tree as the first tree to grow in the forests of Endor's Sanctuary Moon. They believe that all life came from this one tree. (ECAR)

Spirogyra Gelatin
this is a favored appetizer of the Ugor race. (SH)

Spirva Run
this hyperspace route traversed much of Spirva Sector. (SWJ14)

Spit Adder
a small but deadly snake. (SE)

Spleed Nukkles
this Gungan was one of the best bongo racers in the city of Otoh Gunga, prior to the Battle of Naboo. Unfortunately, just before the Battle, she crashed with Neb Neb Goodrow in a practice run for the Bongo Rally, and was unable to compete. She later helped Jar Jar Binks defeat one of Captain Swagg's droids, as the pirate tried to destroy the Lake Umberbool arena to exact revenge on the Gungans. Despite being injured, Spleed Nukkles helped Jar Jar get back to Otoh Gunga. (E1A12)

Splendid Ap
this deity, not to be outdone by Tilotny, threw itself a shape some time after the Battle of Yavin. It manifested itself as a cone-shape entity with a wide mouth. However, Splendid Ap was not very bright, and had no concept of time. He created a duplicate of himself in the same time as he existed, thus creating multiple images of himself. He found himself in the middle of the spat between Tilotny, Horliss-Horliss, and Cold Danda Sire, in which they solidified the bodily organs of their captives. The captives included Leia Organa and the stormtrooper squadron chasing her. They left Splendid Ap to clean up the bodies, and Splendid Ap returned them to their normal state. However, his ineptness with the concept of time led him to return Leia to her normal time, while teleporting the stormtroopers back 8,000 years. (CSWDW)

Splendor of Yevetha
this Immobilizer-418 Interdictor-class cruiser was refitted by the Yevetha after they took control of the Imperial shipyards in the Koornacht Cluster. It was commanded by Tho Voota. (TT)

Splendor Tavern
this seedy tavern was located in the Senate District on Coruscant, during the last decades of the Old Republic. The Tech Raider broker Helb often made deals here, during the last decade of the Old Republic. (DH)

Splinter Fern
this planet thrives in the moist, swampy environments of its native world of Naboo. When dried out, the slender leaves of the fern form hard, needle-like splinters. The Gungans use them for acupuncture and, when crushed into a powder, they are also used as a cooking spice. (GF)

Split-X
this huge racing enine intake system was designed by Collor Pondrat. The podracer Sebulba mated a pair of Plug-F Mammoths to Split-X intakes to power his pod. The Split-X design combines a ram-air intake with radiators to ensure proper operation of the huge turbine drives. (X1)

Splitter of Stones
this Qom Jha was one of the few that had ever gotten into the caverns below the High Tower and seen the Threateners up close. He was assigned by Eater of Fire Creepers to lead Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade to the Tower, along with Keeper of Promises and Builder with Vines, as well as the Qom Qae Child of Winds. After the death of Builder with Vines, Splitter of Stones became the leader of the group, taking them to the High Tower. (VOF)

Spodan
this Sedrian warrior was a follower of Karak. Spodan was fatally wounded in the battle between Alliance agents and Karak's forces over control of the Golden Sun. (BGS)

Spog
Hideaz Quill-face's alien bounty hunter partner. (DE1)

Spoggick
a lowly alien creature. (JTH)

Spoi
this ice- and methane-covered world is the fifth planet in the Kidron System. (PG)

Sponk
this is a Tahlboorean term which, when translated into Basic, becomes an adjective which describes a being as a “stinking liar.” (DRPC)

Spook Crystal
found on the planet Nam Chorios, Spook crystals are a strange form of life that evolved from a mixture of raw crystal and the Force. These green and violet stones are unique among the crystalline formations on the planet, and are highly attuned to the Force. When Dzym discovered their ability, he quickly set out to harness the stones’ power. He gave some to Loronar Corporation, which was able to develop Centrally Controlled Independent Replicant technology by tuning the crystals with electrical impusles. The crystals could then understand and interpret commands from a remote location and act on those commands. The crystals were used in two primary applications: synthdroids and Needles. When Luke Skywalker discovered the true nature of the Spook crystals, he was able to gain their assistance in stopping Dzym and Seti Ashgad, on the promise that Luke returned all large, functioning Spook crystals back to Nam Chorios. Using the Force, they were able to contact the crystals in the Needle ships and have them destroy the Reliant, just as it docked with one of Admiral Larm’s Carrack-class cruisers. (POT)

Spor Crawler
native to the planet Nar Bo Sholla, this poisonous insect was known as an effective tool by assassins and bounty hunters. The crawler was small, measuring just eight centimeters in length, but it injected a powerful poison through its spiked tail. They burrowed in the ground using tiny claws, and lived in hives of up to fifty individuals. They mate whenever possible, laying their eggs in dead prey. Spor crawlers also have value among collectors of rare and exotic creatures, as they were easy to keep and lived for several years in captivity. (COG)

Spore
this ancient entity was imprisoned 400 years before the Galactic Civil War in an asteroid by the Ithorians. Spore was a genetic construct of the ithorian botanists, who had hoped to merge the DNA of a vesuvague tree and a Bafforr tree with other material to create a sentient plant. Instead, they created an evil creature which needed more minds to expand its thoughts and work its damage. It could use the minds of almost any living creature to augment its own power, and it was thought that Spore could control several thousand minds at one time. With the help of the Jedi Knights, it still took over 100 years for the Ithorians to capture and neutralize Spore, entombing the entity in an asteroid where is was forced into dormancy by the hard vacuum of space. The Ithorians could not kill Spore, because of their adherence to the Law of Life. When Mining Station Alpha was established on the asteroid to collect minerals, the Ithorians carefully monitored their progress, lest they discovered Spore's tomb. Unfortunately, the tomb was discovered by Hodge and his team shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Spore was released, and the ripples of evil permeated the Force. Emperor Palpatine sent the Dark Jedi Jerec to capture Spore, but the entity had already escaped its prison and hidden itself in the body of the mining chief Hodge. Fandomar was livid with fear, and rushed to escape the asteroid before Spore could infect anyone, but she was too late. She brought Hodge - and Spore - back to Ithor, and Spore attacked the rescue party that came to find them. Black vines snaked out from Hodge's mouth and eyes, entwining the Ithorians and threatening to capture Hoole. Each vine that touched a being infected it immediately, including the Shi'ido Hoole, and Spore raced to infect the Tafanda Bay. Jerec then intercepted Spore on Ithor, and offered it the chance to get off the planet if it would infect the crew of the Vengeance and make them his slaves. Spore agreed, but had no intentions of helping Jerec for very long. Spore tried to capture Tash and Fandomar, but a group of space slugs smashed the Vengeance, droppin her shields and causing it to explode. Spore was split into a thousand small pieces and neutralized in the vacuum of space. (GOF9)

Spore Bomb
this weapon was created by the Ho'Din terrorist Ort Hoogra-D'En as a method for deploying the deadly tamack spores. (ND)

Spore Tour
this was a slang term, used by the members of the Agricultural Corps to refer to any examination of a planet’s native plant life and its applications in terraforming. (DR)

Spore/B
a biological weapon, Spore/B uses Bothan stun spores. Spore/B is launched in a canister projectile, and when inhaled it causes unconsciousness. (ISB)

Sporofor Spetzna
this restaurant, located on the luxury liner Kuari Princess, speciallizes is spetzna and drapsha dishes. (RM)

Sporran
this small, leather pouch is used as a purse by the Chadra-Fan. (POT)

Spot-luma
a form of glowrod which produces a small, focused light rather than provide light along its body. (TFNR)

Spot-luma Lum
this local variety of lum was produced on Adarlon, and was popular at The Glow Dome. (WSV)

Spotlight Sloth
a creature native to Dagobah, the spotlight sloth has a number of bioluminescent patches on its chest. It forages the swamps until it finds a flower-fruit succulent, which it illuminates until the plant unfolds its skin. Then, the sloth feasts on the flower-fruit's purple berries. (ISU)

Sprax
this dark furred Nalroni was one of Prince Xizor's vigo's, or one of his closest lieutenants. He was mature and intelligent, with greying fur. Sprax had been recruited into Black Sun as a youth on Celanon, when he was apprenticed to a merchant on Brentaal. Sprax was then tapped to become the leader of the Jatayus Trading Consortium, and made a fortune before "retiring" to work full-time for Black Sun. He eventually became a vigo after developing a wide range of criminal businesses for Black Sun, forming a large conglomeration of smugglers, shipjackers, black marketeers, and corrupt business executives. (SE, SESB, SSR)

Spray
an alias used by Odumin to penetrate the Millennium Falcon and Han Solo's confidences. Spray was a Tynnan collections agent sent from Interstellar Collections Limited to repossess the Millennium Falcon and recover the 2,500 credits owed by Han Solo to Vinda and D'rag. He was also the individual who tried to break into the Falcon and was interrupted by Han. Fiolla discovers that Spray is involved with the Corporate Sector Authority slavery ring as they are trying to outrun the pirate ship above Ammuud. He truly reveals himself when Gallandro overtakes the Falcon and he gains the upper hand. (HSR)

Spraynet
a chemical that is initially liquid in form, it can be expelled through specially-designed tubes to form a net. This net can be aimed at the intended prey. When the spraynet is exposed to the air, it begins to harden. The liquid form is very sticky, and adheres readily to most surfaces, where it then hardens and entraps the prey. It is employed by the Noghri in their Stokhli sticks. (HTTE)

Sprettyn
this Ensign served the Warlord Zsinj aboard the Iron Fist during the early years of the New Republic. A pit crewman, Sprettyn longed to be a starfighter pilot. In his spare time – and sometimes while on duty – Sprettyn would run space battle simulations on his computer terminals, analyzing attacks and defenses. He was so eager to learn to be a pilot that he shirked his normal duties while in the presence of Zsinj himself. Zsinj ordered Sprettyn's commanding officer, General Melvar, to evaluate his abilities as a pilot, then execute him for insubordination. (IF)

Sprey
this is tasty nut which is covered by a hard, outer shell. (SOP)

Sprigmelon
a fruit native to the planet Endor. (AT)

Sprint*-class Rescue Ship
known as a Med Runner, developed and manufactured by SoroSuub, this 30-meter-long craft was similar in appearance to the Gamma-class assault shuttle. However, it was designed to provide detailed sensor and identification analysis of a ship in space. These life-form sensors allowed a rescue team to get close to a disabled ship and quickly locate any survivors. The Sprint-class was unarmed, requiring an escort in enemy territories, and was crewed by three pilots and five doctors. It could carry up to forty passengers. (TBSB)

Sprite
this small creature lives in the forests of Kashyyyk, feeding on the abundant leaves and vines. (TT)

Spuma
this planet was swiftly and brutally suppressed by the Empire's Hell's Hammers, under the command of Colonel Johans. Following the Battle of Endor, the renegade Imperial Harrsk used it as his base of operations. (ISB, COJ)

Spunchina
this planet was famous for its wild, uninhibited orgies. Jabba the Hutt participated in one of these orgies some years before the Battle of Yavin. (JTH)

Spunto
one of Cabrool Nuum's bodyguards. (JTH)

Spurch Goa
a birdlike Diollan, Spurch Goa was an investigator for the Imperial Naval Intelligence organization. After absolving Thaffe of a murder he didn't commit, the two became Sector Rangers. They then met up with Dyyz Nataz, and were caught up in an elaborate revenge plan created by Jabba the Hutt. Thaffe was killed in a Gank ambush, but Nataz and Goa escaped. They destroyed Jabba's local palace, and were removed from the Rangers because of the scandal. They hid out on Nar Shaddaa, serving the galaxy as bounty hunters and mercenaries. In his native language, the name Spurch means "brave bug catcher," so he adopted the title of the Warhog. Just before the Galactic Civil War, he was hired by two Chattza Rodians, Thuku and Neesh, to lure Greedo into a life of bounty hunting. They wanted Greedo dead, since he was a Tetsus Rodian, and so they paid Goa to get Greedo into a situation he'd never survive. When Jabba put money on Han Solo's head, Goa urged Greedo on, knowing that Solo was never going to give up without a fight. Although he got paid handsomely when Solo killed Greedo in the Mos Eisley cantina, he was not proud of it. (DE1, DESB, TME)

Spy-eye
this small remote surveilance device resembles a miniature seeker. It travels extremely fast, and is nearly invisible to the naked eye. (CSWEA)

Spy-mike
this is the generic term for any small, undetectable device which can be used to overhear the conversations of another individual. The spy-mike is hidden on the target's body and can transmit for a limited distance. (VOF)

Spydr
this species of large arachnoid had nine powerful legs. They had large abdomens, and wide mouths filled with small, sharp teeth. They lived in caves, clinging to the ceiling until their prey wandered beneath them. The spydr would then drop down from above and trap the prey with a gluey webbing. Many Kubaz, and some Hutts, cooked and ate them in exotic meals. (E1A3, E1A5)

SpyEye Droid
this was a series of surveillance droids produced during the New Order. (BI)

Squab
this tiny red star is the primary star in the Squab planetary system, which contains the planet Skor II. (GG4)

Squall, The
this was the name used by the Royal Imperial Guards to describe the arena in which they trained and fought on the planet Yinchorr. The Squall was a circular platform raised several meters above the ground. It forced opponents to remain within a confined space, lest they fall to their death. (CE)

Squalls
a demolition expert serving the Alliance, Squalls volunteered for duty as part of Han Solo's Endor assault team. (MTS)

SqualSpinner
this carnival ride is basically a controlled tornado. Brave individuals who wish to experience free-fall can step into the whirling column of air and be borne above a net. The spinning column of air allows patrons to perform somersaults and other acrobatic feats while seemingly suspended in mid-air. (GCQ)

Square of Hopeful Redemption located in Redhaven, on the planet Rhommamool, this was were the Red Knights of Life brought droids for deconstruction. (VP)

Squeak
a T'iin-t'iin Dwarf who worked for Big Bunji. He approached Han Solo at the Mos Eisley spaceport, offering Han a job transporting a load of chak-root. However, Han had already booked Luke Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi for transport to Alderaan. (SWR)

Squeaky
this 3PO unit served as Wraith Squadron's quartermaster, as well as a waiter at the Downtime. He was once a protocol droid serving on the Tantive IV, and was sent to the spice mines of Kessel when the ship was captured by Darth Vader. On Kessel, he was programmed to maintain inventory data on the spice processing operation, but longed to be free. Then, one day, he saw his chance to escape, along with a large number of other droids. They boarded a freighter that was to carry a load of spice, in small numbers to avoid suspicion. When they were all aboard, Squeaky re-programmed the freighter's autopilot and told it to fly close to the ground for several kilometers before heading to space and jumping out of the system. However, Squeaky's escape route took them through a series of winding canyons in what would later be known among pilots as the Runaway Droid Ride. They managed to escape the spice mines, and dispersed throughout the galaxy. Squeaky eventually joined the Alliance. Wedge Antilles once said that Squeaky was the most verbally abusive droid he'd ever met, a fact that was displayed when Squeaky accompanied Wedge and Chewbacca on the missions of the Millennium Falsehood. Squeaky and Chewbacca argued over everything, and the droid gave no quarter to the Wookiee. (WS, SOC)

Squeeze Bulb
this small container was used to carry liquids during space travel. The drink was contained in a sphere at the bottom of a tall neck, and was forced up the neck by suqeezing the sphere. Releasing the sphere drew any remaining liquid back into the sphere. (RP)

Squib
a small alien bipedal race from the planet Skor II, the Squibs are a nomadic race who were forced to roam their homeworld in search of the resources they needed to survive. When a Dorcin trader landed on the planet, the Squib traded him the mineral rights to a frozen waste in return for starship technology. Now the Squibs travel the galaxy looking for junk to salvage. Their bodies are covered in colorful fur which ranges from deep red to brilliant blue, and their fox-like faces have large eyes and tufted ears. They are confident and curious by nature, and love to make things more complicated than they need to be. The Squib negotation process is a good example: when one party wishes to obtain something from another, they must make the first pitch. If they do not, the controlling party will simply stand by stoically, waiting for the first request. Squibs also revel in haggling, and consider it the highest form of communication. They have been in a salvage war with the Ugors, and are often found trying to claim the same junk before the Ugors can. To a Squib, the only good Ugor is a ripped-off Ugor. The Squib race is ruled by a polyanarchy, which was formed by a group of Squib kings. Each king ruled a tribe of salvagers, and worked with the other kings to ensure salvage rights. Despite their scavenging ways, Squibs also developed a high level of technology, and their tractor beam generators are among the most efficient in the galaxy. Many Squib starships use these tractor beams as weapons, instead of lasers. (GG4, SH)

Squib Merchandising Consortium
this Squib corporation manufactured the reclamation ships used to scour the Paradise sector for salvage. The consortium was originally chartered by the Empire to collect the detritus from space, refurbish it, and resell it. Every Squib born is, by default, an employee of the consortium, and must yield to the commands of its leader, the "Illustrious Chieftain of Junkyards." (SH, GG4)

Squib Reclamation Ship
this needle-shaped starship was built by the Squibs to assist them in collecting interstellar salvage. Measuring about 50 meters in length, the Squib ships resemble huge B-Wings which have their wings closed. The ships require a crew of twenty, and although there is no space dedicated to passengers, there is always room for paying customers. The reclamation fleet has a standard hyperdrive system, and is armed with 10 tractor beams. The Squibs have the uncanny ability to use the tractors hurl garbage at attackers. They can also pull garbage into position to absorb enemy fire. (SH)

Squid Head
a derogatory name for a member of the Quarren race. (ROTJ, DA)

Squig
this Jawa was considered a mechanical genius, and worked for Abdi-Badawzi as a technician and repairman. Squig maintained the Twi'lek's fleet of ships, and also worked part-time as a consultant for the Caelli-Mercerd Syndicate. Squig considered it his life's work to ensure that Elias Halbert's starship, the Seldom Different, was always in working order. To that end, Squig was always tinkering with the ship. Squig was also known as a hopeless romantic and a chronic gambler. (BSS)

Squill
one of the galaxy's most reviled vermin, the squill is a monkey-like creature with a toothy beak and pink head-frills. They are known to carry diseases, and were used by the Empire to unleash Bledsoe's disease. The Jawas of Tatooine enjoy eating the tough, pungent meat of the squill. (CSWEA)

Squint
this is Alliance fighter pilot slang for a TIE Interceptor. Erisi Dlarit also called it a "wince." (XWWP, BW)

Squire
this was the brand name of House Paramexor's armorer droid. They were similar in function to the AD-series droid. (GG10)

SQ/one Cilghal's shuttle on Calamari (DA)

Sreas
this New Republic Navy Captain was in command of the fleet shuttle Tampion when it was pressed into duty to bring Han Solo to the Fifth Battle Group's position near the Koornacht Cluster. After news of Solo's arrival was leaked to the Yevetha, the Yevetha stationed Interdictor cruisers in the Tampion's path and brought it out of hyperspace three hours shy of the fleet. Sreas tried to fight off the Yevetha who ambushed the shuttle, but only succeeded in shooting Solo in the right arm before being killed in the firefight. (SOL)

Srejtpan
this is the name of the poison exuded by the Hyallp race. (RD)

Sreethyn
1) captain of the salvage ship The Lucky Find, Sreethyn regularly recovered Imperial garbage, searched it for technology, and sold it on the open market. What he couldn't sell to his normal clientele was eventually sold back to the Empire that dumped it. (ISB)
2) the name of one of the ancient Juvex Houses. (COJ)

Sreina
this city, located on the planet Janara III, was razed in an Imperial attack aimed at suspected rebel cells. Matt Turhaya had left his daughter, Alex, with relatives in Sreina just before the attack. Alex was rescued by Turk Winger. (SWAJ)

Sriluur
this planet is the fifth and primary world in the Sriluur System, and is the homeworld of the Weequay race. Located in the Periphery, it also supports a large colony of Houks. It is a harsh, desert world whose only vegetation is concentrated in broken scrublands. The Weequay and Houk had been at war for many years when the Empire moved in and took over the planet, turning it into a staging area for the distribution of raw materials to Kuat Drive Yards' factories. The Alliance worked hard to get the two races to resist the Empire, but no major resistance was launched. One year on Sriluur encompasses 270 standard days. Sriluur gained importance during the Galactic Civil War as the central point along the Sisar Run. (SWAJ, CRO, EGC, GG12, SSR)

Sronk
this alien race was a member of the New Republic. Their homeworld was attacked by Grand Admiral Thrawn. (SOP)

Srrors'tok
this race of bipedal felinoids had an honor-based societal structure, much like Wookiees. Native to the planet Jankok, the Srrors'tok were comfortable in warm climates. However, they were susceptible to cold, and had to wear layers of clothing to survive in frigid climates. Their large heads were dominated by their fanged mouths, and their bodies were covered with short fur. (GG9, AE)

1) this was a repulsorlift vehicles used by scout and survey teams to travel across a new landscape and collect samples. (KR)

2) this scout and retrieval vehicle was first designed by the New Republic shortly after the Battle of Endor, in an effort to obtain an inexpensive yet rugged vehicle which could be used to scout new locations and deliver and retrieve troops. Military versions of the SRV-1 were armed with a pair of medium blaster cannons mounted on turrets atop the cockpit. The SRV-1 was propelled by a pair of heavy treads, although a repulsor version was produced under the designation SRV/R-1. The SRV-1 required a pilot to operate, and could transport eight troopers and up to three metric tons of cargo in its rear bin. (SWG)

this was a repulsor-equipped version of the treaded New Republic SRV-1 scout and retrieval vehicle. The craft suffered from a lack of power, since the repulsor was added without augmenting the existing power generators. Thus, when faced with combat, the SRV/R-1 had to either commit itself to the fight or flee. This lack of power also reduced the SRV/R-1's transport capabilities to two metric tons. (SWG)

SS-176.01
this Imperial Survey report was written by Koeg Boorn in the first year of the New Order. It described the primary planets of the Sluis Sector, including Dagobah. (TTSB)

SS-23
this series of sewage spreader droids was produced for use in gardens and nurseries by a corporation on the planet Myrkr during the last decades of the Old Republic. (E1A7)

SS-39
this Telex-Delcor space skiff was basically a rigid frame, to which was attached maneuvering jets and a power core. These vehicles were used at starship repair facilities for light maintenance duties. (OE)

Ssi
this deity was the father of the Ssi-ruu species. According to the Ssi-ruuk's sacred tome, the G'nnoch, there were four eggs formed at the creation of the universe. From the first hatched Ssi and P'w'itthki. Ssi's children hatched from the second egg, while P'w'itthki's children hatched from the third egg. The fourth egg was reserved for those descendants who earned a place in the afterlife. Eventually, Ssi was forced to defeat P'w'itthki in combat, but allowed P'w'itthki's hatchlings to live on, serving the children of Ssi forall eternity. This myth describes the beginning of the relationship between the Ssi-ruuk (htachlings of Ssi) and the P'w'eck (hatchlings of P'w'itthki). (TBSB)

Ssi-ruu
1) native to the planet Lwhekk, Ssi-Ruu were reptilian beasts covered with scales. Their blunt, oversized heads ended with a beaked mouths, and their bodies ended with muscular tails. They had clawed hands and feet, and strongly-muscled hind legs. They were blind to The Force. They also have scent tongues which they eject from their nostrils. Each hand has three opposable claws. There are at least two species of Ssi-ruuk, based on their coloration: one brown and the other blue. They all have three eyelids. They held to a very rigid code of honor, as well as a strict caste system which was based on skin coloratoin and patterning. Blue Ssi-ruuk were members of the highest caste, and were the politicians and leaders of their society. Gold-skinned Ssi-ruuk were very rare, and were members of the religious caste. Brown or red Ssi-ruuk were generally stronger than their counterparts, and comprised the military caste. (TB, AE)
2) this word was the singular form of the noun used to describe the Ssi-ruu (TB)

His crew managed to defeat an Aramadia-class thrustship, one of the first times the Republic was able to knock out one of the spherical ships. The Thunderhead fell under heavy assault during the Battle of N'zoth and was destroyed. All hands were lost, including Ssiew. (TT)

Ssiskor
this shaman was a member of the starfaring species which discovered the planet Kriekaal, millennia before the Battle of Yavin. Legends maintained by the Krieks say that Ssiskor angered Br'lai, the goddess of the molten oceans, and she made the oceans rise up and swallow the visitors. (SWJ13)

Ssither
a reptiloid race native to the planetoid Jatee, the Ssither have the body of a snake with a scaled, humanoid torso. They resemble cobras with arms, and have a limited form of telepathy that they use to communicate with each other. They are a simple species whose past is marked with bloody warfare. (SN)

Ssk Kahorr
this ancient Cha'a was one of the major investors in the mining colony on Goluud Minor. A tall, stocky, orange-skinned reptiloid, Ssk Kahorr was rarely without the companionship of Tk'lokk. When the Goluud Corridor was discovered and proposed to him by the Navigator's Guild, Ssk Kahorr took the chance that it would help him increase profits by making hyperspace travel to and from the mining colony faster. When the Zeta Five was destroyed near Primus Goluud, Ssk Kahorr had Shodon Ko - the Navigator's Guild representative who sold him the Goluud Corridor - executed. Ssk Kahorr also set a group of bounty hunters on the trail of Jori and Gav Daragon. Only the timely intervention of a group of Jedi Knights saved them. However, Ssk Kahorr was able to briefly obtain possession of the Starbreaker 12. During a joyride, the ship was targetted by Naga Sadow, who was on his way to meet the combined forces of the Jedi Knights and the Old Republic. The Starbreaker 12 was destroyed, and Ssk Kahorr was killed. (GAS, FOSE)

Ssoh
this Trandoshan boasted to C-3PO and R2-D2 that he was the only Trandoshan ever to defeat Chewbacca in a fight. As a slaver, Ssoh trafficked in Wookiees, selling them to Commander Nyklas and the Empire. He maintained his ship in such a way that rival Wookiee clans were placed in the same space, thereby ensuring that they would fight each other, rather than try to escape. After capturing Chewbacca with the help of Tojjevvuk's clan, Ssoh didn't think anything more than to place him in the hold. However, Chewbacca questioned the value of the infighting among the Wookiees, then staged a daring escape. Chewbacca sought out Ssoh and ripped his limbs off, but the Trandoshan survived. However, the physical effort of regenerating his limbs left him weak, and the limbs grew back thin and atrophied. (C)

Sseeeeeseetek
this 4,000-year-old Galidyn from the planet Fyodos is the oldest, strongest, and wisest of his kind on the planet. He rules the Galidyn city closest to the Roh tribe of Fyodoi. Sseeeeeseetek is old enough to have seen the devastation caused by the Great Cleansing. (PG2)

Stack-series Radiator
this piece of equipment was a necessary part of a pod racer, since the radiator bled off huge amounts of engine waste-heat during high speeds. The Stack-series is denoted by several models, each with a different number of rows of cooling capacity and efficiency. They range in size from a Stack-1 radiator, with limited heat dispersion capability, to a Stack-6 radiator, which is the most efficeint radiator. (RAC)

Staffa, Raccyx
this man was the governor of Calius, on Berchest, when Grand Admiral Thrawn rose to power after the Battle of Endor. He was unusual as an Imperial governor in that he was at one time a successful smuggler. After his retirement, he took his riches and started dabbling in politics. He retired to Berchest, and soon blackmailed the existing governor into stepping down and naming Staffa as his replacement. Staffa then implemented a regime in which he allowed smugglers to make their runs through Berchest, obtaining "informal taxes" which served to line his own coffers. The remnants of the Empire knew of his actions, but allowed him to continue in order to maintain the informational avenues the smugglers provided them. (TLC, TTSB)

Stalpaac
this legendary Wookiee Elder rescue the young warrior Urothko from the fire-spirit known as a Graaa'shad. The spirit brought Urothko deep down into the forest, and prepared to kill him. Luckily for Urothko, Stalpaac intervened. Stalpaac shot the spirit with a bowcaster quarrel, then the two Wookiees launched an attack on the spirirt. Graaa'shad quickly retreated and fled, screaming that one day it would get revenge. In the aftermath of the battle, Urothko pledged his life to Stalpaac, since the older Wookiee had risked his own life to save him. The story of Urothko's rescue quickly spread to other villages, and the tradition of the Wookiee life-debt was created. (TTSB)

Stalsinek IV
this planet was rumored to be the site of an ancient temple that contained a maysterious fountain. The waters of the fountain were said to cure any disease and heal the more greivous of wounds instantly. However, if the being who drinks from the fountain ever knowingly speaks a falsehood, the effects of the water are immediately revoked. The temple is surrounded by virtually impassable jungle, and it is guarded by a native population of beastly creatures whose friendly nature is only discovered by those who stop to ask. (GMS)

Stanz
this old, Bothan cargo hauler owned the starship Freebird, which he used to transport the settlers of New Brigia from the homeworld of Brigia. In return, the settlers paid Stanz a percentage of the chromite they mined on their new world. Stanz paid them only barest minimum of what the ore was worth, keeping the New Brigians in debt for a number of years. (BTS)

STAP
indicating a single trooper aerial platform, this was the acronym used to describe the respulsorlift platforms used by the Trade Federation's battle droids. The STAP measured two meters tall, and had a foot platform and directional controls which were fitted to the battle droid structure. They were often armed with a pair of laser cannons, and were capable of speeds approaching 400 kilometers per hour. (SW1, TPM, X1, IG1)

Staplarint
this quadripedal beast was introduced to the planet Brosi by Old Republic settlers. They were originally bred as mounts and beasts of burden, but were forgotten when repulsorlift technology became widespread. Modern staplarints have returned to their wild nature, although it was known that members of the Brosin Underground used them as mounts. (AIR)

Star Bantha
this was one of six Imperial bulk freighters assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Star Cab
officially known as Orlean's Star Explorer, the Star Cab was designed at a time when hyperdrives were extremely unreliable. However, even with the advent of the modern hyperdrive, there are a few Star Cabs still in service to this date. At 70 meters in length, this bulbous exploration and scout craft was crewed by a single pilot assisted by a complement of droids. The droids provided the same kinds of support as a modern R2 unit, but were much less advanced. The ship could carry up to eleven passengers and 40 cubic meters of cargo, but also stored up to five years' worth of consumables. This allowed the ship to travel for great periods of time before requiring a refitting. It was also well-armed, with a quartet of blaster cannons, but lacked any shields. (GG8)

Star Chamber
one of the many amusements found on Hologram Fun World, the Star Chamber contained a fully-interactive hologram of the entire galaxy. (GOF4)

Star Defender
a new class of warship developed during the New Republic, it first saw use in the early stages of the battle against the Yuuzhan Vong. (JE)

Star Destroyer
huge, triangular-shaped warship at the forefront of the Imperial Navy, the Star Destroyer was actually first designed and developed during the last years of the Old Republic. There are four main classes of Star Destroyer: the original Victory-class ships, developed by Rendili StarDrive for the Old Republic; their successor, the Imperial-I and Imperial-II class ships, developed by Kuat Drive Yards for the Empire; the huge Super-I class and Super-II class command ships; and the largest class, the Eclipse-class Star Destroyers. Like all capital ships, they were given names based on phrases and adjectives which described their strength and capabilities, such as Devastator and Agonizer. Luke Skywalker believed that Emperor Palpatine chose names which would also serve as a subconscious reminder to their crews that the ships were essentially the methods by which he corrupted people's souls. Star Galleon-class Frigate built by the Kuat Drive Yards, in an effort to help transport cargo and defend it at the same time, the Star Galleon is a 300-meter military cargo ship. It is capable of dropping its cargo section, which can fly on its own. It is fairly well-armed, boasting 10 turbolaser batteries and concussion missile launchers, and therefore does not require an escort. The interior of the ship is also equipped with anti-intrusion defenses. The cargo section is equipped with a small hyperdrive that can be activated by the main ship's navcom unit in case of emergency. The Star Galleon is manned by a crew of 150, with room for up to 300 troops. (DFR, ISB)

Star Hammer
this starship was owned by Joa Pqis, and was based out of Vobos. It was identified with New Republic Ship Registry number RN80-440330. (SOL)

Star Home
Ta'a Chume's personal ship, it has been passed from queen mother to queen mother for almost 4000 years. It's design is based on the floorplan to the queen mother's castle, Per'Agthra, on Hapes. It is no match for the more modern capital ships, but it is truly unique and impressive, in it's own way. The basic design has a castle set upon a huge, five-pronged base formed from black basalt native to Hapes. As ungainly as it looks, Star Home is quite spaceworthy. It measured some 2,500 meters in diameter at the time of Prince Isolder's marriage to Teneniel Djo. The castle atop the ship contains living quarters, dining halls, meeting rooms, and a private hangar bay fo the Queen Mother's ship. It is studded with towers that are capped with crystal domes that provide unlimited views of the stars. The interior of the castle appears to have been cut from dark stone, and the decorations and adornments were all handcrafted on one of the Hapan worlds. Treasures of unspeakable wealth are proudly displayed in the halls and meeting rooms, having been collected during the 4,000-year existence of Star Home. The base of the castle is filled with Star Home's six power generators and engine systems. Like the five prong-like arms, the base is also constructed of basalt from Hapes. These basalt structures are very fragile in the vacuum of space, and are heavily protected by shield generators. Twenty-four sublight engines are required to move the ship through realspace; four hyperdrive engines have been slaved to a single motivator for hyperspacial travel. It is armed with twenty turbolasers, twenty laser cannons, and six tractor beams. Sixty Miy'til starfighters can also be carried in the docking bays, along with numerous shuttles and transports. (CPL, EGV, CTD)

Star Hotel
found in the capital city of Somin City, on the planet Seltos, it was here that a group of New Republic diplomats stayed while conducting meetings with the new government of Seltos. The government had been set up after the populace overthrew the pro-Imperial rulership some years after the Battle of Endor. The Star has ten floors, with penthouse suites on the top-most floor. (TSK)

Star Jewel
Jabba the Hutt's personal starship, the Star Jewel is a spade-shaped Ubrikkian luxury yacht. Well-shielded and armed with six turbolasers, the Star Jewel is equipped with a Ubrikkian N2 ion engines supported by three T-c40 ion engines. The landing bay carried six Z-95 Headhunters and a pair of shuttles. (THG, EGV)

Star Lady
this highly-modified YT-1300 freighter was owned and operated by Fenig Nabon. Ghitsa Dogder used to kid Fenig that there was a Wookiee-sized bunk on the Star Lady in case Fenig ever got a chance to seduce Han Solo. Fen claimed the bunk was oversized to accommodate Ghitsa's expansive wardrobe. (TFNR)

Star Map Room
this vast chamber was located in the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, during the last decades of the Old Republic. It contained a huge holographic map of the known galaxy. (RF)

Star Morning
this Koqus Starliner had a busy, eventful career under several other names before it was purchased by the Fallanassi who lived on the planet Teyr. It had previously been known as the Mandarin, the Pilgrim, and the Congene before being named the Star Morning. They bought the ship when they were preparing to flee the planet. Luke Skywalker, while searching for the Fallanassi with Akanah, discovered its history as well as its whereabouts. It had left the planet Motexx just before the Battle of Endor, bound for Gowdawl with a full load of cargo. It never reached Gowdawl, and was lost for a year before it showed up on Arat Fraca. From there, the ship landed on Darepp, and then visited several colony worlds before it returned to Motexx. Luke discovered it on Vulvarch when they were putting into Atzerri, but Akanah chose not to pursue it. The Star Morning, at that time, was involved in a complex rescue of several Fallanassi and other inhabitants of the Koornacht Cluster which were captured by the Yevetha. With a number of illusions generated by key Fallanassi, it appeared to the Yevetha that their captives were still in the holds of the Pride of Yevetha. In fact, the Star Morning had been able to recover all but the few who remained behind to perpetuate the illusions. Following the Battle of N'zoth, the Star Morning rendezoused with the Intrepid to collect Wailu and Akanah. The Fallanassi had agreed that it was time for them to disappear for awhile, in order to absorb their losses at the hands of the Yevetha and re-evaluate their place in the galaxy. (SOL, TT)

Star Mother

Star Saber
an experimental attack ship developed just before the Great Sith War for use by the Old Republic and the Jedi Knights. It was a long, needle-shaped ship with wide wings and twin tailfins. (DLS)

Star Sea Flower
this aging, though heavily modified YT-1150 trransport was owned and operated by Charza Kwinn during the last decades of the Old Republic. The Priapulin used it to transport various Jedi Knights across the galaxy whenever anonymity was needed. Charza maintained it in order to maintain an environment which catered to his own needs, so much of the ship was filled with water. In the waters, Charza's extended family lived and worked. Whenever a Jedi was traveling with him, though, Charza maintained several rooms aboard the ship which could be modified to the Jedi's particular environmental needs. (RP)

Star Seeder
this Kuat Drive Yards colonization ship was well-known for its durability and capacity. At 250 meters in length and with 3,000 cubic meters of cargo space, the Star Seeder could easily transport up to 800 colonists with little problem. It required a command crew of 26, with 143 crewers or more depending on the size of the expedition. Itsw deep-bellied cargo section is compartmentalized, allowing the colonists the ability to transport plants, animals, droids, building materials, and other necessities in separate areas adapted to each type of cargo. A small hangar bay contained enough space for a small shuttle, several speeders, and other ground equipment. The ship was shielded, and armed with six turbolaser batteries and a tractor beam projector. It was hyperspace as well as atmosphere capable. (GG8)

Star Station 12

Star Tours
an intergalactic travel agency, specializing in unique intersystem cruises. (ST)

Star Traveler
this ship was owned and operated by Renna Strego. Strego volunteered the ship to assist in the defense of Nar Shaddaa, during the Imperial attack commanded by Admiral Greelanx. The Star Traveler was dispatched to assist in taking out the initial picket line of Greelanx's formation. (THG)

Star Winds
this dancing lounge was located aboard the Queen of Empire. (RD)

Star Wing
this was the Basic name used by a Duinuogwuin Star Dragon who encountered a team of Alliance agents in Elrood Sector, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Star Wing's true name was virtually unpronounceable by most humanoid species. Star Wing had been living near the Kuras System, hiding from the Imperial forces which patrolled the sector by staying on the far side of The Drift. He was an explorer, and cared little for the "petty politics" of the galaxy at large. However, he recognized when they impacted his explorations, so he hid behind The Drift. Star Wing tried to cross The Drift, but found he didn't have the stamina to make it. Star Wing was slowly starving to death from lack of oxygen when he encountered the Alliance team, which was searching for the planet Alluuvia and the captured Gray Griffins. The Alliance team rigged up a docking port, and provided Star Wing with several minutes of breathing pure oxygen from their stores. The grateful Star Dragon later helped the Alliance team break through the forces of the Scourge pirates, in order to repay his debt. A blast of superheated gas from his stomach knocked out the Impasse, allowing the Alliance ships to leave safely. (OE)

Star-Tour 7
an Alliance shuttle destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. This is a reference to the passenger shuttle depicted in the StarTours flight simulator rides at DisneyLand and Disney World. (TIE)

Star's Delight
Lai Nootka's Gymsnor-3 freighter, it was captured on Garqi by Prefect Mosh Barris. He hoped to use the contents of the freighter - proton torpedoes and spare X-Wing parts - to lure the local resistance out of hiding. The ship and her cargo were liberated from within Barris' command by Eamon Yzalli, who is better known as Corran Horn, in a daring plan that used Dynba Tesc to pose as Kirtana Loor. (KT, TFE)

Star's Nova
this mercenary army was founded by Qell Tepine, and worked exclusively for the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. The members of Star's Nova were made up of former soldiers of the Imperial Special Missions team and the Alliance's Special Forces organization. Thus, many of their tactics often follow standard military procedures, although the skill level of the team is high enough that one could not simply assume their next actions. After the Battle of Endor, though, the services of Star's Nova were available to the highest bidder. The Star's Nova base was located on the planet Sondarr, which housed the more than 100 members of the organization. (WBC)

Starbreaker 12
this ancient starship was owned and operated by Jori and Gav Daragon. They used it to explore and define new hyperspace routes some 5,000 years before the Battle of Endor. It was a large, strange ship that was constantly in need of repair. After Gav was taken under the wing of Naga Sadow, the Starbreaker 12 was taken by Ssk Kahorr. Unfortunately, Ssk Kahorr was out on a joyride when Naga Sadow's fleet was massing for its battle with the Old Republic. Sadow destroyed the Starbreaker 12, killing Ssk Kahorr and his alien crew. (GAS, FOSE)

StarBurn 4
this Suwantek Systems hyperdrive was known for its reliable performance and minimal maintenance. It was used on the TL-1800 transport. (SS)

Starburst
this Outer Rim band was more mainstream than Red Shift Limit, but didn't have as wide a range. They were disapproved of by the New Order, but stayed away from blatantly political messages in their music. (GG9)

Starburst
this pirate ship was part of the two-ship fleet controlled by Bruce Mercy. The Starburst was crewed by Durquist and Moprh. (TSK)

Starburst Plant
a flower on dark green stalks, with bright yellow petals that seem to twinkle as they open and close. (CPL)

Starbuster Plot
the name given to the Sacorrian Triad's plan to use the Corellian planetary repuslors in concert with the huge hyperspace respulsor found inside Centerpoint Station to destroy a series of stars until the New Republic submitted to their demands. The Triad wanted to control the Corellian System, and went to great lengths to achieve their goals. They set up and/or financed rebellions on all five Corellian worlds, including Thrackan Sal-Solo and the Human League. The Triad managed to destroyed two stars before things started to go wrong. The first was that Thrackan Sal-Solo took credit for the plot, and nearly got his hands on the Drallian respulor. The second was the timely intervention of the Bakuran fleet, coupled with the incredible talents of the Solo children. The fleet defeated the Sacorrian fleet which was trying to defend Centerpoint, while Anakin Solo used his blossoming ability with the Force to fire the Drallian repulsor and deflect the third shot from Centerpoint. Once the Sacorrian fleet was defeated and the weapon controlled, the Triad surrendered. (AS, SC)

StarCave
see ThonBoka (LCS)

Starchaser, Korren
this New Republic Captain was a scout, and was part of the team that stumbled into the Gulch. (SWJ8)

Starcat
this was the first and only light freighter in the Starcat-class of ships. It was designed and custom-built by Salem Victory and Dapp Slous, with help from a group of outlaw techs on Nar Shaddaa. Their goal - achieved with a high level of success - was to create a heavily-armed freighter without sacrificing cargo space. The Starcat was the result, armed with a pair of concussion missile launchers and three turret-mounted double laser cannons, while retaining 65 metric tons of cargo space and the ability to transport the pilot, co-pilot, and up to six passengers. (SWJ13)

Starcat*-class Freighter designed and developed by Salem Victory and Dapp Solus, this class of freighter was created with one goal in mind: a heavily-armed freighter which didn't sacrfiice cargo space for additional protection. The Starcat, the first and only ship in the series, measured 32.8 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of concussion missile launchers and three turret-mounted, double laser cannons. (SWJ13)

Starco, Moploogy
this was one of the humorous names Garik Loran used for Lara Notsil, after she was mistaken for Edallia Monotheer by an old man on Coruscant. (SOC)

Starcrash Brigade
an elite Imperial assault team working for the Emperor prior to the Battle of Endor. They were charged with the detonation of a biological weapon on Firrerre, and the destruction of the Firrerreo race. (CS)

StarCrystal
a Bosph gemstone which is rumored to have mystical properties. (SWAJ)

Stardance
a musical composition played by Miracle Meriko. (TME)

Stardog
the codename of the Alliance team operating on Nar Shaddaa, just before the Galactic Civil War. (TME)

Stardust Plan
the Republic's plan to locate Thrawn's cloaked asteroids. It involved first dispersing dust from a cargo ship's hold into space, then irradiating the dust with negative ions to help track the hidden asteroids. It was found to be too slow to be efficient. (TLC)

Starfarer Diner
a restaurant located on Nar Hekka. (THG)

Starfaring
this Mon Calamari cruiser was supposed lost over the planet Malrev, when a latent bug in its navigational software began randomly tranposing the galactic coordinates it was fed. The ship had been carrying a group of Bothan tourists. Rogue Squadron was dispatched to locate the Starfaring, but discovered that the ship was deliberately sabotaged and forced down on Malrev. (XWRR)

Starfeld
manufacturers of a variety of starships, including the Z-10 Seeker. (SS)

Starfight
a coin game often found in casinos and bars. It consists of two curved banks of monitors and controls surrounding two playing stations. A large holotank is positioned in between, in which a starfield is displayed for each player. The players then use simulated starfighters to combat each other to the death in a deepspace battle. (HSE, HSR)

Starfighter Command
1) a Star Destroyer's crew responsible for the launching of TIE fighters and shuttles (DFR)
2) the branch of the New Republic responsible for maintaining and coordinating the activities of the Navy's starfighters and their pilots. (TLC)

Starfire
this was Kid DXo'ln's small freighter. He hired Han Solo - freshly discharged from the Imperial Navy - and Chewbacca to help him crew the ship. (THG)

Starflare, Wynssa
this was the stage name of the actress Syal Antilles. She was one of Fusion Holodrama's most popular stars. It was rumored that a billion men had their hearts broken when she married Soontir Fel. (HXW, MBF)

Starflash
this series of holovid adventures were among the most popular ever produced in the Larrin Sector. The show was most popular during the last three years of Imperial occupation of the sector, until the Imperial discovered that the episodic show was actually providing coded messages to the Alliance field agents dispersed throughout the sector. The show's star, J'fe Din, and her production took great pains to ensure that the average viewer was unaware of the show's hidden messages. Many believe that the airing of Starflash helped hasten the downfall of the Empire in the sector, bringing its defeat a year or more earlier than expected. The show was followed by Imperial Truth, a form of docudrama which showed viewers the truth behind the Empire's most evil operations. (HR)

Starflower
the flowers of this plant are the favored food of stump lizards. (DK)

Starfly
this was a model of starship designed to highly maneuverable, for use in mining asteroid fields. They have small laser cannons and tractor beams, which they use to move asteroids around. The small ships do not have life-support systems, so pilots must wear environment suits. (GOF9)

Starfly One
this was one of three Starfly ships which rescued Fandomar, Hoole, and Tash and Zak Arranda from a space slug while they were searching for ethromite near Mining Station Alpha. It was piloted by Hodge. (GOF9)

StarForge Nebula
this area of the galaxy is a vast expanse of interstellar gas, and is populated by a wealth of newborn stars. It is located in Ado Sector. (FOP)

StarForge Shipyard
this starship construction and repair facility was maintained as part of StarForge Station, deep in the StarForge Nebula. The Shipyard was first established some thirty-three years before the Battle of Yavin by the parents of Chidee Na Maak. (FOP, PP)

StarForge Station
Han Solo, Chewbacca, and Soontir Fel traveled to this station, in an effort to track down the ship used by Leonia Tavira to transport Leia Organa off Eiattu. It was located on the edge of the StarForge Nebula, just inside Imperial space. It was originally created by Muo Glandish, who turned a small personal base into a sprawling metropolis. The station itself is built on an asteroid, had an average population of some 10,000 beings. It was considered a shadowport by many, and contained the infamous StarForge Shipyards. Its location in the StarForge Nebula provided it with a measure of security, for the interstellar gases of the nebula effectively jammed all outgoing communication. (XWM, FOP, PP)

Starfruit Promenade
located in Revos, on the planet Storinal, it was an extensive roofed patio flanked by flower gardens. It was filled with recliner chairs and the sounds of live music. (WS)

StarHammer
this was the nickname of Subpro's TL-118 attack ship. (IA)

StarHawk
a speeder bike produced by Ikas-Adno, this fast, sleek bike is extremely popular with younger drivers. It is the best-selling, civilian-use speeder bike in the galaxy. It is a two-seated bike, with 3 kilograms of cargo capacity and a maximum flight ceiling of 10 meters. (SWSB)

Starhawk 2b
this early model of the Ikas-Adno speederbike was five meters in length, and revolutionized the speederbike market. Now, it is badly outdated. (GG7)

Starhook Ten
this starship is owned by Shug Ninx. Early in Dark Empire II, it is also referred to as Salvager 3. The Essential Guide to Characters describes it as Starhook VII. It was a modified space truck. (DE2, EGC)

Starhunter Intergalactic Menagerie
a travelling sideshow that operated during the early years of the Empire, it displayed illegally-acquired, rare creatures from across the galacy. It was owned and operated by Captain Stroon and his first mate, Slarm. (DCAR)

Starjacker
Finhead Stonebone's pirate ship, the Starjacker was a Byblos Drive Yards E-2 asteroid miner. Stonebone had replaced the ship's normal engines with Corellia StarDrive microthrusters, allowing him better control of the miner when he attacked another ship. (TOJ, TOJC)

Starjammer IZX
a massive, swift freight hauler built at the Kuat Drive Yards. (TME)

Stark, Jona T.
the Imperial Senior Master Sergeant in charge of training TIE fighter pilots onboard the Vengeance. He is a tall, well-muscled man. (TIE)

Stark Hyperspace Wars
this battle took place some years prior to the Battle of Naboo. During the battle, the forces of the Old Republic were devastated after the death of the Jedi Master who was leading them. The Jedi Plo Koon rose to the occasion, taking up the mantle of the fallen Master and rallying the Republic's troops for an unlikely and miraculous victory. (OSW)

Starkid, Zoltan
this heavy-set, balding man was the Director and Chief Salesman of Millennium Astro-Engineering prior to the Galactic Civil War. He sold the prototype Millennium Falcon to Grand Moff Tarkin, just before it was stolen by Han Solo and Chewbacca. Starkid was later killed when the Alliance raided the Millennium Astro-Engineering plant and destroyed it before it could produce any more starships for the Empire. (CSWDW)

Starkiller, Pashna
one of the New Republic's foremost military advisors, Starkiller was originally recruited into the fledgling Alliance by Bail Organa. (DESB, ROE)

Starknife
this modified Kuat Drive Yards D9 Runner was owned by Black Sun and operated by Kalend Thora. It was armed with a turret-mounter double laser cannons and a proton torpedo launcher. Its previous pilot had been assassinated in an ambush, but Black Sun never discovered the reasons behind the attack. (SSR)

Starlight Bank
a bank on Hologram Fun World robbed by Zorba the Hutt, in an attempt to drive the holographic theme park out of business. (QE)

Starlight by Moonlight
this song was played by the music ball given to Elscol Loro by her husband, Throm, on their third anniversary. (XWRS)

Starlight Cloud
this Sullustan starliner made regular cruise trips during the height of the New Order. It was run by SoroSuub's Entertainment Division during this time. Because of the presence of Iona Wince aboard the ship as a steward, Alliance agents often met aboard the liner in order to pass information and make plans for future missions. (CRO)

Starlight* Freighter
a series of freighter manufactured by Rendilli-Surron, the Starlight series was basically a flying wing. It measured 34 meters in length, and could transport four passengers and up to 50 metric tons of cargo. The cockpit sits at one end of the curved cargo wing, while a blaster cannon is mounted on a turret at the other end. The interior of the ship was quite spartan, with limited living space and no-frills appointments. Despite the limited success of the Starlight freighter, it was the last design produced by the efforts of Rendili and the Surronians. (SS)

Starlight Intruder
Salla Zend's transport ship, the Starlight Intruder was a modified Mobquet medium cargo hauler. She and Shug Ninx built it from parts salvaged from their starship garage on Nar Shaddaa. The Intruder was powered by four military-grade Damorian RX7 ion engines and an old Hutt chariot hyperdrive engine. Added maneuverability was gained by adding four jets to the bottom of the hull. The Intruder is armed with a pair of medium turbolasers mounted on turrets which can be retracted. Four DuR-4 shield generators protect the ship. When Salla took it out on a run, she always made sure Shug got a cut of the profits. She had to abandon it on Byss when she and Shug fled the wrath of the reborn Emperor Palpatine. Unfortunately, the remaining Imperials sold the ship to the Scavs, who removed the good parts and melted the rest down for slag. (DE1, DESB, DE2, EGV)

Starlight Red
this was the name given to the jury-rigged YT-1300 starship Faceted, after Kaj Nedmak took possession of the ship. It was named in honor of Celia Durasha, and served to replace the Tryan Kajme which was destroyed on Ord Mantell. (SWJ14)

Starlight Theater
this amphitheater was located on Phyrstal Island, on the planet Abregado-Rae. (ND)

Starline Cable
this 5-millimeter thick cable is incredibly strong, and is manufactured from synthetic, molecularly-linked fibers. (TA)

Starlin Warrior
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Starliner Street
a street in the city of Coronet which runs perpendicular to Volbrick. Han Solo agrees to meet Belindi Kalenda at the corner of the two streets, just after Thrackan Sal-Solo begins his intra-species war on Corellia. (AC)

Starlite Cloud
this Core Star Lines passenger ship regularly made runs between the worlds of the Core. Platt Okeefe booked passage on this ship when she left her homeworld of Brentaal to become a starship pilot. (SESB, PSG)

Starlite Flats
this area of flat sand was located between the Mos Espa Arena and the Waldo Flats, on the planet Tatooine. (IWE1)

Starloft
one of the four continents discovered on Yavin 4 by Lile Gorsek and the Fernandin Scouting Operation. (GG2)

Starlyte, Talandro
this noted fence and black marketeer was most famous for renting the Gateway Space Station from the Empire. Although he made sure that everyone knew his role in creating the outpost - which he renamed Starlyte Station - he was partly at the mercy of the Imperial liaison officer, Arissa Fawn. In order to gain a measure of freedom, Starlyte funneled part of his profits into bribes for Lieutenant Fawn, ensuring a form of cooperation between them. Among the criminal element of the Outer Rim, Starlyte was known as a fence and con artist, and many believed he also dealt in slaves. He claimed to be a native of Coruscant, and showed a great disdain for Corellians. He spent some time working on Cloud City, where he met Scizzic, and was rumored to have done business with Lando Calrissian. (WSV)

Starlyte Station
this was the name used by Talandro Starlyte for the trading post he created from the old Gateway Space Station. The name was slow to catch on, gaining favor initially with Starlyte's associates. Compared to its days as a military facility, Starlyte Station had deteriorated over the years to a mere shadow of its former appearance. Only essential systems and facilities received any kind of maintenance, and non-essential areas were neglected for months at a time. Much of the original outer plating had been removed for reuse in other parts of the station, giving Starlyte Station a skeletal appearance. The station was armed with five turret-mounted turbolaser batteries. (WSV)

Starmaster
this bulk freighter was stationed in geosynchronous orbit above Ryloth, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Rol'Waran and his people used the ship as a base for their spice operations. (JE)

Starmite*-class Freighter developed by SoroSuub, this small freighter resembled an unstreamlined teardrop. About 20 meters in length, the Starmite-class had a rounded nose, stubby wings, and a thick body that narrowed into a flattened tail section. (THG)

Starpath
a Seinar Fleet Systems astronavigational system used on many later-model Star Destroyers. (IJ)

Starpoint
located on the Mee'r continent of Draenell's Point, this was the planet's only civilian spaceport. (GMK)

Starpoint
this New Republic fleet carrier was the flagship of Commodore Poqua's Task Force Gemstone, during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Starport Complex Q-7 located on Nar Hekka, this starport was independently owned by controlled by Tagta the Hutt during the early years of the New Order. (THG)

Starport Street
this is one of the two primary thoroughfares found in the city of Grig. Like most other streets in the city, it is a densely-traveled street on which the locals pay no heed to the laws of traffic, order, or gravity. It has been said that travelling on Starport Streets is harder than flying backwards through as asteroid field. (TA)

Starport Touchdown
this was the main spaceport on Atraken before the Clone Wars devastated the planet. It has be abandoned, and is empty at present. (PG2)

Starpyre
this aging Imperial served on the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He was worried about the possibility of Whiphid assassins haunting the Council, in the aftermath of Xandel Carivus' execution of Ch'unkk. (CE2)

Starry Ice
one of Talon Kaarde's ships, it was stationed on Myrkr when Grand Admiral Thrawn attacked the smuggler's base there. (HTTE)

Stars and Moons
this valuable piece of flatsculpt artwork was swindled from Imperial Moff Ammar by the Sullustan Cunbus Locb. Locb then hid the artwork in a secret compartment aboard his starship, the Distant Wind. Ammar had Locb hunted down and killed, but could not find the Stars and Moons anywhere aboard the ship. In a twist of fate, Ammar put the ship up for auction to recoup the cost of his hunt for Locb, with the flatscuplt still inside. (SS)

Stars of Elrood
Shondra Del traveled throughout the Elrood Sector in this ship, posing as an independent freighter Captain. (OE)

Stars' End
the Corporate Sector Authority's penal colony located on Mytus VII, at the outskirts of that planet's solar system, and at the edge of Authority space. It is comprised of a number of protective domes dotting the planetoid's surface, which are connected by tubes and covered walkways rather than tunnels. The domes have various functions: living quarters, barracks, weapons emplacements, and a special chamber where the Authority keeps its enemies in suspended animation. At the center of the complex is a tower which houses the colony's offices. When Han Solo infiltrates the colony, he has Blue Max install an overload spiral in its secondary defense program, as a hedge against anything that might go wrong during the rescue attempt. When Hirken discovered them and tried to detain them, Han was able to disable Hirken's belt control, but that caused the station's power to be rerouted, which intensified the overlaod spiral. This led to a massive explosion which, when contained by the station's defensive shields, was directed into the planet and blew the colony's central tower into a pseudo-orbit. It lacked sufficient velocity to escape the planetoid's gravitiational field, though, and it crashed into the station, destroying the tower and much of the colony. Hirken was murdered in the tower by his wife, and the Security Police that were in the tower died on impact, leaving Stars' End a worthless outpost. (HSE)

Starscream-9
this Seinar Fleet Systems ion drive was a military-grade propulsion system originally designed for use on starfighters. This drive was at the leading edge of technology following the Battle of Yavin, and despite its military designation and exhorbitant price, some managed to make their way to the black market. (GG6)

Starshine Surprise
a mixed, alcoholic beverage. It is named for the first you notice after drinking one: the starfield whirling in front of your eyes as you hit the ground. (GG9, TME)

Starship
any craft designed to operate in the vacuum of interstellar space. There are five major classes of starship, based on size and mission:
- Capital Ship large, heavily-armed ships which serve as command bases during military exercises. The mperial-I class Star Destroyer and the Mon Calamari MC80a cruiser are two examples. Most capital ships are named for virtues.
- Close Support Ship large, maneuverable ships whose weaponry allows them to protect the capital hips and perform other military operations. The Nebulon-B Frigate is one example.

- Transport/Supply Ship ships of various sizes, built around speed and capacity, which are used to ransport large amounts of material. The Corellian CR90 Corvette is one example. Most transport ships are named for beasts of burden or rivers.
- Starfighters small, highly maneuverable ships which are the front-line defense attackers. They are built around ne or two pilots, and are well-armed for their size. The TIE Fighter and the X-Wing are two examples.
- Support Ships any ship which has limited military capability, this class includes space tugs, fuel ships, and ontainer pods. (SW, SWSB, XW, WG)

Starshipwright
a person skilled in building and repairing starships. (HSR)

Starshipwrights and Aerospace Engineers Incorporated this manufacturer of custom space cruiser upgrades and starship modifications was one of the original voting sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

StarSlasher
one model of BlasTech blaster carbine. (CSA)

Starslinger
this is a commercial ion drive produced by Incom. Installation and maintenance of the Starslinger was often difficult, facts which were often overlooked in favor of its modest price. (GG6)

Starslinger, Mali
a famous member of the Alliance to Restore the Republic. (RPG)

StarSlot Machines
these games of chance were found in many casinos and gambling halls throughout the galaxy. (WSV)

Starspeeder 3000
a small, 40-person luxury liner. (ST, SOP)

Starspin
1) this YT-1210 was Regec Sloom's battered smuggling ship. (SWJ8)
2) this ancient, Old Republic prowler ship was the first ship to discover Oss Wilum and the disabled courier ship he encountered, a year before Oss Wilum began training as a Jedi Knight. (TOJC)

Starstorm One
Exar Kun's starship. It is a unique ship, with a curved main wing on the left, counterbalanced by three main engines and a long command spar on the right. It was destroyed on Yavin 4, when Kun went in search of the Sith lore, by the Massassi who captured him. (DLS)

Starswan
a passenger ship that made a regular stop on Tatooine. (TME)

Starswarm Cluster
this interstellar phenomenon has been known to damage starship drives and other subsystems. Located near Cinnagar, the cluster was a vast group of stars situated very near each other. (GAS)

Starter
this man was a companion of Platt Okeefe and Dirk Harkness. (SWJ1)

Startide
a Mon Calamari MC90 cruiser being built for the New Republic just prior to the second Battle of Calamari. Ackbar uses the half-built ship and its attached spacedock to ram the Manticore and destroy it as it lay in wait behind Calamari's moon. (DA)

Startled Circuit
this freighter was owned by Vareth and Garron. They purchased it with the money Garron obtained from an insurance claim following the death of his parents. (GG7)

StarTower Residences
this was a residential building located near the Alliance's safehouse at 16AA889 Starfield Road. (HAS)

Startron, Kevas
once a native of Contruum, Kevas was a renowned smuggler during the last years of the Old Republic. As the Empire rose to power, his health began to fail. He took an apprentice, the young woman known as Sapphire, and hoped to end his career with one last run. However, he was physically unable to complete the run in his starship, the New Cov Quasar. Sapphire agreed to help him out, and finished the run successfully. However, she kept her part in the run a secret, giving all the credit to Kevas. He was able to retire, and gave his starship to Sapphire for her part in the run. (CRO)

Starveil
this Alliance cruiser was assigned to a number hit-and-fade operations in Wild Space, during the last years of the New Order. (TTSB)

StarViper
this is the name given to the class of starfighters designed by MandalMotors at the request of Prince Xizor. Xizor contracted MandalMotors to create for him a unique starship, nothing stock or commonplace would do. Xizor wanted a personal transport vessel that would protect him at every turn, and cost was no option. MandalMotors engineers came up with the StarViper, a kind of mobile platform ship that was powerful, maneuverable, and durable. The basic hull of the StarViper is rectangular and squat, with four maneuvering vanes that extend from each front corner. The vanes add incredible handling during combat, but can actually hinder atmospheric flight due to their configuration. They are controlled by an artificial brain that monitors ships systems and constantly adjusts their configuration for optimum performance. The StarViper appears to be alive as it maneuvers through space. It is armed with a pair of forward-firing double-laser cannons and two proton torpedo launchers. The interior of the StarViper has limited cargo space, and is designed to the addition of power converters and other supplemntal systems for Xizor's personal ship, the Virago. (EGV)

Starvision
a night-sighting implement used on the EWHB-10 repeating blaster. (ISB)

Starway
an Alliance transport ship destroyed by the Empire shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Starway Services
located at Taldaak Station on Utharis, this is a starship berthing and repair center. Luke Skywalker and Akanah nearly berthed the Mud Sloth here during their search for the Fallanassi, but the owner tried to swindle them. (TT)

Starweb
this small, disk-shaped freighter was used by Asyr Sei'lar, after she resigned her commission with the New Republic following her "death" at Corvis Minor Five. She returned to the planet Bothawui under a new identity, hoping to bring about societal changes in Bothan culture. The Starweb was loaned to her by Booster Terrik, and she left the ship at Commenor for him to retrieve. (IR)

Starwind
Gil Bastra's starship, it was intercepted by the Expeditious. (XWN)

Starwind Chandlery
this general store and ship outfitter was located on StarForge Station. It provided the basic supplies a small starship would need for space travel. It was run by Labio, along with Wurrooba and Mioe. (FOP)

Starwind*-class Pleasure Yacht
this 50-meter-long personal pleasure starship was built by Kuat Drive Yards. The Starwind-class ship borrowed design cues from the Corellian Engineering Corporation's YT series, as it was originally designed to compete directly with those ships. Later, the Starwind was modified to challenge the Crescent-class luxury cruisers. The ship resembled a flatten ovoid, with a pair of curving arms embracing the central fuselage. It was manned by a crew of 5, with two gunners, and could transport up to ten passengers. It was unarmed in its basic configuration, but could be armed with a pair of quad laser cannons, and had a fairly sophisticated shielding combination. The Starwind's most unique feature was its escape pod, which could be jettisoned while still in hyperspace. The pod would immediately revert back to realspace. Once in realspace, or if released in realspace to begin with, the pod could execute a series of random hyperspace jumps which would bring the pod to the nearest well-traveled route. (LCSB,SS)

Starwing
codename of the Cygnus Spaceworks Xg-1 assault gunboat. (XW)

Static Ion Field Discharger
this outdated weapon was an early form of ion cannon. Instead of emitting a coherence burst of ion energy, the field discharger spouted a blanket of energy at its target. (KO)

Stasis Booth
a device which allows its living contents to be placed in suspended animation until revived. They are often used in penal colonies or detention areas (Stars' End was the first facility to make it work) to keep prisoners in stasis until they can be tried. They were also used by the Corporate Sector Authority to silence its enemies, as well as to preserve viable sources of labor. The technology used in the stasis booth existed about 100 years before the advent of the New Order, but was put to prison use at the recommendation of the Authority's Detention Task Force. Also called a stasis box, they found wide-spread use after the Battle of Endor when the New Republic began reaching out to reclaim planets which had suffered from chemical or biological damage at the hands of the Empire. Survivors were transported to medical facilities in stasis booths certified for full-spectrum biological security. (HSE, CSA, POT)

Stasis Probe
this form of deep-space information-gathering probe is dispatched to its probe sites through hyperspace. Undetectable while in hyperspace, stasis probes drop back into realspace only long enough to gather sensor data, relay it to its control location, and receive its next instructions. Passive sensors are used to minimize the ability of conventional sensors to pick it up, and the probe stays in realspace for less than thirty seconds at a time. The New Republic used stasis probes extensively during the Black Fleet Crisis, gathering data on the Yevetha throughout the Koornacht Cluster. (TT)

Stasis-field generator
(JS)

Stassia
this Core world has been described as "the most boring, stagnant world in the Core." The planet's surface is covered with flat, endless plains, which have been used since the early days of the Old Republic as farmland. The inhabitants of Stassia are passive, and offered no resistance to the encroachment of the Empire. In fact, they took the change of galactic politics as just another day's happenings. They became a model New Order world. The average day on Stassia lasts 22 standard hours, and its years last 340 local days. (SWAJ)

Stassia City
this is the capital city of the planet Stassia, and is famous for its swoop races and ringer tournaments. (SWAJ)

Static
this song, written and played by the band Starburst, first appeared on the compilation StakeOut. (GG9)

Static Hyperspace Bubble Generator
a device, developed by the Bakurans, which surrounds a ship in realspace with a hyperspace bubble. This bubble doesn't provide any thrust, so the ship cannot move at hyper-speeds. (AS)

Station 3
this refueling outpost was located between Terman Station and Sriluur, along the Sisar Run. It was destroyed in the gang wars between the Disac and Ghilron pirate groups, and was left as a "mynock-infested wasteland." (SSR)

Statuary Park
located on the grounds of the Bakur Complex, in Salis D'aar on Bakura, this vast area of land was filled with statues depicting people and events from Bakura's history. Mingled with the statues were namans trees and well-manicured shrubbery, giving the park an unusually remote feeling depsite its location in the center of the city. It was circular in shape, and covered roughly the same surface area as the Bakur Memorial Building. (TB, TBSB)

Stava
a carnivorous creature known to the Noghri, they were tenacious hunters that could become wild-tempered scavengers in famine times. (DFR)

Stavro
this was the codename of a squadron of Razor fighters which were assigned to protect the Viraxo base at Denbo. (XWA)

Stavveld, Irnst
this retired Imperial Admiral was brought out of retirement to serve as the Moff of Ado Sector shortly before the Battle of Yavin. Among this priority directives was the location and shutdown of StarForge Station. (FOP)

Steadfast
1) this New Republic fleet hauler - known as a junker - was the first ship to discover the remains of the Star Destroyer Gnisnal. It also served clean-up duty after the Battle of Endor, the seige of Grand Admiral Thrawn, and pursued the Knight Hammer. (BTS)
2) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was captained by Commander Vivant, and was dispatched by Carnor Jax to Phaeda. There, with the help of the Emperor's Revenge, the ships pummeled Collo Fauale, on the planet Phaeda, in an effort to destroy Mirith Sinn's forces and to eliminate Kir Kanos. (CE)
3) this was the name of Drake Paulsen's personal ship. (SWJ12)

Stec Eddis
a member of Klyn Shanga's Renatasian vigilantes hunting down Vuffi Raa. (LCF)

Stecker
an Imperial Sergeant suspected of sympathizing with the Alliance. He was sacrificed, along with Captain Ganig, by Commodore Bevven and Colonel Drost, at the insistance of Mar Barezz. (ISB)

Steef
this Gamorrean was loyal to Orman, but was extremely lazy. Although he would gladly work for Orman, he was prone to find the easy way out of a tought fight. (ML)

Steelcrete
a superhard, metallic concrete building material (SW, HTTE, JS)

Steelfab
a reinforced form of steel, steelfab was manufactured to have high tensile strengths, and was used to create restraints for hospital beds and prison facilities. (BP)

Steelhide
this material was used to make blaster holsters. (SOP)

Steelious
this planet was the site of a major transfer location for Alliance supplies during the Galactic Civil War. War materiel passed through Hervack Starport, destined for a number of Alliance cells in the sector. (GMS)

Steelstone
a building material. (DA)

Steelton
manufacturers of the massive control cables used to connect a pod racer's pod to its turbine engines. Steelton cables also relay data between the pod and the engines, such as acceleration and directional data. (TPM)

Steen, Joh
this man worked for Red Star Shipping as a transport Captain, and was in command of transport A-175 when it was ambushed by the Far Orbit. Steen believed Dhas Vedij was an Imperial Captain, and surrendered his cargo to the Far Orbit. (FOP)

Steeze, Cortle
one of many aliases used by Zsinj, Steeze owned a huge plot of land in Viamarr 4. Zsinj was using these aliases and the property they owned to hide manufacturing facilities which supported his war machine. (WS)

Stelaciter
this Iskalloni frigate resembled an 83-meter long asteroid. It was crewed by 39 Iskalloni, and could transport up to 15 passengers. Armed with pair of double laser cannons and a single heavy laser cannon, the ship was designed to allow the Iskalloni to enter normal space as a stray asteroid. Once the ship was detected, it could open fire on the ships which arrived to move it out of planetary space. The Iskalloni would then drop to the planet's surface via similarly-designed dropships. (TSK)

Stele, Kerek
a native of Kuan, and a gifted scientist. He was kidnapped by Bordali agents and tortured, in an effort to get him to divulge his scientific knowledge. When normal methods failed to work, the Bordali decided to kidnap his wife and son, and use their lives to force him to reveal his secrets. However, before they could successfully catch them, the Empire invaded the Taroon System and took them all hostage, (TIE)

only son of Kerek and Marina Stele, Maarek grew up like most young boys on backwater planets, racing swoops at breakneck speeds in his spare time. After the abduction of his father, Maarek and his mother hid in one of the planet's lesser-known cities, until a swoop stunt provided Maarek's name to the Bordali. They sent Gwadj to kidnap Maarek and Marina, but the Empire chose that very moment to invade the Taroon System. Maarek was taken away and conscripted as a repair technician.
After a few months, Maarek was sufficiently knowledgeable about TIE fighters that he was allowed to take them for test runs after finishing repairs. On one such flight, near Farboon, he was the only fighter launched when Admiral Mordon's shuttle was intercepted by Alliance starfighters. Maarek came to his rescue, and was given a chance to become an Imperial pilot. He jumped at the chance, and went on to become one of the Empire's most fearsome TIE pilots. (TIE)

Stele, Marina
Kerek Stele's wife, and Maarek's mother. (TIE)

Stellar Informant
this newsfeed was known for its tabloid-style reporting. (HR)

Stellar Mermaid
this ZD-8000 luxury starliner was known for its comfort, as well as the matching prices. Sarn Nightbringer tried to auction off a prototype set of Imperial body armor on this ship, in an attempt to raise money for her criminal organization. At the time, it was commanded by Captain Glaucus. (POC)

Stellar Princess
this starliner used to make the trip between Nar Shaddaa and Nar Hekka on a regular basis. The ancient ship had a navigational computer which couldn't handle the gravity wells produced by the Y'Toub System, and was forced to make the trip as sublight speeds. (THG)

Stellar Sentinel
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Stellar Web
this Interdictor-class warship was part of the fleet commanded by Imperial Captain Barr Moutil, in the service of Admiral Rogriss, during the early years of the New Republic. Rogriss volunteered the use of the ship to Han Solo and the New Republic fleet hunting Warlord Zsinj, since both men were working toward the same goal. They hoped that Zsinj would be surprised enough at the sight of an Imperial ship working with Solo - let alone an Interdictor cruiser - that they would be able to trap him at Vahaba and destroy him. The plan nearly succeeded, but Zsinj inflicted a great deal of damage to the Stellar Web, forcing it out of the battle enough to escape. (SOC)

Steller Mag V
a mining vessel manufactured by Arakyd, this huge ship measured 542 meters in length and was manned by a crew of 3 assisted by 19 droids and a gunner. The Mag V had no hyperdrive capabilities, as it was designed to be a deep-space mine repair and supply vessel. It was armed with a single turbolaser battery. (SN)

StelProbe V Droid
this planetary exploration was developed during the Galactic Civil War, and was equipped with a wide array sensory devices and computer systems. It resembles a large crustacean, and stands about a meter tall. (GMS)

Steltout
this was one of the larger continents found on the planet Essowyn. (PG1)

Stend VI
this Outer Rim planet was considered one of the dullest planets in the galaxy, having virtually nothing remarkable about it. This inherent bordeom gave rise to some of the galaxy's most notorious swoop gangs, incldluing the Skulls (until they relocated to the Hook Nebula.) The average day on Stend VI lasted about 23 standard hours, and its year encompassed 230 local days. (GG9, WSV)

Stendaff
this is one of the Sacheen-class escort ships that remained in Pakkpekatt's reduced fleet at Gmir Askilon, after the Teljkon vagabond had jumped into hyperspace. The New Republic had ordered the rest of the fleet to rejoin their battle groups or report to drydock for repairs. (SOL)

Stennaros
this planet was the homeworld of the Stennes and the Stennes Shifter species. It was continually sought out by other species and attacked from space, in an effort to destroy the Stennes Shifters. (SWJ12)

Stennes
this is a race of near-human beings native to the planet Stennaros. Many believe that the race of Stennes Shifters was a genetic descendant of the Stennes. (SWJ12)

Stennes Shifter
this race of near-humans has the ability to blend into any crowd. They resemble short, pale-skinned humans with sunken eye sockets and no hair. Scientists believe that the Stennes Shifter is a genetic variant of the Stennes race, which first appeared some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. They were discovered by the ancient Jedi Knights, for the Stennes Shifters had a strange kind of Force sensitivity which allowed them to obtain energy from the living Force. The Shifters can even "steal" the living energy from a nearby being, earning them the nickname Force-eaters. Unlike other species which can change their appearance, the Stennes Shifters are the only species who truly used their abilities to the disadvantage of other races. They are xenophobic in nature, partly because of their own inborn prejudices and partly from millennia of persecution by other races. Their homeworld of Stennaros has been bombarded several times since their appearance, in efforts to wipe them out. Unlike other species which can alter their physical appearance, the Stennes Shifters use telepathic manipulation to chage their shape. (CCG, SWJ12)

Stenness Hyperspace Terminal
this was the name of the vast space station which was created near the hyperspace jump gate in the Stenness Systems, some 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. It was also known as the Stenness Node. (TOJC)

Stenness Lizard Pie
an awful-tasting meal served at the Stenness spaceport. (TOJ)

Stenness Node
see Stenness Hyperspace Terminal. (TOJC)

Stenness Raider
one of Finhead Stonebone's E-2 ore stealers. (EGV)

Stenness system
a system of 7 mining worlds in three primary star systems, encompassing about 25 humanoid races. Due to the demand for the ores mined on the various planets, it was given its own hyperspace jump gate very early on. According to DE1, they were discovered about 4000 PE. However, TOJ has it as an already-established system, with its own hyperspace jump gate. The mines have long since given out, but the wealth they provided is still generating interest and good lifestyles for the planets' inhabitants. The system's inhabitants, often refered to as 'Nessies, are highly addicted to spice. (TOJ, DE1)

Stent
this Chiss served as Voss Parck's righthand man at the Hand of Thrawn compound on Nirauan. He was also the leader of Thrawn's personal household phalanx, and was one of the few Chiss who felt that Thrawn was a born leader who was working in his race's best interests, and shouldn't have been exiled. He heeded Thrawn's message, to wait ten years after the report of his death before he would return to lead them to power once again. (VOF)

Steri
this was the plural form of the Adnerem word steris. (AE)

Sterika
this was a form of close friendship established between two Adnerem. It was a platonic relationship, but one in which both partners regarded themselves as a single entity. (AE)

Steris
this was the basic socio-economic family unit of the Adnerem race. (AE)

Stern
a Cilpari deity. (XWRS)

Stevez, Mart
this man was a decorated member of the Atrisian Royal Corps before the Empire destroyed his family while he was on a training mission. The Imperial Ubiqtorate claimed that Stevez' father had become :politically unstable," and needed to be removed. Since that time, he defected to the Alliance and became a respected member of the Special Forces team. He was eventually promoted to Major and given command of Task Force Shen, where he led them in a wide range of successful missions. (ROE)

Steward
this was the title given to those Galidyn who ruled the eight cities they established on Fyodos. (AE)

Stic
this planet, which is home to the Xi'Dec species of insectoids, has a constantly-changing climate due to its orbit and axial tilt. It is also wracked by geological reformation quite often. The specialized Xi'Dec are supported by a limited technology, but the tourist trade to the planet is healthy. (GG4)

Stick-strip
this is a form of adhesive which comes in wide rolls. It was used primarily by athletes who rode hoverboards or skimboards, in order to keep their feet firmly attached to the board. (GOF1)

Sticks
Jaina Solo was given this nickname after she joined Rogue Squadron during the evacuation of Dubrillion. It referred to two things: her lightsaber, and the control stick which used to pilot her X-Wing. (DTO)

Stictex
this is the Xi'Dec term for the Xi'Alpha sex. (GG4)

Stieg
this planet was the homeworld of the Stieg-Fan race. (FFT)

Stieg-Fan
this peaceful race of beings was native to the planet Stieg. (FFT)

Stiels, Brin
this man was a Lieutenant in the New Republic armed forces, and was stationed on Cadinth two years after the Battle of Endor. He was on lookout patrol when Imperial forces invaded the planet, and his outpost was overrun. (SWG)

Stigrit Krax
this Troob was the wife of the Troob leader, General Krax, and accompanied him to the negotiations with Counselor Harthan. She served as a somewhat-impartial translator for Harthan, since Chief Nimondro refused to speak Basic. When C-3PO intervened to translate, Stigrit managed to win the droid away from Harthan in a sabacc match. She hoped to keep the droid from undermining her own plans for the negotiations, chiefly gaining a position of power for the Troobs. In the confusion that followed, Jake Harthan tried to gain control of Mount Yeroc for himself, and held Stigrit Krax as a hostage. The Hobors managed to kill Jake, but not before he injured Stigrit with a blaster bolt. She survived, and agreed to work with her husband to hammer out a true peace for the Troobs and Hobors. (DRPC)

Stiilran
the twenty-seventh and highest of the Tunroth Hunter ranks, it is believed that no Hunters of this rank have ever existed. (GG12)

Stijhl, Arik
this man served the Alliance as a Colonel in the Special Operations division, and was the commanding officer of the Alliance's drop point at Gelgelar Free Port during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He was a veteran of the military of the Old Republic, but never saw any action. Instead, he proed himself adept at getting supplies to troops quickly and efficiently. He declined the opportunity to remain in the Imperial military, retiring from active duty until he began to realize what Emperor Palpatine was doing to the galaxy. Despite his skills in supply and ordnance, he couldn't adjust to the impromptu actions of T'Charek Haathi, who was also stationed on Gelgelar. His feelings toward her bordered on hatred, and only got worse when a Doom Slayer droid exploded in his warehouse, after it had been disabled while attacking Haathi's crew. He ordered her to replace the supplies which were lost. (SWJ14)

Stikmoss
a gray-colored lichen which grows in large, platter-shaped clumps. (SE)

Stilepig
a procine creature. (SE)

Stiletto Security Droid
developed for the Empire by Arakyd during the early years of the New Order, this tall, cylindrical droid was designed to guard remote outposts. It contained a unique biorecognition package that could identify the biomagnetic signature of virtually any race or species. Data was provided to the Stiletto droid from interrogation sessions, and had to be hardcoded into the droid's computer memory ROM. The Stiletto series was equipped with a small repulsorlift propulsion system, and was armed with a pair of blaster cannons. These systems allowed the Stiletto to use its tracking routines to hunt down an escaped prisoner or specific target. The tracking and targetting routines of the Stiletto were quite accurate, and escapees had to rely on luck to get away. (TBSB)

Stillman, Mayr
this Imperial officer supervised the medical facility at the garrison on Bakura, during the last years of the New Order. It was discovered that Stillman planted a subspace transmitter aboard the Wayfaring Stranger, allowing an Imperial patrol ship to know its hyperspace vector and destination. Stillman had been trying to capture Denno Yanglan, whom he believed to be a defector from Imperial service. Despite the successful ambush of the Wayfaring Stranger, Stillman was captured onboard by a team of Alliance agents who had finished their tour of duty on Bakura, and Yanglan returned to his home on Cridark II. (TBSB)

Stiltwalker
this unusual amphibian was found on swampy planets throughout the galaxy. Its body shape resembled a large hand which walked on its fingers, and measured about fifteen centimeters in height. Each of the stiltwalkers legs were tipped with a sharp claw, which is used to grip the ground. It used a sticky tongue to grab hold of the small insects is fed on. Xenobiologists believe that male and female stiltwalkers evolved from unique species, since the females breathe water and have thick tentacles instead of legs. However, analysis revealed that all stiltwalkers evolved from the same genetic source. They communicate via high-pitched chirps, which allow males to sound an alarm whenever the females of their group were threatened. (COG)

Stim shot
a pneumatic dispensor which administers a stimulant, these are found in all medkits. (ESBR)

Stim Tea
a strong, steeped beverage that has the side effect of raising a person's alertness, much like coffeine. (DS)

Stimner
one of the Habeen cargo ferry groups used to transport hyperdrives to Admiral Zaarin on the Shamus. (TIE)

Stimpills
drugs that stimulate the body and keep the user awake (HTTE)

Stimsenj'kat
a Mon Calamari star cruiser used by the Alliance to recover the contents of the Xi cargo ships. This is a reference to Stimpson J. Cat, one of the protagonists in Nickelodeon's Ren & Stimpy cartoon. (XW)

Stimufrost
this frozen concoction must be carefully consumed, for it is served at intensely cold temperatures. If spilled, it can cause serious damage to unprotected skin. (CSWEA)

Stingbeam
a small, five-charge gun which can be easily concealed. Lando Calrissian used one during his early gambling days. (LCM)

Stingbrush
a dangerous plant native to the deserts of Kamar. (HSR)

Stinger
an ancient, swift-attack starfighter. (DLS)

Stinger
Guri's modified Surronian Conqueror starship, the Stinger's sleek shape was famous throughout the galaxy. It was formerly owned by Prince Xizor himself, and then entrusted to Guri after he purchased her. She needed a ship that proved her position in Xizor's organization, and this was it. Stinger was modified to have increased power output, allowing it to achieve speeds up to 1,150 kilometers an hour in atmosphere. Maneuverability was enhanced by giving the pilot control of each of its eight exhaust nozzles. Emergency braking jets added the ability to stop quickly, allowing pursuit to speed ahead and into target range. An H2-1 hyperdrive system gives it long-range punch. Weaponry consists of two forward-mounted ion cannons and a top-mounted laser cannon. (SE, EGV) this Quasar Fire-class cruiser was part of Warlord Zsinj's fleet. It was used mainly for transporting TIE Fighters into battle. (SOC)

Stinger Eel
a dangerous eel-like fish found on Clak'Dor VII. (TCC)

Stinger Fish
this was a species of jellyfish-like creature native to the shallow seas of Sedri. (BGS)

Stinger Lizard
a rare, green and red reptile found on the moon Yavin 4. (L)

Stinger Moth
this species of venomous moth was native to Ronika. (FOSE)

Stingfly
an annoying insect that is characterized by the way is buzzes around other creatures. (SOP)

Stingworm
a nocturnal, carnivorous creature native to Kamar. They are also a source of food for the Kamarians. (HSR)

Stink
this was the term used to describe the pheromone-rich sweat created by a dead slashrat. (DTO)

Stink Fish
native to the seas of Ruan, this fish had little value as a foodstuff. Instead, the Salliche Agricultural Corporation harvested them and ground them up for use as a fertilizer additive. (JE)

Stink-fly
this was a creature which lived by eating garbage. (HT)

Stinkfish
this sea creature is native to the planet Sedri. When aroused or angered, the stinkfish can eject a cloud of poisonous gas. (BGS)

Stinna Draesinge Sha
a teacher at the Magrody Institute, sha was taught by Nasdra Magrody himself. She became an expert in the field of droid programming, teaching at the Institute until she retired. Her research led her to the wreckage of the Ssi-ruuk battle droids and entechment equipment, and she worked with the machinery in an effort to discover how the aliens wre able to capture a person's life energy. She had not been able to duplicate the entechment techniques when she retired. Her retirment was short-lived, for she was assassinated, presumably by Phlygas Grynne, just before Han and Leia Solo went to Ithor to attend a herd meet. (COJ)

Stintaril
a tree-dwelling rodent native to Yavin 4, it has protruding eyes and long jaws filled with sharp teeth. The stintaril moves on six legs. They often move in packs, devouring everything in their paths. Among the favorite food of the stintaril is the woolamander. (GG2, HTF, ISU)

Stipling
this Imperial Major worked for the Procurement Bureau during the height of the New Order. He was placed in command of a detail searching for doonium and other raw materials for the Imperial war machine. Stipling and his crew never got a chance to report back from their mission to Yen-2, however, as Bel Att and Limna Yith were also dispatched to restore Black Sun's control of the colony. Bel Att captured Stipling and his team and locked them in their shuttle. The hitmen then launched the shuttle into the Verde Asteroid Field on an autopilot setting which took it straight through the belt. The shuttle was destroyed in the asteroids, killing all aboard. (SSR)

Stock Light Freighter
any small cargo ship, such as the Corellian YT-1300. Their small size has relegated them to lesser duty, since the advent of the larger bulk cruisers. (SW, WEG)

Stofo Lupinoid
an alien Luke Skywalker finds in the Mos Eisley cantina. Might this be a reference to the Shistavenan Wolfman? (SWR)

Stohl
this creature’s fur is considered valuable, and only royalty and high-ranking officials can afford to use it in their clothing. (POT)

Stokhli Sticks
short tubes that shoot a spraynet mist to ensnare the prey while also shooting shockstun juice at the prey, they are used primarily by big-game hunters. The Noghri Commandos working for the Empire have also adopted them for capturing their targets. Each of the sticks has a thumb-switch for activation, as well as controls to modify the spray pressure and profile. (HTTE)

Stone Eel
an eel-like creature, found on the planet Storthus, that is made of animated stone. (DRO)

Stone Heart
this YT-1300 freighter made regular runs in Elrood Sector during the height of the New Order. It was captured by Imperial customs patrols when it was disocvered that her captain had made illegal weapons upgrades without obtaining the proper permits. (OE)

Stone Needle
located at one end of Beggar's Canyon on Tatooine, the Stone Needle is a natural rock formation that rises out of one fork in the canyon. It makes that particular fork nearly impassable, although the local youth feel that, when racing through the canyon, bypassing the Needle adds up to 5 seconds to your race time. The only two pilots ever to "thread the Needle" were Biggs Darklighter and Luke Skywalker. (SWR)

Stone-dwellers
this was the term used to describe those wealthy individuals who lived in The Stones section of the city of Iritsa, on Chazwa. (ND)

Stonebat
a flying creature native to Yavin 4. (BTS)

Stonehill Industries
makers of asteroid ships (HTTE)

Stones, The
this section of the city of Iritsa, on Chazwa, was the home to the wealthier inhabitants of the city. Its buildings were permanent, windowless structures of gray and red stone, and were in sharp contrast to the ramshackle construction of The Clog. (ND)

Stoneshell
a mollusk native to the lakes of Dellalt. (HSL)

Stonesinger
the immature form of the Vaathkree, Stonesingers resemble large pebbles. They are often mistaken for stones by off-worlders, so Stonesinger colonies are often guarded by mature Vaathkree. Each Stonesinger takes twenty years to mature, and each Stonesinger must choose their permanent form before aging. The Stonesinger then concentrates on the final form and continues to grow until it can no longer manipulate its shape. (TTSB)

Stonia
this is the capital city of the planet Almania, and was a Je'Har stronghold and the seat of their government. Wondrous buildings filled the city, but all were destroyed when Dolph launched his initial attack. His droids, with their hidden detonators, exploded within many of the Je'Har buildings, laying waste to many structures and killing all but the leaders of the city. (TNR)

Stonn, Li
Luke Skywalker used this alias during his travels with Akanah and their search for the Fallanassi. (SOL)

Stopa, Kroddok
this Obroan Institute scientist and explorer was named the expedition chief when the New Republic required information on the planet Brath Qella. Stopa had been working with Josala Krenn on Babali when the orders came through, and they were brought to Brath Qella by the ferret ship IX-26. They lacked decent cold-weather exploration gear, and requested a backup be sent. They then set to work trying to uncover possible evidence of a Qella settlement beneath the glaciers covering the planet, but were killed when their camp was destroyed in an avalanche. Their bodies were recovered by the crew of the Penga Rift. (SOL)

Stopa-Krenn Glacier
located on the planet Brath Qella - also known as Maltha Obex - this huge ice flow was the site of an avalanche that killed Kroddok Stopa and Josala Krenn. They had arrived on the planet to search out evidence of the Qella civilization, but were buried under ice and snow in the avalanche. The glacier was renamed in their honor by the Alpha Team from the Obroan Institute. (TT)

Storinal
this beautiful world was loyal to the Empire, even in the wake of the Battle of Endor. The natives believed that they were put on the planet to make it beautiful, and worked tirelessly to sculpt and shape the landscape into wondrous gardens and forests. The planet's landscaping and natural beauty made it a tourist attraction. (WS)

Storini Crystal Deceiver
this creature was dreamed up by Garik Loran and Kell Tainer, in an effort to get back at Eurrsk Thri'ag for his many pranks and practical jokes. Kell doctored up an encyclopedia entry for the Storini Glass Prowler, then let a prowler loose in Eurrsk's rooms. According to Kell's entry, the deceiver is virtually identical to the Storini Glass Prowler, except that it is far less common and far more dangerous. Found on the planet Storinal, the crystal deceiver's jaws secrete a poison that is quite dangerous to mammalian creatures. Its favorite prey are the creatures which eat the glass prowler, so the crystal deceiver mimics the prowlers actions in order to lure the hunters to it. As the hunters try to eat what they believe is a prowler, the deceiver attacks with its poisonous jaws. Crystal deceivers are extermely dangerous to mammals, because once a deceiver has the scent of a mammal, it retains it virtually forever, and continues to track the mammal down and hunt it. Large, healthy mammals such as humans often don't feel the effects of the deceiver's poison. (WS)

Storini Glass Prowler
this crystalline arthropod walked on two legs, and used its other two legs to grasp its prey. It is native to the planet Storinal, and is harmless to most creatures. Males of the species are extremely competitive, and will fight to the death over just about anything. (WS, SOC)

Storm
this mercenary ATR-6 transport was owned a mercenary group which tried to bring down Twin Suns Transport Services and the Azzameen family. (XWA)

Storm IV
one of Bespin Motor's cloud cars, the Storm IV is a twin-pod car with handling and propulsion characteristics similar to a B-Wing fighter. They are driven by a Quadex Kyromaster ion engine, modified to fit between the small pods. Each pod can hold a single passenger. The Storm IV can reach a maximum cruising speed of 1,500 kilometers per hours, with a flight ceiling of 250 kilometers. They are also armed with two fire-linked blaster cannons. (SWSB)

Storm
Isolder's custom-modified Miy'til fighter, designed by Isolder himself. The creation of Storm cost Isolder nearly a half-million credits, but the ship can stand alone against some of the galaxy's best starfighters. Many of Isolder's designs later found their ways into future versions of the Miy'til fighter. Like the Miy'til basic design, the seven-meter-long ship has a number of miniaturized components that reduce weight and overall size. Storm was also equipped with a prototype R2-Series 5 astromech droid presented to him by Princess Leia Organa during her initial negotiations with the Hapans. Storm has four banks of Nordoxicon 38 anticoncussion-field generators, and a sensor and communications scrambler similar to the A-Wing. A set of triple-linked laser cannons sits at the nose of the fighter, and an ion cannon studs the tip of each wing. A mini-concussion missile launcher is slung beneath the wing, and twin thermal-detonator bombing tubes on the wings carry eight bombs each. The ship is propelled by four Incom 6X4 fusial thrust engines connected to a Tykannin Class-4 power converter. Each engine is linked to a large Cygnus turbo generator, and the entire engine package allows the Storm to reach speeds one-third faster than the A-Wing. (CPL, EGV)

Storm Commandos
this was a group of Imperial soldiers trained and speciallizing in guerilla warfare. They were generally referred to as Shadowtroopers, and were initially trained by Crix Madine. Despite the fact that Madine himself defected to the Alliance, the Empire maintained the Storm Commandos because of the niche they filled in the overall Imperial war machine. (GG9, ROE)

Storm Guard
this was the primary weather watch operated on Cloud City. It is located in Kerros' Tower. (GG2)

Storm Killer
this heavily-armed YT-1300 freighter has been extensively modified beyond its stock condition. The cockpit has been moved from the right side and nestled in between the forward mandibles. The lower gun is a turret-mounted Tomral heavy laser cannon, while the upper gun is an Incom W-34t turbolaser. This impressive weaponry is supported by a Hi-fex proton torpedo launcher and a pair of restractable Taim & Bak Kd-3 light blaster cannons. It is a well-armed transport ship, with enhanced shields and lateral controls for in-flight combat. The weapons draw power from the ion drives, and the additional capacitors and machinery required for them takes up much of the passenger space on the vessel. The Storm Killer is therefore only useful for transporting very valuable cargoes. (SWJ9)

Storm Skimmer
manufactured by Uulshos, the Storm Skimmer patrol sled was an old repulsorlift scout craft used during the early years of the Empire. They were mothballed when the various speederbikes were developed, but were returned to service following the Battle of Endor. Each 4.6-meter sled is designed to be a fast transport craft for one or two stormtroopers. One trooper sat in front, the other in back, and could quickly arrive at the front lines of a battle. Each trooper operated a heavy repeating blaster mounted near his cockpit. It was never designed to be a full-combat vehicle, but rather a deterrent. (DE1, DESB)

Storm Squadron
this was a division of the Alliance's Special Forces group known as Eclipse Team. (AIR)

Storm Unit
1) a group of Imperial commandos intercepted by Keyan Farlander near Turkana. (XW)
2) this team of Alliance soldiers was the primary part of a strike force which rescued a group of Echo Base prisoners from Imperial captivity, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Storm Unit
the Imperial assault transports used by the Storm Unit commandos at Zaarin's beam-weapon research station. (TIE)

Stormcaller, Andrephan
this native of Entralla was a member of the Delephran militia, and participated in the destruction of the pirate groups in the Vexta Belt. Stormcaller and Airen Cracken were generally credited with the formation of the Alliance's Special Forces division, and Stormcaller was instrumental in the development of the Infiltrator units. He later served as a colonel in the New Republic and was the leader of the Red Alpha unit, until the Republic declined to assist his homeworld liberate itself from the Pentastar Alignment. He resigned his military position and formed the Red Moons, an elite mercenary group which constantly thwarted the Alignment's movements. He recruited many of his former Republic soldiers to join the Red Moons, and they quickly formed a force that began to harass the Alignment. (SWJ8, TFE, AIR)

Stormclaw
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was attacked by pirates near Jjannex II. Dren Jamer discovered the location of the pirate ship just before it attacked, allowing the commander to prepare for the attack and drive the pirates off. (TBSB)

Stormhawk
an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer, the Stormhawk was part of Grand Admiral Thrawn's fleet. (HTTE)

Stormtrooper
these white-armored Imperial troopers were the footsoldiers of the Emperor's war machine. They are extremely loyal to the Empire, but are also extremely expendable. Although there are many rumors about stormtroopers being clones, in general the average stormtrooper is a normal human male who fits within a certain physical and mental profile. They wear an 18-piece suit of white armor covering a two-piece, temperature-control body suit. The armor houses an energy source and various implements, and snaps together around the trooper. The helmet contains a polarized visor and communication gear. The image of the white-clad soldiers was one of the primary ways the Empire instilled fear in its subjects, but the bright white armor was not suited for many environments, as the Empire learned at the Battle of Endor. So, in the years following the death of the Emperor, Imperial factions began camouflaging their armor to blend in with their surroundings. Stormtroopers train for one of a number of different mission profiles, based on the environment in which they will operate. Basic training allows stormtroopers to operate in temperate or controlled interior environments. Cold Assault Troops wear specially-modified armor so that they can operate in harsh, frozen environments. Zero-G Troops wear highly-refitted, vacuum-resistant armor for use in deep space. Scout troops are assigned to garrison posts, employing speeder bikes and other swift craft to patrol surrounding areas. Aquatic Assault troopers are equipped to operate in marine or other underwater arenas, while Desert Assault troopers were trained to do battle in the harsh conditions of a desert. Radtroopers were specially-trained to perform operations in areas with high concentrations of radioactivity, and the Shadowtroopers of the Storm Command were among the most elite special forces troops in the Imperial military. (SW, SWSB, ISB, TSC, TME, COTF, BW, ROE)

Stormtrooper One
SoroSuub's basic blaster rifle model, it is used by the Empire to arm its stormtroopers. It was a clone of the BlasTech E-11. (RPG, CSA)

Stormtrooper Two
this was SoroSuub's second-generation blaster rifle, designed for use by Imperial stormtroopers. (GG9)

Stormwind
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was under the command of Captain Jarroth during the Galactic Civil War. It was stationed in the Virgillian System, and performed a number of surgical strikes aimed at routing suspected Alliance support cells. (TBSB)

Storrd Township
this was one of the larger settlements established on the planet Seregar. It grew steadily while the planet was a thriving mining location, but began to run down as the major corporations pulled out. (ND)

Storthus
this planet is the homeworld of the giant stone eels. (DRO)

Story Platform
a table-like device which displays the words and pictures for a number of children's stories. (DA)

Storyteller
this was the pseudonym adopted by Rivo Xarran during the time he hid from Boba Fett on the planet Ladarra. He was loved by the children of New Hope Settlement because he constantly told them stories about the greater galaxy. (TFNR)

Stouker Concussion Rifle
a weapon that shoots compressed bullets of ionized air. They are created by hand by the Sissk band of Trandoshans, from standard Stouker concussion chambers added to existing rifle parts. (DF)

Stovax
this planet was on the list of candidates for exploration by the Obroan Institute, and was nominated by Kroddok Stopa. However, Stopa could generate enough interest, grants or funding to launch an expedition. (SOL)

Stowaway, The
an underground casino in Imperial City on Coruscant. (CPL)

Strabin Sector
this area of the galaxy was terrorized by the Exelis Hunters gang, until the Ubese bounty hunter Arcuse captured them. (AIR)

Strak Tower
located in Corint City's Overtown district, on the planet Pirik, Strak Tower was the center of the planet's governmental administration. (SWJ10)

Straken
this man was a member of the Alliance, and held the rank of Commander within the Intelligence division. (DOE)

Strange, Jan
this woman was one of Imperial Intelligence's most valuable agents, although no one was ever sure where she had come from. She didn't graduate from the Imperial Academy, nor was she ever involved with COMPNOR. Nevertheless, she proved herself to be an excellent agent who could interrogate any being and discover the location of rebellious cells. In reality, though, Strange was actually an Alliance undercover agent who never wore an Alliance uniform but has been honored with the Nebula Award at least once. She uses her interrogations as a way to pass information to the Alliance, having arranged for the rebel to be captured and brought to her. (CRO)

Stranger Squadron
one of the TIE Defender squadrons dispatched by Colonel Vessery to recover Rogue Squadron above Corvis Minor Five. (IR)

Strathmore, Eriann
a model Imperial citizen during the New Order, Lady Strathmore despised the weak and the non-human. She was also somewhat addicted to gambling, and spent a good deal of her life trying to get into the Sabre Club. (WSV)

Stratis Games
this collection of quasi-athletic events was regularly held on Hallrin IV. It included the Multi-Sentient Unarmed Combat Rounds, a regulated form of inter-species combat. (TTSB)

Stratos
this was one of the original cloud cars produced by Incom Industries, based on the repulsorlift technologies discovered during the construction of Cloud City. (GG2)

Stratosphere
one of the most affordable hotels on Cloud City. (ISU)

Streeg, Newen
this Imperial Governor was in control of the territory surrounding the Sisar Run during the last years of the New Order. Unlike most other ranking Imperial officials, Streeg never attended the Imperial Academy and had minimal ties to the Navy. His mother was killed when he was thirteen, and had already accepted the New Order as a perfect government. He knew that his mother had been killed by pirates, and blamed her death on the chaos that sprang out of the last days of the Old Republic. He traveled his territory only irregularly, as he suffered from spacesickness. He was sworn to removing the criminal element along the Sisar Run, but had no idea how widespread Sprax's empire actually, nor how well it was connected. In fact, Streeg purchased nearly all his starship replacement parts - and many new starships - from one of Sprax's own organizations. (SSR)

Streen
a gas prospector at Bespin, he was getting on in years when Luke Skywalker first mets him at Tibannopolis. He could use The Force to detect when Bespin will erupt large amounts of gases. He agrees to study the Force with Luke on Yavin 4, and was nearly consumed by the spirit of Exar Kun. Kun tried to use Streen to kill Luke, but the combined power of the other students destroyed Kun's spirit forever. When the Leviathan of Corbos was unearthed, he traveled to the planet with Kyp Durron, Dorsk 82, and Kirana Ti to defat the creature. Streen later put his powers to use in an attempt to decipher the Books of Massassi, and eventually became a Master himself when Luke went off in search of his mother with Akanah. (JS, COTF, BTS, JAL)

Streev, Mika
this native of the planet Rabaan was the world's premier warrior during the Galactic Civil War, and had earned the sunburst sigil his people bestowed on combat artists. He defeated Andos Delvaren in single combat, earning the position of champion of the planet Rabaan, and was the chosen fighter whenever a dispute arose with the S'krrr. However, Mika's abilities and energies were solely directed at fighting and his personal image. When it came to politics, love, or other activities, Mika either didn't care or wasn't interested in interrupting his training to bother. Many of his rivals hoped to exploit this trait, but couldn't. It was Mika who was chosen to battle the S'krrr Sh'shak, and he was accompanied to the Combat Moon by his lover and fellow warrior, Leda Kyss. While there, they discovered that Andos had led Imperial forces to the moon, in an attempt to instigate a war between Rabaanite and S'krrr. Mika was forced to kill the Imperial trooper named Jan, and would have killed Andos had he not fled in terror. Streev then had to get Sh'shak to halt the Combat and confront the Imperials. He managed to do this just as Modigal Glave shot Sh'shak. Streev fired at the Imperials, scattering them and saving Sh'shak. The Imperial regrouped and captured them. They were nearly rescued by an Alliance X-Wing pilot (who looks a lot like Wedge Antilles), and Mika managed to cut off Glave's arm. However, Glave shot and killed Leda with his other hand while escaping into his own ship. Streev and Sh'shak fled the Combat Moon and agreed to join the Alliance after they hunted down Delvaren and Glave. (SWJ9)

Stresscrete
an inexpensive building material. (AS)

Stribos System
a planetary system located near the Demophon System, it was largely uninhabited when Soron Hegerty discovered it while searching for a suitable world on which to relocate the Ssither. (SN)

Strident
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Strident*-class Star Defender
produced by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, this was one of the first Star Defender ships produced for the New Republic. (JE)

Strider
1) another name for an Imperial AT-ST scout walker (CPL)

2) the strider was a huge, lumpy beast native to the planet Kintan. The strider had muscular shoulders, with arms that ended in three fingered hands. The strider had large, powerful legs. It appeared to have no neck, and its head seemed to be part of its chest. The strider is now extinct on Kintan, but a number of them have been bred off-planet by the Hutts, for use as bodyguards. (CCG)
3) a six-legged reptilian creature native to the planet Sedesia, striders are used as mounts. (SWAJ)

Strider Seven
the AT-ST which first locates Han and Leia on Dathomir. (CPL)

Strike
codename of a group of Alliance Y-Wings supporting the Tela transport group. (TIE)

Strike Foil
see S-foil. (SWTJ)

Strike the Moons Flightknife led by Liak ke Mattino, this Adumari fighter group was the first to offer a simulated battle challenge to Wedge Antilles and Red Flight, during the negotiations between Adumar, the New Republic, and the Empire. Once Red Flight had scored kills with low-powered lasers on the Strike the Moons Blade-32 ships, Wedge offered them another chance at the duel. This was not standard protocol, but neither were simulated kills. Liak ke Mattino and his group accepted, and they continued to learn from Red Flight's tactics. When Red Flight was exiled by perator Pekaelic ke Teldan at the insistence of Tomer Darpen, the Strike the Moons Flightknife assisted them in leaving Cartann City. (SOA)

Strike*-class Cruiser
a medium-duty battle ship produced by Loronar for the Empire, they have a modular design which allows them to be configured for specific missions. These ships measure 450 meters in length, and can transport enough troops to support an assault company, two AT-STs, one AT-AT, and several support speeders. Slight modifications will allow them to carry a complete squadron of TIE fighters or a planetary assault cruiser packed with five AT-ATs. They are well-armed, carrying 20 turbolasers, 10 turbolaser batteries, 10 ion cannons, and 10 tractor beam projectors. They use 160-SBD shields to protect a 100-RU hull, and have a top speed of 18 MGLT. (HTTE, ISB, TIE)

Strikebreaker
this TaggeCo riot patrol vehicle is a heavily-armored gunship designed to frighten rioters off or kill the ones that remain. It was 14 meters in length, and required a pilot, co-pilot, and 7 gunners. It could also transport up to 40 troops. It was heavily armed, carrying four medium laser cannons, two heavy repeating blasters, a grenade mortar launcher, and a stun barricade. (CSA)

Strip, The
this section of Vark Street, located in Takari on the planet Iyuta, was filled with bars and inns which catered to the Imperial forces in the system. (SWCP)

Striped Masters
this was another name for the Kasa Horansi. (PG1, AE)

Stroiketcy
the third planet in the Yavin system, Stroiketcy may actually be a large asteroid attracted by the star's gravity. Its chemical makeup is almost 94% water, with very little rock showing up in planetary probes. Stroiketcy follows a wild, elliptical orbit, and supports a possible form of organocrystalline life. The name Stroiketcy comes from a Corellian term meaning "tailed one." The planet's wildly elliptical orbit actually brings it within the orbit of Yavin for a short time, within 100,000 kilometers of Fiddanl. (GG2)

Strok
this Imperial Captain served the military under Governor Touno on Svivren, during the last years of the New Order. Touno assigned him to Mara Jade, who was acting as the Emperor’s Hand in the elimination of Dequc’s Black Nebula empire. Unknown to Mara and Touno, Strok was secretly working as an informant for Dequc. Mara was forced to shoot him in self-defense, after he encountered her on Qiaxx. (MJEH)

Stronghold
this cold, rocky world, located in the remote Taldot Sector, was an Alliance safeworld during the Galactic Civil War. Its surface was a rocky collection of mountains and chasms, and was wracked by intense storms. The Alliance formed its base there by gouging out the stone and creating a network of caverns and tunnels. The planet itself had no strategic value, but the families of front-line Alliance soldiers were secreted here during wartime. The transport ship Celestial was bound there when it was overtaken by the prisoners it was transporting. The ship was lost in Otherspace, where the Charon were able to discover the planet’s location. The Charon, under the command of the former Grand Moff Ravik, tried to destroy the planet, but were thwarted in their efforts by Alliance agents. The Charon Starship Desolate was nearly destroyed on the planet. There was no known sentient life on Stronghold, and very little plant or animal life survived on the rocky surface. (OS2)

Stroon
the uncaring owner of the Starhunter Intergalactic Menagerie. (DCAR)

Structgel
this material is used to bond pieces of permex and transparisteel. (ML)

STR2434
this was the survey report filed by Trask, and detailed information on the planet Trinta. (DOE)

Study Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was dedicated to the understanding of the planet's history, as well as the discovery of new knowledge. It led into the Garden Circle. (FFT)

Study of the Galactic Balance of Power: The New Order's Greatest Challenge this book, written by Kaelldin Krothburt, explores the Galactic Civil War and the effect pirates, mercenaries, and bounty hunters had in it. It was published by DataLine Press, number 543.21, in Dx#4/R2P format. (GG9)

Stufar's Grand Dancitorium
this upscale establishment was located near the Sovar Imperial Hotel in Equator City, on the planet Rodia. (SESB)

Stump Lizard
a reptile native to the jungle of Yavin 4. (HTF)

Stumpweed
a grass favored by Carbool Nuum. (JTH)

Stun Cloak
a special cloak which is often used by bounty hunters. When draped around a victim, the stun cloak inflicts an electric charge across its area, incapacitating the victim. (OS)

Stun Pole
this weapon is very similar to a force pike or electro-jabber. (SWJ9)

Stun Staff
a small, defensive weapons which is used to stun an opponent. (SWJ9)

Stun Steps
this starship security system used the natural electrical conduction properties of steps and ramps to generate an electromagnetic, neuro-shock field. When installed on a starship entry system, stun steps neutralize a being who is trying to steal the starship. Stun steps were installed with remote-activation systems, keeping them separated from the basic starship security systems and ensuring that they remain live even if other security measures were bypassed. (SWJ13)

Stun-cannon
a portable weapon that emits energy beams with just enough strength to stun, but not kill, most organic life forms. (PDS)

Stun-stave
a large, handheld stick which produces a shock when one end it touched to an opponent or victim. (HSE)

Stuncuffs
modified handcuffs that produce an electric shock proportional to the force of the prisoner's struggling. (JS)

Stungun
a small pistol which generates only enough power to stun an opponent, thus requiring less power than a blaster. (HSL)

Stunner Net
a protective device used by explorers and scientists, a stunner net is set up around the perimeter of a campsite. It is essentially a charged mesh that produces a stun effect when touched. (ISU)

Sturdiplast
an inexpensive material used to make doors. It is strong enough to keep air conditioning in, but can easily be damaged. (COJ)

Sturm
one of Kaarde's pet vornskrs (HTTE)

Sturm Dowel
this small cylinder is part of every blaster power pack, and is one of the most important components of every blaster. The dowel is used to disperse built-up energy in case of an overload. If the dowel is removed form the power pack, the pack will explode due to the unabated build-up of energy. (CFG)

Sturn
Sturn was a smooth-skinned humanoid employed by Lady Valarian as a front desk clerk at the Lucky Despot. Sturn was an indentical twin to Anton. (TJP)

Stusjevsky
a Chadra-Fan working as a sniffer in the vine-coffee groves of Plawal, at the time when Roganda Ismaren was trying to resurrect the Eye of Palpatine. (COJ)

Stygium
this rare, crystalline mineral is found only on Aeten II. Sienar Advanced Projects discovered that the crystal could be used to create a full-effect cloaking system that defeated the sensors and security systems of larger craft. (X1)

Stylopad
a writing implement that produces a thin, hardcopy strip. (COJ)

Stylus Ship
also known as an iceborer, this long, narrow starship was used to break through the icy crust of moons and planets in order to reach the minerals and ores hidden beneath. The ship was tapered near the top, coming to an armor-plated point, and equipped with a simple drive system that moved it toward the planet and then back out of the hole it formed. It had only enough maneuverability to move back and forth, and the drive systems were not sufficient for system-to-system travel. They were used almost exclusively by miners, since the design of the stylus ship prohibited any additional systems. A single missile launcher was located in the nose of the ship, which could be used to launch an explosive warhead prior to the nose of the ship piercing the surface, helping the ship to borer deeper into the planet's crust. A stylus ship had to be transported into its target system by a carry ship. (VP)

St2x
this is the designation of an advanced Carbanti targetting computer. (EGV)

Suarbi System
located in Quence Sector, this planetary system was where Leonia Tavira and the Invidious ended up after jumping away from a battle with New Republic warships. It was on the moon Suarbi 7/5 that she discovered the Jensaarai and the Saarai-kaar after shooting the moon's incompetant Imperial govnernor. (IJ)

Suarbi 7
this planet is the seventh in the Suarbi System. It is a gas giant orbited by an asteroid belt and dozens of moons. (IJ)

Suarbi 7/5
this savannah-covered moon orbits Suarbi 7, a gas giant ringed by asteroids and dozens of moons. A couple of human settlements evolved on the moon centuries before the birth of the New Republic, as did the Jensaarai. It was later renamed Susevfi. It was here that Leonia Tavira returned with the Invidious after her pirate raids. It was also here that she held Mirax Terrik, after Mirax was captured on Nal Hutta by the Jensaarai. (IJ)

Sub-Adult Group
also called a SAGroup, this was the largest branch of COMPNOR, exceeding two trillion members at its height. This branch comprised youngsters who were brought up understanding the New Order, and was headed by Imperial officers who kept the Empire's darker secrets from the sub-adults. (ISB)

Suba
this Imperial Lieutenant served as the chief of security and political officer aboard the Executor, ensuring the loyalty of his fellow officers to the New Order. Suba believed that Darth Vader had some hidden weakness that prevented him from killing Luke Skywalker outright. (CCG4)

Subjugator
1) a Victory-class Star Destroyer that was commanded by Captain Kolaff. It was deployed in the Relgim Sector, and was chosen by Lira and Denn Wessex as the ship which would travel to Kwenn space station to capture Walex Blissex. It was destroyed by the Alliance strike force accompanying Blissex during the Galactic Civil War. (SF)
2) this Imperial-II class Star Destroyer was part of the Imperial fleet searching for a group of defectors, shortly before the Battle of Endor. It was forced to let the defectors go by a group of Alliance warships. (XWA)

Subla Ransom
known primarily in the Mid Rim, Subla Ransom manufactured a variety of cargo freighters. (FOP, PP)

Subla Ransom Medium Cargo Hauler
this 75.5-meter-long freighter was capable of transporting up to 700 metric tons of cargo. This reliable craft required a crew of five, and could carry up to five additional passengers. The freighter was armed with a turret-mounted blaster cannon. (PP)

Sublight Drive
any starship propulsion system that allows the ship to move through realspace. They most often employ fusial thruster which force charged ions through an exhaust port. This use of a fusion reaction to generate thrust often results in high levels of radioactive emission, which are illegal within a planet's atmosphere. (SWSB)

Sublight Queen
Nien Nunb's light freighter. (MTS, EGC)

Sublight Acceleration Module
also known as a SLAM, this device was developed for use on the Imperial missile gunboat during the Galactic Civil War. The SLAM's function was to increase sublight speed by as much as two times, allowing the gunboat to quickly enter and exit an engagement with the enemy. The SLAM's power source drew power from all other shipboard systems, but was not considered a primary component. Thus, if weapons or target control were activated while the SLAM was engaged, the SLAM would be disengagde in favor of routing power to those systems. (TIE)

Sublight Transponder
an early version of the IFF transponder. (TOJ)

Submersible Environment Module
a heavily-armored startship, the SEM is used to penetrate hostile planetary environments. The SEM uses the quantum armor developed at the Maw Installation as a protective skin. It is connected to a mothership or orbiting station by an energy tether which uses its own magnetism to keep the SEM attached to its base. If snapped, the tether can reconnect itself if broken. They are equipped with various manipulatory appendages, depending on the application. (SA)

Subpro
this Inner Rim manufacturer produced some very reliable shipboard avionics packages before it entered into the starship market by assisting Incom in the design of the Z-95 Headhunter. Its location in the Rim meant that it didn't get the recognition other manufacturers received, and so many of its designs went unnoticed except by Rim travellers. It also began to manufacture freighters and transports which gained wide acceptance in the Rim, despite the familiarity of many Corellian designs. (SCRE, SWSB, EGV)

Subsonic Grenades
small detonation devices which use low-amplitude sound waves instead of explosives. (DFR)

Subspace antenna
a horseshoe-shaped magnet wrapped with two layers of conductive wire, used to generate the magnetic fields required to send a subspace transmission. (HTTE)

Subspace Communications
this subscriber servicde provided communications access to thousands of users along the Sisar Run. Owned by the Nalroni crimelord Sprax, Subspace controlled a wealth of deep-space communications satellites which brought almost instantaneous communications to its subscribers, without the need for a dedicated HoloNet access. Subspace was the cleanest of Sprax's ventures, although its satellites maintained a log of every user, including what channels they tuned in to and where they were. This allowed Sprax to maintain tabs on a wealth of individuals and groups. (SSR)

Subspace Image Transmitter
developed by Renn Volz, this device was used to project a holographic image to a remote location. Mira Volz used one to alert her father that she was no longer under the control of Captain Bzorn. (CSWEA)

Subspace radio
a radio which employs a special antenna to send a transmission via subspace frequencies. These signals are almost instantaneously received at their destination. (HTTE).

Subspace Relay Station
this 100-meter long, spindle-shaped station is depolyed in many star systems for a number of uses. Often denoted as an SRS, these unmanned stations are placed in a slow, distant orbit around a system’s star. From this vantage point, they relay intra-system broadcasts. The SRS can also act as a collision defense system, since they are armed with twelve laser cannons. Any inbound asteroids can be shot down with these cannons before they collide with the station. (TA)

Succession Judge
this position was given to a Bitthaevrian who would preside over any succession to the leadership of the m'Yalfor'ac Order. Individual Succession Judges were to be completely unbiased, thereby ensuring that the succession was fair. (AIR)

Succubus
an ethereal alien which desires to couple with a human male in order to breed. (CS)

Succulosum azure
the beautiful flowers of this plant are known to cause severe allergic reactions in human beings. (XWMR)

Sudden Death
this modified MRX-BR Pacifier scout ship was owned and operated by the Iceman. He had gutted the insides of the ship to make room for eight prisoner cells, and added three proton torpedo launchers and three laser cannons to the ship’s armaments. (GG6)

Sudden Demise
a phase of sabacc in which two or more players are tied at the end of a match, with hands that do not exceed the score of 23. Each of the remaining players is dealt a single card. If the additional card causes the player's hand to exceed 23, he is out of the match. This continues until only one player is left to claim the pot. (LCF)

Sudden Restoration
this Carosite HS-1 hospital ship has been named for the ship's ability to appear suddenly whenever medical attention is required. The survival rate of injured beings brought on board the Restoration is legendary. Many of the patients brought on board are transported to Carosi Alpha Hospital for further treatment. The New Republic has asked the Carosites to hangar an X-Wing fighter on the Restoration, in case of attack from Imperial forces. (PG2)

Sufar
this leaves of this low-growing plant could be blanched or fried, or served raw as part of a salad. (SESB)

Sufezz
this Outer Rim world was the site of a Shrine of Kooroo. (SWJ13)

Suhlak, N'dru
this young man was washed out of the Alliance's Tierfon starfighter base for his excessive insubordination. However, Suhlak was an excellent pilot, having learned from the likes of Jek Porkins and Wes Janson, and soon found work as a hunt saboteur. Suhlak once tried to evade Boba Fett above Uhltenden by placing specialized transparisteel plates between his Z-95 Headhunter and Slave I. The transparisteel was manufactured to filter out certain wavelengths of light, providing Suhlak with the ability to disappear as long as he remained in line with Fett's ship. He also placed a normal piece of transparisteel behind the optically-filtered piece, in case Fett survived the first one. However, Fett discerned Suhlak's set-up and evaded both pieces. He then boarded the modified Z-95 and took possession of Suhlak's cargo, Ob Fortuna. The two met up several years later, during Boba Fett's search for answers surrounding Neelah and Kuat of Kuat. This time, Fett hired Suhlak to transport him to Tatooine and back as fast as possible, following the damage to the Hound's Tooth and the loss of Slave I. He kept his part of the bargain, evetually returning Fett to Dengar and Neelah aboard the Hound's Tooth near Oran-μ. (SLS, HM)

Suicide Peak
this specialized obstacle was used on swoopchasing courses. In its basic form, the Suicide Peak is a modified version of the Pop 'n' Drop obstacle. However, the Suicide Peak employs a drop off of up to 30 meters between the top of the front side of the bank and top of the back side. The gap between the banks is also increased, often to fifty meters. (BSS)

Suicide Tooth
this device resembled a regular human tooth, but was filled with deadly gas before being inserted into the jaw. When a human was forced into a situation where death was imminent, they could use the suicide tooth to kill their captors as well as themselves, thereby eliminating the threat. (SWG)

Sujir
this man was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. (GG11)

Sukarian
this H'drachi (human?) served as the Vicebaron of M'haeli when Lando Calrissian and Mara Jade stopped there, during their search for information on Jorj Car'das. (VOF)

Sulahb
this Sullustan starship mechanic was a quiet, hard-working being who was very meticulous about her work. (GMH)

Sulamar
one of the few Imperials who survived the early years of the New Republic, Sulamar sought power under the guise of a General. He aligned himself with Durga the Hutt in the early planning stages of the Darksaber project. When Crix Madine was captured trying to sabotage the battle station, he revealed that Sulamar was really a bungling fool who couldn't hold a position because of his constant failures. (DS)

Sulfaro
this plant is found on the planet Kirdo III, and is a food source used by the chooba. (GG4)

Sullinil's Calamari Cuisine
this restaurant specialized in the preparation and serving of Mon Calamari delicacies. (GG11)

Sullust
primary planet in the Sullust system, known for its mineral mines and technologies. It is a volcanically-active world with a hot, noxious atmosphere wracked by violent storms. Thus, the native Sullustans prefer to live underground, in the cool, humid caves that riddle the planet's mantle. There are also a number of underground lakes and caverns that support a surprising amount of life forms. The huge, diversified SoroSuub Corporation grew out of the caves, and when the Sullustan Council faltered, SoroSuub announced that it was aligned the planet with the Empire. Many of the working class Sullustans could not believe this, and a wave of Rebellion swept through the planet's inhabitants just before the Battle of Endor. It was then allowed to be the stop-over site for the massing Rebel fleet prior to the destruction of the second Death Star. (ROTJ, SWSB)

Sullust
this New Republic CR90 Corvette was part of the force sent to liberate the planet Ciutric from the control of Prince-Admiral Krennel. It supported the flagship Emancipator, along with several other Corvettes and a trio of Nebulon-B frigates. The ship took a tremendous pounding in the battle, and barely survived. (IR)

Sullustan
small, mouse-like aliens with huge black eyes, loose jowls, and pointed ears. They salivate quite often, and live underground to avoid Sullust's inhospitable atmosphere. Their ingenuity and adaptability has allowed them to created huge underground cities, and their technology has grown at an incredibly fast rate. They have an intense sense of direction, having lived in caves all their lives, and have the uncanny ability to remember a path or map exactly, even after the first time they see it. Thus, many of the Sullustans have become pilots and navigators. Many Sullustans, after the age of 30 standard years, begin to experience corneal defects, and must be fitted with special visors. (ROTJ, AC, WEG, COJ)

Sullustan Gin
an intergalactic alcoholic spirit. (TJP)

Sully Tigereye
this Trunsk was a decorated member of the Special Forces of the Alliance and the New Republic, as a member of Andrephan Stormcaller's Red Alpha unit. When Stormcaller resigned his commission after the Republic ignored the Pentstar Alignment's takeover of Entralla, Sully and several other members of the unit left with him. They formed the Red Moons mercenary unit, and fought the Alignment themselves. Sully was the leader of the group which was sent to Gabredor III to rescue the children of the Cantras Gola ambassador from the Karazak Slavers Guild. (SWJ8, TFE)

Sulon
an arable, inhabitable moon of Sullust. The human population was often at odds with the Grave Tuskens that ravaged the plains. (DF, DF2)

Sulorine Sector
this area of the galaxy bordered Ansuroer Sector and the Iotran Expanse. (SSR)

Suluk
this Imperial ETR-3 escort transport was used during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Suma
this tall, reedy plant is native to the planet Naboo. It spreads when its sticky seeds attach to the bodies of the swamp animals which eat it, like the pom hopper. The petals of the suma’s flower crushed and mixed with water by the Gungans to create ink. (GF)

Sumitra Sector
a relatively unpopulated sector of the galaxy during the Galactic Civil War, the Alliance set up one of is fighter bases there, on the planet Tierfon. The Sumitra Sector contains 12,387 planets and moons, making the odds of the Empire finding the Tierfon base extremely slim. (SWSB)

Summat
this is a sacred Fyodoi ritual in which all the tribal chiefs gather and begin shouting at each other in gibberish. They continue for hours until all the chiefs suddenly stop. They stand up and set all but one of the huts on fire. The summat is actually a re-enactment of the Great Cleansing, and helps remind the chiefs of the dangers that come with technological advancement. (PG2)

Summergnat
this tiny insect was known to travel in large swarms, and was attracted by the scent of nerfs. (BP)

Summit Class
one of the more famous graduating classes of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School, Summit Class included the Rellarin scouf Lunkar An. Summit Class held all the records for completing their final examinations for seven years, until their time of 129.1 standard hours was smashed by Twilight Class, which finished in just 103.7 hours. (AIR)

Sump
this planet was located along the border between the Mid Rim and the Outer Rim. (IWE1)

Sumptor, Banner
this Imperial officer was part of the team which was stranded on Dolis 3 in the wake of the peace accord signed between the Imperial Remnant and the New Republic. Banner joined Moff Derran Takkar in his plan to disrupt the wedding of Mara Jade and Luke Skywalker, as a way to strike back against the New Republic. Despite his loyalty to the Empire, Banner was unsure about the petty plans of Moff Takkar and his wife, Anlys. He went along with them, traveling to Coruscant and trying to take out Luke in a brawl, but couldn't bring himself to kill anyone. The wedding, in Banner's mind, was a sign that the galaxy was healing itself, and killing someone would only bring more strife. When Anlys ordered Banner to shoot Jari'kyn, so that the Imperials could steal Mara's wedding dress, Banner refused. Instead, he shot Anlys' escort and was nearly killed by Anlys, but Jari'kyn struck the woman on the head with a section of pipe. Banner and Jari'kyn incapacitated the Imperials, brought the dress to the wedding chapel, and then brought the Imperials to jail. Banner then decided to join the New Republic, and told the police about Moff Takkar's plans to disrupt the wedding. (U)

Sumrian
this race is native to the Lol System. They are known for their base-eight mathematical system, which is based on the fact that they have four fingers on each hand. They are credited with creating the Df measurement. (ISB)

Sun Beetle
a bantha-sized insect raised by the Kubaz on Kubindi. They were used as beasts of burden until they were replaced by machines. Although it has been deemed illegal, sun beetle fights are often staged in the criminal underground. (GG4, SWJ10)

Sun Caves
these natural grottoes were the home of the Golden Sun. (BGS)

Sun Crusher
third-generation superweapon designed by Qwi Xux and built by Tol Sivron at the Maw Installation. It is a long, four-sided ship about the size of a 6-man fighter, with nearly-indestructible quantum molecular armor plating and a transmitting dish mounted underneath. The dish launches a modulated resonance projectile into a star's core, causing the star to explode. The Sun Crusher flies in a unique upright position similar to a B-Wing, but it has no wings or stabilizers. It was armed with five laser turrets mounted on top and at the four top corners. The prototype built at the Maw was thought to be destroyed by the New Republic after it was recovered from the Maw when Han Solo and Kyp Durron escaped in it. The Sun Crusher was sent into the core of Yavin to be crushed, but it was later stolen by Kyp Durron. Kyp was under the influence of Exar Kun and the Dark Side of the Force, although it worked - to a degree - in the New Republic's favor. He felt that the Imperial weapon should be used to harry various Imperial worlds. The Sun Crusher worked to perfection, but Kyp eventually returned from the Dark influence of Kun to return the ship to the Republic. It was destroyed when it was sucked into the black holes of the Maw. (JS, DA, COTF, EGV)

Sun Crystal
this unusual gemstone is found only on the planet Jazbina. The crystals are mined in near-total darkness in order to avoid activating the crystals. When they come into contact with light, the crystals absorb it and then shine it back ten-fold in a blinding display. Jazbinans have been known to become addicted to the intense light the crystals shed, and often stare into the planet's sun in an effort to relive the experience. However, this additional light only damages their eyes further. The inly way to cure the addiction is to remain in complete darkness until the urge to look into the light passes. (VQ)

Sun Dragon
this is a large, avian reptile. (POT)

Sun Guard
an armored unit of ferocious warriors from the Thyrsus System. (ISB)

Sun Gun
this is a form of spear gun used by Sedrian warriors. (BGS)

Sun Squadron
the designation of the TIE Fighters garrisoned at Revos, on the planet Storinal, shortly after the Battle of Endor. (WS)

Sun-jammer Racing
this sport was known in casinos which catered to betting on sporting events. (GG11)

Sun-miner
a small spacecraft used by various ancient gas mining crews to collect elements from the corona of a star. (TOJR)

Sun-stone
a valuable gemstone. (LCS)

Sunaj
the Star Destroyer Relentless was supposed to meet a supply convoy here, but it was destroyed by Alliance forces. (XW)

Sunaj IV
the Imperial frigate Juvani was destroyed by the Alliance near this planet. (FP)

Sunbird
a Nharwaak transport ship destroyed by the Empire near the hidden Nharwaak base. (TIE)

Sund
a weapons manufacturer. (CCG3)

Sundance
this light exploration ship, piloted by Kyp Durron, accompanied the Courane and the Fireater during the defense of Nam Chorios from the fleet of Moff Getelles and Admiral Larm. (POT)

Sundar
the human inhabitants of Sundari. (SWAJ)

Sundari
this planet, the third in the Garos System, was settled about 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. It is an arid world, with little or no natural resources except the ores that can be extracted from its rocky surface. A number of mining operations sprang up, and were supported only through sustained trade with Sundari's planetary neighbor, Garos IV. Over the millennia, a mutual relationship evolved which was recently broken. About 200 years prior to the Battle of Yavin, Sundars began moving to Garos IV, and the cultural mix began to grate. An intense civil war broke out, and lasted 82 years before Tork Winger and Tionthes Turi were able to come to an agreement over its ending. Small violations of the truce were noted until the Empire invaded the system, when all such "petty battles" were summarily put to rest. (SWAJ)

this was the codename used by Doctor Nashiak Llalik for his first design of personal power armor. The design itself was scrapped when personal armor was outlawed by the Empire, but he used many of its innovative features in the design of the armor worn by zero-g stormtroopers. The Sunder 9 prototype was armed with a blaster cannon and a flame thrower, and had a rocket pack for quick movements. It provided protection in aquatic and zero-g environments, and used a heat-sensitive body glove to protect the wearer. A sensor package and active monitors provided the wearer with a 270-degree field of vision, in light or dark, and even underwater. (AIR)

Sundog
a group of Alliance CR90 corvettes that was attempting to supply Harkov's fleet during its defection. (TIE)

Sune, Jorga
this man was a crimelord who lived in the city of Iritsa, on Chazwa, during the height of the New Order. He was the only serious rival to Hahz Fallone, and the two maintained an uneasy cease-fire in order to keep the city intact. Sune later revealed that he had helped Fallone begin mining the the planet Eckless, but Fallone later stabbed Sune in the back and made off with the Black Sphere. Sune spent much of his resource trying to locate the Sphere. Shortly after the Sphere was returned to Eckless, Sune and his forces were destroyed by an Imperial fleet while they were searching for the location of Eckless. For some reason, they had stumbled into a system which was deemed off-limited by the Empire, as a result of using the coordinates the found in a false Black Sphere they acquired from Fallone. (ND)

Sunesi
this was the sentient race of humanoid amphibians which evolved on the planet Monor II. In their native language, the word Sunesi means "pilgrim." The Sunesi are born as furry, senseless creatures who have little idea of the world around them. They are born with diffuse nervous systems and the ability to breathe in the planet's cirrifog-dense atmosphere. After about 15 standard years, they go into a hibernation-like state and begin to pupate. It is at this time that the cirrifog atmosphere is most important, for the small crystals in the fog are a necessary part of their metamorphosis. When mixed with their natural sweat, the crystals in the cirrifog help create a protective coccoon. Inside the coccoon, the young Sunesi are transformed into adults. However, the coccoon's shell becomes quite hard, and many juvenile Sunesi do not survive their pupation because they cannot break out of it. Those which do emerge from their coccoon become intelligent, hairless adults. The turquoise-colored adults have the ability to speak with their mouths, but can also communicate via ultrasonic waves created within their large crania. Their enlarged heads earned them the nickname "lumpheads." The Sunesi have long, thin limbs, and four thin fingers on each hand. The fact that all adults have survived the metamorphosis has led to a species-wide belief in reincarnation. (SWJ10)

Sunfighter Franchise
an alias used by Han Solo for the Millennium Falcon when he lands on Etti IV after delivering weapons to Duroon. (HSE)

Sunfruit
a small fruit, often fermented and used to make a flavorful liqueuer. (SE, IF)

SunGem
Jedi Master Arca Jeth's Delaya-class courier, the Sungem seemed to many of Master Arca's contemporaries to be too powerful a ship for a Jedi. However, these detractors had never actually been inside the courier ship. He had converted most of the cargo space into Jedi training facilities, and adorned the ship with Jedi sigils and a few personal artifacts. Individual chambers could have their environments altered to suit the needs of alien species, and could help Master Arca simulate hostile environments. (EGV, TOJC)

Sunglobe
an Ithorian light source. Also called a solar globe. (COJ)

Sungrass
this Xiytiar-class freighter was assigned to Wraith Squadron by the New Republic, during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. Commanded by Captain Valton, the ship was ugly but nonetheless spaceworthy. (IF)

Sungwa
a huge, doglike creature found on Bodgen. (DCAR)

Sunken City
as its name implies, this abandoned city has begun sinking below the surface of the planet Aquillaris. About half of the city remained above the water, and the natives of Aquillaris left it in this state as a monument to those that survived its demise. During the last decades of the Old Republic, several podracing courses wound around and through the sunken city. (RAC)

Sunken City Run
this was the name given to the pro-circuit podrace which wound through the continually-changing city of Sunken City, on the planet Aquillaris. (RAC)

Sunlet, Merc
this native of Tirac Munda was a crafty thief with a heart of gold. Well-travelled and highly skilled, Sunlet was proficient in many languages. He wsa often hired by wealthy individuals who wanted him to find holes in their personal security systems. (CCG2)

Sunlight Franchise
Han Solo and Droma used this alias for the Millennium Falcon when they traveled to Tholatin in search of information on the whererabouts of Roa and Droma's family. (JE)

SunnGunn
this small corporation produced a variety of industrial-strength light sources. (WSV)

Sunnida
an Alliance starfighter group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Sunny Side of Ryloth
this song, written and played by the band Red Shift Limit, first appeared on the compilation Thoughts from the Core. It was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Sunpetals
this flower is found on the planet Timora. (SWAJ)

Sunrider, Andur
Andur was the grandson of Jev Sunrider, and followed in his footsteps to take up training with the force. Andur trained initially under Master Chamma, until Chamma could no longer teach him. Andur had not yet completed his training, however. Master Chamma sent him to take some Adegan crystals to Master Thon, and to continue his training on Ambria, so Andur packed up his wife, Nomi, and their infant daughter, Vima, and headed for the Stenness System. However, upon reaching the main spaceport terminal, Andur tried to avoid a confrontation with some thugs and was killed by the bite of a gorm worm when his attention was elsewhere. (TOJ, TOJC)

Sunrider, Jev
this ancient Jedi Knight served as the watchman of the Darada System four millennia before the Battle of Yavin. He was later dispatched to Krayiss Two with three other Jedi Masters, to determine the cause of the evil growing there. None of the Jedi ever returned, but Jev's shimmering ghost soon appeared to his grandson, Andur, imploring Andur to take up the Jedi training nad help confront the growing evil in the galaxy. (TOJC)

Sunrider, Nomi
the wife of Andur Sunrider, Nomi accompanied her husband on a mission to deliver Adegan crystals from Master Chamma to Master Thon. When they were waylayed in the Stenness System and Andur was killed, Nomi suddenly realized that she was as strong with the Force as her husband was, if not stronger. She quickly dispatched the thugs that killed Andur, using his lightsaber to cut them down. She feared the use of the weapon, and later continued her dead husband's trek through the Stenness System to deliver the Adegan crystals to Ambria. There, she herself picked up the Jedi training that was meant for her husband. She trained under Master Thon, who discovered that Nomi was proficient in the use of Jedi battle meditation. Thon also started training Nomi's daughter, Vima. When Bogga the Hutt pursued Nomi and her Adegan crystals to Ambria, Nomi again resisted the use of the lightsaber, but took it up to defend her Jedi Master. She dispatched Bogga's minions, and strode further down the path to becoming a Jedi. It is later revealed by Thon that Nomi's coming is foretold in at least one of the Jedi Prophecies. She was later assigned to assist Ulic Qel-Droma in quelling the civil war in Onderon system, and eventually fell in love with Ulic. That love was short-lived, though, for Ulic fell down the path to the Dark Side of the Force in his attempt to penetrate the Krath. They tried to defeat the Krath in the Empress Teta System, but were repelled. She was part of the Great Council on Deneba, and later returned to the Tetan System to try and persuade Ulic from his dark quest. Her love for him proved to be lesser than his desire to avenge Arca's death, and he left to become Exar Kun's apprentice. She returned to Master Thon, and was caught by Crado and Oss Willum, who had come to kill Thon as part of Exar Kun's pogrom. She and Sylvar were able to stave off the attack, but Nomi was draw deeper into the Great Sith War. When Ulic Qel-Droma wsa captured and brought to trial on Coruscant, Nomi went with Cay Qel-Droma and Tott Doneeta to try and appeal to Ulic. His Sith possession was too deep for Nommi's love, and the appearance of Exar Kun only strengthened Ulic's powers. Nomi and the other Jedi were powerless as Kun executed Vodo-Siosk Baas, and struggled to follow Ulic and Kun to the Auril Systems. Nomi went to Ossus to assist with the evacuation of the Jedi libraries after Aleema destroyed the Cron System, and was again caught up in Ulic's demise. After Ulic murdered his brother, Cay, Nomi was so enraged that she used the Force in an attempt to cut Ulic off from the Force. Her anger made the attempt extremely effective, and Ulic was completely cut off from the energy of the Force. She resolved herself to the fact that Ulic would never love her again. In the aftermath of the Great Sith War, Nomi was the driving force behind the Exis Convocation, but lost tracked of her daughter Vima, who stowed away on Hoggon's ship to seek out Ulic on Rhen Var. Joined by Sylvar, Nomi traveled to Rhen Var to recover her daughter. She discovered that Ulic had never forgotten her, and had in fact carved the likenesses of Nomi and Andur into a cliff of ice with Vima's help. However, she was unprepared for Sylvar's arrival on Rhen Var, and even less prepared for Hoggon's killing of Ulic. After Ulic's body disappeared into the Force, Nomi vowed to focus more on the training of her daughter. Although the Jedi histories don't provide any further information on Nomi Sunrider, it is known that her daughter Vima continued the line of Sunrider Jedi Knights, and her line was thought to be ended with the death of Vima-da-Boda. (TOJ, DA, DLS, TSW, EGC, TOJR)

Sunrider, Vima
the daughter of Andur and Nomi Sunrider, Vima was born with a rich family heritage in the use of the Force. Little in known about her early training following the death of her father, but she showed an innate ability to talk with animals. During the Exis Convocation, Vima grew bored when her mother refused to train. Using her rudimentary skills with the Force, Vima stowed away on Hoggon's and convinced him to take her to Ulic Qel-Droma on Rhen Var. Vima believed that Ulic would train her in the Jedi way, despite his lack of contact with the Force, but was unprepared for his initial wrath. However, Ulic realized that Vima had been sent to him for a reason, and agreed to train her. Vima was a quick study, and soon built her own lightsaber. However, to Ulic's dismay, Vima began to grow impatient with the learning process. She was quickly calmed by Ulic, who feared losing her to the Dark Side fof the Force. When Nomi arrived on Rhen Var to take her home, Vima refused to leave Ulic's side. Ulic, for all his despair, discussed things with Nomi and convinced her that he had tried his best to lead Vima toward the Light Side of the Force. When Ulic was killed by Hoggon, Vima and Nomi saw Ulic's body disappear into the Force, and realized that he still had the heart of a Jedi. With his last breath, Ulic proclaimed Vima to be a Jedi herself. Vima returned with her mother, who continued her training. (TOJ, TOJR)

Sunrise
this news program picked up the story initially written by Cindel Towani for The Life Monitor, detailing the various accounts of New Republic armed forces who fought and died during the Black Fleet Crisis. The article, drafted by Hiram Drayson, was designed to help bolster public support of Leia Organa-Solo. (TT)

Sunrunner zX
this Ikas-Adno landspeeder measured 6.2 meters in length. (GG7)

Sunshine
this was the name of the reeho bird caught by Reanyn, who was unaware that T'laerean Larn was controlling the bird's mind. (SWJ14)

Sunstone
this form of rock gives off an intense glow which is accompanied by a great amount of heat, much like the light and heat given off by a sun. They are often used to heat barren asteroid bases. (TNR)

Sunulok
this Yuuzhan Vong warship was the flagship of Warmaster Tsavong Lah. Like most of the Yuuzhan Vong forces, the Sunulok had been en route to the galaxy for many years, and certain parts of the ship had begun to die out. Nevertheless, the ship still maintained all its weapons and shielding systems, and served well as the Warmaster's vessel. (BP)

Sunwhip Flightknife
this group of Adumari Blade-32 fighters served aboard the Allegiance during the defense of Adumar. (SOA)

Sunwolf
this was a model of Ikas-Adno speederbike, and was company's first entry into the military market. It was based on the civilian Starhawk bike, and was a one-seater. Other than this, and the addition of a laser cannon, the Sunwolf is identical to the Starhawk. (SWJ10)

Suolriep
this planet was the sight of an Alliance prior to the Battle of Yavin. (CCG)

Supa Fighter
this starfighter was manufactured for Black Sun during the height of the New Order. (XWA)

Super TIE/In
this starfighter was developed at the Maw Installation, although the plans for it never reached Imperial space or Seinar Fleet Systems. The Super TIE/In was an improvement on the basic TIE Fighter, but still lacked a hyperdrive. The primary advances were inproved power supply and increased thrust. (JASB)

Super Transport VI
an outdated container ship manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards. (WS)

Super Transport VII
this huge container ship was developed as part of the successful Super Transport line by Kuat Drive Yards. The Super Transport VII measured 280 meters in length, and was designed to carry two million metric tons of cargo. It required a crew of 80 to maintain. (OE)

Super Transport XI
a container ship built by the Kuat Drive Yards, it measures 840 meters in length, and can carry 10 million cubic meters of cargo with a maximum mass of 25 million metric tons. It has room for 40,000 standard containers stored in 20 separate holds, or it can be modified to transport up to three CR90 corvettes. It has limited climatic and pressure controls, and requires a crew of just 100. (SWSB, WBC)

Super Vaporator (*)
a vaporator large enough to supply all of Tatooine with water. (MRR)

Super-class Star Destroyer
an immense, heavy-duty Imperial Star Destroyed designed and built just before the destruction of the first Death Star, the Super-class Star Destroyer is an 8-kilometer-long battle station. Four of these huge capital ships were initially built by Kuat Drive Yards, displaying the depths of the Emperor's coffers and his desire to flaunt his power. The initial Super-class design was created by Lira Wessex, and although it was militarily impractical - several smaller ships could have performed the same job - it was ultimately successful in support of the Tarkin Doctrine. It was most often used as a command ship, and was manned by a crew of 279,144 accompanied by 1,590 gunners. Its weapons systems included 250 heavy turbolaser batteries, 250 turbolaser batteries, 250 concussion missile tubes, 250 ion cannons, and 40 tractor beam projectors. Darth Vader's command ship Executor was the first Super-class Star Destroyer, presented to the Dark Lord to assist in his search for the Alliance. (ESB, ROTJ, ISB, EGV)

SuperFlow IV
a model of shipboard computer used on most Corellian YT-1300 stock light freighters. Han Solo rebuilt his a number of time, in order to get it to monitor and manage all of his unique modifications to the Millennium Falcon. (SWSB)

SuperHaul
a series of cargo skiffs manufactured by Ubrikkian. (RPG)

SuperHaul Model II
this was the second-generation cargo skiff produced by Ubrikkian during the Galactic Civil War. (IA)

Superior Boarding Armor
this model of personal, armored spacesuit was produced by Merr-Sonn, and was described as spacetrooper armor for the independent spacer. (PP)

Superior Service Medal
this basic award was bestowed by the Alliance to individuals who continued to excel in the ongoing battle against the Empire. It was a simple medal, with the Alliance symbol hung from a red and blue ribbon. (ROE)

Superlaser
the most powerful, destructive weapons ever created, superlasers use a huge fusion reactor core and turbine generators to create the intense bundles of energy they unleash. These weapons were first used aboard the Death Star space stations. Multiple superlasers were set around the Death Star's laser eye, and focused on a point just beyond the Death Star's perimeter. When the multiple energy beams met, they collided and combined. The beams were then thrust out on a single path toward their target. The intense power generated by these mutliple beams was sufficient to destoy a planet. The Empire also modified the Death Star superlasers for use on the Eclipse-class and Sovereign-class Star Destroyers. These superlasers were mounted axially on the huge Star Destroyers, allowing the vessels to maintain position and orientation during and after the generation of the laser blast. (SW, ROTJ, WEG, DE1)

Superlaser Mark II
this was the designation of the primary weapon used aboard the second Death Star. The primary difference between this weapon and that of the first Death Star was in its targetting capability. The Mark II superlaser could target something as small as a capital ship, where the original superlaser was unable to target anything smaller than a moon. (CCG11)

Superlift Ore Hauler
designed and manufactured by Corellian Engineering Corporation, this 155-meter-long starship was known to be slow, sluggish, barely armored, and poorly protected. Thus, it was often escorted from its prospecting runs. The Superlift required a crew of 10, and could transport up to five passengers and 90,000 metric tons of ore. (PP)

Superluminal Transit
this was the name used by the Yuuzhan Vong to describe their organic hyperdrive technology. (JE)

Supernova Torpedo

Supply and Procurement
a branch of the Alliance's operations, Winter worked there on Averam for a few weeks, where she was known as "Targeter." (TLC)

Support
when a life witch marries a male and they observe the ritual of the blood kiss, the life witch is bound to Support the male for five years. This Support involves giving the male the vitality and strength of a young man in return for being named the heiress to his estate. (AC)

SupraLink
this ancient form of personal body armor was produced by ProTech, and was formed from interlocking rings of plasteel. (TOJC)

Supremacy
this song, written and played by the band The Emperor's New Clothes, first appeared on the compilation Totally Patriotic. (GG9)

Supreme Chancellor
this was the title given to the being who led the government of the Old Republic. Valorum was the last individual to hold the title, until he was unseated in a vote of no-confidence and succeeded by Grand Chancellor Palpatine. (IS1)

Supreme Commander
the title given to Luke Skywalker by the reborn Emperor Palpatine, shortly after Luke agreed to turn himself to the ways of the Dark Side of the Force and become Palpatine's apprentice. (DE1)

Supreme Defender
the name given to a brand of Chepat starship shields used on luxury liners. (IJ)

Suprosa
this Corellian CE-2 freighter was owned and operated by Captain Sivar during the Galactic Civil War. Note that X-Wing: Alliance claims that this ship was a Mobquet Transport. He had up upgraded to have stronger shields and hull plating, as well as armed it with a pair of turret-mounted double laser cannons and a pair of concussion missile launchers. The Suprosa was supposedly carrying fertilizer shortly after the Battle of Hoth when word was leaked to the Bothans that it was really carrying highly sensitive Imperial information. This information was leaked by Prince Xizor, from Emperor Palpatine. The contact told the Bothans that the Alliance would want the information, because it involved a construction project that could greatly affect the outcome of the Galactic Civil War. The Bothans tried to get the information to Leia Organa on Tatooine, but she was on Rodia at the time. Luke Skywalker and Lando Calrissian assisted the Bothans in taking control of the Suprosa, at the cost of a dozen Bothan lives. The Empire had outfitted the Suprosa with hidden weapons systems, making it appear as a fertilizer hauler. It quickly opened fire on the Y-Wings flown by Luke and the Bothans, killing six ships before being disabled and boarded. (SE, SESB, XWA)

Surana
one of the economic city-states, along with Kinkosa City and Dulai, that generates revenue for Kirtania. (SWAJ)

SureGrip
this small corporation produced a number of climbing accessories manufactured with FrictionGrip, including climbsuits, gloves, boots, and syntherope. (ROE)

SureSnoop
this sophisticated tracking device was manufactured by Rhinsome Tracking. It was capable of providing the exact range, direction, and speed of the beacon, but was also very expensive. (CFG)

Surface Charge Capacitance
a weapons-powering system which uses the natural properties of starship hulls to collect and store static energy. As a ship passes through space, it rubs against the various particles which exist in space. This action creates a charge against the ship's hull. In small ships, the hull is able to collect the charge in much the same way a capacitor would. This energy can be shunted into a weapons system, eliminating the need for a separate power generator. This method of powering weapons is not useful on large, capital ships, for the amount of charge is incredible, and cannot be safely shunted into weapons. (BTS)

Surge
this was the alias used by the New Republic for the patrol ship Instigator, when the ship was used to infiltrate the Kaarenth Dissension. (SWJ8)

Surge-coral this variation on yorik coral was used by Yuuzhan Vong priests and military leaders during the ritual of escalation. A small, horn-shape piece of surge-coral was placed inside the shoulder of a worthy Yuuzhan Vong by an implanter, where it was fused to the bone and gave the Yuuzhan Vong a pointed knob at the shoulder which indicated their rank. As a warrior was honored for more and more bravery, he was implanted with more surge-coral. The coral continued to live after implantation, providing a constant and painful reminder of the warrior's service to the Yuuzhan Vong. (JE, BP)

Surgeon's Gambit
a series of moves used in the game of Firepath. (CSWDW)

SuriTech
this small corporation produced a number of chemical detection systems for use on starships. These devices allowed owners to monitor the levels of carbon dioxide and other dangerous chemicals in the air supply, providing early warnings of life support system failure. (PSG)

Surlev
this Imperial Navy Commander served as Barse Neoman's second-in-command aboard the Strike-class cruiser Ion Storm during the last years of the New Order. Surlev was exceedingly loyal to Governor Newen Streeg, a fact that forced Captain Neoman to keep an eye on Surlev. They were ordered to await the arrival of Major Stipling from Yen-2, but when he didn't return Surlev ordered the Ion Storm to the planetoid. There, Surlev discovered that Limna Yith had destroyed the outpost on orders from Sprax, and Surlev vowed to track the Kerestian down and bring her to Imperial justice. He tried to knock out Abek's Station to recover her, but a team of Mal Biron's spacers got to her first. Surlev continued his pursuit, hoping to displace Neoman as commander of the Ion Storm. (SSR)

Surma
this was the largest port city located on the planet Najiba. (BSS)

Surn, Alic
this easy-going gambler was one-half of the most famous brother and sister bounty-hunting team in the galaxy. They worked through the House Neuvalis syndicate. Alic was level-headed in battle, and worked hard to ensure the safety of his sister, Vika. (GG10)

Surn, Vika
this tall, muscular woman was one-half of the most famous brother and sister bounty-hunting team in the galaxy. They worked through the House Neuvalis syndicate. Where her brother Alic was level-headed in battle, Vika was emotionally disturbed and revelled in making the kill. She was hospitalized at a young age, shortly after the deaths of their parents in a speeder wreck. From that point onward, she was mentally unbalanced. She was something of a fitness fanatic, and trained constantly in order to maintain her almost super-human strength. (GG10)

Suroc
this bounty hunter tried to acquire a nashtah for an upcoming hunt on Midani by inquiring with the owner of the Rancor's Den on Andasala. Note that he is also referred to as Turoc in Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations. (GG11)

Surron StarTech
this starship manufacturer was the primary source of Surronian craft. (PP)

Surronian
this race of hive-mind lifeforms had a guild-based society in which each guild maintained its own hive mentality. They produced some interesting starship designs, each of which was a unique artifact displaying their guild's technology. Their ships were originally used only by Surronians, although some have been given as gifts to individuals who have donated their efforts to help the Surronians. Eventually, hit with an economic depression that threatened to unravel their society, the Surronians entered a contract with Rendili StarDrive, and produced the Starlight freighter. With the funds from the sales of the Starlight, the Surronians were able to get back on the road to economic recovery. They also began releasing a "limited edition" of their starship designs to the general public, further increasing their net wealth. (EGV, SS)

Surtsey
a remote city-area on Coruscant. Mon Mothma owned an estate there, after her retirement from running the New Republic. (BTS, TT)

Survey Datapad
much smaller than a directional transponder, this device allows a scout or military field personnel to know their location on a planet by triangulating positions of known orbital and topological features. (ROE)

Survival Cape

Survival Day
this was the name given to the specially-staged fights held at the Dool Arena, located in The Broken Tusk on Reuss VIII. The Gamorrean brothers, Gorge and Greel, opened The Broken Tusk after-hours to top Imperial officers and their staffs. Prisoners who refused to speak under interrogation were given two options: speak, or defeat Tull Raine in one-on-one combat. Most prisoners chose to speak, but more than a few were killed in combat. (WSV)

SurvivalGear
this manufacturing corporation produced a number of wilderness survival tools, such as water purification systems and lightweight cooking systems. (ROE)

Survivor
this was the name of a Corellian Engineering Corporation emergency lifeboat. The Survivor measured 10 meters in length. (CSA)

Survivor's Fund
this was the name used by fighter pilots to denote any sabacc or gambling pot which was left whenever their squadron was called to active duty. Any game interrupted by a combat order had its pot added to the Survivor's Fund, which was distributed to the surviving members of the families of pilots who were killed in the line of duty. (IR)

Survivors
the name used by the descendants of Xim the Despot's followers, the Survivors live in isolation on the planet Dellalt, guarding the secret of the Queen of Ranroon and awaiting the time when another despot rises to power and unlocks the keys to Xim's power. They shun contact with the other humans living on Dellalt, although a number of them have taken jobs in various levels of Dellaltian commerce. These positions allow them to monitor the comings and goings of parties interested in the long-lost treasures of Xim. They keep their total population to around 100 people, to help keep themselves hidden from mainstream life. They have segregated their population into two levels: the workers, who are hypno-imprinted to do what they are commanded to do; and the leaders, who understand the legacy handed down to them from Xim. They wear the ancient clothing and armor used by Xim's forces. Since landing on Dellalt, they have set up a quasi-religion around the search for the High Command and the next galactic despot. The center of this religion is the beacon which they project into space. The beacon contains the clues to Xim's power, which the Survivors believe will be interpretted by the next despot. The Survivors held off during the time of the Old Republic, realizing that they did not have the resources to overthrow the Republic. When the Empire was born and backwater systems like the Tion Hegemony were left to themselves, the Survivors began strengthening their beacon. When Han Solo, Chewbacca, Badure, and Hasti arrive on Dellalt, the Survivors had begun making sacrifices which they believe will strengthen the beacon and help the next despot find them. The Survivors were routed when the Guardian Corp was destroyed. (HSL)

Susejo
one of the first entities consumed by the Sarlacc located in the Great Pit of Carkoon, Susejo's consciousness was contained in the Sarlacc. Susejo infiltrated himself into all of the Sarlacc's victims' minds, trying to obtain some form of amusement. Susejo was a native of the planet Choi. He had been in the Sarlacc for well over four thousand years, and was more than a little insane when Boba Fett was swallowed by it. Susejo amused himself - and the Sarlacc - by tormenting the Sarlacc's victims with stories and jokes. (TJP)

Susevfi
this name was used to describe the moon Suarbi 7/5 by the colonists who tried to tame the world centuries ago. It is a shortening of its official name. (IJ)

Suskafoo
this Verpine was one of Ackbar's assistants, and was a leader of the Shantipole project. He is a prime example of the Verpine's child-like sense of wonder, and his antenna twitch whenever he gets excited. Known to his friends as Foo, he quickly mastered the Basic language. He was also an open supporter of the Alliance, and acted as a go-between for his hive and Ackbar. (SFS)

Sutel, Yald
this Imperial General served the Imperial Remnant as an attache to Vice Admiral Ark Poinard during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

Suthre
one of the four moons orbitting the planet Onderon. (TOJC)

Sutloo
this man was one of the original settlers of the planet Seregar, and eventually went into business for himself. He owned and operated Sutloo's Trading Post, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Sutloo's Trading Post
this general store was located in the jungles outside Storrd Township, on the planet Seregar. (ND)

Suul

Suwantek Systems
manufacturers of TL-series freighters, Suwantek was owned by Sienar Fleet Systems. (SS)

Suzal
the leader of the Five, Suzal delighted in taunting his victims as he tortured them. He captured Han Solo, Leia Organa, and Chewbacca when they were pursued by Vor Childermoss, and brought them all to the Hellhoop. Thinking Chewie to be a dumb animal, he placed the Wookiee in the Menagerie. There, Chewbacca freed the other captives, including the Force Demon Wuzzek. Wuzzek went crazy, exacting revenge for his imprisonment by killing the members of the Five. Suzal was Wuzzek's second victim. (CSWDW)

Svan
a Jomarkian villager encountered by Luke Skywalker and Joruus C'baoth during Luke's brief training with the mad cloned Jedi Master, Svan was involved in a dispute with Tarm. C'baoth administered justice by injuring Svan with Force lightning. (DFR)

Svaper
this creature was originally found on Rodia, but has since been discovered on a number of worlds throughout the galaxy. The average svaper measured up to three meters in length, although older specimens could attain lengths of six meters. They lived in the water and were known as vicious predators. Their thick, coarse scales were highly-colored, and protected the length of the svaper's body. Just behind the head, the scales were elongated into a collection of spines which protected the vulnerable gills. The mouth of the svaper is filled with long, needle-like teeth which is used to grab hold of its prey. Once it caught its prey, the svaper wrapped its muscular body around the prey and dragged it underwater to drown. It then swallowed the prey whole. Rodians often captured large svapers and used them in wrestling contests. (COG)

Svelte-class Shuttle
this Imperial class was built by Silviut Corporation after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. A sleek, fast, and highly maneuverable ship, the Svelte-class shuttle was beetle-shaped and coated with gloss black plating. Measuring 17 meters in length, it required a pilot and co-pilot, 4 gunners, and could accommodate 15 passengers. The wings of the Svelte-class can be raised - similar to the Lambda-class - when under attack. The shuttle is armed with a pair of double blaster cannons and a pair of laser cannons. They were also equipped with hyperdrives. (JASB)

Svivren
a well-defended, major commercial world near Berchest. According to Rebellion, Svivren is located in Sesswenna Sector. It has several major climate zones, including harshly cold mountains and uncomfortably warm plains. (TLC, REB, MJEH, LCSB)

Svivreni
this species of stocky, furred humanoids was native to the planet Svivren. The Svivreni are known for their stubbornness, and their adherence to no-weapons philosophies. They have large, bat-like faces, and their heads are covered with flowing black hair. Svivreni custom demands that adults never trim their hair, as the length of an individual's hair is often regarded as an indication of fertility and intelligence. (LCSB, HR)

SVT-300
this was a model of stun cloak manufactured by Koromondain PDS. (GG10)

SW-7a
advanced ArMek ion cannons. (XW)

Sw'isi
this Mashi Horansi was an Alliance operative who was believed to have deserted his post and returned to Mutanda. A team of Alliance agents discovered that Sw'isi was still loyal to the Alliance, and had returned to Mutanda to gather additional support for the Alliance. The agent who tipped off Alliance Command was discovered to be an undercover Imperial spy who was searching for Sw'isi after the Horansi led several successful raids in the Killaniri System. (PG1)

Swagg
this pirate Captain tried to steal rare, Gungan statues from the sacred swamps around Lake Umberbool, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. Swagg was a humanoid with blue skin and piercing, red eyes. Swagg employed droids for the manual labor, then hoped to reap the benefits of selling the statues to collectors. However, his efforts were thwarted by Rep Been, and Swagg was forced to blast away from his own ship in an escape pod to avoid being captured. However, Swagg burned for revenge, and realized that some of his droids must have survived. He returned to Otoh Gunga and reactivated 3-S and 5-S, and tried to destroy the Lake Umberbool arena. Unfortunately for Swagg, he was intercepted by Captain Tarpals before he could set his explosives. In a fierce struggle, Swagg tried to shoot Tarpals, but the shot went wide and ricocheted back to Swagg. He was hit squarely in the chest, and died of the wound. (E1A10, E1A11, E1A12)

Swain, Pret
originally a native of Alderaan, this man was one of the most powerful information brokers on the planet Socorro at the height of the New Order. His parents were scholars at Alderaan University, but were killed with the planet was destroyed by the first Death Star. Pret was visiting his uncles, Vance Caelli and Rondale Merced, on Socorro at the time. Pret learned the business of doing business on Socorro from Karl Ancher, and was also involved in the acquisition and sale of valuable antiquities and illegal weapons. Pret's father discovered a portrait of Cjaalysce Beal in the ruins near Cjaalysce'I, and presented it to Benoni Ulte. The portrait - named Tehja Larel - was rumored to be accompanied by the spirit of Iann Doaba. Pret owned the Swain Import/Export Emporium in Cjaalysce'I, and used it to dabble in both art and weapons. He later inherited control of the Caelli-Merced Syndicate from his uncles. Pret was also close friends with Rakikta and Kuykenda, hom he rescued from the hold of a slave galleon he captured in the Ottega Sector. (BSS)

Swain Import/Export Emporium
owned and operated by Pret Swain, this well-known business catered in all forms of artwork. While many considered the location to be almost like a museu, everything was for sale. The Emporium was located in the city of Cjaalysce'I, on Socorro. Like many businesses on Socorro, the Emporium was not all the it seemed. In fact, the majority of its customers came to purchase weapons from the showroom hidden below ground. (BSS)

Swallow Mud Marsh
this huge, marshy swamp is located on the planet Baroonda. (RAC)

Swamp Beast
an alien creature found on the planet Trinta, the swamp beast appeared to be an animated mound of compost. It was an entity which had been corrupted by the Dark Side nexus found on the planet, and could sprout claw-tipped arms to capture its prey. (DOE)

Swamp Serpent
a reptile native to the swamps of Marca, the swamp serpent was a sinuous brown-scaled snake which hunted in "schools" of 10-15 members. Like other reptiles, swamp snakes must breathe air, so they nest on the banks of the minimal land on Marca. (POM)

Swamp Shark
a predatory fish native to the swamps of Marca, the average swamp shark measured a meter in length, and was a solitary hunter with little fear. (POM)

Swamp Slug
a huge creature found in the swamps of Dagobah, the swamp slug is a large omnivore with pale skin and large yellow eyes. On top of its head are a pair of thick antennae. The slug swims through the waters of the swamp, sucking small creatures and plants into it long mouth/throat. It then uses its internal muscles to crush the food against thousands of tiny grinding teeth that line its throat. The swamp slug has very few internal organs, aside from its rudimentary brain and its stomach. The swamp slug has been known to attack and devour the dangerous dragonsnake. (ISU)

Swamp Trooper
this type of Imperial scout trooper wore a specialized suit of armor that helped the trooper operate in a humid, swampy environment. The armor protected a specialized, sealed environmet suit. Special breathing apparatus, an emergency flotation package, and enhanced vision equipment provided the ability to move about in the often poisonous atmosphere of a dense swamp. (POM)

Swamp Turkey
this is another name for the nuna. (SW1)

Swamp Worm
this large carnivore was native to the rainforests of the planet Veron. They were at home in the muddy swamps of the coastal regions, lying in the mud and waiting for their prey to walk by too close. The four-meter-long swamp worm would lunge at its prey, often capturing a surprised animal and dragging it into the swamp. (PG1)

Swamp-wriggler
a creature considered a delicacy by Jiliac the Hutt shortly after she became pregnant. Although the wrigglers gave her indigestion, Jiliac believed that the growing fetus needed the nourishment. She continued to eat the creatures after she gave birth. (RD)

Swampcrawler
a six-wheeled vehicle used on Circarpus V to maneuver through the swamps. It has a unique central wheel which is spherical, and allows the crawler to turn almost immediately in response to the terrain. They are often referred to as mudmaulers. (SME)

SwampStunner
this Glottalphib weapon shoots a bolt of energy which induces intense pain when it strikes its target. (TNR)

Swanze
this Alliance agent was a member of the Sandwind Team, and was stationed on Tatooine after the Battle of Yavin. (AIR)

Swarm Bugs
native to the planet Gorsh, this insect traveled in huge swarms, but was more of nuisance that anything. Their chemical makeup produced a great deal of methane inside their bodies, and they often exploded with a loud bang when struck or smashed. (PG1)

Swarm*-class Battle Droid
this Ssi-ruuvi design is a small drone ship powered by enteched life energies. These pyramidal ships were the main assault fighters of the Ssi-ruuvi fleet, and over 1,300 of them were sent to assist in the capture of Bakura. Each Swarm-class drone was packed with power generators for weapons and engines, battery coils to house two enteched life forces, sensors, and a drive unit. The power generators use fusion energy, and produce easily-trackable radiation trails. Maneuverability is achieved through the use of four small thrusters mounted around the outside of the ship. Each thruster can be independently angled to provide incredible turning ability. Each corner of the drone is armed with a laser cannon which has 360-degree rotation. They are remotely controlled by Ssi-ruuvi command cruisers which transmit directions to the drone's enteched life energies. Each Swarm-class drone was armed with four turret-mounter laser cannons, located at each point on the ship's outer hull. (EGV, TBSB)

Swarmer
this species of microscopic insect was native to the planet Karra. Individually, they were harmless. However, they traveled in immense swarms, flying into the eyes and ears of unsuspecting creatures and causing temporary blindness and deafness. The Karrans were able to control groups of swarmers, using them in battle against their enemies. (SWJ1)

Swarquen
a planet. (WBC)

Swaze
this alien race is native to the Jidlor System. The Swaze admired the Rellarin un'Yala for ther wisdom and drive. (GG12)

Swedlan
one of the three primary worlds of the Pimbrellan League, Swedlan is much less hospitable than its neighbor, Dolstan. The atmosphere on Swedlan is not capable of supporting most humanoid life, so cities are built under sealed domes and in underground cave systems. Any financial gains made from trade with Dolstan are used to finance life support facilities. (KO)

Swee-Beeps
Ree-Yees' great-uncle. (TJP)

Sweet Lady from Alderaan
a song Han Solo plays for Leia at his housewarming party on Bespin. (ZHR)

Sweetberry
a fruit-bearing plant native to Belsavis' rift valleys. They are vine-like, and produce a blood-red fruit. (COJ)

Sweetblossom
this flower's extract, while not addicting, is often used by drug addicts who wish to escape from life. It causes the user to be completely aware of their surroundings, but gives them a "who cares...I'l take care of it tomorrow" attitude. Seti Ashgad and Dzym the droch used sweetblossom in an attempt to keep Leia Organa-Solo from escaping their palace on Nam Chorios. (POT)

Sweetmallow
a sticky candy. (ZHR)

Sweetsand Lagoon
this was one of the many simulated environments found on Hologram Fun World. The Lagoon was a water park, and even had simulations of whaladons for visitors' pleasure. (GOF4)

Swen
a group of escort shuttles used by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Swift
this was the name of the freighter used by Ysanne Isard to gain access to the refitted Lusankya, as it sat in drydock at the Bilbringi Shipyards. It was commanded by Captain Wintle. (IR)

Swift Assault 5 Hoverscout
a small reconnaissance vehicle armed with a heavy blaster cannon, a light laser cannon, and a concussion missile launcer. It was built by Mekuun, and requires a crew of 1 pilot and three gunners to operate. Mekuun supplied the SA5 exclusively to the Empire, and armed it with a heavy blaster cannon, a turret-mounted laser cannon, and a concussion missile launcher. (DFRSB)

Swift Liberty
this Victory-II class Star Destroyer was part of the New Republic's growing fleet. It was commanded by Admiral Areta Bell during the struggle against Grand Admiral Thrawn. (IR)

Swift 3
this was a model of repulsorsled produced by Aratech. (ND)

Swift 78A
this vessel courier system is manufactured by BioTech. It is implanted into the head of the “vessel,” and allows the user to jack into a computer system and upload data. The vessel has no ability to control the computer; the system only provides an upload interface. Up to 800 Sks of data can be stored within the vessel. Downloading the data is a quick process, but the upload is often time-consuming. The system is subject to infiltration by computer viruses, although protective software can be added. (CFG)

Swift 78B
this was the second generation of BioTech's vessel courier system, following the Swift 78A system. (FOP)

Swilla Corey
this petty thief was in the Mos Eisley Cantina when Ben Kenobi sliced off Ponda Baba's arm. (CCG2)

Swimmers
another name for the Swimming People of Dellalt. (HSL)

Swimming Crab
a crustacean native to the moon Yavin 4. (GG2)

Swimming People of Dellalt
the race of aquatic sauropteroids native to the planet Dellalt, the Swimming People inhabit the planet's lakes and oceans. They are large creatures, attaining lengths of ten to fifteen meters. They have small heads atop long, muscular necks. They have blowholes instead of nostrils on top of their heads, and their mouths are filled with pointed teeth, which are used to catch fish and other food as well as in battle. They have paddle-like flippers for locomotion, and short, heavy tails. They communicate in a form of speech not unlike Standard, using their mouths to form words. Their eyes are protected by a nictitating membrane. The colors of their hides range from light gray to green and black. They are very territorial, and have evolved a set of Laws to govern their lives. These Laws have provisions for the other races native to Dellalt. (HSL)

Swing-bob
this was another name for the Rughja style of music. (HT)

Swinging Screecher
this arboreal creature was native to the planet Kirtania. (SWJ1)

Swinif Organization
this bounty hunting organization was obscure at its height, during the last years of the Old Republic. (AIR)

Switch
an Alliance modular container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Swivven
one of the four continents discovered on Yavin4 by Lile Gorsek and the Fernandin Scouting Operation. (GG2)

Swokes Swokes
this species of large humanoids has pale, leathery skin which hangs from its body in folds. They have conical heads that sit atop their broad shoulders, with huge eyes and a wide mouth filled with heavy, pointed teeth. Three small horns run up their temples on each side of their head. (YJC1)

Swoop
a small craft, similar to a speederbike, which is highly maneuverable, and is often used as a racing vehicle. The swoop is basically an overpowered respulsorlift engine pod with handlebars. It has a pair of landing skids mounted on its bottom, and a control panel attached to the handlebars. Gangs often use swoops because of their speed and compact design. Han Solo once raced swoops for a living. The basic swoop offered no protection for the rider, and were capable of speeds in excess of 600 kilometers an hour. Some swoops were modified for military use after the success of speeder bikes at Endor. (HSR, DFR, SWSB, EGV)

Swoop Sled
this form of repulsorsled is extremely fast and maneuverable, and is armed with a single laser cannon. (SWJ9)

Swoopchasing
a form of swoop racing, a swoopchase involved negotiating a swoop through an obstacle course. The course consisted of five or more gravity obstacles which pushed or pulled the swoop away from the course. Often, the obstacles involved dangerous consequences for the racers. It was generally accepted that swoopchasing originated on the planet Omman, the brainchild of bored farmers. Over the decades, as the sport became more and more popular, races became sanctioned and league formed to govern the sport. Three of the most prominent courses were located on Socorro, Redcap, and Najiba, and any rider to win all three in succession was guaranteed a place in history. A fourth course on par with these was developed on Neftali. Minor racecourses, used in qualifying heats, were located on Omman, Tatooine, and Garos IV. (BSS)

Sword
a Ripoblus assault shuttle operative during the Sepan Civil War. (TIE)

Sword, Plow, and Spirit
the set of religious beliefs taught to the Kentra by Michael Tandre. (SWAJ)

SW1-04
this was the model number of a series of computer repair droids developed by the Empire. (BI)

SW2
ArMek ion cannons. (XW)

SW3
ArMek ion cannons. (TIE)

SW4
ArMek laser cannons. (SCRE)

SW7
ArMek ion cannons. (SCRE)

SX20
this Corporate Sector Authority patrol skimmmer was a small, two-person, light comba craft. It measured 4.7 meters in length, and was armed with a single laser cannon. (CSA)

Sy Snootles
a Pa'lowick singer with a long snout and skinny legs, Sy Snootles was known as one of the best jizz-wailers in the galaxy when she was employed by Evar Orbus. When Orbus was killed on Tatooine, she suggested to her band-mates that they continue as a trio. She helped rename the Kitonak Snit, giving him the name Droopy McCool, and allowed Max Rebo to become the leader of the band. However, when Max agreed to play for Jabba the Hutt in return for all the food he could eat, she became angry. After arriving at Jabba's palace, Sy was approached by a number of parties to act as a spy against Jabba. She agreed to work for Lady Valarian, but was continually fed false information by Bib Fortuna. When Jabba was killed near the Sarlacc pit, Sy and the band jumped off the sail barge before it was destroyed, and fled into the desert. Following the death of Jabba and the disappearance of Droopy, Sy and Max decided to play for Lady Valarian. Their partnership didn't last long, as Sy struck out on her own. However, her career quickly floundered, and she was reduced to touring backwater planets under a number of aliases. Sy Snootles was portrayed by Annie Arbogast in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi. (ROTJ, TJP, CCG9)

Syayna
this young, female Jazbinan was the daughter of Lord Prepredenko. She was also a member of the Alliance-supporting rebel cell on the planet Jazbina. She and her followers had hoped to convince her father to switch his allegiance to the Alliance, but he refused. Syayna was forced to go underground. When Luke Skywalker arrived on Jazbina on a diplomatic mission, Prepredenko tricked him into "rescuing" Syayna from a group of kidnappers. In reality, Prepredenko used Luke to discover the location of Syayna's rebel cell and arrest its members. Syayna was placed under house arrest and shackled in her rooms at the palace. Syayna pretended to want Luke dead as badly as Prepredenko, and he released her long enough for her to kill Luke. However, Syayna set the blaster to stun and knocked Luke out, then told her father that she would bring Luke's body up to the audience chamber. Instead, she spirited Luke away from the palace and brought him to her cell's hideout. However, they were discovered by Jal Te Gniev and Darth Vader at the same time. Syayna refused to turn over Luke, and in the face of a warehouse full of Jazbinan rebels, Vader elected to leave the planet. She and Raol then decided to dedicate their lives to each other. (VQ)

Sycophant Jolly
one of the many aliases of the Hoopster's Prank. (SOP)

Sycorax
this ancient witch was a native of the planet Necropolis, who claimed she could bring the dead back to life. When the ancient natives of Necropolis believed she was a fake, they killed her own son and demanded that she bring him back to life as proof. Sycorax died of a broken heart, but not before she leveled a curse on the planet's inhabitants. The Curse of Sycorax states that, should the natives of Necropolis ever ignore their dead, the dead would rise up and take control of the planet. Sycorax and her son were supposedly buried in the Crypt of the Ancients. It was later revealed that her corpse was nothing more than rotting bones, and that she had no power to reach beyond the grave.(GOF2)

Sydon Vehicle Works
this small starship manufacturer created the MRX-BR scout ship. (GG6)

Sygor Startech Industries
this powerful corporation was discovered to be the originator of the Event Horizon starfighter engine design. (LAA)

Sykar
this man was the Imperial Governor of Nalroni during the height of the New Order. He also served as an executive on the board of the Nalroni Merchant Council. (PG1, ND)

Sykes, Gavyn
this man was a Lieutenant in the Naboo Royal Security Force at the time of the Trade Federation's blockade of the Naboo System. He performed a number of dangerous reconnaissance and attack missions for the Naboo, leading up to and including the Battle of Naboo and the destruction of the Federation's Droid Control Ship. (OWS)

Sylvar
an ancient Cathar Jedi, Sylvar was apprenticed to Vodo Siosk-Baas shortly before the Great Sirth War. She was in love with Crado, whom she had married for life. She was despised by Exar Kun, one of her fellow students. In a training exercise with their lightsabers, Kun tried to goad her into making mistakes. He eventually pushed Sylvar over the edge, and she clawed him across the right cheek. He nearly killed her, especially when she accused him of not being a true Jedi. During the early times of the Sith War, Sylvar pursued her lover to the Stenness System, where Crado and Oss Willum were trying to kill Master Thon. She chose to fight Crado, and considered him lost to her forever. Sylvar remained loyal to the Jedi throughout the conflict, despite the fact that they allowed Ulic Qel-Droma to live after his alliance with Exar Kun killed Crado and nearly destroyed the Jedi Knights. During the Exis Convocation ten years later, Sylvar's voice was strongest in denouncing the Jedi's lack of action against Ulic. In an effort to divert her energies, Tott Doneeta took her to Ryloth with him, during his attempt to heal the rift between the Doneeta and R'lyek clans. Sylvar, skirting with the Dark Side of the Force in her hatred of Ulic, roused the Doneeta clan into a killing frenzy and nearly brought them into a war with the R'lyek. Tott avoided the conflict, and was forced to return Sylvar to Cathar. There, she met with Kharr and went on a blood hunt to try and regain her focus. Unfortunately, she slaughtered an entire colony of kiltiks before realizing that she was falling deeper into the Dark Side. When she learned that Vima Sunrider had traveled to Rhen Var to train under Ulic, Sylvar returned to Exis Station to offer her assistance to Nomi in an effort to locate Vima. However, Nomi had already left, so Sylvar hired Hoggon to take her to Rhen Var, where she hoped to kill Ulic once and for all. She confronted him, and when Ulic refused to kill her in battle, Sylvar found she didn't have the heart to kill him either. She powered her lightsaber off, but was unprepared for Hoggon's appearance. The little man shot Ulic in the back, believing that he had killed the greatest traitor to the Jedi order. Sylvar nearly killed Hoggon for his insolence, but let him escape. (DLS, TSW, EGC, TOJR)

Sylvn
this yong Cerean woman was the daughter of Ki-Adi-Mundi and his honor-wife, Mawin. Like many teenagers, Sylvn was troubled by her loyalty to her family and her desire to fit in with her friends. She often sided with her friends, who were demanding the import of technology, rather than with her father. However, as her boyfriend Maj-Odo-Nomor was implicated in the death of another youth at t pro-tech rally, she was thrust into an existence she couldn't condone. When Maj started showing affection to Twin, rather than Sylvn, her resolve to listen closer to her father's words deeped. Meanwhile, to protect his "investment," Ephant Mon took Maj, Twin, and Sylvn to Tatooine for safe keeping. They stowed away on a transport ship, but were sharing the ship with divvik pupae. The pupae hatched into adults, threatening them all until Ki arrived to rescue them. The Chevin used Sylvn's presence as a lure to guide Ki. (PTR)

Symer
this beast, native to Serat, was the only known predator of the tymp. A healthy population of symers kept the population of the scavenging tymps to a minimum. Unfortunately for the Seratians, they believed that the organs and appendages of the symer contained mystical powers, and killed the predators just to obtain them. The destruction of the symer population allowed the tymps to reproduce at a prodigious rate, which eventually threatened to eliminate the supplies of roti consumed by the Seratians. (COG)

Symmetric Cloud-Vee Formation
an attack posture used by small starfighters. (HTTE)

Syn
a tough, synthetic fabric used to make tents. (SE)

Syncronics
this corporation produced reflective body gloves that helped the wearer survive a blaster shot. (GG10)

Syndaar
this planet served as the Imperial capital world of Thrasybule Sector. (ND)

Syndaar Military Academy
this military prep school was the most prestigious of the Imperial-sponsored academies in Thrasybule Sector. (ND)

Syndic
this is a title of respect used on many planets throughout the galaxy. (EGC, VOF)

Syndicat
this large, criminal organization took control of the planet Phindar some years before the Battle of Naboo. They kept the general populace poor and needy, so that hundred would line up for a single loaf of bread, rather than worry about rebelling against the Syndicat. The Syndicat went so far as to blockade the planet Phindar, to maintain its hold on the Phindians. It was led by the Phindian Baftu and his assistant, Terra, when Guerra and Paxxi Derida tried to enlist the help of Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi in freeing Phindar form the Syndicat. The Syndicat went so far as to remove the memories of anyone suspected of acting against it, then set them free on another world as punishment. Sometimes, memory-wiped Phindians were let loose on Phindar itself, although far from their homes. This process was known as "renewal." The Syndicat began supporting Prince Beju of Gala, in his bid to win the general elections there, in the hopes of taking control of the planet Gala as well. This would allow them to extend their influence and increase their profits. However, their plans were exposed by the Derida brothers with the help of the Jedi, and the Syndicat was destroyed when Baftu was captured by the Phindian resistance. (HP)

Syndicate One
this organization was formed from the marketing division of Trigdale Metallurgy. Following the Battle of Endor, Trigdale cut off several of its subordinate divisions. Saujutta-Ok-Topii, the Director of Marketing at the time, recognized the potential strengths of her division, and took much of her own personal savings to form Syndicate One on Valgauth. The new corporation became known as a weapons manufacturing and distribution business. (SWJ8)

Syned
this cold, ice-covered planet is located on the outer fringe of its system, and was devoid of natural life. However, a small outpost sprang up under protective domes and in underground cities. The outpost quickly grew into a bustling transfer station, mainly because of its proximity to the Duros Space Run, and was eventually garrisoned by the Empire. (GMH)

Syngia Moon
this world is known as a vacation paradise. (DR)

Syngranite

a building material (COTF)

Synsilk
a fabric used for bedclothes. (LCM)

Synstone
a building material made from natural rock. The rock is crushed and mixed into a slurry with chemical dissolvants. It is then cast or sprayed onto the frame of a building to harden. The resulting synstone covering is much stronger and more resistant than natural stone. (SE)

Synth-harmonica
a musical instrument. (HR)

Synth-sapph
this form of lab-created gemstone is often used in place of real sapphires. Wealthy people use synth-sapphs to discourage would-be thieves. (TBH)

Synth-steel
a material used in construction, synth-steel was as strong as pure steel, but less costly. (E1A5)

Synthax-7
this voice synthesizer was developed by SoroSuub, and allowed beings who lacked adequate vocal cords to converse in a normal manner. The Synthax-7 was implanted in the throat, so that the user appeared to be talking without assistance. (WSV)

Synthdroid
manufactured by Loronar Corporation after the formation of the New Republic, synthdroids were mechanical constructs which had sculpted synthflesh grown over their metal armatures. They had minimal internal computing power, since their actions were centrally controlled via the use of CCIR technology. Loronar supplied a number of synthdroids to Seti Ashgad and Dzym during their attempt to take control of the galaxy, for synthdroids proved to be excellent workers. Even when the Death Seed plague was consuming the synthflesh, the droid armature kept right on working. However, the synthdroids' central processor was destroyed by Leia Organa-Solo during her escape from Ashgad's Hweg Shul fortress, and they were unable to stop her. (POT)

SyntheCure Spray
this was a type of sprayable plasto-cast. (FOP)

Syntherope
this strong, lightweight cord is found in many survival packs. (RASB)

SyntheTech
the company which manufactures AA-1 VerboBrains. (SWSB, IG1)

Synthflesh
a synthetic skin used to cover and bind wounds until the natural skin can heal. It is a quasi-living material. (HSR, DFR, POT)

Synthleather
as its name implies, this is a form of synthetic leather used to cover furniture. (TFNR)

Synthoweb
this form of netting was used by miners and zero-g craftsmen, because it was durable and could conform to almost any shape. Miners used it as a way to hold lanterns atop their heads while working deep in mine shafts. (JH)

Synthplas
this incredibly strong material was used to create domes, which were used on inhospitable planets to form contained living areas. (BP)

Synthplate
this material was known for its strength and durability, and was often used to form security locks. (CCC)

Synthtech Medtech Corporation
this medical corporation produced a wide range of medical scanners and irradiation boxes for military and field use. (FOP, PSG)

Synthtone
a musical instrument that creates the sounds of other instruments using electronics. (ISU)

Syp
a tree native to the planet Ossel II, it is harvested by the Ossan for its beautiful wood. (GG4)

Syren
a flowering, carnivorous plant native to Kashyyyk, the syren grows on the floor of the dense jungle. The syren plant has two oval-shaped, yellow petals which grow atop a thick, blood-red stalk. In the center of the two petals is a mass of glossy, white fibers that exude a wide variety of pheromones. These pheromones, in turn, attract a wide variety of wildlife. When a creature touches the inner surface of a petal, they clamp shut and secrete digestive fluids to consume the prey. The Wookiees of Kashyyyk, as a test of bravery and maturity, send a group of young Wookiees to the jungle floor to harvest the fibers. The stronger Wookiees hold the petals open while others remove the fibers, which are used to form strong ropes. (HTF, TEP)

Syron Aalun
this was one of the three ruetsavii sent to chronicle and criticize the life of Ooryl Qrygg. (BW)

System Patrol Craft
fast, powerful sublight ships used by the Empire as customs inspection ships as well as search-and-rescue ships. (WEG, DFR)

Systems Control
a Star Destroyer crew which is in control of the ship's computer systems. (DFR)

Systems Infiltration Manager
this small computer module was designed by the programmer Malik for the Empire. It was, at heart, a high-powered problem solver, with programming that gave it the ability to get inside a starship's basic programming and take it apart. Eventually the SIM, as it was called, would take complete control of the starship. Disguised as the Systems Integration Manager, the module was allowed onto the Star of Empire to be tested as a navigation system. Malik got the module installed, and began running the programs to evacuate the ship's passengers and crew. However, at the last moment, Malik refused to enter the necessary codes to free the SIM program to take complete control of the ship. The program tortured him by locking him and room and modifying the environment. The SIM program was able to control life support as well as the droid population of the ship, and sent out several bands of maintenance droids to kill off any of the passengers and crew that remained aboard. In the meatime, the SIM program had found another ally in the yougn boy, Zak

Arranda. Zak believed that the SIM program was trying to help, and unwittingly entered the necessary codes. SIM came to life and took control of the Star of Empire. The survivors managed to escape from SIM and the ship by merely waiting the program out and taking a big chance when the opportunity came. Hoole managed to reach teh Shroud and Dash Rendar recovered the Outrider, and then shot a pair of proton torpedoes into the engines of the Star of Empire. They then sent a message to the Alliance, giving them the location of the ship. SIM, however, managed to download itself into the computer banks of a nearby space station, and waiting until it could insinuate itself into another starship. (GOF10)

Systems Integration Manager
this false cover was supposed to be a device hailed as the next generation in shipboard computers by the Empire. The primary difference between a droid or a navigational computer and the SIM (as it was referred to) was that the SIM could actually decide for itself where to go and how to get there. However, SIM was not what it seemed to be. In fact, the real name for the computer was Systems Infiltration Manager, and it was designed to take control of an enemy ship after being inserted into its computer core. (GOF10)

Sythluss Leethe
this Sluissi owned and operated the modified YT-1300 freighter known as The Maker. In order to prevent the ship from being stolen, Leethe installed a wide range of security and anti-theft systems aboard the ship. Leethe was a black market droid manufacturer, and often traveled in his ship under the false identification of the One Shot. Unfortunately for Leethe, T'Charek Haathi and her Alliance shipjacking team managed to get by The Maker's systems and steal the ship. (SWJ13)

Syub Snunb
a Sullustan, Syub Snunb served as part of the Sullustan Home Guard, protecting his planet from pirates and other invasions. When the leaders of Sullust decided to seceed from the Empire, they appointed Syub to be the commander to lead the Alliance's fleet to the Sullust System, prior to the Battle of Endor. He was chosen to command the escort frigate Antares Six, which he did with pride until being promoted to the command of the Resolve in the newly-commissioned Fifth Battle Group. (DE1, DESB, BTS)

Syvris
this moon, located on the border between Hutt space and Imperial-controlled space, was subjugated by Imperial forces shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Many of the moon's residents were smugglers, who lived and worked at a shadowport located in its largest crater. They believed that the shadowport's location had been given to the Empire by Basz Maliyu. The shadowport had been run by Rance, but he perished in the attack. (SWJ13)

Syward
this was the chief port city of the planet Lavisar. (IF)

Syychi
this albino Wookiee was a partner of Memcha-Badawzi, working on the planet Neftali as the second-in-command of the Cordel Cove starport. Syychi was a former slave who was born on Vizcarra and never saw the Wookiee homeworld of Kashyyyk. Syychi was used on several Imperial projects, and was constantly moved from remote camps to the Vizcarra prison. During transport back to Vizcarra, Syychi found herself sharing a cell with Memcha. The Twi'lek inspired Syychi to rise above her captors, and the pair incited a slave revolt and overpowered their Imperial captors. Memcha and Syychi the fled to Neftali at the bidding of Mecha's father, Abdi-Badawzi, and took up the manegement of the Cordel Cove operations. (BSS)

Szechual
this species of tree was native to the fourth moon of Yavin. (GG2)

S1BR
a SoroSuub blaster weapon. (WG)

S12-series Droid
a series of cylindrical droids produced by Industrial Automaton. (CRO)

S2R
this was a series of scientific droids produced by TelBrinTel during the height of the New Order. Originally designed to Imperial military specifications, the S2R series had the ability to "brainstorm" due to the use of an advanced protocol chip. They were deployed in laboratories which focused on biological and chemical warfare, as well as armor and guidance system development facilities. (SWJ13)

S2R(A)
this was the civilian verson of the TelBrinTel S2R science droid. It had the same capabilities as the military version - including the ability to "brainstorm" - but was hard-wired so that it could not knowingly work on weapons projects. (SWJ13)

S87 Dynamo
Gurian's hovercraft power plany dynamo, similar to that used on Mekuun's Hoverscout combat vehicle. (ISB)

* T *

T. Chamber
a group of container ships used by Galactic Electronics to supply the Pondut research station. (TIE)

T-c40
the designation of a Kuat Drive Yards ion engine. (EGV)

T-C9
Loratus' hover transport vehicle, this armored troop carrier was used by the Alliance during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War. Armed with a pair of anti-armor blasters, the T-C9 couuld carry up to six stormtroopers into the midst of battle. (FC)

T-Force
a group of Alliance Corvettes helping the Tantive IV elude Imperial detection. (XW)

T-series Protocol Droid
this series of protocol droids was created by the Empire. (SH)

T-s5
Seinar Fleet System's Proton Torpedo Launching system used on the TIE Bomber. (SCRE)

T-s7b
an early version of Seinar Fleet System's Targeting Computer, used on the TIE Bomber. (SCRE)

T-s8
an early version of Seinar Fleet System's Targeting Computer, used on the TIE Fighter. (SCRE)

T-s9a
a new version of Seinar Fleet System's Targeting Computer, used on the TIE Interceptor. (SCRE)

T-type Starship
this is another name for the Aramadia-class thrustship. (TT)

T-Wing
a starfighter developed by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War, the T-Wing never gained much acceptance among pilots. It was a fast craft, but was only armed with 2 laser cannons, and was equipped with weak shielding - 20 SBD primary shields and a hull rated at 15 RU. It was a three-winged ship, with one engine mounted on each wingtip. It was a 10-meter-long ship with a top speed of about 110 MGLT. (TIE)

T-11
this JV-Z1/S databank droid served the Old Republic as a military tactics specialist. It was programmed with the details of thousands of skirmishes and battles, from feudal spats to incredible space campaigns. When the New Order was instituted, T-11 was poorly reprogrammed by Imperial engineers to pilot a garbage scow. The slicer who did the reprogramming failed to re-initialize several of T-11's memory circuits, and this didn't mesh well with its new programming. T-11 underwent several mutations of its basic subroutines, and its pattern of thought became erratic. The droid developed several distinct personalities, and disappeared only three months after its reprogramming. The droid and its garbage scow were eventually discovered by the Kaarenth Dissension, and was again destined for reprogramming. However, the personality in control of T-11 rebelled and would not condone a memory wipe. The master of the droid pool grew exhausted trying to fix T-11, and eventually assigned it to keep the Dissension's Skipray Blastboats ready for immediate takeoff. T-11 was quite paranoid, and felt that it was being stalked most of the time. (SWJ8)

T-12
this small droid assisted Ulic Qel-Droma in his search for Sith information on Onderon. (DLS)

T-13
an airspeeder built by Incom for terrestrial transportation. (WEG)

T-14
this was the designation of the hyperdrive generator used on many Nubian starship designs, often mated to the 327 hyperdrive unit. (TPM, X1)

T-1583
this Imperial research and development space station was attacked and overtaken by Sard Nightbringer and her forces, during their attempt to rid Tamarin Sector of Imperial control during the early years of the New Republic. Sard discovered that the Imperial researchers had been working on a new form of body armor which was protected by a new form of shields, and she decided to auction it off to the highest bidder in order to obtain funds for her organization. (POC)

T-16
a three-winged, triangular craft built by Incom for terrestrial transportation. Similar in controls to an X-Wing, they are often referred to as skyhoppers. The T-16 was equipped with an E-16/x ion engine afterburner, in addition to a pair of DCJ-45 repulsorlift engines, which gave it a top cruising speed of 1,200 kilometers per hour, as well as a 300 kilometer ceiling. The 5.2-meter craft was armed only with four stun lasers, and carried no shields. The top two lasers can be removed in favor of a targetting lasers, and the lower two lasers can be replaced with pneumatic cannons. Luke Skywalker's uncle Owen Lars purchased a T-16 for him to use on Tatooine, which Luke used to fly the canyons and shoot womprats. (SW, SWSB, EGV)

T-21
BlasTech's light repeating blaster. According to the CCG, the T-21 is the long, thick-barreled stormtrooper weapon. (RPG, CCG)

T-23
an old model of skyhopper, similar to a T-16 in that its controls are very close to thos eof an X-Wing. (HTF)

T-238
a chemical weapon that induces severe nausea when dispersed. (ISB)

T-289
this gas-filled stun grenade was manufactured by Czerka. (PP)

T-35
an Imperial tug. (XW)

T-3PO
this silver protocol droid served aboard the Subjugator. T-3PO was roughly humanoid, with insectile plating. Programmed with a harsh, female personality, her years of service aboard the Victory-class Star Destroyer made her hate the humans who treated her as a tool. Her programming kept her loyal to the Empire, but it also gave her a sense of being and worth. When the Subjugator was attacked by an Alliance fleet, T-3PO's programming told that she was superior to the other droids on the ship, and so she had to survive the encounter. As the other droids deserted their posts in the confusion, T-3PO realized that her only hope was to follow the Alliance agents accompanying Walex Blissex. It is unknown if T-3PO survived the destruction of the Subjugator. (SF)

T-33
this type of plasma torpedo was known as a shieldbuster, or a rotten egg. The T-33 was designed to detonate at a shield's perimeter, creating in intense radiation burst. This burst was several times more powerful that the combined power of a capital ship's ion cannons, and knocked out the target's shield generators. This allowed particle weapons to finish off the target. The T-33 was one of the New Republic's strongest weapons. (SOL)

T-4a
designation of Cygnus Spaceworks' Lambda-class shuttle. It measures 20 meters in length, has a crew complement of 4, and is armed with 10 Taim & Bak KX5 laser cannons. It has been rated at a top speed of 65 MGLT, with 100 SBD shields and a 25 RU hull. (XW, TIE)

T-40
this was a model of flitter built by Incom during the Galactic Civil War. They could be armed with a double laser cannon for police and paramilitary use. (ML)

T-47
an Incom airspeeder which can transport 2 passengers and limited cargo. Because of the T-47's 250 kilometer ceiling, the Alliance modified them for military use on the frozen world of Hoth. Alliance technicians added two fire-linked laser cannons, a power harpoon, and heavier shields. (ESB, RPG)

T-6
this BlasTech heavy blaster pistol was known to soldiers as the Thunderer. (WSV)

T-6 Diodem
this device, produced on the planet Arda-2, was used in starfighter targetting controls to establish a positive lock on a target. The natives of Arda-2 produced them for use by the Alliance, but they also produced a non-military version for certain household service devices. Mag Doum secretly recovered used home-service diodems and sold them to the Empire at significant markups. The Empire then installed them in TIE Fighters, and used them to attack Alliance starships. Luke Skywalker went to Arda-2 to protest what the Alliance saw as a direct sale of the T-6 to the Empire, and uncovered Mag Doum's plot. (CSWEA)

T-65AC4
this version of the Incom X-Wing starfighter as produced about ten years after the Battle of Endor. It had speed to match an A-Wing, but was still as rugged and sturdy as the original X-Wings. The AC4's incorporated numerous advances in targetting, fire control, and power distribution. Armament remained similar to the original. (JASB)

T-65A3
one of the many improved designs of the Incom Industries X-Wing starfighter, the A3 was developed during the second decade of the New Republic. It boasted improved shielding and lasers, both of which required less power to operate, but were more efficient and accurate to use. It was bested in its generation only by the T-65XJ model developed for use by the Jedi Knights. One of the main upgrades on the T-65A3 was the secondary fire button on the command stick. It allowed the pilot to fire in a cycling, single-laser pattern no matter how the weapons were fire-linked. This secondary fire was shot out with less power than normal, allowing the weapons to cycle rapidly. This proved to be of use against the coralskippers of the Yuuzhan Vong, as it allowed pilots to pour larger amounts of energy into their black-hole shields, causing the shields to collapse. Regular firepower could then be used to punch through the coralskippers' rocky exterior.(DTO)

T-65b
an early version of the Incom X-Wing. (SWSB, RASB)

T-65BR
this version of the standard X-Wing starfighter was developed for use as a reconnaissance craft during the early years of the New Republic. The proton torpedo launchers were removed and replaced with high-gain long-range sensors. The T-65BR relied heavily on the use of an astromech, which acted not only as a navigational aid but as an automated controller of the sensor packages. Each T-65BR was also rigged with a deadman self-destruct system, which would destroy the ship if the pilot was ever killed in combat. This ensured that any data recovered by the ship would be lost and untraceable. (CTD)

T-65c A2
a modified version of the Incom X-Wing. (SWSB, RASB)

T-65D-A1
this version of the Incom X-Wing starfighter was introduced about seventeen years after the Battle of Endor. This X-Wing replaced the astromech R2 unit with additional computer power, providing more maneuverability and increased in-flight options for the pilot. The New Republic began replacing its old, aging T-65As with the T-65D-A1, until Cole Fardreamer discovered that their new shipboard computers were rigged with Imperial detonation devices. The computers had been built under the direction of Dolph, who planned to detonate them from Almania at a specified time. Cole found the detonators while repairing Luke Skywalker's old X-Wing, which was being refitted with the new computers. He showed the detonators to Wedge Antilles, who had originally ordered the newer X-Wings to replace the old ones. Wedge began recalling the newer ships before they could explode, and new computer systems were ordered to replace the rigged ones. (TNR)

T-65R
this version of the standard Incom X-Wing starfighter was designed for surveillance and reconnaissance. Known as a snoopscoot, it employed a pair of sensor pods which trailed behind the ship to gather data on a nearby world. The sensor equipment could be jettisoned if the ship was attacked, and the pods recovered later. The T-65R lacked weapons, so it was often accompanied by other starfighters. (IR)

T-65XJ
this heavily-modified version of the durable X-Wing starfighter was developed two decades after the Battle of Endor by Incom. Among the enhancements over the original models, the XJ had three proton torpedo launchers, each of which carried three torpedoes. The XJ series ship also had improved fire-linking capability, with the ability to link the four laser cannons in specific patterns of fire, rather than just combinations of the four guns. Thus the weapons could be configuration to fire a pair of dual bursts - from any combination of cannons - followed in the cycle by a single quad burst from all four cannons. Two of these ships found their way into the small fleet maintained by Kyp Durron. (VP, JE, BP)

T-70
an outdated model of landspeeder. Luke Skywalker owned one on Tatooine, before he sold it to pay for his passage to Alderaan. (COJ)

T-71
a model of skyhopper. (GOF4)

T-77
an experimental airspeeder used by Luke Skywalker and Kam Solusar while exploring the planet Ossus. (DE2)

T-81
this was a version of Incom airspeeder developed after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. (SOP)

T'achak T'andar
this hyperactive little alien was a scout and explorer who worked as part of the crew of the FarStar, during the New Republic's hunt for Moff Sarne. (KR)

T'ar Ta'avon
this Chadra-Fan ran a starship repair facility on the outskirts of Romar's primary spaceport. Known as an outlaw tech, most spacers weren't sure if the cheerful little alien was an engineering genius or a crazed tinkerer. He could fix most things, but often found other things to "improve" while he was working. (PSG)

T'bac
a leaf that is dried and smoked for the nic-i-tain rush it provides. (TME)

T'cha, Uta
this woman was a former Sabiador slaver, and a confederate of Khzam during that time. She lef the slavers to start her own business, selling and repairing droids. She found work in the planet Pitann, and eventually worked with Sho'ban Do to set up the gladiator droid wars that became popular there. She was working on a program that would allow a remote user to override a droid's control program, which Do hoped to steal and use to control his droid army. Uta helped the crew of the FarStar exposed Do's treachery, but demanded that she be transported out of the Kathol Republic to avoid reprisals from Do's supporters. (KO)

T'Charek Haathi
this young Wroonian woman was bored with her childhood, bored with her parents, and bored with life. She was accepted to train with the Wroonian defense, and within a year was piloting a starfighter for the home fleet. However, the regimented life of a pilot didn't appeal to her, and she joined a group of squadronmates and went rogue. Their numbers were decimated in a skirmish with Imperial forces, and she fled to Rodaj. There, she convinced some of the miners - including Ivhin Jayme and Morgan Q. Raventhorn - to join the Alliance, and she was initially placed in Starfighter Command as a pilot. Once again, T'Charek was at odds with the prescribed life of a military pilot, and she was offered a position in the Special Operations team. She finally founfd her niche, worked as a remote operative with a small team of shipjackers, obtaining much-needed freighters and starships for the Alliance. (SWJ13)

T'doshok
Trandoshans use this term to describe themselves. (CCG7)

T'iaz
one of the Emperor Palpatine's Dark Side warriors, T'iaz was part of the group that accompanied the dying Emperor to Korriban, in search of a way to halt the decay of his last clone body. He was severely wounded by Rayf Ysanna on Onderon, when Palpatine tried to steal the body of Anakin Skywalker. (EE)

T'iin-t'iin Dwarves
a race of small, intelligent rodents of unknown origins. (SWR)

T'ill
a fragrant, flowering plant native to Alderaan, the t'ill is also quite attractive to look at. Extracts created from the t'iil are used to soothe the pain of a sore throat. (SWR, JPL, GF)

T'ill-t'iil
a sparkling alcoholic drink similar to champagne, served chilled for best flavor. (HSL)

T'jaleq Kith'Araquia
this noted Araquia Doctor and epidemiolgist was credited with identifying the disease known as the Direllian Plague. Kith'Araquia also discovered that Shiarha roots were effective in treating the disease. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, Doctor Kith'Araquia was wanted by the Empire for supposed terrorist activity. He was known to be a dedicated to and passionate about preserving the rainforests of his homeworld of Kirtania, and he also had a wicked sense of humor. He was also a pacifist, but realized that his people needed to something in order to throw off the Imperial yoke. When a group of Alliance agents arrived on Kirtania to obtain a cure for the Direllian Plague, Kith'Araquia enlisted their help in planning as assault on the local Imperial base. In the aftermath of the battle, Kith'Araquia and his forces collected a huge number of Shiarha roots for use in combatting the Plague. (SWJ1)

T'kor
this was the name of the Kriek god who controlled the heat storms which swept across the planet Kriekaal. (SWJ13)

T'laerean Larn
this young, Sullustan male discovered that he was sensitive to the Force while growing up on his homeworld of Gelgelar. T'laerean learned that he could enter the mind of another creature, starting with the reeho birds and small primates of the swampy jungles. T'learean had to have physical contact with his companion, but then could place his own consciousness inside the mind of the other creature. T'laerean could then travel a short distance within the companion, and had to return the creature to his sleeping form in order to return to his own body. T'laerean trained under the Wise Man of Kooroo, but was impetuous and young. While melding with a reeho bird, T'laerean learned of a Glarsaur attack on his village. Unfortunately, the reeho was caught by the child Reanyn, who mother planned to kill the bird and use it in a stew. This would have left T'larean's mind adrift. The situation worsened when Reanyn believed T'laerean was dead in his bed, having fallen into a deep sleep while controlling the bird. Although the reeho managed to escape, it was soon captured by a Glarsaur who tried to eat it alive. His consciousness suddenly fled back to his body as the reeho died, but T'laerean had a headache for many days after. (SWJ14)

t'landa Til
this race of sentients is distantly related to the Hutts, although they have a very different physiology. Native to Nal Hutta, the t'landa Til race resembles the Berrite race, having a sout body supported by four thick legs. However, the t'landa Til are much larger than Berrites, standing about two meters tall at the shoulder. Their heads are attached to their bodies by a shprt, humped neck, and their legs end with huge, padded feet. Their skin is thick and oily, and hangs from their huge bodies in heavy folds and wrinkles. The t'landa Til also had two thin arms which ended in four delicate fingers. Their bodies ended in thin, whiplike tails that they carried curled atop their backs. They enjoy keeping their skin moist by immersing themselves in mudpits, alleviating the burden of carrying their immense bulk on their short legs. They also sleep in specially-designed hammocks that support them without the need for a bed. T'landa Tils have two separate hearts and three separate stomachs. (TPS, THG)

T'nnac, Velastor
Cryle Cavv assumed this identity during his mission to recover Rivoche Tarkin from the Empire. T'nnac was a minor Imperial Lord who favored brilliantly-colored clothing. (SWJ12)

T'Noull, Gandin
this slick businessman was known for his ability to make a deal with just about anyone. He was hired by the Ace Entertainment Corporation to manage the day-to-day operations of the Ace of Sabres, a long way from his first job selling used landspeeders. He was a graduate of Savvlock's School of Big Business, and was known to never get caught, even if a deal went bad. (WSV)

T'nun Bdu
this dapper Sullustan merchant worked his way up from the bottom of the shipping business, from being a mate on his uncle's ships to earn money, and eventually buying his own ship. After making some more money, he traded up to purchase a battered old CR90 corvette. He offered his assistance in shipping supplies for the Alliance and the New Republic, until his untimely death. His New Republic supply convoy, en route to Dantooine to supply the Eol Sha colonists, was attacked by Admiral Daala. Her Star Destroyers lay in wait in the Cauldron Nebula, after discovering the existence of the colony. T'nun Bdu was in command of the convoy, which was stripped of its cargo and set free. Bdu himself was interrogated and then released, and was given just enough time to send a distress call to the Republic before Daala's ships destroyed the convoy. (DA, JASB)

T'racen, Dunc
this young Mistryl woman was teamed up with Shada D'ukal shortly after the Battle of Endor, so that the younger woman could learn more about the galaxy around her. When the two Mistryl were contracted to transport Ghitsa Dogder, Fenig Nabon, and a cargo of Twi'leki dancers from Ryloth to Nal Hutta, both Mistryl tried to renege on the deal, claiming it was slavery. However, their investigation into the contract and their interviews with the dancers revealed nothing illegal. Nonetheless, Dunc was constantly at odds with Ghitsa during their flight. Ghitsa needled her at every opportunity, and it was all Dunc could do to keep from shooting her dead. (TFNR)

T'rinn
an alien race covered with feathers. (HSL)

T'un
this wizened old Jedi Master was in charge of maintaining the records of the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, during the 60 years leading up to the Battle of Naboo. (UP)

Ta'a Chume
the Queen Mother of the Hapan worlds, she is a devious woman who gave birth to two sons. She would stop at nothing to see her elder son married to a powerful new queen, but he was a pacifist and - in her mind - a weakling. So, she had him assassinated in order to elevate her younger son, Isolder, to the position of heir. When Isolder fell in love with Elliar, Ta'a Chume disagreed with his selection. She also had Elliar murdered, and pushed Isolder to marry a more fitting wife. Ta'a Chume also had a dislike for the Jedi Knights, and when she meets Luke Skywalker, the dislike only increases when Luke bests her in gaining information on Han Solo's whereabouts. She allowed the Old Republic some measure of respect, but when it crumbled and the Empire took over, she became a brutal leader, firming up the Hapan armed forces to keep the Imperials at bay. The Hapan worlds have since enjoyed a measure of prosperity, and Ta'a has been reduced to keeping the various factions from killing each other's heirs in attempts to gain the throne. She pretended to agree to her son Isolder's proposed marriage to Princess Leia, but she was secretly against it, feeling that Leia would bring nothing but the downfall of the Hapan government. She arranged for an assassination attempt on Leia's life, but it failed. Isolder, upon hearing of this, also accused her of killing his former betrothed, Elliar, and his older brother. Ta'a Chume eventually backed off, and let Isolder marry the Dathomirian "princess" Teneniel Djo. When Tenel Ka was born, Ta'a Chume began doting on the child, in hopes that she could twist the child into a "proper" Hapes Queen. In this effort, however, she failed, and Tenel Ka became a full Jedi. Ta'a Chume, it was later revealed, had something to do with the attempt by a group of Bartokk assassins to kill Tenel Ka, and she was forced to step down as Queen Mother and relinquish the throne to Teneniel Djo. (CPL, EGC, JE)

Ta'ania
one of the original colonists to populate Eol Sha, and an illegitimate descendant of a former Jedi Knight. (JS)

Ta'laam Ranth
this Gotal Senator to the New Republic was in charge of the Senate Justice Council during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. She oversaw the deposition of Senator Viqi Shesh, during the investigation of the events leading up to the debacle at the Battle of Fondor. (JE)

Taadus, Grenvil
this man served as an Imperial medical corpsman and combat surgeon on Bakura, during the rule of Governor Wilek Nereus. Taadus did not embrace the Empire, remaining as neutral as he could during the Galactic Civil War. During the Bakura Incident, it was Taadus who tried to keep Dev Sibwarra alive after his escape from the Ssi-ruuk. Unfotunately, Sibwarra's injuries were too grave to survive. Taadus later accompanied Petr Thanas in embracing the fledgling New Republic, and eventually served as a medical officer aboard the medical frigate Mercy. (TBSB)

Taal
this was the title given to the single, neutral leader of the four Aramandi akia. (AE)

Taal, Philo
this young man was the older brother of Reglis Taal. Philo was hunted down and killed by two bounty hunters, Krestock and Raxine, even though there was never a bounty placed on his head. Reglis eventually hunted Krestock and Raxine down and executed them for their parts in Philo's Death. (GG10)

Taal, Reglis
this man turned into a bounty hunter after his older brother, Philo, was shot and killed by Krestock and Raxine. Both believed that Philo was wanted, but there was never an official bounty posted for his capture. Reglis was just nineteen at the time, and hunted both of them down and executed them for their part in Philo's Death. Taal later documented his life in the autobiography, Endings and Beginnings: An Autobiography. (GG10)

Taan, Cather
this stocky man owned and operated Cather Taan's Gun Shop, in the Storrd Township of the planet Seregar. The only decent arms dealer in the area, Taan was known for his knowledge of weapons and his stoic demeanor. He never bargained or traded, standing firm on his prices. His repair work was first-rate, another indication that his prices were fair, if not a bit higher than normal. (ND)

Taanab
a planet whose inhabitants were aided by Lando Calrissian in turning away a group of raiding Norulac pirates. The Empire used Taanab as a major food production facility. Note that X-Wing Rogue Squadron: Requiem for a Rogue names this planet as Taanad. (ROTJ, SWAJ, XWRR)

Taanab Exercise
this training exercise was designed by Luke Skywalker to train his new Jedi Knights. It involved trying to determine what the correct course of action would be in averting a flood that threatened a group of villagers. The students were required to investigate the available data and decide how best to avoid a disaster. Among the facts presented was the sudden appearance of off-world speculators who planned to sell homes on the floodplain to Alderaanian survivors. The villagers were actually building in the most dangerous area of the floodplain. (DTO)

Taanab Operation
one of Grand Admiral Thrawn's plans in which he sent the Bellicose to harass the planet, it was part of the overall strategy for the Battle of Sluis Van. He had assigned Joruus C'baoth to coordinate it, but C'baoth went out on his own and used a Force technique to link all the gunners' minds to his own. He then was able to control the entire firing plan. Thrawn relieved him from the operation when he found out about C'baoth's maneuver. (DFR)

Taanab Sunrise
this New Republic warship was badly damaged during the Battle of Garqi, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. It was saved when the Imperial Remnant, under the command of Admiral Pellaeon, intervened in the battle in support of the Republic. The Red Harvest placed itself between the Yuuzhan Vong force and the Taanab Sunrise, absorbing damage while allowing the Sunrise to escape. (DTR)

Tafanda Bay
a floating city like many others on Ithor, it is a self-contained ecosystem, mimicking the planet's environment while providing many technological necessities. Tafanda Bay is one of the few herd ships that were bound to planetary duty on Ithor because much of its ecosystem was external rather than contained beneath transparisteel domes. It was led by an Ithorian named Momaw Nadon until a passing Imperial Star Destroyer threatened to destroy the planet if Nadon didn't cooperate. It has been the flagship of the Ithorian Grand Fleet for a number of years. Following the destruction of the Empire after the Battle of Endor, Momaw Nadon returned to take his place as the leader of Tafanda Bay. (SCRE, DA, SWSB, EGV)

Taffy

Taft, Harbold
this man worked as a spy for the Alliance, and was Seth Cambriel's counterpart on the planet Spira, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Outwardly, Taft was a thin, mousy man who worked as a clerk and security expert for the Ataria Island spaceport. (SWJ1)

Taggar, Jennie Lee
Rone Taggar's mother, Jennie Lee was a starfighter pilot who joined the Alliance. She flew a Y-Wing during the Battle of Endor, but was shot down and killed in the battle. (SOL)

Taggar, Rone
this New Republic pilot was among those who drew reconnaissance duty during the Yevethan Purge. He was chosen to fly his X-Wing, the Jennie Lee, in a flash pass over N'zoth. The New Republic desparately needed information on the Yevethan defenses, and ordered reconnaissance of the 13 major Yevethan worlds. Taggar managed to gather a large amount of data on the planet before being overtaken by the Yevethan warship Beauty of Yevetha. Rather than be captured or betray the Republic, Rone programmed his X-Wing to self-destruct as it was drawn into the warship's hangar bay. His death, and the destruction of his ship, caused a great deal of damage to the Beauty of Yevetha and allowed the Republic to receive his reconnaissance data. (SOL)

Taggart
a spicejacker who was supposed to deliver a load of glitterstim to Han Solo on Tatooine, just before he took on Ben Kenobi and Luke Skywalker. Taggart never showed up, forcing Han to seek other employment. (TME)

Tagge
this Imperial General was part of Tarkin's support staff, serving as the tactician in charge of the first Death Star's defenses. Tagge was also in command of the Army forces deployed on the battle station. He was worried about the growth of the Rebellion and its possession of the plans to the first Death Star, for he had discovered the flawed exhaust port an knew its significance. However, he lacked the personality and courage to speak out about it. He was described as slimy and noisome. Tagge was later killed when the Alliance was able to destroy the first Death Star. Tagge was portrayed by Don Henderson in Star Wars. (SW, SWN, MTS, DSTC)

TaggeCo
the huge, powerful, and divserse Tagge Company was owned and operated by the influential Imperial House of Tagge. It had an incredibly wide variety of products, and are similar in some respects to SoroSuub. TaggeCo also owns Mobquet Swoops and Speeders, Tagge Industries, and Trast Heavy Transports. TaggeCo was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (EGV, CSA)

the Jawa name for the planet Tatooine. (GG7)

Tahika Cliffs
this range of forbidding rock walls lines the western edge of the main continent on Garos IV, and defines the eastern boundary of the Locura Ocean. (SWJ1)

Tahiri
a native of the planet Tatooine, Tahiri was suddenly orphaned as a young child when her parents were killed in the desert. They were moisture farmers. She would have died of exposure, but she was taken in by the Sandpeople and raised as one of their own for five years. When she was nine, Luke Skywalker and Tionne found her on Tatooine, and she was allowed to accompany them to Yavin 4 to attend the Junior Jedi Academy. She befriended Anakin Solo, and the two suddenly discovered that they were experiencing the same dream. The dream led them to discover the Golden Globe beneath the Palace of the Woolamander, and introduced them to the ancient Jedi Master Ikrit. She is a very natural child, preferring to walk around the jungle complexes in her bare feet in order to feel the world around her. She was known for her pale yellow hair and green eyes. Tahiri continued to study on Yavin 4, eventually graduating into the Jedi praxeum and training under Kam Solusar and Tionne. (GG, LW, JE)

Tahl
this Jedi Master was a native of the planet Noori, and was a contemporary of Qui-Gon Jinn when she was sent to Melida/Daan to mediate the civil war that had engulfed the planet. Tahl had been brought to the Jedi Temple on Coruscant when she was a six-year-old with a sharp tongue and a way of reading people's secrets, and had trained with Qui-Gon. She was known among the Jedi for her diplomatic skills and her patience with others, although she never took a padawan. Tahl was wounded and captured by the Melida shortly after the Twenty-Second Battle of Zehava, when she was dispatched to Melida/Daan to help negotiate a peace treaty. Qui-Gon and his padawan, Obi-Wan Kenobi, were dispatched to locate her, but they were captured by Wehutti and the Melida as well. They were rescued by members of The Young, who led them to Tahl's severely wounded body. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan managed to rescue Tahl, and got her prompt medical attention off-planet. However, as a result of the injuries she suffered at the hands of the Melida, Tahl was rendered blind. Her connection with the Force remained strong, though, and she found she could still "see" with its help. (DOD, UP)

Tahlboor

this craftsman lived in the city of Mos Espa, on Tatooine, during the time leading up to the Battle of Naboo. Taieb constructed the helmet Anakin Skywalker rode when he won the Boonta Eve Classic podrace. (IG1)

Taikawaka Kicking Ball
a brown, leather-covered ball used in many sporting events. They are covered with seams where the leather has been connected, giving them a rigded appearance. (VP)

Tailring
native to the planet Socorro, this desert-dwelling reptile resembled a small, winged dragon. Also known as sand dragons, tailrings lived near the underground water oases of the planet in small groups. Their skin was covered with black scales and patches of short fur, and the shed their annualy. Each molting produced a new knob of hard skin on their tails, which eventually formed a kind of rattle. Tailrings are attracted to shiny objects, and are considered excellent thieves. However, they are also considered a good-luck charm by Socorran pirates, who strive to find one in the desert. Tailrings bond almost instantly to a being they identify with, forming a lifelong bond. The pirates welcome their company because, for an unexplained reason, tailrings love to eat mynocks, and they will attack any mynocks attached to their owner's ship. (BSS)

Taim and Bak
manufacturers of various shipboard ion and laser weapons. (SCRE)

Tainer, Kell
a human male from the planet Sluis Van, Kell was one of the first pilots to serve in Wraith Squadron. His real last name was Doran, but after the death of Kissek Doran, his mother changed their name and tried to start again. Kell joined the Alliance and was a demolitions expert with Page's Commandos. Kell then demonstrated an ability to fly starfighters in simulation, and was given the chance to try the real thing. However, after he crashed a Z-95 Headhunter and an X-Wing in practice - claiming unresponsive controls each time - he was demoted from the pilot ranks. Wedge Antilles was impressed enough with his abilities, though, to offer him a spot with the Wraiths. When Kell realized that Wes Janson - the man who was forced to shoot down Kissek - was also part of the Wraiths, he balked. Wedge Antilles maneuvered him into staying with the Wraiths, however. Kell served as the Squadron's demolition's expert and it's backup mechanic. After the capture of the Night Caller, Kell fell in love with Tyria Sarkin. When the Wraiths were called upon to defend Talasea from an attack by Apwar Trigit, Kell worked hard to protect his fellow Wraiths. For his bravery and ingenuity, he was promoted to Lieutenant. His unusual tactics and skills also attracted the notice of Starfighter Command, and they awarded him the Kalidor Crescent. During the hunt for Warlord Zsinj, Tainer assumed the identity of Lieutenant Dissek, a member of the Hwawk-bat Independent Space Force. (WS, IF)

Taisden
a New Republic Intelligence officer in charge of deciphering the Teljkon vagabond's transmissions, Taisdan served on the Glorious. He remained with Pakkpekatt's reduced fleet, trying to solve the mystery of Lando Calrissian's whereabouts after the vagabond jumped into hyperspace. (BTS, SOL)

Taj Junak
this Jedi Knight surrendered to the Empire on Mrlsst, at the Mrlsst Academy. Palpatine's exterminators captured him in one of the common areas, and they burned him on the spot. Ever since, no grass has grown in the area, which has been walled off as a monument to the ancient Jedi. It is rumored that Junak's ghost roams the academy grounds, and this rumor was used as the basis for the name of the band Ghost Jedi. (XWPA)

Tak Base
located on Talay, this Alliance base was destroyed just before the Battle of Yavin. (DF)

Takari
this city, located on the planet Iyuta, was the site of an Imperial communications center. The sewers of the city were inhabited by tentacled creatures and scaled humanoids. The Alliance staged a raid on Iyuta, with the help of Reekeene's Roughnecks, and successfully knocked out the communications center, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The Empire rebuilt the center, in the hopes of backtracking the Alliance team and locating their base. (SWCP)

Takashi, Rumo
this Imperial trooper captain was responsible for the capture of a group of Alliance agents in Camaa, on the planet Fremond III. (SWJ9)

Take That!
this modified YT-1210 freighter was owned and operated by Falan Iniro. It saw duty as a war ship during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, but was destroyed when Iniro jumped the gun on the smugglers' counterattack. He found himself alone against one of Admiral Greelanx's Carrack-class cruiser, which ripped the Take That! apart in a volley of turbolaser fire. (THG)

Take Them On
this song, written and played by the band Red Shift Limit, first appeared on the compilation Thoughts from the Core. It was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Takeel
this burned-out Snivian mercenary was known in Mos Eisley as a spice-addicted double-crosser. He turned many individuals over to the Empire. Takeel was the twin brother of Zutton, and was the first of the pair to speak and walk. He was forced to undergo personality reprogramming in order to avoid any genetic problems, but the operations left him with little remaining to his own mind. (CCG, MTSE)

Takel
this man was one of the Empire's twelve Grand Admirals. (SESB)

Takel, Griff
this Imperial governor was placed in charge of the political situation on Esseles when Palpatine instituted the New Order. He was often involved in military and political struggles with the Hall President Ralle, who wanted the Esselian militia to have more latitude to control the planet, without Imperial interference. (SWJ8, SWJ9)

Takital
this Amanin term is used to describe the battle for control of planetary territory. (GG12)

Takkar, Anlys
this woman was married to Moff Derran Takkar. Equally devious and beautiful, Anlys was the perfect match for Derran's ruthless nature. After being stranded on Dolis 3 when the Imperial Remnant signed a peace accord with the New Republic, Derran and Anlys decided to try and disrupt the wedding of Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade. They hoped to hold the ceremony hostage while exacting a form of revenge on the Republic. When Derran's brute-force methods failed to get them anywhere on Coruscant, Anlys tried to get her hands on the wedding dress designed for Mara, in an effort to steal it and put a halt to the ceremony. She intercepted Jari'kyn and tried to steal the dress, but Banner Sumptor decided that her methods did not warrant his loyalty. Sumptor shot Anlys' escort, allowing Jari'kyn time to hit Anlys over the head and render her unconscious. Anlys was later imprisoned to await trial. (U)

Takkar, Derran
this man was the Imperial Moff of Dolis 3, a position he attained shortly before the Battle of Endor. He remained staunchly loyal to the Empire, something that was easy to do given Dolis 3's remote location from Coruscant. Takkar and his wife, Anlys, vowed to exact revenge on the New Republic, but were unable to determine the correct point in time to strike. Their opportunity came when it was announced that Luke Skywalker was going to marry Mara Jade. Takkar gathered his former officers – Banner Sumptor, Chik Apla, Chala Venan, and Iry Danta – and set off for Coruscant. There, they tried to disrupt the wedding in any way possible. Several plans failed, until Anlys suggested stealing Mara's wedding dress and putting a halt to the ceremony. This plan nearly succeeded, but Banner Sumptor disabled Anlys's escort, and Anlys was knocked unconscious by Jari'kyn. Derran realized that he had to take matters into his own hands, and infiltrated the wedding disguised as an Ithorian diplomat. Into his costume he placed a datapad loaded with a virus which would wipe out New Republic communications stations throughout the galaxy. He threatened to download the virus into the Republic's computers, destroying communications and fragmenting the fledgling Republic. Derran was unaware that the New Republic had shielded Coruscant's computers from just this sort of sabotage years before, and the plan was ultimately doomed. However, Luke Skywalker did not use the Force to coerce Derran or prevent him from triggering the virus anyway, and Derran found himself unsure about the propaganda he had read on the Republic. Ultimately, Luke offered him a chance to join the New Republic on his own terms, and Derran agreed to try. (U)

Tal
a domesticated creature native to the planet Yalln, tals were often kept as loyal pets. (AIR)

Tal Anavere
this female Ho'Din was known to the people on Obroa-skai as an art dealer, a gambler, and a thief. Her love for art was the only love she has; she has no morals or respects for other beings. She ran the Sophistication art gallery, which dealt in works created by the dilletantes of Imperial society, although her background was in the artwork of pre-technology civilizations. Tal Anavere herself detested the art created by the talentless Imperials, but nonetheless managed to sell most of it. Her contacts within the Empire allowed her to surreptitiously gather useful information, which she later passed on to the Alliance. She also brewed an addictive tea, which she served in her gallery in order to keep the Imperials happy with her work. (CRO)

Tal Fraan
this young Yevethan Proctor obtained perjured pleas from beings captured during the Yevethan Purge. The pleas indicated that the Yevethans were transporting the prisoners on the warships that met the New Republic's Fifth Battle Group at Doornik-319. Tal Fraan had spent time with humans and other New Republic races, and knew that they would not fire on innocent prisoners. The ploy worked to perfection, as the Fifth Battle Group's K-Wing bombers held off from attacking the Yevethan ships, which opened fire and decimated the Republic's forces. Nil Spaar was not at all happy to learn that Tal Fraan had risked the Yevethan fleet in this way, but he was pleased with the results and kept Fraan as an advisor. When Tal Fraan continued to underestimate the New Republic, and the Black Nine shipyards were lost at Prildaz, Nil Spaar could no longer tolerate his young protcor. Nil Spaar sliced off Tall Fraan's head with a single swipe of his arm, and left the body for garbage rather than honor it with burial. (SOL, TT)

Tal Nami System
the natives of this system require two foods in order to survive: the fruit of the egoa tree and the roots of the capabara plant. Unfortunately, they don't exist in the same region. So, in order to avoid their complete extinction, the Tal Nami natives developed an honorable and well-defined code of ethics that govern their trading. The underlying rule of any trade is that the other party should be getting the better deal. (GOF2)

Tal'dira
this huge, well-muscled Twi'lek was the first among the warriors sent to assess Wedge Antilles, when Rogue Squadron arrived to negotiate for kor ryll. He flew an X-ball Ugly into Kala'uun Starport and challenged Wedge to a duel, with the kor as the reward for the winner. When Wedge accepted the challenge, Tal'dira then challenged Koh'shak's truthfulness in his business dealings. Tal'dira accused Koh'shak of keeping all ryll profits for himself, and Koh'shak could not refute the claim. Tal'dira took control of the negotiations, and gave the kor ryll to Wedge as a gift, warrior to warrior. Tal'dira later delivered a squadron of Chir'daki starfighters to Rogue Squadron, to supplement the forces going up against the Bacta Cartel. When Nawara Ven was shot down in the Battle of Thyferra, his injuries forced him out of the cockpit. Tal'dira accepted Wedge's offer to join the Rogues, and continued the tradition of a Twi'lek in the squadron by serving as Rogue Five. However, his tenure with the Rogues was cut short during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. In a bold move, Zsinj had his agents brainwash certain members of specific alien species in order to create a rift between the human and non-human races of the New Republic. This was known as Project Funeral,and Tal'dira was one of those beings brainwashed. When Galey gave him the code phrase "Wedge Antilles hops on one transparisteel leg," the implanted programming took over. He was compelled to kill Wedge, and got his chance over Jussafet 4. However, his sense of loyalty and honor cut in at the last moment, and he allowed himself to be shot down and killed by Corran Horn, rather kill his commanding officer. (KT, BW, SOC)

Tal'kina
this Twi'lek served the New Republic as a Commander, and was the sensor officer aboard the Swift Liberty, serving under Admiral Bell, during the assault on Liinade III. (IR)

Talas Piran
this hulking Locan was a slave on Hintivan II for many years, using only vibro-axes to fell the huge trees which grew on the planet. At some point, he managed to acquire enough credits to buy his own freedom. However, instead of setting out on his own, Talas Piran sold his abilities and experience with slaves to the Mytaranor Slaving Council. His knowledge of controlling slaves earned him several promotions, until he found himself as the chief slavemaster on the Council. His physical prowess earned him even more respect, and soon was named the leader of the Council. In order to heighten his position, Talas Piran often wielded the same vibro-axe he used on Hintivan II, but he was smart enough to realize that a dead or injured slave worth considerably less than a perfect specimen. (AIR)

Talasea
situated as the fourth world in the Morobe System, this planet was located near the Galactic Core. Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron was moved there after its training on Folor, as part of an attempt to dissuade the remnants of the Empire from trying to overtake Coruscant before the New Republic could retake it. Talasea is the fourth planet from Morobe, and is a cool, moist world. A farming settlement was established on one of the larger continents, but it was destroyed when Darth Vader discovered it was harboring a Jedi Knight after the Clone Wars. Much of the indigenous life is comprised of insects and reptiles. (XWN)

Talek Var
this being was hired into the New Republic Scout Service and assigned to the Nova Scouts for training. During a training exercise designed to give a scout experience in locating a hidden Imperial base, Var's team actually found a real Imperial base. Var took the initiative, after gauging his enemy's strengths, and crashed his scout vessel into the base's command center. He wiped out the majority of the Imperial personnel and scattered the rest, but died in the attempt. The surviving members of his training team returned to report on his actions, and further investigation by the New Republic revealed the true nature of the base. Var was posthumously named the first member of the Nova Scouts' Hall of Fame. (GG8)

located in Talfaglio System, the least-populated section of the Corellian Sector, this planet wass where Pharnis Gleasry was able to meet Mara Jade and give her a message cube from Thrackan Sal-Solo for Princess Leia. (AC, BP)

Talhu Peaks
this series of mountains is located on the planet Harix. Berd's mother, Myoris, came to him in a dream and showed him that the Empire had laid a trap for him in the peaks. Berd was trying to rescue his mother, with the help of Luke Skywalker and Han Solo, and they were able to avoid the Imperial trap. (CSWEA)

Taliff
this Imperial governor was the ruler of the planet Dentaal, during the Galactic Civil War. He disbanded the planet's ruling House when he arrived, ensuring Imperial control. He was shortly overthrown by the members of the old House, who met in secret and planned a coup. The Empire responded by sending in Crix Madine's team to unleash the Candorian plague. (SWAJ)

Talin
this was the basic social component of the Jiivahar race. Each talin contained five to ten families, but membership was not limited to those born into the talin. Any Jiivahar could leave or join any other talin. Talins were semi-nomadic groups, maintaining a permanent residence but only using it when the weather turned cold. (AE, SWJ14)

Taliputer
this specialized computer system was used in most gambling halls and casinos to monitor and control the booking of odds and the influx and outflow of credits among bettors. (MA)

Talir
this was the central body of the Talir System, located in the Karstaxon Regions near its border with the Periphery. (SSR)

Talisman
this seven-meter-long starship was Teroenza's personal yacht, while he was in control of the Ylesian colony. The starship was stolen by Han Solo when he escaped from Ylesia with Bria Tharen, Mrrov, and Muuurgh. Han and Bria used the ship to return the two Togorians to their homeworld before returning to Corellia. They were forced to sell the ship for scrap to Truthful Toryn, because it was listed as stolen. (TPS)

Talkdroid
a slang term for a protocol droid. (ROTJ)

Talke, Rengor
this crewman aboard the Imperial survey ship Wanderer was a slave fighter picked up by the Wanderer's Imperial crew. Talke served them faithfully following his rescue. (IC)

Talkie-speaker
this was the Gungan term for any communication speaker system. (E1A11)

Talkity-trap
this was the Gungan term used to describe the mouth of a being who talked too much. (E1A9)

Tall
this was the name used by Gaph and R'vanna to describe the taller of the two humans who approached them to forge a series of transport vouchers for refugees on Ruan. Working with his partner, who was known only as Short, they transported their charges aboard the starship Trevee. (JE)

Talla
a beautiful, ancient garden-city found on the planet Ossus. (TSW)

Tallaan
this is the primary planet in the Tallaan System, which is located in Tapani Sector of the Colonies region. Tallaan benefited greatly from its location, being located at the intersection of the Shapani Bypass and the Giju Run. It is the home of one of the oldest shipyards in the galaxy, which was set up around the time of the Great Sith War. During the modern era, these shipyards were overrun by the Empire, and alien slaves were at first removed from their positions as laborers, After the formation of the Guild of Non-Human Skilled Laborers, aliens were allowed to maintain their jobs, and many were imported to perform the labor. A strong cell of Alliance support blossomed on Tallaan, but was never able to remove its Imperial yolk. The Empire officially noted Wilhuf Tarkin's death as a shuttle accident at the shipyards. (SWAJ, CRO, PGT)

Tallah Dynasty
this ancient dynasty had governed the planet Gala and its three tribes for many generations. The Tallah were the first rulers to unite the three tribes of the city, hills, and sea into a single people despite their deep-seated hatred of each other. However, over the years, the Tallah rulers became corrupt. King Cana of the Tallah was unable to prevent the more powerful families of Galacian culture from solidifying their own power bases, and the government became more distanced from the lower classes. After Cana's death, his wife Veda assumed control of the dynasty. Just over a decade before the Battle of Naboo, Queen Veda realized that the populace would not stand for the corruption of the dynasty any further, and opened up a general election to chose her successor. The elections were to have been mediated by Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, but they were hijacked to the planet Phindar by Paxxi Derida. The Tallah maintained a country estate, well away from the demands of the government in Galu. Veda often retired to the estate during her illness, but was unable to travel during her last days. Note that Jedi Apprentice: The Hidden Past calls this the "Beju-Tallah" dynasty. (HP, MOC)

Tallakron
this is the largest of Algara II's four moons. It is the site of a military outpost. (PG2)

Tallaso
this planet was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War. (HR)

Tallek
this planet was under Imperial control when an outbreak of thorn fever hit. Instead of helping the sick, the Imperials rounded them all up and placed them in isolation camps to die. Thus, the disease was never researched, and a cure has never been found. (SWAJ)

Tallgrain
one of the galaxy's staple grains, tallgrain is gorwn almost exclusively on Pakrik Minor. Growing tallgrain is a constant chore, because it is succeptible to white-blight and worms that chew up its interlocked roots. (SOP)

Tallis
this Imperial Moff was in charge of Parmel Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Tallon, Adar
a naval commander in the Old Republic, he was a masterful battle technician whose maneuvers were used by the Empire, and are still used by the New Republic. He was at his best when he worked with his friend, Jan Dodonna. Dodonna's strategies were often paired with Tallon's starship combat maneuvers to create incredibly effective battle plans. When the Empire grew to power, Tallon faked his own death rather than being conscripted into the Imperial Navy. He hid on the planet Tatooine, until a group of Rebels found his hiding place and convinced him to join the Alliance. (RASB, TM)

Tallon, Kay
Adar Tallon's faithful wife. (TM)

Tallon Roll
the starfighter combat maneuver was designed by Adar Tallon, to help pilots compensate if they overshoot their target. The attacking craft closes too quickly on its target, and overshoots it. The Tallon Roll can then be used, as the attacker first levels out, then pulls the nose of his ship upward in a tight spiral. The defender is then the ship which overshoots. The maneuver is often dangerous, as it can temporarily disorient the attacking pilot. (RASB)

Tallon Split
this theoretically simple maneuver was devised by Adar Tallon. In its simplicity, it requires split-second reactions and uncanny reflexes from two fighter pilots, and is especially dangerous to execute. The two pilots fly close to each other, approaching a capital ship. They need to be close enough to register on the capital ship's targetting computers as a single target. At very close range, the two fighters split apart. One continues on its strafing run, while the other is shot at by the capital ship's weapons, drawing fire from the first ship. The idea is that the ship on the strafing run has about five seconds of clear sailing until the capital ship's targetting computer can detect it as a second target. (MTS)

Talloryn
this man was the Imperial Governor of Aldraig IV during the height of the New Order. (TBSB)

Talmog
an alcoholic drink made from equal parts of ethanol and Lyme's rose juice. (LCM)

Talmont, Eugene
the Imperial Prefect of Tatooine, stationed in Mos Eisley, during the last years of Jabba the Hutt's life. His career as an Imperial servant was unremarkable, and it moved him from backwater world to backwater world. Talmont is quite full of his own self-importance. He was appointed to the post by Tour Aryon after Orun Depp was executed by an assassin droid. This fact frightened Talmont to his core, and lived in fear the entire span of years in which he was Prefect. (GG7, TJP)

Talofan
this planet was the base of operations for Imperial Moff Kintaro, during the height of the New Order. (SESB)

Talon
1) an Imperial Corvette transporting important documents near Turkana when it was intercepted by Keyan Farlander (XW)
2) an Imperial Interdictor-class starship patrolling the Demophon System during the Galactic Civil War. (SN)
3) this group of ATR-6 Gamma-class transports was part of the Imperial fleet which tried to stop the Alliance from evacuating its base on Kothlis, just before the Battle of Endor. Much of the group was destroyed in the battle, and the Alliance safely abandoned the base. (XWA)

Talon
this was the brand name of LaserHone's standard vibrodagger. (ROE)

Talon, Matt
the son of a farmer on an agricultural world, Talon joined the First Sun Mobile Regiment as a light scout trooper. Talon was a vicious, lethal soldier, and has been scarred a number of times in the line of duty. The right side of his face was slashed, and Talon opted to let a scar form instead of having reconstructive surgery. For an undisclosed reason, Talon deserted the First Sun, taking their combat armor with him. He wears the armor to this day, as a personal calling card. After leaving the First Sun, Talon wandered the Outer Rim as a bounty hunter until he met the Sullustan Thila. She appealed to something inside of him, and Talon agreed to become her bodyguard. (GG9)

Talon I
Ubrikkian's combat cloud car, the Talon I helps fill the void between basic patrol cloud cars and starfighters. They have enhanced armor plating, improved maneuverability, and a well-powered double blaster cannon. The Talon I is avian in shape, with a 10-meter, rounded body, a pointed nosecone, and upward-curving, wing-like airfoils. The Talon I's Servant repulsorlift/ion engine allows it to travel at speeds up to 1,500 kilometers an hour. The Empire used Talon I cloud cars on several worlds, including Honoghr. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card game claims the Talon I is capable of speeds up to 1,875 kph. (EGV, CCG9)

Talon Squadron
formed by the New Republic shortly after the Battle of Thyferra, Talon Squadron was one of the newer groups created to help offload some duties from Rogue Squadron. Under the command of Myn Donos, the squadron was all but destroyed on its first mission near Gravan Seven, when reconnaissance and intel failed to report that an Imperial ambush was awaiting them. Donos was the only survivor. (WS)

Talon Strike
this was the code phrase used by the crew of the Night Caller, during the assault on Ession, to launch the TIE Fighters which were contained in the debris of the bow of the corvette. Unfortunately for warlord Zsinj and Apwar Trigit, the ship was under the control of the New Republic, and TIEs began pummelling the Implacable. (WS)

Taloos
an Alliance container transport group that fled the Battle of Hoth, but was later captured in the Javin Sector. (TIE)

Taloraan
this gas giant is the largest planet in the Kelavine System, with a recorded diamter of about 100,000 kilometers. It spins very rapidly, rotating once every 12 standard hours. Its year lasts 219 local days. Taloraan hsa seven moons and a magnificent ring system, but it also has an intense magnetic field and suffers from atmospheric ionization. Thus, it has never been fully surveyed. It is located in the Expansion Region. The little exploration that has been done on Taloraan has indicated that, at certain levels within the clouds, habitation could be possible. In acutality, the planet harbors an abundance of life, including the fleft-wauf and sleft-chuffni. Humans have also recently settled the planet's upper atmosphere, living inside colossal island beasts. Taloraan is important because of the abundance of tibanna gas in its atmosphere, and it has been shown that Taloraan's tibanna gas is breathable at higher altitudes. (SWAJ, RSG)

Taloron Hunters
this brotherhood of highly-skilled warriors and mercenaries sprang up at the end of the Old Republic. Where they came from and how they were formed remains a mystery. The Taloron Hunters all wore specialized armor that was easily recognizable. (DOE)

Taloron Prey Chaser
this specialized warship was developed by, and for the exclusive use of, the Taloron Hunters. The Prey Chaser measured 40 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of laser cannons. It was simple to operate, requiring just a pilot to manage all systems. However, the ship had room for up to 25 passengers and 30 metric tons of cargo, making it the perfect ship for getting a group of warriors into battle. Heavily shielded and armored, the Prey Chaser was outfitted with the fastest hyperdrives available. (DOE)

Talos
this spaceport city, found on the planet Atzerri, is a fairly reputable metropolis, despite the existence of the Traders Plaza. (SOL)

Talpron
a Captain in the Corellian Defense Forces' Space Defense Service, he is the leader of Squadron Two, which "rescues" Han Solo and the Millennium Falcon when it arrives at Corellia for the Trade Summit. (AC)

Talsor
this was one of six Imperial bulk freighters assigned to the replenishment fleet which contained the Black Ice. (BI)

Talus
Talus, along with Tralus, make up the Twins in the Corellian System. Talus and Tralus orbit each other around a single center of mass, and both are inhabited. (AC)

Talvarian
an alien race known for its lack of hinir and integrity. (SL)

Talz
the Talz are a race white-furred, four-eyed humanoids from the planet Alzoc III. Their dense fur provides them protection from the harsh cold of their homeworld, and their eyes are adapted to specific purposes. The larger pair of eyes is used for night vision, and remain closed during the day. The smaller pair of eyes allows the Talz to see in the glare of the sun shining off the snow, but are ineffective in the dark. The Talz are calm and good-natured, and are tireless workers. It was this trait that led the Talz to be enslaved by the Empire and used in the mines on Alzoc III. (SW, TB, GG4)

Tamaab Moolis
this Ithorian served on the advisory committe of the New Republic Defense Force, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (HT)

Tamack
this spores of this plant, native to the planet Pallaxides, were modified by the Ho'Din terrorist Ort Hoogra-D'En to be deadly to most humanoid species. They are barely detectable, and when inhaled caused a shortness of breath and a heightened body temperature like a fever. If not detected, the spores multiply inside their new host and kill it within a few hours. However, the spores could only survive outside a living host for three hours. (ND)

Tamar's Folly
an alias for the Lady Luck used by Lando Calrissian to return to New Cov to meet Niles Ferrier, after Ferrier sent him a message using Luke Skywalker's name. (DFR)

Tamarack
a city on Cilpar that was destroyed by Moff Tascl. (XWRS)

Tamarc
a Wookiee leader killed by the Empire when it subjugated the planet Kashyyyk. (SN)

Tamarin Sector
this area of the galaxy was engulfed in turmoil during the early years of the New Republic as Lobax Resuun, the Imperial Governor, tried to maintain control of the planetary governments which wanted to join the New Republic. (POC)

Tamazall
1) this planet was the site of a New Republic prison facility. (GG11)
2) this was the capital city of the planet Tamazall. The planet's primary spaceport facility was located in Tamazall. (GG11)

Tamazall Militia
this was the primary police force that maintained the prison facility on Tamazall. (GG11)

Tamban
a planet once ruled by Emperor Preedu III. The Emperor's First Observer, Aitro Koornacht, is generally given credit for naming the Koornacht Cluster, although many different races have names for it. (BTS, CTD)

Tambell, Zeck
an Imperial Sergeant and special investigator from the planet Coriallis, Tambell was assigned to investigate the planet Stassia. (SWAJ)

Tamboon
this planet was ruled by a benevolent monarchy. (SH)

Tambour
this musical instrument consists of a ring with a hide or canvas stretched across it. Small cymbals are mounted in the ring, so that they jingle when the hide is struck. (TBH)

Tamish
this Thennqora worked with Falmal to lead Morodin hunts on Varonat, as part of Gamgalon's organization. (TFE)

Tammar
the homeworld of the Tammarian race, it has very little surface water and a thin atmosphere. (BTS)

Tammarian
the alien race native to the planet Tammar, they have evolved a unique oxygen pouch in which they store oxygen for later use. This pouch serves to provide the Tammarian with extra oxygen in the thin atmosphere of Tammar. When full, it also allows a Tammarian to survive in the vacuum of space for a short time. Tammarians are deathly afraid of water, since they have little experience with it on Tammar. (BTS)

Tammuz-an
a planet surrounded by double rings. (DCAR)

Tamo Lan
this Carosite served as Shroud Team's medic. A native of Carosi XII, Lan was schooled in medicine before deciding to join the Alliance after killing a Twi'lek who threatened one of his patients. This act, while not condoned, was frowned upon, and he thought it best to move away from the situation. Lan served the Alliance on Baes Logia and at the Massassi base on Yavin 4 before joining Shroud Team, where he treated not only his fellow team members but the orphaned agents they brought in. He also became a sort of protector for the young Aqualish Gondara, the sister of his best friend Karlon, who was killed by Imperial forces on Bresnia. (SWJ10)

Tamor
this gladiator was a regular in the challenges which were part of the game Katharsis, played on the planet Telos several years before the Battle of Naboo. (DOR)

Tamoss
this three-fingered humanoid was Daushoroc's companion and partner. Both were former slaves who had helped each other escape their Imperial masters, and set their fellow slaves on a safeworld before striking out on their own. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the pair traveled to Tatooine in order to seek out the Athallian Messenger. They were forced to make peace with a tribe of Tusken Raiders just to gain access to the area of the desert which supposedly held the Messenger's scarred hull. (SWG)

Tampasi
1) this was the name of the dense, living forest which covered the planet Zonama Sekot. The original word, tampasi, was Ferroan for forest, the only way the original colonists knew to describe the planet's widespread flora. However, later research indicated that the tampasi was not just a collection of plants, like a forest, but a single, living entity. (RP)
2) this was the Ferroan word for 'forest.' (RP)

Tampion
this New Republic fleet shuttle was assigned to transport Han Solo to the Koornacht Cluster, after Solo was temporarily promoted to fleet Commodore. Tig Permais learned of Solo's promotion, and informed the Yevetha of his arrival. Nil Spaar sent several Interdictor cruisers to bring the Tampion out of hyperspace three hours before it was scheduled to meet the Intrepid. The shuttle was boarded, and its captain, Sreas, was killed in the firefight. The Tampion was captured and taken to N'zoth. The shuttle's escort, including Plat Mallar, was left alive to report the ambush to Leia Organa-Solo and the Republic. (SOL)

Tamran
a cherub-faced alien race. (TEP)

Tan
this H'kig glyph is one of the many such symbols that can be spoken or written out, being less sacred than some others. The tan is described as the conscious essense of a being. (SOL)

Tan Shilley
this attractive female Morganian owned and operated Shilley's cantina, located in the city of Gralleenya. Tan left her homeworld to become a travelling entertainer and dancer, but ended up on Questal. She established Shilley's just before the ardanium boom, and was able to profit during its height. She worked hard to keep her bar a neutral ground between law and order, and was privy to much of the underworld information the police force didn't know. This knowledge allowed her to assist a group of Alliance agents who went to Questal to rescue Tiree. She remembered Tiree coming into her bar, and suggested that he talk to Mosh Pelkan about gaining entrance to Moff Bandor's palace. (GCQ)

Tan'tro
an Alliance starpilot killed while serving under Keyan Farlander during the ambush of an Imperial convoy near Orron III. (XW)

Tana
1) Tana is believed to be the planet around which Endor orbited. When the Towani family crashed on Endor, the planet still existed. By the time the Alliance arrived to knock out the second Death Star's shield generator, the planet had been gone for a long time. However, the Ewok Wicket was present for both events! (EA, BFE, WEG)
2) this dark-skinned female was a friend of Han Solo's. She ran Tana's Resort on Rion. She rallied the inhabitants of the planet after Captain Bzorn used the Ionic Ring to turn Rion into a forzen wasteland. Han Solo provided her with a load of spice to help her feed her people and buy supplies until the weather could be modified. (CSWEA)

Tana's Resort
a tourist destination on the planet Rion, owned by Tana. The planet's inhabitants flocked there after the Empire destroyed the ecosystem using the Ionic Ring. (CSWEA)

Tana Ire
manufacturers of electrophoto receptor sensor units and other sensor equipment. (SWSB, ROE)

Tanaab
the ancient Jedi Knights recovered several starships during a battle with pirates near this planet. (DLS)

Tanallay Surge Complex
this was one of the most wondrous pieces of Tynnan architecture, and was located on their homeworld of Tynna. A massive structure, the complex was surrounded by pools, fountains, and waterfalls. This location was the site of the Yuuzhan Vong's first strike during the Battle of Tynna. The Vong unleashed a bioweapon into the water supply, rendering the planet's oceans lifeless. (JE)

Tanalou
this frozen planet is the fourth and final planet in the Baralou System. (PG1)

Tanatrig
this is one of the four moons which orbit Zelos II. Zelosian superstitions about the moons keep them unexplored. (PG2)

Tanbris
this Imperial fighter pilot was grounded by a serious injury. He was a competent strategist, and was placed in charge of the starfighters assigned to the first Death Star. (CCG)

Tanca, Arago
this outlaw tech known for his skills in creating outpost bases from asteroids. He was adept in worked in zero-g environments, from mining rigs to research stations. The Alliance once contracted him to help with the construction of the Shattered Rock base. (HAS)

Tandankin
this planet was liberated by the pilots of Rogue Squadron after the Battle of Endor. The pilots were forced to destroy one of the planet's most sacred towers in order to free the populace. (XWRS)

Tandarc
this is a city found on Kamori. (SWAJ, TBSB)

Tandeer
an alias given to Leia by the Singing Mountain clan on Dathomir (CPL)

Tandell System
a planetary system where Tiree was discovered reporting to the Alliajce on Imperial fleet movements in the system. He was confronted by Governor Cuvir, and a fight ensued. Tiree was forced to kill Cuvir. (MTS)

Tandon Sector
this area of the galaxy was ruled by Moff Jarnek, during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Tandre, Michael
this geologist and Jedi Knight was forced to crash-land his ship, the Alpha Kentrum, on the planet Orellon II. There, he made first contact with a race of fur-covered, winged aliens who eventually called themselves the Kentra. Tandre became a sort of spiritual ledaer for the Kentra, and taught them to follow the principles of Sword, Plow, and Spirit. He created a series of computer programs that carried on his teachings long after his death. (SWAJ)

Tandres

Tang-root
this pungent tuber is grown on the planet Bestine. (SWJ9)

Tangle Gun 7
this is a form of anti-riot weapon produced by Merr-Sonn during the early years of Palpatine’s rule as Emperor. These weapons were considered more humane than blasters, although they often proved deadly to the target. The tangle gun fires a large, semi-flexible webbing which is created from naorstrachem mixed with a shrinking agent. The web begins to contract when it comes in contact with a warm surface, such as a living body. The webbing wraps around the target and tightens, trapping the target almost instantly. The problem with most tangle guns - and the Tangle Gun 7 was no exception - os that the webbing often contracted too much, despite efforts to modify the mixture. The target was often suffocated by the intense contraction of the webbing. (CFG)

Tanglefoot Field
this police device which produces a low-intensity force field in a specific location. They are used to slow the movement of rioters. (GCQ)

Tangler Elite 1
this was a model of tangle gun produced for bounty hunters and law enforcement agencies by Salus Corporation. (HR)

Tango
this flowering plant was native to the planet Gala. (MOC)

Tango
this Alliance assault transport was assigned to the Mon Calamari cruiser Liberty, shortly before the Battle of Endor. It was used in several missions to liberate slaves from Imperial facilities. (XWA)

Tangrene
this planet was the site of an Imperial Intelligence Ubiqtorate center that was destroyed by Bel Iblis. It was being rebuilt at the time Grand Admiral Thrawn re-appeared, and had a Crystal Gravfield Trap operating at the new base. The planet is a mountainous world of craggy peaks and deep canyons, and was virtually barren of vegetation and surface water. A race of sentients once lived on the planet, but the Empire enslaved them during the construction of its garrison there. The Moff in charge of the sector decided that the natives would be more of a liability than an asset, and exterminated them before they could pose any threat. The average day on Tangrene lasts 29 standard hours, and its year encompasses 356 local days. (DFR, TLC, TTSB)

Tank
one of Luke Skywalker's boyhood friends, he left Tatooine at about the same time Biggs Darklighter did to attend the Academy. (SW)

Tank Droid
a combat droid programmed with artificial intelligence. (DE1)

Tanlin Sha
this Rellarin un'Yala was revered by the Swaze. (GG12)

Tann Gella
this blue-skinned Rutian Twi’lek female was part of Sebulba’s personal entourage. Along with her twin sister Ann, she was purchased by the Dug from the Hutts. Tann always gave the dangerous Dug a massage prior to a pod race. Note that the screenplay for The Phantom Menace indicates Tann is a member of the Yobana species. (YJC1, IS1, IG1)

Tannan
this man, a native of Alderaan, was one of Conn Doruggan's early schoolmates, and a member of his wegsphere team. (TBSB)

Tannath
an aged sister of the Singing Mountain clan on Dathomir, Tannath served as the Clan Protector under Augwynne. This position made her the second-strongest woman in the clan, behind Augwynne. Note that Cracken's Threat Dossier names her Tannith. (CPL, CTD)

Tanneris
this man served as a sensor officer on the bridge crew of the Errant Venture, during the raid on the Imperial Ubiqtorate base at Yaga Minor. Led by Garm Bel Iblis, the raid was designed to obtain a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Tannor Nuum
this Sullustan worked for Janelle Serap, on the planet Seikosha, as an accountant. Tannor was killed shortly before Simms Jonndril's smugglers could deliver R1-T4 to Janelle Serap. Tannor was killed by Chorin Drebbick, in order to intercept the droid before it could reach the hands of the New Republic supporters on the planet. (POC)

Tannoy
a loudspeaker system. (COJ)

Tanse
this woman served as the "water boss" of The Puddle, working for Tilossa himself during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Tanthior
a planet. (COG)

Tantive IV
a Corellian Corvette ("Blockade Runner") piloted by Captain Antilles, it was the diplomatic ship used by the Organa family on missions for the Senate. As such, it was a consular ship, and under diplomatic immunity. This did not stop Darth Vader from chasing the ship down over Tatooine and boarding it. He was pursuing Princess Leia, who he believed to be a supporter of the Alliance. At the time, Leia was using the Tantive IV to obtain the plans to the first Death Star from Toprawa, then fly to Tatooine to recruit Obi-Wan Kenobi out of retirement. Her mission was intercepted by Vader. Antilles began firing escape pods at random, and had C-3PO and R2-D2 hide in one of them, holding the stolen plans, in hopes that Vader would not fire on the empty pods. (SW, SWR)

Tantive V
this planet was the site of a battle between the New Republic and the forces of Admiral Drommel. (WBC)

Tantla
this creature, native to the planet Ealor, was the favored prey of the graiveh. The average tantla measured just over a meter in height and three meters in length, including the tail. They were hunted for their warm, supple pelt, and regulations had to be put in place to ensure the native populations were not decimated. These creatures had a strong family relationship, living and hunting in groups of ten or so individuals in the equatorial regions of the planet. Tantla offspring stayed with their mothers for over a year, and were earnestly protected by the older males. Tantlas had poor vision, a result of the fact that they had a single eye in the center of their face. Tantlas scavenged for their food, using their sucker-tipped tongues to draw in pieces of food. (COG)

Tantor
this Esoomian bounty hunter was known to the inhabitants of Mos Eisley as an "antenna-breaker," or the hired thug of a crimelord. Tantor worked often for Corf Sarb, until Sarb reneged on a pledge to pay Tantor's medical bills after a group of Gamorreans attacked him. Tantor then proceeded to destroy Sarb's fortress in return. Tantor's favorite weapon was a vibro-axe, although he was quite adept at hand-to-hand combat. (WBC)

Tantor, Brenn
the son of an Imperial officer, Brenn and his brother, Dellis, grew upon Garos IV as the perfect Imperial subjects. They respected the military presence of the stormtroopers, and planned to follow in their father's footsteps. However, when the underground resistance began, the Tantors' village was wiped out in a firefight, and both boys were trapped in the rubble. An Imperial stormtrooper rescued them, and they agreed to enter the Academy. Brenn was a year ahead his brother, specializing in combat training and tactical command. They were eventually made honorary members of Cattena Squadron, but their unorthodox membershipmet with resentment among the promoted troops. While Dellis became restless with the lack of comraderie, Brenn hoped that continued diligence would eventually bring about a level of friendship. Brenn trained under Captain Beri Tulon on the use of the Battlefield Holographic Control Interface, and was eventually promoted to Corporal. During a mission to subdue a rebel cell on Kalaan, Brenn's commanding officer was shot in the firefight, and Dellis was shot and killed by one of the rebels. Brenn was issued a field promotion to lieutenant for his skillful remobilization of his squadron. (FC)

Tantor, Dellis
the son of an Imperial officer, Dellis and his brother, Brenn, grew upon Garos IV as the perfect Imperial subjects. They respected the military presence of the stormtroopers, and planned to follow in their father's footsteps. However, when the underground resistance began, the Tantors' village was wiped out in a firefight, and both boys were trapped in the rubble. An Imperial stormtrooper rescued them, and they agreed to enter the Academy. Dellis was a year behind his brother, specializing in computer sciences like encryption and security systems. They were eventually made honorary members of Cattena Squadron, but their unorthodox membershipmet with resentment among the promoted troops. Dellis became restless with the lack of comraderie, and started to pursue a posting with the Imperial Security Bureau. However, during a mission to subdue a rebel cell on Kalaan, Dellis was shot and killed by one of the rebels. (FC)

Tantos
this strikingly handsome Firrerreo pirate lord arranged to purchase the slave rights to Pala, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. He had wondrous turquoise eyes and copper-colored hair, and had unusual three-dimensional tattoos of strange beasts covering his arms. (E1A5)

Tantra, Zoodia
this former decorated Imperial TIE Bomber pilot was one of the few females in the Imperial Navy. She didn’t care about politics or policy, she just wanted to fly. She was considered a hero of the Navy, having flown nearly sixty missions without failure. However, her sixtieth mission proved tragic, as her escort fighter fired on her bomber by accident while trying to lock onto a B-Wing. Zoodia’s bomber crashed on a small moon, but no attempt was ever made to rescue her. She was rescued by an agridroid which notified the authorities of her survival, but Zoodia had suffered major damage to her right arm. The recovery mission arrived too late to save the arm, which had to be amputated and replaced with a cybernetic prosthesis. The artificial arm, coupled with the Empire's lack of commitment to rescue her caused her to resent the Imperials, and she blamed the Empire for her pains. She resigned her commission, and travelled a number of backwater worlds before meeting Xalto Sneerzick. Sneerzick's words rung true with her, although she wasn't sure if it was because of her emotional state or the fact that a droid had rescued her. She joined the Droid Abolitionist Movement, and became Xalto's enforcer. She used her Imperial background as a cover for the Movement's ambushes of Cosmohaul Shipping transports, and then became an engineer when Sneerzick's team managed to infiltrate Cosmohaul and take control of the Argent Lady. However, like all of Sneerzick's followers on the Argent Lady, Zoodia was killed by the very R5 droids she was working to free. (SWJ9)

Tanus Spijek
this male Elom was a former Alliance spy. He was responsible for transporting messages between Alderaan and the base on Yavin 4, until the Death Star destroyed Alderaan. He fled the Alliance, fearing Imperial reprisal, and eventually became a spy for Jabba the Hutt. (CCG7)

Tanza's

Taopari
an arboreal predator native to the planet Noquivzar. (XWN)

Tapani, Shey
this warrior prince was a member of House Melantha, and rose to power in Tapani Sector some 8,000 years before the Battle of Naboo. It was Shey Tapani who first envisioned a united Tapani Sector government, and to this end he started a vast, bloody civil war to bring all the Houses into a single body. During the twenty years of the war, Tapani eliminated two Houses completely while a third collapsed a century after he was crowned emperor. Tapani established the sector capital on Procopia, building a vast estate on Estalle Island. Sixteen successive generations of Tapani's descendants ruled the Sector, until the dynasty was overthrown in favor of a more democratic government. (PGT)

Tapani Day
this holiday, celebrated in Tapani Sector, was held annually just after the month of Kelona, and before the month of Selona. (PGT)

Tapani Federation
established some 2,000 years before the Battle of Naboo, this governing body took control of the Tapani Sector of the Galaxy in the face of growing popular unrest with the dynastic government founded by Shey Tapani some 6,000 years earlier. About 95 years after being established, the Tapani Federation sent its first delegates to the Old Republic. (PGT)

Tapani Sector
this area of the Colonies region of the galaxy was considered a respected part of the Core Worlds, due to its proximity and wealth. (EGP)

Tapani Shadowport
this hidden smugglers' haven was rumored to be located somewhere in Tapani Sector, but its location was never discovered. Many a con artist sold the coordinates of the shadowport to unsuspecting travelers. (PGT)

Tapcafe
a bar, often housing several games of chance. (DFR)

Tapper, Quelev
Talon Karrde's former second-in-command, Quelev accompanied Kaarde to Varont where they decided to see if the safari business was profitable. Quelev himself was a former leader of a smuggling group, and made a small fortune in the wake of the Battle of Endor. However, much of his business was in Imperial-held territory, and he was hunted down by a local governor. Karrde happened to be in the area, and they agreed to merge their operations and avoid the Imperials. On Varonat, they stumbled onto Gamgalon's Yagaran aleudrope business, and got too close to the truth. They were cornered by Gamgalon's forces, and Tapper tried to turn the tables. He was too slow, though, and was killed in a firefight. (EGC, TFE, SWJ1)

Taproot Tree

TapTronics CovOps
this small corporation produced a variety of surveillance equipment. (HAS)

Tar Lup
this Shistavenan wolfman owned Lup's Wares and Supplies in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. Along with his wife, Kal, they were congenial despite their fearsome appearance. However, the Lups never forgot a debt. (GG7)

Tar Morden
shortly after the Battle of Yavin, the Alliance established a starfighter manufacturing enterprise on this planet. (MB)

Taraloon
located in the Quintar Nebula, Taraloon is a dry, rocky world riddled with caves and caverns. It was discovered by the pirate Drek Drednar, who uses it as his base of operations. The day on Taraloon lasts 18 standard hours, and the year lasts 285 local days. (SWAJ)

Tarascii Explosives
this small weapons manufacturer specialized in the design of thermal detonators. Tarascii was a subsidiary of BlasTech, and was one of the few corporations which were licensed by the Empire to manufacture baradium. (ROE)

Taratan
this Kubaz was born on the planet Morning's Bell. It was believed he was captured by the Yevetha when the reptilian race initiated its Great Purge, and held on the Super-class Star Destroyer Pride of Yevetha as a hedge against reprisal by the New Republic. In reality, Taratan and many others had fled Yevethan capture on the Star Morning while Enara maintained an illusion which made the Yevetha believe he was still in the Star Destroyer's holds. (TT)

Tarc
this race of carnivorous crustaceans was native to the planet Hjaff. They were believed to have evolved from a race of sea-dwelling crustaceans, but were forced to live on dry land over time. The average Tarc was bipedal, standing on two legs and having four arms. The upper pair of arms had dextrous hands, while the lower pair had huge claws for fighting. They stood about two meters tall, but their exoskeleton and their musculature made them extremely large. They lacked lips, teeth, and tongues, but their mouths were filled with small, hollow spikes which were used to inject an acidic saliva into their food. Primary digestion began in the mouth, and the spikes could then be used to shred their food into smaller pieces for swallowing. Tarcs ate primarily the mollusks and other small creatures which lived in the deserts of Hjaff. As a race, the Tarcs were not necessarily violent, but they maintain a zero-tolerance stance with other races. They colonized much of the space around Hjaff, and protected their worlds with a navy known as the Ivlacav Gourn. Tarcs were not allowed to leave their native system, and it was a crime to be caught outside their home without permission. (AE)

Tardon Golor
this male Twi'lek was known as a starship thief of some renown, during the early years of the New Republic. He even stole B-Wing and X-Wing fighters from the New Republic, and sold them to the highest bidders. (WBC)

Taren Plague
this dreaded disease has recently been slowed by the use of drugs created on Meris III. (PG)

Target Acquired
this modified Firespray-class attack craft was owned and operated by the bounty hunter Dej Vennor. Vennor equipped the ship with a pair of twin-mounted quad laser cannons, a pair of fire-linked ion cannons, and a tractor beam projector. (FOP)

Target Dewback
this was the codename of the downed Alliance Y-Wing starfighter lost on planet NCW-781. (IA)

Target Drone
this small device was used by starfighter pilots to hone their dogfighting skills. (CSWEA)

Target-Aggressor Attack Resolution Software
known as TAARS for short, this starfighter training software allowed training squadrons to document shots taken, hits, and kills without causing real damage to the starfighters themselves. The software interfaces with the ship's targetting computer, telling the pilot when he is hit and when he is killed. (XWN)

Targeter
1) Winter's alias during the height of the Imperial Civil War. She only used it for a few weeks on the planet Averam. (TLC)
2) this was the brand name of a Merr-Sonn ranging scope, produced for use with blaster and laser rifles. It was designed for use by competition shooters, but found wide acceptance in military and paramilitary circles. (ROE)

Targeting Computer
a device used to aid in targeting shipboard weapons. They can be very small (such as the holographic crosshairs used on X- and Y-Wing snub fighters) are large (used to target the heavy turbolasers on a capital ship). (SW, SCRE)

Tariq, Amer
this man served as the Governor-General of Rhinnal, during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. He was forced to close off Rhinnal from the refugees fleeing the Yuuzhan Vong, including Leia Organa-Solo. He did, however, provide her with information on Ruan's acceptance for refugees. (JE)

Tark, Boes
this man was a Lieutenant in the Imperial armed forces, and came from a wealthy family. He maintained a luxurious lifestyle for his wife Lanaxa and their son, Moxin. (WBC)

Tark, Lanaxa
this woman married Boes Tark. (WBC)

Tark, Moxin
the son of Boes Tark, Moxin was disenchanted with the luxurious lifestyle his parents led. His father trained him in various martial arts, hoping Moxin would follow in his footsteps and join the military. Moxin wanted nothing to do with the Empire, and soon left his homeworld of Bandonia and took up bounty hunting. Somehow, he managed to obtain a set of battle armor from the Sun Guards of Thyrsus, which he modified for his own usage. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, Tark killed Narn Detan in the Geal System, and has been on the run from the New Republic ever since. (WBC)

Tarkazza
this silverback Wookiee male was Katarra's father and bodyguard during the Imperial occupation of Kashyyyk. He was identifiable by his black fur, which was striped with silver. He once had to transport Han Solo in a quulaar sling, when Han first visited Kashyyyk and was unable to climb the wroshyr trees. (RD)

Tarkenian Nightflower
an alcoholic drink. (RD)

Tarkin, Gideon
this former Brigadier served the Old Republic with distinguished loyalty, but was overshadowed during the New Order by his older brother, Willhuf. Gideon was later killed in during the Erhynradd Massacre. (CRO)

Tarkin, Lady
the widow of Grand Moff Willhuf Tarkin, the Lady Tarkin ran the Imperial megonite moss mining colony on Phelarion. She worked her miners to exhaustion in an effort to avenge her husband's death. When Leia Organa was stranded on the planet following her escape from Darth Vader, Leia was chosen as a servant by the Lady. Leia, in this position, helped smuggle the energy-giving moss off the planet. When Darth Vader himself came to Phelarion and confronted the Lady Tarkin about the smuggled moss, Leia realized that she had been using Lady Tarkin's own transponder to call the smugglers. She realized that she had to escape soon. Leia escaped from Lady Tarkin's service, and little is known of the fate of Lady Tarkin. (CSWEA, EGC)

Tarkin, Rivoche
this strikingly beautiful woman was the daughter of Brigadier Gideon Tarkin, and the niece of Grand Moff Willhuf Tarkin. After the death of her father during the Erhynradd Massacre, she was offered a home at her uncle's estate. She was began to throw tantrums around her adopted parents, resentful of the fact that her father had been taken away from her. She was shipped off to a prep school on Claer, and began to hate her uncle and everything he stood for. After meeting Biggs Darklighter and learning of the Alliance, she began passing information to him in order to thwart Imperial operations. She continued to act as a deep-cover spy for the Alliance after the destruction of Alderaan, using her position as an Imperial socialite to gain access to secret information. She was caught on the planet Corulag and forced into an engagement to Vastin Caglio, shortly before the Battle of Hoth, but was eventually rescued by Cryle Cavv and Quillin Arkell. After the Battle of Endor and the downfall of the Empire, Rivoche became a member of the New Republic's historical branch. She reported on the fighting that occurred between the New Republic and the remnants of the Empire on Coruscant. She was stationed on the Emancipator when it was disabled. (CRO, DESB, SWJ12)

Tarkin, Wilhuff
although his origins and his Imperial service records are sparse, Tarkin had a noticeable career with the Imperial Navy before proposing the infamous "Rule by Fear" doctrine to Emperor Palpatine. Tarkin was born some thirty years before the Battle of Naboo. Early in his career, Tarkin was a Commander in the Republic Outland Regions Security Force, where he first exerted his power by coercing Raith Sienar into an attempt to take control of the planet Zonama Sekot. Despite the setbacks suffered there, Tarkin nevertheless manipulated events in his favor, and gained considerable status in the eyes of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. His rise to power within the Imperial military was equally smooth; he was promoted from Captain to Moff for taking the initiative and commanding the Ghorman Massacre. It was during this time that he noticed the talents of Daala on Carida, and brought her along with him when he became Grand Moff of the Outer Rim Territories. The two became intimate confidantes, sharing their dreams for rulership along with their passion for each other, even though Tarkin had a wife back on Phelarion. Tarkin's innate evil and cunning was evident in his establishment of the Maw Installation, a secret laboratory dedicated to the creation of the superweapons which would make governing the Empire easier. When the Empire tried to enslave the Mon Calamari, Tarkin took centerstage in the attack. It was at this time that Tarkin obtained Ackbar as his personal slave. There are also rumors that Tarkin was given Ackbar as a slave by an opportunistic subordinate. Ackbar used this period to absorb all that he could about Imperial fleet strengths and weaknesses, and he also learned a great deal about Tarkin's personality. He also learned a great deal about the first Death Star in this way. When the Alliance tried to assassinate Tarkin, they were thwarted by Imperial ships, but managed to rescue Ackbar. Tarkin's major contribution to the Emperor's cause was the Death Star, which he used to rule the Outer Rim for a brief period. Palpatine assigned Tarkin to the Death Star, hoping to quell the various rebellions that occurred in the Outer Rim. However, Tarkin also had a hidden objective in creating the Death Star. Once the battle station was operational, he'd hoped to use it against Palpatine, in an attempt to take control of the galaxy for himself. Palpatine foresaw some of Tarkin's motives, and assigned Wullf Yularen as Tarkin's assistant. Tarkin's personal ambitions and self-confidence got the best of his, though, during the Battle of Yavin. Tarkin refused to evacuate the station, even with the knowledge that the Alliance had found a flaw to exploit. Tarkin Tarkin was killed when the Death Star was destroyed even as he gave the command to fire on the Massassi base. The Empire released an official death notice for Tarkin, but it claimed that he died in a shuttle crash at the Tallaan Shipyards. Tarkin was portrayed by Peter Cushing in Star Wars*, and by Keene Curtis for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio.* (SW, SWR, MTS, XW, JS, DA, DS, CCG, EGC, RP)

Tarkin
this Imperial weapons project was developed in the Patriim System. It combined the Death Star's offensive weaponry and ionic cannons with a new set of engines and defensive shield generators. Luke Skywalker, Leia Organa, Chewbacca, R2-D2, and C-3PO tried to destroy the station, but were intercepted by Darth Vader while on board. Luke battled Vader while Chewie and the droids disabled the weapon's tractor beams. As the Alliance team fled the station, the Imperials tried to fire on them with the Tarkin's untested weapons. The Tarkin's weapons failed, and exploded when they were fired. The Tarkin was destroyed. (EGC)

Tarkin Doctrine, The
Imperial coda simplified as "ruling by the fear of force rather than through force itself." Officially designated as Imperial Communique #001044.92v, this was used by the Emperor Palpatine when he built the Empire. (SW, DE1, FC)

Tarkin's Shears
this form of swoopchasing obstacle was outlawed by the sanctioned racing authority, but nevertheless was popular on non-regulated courses. Based on the Luzitall water obstacle, Tarkin's Shears employed transparisteel pikes imbedded in the outgoing walls of certain hairpin turns. The transparent spikes impaled those racers who came too close to the walls of the ravine while negotiating the turn. (BSS)

Tarkin's Teeth
this Imperial phrase was used after the fall of Willhuf Tarkin, and indicates surprise when sworn. (VOF)

Tarkin-12
a port tower located on Byss, the Hyperspace Roamer was ordered to land there, at bay 327. (DE2)

Tarkona
a powerful Twi'leki clan. (TEP)

Tarl
this Imperial Sergeant was assigned to the garrison on the forest moon of Endor, protecting the shield generator installation. (CCG10)

Tarlen, Bentu Pall
the head of the Imperial Center Construction Contracts Division, Bantu was also on Prince Xizor's payroll. He kept Xizor abreast of the current bids on construction projects. This allowed Xizor's legitimate construction business to underbid and win the contracts. (SE, SESB)

Tarlo Ganar
this noted Khil tactician and warrior distinguished himself as a member of the Belnar Sector Force, during their defeat of the Peltsic League's forces. However, rather than face mandatory retirement at the end of his military career, Tarlo Ganar set out on his own and eventually joined the m'Yalfor'ac Order. He had been long a friend of Quaal Tavier Catharius, who recognized his skills and took him on as an advisor, despite the consternation of other Bitthaevrians. (AIR)

Tarlok, Kilon
this odd fellow managed the Terman Station outpost, between Sriluur and Sespe along the Sisar Run, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He had been in control of the station well before the Nalroni crimelord Spraz showed up and usurped the station. Tarlok believed that Sprax gave him complete control of the station, as long as the credits ended up in Sprax's coffers. In reality, Sprax planned to remove Tarlok at his earliest convenience. (SSR)

Tarm
a Jomarkian villager who gets involved in a dispute with Svan, which is mediated by Joruus C'baoth. (DFR)

Tarn, Wexlann
known as a gentleman among bounty hunters, Tarn was the child of a wealthy family. He loved fine art, and used his position as a bounty hunter as a way to gather expensive artworks for his own collection. The fees he collects all go toward the purchase of new pieces. (GG10)

Tarnished Blades
this pirate gang was formed from the survivors of the Silent Blades group, which was routed by Vocis Kenit and the Far Orbit before its crew mutinied. They were led by Shel Marcino, who decided to help the Far Orbit out, especially if it meant getting a chance to strike back at Vocis Kenit. (FOP)

Tarnooga System
this system was the base of operations for Kybo Ren's pirate band. (DCAR)

Tarong
an avian race evolved from the continual cross-breeding of two avian species once native to the Epidimi System. When the Old Republic discovered the system, they found the two species - living on the planets Iri and Disim - were genetically similar, and members from both were transported to the other planet. This simple experiment, over the millenia, has led the to extinction of the two original species and the 'birth' of the Tarong race. The average Tarong is a massive, winged quadriped, with a wingspan averaging around twenty meters. They have tough, leathery skin and long, hooked beaks. Young Tarongs are lighter in color than their older counterparts. Their front feet are almost as useful as hands, and are used to manipulate objects. Their rear feet are incredibly strong, and used for climbing and grasping. They are highly intelligent, and can master languages quickly. They are also very curious and friendly, wanting to learn everything about the beings they meet and considering them friends until they do something to harm the Tarong or its family. If the stranger acts violently, the Tarong will often capture them and carry them off to some remote location to die of exposure. Tarongs do not like physical violence, and will only hunt and kill for food. They live in tribes based on family relations, with the oldest member of the family in control of the tribe. They have a primitive technology of their own, but are extremely curious about the strange devices they found used by the rest of the galaxy. The more a device sparkles or blinks, the more attractive it is to a Tarong. (GG12)

Taroon
this young Rutanian boy was King Frane's second son, being just a year younger than his brother Leed. While Leed was away on Senali, Taroon was virtually ignored by his father, who failed to see that Taroon was growing into manhood with many of his father's traits. Chief among those traits was a short temper, and Taroon came to resent his father. When Frane called in Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi to mediate the dispute over Leed, Taroon was allowed to accompany the Jedi to Senali. In a bold move to gain his father's attention, Taroon arranged to have Leed kidnapped, using Rutanian friends who were disguised as Senali to capture his brother. Taroon hoped to have Leed removed as heir-presumptive and take his place as the future king of Rutan. However, Taroon's plans were discovered by the Jedi, who arranged a meeting with King Frane to sort the matter out. Once Frane realized that Leed had made his own decisions, and that Taroon was more than just a "second son," he softened his position. When Leed decided to remain on Rutan to assume his rightful position as heir, Taroon again became angry, and tried to sabotage his father's hunting dogs and frame Leed for the act. When he learned that Drenna had remained on Rutan and was part of the hunting party, Taroon helped the two Jedi destroy the sabotaged seeker droids and restore peace. King Frane was forced to agree that Taroon would make a better leader than Leed, and agreed to allow Leed to return to Senali, while helping Taroon learn everything about rulership on Rutan. Frane even suggested that Taroon consider Drenna for his Queen, after seeing the girl's tenacity and strength. (SP)

Taroon System
a planetary system, containing Kuan and Bordal, that was invaded and usurped by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Tarpals
this Gungan warrior served Boss Nass as a Captain of the guard. He was known for his physical skills, and regularly placed in the top ten positions in the Big Nasty Free-For-All. Tarpals patrolled the city of Otoh Gunga, keeping the city safe and under control. When Jar Jar Binks returned from exile, Tarpals was forced to bring the outcast before Boss Nass. Much later, when Jar Jar brought Queen Amidala before Boss Nass, Tarpals was surprised to discover that the Gungan leader had promoted Jar Jar to the rank of General. Like many of the other army officers, Tarpals questioned Jar Jar's abilities but not Boss Nass's decision. In the Battle of Naboo, Tarpals followed General Ceel and helped lead the Gungan army against the Trade Federation's droid armies, and maintained the tide of the battle until the droids managed to destroy the Gungan shields. The battle was nearly lost until Anakin Skywalker disabled the droid control ship. With the droids powerless and adrift, Tarpals and Jar Jar quickly rounded up the automatons and took control of the battlefield. Tarpals was portrayed by Steven Speirs in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, TPM, E1A10)

Tarpaulin Plant
native to the planet Altor 14, these plants collect water by unique means. During the hot day, they appear to be large balls of green cloth. As needed, a number of broad leaves can be spread out to collect sunlight for photosynthesis. At night, the main ball of the planet unfolds to cover up to 1,000 square meters of ground. The plant simply allows moisture to condense on its leaves, funnelling it back to the center of the planet for storage. (GG4)

Tarquin Zian
this Twi'leki male was a moderately successful smuggler during the height of the New Order. He made a brief living by trading arms to the small rebel cell on Kallistas in exchange for gemstones, which he then marketed to the highest bidder. The deal was brokered between Imperial Prefect Denglass Rinn and the Mantis Bounty Hunter Syndicate. After the capture of Pallas Quintell, Rinn employed Tarquin in the hunt for Jondrell Inx. (GG10)

Tarrack
an alien race. (SOL)

Tarracus, Bonic
a native of Coruscant, Tarracus was old enough to witness the downfall of the Old Republic and the rise of the New Order. Bonic joined the Alliance as an undercover agent, and he was known for his ability to disguise himself as virtually any other person. He used this skill to infiltrate several Imperial events on various Core Worlds, gathering information to return to the Alliance. However, he remained anonymous to much of the Alliance he supported, acting only as the agent codenamed Corewatch. (CRO)

Tarrek
this was a Velabri god. (SWJ12)

Tarrek's Eyes
this expletive was used by the Velabri, in situations of extreme amazement, and referred to the eyes of the god Tarrek. (SWJ12)

Tarrens, Drigor
this man was once a member of the Qektoth Confederation, but disagreed with the way the group's motives were twisted from research to domination. He fled the confederation and received asylum on Uukaablis. Born on a colony near near the Kathol Rift, he remained silent about his defection from the confederation. Drigor is distinguished by the cybernetic replacement in his left eye, the cause of which is related to his history with the Confederation. About ten years before the FarStar found him on Uukaablis, he had learned that the Confederation was growing clones of its employees with enhanced abilities. Much of this work was shrouded in heavy security, and was performed without the knowledge of the employees. When Tarrens tried to tell the other members of this, his Y-Wing was destroyed. His body was recovered and repaired by the scientists involved, and Tarrens was sentenced to death by the Confederation's leadership. It was then that he fled to Uukaablis. The silvery eye stared straight ahead, no matter what direction Tarrens was looking. Tarrens agreed to help the crew of the FarStar expose the Confederation and obtain the cure for the biological weapon that had been contracted by much of its crew, shortly after realizing that he himself was infected. (KO)

Tarrick

Tarris 800 Cables
this line of mini-cables can be used in place of a hardware scomp link. Tarris 800 cables can be used to modify a blaster to fire twice with each pull of the trigger. By connecting the cable between the V-4 plug and the trigger adaptor, a feedback loop can be created to send two pulses to the apas connectors, thereby opening the Heter valve twice. (CFG)

Tarro
this alien race originated in the Til system, on the planet Tililix. When the Til star exploded, the planet Tililix was destroyed. Only those Tarro off-planet at the time survived. An estimated 350 Tarro exist in the galaxy, all of them descendants of the Tarro who had survived the destruction of Tililix. The Tarro are a humanoid race characterized by their dark green skin and piercing yellow eyes. They have seven fingers on each hand, and are heavily muscled. They are formidable fighters and weapons-masters, and are known for their stubborn, independent natures. Little is known of their history and culture, given the cataclysmic reduction of their species. (GG12)

Tarrvin-on-Kallik
this Adumari corporation designed and manufactured the Blade-28 and Blade-32 atmospheric superiority fighter craft. (SOA)

Tarrz
this t'landa Til was the Head Sacredot of the Ylesian Colony Nine. When the Rodian mercenary Sniquux infiltrated the colony, he laid a trap of monofilament fibers and then stampeded the t'landa Til with a recording of the call of a thota. Tarrz, foremost among the t'landa Til there, ran straight into the trap and was quickly beheaded. (RD)

Tarsunt System
the planetary system which was a stopover point for Jabba the Hutt when he moved to Tatooine. It was also where Grizzid obtained the rancor from Grendu. (MTS, TJP)

Tas-La
this planet was located in the Si'Klaata Cluster. (SSR)

Tasar Crystals
these colorful stones held religious meaning to the ancient Tasari people. Ritual blood sacrifices were made to the crystals, in the hopes of unlocking their mystical potential. The Tasaro also believed that these sacrifices would appease the dark gods who rained meteors down on the planet Tasariq, causing massive destruction and relegating the Tasari to a primitive existence. Modern Tasari have abandoned the practice of ritual sacrifice, but pockets of believers still exist in the power of the crystals. (AE)

Tasari
this species of hairless humanoids was native to the planet Tasariq. Their faces are bird-like in structure, with a beak-like nose and feathery crests on the back of their skulls. They can live to be 120 years of age, and were known to be inquisitive and minded. Many centuries ago, the Tasari had a flourishing society, until a meteor shower rained down from the skies and destroyed much of the planet's surface. The Tasari were forced to revert to a primitive existence, and many blood cults rose from the ashes. These cults enacted blood sacrifices to tasar crystals in order to appease the dark gods who destroyed the planet. Over the next several hundred years, these cults died out, but pockets of believers still exist. During the New Order, the Tasari had developed an industrial society, but could use mor emodern technology with relative ease. (AE)

Tasariq
this planet was the homeworld of the Tasari race. Once a temperate world, Tasariq was bombarded many centuries before the Battle of Yavin by a metero shower. The planet was pummeled, and much of its surface was destroyed. Craters and gouges now dominate its landscape. (AE)

Tasariq City
this was the largest settlement on the planet Tasariq. It was established by the Empire, when the planet was first explored. (AE)

Tascl, Boren
an Imperial Moff who survived the defeat of the Empire at Endor, he was governor of the planet Cilpar. (XWRS)

Taselda
this ageless woman was among the first Jedi to come to the planet Nam Chorios. She claimed to have been sent to the planet at the behest of her Jedi Master, but it is believed that she and Beldorion went to the planet in hopes of finding some gift that would allow them to more fully use the Force. She was appalled at the living conditions she found, and remained on the planet as something of a leader to the Oldtimers. She kept order in Hweg Shul some 200 years before Callista arrived. When the Hutt Beldorion came to Nam Chorios, Taselda recognized his failures with the Force, and tried to keep him from gaining power. However, the Hutt prevailed, and in the battle her lightsaber was lost. She sustained numerous injuries in the fight, and found herself unable to create another lightsaber. When Callista arrived on the planet, Taselda used her desire to regain the Force as a fulcrum, and manipulated Callista. She hoped to used Callista to recover her lost lightsaber from Beldorion, but the young woman was overcome by the Hutt's augmented power. Later, Taselda tried to ensnare Luke Skywalker the same way, but he defeated her. (POT)

Taser Staff
this short club was used by crowd and riot control squadrons. It was balanced and weighted on each end, and delivered an intense electrical shock when it contacted bare skin. (SESB)

Tashtor Seneca
a planet. (GG9)

Tasin
this Nalroni trader was employed by the Jatayus Trading Consortium during the height of the Galactic Civil War, and eventually took over as JTC's leader when Sprax joined Black Sun. She remained close to Sprax, to share information and to acquire business for JTC. She also maintained a low-key relationship with Sprax, although it was nothing more than friendship. (SSR)

Task Force Apex
this New Republic Fourth Battle Group fleet was assigned to assist the Fifth Battle Group during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster, in an attempt to limit the advance of the Yevetha. It was under the command of Commodore Farley Carson. Apex was joined by Blackvine and Keyhole during the initial phase of Operation Strong Hand, and were the first groups of warships to attacke Doornik-319 during the final battle of the Black Fleet Crisis. (SOL, TT)

Task Force Aster
this division of the Fifth Battle Group was stationed near Doornik-319 during the New Republic's blockade of the Koornacht Cluster. They were in place for the contingency that the Yevetha resisted the blockade of the system. Task Force Aster waited above the plane of the system, complimenting the position of Task Force Blackvine. There were 18 ships in this grouping, commanded by Commodore Brand. They were under orders to wait for a command from Etahn A'baht. (SOL)

Task Force Bantha
this was the codename given to the convoy of freighters and transports led by Booster Terrik that accompanied Rogue Squadron to Qretu 5. Once the Rogues had eliminated any defenses, the Banthas left bacta facility Q5A7 with as much bacta as their holds could contain. (BW)

Task Force Bellbright
this New Republic Second Battle Group fleet was assigned to assist the Fifth Battle Group during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster, in an attempt to limit the advance of the Yevetha. It was placed under the command of Admiral Tolokus. (SOL, TT)

Task Force Blackvine
this division of the Fifth Battle Group complimented Task Force Aster during the New Republic's blockade of the Koornacht Cluster and Doornik-319. Blackvine was commanded by Commodore Tolsk, and waited below the plane of the system for a signal from Etahn A'baht. There were 20 ships in Task Force Blackvine. Blackvine, along with Apex and Keyhole, was the first to attack Doornik-319 during the final battle of the Black Fleet Crisis. (SOL, TT)

Task Force Copperleaf
this division of the New Republic Navy was placed under the command of Commodore Mirx during the Black Fleet Crisis. Along with Task Force Gemstone, Copperleaf formed the flag task force of the Republic's most successful battle against the Yevetha. (TT)

Task Force Fleet
a fleet of three Imperial-I class Star Destroyers. (SWSB)

Task Force Gemstone
this New Republic Third Battle Group fleet was assigned to assist the Fifth Battle Group during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster, in an attempt to limit the advance of the Yevetha. It was placed under the command of Commodore Mirx, and along with Task Force Copperleaf formed the Republic's flag task force fleet. (SOL, TT)

Task Force Keyhole
this is one of the first New Republic Navy fleets given free reign to attack N'zoth, during the final battle of the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Task Force Quickfire
this New Republic grouping was part of the Third Fleet. It was the first task force to receive K-Wing bombers. (BTS)

Task Force Shen
this top-secret Alliance Special Forces unit was called upon to execute elite, silent missions throughout the Mid Rim during the Galactic Civil War. The unit was made up of two Infiltrator platoons, a Pathfinder platoon, and two squads of technicians. It was led by Major Mart Stevez, and was often "loaned" to the Alliance's Intelligence division in order to acquire sensitive data. (ROE)

Task Force Starfall
this Alliance fleet operation was aimed at taking out the Victory-class Star Destroyer Subjugator. They were unaware of the presence of Walex Blissex on board the ship, but Blissex and the Alliance agents supporting him wer able to escape. (SF)

Task Force Summer
this New Republic Fourth Battle Group fleet was assigned to assist the Fifth Battle Group during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster, in an attempt to limit the advance of the Yevetha. It was placed under the command of Commodore Carson. (SOL, TT)

Task Force Token
this New Republic Second Battle Group fleet was assigned to assist the Fifth Battle Group during the blockade of the Koornacht Cluster, in an attempt to limit the advance of the Yevetha. It was placed under the command of Admiral Tolokus. Token was one of the last groups to join the Battle of N'zoth, only because Sil Sorannan's Camp Pa'aal Squadron stole most of the Yevethan fleet and took it back to the Deep Core. (SOL, TT)

Taskeed
this city was the site of Yefowr's largest spaceport. It was surrounded by the deserts of the Wasted Plains. (SWJ14)

Taskeen, Tyr
this man, a native of Alderaan, was a successful businessman when the New Order was instituted. He was a skilled pilot and negotiator, learning these trades while running his own starship dealership. Taskeen's small operation was nationalized by the Empire, though, and his fortunes were confiscated. Those non-human employees he had were enslaved, and Taskeen found himself back on Alderaan. Once there, he joined the forces of the Alliance and used his knowledge of the Outer Rim to help transport refugees to safeworlds beyond the Empire's control. His hard work and dedication earned him a swift promotion to General within the Alliance, shortly before the destruction of his homeworld. (FC)

Taslo Deville
this Togorian bounty hunter was often employed by Darth Vader, whenever a quick kill was necessary. Sodarra planned to meet up with her on Shador, in an effort to kill Han Solo and return Darth Vader's body to the Emperor. Unfortunately for Taslo, she was killed in a brief firefight by Lieutenant Birdloe. (SL)

Tassler Tree
this tall, bushy tree lives in the swamps to Naboo. The leaves of the tassler tree are ground up and mixed with water by the Gungans, who use the mixture as a dye for clothing. (GF)

Tassler Knee
this is the name used to describe the younger growth of the tassler tree. These stump-like shoots sprout from the swampy water, providing a food source for many of Naboo's herbivores. (GF)

Tasson
this was an Imperial DX-9 stromtrooper transport, destroyed when the Alliance attacked the Obsidian research platform shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Tastiged Flu
a highly-contagious disease. (WS)

Tasty Acorn
this Rendili StarDrive LT-9000 Interceptor was owned by Plako. He equipped it with specially-modified ore locators, and discovered the exact location of the legendary Fool's Gold. However, the ship suffered engine damaged which forced Plako to return home and hired out the recovery of the Fool's Gold. The ship was painted light blue with pink lettering. (TSK)

Tathis, Orinn
this man was a member of the Council of Elders on Alderaan, during the New Order. When Grand Moff Tarkin used the first Death Star to destroy the planet, Tathis was off-world on business. He returned to the Graveyard of Alderaan to locate the armory ship Another Chance and turn its weapons cache over to the Alliance. He had discovered the location of the remote calling device used to communicate with the armory ship, and planned to draw it back. However, his initial plans were thrown off by Darth Vader's attempt to lure Leia Organa and Luke Skywalker to Alderaan as part of Operation Yavin Kill Two. Tathis hid inside the caves of Asteroid 7785, then gladly assisted the Alliance agents who came to the Graveyard to investigate the possible existence of the Royal Palace of Alderaan. Tathis called the Another Chance back to Alderaan. (GA)

Tatium
Lira Wessex's Imperial shuttle, she used it to escape the destruction of the Subjugator. (SF)

Tatoo I
one of Tatooine's twin primary stars. It is described as a G1 type star. (SWN)

Tatoo II
one of Tatooine's twin primary stars. It is described as a G2 type star. (SWN)

Tatoo III
this space station was erected in orbit near Tatooine, just after the colonization of the planet. It was built by the settlers of Tatooine, from metals and ores they were able eke out of the desert. It was destroyed shortly after completion when the Obvious Nrivana suddenly rushed at the station during docking and collided with it. An investigation was launched, and it was discovered that the native Tatooinian metals used to construct the station had unusual magnetic properties. Thus, when the Obvious Nirvana approached it, Tatoo III suddenly became a huge magnet. This change in polarity drew the Obvious Nirvana into the station. This one setback marked the beginning of the hardest years Tatooine had ever seen. (GG7)

Tatooine
the primary planet in the Tatoo system, this desert world is located in the Arkanis Sector of the Outer Rim Territories near Piroket and Ryloth, some 43,000 light-years from the galactic core. It is close enough to a major hyperspace nexus to make it easy to get to such worlds as Coruscant and Corellia, but its environment makes it one of the most inhosptiable places in the galaxy. The planet's twin suns mercilessly heat the planet, keeping the sodium-rich deserts alive. The planet has a single, natural satellite. Several decades before the Battle of Yavin, settlers arrived to colonize this first world in what was then called the J11.9 system. They coined the name Tatooine from the Jawa name for the planet, Tah doo Een e. The settlers established strongholds on the planet, and many smugglers and criminals have set up operational bases in its wastelands. The settlers there are primarily moisture farmers, extracting what little water they can from the atmosphere for survival. Its location on the galactic fringes makes it a perfect base for smugglers, mercenaries, and bounty hunters. The planet, despite its hostile ecology, supports human life was well as the native races of Jawas, krayt dragons, and Tusken Raiders. The planet's remote location appealed to Owen Lars and his wife Beru, and they lived there with Luke Skywalker for many years. Tatooine's average day lasts 23 standard hours, and its year consumes 304 local days. Note that the Star Wars Journal: Anakin Skywalker claims Tatooine is located not only near several hyperspace routes, but also near other galaxies. (SW, SCRE, GG7, TME, ISU, IG1, JAS, IWE1)

Tatooine
this New Republic Mon Calamari cruiser was part of the fleet sent to blockade Almania. Under the command of Wedge Antilles, the Tatooine was destroyed in the battle between the Republic's forces and the starships under the command of the failed Jedi Dolph. (TNR)

Tatooine Blues
a musical style derived from the lonely, desolate environment of the planet Tatooine. (TNR)

Tatooine Planetary Insurance Company
the insurance company which underwrites many of the landspeeder and airspeeder rentals on the planet. (ZHR)

Tatooine Sunburn
a thick, bitter-tasting alcoholic beverage. It is created by placing two Starshine Surprises in one glass, and was named for thw twin stars Tatoo I and Tatoo II. (GG9, TME)

Tatooine Tattoo
this was spacer's slang for a deathmark placed on a being by Jabba the Hutt. (SWJ13)

Tatrang
the red star that is the central point of the Tatrang System. (PG2)

Tatrang I
the first planet in the Tatrang System, Tatrang I is a hot, rocky wasteland with no natural moons. (PG2)

Tatrang II
like the other inner worlds of the Tatrang System, the second world is a hot, rocky wasteland without moons. (PG2)

Tatrang III
this hot, poisonous jungle world is the third planet in the Tatrang System. It has three natural satellites. (PG2)

Tatrang V
this cool, dry, rocky world is the fifth planet in the Tatrang System, and has a vast array of untapped mineral resources. It has two moons. (PG2)

Tatrang VI
this gas giant is the sixth planet in the Tatrang System. It is surrounded by a vast ring system and 23 moons. (PG2)

Tatrang VII
this gas giant is the seventh planet in the Tatrang System. It is ringed by a system of icy belts, and has 11 moons. (PG2)

Tatrang VIII
this frigid, rocky planet is the eighth world in the Tatrang System. It seems to have been a planetoid captured by the system's gravity, and was home to an ancient scout base. The base was abandoned long ago. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Tattogg
this young Gungan was a private in the Gungan Grand Army, and was placed in charge of the bongo pen in Otoh Gunga just before the Battle of Naboo. (E1A10)

Tau Sakar System
a planetary system which contains seven life-supprting worlds. Among these worlds is Garban, although all seven planets seem to be very similar in ecology and environment. Some scientists have speculated that the system was planetscaped by an unknown race. The system was overrun by the Empire, and the Jenets were enslaved to work in the mines to obtain ores. (GG4)

Tauber
Neuro-Saav maintained a research and development facility on this Jaso Sector planet, during the New Order. (AIR)

Tauk, Lemmet
one of the Empire's most skilled and loyal soldiers, Tauk was among the top four members of the training facility on Yinchorr, in the same class as Carnor Jax and Kir Kanos. Tauk was a friend of Kanos', and they trained hard together in the hopes of one day serving the Emperor. At the completion of their training, Emperor Palpatine ordered Tauk and Kanos to battle each other to the death, in an effort to prove their loyalty. Both hesitated before Darth Vader forced them into the battle, which Kanos eventually won by running Tauk through with his sword. Kanos mourned for his friend, and earned a scar from the blade of Vader's lightsaber for his emotions. (CE)

Taul
this swampy world, located in the Gunthar System, was the site of an Alliance training post that was destroyed by the Star Destroyer Dominator. (SWJ1)

Taun
this young man was a member of The Young, and served as the leader of the group charged with restoring the utilities of the city of Zehava following The Young's defeat of the elders of the Daan and Melida. (UP)

Taung
this ancient race controlled the planet Coruscant for many millennia, prior to the dawn of modern humans. They conquered the other peoples of the planet, including the Zhell, in a series of bloody conquests. They were known throughout history as the Dark Warriors, after a volcano erupted during their final battle with the Zhell. The ash from the explosion wiped out the Zhell city, and the Taung adopted the name Dha Werda Verda, or “The Warriors of the Shadow,” when the ash cloud filled the skies for two years. (SES)

Tauntaun
a cold-weather creature suitable for use as transportation, they resemble a fur-covered iguana which runs on its hind legs and has curved, ram-like horns. Native to the planet Hoth, these creatures are often found in large herds, racing across the snowy plains on their large, three-toed feet. They have strong, rough lips that allow them to scrape lichens and moss off exposed rocks for food. This is no their only source of food, for they have also been seen eating carrion and small rodents. They also have a unique elimination system, exuding oils and waste products through pores in their skin. This causes the tauntaun to eminate a distictive odor. They seek nocturnal shelter in caves, since they cannot survive the harsh nighttime temperatures. They were used by the Alliance as mounts during their stay at Echo Base. To pass the time, Alliance soldiers often staged tauntaun rodeos, putting their mounts through various stunts and exercises while trying to create a comradery with the uncooperative beasts. The tauntaun has a unique, cold-resistant blood which allows it to survive on the Hoth tundra. There are a number of species of tauntaun on Hoth, each having a distinct mix of reptilian and mammalian characteristics. The tauntaun, being one of the two primary creatures native to Hoth, is the favored source of food for the other, the Wampa ice creature. (ESB, ISU)

Tauran Nartal
this Klaatu served the New Republic as an Special Forces operative, and was assigned to discover the whereabouts of agents Krotorra and Lamorrack. He caught up with Slar-dan ti Gardi on Werncin 3, but was unable to bring the Twi'lek in. Gardi's partner, Borun Call, shot Nartal with a stun psitol, and the pair eventually sold Nartal into. (SWJ8)

Taurill
these foot-long, semi-intelligent creatures have gray fur, two legs, and four supple arms. Each of their four hands is incredibly dextrous, as are their feet. They have beedy eyes that allow the curious creatures to survey everything. Like some insect races, the taurill have a hive mind in which each individual was linked to all others in a collective consciousness. They were discovered in the Outer Rim, but the explorer and the xenobioligist who found them were killed by Durga the Hutt in an effort to keep their existence a secret. Durga the Hutt used used a number of them as workers, and brought them with him to Coruscant. After creating a diversion, three taurill infiltrated the Information Center and stole the plans to the Death Star. (DS)

Tauve
a city on the Dysis continent of the planet Algara II. (PG2)

Tav Breil'lya
a Bothan, and one of Fey'lya's top aides, Tav Breil'lya lacked the subtlety that Borsk Fey'lya had. This eventually cost the Bothans a measure of security during the time when Admiral Ackbar was under arrest for treason to the New Republic. Fey'lya had employed Breil'lya to be his emissary to Garm Bel Iblis' group of freedom fighters, but Breil'lya was tracked to one of their meetings by Han Solo and Lando Calrissian, who eventually persuaded Bel Iblis to rejoin the Republic. Breil'lya is a native of Kothlis, and wears his family's ornate crest on a chain around his neck. (DFR, TLC, DFRSB)

Tava Yagen
this is the name of the asteroid belt that orbits the star Bovo Yagen, between the fourth and fifth planets in the system. It was named for one of Captain Bovo Yagen's sons. (CTD)

Tavares
this man was one of the Empire's highest-ranking Admirals, and was a member of the Imperial Navy's general staff. (SWJ12)

Tavvar Va'ran
this Kubaz was considered the second-best Kubaz chef in the Empire, shortly after the Battle of Hoth. Tavvar was also a master at combining subtle poisons with his culinary creations, using nearly untraceable elements which reacted with the natural oils and spices in the meals to create poisonous substances which themselves were unidentifiable. This made him an invaluable employee of Prince Xizor and Black Sun. As the Master Chef at the Manarai Restaurant on Coruscant, he took pride in this description because the best chef was part of Emperor Palpatine's personal staff. (SESB)

Tavira, Leonia
this small woman had a very severe demeanor. She was married to Tharil Tavira, and her strong will allowed her to quickly fill his position when he passed away. There are some who believe she had him killed, in order to obtain the title of Moff. Still others believe she killed Tharil's first wife in order to marry him. Following Tharil's death, Tavira cultivated a relationship with Harran Estillo, hoping to use him as a way to gain control of the Priamsta and the People's Liberation Battalion. Their plans were foiled when it was revealed that Plourr was the true heir to the throne of Eiattu, and she returned to take control. Leonia fled with the Star Destroyer Invidious, and gathered the support of a pirate named Kavil. Tavira maintained her contacts on Eiattu. When Leia Organa traveled to Eiattu for a diplomatic mission, Tavira obtained information on her location from Baron Laabann, and had Leia kidnapped along with Tycho Celchu. Tavira believed that the New Republic would gladly pay for Leia's freedom, but she was unaware that her agent had actually captured Winter instead of Leia. After a brief stint with Kavil's Corsairs, and with help from Sate Pestage in escaping from Axxila, Tavira started her own pirate organization. She offered Pestage to Ysanne Isard, but Isard arranged to have Pestage stolen from Ciutric before Tavira could recover her reward. She provided the military support with the Invidious, but never actually did any pirating. Once the target was neutralized, she disappeared to her lair and started planning her next move. She collected fifty percent of all the loot stolen by the pirates, which helped fund her operations. She was the target of Rogue Squadron and the New Republic, shortly after the death of Emperor Palpatine's clone on Byss. Leonia was operating from a base on Suarbi 7/5, a moon known for the Jensaarai sect of Jedi. There, she killed the moon's Imperial governor, claimed to have removed the natives from Imperial control. She alo used her persuasive skills to coerce the Jensaarai and their leader, the Saarai-kaar into believing that they must kidnap Mirax Terrik in order to draw a being known as the Halcyon - Corran Horn, a member of Rogue Squadron - into a trap. She made them believe that killing the Halcyon would eliminate a dire threat to their homeworld anf their families. She continued to make her raids, destroying the Harmzuay and gaining more control over the Jensaarai. However, Corran's infiltration into the Khuiumin Survivors led to her downfall, as he used the persona of an "avenging Jedi" to break up the Invids stationed on Courkrus. Tavira became increasing unable to handle the situation when Corran and Luke Skywalker broke into her fortress on Suarbi 7/5 and rescued Mirax. She tried to wipe out all of Suarbi 7/5 in order to kill them, but her small fleet was attacked by the Backstab and the Errant Venture. Corran also used the Force to project a much larger fleet of ships arrayed against her, and Tavira fled into hyperspace. (XWWP, IJ, HXW, XWM, XWMR)

Tavira, Tharil
this Imperial Grand Moff was dispatched to take control of Eaittu just before Uthorrferrel Cartha was unseated by the Priamsta. Although it was never proven, it was believed that his ambitious young wife, Leonia, killed him in order to obtain his position as Grand Moff. Tharil suffered a massive stroke which incapacitated him, and his allergy to bacta meant that he could not recover quickly. As soon as he regained the use of his hands, he shot himself with a blaster. (XWWP, IJ)

Tawss Khaa
this female Nimbanel fortune teller was also trained in the ways of the Sakiyan hunters. She was known as a risk-taker, and spent much of her early career roaming the deserts of Tatooine. She later became a scout for the Alliance. (CCG9)

Tawn
this young Senali girl was the daughter of Jaret and Mesan. (SP)

Tawntoom
a frontier colony established in the Roon System, it was the base of operations for Governor Koong during the early days of the Empire. (DCAR)

Tawntoom Territory
this is the name of a role-playing gaming establishment found in the Revels of Talos, on the planet Atzerri. (SOL)

Taxon*-class Probe Ship
this model of reconnaissance craft was developed for the Trade Federation during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RP)

Tay'ah'loo
the Empire unleashed a strain of Bledsoe's disease on this planet, wiping out the entire population in an effort to propagate the location of Alliance bases. (CSWEA)

Tayaba'l
this was the Socorran name for the winter equinox experienced on the planet. It was a deeply cold season, and influenced by the orbit of Neftali as well as Socorro's distance from the star Sokor. (BSS)

Tayana
this was a district of the domed refugee city of Gateway, on the planet Duro. It was filled with old ruins from prior Duros civilization on the planet's surface. (BP)

Tazaene, Vul
this Kiffu served as a member of the Kiffex security force. He scoured the galaxy looking for the Tonnika Sisters to two reasons: first, it was his job; second, he was in love with one of them, but he couldn't tell which. (CCG7)

Taznel Mountains
this chain of coastal mountains rose from the shores of the nothern Nomers Ocean, on the planet Brosi. (AIR)

TBM
this is a form of news dispatch service run by the New Republic. Luke Skywalker, when confronted by Chewbacca after Han Solo's rescue from the Yevetha, told the Wookiee that the TBM hadn't carried any notice of Solo's disappearance. (TT)

TC-series Droid
this line of protocol droids was products by Cybot Galactica in the years prior to the Clone Wars. Very similar in appearance to the 3PO series, the TC series was humanoid in stature but often bronze or red in color. They were known for being unflappable and proper, a trait which was enhanced with each memory wipe. (SW1)

TC-14
this silver protocol droid served Nute Gunray and the Neimoidians during their blockade of the planet Naboo. Frequent memory wipes kept the droid strongly loyal to the Trade Federation. It was TC-14, with her feminine personality, which greeted Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi when they attempted to negotiate a settlement with Gunray. TC-14 was then dispatched to detain the Jedi Knights until the Neimoidians could eliminate them. TC-14 was acted by John Fenson and voiced by Lindsay Duncan in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

TCF32
this was a model of Carbonite Encasement Apparatus. The TCF32 was used on Cloud City, although the fumes of the coolant used in the structure have a euphoric effect on the Ugnaughts that operate it. Those Ugnaughts that are given duty on the TCF32 are held in awe by their peers. (CCG5)

Tchaka
this youth was Rekkon's nephew, and he moved to the Corporate Sector when his father relocated there. Rekkon relocated as well, and took Tchaka under his wing while his brother slaved away to earn a living. Rekkon's displeasure with the Corporate Sector Authority's policies and practices bled over into Tchaka, and the boy started to act on them. Where Rekkon proferred to act quietly and within the system, Tchaka was impulsive and outspoken. He began to speak out at campus rallies, and was soon a major thorn in the Authority's hide. When he suddenly disappeared, Rekkon began to suspect that Tchaka was incarcerated by the Authority. This was exactly the case, for Tchaka's orations had reached the ears of Security Viceprex Mirkovig Hirken, who had placed Tchaka on his "list" of candidates for imprisonment at Stars' End. With the help of Han Solo and Chewbacca, Rekkon was able to discover the location of Stars' End, but was killed by Torm before he could rescue his nephew. After his release, and the discovery of his uncle's murder, Tchaka turned his energies to making the Authority pay for its crimes. (HSE, CSA)

Tchiery
this young Lieutenant served the New Republic as one of six armed escorts assigned by Mon Mothma to guard Leia Organa-Solo when she traveled to Almania to confront Dolph. Tchiery was a member of the Farnym race. (TNR)

Tchin
the Twi'Lek term for their right head tail. (XW)

Tching, Uueg
the 54th Emperor of the Kitel Phard Dynasty in the Atrisi System, Uueg developed a system of secret infiltration that was used extensively by the Empire. He used his system to subvert at least 30 known rebellions against his rule of the system. His ancient manuscript, Sayings, was kept in the Atrisian Imperial Historical Library on Kitel Phard for 3,000 years before it was removed to be copied. The copies were distrubuted to all living members of the Tching royalty some 1,500 years before the fall of the Old Republic. Later, at the height of the New Order, Emperor Palpatine demanded that the original manuscript be brought to Coruscant, where it disappeared into his private collection. Following the Battle of Endor, the exact location of the manuscript was unknown. (ISB, SWJ14)

Tching, Oeana
this descendant of Uueg Tching was known as the Invisble Empress, and she was one of the few rulers of the Tching Dynasty who bothered to read Uueg's Sayings. (SWJ14)

Tching Dynasty
this was another name for the Kitel Phard Dynasty, which was ruled by the Tching family in the millennia following the ascension of Uueg Tching. (SWJ14)

Tchochke
a food cooked at Crseih Station. (CS)

the Twi'Lek term for their left head tail. (XW)

Tchun-tchin
the Twi'Lek term for their two head tails. (XW)

Tchuukthai
a culture of predators whose epic poems and songs are legendary througout the galaxy. C-3PO relates one of their more romantic epics to Han Solo just before he takes Leia to Dathomir. (CPL)

TD-10036-EM-1271
an out-of-the-way star in the Corellian Sector, chosen by Thrackan Sal-Solo to be the first star he explodes, as part of his master plan to librerate the Corellian Sector. It has no planets and no life in its system. (AC)

TDL Nanny Droid
an advanced protocol droid produced by Industrial Automaton under the brand name X1-Lioness, the TDL was designed to serve as a nanny. It has four arms covered with synthetic flesh, and its shape has been rounded to make it less dangerous to children. It was equipped with an AA-1 VerboBrain and a TranLang III ommunications module for interaction with any number of sentient species. One of the main problems which plagued the TDL series of droids was that it was easily reprogrammed. Several reports came in about children repogramming them to allow later bedtimes and less restrictive boundaries. There were also rumors of corporate executives reprogramming TDL droid to be bodyguards and assassins, since they were comparatively cheaper than dedicated assassin droids. (COTF, JASB, SWJ14)

TDL-3.5
This nanny droid was purchased from an online catalog by Anakin Solo, using the ordering code Bantha-456. Young Anakin believed that the nanny droid would help C-3PO take better care of the Solo children. The officious TDL-3.5 tried to convince C-3PO that it was better suited to care for children, especially since C-3PO was a protocol droid. Howeve, once Anakin's part in the purchase was revealed, C-3PO sent TDL-3.5 back to the warehouse. (TNR)

Te Gniev, Jal
this Alliance starfighter pilot was a veteran of thirty-one missions and more than eighty kills, but was kept out of the Battle of Yavin by a case of the measles. Luke Skywalker flew his X-Wing during the battle, and Jal felt cheated out of his chance for glory every since. His feelings toward Luke bordered on hatred, and Jal stole an X-Wing in an effort to prove his own worth. In his haste, he crashed the fighter into a grove of trees, and was arrested by the Alliance's military police. General Dodonna offered him one option: travel to Dubrava and act as a recruiter. Jal took the position, if only to get away from Luke. While on Dubrava, Jal offended a young Dubravan named Bobek by tricking him into falling off a deck during a mock training exercise. He also told Nevana about Luke traveling to Jazbina, in a drunken fit of rage. She told Sarma of the information, and Sarma rounded up the local Imperial stormtroopers. When they tried to catch her and get more information on Skywalker's location, she confronted Jal about the information. Nevana was shot by a stormtrooper before she could say anything more, and Jal barely escaped when the stormtroopers set the bar on fire, but was apprehended by the Imperials. Bobek intervened, having purchased a blaster and vowing to kill Jal, but was shot by a stormtrooper. Jal felt that their deaths were his own fault, and fled Dubrava in an old X-Wing purchased from a Dubravan dealer. He hoped to get to Jazbina before the Empire, in order to warn Luke of the danger he'd caused. When he dropped out of hyperspace, Jal's ship collided with Vader's Star Destroyer, and Jal was forced to crash-land. However, he was able to discover Luke's location just before Darth Vader did, though he fled when Vader captured Luke and Syayna's rebels. Jal didn't run, though. Instead, he flew his starship into the belly of Vader's Star Destroyer and crashed it into the ship at full speed. The Star Destroyer exploded, and Vader's troops were stranded on the planet. (VQ)

Te Hasa
this planet, one of the worlds of the Gree Enclave, is known for its large concentration of Gree textmasters. The planet is the location of the Great Library of Manuals, which contains vast amounts of information on Gree technology. However, the exact location of the planet is a well-guarded secret, and Te Hasa has become known as the “hidden world” of the Gree Enclave. Since the decline of Gree civilization, Te Hasa has become a storehouse for devices and technologies that they no longer understand or have forgotten how to use. It is a desert world, and the storehouses of devices are located beneath the many oases that dot the landscape. These storehouses are maintained by a close-knit community of Gree which are hoping to unlock the many secrets contained within the devices. A day on Te Hasa lasts about 29 standard hours, and its year encompasses 296 local days. (SWJ8)

Teaching Guide
this was the title of those Keganites who were charged with disseminating the tenets and beliefs of the General Good. Most worked within the Learning Circle, teaching Keganite children The Learning. (FFT)

Team Black
this Alliance Special Forces Pathfinder unit kept watch over the Empire's Bid'Jerma Detention Block from their base at Outpost Cinder, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Team NaKuda
this now-defunct swoopracing team was once by the Herglic businessbeing Kaylo NaKuda. He disbanded the group after he got bored with the endeaver, despite several early successes. (WSV)

Team Razor
this was an Alliance Special Forces Pathfinder unit, best known for setting up Outpost Cinder during the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Team 19
this Alliance Special Forces unit was attached to the 14th Roving Line during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Led by Miko Beski, Team 19 was a platoon-sized unit made up of SpaceOps personnel and Heavy Weapons Specialists, and acted as the 14th's primary boarding party and planetary assault force. (ROE)

Tears of Aquanna
a song performed by Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes. (TME)

Tebbi
this rabbit-like alien was the daughter of Heff, and inherited his souvenir shop in Mos Eisley after he was murdered by Jodo Kast. She was secretly supporting the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (TM)

Tecave
this grass grows only on the planet Cerea, where is fills the rolling fields. Tecave is important because is is used to produce guilea, and is in high demand off-planet. However, it cannot survive without the presence of malium in the atmosphere, a substance which is rare on most worlds but found in the correct quantities on Cerea. (PTR)

Tecave City
this was the capital city of the planet Cerea. It was an unusual city, contained with the walls of a three-tower building surmounted by a diamond-shaped structure. This idea of building their city within a defined area helped the native Cereans maintain the beauty of the surrounding environment. (PTR)

Tech Circle
this section of the primary city on Kegan was dedicated to the maintenance of the planet's anitiquated technologies. It led into the Communications Circle. (FFT)

Tech M'or
one of the Bith performing with Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes, Tech played the Ommni Box. He was usually inebriated when he played. (TME, CCG2)

Tech Raiders
this smuggling group was active some twelve years prior to the Battle of Naboo, when they moved their base of operations from Coruscant to the planet Vandor-3. They were known to be black marketeers of starships and weapons. It was believed that Senator Uta

S'orn had been trying to form a coalition of planets in order to force the Tech Raiders out of business, shortly before her retirement. However, news of her retirement forced her to drop her work on forming the coalition. (DH)

Tech 4 PDV
an Imperial Intelligence Plexus Droid Vessel, the Tech 4 was used by Imperial Sector Plexus to quickly communicate important information between neighboring systems. The vessels were manned by two droids and a computer, and were equipped with advanced astrogation and hyperdrive capabilities. (SN)

Techdome
an outbuilding used as a garage and workshop on Tatooine. The top can be opened and closed, depending on the weather and the current activity inside the dome. (SW, SWR)

TechMaster II
this vacuum protection suit was manufactured by LifeLine, and was marketed to independent spacers. (PSG)

Technical Academy
this was a galaxy-spanning institution which provided education in all forms of high technology. (SWJ12)

Technicians
known simply as Techs, these soldiers were part of the Alliance's SpecForces unit. They had skills in a variety of disciplines, including demolitions, communications, and emergency medicine, but often were deficient in actual combat skills. They were considered the 7th Regiment of the SpecForces of the Alliance.(ROE)

Technivore
this is a zoological classification of creatures which survive by consuming energy, such as electricity. (COG)

Technomic Research Foundation
an educational foundation which deals with the enhancement of droids. (COJ)

Techrat
this is a term used to describe a being who relies too heavily on technology. On some worlds where technology is shunned in favor of a more natural existence, it can describe a being who desires the status they believe high technology can bring them. (PTR)

Tector
a Sullustan transport group used to carry technical staff to the rendezvous with the Alliance, prior to the Battle of Yavin. (XW)

Tedel
this planet was known for its higher than standard gravity. (COG)

Tedellian Besiioth
this formidable creature's most awesome feature, at least according to poets and other literarytypes, were its eyes. Writers often overlooked its sharp talons, heavy fangs, and thick musculature and focused on the cold, red eyes which stared a victim into submission. Native to the high-gravity world of Tedel, this low-bodied predator could measure up to two meters in length. There were seven distinct subspecies of besiioth, each distinguished by its coloration and size. Another species, known as the stalker besiioth, has been genetically developed for use as a security and patrol beast. (COG)

Tedevium
this was the name of a starfighter pilot training frigate used by the New Republic a few years after the Battle of Endor. Colonel Repness was assigned to a command post aboard the Nebulon-B frigate, shortly before his black market schemes were exposed by Lara Notsil. After Lra exposed Repness' operation, command of the Tedevium was turned over to Edor Crespin. Because the New Republic was short on fighting vessels during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj, the Tedevium was quickly refitted for combat use and added to General's Solo's fleet. (IF, SOC)

Tedn Dahai
a former Imperial scout, Tedn Dahai was one of the Bith performing with Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes. A member of the Intergalactic Federation of Musicians, Tedn played the Fanfar. (TME, CCG)

Tedryn Holocron
one of the Jedi Holocrons, the Tedryn Holocron was once held by Vodo Siosk-Baas. (TSW)

Tedryn-Sha
one of the reborn Emperor Palpatine's personal advisers, Tedryn-Sha was promoted to second-in-command of Operation Shadow Hand after Sedriss and Vill Goir were killed on Ossus. Palpatine granted him the powers of Dark Jedi as part of the promotion. He was then sent to New Alderaan, following the destruction of the Republic's Pinnacle Base, to kill Luke Skywalker. In the battle that ensued, Tedryn-Sha killed Jem Ysanna, but was in turn slain by Princess Leia, who used her lightsaber to cleave the Dark Jedi in two. (DE2)

Tee
one of the multitude of species of scalefish which inhabit the seas of Naboo. (IG1)

Tee, Jode
this man was one of the New Republic Intelligence agents sent to meet Major Showolter aboard the Queen of Empire, during the transfer of the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan to Coruscant. He had been working on Bilbringi prior to being assigned to the mission. The mission wsa compromised by a source internal to the New Republic, and the Peace Brigade infiltrated the ship. Two members of the Peace Brigade contacted Showolter before Jode Tee and his partner, Saiga Bre'lya, and posed as the NRI agents. Jode and Saiga arrived just after the false agents, and a firefight broke out. Both Jode Tee and Saiga Bre'lya were shot and killed in the struggle. (HT)

Tee-ubo Doole
this Twi'lek woman was the only non-human member of the ExGal-4 outpost on Belkadan at the time Yomin Carr arrived at the planet. She was strong-willed and stubborn, and was often forced to submit to the demands of Danni Quee. She was one of the many ExGal people who took recreational intoxicants to alleviate the boredom of listening for extra-galactic activity, a practice despised by Danni Quee. When their sensors noticed a huge storm brewing on the planet, she led a group out to scout the storm. However, they discovered the Belkadan had become an ecological wasteland, thanks to the dweebit beetles unleashed by Yomin Carr. Bendodi Ballow-Reese, a member of the search group, realized that they would never make it back to ExGal-4, and committed suicide so that his oxygen could be used by the remaining members. Soon, just Tee-ubo and Jerem Cadmir were left. Tee-ubo realized that both would never make it, and she gave Jerem her oxygen pack and allowed the noxious atmosphere to destroy her. (VP)

Teebo
an Ewok serving on his tribe's Council of Elders, Teebo was the leader of the war party that discovered Han Solo, Luke Skywalker, C-3PO, R2-D2, and Chewbacca just before the Battle of Endor. He wore a horned gurreck skull decorated with churi feathers, and was larger and fiercer than most of the other Ewoks. When Teebo was a young Ewok, he helped his tribe drive off the Duloks, with the help of the Grundakk. He was then chosen by Logray to be his apprentice, and learned to be a musician, a poet, and to tell the future from the positions of the stars. Note that The Adventures of Teebo and the Ewoks cartoon series indicate Teebo was a young Ewok, not old enough to have become an adult. Teebo was portrayed by Jack Purvis in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi. (ROTJ, AT, ECAR, ROJR, CCG10)

Teeda
ancient Empress of the Arkanis Sector. (SWAJ)

Teeda's Eyes
a nickname given to the twin planets of Pii III and Pii IV. Their forested surfaces appear green in space, and reminded the ancient inhabitants of the Arkanis Sector of Empress Teeda's green eyes. (SWAJ)

Teehl
this freelance mercenary worked for Jabba the Hutt as an enforcer. Teehl wore a well-worn black-and-gold spacesuit topped with a polarized faceplate that hides her face. She started out as the favorite mistress of a powerful pirate, and worked and saved until the day she could buy her own ship. That ship was the Grasp, and she went solo as soon as she could afford it. She was ordered by Jabba to recover a gravity-well projector controlled by the Ugors, some time after the Battle of Yavin. The Alliance and the Squibs were after the same projector, hoping to use the device to pull the Elusive out of hyperspace before it could deliver Alliance datapacks to the Empire. (SH)

Teek
a small, white-furred creature living in the Forest Moon of Endor, the teek has incredible speed but not a lot of agility. The teek has close-set black eyes, buck-teeth, and pointed ears with tufts of white fur on them. The Ewoks avoid the teeks at all costs, considering them sure signs of trouble ahead. They are the packrats of the moon's forests, taking shiny trinkets and tokens and exchanging them for something of equal value. For many, the teek's idea of what is equal in value is often skewed.
Teek was portrayed by Niki Botelho in Ewoks: The Battle for Endor. (BFE, ISU)

Teeko
a Rodian, one of Greedo's uncles. (TME)

Teel
the wood of this tree was considered moderately valuable, and was used in elaborate furniture and art. (XWA)

Teela
a plant whose pink blossoms give off an electrospectrum aura when open. (TME)

Teelar
this was the name of the two-handed method of wielding a sword, established by the long-extinct Lar Warriors. (AIR)

Teelian's Electronic Emporium
this small business, located in Celanon City, sold all sorts of high-tech products, both legal and illegal. (POC)

Teemto Pagalies
this alien, a Veknoid native to Moonus Mandel, was one of the Outer Rim's best podracer pilots. He was also infatuated with the Rutian Twi'Lek, Ann Gella. He flew an IPG-X1131 LongTail podracer. Teemto was a small humanoid whose lower jaw dominated his small face. During the Boonta Eve Classic race, Teemto was passed by nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker shortly before his own pod simply exploded. Teemto was killed in the blast. Note that Star Wars Journal: Anakin Skywalker names this alien Teemto Pugales. (TPM, YJC1, JAS, IG1)

Teeth of Tatooine
also known as the Valley of the Wind, this is a smooth-floored gulley near Jabba the Hutt's palace. The Hutt used it to punish those beings that deserved a quicker death than the Sarlacc pit, allowing them to dream up images of fanged monsters before realizing their position. In fact, the Teeth of Tatooine are wind-blown chips of desert sandstone and silica. The being is tied to the valley floor just past dawn, with leather hides wrapped and tied around each limb. As the temperature rises, the winds pick up and the victim begins to sweat. The sweat loosens the leather briefly, giving the victim reason to struggle. However, the leather simply tightens as it rubs the victim's skin raw and bleeding. The valley is situated such that great gusts of wind rip through it, pushed by the intensely-changing temperatures. The winds pick up small flechettes of stone and propel them through the valley, but the weight of the stones keeps them low to the ground. The stones have been sharpened by scraping along other stones, and become tooth-like knives. The wind-driven stones flay the victim alive. (TBH)

Tefau
this planet is the homeworld of a tall, blue-skinned race of aliens. They have large, thin heads which are dominated by a pair of nasal slits in the center. A small mouth is located just below the nostrils. Their eyes bulge out from the disk-shaped head, which is ridged at the edges. (CCG9)

Tefilous, Pann
this man was a flambouyant promoter of organized starship racing during the New Order. (CRO)

Tefilous, Patra
this woman was Zag Tefilous' half sister. She also served as his chief mechanic. (HR)

Tefilous, Zag
born to a family of vagabonds and thrill-seekers, Zag became one of the Outer Rim's best amateur speeder racers. He was sponsored by XySpeeder Corporation, and soon dominated the professional races too. (HR)

Teggett
this New Republic X-Wing pilot was assigned to the Mandjur during the Battle of N'zoth. He flew an X-Wing which was painted vivid red and recognizable by the entire crew. When the Mandjur was hit with a pair of Yevethan missiles, Plat Mallar was forced to take Teggett's fighter out and rescue several other pilots who were in trouble. (TT)

Teggi
the roots of this fungus were one of the main ingredients in bantha fodder. (POC)

Tego
this manufacturer made vibro-weapons. (CRO)

Teguta Lusat
a major city of Rafa IV, and home to the planet's primary spaceport. It is a drab, soulless city. Lando Calrissian lands there, only to discover that he has picked up a number of pregnant mynocks while traveling through the Oseon System. This gets him in trouble with the spaceport's Landing Control. (LCM)

Teh
this H'kig glyph is so sacred that is cannot be written out, and is often spoken as simply "t'." Its meaning is translated into "the transcendant." (SOL)

Teh'Jar II
this planet, located in the Minos Cluster, was rumored to be the resting place of the Um'Tal, or Sky Stone. Both Angrail Ryhl and Nardo Sau sought the artifact during the New Order. Both had to struggle against Imperial bureaucracy to just reach the planet. (HR)

Tehno-root
the extract of this plant is used as a mind-altering drug in some areas of the galaxy. (POT)

Teiras, Graff
this imposing, well-muscled man served Retter Lewis as the store manager and shipping operations head for Callia's. The silver-haired Teiras was also an Alliance agent with contacts in the upper eschelons of the Alliance's command structure. (CRO)

Teirra Parko's Crystal Room
Fitz Roi shot off his antique projectile pistols in this establishment, located in Recardeon, on Rimma. (SWAJ)

Tejha Larel
this portrait of Lady Cjaalysce Beal was painted shortly before her dead. In the portrait, she appeared sad and withdrawn. History revealed that the painting was done shortly after her love, Iann Doaba, exiled himself into the open desert after killing a rival for her love. Cjaalysce only loved Iann, and fled into the desert to bring him back. She died in the desert, but only after locating Iann's possessions. The name of the portrait was an Old Corellian phrase which meant "undying love." (BSS)

Tekar
this sprawling meglopolis was located on Derilyn, and wsa the site of the planet's central spaceport authority. (PG, OE)

Tekba
this Mon Calamari starship Captain with the New Republic was in command of the troopship Pelagia when it was destroyed by the reborn Emperor's Galaxy Gun. (EE)

Teke Ro
the blue giant star which is the primary sun of the planet Cona. (SCRE, GG4)

Tekkirl, Flinor
this Alliance scout joined the rebellion a few years before the Battle of Yavin. He searched for worlds which were removed from Imperial notice, yet capable of supporting life. He was very good at his work, but preferred to work alone. He was given the command of the Atrivis Advancer for his scouting missions. (CRO)

Tekli
this Chadra-Fan was a student of the Force at Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4, training under the tutelage of Cilghal during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. (BP)

Teklos
this is the civilian version of Nen-Carvon's heavy-duty mobile command base. It differed from the base military model in locomotion: the Teklos vehicle was equipped with repulsorlift engines, where the mobile command base had treads. However, despite its commercial goals, the Teklos vehicle found its way into the fleets of pirates and criminal organizations. Like the mobile command base, it measured 21.8 meters in length, and carried a crew of 5 and up to seven passengers. It was armed with a turret-mounted triple-laser cannon and a pair of concussion grenade launchers. (GG11)

Tekonite
this substance was unique in that it vaporized when bombarded by kinetic energy. Thus, it could be used to sublimate the effects of a collision, as it could absorb some 92 percent of the kinetic energy developed in a crash. (BI)

Tekurr'k
this was a backwater industrial world. (POC)

Tel IV
this planet was covered with dense rainforests. (COG)

Tela
an Alliance transport ship destroyed during the Galactic Civil War while trying to obtain Habeen/Nharwaak hyperdrives. (TIE)

Telak, Kird
this former Imperial scout served the Navy for six years before he became bored with his work. He fled Imperial service and, using the knowledge of trade routes and transportation schedules, became a pirate. The ability to ambush a ship and make off with its cargo came naturally to Telak, who was known to take a number of risks and still come out ahead. He continued to get bored, bu this only served to push him into more and more daring thefts. He is quite obvious in a crowd, with a crown of fuzzy black hair, expensive clothing which has been carefully aged, and a thin goatee and moustache. (TSK)

Telak's Terrors
this pirate group, led by the charismatic Kird Telak, operated from a based in the underground caves of the planet Seltaya. The base itself is located about 100 meters below the surface of the planet, and is sensor- and enegry-shielded. No external armaments are employed by the pirates, since the only visible evidence of the base are the launch bay doors and the sensor arrays. (TSK)

Telanka System
this star system, situated in the Outer Rim Territories, was the location of the Vessar Asteroid Belt. (HAS)

TelBrinTel
this droid manufacturer produced a variety of scientific droids for civilian and military use. (SWJ13)

Telbun
this Kuati term describes a group of selected middle class individuals used as breeders for the Kuati upper classes. Certain members of middle class families are chosen to begin training to be a telbun, which involves rigorous screening and intense education in a wide variety of subjects. When an upper class noble chooses a telbun - there are male and female telbun - the individual becomes the property of the upper class. The telbun's family is well-compensated, but cannot claim any of the upper classes' riches. The child of the union then becomes the heir to the upper class riches. The goal of this arrangement was to remove emotion from the creation of a child, while at the same time eliminating the senseless joining of upper class families through marriage. The telbun is subordinate to its mate, and is made to wear heavy red and purple robes that hide their bodies from the public eye. They must wear tall, starched collars and high, cylindrical hats. (WG)

Tele-eye
an outdated form of electrobinoculars, it is a small, motorized telescope. (HSL)

Telega Lake
located on an unspecified planet, this lake was several spectacular waterfalls. Hidden behind the waterfalls was the secret base of the Rodian gunrunner Karbo Jaxx. (HAS)

TeleSonic
this was the brand-name of a series of audio pickups produced by NeuroSaav for use in picking up long-distance sounds. (ROE)

Telesponder
the starship communications device which reacts to inquiries regarding a ship's identification. Also known as a transponder. (HSE)

Telex-Delcor
this corporation produced a number of space skiffs for use at orbital docking and repair facilities. They also produced a variety of starship security systems. (OE, SWJ13)

Telezan
a depressant drug. (COJ)

Telgordo's Pride
this Telgordo Travel starliner was based out Bundim, and made regular runs in Trax Sector during the Galactic Civil War. The team of Alliance agents investigating the construction of an Imperial supply depot in the Bissillirus System were forced to book passage on this ship in order to bypass the Imperial blockade of Bundim and return to Draenell's Point. The only reason they were able to book passage on the ship was that a group of anti-Imperial rebels had hijacked the ship a week before. Although not officially affiliated with the Alliance, the hijackers pretended the Alliance team was a group of tourists in order to get past the Imperial blockade of Bundim. (GMK)

Telgordo Travel
this passenger transport corporation provided luxury and standard-class tranportation for the inhabitants of Trax Sector, during the Galactic Civil War. (GMK)

Telgorn Corporation
1) makers of starship flight computers (QE)
2) manufacturers of transport ships used after the Battle of Hoth (XW)
3) makers of various sizes of portable power cells, denoted in size by letters: A, B, C, and D. (COJ)

Telgorn II lpc
this starship, produced by Telgorn and based on the Gamma-class assault shuttle, is sometimes classified as a Gamma-class light personnel carrier. It measures 30 meters in length, and was are with four laser cannons. It requires a crew of 5, and can transport up to 40 troops into battle situations. (TA)

Telik
this Imperial Major served as the commander of Colonel Vessery's ground assault forces, during the early years of the New Republic. After Ysanne Isard took control of General Arnothian's TIE Defender operation and began plotting the destruction of Prince-Admiral Krennel, Telik's forces were called upon to assist Rogue Squadron in the infiltration of the planet Ciutric. Unknown to the New Republic, Telik was the agent on Commenor who provided Iella Wessiri with a holdout blaster, after she was captured by agents in the law offices of Wooter, Rimki, and Vass. Telik was impressed with Iella's ability to escape the situation. The Rogues, in the guise of Antar Roat's experimental flight group, agreed to "defect" to join Krennel, while Telik's team worked on the ground to bring down Ciutric's defenses. Telik's team was also in charge of rescuing the prisoners who were held on the Lusankya. (IR)

Telindel and Saerlock famous musicians who performed during the Galactic Civil War. (TME)

Telissa
this Belascan woman was Senator Uta S'orn's personal aide. (DH)

Teljkon System
the planetary system in which the wandering starship known as the Teljkon vagabond was first sighted. (BTS)

Teljkon Vagabond
the name given to the mysterious, 1,500-meter starship that was discovered bouncing around the galaxy about five years before the Yevethan Great Purge. A Hrasskis monitor ship discovered it there, but was unable to track it. The New Republic frigate Boldheart also encountered the ship and tried to stop it, but was disabled by the vagabond. When the vagabond showed up near Gmar Askilon about thirteen years after the Battle of Endor, Hiram Drayson and Alpha Blue got involved. They sent a fleet of ships, under the joint command of Pakkpekatt and Lando Calrissian, to Gmar Askilon to intercept it. They found the vagabond to be a five-hulled cratf resembling a raft. It appeared to be lashed together with huge, organic-looking cables. Its outer hull was translucent and apparently organic. The vagabond maintained a twelve-kilometer distance around itself via hidden sensors, and transmitted a high-pitched signal to any ship which entered the twelve-kilometer zone. If the ship didn't properly respond immediately, the vagabond would shoot to disable it while the vagabond jumped into hyperspace. Lando Calrissian, Lobot, R2-D2, and C-3PO discovered that the initial code being sent by the vagabond represented a subset of the Qella genetic code, and sent the remaining code back to the vagabond. They were admitted within the secure zone, and allowed to enter the outer hull. The ferret ship D-89 tried to enter the secure zone with the same code, but the vagabond had switched to another code. It destroyed the ferret and jumped into hyperspace. Once left to their own devices, Lando's team discovered that the vagabond's hull was constantly adjusting itself, and was able to repair small breeches by simply closing the gap. Along a section of the inner hull, a huge mural depicted thousands of Qella. The interior walls reacted to physical touch, and various responses were garnered from the ship's many rooms. Many rooms had special keys or sigils in the walls which, when touched, produced Qella music or changed the room's color, shape, or musical sounds. The chemical make-up of the rooms could be altered seemingly at will, with various pores extracting and introducing the gases necessary for its inhabitants to breathe. Any room entered by its normal portal would react to the entrance by turning on lights. It was later discovered, by Lobot, that the vagabond was actually a huge musuem carrying thousands upon thousands of Qella ideas, stories, and data on how to rebuild the Qella race. The ship had been launched when the planet Brath Qella suddenly was plunged into an ice age, in order that the Qella could survive the cataclysm in stasis, until their planet was habitable again. Much of the ship mirrors the Qella genetic makeup, from its internal structures to the base-six algorithms which run it (and are based on the Qella genetic code). The ship was designed with the idea that, after the planet had managed to survive the loss of its moons, the vagabond would return to Brath Qella and restart the evolutionary process. When the vagabond did eventually return - with Calrissian, Lobot, R2-D2, and C-3PO still inside - it allowed Luke Skywalker to join them. Luke's mastery of the Force allowed him to commune with the ship, bypassing the base-six algorithms which baffled Lobot and telling it to let them all go. It then began the laborious process of thawing out Brath Qella and making it habitable again for the thousands of Qella buried under the ice. (BTS, SOL, TT)

Telk, Rab
this man lived in The Clog, on the planet Chazwa, and despised Hahz Fallone for hoarding the wealth of the city. (ND)

Telkadis
this was a forested planet. (COG)

Telkadis Hiding Tree Spider
native to the taku forests of Telkadis, this unusual predatory insect made its home deep inside the wood of the taku. Outwardly, the trees appeared healthy, but inside the tree spiders had carved out their own nest. The females of the species used powerful claws and pincers to dig through the taku to lay their eggs, and then the males followed them in to fertilize them. While in the process of fertilization, the male tree spider emitted a kind of humming sound, which was the only indication that a specific taku tree was infected with spiders. These tree spiders ambushed rodents, such as the volete, when they got too close to the taku tree, injecting the rodents with a potent venom that killed the volete and allowed the spiders to feed on the carcass. These spiders were a nuisance to the loggers and foresters of Telkadis, who would cut down a seemingly healthy tree only to discover a nest of stinging insects. (COG)

Tellaro, Arkle
this small-time smuggler was captured by the Corellian Security Force during the Galactic Civil War. Arkle wnet native after a raid on Velx-Shel, but returned to piloting in an effort to earn and spend his credits. He was captured on a routine run. (HAS)

Telling of the Story
this Kitonak ritual is performed at the end of their day. A single story is created by the adult Kitonaks, with plot twists and stroylines designed to teach the younger Kitonaks the virtues of patience. The story itself is often told in chapters, with each Telling consuming one chapter. (GG4)

Tellivar Lady
a passenger liner that made a regular stop on Tatooine. It is often refered to as the Tellie. M'iiyoum Onith lost her seat on the liner because she couldn't pay her passage tax. (TME)

Telltrig-7
a small holdout blaster. (TME)

Telmun Jkarta
this New Republic Intelligence agent provided an in-depth analysis of the Teljkon vagabond, following the efforts of Lando Calrissian and Ejagga Pakkpekatt to locate the mysterious ship. (CTD)

Teloberry
a species of fruit-bearing bush native to the arctic regions of Misnor. (COG)

Teloc Hunters
this famous group of primitive hunters was native to the planet Teloc Ol-sen, where they domesticated bergruutfas for use as mounts. (COG)

Teloc Ol-sen
this planet was known as the homeworld of the bergruutfa species, as well as the primitive Teloc Hunters. (COG)

Telona
this was the fourth month of the Tapani local calendar, which mapped almost directly to the Coruscant local calendar. (PGT)

Telos
this planet was known for its technological innovations. It was a beautiful world, with many natural wonders which drew a steady tourist trade, as well as a great deal of commerce. About twelve years before the Battle of Naboo, the former Jedi Knight Xanatos turned the planet upside down by scheming to rape it of its resources in return for personal power. Only the intervention of Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi thwarted Xanatos' plans, and helped return the planet to its rightful government. (DR, DOR)

Telosian
this was the name used to describe the human natives of the planet Telos. (DOR)

Telsij
this man served as a Lieutenant in the Alliance's Strafighter Command, and was a pilot in Gray Squadron. He was one of four pilots who survived a raid on the Imperial Academy on Carida, just prior to the Battle of Endor. (CCG11)

Telsor
this Corellian Gunship was part of the Alliance fleet sent to Bakura following the Battle of Endor. (TBSB)

Telti
this desert moon orbits an unspecified world far from the galactic community. It has no atmosphere and supports no known life, but was a source of many different metals and ores needed throughout the galaxy. A mining colony was established on Telti, with special environment domes allowing the miners to exist on the moon. The mining colony supported the Empire only under duress, and went bankrupt after the Battle of Endor. Years later, Brakiss established a droid manufacturing facility there, funded by Dolph and structured to produce droids which would explode when hidden detonators were triggered by a remote signal. It was on Telti that Cole Fardreamer, with the help of R2-D2 and C-3PO, exposed Brakiss' part in Dolphs' plans. Brakiss fled the moon, rather than face the New Republic and Luke Skywalker. Luke Skywalker and Brakiss met several years later on Telti, in an attempt to come to terms with each other. The meeting was a failure, and opened the rift between them even farther. (TNR, JUS)

Teltior
this alien race was native to the planet Merisee, in the Elrood Sector. They resemble their neighbors, the Meri, in nearly every aspect, including their blue skin color and webbed fingers. The Teltiors, however, lack the large brow ridge present on the Meris. The Teltiors were also more willing to leave Merisee and travel throughout the galaxy, and many found success as traders or merchants. Although they chose not to brag about it, Teltiors also produced some of the galaxy's most successful conmen. (PG3, AE)

Tem Eliss
this Iyra from F'tral became a prominent and respected professor at the University of Sanbra. His lectures were always in demand, and students were consistently filling the auditoriums. He was very demanding of his students, but was fair and impartial. However, Eliss was also strongly anti-Imperial in his politics, and often spoke out about the rights of alien species. His manuscript, The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life, was written to provide cultural guidelines and to detail the goals and motivations of the species of the galaxy. He tried to remain neutral in his writing, but the Galactic Civil War and Palpatine's pro-human policies often colored his words. COMPNOR tried to halt publication of the document and detail Eliss, but Eliss fled into hiding. He was not seen again on Sanbra, although there have been rumors that Eliss joined the Alliance. The document itself began to appear on student computer networks, and eventually was distributed to over 25,000 nodes on 5,000 worlds. (GG12)

Tema
this Galacian woman was an artisan who was married to the healer Rowi, and was Elan's mother. She was known as a restless spirit to the Hill People, and often traveled to Galu to see the "outside world." During one of her trips, she fell in love with King Cana, and they were briefly married outside of her life with Rowi. She conceived a child by Cana, but kept the child's true parentage a secret when her marriage to Cana was annulled. She raised Elan as Rowi's daugther, but knew in her heart that Elan was Cana's daughter and heir. (MOC).

Tembon, Gaor
this smuggler, slaver, and thief was once an associate of Jarmak, before the latter individual was arrested and sent to prison. (GG10)

Temebiu
one of Munto Codru's more experienced, wealthy families. (CS)

Temm, Jasis
this man was the owner of Hadlress Defense Systems, Ltd., until he sold the corporation for 4.6 billions credits. He then went into the bounty hunting business, preferring to put his knowledge to more "practical" use. (GG10)

Temm, Miat
this woman was a member of Admiral Pellaeon's civilian staff, and was assigned to greet Leia Organa Solo on Bastion when the New Republic first asked for the assistance of the Imperial Remnant in combatting the Yuuzhan Vong. Leia discovered that Miat was Force-sensitive, and adept at blocking off her mind from other Force users. (DTR)

Temora
this businessman was a native of Tun Wala, on Arda-2. He was against the selling of T-6 diodems to the Alliance, and refused Luke Skywalker's request to have a protection system developed to protect Alliance starfighters against Imperial ships which used after-market diodems. He was one of the city's executives. (CSWEA)

Temp-flu
this was starfighter pilot slang for the mental state of mind which overcomes pilots shortly before their tour of duty was up. If they survived long enough, some pilots tried to ensure their continued survival by holding back and not becoming too aggressive. (MBF)

Tempay
this is one of Gacerian's moons. It orbits the planet 180 degrees from the position of its sister moon, Fortay. The two pass completely around Gacerian once every 37.5 days. It was the site of an Imperial scout base, which was maintained even after the Battle of Endor. Loctaed at the moon's north pole, the base lies directly on the terminus line. Thus, it can monitor the planet below, and the open space beyond, from a single location. (PG2)

Tempest
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was nearly destroyed near Denlathia, about four years after the Battle of Endor. It was carrying the components for an ion cannon, and slipped away from the battle. It managed to reach Garos VI, where it deposited the cannon. (SWAJ)

Tempest Squadron
this was the company name of the walker squadron which was garrisoned at the Imperial outpost on the Forest Moon of Endor, during the construction of the second Death Star. This was an unusual grouping, made up primarily of AT-St walkers, but this was necessitated by the terrain of Endor's moon. The lead AT-AT in the squadron had been refitted with speciallized programs which corrected certain weaknesses exposed at the Battle of Hoth. Many of the squadron's walkers and scouts saw action during the subjugation of the Wookiees on planet Kashyyyk. (CCG10)

Tempestro
this race of sapient creatures was native to the planet known as Koda's World. They are a warrior race, descended from a gentle and proud civilization. Millennia before the Galactic Civil War, the Tempestro's ancestors had a great mastery of the Force and were incredibly spiritual. This belief in a higher power, and a lack of modern technology, left them unprepared for an asteroid strike. The impact threw up a huge dust cloud which exterminated much of the Tempestro civilization. The survivors stored all their knowledge in a stone temple and eked out a meager existence. Those modern Tempestro understand that the temple is important, but have forgotten exactly why. When they were discovered by Krin Koda, he provided medicines to cure a ravaging disease. In return, the Tempestro gave him the Eye of Koda. They resemble large, winged reptiles which can glide great distances. Their heads are long and thin, dominated by sharp beaks and a bony spike projecting from the back of their skull. The edges of their wings are covered with serrated scales. Much of their current civilization is based on the trees of the planet. They are slightly telepathic, a remnant of their former ability to use the Force. During his attempt to gain the powerful Eye of Koda, Dhar Bullwin used his magic to enslave a population of Tempestro, using them to combat a gorup of scouts who were also on the trail of the Eye. (GG8)

Temple Atun
one of the Massassi temples on Yavin 4, Atun was left untouched by the Alliance and the Jedi Students after them. Luke Skywalker wanted to keep the temple in its deteriorated condition so that the Jedi could have a link to the Massassi on which to meditate. He often went there to be alone and reflect on the galaxy. (BTS)

Temple of Fire
one of the ancient Massassi temples on Yavin 4. (DLS)

Temple of Imynusoph
this temple was located on the planet Brentaal. (SWJ13)

Temple of Pomojema
a shrine to the god Pomojema on Circarpous V, and the resting place of the Kaiburr crystal. It is a large, black pyramid, wider than it is tall. It was built from volcanic rock, and was starting to erode when Luke and Leia found it. A statue of Pomojema is located at its center, and the Kaiburr crystal was imbedded in the statue. (SME)

Temple of the Blueleaf Cluster
one of the ancient, elaborate structures found in the jungles of Yavin Four. It was nearly destroyed when Vice Admiral Pellaeon and his fleet of Imperial-class Star Destroyers attacked the temple, thinking it was the primary site of Luke Skywalker's Jedi academy. It houses a huge, crystalline object deep inside its main chamber. This crystal glows and throbs with apparent life, filling the chamber with an eerie blue light. The crystal is oily to the touch, and is charged with static electricity. There are reports that the crystal is filled with the spirits of the long-dead Massassi people, and that their faces can be seen inside the crystal. Luke and Brakiss met here during the Shadow Academy's attack on Yavin 4, but Luke was unable to sway Brakiss from the Dark Side. (GDV, DS, ISU, JUS)

Temple of the Circle
a beautiful building found in Imperial City on Coruscant, it was destroyed in the civil war which ripped the planet apart following the death of Thrawn. (DESB)

Temple of the Je'ulajists using a corrupted form of the word "geologists," the Kentra created this temple from the wreckage of the Alpha Kentrum. It was erected as a reminder to follow the tenets of Sword, Plow, and Spirit set down by Michael Tandre. (SWAJ)

Temple Spire
this was the tallest of the towers which rose from the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, during the last decades of the Old Republic. The Temple Spire was considered the most sacred place of contemplation by the Jedi. (IWE1)

Templeton
a Virujansian Senator rescued from Captivity by the Alliance. (RC)

Temptation Canyon
located on the planet Sriluur, this desolate canyon was known as a home for bandigos. The Weequay population of the planet deserted the canyon and left it alone, believing it was the site of an epic battle between their god, Quay, and the evil water-nymph temptresses who lived in the pool at the deepest end of the canyon. The canyon was also known by its Weequay name, Uurutche'zediev. Many believe that the legend of Quay's battle was simply a fanciful description of the first Weequay attempt to get past the bandigos which live in the canyon, in order to get to the fresh-water spring at its end. The ancient Weequay had erected a temple midway through the Canyon, in order to help keep the water nymphs from returning and to warn travelers of their possible presence. The temple was later taken over by Ujin Voli as a base of operations. (SSR)

Tempter
also called the Endorian treesnake, the tempter would stick out its furred tongue and wagit around, as if the tongue were a wounded snake. Whenever a scavenger came to eat the "snake," the tempter would strike at the scavenger with its long neck, grasping the scavenger and eating it whole. (ISU, E1A7)

Temquill, Blair
this woman was born to one of the lesser nobles of House Tagge, and led a pampered life until her father became involved in politics. He hated the Empire, and sent a large part of the family fortune to the Alliance, to help fund their efforts on Ralltiir. Unfortunately, Lord Tion took control of that planet, and the Temquill fortune was lost. Blair, suddenly plunged into near-poverty, left home and traveled to Coruscant. She took with her all the credits she could get from the remaining family funds, and traveled the galaxy under a series of pseudonyms. She visited all the best locations, traveling as inexpensively as she could while still maintaining her stature as a noble woman. (HR)

Ten Cousins
this geological rock formation was located in the deserts of Nam Chorios, outside Hweg Shul. Ten immense crystal towers were arrayed in a loose circle. Much of the crystal was formed from Spook Crystal, giving the formation an intense power. (POT)

Ten Dorne
this Sluissi served under Admiral Ackbar during the development of the B-Wing fighter as part of Project Shantipole. She is generally credited with being one of the early developers of the shear-plane mode used to defeat a tractor beam. After barely escaping Imperial forces, she decided that being a member of the Alliance was not good for her health. She defected, and began selling information about the Alliance to the Empire shortly before the Battle of Endor. It was believed she was working at the Imperial shipyards near Vosteltig, but the yards were too well-defended to obtain better information. (WBC)

Ten Mile Plateau
a favorite tourist attraction, found in the rugged outback of the planet Ord Mantell. The bounty hunter Skorr maintained a bsae there, during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, hidden in an abandoned warehouse and loading station. After the death of Emepror Palpatine at Endor, the land surrounding the plateau was set aside as a preserve for the Mantellian Savrip. (MTS, CSW, HT)

Ten Numb
this Sullustan joined the Alliance as a starfighter gunner, and eventually earned a position as a pilot. Ten Numb served the Alliance during the Battle of Endor by piloting Blue Five as part of the Blue Squadron of B-Wings. (CCG11)

Ten-Abu Donba
this Bendu high priest led the monks who lived in the Andobi Mountains of Ando Prime during the last decades of the Old Republic. Donba was also the honorary starter of the various podraces which wound their way through Ando Prime's frozen climate. (RAC)

Tendau Bendan
this Ithorian was an Old Republic Senator when Queen Amidala moved for a vote of no-confidence in the abilities of Chancellor Valorum. (IG1)

Tendo
this Mobquet transport was part of the Imperial supply fleet that was ambushed by the Alliance before it could rendezvous with the Corrupter. The Alliance tried to force the Imperial-II class Star Destroyer out of battle by cutting off its supply lines. (XWA)

Tendo System
this star system was a known hangout of the Rior maniac Stalnus. (WBC)

Tendril Tree
a large tree grown for its tasty nuts. The tree's wide foliage also make it a perfect shelter. (TME)

Tendril-moss
this shaggy moss is native to the planet Talasea. (XWN)

Tenek
this forested planet was the primary world in the Mis-Tenek System, and was known for its unusual population of plant and animal life made up of large concentrations of metal, such as the vinna tree and the raen sovra. Because of the menace posed by the raen sovra to starships, the Mis-Tenek System was quarantined to prevent any of the worms from gaining access to the rest of the galaxy. (COG)

Tenidit

this freshwater plant is found on the planet Hirsi. Its leaves are fashioned into sleet-fitting garments by the Qwohogs. (GG12)

Tenloss, Bandar
this man was the founder of the original Tenloss Coalition. It was Bandar who established the idea of the leukish. (GG11)

Tenloss Coalition
this small criminal organization became the basis for the Tenloss Syndicate. It was based on Bajic Sector, and specialized in kidnapping and the occasional slave shipment. The Coalition was based on the planet Verisin. (GG11)

Tenloss Syndicate
this criminal organization was based in the Baji Sector during the Galactic Civil War. For much of that period, they were an offshoot of Black Sun. They held sway in over sixty Outer Rim star systems, and controlled over a dozen front corporations in areas such as entertainment, cargo transport, and business management. Tenloss specialized in gunrunning, extortion, and smuggling. After the Battle of Endor, Tenloss quickly expanded as the Empire lost control of many sectors of space. By the time Grand Admiral Thrawn returned from the Unknown Regions, Tenloss had taken control of criminal activities in Astal, Dail, Lol, and Skine Sectors. (SE, EGV, GG11)

Tenric
this man was an Imperial Sergeant, and worked as a security Inspector at the Rantine Space Station. Although he was loyal to Governor Resuunm he was disgruntled with his career and strove to better himself. (POC)

Tensiger
an Imperial soldier, in command of the 6th regiment that helped turn the Battle of Picutorion. (ISB)

Tentacle Bird
native to the planet Pelemax, in the Colonies Region, this bird was used in ancient times as a mount by Pelemaxian warriors. Modern-day Pelemaxians have domesticated these avians for use as beasts of burden. Tentacle birds were flightless, having a pair of blue-green tentacles in place of wings. These tentacles were prehensile, and could be used to swing from tree to tree. These birds emitted a piercing war-cry just before attacking their prey, a sound which served to unnerve the intended victim. The average tentacle bird stood just over two meters tall, and the span of their tentacles reached up to three meters. (COG)

Tentacle Fern
this plant is native to the swamps of the planet Naboo. (IG1)

Tentacle-bush
a low-growing plant which has tentacle-like appendages which it uses to capture rodents for food. They are found on Arzid. (PDS)

Tentacle-cactus
a large, mobile succulent much like the cactus on Earth, they can be trained to perform minimal tasks. (JS)

Tentase, Parla
this Kiffu often travelled on the Kuari Princess, being a veteran of many cruises and preferring the comforts of the Princess. She was aboard the Princess when it was hijacked by the Riders of the Maelstrom. (RM)

Tente
this form of duel was recognized by the Phosphura Belt Pirates, and was settled quickly. The duel was over when the first blow was landed, when first blood was drawn, or when one of the combatants became unconscious. The exact details were agreed to by the duelists. Killing an opponent was forbidden in a tente duel, and those beings who killed their opponents were often marooned on a barely-inhabitable moon. (PP)

Tenth Battle of Zehava
this struggle, between the Daan and the Melida, for control of the city of Zehava was generally regarded as the bloodiest of all the wars they waged. Burial vaults containing the dead from this battle were breeched by the Daan when they expanded the tunnels and drains below the city to gain access to Melida-held areas. (DOD)

Teopari
this creature was a predator known for its smooth, fluid motion when stalking its prey. (DTO)

Tepine, Qell
a native of Coruscant, Qell Tepine was the leader of the mercenary group known as Star's Nova. Tepine and Star's Nova worked exclusively for the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War, but better money could be found after the Battle of Endor. During his employment by the Alliance, Tepine developed a network of informants within the military, and used them to steal critical information from the New Republic. This made him doubly dangerous to the Republic, for it gave him access to the Republic's databases, and gave him a way to make a lot of credits selling military secrets to the highest bidder. (WBC)

Teprimal
this New Republic Captain served as a flight instructor working under Colonel Atton Repness. Teprimal was also a high-ranking member of Repness' blackmarket sales force, and often arranged for the pick-up of supposedly lost starfighters for later sale to private concerns. (IF)

Tequa Bush
native to the planet Joralla, this plant produced some of the most flavroful berries on the planet. (PG1)

Teradoc
a tyrannical despot active in the early years of Leia Organa Solo's reign as New Republic Chief of State, Teradoc sought to restore the Imperial New Order to the galaxy. He was constantly trying to win control of the remaining Imperial fleet from High Warlord Harrsk, and he used his crimson-colored fleet of Victory-class Star Destroyers to take out Harrsk's flagship, the Shockwave, during Harrsk's talks with Daala. Like many of the surviving warlords, Teradoc had grown fat and lazy by the time Daala convened the warlords at Tsoss Beacon. And, like the other warlords, he perished at Tsoss Beacon when Daala and Pellaeon poisoned them all. (COJ, DS)

Terak
King of the Marauders on Endor, he was talled and stronger than the other Marauders. He was obsessed with finding "The Power," which he felt was the key to the ancient scroll he possessed. The scroll held plans to a starship, which Terak desired to built so that he could terrorize the stars. He enlisted the witch, Charal, to help him find the power. When Noa and Salek crashed on Endor, Terak captured Salek and tortured him, trying to find the location of Salek's ship and its crystal oscillator. This was what Terak belived to be "The Power." Later, he killed most of the Towani family while trying to obtain the oscillator from their shuttle. Having obtained it, though, Terak had no idea how to use it. He tried to make Cindel tell him how it worked, but she was unable to. When Cindel retrieved the oscillator and liberated the Ewoks held by the Marauders, Terak had Charal turn into a bird to lead him to the humans, and kept her magic ring to guarantee her compliance. This proved to be his downfall, for Wicket struck the ring with a stone, causing it to flare to life, burning Terak to death. Terak was portrayed by Carel Struycken in Ewoks: The Battle for Endor. (BFE)

Terandi
this Daan was a native of the Garth settlement in Zehava. He died fighting in the Battle of the Plains, during one of the many struggles to control the city of Zehava. (DOD)

Teras Kasi
translated into Basic as "steel hands," this weaponless martial art was created and perfected by the Bunduki. (SE)

Terax
this red giant is one of four stars that are located at the center of the Opiteihr System. (TSK)

Terbulus Cloak
this is the ceremonial cloak worn by the members of the dominant culture of the Pan-preneur race. (SWJ8)

Terdon
the terdon is the material used to generate power in repulsorlift engines. (CFG)

Tere Metallo
this Riileb was to be the wearer of the ClanRing on her homeworld of Riileb, but was captured and sold into slavery by a jealous sister. She managed to escapem and became a smuggler who worked with Matt Turhaya on Kabaira. (SWJ13)

Tereb Ab'Lon
a Bothan diplomat who was monitored by the Empire because they suspected, but could not prove, that he was an Alliance supporter. Ab'Lon was, in fact, secretly working for the Alliance. He was killed before he could deliver secret fleet schedules to an Alliance cell in the Tao-Grant System. (SWAJ)

Terecon
this long-bodied reptile was native to the planet Essowyn. Measuring up to eight meter in length, and standing a meter at the shoulder, the terecons were the only natural enemy of the huge hoska. Terecons were burrowers, hiding themselves in shallow pits and ambushing the hoska when they moved past. (PG1)

Terend Council
this was the basic form of government used by the Ugnaughts. The tribe which were transplanted to Cloud City developed their own localized form of Terend Council. (GG2)

Terenthium
this natural element was combined with desh to produce a super-light allow which was used by OmoTact Corporation to manfuacture skyships like the Roahks 7m. (GG2)

Terephon
part of the Hapan Cluster, this planet is homeworld of the amazon guards employed by Isolder. It is located in the Transitiory Mists region of the Cluster. (CPL, CTD)

Teres, Roget
this identity, used by Pike Angeles, was an Imperial Commander. (CRO)

Terhaari
this is the sole moon which orbits the planet Berchest. It exhibits a strong tidal pull on the planet, making the seas of Berchest quite active. As a result, much of the planet's coastline has been eroded to reveal beautiful crystalline formations. (TTSB)

Terkuss
an Imperial assault trooper serving under General Covell during Thrawn's reign of terror, Terkuss hailed from the planet Plesstil. (DFRSB)

Terlou, Tel
this Imperial Major served the Bureau of Taxation as an investigator. He was in charge of the investigation of the Estaria Central Starport, during the height of the New Order. (HAS)

Termagant
this Imperial Strike-class cruiser was part of the Warlord Zsinj's fleet. It was part of the group that was sent to the Alderaan System to ambush the bacta convoy headed to Coruscant from Thyferra. The lead ship of the group was an unidentified Super-class Star Destroyer, and it destroyed the convoy before Rogue Squadron arrived. However, the Termagant was attacked and destroyed by the Rogues. (KT)

Terman Station
the Black Sun pilot Kalend Thora was nearly assassinated while laying over on this station, which was located along the Sisar Run between Sespe and Sriluur. The Station was roughly twice the size of Nwarcol Point. During the Galactic Civil War, Terman Station was run by Kilon Tarlok, who spent much of his time repairing the aging station. Although local legends said that Terman Station was built millennia ago by the Hutts, Kinsa Doroturo later discovered that the station was actually one of the orbital fortresses built by Xim the Despot. It was abandoned after the Third Battle of Vontor and left idle. (SSR)

Terminator
1) one of the Imperial-I class Star Destroyers originally assigned to intercept the pirate ship GrimDeath I (SWSB)
2) an Imperial frigate that was assigned to intercept the Mon Calamari cruiser Cathleen. (XW)

Terminax
this small droid manufacturer produced the TX-1118 series of assassin droids. (WSV)

Terno
this Kitonak musician was a vital member of the Alliance in the Minos Cluster. He regularly traveled with his band between Adarlon and Yelsain. (GG6)

Terno, Vel
this Imperial Colonel was placed in charge of SilverWing and GoldWing Squadrons, part of the defense network for space platform 2LC/Blue in Darpa Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Teroenza
this t'landa Til was employed by Zavval the Hutt to act as the Most Exalted High Priest of Ylesia. In this position, he was actually in charge of obtaining slave labor to process the Hutt's spice for distribution. Teroenza maintained a lavish suite of offices, and used his resources to amass a wonderful collection of artifacts from across the galaxy. His art collection was extremely valuable, and he kept guards posted at all times. It was Teroenza who sent out a request for a pilot to transfer Ylesian colonists to and from the planet, as well as transport spice to the Hutts. He chose Vykk Drago, who was actually a young Han Solo. While Solo was quite good at flying starships, when he learned of the spice and slaving operations he plotted to breka free of Teroenza's employment. Working with Bria Tharen, Han managed to destroy a major processing facility and escape, but not before stealing much of Teroenza's art collections and killing Zavval during his escape. Teroenza was forced to put out a bounty on Drago. Han never was catpured, and Teroenza became increasingly disgruntled with Besadii's leaderhsip. Following Zavval's death, Kibbick was placed on Ylesia as a figurehead, answering to Aruk and Durga. Teroenza worked with Jabba and Jiliac to assassiante Aruk, and Teroenza himself murdered Kibbick. However, his part in the death of Aruk was discovered by Durga, who employed Boba Fett on a priority bounty to kill the beast. Teroenza managed to survive the initial stages of the Battle of Ylesia, and nearly captured Bria Tharen and Han Solo when Fett appeared. He killed the t'landa Til and removed its horn as proof for Durga. (TPS, THG, RD)

Terpfen
a Mon Calamari, and Ackbar's chief starship mechanic. When the Empire invaded Calamari, he was captured and sent to Carida for Imperial reconditioning. While there, his brain was surgically altered to remove loyalty centers. He was then used by the Empire to build star-ships, and was allowed to escape during a Rebel attack. He has been used as an Imperial spy since then. He was responsible for sabotaging Ackbar's B-Wing shuttle, which crashed into the Cathedral of Winds on Vortex. He was also responsible for planting a homing beacon on the ship Ackbar took to the planet Anoth, and he relayed the coordinates to Furgan, who used them in an attempt to kidnao Anakin Solo. A great battle ensued on Anoth, but in the end baby Anakin was rescued. Furgan tried to escape, but Terpfen used one of the MT-AT's to destroy Furgan. Terpfen later returned to Calamari to help rebuild the planet's floating cities. (DA, COTF)

Terqu, Melin
this man served as the deck officer of the main hangar on deep-space platform 3DC/Green, directing traffic for the Alliance. (HAS)

Terr'skiar Pass
this hyperspace trade route, established in the last century of the Old Republic, passed by the Bissillirus System. (GMK)

Terra Derida
this Phindian woman was Baftu's assistant. She was in charge of securing the Syndicat's stronghold in the city of Laressa. She also was suspicious of Duenna's loyalties, but kept the Phindian woman in check with continued threats of renewal. It was later revealed that Terra was the sister of Guerra and Paxxi Derida. She had been "renewed" by the Syndicat at the age of eleven, and retrained by Baftu himself to be a member of the Syndicat. Her mother, Duenna, joined the Syndicat in hopes of returning her original memories to her, but Terra was not strong enough. Terra opposed Baftu's proposed alliance with Prince Beju of Gala, fearing that the Prince was getting more than the Syndicat, and that Baftu was spreading his power too thin. Baftu ignored her, even when she recognized that the Prince Beju who arrived on Phindar was really Obi-Wan Kenobi in disguise. When Baftu discovered that the Syndicat treasury was gone - having been recovered by Qui-Gon Jinn and the Derida brothers and returned to the Phindians - he accused Terra of stealing and covering the theft up by blaming Beju. Baftu had her executed on the spot. When her body was discovered later by Guerra and Paxxi, she died in their arms with a flood of memories about them. (HP)

Terra-tower
this was the primary form of outpost construction used by the ExGal Society. A terra-tower built upon the natural beauty of the planets the Society used to monitor extra-galactic activity, and only intruded on the planet's natural environment enough to support its sensors and communications requirements. These outposts often resembled walled forts, built to keep out the often-savage wildlife of frontier planets. (VP)

Terrain-Following Sensor
a starship component which, when used in a planet's atmosphere, monitors a destination's location and guides the ship toward is using various terrestrial formations as guidemarkers. It can be set to fly as near or as far from the ground as desired. (HSE)

Terrarium City
this architectural wonder, located on the now-destroyed planet of Alderaan, was created from a natural depression in the plains of the planet. The depression was deepened, expanded, then sealed to prevent any industrial waste from leaking into the earth. The depression was then filled with a liquid polymer to the level of the first section of the city. The polymer was allowed to harden, then modified battleships used their lasers to carve out the section into a series of open spaces. A three-dimensional pattern was programmed into the weapons systems of the battleships, creating the intricate floorplan envisioned by the city's designers. When one level was done, more polymer was added and etched by the space-borne lasers. In this manner, eighteen layers of living space were created in Terrarium City. Although the lasers served to harden the polymer while carving it, the polymer could be later reshaped if the inhabitants so desired. Thus, much of the city's population could create their own artwork by manipulating the walls of their dwellings. The entire city was capped by a transparent sheet, from which sprouted a number of thin spires used as turbolift shafts and waste elimination systems. (ISU)

Terrberry
grown on the planet Parein II 4, this berry is fermented with various other ingredients to create Daranu. (GG9)

Tereene
this droid manufacturing corporation produced the Brainiac series of controller droids during the New Order. (SWCP)

Terrefel
a Hapan term referring to the Selab wisdom tree. (CPL)

Terrijo System
Han Solo and Lando Calrissian, realizing that a homing beacon has been attached to the Lady Luck. prior to their departure from Coruscant to New Cov to meet Niles Ferrier, stop off in the Terrijo System to drop the homing beacon there. This system is located between New Cov and Pantolomin. (DFR)

Terrik, Booster
a native of the planet Corellia, Booster was a smuggler and a starship pilot for hire. He was the original owner of the star yacht Pulsar Skate which he used in his endeavors. Following the death of Wedge Antilles' parents on Gus Treta, Booster helped Wedge hunt down the pirates that caused the incident. They never found them, though, because Hal Horn caught up with Booster and sentenced him to five years in the correctional facility on Kessel. When Booster got out, he made sure that his daughter, Mirax, was able to work on her own within the law, so that she wouldn't suffer his fate. When she became involved with Rogue Squadron - and specifically Corran Horn - Booster found himself assisting the son of the man who imprisoned him. Booster did much of this for Wedge's benefit, and was more than amenable to creating a smugglers' haven in the space station orbiting Yag'Dhul, in an effort to keep the Rogues hidden after they resigned their commission to the New Republic. Booster worked hard to make the station defensible, and even installed several operable but non-functional weapons implacements. He even found proton torpedoes and concussion missiles for the Rogue's X-Wings when none were available. In a bold plan, the Rogues left the station undefended and tried to draw Ysanne Isard's forces into a trap. Booster's false defenses led the Lusankya's Captain Joak Drysso thinking that he was coming under fire from nearly 500 missile launchers and forced him to flee. The short battle led Booster to capture the Star Destroyer Virulence when Ace Squadron was dragged out of hyperspace by the gravity shadows of the station and the huge Lusankya. Booster convinced Lakwii Varrscha that the Aces were part of his defenses, and she surrendered. Booster and the Aces then took the Virulence to Thyferra and helped turn the tide of the Battle toward the Rogues. After this heroism and smart thinking, Booster asked for the Virulence in return. Airen Cracken balked at first, but Corran Horn cited an obscure salvage law that required Cracken to acknowledge Booster's right to ownership. This surprised Booster, coming from his sworn enemy's son, but that surprise was quickly overshadowed by Mirax's engagement to Horn. Talon Kaarde helped swing the deal by removing the weapons on board and selling them back to the New Republic. Booster obtained the stripped-down Virulence, and renamed it the Errant Venture. He then gutted the ship and turned it into a huge, floating, general store for smugglers and other pilots. For many years, Booster was unable to turn a profit from the ship, and spent most of his credits just keeping it running. He was recruited by his daughter and Iella Wessiri during the investigation into the whereabouts of the Lusankya prisoners, and they discovered several of the plots laid out by Ysanne Isard's clone against Rogue Squadron. However, they were too late to rescue the X-Wings from Distna. They did manage to recover Wes Janson and Asyr Sei'lar, both of whom survived. They kept the secret of their survival when Mon Mothma announced that Rogue Squadron had been destroyed. Janson was returned to Coruscant, though Asyr asked to remain "dead" in order to help change Bothan society. When Borsk Fey'lya approached Booster with a job offer, Booster listened until he discovered that Fey'lya was looking for a Bothan body to take the place of Asyr's in the tomb of the Bothan Martyrs. Fey'lya hinted that any body, even that of a criminal assassinated by one of Booster's people, would suffice. Booster was appalled, and beat Fey'lya to within an inch of his life to show his disgust. Booster later told Iella that he'd rather have Fey'lya as a direcgt enemy, rather than as a player sneaking around in the shadows. Booster was again called upon to assist the New Republic, when the existence of the Camaas Document was revealed. Booster and the Errant Venture were recruited to become the Tyrannic, as part of a ploy to recover a copy of the document from Yaga Minor. They were nearly captured in the attempt, as the Imperial forces knew that the Tyrannic was cloaked over Bothawui. However, the intervention of Admiral Pellaeon swayed the battle to the Republic's side, and the group escaped. (XWN, BW, SOP, VOF, IR)

Terrik Horn, Mirax
a native of the planet Corellia, she was part of the crew of the Pulsar Skate. When the Skate was intercepted by the B*lack Asp* in the Chorax System, she assisted in the rescue of Corran Horn. When she discovered it was Corran she had rescued, she was not happy. It was Corran's father who had sent her own father to Kessel. She often stayed with the family of Wedge Antilles when her father was on a dangerous run. Later, when her father tried to help Wedge Antilles track down the pirates that were responsible for his parents' deaths, Wedge and Mirax became good friends, almost like a brother and sister. When Booster was sent to the Spice Mines of Kessel, Mirax was not yet of legal age. However, that didn't stop her from taking over her father's businesses, using her own business sense to turn the operation into a profit-generating endeavor just slightly on the illegal side. Later, Mirax often helped the Alliance and the New Republic, by smuggling supplies and weapons to Alliance bases. She was an instrumental part of the plan to convoy bacta from Thyferra to Coruscant during the Krytos crisis, but was not part of the convoy when it was destroyed in the Alderaan System. Instead, she and Liat Tsayv had taken a sample of the bacta in the Pulsar Skate to Borleias for examination. The sample eventually made its way to Qlaern Hirf, who used it in the creation of rylca. Mirax reappeared on Coruscant shortly after Tycho Celchu's trial was called off. During the time leading up to the Bacta War, Mirax became increaslingly in love with Corran, despite their familial differences. When Corran asked her to marry him, shortly before the Battle of Thyferra, she quickly agreed. They were married on the Lusankya by Wedge Antilles, in the wake of the battle, in order to make sure that Booster didn't have his say. Then, they were married in an elaborate ceremony on Coruscant. While Corran continued to fly for Rogue Squadron, Mirax started her own import/export business, convincing people that they needed goods that weren't really necessary. During the Republic's struggle with Grand Admiral Thrawn, she used the business as a cover to fly supplies to, and rescue refugees from, worlds Thrawn had subjugated. When Leonia Tavira started her pirate raids, Mirax appealed to the Republic to let her help catch the young woman, for it would help free Corran up to begin thinking about having a child. However, she was captured shortly after her mission began on Nal Hutta, when the Jensaarai were able to read her intentions. She was held on Suarbi 7/5 until rescued by Corran and Luke Skywalker. (XWN, KT, BW, IJ, IR)

Terrik, Mod
an Imperial Captain, Terrik was in charge of training Davin Felth and the other stormtroopers destined for Tatooine, as part of the search effort for R2-D2 and C-3PO. Terrik's bald head helped him stand out from the rest of the recruits. Terrik was known in Imperial circles as a fearless, highly motiviated leader who was willing to sacrifice his troops. Once on Tatooine, Terrik was placed in charge of the Deserts Sands Zeta squadron, and led the attacks on the Jawa sandcrawler and the Lars homestead. These attacks angered Felth, who continued to grow more disgusted with the Empire. When Terrik ordered his troopers to fire on Han Solo and the Millennium Falcon, Felth used the opportunity to shoot Terrik in the back, claiming that Terrik was a victim of the crossfire. (TME, CCG2)

Tervo went on to join Kuat Drive Yards, and was a key member of the design team which worked on the Eclipse-class Star Destroyer. (SS)

Tesc, Dynba
this young woman was a college student at Garqi Ag University when she was captured by Prefect Mosh Barris during an anti-Imperial demonstration. She didn't understand the game she was playing, until she was eventually rescued by Corran Horn. Horn, posing as Eamon Yzalli, had her freed from Barris' prison so that she could pose as Kirtana Loor. She was to gather all her resistance confederates and bring them to liberate the Star's Delight, just as Kirtana brought the crew from the prison. She fled from Garqi with Horn, in an effort to escape the Imperial persecution on the planet, and met Captain Dromath. They fell in love and got married, having a son named Rade before Dromath died in the battles against Grand Admiral Thrawn. Dynba returned to Garqi after his death, but was killed in the initial stages of Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the planet. Her legacy lived on in her son, Rade, who opened her storehouses of supplies and weapons and started an underground resistance against the Vong. (TFE, DTR)

Emperor Palpatine personally charged Teshik with security in the Ringali Shell, and threatened to execute Teshik if the situation with the privateer vessel Far Orbit wasn't resolved. (FOP)

a Quarren who was one of Jabba the Hutt's Chief Lieutenants at his palace on Tatooine. Tessek was involved in a number of intrigues. He was working with Prefect Talmont in a plot to kill Jabba, while secretly bribing Talmont's men into killing both Jabba and Talmont. He would then sell any and all of Jabba's criminal empire to Lady Valarian. He planned to keep most of Jabba's "clean" business operations for himself. He had already manipulated many of these businesses into lucrative ventures, with Jabba's blessing. It was Tessek, however, who handled their day-to-day operation, not Jabba, although Jabba was the one listed as the owner.
Tessek had managed to bribe into employment many of Jabba's henchmen, including Ree-Yees, Barada, and many of the Weequays. However, when Tessek encountered a disembodied B'omarr monk who seemed to known all of his plans, Tessek began to panic. He had planted a bomb on Jabba's supply skiff, which he would explode when Jabba left the palace. His plan was to have Talmont intercept the barge at Jabba's Mos Eisley warehouse, where both would die. However, the presence of Leia Organa and Luke Skywalker in the palace put many of Tessek's plans in disarray. He tried to warn Jabba of the danger posed by the Alliance, hoping to keep the Hutt in Mos Eisley. Jabba, though, began to distrust Tessek, and ordered him to accompany the sail barge to the Pit of Carkoon. Tessek was trapped. It was Tessek who finally put all the pieces of Luke Skywalker's plan to free Han Solo and destroy Jabba, but the only audience he could find to hear him out was Ephant Mon, who later linked Tessek to an Imperial plot to destroy Jabba. Tessek tried to escape the palace, but he was intercepted by Ortugg, who held him in the palace until Jabba was ready to depart. Jabba then demanded that Tessek stay near him. When Skywalker's plan went into action, Tessek played along with it, shooting a Weequay who would have stopped Leia from strangling Jabba. Tessek managed to escape Jabba's sail barge before it exploded, and returned to the palace. There, he was captured by the B'omarr monks and his brain was disassociated from his body. As an acolyte, he learned that he had more in common with Skywalker, Organa, and Han Solo than he did with Jabba's ilk, and found the true meaning of freedom. (XW, MTS, TJP)

Tessera
this Imperial shuttle was part of the ship complement of the Star Destroyer Vengeance. Captain Thrawn used it to travel planetside. (GOF8)

Tesserahedron
this pirate ship was a modified PB-950 patrol boat, owned by a group of Duros until it was purchased by their astrogator, the Givin Chrag'mak'al. Chrag'mak'al quickly ousted the Duros crew and manned the ship with Givin officers. (PP)

Tesslar
this orphan found work as a thief, stealing speeders for Shamel during his teens. Once Tesslar learned how to use a blaster, however, he left Shamel's operation and became an Imperial bounty hunter. He detested independent and guild-aligned hunters. (GG10)

Tessra, Lun
this Imperial Captain commanded the 37th Imperial Fighter Wing aboard the Abrogator during the early years of the New Order. He was in command of the fleet which subdued the Lortan fanatics during the Reslian Purge. However, his pilots felt no loyalty to him during the battles because Tessra was a few weeks from completing his tour of duty, and held back in order to avoid being killed. His place as leader of the 37th was eventually taken by Soontir Fel, and Tessra was given command of a group sent to destroy several Alliance outposts. However, many of his missions ended in failure, and he was re-assigned to the 37th. Fel stepped aside to allow Tessra to take command, while Fel opted to remain a pilot. (MBF)

Tessus
this Alliance Corporal was the chief of security in Neskroff, on the planet Isis. (IC)

Test of Ascension
this is the Wookiee coming-of-age test in which a young male must pass three trials. In the first, the Wookiee must build his own bowcaster. In the second, the youth must track and kill a scuttle-grazer. The final test requires the Wookiee to kill a katarn without the help of another. (TT)

Testarr Sector
this area of the galaxy was roamed by the bounty hunter Yarr Gatonne during the early years of the New Republic. (WBC)

Testing Screen
this device, developed by the Jedi Council, is used to test the telepathic abilities of Jedi trainees. It had no buttons or controls, and was manipulated solely via the Force. This assured that a trainee couldn't oversee what the Master was doing, and guess at a correct answer. Using the screen, a Master could project into it a succession of images, which the trainee would have to interpret via their connection to the Force. (SW1, IG1)

Teta
this strong-willed female warrior conquered the system of stars and planets now known as the Empress Teta system. In what historians refer to as the First Unification Wars, Teta conquered seven major systems and their primary worlds, including the Koros System. She moved her seat of power to Cinnagar, and ruled with an fair but strict hand some 5,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. She was aided in her unification of the systems by the Jedi Knights, who realized that stability in the region would allow it to join the galactic community and benefit from trade and commerce. She was assisted by Memit Nadill and Odan-Urr, whom she trusted implicitly. So, when Odan-Urr had a vision foretelling the rise of the Sith Empire, Teta believed him and took him to Coruscant to tell the rulers of the galaxy. When they laughed at him and believed him to be an impulsive young Jedi, Teta returned to Cinnagar to prepare her worlds for the attack. Shortly before the Sith rose up, Jori Daragon returned to Cinnagar and was shot down over Teta's palace. The arrival of the frightened young woman only hardened Teta's resolve to protect her worlds. In what became known as the Great Hyperspace War, the Tetan forces – led by Jori Daragon, using information provided by her brother, Gav – soundly defeated the Sith fleet near the Denarii Nova. She rewarded Jori by giving her the rights to own and operate Aarrba the Hutt's starship repair facility. Teta was succeeded by a number of heirs, but over the centuries the government became fragmented. (DE1, GAS, FOSE, SWJ14)

Teta's Knives
this pair of bejeweled blades were used by Empress Teta herself, as her preferred hand weapon. These knives were considered part of the Tetan Crown Jewels, but were among a small portion of the treasure which was lost over time. (SWJ14)

Tetan Crown Jewels
this collection of bejeweled artifacts contained the ceremonial headdresses and heirloom gemstones once held by Empress Teta herself. Over the millennia since her death, most of the items were recovered and returned to the Teta System's museums for archival. Several pieces, including Teta's Knives, remained missing even during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ14)

Tetan Elite

Tetan Shocktroopers
name given to the warriors of the Krath who wore ancient ceremonial armor. They had been warped by the Dark Side influence of Satal Keto and Aleema, and many shocktrooper pilots willingly went on suicide missions in which they flew their fighters into the opposition's command ships. (DLS)

Tetanne
this Adumari nation was crushed by the forces of the nation of Cartann, which were led by Pekaelic ke Teldan in his youth. Years later, during the Adumari negotiations with the New Republic and the Empire, Tetanne sided with the nations of Yedagon and Halbegardia in oppposing ke Teldan's plan for a Cartann-based world government. (SOA)

Tetano
this was the name used by the people who lived in the nation of Tetanna, on the planet Adumar. (SOA)

Teth
this planet was controlled by Moff Sarn Shild during the early years of the New Order. He had a palatial estate on the planet, and used it as a gathering place for the fleet which attacked Nar Shaddaa. Teth was located in the Outer Rim Territories, near both the Corporate Sector and Hutt space, and so was strategic to Shild's attack on Nar Shaddaa. Teth's location led its leaders to believe that it was safe from Imperial domination. Bria Tharen met with the planet's leaders, hoping to incite them to open rebellion, but she failed. Boba Fett tracked her here, but lost her when she left the meeting. (THG, RD)

Tetsu

Tey How
this Neimoidian served Nute Gunray as the communications officer aboard his Trade Federation battleship. She had audio and visual components surgically implanted in her eyes and mouth, to facilitate her shipboard duties. After the invasion of Naboo, Gunray ordered all Federation battleships but the Droid Control Ship to return home. He assigned Tey How to the communications station on the control ship, where she was killed during the Battle of Naboo. Tey How was voiced by Tyger in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IS1)

Teyr
a Fallanassi school world. It was a boom world after the Battle of Endor, and much of its economic growth was a result of increased tourism. However, the natives didn't tolerate off-worlders very well, and required that visitors abide by a series of visitors' guidelines. The local police forces tended to favor natives over off-worlders in any dispute, and they subtly encouraged visitors not to stay on Teyr too long. (BTS, SOL)

Th'iruckai
this bipedal, reptilian race is native to the planet Th'irus. At this time of the Galactic Civil War, they were a bronze-age race which had developed a high degree of medical knowledge as well as skill in the use of poisons and neurotoxins. Groups of Th'iruckai banded together in tribes led by Teruks, and the tribes wages bloody wars against each other over the millennia. When the first explorers found their planet, the Teruks realized that they could gain an advantage over their rivals if they could obtain high-tech weapons. During the Galactic Civil War, a band of scouts landed on the planet and were fought over by several clans. The scouts, in talking to the teruks, realized that the inter-clan wars were being fought because of an ancient misunderstanding. The scouts worked with the tribes to establish a cease-fire and begin peace negotiations between the clans. (GMS)

Thall, Norjax
this aging mercenary was once part of the Flamestrike Legion which defended Bamula Sector. After the Empire forcibly disbanded the Legion, Thall fled the sector and stayed one step ahead of the Empire by seeking employment as a mercenary. However, he found himself fighting battles against cultures that were unprepared for modern warfare, so Thall sought out more noble work. He was eventually hired by the New Cov Boimolecule Company as a security officer, but this was not what he had in mind. He left that job and became a part of the more “civilized” warfare of organized crime. He was discovered by Saujutta-Ok-Topii when he was trying to neutralize a Syndicate One operation. The Pan-preneur and her opponent settled their difference without bloodshed, and she insisted that Thall become part of her team. He agreed, and became the Syndicate’s weapons and tactical expert. Thallium an element used by Umak Leth to contain altered molecules. (DESB)

Thanas, Malinza
the daughter of Gaerial Captison and Pter Thanas, she was four and one-half years old when Thrackan Sal-Solo rose to power on Corellia. After her father died of Knowt’s Disease, and after Gaeriel was killed at Corellia, Malinza was adopted by a well-placed Bakuran family. She was also sponsored by Luke Skywalker and his wife, Mara Jade Skywalker, as part of Luke’s promise to Gaeriel that the child would be all right. (AS, BP)

Thanas, Pter
this Imperial Navy Commander was stationed at Bakura after he refused to destroy a Talz village on Alzoc III. While on Bakura, he was the commanding officer aboard the Dominant. Thanas had been assigned to monitor the mining operations on Alzoc III, and discovered that the native Talz worked harder if they were fed more food. He arranged his budgets, and nearly tripled the output of the operation. When a new commanding officer reduced the food allotments to the Talz, the Talz leader protested. The new commander ordered Thanas to wipe out the village, and he refused. While on Bakura, he began questioning his belief in the Emperor's New Order. After the attack by the Ssi-ruuk and the Alliance’s offer of aid, Thanas only became more disturbed by the New Order's ideal. When the battle was over, he gave up his Imperial commission and joined the Alliance. He remained on Bakura, helping Gaerial Captison restore the planet's government. Their relationship blossomed, and they were married eight years after the Ssi-ruuk invasion. Their marriage produced a single daughter, Malinza, before Thanas was diagnosed with Knowt's disease. The disease took his life when Malinza was three, following Gaerial's unsuccessful bid for re-election as Prime Minister. (TB, AS, TBSB)

Thanas, Sten
the son of a prominent Coruscant House, Sten followed in the footsteps of his forebears. He became the latest in a long line of Old Republic and Imperial officers, serving as the first mate on the Hydra. He served faithfully until his promotion, which followed the death of his Captain in a turbolift accident. He later died when the Hydra was destroyed. (JASB)

this was a relatively uninhabited region of the Corporate Sector. (AIR)

Thandruss
this planet is the homeworld of the Krytollak race. It has two natural satellites. (GG12)

Thane, Beed
this robust, bearded man served as the Archon on the planet Vergill, representing his planet to the Hapes Consortium during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Known more for his drinking than his politics, Thane scoffed at Leia Organa-Solo's plea for help in driving off the Yuuzhan Vong. He argued that the Consortium should remain neutral, since the Yuuzhan Vong has thus far left the Hapes Cluster alone. Thane and his supporters formed a sizable portion of the Consortium, and threatened to keep the Hapans out of the struggle. However, he challenged Prince Isolder to a duel, after Isolder confronted him. Isolder won the challenge, forcing Thane to throw his vote toward helping the New Republic. However, after the destruction of a large part of the Hapan fleet at the hands of Thrackan Sal-Solo, Thane found himself suddenly vindicated. (JE)

Thane Dregond
one-time Chamber President of the planet Kamori. (SWAJ)

Thaneespi
this female Mon Calamari joined the Alliance after the Empire subjugated the planet. She fled the planet with a group of refugees who followed her, and later met up with the Alliance. Thaneespi was know for her in-depth tactical analysis of a battle, and was recruited by Admiral Ackbar to join his command. She served as the First Officer aboard the Home One during the Battle of Endor. (CCG11)

Thani
this was the capital city of the planet Telos. Its huge skyscrapers were considered works of art, and glowed bronze and silver in the sunlight. (DOR)

Thanik
this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who believed the murder of 300 colonists on Corva Yag was caused by the Alliance. Thanik was based on the planet Bakura. (SWJ13)

Thanis, Trophan
this Imperial governor ruled over the planet Noonar. (SWAJ)

Thanium Worlds
this cluster of inhabited systems borders the Allied Tion near Lianna. (ML)

Thanos
the blue-white star which is the primary sun of the planet Togoria. (GG4)

Thant and Son, Starshipwrights
this large, reputable starship maintenance and modification firm is located near Lola Curich starport, on Lianna. (ML)

Thanta Zilbra
1) the second star threatened by the Starbuster plot, about 4 weeks after the first detonation, this yellow star was the central body is a system of three planets . The star system contains planets with intelligent life (AS, CTD)
2) the primary planet orbiting the star Thanta Zilbra, this planet was named for the smuggler Thanta Zilbra, who founded it some thirteen years after the Battle of Endor A mainly desert world, the planet was known for the Zilbra fungus, which was used to help heal wounds With the destruction of the star Thanta Zilbra, only 1,263 of the planet's 13,000 settlers were able to survive. It had two moons. (AS, CTD) native to the volcanic regions of Kamur, this unusual carnivore was a member of the family known as silicavores. This meant that they survived by consuming rocks, although the thanu actually consumed rocks which contained trapped plant and animal matter, thereby gaining organic nutrients while expelling the crushed rocks it didn't digest. Thanu resemble large knobs of flesh, standing over a meter tall and having a number of bulbous mouths and arms around their trunk. They moved about on unusual "rolling" toes which were actually stone feet developed early in their lifecycle and manipulated by a complex musculature. They use their arms, which contain a group of sticky tendrils, to catch their prey and draw it near to one of their mouths. Thanu have a number of developmental phase in their lifecycle, starting out like immobile plant-like larva before reaching maturity. Juveniles, eat raw plant material, which the ability to consume rocks isn't developed until reaching maturity. (COG)

Thanu

Thar Lasan
this Gotal worked as a loanshark during the height of the New Order, until he was suddenly killed. Many believed that Thar's death was caused by Ploovo Two-for-One, who raided Thar's ranks for his own "Protocol Team.". (AIR)

Thar'quan
this Defel mine worker appeared to be an average meleenium miner. In reality, Thar'quan was an experienced and highly effective saboteur and information gatherer. Thar'quan worked in the city of Uhur'qah, tapping into the city's central computer and stealing data about Imperial operations. Very few knew that Thar'quan was also a deep-cover agent of the Alliance, and was the protege of Sasnak Toxis. Thar'quan was once captured and imprisoned in the Spice Mines of Kessel, but was freed with the help of Larq Thur. (CRO, AIR)

Tharak
this is the primary continent of the planet Fyodos. It once was the site of the planet's traffic control station, before the Great Cleansing. Hidden inside a mountain, it is jealously guarded by the Fyodoi shamen, for hidden inside the station are various high-tech weaponry. All of the Fyodoi shamen carry a small transmitter which will alert them if the control station is breeched by a common Fyodoi. (PG2)

Tharak Great Water
this is one of Fyodos' two major bodies of water. (PG2)

Tharen, Bria
this young Corellian woman was the daughter of Renn and Sera Tharen. A student of archaeology, she was fascinated by the ways of the Jedi Knights, and studied anything and everything about the Clone Wars. At seventeen, though, she decided that her life was lacking something. Just after completing her undergraduate studies in preparation for advanced schooling on Coruscant, she sold her jewelry and joined the religious colony on Ylesia to begin worshipping the Oneness. She became deeply addicted to the Exaltation performed by the t'landa Til, and so worked extra hard in the spice mines, hoping to achieve a higher state of understanding. It was about a year after she joined the colony that she met Han Solo. Their friendship grew steadily, much to Bria's dismay, for she was a devoted follower of the t'landa Til religion. However, it was Han who discovered her love of archaeology, and this led to Teroenza assigner her the position of archival and cataloguer of his collection fo treasures. Bria was happiest at this point as a pilgrim, and allowed herself to become more and more attached to Han. When Han told her of the true nature of the Ylesian colonies, she initially thought he was lying in order to win her over. She eventually came to realize that he was right after forcing herself to observe the t'landa Til during Exaltations, and worked with Han to escape from the planet. After attending the wedding of Muuurgh and Mrrov on Togoria, they returned to Bria's family holdings on Corellia. There, Han's years of swoop riding and scheming with Garris Shrike came back to haunt him, as Bria's brother and former fiancé' recognized him as someone else. They were forced to leave Corellia, but not without the support of her fatherm, Renn. They went to Coruscant, where the t'landa Til and the Hutts tried to capture them for their escape from Ylesia. Bria, burdened by the emotional detachment from the Exaltation and by the presumed impediment to Han's career, left him one day and returned on her own to Corellia. After this, Bria met up with Lanah Malo, and began a crusade against the Hutts and the t'landa Til. She remained on or near Corellia for four years, working with underground resistance there, then disappeared. She resurfaced on Devaron, and was nearly discovered by Han, who was there looking for work. Bria had been serving as Admiral Trefaren's assistant. At this time, Aruk the Hutt placed a 50,000-credit bounty on her live capture. Bria eventually joined the Alliance, and rose quickly through the ranks. She was the mastermind behind the Red Hand Squadron, and was the primary proponent of the tactics used in the Battle of Ylesia. She was successful in bringing down the Besadii operation there, and secured a huge amount of funding for the Alliance be taking artifacts, spice, and loose credits from the operations there. This angered Han and the smugglers who helped in the battle, for they thought they were going to be paid. This was the final time she parted ways with Han. She then accepted an assignment to support the resistance on Toprawa, where they had received the plans fo the first Death Star. As the Empire tracked the plans to the planet, they struck with incredible force. Most of Red Hand Squadron was killed supporting the resistance, and Bria took a suicide capsule before she could be captured. Boba Fett delivered the news of her death to Han on Tatooine, shortly before Han accepted Ben Kenobi's offer for transportation to Alderaan. (TPS, THG, RD)

Tharen, Pavik
Bria Tharen's brother, Pavik had many of the physical and personal traits of his mother, Sera. A short, thin young man with green eyes and dark hair, Pavik simply wanted to maintain the status quo within the family, which primarily meant that he could live a sedentary life of luxury. When Bria returned from Ylesia with Han Solo, Pavik was suspicious of the young man, both from a selfish desire to protect his wealth and from genuine concern for his sister. Later, it was Pavik who recognized Han from one of the many scams he ran with Garris Shrike, precipitating Han and Bria fleeing Corellia. (TPS)

Tharen, Renn
this young Corellian man started out as a pilot for a shipping company. A shrewd businessman as well as a pilot, Renn worked his way the corporate ladder until he eventually owned the operation. A private man, Renn bought a lrage tract of land for family estate as a buffer between himself and his neighbors. Renn married a young woman named Sera, who bore him two children: a son named Pavik and a daughter named Bria. Sera's social machinations grated on Renn, who was unable to confront his wife until Bria returned from Ylesia with Han Solo. Renn felt a bond with Han, and recognized that the young man - no matter what his past held - could someday become a true hero in his own right. He chided both Sera and Pavik for worrying only about their inheritances, and chose to provide Han and Brea with enough credits to get to Coruscant and try to establish a life for themselves. When Bria decided to leave Han, feeling that she was holding him back, she asked her father to help get Han off the wanted list and set up with enough credits to live happily. Renn obliged, feeling for them both in their time of need. (TPS)

Tharen, Sera
whatever emotional gifts Sera had as a young Corelliam woman, she soon lost them after achieving her goal: marrying into a wealthy family. This she accomplished when she married Renn Tharen, the president of a prominent shipping company. She then set out to achieve social standing by waving her husband's wealth in everyone's face. Her social responsibilities demanded a family setting, and she gave Renn two children - Pavik and Bria. However, while Pavik seemed to take to his mother's pettiness, it drove Bria away. After Sera manipulated Bria into an engagement with Dael Levare, Brea fled the family to join the pseudo-religious colony on Ylesia, and was not heard from for a year. When she returned, Sera immediately began to harp on her daughter. It didn't help that Bria returned with Han Solo, a youth Sera held in low regard because of his origins as a street orphan. Sera invited Dael into the house for lunch, in hopes of driving Han away in shame. When Pavik recognized Han as a con artist who used to work for Garris Shrike, Sera became increasingly agitated. She demanded that he leave, but Renn intervened. Angered and annoyed at Sera's lack of family values, Renn blamed her for Bria's disappearance and praised Han for returning her. Sera was unable to comprehend this, and fled to her rooms. (TPS)

Tharen Wayfarer
one of the Pitareeze tour ships, the Wayfarer takes people on tours of the Three Peaks of Tharen. It was one of the first ships targetted by Captain Huba after Olag Greck left Kalarba for Hosk Station. (DRO)

Tharin Sector
this area of the galaxy was the base of operations for Scandium Team, during the Galactic Civil War. It bordered the Periphery along the Salin Corridor. (SWJ10, SSR)

Tharkos
this planet was used as the headquarters for Millennium Astro-Engineering. (CSWDW)

Tharlst Squad
this was one of the groups of Imperial soldiers which attacked the Alliance base on Taul. They were attached to the Victory-class Star Destroyer Dominator. (SWJ1)

Tharrand
this being was a gunrunner who operated during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (IDC)

Tharren
a diety worshipped on Kalarba. (DRO)

Thasca Knarr
this Snivvian merchant set up his own business within one of the guest rooms at Exovar's Emporium, located on the planet Neftali. While this activity was generally overlooked by Exovar, Thasca Knarr was also plotting to take over the Emporium for his own usage. Thasca Knarr developed a network of spies and mercenaries, and hoped to eventually command a team of bounty hunters. All of Thasca Knarr's plans were thwarted, however, when a group of independent operatives uncovered his plans and exposed them to Exovar. (WSV)

The New Order
this song, written and played by the band The Emperor's New Clothes, first appeared on the compilation Totally Patriotic. (GG9)

The Radion
one of the starships Nok used to get the Tetsus clan off Rodia and escape the Chattza oppression following the death of Greedo's father. (TME)

The Sequential Passage of Chronological Intervals
a musical piece often played by Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes. (TME)

Theal
this inhospitable planet was originally scouted by Barosa Warren for the Old Republic. It was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Thebeon 8
this planet's government supported Palpatine's New Order during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWEA)

Thedit
this Jawa was responsible for perimeter patrols of the territory held by Kalit. He was known as an inspiring leader, and was adept at discerning the approach of krayt dragons, Sandpeople, and other Jawa clans. (CCG9)

Theed
founded 800 years before the Battle of Naboo, this is the capital city of the planet Naboo. Theed is surrounded by water, although it sits at the edge of an unusually tall steppelandand. The city is surrounded by numerous waterfalls which have formed over the millennia. (SW1, IWE1)

Theed Palace
this primary seat of the Naboo government, the Palace dominated the incredibly beautiful city of Theed. Deep in its core, the Naboo had built a power generator that took plasma energy directly from the planet's core and harnessed it to create electricity and heat. Adjacent to the Palace, across tributaries of the Solleu River, was the hangar in which the royal family maintained their starship, and in which the Space Fighter Corps maintained their small fleet of N-1 starfighters. It was a royal family tradition that each new ruler of the planet Naboo add a tower or turret to the Palace, and to enhance the beauty of existing structures. (IWE1)

Theed Palace Space Vessel Engineering Corps
this Naboo manufacturer created most of the starship designs used in the royal volunteer fleet, including the J-type transport used by Queen Amidala and the N-1 fighter. (X1)

Theelin
a near-human species that has been bred out of existence. (DE1)

Thelaa
this contemporary of Hari Seldona was a student at Alderaan University, and a secret dissident during the rise of the New Order. She was a quiet student of music, and heralded from a backwater world that has thus far avoided Imperial invasion. She had a good deal of promise, but the oppression of the Empire seemed to dampen her creative spirit. It was later discovered that many of her later works were actually plagiarized versions of works created by the forgotten composer Salyer. She was expelled, and she fled into the wilderness where she had been secretly running guns to the Alliance. She was captured by Imperial agents who had been following her, and was subjected to deep interrogation. The agents tried to have her transported to the newly-arrived Death Star for further interrogation, but their calls were ignored. Thelaa and her torturers were killed when the Death Star destroyed Alderaan. (ISU)

Themog
this former member of the Corellian Security Force was drummed out of the force after being wounded in an argument with a suspect. The injury left him without the use of his left eye, which he covered with a black patch like a pirate. The suspect admitted that he had tried to bribe Themog into releasing him, but later testified that Themog tried to raise the amount of the bribe before accepting it. Exiled from law enforcement, Themog eventually turned to a life of crime, and became the crimelord controlled who much of the underground activity on the planet Chrona, during the early years of the New Republic. Themog worked to strengthen his position of power by bribing Arno Gallorr and Moira Kruger, hoping to counteract the work of Mortris Gallorr to free the planet from criminal control. Unknown to most, he was also romantically involved with Moira, and convinced her to allow him to use the Grinder Dance Hall as a hideout. When Mortris began hiring mercenaries to protect the citizens of Corestrike, Themog kidnapped Mortris, his grandson Selmar, and his daughter-in-law Serise. He held them ransom against a group of determined freelance protectors, until his thugs were defeated and Themog was defeated in a firefight. (SWJ12)

Thene'
this is the capital city of the planet Marngar III. The Imperial university's main campus on the planet is located here. (SWAJ)

Thennqora
a alien race which greatly influenced Saffa paintings, after they made initial contact several millenia before the Galactic Civil War. (HTTE)

Theosidicc Sirrap Treblif
this Elomin author wrote The History of Two Peoples, One Planet. (GG12)

Ther-das
this Arcona was educated at the Lerct Historical Institute, before serving as the acquisitions director for the Zuliria Museum of Antiquities, working in the ancient weaponry department. During his studies at Lerct, Ther-das became addicted to salt, and spent many years trying to overcome his addiction. After growing tired of the routine at the museum, Ther-das gathered some acquaintences to him and formed the Zulirian Swordmasters. Originally dedicated to the study of weaponry, Ther-das began pushing the group to use their collected weapons and skills as vigilantes. (AIR)

Therans
this group of Oldtimers from the planet Nam Chorios followed the word of the prophet Theras, and strove to keep inbound and outbound traffic away from the planet. The exact reason for their actions was lost over several centuries, but the Therans continued to drive off larger ships, an action deemed by the Newcomers as an attempt to keep Nam Chorios isolated from the galaxy. A civil war of sorts between the Therans and the Newcomers raged for a number of years until the basis for the feud was revealed by Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa-Solo. (POT)

Theras
one of the original political prisoners left on the planet Nam Chorios by the Grissmaths, Theras was attuned to the Force. He was contacted by the Spook crystals, which had realized that the drochs used to kill the prisoners were growing in power. The Spooks feared that the drochs would leave Nam Chorios and inflict the galaxy, and used Theras as a sort of prophet. He brought word to the Oldtimers that the drochs could secret themselves on any ship leaving the planet, and that ships of large size could house enough drochs to consume the galaxy. Theras and his followers reworked the planetary defenses to fire on incoming and outgoing ships over a certain mass, in an effort to prevent the drochs from leaving. (POT)

Thergum Pits
located on the planet Essowyn, this was the primary mining operation founded by Messert Mines Corporation. They purchased the rights to the Pits from the Tresycht nation of Saurtons, and used Tresycht forces to subjugate the nearby Yiszte nation to avoid any contention over ownership of the land. (PG1)

Therma-canteen
this ancient form of container was used to transport liquids while maintaining their temperature. (TOJC)

Thermabag
this small sack is used to keep foods warm or cold during transport. They are insulated lunch bags. (SWJ9)

Thermal cape
a poncho made from metallic foil and spider silk, it keeps the wearer's body heat inside. They are often called T-capes. (SME, COJ)

Thermal Detonator
a round bomb used by smugglers and mercenaries, built on Talesia. They are essentially a casing which contained a shaped charge of baradium. The use of baradium made the weapon extremely dangerous, even for the being who threw it, as the element was highly unstable. Depending on the size of the charge, a thermal detonator would essentially atomize all material within a spherical area centered on the charge itself. The baradium was activated by a switch, which would release a short burst of energy into the baradium mass, causing it to explode. (ROTJ, CPL, ROE)

Thermal Mine
this form of explosive device was employed in bringing down large buildings. It had a controllable blast, which enabled demolitions crews to safely bring down structures. (IA)

Thermal suit
a thin, lightweight coverall worn over normal clothing that provides protection from extreme temperatures. They are often referred to as T-suits. (SME, COJ)

Thermal Veristat
this device was used in the construction of racing engines, and was responsible for regulating the internal temperature of these engines. Because of the incredible heat they generate, thermal veristats were required in podracer engines. (IG1)

Thermal Well
this weapon was developed by the Alliance, in an effort to reduce the risks involved with using pure-baradium thermal detonators. Alliance technicians blended baradium with stabilized ytterbium, resulting in a denser explosive that ignited instead of exploding when energized. The thermal reaction is capable of generating thousands of degrees of heat in a short time, literally melting everything in its "blast radius." (ROE)

Thermaplast
this material was used to form pre-fab shelters. (GG10)

Thermex
a highly-combustible explosive. (POM)

Thermic Baster
this was an outdated form of oven, used for slowly cooking meats. (IWE1)

Thermite
an explosive material used by military commandos. (SWJ12)

Thermite Boring Charge
this directed explosive is used to destroy specific targets, such as locking mechanisms. The charge is positioned to bore into its target, destroying everything it encounters along its path. Thermite charges burn with an intensely bright light. (KT)

Thermo-converter
this is any device or material which generates electricity when heated. (GG2)

Thermocapsulary Dehousing Assistor
an automaton used to break down heat-generating devices. They are menial laborers. C-3PO called R2-D2 one while R2-D2 was trying to escape from the Tantive IV. (SWN)

Thermocom
this device is used to detect the operating temperature of machinery and equipment, in order to prevent them from overheating. The thermocom is connected by a shielded cable to onboard shutdown systems, which bring the equipment to a halt when the operating temperature reaches critical levels. The temperature levels can be set into the thermocom by the manufacturer, or modified by the user. Modifications to the temperature settings are highly discouraged, however. (RF)

Thermon
this planet is orbited by several moons made of pure methane. The methane exists in liquid form below the crust, and gravitation pressure often cracks this crust. The result is a spectacular display of methan geysers. (THG)

Thernbee
this huge, four-legged creature is native to the mountains of Almania. They are covered with thick, white fur, and have small heads punctuated by short ears and striking blue eyes. Thernbees have a long, thin tail which can be used like a whip. They drool constantly, and need sunlight in order to survive. They are somewhat psychic, and are able to establish mental links to other beings with similar abilities. They consume primarily leaves and vegetation, and will also eat the slimy slugs and snakes which inhabit the underbrush. They are very powerful, yet docile, creatures. (TNR)

Thesh
this is the eighth combination symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letters "th". (SWM)

Thespian Union
this was a group of students at Imperial Academies throughout the galaxy which put on plays and operas as part of their extracurricular activities. (IR)

Thetametabuterin
this tasteless, chemical powder was used by the best poisoners in the galaxy. When added to certain meats, like the flesh of the Wroonian flycatcher, it could create a subtle poison that affected the mental stability of a human eater. (SESB)

Thetan nitakka, ko nakaza
this Yevethan war cry is translated as “to the strongest of us, glory in the kill.” (TT)

Thevaxan Marauder
this predator was native to the swamps of the planet Gorsh. It wasn't very adept at stalking its prey, being a huge beast measuring up to eight meters tall at the shoulder and twenty meters in length. It was quite dim-witted, and could be easily tricked or confused. Note that Wedge's Gamble claims the Thevaxan Marauder was an expert at stalking its prey. (WG, PG1)

Thi'in Lis
this Abinyshi served the Alliance as a Special Forces operative during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ14)

Thickwood
this species of tree grows on the planet Kubindi, and is named for its thick, radiation-absorbing bark. Thickwood trees are often the homes of the burrowing insects that make up much of the Kubaz diet. (SWJ10)

Thig Brothers
a pair of smugglers working for Jabba the Hutt just before the Battle of Yavin. They were spicejackers who worked in the Stenness System, and were usually armed with stolen Imperial weapons. (TME)

Thiirn, Mosara
this woman was, at one time, a Lieutenant in the Alliance's Special Force division. She deserted at the height of a pitched battle with the Assassin’s Guild on Archais, and presented herself to Imperial Lieutnenant Colonel Covell. Luckily for the Alliance, she had not been intrusted with secret information, so her defection led to little initial damage. However, Thiirn later joined Hydrospeare Corporation’s Design Team Beta, and her work was used against the Alliance in battle. (AIR)

Thikkiian Brandy
this potent alcoholic beverages is created by Wookiees. (RD)

Thikkiiana Peninsula
this is one of the many Wookiee tree-cities found on the planet Kashyyyk. It is one of the furthest such constructions from the city of Rwookrrorro. (TT)

Thila
1) the planet on which the Alliance reorganized, following the evacuation of the base on Yavin 4. Voren Na'al began investigating the heroes of the Battle of Yavin at this base. (MTS)
2) this female Sullustan once sold slaves to Jabba the Hutt, only to discover that Jabba was serving them to his rancor for sport and entertainment. She suddenly became rich by selling holovids of the rancor's feedings about fifteen years before the Galactic Civil War. It was obvious that she cared little for the slaves she sold, which earned her the nickname "The Butcher." She was the Captain of the Arkanian Dawn, the Outer Rim's most feared slave ship. It was a well-known fact that anyone who was taken aboard the Dawn never returned. Of course, this was all the ultimate ruse, engineered by Thila and other anti-Imperials who saw the way Palpatine's New Order was treating aliens and promoting slavery. Thila used complex animation and filming to create the rancor holos, which she placed on the market herself. She then purchased the Dawn and began to make a bigger name for herself, spreading rumors about the slaves she picked up. In reality, the slaves she took into the Dawn were released onto Alliance safeworlds. Thila has liberated a multitude of slaves from Imperial and non-Imperial camps, helping to spread the word that the New Order should be overthrown (GG9)

Thildas
this Ebranite term describes a clan grouping. Each thildas represents about 20-30 Ebranite families who live and work together, in the same area. The clan's insignia is tattooed on the uppermost left arm of each Ebranite. (GG12)

Thilis-Brin
this young Ishi Tib female joined the Alliance shortly after the Battle of Yavin, and quickly became one of the best Special Forces agents in her class. She attracted the notice of Dutra Zeneta, who recruited her to be the chief technician and procurement specialist for Shroud Team. She also served as the secondary foster agent, supporting the Rodian Dheendo. Much of her drive came from a desire to avenge her people and her homeworld against the Empire. (SWJ10)

Thimbus, Warl
this Alliance trooper was a member of Parody Squad, at Taul, shortly before the base was destroyed by the Victory-class Star Destroyer Dominator. Thimbus was also Force-sensitive, and knew a little about the Jedi arts. (SWJ1)

Thimwa Precinct
this was an area of the city of Mallonore, located on the planet Cmaoli Di. (SWJ12)

Thindroid
this was a nickname used to describe ASP-series droids, and indicated their stick-like figures. (SSR)

ThinHut
this was a type of shelter used by scouts and explorers. It was quite small, providing only three cubic meters of space when erected, but could withstand most environments - although not hard vacuum - for 30 hours. It was made from the same material as a ThinSuit, which resisted tears and cuts. (GG8)

Thinin
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Thinking Garden
this form of garden was popular on the planet Merisee. A thinking garden was often walled off from the surrounding land by a dense hedge of shurbbery, and contained waterfalls and fountains. Stone benches surrounded the waterworks, allowing visitors to relax and unwind to the bubbling of the water. Thinking gardens allowed visitors to escape from the outside world. (OE)

ThinSuit
a form of personal protection used by scouts and explorers, the Karflo ThinSuit was a lightweight fabric suit that resisted tears and rips, and provided up to 18 hours of protection in most atmospheric environments. It offered no protection in vacuum, but protected against most hostile environments with through the use of a breathing mask and filter system. (GG8, ROE)

Thiodyne
manufacturers of shipboard ionization reactors. (SCRE)

Thionarx
an illegal substance sold in the Corporate Sector. (CSA)

Thioro
this man claimed to be a member of the New Republic Military Police and a native of Corellia, but was actually part of a small force meant to eliminate Wraith Squadron. He was identified as a threat by Garik Loran, despite his accurate Republic credentials, and incapacitated. (IF)

Third Ado Superiority Fleet commanded by Admiral Gor Lequar, this Imperial force patrolled Ado Sector during the height of the New Order. (PP)

Third Alabaster
this room was located in the residence building used by Wedge Antilles and Red Flight, during their stay in the city of Cartann, on Adumar. A New Republic Intelligence agent slipped into this room before Hallis Saper could determine who it was. (SOA)

Third Battle Group
one of the New Republic's five defensive fleets. (SOL)

Third Battle of Vontor
the fateful battle in which Xim the Despot was finally defeated by Hutt forces. Kossak the Hutt used a battle group formed from Vodran, Nikto, and Klatooinan forces to overcome Xim's legions. (HSL, GG12)

Third Electoral
this session of the New Republic Senate was to be highlighted by the recall vote against Leia Organa-Solo during the Black Fleet Crisis. Instead, it became known for announcement by Organa-Solo of a declaration of war against the Yevetha. (TT)

Third General Survey
an Old Republic comprehensive examination of the galactic arms and the planets located in them. The survey discovered the planet Brath Qella, but the contact ship it requested took eight more years to reach the planet. By that time, asteroid impacts had destroyed the planet's ecosystem, and the Qella were extinct. The Third General Survey was 61% complete when the Clone Wars broke out and the survey was cancelled. (BTS)

Third Ilthmar Defense
a holochess defensive strategy. (HSEC)

Third Law of Military Success
this military axiom states, "Failure is deadly." (ROE)

Third Prophet
this was the title given to the leader of the Ni'Shaw-Dak Ministry. In its beginning, the position of the Third Prophet was held by Kaltor Naklian, the religion's founder. In this way, Kaltor elevated himself to the coveted position of Ni'Shaw's third prophet. (AIR)

Thirsty Monoc, The
this bar was owned and operated by Nim Abek, and it was located aboard his shadowport base, Abek's Station. The bar's title displayed Abek's open contempt for members of the Abyssin race. (SSR)

Thirteen
this was the nickname Kell Tainer used for his R2 astromech droid, because the droid would always provide the number thirteen when asked to give a random number. Kell asked Eurrsk Thri'ag to fix the glitch, but kept the nickname Thirteen. Its actual designation was R2-D609. The droid was destroyed in the battle over Ession, in which Wraith Squadron defeated the Implacable. (WS)

Thiss
this was one of the primary landing field maintained by the Wookiees of Rwookrrorro. (HT)

Thisspias
this Inner Rim planet was the homeworld of the Jedi Master Oppo Rancisis. (IG1, IWE1)

Thistleborn
an Imperial Grand Moff still serving the Empire after Palpatine's death at Endor, Thistleborn is distinguishable by his bushy eyebrows. He is very active in the Central Committee of Grand Moffs, and is a bery authoritative figure. (GDV)

Thix
one of Prince Xizor's sewer guards on Coruscant, Thix was in charge of securing sector 1138. This is another reference to George Lucas' film, THX-1138. (SE)

Thizzlebug
this small was native to the planet Alpherides. (TOJC)

Thlan-sa
this Kath was an Alliance operative during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, until he was captured by the bounty hunter Ssach'thirix. (AIR)

Tho Voota
this Yevethan male was one of Nil Spaar's primates. He and Dar Bille discovered the New Republic's statis probes near Doornik-319, shortly after the Battle of ILC-905. He commanded the Interdictor cruiser Splendor of Yevetha. (TT)

Thobek
this language is similar to those of Torrock and Wehttam in their grammatic structures and common verbage. (SOL)

Thodian
an alien race. (SOL)

Thog, Pelleo
this bald, obese man was known for the vast zoo he established and operated on Torina. He was a former sportsman and entrepreneur who decided that the collecting and display of rare and exotic creatures was just as important as other business. As his personal wealth grew, so did his collection of creatures. Thog was also a personal friend of Imperial Captain Dadefra. (OE)

Thokisl
this was the largest city on the planet Boztrok. (SWJ13)

Thokos
the inhabitants of this planet launched a series of colony ships aimed at settling the planet Ammuud. These ships left Thokos about 10,000 years before the formations of the Corporate Sector, and communication between Ammuud and Thokos was lost. (CSA)

Thokosia System
a planetary system located on the Gamor Run. (DESB)

Tholan's Comestibles
this repulsorcraft was a floating restaurant that served customers in the cities of Scohar and Revos, on Storinal. (WS)

Tholatin
this planet was an uninhabited ball of rock, except for the smugglers' settlement in Esau's Ridge. (TT)

TholCorp
this small corporation was infamous for manufacturing neuronic whips and other slaving weapons. (AIR)

Tholon
this planet, originally scouted by Casti Tholon for Rim Commercial Mining, was named for her. It was a desolate world of rocky wastes, but proved to be incredibly rich with valuable ores and minerals. The planet's resources allowed RCM to become quite profitable, and they named the planet for its discoverer. It was, in fact, the first world that Casti Tholon ever scouted. (AIR)

Tholon, Casti
this bald-pated woman was considered one of the most loyal graduates of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School. A native of Sardorna, she grew up as an orphan aboard one of the space stations which orbited the planet Duro. Despite the fact that she was human, the Duros accepted her into their society, and Casti soon found that she enjoyed the company of Duros over that of other humans. During her time at GOSS, she was known to be one of Barosa Warren's favorite students, and the two developed a friendship over time. They worked together after her graduation, with Warren assisting her while she worked for Rim Commerical Mining and Mero-Nepp Ores, but her work kept her away from OM813 more often than not. Despite the distance, Casti remained loyal to Warren and GOSS. (AIR)

Tholos
one of the Yevethan Aramadia-class starships assigned to guard the Black Nine installation against attack by the New Republic, the Tholos wa under the command of Par Drann. It was the Tholos, making a routine jump into the ILC-905 system, which was attacked by the warships Vanguard, Indomitable, and Folna. The combined fire of the Republic ships, along with several well-placed bombing runs, rendered the Tholos without adequate control. The ship tumbled through the atmosphere of the third planet of the ILC-905 system and was destroyed. (TT)

Thomork
this planet was the site of Emperor Palpatine's World Devastator construction facility, until it was closed down. Official Imperial word indicated a hive virus wiped out the employees, a fact that was substantiated by the deaths of 450 workers. The workers were actually killed by stormtroopers. This ruse allowed the shipyards to built the World Devastators in secret. (DESB)

Thomquizarr Base
Vocis Kenit was promoted and assigned a dirtside post at this Imperial Navy base after his tour of duty aboard the Semqi Pefis. (FOP)

Thomree, Dupas
Thomree served as the Corellian Diktat during the early years of the New Order and the Galactic Civil War. He made a deal with Palpatine, which allowed Thomree to rule the Corellian sector as he wished, as long as he paid public homage to the newly-named Emperor. Thomree paid his taxes and supplied war materiel, while doing his best to keep the Corellian sector free of Imperial mandates. When he died suddenly, Daclif Gallamby was named Diktat. (AS)

Thon
a continent on Alderaan, known for its wildlife reserves. (SWR)

Thon
an alien known to the Old Republic as a Wharl, Thon is in reality a sentient being who chose to keep his species and his culture a well-guarded secret. Thon trained in the ways of the Force, and eventually became a Jedi Master. He was assigned to the Stenness System, and was living and training on Ambria just prior to the Great Sith War. When he first came to Ambria, the Dark Side of the Force was prevalent on the planet. Master Thon pushed the Dark Side back, forcing it into Lake Natth. His experiences on Ambria taught him of the virtue of the Light Side, and he tried to convince other Jedi Masters about the dangers of the Krath. He was supposed to have continued the Jedi training of Andur Sunrider, but Andur's death changed those plans. Instead, Thon became the teacher of Andur's wife, Nomi. Her stubbornness was broken when Thon was attacked by Bogga the Hutt. In the battle, Thon gave his lightsaber to Nomi, and she used it with unusual skill for an untrained Jedi candidate. Thon realized that Nomi was the special Jedi he was prophecied to train, and took her under his tutelage. Later, he was part of the assembly of Jedi Masters who met on Deneba to discuss the Krath uprising in the Empress Teta system. (DE1, DA, COTF, DLS, TOJC) Thon has been referred to as the leader of the assembly on Deneba, but DLS has Odan-Urr as the leader.

ThonBoka
a Oswaft term that means StarCave, the ThonBoka is a huge nebula which forms a sac-like refuge from the vacuum of space. The ThonBoka is home to a large number of vacuum-breathing species, including the Oswaft. The nebula, about 12 light-years across, is composed of huge amounts of pre-organic molecules. A single hole exists in the sac, and is the only entrance to the StarCave. In the center of the ThonBoka are three young, blue-white stars, each about a lightyear apart from the others. None of them have any planets. In the center of these three stars lies an exact, miniature replica of the cave, built for the Oswaft Elders from every conceivable gemstone in the galaxy. (LCS)

Thookah
this short-statured, shaggy-haired beast was raised for its thick pelt and its moist meat. They have long faces, large eyes, and long brown fur. Zorneth used savorium-laden thookah steaks to test the herb's powers on the Krozurbian warlords. (DRO)

Thorbin, Marfa
a native of Alderaan, Marfa attended an Imperial university, where she met Kane Griggs. They began dating, and fell in love. When Kane asked her to marry him, she immediately accepted. She booked the first transport to Alderaan to tell her parents the good news. However, she was on Alderaan when the first Death Star destroyed the planet, and her marriage plans were destroyed as well. (DESB)

Thorgeld
a planet. (RPG)

Thorgeld I
this Outer Rim world is the home planet of the Mandel family, who have built their family mansion in Fabrin. It is also the headquarters world of Fabritech. (GG9)

Thorgrim, Dexter
this man was a member of Evram Darkmere's pirate crew. Thorgrim served as the First Mate aboard the Retribution, and was often consulted by Darkmere whenever new candidates were considered. (CRO)

Thorip Norr
this cantina catered to the non-human visitors and inhabitants of Lola Curich. Located in the city's starport, not far from Orman's Sky Palace, it is a rough place to have a drink. (ML)

Thorium
this material was used as an explosive. It was known to burn longer than baradium, but was harder to locate. (ND)

Thorm, Hrekin
this native of the planet Fedalla was typical of his culture. He didn't care who was in control of the galaxy, as long as he and his people were taken care of. He vaguely supportde Emperor Palpatine during the New Order, and similarly gave vague support to Mon Mothma after the establishment of the New Republic. He has many contacts within the industrial circles of the Core, which allow him to maintain a powerful position among the New Republic's councillors. Thorm's general attitude is to "go with the flow" of things, but he can be ruthless and overbearing when he wishes. Thorm was an obese man confined to a repulsorchair, and was the president of the Alderaanian Council. His hair is thinning, but he keeps it meticulously curled. Note that he was called Threkin Horm in The Last Command. (TLC, DA, CPL, JASB)

Thorn Fever
this is a deadly virus with no known cure. (SWAJ)

Thornbush
a plant native to the planet Wayland. There is another species native to the Combat Moon of the Ishanna System. (TLC, SWJ9)

Thornwind Valley
this is a dry, rocky valley found on the planet Nam Chorios. It was here that Seti Ashgad agreed to allow Loronar Corporation set up their primary Spook crystal mining installation, as part of the plans laid by Dzym. (POT)

Thorsen Field Driver
a component of a starship's hyperdrive. (RPG)

Thorsgild
a planet. (POC)

Thorsim, Andur
this man was a Leiutenant in the New Republic, and was a member of the Republic's Astrographic Survey Institute. He was the modern documentarian of the planet Corellia. (CTD)

Thosa
this ball of barren rock was the fifth planet of the Dostra System. It had two moons. (AIR)

Those Ole Spacer's Blues
this ballad was popular on the backwater worlds of the Mid Rim. (ND)

Those Who Dwell Beyond The Veil
this was the Aing-Tii Monks's name for the mystical beings who controlled life. In many respects, this referred to the Force, although it generally indicated the gods of the Aing-Tii. (KR)

Thota
native to the planet Varl, these predators preyed on t'landa Til. (RD)

Thought Puzzle
a form of entertaining puzzle created by the Hapans. (JE)

Thoughts from the Core
this compilation of songs, written and played by the band Red Shift Limit, was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

ThoughtsAreFreedom
this was a tapcafe located on the Grand Rim Promenade on Cejansij. Following the peaceful demonstrations in Tranquility Common, many of the dancers gathered here for a drink and conversation. (SOP)

Thousand Stinking Ditches
this is one of the dirtiest, shoddy tenements of the city of Bagsho, on Nim Drovis. (POT)

Thozzelling
one of the larger nations on the planet Adumar, Thozzelling sided with the nations of Yedagon and Halbegardia in the struggle against Cartann and its perator, Pekaelic ke Teldan. (SOA)

Thpfffttht
the Bith counselor ship which was supposed to transport Leia to the Roche asteroid system for a diplomatic meeting with the Barabels. Luke was supposed to meet Leia there, but the captain of the Thpfffttht relayed the message that Leia had been abducted by Han Solo. (CPL)

Thrag
one of Thrackan Sal-Solo's captains, Thrag was a short, overweight man who liked to drink more than he liked to serve. Sal-Solo placed Thrag in charge of monitoring the planetary repulsor on Drall. Like many of the Human's League's members, Thrag had a questionable reputation. (SC)

Thrakia
this planet is the homeworld of the Thrakians. (CPL)

Thrakians
a race of insects, native to Thrakia, which have genetically transmitted memories. They recently learned to use their mandibles to communicate, where previously they only used their scents. (CPL)

Thran*-class Vessel
this Empire introduced this starship to its fleet shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (SWCP)

Thrang
this gas giant is the fifth and largest planet in the Elrood System. (PG)

Thranta
a creature native to the planet Alderaan, a number of thranta were exported to Bespin. These transplanted thranta are the only survivors in the galaxy, following the destruction of Alderaan. The thranta is basically a huge, floating wing, bouyed by a lighter-than-air bladder. They are very docile creatures, and can be easily domesticated. The thranta that survive on Bespin are descendants of domesticated thranta that were used as flying mounts. The thranta was used on Alderaan as a transportation method as well as a show-beast. Smaller thranta were trained as recreational mounts. Some thranta were even transported to Coruscant, to be used as Imperial courier beasts. However, the thranta wasted away without the natural environment to thrive in: the noxious fumes and emissions of the planet-wide city seemed to poison them. (ISU)

Thranta Riders
these humanoids are a silent, mysterious group that have befriended the thrantas that inhabit Bespin's atmosphere. They have large cranial lobes and thin faces, and often tattoo themselves with wild, swirling patterns. They remain aloof from all of Bespin's culture, and little is known about their origins. They have developed a monthly sky rodeo, which they perform for the visitors to Bespin. They take their thrantas through a series of wild loops and spirals, and the riders themselves leap from their thrantas a fly through the clouds. Their thrantas then swoop under them and catch them. (ISU)

Thranta*-class War Cruiser developed by the Alderaanian military, the Thranta-class was one of the last warships built before Alderaan demilitarized. All of the Thranta-class ships were supposedly destroyed when the planet removed all weapons, but three ships - the Valiant, Courage, and Fidelity - were retained to guard the Another Chance. (BW)

Thrantin
see OM813 (AIR)

Thrantin Blarcluur
this beast, native to the planet OM813, was domesticated for use as a mount and pack animal. (AIR)

Thrantin Major
this red star was the primary body in the Thrantin System. (AIR)

Thrasher
one of Oron Kira's warbeasts. (DLS)

Thrawn
this being, a member of the Chiss race, was a respected and honored commander in the Chiss Expansionary Defense force. His abilities to accurately predict his opponent's moves, and his tactical genius, moved him through the ranks with a quiet speed. Thrawn - whose full name is Mitth'raw'nuruodo - was one of the first to intercept the Imperial task force dispatched to destroy the Outbound Flight Project, when it appeared in the Unknown Regions. Then-Senator Palpatine had arranged for the Jedi Masters to make a trial run through the Unknown Regions, in order to help prepare them for the discovery of life in another galaxy. Unknown to the Jedi, Palpatine had sent the task force - led by one of his trusted advisors, Kinman Doriana - to make sure they didn't get started. The fifteen-ship Imperial force was summarily wiped out by Thrawn's small fleet of ships, although Doriana's ship was allowed to survive. Doriana himself negotiated with Thrawn, explaining why they were in Chiss space and what the threat of the jedi was. Thrawn saw two things in Doriana's speech: the necessity for removing the Jedi, but also the order and stability that Palpatine's New Order could bring to the galaxy. He agreed to let Doriana return to Coruscant, and also agreed to destroy Outbound Flight. Palpatine spent the next several years searching for Thrawn, in hopes of bringing his military genius into the Empire. Thrawn, meanwhile, had learned from the Empire the use of pre-emptive strikes against his opponents. The problem was that the Chiss regarded such unprovoked attacks as a form of murder, and exiled Thrawn after one particularly bloody incident. The ruling Chiss stripped him of his rank and sent him to live on an uninhabited world near Imperial space. It was here that Captain Voss Parck finally caught up with Thrawn, convincing him to travel to Coruscant and serve Palpatine. Thrawn received private schooling in Imperial military academies, becoming a Captain shortly after the Battle of Yavin and quickly rising through the ranks as one of the few non-humans in the Navy. When Darth Vader was called by the Emperor to become more involved in his plot to capture Luke Skywalker, Vader assigned Thrawn to be the "guardian" of the Noghri on Honoghr. This exposure to Vader and Palpatine led to Thrawn's promotion to Vice Admiral, where he helped design the missile gunboat. As Vice Admiral, Thrawn oversaw the development of an Imperial outpost in the Pakuuni System, then assisted in the defense of Palpatine against Zaarin's treachery. However, Thrawn could not capture Zaarin before he made his escape into hyperspace. Further service to the Emperor garnered Thrawn a full promotion to Admiral, at which time he served on the Inexorable under Ysanne Isard. Sometime later, Thrawn was promoted to Grand Admiral, and he convinced both Isard and Soontir Fel that a group of clones created from Fel's genetic material would make perfect sleeper agents. They could pilot ships, and would be loyal to the Empire. During a political party in the Emperor's court, Thrawn made a rare judgmental error and wound up on the wrong side of a debate. This angered Palpatine, but it also gave him an excuse to move Thrawn out of the limelight. Thrawn and Parck were sent back to the Unknown Regions as punishment, but were continually fed Imperial support. While there, Thrawn and Parck set up the compound known as the Hand of Thrawn on Nirauan, drawing a military force from the Chiss who still supported Thrawn. During their tenure, they won over large sectors of the region. These sectors could have vastly increased the Empire had not Palpatine died at Endor. Thrawn decided to hedge his bets, and began fortifying the Hand of Thrawn. He left Parck there, in charge of the planet, when he decided to return to the rest of the galaxy some five years after the Battle of Endor. He left word with Parck and the Chiss who supported him that, if he was ever reported dead, that they should wait ten years for his return. As one of the surviving Grand Admirals, Thrawn was able to quickly garner support from the Imperial remnants, obtaining control of the small fleet under the command of then-Captain Pellaeon. Using Noghri strike forces and clever deceptions - such as cloaking devices and clones recovered from the Mount Tantiss facility - Thrawn and his growing fleet began systematically retaking pieces of the New Republic. He was successful until the Battle of Bilbringi, where his fleet was decimated and he was killed by his Noghri bodyguard, Rukh. In order to ensure that he would eventually return to the Chiss on Nirauan, as he promised, Thrawn had Parck and Fel maintain a clone of himself, ready for rebirth at the ten-year mark. The clone was never activated, as Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade discovered the ruse and exposed it to the New Republic. (HTTE, DFR, TLC, TIE, WG, SOP, VOF, GOF8)

Thrawn Pincer
a space warfare developed by Admiral Ackbar, the Thrawn Pincer was based primarily on the tactics of Grand Admiral Thrawn. In a given battle situation, Ackbar would bring in two separate fleets. The first would emerge from hyperspace inside the system which was under attack, and would engage the enemy's fleet. The second fleet would emerge on the far side of the system to await further orders. When the battle began to turn for the enemy, Ackbar would wait for the enemy to fire up the gravity well projectors of an interdictor-class cruiser. The move would mean that Ackbar's forces couldn't leave the system via hyperspace, and gave the enemy a false sense of victory. On Ackbar's mark, the second fleet would use a microjump through hyperspace to join the primary fleet. The exact location of their exit from hyperspace would be determined by the placement of the enemy's Interdictor cruiser, but would almost always be behind the enemy fleet. This was the activation of the pincer, catching the enemy fleet between its own gravity shadow and the fresh Republic fleet. The Thrawn Pincer was first used during the liberation of Ciutric from Prince-Admiral Krennel, and proved to be quite effective. (IR)

Threadworm
these thin, rope-like creatures are covered with fine blue hair. (HTF)

Threat
this Imperial Lancer-class frigate was part of the fleet which supported the Sodrab in defending the Damorian repair yards near Esseles, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Threateners
this was the name given to the Chiss who maintained the Hand of Thrawn on Nirauan, from the Qom Jha who lived in the caves beneath the fortress. (VOF)

Three, The
this is the basic element of all family business performed by the Kubaz race. The eldest child is in charge of the family's businesses, with the assistance of the next two younger siblings. If one of the Three should die, the eldest child of that individual assumes the last position in the Three, while the surviving two move up as necessary. (SWJ10)

Three Diamonds Parade Formation
this non-combat flight formation was used by the pilots of the New Republic. Each squadron would break into three flight groups, and each group would form itself into a diamond pattern. One group would lead the formation, and the other two would trail it slightly, forming a triangle of diamonds. (WS)

Three Peaks of Tharen
a natural tourist attraction on Kalarba. (DRO)

Three-fingered Jak
this loan shark made a living on StarForge Station. (FOP)

Threedee
Andur Sunrider's droid assistant, he is an A-3D0 model droid. (TOJ)

Threld
this New Republic Navy Lieutenant served under Commodore Brand on the Indomitable. When Brand confined Captain Tobbra to his quarters, he designated Threld to take Tobbra's post. (TT)

Thrella
an extinct alien race native to Circarpous V, they had a fairly advanced technology, and dug the many Thrella wells found throughout the planet. They used the underground waterways extensively, and built some of their cities near the underground shores. These cities were built of metal and stone, and showed wonderous curves and sweeping planes. (SME)

Thrella Wells
shafts that lead from Circarpous V's surface to the network of subterranean caves. They were dug by the extinct Thrella race eons ago. (SME)

Threndrian Snareflower
this unusual plant has a beautiful, fragrant blossom which it uses to lure prey close to itself. A number of tentacle-like appendages surround the base of the plant, and whip out to snare its prey when it approaches to smell the flower. (MA)

Thresher
1) a beast which was the object of many safari hunts. They were far from predictable, which made the hunt very interesting and challenging. (SOP, VOF)
2) native to the rocky coastlines of the planet Tinallis, this short-lived avian was known for its aerobatic flying. They hunt by riding the thermals and winds along the coast, diving into the water to snatch fish and crustaceans. Despite their avian appearance, research has indicated that the thresher had mammalian ancestors. They are warm-blooded, and suckle their offspring. These creatures were extremely territorial, and developed social groups which helped protect their families. They also mate for life. Further research into the thresher's life revealed that they were instrumental in keeping the population of blue-ringed sea crabs down to a minimum, maintaining a balance in the oceanic food chain. The government of Tinallis outlawed the hunting of the avians, especially after several gourmet restaurants began serving thresher on their menus. (COG)

Thrifty
this Squib reclamation ship dispatched to Dankayo to clean up after the Imperial attack there. It battled the Captain's Pride for salvage rights, and eventually assisted the Alliance in recovering the datapacks obtained by the Elusive. (SH)

Thrill-Killer
a person whose mental state is unstable, and who enjoys killing anything for the excitement is brings. They often have special weapons surgically implanted in their bodies. (CPL)

Throgg
1) Luke Skywalker gave the Lars moisture farm to this alien, following the deaths of Owen and Beru Lars. He managed the farm for a couple of seasons before Gavin Darklighter's uncle Huff tried to steal the farm by initiating an alien landowner tax. Gavin's father bought the farm before Huff could enforce the tax, and Throgg was able to remain on the farm, albeit as a tenant. (XWN)
2) a soft-bellied, skittish creature. (CFG)

Throne Rocks
these huge boulders were strewn about the floor of the largest chamber of the Sedrian Sun Caves, and were used by the Priests of the Sun as a place to meditate on the mysteries of the Golden Sun. (BGS)

Throne Room
any specially-constructed chamber set aside for the Emperor's personal use was called a Throne Room. Every Imperial-class Star Destroyer had one, as did the Super-class vessels. A Throne Room was even added to the blueprints for the second Death Star. (ROTJ, DSTC)

Throom
an Alliance General who hailed from an ocean planet. (RASB)

Throsen, Gegren
this Imperial Governor was placed in charge of Salliche. (SWAJ)

Thrugii Asteroid Belt
this field of solid rubble orbits the star Sokor. It was believed that the belt was formed when Sokor expanded into a red giant, thereby destroying the innermost three planets of the system. The asteroids within the belt were mined for doonium and turminum by the Kanauer Corporation during the height of the New Order. (BSS)

Thrumble, Massad
this man owned an upscale cantina on Hurd's Moon. Thrumble was, at one time, an expert in robotics working for the Empire. Aqs a Captain, he oversaw the creation of many series of droids, and retired from Imperial service as the Admiral in command of the Empire's Droid Research Facility. The human replica droid Guri sought him out in the hope that he could remove the programming that made her an assassin. (SEE)

Thruncon
this is the capital city of the planet Vodran. (SWAJ)

Thruncan Insurrection
a series of uprisings by the natives of the city Thruncan against the Imperial presence there. (SWAJ)

Thrung Alewune
this Ho'Din was a pirate who worked for Armanda Durkin. He was violent at heart, and chafed at Armanda's moral code against killing for pleasure. Thrung helped Armanda's alter ego, Duchess, hijack and steal goods from Notsub starships, although he has warned her that she needs to give the lifestyle up before she gets caught. (GG7)

Thrush Street
this was a street located in the city of Galu, on the planet Gala. (MOC)

Thrust Coil
this device converts the mechanical energy of an engine into accelerating thrust power. Used primarily on pod racers and other vehicles which travel at high speeds over ground, thrust coils effectively multiply the power of a engine and transmit the energy to the turbine blades which propel the craft. (RAC)

ThrusterBurn
this tapcafe, located in the city of Erwithat on Pembric II, was where Talon Kaarde hoped to negotiate permission to travel around the Kathol Outback from Crev Bombassa. Despite its shabby appearance, Bombassa kept the interior dry and comfortable. (VOF)

Thrustship
a Yevethan starship design which uses thrust propulsion instead of ion energy. (BTS)

Thrynka System
this star system was Jhensara's destination. (SWAJ)

Thryss, Pucumir
this dark-skinned gas miner was an agent for the Alliance who worked on Cloud City. When the floating city was garrisoned by the Empire, Pucumir fled quickly, but vowed to return and retake the station. He was hiding in Jabba the Hutt's Tatooine palace when the crimelord was killed by Leia Organa. (CCG7)

Thud Bug
this species of flying insect was native to the homeworld of the Yuuzhan Vong. The warriors used the flying bugs as projectile weapons, often imbedding them in their flesh or armor for use in battle. Thud bugs could inflict simply physical trauma, or they could be modified to carry explosives which detonated on contact. (VP, JE)

Thuku
a Chattza Rodian, he and Neesh - under the direction of Navik the Red - hired Spurch Goa to get Greedo killed. (TME, CCG2)

Thul
this noble Alderaanian family had purple, scarlet, orange, and gold in their family crest. Their clothing often reflected their family colors, and was quite gaudy. (TEP)

Thul, Aryn Dro
this blue-eyed Alderaanian woman was born to the noble Dro family. She was known to the former inhabitants of Aldera for her ballads and songs. She performed solo, with a mandoviol to accompany her. She was dating Bornan Thul when she met a young Han Solo, who had stopped on Alderaan after being attacked by pirates. She enjoyed his company, much to the chagrin and jealousy of Thul. However, Solo was not one to remain in one place for too long, and she eventuallyt got over him and married Bornan. After they managed to escape the destruction of their homeworld, they had a son, Raynar, who was Force-sensitive. He joined the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4 shortly before his father disappeared. Aryn went to Yavin 4 to see if her son had any knowledge of Bornan's whereabouts, and to protect him. (TPS, TEP)

Thul, Bornan
this Alderaanian man was Aryn Dro's boyfriend. He was jealous of Han's bravery and the attention paid him by Aryn. After Han became a smuggler, Bornan eventaully won Aryn's favor. They were later married, and Bornan became an Alderaanian nobleman with a vast shipping empire. He and his wife were off-planet when the Death Star destroyed Alderaan, and so were among the handful of Alderaanians who survived the Galactic Civil War. After the Battle of Endor, Bornan became involved with the trade negotiations and alliances of the New Republic. He also began working with Nolaa Tarkona, and negotiated a deal for trade rights with her. While on his way to meet Han Solo at the New Republic Trade Council on Shumavar, he discovered that the cargoes he purchased from Fonterrat contained the Emperor's Plague, he attempted to destroy the storehouse from which they came. He was unable to do so, so he disapeared before delivering the cargo to Tarkona. She immediately placed a bounty on his head, for he retained the location of the storehouse. He managed to elude such notorious bounty hunters as Boba Fett, and kept the location of the storehouse away from Tarkona until he was found by his son, Raynar, and Zekk. When they tried to destroy the storehouse, Bornan sacrficed himself in order to kill Tarkona as well. She had unleashed the Emperor's Plague, but he was able to kill her with another of the viruses. (TPS, SHA, TEP)

Thul, Raynar
this spoiled, troublesome heir of Bornan and Aryn Dro Thul, Raynar was a student at Luke Skywalker's Jedi Academy on Yavin 4 at the same time Jacen and Jaina Solo are there. He always wore outrageous clothing styled in his family's royal colors, none of which go with each other. A bristly-haired blond youth, Raynar disliked Jacen Solo, especially Jacen's collection of exotic creatures. Raynar was bitten a number of times by Jacen's crystal snake. When the Shadow Academy attacked Yavin 4, Raynar discovered that he wasn't as skilled as he believed himself to be. In a quick fight with Brakiss' Dark Jedi, Raynar ended up face-down in a riverbank and missed most of the fighting. Raynar's demeanor changes, and he decided that he must work for the prestige he wanted, rather than claim it was his. Raynar and Jacen eventually overcame their differences and became good friends. After Han Solo delivered the news that Bornan had disappeared, Ranyar became entangled with the Diversity Alliance. After Zekk returned to Yavin 4, he and Raynar agreed to cooperate and search out Raynar's father. They took the Lightning Rod, and eventually located Bornan. Raynar assisted all his friends in defeating the forces of the Diversity Alliance. (HTF, SHA, TEP)

Thul, Tyko
Bornan Thul's younger brother, he was a recluse who remained safely behind the defenses of his administrative offices on Mechis III. He hired Boba Fett to bring back his father and nephew, Raynar, after he discovered that Nolaa Tarkona had the location of the storehouse of Imperial viruses. (SHA, TEP)

Thula rat
a creature mentioned in the Tchuukthai epic poem C-3PO relates to Han Solo just before he and Leia go to Dathomir. Apparently, the Tchuukthai considered the thula rat a source of food. (CPL)

Thulpin
this is the name of the summer growing season on the planet Draenell's Point. It lasts about 14 standard months, making up about a fourth of the planet's long year. (GMK)

Thulpin Agriculture
this was the largest agriculture corporation located on the planet Draenell's Point. It was headquartered in Thulpin City. (GMK)

Thulpin City
this city, located on the Mee'r continent of Draenell's Point, was the planet's agricultural center. (GMK)

Thulpin Defense
this Imperial armed forces squadron was part of the Imperial ground forces on Draenell's Point, during the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GMK)

Thulpin Guard
this was the primary police and security force maintained by the leaders of Thulpin City, on the planet Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Thulpin Reserve
this Draenell's Point armed forces squadron was part of the Imperial ground forces on Draenell's Point, during the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (GMK)

Thulwuk Thur
a mining boss on Morjanssik, Thulwuk Thur was a burly Quarren. (DU)

Thumb Pass
a security device which employs a card reader and an thumb print scanner. In order to gain entrance to an area with a thumb pass, the individual must first have their thumb print scanned. The image is then stored in a special data card. The individual must then have their thumb print scanned again at the entrance to the area, as well as have their data card scanned. If the two thumb print images match, the individual is granted access. (AC)

Thun, Hekis Durumm Perdo Kolokk Baldikarr
one of the few humans who lived on Mechis III, Hekis was the manufacturing administrator on the planet when IG-88 arrived after escaping the Holowan Laboratories. A vain man, Hekis added mythical titles to his name each time he felt unappreciated by his superiors, making his own signature appear more important. His droid, 3D-4X, delivered his afternoon tea on schedule, along with a datapad containing production data, on the day IG-88 arrived. 3D-4X also delivered a pair of blaster bolts which quickly killed the Administrator, on orders from IG-88 to leave no organic life on the planet. (TBH)

Thunder
1) codename for a group of Alliance Y-Wing fighters destroyed during the Galactic Civil War (TIE)
2) an Allaince assault transport used in the attack on Imperial station NL-1. (TIE)

Thunder Alley
a particularly active section of the galaxy, it was patrolled by the First Battle Group during the Yevethan Great Purge. (BTS)

Thunder Cannon
this musical instrument simulates loud, booming crashes to emphasize certain aspects of orchestral music. (POT)

Thunder Lizard
an alien creature native to the planet Marca, the thunder lizard is a massive saurian beat which measured 12 meters in length and stood almost three meters tall. They preferred to live in the shallow waters of the planet, munching seaweed as they moved across their territory. They only came onto the land to mate. (POM)

Thunder Rifle
this projectile weapon was developed by the early Tusken Raider groups that fought against the humans who settled Tatooine. It was named because of the loud, sharp clap it makes when fired. (YJC1)

Thunder Wraith
Ambassador Yfra's Express-class shuttle. She takes it to Yavin 4 to recover Tenel Ka, following the young Jedi's accidental loss of a hand. (L)

Thunderbolt when Peckhum bequeathed his old freighter, the Lightning Rod, to Zekk, he purchased the newer Thunderbolt to replace it. (CCR)

Thunderchild
this New Republic Nebulon-B frigate was part of the force sent to liberate the planet Ciutric from the control of Prince-Admiral Krennel. It supported the flagship Emancipator, along with the Pride of Eiattu and the Peacemaker. (IR)

Thunderer
this was a nickname for the BlasTech T6 heavy blaster pistol. (WSV)

Thunderflare
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was partially disabled when a shuttle crashed in one of its landing bays, although it was quickly refitted for duty. It was so heavily armed that power was shunted from its hyperdrive core to drive its turbolasers. The modifications to its weapons and power systems made it an incredible threat even without a supporting fleet, and it roamed the Outer Rim during the years before the Battle of Yavin. It often served as the first assignment for many junior officers. The ship was under the command of Captain Tanda Pryl, and later served as part of the fleet assigned to Moff Andal to patrol Elrood Sector. She was often in competition with Akal Zed, as the two Captains struggled to gain favor with their superiors. (CCG2, CCG8, OE)

ThunderForce
this mercenary unit was generally considered the victors in the Battle of Binquaros. They used Lot 452, on the planet Ukio, as their base of operations. (HAS)

Thunderhead
this New Republic warship was able to take out a Yevethan T-type warship near N'zoth. Its Captain, Ssiew, was able to provide valuable information about the thrustship's weaknesses to the Fifth Battle Group's leaders. This information was vital to the success of Operation Strong Hand. The Thunderhead was then assigned to the fleet which took part in the Battle of N'zoth. The Thunderhead came under intense fire from a combined Yevethan attack and was destroyed in the battle. (TT)

Thunderstorm 63
an outdated model of weather satellite, often found in use around backwater worlds. (VP)

Thune
this bleach-blonde woman was a bounty hunter of some renown. As a child, she dreamed of graduating from the Imperial Academy, but soon learned that woman were frowned upon in the Empire's war machine. She eventually found work as an assassin and hired gun, and was contracted by an Imperial officer to eliminate Deckland Carper. After killing Carper and returning his head as proof, Thune took possession of Carper's droid, U-THR. She thought of the droid as a "spoil of war," which made the droid resentful of its new master. Thune later took the assignment of tracking down Kaj Nedmak for Bwahl the Hutt. Thune managed to waylay the Tryan Kajme with her own ship, the Faceted, then captured Kaj on Ord Mantell. She later used her street skills to convince Celia Durasha that Kaj had actually been captured by Treytis Prash. Thune convinced Celia that Prash was a bounty hunter, when in fact, Thune knew that Prash as a gun-runner for the Alliance. Thune hoped to capture Prash as well as Nedmak, collecting both bounties and acquiring a huge sum of credits. However, Thune failed to take U-THR's identity seriously. When Celia and Prash escaped, shortly after Thune had stabbed Kaj in the chest, the droid found itself unable to remain in Thune's company any longer. It provided Kaj with a blaster, and he quickly stunned Thune. U-THR then piloted the Faceted and rescued Celia and Treytis. In the end, Thune was turned over to the authorities, and Kaj and Celia took possession of the Faceted. U-THR joined them, as a full member of their crew. (SWJ14)

Thur, Larq
this man was known as a spelunking expert, and was part of the famed Twilight Class of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School. His skills at surviving in abandoned caves and mines was evidenced prior to his time at GOSS, when he escaped from the Spice Mines of Kessel, saving Thar'quanin the process. After graduating with the Twilight Class, Thur remained on OM813 as an instructor for several years before leaving to join the Alliance. Unfortunately, Thur was killed during the Lijarak Mines Incident on Anic, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. (AIR)

Thuris Sector
this area of the galaxy is located in the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Thuris Stout
this dark, heavy-bodied beer is brewed in Thuris Sector. (GG9)

Thurmont, Deggs
this con artist was supposedly one of Talandro Starlyte's regular customers. (WSV)

Thurse
this New Republic cruiser-carrier was part of the fleet dispatched to assist in the protection of Ord Mantell, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. when the Queen of Empire was attacked near Bilbringi, shortly after fleeing Ord Mantell, the Thurse was ordered to provide support in recapturing the luxury liner. (HT)

Thuvasaur
this species of saurian was imported to Eiattu, to be hunted in the jungles for sport. Being vicious predators, the thuvasaurs eventually consumed the native competition. They are similar in size and shape to a tauntaun, but are actually related to the dewback. A strain of thuvasaur was slowly domesticated by the royal families of Eiattu, until they were suitable for use as mounts. However, if not properly trained and handled, the wild nature of the thuvasaur can rise quickly to the surface and pose a threat for its rider. (XWWP)

Thuwisten
a term used to describe a Revwien follower of the Tyia, it is derived from the Tyia tenet which says that the thuwisten is the joining of spirits, complete in their utter harmony, seeking personal harmony with one's Tyia to strengthen the bond-circle." (GG12)

Thwim
a Kubaz security guard working for Valarian in Mos Eisley. (TME)

THX Alert
this priority signal was used by Blackhole to send transmissions to Darth Vader. (CSWEA)

THX Supersound Speakers
second-generation sound prjection devices. (PDS)

THX Ultrasound Speakers
sound projection devices used in auditoriums and meeting halls, as well as at Hologram Fun World. (QE)

THX-1138
1) see TK-421. This is a reference to George Lucas' science fiction film THX-1138. (SWN)
2) according to the Star Wars: Customizable Card Game, this is the model number of the Bespin Motors Void Spider aeroshuttle. Again, this is another reference to Lucas' film THX-1138, although it contradicts many West End Game sources.(CCG2)

THX-113x
a group of Imperial cargo containers abandonded near Argoon. This is a reference to George Lucas' science fiction film THX-1138. (TIE)

Thyferra
this planet, located in the Polith System, produced much of the galaxy's bacta. A temperate world with two moons, it is the homeworld of the Vratix race, which discovered how to create bacta from alazhi and kavam. The Vratix shared the secrets of bacta production with their human neighbors, and a healthy business was created as the galaxy realized the healing potential of bacta. The planet had two human factions engaged in bacta production, the Zaltin and Xucphra factions, in addition to the Vratix Ashern faction. The two human factions were chosen by Emperor Palpatine to supply the Empire's bacta, effectively eliminating all competition in the bacta market. The Vratix were relegated to the position of rebellious terrorists, until they petitioned the New Republic for admission as a member race. The Republic was unable to do so without the consent of the native human population, which was under the yoke of Ysanne Isard until she was killed in the Battle of Thyferra. Once free of Imperial domination, Thyferra applied for membership and was accepted. The average day on Thyferra lasts just over 21 standard hours. (SWAJ, XWN, KT, BW)

Thyferran Aerosapce Defense Force
formed in the wake of the Battle of Thyferra, the TADF was led by Bror Jace and trained by Rogue Squadron. They were missioned to protect the independent interests of Thyferra. (BW)

Thyferran Home Defense Corps created by Ysanne Isard during her reign on the plane Thyferra, the THDC was created to work in conjunction with the ground-based stormtroopers she used to defend the planet. Isard's plan was to allow the THDC to win a few battles with Ashern rebels, but then let them get in over their head in a large-scale battle. Then, Imperial troops could come in and save the day, making the Thyferrans realize that they are truly dependent on the Empire. (BW)

Thyfonian
this Lambda-class shuttle served as Fliry Vorru's personal transport while he worked for Ysanne Isard on Thyferra during the Bacta War. It was heavily modified, and had additional weapons emplacements and a hyperdrive. When the Battle of Thyferra went the way of Rogue Squadron, Isard tried to escape in it. However, the shuttle was shot down and destroyed by Tycho Celchu and Corran Horn. (BW)

Thykar
this species of majestic tree was native to the lush forests of the planet Carest 1. Average specimens of thykar grew well over 150 meters in height. Thykar trees were found mainly on the northern continents of the planet. (AE)

Thykarann
this Wookiee dialect is much richer in technical vocabulary that the emotive Shyriiwook. (TT)

Thykele
this man was a member of the Darkknell Defense Agency, serving under Colonel Nyroska. (TFNR)

Thyrsl
this small, spotted reptile is native ot Yavin 4. It looked like a snake with twelve small legs. (SHA)

Thyrsus System
a planetary star system that is the source of the Sun Guards. (ISB)

Thyss
this landing platform, formed in the wroshyr trees of Rwookrrorro, was where Jowdrrl and Dryanta worked on the Millennium Falcon while Chewbacca helped Lumpawarump with his Test of Ascension. (TT)

Thyte, Darryn
a member of the FarStar's crew, Thyte was distinguished by his cybernetic arm. He was a former Alliance starfighter pilot with a bad attitude and sour disposition. However, during his tenure aboard the FarStar, he began to soften up after meeting Ranna Gorjay. (DARK, KO, KR)

Ti, Kirana
a Dathomir Witch who met Han and Leia when they were on the planet battling against Zsinj. Kirana decided to go to Yavin 4 and learn learn the ways of The Force under Luke after Leia suggested her to Luke. Kirana has a daughter about the same age as Jacen and Jaina Solo; she remains on Dathomir with family. (DA, COTF)

Ti'il Tea
this is a hot beverage brewed from the t'iil plant's leaves. It is assumed this is another spelled of t'iil. (SA1)

Tia
this member of the Obroan Institute was the sensor expert on the Alpha Team sent to Maltha Obex, under the command of Bogo Tragett. (TT)

Tibanna
this defense platform was positioned to defend Damorian Manufacturing's repair yards during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Tibanna Club
this is one of Bespin's most popular clubs. (GG9)

Tibanna gas
a gas found in the atmosphere of many gas giants, it is useful because it can produce large amounts of energy when light passes through it. Thus, it can be used in large blasters to multiply the weapon's output. It also has certain anti-gravitional properties, and has exceptional properties as a hyperdrive coolant. The best tibanna gas is compressed and spin-sealed, since this kind of tibanna is four times as powerful as regular tibanna. Spin-sealing requires a great deal of energy to do artificially. Fortunately for many weapons manufacturers, the tibanna found in the atmosphere of Bespin is naturally spin-sealed. Much of Bespin's tibanna gas is produced as a waste product by the beldons that inhabit the gas giant's Life Zone. (ESB, AESB, GG2, ISU)

Tibannopolis
a floating city in close-orbit around Bespin, deserted after the Imperial occupation of Cloud City. It was one of the few mining colonies that was not shut down when it failed to turn a profit. It was left floating in the clouds, and the industrious people of other colonies picked it clean of usable materials. The remainder of the hulk now floats like a skeletal ghost town in the clouds. It was by Streen as a refuge while he was not prospecting Bespin's gases. (JS, ISU)

Tibor
a Barabel bounty hunter who used to haunt the Mos Eisley cantina until Zorba the Hutt returned to Tatooine. Then, Tibor became one of Zorba's hired hands. (ZHR)

Tibrin
the homeworld of the Ishi Tib race, Tibrin is an oceanic world orbiting the yellow star Cal. The entire planet is covered by a shallow ocean, and the planet has no seasonal changes because of its perpendicular axial tilt. The planet's ocean currents conduct warmth from the inner core to the surface, bringing heat to all parts of the planetary ocean. The only land masses are coral reefs and sand bars, and the Ishi Tib have built their ecologically-friendly cities there. (GG4)

Tibro
a planet. (WBC)

Tic'Karcta, Phean
a native of Arkonne III, Tic'Karcta sabotaged the official vehicle which was carrying her rival in business, Divina Quri Adner. Adner was killed in the attack, and Tic'Karcta found herself the subject of an official Imperial bounty. Wilek Nereus, Adner's fiance', eventually hunted down and killed Tic'Karcta to exact a measure of revenge. (TBSB)

Tice, Haelon
there is virtually no information on this man's history, a fact many attribute to the computer manipulation of his employer, Yin Vocta. Tice himself was employed by Vocta as a bodyguard and assassin, and was known to the criminal underworld as a ruthless and brutal killer. His muscular body was a combination of flesh and machine, having augmented his natural abilities with a number of cybernetic replacements. His left eye was synthetic, and glowed a bright violet at all times. Tice's manner was best described as loud and obnoxious, in stark contrast to that of his partner, R'Kayza. (WSV)

Ticket-chip
this coin-sized plastic data chip was used to hold information on a traveller and their scheduled trip. They are read by special scanners, which verify that the chip is valid for the flight being approached. (RM)

T.I.E. Fighter
the original twin ion engine starfighter produced by Republic Seinar Systems. (WEG)

TIE Advanced
single-hulled attack ship with bent wings, it was built from a design developed by Darth Vader just prior the Battle of Yavin. Vader flew a prototype TIE/Ad in the battle, and following the loss of the Death Star, he worked with Seinar Fleet Systems to refine it. The 10-meter craft is quick and agile, rated at a top speed of 145 MGLT.
The TIE Advanced was equipped with the following shipboard components:
- Seinar Fleet Systems I-s3a Solar Ionization Reactor
- Seinar Fleet Systems P-sx7.4 Twin Ion Engines
- Seinar Fleet Systems F-s5x Flight Avionics Control
- Seinar Fleet Systems N-s6 NavCom Unit
- Seinar Fleet Systems ND9 Hyperdrive Activator Unit
- 4 Seinar Fleet Systems L-s9.3 Laser Cannons
- 2 Seinar Fleet Systems M-g-2 General Purpose Warhead Launchers
- Front/Rear Projecting Novaldex Shields (rated at 100 SBD)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 20 RU)
- Quadanium Steel Armored Solar Panels

(SW, XW, TIE)

TIE Advanced x1
the original series of prototypes for the TIE Advanced, the x1 was the most successful of the TIE prototypes built by Sienar Fleet Systems, and although it did not make it to production, many of its advancements did. The x1 had a custom-built fuselage which features enhanced armor plating, and expanded rear deck, and matching bent wings. It wasn't as maneuverable as the other TIE Fighter designs, but speed was slightly faster. Like most TIE ships, the x1 lacked a life-support system, but it did have modest shield generators and a hyperdrive. The x1 saw limited production. Darth Vader received one of the first x1 ships, while others went to elite squadrons for testing. SFS could not bring the fighter's cost down, so the Empire opted not to purchase the x1 in quantity. Instead, the Empire chose the TIE Interceptor, which incorporated many of the x1's advances but on the basis TIE Fighter frame and at a much cheaper cost. In the decades after the fall of the Empire at Endor and the negotiation of peace between the New Republic and the Imperial remnants, these ships were decommissioned. Lando Calrissian picked up a number of them for use in the Lando's Folly asteroid field. (CCG, VP)

TIE Avenger
this version of the TIE Fighter was based on the TIE Advanced x1 prototype, and was the precursor to the TIE Interceptor. The Avenger’s wings were bent inward at the top and bottom, and the wing supports were strengthened with fins attached to the hull. It also has defelctor shields and a hyperdrive, which significantly added to its cost. Because of this, it was quickly phased out of production and replaced with the TIE Interceptor. (CCG4)

TIE Bomber
built by Seinar Fleet Systems, this version of the TIE fighter is a double-hulled bomber ship with bent wings for increased stability. It is 7.8 meters in large, is a single-pilot craft, and can make 80 MGLT at sublight speeds. It was designed for surgical strikes against ground and deep-space targets. It suffers in maneuverability due to its double-hulled configuration, but when complemented by TIE Fighters or TIE Interceptors, it makes a lethal combination. They have enhanced targetting capability, making them much more accurate than many capital ships. These ships eventually evolved into the Scimitar assault bomber.
It boasts the following shipboard systems:
- Seinar Fleet Systems P-s4 Twin Ion Engines

- Seinar Fleet Systems N-s4 NavCom Unit
- 2 Seinar Fleet Systems L-s1 Laser Cannons
- Seinar Fleet Systems M-s3 Concussion Missile Launchers (2 racks of 4)
- Seinar Fleet Systems I-a2b Solar Ionization Reactor
- Seinar Fleet Systems F-s3.2 Avionics Control
- Seinar Fleet Systems T-s7b Targeting Computer
- Seinar Fleet Systems T-s5 Proton Torpedo Launchers (2 racks of 2)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 50 RU)
- Quadanium Steel Armored Solar Panels

(ESB, SCRE, EGV)

TIE Crawler
another name for the TIE Tank. (DE1)

TIE Defender
an advanced form of TIE Fighters which employed shields. This 10-meter starfighter took the stability and agility of the TIE Interceptor's bent-wing design and added a third bent-wing to it. Not much is known about the TIE/D, as it was never fully accepted in battle and never mass-produced, but it was thought to have had a maximum speed of 155 MGLT, with 4 laser cannons, 2 ion cannons, 2 warhead launchers, 200 SBD shields, and a 20 RU hull. The fighter was propelled by the newer P-sz9.7 twin ion engines from Sienar Fleet Systems, and was equipped with Novaldex shield generators. The TIE Defender was used to defeat Admiral Zaarin, although the missions were so secret that very few Imperial officials were unaware of its role. The TIE Defender was produced at a cost of over 300,000 credits per fighter - about five times the cost of a TIE/ln. This, plus the political upheaval created by the Battle of Endor and the fact that it had an aft blindspot created by the wing placement, led to the demise of the TIE Defender as a widely-accepted starfighter. (TIE, EGV, CCG9)

TIE Deluxe
an advanced form of TIE Fighters which was developed, but never deployed into combat. (TIE)

TIE Fighter
1) sometimes called the TIE/ln starfighter, this was the first flat-winged, single-pilot TIE ship developed by Seinar Fleet Systems, and the basis for all other TIE ships. It is 6.3 meters in length, and can make 100 MGLT at sublight speeds. It has also been clocked at 1,200 kilometers per hour in an atmosphere. Like all TIE ships, it has a titanium alloy hull and quadanium steel armored solar panels. All visual information on TIE Fighters shows that they have six-sided solar panels, although X-Wing: The Bacta War indicates that they are octagonal. Also, like other TIE ships, it is built exclusively from Seinar Fleet Systems components, and lacks primary life support systems. It is a short-range starfighter, requiring a nearby base of operations from which to obtain fuel and guidance. It also boasts the following shipboard systems:
Seinar Fleet Systems T-s8 Targeting Computer
Seinar Fleet Systems I-a2b Solar Ionization Reactor
Seinar Fleet Systems N-s6 NavCom Unit
Seinar Fleet Systems P-s4 Twin Ion Engines
Seinar Fleet Systems F-s3.2 Avionics Control
2 Seinar Fleet Systems P-w401 Ion Maneuvering Jets
2 Seinar Fleet Systems L-s1 Laser Cannons
Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 15 RU)
Quadanium Steel Armored Solar Panels
(SW, SCRE, SWSB, EGV)
2) a game found in the databanks of the computer program called Systems Integration Manager aboard the Star of Empire. The player took the persona of a downed TIE Fighter pilot who had to escape from Alliance forces before being captured. In order to escape, the pilot had to enter the correct access code to repair his ship. (GOF10)

TIE Fighter Boat
a form of aquatic military vessel based on the standard TIE/ln starfighter. (BGS)

TIE Interceptor
built by Seinar Fleet Systems, these single-pilot bent-winged attack craft were designed so that the wings are longer in front than behind, and have been cut out at the front for better visibility. They are 9.6 meters in length, and can run at 110 MGLT at sublight speeds. They have been timed at 1,250 kilometers per hour in atmospheric conditions.
It boasts the following Shipboard systems:
- Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 20 RU)
- Quadanium Steel Armored Solar Panels
- Seinar Fleet Systems I-a3b Solar Ionization Reactor
- Seinar Fleet Systems S-c4.1 Multi-range Tracking Array Grid
- Seinar Fleet Systems F-s4 Avionics Control
- Seinar Fleet Systems T-s9a Targeting Computer
- Seinar Fleet Systems P-s5.6 Twin Ion Engines
- Seinar Fleet Systems N-s6 NavCom Unit
- 4 Seinar Fleet Systems L-s9.3 Laser Cannons

(ROTJ, SCRE, SWSB, XW)

TIE Raptor
this was the name of a droid-operated TIE Interceptor developed by Warlord Zsinj, during his battle against the New Republic. They first saw duty with the false 181st Fighter Group Zsinj assembled, in hopes ot drawing out Rogue Squadron. The droid fighters were paired with human-piloted Interceptors, a combination which allowed the humans to lead and the droids to follow in their wake, making up for any piloting mistakes the humans made. They would have found more widespread usage if they weren't soundly defeated in dogfights during the Battle of Selaggis. Resembling the normal TIE Fighter cockpit, but with four wings mounted directly to the cockpit, the TIE/rpt was eventually modified for flight by a living pilot, shortly before Zsinj's destruction at Dathomir. The TIE/rpt lacked shields, although this deficiency was being addressed at the time of Zsinj's demise. Each TIE Raptor was armed with four laser cannons, mounted on the wings, and a pair of concussion missile tubes mounted just below the cockpit. Despite the striking similarity between the TIE Raptor and the basic TIE Fighter, Seinar Fleet Systems was not responsible for its design or manufacture. (SOC, CTD)

TIE Scout
this limited-production model of the standard TIE Fighter had severely-canted wings. Unlike the Interceptor, the wings had two planes instead of three, with the upper section bent inward more than the lower section. These ships, designed to scout for pirate and rebel activity, were packed with long-range sensors and communications arrays. They were lightly armored and armed, to allow for the additional equipment. (CCG)

TIE Ships
Twin Ion-Engined small attack ships used as defensive guard ships around larger cruisers (such as Star Destroyers). Each is a single-pilot ship which lacks a hyperdrive and life support system due to their small size and expendability. The wings are covered with solar panels for collecting energy that can be transferred to the engines. Originally designed by Republic Seinar Systems, they were not built until the Empire assumed control, and RSS became Seinar Fleet Systems. There are many different variations of the basic TIE design, each built for unique purposes. (SW, ESB, WEG, SCRE)

TIE Subfighter
this form of TIE Fighter is a smaller version of the original, and is armed with a concussion missile launcher and a single blaster cannon. (SWJ9)

TIE Tank
a ground assault vehicle modeled after the TIE starfighter, with wheels instead of solar panels. It was the first craft designed and built by the Seinar Army Systems division of the Santhe/Seinar Technologies group. The 6.7-meter craft was armed with a light turbolaser and two medium blaster cannons. It was designed to be a cheap, mass-produced ground combat vehicle. The proper name is the Century Tank, although its resemblance to the TIE Fighter earned it its other names of TIE Tanks and TIE Crawler. Twin Santhe SSct power generators supply energy to the treads, but are only strong enough to move the tank at 90 kilometers an hour. They are easily repaired because most of their systems are basic in design to cut down on production costs. Disabled or damaged TIE Tanks can be quickly repaired in most situations, and abandoned Tanks are often scavenged for parts. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

TIE Vanguard
this reconnaissance fighter was deployed to gather information of enemy starship movements before engaging the fleet in battle. Built from the basic TIE/ln design, the Vanguard's solar collectors were smaller on the top half than on the bottom. The top part was also bent slightly outward. The central ball of the strafighter was equipped with enhanced communications equipment. (CCG2)

TIE/D
pilotless TIE/droid unit fighters run by onboard droids, designed by Arndall Lott following the Battle of Endor. Lott used the Katana fleet as an inspiration, seeing that the automated systems could work if implemented correctly. Lott originally automated the AT-AT, but his early work suffered from lack of computer power. The TIE/D has received the best automation the Empire could afford, and could be used as independent fighters or computer-slaved squadrons. However, the initial TIE/Ds were not very powerful, and were only effective in large numbers. The TIE/D measured 6.1 meters, and resemble the center section of a TIE Fighter with squared-off TIE Interceptor-like wings which were flat and tilted. The TIE/D was armed with a pair of laser cannons, and lacked a hyperdrive. A Cybot Galactica Ace-6 combat droid brain is the heart of the ship, but was shown to be greatly inferior to human pilots. The TIE/D, although produced in large volumes to overwhelm New Republic starfighters, was primarily produced by the nuclear furnaces and factories of World Devastators. When these were destroyed over Calamari, the primary sources of the TIE/Ds were eliminated. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

TIE/fc
a specially-equipped TIE fighter used for relaying targeting and fire control information back to the main fleet. (SWSB)

TIE/gt
a specially-equipped TIE fighter used for carrying bombs and torpedoes to support ground troops. (SWSB)

TIE/ln
the basic TIE fighter design. See TIE Fighter. (SWSB)

TIE/rc
a specially-equipped TIE fighter which employs sophisticated sensors and long-range communications equipment for reconnaissance. (SWSB)

TIE/rpt
this was the designation of the TIE Raptor starfighter developed by Warlord Zsinj. (CTD)

TIE/SR
Seinar's designation of the TIE Scout. (CCG)

TIE-wing
this form of Ugly starship was created from a TIE Fighter's ball-shaped cockpit and the engine nacelles of a Y-Wing fighter. Rogue Squadron pilots often referred to them as "Die-Wings" because they were sluggish and easily shot down. (IJ)

TIE-Y Ugly
this was another name for the TIE-Wing Ugly. (PP)

Tiebo
this valet, who worked for the famous actress Jona Reeten, became her business partner when Reeten was blacklisted by Babel Torsh. (GG6)

Tiehn Slug
this small creature was considered a delicacy by the Hutts. (COG)

Tiems
this city, bordered by the Blue River and the Gopps Forest, was the site of an Imperial outpost that was attacked by Carlist Rieekan and the Alliance. The ground assault maneuvers were later used as examples by General Madine. (RASB)

Tieos
planet which was home to an Imperial naval base. (SWSB)

Tier
this Imperial officer accompanied Thrawn to S'krrr, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Tier and his peer officer, Wolver, were killed in attacks from drog beetles. (GOF8)

Tierce, Grodin
this former Imperial stromtrooper and Royal Guard served under Moff Disra. Tierce managed to survive the destruction of the second Death Satr by the simple fact that he was not there, having been rotated out of active duty as Guardsman at the time. He later served as one of Grand Admiral Thrawn's stromtroopers aboard the Chimaera, but didn't count on Rukh actually killing Thrawn. Tierce's unit, upon hearing of Thrawn's death, intercepted and executed Rukh. A cold, calculating man, Tierce was drawn into Disra own plans for the remnants of the Empire as he was furthering his own schemes. Serving as a Naval Major, Tierce tried to remain a minor aide to Disra, but felt that the old man was getting in his way. He took control of the military aspects of their plans after Disra introduced Flim as a reborn Thrawn. Tierce recognized the short-comings of Flim's performance, and had Thrawn's genetic records altered to match Flim's. He then cut off Disra's supply of clones to Zothip and the Cavrilhu Pirates, making it clear to Disra that the Empire would need them more than the pirates. He claimed that he was only trying to avenge the death of Palpatine. He also learned that Thrawn had set up a number of sleeper cells on Republic worlds, and worked to activate them in an effort to garner more troops. Tierce also hired the Vengeance group to begin a series of ritos which, on the surface, were the result of the Caamas Incident. His work with Disra dn Flim was cut short when Admiral Pellaeon discovered that Tierce was, in fact, a clone of the original Grodin Tierce. The history files in the Imperial Records Library noted that Tierce died in the assault on Generis while serving under the original Thrawn, ten years before the Caamas Incident. Thrawn created the clone himself, using Tierce's fierce loyalty and soldier acumen and merging it with much of Thrawn's own intellect and cunning. The hipe was that this new regime of clones would supplant the Imperial warlords and take control of the Empire. Pellaeon discovered that Tierce was created just two months prior to Thrawn's death, but the experiement was cut short when Thrawn realized that he had not created a leader, just a tactically brilliant stormtrooper. Tierce was the first - and last - of his line. Upon hearing of this, Shada D'ukal - who had accompanied Pellaeon - killed Tierce with one of her zenji needles. (SOP, VOF)

Tierfon
planet in the Sumitra Sector that housed a secret Alliance fighter base during the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance used this base to patrol the Sumitra Sector and to provide escorts for secret convoys. Located on a steep cliff face overlooking a deep valley, the Alliance had perfect views for miles around. They dug deep into the rock, and built maintenance and refueling sites for convoy ships. The base was guarded by defensive lasers and the X-Wings based there, but had little other defenses. The base was run by 12 command personnel, and maintained 18 pilots and 54 ground troops. 74 support and technical staff were also stationed there. The base supported 5 airspeeders, 2 landspeeders, 4 speeder bikes, and 8 X-Wing starfighters. An MD-1 and an MD-2 droid provided medical support. Tierfon base was the base for the famous Yellow Aces Squadron. (SWSB, MTS)

Tierfon Outpost

Tigellinus, Rufaan
this Imperial Grand Admiral was inducted into Coruscant's Order of the Canted Circle during the height of the New Order. Tigellinus' admission into the exclusive order was somewhat unusual, because his involvement with the Order was minimal when compared to other important dignitaries. His rapid admission was attributed to his politcal savvy and connections to Emperor Palpatine, most notably his relationship with Alec Pradeux. His admission was also unusual in that it came during a period of rapid growth for the Order: Tigellinus was the thirteenth new member in seven years. Emperor Palpatine himself assigned Tigellinus to investigate the incredible growth of Moff Jerrod Maclain's personal wealth, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. It was rumored that Maclain was obtaining insider trading information from the Dajaal family, in return for political favors and tax breaks. Tigellinus was a strong supporter of Moff Disra, even when the Moff was out of favor with the Emperor. Note that Tigellinus was documented as a Grand Moff in the Star Wars Adventure Journal, Number 14. (SWJ8, SWJ9, SWJ14)

Tiger
an Imperial assault transport operative during the Galactic Civil War. It was assigned to the Pakuuni System. (TIE)

Tigress
this Alliance agent was hidden as a librarian within the Imperial archives. She befriended the Lady Amber Comark, despite her father's position as an Imperial Moff. When Tigress was discovered, she was quickly removed from her position and tortured. Amber felt nearly powerless as the Empire's interrogation eventually killed Tigress, until she resolved to pick up where Tigress left off. The lapse in contact between the two "Tigress" agents caused some concern within Alliance Intelligence, although Amber's help in exposing the Death-Hunter project was invaluable. (SWJ9)

Tigris
a Firrerreo youth, son of Hethrir and Rillao. It was hoped that Tigris would have a great deal of Force sensitivity, given that his parents were both Jedi. Their master, Darth Vader, hoped that their son would grow to become a great Sith warrior. However, Tigris was born without any Force sensitivity whatsoever, and was all but forgotten by his father. Rillao placed him on one of the Firrerreo colony ships, but Hethrir discovered him there and woke him up. Tigris was then relegated to slave status, doing whatever menial tasks Hethrir appointed. When Hethrir's treachery was revealed to Tigris at Crseih Station, he was through into a mass of emotional confusion. His mother took him back, to begin drawing him out of the shell Hethrir had built. (CS)

Till, Essara
this woman served the Naboo Security Force as the flight instructor for Bravo Squadron, serving under Ric Olie'. As a youth, Essara grew bored with her education in the arts and philosophy. She left Naboo when she turned nineteen, and for thirteen years worked as a pilot outside the Naboo System, gathering experience before returning to serve in her homeworld's military. She returned because hated the greed which was taking over the galaxy, and wanted to make sure that her homeworld was made aware of the growing discontent in the galaxy. It was rumored that Essara had become bored with starfighting. After her return to Naboo and her appointment to Bravo Squadron, she developed a personal relationship with her wingmate, Dren Melne. She took the role of training Echo Flight, shortly before the Battle of Naboo, despite the fact that Dren wanted her to leave Naboo with him to work for the government of Agamar. During the defense of station TFP-9, it was revealed that Dren had actually made up his mind to leave the Naboo. Essara was unprepared for the treacherous way Dren decided to leave, and was forced to shoot him down when he began attacking Echo Flight pilots. She nearly killed him, but the droid starfighters in the hold of the Velumina overwhelmed her small force. Essara was forced to surrender to Sorran's pirates. (SFT)

Tilossa
this middle-aged Gotal was a minor crimelord who owned and operated The Puddle during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Timber Render a predator native to the planet Pii 4. (SWAJ)

Timbra Ott
this planet, located in the Kathol Outback, stands at the far end of the Galtea Run. Originally settled as a sister colony to Gandle Ott in order to accommodate those settlers who were looking for more isolation than usual, Timbra Ott became a penal colony maintained by the government of Kal'Shebbol after a series of earthquakes and tidal waves destroyed much of the settlement there. The planet's natural beauty recovered in time, and the convicts who were exiled there worked hard to make the planet liveable. When the Empire decided to strand the colonists on Timbra, rather than maintaining the facility, a series of riots broke out before a group of individuals took control of the planet and formed their own government. Since that time, the planet has re-asserted itself as a simple colony world, although most other residents of the Kathol Outback still consider the people of Timbra Ott to be convicts and criminals. (KO)

Tion
1) an Imperial noble, he was also a task force leader for the Emperor. He was working with Grand Moff Tarkin to secure supplies and military backing for Tarkin's Death Star project. During this time, he commanded the Imperial-I class Star Destroyer Devastator in the destruction of the Alliance base on Ralltiir. While on Ralltiir, he became enamored of Princess Leia. She used this infatuation to allow her to escape the planet without Imperial intercession. Later, after Leia and her father, Bail Organa, learned about the Empire's plans to build the first Death Star, the Organas invited Tion to Alderaan for a dinner, during which they would try to obtain more information on the battle station. They were able to discover from Tion that the plans were being moved to the Imperial vaults, but Leia could not control her anger. She accidentally let Tion know she had inside information by revealing the code name 'Death Star,' and he attempted to arrest her. A struggle ensued, and Tion was killed when he tried to pull his blaster on Leia, and instead fired it on himself. Lord Tion was portrayed by John Considine for the Star Wars Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (SWR)
2) this is a cluster of stars found in one of the spiral arms of the galaxy. It is comprised on some 12,000 stars, 600 habitable worlds, and three major sectors. The sectors are the Cronese Mandate, the Tion Hegemony, and the Allied Tion. (ML)

Tion Hauling
this transfer and transport company was owned by Amatha Fetz, and was based on Lianna. (ML)

Tion Hegemony
known as the Ancient and Honorable Union of the Tion Hegemony, this sector of the Tion is a collection of 27 star systems found among the furthest reaches of the galaxy. It is far from the Core Worlds, but embraces some of the oldest and most ancient human civilizations in the galaxy. During the early years of the Old Republic, the Tion Hegemony was ruled by Xim the Despot. Before Xim, the Livien League controlled the Hegemony. As the Republic grew and the Tion Hegemony was "liberated," the sector saw a decline it its fortunes. However, the Hegeomny remained the breadbasket of the Tion, providing foodstuffs for all three of the Tion's sectors. Han Solo worked for Grigmin in the Tion Hegemony at one time. The Hegemony, being so far from Imperial control, was a home to many out-of-work smugglers, swindlers, and con artists who were trying to improve their lots in life. Note that Agents of Chaos: Hero's Trial states that the outer reaches of Hegemony were made up of 175 planets. (HSR, HSL, ML, HT)

this old language was the primary tongue spoken in the Tion Hegemony, before the galaxy's acceptance of the Basic language. (SSR)

Tionne
one of Luke's first Jedi apprentices on Yavin 4, Tionne was a near-human minstrel and historian. She learned of the Force from her grandmother, who instilled in Tionne the passion for ancient Jedi legends. This was unusual, for all knowledge of the Jedi was thought to have been eradicated from her homeworld. She had very little Force-sensitivity, but Luke Skywalker saw enough promise in her that he invited her to help discover the ancient Jedi teachings. She eventually became a full Jedi Knight, but her powers were somewhat limited. Nevertheless, she put her talents to good use, serving as a historian and administrator of the Yavin 4 praxeum. She eventually fell in love with Kam Solusar, and the two were married shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (DA, HTF, EGC, L, GG, JASB, DTO)

Tipagna
this young human was a child of the Fallanassi. He, along with several other children, were taken to the planet Teyr when the Fallanassi fled the Empire. Tipagna and his family lived in Griann before the Fallanassi deemed it necessary to move again. (SOL)

Tiragga
the Alliance had a small base on this planet's second moon, but it was wiped out by an outbreak of Direllian Plague. (SWJ1)

Tiranga
this Hutt controlled much of the tax collection operations of the planet Socorro during the New Order. An exile from his homeworld, Tiranga suffered a debilitating spinal cord injury as a child, and was considered a runt among his own kind. As an adult, Tiranga was just 2.5 meters in length, and the majority of his torso and tail was paralyzed. However, Tiranga was nonetheless a powerful figure on this adopted homeworld fo Socorro, and had the backing of the Society of the Black Bha'lir to add credence to his position. When other Hutts learned of Tiranga's survival, they put out a death mark for his head. This effectively kept Tiranga on Socorro at all times, unless accompanied by a heavy Black Bha'lir guard. (BSS)

Tiranga's Loft
this pleasure club was owned and operated by Tiranga the Hutt, and was located in Vakeyya, on the planet Socorro. It was here that the Hutt also held his public tax assessment proceedings. The establishment was located in a dilapidated warehouse building which was dotted with signs that indicated it was condemned. In reality, though, the interior of the warehouse was an immense bar, casino, and dance hall. A double layer of blast shields protects the building's true nature from being discovered, and layers of packed sand inside the walls help deaden any vibration and make it virtually sound-proof. The gravity inside the building is kept at two-thirds standard, in deference to Tiranga's spinal injury. Rumor had it that Lando Calrissian was a partner in the Loft, having helped finance its construction. (BSS)

Tiree
1) a Rebel fighter pilot killed during the Battle of Yavin. Tiree was portrayed by Jeremy Sinden in Star Wars. (SW)
2) Tiree was an undercover Alliance operative, posing as an aide to Governor Cuvir. This allowed Tiree to obtain large amounts of Imperial data for the Alliance in this position, until he was discovered by Cuvir when he tried to collect a datapad full of fleet movements in the Tandell System. A scuffle ensued, and Tiree was forced to shoot Cuvir. He was discovered and rescued by the medical droid 2-1B, who felt no loss at Cuvir's death. Together, they fled Imperial space for the Alliance. Tiree later fled Alliance service unexpectedly, returning to Questal to try and find out what happened to Rogan, the husband of his sister Tyerle. He was incapacitated by Moff Bandor's hurlothrumbic generator, but was eventually rescued by friends within the Alliance. After recovering, Tiree returned to the Alliance, and worked as a field agent in the Tharin and Arkanis Sectors. (MTS, GCQ, AIR)

Tirefin

Tizon
this Koornacht Cluster planet was one of the original twelve Duskhan League worlds. (SOL)

Tizowyrm
this small, grub-like creature was bio-engineered by the Yuuzhan Vong to act as a decoder. Each tizowyrm was 3-5 centimeters in length, and kept in a small coffer. When a Yuuzhan Vong needed to be able to understand and communicate with an alien species, they would insert a tizowyrm into their ear. The tizowyrm would crawl inside and lodge itself near the brain, where it would intercept the sounds of communication and store data. Each tizowyrm could store an immense amount of data as well as perform incredibly-fast, real-time manipulation of the information it received. This allowed the tizowyrm to subliminally provide the Yuuzhan Vong using it with information on how to communicate with the other species. However, the tizowyrm tired after prolonged use, and could literally vibrate itself to death if it wasn't taken out to rest. (VP)

Tizzin, Dane
this Imperial officer was just a Lieutenant when he was placed in charge of a TIE Fighter maintenance bay. Among those working for him were the parents of the woman known as Sapphire. Tizzin was generally incompetent, however, and his lack of ability resulted in an explosion in the fighter bay. Tizzin himself was out of the bay at the time of the explosion, despite the fact that he was on-duty. His family connections within the Empire managed to remove any culpability on his part and saved his career, blaming the incident on Sapphire's parents. He later was appointed to the position of Commodore, and served as an attache to the Moff of Kira Sector. (CRO, SS)

this Kamarian word describes the small social structure they formed, groups of Kamarians that live together. (CSA)

Tkun
this crimson-furred creature was created by the Yuuzhan Vong shapers, and was used by the priests and masters to execute a quick - but spiritually significant - sacrifice. The tkun could be carried by a priest, as it coiled itself around an arm or leg, and it was used to suffocate another being. The tkun wrapped its muscular body around the neck of its victim and constricted until the victim was no longer breathing. (BP) known as the StarHammer, this was Subpro's short-range attack fighter, developed during the height of the Galactic Civil War. It measured 35 meters in length, and required a pilot and gunner to operate. Its weaponry included a pair of light laser cannons, a pair of twin laser cannons, a concussion missile launcher, and a bomb bay, making it capable of taking on heavy assault missions. Subpro planned to market the starship to either the Alliance or the Empire, whichever bid the highest. The TL-118 was capable of travelling through hyperspace, but was equipped with a slow Class 3 hyperdrive. The Empire rejected the design, and the Alliance couldn't afford it, so Subpro sold the remaining ships to the highest bidders, which often was local militias or planetary defense fleets. (IA)

TL-118

TL-1800
a Suwantek Systems starship design, the TL-1800 was a 30-meter-long craft which typical of most commercial freighters. It was lightly armed, poorly shielded, and slow. It was sometimes referred to as a "Waddle" by starship captains. Despite its appearance and perception, the TL-1800 was a reliable craft, especially after Suwantek replaced the Portal Delta nav computer with a more reliable Fabritech model. The TL-1800 required a pilot and co-pilot to operate, and could transport up to seven passengers and 110 metric tons of cargo, depending on the interior configuration. An additional 300 metric tons of cargo space could be realized with the addition of cargo pods. The TL-1800 was armed with a pair of laser cannons. (SS)

TL-4
this series of tailor droids was produced during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Tla
this Yuuzhan Vong was the Commander of the battle fleet which destroyed Obroa-skai and then attempted to have Elan infiltrate the Jedi Knights. He assumed command of the fleet after the deaths of Shedao Shai and Deign Lian at Ithor, but was forced to work with Harrar and the priests. Tla agreed with the plan to have the priestess Elan pose as a defector, but the plan's failure led to the death of Elan and the loss of Vergere. When the mission was reviewed with supreme commander Nas Choka, Tla was removed from his command of the invasion fleet and reassigned to the Outer Rim. (HT)

Tlakh'sar
one of the Noghri clans. (VOF)

TLB
a model of Koensayr power converter. (SCRE)

TLG
Line Master's model of tube-launched grapple. (OE)

To-mara
this Yevethan term translates to "shamed one," and is used to refer to those Yevethan males who were unworthy of death at the hands of their superiors. (SOL)

To-phalion Base
this hidden Imperial research center was the site of the Vorknkx Project. The goal of the project was the creation of a cloaking device for starfighters. It may have been located in the Iast System. (TIE)

To-Sharr Uuta Shipworks
this was the Hutts' version of the Corellian Merchant Guild, and was controlled by Durga during the Galactic Civil War. It was also led by Sprax, in a joint venture which both agreed with, but neither trusted. The Shipworks funded a number of archaeological expeditions into Hutt space, looking for Expansionist Era artifacts and Sith era wrecks. Underneath this front, To-Sharr Uuta was an espionage tool used by both *vigo*s to launder millions of credits. (SSR)

To-yel
this Gotal found a home on the planet Narg where he could escape the constant buzz of electromagnetic radiation found on other worlds. He was quite happy on Narg, which made him something of a rarity among the non-human population there. To-yel was unable to master the technique of blocking out the electromagnetic emissions from other lifeforms, and got severe headaches in populated areas. To-yel frequented the Free Access Grill during the Imperial occupation of Narg, where he spent most of his time carving small wooden figures. He was known to be a cheerful and friendly patron. (TA)

To'iir
this elderly Twi'lek spacer was a member of the Lantilian Spacer's Brotherhood, and was the owner of the Seventy-Seven Stars. He bought the ship many years ago, after leaving Ryloth to become a spice trader. Like other Twi'leks of his generation, To'iir is considered an outcast because of his desire to travel among the stars. (SWJ10)

Toal
a species of tree that is native to the planet Ithor, toal wood is often used in carvings. (TFNR)

Toalagar
an Alliance starfighter pilot, assigned as a wingman to Keyan Farlander and Sunnar Jan-lo on a mission to rescue enslaved Wookiees from the Imperial freighter Toral. Toalagar was killed during the mission. (XW)

Toalar
this Gotal worked with Woyiq on many adventures, many of which involved Daye Azur-Jamin. (SWJ10)

Tobaskin Sector
this city-state of the planet Kidriff Five held the seat of the planetary government. The Millennium Falsehood's first mission was a fly-by through this area. (SOC)

Tobay
this Imperial Adz-class destroyer was part of Imperial warlord Foga Brill's fleet, a decade after the Battle of Endor. The Tobay regularly patrolled Sector 5 of the Prakith System, and was part of the group which pursued the Teljkon vagabond. It was commanded by Captain Gegak. (SOL, TT)

Tobb, Narka
a frequent opponent of Lando Calrissian’s at sabacc, it was Tobb that Lobot remembered the most. Once, during a match in which Sarra Dolas sat with Tobb instead of Calrissian, Lando actually folded a hand he couldn't win and opted not to bluff his way out. Lobot remembered it, for it was the only time he coudl remember the gambler not bluffing. (TT)

Tobba
this Hutt crimelord controlled a part of the Si'Klaata Cluster during the Galactic Civil War. (SSR)

Tobbra, Theb
this native of the planet Trallan served as the Indomitable's first officer, under Commodore Brand. He held the rank of Captain in the New Republic Navy. His wife had just had a new baby prior to the Battle of ILC-905. During that skirmish, Tobbra balked at Brand's plan to attack and destroy a Yevethan Aramadia-class starship in system ILC-905. Brand confined him to quarters during the attack, in order to remove any negative opinions. (TT)

Tobek
this space-faring race discovered the planet Brath Qella, some years after the Old Republic's Third General Survey left it alone. The Tobek renamed the planet Maltha Obex, a name which was used by the New Republic. (SOL)

Tobias
an Imperial technical analyst, Tobias suggested that the Empire use specially-programmed 3PO droids as espionage agents. His ideas were dismissed by Hyndis Kogler. (ISB)

Toblain Sector
this area of the galaxy was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (SS)

Toburik Haulers
this transport and shipping agency provided services to the Empire, during the height of the New Order. Shortly before the Battle of Endor, a convoy of Toburik freighters and transports was ambushed and stolen by the Alliance. (XWA)

Tocan System
this planetary system was the site of a space battle in which the Alliance starfighters were badly beaten by Imperial forces. (RASB)

Tockberry
a kind of fruit which grew much like an onion, in many interior layers. (RASB)

Tocneppil
a smuggler who used to work with Han Solo. The two of them got lost one time, and could not find their ship. Han has always boasted to Chewbacca that Corellians never get lost, and Chewie keeps reminding him of this event. Han claims that Tocneppil wasn't a Corellian, and that he (Han) was drunk at the time. (SWN)

Tocoya
this planet is the homeworld of a race of hairless, ovine humanoids. (CCG9)

Tocsan
manufacturers of the Q-8 Starfighter. (SSR)

Toda
this surly human ruled over most of the planet Tammuz-an during the early years of the Empire. (DCAR)

Todirium
one of the planets visted by the Night Caller shortly before it was captured by Wraith Squadron near Xobome 6. Its economy was dominated by mining and heavy industry, and Warlord Zsinj commanded a fair amount of its output in return for protections. (WS)

Todkal, Jameth
this man was an executive with Radell Mining Corporation, and was a supporter of the Alliance. He was the focal point for the Gray Griffins, and later worked with the second Alliance team sent to rescue the Griffins from Alluuvia. (OE)

Tofarain, Brophar
this outgoing individual was a shuttle pilot assigned to the crew of the FarStar. He maintained his own ship, the Muvon. However, after the ship was stolen by Gorak Khzam, he became surly and short-tempered. (KO, KR)

Togarn
this slug-like, semi-intelligent creature inhabited the ruins of Kabus-Dabeh some 4,000 years before the Galactic Civil War. Its body ended in a spike tail, which Togarn used to defend itself. Togarn's mouth with filled with needle-like teeth and a bloated tongue. Togarn was defeated in combat by Keval Raffaan, during the Jedi Peacemaker's travels to Kabus-Dabeh. Keval was attempting to prove his worthiness to the Muza by recovering a skuhm-hide bag from the ruined city. (TOJC)

Toggeus
this city, found on the planet Narg, was the site of TransGalMeg Industries' corporate starport. The corporation's detention center is also located there, along with a plushly-appointed conference center. (TA)

Togoria
a planet in the Thanos system, Togoria is the homeworld of the Togorian race. It is a world of grassy plains and rolling hills, the result of steadily decreasing tectonic activity. It has a vast store of untapped natural resources. The planet's gravity is somewhat less than standard. (GG4, TPS)

Togorian
a race of bipedal feline aliens from Togoria, the Togorians have long, sinewy limbs and well-muscled bodies that are equally useful moving through a forest or running across an open plain. Their hands and feet are studded with heavy claws, which are retractable on the hands. They regularly feed on bist and etelo herds, but are the favored prey of the reptilian liphons. The Togorians soon realized that they shared this trait with the mosgoths, and they formed a relationship which provided mutual protection as well as friendship. The Togorians have a society in which the males and females only see each other for a few days each year. The males spend their days wandering the plains and hunting for food, while the females stay in the cities and tend to their business there. The Togorians have a limited technology, including a solar technology maintained by the females, although they are fond of high-tech devices. The Togorian society is presided over by the Margrave, a position held by a male of a certain family line. (DFRSB, WEG)

Togorian Belladonna
a fragrance of perfume favored by the bounty hunter Zardra. (TM, OS)

Togri
this Mobquet transport was part of the Imperial supply fleet that was ambushed by the Alliance before it could rendezvous with the Corrupter. The Alliance tried to force the Imperial-II class Star Destroyer out of battle by cutting off its supply lines. (XWA)

Toirboggle
this Snivvian poet spent part of his career working for Olian Okamie, both as a sort of court jester and as an accountant, as part of his "research" for the epic poem, Honor Among Thieves. (HR)

Tojjevvuk
this rare, albino Wookiee was born around the same time as Chewbacca. In previous generations, an albino Wookiee would have been left in the lower levels of Kashyyyk's forest to be eaten by another predator, since white fur stood out against the forest background of the wroshyr trees. However, Tojjevvuk's father Tvrrdko would not let his sone be killed, and Tojjevvuk was brought up with the protection of his family, and grew to maturity. Tojjevvuk threatened Chewbacca, shortly after learning that Chewbacca had been courting Mallatobuck. Tojjevvuk believed that he was more worthy of her, challenged Chewbacca to a fight, even though it broke the rules of honor among the Wookiees. Chewbacca maneuvered Tojjevvuk into the lower levels of the forest, where the albino Wookiee was caught and killed by one of the jungle predators. (C)

Tok, Begas
a native of the planet Entralla, this crimelord suddenly found himself in possession of the Shard of Alderaan computer program, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He arranged to hold an auction aboard the Dune Princess, hoping that his friendship with Heater would provide him a measure of protection against Jabba the Hutt. Tok was known for his sabacc parties, although he lost more often than he won. Tok owned Jabba a large sum of credits, and hoped to pay off the debt by selling the Shard of Alderaan. Knowing what the program was, Tok invited members of the Alliance and the Empire to participate in the auction, as well as several independent interests. Unfortunately for Tok, the Dune Princess encountered a huge sandstorm and was grounded. During the resulting confusion, he lost control of the datapad which held the code for the Shard of Alderaan. The computer program was lost,and Tok was eventually executed by Jabba's henchmen. (LAA)

Tok-Foge Pokresh
this starship owner operated the Out of Touch from a base on Bothawui. (SOL)

Toka
a primitive race native to the Rafa System, it was thought that the Toka were the descendants of the Sharu race, given that they hold so many of the Sharu legends in reverence. The Toka live in the ancient Sharu buildings, and their society and religion are based on the Sharu legends and histories. Rokur Gepta learned that the Toka, like the humans who inhabit the Rafa System, arrived there from other systems a long time ago. The Toka were believed to have arrived first, and had the first contacts with the Sharu. This contact was broken when the Sharu mysteriously disappeared, and the Toka have been affected ever since. This disappearance of the Sharu has accounted for their lack of intelligence and inability to advance tehcnologically, and thus the Toka have been dubbed the Broken People. Since the disappearance of the Sharu, the Toka have become fairly simple-minded, and exist only to tend the life-orchards of the Rafa System, growing the beautiful and potent life-crystals. Gepta also learns that the Toka themselves are human stock, withered with apparent age due to their close interaction with the life-crystals. All of this knowledge held by Gepta, of course, is proven mere legend when Lando Calrissian and Mohs discover the resting place of the Mindharp. It is then revealed that the Toka are, in actuality, the Sharu themselves. When the Sharu civilization was at its height, the Sharu were scared by an unknown event. This caused them to begin hiding all record of themselves and their civilization in the huge computer banks found throughout the Rafa System. These were disguised as simple buildings. The Sharu also hid themselves from prying eyes by locking away all their knowledge in these computer systems. They developed the life-crystals as a way to continualy suck the knowledge and intelligence from succeeding generations, perpetuating the illusion of the ignorant Toka. A single Toka from each generation was allowed to maintain some of the ancient knowledge. This Toka, the High Singer, was charged with keeping the legends of the Key and the Mindharp alive until the Bearer and the Emissary came to the Rafa System. This would signal to the Mindharp that the threat to the Sharu had passed, and they could emerge from their disguise as the Toka and re-establish themselves. (LCM)

Tokkip, Zyru
this man was a native of the planet Chazwa, and served on the Iritsa Civil Guard during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Tokks'vik
this Doneer city-hive was the location of the primary spaceport on the planet Doneer'so, and was heavily pro-Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (SWCP)

Toklar
a much-quoted Mon Calamari philosopher. (SOL)

Tokmia
this was one of the planets, in addition to Allyuen and Hoth, singled out by Darth Vader as possible hiding places for the Alliance. He ordered probe droids sent there. (ESBR)

Toko
a loud, squawking bird native to the planet Paqwepori. (SOL)

Tol
this barren, rocky world was the third planet in the Dostra System. (AIR)

Tol Ado
this world was the third planet orbitting the star Sil'Lume. It sat just on the edge of the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt, and was controlled Imperial Governor Sebastian Parnell during the Galactic Civil War. The average surface temperature on Tol Ado was well over 400 degrees Celsuis, and there was little natural atmosphere. The surface of the planet was formed of black coal, and the meager atmosphere was filled with swirling clouds of black coal dust. From space, Tol Ado appeared to suck up all the light around it, like a swirling black ball. Parnell established a six-billion-cell prison facility on the planet, recognizing that the bleak landscape would only help to strangle the hopes of a prisoner. Parnell installed 124 sensor satellites in orbit around the planet, in order to maintain security on the planet. (JH)

Tol dosLla
a member of the staff of the Ukian Overliege, Tol dosLla was the oldest son of Gol dosLla and was a well-respected politician. (TLC)

Tol Sivron
more bureaucrat that scientist, Tol Svron was the chief scientist at the Maw Installation. Impatient, petty, uncreative, and a stifling taskmaster, he was the leader of the creation of the first Death Star concept. He is a member of the Twi'lek race, and was extremly threatened by true talent. Tol Sivron was a member of his community's head clan, until one of the other members was killed in an accident. The remaining four members, including Sivron, were exiled to the Ryloth wastes. Tol Sivron killed the other three Twi'Leks during their first night of exile, and was trying to make it to civilization when he discovered Wilhuff Tarkin setting up an Imperial refueling station on the planet. Tarkin recognized Sivron's potential from the story he told, and took Sivron under his wing. Sivron proved himself an excellent manager, and was promoted to his position as Chief Administrator of the Maw installation by the newly-promoted Grand Moff Tarkin. He is extremely obsessed with following Imperial doctrine to the letter. Tol Sivron is killed when the prototype Death Star he has commandeered is sucked into the black holes of the Maw and destroyed. (JS, COTF, JASB)

Tolan Navy Yards
this Imperial facility was the destination of the Elusive, after it fled the mop-up operation at Dankayo and was pursued by the Bonderium. (SH)

Tolan's Tusk
this thorn-shaped starship was owned by Var'Rotha Fin'Rotha, until he was overtaken by the Gamorrean brothers Gorge and Greel. Fin'Rotha was jettisoned in an escape pod, and the brothers took off with the ship. However, they were inexperienced pilots at best, and ran out of fuel near Reuss VIII. They were forced to crash-land on the planet, and the sharp end of the Tusk disintegrated upon impact. The rest of the ship was more or less intact, and the Gamorreans turned it into The Broken Tusk bar. (WSV)

Tolanese
an alien race. (WSV)

Toleph-Sor
this self-styled “pirate general” was rumored to have hidden his treasure deep within the Imperial Palace on Coruscant. (TT)

Tolga
this Rodian bounty hunter worked for Boddu Bocck during the years following the Battle of Yavin. Tolga was relatively unskilled, but he kep this position with a combination of bluster and bravado. When Bocck was employed by Major Birket to acquire Platt Okeefe and Tru'eb Cholakk, Tolga was ordered to remain on Cloud City to intercept Platt. Unfortunately for Tolga, he was caught tailing Platt by her yougn apprentice, Darrik, who shot Tolga and killed him. (IDC)

Toli-X
this deadly, mutated virus lived in molds that existed on the surface of certain asteroids. In this way, the virus could move from planet to planet. It infected a great number of worlds some twenty-five years before the Battle of Naboo, before the scientists and medical personnel of the Old Republic discovered a vaccine. Most who contracted the virus could be cured by the vaccine. It was later discovered that the planet Kegan had suffered an outbreak of the Toli-X virus, but because of their isolationist government, had never learned of the vaccine. A great many Keganites died because of their adherence to the General Good. (FFT)

Tolik, Levesh
this was an alias used by Maxig Kress. (GG10)

Tolik Yar
this Oolid New Republic Senator questioned the training methods of the Fifth Battle Group even as he understood the need for it. He was a strong supporter of Leia Organa-Solo's Presidency, and defended her against Cion Marook and Tig Peramis in the days leading up to the Yevethan Great Purge. He also sat on the Republic's Defense Council. (BTS, SOL)

Tolium
this gas is one of the most common gases used for blasters. Note that No Disintegrations indicates tolium is a solid material. (CFG, ND)

Tolk
a small city, located on the west coast of Galleros, on the planet Zelos II. (PG2)

Tollero
this dry, rocky world is the second planet in the Atrig System. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Tollo-wrench
this was a specialized tool used in the manufacture of droids. (CCC)

Toln ne Yerres
this Twi'lek managed the Holiday Towers hotel and casino for Jabba the Hutt, during the last years of the New Order. Toln started working for Jabba during the last years of the Old Republic, running ryll and slaves from Ryloth. (GG2)

Tolo
a race native to the planet Toloran, the Tolos share the administrative duties within the Panto System with their neighbors, the amphibious Lomins. (DFRSB)

Tolok
this man was a native of Alderaan. He was part of a group of Alderaanians who traveled to Yavin 4, following the destruction of the first Death Star, to meet with Princess Leia Organa. He was extremely loyal to Leia, and was adamant about restoring the memory of Alderaan. Leia later discovered that Tolok was romantically involved with Darlen, and that they were implicated in the theft of computer data from Massassi Base. (IS)

Tolokai
this stoic Gotal served as one of Mon Mothma's aides during the early years of the New Republic. Like all Gotals, Tolokai's sensitive horns allowed him to receive vibrations and eminations from those around him. This allowed him to anticipate any attacks which might be aimed at Mon Mothma. During a short break from his official duties, Tolokai was targeted by agents of Warlord Zsinj, who brainwashed him into believing Mon Mothma was an enemy as part of Project Funeral. The desire to kill her was activated by a seemingly inane phrase, and Tolokai tried to kill her with a hidden vibroblade. However, one of her other aides, Malan Tugrina, took the blade in his chest, diverting Tolokai's attack long enough for Mon Mothma to call for a security detail. Then Malan used the last of his strength to tackle Tolokai, and they tumbled down a flight of stairs. Malan died from loss of blood, while Tolokai was killed when his neck snapped in the fall. (SOC)

Tolokus
this New Republic Admiral was called to the Koornacht Cluster to assist Etahn A'baht in the struggle against the Yevetha. (TT)

Tolonda Sector
this area of the galaxy was controlled by Grand Moff Ravik during the Galactic Civil War. (OS)

Toloran
a snow-bound planet in the Panto System, known for its wintery tourist attractions. It is the homeworld of the Tolo race. (DFRSB)

Tolotan
this is the Yevethan book of devotions, similar to psalms or scriptures. The Yevetha ritually read from the tolotan each evening. (TT)

Tolra
this male Gamorrean was living on Coruscant with his family when Ysanne Isard unleashed the Krytos virus. Tolra and his wife were having marital problems, so she was off-planet when the outbreak occurred. Tolra contracted the Krytos virus, and realized that he was very sick. He quarantined himself from his family, effectively stopping its advance. He died alone in his house, and was later discovered by Gavin Darklighter and Emtrey during a sweep of the area. (KT)

Tolsk
this New Republic Navay Commodore served under Etahn A'baht with the Fifth Battle Group. Tolsk took control of Task Force Blackvine during the blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL)

Toltax Starstream
a large starship. (SOL)

Toma
one of Akanah's childhood Fallanassi friends. (BTS)

Tomas
this New Republic Armed Forces Colonel served under Hiram Drayson as part of the Alpha Blue Team. Tomas was in charge of security at the Intermatic, R.C. location. (TT)

Tombat
this mysterious, Corellian art and jewel thief once stole a set of priceless, antique pistols from Fitz Roi during the Priole Danna festival. Tombat also looted Jerjerrod's palace on Tinnel IV sometime after the Battle of Yavin. His signature was to leave a blue quella stone at the site of every heist. It was later revealed that the Tombat was actually Tanda Marelle. Note that Cracken's Rebel Operatives claims the Tombat was an Alderaanian. (SWAJ, SWJ8, CRO)

Tome, Jared
this Imperial diplomat was, at one time, in command of a "re-education center," which specialized in the torture of those individuals suspected of sympathizing with the Alliance. He carried a small medkit with him at all times, ostensibly to help counteract the effects of aging. In reality, the kit contained all the necessary chemical compounds to create a variety of lethal poisons. After he "retired," Tome was summoned to Tatooine by Begas Tok, to participate in the auction of the Shard of Alderaan computer slicing program. Tome was provided with credits by the Empire, and was backed up by the undercover agent, Breezer Nos-Carron. (LAA)

Tomla El
an Ithorian, and the chief healer to the Cloud-Mother herd when Drub McKumb tries to deliver his message to Han Solo. Later, following the Battle of Ithor, Tomla El worked with other New Republic scientists to try and discover the nature of the disease which Mara Jade Skywalker contracted shortly before the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (COJ, HT)

Tomo
this spice is often used to season karkan ribenes. (SOP)

Tomral
this is the name given to Arakyd's starship heavy last cannon. The Tomral can be turret-mounted for increased range. (SWJ9)

Tomri, Bensin
this man was a member of the ExGal Society team sent to Belkadan to monitor the ExGal-4 outpost. He often spoke with a teasing tone of voice, trying to maintain levity during their extended isolation. He accompanied Danni Quee to Helska, shortly after the ExGal-4 team spotted a rogue asteroid heading for the planet. They were intercepted by several Yuuzhan Vong coralskippers and brought to Helska as prisoners. He was killed in front of Danni, as an example of the Yuuzhan Vong's power over her. (VP)

Tomrus
a native of Bespin, Tomrus was 16 when the Empire overran Cloud City. A natural con artist, he also showed a great deal of mechanical skill. When his mother was killed in the evacuation of Cloud City, he vowed to make the Empire pay for her death. He left his father and joined the Alliance, and was added to Anselm's technical team. He was laster a member of Leia's crew to the Katana fleet. (DFR, DFRSB)

Tomuon
a large, wooly creature native to the planet Askaj, the tomuon was raised by the Askajians for milk, meat, and wool. The wool of the tomuon is spun into wonderful, lustrous cloth that can be used as a protective cover in the desert or as a ceremonial robe. It is rumored that Emperor Palpatine's robes were created from tomuon wool. (TJP)

Ton Raalk
this Yevethan was the Proctor of the Giat Nor guilds. He personally presented a new groundcar to Nil Spaar upon the Viceroy's return to N'zoth after the successful first wave of the Yevethan Purge. One of Ton Raalk's sentries saw three New Republic statis probes drop into realspace over N'zoth, and relayed the information to him. (SOL, TT)

Tonai
this elderly Senali male was Ganeed's father. (SP)

Tonas Vueral
this chirlan-rank Tunroth Hunter was a renowned tracker working in the Anthos Sector. (GG12)

Tonbuck Toora
this Old Republic Senator was originally an idealistic politician who became slowly corrupted by power and wealth. She was known in certain circles as one of the Old Republic's most corrupt Senators during the years leading up to Palpatine's assumption of the role of Grand Chancellor. A large, heavy-set alien with white and gray fur and red eyes, she became exceedingly wealthy by exploiting the many loopholes of the Republic's laws. Note that this Senator is described as Toonbuck Toora on the official Star Wars website. (IG1, OWS)

Tondatha
a backwater town located on the planet Agamar, it was the hometown of Keyan Farlander, until it wiped out during an Imperial invasion early in Emperor Palpatine's reign. (XW)

Tonder
this third world in the Algaran System is a volcanic world of shifting mountains and molten plains. Surveys have indicated that the world is cooling, and the local governments have been battling over the rights to mine its vast resources. It has a single moon. (PG2)

Tondra
one of the human clans native to the planet Wroona, they operated an algae processing plant on Bespin's Cloud City. (GG2)

Tone
an Imperial freighter disabled by Keyan Farlander near Orron III. (XW)

Tonheld Mining Corporation
this corporation owned the rights to mine ores and minerals from the asteroids within the Halmad System, some 40 years before the Battle of Endor. They efficiently stripped all the marketable material from the asteroids and then left, taking their machinery by leaving hollowed-out balls of rock in their place. The Wraiths squadrons used an abandoned asteroid - designated A3 by Tonheld - for their Hawk-bat base. (IF)

Tonin
this was the nickname Lara Notsil used for her astromech droid. The droid, like the X-Wing it flew in, were originally owned by Atton Repness, but were given to Lara after she exposed Repness' blackmail starfighter sales ring. The droid's name means "Little Atton" in the dialect of her hometown, New Oldtown, on Aldivy. When Lara fled the Wraiths, after Garik Loran revealed that she was really Gara Petothel, Tonin went with her to the Iron Fist, where she volunteered her services to Warlord Zsinj. In reality, she planned to take down Zsinj any way she could. To that end, she programmed Tonin to surreptitiously take control of the Super-class Star Destroyer's MSE-6 messenger droids. Tonin did so discreetly at first, but became bolder when none of the smaller droids were discovered missing. Tonin reprogrammed them for terrorist duties, including the sabotaging of the warship's engines, computers and shields. The effort nearly worked on its own, and was highly successful when it was combined with the firepower of the New Republic's warships at Selaggis Six. However, Zsinj managed to escape using the Second Death as a decoy. Lara and Tonin also escaped, fleeing to the planet Corellia to lay low. (IF, SOC)

Toniv
this Imperial Navy Commander served under Soontir Fel aboard the Pride of the Senate during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa. (THG)

Tonkoss Rathba
this petty tyrant, a native of the planet Daluba, was thwarted in his efforts to rise to power by Leia Organa Solo. (VP)

Tonnika, Brea
Brea and her sister, Senni, were two of the galaxy's finest con artists. The sisters conned Grand Moff Argon out of nearly 25,000 credits, and in return were placed on the Imperial most-wanted list. Later, Han Solo employed the sisters to con Lando Calrissian. Using their alias of Bresenni, the sisters wined and dined Lando. Lando was smitten, and eventually asked Bresenni to marry him. At this time, the other sister emerged, presenting Lando with a holoprojector and a disk from Solo, who was having a good laugh at Lando's expense. Lando vowed to get Han back for it. Just before the Battle of Yavin, they took a job with Jabba the Hutt. They left Tatooine a mere three hours before Shada D'ukal and Karoly D'ulin arrived at the Mos Eisley cantina, trying to impersonate the Tonnika sisters in order to book passage off Tatooine. She lived with Noa for several years, until the Battle of Endor occured. She decide to join the efforts of the fledgling new Republic, after witnessing first-hand the construction and destruction of the second Death Star. She went into journalism after graduating from college, and became one of the primary founders and contributors to The Life Monitor news service. Cindel was portrayed by Aubree Miller in both of the Ewok motion pictures. (EA, BFE, TT)

Towani, Jeremitt
Jeremitt was married to Catarine Towani, and they had two children, Mace and Cindel. Their shuttle crashed on the forest moon Endor following a systems failure, and they were forced to fend for themselves. Jeremitt and Catarine were captured by the giant Gorax and held prisoner until their children, along with help from the Ewoks, were able to rescue them. Unfortunately, he was killed when the Marauders from Endor's rocky wastes attacked their encampment. Jeremitt was portrayed by Guy Boyd in The Ewok Adventure, and by Paul Gleason in Ewoks: The Battle for Endor. (EA, BFE)

Towani, Mace
Mace was the older of the two Towani children, and the teen-aged son of Catarine and Jeremitt. When their shuttle crashed on Endor, Mace and his sister, Cindel, were separated from their parents. He was quick to anger, and was fiercely protective of his sister. They were taken in by Wicket and his Ewok family, who helped them rescue Mace's parents from the Gorax. Unfortunately, when the Marauders attacked their encampment, Mace was killed along with his parents. Mace was portrayed by Eric Walker in both of the Ewok motion pictures. (EA, BFE)

Tower
this modified YT-1300 transport was owned and operated by Rycar Ryjerd. It was armed with a pair of fire-linked laser cannons and two ion cannons. (SSR)

Tower of Law
a governmental building on Bimmisaari (HTTE)

Tower Ridge
this rocky outcropping, on the outskirts of Mos Eisley, on Tatooine, was the home of Slag Flats. (TM)

Towers of Pantolomin
this profitable tourist resort is owned by Galaxy Tours. (CSA)

Towith, Rhain
this Imperial Moff was placed in charge of the Kadok Regions, during the height of the New Order. He found himself at a loss as to how he could bring the Bitthaevrians, and especially the m'Yalfor'ac Order, under Imperial control. (AIR)

Toxus Li
this spike-haired humanoid was wanted for several crimes some six years after the Battle of Endor. Boba Fett captured him, although he only brought back the head to collect his bounty. (BF)

Toy Dampner
this blue-skinned, avian creature was considered one of the Outer Rim Territories' best podracer pilots, around the time that Anakin Skywalker won the Boonta Eve Classic. (RAC)

Toydaria
this swamp-covered planet was located in the Mid Rim, and was the homeworld of the Toydarian race. (IG1, IWE1)

Toydarian
this is a race of small, winged humanoids with stout bodies and beaklike noses. Their skin is usually blue on the dorsal side and cream-colored on the ventral side, and their snouts are studded with short, thick tusks. Like the Hutts, Toydarians are immune to the effects of the Force. Despite their heavy-set appearance, the Toydarian's stomach and bodily tissues are filled with gases which make them more bouyant. This allows them to remain in the air while their wings beat ten times a second. They have the ability to walk on their thin legs, but spend more time flying in order to stay out of the reach of the land-based predators found on their homeworld of Toydaria. (SW1, IG1)

TR-MB
the tracked mobile base, this heavily-armored Imperial vehicle was developed during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War. It was an unarmed transport which would carry a battle commander and up to six stormtroopers into the midst of battle. It was unarmed, so was often escorted by other, better-armed vehicles. (FC)

TR-SD
this huge vehicle was the Empire's tracked shield disabler. Rolling across the ground on ten independent tracks, the TR-SD was a single-purpose machine designed to take out defensive shield systems and shield generators. It was armed with a pair of missile launchers and two ion canons. (FC)

TR-889
this was Major Tierce's stormtrooper ID during the time he served under Grand Admiral Thrawn aboard the Chimaera. (SOP)

Tra'cor
this large beast, native to the hidden oases of the planet Socorro, resembled an aquatic version of the rancor. The tra'cor lived it entire life in the water, ambushing its prey before consuming it in a few bites. (BSS)

Tra'Parr'Sratt
this Coynite followed the Cradle Law to the letter, following his insane father's wishes. In his native tongue, Sratt's name literally means

"my father's promise." Among those wishes, Tra'Parr'Sratt was ordered to kill his seven brothers, his mother, and finally his father. This order was carried out, and many Coynites agree that is was the highest form of familial honor ever displayed. He was offered riches and political power, and was courted by many nobles families for his incredible loyalty. Tra'Parr'Sratt, however, could not reconcile the murder of his family, and he eventually fled Coyn. Sratt found work as a first mate and strong arm aboard several smuggling ships, and was given an honorary membership to the Society of the Black Bha'lir. Eventually, he went to work for the gangster Abdi-Badawzi, serving as a personal guard to the Twi'lek. (SWAJ, BSS)

Tra's M'ins
a Jedi Master. (DFR)

Trabler
this huge, well-muscled man was a member of the Imperial Security Bureau at the height of the New Order. Known more for his strength than his mind - it was rumored he could pull the head off an Ithorian with his bare hands - he was assigned to missions that required physical manipulation. Trabler was also unswervingly loyal to the Emperor. His last mission was accompanying Ysanne Isard to Darkknell in order to recover the stolen plans to the first Death Star. Trabler was killed during the mission, caught in a cross-fire between Isard and Hal Horn. Trabler and Isard had attempted to eliminate Horn, but the Corellian managed to gain the upper hand in the exchange. When Trabler tried to attack Horn with a knife, Horn shot him through the chest. (TFNR)

Trace, Arvel
this former Imperial governor of Sesid built up a large security force to keep the system in line. He supported the dictators Feynir and Maeril in hopes of getting their nations to work together peacefully. (GG12)

Trace-breather
a device which uses cartridges of gas to provide respiratory elements to races which cannot breathe certain atmospheres. The cartridge contains a limited supply of gas, which is expelled over time when the cartridge is inserted into a special breathing mask. The cartridges must be continually replaced if the individual remains out of its normal environment for too long. (TJP)

Tracedart
this small projectile is used in a game of skill. Each player must throw their darts at a gameboard. The dart literally traces a line to the target. There are various methods to scoring a tracedart match. (CSA)

Tracer Droid
any form of automata that is used to track an individual. (THG)

Tracher
this Imperial Army private was among the forces which first landed on Alluuvia. He quickly followed Private Kinard's lead and helped wipe out the Anguillas which greeted them. (OE)

Track-trill
this device is often used by gamblers who cheat at spinnerpit and other similar games of chance. It allows them to magnetize specific tracks, causing the small balls to roll into those tracks. (MJEH)

Tracked Mobile Base
see TR-MB (FC)

Tracked Shield Disabler
see TR-SD (FC)

Tracker
this was a model of automp developed and manufactured by SoroSuub during the Galactic Civil War. (IA)

Tracker-4 Airspeeder
this was Bakur RepulsorCorp's military airspeeder, measuring seven meters in length and armed with a front-mounted dual laser cannon. It required a pilot and gunner, and could transport two additional troopers and 20 kilograms of cargo. It had a flight ceiling of two kilometers, and could attain speeds of 500 kilometers per hour. (TBSB)

Tracomp
a shipboard sensor that locates a planet's magnetic poles for ground referencing. They are small components, capable of being removed and used in a handheld manner. They fit in the palm of a man's hand. (SME)

TracSheet
this was a New Republic document which detailed all known information about a specific criminal. This document was based on an Imperial datafile maintained for the same reasons: to monitor the activities of criminals. (GG11)

Tractor beam
any device which is used to immobilize and move an object. They are modified force fields which employ a graviton-flux beam to alter the shape of the surrounding space-time fabric. The shape is altered so that the target is caught on a ripple of fabric and then "rolled" back toward the generator. Thus, tractor beams can be used to maneuver ships in docking bays, as well as to contain a fleeing ship. In some instances, large tractor beams can also be used to destroy smaller ships by creating a large enough ripple to crash into the target. (SW, SWSB)

Trade
if two tribes of Abyssin meet at an oasis during a plentiful season, they will Trade with each other. Gaunts, weapons, and young males and females are exchanged between the two tribes, ensuring both willl survive until their next meeting. (GG4)

Trade Defense Force
this was the name of the fleet of warships and military personnel who supported the Trade Federation, during the last decades of the Old Republic. Much of the Trade Defense was turned over to the Republic in the wake of the Battle of Naboo. (RP)

Trade Federation
this group was formed by during Old Republic to monitor and maintain the delicate balances of power between the growing economies of the Core Worlds and the developing worlds of the remote Outer Rim Territories. Ostensibly, they were the policemen of commerce for the Old Republic, working to ensure fairness and mediate disputes. The Federation became large enough, and powerful enough, to maintain a seat in the Galactic Senate as if they were a populated planet. However, the Trade Federation – controlled by the Neimoidian race – was inherently weak, and soon found itself under the control of Darth Sidious during the years leading up to the Clone Wars. A series of political maneuvers led to the Old Republic's taxation of trade routes in the galaxy, which took away much of the control and profit realized by the Neimoidians. In an attempt to force the repeal of the tax law, and under the control of Sidious, the Trade Federation threatened the world of Naboo by blockading all trade to and from the planet. The blockade was eventually broken during the Battle of Naboo, but the Federation had already outlived its usefulness to Sidious, who abandoned them when they could no longer control the situation. In the aftermath of the Naboo blockade, the Trade Federation's warfleet and its military personnel were absorbed into the Old Republic's own defense forces, and the Federation itself was restricted in its ability to do business. (SW1, TPM, IS1, RP)

Trade Federation Battleship
based on Hoersch-Kessel Drive, Incorprated's huge, ring-shaped cargo freighters, the Trade Federation's battleships have been heavily converted for military use. This conversion makes them perfect for the Federation's use, as unsuspecting targets don't realize they're under attack until it's too late. Measuring 3,170 meters in diameter, these battleships have huge storage areas in the outer hull, which surrounds the central, spherical command center. The Federation equips each battleship with 1,500 Vulture droid starfighters, 50 C-9979 landing ships, 550 MTT troop transports, 6,250 AAT battle tanks, and 1,500 troop carriers. The ships are powered by a pair of Rendili Proton 2 sublight drives, supported by an array of Proton 12 drives as backup. Weaponry is limited by the original, non-military configuration, and consists of 42 quad-laser batteries spaced around the outer hull. (SW1, X1, IG1)

Trade Hall
the governmental building of the capital city of Brentaal. (SWAJ)

Trade Spine
see Corellian Trade Spine (TLC)

Trader's Gamble
one of the many additional features of the Free Trader's Guide to the Planets, the Trader's Gamble required a membership number and password in order to gain access. It was created to alert the paying members of the Lantilian Spacers Brotherhood of potentially lucrative markets. The downside of this service is that the worlds it highlighted also tended to be dangerous and remote. (SWJ10)

Trader's Luck
this ancient Liberator-class troopship began life as the Guardian of the Republic. Garris Shrike purchased the old ship and gutted the interior, refitting it to create various living environments for the smugglers, thieves, and strong-arms that made up Shrike's travelling horde. When Shrike was killed on Coruscant, the ship was abandoned and left for scrap. When it was sold at auction, the Corellian resistance purchased it and renamed it the Liberator. They donated the ship to the Alliance forces for the Battle of Ylesia. (TPS, RD)

Trader's Quarter
this infamous section of the planet Ord Mantell was known for its seedy streets and shady businesses. (AIR)

Traders Plaza
this open area is located in the city of Talos, on Atzerri. Its design is such that unwary visitors to Atzerri are likely to lose their money as they pass through many unnecessary checkpoints, pay illusory tariffs, and shop for overpriced goods. For those travellers with experience on Atzerri, the Plaza's "merchants" act as scratchbacks. They herd the more adept travellers to more intense areas of the city. (SOL)

Traders' Alley
located on the Blue Level aboard the Errant Venture, this bazaar-like area of shops and restaurants was a cash-only section of the ship. (SOP, IJ)

Traders' Coalition
this was the leadership organization that controlled the Free Trader Worlds. They demanded a price for everything, despite the fact that they called themselves "Free Traders." (SOL)

Tradetown
this is the only sizable town on the planet Yelsain, and is also the site of the planet's specaport. Most of the planet's off-world inhabitants live in Tradetown. Most of the commerce that happens on the planet happens here, as metals and electronics are imported in exchange for exotic woods. (GG6)

Tradewyn
this Mon Calamari cruiser was the flagship of the Bornaryn fleet. (TEP)

Tradium
manufacturers of racing fuels. (X1)

Traeda
this Imperial Grand Moff was one of several who were at odds with Grand Admiral Tigellinus and his quick rise to power. Traeda lost an important ally, Governor Weizel, who defected to Tigellinus's faction. (SWJ8)

Traest Kre'fey
this Bothan was a member of the New Republic military, and served as an Admiral at the time of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Traest came from a long line of Bothan leaders, including his grandfather Laryn and his brother, Karka. Like his relatives, Traest had creamy-white fur. However, he had violet eyes which were flecked with gold, an indication of that fact that he was also related to Borsk Fey'lya through a complex tangle of relationships. He was one of the few members of the New Republic command structure who took the Yuuzhan Vong invasion seriously, and worked with Gavin Darklighter and Rogue Squadron to develop tactics that would overcome the Vong's organic defenses. Traest commanded the Assault Cruiser Ralroost during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. He was disdainful of his cousin's political maneuverings, wishing only to defeat the Vong and rid the New Republic of the threat. Thus, when Fey'lya opted to remain aboard the Ralroost during the defense of Ithor, Traest took steps to ensure that Fey'lya had little chance to cause trouble. (DTO, DTR)

Traff
this Jeodu worked for Dequc, and often accompanied Fitch on courier missions. (MJEH)

Traffic-robo
any automaton programmed to monitor and direct ground-based traffic. (HSL)

TraffiDroid
this brand of automaton was developed to control inner-city traffic during the last years of the New Order. The TraffiDroid was essentially a four-armed sphere which floating on repulsors. When stationed at an intersection, the TraffiDroid was capable of efficiently handling vehicular and pedestrian traffic. (GCQ)

Traflin
this tropical resort world was owned and operated a powerful alliance of businessmen from the Corporate Sector. Because of its distance from the Core and the lack of an Imperial garrison, Alliance personnel used Traflin as a rest and relaxation spot during the Galactic Civil War. The local government had little tolerance for crime. (GMS)

Tragan Cluster
an Outer Rim Territories sector originally charted by Shistavenan explorers who braved the Bakisian Drift. (GG12)

Tragan System
a star system once ruled by Imperial Moff Brinkan. (SWAJ)

Tragett, Bogo
this Alpha Team leader led the second expedition to Maltha Obex, setting up a base from which Joto Eckels could operate. Traggett's team remained on the planet when Eckels left to deliver the Qella bodies to Coruscant, and was left stranded on the planet when Eckels returned. Eckels was forced to keep Tragett's team planet-bound, because the Teljkon vagabond had re-entered the system. (TT)

Tragic Flaw
this starship was owned operated by Bho Vendoll, and lived up to its name more often than not. (SSR)

Tragrud
this planet, the only world in the Tragrud System, was tectonically unstable. Nonetheless, the Alliance established a staging area and refueling outpost on the planet, serving those ships which traveled into Hutt Space. Note that this planet is also named Tragud in Secrets of the Sisar Run. (SSR)

Trail
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Trail's End Tavern
a Sedesian establishment, located in Besia Osurne. (SWAJ)

Trailia
this tropical world is a low-tech planet on the fringes of the known galaxy. It is inhabited by the native Trailians, a race of humanoids which are sensitive to the Force, and live in peaceful coexistence with their environment. Lord Cronal attempted to use the Dark Side of the Force and genetic manipulation to turn the Trailians into monsters of vast power and destruction. (GMS)

Trailian
this humanoid race, native to the planet Trailia, hda a strong affinity to the Force. (GMS)

TrailMaker III
this speeder bike is produced by Mobquet, and comes in a personal-use model as well as a military model. Powered by a TurboToo repulsorlift engine, it rivals the Aratech Yellow Demon 100 in speed and maneuverability. However, it is larger and noisier than the Aratech bikes, and has not gained the popularity of the Yellow Demon or the 74-Z. (SWSB)

TrailMaster
this low-end tracking device was produced by Astroserver. The TrailMaster was only capable of providing directional information to the user. (CFG)

TraitWare
this was the name given to the computer code which provided a droid with personality and behavioral traits. It was copyrighted by Sienar Intelligence Systems during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Trakkrrrn
this creature is native to Kashyyyk, and was hunted by the Wookiees for its tasty meat. (RD)

Traladon
the meat of this creature is consumed by many human societies throughout the galaxy. The ribs and rib-meat are often served barbequed, while the milk of a traladon is flavorful and healthy. (TPS, THG)

Tralee
this port city, found on the planet Esseles, was the sight of an Imperial Navy base during the Galactic Civil War. It was once attacked by the Faceless, in a coordinated effort that also caused severe damage to the DynaCorp refineries on Grande Hyet. (SWJ9)

Tralkpha
the Mon Calamari navigator working for Mara Jade aboard the Jade's Fire. He disappeared during the Corellian revolts surrounding the Starbuster plot. (AC, SC)

Tralla
one of the three primary continents, built from coral reefs, found on the Pantolomin. (DFRSB)

Tralla Room
one of the many casinos on the Coral Vanda. (DFR)

Trallan
this planet was aligned with the New Republic. (TT)

Tralus
Tralus, along with Talus, make up the Twins in the Corellian System. Talus and Tralus orbit each other around a single center of mass, and both are inhabited. (AC)

Tralus and Talus Liberation Party
one of the political factions active during the Starbuster plot, they were struggling for the two worlds to seceed from the Corellian alliance and goven themselves. (SC)

Tram-eight
this thin cable is used in many of the engine connections on repulsorcraft. (CFG)

Tramanos
Riij Winward claimed to be travelling from Tramanos to Shibric when he was captured aboard the Hopskip by Captain Niriz. (TFE)

Trammen
this planet, located in the Harron Sector, was heavily re-armed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. Reports indicate that the entire Imperial force there was equipped with light repeating blasters. (ISB)

Trammic
an ancient language spoken on Trammis III. (LCM)

Trammis III
a planet whose native lifeform is a reptilian avian. These creatures have been billed as modern-day dinosaurs, and a large tourist trade has developed because of this. It is also a possible birthplace of the Sharu, for Lando discovers Mohs speaking in the Trammic language. (LCM)

Trammis System
a tourist destination because of its dinosaur-like inhabitants, the Trammis System is also famous for its chocolates. (LCS)

Trammistan
the human natives of the Trammis System. (LCS)

Tramp Freighter
any small, independently-owned cargo ship. (HSE)

Tramp Shuttle
this was the genric term used to describe any repulsorlift craft that can be modified to serve as a military transport. (RASB)

Tran Mariel
this planwt was the site of an Alliance secret base. The Alliance set up an underground holo network from an apartment there. It is also the homeworld of a species of runyip. (GG2)

Trancret Stock Exchange Swindle
this wave of insider trading and other stock scams was arranged and executed by Janstren Brell and the Red & Black League. (HR)

Trandia
one of Crix Madine's best commandos, Trandia was in charge of tracking Durga the Hutt's movements from the Galactic Voyager. She had strawberry blonde hair that she kept in a tight, complex braid. She accompanied Madine and Korenn to try and sabotage the Darksaber project, but sacrficed herself aboard the half-built weapon when they were discovered by guards. A laser bolt nearly took off her arm, and when she was captured, she detonated a small explosive when the majority of the guards had surrounded her. This allowed Madine to continue setting out explosive charges. (DS)

Trandosha
this planet is the homeworld of the Trandoshan race of reptiloids. It is located in the same star system as Kashyyyk. (MTS)

Trandoshan
these humanoid reptiles are native to the planet Trandosha. They have long arms, which end in wide, splayed fingers. Their heads are blunt, with beady red eyes and a mouth full of sharp teeth. Their scales range in color from orange to ochre to brown. Much of their body can be regenerated if lost, so a Trandoshan can fight much harder without risk of permanent injury. Being a vicious, warlike race, the Trandoshans evolved into hunters, and were especially proficient at hunting Wookiees, which inhabited the nearby planet of Kashyyyk. It was a Trandoshan official who sold the idea of enslaving Wookiees - rather than simply leveling Kashyyyk - to the Empire. (COTF, MTS, TBH)

TranLang I
first-generation communication module used in early protocol droids. (GG7)

TranLang II
second-generation communication module used is J9 worker drones and some 2PO units. It was capable of translating up to 3,000,000 languages. (GG7, TA)

TranLang III
the latest generation of communication module used in 3PO series protocol droids, the TranLang III can access up to seven million languages and major dialects, and translate between them. (ISB, SWSB)

Tranna Nougat
this sweet candy is considered a delicacy by the rich and powerful. It is often consumed with doth brandy. (TT)

Tranquility Common
located across the Canyonade from the Grand Rim Promenade, this small park was the gathering place of the people of Cejansij. Human and alien alike gathered there to show their support for justice in the galaxy. During the months after the revelation of the Caamas Document, the gatherings took on a new meaning which was denounced by the New Republic. The destruction of several worlds was enacted with lights and dance without any rage or anger. As Luke Skywalker discovered while walking the Canyonade with Moshene Tre, the demonstrators simply wanted the Republic to understand that justice must exist for all people, and should not be limited to any one event. (SOP)

Tranquility System I
this was the brand name of IntelStar's ground-based sensor blind system. (HAS)

Trans-Dimensional Energy Streamer
this kind of star was a rare sort of pulsar that spewed out matter, energy, and radiation as it spun. The streamer itself was formed from multi-dimensional, gravitational curves which were invisible in the electromagnetic spectrum, but acted like a convergence of hyperspace mass shadows. In addition, the curves produced are never uniform, resulting in the Ei'shuun Aa Effect, which causes immense distrubances within a localized area of hyperspace. (SSR)

Trans-Galactic Gaming Enterprises Corporation
this huge, galaxy-spanning corporation maintained a series of casinos and gambling halls on a multitude of worlds during the height of the New Order. (MA)

Trans-Zone Development and Exploitation Consortium this corporation was a front for one of the Huttese gambling syndicates which operated in the Outer Rim Territories during the height of Emperor Palpatine's New Order. (MA)

Transfer Circuits
part of a ship's hyperdrive system (ESB)

Transfer Register
a document which details the sale or trade of property or merchandise. The document is often nothing more than a computer file, but it contains electro-optically recorded prints of the buyer and seller. The register itself is impervious to break-in, having several layers of security built-in to provide completely accurate records of the transactions. (SW, HP)

TransGalMeg Industries
this diversified corporation, headquartered on the planet Narg, created a number of starship designs for internal use in its mining and colonization divisions. When these designs proved to be durable, TGM opened its shipyards to produce transport ships for the public sector. Its designs include the Xiytiar-class transport. The corporation was involved in a scandal some time shortly after the Battle of Yavin, when Braig Farool and his brother, Nak, attempted to gain power in Rayter Sector by kidnapping Crying Dawn Singer. Imperial Moff Nile Owen and a group of Alliance agents, working separately, discovered the plan and halted it. (DESB, EGV, TA)

Transglass
this incredibly strong, transparent form of glass was used to make the faceplates of many survival suits, as well as armored helmets. (GG8)

Transit Galactic Shipping
this interstellar shipping and transportation company had several large warehouses on Cybloc XII. C-3PO and R2-D2 were "mailed" to one of these warehouses by Yarbolk Yemm, as part of their plan to expose the treachery of Dzym, Loronar Corporation, and Seti Ashgad. (POT)

Transition
this was the term used by the Rakaans to describe a change in sex. (AE)

Transitory Mists
this vast area of ionized particles and stellar gases surrounds much of the Hapes Cluster and prohibits space travel beyond its borders. After Ta'a Chume defeated the Lorell Raiders, the pirates fled to the Mists and hid. The heavy amounts of ionization occurring in the Mists makes them hard to navigate, and little exploration of the interior of the region has been accomplished. (CTD)

Transliterator
this was a term used to describe a device which could translate the speech of one race into that of another. These devices were often worn around the neck, and could be programmed to speak in a variety of voices and accents. (SWJ14)

Transmission Horn
an out-dated device used to transmit a signal to any number of receivers. It was often employed to transmit instructions to a large group of droids who were programmed for similar tasks. (HSL)

Transmitter Cap
this small explosive device used a tiny charge which could be detonated with a remote transmitter. (E1A5)

Transmogrifier
a device which is used to alter droid programming. (TME)

Transnovel
a form of entertainment perfected on Cadomai. (ISB)

Transonic Synthesizer
a device which is used in hypno-imprinting, the transonic synthesizer allows a number of commands and triggers to be imprinted on a person's mind while the person is under hypnosis. (HSL)

Transpacitor
a fist-sized device used as a power shunt in a hyperdrive. (SC)

Transparisteel
the strong, clear material used for windows on spaceships. It has the unique property of adjusting to the external lighting conditions, darkening the light is brighter and clearing when the light is lower. Specialized, optically-enhanced transparisteel was developed by Kuat Drive Yards during the early years of the New Order, as a way of providing minimal cloaking for the Empire's huge warships. Nano-tech datalinks were imbedded into the transparisteel, and programmed to filter out specifc wavelengths or other visual data. Thus, a ship plated with this special transparisteel would seem almost invisible. However, this was an expensive technology, and never found widespread use. (CPL, SLS)

Transplastoid
this material was used to create walls and exterior structures for large buildings. (SWJ9)

Transport Ship
any starship which has been designed or modified to shuttle cargo from planet to planet. They are often not armed, but have been outfitted with hyperdrives for swiftness. During the height of the Galactic Civil War, the Alliance was forced to modify passenger liners for transport use. (ESB)

Transporter Disk
a large, repulsor-equipped disk used to move personal baggage from one location to another. (VP)

Transtom
an Imperial fuel ship destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (WEG)

TransVere
this was the name of the procedure which verified a starship's transponder codes. (PSG)

Transwall
a false, movable wall used in many security offices. (JH)

Tranthellix
this planet is famous for its sky cities. (EGV)

Trantor
a planet which was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ8)

Trap, The
located within Exovar's Emporium, on the planet Neftali, this relaxation chamber was maintained by Kaori Batta, and displayed some of his most impressive kills. (WSV)

Trap-spinner
a creature native to the lower levels of the Kashyyyk forest. (HT)

Trarra
this plant, native to Carest 1, produced a flavorful berry that was eaten by the Jiivahar. (SWJ14)

Trascor
this planet was the homeworld of the Shatra race. (AE)

Trask
this man was in command of the first human scout team to visit the planet Trinta. Like others before him, Trask learned that there was something unusual about the planet that made it virtually uninhabitable. He reported directly to Director Greeley. (DOE)

Trasli District
this area of the city of Talos is located just outside the Pemblehov Distrcit. Joreb Goss' Atrium 41 was located in Trasli. (SOL)

Trass
this being worked for Joreb Goss at Atrium 41, in the city of Talos. Trass was in charge of accommodations. (SOL)

Trast
manufacturers of armored troop transports. (RASB)

Tratlin
an alien race. (SSR)

Trauger
several generation before the Galactic Civil War, this bounty hunter came to the planet Socorro looking for a target in Cjaalysce'I. A vicious man, Trauger was easily recognized by his cybernetic arms. He demanded that one of the native nomads act as his guide, and threatened to kill a woman every minute until one agreed. The first woman he threatened was Oceke's mother, and Oceke was forced to assist him. However, Trauger underestimated the will of the nomads, for Oceke - furious at Trauger's treatment of his mother - led Trauger to an area covered with pockets of deadly gas. Trauger, unaware of the treachery until it was too late, died in the desert before he could escape the gas. From that point forward, the deadly gas found in the desert was known as Trauger Gas. (BSS)

Trauger Gas
known to the native Socorrans as traugi'ha, this gas was named for the bounty hunter Trauger, who came to Socorro looking for a target. The gas is found mainly in the northern polar regions, and is odorless and colorless. It forms when chemicals in the volcanic sand of the planet mix with water, forming a highly corrosive acid during the spring. As the hot summer baked the sand, the water in the acid evaporates, leaving behind the deadly gas. A being caught in a pocket of Trauger Gas will survive for just a few minutes, often just long enough to realize they peril before they expire. (BSS)

this was the Socorran name for Trauger Gas, named for the bounty hunter who came to Socorro looking for a target. The gas is found mainly in the northern polar regions, and is odorless and colorless. It forms when chemicals in the volcanic sand of the planet mix with water, forming a highly corrosive acid during the spring. As the hot summer baked the sand, the water in the acid evaporates, leaving behind the deadly gas. A being caught in a pocket of Trauger Gas will survive for just a few minutes, often just long enough to realize they peril before they expire. (BSS)

Traval-Parcor System Institute of Technology
this university taught a variety of courses on modern technology. (AIR)

Travel Biscuits
this was a brand of dry crackers developed for easy storage aboard starships. They were quite nutritious, but generally bland in flavor. (BP)

Travgen
this Jedi Knight managed to escape the Jedi Purge of Emperor Palpatine by hiding on the dead world of Ossus. There, he discovered the location of much of the ancient Jedi library, and made it his life's work to protect the ancient works from theives and the Empire. (SWJ14)

Travis, Jeet
this spacer was grounded in Mos Eisley, and met Sam Heggs in an alley there. Travis was carrying his last bottle of Vaschean Rye when the old man started rambling about his encounter with a grumph. Travis reluctantly gave Heggs a few sips of the spirit while he told the story, then traded the rest of it for a grumph egg. He realized that he had been had when he took a taste of the egg's contents, which strongly tasted like starship fuel. (TMEC)

Travnin
this moon, which orbits a gas giant located in the Minos Cluster, was the Imperial sector capital during the New Order. The moon is a windswept world which supports some rough terrain, including mountains and deserts. The gas giant it orbits is the only planet in the system, itself orbiting a double star. Travnin supports no life on its own, and the human settlers are clustered around a single city and starport. Much of the commerce on the moon was geared toward supporting the Imperial garrison, and when the Empire pulled out of the Cluster, the moon's fortunes went with it. A swoop racing arena was built by the Empire as a form of entertainment and an outlet for frustrated energy, but the poorly-built structure quickly fell into disrepair. Its rotation lasts about 26 standard hours, and its orbit consumes 325 local days. (GG6)

Travos, D.L.
this Imperial soldier was stationed aboard the first Death Star. (DSTC)

Trawler
an Alliance modular container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Trax Express
this small starliner was owned and operated by Hen Jamos, during his career as a merchant and trader in the Trax System. (GMK)

Trax Sector
an area of the galaxy located in the Outer Rim, and containing the Bissillirus System. (GMK)

Trax Tube
an intergalactic trade route that meandered through the Trax Sector. (GMK)

Traxes BioElectronics this corporation designed and manufactured equipment for aerobic and strength training. They produced some of the best myostim couches available during the New Order. (SESB)

Trayos Toreggen
this ancient Jedi Master wrote the text of Becoming One with the Force. (TOJC)

Trazzen
this Imperial Navy Captain was in command of the Obliterator, one of the thirteen Star Destroyers still under Imperial control some ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. When Moff Disra set his plans in motion to overturn the New Republic, he ordered Trazzen, along with Captains Nalgol and Argona, to ready themselves for an assault on Bothawui, following the Caamas Incident. (SOP)

Tre-na
this New Republic Navy Captain led the command staff aboard the Peregrine during the raid on Yaga Minor. (VOF)

Treaded Neutron Torch
known as a TNT, this is a tanklike vehicle that shoots balls of fire at its targets. Originally designed to operate in the spice mines of Kessel to blast away layers of rock, they can be adapted to operate in any climate. (LCJ)

Treadwell
a rolling, six-armed robot used to perform menial tasks. There are a number of different sizes in production. Smaller models perform household tasks, while the 500- and 600-series are built to withstand the pressures of working in an antimatter furnace. (SW, COJ)

Treasure of Rafa
the various artifacts and constructs left behind by the Sharu race, the treasure contains many magical tools, including the Mindharp. (LCM)

Treasure Ship Row
located in the city of Coronet, on the planet Corellia, Treasure Ship Row is a large shopping mall that is filled with all sorts of shops peddling everything from food to fashion. The shops contain items from all over the galaxy. (AC)

Treaties of Alliance
this New Republic document was created to ennumerate the responsibilities and regulations which govern the multitude of worlds which joined the Republic. It contained the various laws and expectations each world was supposed to adhere to in order maintain its membership in the Republic. (VOF)

Treatise on Starfighter Tactics
written by Adar Tallon, this document describes the five basic components to most starfighter combat: detection, closing, attack, maneuver, and disengagement. (RASB)

Treaty of Gerenis
the document which officially bound the Atrivis Resistance Group to the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. (RASB)

Treaty of Trammis
this famed treaty was orchestrated by the Jedi Master Omo Bouri some 100 years prior to the Battle of Naboo. (OWS)

Treaty of Vontor
this ancient contract bound the Nikto, Vodran, and Klatooinan races to the Hutts in perpetual servitude. It was signed more than 25,000 years before the Galactic Civil War, before the reign of Xim the Despot was ended at the Third Battle of Vontor. (GG12)

Treaty Recording System
developed by the Alliance and known to field agents as a RecSys, this holorecorder was used to document the treaties negotiated between the Alliance and the various races and cultures who fought against the Empire. It employed a set of RTZ security filters and special WORM storage chips to ensure that the recordings could not be tampered with. (SWJ1)

Trebble
this independent spacer was based out of Celanon. (SWJ14)

Trebela
a planet which was razed by its governor, Kraxith, in an effort to expose the Alliance sympathizers hidden there. (SWSB)

Trebor
Narek-Ag's co-pilot on the Moon Dash. He accepted Narek's offer of marriage as their ship exploded above Coruscant after impacting an unknown object. (LO)

Tredo Dopra
this Ithorian was the chief trader aboard the herdship Veldt during the Galactic Civil War. (MTSE)

Tredway, Axton
this former Jedi Knight was a descendant of the Tredway family which owned the 24 Tredway asteroid in the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt. He and his wife ran the mines to earn a living for their family, which included two children: Dena and Erling. Axton, like many Jedi of his age, fought in the Clone Wars, and became good friends with Anakin Skywalker. He even introduced Anakin to his family on 24 Tredway. However, the victory in the Clone Wars was a hollow one for Axton, and he returned home saddened at the state of the Old Republic. Shortly after Palpatine declared himself Emperor, Axton was hunted down and executed by Darth Vader on 24 Tredway, an event which shook his entire family. Axton's wife carried on, making the mines on the asteroid profitable enough to put Dena and Erling through school. However, both children joined the Alliance - in their own ways - and earned the anger of Imperial Governor Sebastian Parnell. In an effort to capture Erling, Parnell destroyed 24 Tredway, killing Axton's wife and severely injuring Dena. (JH)

Tredway, Dena
this daughter of Axton Tredway, Dena was an idealistic young woman who met Anakin Skywalker when she was very young. She remembered him as quite handsome, and vowed to live her life as her father and the Jedi Knights would have wanted. She joined the Alliance shortly after the Empire took control of the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt, and became one of Mon Mothma's closest aides. Her position with the Alliance was troubled when her brother, Erling, became the target of Imperial Governor Sebastian Parnell. Mon Mothma feared that Erling's knowledge of Alliance bases throughout the galaxy - and his perfect recollection of their galactic coordinates -would doom the Alliance. Since Erling was fomenting rebellion in the Sil'Lume Belt, Mon Mothma requested Dena to put an stop to his rebellion. She was unable to to so before Governor Parnell attacked 24 Tredway, killing Dena's mother and capturing Erling while severely injuring Dena in the process. She was rescued by Luke Skywalker, Gideon Smith, and Sidney Shortfang, who took her to Ire Eleazari's asteroid to recover. (JH)

Tredway, Erling
this son of the Jedi Knight Axton Tredway, Erling had an uncanny ability to remember the exact galactic coordinates of every planet or moon he visited, as well as the coordinates of thousands of other locations he had only heard of. Like his sister, Dena, Erling met Anakin Skywalker at a young age. Unlike Dena, though, Erling grew to hate the Jedi and their "misguided righteousness" because of the death of Axton at the hands of Darth Vader. Erling decided to fight against the Imperial occupation of the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt in a non-violent manner, and became the target of presecution from Imperial Governor Sebastian Parnell. Parnell eventually captured Erling, killing Erling's mother and severely injuring Dena in the process. Unknown to Erling, Dena had been ordered by Mon Mothma to keep Erling quiet, a mission picked up by Luke Skywalker after he rescued Dena. Luke, with the help of Gideon Smith and Sidney Shortfang, managed to rescue Erling from Tol Ado. During the escape, Erling had to pretend to be Darth Vader himself, in order to get past Parnell and escape the facility. (JH)

Tree Goblin
this was the Jenet name for the danchaf. (COG)

Tree of Light
a mystical tree that grows in the forests of Endor's Sanctuary Moon. It must be periodically be fed sacred dust by young Ewoks in order to rejuvenate itself. Its primary reason for existence is to keep the Night Spirit at bay. (ECAR)

Tree of Tarintha
one of the Ithorian herdships, the Tree of Tarintha houses the largest of the Ithorian master computer banks. (COJ)

Tree Tick
a large, insectoid creature native to the fourth moon of Yavin, the bulbous tree tick has six segmented arms that it uses to hold onto a tree while it leeches nutrients out of the trunk. (ISU)

Tree Viper
native to the thin band of rainforests on the planet Najarka, these snakes are not only poisonous but also constrictors. This makes them deadly predators, for any creature that can shrung off the effects of the poison is held within the snake’s coils and suffocated. The poison of the tree viper attacks the voluntary muscles of its victim, paralyzing the prey while the snake wraps its coils around it. If the prey survives both the initial effects of the poison and the constricting grasp of the snake, the poison attacks the involuntary muscles, stopping the heart and killing the prey. (TA)

Tree-Bott
an arboreal creature that lives in the tendril trees. (TME)

Tree-feeder
a spider-like droid used to feed, water, and prune the trees of Belsavis. (COJ)

Treebread
a lavender-colored bread. (TJP)

Treece
this Imperial Captain was placed in charge of Cloud City, following the departure of Lando Calrissian. (EGC)

Treem
a harmless, well-intentioned creature native to Chad III. (COJ)

Treeman’s Herb
native to the planet Naboo, this slow-growing plant is native to the planet Naboo. Extracts made from its leaves are used by the Gungans as preservatives and medicine. The leaves, once the plant is established, regrow quite rapidly. (IG1)

Treeska
this Alliance combat trooper was the only agent to survive Boba Fett’s attempt to capture Bria Tharen aboard the Queen of Empire. (RD)

Treesnake
a carnivorous reptile native to Endor, it lives in hollowed-out trees or small caves. They are covered with mucus, and have a unique tongue that has its own musculature and nerve center. They exude a tempting aroma, that attracts other predators, from their tongues, which they wave back and forth to further attract their prey. They then wait for unsuspecting predators and then strike at their victim, grabbing them with sharp teeth and strong jaws and dragging them into their hole. They bite of the treesnake is mildly poisonous, causing skin inflamation. They are sometimes known as tempters. (EA, ISU, E1A7)

Treetor
a Rodian bounty hunter hired by Jabba the Hutt. He collected a starship from Bennova, as part of a payoff to let Bennova escape from Jabba. Since then, Treetor and Jabba have parted company. (RPG)

Trefaren
this Imperial Admiral was stationed on Corellia during the early days of Imperial occuptation there. He hired Bria Tharen as his assistant, thinking her merely a pretty woman without a rebellious bone in her body. He often asked her to accompany him to important Imperial meetings, and she always agreed. These meetings allowed her to obtain information about the Empire for the rebellion on Corellia. (THG)

Treftite, Luana
this Imperial Major was in command of the Imperial garrison on Zelos II. She is an ambitious woman who aspires to greater things than commanding a small base on a backwater world. Her parents were loyal to the Old Republic, and she grew up dreaming of becoming a Jedi Knight. She was unable to complete the necessary training, however, and spurned the Jedi. She wanted power and control, and if the Force wouldn't give it to her, then surely the newly-named Emperor Palpatine would help. She rejected her parents' pleas and joined th Academy, where she became proficient in the piloting of the TIE Interceptor. She keeps an Interceptor at the Zelos base. (PG2)

Tregald
a game of chace played in most casinos. (DFR)

Tregar
this Imperial Moff controlled Merel Sector, located in the Outer Rim. He is an extremely competant man, and had developed a "good working relationship" with the Ragnar Syndicate. Tregar often employed Ragnar to take out suspected cells of Alliance support in his sector. (GG9)

Tregga
one of the smugglers who used to work with Han Solo and Roa before Han set out on his own. Tregga was caught trying to smuggle chak-root, and was sentenced to hard labor on Akrit'tar. (HSR)

Treidum
this independent spacer modified a WED-15-D3 droid, giving it six additional manipulator arms and installing a repair database in its computer memory. The result was a droid which could diagnose fix almost any problem in minimal time. (SWJ14)

Treidum, Pol
this Imperial officer served during the occupation of Ralltiir, and developed a great fear of the Alliance planting spies in Imperial positions. Treidum served as a gantry officer on the first Death Star, maintaining the security of the docking bay which held the millennium Falcon. Treidum reached the rank of Lieutenant shortly before being assigned to the Death Star. He was knocked unconscious when Chewbacca entered his control room. (CCG2)

Treidum, Rolf
this Imperial Navy Captain served under the command of Moff Sarne in the Kathol Outback. Sarne's orders were to delay the progress of the FarStar without destroying it, while turning the peoples of the various settlements against the New Republic. Treidum's history with Sarne began in the last years of the New Order, when both were stationed in the Deep Core. A no-nonsense officer, Treidum continued to work for Sarne after the Battle of Endor, where his only died fighting against the Alliance. Treidum captained the corvette Lialic II, which he renamed the Lance of Endor in order to raid Outback planets under the disguise of a New Republic starship. Treidum managed to convince several Outback worlds that he was, indeed, representing the New Republic, and thereby hindered the work of the FarStar. However, many planets saw through the ruse after meeting with the FarStar's captain and crew. Treidum was killed, and his ship destroyed, when he attempted to capture the FarStar at Danoor. The crew of the FarStar had enlisted the aid of Makezh, who called the Aing-Tii monks to help rid the system of the Imperials. The monk's Sanhedrim ship arrived just after Treidum launched a devastator missile at Danoor, and they rammed the Lialic II and the Imperial-class Star Destroyer that accompanied it. Both ships, and all hands, were lost. (KO)

Treitamma Political Center located on the planet Anchoron, this convention center was to be the site of Garm Bel Iblis' first major speech against the growing powers of Emperor Palpatine. However, Armand Isard got wind of the speech, and planned to assassinate Bel Iblis. Isard arranged for a number of bombs to be placed in the Political Center, set to explode at the start of Bel Iblis' speech. However, Bel Iblis was detained by the agent Aach, and was outside the building when it exploded. Unfortunately, Bel Iblis' entire family was inside, and they all perished. (TFNR)

Treka Horansi
one of the major Horansi tribes, the Treka Horansi were distinguished by short hair and excellent tracking skills. They were considered the best trackers among the Horansi races, better even than they Mashi if only because the Treka could hunt during the day. Despite their skills as trackers, the Treka were also the most peaceful of the four races of Horansi, detesting the hunting of their brethren as well as the poaching of Horansi by offworlders. (PG1)

Treka Point
this aging colony ship was stolen from Imperial service by a group of Alliance agents, and refitted with one agent's personal fortune.

The huge ship often served as a drop-off point for the bounty hunter Chenlambec, who worked to get important individuals out of harm's way. (SWJ10)

Trekali Mountains
this mountain range was located on the planet Sevarcos, between the Desert of Kariste and the Arienne Desert. (SWJ12)

Trelbio
this city is the capital of the planet Veron, and was also the location of the planet's primary spaceport. (PG1)

Trelbio Tower
this was the building which held the spaceport in the city of Terlbio, on Veron. More than forty stories tall, it also contained hotels and restaurants. (PG1)

Trelix, Krassis
this former military supply officer held himself in high regards, something he felt the Empire never did. When he got tired of the Imperial's lack of recognition, he simply went AWOL and fled to the Rim. He eventually joined up with the Karazak Slavers, using his skills as a supply officer to assist with the logisitics of running a major slaving operation. (GG11)

Trell
this predatory beast is native to the planet Trellar Yagen. It is prized by the Bovorians for its skin, which is tanned and cured to create a wonderful leather. Trells live in the trees, moving swiftly among the branches. (CTD)

Trell, Haber
the captain and owner of the Hopskip, he and his partner, Maranne Darmic, smuggled weapons to the Alliance forces on Derra IV. Haber was a native of the planet Carida, and spent most of his adult life wandering the spacelanes and taking on any work he could find. They also helped transport Riij Winward off Tatooine, but were intercepted by Captain Niriz and the Admonitor. (TFE, SWJ12)

Trell, Francill
this man was Vimran Trell's father. A gourmet chef, Francill owned a restaurant on Yutusk until the Empire subjugated the planet. He and his wife, Tranira, were killed when they were caught in a round-up of suspected Alliance supporters and executed. (CRO)

Trell, Tranira
this woman was Vimran Trell's mother. She and her husband, Francill, were killed when Imperial forces on the planet Yutusk began cracking down on rebel cells. They were caught in a round-up of suspected Alliance supporters and executed. (CRO)

Trell, Vimran
this Imperial Yeoman was a native of the backwater world of Yutusk. He learned to cook from his father, Francill, and was going to inherit the family restaurant when the Empire took control of their system. He was conscripted into the Empire's armed forces, and was eventually named a backup chef aboard the Adjudicator. His parents were later killed as suspected Alliance supporters, but Vimran was deemed loyal to the Empire and allowed to remain on duty. He was not, however, allowed to return to Yutusk for their funeral, and he resented the Empire ever since. His culinary expertise impressed Moff Renquet, during the Moff's visit to the Adjudicator, and Renquet requisitioned Captain Krin and the Adjudicator to be the flagship of his sector fleet. Trell became a trusted friend and ally to Captain Krin, and he used this position to obtain information for the Alliance. He passed on the information in hopes of exacting a form of revenge against the Empire, for its lack of compassion after the deaths of his parents. (CRO)

Trell'yar
this Bothanh male was a member of the group of spies which obtained the plans to the second Death Star. Subsequent investigations into the discovery of the plans led the New Republic to believe the plans were actually provided by Emperor Palpatine himself as bait for a trap. Trell'yar has been implicated by the evidence as the Imperial spy through which the plans were funneled to the other Bothans. (WBC)

Trellar Yagen
this is the third world in the Bovo Yagen System, a terrestrial world covered in thick jungles. The wilderness of these jungles are filled with predatory creatures, such as the trell, which caused many problems for the Bovorians which migrated from Bovo Yagen. A great number of carnivorous plants also live on the planet. A mineral and ore processing center was established on the planet, in order to process the materials which were mined from the Tava Yagen asteroid field. (CTD)

Trellen Trade Route
this hyperspace shipping lane passes around the Marasan Nebula. (GG12)

Trellix, Krassis
this logistics coordinator worked for the Karazak Slavers Guild during the early years of the New Republic. He often flew the Firespray-class transport Indenture under one of several other aliases. He was killed, and his ship destroyed, when he tried to waylay Fenig Nabon and Ghitsa Dogder, who were transporting a group of Twi'lek dancers to Nal Hutta. Fen and Ghitsa were flying in the Mistryl ship Fury, and the Mistryl worked with Fen and Ghitsa to eliminate Trellix's threat. (TFNR)

Tremayne
the High Inquisitor of the Empire during the Galactic Civil War, Tremayne was trained as a Jedi Knight before being seduced by the Dark Side of the Force. He was led down the dark path by none other than Emperor Palpatine, and it was rumored that Tremayne was one of the Emperor's Hands. Tremayne was eventually promoted to the position of High Inquisitor, and had an illustrious career serving Palpatine. In this position, Tremayne was answerable only to Darth Vader and the upper eschelons of Palpatine's advisors. Tremayne had been able to break every captive brought to him until he encountered Corwin Shelvay. He was disfigured in Shelvay's escape, and also lost an arm. Since then, Tremayne has scoured the galaxy, looking for Shelvay to exact revenge. Tremayne was given command of the Star Destroyer Interrogator. (GG9)

Tremayne, Matta
this woman, a native of the planet Corroth, was a Jedi Master at the time when Freedon Nadd first started training as a Jedi Knight, some 4,400 years before the Battle of Yavin. Shortly after Nadd was denied promotion to the level of full Jedi Knight, he encountered Tremayne on the planet Ossus. She was a skilled warrior with a lightsaber, and demanded to know why Nadd thought he should have been elevated to a Jedi Knight. She nearly killed Nadd several times because of his lack of training, but let him continue, recognizing that the young man was quickly realizing his mistakes. However, Nadd recognized his deficiencies too late, and cut down Tremayne with a broad sweep of his lightsaber. Matta immediately disappeared, becoming one with the Force. (TOJC)

Tremmin
a jungle plant native to Ithor. (COJ)

Trench, The
this section of the Hawk-bats' base on asteroid A3 was named because it was formed from a long, square mining shaft. The shaft itself was featureless, with a few doors off the corridor leading to storage rooms and personal quarters. However, various crates and modules often were stored here for later delivery, and Garik "Face" Loran noted that it probably resembled the equatorial trench on the first Death Star. He proved it by taking a model of an X-Wing and moving down the corridor. Shortly afterward, a member of Wraith Squadron painted the ceiling of the corridor black, and added white dots for stars, in order to complete the image of the trench. (IF)

Trench Run Defense
this New Republic starfighter tactic was modeled after tactics developed at the Battle of Yavin. If a group of pilots was attacked near a natrual trench or valley, in a deep cityscape like Coruscant, or any other broken surface, the pilots would dive for the surface and weave their wave around and through the various obstacles. This would help throw off pursuit, allowing the pilots to escape. The attackers could either follow them, and be forced to match the pilot's maneuvers, or try to follow them from above, often losing sight of the pilot for extended periods. (WS)

Trench Warfare
1) this album, released by Hyperspaze and the Jump Lanes, was banned by the Empire immediately upon its release. This didn't stop it from selling out each illicit release. (HR)
2) this was the fast-moving, hard-edged title song from the album Trench Warfare, released by Hyperspaze and the Jump Lanes during the height of the New Order. (HR)

Trenchant
this Sacheen-class light escort ship was part of the New Republic's Fifth Battle Group. Commanded by Captain Llotta, it was destroyed during the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL, TT)

Trenchant*-class Cruiser
this starship design was produced by Merkuni Drives during the last years of the Old Republic, and its use continued well into the era of the New Order. The Trenchant measured 215 meters in length,and had an angular hull. It required a crew of 140, with twenty gunners and room to transport up to 80 troops. It could carry up to 400 metric tons of cargo, and was armed with six turbolaser cannons and eight quad-laser cannons. (AIR)

Trentacal, Greezim
this large human male was one of the leaders of the Karazak Slavers Guild, and was in command of the transfer center on Gabredor III. He grew to power over a period of time, starting with many unsuccessful ventures on the criminal world of Boztrok. Eventually, he met up with the Karazak Slavers and found his niche: the buying and selling of sentient beings. He relished any assignment the Guild gave him, and flourished after the Battle of Endor and the subsequent expansion under the Pentastar Alignment. Trentacal had been assigned to with kidnap and hold the children of the Cantras Gola ambassador by the Pentastar Alignment, and he held them on Gabredor III until they were rescued by Sully Tigereye and his Red Moons assault team. In the battle, Trentacal holed up inside his personal slaving ship and command center, the Atron's Mistress, until the ship was taken by the Red Moons. In the confusion of the battle, Trentacal was killed by one of his personal slave girls before his bodyguard, a Defel named Vex, could help him. (SWJ8, TFE)

Trepennit
a creature with a beautiful, black-on-black mottled hide. (COJ)

Treppok
this species of spectacular, red-scaled fish was native to the oceans of Baralou. Measuring thirty meters in length, they were easily distinguished by their six tail fins, along with six more fins which extended from their midsection. Their skeletons were extremely strong, with an interlocking bone structure. The Krikthasi used the skeletons of dead treppok to build their homes. Treppok are peaceful creatures, attacking only when frightened or cornered. (PG1)

Treppok Call
this was the unusual call used by the Krikthasi to scare away treppok. Most often, the Krikthasi use this call to herd treppok into a position where they can kill it, using the huge fish for food and shelter. (PG1)

Treptel
this was one of the larger cities found on the planet Brosi. It was located at the base of the Taznel Mountains, and was also the site of one of Brosi's two major starports. (AIR)

Tresario, Rovan
a retired Imperial Navy officer, Rovan Tresario was the third son of a miserly baron. Rovan himself loved money, and was constantly at odds with his father. Rovan was forced to make his own way in life, and found a new family in the Imperial Navy. He had a knack for inspiring loyalty and desire in his peers and subordinates, and quickly became a respected military leader. However, for all his personal skills, Tresario was continually frustrated by the Empire's inability to crack down on piracy. Upon his retirement, Rovan used his own personal wealth and charisma to for the Tresario Bounty Hunters Guild, and financed the establishment of House Tresario, in an effort to bring down piracty in the galaxy. (GG10)

Tresario Bounty Hunters Guild
this guild was established during the height of the New Order, by Rovan Tresario. Tresario himself was frustrated at the way pirates moved throughout the galaxy, and recruited former Imperial military personnel to begin hunting the pirates down and eliminating them. (GG10)

Tresidiss
this world was privately owned and managed by a collection of Herglic criminals that used the planet as a huge gambling hall. Rather than hide casinos and other gambling houses from the law, the Herglics on Tresidiss make light of them. Over 4,000 separately-managed gambling establishments were in operation during the early years of the New Republic, and they were funded by banks which were essentially legalized loan-sharking organizations. Tresidiss remained a viable world through close ties to the Empire, even after the Battle of Endor, and it was suspected that many Moffs and planetary governors were silent partners in the operation of the world. The day on Tresidiss lasts 23 standard hours, and its year takes up 315 local days. (GG11)

Tresina Lobi
this Chev was a Jedi Knight, having learned her control of the Force at Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum. She had an innate ability to blend into a crowd, especially crowds of non-humans. Tresina and her padawan, Thrynni Vae, were dispatched to Duro to ascertain the role of independent shipping concerns in the decision to allow Duro to become a havne for refugees. Shortly after learning that several key votes in the Duros High House were bought out by independent shipping concerns, Thrynni Vae disappeared. Tresina continued to search for her, but had to return to Coruscant and explain the situation to Luke Skywalker. She also discovered that supplies for various refugee cities were being diverted to Urrdorf. (BP)

Treson Cluster
named for its inventor, a Treson cluster is a method of storing small electronic components. (ISB)

Trest
a Cloud City casino. (GG2)

Treston Lines, Limited
this major cargo transport company was based on Bespin's Cloud City. The leaders of Treston were given positions within the city's Exex during their tenure. (GG2)

Tresycht
this Saurton nation owned the land surrounding the Thergum Pits, which they sold to the Messert Mines Corporation. The Tresycht and the Yiszte nations had been at war with each other for years, so Messert augmented the Tresycht forces and subjugated the Yiszte inorder to avoid conflict over the rights to the mines. With Messert behind them, the Tresycht eventually took control of all nations on the planet, under the rulership of High Priest Gellack. (PG1)

Treva Horme
this Lutrillian female was the primary salesbeing and executive planner for Planet Dreams, Incorporated. An excellent marketer, Treva also monitored the business accounts and production schedules. (CCG5)

Trevael
one of the Spice Lords of Sevarcos, Lady Trevael ruled the planet's Northern Frontier at the height of the New Order. (SWJ12)

Trevalis
this one of the many small mining settlements established on the planet Kallistas. For all intents and purposes, Trevalis was the planetary capital, given that Imperial Prefect Rinn had his base of operations in the city. (GG10)

Trevee
this large transport ship, owned and operated by the two men known only as Tall and Short, was used to ferry refugees who were fleeing from the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Tall and Short had gone into the business of moving refugees, charging large sums of credits to get people off a backwater world and transport them to a more affluent planet. They then claimed to have problems with their ship, or claimed to be avoiding a Yuuzhan Vong patrol, and dropped the refugees off on a planet that the Yuuzhan Vong were targetting. Tall and Short would then return, charging the refugees again for transport to another destination. (JE)

Trevi City
this giant commercial city is found on the planet Trevi IV. Founded by the Truishii settlers who found Trevi IV, the city has a bazaar-like atmosphere filled with sentients from any number of worlds. It's streets are filled with booths and shops, and bright lights keep the city alive at night. (SWJ9)

Trevi IV
this planet, the fourth world in the Trevi System, was discovered by Truishii settlers who were forced to land there following a hyperdrive accident. Trevi IV is covered with barren plains broken by deserts, although the Truishii found a large body of water near which to settle. The planet's location, in the Quess Sector near the Outer Rim Territories, placed it near a number of hyperspace routes, and the planet's economy grew quickly. The Truishii Trade Guild monitored most of the business, although there are some disreputable operations to be found there. The average day on Trevi IV lasts 28 standard hours, and the year encompasses 389 local days. (SWJ9)

Treylon II
this planet was the homeworld of Tour Aryon. (GG7)

Tri-arc CD-3.2
this was the designation of one of Longe Voltrans' hyperdrive systems. This model was used on many Corellian Engineering Corporation ships during the last decades of the Old Republic. (X1)

Tri-fighter
a form of Uglies, the Tri-fighter was one of the staples of the Invid pirate fleet. It was custom designed from the basic ball-shaped cockpit of a TIE Fighter. Attached to it were three angular blades spaced 120 degrees apart. The bottom two served as landing gear, and the third came up over the cockpit. All wings had cutouts to improve pilot visibility. The standard pair of laser cannons remained, augmented by a third mounted on the upon wing. They also had shields. The New Republic's pilots referred to them as clutches. (IJ)

Tri-jet Air Brake
this was one of the more powerful air brake available to pod racers, employing three reverse-thrust jets to increasing stopping power. (RAC)

Tri-Particle Beamer
this is a form of weapon developed for use on the warships of the Daupherm military. Each weapon consists of a triad of particle-emitting weapons, which launch high-speed projectiles at their target. (CRO)

Tri-Tracker
the G-003 medium surface-to-Air anti-atmospheric gun. (ISB, TLC)

Tri'byia
this Bothan served as the Field Controller, as part of the guard and support team monitoring the Drev'starn shield generator, during the time surrounding the Caamas Incident. It was Tri'byia who allowed Drend Navett and Klif into the power generator, ostensibly to combat an infestation of metalmites. The metalmites, however, had been planted in the generator by Klif and Navett, to allow them access to the generator station. (VOF)

Triad
the governing council of three members - one human, one Drall, and one Selonian - that rules on Saccoria. They are responsible for making the various policy decisions of the planet. They used to be the Diktat's mouthpiece on the plantet, but since the Empire fell, they have become more autonomous. The Selonians who lived on Sacorria were members of a Den which was ousted from Selonia for disputing a valid settlement and turning their own against the Den. Their Den name has been banned from the Selonian language. It was later revealed that the Triad was responsible for the various revolts that occurred in the Corellian System, having funded them in order to take the attention away from their brainchild, the Starbuster Plot. (AC, SC)

Trian
the planet which is home to the Trianii race, Trian bordered on the Corporate Sector. The Corporate Sector Authority later decided to annex the planet, and revoked its charter without any discussion. The Trianii opposed it, but were quieted by the Corporate Sector Authority's less-than-admirable tactics. (CSA)

Trianii
a feline race native to the planet Trian, which bordered on the Corporate Sector, the Trianii evolved from a species of predatory felines. They were humanoidin stature, with prehensile tails and sleek fur. Female Trianii were generally stronger amd faster than the males, and the Trianii were ruled by the tribunal of females known as the yu'nar. Trianii culture is strongly based on the family, and their primary religions all stressed the need for families. When the Corporate Sector Authority decided to annex the planet, the Trianii balked. Many of them resisteed, but the planet was eventually annexed. Some of the Trianii continued to speak out against the Authority, and were captured and held at Stars' End. The most agile and cunning Trianii often become Rangers, an elite group of warriors. (HSE)

Trianii Rangers
an elite army of Trianii which is a highly-skilled legion of law enforcement officials. They are excellent marksmen, and can move with incredible stealth. (HSE)

TriAstra Belter
this huge, outdated starship was equipped with G47 tractor beam generators, and was used to move asteroids out of their current position for mining or for safety. They were manufactured by the Uquine Ship Yards. (GG2)

Triathoggoth Syndicate
this criminal organization was controlled by Jorkatt the Render, and was based in Celanon City. (POC)

Tribal Relief Fund
established by Aquato Boliscon, this legitimate charity provided food, shelter, and medical care to the various nomadic tribes of the planet Socorro. (BSS)

Tribe of Issori
this was the Issori form of representation in the government of the planet Issor. It was the equal of the Tribe of Odenji. (SWJ13)

Tribe of Odenji
this was the Odenji form of representation in the government of the planet Issor. It was the equal of the Tribe of Issori. (SWJ13)

Tribold, Castrella
this woman was Shelby Tribold's wife. (HR)

Tribold, Shelby
this man was a veteran of the Imperial 865th Regiment, and was rescued by Elbren BaChorin when the rest of the squadron ran for their lives while under attack. (HR)

Tribubble Bongo
this was the standard configuration of Gungan submarines, with a pair of cargo bubbles and a cockpit bubble. There were civilian and military versions. (E1A9)

Tribunal, The
this was the inner circle of leadership for the Society of the Black Bha'lir. All members of the Society vote to choose the Tribunal's members, and all three members of the Tribunal are elected for life. (BSS)

Tribune
this was the title given to the individual members of the Imperial Ruling Council. (XWMR)

Trichinitis
an easily treated disease. (HT)

Trickster
1) this is the brand name of Corellian Engineering’s starship decoy system. An addition to a ship’s countermeasures system, these small decoys could be deployed during flight. They sent out electromagnetic and holographic signals that duplicated those of the parent ship. The Trickster decoys required Imperial certification for operation during the New Order. (GG6)
2) this was one of the nicknames of the Yuuzhan Vong goddess Yun-Harla. (VP)

Triclops
the true son of Emperor Palpatine, Triclops is a three-eyed mutant whose third eye is located on the backside of his head. He has white, unruly hair, and his temples are scarred from years of forced shick treatments. The Empire considers him insane, and a threat to the Empire and the galaxy if he ever becomes Emperor himself. So Palpatine banished him to the spice mines of Kessel, where Trioculus cruelly abused him while plotting to take Triclops' place as Palpatine's son. Triclops developed a pattern of evil dreams at some point, and some of his dreams dealt with the development of new superweapons. Since tapping Trioculus as the false son of the Emperor, the Empire keeps Triclops alive in a hidden asylum on the planet Duro, working to reprogram his mind as well as to steal the information from his dreams. The Empire routinely denied the existence of a son of Palpatine, until Trioculus claimed he was the Emperor's son and assumed rulership of the Empire. Triclops' third eye emits an hypnotic pulse. He has always despised the Empire, and his hatred of it helped him resist the reprogramming he received on Duro. In case he ever escaped, the Imperial implanted a special device in one of his molars. It was attached to his brain, and could send signals to any nearby probe droids, detailing the fantastic creations of his dreams. (LCJ, MMY, PDS)

Trico
an edible, fungus-like algae native to the moon Yavin 8. The Melodies have many uses for trico, the primary of which is food. Young Melodies who cannot consume the silver-backed fish that populate the moon's streams must subsist on trico until their digestive systems mature. Older Melodies who have not yet had their changing ceremony also use the trico in a mesh-like mask which provides them oxygen when they dive below the surface of the water their elders inhabit. (LW)

Trident
an Alliance Mon Calamari cruiser operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Tridius
(DE1)

Triebakk
this Wookiee represented Kashyyyk as a New Republic Senator, and served on the New Republic Advisory Council when the Yuuzhan Vong invaded the galaxy. (VP)

Triellus Trade Route
this hyperspace pathway connected the Sisar Run with the Outer Rim Territories near Tatooine. (SSR)

Trieron
this planet is the third world in the Veron System. It is covered with cool oceans and glacier-covered continents, and it the site of a number of oceanographic schools, including the Sab Rufo Academy, Metharg's University, and UnitedChem/SoroSuub University. (PG1)

Triewahl Docking Station
it was at this space station that Callandri and her cousin, Zayl Braith, attempted to assassinate Alton Lochner and Tirranna the Wookiee. Only the timely intervention of Tirrannaa's companions saved the Alliance operatives. (AIR)

Trif
Davith Sconn stayed on this planet for 40 days of forced leave - the longest stretch of time he ever spent planet-bound during 24 years of service to the Imperial Navy. (SOL)

Triffian
this squat, horned, blue-skinned alien species was native to the planet Triffis. (IG1, IWE1)

Triffis
this planet was located on the inner edge of the Mid Rim, and was the homeworld of the Triffian race. (IWE1)

Trig-berry
a sweet fruit. (THG)

Triga
this compact boardgame was a favorite of spacers. (IG1)

TriGas Corporation
this gas mining company once tried to mine the planet Nosken using dirigibles. (GG2)

Trigdale Foundries
Bollux worked as a maintenance helper there, at one time. (HSE)

Trigdale Metallurgy
this raw mineral and crystal processing and refining corporation was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. It flourished under the rule of Emperor Palpatine, but then floundered shortly after the Battle of Endor. Trigdale shed many of its subordinate divisions in an effort to streamline its business. One of the few that survived on its own was the Marketing division, which became Syndicate One. (CSA, SWJ8)

Trigit, Apwar
Trigit was an Admiral with the Empire, and managed to survive the Battle of Endor and rose to power shortly thereafter. A native of Coruscant, Trigit commanded the Imperial-class Star Destroyer Implacable in service to Warlord Zsinj. Trigit went rogue after the death of Ysanne Isard at Thyferra, but later joined Zsinj's faction. It was Trigit who was responsible for leaking false information about Gravan Seven to the New Republic, hoping to draw them into a trap. This action was quite successful, resulting the loss of eleven pilots from Talon Squadron, and the decommissioning of the Talons. He wasn't as successful in attacking Folor, for his Morrts discovered the false beacons planted there by the New Republic. This earned him the ire of Zsinj, but he hoped to redeem himself by protecting Zsinj's assets. Zsinj decided that the Implacable would receive the first shipment of TIE Fighters from the Pakkerd Light Transport facility on Ession, and he sent the Implacable there with support from the Night Caller. However, the Night Caller was under the control of the New Republic, which had also commandeered the use of the Blood Nest to take the place of the Red Feathers. As the ancient container ship self-destructed, three full squadrons of Republic X-Wings burst forth from her holds and destroyed the Pakkerd facility before it could launch any TIE Fighters. The Night Caller then bombarded the Implacable with proton torpedoes, destroying her power cells and leaving the Star Destroyer adrift. Trigit ordered an evacuation and set the ship to self-destruct. He got to his personal escape craft, and was about to surrender to Edor Crespin and the New Republic when Myn Donos shot his starship and destroyed it. Trigit was killed in the explosion. (WS)

Trigon One
a weapons satellite orbiting Annoo, it was controlled by the Fromm gang until Demma Moll and her rebels were able to destroy it. (DCAR)

Trileaf
a tree native to the planet Z'trop. (MMY)

Trill
this is the twentieth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "t". (SWM)

Trill Dantor
this Gotal was a member of the rebel group which hijacked the Telgordo's Pride, shortly after the Battle of Heg. Trill pretended to be a ticket agent during the ship's escape from Bundim. In reality, Trill's "rebels" were simply pirates who robbed the passengers of the ship "in the name of the Alliance." (GMK)

Trillidor, Parmella
this woman was originally a low-tech mechanic from the Kibilini Sector, until she began attracting men. Over the course of ten years, she had six spearate marriages, and eventually gained enough voting blocks to become a director of the Kibilini Smugglers' Guild. When she learned of Artur Manliss' plans to corner the spice market in the Portmoak Sector, she decided to leave Kibilini. She took roughly half the Guild with her, forming the Anavill Smuggler's Guild and joining the Mandroxan cartel as the primary shipper of Manliss' spice. She actually won the contract from Sehvorah in a heated suvac game. Many rumors flew around that she was planning to marry Artur Manliss, in an effort to secure more control of Mandroxan. (GG11)

Trillili, Chalmer
this man was the leader of the Scourge, a pirate gang which worked on the outer fringes of Elrood Sector during the height of the New Order. He was at one time a member of the Alliance military, but he deserted when the Alliance's goals clashed with his own selfish morals. Chalmer was quite intelligent, but was a hopeless romantic who believed that pirates were the most honorable form of law enforcement. Chalmer secretly worked with Imperial Mining, Limited, and agreed to protect the planet Alluuvia from Radell Mining Corporation for a substantial fee. (OE)

Trillka
a green, froglike alien with a humanoid body, she gets involved with C-3PO and R2-D2 when they come to be owned by the Baron Pitareeze of Kalarba. She was paid by the Baron, through R2-D2, to fix a crack in C-3PO's cranial casing. When she finished, Threepio was repaired, although he had an X-shaped patch on sealant on his head. This made him look exactly like the assassin droid, C-3PX, and a series of misadventures ensued on Hosk Station. The situation was resolved, but when the droids returned to Hosk, Trillka helped them reroute an explosion set by Olag Greck so that it blows out the top of the spaceport, rather than downward into the planet. (DRO)

Trilon, Incorporated
this small starship designer produces fewer than a dozen different designs. It also produces small runs each year. Trilon's best designs are in starship hulls, and it licenses the use of components from Arakyd, Kuat Drive Yards, and Sienar Fleet Systems. This allows Trilon's customers to mix and match their components, and create a custom-built product. (EGV)

Trilos
this is the primary satellite of the planet Atraken. When the planet was devastated during the Clone Wars, most of the planet's inhabitants fled to the mining outposts on Trilos to live. (PG2)

TriLuna
manufacturers of large-scale stardrives and hyperdrive motivators for capital ships. (SCRE)

Trimantium
this material is used to plate starship hulls. It is extremely durable, and provides a great deal of protection when used in combination with shields. (SWJ9)

Trimpian
this food source is often cooked in slices, and is often served with miasra sauce. It had a tangy taste. (VOF)

Trin
this game of chance was popular in many casinos, and involved the placement and replacement of sticks in a pile. (SESB)

Trine
the season on the planet H'nemthe which is marked by the simultaneous display of the planet's three moons at night. (TME)

TriNebula News
this news agency covers the action in roughly a quarter of the Outer Rim Territories, inclduing Parmel, Quence, and Portmoak Sectors. They were fiercely pro-Imperial during the Galactic Civil War, and openly ridiculed Palpatine's opponents in their tabloid-style reports. TriNebula News was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Auhtority. Note that the Star Wars Adventure Journal refers to this ageny as TriNebulon News. (GG9, CSA, SWJ8)

Trinivii
one of the more powerful Hutt *kajidic*s. (RD)

Trinja, Cheryl
this young woman was naturally strong and adept with the Force, and used it to communicate with the animals that lived in the forests surrounding her farm home. After her parents were killed during the Imperial subjugation of her homeworld, Cheryl hid in the forests and grew up there, separated from the rest of humanity. She was coaxed out of hiding shortly after the Battle of Endor by a group of New Republic agents and Jedi students, all of which discovered that her powers were far more advanced than their own. (GMS)

Trinka
this hot, rocky world is the first planet in the Elrood System. A small group of researchers maintains a small station on the planet. (PG)

Trinkatta Starships
headquartered on the outskirts of Calamar, on the planet Esseles, this starship manufacturer was owned by Boll Trinkatta. Trinkatta was contracted to develop and build fifty hyperdrive-equipped droid fighters shortly before the Battle of Naboo. The Jedi Council sent Adi Gallia to investigate who paid Trinkatta to build them, but she disappeared. Much of the facility in Calamar was controlled by droids, with minimal human involvement. When Boll Trinkatta learned that the starfighters were Xi Charran designs commissioned by the Trade Federation, he refused to help and was also imprisoned when Bartokk assassins re-programmed the factory's droids to eliminate any resistance. It was later revealed that Darth Sidious himself had ordered the manufacture of the droid starfighters, as part of a plan to seize control of the plant Brentaal, thereby controlling the Hydian Way and the Perlemian Trade Route. (E1A1, E1A3)

Trinn
Keyan Farlander's uncle, living on the planet Oorn Tchis. Keyan asked Trinn and his wife, Mimya, to take care of Kitha following the Imperial invasion of Agamar. (XW)

Trinta
1) this swampy planet was the site of a nexus of the energies of the Dark Side of the Force. The fifth planet orbiting the star Yartiv, Trinta was first discovered by the Ithorians, but even the nature-loving Ithorians disliked the planet immediately. They named it for the realms of demons in their mythology and left it alone. More than ninety percent of the planet was covered with fetid swamps, with the remaining area dotted by tiny islands and mudbanks. Many decades later, the nexus flared and engulfed the entire planet after Halagad Ventor arrived on the planet, fleeing the Jedi Purge and Darth Vader. It orbited the red star Yartiv, in a sector of the Outer Rim Territories. Several attempts have been made to colonize the planet in the modern era, but the Dark Side nexus drove the settlers mad before too long. Trinta's gravity was somewhat less than standard, but the difference was often made up by the deep mud which covered most of the planet. (DOE)
2) this was the name of the realm of demons in the Ithorian mythology. (DOE)

Trintic
this alien race joined the New Republic. They were a technically-adept race, and served often as starship technicians. (SOP)

Trinto Duaba
this Stennes Shifter uses his ability to blend into a crowd to uncover, track, and capture lawbreakers. He turned them in to Imperial authorities for the reward money. He spent some time on Tatooine, and could be found in the Mos Eisley cantina. (CCG)

Trioculus
this mutant human claims to be the banished son of the late Emperor Palpatine. His mutation is manifested in the presence of a third eye in the center of his forehead. This third eye has hypnotic powers. As a child, he was ridiculed by the other schoolchildren on home world of Kessel, and he became obsessed with exacting revenge on them. He studied a great deal of the history of the Imperial war machine, and became an expert on Imperial military tactics. He grew to become a ruthless leader, cruel and evil in his treatment of others. He was serving as the Supreme Slavelord of the Kessel spice mines when Grand Moff Hissa began to cultivate a friendship with him, in an effort to prepare him as a replacement for Triclops, Palpatine's true mutant son. His trusted droid, Emdee-5, had implanted a cybernetic device in his body that would allow him to created simulated Force lightning, giving the impression that Trioculus was gifted with the Force, even though he had no sensitivity whatsoever. When he tried to bargain with Zorba the Hutt for Princess Leia's life, Zorba captured him and froze him in carbonite. Supreme Prophet Kadann recovered a fake, frozen form of Trioculus and vaporized it, thinking that he had killed the pretender. However, Zorba kept the real Trioculus on board the Zorba Express, where it was recovered by the Grand Moffs near Tatooine. He was about to marry Princess Leia, who had been taken from Zorba along with Trioculus, but Han Solo and Luke Skywalker replaced her with a replica droid. The droid fatally wounded him during the wedding ceremony, and he died shortly after. (GDV, ZHR, MMY, QE, PDS)

Triogor SIlus
this Quarren was a pilot for the New Republic, but was antagonistic and often violent with his squadron mates. When he was given the chance to join Wraith Squadron, the showed some aptitude with the X-Wing. However, when he assaulted Jesmin Ackbar for no apparent reason, he was expelled from consideration. (WS)

Trip
this was New Republic starfighter pilot slang for a TIE Defender, named for its triple wing configuration. (IR)

Tripion
this was the generic name for over sixty species of scorpion-like creatures native to the moon Yavin 13. Unlike the scorpions of Tatooine, the Tripion had three stingers at its rear, to supplement its claw-like pincers and thin legs. (GG2)

Triplanetary Press
publishers of many fiction and non-fiction literary works, Triplanetary was one of the original non-voting contributing sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (SWSB, CSA)

Triple Nova Casino
located in the resort community of Le Yer, on Abregado-Rae, this casino was owned and operated by Friizt during the height of the Galactic Civil War. It was decorated in loud, gaudy colors and appointments. (ND)

Triple Tam
manufacturers of stardrives and hyperdrive motivators for capital ships. (SCRE)

Triplehorn Mountains
a mountain range dominated by three tall peaks, this landwark was found on the planet Alderaan. (GOF3)

Tris
this creature was illegal to transport off its native planet, during the New Order. Thaddeus Ross almost got caught transporting a baby tris to Tatooine, shortly before he took Adalric Brandl to Trulalis. (TFE)

Trisk's Medo-thermal Guide
this medical reference details the bollen patterns of many sentient species. (CFG)

Trisstan
this Godling of the Anointed People was the Godking of Masterhome during the Galactic Civil War. Although he believed the Alliance was correct in fighting against the Empire, he was soured to their ways by Captain Jayhawk and the crew of the Martinette, who had posed as Alliance agents before stealing a wealth of treasure from the Anointed People. (SWCP)

Trith Prancer
this large, blue-gray creature was bred on several worlds as a mount. They had six strong legs, and genetic manipulation had given them a natural form of saddle along their spine. Many aristocrats considered them luxurious curiosities, while others trained them and rode them in competition. One of the hardest things a rider could master was the ability to have the prancer rise up on its two rear legs and paw the air with its front four legs. Harder still was the ability to have the prancer gallop on its rear four legs, while holding the front two legs in the air. The trith prancers communicated via a series of musical trills. (RP)

Trition Trade Route
one of the primary hyperspace commerce lanes of Kathol Sector. (KO)

Triton
a dead, lifeless world with several lifeless moons, that Han Solo references when his Tauntaun dies on Hoth. (ESBN, REB)

TriTracker
the nickname of CoMar G-003 air defense battery. (ISB)

Triumph
1) one of the Imperial-class Star Destroyers used by the Empire to guard Coruscant, it was present when the New Republic tried to take control of the planet. (WG)
2) one of six Kathol Republic Marauder-class corvettes sent to rescue the Bravado III from attack, shortly after the FarStar offered assistance. The 195-meter vessel was armed with eight double turbolaser cannons and three tractor beam projectors. (KO)

Triumphal Arch
this tall, curving arch spanned the Palace Plaza, just in front of the Theed Palace on Naboo. (IWE1)

Triumphant
one of the Star Destroyers that formed to core of Moff Vanko's fleet. (RM)

Triumverate
this is the formal name given, by the Tunroth, to the planets Jiroch-Reslia, Kalok, and Saloch. Jiroch-Reslia is the homeworld of the Tunroth race, the Kalok and Saloch were later colonized by them. (GG12)

Trivinii
this was one of the most powerful Hutt kajidics during the New Republic. (JE)

Tro'Har
a frigid world covered with frozen ice and methane, Tro'Har is the fifth planet in the Coyn System. The name "Tro'Har" means "farthest" in the Coynese language. It is the location of a navigational beacon placed there by the Coynites to direct incoming traffic. (PG)

Trobe Saar
this Fallanassi lived on the planet Teyr with Norika, in the years following the evacuation of Lucazec. (SOL)

Trogan
primary planet of the Trogan system, it was the site of the initial meeting between the various smuggling leaders during Grand Admiral Thrawn's reign of terror. Its natural ecosystem is unusually violent, with strong storms sweeping across barren steppes and lush plains. The three moons that orbit the world create intense tidal activity, and the coastlines of Trogan's continents are continually eroding. (DFR, TLC, LCSB)

Troglith
this creature lives in the trees of the planet Yelsain. It dislikes contact with other creatures, especially the humans who settled the planet. The skirmishes between them became popularized by holo-vids produced on Adarlon. (GG6)

Trogwhale
this giant, horned ocean mammal is found on the planet Kintan. Like many of the species found there, it has evolved over the millennia from a series of mutations caused by radiation from the M'dweshuu Nova. (GG12)

Troig
this is a species of two-headed alien found in the Outer Rim Territories. Troigs often have different colorations on each head, most often green and red, and each head is supported by a long neck. Their stout bodies are studded with four long arms and short legs. Each head is capable of independent thought, and each is humanoid in appearance. (SW1, TPM, IG1)

Troiken
this Outer Rim planet was the homeworld of the Xexto, a species of thin-bodied alien has six appendages that can be used either arms or legs, depending on the needs of the individual creature. (TPM, RAC, IG1)

Trole
an Alliance transport ship destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Trome, Notha
this depot manager worked for Starway Services, in Taldaak Station. It was Trome, under orders from Akanah and the White Current, who ordered work on the Mud Sloth to take precendence over all other work. (TT)

Trommer, Ranulf
this son of a life-time military family grew up on Vogel 3, where his father was stationed during the New Order. His father and smoothly reconciled the transition between the Old Republic and the New Order, but Ranulf did not. He followed in his father's footsteps, though, and made it through the Academy on Vogel 3 with good grades. He eventually became one of the Empire's best TIE Fighter pilots, until he was chosen for the raid on Aguarl 3. There, his entire wing of TIE Bombers was destroyed, and only his ability to fly kept him from crashing into the seas. He managed to return to the Star Destroyer Ravagor, where a medical droid waas forced to replace some of his limbs with prosthetic, cyborg limbs. Following this accident, Trommer was assigned as an aide to Governor Grigor on M'haeli, and given orders to keep a watchful eye on the Governor. While on M'haeli, he infiltrated a group of Alliance supporters, and won the favor of the human heiress, Mora. The rebels held Trommer in obvious suspicion until Trommer discovered the Grigor was secretly mining dragite and keeping the profits for himself. Trommer also discovered that Grigor was using H’drachi slaves to mine the dragite. The group of rebels, with the assistance on Leia Organa, were able to destroy the dragite mines and bring Grigor’s reign to an end. Trommer then defected to the Alliance. (ROC)

Tromonid
an insectile creature with four legs, a long tail, and two large pincers used to capture its prey. The female of the species special sacs along her side that fill with poison, making the tromonid deadly to eat. The tromonid is often milked for its poison by criminals. (JTH)

Trompa
a massive, bipedal creature, the trompa is a 3-meter tall killing monster. It has long arms, with huge paws and sharp claws. It is covered with fur, and its face resembles a cross between a gorilla and a Tyrannosaurus Rex. The trompa is a distant relation to the wampa ice creature found on Hoth, but it has adapted to life in warmer climates. (GCQ)

Tron Boral Maneuver
sometimes described as esoteric, this starship maneuver was used by Grand Admiral Thrawn during his first sweep through New Republic space about five years after the Battle of Endor. (VOF)

Tron Nixx
the navigator in Drek Drednar's pirate crew, Nixx was a native of the planet Corlass. He had some control of the Force, and used it to chart a safe course through the Quintar Nebula. He eventually discovered Taraloon. (SWAJ)

Tronis
this is the smallest of the three continents found on Algara II. (PG2)

Tront
this Gamorrean pirate worked for Grappa the Hutt. Tront hated droids, and was fond of slicing them in half with his vibroaxe. Although Tront worked for Grappa, he was slightly more loyal to his leader, Sol Mon. (CE2)

Troomis
an Alliance spy posing as a tech for the Empire, he joined the Alliance after the Imperials killed his sister in am ambush. His cover, as a dim-witted technician, allowed him to make a wide range of contacts at the Imperial bases he worked in. He was responsible for relaying the recorded information regarding the attack by the Imperial Oplovis fleet on Mantooine. (RASB)

Troob
one of the two sentient races native to the planet Tahlboor, the Troobs were humanoid in stature. They had dark blue skin, unlike the Hobors which tended toward brownish skin. Both races are characterized by their wide faces, which are flanked by a several rings of spade-shaped flaps. Five sets of these flaps ring the upper part of the head, and hair is interspersed among the flaps. The flaps stand upright, away from the head. The rest of their faces are cat-like, with a long, flat nose and toothy mouths. Like the Hobors, a thick mane of hair covers the back of their head. Most of the Troobs are heavyset in build. Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Troobs and Hobors appealed to Tion Hegemony to assist in reconciling a generations-old feud between them while negotiating a trade agreement. Counselor Harthan was called in, but was manipulated out of position by his son, Jake, who hoped to get the two races to destroy each other so he could control Mount Yeroc. Eventually, with the help of R2-D2 and C-3PO, Jake's plans were thwarted and peace was restored. (DRPC)

TrooperBreath
this drink, created in the bars of Il Avali on Druckenwell, had a weird, chartreuse color. (TFE)

Troos
this planet was known for the diversity of is arthropodal species. (COG)

Troos Armored Crebik
this creature lived in the subartic forests of the planet Troos, making its home in the pinnoc trees and preying on other arthropods. What made these creatures unique was their method of hunting prey. Because their shells were extremely thick and heavy, crebiks would simply hang in the trees and wait for their prey to pass below. The crebik then released its grip and fell like a stone, crushing the prey and breaking open its shell to expose the flesh. Crebiks themselves were immune from attack, since no other creature on Troos could penetrate their own thick shell. Crebiks mated by traveling to the nearby body of water and consuming great quantities of it, causing their bodies to expand and exposing vulnerable flesh. A mating dance ensues, and the crebiks release the water at the end of the ritual. Each crebik had eight legs, the foremost pair being tipped with heavy claws and used like arms. A powerful pair of pincers surrounded their mouths. (COG)

Trooshti
this small, winged species of lizard resembles a yellow-furred dragonfly. They have blue wings and red eyes, and require a wet, damp environment in which to live. A colony of them took up residence in a cave-like water chamber in an abandoned moisture farm on Tatooine, after being transported to the planet as exotic pets. Shortly before the historic Boonta Eve Classic podrace won by Anakin Skywalker, the batteries which provided power to the pumps that kept water flowing to their hidden caves failed. A group of daring trooshti traveled to Mos Espa and stole the battery out of Anakin's podracer. They were caught by Jar Jar Binks and Queen Amidala, who tracked them to the moisture farm. Amidala recognized the problem with their equipment and fixed a reversed polarity problem which had been draining their batteries instead of charging them. The trooshti then returned Anakin's battery. (QA)

Trophill Gardens
located in the East Minor section of Imperial City, this is a major tourist attraction on Coruscant. (SOL)

Trophy Chase
this team sport evolved on Dalos IV, and involved teams of riders flying immature nephs to maneuver over a wide playing field. Using repulsor-equipped clubs, players tried to knock an anti-grav ball into the opposing team's target ring. There were few rules to the sport, and most matches were decidedly violent in nature. (ND)

Tropis, Adarian
a former legislator, Adarian and a group of idealistic colonists left Salliche about 250 years before the Galactic Civil War. They left in search of their own world, being disaffected by the corruption and ineffective bureaucracy, and eventually settled on Varonat. The colonists instituted an agrarian lifestyle, which they felt was threatened by the slime trails left by the Morodin. However, the Morodins found a way to communicate with the colonists, and revealed the value of the nutrient-rich slime. (SWJ1, SWJ13)

Tropis-on-Varonat
this is a jungle city found the planet Varonat, found in the backwater of the Ison Corridor. Note that the Essential Guide to Characters lists Tropis-on-Varonat as Tropis-on-Varont*, a planet.* (SWJ1, EGC, DFRSB)

Tropsobor
an Imperial escort carrier assigned to transport TIE Advanced prototypes to the Protector near Gerbaud 2. (TIE)

Trosh
a planet subjugated by the Empire. (POT)

Trosilon
this was the codename used by Fulkrehm Protial during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Troujow, Hasti
a short, slender, pale girl with red hair, Hasti and her sister Lanni were miners on the planet Dellalt, working for J'uoch and R'all. When Lanni discovered the log-recorder from the Queen of Ranroon, she is killed by J'uoch. Hasti flees, seeking shelter with her friend Badure. Together, they enlist the aid of Han Solo in finding the Queen and avenging Lanni's death. (HSL)

Troujow, Lanni
Hasti's sister, they resemble each other quite closely. They were both working in the Dellaltian mines under J'uoch and R'all, when Lanni discovered the log-recorder from the Queen of Ranroon. Lanni began asking discreet questions about the legendary ship, but her inquiries reached the ears of J'uoch and R'all, who wanted to claim the starship for themselves. They ordered Lanni killed and the log-recorder stolen, but their people only succeeded in killing Lanni, who had alerted her sister of the recorder's existence before she hid in a lock-box. Lanni was a fair pilot, having inherited her father's Pilot's Guild book, and was able to make the transport runs for the mining operation. (HSL)

Trovin, Dalea
one of the few female Imperial Customs officers, Dalea Trovin was in charge of the Votrad spaceport on the planet Brentaal. She was responsible for seizing a huge Alliance warehouse full of rawmat during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ9)

Trox
the Imperial Navy Captain in charge of training Maarek Stele. (TIE)

Tru-Lok 5000
a starship laser cannon manufactured by Senko Systems. (HTSB)

Tru'eb Cholakk
this Twi'leki smuggler was an acquaintance of Platt Okeefe, and worked often for the Alliance as well as the New Republic. He owned the Luudrian Star, which he used to run weapons in the Mid and Outer Rims. As a youth on Ryloth, Tru'eb aspired to become a member of the headclan of Kala'uun, his home city. He hoped to arm the Twi'leks and allow them to resist the slavers who continually raided their planet. However, he soon found that he had become a slave himself, owned by Big Quince. However, Quince used Tru'eb more as a personal servant than a slave. Tru'eb, for all his loyalty to Big Quince, continually schemed to escape. His plans were furthere when he met a yougn slavefirl named Platt Okeefe. They stole Quince's personal shuttle and fled. Platt later paid Tru'eb for his help in escaping from Big Quince, and he used the money to buy the Luudrian Star. Both Tru'eb and Platt were working on Zelos II, and had hired Dirk Harkness to help, when they discovered the hidden Imperial garrison there. They tipped the New Republic to the garrison's location, but Harkness went in to ensure the base was destroyed. He was captured in the attempt, and the Republic's forces were virtually wiped out. Platt and Tru'eb eventually rescued Harkness, since both believed he was a good man, and also rescued Jai Raventhorn. (SWJ8, TFNR, CRO)

Truant Guides
this branch of the Keganite Enforcement Guides ensured that each and every Keganite child attended school in the Learning Circle until they were sixteen years old. (FFT)

Trubor
this Chadra-Fan Senator of the New Republic failed to see the danger of the Diversity Alliance. He scoffed at the testimony of Jacen and Jaina Solo, who brought word of the Diversity Alliance from Ryloth to Corsucant. He agreed to accompany a group of New Republic representatives to Ryloth to see what the Diversity Alliance was all about. When the true nature of the Diversity Alliance was exposed, a firefight broke out. Trubor was shot and killed ealry in the battle. (TEP)

Truchong, Brindy
this female Corellian was on Tatooine just prior to the Battle of Yavin. She was working for the Alliance, trying to search out suppliers who would help the Alliance. (CCG2)

True Guild
this was one of the two factions which rose up in the wake of the destruction of the Bounty Hunters Guild. It was led by Gleed Otondon and the elders of the former Guild, and mimicked the old Guild in many ways. However, in the wake of the bounty put out for Trhin Voss'on't and the efficient way the Imperial officer dispatched most of the hunters who came after him, neither faction could sustain its membership. In the end, both the True Guild and the Guild Reform Committee were disbanded. (SLS, HM)

True Gunner
the highest Alliance award given to starship gunners. (MTS)

True Invid
this was the title earned by those elite few Invid pirates who either earned the right to serve aboard the Invidious through combat merit or by "berth duty," serving as Leonia Tavira's bedmate. (IJ)

True Site
this is one of SoroSuub's low-power laser sighting devices designed for mounting onto a blaster. (CFG)

True Ubese
this is the name adopted by those members of the Ubese culture that survived the destruction of the Uba System and remained on Uba IV. They considered those Ubese who fled to Ubertica to be yrak pootzck. (SESB)

True-fleck Implants
this artificial brain tissue works with the hypergleanum gland to produce the chemicals necessary to decode sensory information. These implants allow cyborgs to process additional sensory data provided by optical or aural prosthetics. (CFG)

Trufflite
this small creature is considered a delicacy by many of the galaxy's more discerning species, such as the Hutts. (MA)

Trugut
this was a Huttese unit of money, and was in prominent use in the Outer Rim Territories during the last decades of the Old Republic. Note that in the screenplay for Star Wars:Episode I – The Phantom Menace*, they are referred to as* wupiupi. (SW1, TPM)

Truishii
this space-faring race is known for its large trade caravans. (SWJ9)

Truishii Trade Guild
this guild is renowned for its respectable business practices. The Truishii guild manages business on all of the Truishii colony worlds. (SWJ9)

Trulalis
the primary planet in the Trulalis System, Trulalis was also the least prosperous. It was removed from the worlds of Issor and Cadezia by distance, and was regarded as low-tech by the Issori. The Issori banned middle- and high-technology from the planet, and the natives have more or less accepted the roles of farmers and workers. It is covered with rich, green forests, wide grasslands, and oceans. Although the native Issori have kept the planet low-tech, many remember its thriving days as a fine liberal arts education center during the Old Republic. The average day on Trulalis lasts 23 standard hours, while its year lasts 310 local days. (TFE, SWJ8)

Trulalis Stage Company
this was one of the most prestigious acting guilds on the Outer Rim, boasting the likes of Adalric Brandl and his son, Jaalib, among their members. However, after the fall of the Old Republic and when Trulalis was relegated to low-tech status by the Issori, the company was disbanded. (SWJ8)

Trun'
this was one of the primary crops grown on the planet Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Truncheon
a weapon which is similar in design to a force pike. (IJ)

Trunk Ripper
this large, arboreal mammal inhabited several backwater worlds. They have a prehensile tail that allowed them to move through the branches in search of bugs. They had heavy claws on their forefeet, which they used to tear the bark from trees which are infested by insects. The ripper's long snout enabled it to reach bugs that burrowed deep into the wood of the tree. Although they resembled large birds and could travel from branch to branch in short jumps, their forelegs were incapable of launching them into flight. (IA)

Trunkflute
a Kubazi musical instrument. (WG)

Trunska
this rocky world was located in the Colonies region, and was the homeworld of the Trunsk race. It was a cool world with a thin atmosphere. (SWJ13)

Trunsk
this large, humanoid race of beings was known for their fighting ability and short tempers. Native to the planet Trunska, the Trunsks adapted to life on the cold, thin-atmosphered planet by evolving cave-like nostrils and large ears. Their ancestors were clawed predators, but the Trunsks eventually developed sentience and began using their hands to form and use tools. Their early civilization was based on military strength and power, until Tyl the Deplorable used his military genius to turn his army into a police force and conquered their homeworld. This stopped the intense wars which raged between the clans, freeing up a great amount of funds with which they began developin technology. Trunsks soon developed their own hyperdrive, but their ability to travel the galaxy was cut short when Emperor Palpatine instituted the New Order. Declared a slave species, the Trusnks were the made the centerpieces of many intergalactic circuses and gladiator fighting rings, despite the fact that they are intelligent and independent. Trunsks are covered with short, stiff fur, and two tusks protrude from their lower jaws. (TFE, SWJ13)

Trustant
this is the title given to the Caamasi who leads the individual Caamasi Remnant communities. The Trustant is responsible for maintaining the community's ways in hopes of one day returning to Caamas. (IJ)

Truthful Toryn
this Duros owned a used starship lot on the planet Tralus during the early years of the New Order. Han Solo tried to sell the Talisman to Toryn, who was aware of the fact that the ship was listed as stolen. He could only offer Han a scrap-metal price for the ship, since it was stolen property, but offered to give a little more if Han would tell him a story. Han was in a hurry, and passed on the story, but took the scrap price in cash. Five years later, after Han was dishonorably discharged from the Imperial armed forces for rescuing Chewbacca, Toryn gave the young man a job as a pilot and repairman. (TPS, THG)

Truuine
this world, the only planet in the Truuine System, was used as a training site by the ancient Jedi Master Mroon Jassa, some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

Truuzdann
a small spaceport world in the Corellian system. (SCRE)

Tryan Kajme
this YT-2400 freighter was owned and operated by Kaj Nedmak. Kaj and his partner, Celia Durasha, were forced to crashland the ship on Ord Mantell, after being intercepted by agents sent by Bwahl the Hutt to recover Kaj. The Tryan Kajme was destroyed in the crash. (SWJ14)

Trynic
this Devaronian tramp freighter captain has piercing red eyes, a trait which generally unnerves his associates. He was long considered one of the best tramp pilots in the Minos Cluster, because of his shrewd business sense and ability to quickly assess a situation's profit potential. He genuinely loves the solitude of space travel, even with the wanderlust most Devaronian males feel. His ship, the converted YT-1300 known as the Solar Flare, has been modified to accept much larger cargoes than a stock freighter. Trynic was known throughout the Cluster as "The Devil," a nod to his appearance as well as an acknowledgement of his business skills. (GG6)

TS-138
the cell block from which Han Solo and Luke Skywaler claim they are transferring Chewbacca, when they try to rescue Princess Leia. This is another veiled reference to George Lucas' THX-1138. (SWN)

Tsaelke
the graceful, long-necked cetaceans of Chad III's deep oceans. They are large beasts, measuring up to 12 meters in length and four meters in width, and are naturally spirited and curious. The natives of Chad have learned to use them as mounts, and can be seen riding tsaelke as they herd bildogs and proop. One unusual feature of these creatures is their hand-like flippers, which have a semi-opposable thumb that can be used to manipulate large objects. Individuals can be easily identified by their brown markings which are patterns of spots, stripes, and rings. Callista had them carved into the handle of her lightsaber, for her family used to migrate the with herds to support its ranch. (COJ, SWJ10)

Tsaisi
this snake-like creature was genetically created by the Yuuzhan Vong. Shorter and narrower than an amphistaff, the tsaisi was worn coiled around the arm as a sign of a Yuuzhan Vong's position within the military. The tsaisi was of the same species as the amphistaff, but was much more delicate and more difficult to wield in battle. That made its appearance very rare, and the wearer was a warrior of incredible skill in both battle and command. (DTO)

Tsall, Writ
this mercenary found himself on the planet Glova, after a series of embarassing misadventures. He sold his services as a hired gun and sharpshooter to the various criminal elements on the planet. (POC)

Tsavong Lah
this Yuuzhan Vong was the Warmaster in command of the forces led by Shedao Shai which invaded the galaxy. Because of his bravery in battle and his ability to lead others, Tsavong Lah had undergone the ritual of escalation countless times. His body, a mixture of true flesh and surge-coral implants, closely resembled that of the deity Yun-Yammka, the Yuuzhan Vong god of war. Hos body armor was actually grown from his flesh, with individual scales imbedded in his skin. The scales were actually living creations, and had attached themselves to his bones and distorted his limbs to a degree. He hated the fact that Nom Anor was given so much leeway by the Supreme Overlord, Shimmra, but agreed that the Jedi needed to be removed in order to take control of the galaxy. During the attack on Duro, Tsavong Lah managed to capture Leia Organa-Solo, and planned to use her as his first Jedi subject. However, Randa the Hutt sacrificed himself in order to help Leia escape, and Tsavong Lah was nearly killed in battle with Leia and her son, Jacen. Ultimately, the Warmaster left Duro without a Jedi, and without the wealth of sacrificial refugees he had hoped to obtain. In the wake of the Battle of Duro, Tsavong Lah claimed he would put an end to the hostilities and leave the Core Worlds alone, provided that the New Republic turn over Jacen Solo to the Yuuzhan Vong. (DTR, JE, BP)

Tschel
a Lieutenant in the Imperial Navy, Tschel served under Captain Pellaeon aboard the Chimaera during the reign of Grand Admiral Thrawn. After Thrawn's death, Tschel continued to serve Pellaeon, rising in rank a Major and serving as Pellaeon's chief bridge officer during Pellaeon' struggle with Moff Disra. (DFR, SOP)

Tseeach
this Fyodoi tribal shaman is the spiritual leader of the Roh tribe. Like all Fyodoi shamen, Tseeach carries a small transmitter that will warn him if the control station on Tharak is attacked. He is training his son, Erloi, to follow in his footsteps as shaman. (PG2)

Tselgormet Prize
a culinary award given annually to the galaxy's best chef. The chef Porcellus once won it five years in a row, while endentured to Moff Mylore. (TJP)

Tshindral III
this airless, lifeless planetoid was known as the location of Gateway Space Station. Tshidral III had a day which lasted 25 standard hours, and its year took up 300 local days. What little atmosphere the planetoid did retain was laden with toxins and corrosive elements which could erode the hull of a small freighter in less than a local day. No one was sure what sort of holocaust destroyed the planet, although there was no end to speculation among the patrons of the Falling Star Saloon. (WSV)

Tsi
this was the native language of the Mrlssti. (PGT)

Tsil
this is the word used to describe the crystalline rock formations found on the planet Nam Chorios. Those tsil formed from Spook crystals were acutally sentient spires of rock. (POT)

Tsillin Wel
this female Quarren served as a New Republic Intelligence agent whose job was to pore through Imperial expenditure records to locate "black holes." These "black holes" were expenses that couldn't be explained, and might possibly lead to anti-Alliance operations that could still exist. Among the things she searched for was evidence that Tycho Celchu had been on the Imperial payroll. In this capacity, she served as a material witness in Celchu's trial, and detailed that credits had been deposited into accounts for Celchu, but that there was no evidence that he was aware of them. (KT)

Tsinimal
this alien race subjugated the planet of Langhesa nearly 100 years before the Battle of Naboo, enslaving the native Langhesi. The Tsinimals regarded the Langhesi skills in genetic manipulation to be an affront to their gods, and sought to wipe them out. Many xenoarchaeologists note that mass-murder and galactic conquest did not bother the gods. (RP)

Tsore
this Gallofree medium transport was used by the Alliance to transport bacta during the Galactic Civil War. (XWA)

Tsorria
one of the two permanent polar ice caps located on Stroiketcy, Tsorria was named for the word "lower" used by its discoverers. (GG2)

Tsoss Beacon
an abandoned space station deep in the galactic Core, the station was built by droids and suicide teams on a barren planetoid. The station was created as an automated beacon for ships moving through the Core. The station fell into disrepair around the time of the Battle of Yavin, and was abandoned. It was here that Admiral Daala convened a meeting of the surviving Imperial warlords following the destruction of the Eye of Palpatine. (DS)

Tsukkian Water Freighter
this kind of starship was designed to carry huge cargoes of water to desert planets and other water-starved worlds, for purposes of terra-forming and in times of drought. During the height of the New Order, these ships were considered clunky and out-of-date, but nonetheless found usage among mercenary and pirate fleets because of their durability. (SWCP)

Tsyk
this planet is the homeworld of the Tsyklen race. (THG)

Tsyklen
this round, hairless race is native to the planet Tsyk. They have large eyes, pale skin and slender features. Each hand is studded with seven fingers and two opposable thumbs. (THG)

TT-40
this library droid was assigned as the recorder of assignments and transactions for the Supervisor's Committee on the city of Griann, on Teyr. TT-40 was an officious, ill-tempered droid. (SOL)

TT-8L
this round droid is attached to a jointed arm that can extend or retract the main sphere. TT-8L droids are used as door greeters, communicating with new arrivals and then alerting the residents that someone has come to see them. (POT)

Tteel Kkak
this Jawa was the leader of the Kkak clan when they discovered the crashed starship containing Jabba's rancor. They expected to find a great salvage from the ship, but the rancor had devoured the crew and damaged much of the ship. Many of his clan were killed discovering the rancor. (TJP)

Ttul'Thar
a Kian'thar businessbeing who worked as a mediator for MadisCorp. (GG12)

TT4 Macrobinoculars
designed and manufactured by NeuroSaav, this model of holorecording macrobinoculars served two purposes. First, it was a standard pair of macrobinoculars. Second, it was capable of recording what the users was viewing. Most early models, produced during the early years of the New Republic, were very expensive.

Tu Shoolb
this Yuuzhan Vong served aboard Prefect Da'Gara's advance yorik-coral worldship. A decorated warrior, Tu Shoolb served as a helmsman during the initial landing on Helska. Da'Gara often grated at Tu Shoolb's questioning of his commands, but was forced to admit that Tu Shoolb was a resourceful member of his crew. (VP)

Tu-Scart
this was one of two Yuuzhan Vong creatures, along with Sgauru, dispatched to Duro to destroy the refugee settlements established by the New Republic. Known as a female Biter, the chitinous Tu-Scart literally consumed the technology of the New Republic and left behind waste matter that could be used by other Yuuzhan Vong bio-creations to create energy. (BP)

Tubal Iron
a raw form of extruded iron, tubal iron is produced in long cylinders. (VP)

Tube-launched Grapple this portable grappling device resembled a lightsaber hilt. It contained a replaceable charge which propelled a length of syntherope upwards. At the end of the syntherope was an expanding hook which produced three heavy-duty tines. A pop-up sight provided assistance in targetting, and a miniature winch provided lift. (OE)

Tubecar
any repulsorlift vehicle used to transport people and cargo through the tubes which connect buildings on airless planets, moons, and asteroids. (LCF)

Tuber
this was the nickname given to an ancient Dantari encountered by Anakin Solo when he accompanied Mara Jade Skywalker to Dantooine. Tuber often traded vincha roots to Anakin for other goods, as the old Dantari realized Mara was not feeling well. Tuber later helped Anakin escape from a Yuuzhan Vong warrior, before Anakin told him to take his tribe and flee from the invaders. (DTO)

Tue
this planet is the first world in the Kidron System. It is a ball of molten rock. (PG)

Tueinami
this swift-flowing river is found on the planet Vykos. It has several white-water rapids that attract rafters from across the galaxy. (SWJ8)

Tufar
this planet, a froxen ball of ice and methane, is the sixth planet in the Elrood System. (PG)

Tuff1 Jumpsuit
this close-fitting, single-piece combat suit resembled a standard flight suit, except that it was dark green instead of orange. The elbows and knees were well-padded, and trauma padding protected the chest, back, and limbs. It was manufactured by A/KT. (DTO, ROE)

Tug
any small starship that is designed to moved large containers and freighters around in deep space supply stations. Most tugs are about 5 meters in length, and resemble teardrops. Their maximum sublight speed is around 10 MGLT, but speed is not of the essence as much as maneuverability. These unshielded craft are equipped with two small repulsors slung underneath the craft's nose. These are used to nudge the larger cargo ships around. (TIE)

Tuggle
an otter-like creature native to the planet Toola, tuggles travel across the icy plains in huge packs. They have been domesticated by the Whiphids, which use them as sledge animals. They are small, measuring just a half-meter in height and up to two meters in length, but they have very powerful legs and thin bodies. (SWJ10, ROE)

Tugorn
this Yuuzhan Vong subaltern was escalated by Nas Choka, in recognition of his work in remaking Belkadan and Gyndine into viable worlds for Yuuzhan Vong biotechnology. (JE)

Tugrina, Malan
this man, a native of Alderaan, had left his homeworld well before it was destroyed by Governor Tarkin and the first Death Star. He had attached himself to Mon Mothma as an aide, when she first started to oppose the will of Emperor Palpatine. His tenure with her continued will into the early years of the New Republic, during which time he came to calling her the nickname Iwo, until he was forced to make the ultimate sacrifice for her. When Tolokai was brainwashed into being a agent for Warlord Zsinj, Malan was able to come between the Gotal's attack and Mon Mothma. Malan took the vibroblade meant for her in the chest, where it pierced a major artery. Malan managed to detain Tolokai long enough for Mon Mothma to call for security and escape. As Tolokai continued to advance, Malan managed one last effort and tackled the Gotal. They fell down a flight of stairs, and Tolokai's neck was broken in the fall. However, Malan's injuries were too severe, and he died from loss of blood. (SOC)

Tuhgri
this race is native to the planet Ehjenla. As a race, they believe in the existence of a Great Creator who provides them with everything they need to survive on their homeworld as well as in space. This belief has generated an unwritten law among the Tuhgri that states "no individual beign may own anything." Their native language if a dialect of Huttese. Tuhgri live in various tribes, led by a gaawan, who is elected to join the House of Balance. The Tuhgri are of medium height, and are completely hairless. Their reddish skin is wrinkled, and bony ridges cover their skulls to protect their crania. They are a thin, humanoid race with six fingers on each hand and a diamond-shaped nose with four nostrils. While they are not possesive, their belief in the Great Creator means that anything they happen to find is taken for the population, often without asking permission. (KO)

Tujiamoor
this planet was known for its seismic history, as evidenced by the Talecalle volcanoes. (SWJ14)

Tuk Prevoz
this ring-shaped cargo ship was en route to Coruscant when Luke Skywalker and Lando Calrissian tried to rescue Leia Organa from Prince Xizor's castle, just before the Battle of Endor. Luke and Lando flew the Millennium Falcon along side the Tuk Prevoz as it approached the planet, keeping the Falcon out of sensor sight. The Tuk Prevoz was actually a Xizor Transport Systems cargo ship. (SE)

Tuknatan
this feline alien was one the denizens of the ancient cities of Cinnagar. (GAS)

Tulagn
this Rodian owned Tulagn's Starship Outfitters, on the planet Wroona. He was a shady character who was always looking for ways to get more money for his merchandise than it was actually worth. He was also know to smugglers and independent spacers as a fence who could move almost any form of stolen goods. He kept a collection of worthless trinkets in his exterior assortment of items, and a spacer had only to bring one to Tulagn to indicate they had an item to fence. Tulagn would claim that the trinket was his last specimen, but then would invite the spacer into the back room to view other pieces. (PSG)

Tulagn's Starship Outfitters
this small operation worked near the primary starport on the planet Wroona. It was owned by the Rodian Tulagn, and catered to the various needs of smugglers and independent spacers. The shop was also a front for Tulagn's real business, fencing stolen merchandise to the highest bidder. (PSG)

Tulgah
a rare species of troll-like creatures who have mastered a form of magic. Some of them use this magic for good, especially the healers. Others, such as Morag, use the magic for evil. (ECAR)

this Barabel ruled the Dool Arena on Reuss VIII, during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War. A former shockboxer, Tull retained the use of his boxing gloves, which he used for both showmanship and combat. (WSV)

Tulla Gladeyes and the Shrieking Squeebees during the last decades of the Old Republic, Jabba the Hutt often employed this band to play at his palace on Tatooine. (E1A7)

Tulon, Beri
this man was the latest member of his family to join the armed forces. His ancient ancestors fought alongside Empress Teta during the Great Hyperspace War, and Tulon's service to the Empire made his family proud. He was known as a friendly soldier, too friendly for his superiors, especially after he was promoted to Lieutenant and spent most of his time getting to know his troops. However, his troops were extremely loyal and effective, and Tulon's results could not be ignored. After Tulon was promoted to Captain, one of his superiors contrived to have Tulon eliminated by sending his troops to Khomm, placing them in harm's way. However, Tulon and a handful of others survived the massacre, and he eventually discovered the treacherous actions. He exposed his superior officer, but the fact that so many men died under his command led him to request a transfer to become an instructor. Tulon excelled in teaching the workings of the Battlefield Holographic Control Interface. (FC)

Tulis, Maharg
this was the new identity provided to Edda Gast by the New Republic, after she agreed to provide information on Warlord Zsinj's Project Chubar and Project Minefield. Maharg was a home decorator born on Alderaan. She never got a chance to use it, however, as she was arrested upon her arrival on Coruscant for smuggling Imperial credits onto the planet. (SOC)

Tulvaree
a species of semi-intelligent avian hunters, the tulvarees are native to the planet Pochi. When Faarl the Conquerer took control of the planet, the tulvarees quickly learned how to take orders from the human. Faarl, recognizing a source of soldiers, provided a constant food supply to the tulvarees in exchange for their allegiance. They have a number of different tribes, and each tribe engages in intense warfare with the others. Each of their wings it tipped with three razor-sharp talons, and their small mouths are filled with sharp teeth. (WBC)

Tumanian Pressure-ruby
a very rare gemstone that, if perfect, is easily worth several million credits. (SE)

Tumleh Navigation
this sister company of the Shankti Drive Works was also located in D'larah. Tumleh specialized in hyperspatial navigation systems and programming. They were working on a program that would allow ships to navigate through hyperspace around gravity wells, but most of the work was lost when the star Demophon exploded. (SN)

Tumnor
a flying creature native to Da Soocha 5, they have developed a taste for the Ixll. (DE1)

Tumu, Iep
this inept Corellian merchant once owned the freighter Merasy, but he was arrested for smuggling and forced to turn the ship over to the authorities on Brentaal. (SS)

Tun
this planet - the first in the Gacerian System - is a dry, rocky wasteland. It has no natural satellites. (PG2)

Tun Wala
this manufacturing center is located on the planet Arda-2. The T-6 diodem was manufactured here during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWEA)

Tuna Boat
this was Alliance pilot slang for a Gallofree Yards Medium Transport. (FC)

Tund
primary planet in the Outer Rim's Tund System, it was home to a brotherhood of sorcerers. The planet used to be a lush, evergreen-forested world, but Rokur Gepta destroyed it, reducing it to a smoking ball of ash. From space, the planet seems to glow with a greenish-blue inner light, the source of which is intense residue left over from the magic Rokur Gepta unleashed on it. (LCM, LCS, IWE1)

Tungra Sector
located near the Javin Sector, the Tungra Sector was home to the Mugaari pirates shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Tunnel Worm
his bioluminescent lifeform was encountered by the crew of the FarStar, deep inside an alien construct located within the Kathol Rift. Tunnel worms were observed which measured three meters in length, and were all blind. They lived in unusual streams and rivers running through the construct, absorbing nutrients through their permeable skin. It was later discovered that the tunnel worms were descended from a bio-engineered worm which was created to clean the water supply of the construct. When the original builders abandoned the construct, the tunnel worms continued to evolve on their own. (KR)

Tunnel-shuttle
this form of transportation is located below the surface of a planet. It employs repulsorlift technology to move a single car or a train along an underground passage. (KT)

Tunneler
MicroThrust's top-of-the-line computer spike. It is unsurpassed in duration of efficiency. (CFG)

Tunroth
a humanoid race native to the third, fourth, and fifth planets of the Jiroch System, the Tunroth evolved originally on Jiroch-Reslia and spread to Kalok and Saloch. Tall and muscular, the Tunroth are characterized by their yellow skin and unusual skulls. Their elongated skulls have two nostrils at the top and front, below which sit their dark eyes. Their mouths are filled with sharp teeth, and are surrounded by several horns that stud their chins. They have an intense passion for the hunt, and are an aggressive, self-confident race. These characteristics were questioned when the Tunroth were decimated by the Reslian Plague, but the resulting sense of unity and purpose in rebuilding their society has made them stronger. The plague was brought to their system by a group of Lortan fanatics who swept through the Jiroch and several other systems, leaving death in their wake. The Empire tried to destroy the Lortans and remove their scourge from the galaxy, and succeeded in the Jiroch System. Thus, the Tunroth people have some minimal priase for the Empire, even knowing that the Empire was not there to save the Tunroth themselves. They have agrarian technology, but have taken quickly to high-tech weaponry in their struggles against Imperial domination of their system. (GG12)

Tunroth Assemblage of Three this group of Tunroth advocated the simultaneous colonization of Kalok and Saloch. (GG12)

Tuomi
this New Republic Senator was a native of the planet Bosch. He constantly questioned Leia Organa-Solo's credentials, claiming that the refugees of Alderaan did not constitute a nation under the Republic's auspices. If his beliefs were agreed to by other Senators, then the Alderaanians could not have Senatorial representation, and Leia - not a member of the Republic - could not become Chief of State. (SOL)

Tuomis
a member of Bogo Tragett's Alpha Team sent to Maltha Obex, he developed shelter fever after being penned up during a snowstorm while awaiting Joto Eckels' return. (TT)

Turak IV
a planet, this was the site of the worst defeat that the Hell's Hammers ever suffered at the hands of the Alliance. Alliance forces were able to eliminate nearly all of the Hammers' repulsortanks , but not before losing large amounts of manpower and equipment themselves. Most Imperial supporters considered Turak IV a success because of the large amount of damage done to the Alliance. The planet is covered in sweeping lava plains that speak eloquently of the planet's intense seismic activity. (ISB, SWJ9)

Turan
this is a race of orange-skinned creatures. (TBH)

Turas Noth
one of the primary cities on the planet Teyr. (SOL)

Turas Valley
falling some 200 meters from the heights of the Kalis Peaks, this densely-forested valley was located on the planet OM813. Students at the Galactic Outdoor Survival School had to negotiate the valley after passing over the Kalis Peaks, and were forced to deal with the dense vegetation and the thousands of lifeforms which lived in the valley. (AIR)

Turat Il Feen
this New Republic HoloNet supervisor was in charge of the second shift operations when Nil Spaar broke into the HoloNet system to broadcast his twisted story of Leia Organa-Solo's treachery on Channel 1. (BTS)

Turazza
a small, reptiloid race of humanoids. (KO)

Turbodyne* 99-U
this was a series of podracers developed by Elsinore-Cordova. Wan Sandage flew a 99-U model during the famous Boonta Eve Classic race won by Anakin Skywalker. The cockpit of this racer measured 2.06 meters in length, and the engines were 5.03 meters long. They could move the racer at speeds approaching 785 kilometers per hour. (IG1)

Turbofizz
a drink popular in the Corporate Sector. (CSA)

Turbolaser II
this turbolaser emplacement was designed and produced by Golan Arms. (HAS)

Turbolaser System I
Loronar's fixed turbolaser battery. (ISB)

Turbolasers
huge laser batteries which use highly-intensified power sources to augment the strength of the laser bolt. They can be hard to target and often misfire, but when they are on-target, the damage is incredible. Thus, turbolasers are often used against capital ships. They are prone to overheat, due to the needs of the turbo-power source. (SW, SWSB)

Turbolift
an elevator (SW, DFR)

Turbo-skis
used in conjuntion with deflector poles, these are similar to downhill skis, except that they have motors attached to provide velocity. A stabilizer belt is also required equipment, used to help maintain balance. (DA)

TurboToo
manufacturers of high-powered repulsorlift engines. (WEG)

Turbovator
used on Centerpoint Station, these conveyor modules were used by the station's inhabitants to move throughout the huge station. They are basically repulsorlift-powered containers that were used for passengers or cargo. Each turbovator car had an airlock at each end, and they operated in a series of tubes connected throughout the station. (SC)

Turcan III
this planet is located in Parmel Sector. (GG9)

Turfhopper
an armored, land-bound avian, the turfhopper measures about a meter in length. (VP)

Turgah, Brandis
this man served as a communications officer aboard the FarStar, during the search for Moff Sarne. Turgah was also acting as a spy for the Bothans, providing continual updates on the progress of the mission. (KR)

Turhaya, Matt
this Imperial officer left his daughter Alex with relatives on Janara III when he reported for duty aboard the Relentless. When he returned from his tour of duty, Alex had been rescued from an Imperial raid and adopted by Turk Winger. However, Matt only saw the destruction and believed Alex to be dead. He then turned to a life of smuggling. (SWJ12)

Turhaya's Landspeeder Repair
a business located in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. (GG7)

Turi, Tionthes
this respected Sundar engineer worked with the Garosian Tork Winger to hammer out the peace treaty that ended the civil war between their two planets. (SWAJ)

Turkana
this planet was the site of an Imperial Star Destroyer ambush on the main fleet of Alliance Mon Calamari cruisers during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. The Alliance successfully repelled the ambush due to the introduction of the X-Wing starfighter. It is located in the Hadar Sector. (XW)

Turlin Corp
this mining operation received a lucrative contract to extract doonium for the Empire. (SSR)

Turmil Lizard
this small reptile was native to the upper levels of the rainforests of Veron. (PG1)

Turminum
this ore was mined from the asteroids of the Thrugii Belt, located around the star Sokor. (BSS)

Turner, Junas
this Alliance captain was imprisoned on the space station in the Balis-Baurgh System with the Ewok Grael, shortly before the Battle of Endor. Junas first met Grael on Endor, and saved the Ewok from the attack of a yootak. A native of Alderaan, Junas joined the Alliance shortly after the destruction of his homeworld. His former career as a trader lent him the skills to become a scout. After the Battle of Endor, Junas and Grael remained strong friends, and each saved the other during many missions against the Empire. He considered himself both extremely lucky and extremely skilled, despite his extreme fear of heights. (SWJ1)

Turntable, The
this was the name of the revolving dance floor located within The Glow Dome, on Adarlon. (WSV)

Turran
this spacer made a living during the Galactic Civil War. (HR)

Turret Room
located in a tower of Theed Palace, this square room was the location where Yoda told Obi-Wan Kenobi that he had been elevated to the level of Jedi Knight. (IWE1)

Tursturin
found only on Corellia, this natural element generates a tremendous amount of electricity when it is heated above 4,000 degree. Ecclessis Figg built Cloud City's thermo-converters from tursturin in order to generate the incredibel amounts of electricity required to keep the station running. (GG2)

Turumme
this large reptile, native to the planet Adumar, is a distant relative of the farumme. They live in warrens carved from the crust of the planet. Abandoned warrens were taken over by the Adumari, and used to house the menial laborers which toiled away to make life easier for the nobility. (SOA)

Tuskbeast
this immanse, gray-eyed creature is found on the planet Kintan. Like many of the species found there, it has evolved over the millennia from a series of mutations caused by radiation from the M'dweshuu Nova. (GG12)

Tusken Canyon Dune Turn
see Tusken Turn (RAC)

Tusken Fort
this Sandpeople compound was located beyond "The Barrier, a rocky outcropping that sets it apart from the rest of the Jundland Wastes. (TM)

Tusken Raiders
see Sandpeople

Tusken Turn
this sharp turn was found on Jabba the Hutt's podracing course, located outside the city of Mos Epsa on the planet Tatooine. It was here that a group of Tusken Raiders would come to watch the race and take target practice, shooting at the unsuspecting pod racers. The Sand People came to the podracing course to shoot at the racers, as form of revenge for Jabba's usurping of the Sacred Pinnacle for use in the Mos Espa Arena. (TPM, IWE1)

Tusker
this was the name given to those male Gamorreans who served as household servants to the clan matrons and their husbands. They are unmarried, and are hired by the clans for their strength and skill in battle. Most tuskers were used as front-line combatants in the intra-clan wars that raged during the Wartime season, and those who survived received a portion of the plunder. (SWJ14)

Tuskette
a small, tusked mammal native to Courkrus, they were often pitted against each other in illegal fighting matches. (IJ)

Tuta
this Huttese adverb translates to “from” or “of” when used to describe the origins of a being or object. (IS1)

Tutti Snibit
this Chadra-Fan was a freelance bounty hunter, but his stature prevented him from becoming renowned or desired. He provided information to Tinian I’att and Chenlambec on how to contact Bossk. (TBH)

Tutukan
this species of eight-legged reptile, native to the planet Rhommamool, has enormous tusks protruding from its jaws. The natives of the planet domesticated the tutukans for use as mounts. They were the favored transport of the Red Knights of Life, as they were fanatically opposed to the use of mechanical technology. (VP)

Tuulab
this Outer Rim planet is located in the Triitus System, situated in the Corva Sector. It was first colonized during the last years of the Old Republic. When the New Order was instituted, many colonists from neighboring worlds fled to Tuulab to escape Palpatine's tyranny. The planet later became a base of operations for the crimelord Mahk'khar. Tuulab spins rapidly on its axis, completing a full rotation every 18 standard hours. The year on Tuulab lasts 452 local days. (SWAJ)

Tuunac
this male Trianii was the prefect of their largest church, and travelled among the various Trianii colony worlds preaching his religion's messages of family and peace. (CSA, AE)

Tuuve
this Gotal female served as the Lycoming’s Chief Medical Officer. (POT)

Tuvvet
this was the single moon which orbited the planet Gorsh. (PG1)

Tuyay
this well-muscled human worked as Ororo Transportation's Chief Operating Officer until Ororo tried to horn in on Prince Xizor's spice trade. Xizor sent Guri as an emissary to Ororo, and part of her message was the elimination of certain high-ranking Ororo officials. Tugay was one of the three officials eliminated by Guri. He was incapacitated by a strangle hold, then she shot him in the left eye. (SE)

Tuz
a large, obese Mon Calamarian trader who had two Gamorreans for bodyguards. He remained neutral for most of the Galactic Civil War, although he routinely "donated" stolen Imperial technology to the Alliance. There are rumors of a long history with Ackbar, but neither will comment on this. (XW)

Tvrrdko
this ancient Wookiee was the father of Tojjevvuk. After his son's death in a fight with Chewbacca, Tvrrdko vowed to exact a measure of revenge against his family. When a group of slavers came to Kashyyyk to capture Wookiees, they captured Tvrrdko's family. Tvrrdko also gave them Chewbacca's location. Chewbacca was catured by the Trandoshan slaver Ssoh, but eventually escaped. After learning of Han Solo’s exploits in freeing the Wookiees in Tvrrsko’s family, and then hearing of Chewbacca’s bravery during the Galactic Civil War, Tvrrdko cancelled his vendetta against Chewbacca’s family. Tvrrdko even went so far as to honor the Wookiee who saved his clan by carving Chewbacca’s likeness in the wroshyr tree his family lived in. (C)

Tweil
this was the fifth of seven seasons experienced on the planet Guiteica. (AE)

Twelve, The
this is the Yevethan term for the original twelve Duskhan League worlds. They include N'zoth, Faz, Tizon, Z'fell, Wakiza, and Zhina. (SOL, CTD)

Twelve Kingdoms Era
this period of the history of Tapani Sector began 1,000 years after the sector was first settled by the Pella Compact, when the various colonies fragmented into twelve major Houses. This era lasted about 4,000 years, before Shey Tapani united the Houses in a bloody civil war which lasted twenty years. It was during this period that the first alliances with the Mrlssti were formed. (PGT)

Twenchok
this oceanic creature is native to the planet Sedri, and is amphibious. The twenchok resembled a terrestrial octopus, but had four eyes on its head. Its primary defense was the quills which cover its body. They can be expelled at an attacker, causing intense pain. (BGS)

Twenchok
this specialized foil weapon was created by the Barnax warriors. (AIR)

Twenty-Fifth Battle of Zehava
this battle for control of the city of Zehava was sparked by small skirmishes between neighboring Daan and Melida sectors. After the prior battle, the city had been divided into sectors, based on which faction held which areas. Daan and Melida lived side-by-side for several months before the Twenty-fifth Battle erupted. (DOD)

Twenty-First Battle of Zehava
one of many struggles between the Melida and the Daan for control of the city of Zehava, the Twenty-first Battle claimed the life of Quintama. (DOD)

Twenty-five Personifications of Virtue
this is the name given to a set of values honored by the Gopso'o. (POT)

Twenty-Second Battle of Zehava
this struggle for control of the city of Zehava, fought between the Daan and the Melida, occurred shortly before the Battle of Naboo. The Daan took control of the Outer Circle of Zehava, forcing the Melida into the Inner Hub. However, the cost of the battle bankrupted both factions, and a cease-fire was formed to allow both sides to recover. (DOD)

Twi'janii
this Twi'lekian term refers to the temporary acceptance of off-worlders as honored guests. Their needs and wants should be attanded to before any formal business will be conducted. (KT)

Twi'lek
1) the home planet of the Twi'Lek race (XW)
2) an alien race characterized by their smooth, pointed head and twin lobes protruding from their heads. (Zorba the Hutt's Revenge says that Twi'leks only have a single lobe.) Often called head tails, the lekku contain additional sensory nerves and are very sensitive, and are thought to be errogenous zones. They have rows of pointed teeth, and close-set, pig-like eyes. They are native to the planet Ryloth. They also have multiple stomachs, and will feed on almost anything, from the fungi that grow on Ryloth to the cowlike rycrits. Twi'leks live in clans which are governed by a five-member group known as a head clan. The members of the clan append their clan name to their given name; for example, Koh'shak. Thise combined name has a definite meaning, and subtle changes in pronunciation can be incurred by the addition of the clan name. The Twi'leki will often adapt the full name to indicate the true - or more flattering - actual name. One example it Nawara Ven. A member of the Ven clan, his full name should be Nawara'ven. However, when translated, this becomes "tarnished silver." His family adapted his full name to be Nawar'aven, which translates to "good speaker" (literally, "silver-tongued"). Twi'leks often belittle one another by using modified variations of their full names. (ROTJ, COTF, SWSB, KT, MA)

Twi'lek Dancer
1) a modified YT-1300 light freighter. (GG6)
2) this Barloz-class freighter led a checkered life, after being originally sold to an agricultural combine in the Tion Hegemony and being named the Harvest. When the combine traded in the Harvest for a YT-1300 freighter, the bounty hunter Xufal D'uat purchased the ship and renamed it the Venom Sting. After D'uat was killed by a fellow bounty hunter, the ship drifted for some time before being salvaged by TaggeCo. They eventually auctioned the ship off to a group of Thalassian slavers, who gave it the name Twi'lek Dancer. The slavers, in turn, were jumped by a group of pirates who commandeered the ship and sold it to a legitimate dealer through a front company. (SS)

Twi'lek Dancing Girls
this song, written and played by the band Deeply Religious, first appeared on the compilation Deeply Religious. It was banned by the Imperial Board of Culture. (GG9)

Twi'lek Siren Whistle
this instrument, created by the Twi'leks to warn of impending coriolis storms, created an intensely loud tone when blown. (IWE1)

Twi'lek Spice Conflict
Alexsandr Badure fought in this Old Republic battle. (CSA)

Twi'lek String Puppets
these strange puppets resemble marionettes who arms and legs stick out from the body, rather than laying flat against it. (GG4)

Twingo
this Sullustan was known as a two-bit smuggler who lied much better than he smuggled. He worked with a Bothan partner named Moss Deevers. It was said that, if they actually did one-hundredth of what they claimed, they would be the richest rogues in the galaxy and would have single-handedly defeated the Empire long before the Battle of Endor. They weren't well-liked by their brethren, especially after they set the two-man record running through Lando's Folly. (VP)

Twilight Class
this was the nickname used by a group of students at the Galactic Outdoor Survival School, which graduated from GOSS twelve years before the Battle of Yavin. The class was notable because eight of its twelve members wenton to become part of the Alliance's Eclipse Team, including Adazian Liebke and Xenon Nnaksta. Three others joined the Alliance as well, but were killed in action. The remaining member of the Twilight Class, Kiras Torla, disappeared into Wild Space. (AIR)

Twilight Gardens
this is the name of the section of Kashyyyk forest which exists one level up from the Shadow Forest. (TT)

Twilight Jumper
this highly-modified Ghtroc 720-class freighter is a basic, durable ship which passed through a number of owners without any modifications. This unusual characteristic, coupled with the fact that it was abused by its owners over the years, made it a dubious bargain at Fizzi's Slightly Used Starships. Garginoolaara could not find a way to repair its power system, which tended to drain fifty percent faster than normal. (SWJ9)

Twilight Lizard
a reptile native to the moon Yavin 13, the four-legged twilight lizard came out only at night to hunt for its prey. They are effective at collecting and retaining water, can could carry their own weight in water to survive long periods of drought. (GG2)

Twilight Sailer
this Eleanor Propulsion sail barge was used by the ancient Hutts as a mode of transportation. It measured 25 meters in length, and required a crew of ten to operate. Each Twilight Sailer could transport up to 150 guests, and 135 metric tons of cargo. These opulent ships were often armed with a pair of heavy blasters, to protect the Hutts who traveled in them. (TOJC)

Twilight Squadron
this group of sharpshooters was part of the Alliance Special Forces Eclipse Team. (GG12)

Twilit Hearth
this bandleader was working on the planet Druckenwell when Tinian I'att fled with the plans to a stormtrooper shielding device. The band helped her get off-planet before Imperial Moff Eisen Kerioth could capture the plans. (SWAJ)

Twin
this Cerean teenager was the girlfriend of the techrat Skeel, until Skeel was killed in a swoop crash. She turned to Maj-Odo-Nomor, who immediately returned her affections. This angered his own girlfriend, Slyvn, and forced her to rethink her loyalties. Meanwhile, to protect his "investment," Ephant Mon took Maj, Twin, and Sylvn to Tatooine for safe keeping. They stowed away on a transport ship, but were sharing the ship with divvik pupae. The pupae hatched into adults, threatening them all until Ki arrived to rescue them. (PTR)

Twin Fopal 888
this repulsorlift generator is common on many landspeeders. (CFG)

Twin Scales
this rundown tavern was located near the starport in the city of Karren, on Antiquity. (POC)

Twin Star Academies
this institution of higher learning had a base on the planet Lianna. This might be another name for the Melford Star Academy. (ML)

Twin Stars of Kira
this is the appellation given to the stars Lazerian and Ropagi, which are located at opposite ends of the Kira Run. (TSK)

Twin Suns Transport Services
founded, owned and operated by Antan and Tomaas Azzameen, this shipping and hauling operation was active during the Galactic Civil War. The company remained fairly neutral during the Galactic Civil War, but Tomaas' strong beliefs of right and wrong led him to support the Alliance. His shrewd business sense led the company into a rivalry with Viraxo Industries. (XWA)

Twins, The
a name given to the planets Talus and Tralus, in the Corellian System. They orbit a common center of mass, centered on Centerpoint Station, as well as orbiting the star Corell. (AC)

Twistler
a drink made from Corellian brandy and fruit extract (DFR)

Twith
this planet was continually at war with its neighbor, Hyabb, almost from the beginning of the Old Republic. In what became known as the Hyabb-Twith Campaigns, the ancient Jedi Knights ousted the Nelroni Marauders and freed the planet from their oppression. (TOJC)

Two-Hand
a card game played in many backwater casinos. (SWJ14)

Two-headed Tortuce
native to the planet Canastra IV, this two-headed amphibian was one of the few multi-brained creatures found in the Core region. Resembling a turtle with two necks, the two-headed tortuce had several different subspecies, each adapted to a different biosphere. One species lived deep in the ocean, while another lived on land. They lacked any real predators, and could live for more than 100 standard years. While not aggressive, tortuces were killed for their tasty flesh. This harvest was made simple by the fact that they lived in large groups and were generally slow-moving. The government of Canastra IV has tried unsuccessfully to ban the harvest of this unusual creature. (COG)

Two-wave Gravshock Device
this Imperial weapon, which can be housed inside the shell of a Torpedo Sphere, localizes a nearby planet's gravitational field, causing artificial earthquakes and other seismic disasters. While incredibly effective, these devices are also incredibly expensive to power. The localization of the planet's gravity also caused nearby starships, including the torpedo sphere, to experience rapid and random orbital shifts, making the weapon dangerous to use. (ISB)

Two Worlders
a group of political activists operating during the Starbuster plot, they believe that Talus and Tralus should each have their own separate governments. (SC)

Twolz
this smuggler was Dannen Lifehold's mentor. A decent man, Twolz took in Lifehold after discovering the youth stowed away on his ship. Twolz taught Lifehold everything he knew, and provided his with a brief history of the galaxy. He was killed by Imperial stormtroopers on Niian, along with most of his crew. He was survived by Lifehold and Krell. (SWJ1)

Twomi Skyfire
this sleek starship was built during the early years of the New Republic. It had room for six passengers, and was designed with speed and agility in mind. (TT)

TX-1118
this series of assassin droids was produced by Terminax for use by the Empire. Roughly humanoid in shape, the TX-1118 was designed with a variety of on-board weapons systems. (WSV)

Tx-2
this Incom power generator was used on the Storm IV cloud car. (EGV)

TX-2020
this was the designation of MerrSonn's double-laser, anti-vehicle weapon emplacement. (HAS)

Tx-37
an old-model SoroSuub landspeeder. (EGV)

TX-3
Void-Spider Landspeeder (SW)

TX-421
see TK-421; the ID number of the stormtrooper, as listed in the script to Star Wars. (SW)

TX-567
this Imperial stormtrooper was assigned to guard the Tol Ado Deathblock during the Galactic Civil War. (JH)

TX-65
this X-Wing-based training starship accommodated a trainee and an instructor. It was wider than a standard X-Wing, but allowed the trainee to obtain valuable experience in piloting a starfighter. (SOL)

TX-840
this Imperial stormtrooper was assigned to guard the prison facility on Tol Ado during the Galactic Civil War. (JH)

Tyberius Institute of Xenobiology
this university contained a distinguished xenobiology department and faculty. (COG)

Tybrene
this is a model of grenade launching mechanism, popularized by it use in the Viper launcher. (CFG)

Tychin
this smuggler was based out of Nal Hutta. (SWJ14)

Tydirium
an Imperial Lambda-class shuttle stolen by Crix Madine and used by his ground assault team during the Battle of Endor. The assault team used an older, stolen security code to gain access to the moon's sruface. (ROTJ)

TYE Fighter
see TIE-Wing (PP)

TYE-Wing
this Ugly, also known as the DIE-Wing because of its poor performance, consists of a TIE Fighter's cockpit mounted on the engine pods of a Y-Wing. It is rare to find one, since it suffered from incredibly poor handling - which it inherited from the construction required to mount the cockpit to the engines - and had no shields. In certain circles, these Uglies were also known as TYE Fighters or TIE-Y Uglies. (KT, IJ, PP)

Tyed Kant
the only planet in the Kantel System, it is a huge gas giant that supports life among its clouds. The planet's average rotation lasts 26 standard hours, and its year lasts 335 local days. (SN)

Tyed's Valiant
a CR90 Corellian Corvette owner by Gryseium Incorporated. (SN)

Tyerle
this woman was the Alliance agent Tiree's sister. A strong-willed woman with intense family values, she and her husband settled on Questal to escape the pressures of the New Order. Her husband, Rogan, was just as fiery, and when the Empire installed Moff Bandor to rule the planet, he began setting up resistance cells. He was eventually caught by Bandor, which prompted Tyerle to call for Tiree's help. Tiree was also caught by Bandor's hurlothrumbic generator, until a group of Alliance agents was able to rescue both men. (GCQ)

Tyestin, Iskit
this alias was used by Wes Janson to infiltrate the city of Revos, on Storinal, shortly before the Night Caller was to rendezvous with the Hawkbat. Tyestin was an exiled Imperial Senator from Bakura, who was raising funds to support the Bakuran Loyalist Movement. He was accompanied by three bodyguards: Anen, who was actually Atril Tabanne; Honiten, who was actually Falynn Sandskimmer; and Voort saBinring. The alias was, in fact, based on a real person. The real Tyestin was indeed a supporter of the New Order, but died when his shuttle was destroyed while he fled the New Republic forces on Bakura. His death had not been logged on the Imperial data network yet. (WS)

Tyew Fordrod
this Polosich was a passenger on the Kuari Princess when it was hijacked by the Riders of the Maelstrom. (RM)

TYI Flex-Armor
this form of personal armor was manufactured by Drolan Plasteel some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin, and was made from steel-reinforced plastics which allowed it to be slightly flexible yet able to withstand blaster fire and small projectiles. (TOJC)

Tyia
a philosophy brought to the planet Revyia some 30 years before the Battle of Yavin by a trader. The Tyia holds a strong regard for life and peace, which struck a chord with the Revwien race. It has been described as an alterate method of coming to know The Force, as the Tyia teaches that introspective reflection is the way to learn the true way of the universe. Students learn to control their own personal Force (known as the Tyia) through meditation and ceremony. (RPG, GG12)

Tyionsis Cex
this Srrors'tok bounty hunter served High Inquisitor Tremayne during the height of the Galactic Civil War. Originally a native of Sellasas, Cex watched as the Alliance wiped out a village of his people in an effort to destroy the Imperial garrison on the planet. Cex was rescued by Amara Jedselk, who eventually gave him the name of Tyionsis Cex. Amara's father offered Cex the chance to serve the Empire and strike back at the Alliance, and Cex readily agreed. He became an Imperial bounty hunter, and faithfully served the commands of Jedselk and Tremayne. (GG10)

Tykannin Turbines
manufacturers of power converters and repulsorlift systems. (EGV, GMK)

Tyl the Deplorable
this ancient Trunsk was known to have been a military genius, and was the first leader to conquer the entire planet of Trunska. Tyl then turned his army into a police force, and suddenly discovered that the funds which were going into the planetary wars waged by the Trunsks were quite substantial. Tyl began saving them, and eventually developed plans to foster the creation of new technologies. (SWJ13)

Tylerin Embankment
located on the eastern seas of the planet Archais, this headlands was the site of a heated battle between Alliance forces, Imperial forces, and the Assassin's Guild. It was during this battle that Mosara Thiirn defected from Alliance service, turning herself over to Lieutenant Covell. (AIR)

Tym
one of the Corellian orhpans rescued from Ylesia by Han Solo and Chewbacca, he was a young boy. (RD)

Tyma Canyon
this rocky canyon, located on the planet Redcap, is the site of the world's only landing fields. (SWAJ)

Tymmo
the alias used by Dack to hide out on Umgul from the romantic pursuits of Duchess Mistal of Dargul. (JS, JASB)

Tymp
this nocturnal omnivore was native to the planet Serat. Originally thought to be found only in the forests of the planet, tymps have adapted themselves to living in urban areas, scavenging food from any source they could locate. Tymps were especially fond of eating roti, and often destroyed the storehouses of the grain maintained by the native Seratians. Native populations of tymps continue to grow however, because the Seratians hunt their only known predator, the symer, in order to obtain their organs and appendages for use in charms and potions. Thus, the tymp population exploded, placing a great strain on the supplies of roti. (COG)

Tympanic
this humanoid female was a mercenary employed by Moff Bandor and placed into the Game Chambers of Questal. She was there as one of the chambers' denizens, ambushing hapless prisoners forced into the chambers. She wore one of the special helmets used to block out the waves of the hurlothrumbic generator. She tries to win the confidence of the prisoners forced into the chamber, then kills them when they are most helpless. (GCQ)

a form of drum used by the Ruurians, they are worn on the body, freeing one set of arms to play additional instruments. (HSL)

Tynan Ryln Mei
this Togorian was one of the few females who ever permanently left her homeworld to travel the galaxy. Tynan also served the Alliance as a field agent within the Intelligence division, and was the leader of Eclipse Team's Storm Squadron shortly before the Battle of Hothy. She was rescued from an operation gone sour by Dutra Zeneta. (SWJ10, AIR)

Tyne, Vost
this Imperial Navy Admiral retired from active duty shortly before the Battle of Yavin, having commanded a Star Destroyer for the Emperor. Tyne was also a student of the Dark Side of the Force under Darth Vader himself, and many believe it was Vader who talked Tyne into retiring. After retiring, Tyne returned to serve the Empire when he killed Arviz Linden, the director of the hyperbaride plant on Marca, and took control himself. Tyne reported directly to Aaz'del Hutrick during this time, and increased the plant's production immensely. Using the Dark Side of the Force, Tyne discovered that the Sertim sisters had decided to assist the Alliance, and had made contact with a team which had crash-landed on Marca. He laid a trap for them, capturing Darci Sertim and using her as a hostage while placing Marci in prison. The sisters were rescued by the Alliance team shortly before the hyperbaride plant exploded. It was unknown whether or not Tyne survived the explosion. (POM)

Tyne's Hokey
this small town was the location of the Doodnik Cafe. (DCAR)

Tynial
this male Devaronian worked as an infochant on Brentaal. He was sympathetic to the Alliance, and worked as a waiter at the Pathlines Tapcafe in order to better obtain information. He was arrested by Imperial forces shortly after the crew of the Far Orbit as discovered to be looking for him. Note that The Far Orbit Project also refers to this Devaronian as "Tynian." (FOP)

Tynna
this aquatic planet was the primary planet in the Tynnani System and was the homeworld to the Tynnan race. The waters of the planet were quite frigid, forcing many native species to develop layers of blubber or fat to maintain their warmth. The planet was overtaken by the Yuuzhan Vong during the Battle of Tynna. (HSR, AE, JE)

Tynnan
a seal-like humanoid alien native to Tynna, the Tynnans have sleek pelts and thick, tapering tails. Their hands and feet are webbed, allowing them full motion in or out of the water. Their pointed ears lay close against their skulls, and their long, moist snouts are filled with protruding buckteeth. Like most other creatures found on Tynna, the Tynnans' bodies maintained a layer of blubber to help maintain their body temperature. As a race, the Tynnans were quite wealthy, but individuals were required to pay their dues to a state-run government that provided the necessities free of charge. Those Tynnans who desired to work for a living took on professions as artists or scientists. They were curious about the galaxy at large, and many Tynnans traveled the stars in search of new locations. As a people, Tynnans tend to be frivolous, but they are also known to be pragmatic planners. (HSR, AE)

Type A Pulse-wave Rifle
this large, pulse-wave weapon was produced by Greff-Timms Industrial some four millennia before the Galactic Civil War. (TOJC)

Type I Light Duty Station designed and manufactured by Rendili StarDrive, this small space station platform was designed for primarily civilian use. It measured 250 meters across, and was manned by a crew of 200 officers and 18 gunners. The platform facility had room to accommodate 100 passengers, and could carry 50 metric tons of cargo and six months of consumables. (HAS)

Type IV
this starship restraining net was produced by SoroSuub during the height of the New Order. It was basically a modified and updated conner net, capable of being deployed in space or atmosphere as well as on the ground. (PP)

Type 5 Mine
developed and manufactured by Imperial Munitions, this 5-meter-long defense drone was a stationary mine with active and passive sensor systems. It was armed with a single laser cannon and a concussion missile launcher. It fired on a target after it detected the target was not broadcasting on a pre-defined transponder signal. (FOP)

Type 7 Hyperdrive
this model of Haor Chall hyperdrive core was developed for use on the Silver-class starship. They were often referred to as Silver-class engines. (RP)

Type-II Orbital Repair Yard
developed and manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards, this huge grid-like space station was created to provide the Empire with a facility to build and repair the huge starships of the Imperial Navy. The Type-II yard had a cubic arrangement which was heavily armed and shielded but otherwise unarmed. The Type-II yard measured 1,200 meters across, and had nine tractor beam projectors which allowed it to maneuver disabled ships into berths. Each yard had a crew of 4,114, with room for 200 troops to disembark during repairs. Type_ii yards also were equipped with a Class-4 hyperdrive system, which allowed the yard to make small jumps in order to ensure geosynchronous orbit and evade an attacking fleet, although the jump had to be well-orchestrated or the station could be severely damaged. (CTD)

Type-12A
this was a Locris Syndicates rocket dart produced for use with the RDP-12 rocket launcher. (GG10)

Type-12B
this was a Locris Syndicates gas capsule produced for use with the RDP-12 rocket launcher. (GG10)

Typhon
a Ripoblus shuttle group dispatched by the Ripoblus government to intercept the refugees on the Glas during the Sepan Civil War. (TIE)

Typhoon-2
this was the name given to Urukabb's compact, submersible exploration submarine. It measured ten meters in length, and could transport a pilot and up to four passengers with ease. (WSV)

Typia
this New Republic Senator was one of the primary supporters of the Daysong Party. (POT)

Tyrann
the supreme master of the Serpent Masters, Tyrann considered himself a humble host as well as the arbitrator of life and death on his world. His warriors held sway over a workforce of slaves that maintained the drilling and water extraction equipment that supplied them with whatever moisture could be taken from the planet's mantle. Tyrann controlled the serpents with a special transmitter hidden in an amulet he wore around his neck. He was overthrown by Luke Skywalker and Tanith Shire after Luke discovered the amulet's powers. Shortly thereafter, R2-D2 discovered how to duplicate the control codes. In a battle with Luke, Tyrann lost the medallion and leapt to recover it. However, he misjudged his leap, and fell to his death. (CSW)

Tyrannic
this Imperial Star Destroyer, under the command of Captain Nalgol, was one of only thirteen that remained under Imperial control ten years after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. It was assigned to lead the task force, comprised also of the Ironhand and the Obliterator, to travel under cloaking devices to Bothawui and hide among the comets that were passing through the system during the height of the Caamas Incident. From this position, they were to await the destruction of Drev'starn's shield generator before beginning their attack. The ships would fire from their hidden position, with the intent of drawing the multitude of New Republic warships gathered there into an all-out civil war. However, Carib Devist noticed that there were several small prove ships that moved into and out of sight when they passed near the comets, and was able to alert the Republic of their presence. Once the battle was joined, Han Solo managed to get many of the Bothan clans to supply warships from their personal fleets. The three Star Destroyers were forced to retreat to Bastion or be slowly picked apart by the New Republic. Captain Nalgol gave the order to retreat, ending the blockade and bringing to a close the Caamas Incident. (SOP, VOF)

Tyrant
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer saw duty during the Galactic Civil War, most notably during the Battle of Hoth. It was assigned to the Death Squadron, under Admiral Ozzel. (CCG3)

Tyrant's Bane
this New Republic assault frigate participated in the Battle of Bilbringi against Grand Admiral Thrawn's forces. (IR)

Tyrellian Ale
a brew favored by the inhabitants of the planet Yelsain. (GG6)

Tyrena
this is a port city located on Corellia. (TPS)

Tyrian
manufacturers of racing engine air dams and scoops. (IG1)

Tyric
this man was the Alliance's primary contact with the underground resistance on the planet Garrthinius. Tyric was also an undercover Imperial Intelligence agent, but revealed himself during a mission to take out the Imperial garrison. (TBSB)

Tyrimm Wyln
this Togorian female married Mlatar Thon Gra shortly after Mlatar earned the rank of master weaponsmith. After selling off her portion of a herd of bist she had raised with her sister, Tyrimm set out to explore the galaxy. Unfortunately for the newlyweds, Tyrimm was killed on Zulira when she was caught in the crossfire of a shootout between Imperial forces and an Alliance cell. (AIR))

Tyrius System
the star system which contains the planet Rodia. (SCRE)

Tyrix
this man was a Commander in the Imperial armed forces, serving on Vryssa under General Xarran during the early years of the New Republic. He was shot and killed by Boba Fett when the bounty hunter came to recover Rivo Xarran. Gaege Xarran tried to kill Fett with Chemtrox gas, but the bounty hunter's environmental systems protected him. When Tyrix went to verify Fett's death, Fett shot him with his blaster rifle. (TFNR)

Tyrn Jiton
this male Devaronian worked as a bounty hunter in the Borderlands Regions during the early years of the New Republic. He traveled in a Firespray-class transport, and was known to sell his captives into slavery if the profits were better. (WBC)

Tyrson, Saz
this former Imperial Commander took the forces under his command and defected from the Empire after the Battle of Endor. He used his military prowess and the fleet he stole to take control of more than twenty star systems, carving himself a nice little empire. Many believed that Tyrson was behind the poisoning of Natja the Hutt, but his was later proven innocent. (POC)

Tyshapahl
the natives of this planet staged a peaceful demonstration against the New Order and their Sector Moff. The Moff sent his ships to hover over the protestors and disperse it. When the demonstrators failed to disband, he ordered the ships to leave quickly, burning the protestors in their exhaust wake. (RD)

Tytun
this gas giant is the fifth planet in the Gacerian System. It has eight moons. (PG2)

Tyu
this crimelord operated from a base on Kazlin 5. (SWJ10)

Tyus Cluster
Kinnin Vo-Shay and his ship, the Ashanda Ray, were to have disappeared in the area of the galaxy, some fifty years before the Battle of Endor. (TFNR)

Tyyre, Valantya
this woman was a small-time, local holovid star who threw extravagant parties and mingled with all sorts of wealthy and famous beings. She also operated a temporary safehouse for the Alliance. Known as 'Vala's Place,' Valantya used her apartment in the StarTower Residences as a place to hold Allaince agents until they could be moved to the Brila residence at 16AA889 Starfield Road. She didn't use the nickname Vala as a rule, but agents who needed her help were instructed to ask for Vala and use the passphrase, "The droid sent me." (HAS)

Tzarib
a planet. (CSWEA)

Tzenkens
an Alliance Fleet Admiral, Tzenkens was placed in charge of the Tierfon fleet following the Alliance's losses in the Tocan System. (RASB)

Tzizvvt
this male Brizzit was hiding from Imperial authorities on Tatooine prior to the Battle of Yavin. He was in Mos Eisley, trying to secure passage deeper into the Outer Rim Territories, when Luke Skywalker and Ben Kenobi approached Han Solo for passage to Alderaan. (CCG2)

T1-B
this was the designation of Yutrane-Tackata's hovertank. It was used by the Alliance during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War. It was designed to be a swift-moving anti-infantry and anti-aircraft weapons platform. (FC)

T2/5/Zero
this galactic quadrant contains the planet Phelarion. (CSWEA)

T3 Web Comber
this outdated device was used to analyze computer networks. (IWE1)

T3-B
this was the designation of Yutrane-Tackata's heavy attack tank. It was used by the Alliance during the early stages of the Galactic Civil War, but was considered slow and heavy. Thus, it was used during surface-to-surface engagements. The T3-B was armed with missile launchers and heavy blasters. (FC)

T33-A
this was one of the two Alliance encryption codes used to protect communications with the Condor drop point facility. (SWJ14)

T358723Q9930
this was the document number of a report by the Alliance's military, comparing the performance of standard Imperial and Alliance starfighters. (XW)

T5
this was the model number of a force pike produced by Merr-Sonn. (AIR)

T5-G3
this protocol droid was modified by Imperial scientists for use as an espionage droid. However, a quirk in its programming surfaced in its logic dispenser that resulted in T5-G3 shutting down every six to eight months before its systems reboot. The droid was inserted into the New Republic's droid pool as a labor management droid, in hopes that it could provide information on the Republic's military actions. (WBC)

T65-AFP
a new form of starship fuel pump introduced for use on X-Wings two years after the Battle of Endor. (XWN)

* U *

U-E
a yellow, E-series droid C-3PO and R2-D2 encounter on Kalarba. He, along with his pals 2-E and Q-E, used to run the nursery in their town. However, they were sidetracked by Mister Vuldo and retrained to build illegal blasters. U-E was destroyed by Vuldo when he resisted the orders to build the blasters. (DRO)

U-THR
known to his owner, Thune, as Uthre, this bulky droid was a variant on the 3PO line of protocol droids. U-THR served aboard Thune's light freighter, the Faceted, as a co-pilot and companion. It was discovered that U-THR had once been owned by Deckland Carper. After Thune killed Carper in order to collect the bounty on his head, U-THR found himself in Thune's possession. She considered the droid nothing more than a tool, which made U-THR question any loyalty he might have felt to her. U-THR was something of a fussbudget and a perfectionist, and disliked it when Thune changed plans without notifying him. Thune liked the droid because of its immense data storage capability, something which allowed her to have almost instant access to a wealth of information. After Thune captured Kaj Nedmak, U-THR found that Kaj actually liked the droid, not just the fact that it was useful. When Thune stabbed Kaj in the heart with a knife, U-THR realized that it could no longer serve Thune. When Thune wasn't looking, U-THR gave Kaj a blaster with which to stun Thune, then helped pilot the Faceted in order to rescue Celia Durasha and Treytis Prash. After they turned in Thune to the authorities, U-THR agreed to join Kaj and Celia as a "free-trader," a description the droid preferred to "smuggler." (SWJ14)

U-3PO
this silver-plating protocol droid served the Royal House of Alderaan for many years. U-3PO was with Leia Organa on the Tantive IV when it was attacked by the Devastator. U-3PO was captured, and reprogrammed by the Empire for espionage purposes. (CCG2)

U-33
an old, out-dated, orbital loadlifter with a four-stage primary thrust sequence. Han Solo's training officer used one to help his cadets gain emergency landing experience at the Academy. (HSL)

U'Dray
this planet was the site of a rare Alliance victory against the Scimitar Assault Wing. The battle left the Scimitars, known also as the White Death, severely short on ships and pilots. (ISB)

Uba I
this world, the first in the Uba System, was ravaged by radioactive firestorms after the Old Republic attempted to curb the technological advance ofd the Ubese people. The Republic's pre-emptive attack actually detonated Ubese weapons stores on several worlds, including Uba I. The planet was wiped clean of any atmosphere it once had. (SESB)

Uba II
this world, the first in the Uba System, was ravaged by radioactive firestorms after the Old Republic attempted to curb the technological advance ofd the Ubese people. The Republic's pre-emptive attack actually detonated Ubese weapons stores on several worlds, including Uba iI. The planet was wiped clean of any atmosphere it once had. (SESB)

Uba III
this world, the first in the Uba System, was ravaged by radioactive firestorms after the Old Republic attempted to curb the technological advance ofd the Ubese people. The Republic's pre-emptive attack actually detonated Ubese weapons stores on several worlds, including Uba III. The resulting explosions were so great that they cracked the planet's crust, and gravity eventually ripped the planet apart. The orbital debris eventually formed an asteroid ring between Uba II and Uba IV. (SESB)

Uba IV
this world, the first in the Uba System, was ravaged by radioactive firestorms after the Old Republic attempted to curb the technological advance ofd the Ubese people. The Republic's pre-emptive attack actually detonated Ubese weapons stores on several worlds, including Uba IV. Unlike the rest of the system, however, Uba IV maintained an ability to support life, and the surviving Ubese people migrated to the planet. (SESB)

Uba V
this world, the first in the Uba System, was ravaged by radioactive firestorms after the Old Republic attempted to curb the technological advance ofd the Ubese people. The Republic's pre-emptive attack actually detonated Ubese weapons stores on several worlds, including Uba V. The planet was wiped clean of any atmosphere it once had. (SESB)

Ubasameir
this alien race has an inborn fondness for children of any race. (RM)

Ubertica
this planet, the primary world in the Ubertica star system, was located near the Uba System. It was populated by those Ubese who fled the destruction in their home system. Many of the planet's urban areas were destroyed during the New Order by the forces of the True Ubese led by Savax, who sought to wipe out the yrak pootzck Ubese living on Ubertica. The attack was halted when an Imperial fleet wiped out Savax's forces. (SESB)

Ubese
a humanoid aliens whose language has a metallic soundthe Ubese people are native to the Uba System. Millennia before the Battle of Yavin, the Ubese were a relatively isolated race with a highly-sophisticated culture. When the Uba System was discovered by the Old Republic, traders began bringing high-tech devices to the Ubese. They hoarded technology and learned to reverse-engineer much of it, developing their own forms of higher technology. The desire to obtain more technology began to splinter Ubese society, and their drive to have better technology split them even further. Delegates of the Old Republic soon discovered that the Ubese were producing technologies which had been outlawed by the Republic, and realized that much of it was military materiel designed for large-scale devastation. In an effort to curb the Ubese advancement, the Old Republic launched a pre-emptive strike to bring a halt to the production. Unfortunately, the Republic's attack exploded Ubese weapons stores on every world in the system, destroying Uba III outright and wreaking radioactive devastation on Uba I, Uba II, and Uba V. Only Uba IV remained marginally viable, and many Ubese were forced to survive there. The semi-toxic atmosphere forced them to wear specialized filtration masks, and altered their physiology in many ways. Those Ubese who survived and lived on Uba IV became known as the "true Ubese." Those that chose not to live on Uba IV migrated to the Ubertica System. These Ubese were shunned by their brethren on Uba IV as being too soft to be "true Ubese," and became known as the yrak pootzck, a term which indicated their impure parentage and cowardly ways. (ROTJ, SESB, AE)

Ubiqtorate
an Imperial Intelligence division responsible for overseeing all activities of Intelligence. (HTTE, ISB)

Ubote
an Alliance Corvette destroyed in the Javin Sector following the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Ubrickkian Industries
this large manufacturing company makes repulsorlift vehicles of all sizes, from the 9000-Z001 landspeeder to huge, luxury sail barges. It also has several military designs that gained Imperial notice, such as the Floating Fortress. (SW, SWSB, EGV)

Ubrikkian Transports
this corporation was one of the original non-voting contributing sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. Ubrikkian Transports was awarded the chassis design contract for the Empire’s Imperial-class repulsortank. (CSA, SWJ9)

Ubrikkian Yards
the shipyards where Ubrikkian manufactures its repulsorlift vehicles. (GG7)

Ucce
an Imperial Lady still holding onto dreams of the rebirth of the Empire. She was working under Hethrir to try and establish the Empire Reborn, supprting Hethrir by purchasing slaves from the Firrerreo. Like many of her kind, Ucce had managed to stockpile a large amount of credits following the downfall of the Empire, and still maintained a decent income despite the New Republic's plans to cut her off. She eventually purchased Lusa and Iyon's wyrwulf child. (CS)

Uday
this Imperial Colonel served Moff Disra as a member of the Intelligence agency. It was Uday who discovered that the recording of an alien ship provided to the Empire by Carib Devist was actually a compilation of two records. The recording had originally been doctored together by Han Solo, in an effort to discover the location of Bastion. (VOF)

Udine, Willa
this woman served as the Captain of the Bravado III, patrolling the Kathol Republic shortly after the Battle of Endor. When her ship was damaged after being attacked , the closest ship to her position was the FarStar, which she believed to be the Lance of Endor. She believed that the New Republic was a brutal and imperialsitic regime, because of the attacks from the Lance of Endor, and refused their help but kept talking until more ships from the Katho Republic could arrive and provide assitance. (KO)

Udine System
an asteroid-filled system located near Keller's Void. (SWAJ)

Udo Broxin
this Herglic was one of the first patrons of Ace Entertainment Corporation, and was also one of its most loyal. He always ran up a huge bar tab, but Gandin T'Noull let him slide because Udo's upbeat and sarcastic nature provided "free" entertainment to the other patrons. (WSV)

Ufflor
this was a position of political power among the Ugnaughts, with each ufflor serving on the Terend Council. (GG2)

Ugarte
this money-hungry Ugnaught was a native of Cloud City, and was one of the multitude of information gatherers working on the outpost during the Galactic Civil War. (GG2)

Ugbuz
Ugbuz was the alpha male of the Gamorrean Gakfedd tribe on Pzob, until the Eye of Palpatine picked him up. He then became indoctrinated as a stormtrooper squad leader. (COJ)

Ughok Snorg
this Gamorrean was a slave owned by Valis Lorn. He was used as an enforcer, and placed in charge of maintained the political and economic stability of the Ranis quarter of Andasala. (GG11)

Ugloste
this Ugnaught, a former slave and the leader of the multitude of Ugnaughts who lived and worked on Cloud City, discovered how to use the carbon-freezing technique on humans. He worked with Imperial forces, with E-3PO acting as an intermediary, to make the modification. This allowed Darth Vader to freeze Han Solo, and then freeze Luke Skywalker. (CCG5)

Ugly
generic name given to any of the pieced-together fighters that are built by low-life techs in the Corellian Sector. Uglies are built from starship parts scavenged from any and all sources, and are built for firepower more than maneuverability. (AC)

Ugmush
this female Gamorrean was the owner and captain of the Zicreex. She dyed what little hair she had a bright pink color, and wore up to fifteen morrts attached to her flesh to indicate her endurance and strength. To accentuate her appearance, Captain Ugmush wore garish eyepaint and several diamond-studded nose-rings. In order to communicate with the galaxy around her, Captain Ugmush wore a transliterator around her neck. She preferred to have the translator speak Basic in the voice of Amber Jevanche, giving Ugmush a pleasing voice. (POT, SWJ14)

Ugnaught
a race of small, piglike creatures known for their mechanical abilities, the ugnaughts are native to the planet Gentes. There, the ugnaughts grew to become strong, efficient creatures, able to withstand a great deal of discomfort. However, the planet's hostile environment forces them to move elsewhere. Many tribes of ugnaughts were also stolen and sold or leased as slaves. One of the nearest planets to Gentes is Bespin, where they have become an integral part of the society on Cloud City. Ecclessis Figg purchased three tribes of ugnaughts and gave them the daunting task of building Cloud City. If they could do this, Figg agreed to give them their freedom and a place to live in the floating city. Of course, the ugnaughts agreed, and they worked extra hard to make Cloud City a wonderful place to live. They chose for themselves a series of lower city levels, creating burrows and tunnels to mimic the environs of their homeworld. The ugnaughts are great storytellers, and much of their history is collected and passed on in long tales.
When the Empire took control of the station, the ugnaughts were left behind. They resented the Imperial presence on the station, and began rebelling against it. They caused all sorts of damage, and even tried to incapacitate Lobot so that the Empire couldn't use him to interface with the city's central computer. As a last resort, the ugnaughts began planting bombs around the outpost, and planned to set them off when Lando returned to the city and repaired Lobot. Together, they disarmed the bombs and forced the Imperials off the outpost. The ugnaughts were once again returned to the free status they desired. The chief Ugnaught was portrayed by Jack Purvis in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back. (ESB, JS, WEG, ISU, EGC)

Ugor
a race of intelligent, single-celled creatures who came from a splendid world of incredible natural resources found in the Paradise System. The short-sighted Ugors quickly consumed all that the planet could offer, and they turned the planet into a toxic garbage dump. The Ugors, rathering than perishing the garbage they had created, adapted to life in the pollution. They moved off the planet, and began taking apart the planet in their home system in an effort to obtain more and more natural resources. They move about by exuding a series of pseudopods from their bodies, or by encapsulating themselves in special environment suits. Each of the pseudopods has a specific task - communication, movement, et cetera. The brain of the Ugor is located in the center of their body, and is made up of a huge number of molecular structures similar to brain cells in most humanoids. While limited in their abilities, the molecules have a faster access time than normal brain cells. Also, since each molecule has a specific function, Ugor brains are also quite adaptable. They seem to worship garbage and junk, and have gone so far as to persuade the Empire to allow them first access to all Imperial garbage. They consider other scavengers, such as the Squibs, to be business rivals that need to be eliminated. The Ugors tried to stop the Squibs from procuring a gravity-well projector during the Galactic Civil War, a device which the Squibs had plannde to loan to the Alliance for use in dragging the Elusive out of hyperspace. (GG4, SH)

Ugor Battle Wagon
this huge, doughnut-shaped warship was equipped with outdated autoblasters, pseudosonic beamers, and G-type rotolasers. While these weapons aren;t very powerful in small numbers, the Ugors placed a multitude of them on each battle wagon. The combined firepower was impressive. The Ugors developed the battle wagon to attack and destroy Squib ships which jumped Ugor claims to salvage. (SH)

Ugor Salvage Company
this small waste-recovery corporation was founded by the Ugors, and was responsible for the manufacture of the Black Hole-class salvage dreadnaught. Like all such operations, they are loyal to the Holy Ugor Taxation Collection Agency. (GG4, SH)

Ugorian Spore-gruel
this is the preferred alcoholic beverage of the Ugor race. (SH)

Uhl Doaba'I
the name of this establishment means "peaceful place" in the Socorran tongue. It was considered the last vestige of civilization found within the city of Vakeyya before a traveler entered the open desert. The building which housed the Uhl Doaba'I was rumored to be over 2,000 years old, and it had been maintained by the Ibhaan'I shamen for many generations. A small group of shamen ran the establishment, and would put together an osma bag for a traveler who gave them a small donation of credits or food. (BSS)

Uhl Eharl Khoehng
this great, Old Corellian tragedy is generally regarded as one of the greatest in all the galaxy. It was first performed some 500 years before the Battle of Yavin. The title comes from the Old Corellian term, khoehng, which means king. The word eharl is a Socorran mythological term which refers to an elf or trickster. Thus, the translation of the title into Basic yields “The Trickster King.” The story of the play begins with the death of a king and his handsome young son. It opens on a distant world, where the son must take the throne once occupied by his father. The son – known as the Edjian-Prince – decides to expand his father’s holdings and orders much of the surrouding forest cut down. When the woodsmen fail to return, and no trees are felled, the Prince’s subjects begin to whisper of uhl eharl khoehng, and the Edjian-Prince begins trying to contact him. He sends messengers into the forest with invitations, but none of them ever return. The people begin to rebel against the Edjian-Prince’s follies, until he orders his soldiers to drive them all into the forest. No one, not the subjects or the soldiers, ever returns. The Edjian-Prince is left with just his aging hunt servant, and the prince then sends the old man into the forest, in a last-ditch effort to locate the trickster king. When the old man also fails to return, the Prince barricades himself within his castle walls, but uhl eharl khoehng was too smart for that. The trickster invaded the Prince’s dreams and bade him to come into the forest, promising safe passage and a discussion of peace. The Prince awoke and travelled into the forest, hoping to restore his kingdom. However, uhl eharl khoehng tricked him, and although he was never hungry or thirsty, the Prince was forced to travel through an unending labyrinth of trees during a ten-year search for the trickster king. At one point, the spirit of the huntsman appeared to the Prince and told him that the trickster king had turned all the people of the kingdom into trees, unable to move or speak. The Prince was led to the edge of the forest, where he encountered the Eharl Khoehng for himself. The Prince was given a choice – to worship the Eharl Khoehng and have his kingdom returned, or die. The Edjian-Prince went mad, running back into the forest and setting fire to the trees, claiming that the burned-out trees and blackened soil were “...the only kingdom I deserve to rule, and the only kingdom that the Eharl Khoehng can claim.” He then submitted himself to the Eharl Khoehng and mutters the famous last line, “Long ... live ... the king.” (SWJ8)

Uhltenden
this planet is surrounded by a ring of debris from a multitude of starships. It has a toxic atmopshere, and has no natural life. (SLS)

Uhu
an Corvette group destroyed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Uhur'qah
this city was the industrial capital of the planet Af'El. (CRO)

Uhuru
an Imperial freighter disabled by Keyan Farlander near Orron III. (XW)

Ujin Voli
this Gotal crimelord formed the Antar Band and began preying upon the ships which followed the Sisar Run during the Galactic Civil War. Voli and his Band were one of the largest rivals to the Nalroni Sprax and his Black Sun operatives, after a proposed deal between them fell through. Since then, Voli has surrounded himself with the most vicious of associates, in an effort to keep Sprax at bay while hounding his every move. Voli's right eye was badly injured during a run-in with Black Sun agents, and was useless for seeing. He and his lackeys once captured Kalend Thora, shortly after she recovered the only copy of the Barani List from Limna Yith. He held her in his stronghold, deep inside Temptation Canyon on Sriluur, until she was rescued by mercenaries sent by Mal Biron. Ujin Voli fled to Yen-2 in an effort to recover the decryption sequence and unlock the List. However, the mercenaries followed him to Yen-2 and recovered the List before Voli could decipher it. Voli himself was shot down and killed by Guri, who had come to Yen-2 to recover Mal Biron's mercenaries. (SSR)

Ukanis
this is either a planet or a tribe of humans. (TT)

Ukass
this man was an Imperial Governor during the early years of the New Republic. (GG11)

Ukert
this Ugnaught smuggler maintained a small criminal empire on the planet Kothlis. He was a rival of Maxeena Sov'lya, although they often performed work for each other. Ukert also owned the Reclamations Services, Incorporated smelting operation on Kothlis. (PSG)

Ukian
the race native to the planet Ukio, they have a strong fear of the unknown. Rumors tend to get them overly excited. They are a species of hairless humanoids, with green skin and thin, red eyes. Ulcane, Meres
this man joined the Imperial Academy at the age of 17, not because he was smart or strong but because of an influential uncle within the military. After barely graduating, he was assigned to a demolitions squad which ordered into battle behind the lines in Alliance territory. He suspected that his commanding officers detested him because he got into the military because of his uncle, and that they were trying to kill him off. Seeing that he needed to get a quick promotion in order to survive in the military, Ulcane locked his entire team in a warehouse owned by the Alliance and destroyed it. Not only did he receive commendations for taking out a strategic enemy site, he was awarded for his bravery in surviving the assault when the rest of his team didn't. Ulcane managed to make several more upward movements within the military, although each promotion was accompanied by strange or unusual circumstances. He became a student of aline cultures during this time, primarily because he was treated as an outsider by his peers. Shortly after the Battle of Endor, Captain Ulcane escaped a mutiny aboard his own ship and fled to the Outer Rim Territories. There, he met another Imperial officer, and together they formed the Kaarenth Dissension. It was their goal to incite all the alien races of the Outer Rim against the fledgling New Republic. When he was discovered by Republic agents on Betha II, Ulcane fled to the Spawn Nebula, where the Kaarenth Dissesion had been hoarding starships for an assault on the New Republic. The agents tracked Ulcane to the nebula, where they discovered the fleet and its supporting space station. The agents managed to destroy the station and much of the fleet, and it was believed that Ulcane died aboard the station. (SWJ8) this planet was known as the homeworld of the Dashade race, until it was razed during the Great Sith War when the Cron System was destroyed. Nothing on the planet survived the nova-fire which swept across its entire surface. (SSR)

URoRRoR'R'R
this Tusken Raider was the leader of his tribe. A skilled huntsman and sharpshooter, he led many raids on moisture farms in search of water. He also apprehended Luke Skywalker, when the youth travelled into the Jundland Wastes in search of R2-D2. (CCG2)

Uroth
this alien race is native to the planet Wizar II. They are a race of bipedal, squid-like creatures, and worship a vengeful god. When a StelProbe V exploration droid crashed Wizar II, the Uroths mistook the crustacean-shaped droid for their god. They willingly sacrificed themselves by throwing their bodies in the droid's path, hoping to be taken to a wondrous afterlife. (GMS)

Urothko
this legendary young Wookiee was a brave warrior who cared little for the cares of others. Many of his peers dared him to travel to the lowest levels of Kashyyyk's forest, claiming that he was a coward if he declined. Urothko accepted the challenge, but was attacked by a fire-spirit known as a Graaa'shad. The spirit brought Urothko deep down into the forest, and prepared to kill him. Luckily for Urothko, the elder Stalpaac intervened. Stalpaac shot the spirit with a bowcaster quarrel, then the two Wookiees launched an attack on the spirirt. Graaa'shad quickly retreated and fled, screaming that one day it would get revenge. In the aftermath of the battle, Urothko pledged his life to Stalpaac, since the older Wookiee had risked his own life to save him. The story of Urothko's rescue quickly spread to other villages, and the tradition of the Wookiee life-debt was created. (TTSB)

Urpine
this large, wolf-like carnivore is raised by the Revwien as a guard animal. (GG12)

Urran
this was the name of the long sticks used to play the sport of phrenbi. (BSS)

Urrdorf City
this disk-shaped space station was the smallest of the twenty cities built in orbit around the planet Duro, after the surface of the planet was destroyed by industrialization. Tresina Lobi and Thrynni Vae discovered that many of the supply shipments which were meant for refugee cities on the surface of Duro were actually being re-routed to Urrdorf. During the confusion which resulted when the Yuuzhan Vong attacked Duro, Urrdorf City was the only orbital establishment to escape the destruction of the planet. It lacked a hyperdrive, but eventually got far enough beyond the Yuuzhan Vong strike force that the alien invaders simply let it go. (BP)

Urrjsh
this Gamorrean command roughly translated to "stop." (SWJ14)

Urrtie
this Corellian was Cohden K'Reye's uncle. (WSV)

Ursellin Sun Jammer Race Fixings
this series of fixed races and their incredible payoffs was arranged by Janstren Brell and the Red & Black League. (HR)

Ursellis
this woman was the Imperial Prefect of the planet Kalandis IV, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (GG10)

Urshant, Alkan
Andus Urshant's 8-year-old son. (SN)

Urshant, Andus
the eldest member of a family which paid a group of Alliance agents to transport them off Demophon, Andus was a research technician with the Shankti Drive Works. As such, he was almost guaranteed passage off the planet, but his family was not included in those plans. So, they hired the Alliance agents to get them all off at once, before the G'uotr Network and/or YTumleh Navigation could apprehend them. (SN)

Urshant, Fianna
Andus Urshant's 6-year-old daughter. (SN)

Urshant, Zoam
Andus Urshant's wife, and a research programmer with Tumleh Navigation. She was eight months pregnant with their third child when Demophon was destroyed. She was working on the Tumleh hyperdrive project, which would allow a ship to fly around gravity wells while still in hyperspace. She offered the information to the G'uotr Network as payment for transport off Demophon, but had a change of heart at the last minute. This meant that the Network wanted to apprehend her as well as the officials at Tumleh, who had monitored her downloading of the project's data. Thus, the Urshants turned to the Alliance agents on Demophon for help getting off the planet. (SN)

Ursmal
this large, bear-like predator was native to the Ottega System. They had heavy teeth for tearing their prey, and large paws for holding it. In addition to raw meat, ursmals liked to consume the sweet honey used to make Ottegan mead, and were hunted to keep their population down. (TBSB)

Ursod
a color-changing predator native to the moon Yavin 8, the quadrapedal ursod lived near the northern ice cap of the moon. Its fur had a mottled coloration on a white background, which allowed it to blend into its environment. (GG2)

Urukaab
this Mon Calamari manufacturer developed the Mon Calamari Utility Sub and other submersible vehicles. (JASB, ROE)

UR41-284
designation of an Unknown Regions planet razed by Grand Admiral Thrawn. (DFRSB)

Usean II
this planet was the primary world in the Usean System, and was covered with temperate forests and mountains. (TBSB)

Useani Camnzin
this fictional creature was created by Wilek Nereus. Nereus had collected the unusual, scissoring teeth of the Irashtash, but wanted to make their possession much more memorable in the stories he told to his Imperial guests. He created the camnzin as a predator which used the teeth to slice its prey in half. (TBSB)

Usk
this is the twenty-first symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "u". (SWM)

Usk-51
this was the private encryption coding given to Zothip by Moff Disra. It was only to be used in extreme emergencies, and never when Disra was aboard a starship. (VOF)

Uskgarv
the leader of the Ghawem pirates, Uskgarv was also a friend of Stevan Makintay. They met unexpectedly when the Ghawems attacked the transport ship that was carrying Mak and Ketrian Altronel to Coruscant. Uskgarv allowed them to go free when he realized they were on board, in exchange for favors Mak had once done for him. (SWJ8)

Ussar Vlee
this was one of the three ruetsavii sent to chronicle and criticize the life of Ooryl Qrygg. (BW)

Ussor
Ganathan Captain, commander of the Robida Colossus. (DE2)

Ustu
one of Nichos Marr's childhood companions. Ustu was a Ho'Din. Together, they searched for Plett's Well, regardles of the warnings about the kretch. (COJ)

Ut
planet in the Hapan System known for its singers. (CPL)

Uta
a Hutt crimelord active under the New Republic, he was most known for his trafficking of military artifacts from the Galactic Civil War. He was arrested and charged with violating the Historical Battle Site Preservation Act. (BTS)

Utanode
this bio-engineered material was used by the Gungans to support the bubble buildings they constructed in the oceans of Naboo. Each utanode arm contained a projection unit, which worked together to create the hydrostatic bubble buildings. (E1A9, IWE1)

Utchakkaloch
this Wookiee was Dewlanna's son. Known as Chakk to his friends, this dark brown Wookiee met Han Solo at Chewbacca's wedding to Mallatobuk. When Chakk discovered that Han had known Dewlanna, he asked Han to tell him everything about how she died. Han told him of the way Dewlanna died saving his life, and the two became quick friends and "brothers." Chakk was distantly related to Chewbacca, through a second cousin three times removed who emigrated to Rwookrrorro and married Chewie's great-aunt's niece. (RD)

Uteen
this eel-like alien race lacked hands, and used droids to perform manual labor as well as give hand signals and sign language. They were members of the New Republic. (TNR)

Uth Sulrowe
this Mon Calamari was a well known scholar, and had a deep knowledge of galactic art. Uth was employed by Pret Swain, and worked at the Swain Import/Export Emporium on Socorro. Dressed in flowing robes, she was an impeccable hostess as well as a good sense of business. She was also a weapons expert, which helped her deal with the Emporium's more "discriminating" patrons. (BSS)

Utharis
this Tarrack world is located just outside the boundaries of the Koornacht Cluster. Luke Skywalker and Akanah had planned to stop there during the search for the Fallanassi, after leaving Atzerri bound for J't'p'tan. (SOL)

Utharis GridLink
this is the main holonet serving the natives of the plane Utharis. It picks up regular updates from the New Republic HoloNet, and also provided local news services. (TT)

Uthil Ren'Kacal
this Gotal bounty hunter was one of a group contracted by the Empire to hunt down the Alliance agents who were investigating the construction of the Bissillirus Resupply Base. He was more of a tracker than a hunter, and welcomed the chance to work with a team in order to ensure the capture of the agents. Uthil was known as a polite and diplomatic, though deceitful, bount hunter. (GMK)

Uthori Breix
this creature was native to the planet Pellastrallas. (COG)

Uthorrferrell Cartha
this man was the only son of Antbbianplourr III, and ascended to the throne of Eaittu following his father's death. Like his father, Uthorrferrell was unable to keep Eiattu free of Imperial control. Uthorferrell ruled Eiattu for five years before the Priamsta rose up against him. The nobles slaughtered every member of the Cartha family, or so it was believed. It was later discovered that his daughter, Isplourrdacartha Estillo, and his son, Harrandatha, survived the executions, although Harrandatha was later killed by his sister. (XWWP)

Utilitech
this company designed droid components for large-scale droid manufacturers. (CSA)

Utinni
a Jawa word that is roughly translated to "come here." (CCG)

Utozz
this form of beverage was popular in the Elrood Sector, and was brewed in great quantities on Merisee. The natives of Elrood Sector considered Utozz to be something of a delicacy, but many visitors to the sector found it barely drinkable. (OE)

Utozz House
this was a generic term used to describe the multitude of Merisee bars which served local variations of Utozz. (OE)

Utozz Prime Breweries
this brewery was the major producer of Utozz in the Elrood Sector, during the height of the New Order. (OE)

Utris
this ancient man was a Sith warrior, wounded during the Great Sith War. He was brought back to life by Rin Shuuir. (TOJC)

Utris M'toc
this Imzig was a member of Cloud City's Wing Guard during the adminstration of Lando Calrissian. He was above corruption, and worked hard to expose the less-reputable members of the Wing Guard. (CCG5)

Uttak
this wily Sullustan owned Uttak's Inn in The Puddle. He maintained peace in the hotel with a BlasTech A280 rifle. (HAS)

Uttak's Inn
this sprawling, single-level motel was owned by the Sullustan Uttak, and provided shelter to those smugglers and other being who visited The Puddle. (HAS)

Uukaablian
1) this race is native to the planet Uukaablis. While technologically primitive, the Uukaablians have developed a large amount of medical skill and knowledge. Various factions of Uukablians waged a civil war for many generations before their leaders agreed toa a ceasefire. All weaponry was placed aboard a cargo ship and launched into the system’s sun. Shortly after the war eneded, the Uukaablians began dying of a disease they had never seen before. It was discovered, after decades of research, that the disease was caused by a microscopic germ created as a biological weapon during the civil war. The disease was quickly arrested, and the Uukaablians spent the next thousand years rebuilding their world and developing a vast medical knowledge base. They were untouched by the Galactic Civil War, but learned of the New Republic from the crew of the FarStar, during its search for Moff Sarne. The average Uukaablian stands over two meters in height, but has small features. Large, elliptical eyes dominate their small heads, which have thin noses and a lipless mouth. Their chins are studded with small, bony knobs, and their four-fingered hands are thin and delicate. In addition to their skills with medicine, the Uukaablians are also polite and diplomatic, and won’t let a silent moment slip by without filling it with conversation. (KO)
2) this is the native language of the Uukaablian race, and seems to be a derivative of Huttese. (KO)

Uukaablian MedCorp
this is the primary medical business that grew out of the Uukaablian research of medicine, and they were the developers of the Paravacc 1.X vaccine. (KO)

Uukaablis
this planet, located in the Kathol Outback, is the homeworld of the Uukaablian race. It is a temerate world covered by forested moutnains. The average day on the world lasts 28 standard hours, and its year lasts 426 local days. (KO)

Uukaablis Trans-Systems
this corporation, based on Uukaablis, manufactured repusorlift vehicles. (KO)

Uul-Rha-Shan
a sil-ar Tiss'shar who served as Viceprex Hirken's personal bodyguard at Stars' End. Uul grew up running weapons for a large smuggling ring on Tiss-sharl. He was introduced to the act of killing another being, actually did it himself, and found that he enjoyed it in a very short period of time. When his hitch was up with the smugglers, he set out on his own, becoming one of his planet's most famous gunfighters and assassins. His prowess spread throughout the galaxy, and he met every challenge with victory, defeating the likes of Meelto, Terrlarn, and Neena Garnet. In time, he was recruited by the Corporate Sector Authority, and he soon proved his worth by saving the life of the Assistant Advisory Undersecretary of Media. He was then recruited by the CSA's Secutiry Division, and was offered a huge sum of money to worked exclusively as Hirken's bodyguard. Uul saw the opportunity to guard the "soft, stupid human" as a way to earn lots of credits for little work. He was killed by Han Solo aboard Stars' End when he was trying to kill Han and escape the plummeting central tower. Han was able to shoot before the that tower crashed back to the surface. His scales were a bright green color, with a red and white diamond pattern woven in. He had sharp teeth and a pink, snakelike tongue. (CSA, HSE, GG12) manufacturers of the LAVr QH-7 Chariot command speeder, Uulshos has had limited commerical success. Many of their designs are unexceptional and are built for small planetary militias and defense forces. (ISB)

Uulshos

Uumlourti
these protoplasmic strips of nutrient matter are considered a delicacy by the Gand. Though something of an acquired taste, these ribbons come in a variety of colors, and are deadly to most other species. (IR)

Uurk
this Gamorrean was atypical of his species. He had a strong sense of honor and duty, and served as a lawkeeper on the planet Emmer during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He worked with the droid designated K4-06B, the only droid he respected. Uurk knew that Narloch was a corrupt being, but was sworn to uphold the laws of Emmer - most of which were enacted to Narloch's benefit. (ND)

Uurutche'zediev
this was the ancient Weequay name for Temptation Canyon, located in the deserts of the planet Sriluur. (SSR)

Uutkik
this experienced Jawa thief was known to the locals of Mos Eisley as Het Nkik's ugliest cousin. Uutkik brought goods back to his tribe from pilfering runs through the busy streets of Mos Eisley's spaceport. (CCG9)

Uvena III
this planet is the primary planet in the Uvena System, a multiworld system. Uvena III is the homeworld of the Shistavanen race. According to Rebellion, Uvena III is located in Sesswenna Sector. Note that Alien Encounters claims the Shistavene were native to Uvena Prime. (SCRE, MTS, XWN, REB, AE)

Uvena Prime
this was believed to be the homeworld of the Shistavenan race. (AE)

Uvena System Constabulary
this was the primary police force of the Shistavanen Wolfman, and maintained the peace and security of the Uvena System. (AIR)

Uvide Wheel
a casino game of chance in which a large wheel is spun around, and players place bets on its stopping position. (TME)

Uviuy Exen
this planet, located in the Shwuy Sector, was heavily re-armed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. Reports indicate that the entire Imperial force there was equipped with light repeating blasters. (ISB)

Uwa
a huge tree which yields lustrous wood, uwa trees were native to Alderaan. (CPL, HT)

Uwana Buyer
the name of the ship used by Talon Kaarde and Tapper Quelev when they went to Tropis-on-Varont. It was a modified pleasure yacht. Like most of the names used by Kaarde during this period, it was a somewhat farcical name meaning, "You want to buy her?" (EGC, SWAJ)

Uz Bonearm
a smuggler discovered by Salla Zend at the Byss Bistro, just after the New Republic launched its Viper Automadons against the Emperor's citadel. He joined Salla and Shug in helping the New Republic get free of the attack. He might be the brother of Nhazz. He is the owner of the Corellian transport ship Bespin Bandit. (DE2)

Uzalg, Wonn
this special attache' from the Alliance was dispatched to Kuat Drive Yards, after Commander Rozhdenst had made contact with Kodir of Kuhlvult. Fooled by all of Kodir's twisting of the facts, Rozhdenst and Uzalg agreed to ensure Kuat had an accident, thereby installing Kodir herself as the leader of KDY. However, there plans were crushed when Kuat began destroying the shipyards, rather than letting them fall into the hands of anyone else. Rozhdenst ordered the Scavengers to board as many of the capital ships under construction as they could to rescue them from the destruction. Many were saved, but many more were lost. (HM)

U2C1
1) this blue housekeeping droid was employed in Jabba the Hutt's palace on Tatooine. The droid was later used to warn J'Quille that he was being blackmailed and was about to be killed. (TJP)
2) this was a series of housekeeping droids with long, pleated hoses for arms. (JE)

* V *

V
this unit of measurement describes the amount of deliverable energy in a single artillery tube charge. (ISB)

V-Brose
this Keganite Truant Guide was V-Tarz's partner. (FFT)

V-Davi
this Keganite boy was a student at the time Obi-Wan Kenobi and Siri were held on Kegan. His parents died of the Toli-X virus, mainly because Kegan was isolated from the galaxy and never learned of the vaccine which counteracted it.He later befriended Obi-Wan and Siri, realizing that their continued opposition to O-Bin came from a greater knowledge of the galaxy. V-Davi helped them escape the Learning Circle, but was later sent to the Relearning Circle for his part in their escape. After the Jedi revealed the sham perpetuated by V-Tan and O-Vieve, V-Davi was released from the Relearning Circle. He decided to live with V-Nen and O-Melie, after their daughter O-Lana traveled to Coruscant to begin training as a Jedi Knight. (FFT)

V-gauge
this scale describes the output capacity of a repuslorlift engine’s turbothrust converter coil. Most landspeeders use V5- to V9-gauge coils, while X-Wings and military T-47 airspeeders use V12- to V18-gauge coils. Large transport ships require much heavier-gauge coils. (CFG)

V-Haad
this Keganite man was a member of the Hospitality Guides, and was assigned to escort Qui-Gon Jinn, Adi Gallia, and their padawans, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Siri, during their mission to locate O-Lana. (FFT)

V-Ido
this Keganite boy was one of the first to understand that Obi-Wan Kenobi and Siri opposed their teacher, O-Bin, out of a greater understanding of the galaxy. V-Ido was the first child to openly question O-Bin's adherence to the General Good. (FFT)

V-Mina
this Keganite boy was a student at the time Obi-Wan Kenobi and Siri were held on Kegan. (FFT)

V-Nen
this Keganite man was married to O-Melie. Together, they gave birth to a daughter, who was named O-Lana. They discovered that their daughter was strong with the Force, and contacted the Jedi Knights on Coruscant despite the possible destruction of the Common Good. When O-Lana was kidnapped and held in the Relearning Circle, O-Melie and V-Nen were unable to openly ask the Jedi to help, but instead pleaded with their eyes and their emotions. (FFT)

V-Obi
this was the name given to Obi-Wan Kenobi during his imprisonment in the Learning Circle on Kegan. (FFT)

V-Onin
this Keganite boy, the grandson of O-Yani, was sent to the Relearning Circle when he suddenly became ill. He was later used by the Enforcement Guides as a scout, in the wilds of Kegan. O-Vieve and V-Tan told O-Yani that V-Onin was taken for the General Good. (FFT)

V-Tan
this ancient Keganite man ruled the planet with O-Vieve some thirteen years prior to the Battle of Naboo. They were known as the Benevolent Guides, and revered the prophesies which claimed that a visitation by the Jedi Knights would destroy Kegan society. To this end, they perpetuated the belief in the General Good and kept Kegan isolated from the rest of the galaxy. V-Tan had but a few visions, compared to the number experienced by O-Vieve, but both understood that the visions told of a terrible evil which would sweep the galaxt. Historians later determined that the Benevolent Guides foresaw the coming of Emperor Palpatine and the New Order. However, as the Jedi revealed more and more about the greater galaxy, the Keganite population began to doubt the rulership of O-Vieve and V-Tan. In the end, the populace voted to overthrow the Benevolent Guides and join the Old Republic. (FFT)

V-Tarz
this Keganite was a Truant Guide, and was the first to capture Obi-Wan Kenobi and Siri during their mission to Kegan. V-Tarz arrested them as truants, believing them to be Keganite children, and sent them to the Learning Circle for education. He was also a guard at the Learning Circle, although V-Davi discovered that he regularly turned off the security systems in the kitchens at night, in order to steal a midnight snack. (FFT)

V-Taun
this Keganite boy was a student at the time Obi-Wan Kenobi and Siri were held on Kegan. (FFT)

V-07
this was a model of hydrospanner produced by the Corellian Engineering Corporation. (PSG)

V-1 Droid
this was a series of droids who were programmed to fly freighters and other non-military starships. (WS)

V-1
this was one of two Imperial TIE Defender facilities destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (XWN)

V-16
this Alliance sleeper cell was maintained on Malthor by Berren Sid Te', during the Galactic Civil War. As was typical of Alliance cells, no member knew anyone else in the cell, other than their direct contact. V-16 was most impressive as a cell, since none of its members knew that Sid himself was working for the Alliance. (CRO)

V-2
this was one of two Imperial TIE Defender facilities destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (XWN)

v-150 Planet Defender
the make of ion cannon manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards. The Alliance used one to defend the Echo Base on Hoth; one was also used by Garm Bel Iblis to defend his Peregrine's Nest base. (ESB, RPG, DFR)

v-180 Planet Defender
this defensive, planetary ion cannon has nearly twice the firepower of its predecessor, the v-150. It also has its own power generator. (CSA)

v-188 Penetrator
Speizoc's heavy anti-artillery weapon, the v-188 was designed during the Clone Wars. These are among the heaviest energy weapons ever to see action; this often required them to be fixed in placed atop the Aratech 440 super-heavy armored chassis. The only drawback to the v-188 is that the energy bolts is creates dissipate quickly after being shot. (ISB)

V-2z
this was a model of servo-lifter produced by Verekil. Measuring three meters in height, the V-2z exoskeleton allowed a being to lift heavy crates and cargoes, and move them on or off a starship. (PSG)

V-200
one of Kuat Drive Yards' newest ion cannons, the New Republic used them to guard its base on Nespis VIII. (EE)

V-3 Vanguard
this model of holdout blaster was produced by Vector Technologies. (WSV)

v-35 Spoiler
this was Kuat Drive Yards' medium-duty, surface to air ion cannon. (HAS)

V-35
SoroSuub's enclosed, famliy-model landspeeder. The Lars family had one on Tatooine. The V-35 was built to be reliable, inexpensive, and unremarkable, and it achieved all three goals. It had a thick, arrow-shaped hull that allowed large amounts of cargo to be stored fro transport. The canopy opened to allow a pilots and up to two passengers to be seated. Three large thrust turbines were mounted on the rear deck. Like many older speeder models, the V-35's rear sections were dominated by the repulsorfield generators, so all cargo had to be stored in the front sections. (CCG, EGV)

V-38 Phantom
see V38 (RA2)

V-3f14
an Imperial heavy lifter stationed on Zaarin's beam-weapon research station. (TIE)

V-4 Plug
this Impulse slot connector is found on all blasters, and connects the trigger cable to the press plate. (CFG)

V-475
this orbiting dock, located in the Sluis Van shipyards, was the site of Grand Admiral Thrawn's first attack on the shipyards V-475 was a Rendili StarDrive Space Dock. (HTTE, HTSB)

V-53 Hydromancer
this civilian, ocean-going pleasure yacht was manufactured by Saltech, and providing its owner with a sleek form and average performance. The V-53 measured 23 meters in length, and was manned by a crew of six. (SWJ1)

V-59
this is the designation of one of Mier-Lang’s concussion grenades. The Alliance used them to combat Imperial forces on Hoth. (CCG3)

V-6
this droid was owned by the Herglic gambler, Doune. V-6's primary responsibility was to maintain a tab on Doune's winnings, so that no other being could swindle the Herglic. (TFNR)

v-90 Protector
this was the designation of Kuat Drive Yards' medium-duty, surface to space ion cannon. (HAS)

V-wing Speeder/Transport
a airspeeder used by the New Republic at the first Battle of Calamari, it was designed by Slayn & Korpil to be an all-environment speeder and an interface transport used to move the speeder from its docking space. The transport section is loaded in order, and can carry four or six transports. They transport then is launched, and plunges through the atmosphere under snubfighter escort. The speeder pilots enter their ships during this plunge, moving through sleeves to their ships. When all is ready, the speeders are launched from the transport, which disengages from any battles. It flies back to the parent ship, to refuel and be ready to launch more speeders. The four-speeder transport, designated Model A, is 20 meters long; the six-speeder version is the Model B, and is 27 meters long. The transport is unarmed. The speeder is 6.3 meters in length, and is armed with a double blaster cannon. The speeder's design allows it to channel air into Chab-Ylwoum scramjet intake channels, which help the ship obtain speed (the base 1,000 kilometers an hour can be boosted to 1,400 kph) but reduce maneuverability. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

V'Droz, Garrbo
this man was considered one of the best architects of his time, during the early years of the New Order. Garrbo and his brother were hired by Emperor Palpatine to design the Mount Tantiss facility. Both brothers were easily distinguished by their emerald-colored hair. Despite the successful completion of the project, but Garrbo and his brother were executed by the Emperor in order to maintain the secrecy of the facility. (TTSB)

V'eldalv
this is the capital city of the planet Ryvellia. (SWJ12)

V'lch
tihs Gamorrean term was used to describe an unmarried female of their species. It was often used in a derogatory manner. (SWJ14)

V'nnuk'rk
this Alliance frigate was under the command of Commander Beatonn during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ8)

V'shar
this planet was the homeworld of the Ka'hren race. (AIR)

V'troren
an Old Republic Senator who, like his contemporary, Gopple, was only interested in saving money for his own projects. He came under considerable fire when the Navy began speaking openly of the poor state of its ships, which was caused by a series of compromises made by the Senators. (ISB)

Vaartsoon
this Imperial commando was chosen by Ysanne Isard to lead the operatives who traveled to Ciutric to capture Sate Pestage, after Pestage was declared a traitor to the Empire. (XWMR)

Vaath'kror
this star was the central body in the Vaath'kror System. (SSR)

Vaathkree
1) this planet - the third in the Vaath'kror System - was a harsh, volcanic world which has been - and continues to be - hit by meteors on a regular basis. Much of the atmosphere is filled with corrosive, poisonous chemicals. Nonetheless, several sentient species have evolved on the planet. The Vaathkree are the primary race, having built domed cities in which to live. These cities are actually living, organic constructs known as Vnals. The Stoneslingers are a small race of living rock, and eventually evolve into the Vaathkree themselves. Note that Secrets of the Sisar Run claims this planet is named Vaath'kror*, after its sun*. (TTSB, SSR)
2) an alien race native to the planet Vaathkree, these beings evolved in the harsh environment of their homeworld. The Vaathkree are the adult form of Stoneslingers, and resemble humanoids made from stone and metal. In reality, they are fleshy creatures encased in an armor-like covering of living metal or stone. Each Vaathkree matures from a Stoneslinger after twenty years. They are known for their religion, which is centered around bartering and the art of making The Deal. The average Vaathkree can live to be over 300 standard years of age, which included twenty or more years as a Stonesinger. (HTTE, TTSB, AE)
3) the language of the Vaathkree. (TLC)

Vaathkree Flatsculp
a mid-eighteenth-century pre-Empire art form. (HTTE)

Vaathkree Trade Corridor
this hyperspace trade route led through the Inner Rim. (SWJ12)

Vaathkree Trade Language
this civilian language was developed by the Vaathkree. Its primary use was in bartering. (KR)

Vac Attack
this was the brand name of Golon Arms' wrist-mounted blade launcher. It was capable of using firing three small, circular blades at a target in rapid succession, but then needed to be reloaded. (ROE)

Vacander
this Filar-Nitzan infiltrator was often hired by Imperial officers and powerful gansters as a thief and spy. (AIR)

Vacasor
this third-rate Devaronian merchant pruchased the Merasy from Geld Bernar, and set out to make his fortune as a trader. Like many Devaronian males, Vacasor had a deep sense of wanderlust, and spent much of his career simply circling the Rim worlds. The only smart thing he did - and the only reason he remained solvent - was to hire Naneb Pefan as a co-pilot. (SS)

VACX
an ablative coating used to cover dropships before atmospheric re-entry, VACX will burn off during entry. Thus, it must be replaced prior to each drop. VACX helps raise the dropship's hull strength. (ISB)

Vader, Darth
When Anakin Skywalker came under the tutelage of Senator Palpatine, he was led down the path to the Dark Side of The Force. Despite the teachings of his friend, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin felt that the teachings of Palpatine led to quicker realization of the powers of The Force. This forced Kenobi to confront Anakin, and in a lightsaber duel, Kenobi forced Anakin into a pit of molten rock. It was at this point that Anakin Skywalker was consumed by the Dark Side. He was rescued from the fire by the descendants of the Sith, and reborn as Darth Vader. In order for the Sith to keep Anakin alive, they had to create a life support system that encased his entire body. It had to recreate certain limbs, as well as keep his lungs functioning. At the Emperor's direction, the Sith made the life-support suit as evil-looking as they could. The all-black body armor became Vader's main weapon, as it instilled fear in all who saw it. The Sith also began training Vader in the ancient Sith lore, and Vader became the last of the Sith Dark Lords. As such, he became even more Palpatine's tool, able to create fear just by the mention of his name and the mysterious Sith teachings behind it. Palpatine sent Vader to support Grand Moff Tarkin during the time when the first Death Star was being readied for use. Vader oversaw the mission to recover the stolen plans, but was unable to get Princess Leia to divulge their location. He used the Millennium Falcon as a guide, and followed the fleeing ship to Yavin 4, only to lose the Death Star to the Alliance. Vader's ship was disabled during the battle, but he regained control. When the Emperor heard of the destruction of the first Death Star, he removed Vader's living right hand as punishment, and replaced it with a cybernetic prosthesis. Shortly thereafter, Vader went to Circarpous V to investigate the appearance of Leia Organa on the planet, as well as to locate the Kaiburr crystal. In an amazing duel with Luke Skywalker, Vader was hard-pressed to defeat Luke. Luke succeeded in defeating Vader, and even cut off the Dark Lord's right arm with his own lightsaber. In his dazed state, Vader fell into a sacrificial weel on the Temple of Pomojema and was lost. He survived, however, drawing on the Dark Side of the Force for support and strength. Once Palpatine was aware that Anakin Skywalker's son had survived and posed a possible threat to the Empire, he told Vader of the existence of Luke Skywalker, in an effort to completely gain control of any vestiges of Anakin Skywalker and convert them to Darth Vader. However, this plan backfired on Palpatine, as the remnants of Anakin began to surface. Following the relevation of Luke's relationship to Anakin, and the loss of Luke at Cloud City, Palpatine began to give Vader menial tasks, and tried to keep him away from Luke. He could not, however, and the part of Vader that was still Anakin continued to assert itself. The Battle of Endor was a turning point for Darth Vader. It was then that Luke Skywalker surrendered to Vader, and began to try and turn the Dark Lord back to the Light Side. The darker parts of Vader resisted, but Luke's love and devotion to his father strengthened the spirit of Anakin. When the Emperor was forced to kill Luke, Anakin was awakened, and with Vader's mechanized strength, he threw the Emperor into a power shaft, destroying Palpatine and the Empire. Darth Vader also ceased to exist at this point, as Anakin was able to return from the Dark Side. However, the struggle with the Emperor left the life support systems inoperable, and Anakin died before Luke could save him. Darth Vader was portrayed by David Prowse, and Vader's voice was provided by James Earl Jones, in all three Star Wars films. Darth Vader was also portrayed by Brock Peters for the Star Wars and The Empire Strikes Back Radio Dramas on National Public Radio. (SW, SWR, ESB, ESBR, ROTJ)

Vader Grader
this was shipjacker's slang for a target which was so well protected that even Darth Vader wouldn't be able to steal it. (SWJ13)

Vadon Lenitor
this only child of the noted ghest slayer Kalon Lenitor, this female Rodian grew up in relative ease because of her father's legendary exploits. Nevertheless, she put a great deal of hard work into her schoolwork and her labors, and her parents fostered her beliefs in earning one’s keep. Following in her father’s footsteps, Vadon became known as a ghest slayer in her own right. Eventually, though, Vadon decided to try her hand at bounty hunting, and was modestly successful before she joined the Granse Confederacy as a full-time hunter. She was believed to have taken part in the break-in of the Alliance base on Mapuzo, but no proof was ever found to implicate her. (AIR)

Vae, Thrynni
this young woman was a student of the Force, and trained as a padawan under Tresina Lobi during the early years of the New Republic. However, during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Tresina and Thrynni were dispatched to Duro to watch over the shipping concerns who were supplying the refugees who were working on the Duro reclamation project. Tresina started her investigation on Bburru, and during the search Thrynni disappeared. It was later learned that their investigation had hit pretty close to the heart of the matter between the Duros High House, CorDuro Shipping, and the Peace Brigade, and Thryni was captured and murdered. Luke Skywalker discovered that Thrynni had been beaten to death by a group of Gamorrean thugs, then dumped out an airlock. (BP)

Vaecta
this withered Yuuzhan Vong female was the chief priestess involved with the invasion of the galaxy, reporting directly to Tsavong Lah aboard the Sunulok. (BP)

Vaerganth
this Imperial Governor was in charge of the planet Venaari during the Galactic Civil War. (SWAJ)

Vagabond Suit
this is the name given to any form of personal envornmental protective suits, often used by scouts and explorers. They are named vagabonds because they give the wearer an incredile range of exploration. The vagabond suit contains a helmet with heads-up displays and communications gear, sensor packages in a backpack unit, armor plating, and a booster jet pack. (SWJ8)

Vaganon, Alistay
this woman was invited to spent a vacation on Glova, at the behest of the planetary Governor, Tegist Byrg. However, she was less than happy with the planet, the restaurants, the hotels ... everything. (POC)

Vagnerian Canape
this sweet pastry is popular at formal dinners. (TNR)

Vagno
this Langhesi forger met Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi when they traveled to Zonama Sekot to have a starship built for them. Vagno was a boisterous man who talked incessantly, and he was in command of the team which shaped their Sekotan starship from fifteen seed-partners. (RP)

Vagran
this planet, located in the Corellian Sector, is where Talon Kaarde's team obtained three Skipray blastboats. (DFR, REB)

Vagrant
this Imperial Victory-class Star Destroyer was part of a fleet dispatched to harass the Alliance as it began massing ships near Sullust, just prior to the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Vahaba
this red giant star is orbited by several planets and the Vahaba Asteroid Belt. It is believed that a huge comet or stray asteroid collided with one of Vahaba's larger planets, creating the huge ring of debris which became the asteroid belt. It was strategically important for the ores which were found in the asteroids, and the system was known for the incredible skills of its metal workers. The belt and its system were located in a cluster of stars not far from Halmad. (SOC)

Vahaba Asteroid Belt
this ring of asteroids was located in the Vahaba System. Scientists believed that the asteroid belt was formed when one of Vahaba's larger planets was struck by a comet or stray asteroid. The belt itself is quite large, with pieces of planetary debris strewn across a vast distance. This makes navigation through the belt hazardous. It was targetted for assault by the New Republic task force hunting Warlord Zsinj, but the commanding officers chose to strike at Comkin Five first. Han Solo then took the Mon Remonda to Vahaba, where he was met by Admiral Rogriss and the Stellar Web, in the hopes of trapping Zsinj and the Iron Fist in the system. The plan nearly succeeded, but Zsinj's forces inflicted as much damage as they took, and were able to escape. (SOC)

Vahcer
this man was a member of the Blood Razors swoop gang, and acted as the group's primary "offworld shipping agent." In this capacity, he spent much of his time collecting the goods needed by the gang. He was also Shirro's chief lieutenant. (PSG)

Vahr, Enid
this Alliance spy was on Demophon just before it was destroyed. She was planted in the Vortex Corporation about six months before the supernova occurred. While there, she had fallen in love with the pirate, Kasey, who joined the Alliance because of her. She had stolen Imperial plans and data, and was trying to flee when he was captured. The Empire said that they had commandeered her ship to help the evacutaion. She tried to escape with the help of Jor Entel and his crew, but they murdered her when they got off the planet. Her body was discovered by Alliance agents who infiltrated Entel's group. (SN)

Vainglorious
one of the Imperial cruisers that participated in the blockade of the ThonBoka, Rokur Gepta stripped its captain and his second-in-command of their rank after the captain of the Intractable refused to be a front-line attacker. (LCS)

Vainglorious*-class Cruiser
this was an outdated Rendili StarDrive warship. (SS)

Vair
a deity often spoken of by Rars Lefken, he uses an expletive that references Vair's eyelids. (SWSB)

Vakeyya
this largest city on Socorro was also the capital of the planet. All business on Socorro eventually passed through Vakeyya, which was located near the Rym Mountains and the Ibhann'l Tribal Lands. (SWAJ, BSS)

Vakkar
this planet was the Imperial sector capital of Fakir Sector. (SWCP)

Val Denn
this is the capital city of the planet Tinnel IV. Moff Jerjerrod had a private estate located there. (SWAJ)

Vala's Place
this apartment was owned by Valantya Tyyre. Vala lived in apartment 25001 of the StarTower Residences, which she used as a temporary safehouse for Alliance agents before she could get them to 16AA889 Starfield Road. Alliance agents were able to gain Vala's confidence when they used the passphrase, "The droid sent me." (HAS)

Valarian
this female Whiphid was the offspring of two gangsters. She took over the Lucky Despot Hotel in Mos Eisley while Jabba the Hutt was still alive. She was one of the few who outright challenged Jabba's unspoken rulership of the spaceport town. She hired Figrin D'an and the Modal Nodes to play at her wedding reception. She was twenty-four at the time, and was going to marry D'Wopp. However, the simple-minded Whiphid decided to take up Jabba's offer of a bounty on Han Solo's head instead. When he tried to leave the ceremony, Valarian became enraged and a fight broke out. Imperial troops tried to break it up, and shut down the illegal gambling at the Despot. Valarian had D'Wopp sent back to Toola...in a large number of boxes. She continued to try and thwart Jabba's powerplays, but the Hutt's influence extended too deeply into Mos Eisley's substance. So, Valarian backed off and simply tried to outmaneuver the Hutt. She planted a number of spies in Jabba's palace, and even had a number of plots to kill the Hutt started. She later employed her Whiphid lover, J'Quille, in an attempt to kill Jabba. However, before J'Quille could succeed, Jabba was killed at the Pit of Carkoon. Valarian slowly but surely began to usurp Jabba's old businesses. (GG7, TME, TJP)

Valc VII
this planet was a member of the Imperial Remnant, and was the planet farthest from the galactic core within its boundaries. It bordered deep on the Unknown Regions. (DTR)

Valdez, Shawn
this Alliance soldier was Echo Base's evacuation officer. He had a wealth of experience in planning and expediting the dismantling of a base. He was a poetic musician in his private time. (CCG3)

Valera
this woman was a computer specialist who worked for the Alliance as part of the Gray Griffins. (OE)

Valerenn Environmentals
this corporation produced a variety of personal survival equipment, including flotation shelters and other contained systems. (PSG)

Valeress
this woman was known as a wily slicer who broke into the Corporate Sector Authority's databanks when she was just a teenager. She was too consumed in her own skills to notice that CSA security forces had backtracked her connection, and she barely escaped with her life. She spent the rest of her life slicing computers for wealthy clients, but was always looking over her shoulder for CSA forces. (HR)

Valgauth
the murky atmosphere of this Expansion Region planet hides the mountains of wreckage and trash that cover its surface. The planet was, at one time, a mineral-rich world dotted with manufacturing facilities. Overuse and mismanagement turned it into a biological wasteland dotted with the blue, green, and yellow fires of burning refuse. The atmosphere of the planet is laden with machine fluids, toxic wastes, and other rotting gases. Hidden within this scum is The Yard, headquarters of Syndicate One. The Syndicate chose the planet for its remote location, and after purchasing the world has changed official records to note as anything from an airless moon to a worthless gas giant. The planet orbits a pair of stars in the V1-V2 System, and is the only world of three which supports life. The average day on Valgauth lasts 26 standard hours, and its year takes 669 local days. (SWJ8)

Valiant
1) an Imperial Star Destroyer that was, at one time, commanded by Captain Oweg. (ISB)
2) this was one of the Thranta-class warships slaved to the Another Chance to protect it from being taken by hostile forces. Like its companions, the Courage and Fidelity, it would accompany the Another Chance as it jumped through hyperspace to avoid detection. One of the Thranta's would enter realspace before the Chance to engage any resistance, the second would accompany it for protection, and the third would help draw off pursuit. After the Another Chance was recovered by the Alliance, the Valiant continued its mission without guidance, hopping into and out of hyperspace around the remains of Alderaan. It suddenly reappeared during the Bacta War when Tycho Celchu's X-Wing started using the IFF transmissions of the Another Chance to mask its true identity. The Valiant jumped back to realspace just as the Corrupter and Aggregator tried to eliminate Rogue Squadron. The Valiant saw the Corrupter as a foe and quickly fired on it, allowing the Rogues to disable it. (BW)

Valiant Damsel
this battered starship was owned by the New Republic, and was dispatched by Airen Cracken to Moorja to break reconnoiter the build-up of Imperial Advisor Golthan's fleet near the Core Worlds. It is a small ship, armed with a pair of turret-mounted laser cannons. (SWJ8)

Valkanhayn, Borke
this man grew up on the planet Kalab, and was a childhood friend of Garvan Spasso. The two remained friends during their adulthood, and went into the import/export business together. Much of the cargo they transported was illegal, including spice and criminal holovids. Valkanhayn set up an enterprise on Glova, were he became known as the premier "importer of fine goods" in the city of Drepplin. (POC)

Valkrex
manufacturers of fusion disintegrators. (VOF)

Vall, Helkson
this man succeeded Matagorn as the Sub-Prefect of Kalandis IV, reporting to Prefect Ursellis. (GG10)

Valla's Glorious Gesture
this huge starship was the flagship of the Vallaido pirate fleet. (CRO)

Vallaido
this was a clan of pirates. The Vallaido gang was a rival of the Seville pirates led by Yearo Seville, until the Sevilles forged an alliance with the Empire. The Sevilles then "borrowed" Imperial warships to attack and decimate the Vallaido fleet. (CRO)

Vallen-38
this long-barrel blaster carbine was favored by snipers and marksmen for its accuracy across long distances. The bounty hunter Dengar stole one of these weapons from a victim while working for the Empire. (CCG4)

Valley of Royalty
located in the mountains of Duro, this valley has been walled of for protection. It houses underground catacombs, caverns, and tunnels containing the artifacts and history of Duro's great leaders. The Duro archeaologists have a secret entrance to the caverns. (MMY)

Valley of Ternaax
this once lush and beautiful valley was located on the planet Rannon. Since Danaan Kerr made his home near the valley, his connection to the Dark Side of the Force has drained the valley of life. It is now a rotting, dark, evil place that few of the natives enter. (WBC)

Valley of the Dark Lords
this valley, located on the planet Korriban, is the site of the tombs of the ancient Dark Lords of the Sith. It was dominated by huge funereal temples and tombs, with an ornate altar at the far end. (GAS)

Valley of the Giant Oysters located in the oceans of Calamari, this valley has been the home for Calamari's huge oysters for millions of years. Could this be the Calamarian Knowledge Banks? (GDV)

Valley of the Jedi
an ancient, hidden, Jedi burial ground whose existence was considered a mere legend until Morgan Katarn discovered its exact location. The Jedi Knight Qu Rahn tried to keep the Valley's location a secret until he could secure it, but the Dark Jedi Jerec murdered Rahn and Morgan Katarn in order to have it for himself. Kyle Katarn, Morgan's son, successfully defeated Jerec and his Dark Jedi and prevented them from abusing the Valley's power. (DF2)

Valley of the Wind
this smooth-floored gulley is located near Jabba the Hutt’s palace on Tatooine. It is also known as the Teeth of Tatooine, for Jabba used it as a torture and punishment. (TBH)

Valley of Umbra
located on the planet Zelos II, this 500-meter deep valley is unusual in that its walls slope inward. This creates a valley which is wider at its base than at its top. The floor of the valley is always in the shadows, and thus it is feared by the native Zelosians. It is for this reason that the Empire built their base there, hidden from the eyes of the New Republic and the Zelosians. The garrison is maintained at half-strength since the Battle of Endor. (PG2)

Valleyport
this small city is located on the planet Liinade III. During the New Republic's assault on the planet, Corran Horn was shot down over this city, and discovered a laboratory which was designing a new version of the Death Star. The lab had been set up by Ysanne Isard, in an effort to undermine the efforts of Prince-Admiral Krennel and Isard's clone. (IR)

Vallikor En-Vahdi
this Ipharian-Da'Lor bounty hunter was known to be cold-blooded, cruel, twisted, and any number of other unsavory things. He enjoyed torturing his captives, inflicting pain to witness their reaction. En-Vahdi wore a specialized suit of Nullifier diffusion armor, and favored the use of projectile weapons in order to wear the armor at all times. (WSV)

Vallusk Cluster
Admiral Ackbar attacked an Imperial fleet in this area, serving as a diversion for the ships fleeing Yavin 4 after the Battle of Yavin. The defeat of the Imperials in the Cluster marked the beginning of the end of Admiral Griff’s career. (CSW)

Valorous
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was part of the Empire's Black Sword Command, and was one of the ships captured by the Yevetha shortly after the Battle of Endor. Nil Spaar told Leia Organa-Solo that it had been destroyed when the Empire left the Koornacht Cluster, but the ship later showed up as the Star Destroyer which pursued Platt Mallar near Polneye. (BTS)

Valorsian
this race is dubiously well-known for its heavily-guarded harems. (POT)

Valorum, Finis
this man served as the Chancellor of the Old Republic, shortly before the rise of Senator Palpatine. However, Valorum was no match for Palaptine's political maneuverings, and was in trouble from false accusations even before the Trade Federation blockaded the planet Naboo. When Queen Amidala appealed to the Galactic Senate for a lifting of the blockade, Valorum was unable to act without a considerable resistance from many factions within the Senate. The Senators from Malastare demanded a review of the situation, and Valorum was forced to agree. As Palpatine's plan unfolded, he urged Amidala to call for a vote of no-confidence in Valorum. Amidala had very little understanding of the Seante's workings, and went along with Palpatine's suggestion. Shortly thereafter, Valorum was voted out as Chancelleor, to be replaced by Palpatine himself. Chanceller Valorum was portrayed by Terrence Stamp in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Valorum Tower
this Old Republic-style building was located in Coruscant's Imperial City. During the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, the building became a refuge for the many aliens who fled Yuuzhan Vong attacks. (JE)

Valrar
this planet was the home port of the Hab Camber, one of the starship IDs used by Talon Kaarde's people. It was also the site of a Noghri commando base. It is located in the Glythe Sector. (DFR, TLC)

Valsil Torr
this wily old Twi'lek served as the Warlord Zsinj's station chief on Zsinj's Empress-class space station at Yag'Dhul. Torr was in command shortly before Rogue Squadron took control of the facility during the Krytos crisis. He attempted to force the native Givin workforce to pay him bribes, and the Givin leader agreed to meet in Torr's office. An "accident" led to a blaster bolt hole in the hull of the station, and Torr was literally sucked out the small aperture. The Givin then patched the hole and survived. (KT, BW)

Valtis
Virgillian pilot of the Flurry. (TB)

Valton
this man was a native of the planet Tatooine, and served the New Republic as the Captain of the starship Sungrass in support of Wraith Squadron. His appearance was as well-weathered as that of his ship, and served to hide his true age. (IF)

Vanar
this fashion designer created the House of Vanar, during the early years of the New Republic. Leia Organa-Solo asked him to submit a design for Mara Jade's wedding dress, and Vanar's team came up with avery revealing design. Mara discarded their idea, despite Vanar's claims that "minimal was maximal" in galactic fashion of the time. In the wake of Mara's refusal of the design, Vanar fired his chief designer, Jari'kyn, despite the fact that the design was mostly his own. (U)

Vanarian Tree Eater
this creature uses its unusual tail to lure its prey close to its body. The tail resembles a small, furry creature. (GMH)

Vandelhelm
this planet was the homeworld of the Metalsmiths' Guild, and was surrounded by asteroids. Following the Galactic Civil War, the Guilds threw their support to the New Republic, but the Guildmaster, Orrk, remained loyal to the Empire. He hid Commander Mordur in a converted drone barge among the asteroids, until the Imperials could regroup. The Imperials were eventually defeated. The natives of Vandelhelm are generally superstitious, and have perfected their craft. Their metalsmithing secrets have been passed down from generation to generation. (VM)

Vandalar City
this was the capital city of the planet known as Reaper's World. It was built like a mesa rising out of the ground, and artificial canyons cut through its interior. The elite of the city lived in the upper levels, while the lowest classes were forced to live in the trash heaps at its base. (ND)

Vandangante, Carmilla
this former Deputy Viceprex of the Rigahuerr Publishing Combine was Klaus Vandangante's mother. She was a widow, and doted heavily on her son. She provided him with every luxury and opportunity she could. (CSA)

Vandangante, Klaus

Vander, John
also known as Dutch, Vander was the leader of Specter Squadron at Renforra before volunteering for starpilot duty during the Battle of Yavin. He was killed in the battle. Dutch was portrayed by Angus McInnis in Star Wars. (SW, CCG)

Vandfill
a musical instrument. (TME)

(Indeterminate) Vandolae
this Shi'ido worked as a Senior Anthropologist for the Empire, serving under Major Vontenn during the Galactic Civil War. During a mission to Centares, Vandolae booked passage with Pyrron Nox. Vandolae then tried to use Nox's appearance to infiltrate the ranks of spacers and learn more about them. Vandolae's inability to collect memories from Nox's mind led to his downfall, as Gideon and Keeta tripped him up with a question about their mutual acquaintence, Cleven. Vandolae was killed on Centares by Gideon and Keeta. (SWJ12)

Vandolay
this Imperial Corporal served as the Imperial Security Bureau attache' to the Executor during the final years of the New Order. He was in charge of all detention block transfers during the mop-up operations following the Battle of Hoth. Fiercely loyal to the New Order, Vandolay was also the political liaison for COMPNOR. (CCG4)

Vandor-3
the Tech Raiders moved their base to this planet, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. Vandor-3 was located near Coruscant, and many considered it a neighbor world. (DH)

Vandro
heavy weapons and repulsorlift specialist in Page's Commandos. (HTSB)

Vandron
1) the most ancient of the ruling houses in the Senex Sector, they control the slave farms on Karfeddion. (COJ)
2) this planet was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War. (HR)

Vandron, Crueya
one of Emperor Palpatine's closest advisors, Crueya was the individual responsible for COMPNOR. He saw that a popular movement which openly supported the New Order would feed upon itself, growing by leaps and bounds. Vandron was also responsible for the placement of Imperial orphans into COMPNOR's SAGroups, thereby filling its ranks with children whose parents were placed in "protective custody," later to be executed for some false crime. (ISB, CRO)

Vandron, Theala
the Lady of House Vandron, she is the superior Senex Lady due to her house's age and vastness. A native of Karfeddion, she is a heavy-set woman in her mid-forties. She, along with many other Senex Houses, falls into Roganda Ismaren's plot to recover the Eye of Palpatine. (COJ)

Vane
a Bakuran local paid by the Empire to patrol the Alliance's landing area. (TB)

Vanel
this tall, guant woman is distinguishable by the dark top-knot of hair she wears. She served as the chief of security for Mon Tondievz, Limited, until it was discovered that she was an Imperial Intelligence agent. Her training was in destabilization, and was working undercover on Krann to determine a way to enslave the Kluuzot and control the nova crystal trade. There are several well-known episodes in which Vanel survived assassinations, a testiment to her abilities as a hardened killer and perfectionist. She has been known to adhere to the "I don't get mad, I get even" tenet of business, and will stop at nothing to get her way. While on Krann, she also served as the bodyguard to Mon Tondievz's mine supervisor, Quarlo I'Shibix. Together, they were using eldratz to addict the native Kluuzot and use them as miners. When Quarlo and his men were apprehended by New Republic agents, Vanel was also captured. She was taken into custody by the New Republic and imprisoned. (TSK)

Vangaard Industries
manufacturers of several small starships designs, including the Pathfinder scout ship, Vangaard produced its starships some 63 years before the Battle of Yavin. (GG8)

Vanguard
1) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer used by then-Vice Admiral Thrawn to chase Zaarin after Zaarin's failed attempt to kidnap the Emperor near Coruscant. (SWJ8, TIE)
2) this New Republic gunship was part of the fleet supporting the Indomitable during the final battle of the Black Fleet Crisis. It was under the command of Captain Inadi, and saw a great deal of duty during the Battle of ILC-905. It was during this battle that the Vanguard took heavy fire and was destroyed. (TT)

Vanicus
Old Republic Captain in charge of the mission to Koros Major, where a combined Jedi-Republic force was to try and liberate the Empress Teta system from the Krath. He was later placed in charge of a battle group that tried to capture Ulic Qel-Droma's growing Krath armada, and was the first to discover Qel-Droma's plans to attack Coruscant. Vanicus later served as the fleet commander that assisted in the defense of Onderon during the Great Sith War. (DLS, TSW)

Vanik System
rumors spread to the remote worlds still held by the Empire that the Lusankya had been captured in this system by the New Republic. (CE)

Vanis Lorn
this minor crimelord controlled much of the underworld on the planet Andasala. (GG11)

Vanish 2 Sensor Mask
developed and manufactured by Fabritech, this device combined electromagnetic and holographic transmissions to "hide" a starship from most sensors. This device didn't absorb sensor beams but, rather, disrupted them by sending back information on the environment surrounding a starship. The Vanish 2 made a ship virtually disappear by sending back sensor data about the starfield around it. (PP)

Vanko
this Imperial Moff was an aging old man who had dedicated his life to the military. He was once a personal friend of Emperor Palpatine. He was one of the two Moffs with territories bordering the Maelstrom. Along with his compatriot Torpin, Vanko submitted falsified budgets and financial reports to the Empire to try and hide the fact that he was losing a great deal of money to the Riders of the Maelstrom. The last reports Vanko sent wer covering up nearly 25% losses. He and Torpin met in secret on the planet Aris, then boarded the Kuari Princess to discuss what their next moves would be. Both believed that the pirate groups were woking in concert with the Alliance to plan a major offensive against their forces. Vanko and Torpin barely escaped from the Princess after it was hijacked by the Riders and rescued by Alliance agents. (RM)

Vannan Crystals
these rare minerals were often smuggled and sold on the black market. (IA)

this particularly nasty bounty hunter was a member of the Tolanese people, and traveled the galaxy in a ship he called the Tolan's Tusk. During the height of the New Order, he maintained two Gamorrean slaves, brothers known as Gorge and Greel. After delivering a bounty to Coruscant, Fin'Rotha let his guard down while taking a break, and let Greel out of his cage to clean the ship. Greel let his brother loose, and the pair overpowered Fin'Rotha. They forced him into an escape pod and jettisoned him, and the brothers took off in the Tolan's Tusk. Fin'Rotha's escape pod eventually crashed, an the Tolanese barely escaped. He was hideously disfigured by burns when the ablative shields on the escape pod failed, and it took him many years to recover. He vowed to exact revenge on the two Gamorreans should he ever relocate them. (WSV)

Var'sairk
this was the term used by the Coynites to describe the birth group of an individual. The average var'sairk consisted of two to six children. When used to describe the birth group of royalty, the word is capitalized. (AE)

Varat'k
this Gree master is credited with the creation of the Varat'k Snarap device. (SWJ8)

Varat'k Snarap
this weapon, created by the Gree Varat'k, is used to protect the vast starship known as the Rokak'k Baran. It is not a blaster-type weapon, but instead manipulated a generated forcefield into wind-like energy bolts. When rakes across the surface of an enemy ship, it can effectively vaoprize the enemy with blasts of energy. (SWJ8)

Varatha, Finn
this woman bore a striking resemblance to the bounty hunter Beylyssa in both appearance and dress, something she worked hard to cultivate in order to hide her true profession. Varatha worked as a remote operative for the Alliance, and was sent to Corulag to back up Cryle Cavv and Quillin Arkell during their rescue of Rivoche Tarkin. (SWJ12)

Varda*-class Starship
this ancient starship design was considered outdated and slow some 4,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. Nevertheless, the middle-class spacer of the time could find them for little money, and they maintained an excellent durability. (TOJC)

Vareth
this short, human female was stranded on Tatooine with her Sullustan companion, Garron, when their ship - the Startled Circuit - was in need of repairs. She was eventually recruited into Jabba the Hutt's organization by Bib Fortuna. (GG7)

VargeCorp
this manufacturing and direct-sales conglomerate became successful via aggressive marketing techniques and franchising. Their products, however - including breath masks and atmospheric filtering devices- were mediocre at best. VargeCorp was one of the original non-voting Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA, ROE)

Vargi
Malla's black-sheep brother, this Wookiee assisted the N'Gai known as Knife in capturing Wookiees for slavery. (EGC)

Variant Alpha
Doctor Vin Emil developed this strain of bacteria from the Rift Mutation, creating a dominant trait which would allow the bacteria to live longer if it didn't eat so much. It was released within the facility, where it bred with the natural form of the bacteria and bred the desire to continually eat out of their genetic makeup. He allowed the crew of the FarStar to obtain a sample of the Variant Alpha bacteria, in order for them to bring it back to the New Republic and use it to assist in colonizing and traveling through the Kathol Rift. (KR)

Varic
a city on the planet Dosha, it is bombarded by sandstorms that have been popularized throughout the galaxy. (SWAJ)

Variise
this Mistryl warrior acted as Imperial Moff Caerbellak's bodyguard and enforcer. A stunningly beautiful woman with red hair, sharp crimson fingernails, and an athletic build, Variise is also cold, calculating, and exceptionally cruel. She acknowledges her membership in the Mistryl Shadow Guards, but has never revealed any additional information. How she came to work for Caerbellak is also a mystery, although it has been rumored that Caerbellak once saved her life from a band of pirates. Variise is an enigma, having seemingly gone against her sisterhood in serving an Imperial Moff. (SWJ9)

Varium
this ore was used in the production of droid shells. (CSWDW)

Vark Street
this avenue was the location of The Strip, in the city of Takari on Iyuta. (SWCP)

Varl
original homeworld of the Hutt race, it is part of the Ardos system. Once a luch, forested paradise, Varl is now a cratered which no longer has the necessary resources to maintain itself. The Hutts have a legend that says the planet was killed when Ardos' twin star, Evona, was sucked into a black hole. Hutt legends maintained that Ardos and Evona were lovers, and that the many planets in the system were their children. When the black hole consumed Evona and many of the system's planets, legends say Ardos became enraged and began to self-destruct. This led to Ardos' shedding of incredible amounts of radioactive material and shrinking to become a white dwarf. At this point, the Hutts no longer felt Ardos a worthy god, and abandoned. The fact that Ardos and Varl still exist is an astrophysical impossibility. Some scientists theorizes that the Hutts devastated the planet in a civil war. The Hutts left the dying planet and established colony worlds elsewhere, including Nal Hutta. (COTF, DE1, GG4)

Varmigio
a valuable ore that is used to manufacture hyperdrive cores. (SWAJ)

Varn
1) a planet covered completely by water. Lando Calrissian set up an ore extraction and processing facility there some fifteen years after the Battle of Endor, obtaining fraca and tertian while allowing investors and tourists to witness the mining from special viewports. (HSR, SOP, VOF)
2) Varn was the chief scout reporting to Tyrann, the Supreme Serpent Master. He always wore stormtrooper armor, and was one of Tyrann's best Serpent Riders, but was bested in combat by Luke Skywalker. (CSW)
3) a wild carnivore found on the planet Ibanjji, they hunt in packs. (DESB)

Varn, Soras

Varn, World of Water
a travelogue shown by Han Solo to the Kamarian Badlanders while he was trying to earn some extra money. (HSR)

Varnay
this Ithorian Shepherd-class shuttle was commanded by Iych-thae. (OE)

Varnier
this ineffectual and vengeful Imperial Moff controlled Wyloff Sector during the period following the Battle of Yavin. He was less concerned about government than recreation, and spent much of his time away from the actual leadership of the sector. When his lack of government was revealed by the father of Ilo Jev, Varnier had the broadcaster executed. Varnier had been assassinating any individual who opposed or questioned his rule,and the elder Jev was just another member of the opposition. His operation was eventually broken by the efforts of Major Kerri Lessev, who was working more for the Alliance than the Empire's Destabilization branch. Varnier's entire entire operation was laid bare, and many Imperial agents were reassigned or executed for their parts in Varnier's government. (CRO)

Varnillian, Niclara
this woman was the youngest daughter of a prosperous Alderaanian family that ran a t'iil harvesting operation. As the favorite child a single father, she enjoyed many privileges as long as her older brothers were off at school. Niclara decided, much against her father's wishes, to join the Imperial Academy, and graduated with honors. She was assigned to the first Death Star as an operations crewer, and was part of the team which fired the station's first blast – at Alderaan. Shortly afterward, she was transferred to the Star Destroyer Pulsar and assigned the rank of gunnery officer. When she failed to capture Alton Lochner and Anson Blazer on Ord Mantell, she was demoted. A year later, when the Pulsar surrended to Alliance forces after the Battle of Endor, she and a group of troops fled on a transport ship and escaped. She continued to strike at New Republic forces in the Outer Rim Territories, and managed to elude capture each time. (SWJ8)

Varno Market
this sprawl of small shops and businesses was located in the primary city of the planet Vengler. A vast array of trinkets and treasures from around the galaxy can be found there. (GG8)

Varonat
this planet, located in the Ison Corridor, is the homeworld of the Morodin race. Varonat is a jungle world that was colonized by a group from the planet Salliche about 250 years before the Galactic Civil War. They established a farming economy, which proved to be profitable. However, the Morodin proved to be a menace to the community's farms because of their size and the slime they left behind, which caused the soil to become infertile. Many of the farming industry's profits went into security measures. Gamgalon later set up a hunting industry on Varonat. The average day on Varonat lasts 27 standard hours, and its year encompasses 325 local days. (SWAJ, TFE)

Varr
a Singing Mountain clan witch who succumbed to the Dark Side and joined the Nightsisters (CPL)

Varristad
this planetoid was too small to maintain an atmosphere. It was controlled by the Offworld Mining Company in the years leading up to the struggle between Offworld and Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation over Bandomeer. (RF)

Varrscha, Lakwii
this woman was one of the many promoted to officer status in the Imperial Navy, in the wake of the destruction at the Battle of Endor. She served as the Executive Office under Joak Drysso aboard the Virulence, and was in line to take his position when Drysso was promoted. She was known to be a no-nonsense, by-the-book commander from her days at the helm of a customs Corvette. After Drysso's promotion, Varrscha proved herself to be an average Captain, with unimpressive results in battles against Rogue Squadron. Taller and more muscular than Ysanne Isard, Lakwii lacked Isard's commanding presence. When Isard discovered that the Rogues were based off the space station in the Yag'Dhul system, she ordered Varrscha and the Virulence to accompany the Lusankya and destroy it. When Booster Terrik managed to catch the Super-class Star Destroyer in a trap, the Virulence moved between the station and the Lusankya, allowing the larger ship to leave. Captain Drysso believed Varrscha and her crew were killed by Terrik's attack. In fact, the Virulence and her crew were captured by Terrik. (BW)

Varth
Varth was the bitter, taciturn Wing Commander who was in charge of the Atrivis Resistance Group's Generis base starfighters. He was hated by all his pilots, who served because they recognized his flawless tactics and military brilliance. He was under the control of Travia Chan, but was also directly answerable to the Alliance Sector command and Starfighter command. As a New Republic Wing Commander on Generis, he is a man who would send his starfighters out against impossible odds without a second thought. It is unknown if he survived the attack there, just prior to the Battle of Bilbringi. (RASB, TLC)

Varth, Alinn
this young woman was a member of Rogue Squadron, during the second decade of the New Republic. She held the rank of Major, and was also Gavin Darklighter's third-in-command behind Inyri Forge, flying as Rogue Nine during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. (DTO)

Vartos, Cobb
a Major with the New Republic Intelligence Agency, Vartos was one of the best instructors in the military. He wasn't a loud, screaming drill sergeant, but instead a persistent teacher who maintained a high level of pressure his students in subtle ways to earn their buy-in to the training. He was in command of the team dispatched to Verkuyl to assist in ousting the Imperial presence there, shortly after the Battle of Endor. He and Selby Jarrad posed as corporate spokesbeings from GalFactorial, who came to Verkuyl to negotiate a deal with Governor Parco Ein. After the capture of Claris' infiltration team, Vartos himself was caught by Governor Ein's stormtroopers. Sebly tried to break away from the troopers and complete the mission, and opened fire on those holding Vartos. Unfortunately for Vartos, the first thing the remaining troops did was shoot him before they fired on Selby. Luckily, though, he survived long enough to be rescued by members of the Republic's second wave. (TFNR, SWJ13)

Varvenna Sector
the area of the galaxy once ruled by Yndis Mylore. (TJP)

Vasarian Brandy
an intoxicating beverage favored by Trackan Sal-Solo. (AS)

Vasch
a planet covered by lush, rolling, green hills. (TMEC)

Vaschean Rye
a fermented spirit created on Vasch. (TMEC)

Vasnish Kay
this Bimm spent little time on her homeworld of Bimisaari, instead traveling across the galaxy with her merchant parents. She learned a great deal about the Jedi Knights during these travels, and when her parents were killed in an accident, Vasnish just kept on traveling, looking for more information on the Jedi. She eventually became something of a bard, collecting and retelling stories of the Jedi despite Imperial prohibitions against it. (HR)

Vasp
this petty thief preyed on unwitting passengers of the Kuari Princess. (RM)

Vastrip IV

Vasudra
this Xiytiar-class transport was part of the Azzameen family's Twin Suns Transport Services fleet. (XWA)

Vatoki
this retired Imperial Army officer was highly distressed by the victories the Alliance was able to claim over the Empire, including the Battle of Yavin. He was fairly vocal about the Empire's lack of success in eradicating the Alliance. Vatoki was a passenger on the Kuari Princess when it was attacked by the Riders of the Maelstrom. (RM)

Vatta Four
Airen Cracken was able to fight off Imperial forces on this planet by using a Baed Sharpshooter and some modified explosive slugs. (CFG)

Vaufthau Processing Industries
this manufacturing and urban construction combine was one of the original non-voting contributing sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. (CSA)

Vaults of Narner
a famous group of burial grounds located on the planet Salliche, they were looted over the years until the Jedi Knight Soonis put a stop to it. (SWAJ)

Vaxx, Norrin
a native of Coruscant, Vaxx discovered he was sensitive to The Force at an early age. However, his sensitivity was quite low, a fact which allowed him to escape the notice of Emperor Palpatine. Instead of pursuing the Jedi arts, Vaxx turned to gambling and fighting as a means to make ends meet. This lifestyle began to turn him toward the Dark Side of the Force, a path which drew him in deeper after he constructed his own lightsaber and began to use it in combat. He was a regular combatant at the Dool Arena on Reuss VIII during the Galactic Civil War. (WSV)

Vaya*-class Scout Ship
this ancient starship was designed and manufactured by Hoersch-Kessel Drive, Incorporated, and was developed for use as an exploration vessel. The Vaya-class was not a combat ship, and suffered from ion engine malfunction if pushed too hard. The Vaya-class measured 30 meters in length, and required a pilot and two gunners. It could transport up to 4 passengers and 60 metric tons of cargo. These ships were often armed with a front-mounted laser cannon and projectile launcher. They were equipped with a hyperdrive, and was considered fast by ancient standards. (TOJC)

Vayerbok
this drink is served warm. (TNR)

Veb, Bedran
this man was a grandfather, and he was considered one of the best storytellers of his generation, at least by his grandchildren. (TOJC)

VecTech
see Vector Technologies (WSV)

Vector
a game of chance and skill often found in casinos. (HSR)

Vector Prime
this was the codename used by the Yuuzhan Vong to describe their path of galactic invasion. Starting from a point in the Yuuzhan Vong's own galaxy, the Praetorite Vong traveled along Vector Prime and made first contact with the known galaxy at Helska, where their first ship established a base of operation. Through the efforts of Yomin Carr, they destroyed the planet Belkadan and planned to use it as a breeding ground for yorik coral. Next, Vector Prime continued on to Sernpidal, which was destroyed when a dovin basal drew the moon Dobido into a collision with the planet. Next on the vector were Destrillion and Dubrillion, but it was here that the first wave of the invasion force encountered stiff resistance. The New Republic was alerted to the presence of the alien invaders, and the base on Helska was destroyed. However, the Republic's leadership turned a blind eye to the scope of the Yuuzhan Vong threat, believing that Leia Organa Solo magnified its impact in order to regain political power. When Vector Prime consumed the worlds of Bimmiel, Dantooine, and Garqi, Chief of State Borsk Fey'lya was forced to concede his mistake and yield more power to the military in order to counteract the Yuuzhan Vong forces. With the destruction of the planet Obroa-skai, Vector Prime had captured or destroyed thirty planetary systems. (VP, DTO, HT)

Vector Technologies
this small corporation was owned and operated by Yin Vocta. Known as VecTech to most businessbeings, it owned a number of subsidiary and ancillary businesses, including Bantha Traxx on Lianna. (WSV)

Vector*-class Spaceskimmer
this small starship was a Sullustan design. (ROM)

Veda
this woman was the Queen of the planet Gala, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. Veda became the ruler of the planet after her husband, Cana, passed away. As her own life came to an end, she began putting in place the mechanisms to have her successor chosen by democratic vote. This angered her son, Beju, who believed he should be the rightful ruler after her death. Veda knew that Beju might not be the true heir, knowing that Cana once married a woman of the hill clans, and fathered a daughter named Elan. She loaned Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi a starfighter when they were dispatched to the planet Melida/Daan to rescue Tahl, then requested their assistance in ensuring a democratic vote for her successor. Veda had planned to abdicate the throne, knowing that she was about to die. (DOD, MOC)

Vedain
this Kajain'sa'Nikto was sold into Jabba the Hutt's servitude by his family. He is a notorious gambler, and spends much of his free time playing sabacc with hif fellow Nikto. (CCG7)

Vedder
this Imperial Major was assigned to General Yrros, during the garrisoning of the planet Rhamalai. Like Yrros, Vedder was killed when the droid R2-4B self-destructed, destroying much of the Imperial base. (SWJ13)

Vedij, Dhas Feneop
this man was the son of Ronnan Tyla Vedij and a native of Coruscant. Like his father, Dhas joined the Imperial Navy and had a distinguished career. After earning the rank of Captain, Dhas was promoted to serve aboard the Far Orbit. He was second in command of the frigate Far Orbit when Alderaan was destroyed, and had become disgruntled with the leadership of Captain Kenit. The destruction of the planet, and the propaganda that followed, further soured Vedij's loyalty to the Empire. The deaths of his parents in a so-called traffic accident added fuel to the fire. After Kenit ordered the destruction of the Silent Blades, losing an entire starfighter squadron - and Elon Vedij's life in the process - Dhas could no longer contain his hatred of Kenit and the Empire. Vedij and a group of followers (about two-thirds of the crew) staged a mutiny, and successfully wrested control of the frigate from Captain Kenit. They then became independent privateers, and allied themselves with the Alliance in order to obtain funding and strike back at the Empire. Vedij and his crew participated in a series of raids on Imperial installations in the Ringali Shell, during the Alliance's experiment in using pirates and privateers to assist in the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Vedij, Elon
this man was Dhas Vedij's younger brother. Like his father and brother before him, Elon joined the Imperial Navy, and later served with Dhas aboard the Far Orbit as a starfighter pilot. When Captain Kenit ordered the destruction of the Silent Blades, he ordered a full squadorn of starfighters to attack their base. Elon's squadron was dispatched, but was eventually wiped out by the pirates. Elon was killed in the assault. (FOP)

Vedij, Ronnan Tyla
a Baron with family holdings on Coruscant, Ronnan was not content to live a comfortable life like his ancestors. Instead, he elected to join the Imperial Navy and serve the Emperor. He led a distinguished career, earning the rank of Captain after saving his ship and crew from a pirate attack after the death of his commanding officer and after receiving serious wounds himself. Vedij ended his career as a full Admiral, and retired to the family estate on Coruscant. After retiring, Ronnan began voicing his opinion of the Emperor's use of a huge war machine to scare the galaxy into submission. Shortly after the Battle of Yavin, he and his wife were killed in what was officially deemed a traffic accident. (FOP)

Vedis IV
Lu Esi was killed here after his ship crashed on the planet. He was being pursued by sector authorities at the time. (SWAJ)

Vee Gee
this droid belonged to Airen Cracken. (CFG)

Vee Naaq
this Gran was a noted poet, who managed to bypass the normal Gran social structure and avoid being a fluidics technician. He was engaged to marry the Gran named Cera Vixe, but her brother, Boe Vixe, refused to let the marriage take place. He hired a group of freelance spacers to rescue himself and Cera from Kinyen, in an effort to escape Boe's influence. (IA)

Veedo Vaocan
this Rodian spurned all the violent and agressive tendencies of his species, and shunned the holidays which Rodians held to venerate hunters and warriors. Eventually, Veedo was exiled from Rodia and was discovered by the Alliance. In an effort to remain peaceful during the epic conflict which spread through the galaxy, Veedo choose to study medicine, and eventually became a renowned doctor. Known as "Doc Rodian," Veedo served as the chief medic at theTierfon base for many years. He was recognizable by the missing antennae on the right side of his head, the result of being too close to a battlefield explosion. Thus, he could only hear with his left side. (HR)

Veelgeg
this is a Weequay form of needle or thin-bladed knife. (TFNR)

Veerdo Veerone
this Rodian dramatist was known as the author of The Unquiet Spirit Arises from the Swamp, and immense play. (HR)

Veermok
this vicious, gorilla-like creature is native to the planet Naboo. The veermok inhabit the plains and forests of the planet, staying well away from the swamps. They are very fast, and have sharp teeth and large claws with which to attack theyr prey. The Gungans often use veermoks as guards for their waste yards. (SW1)

Veers, Maximillian
Veers has been an Imperial soldier nearly his entire life. He trained as the commander of an All-Terrain Armored Transport. He was part of General Irrv's mission to subdue the planet Culroon III, and was nearly court-martialled for telling Irrv that the ruse of a peaceful ceremony would be less effective than an all-out assault on the Culroon people. When Veers was proven correct, Irrv was executed by Commander Grath, who then promoted Veers to Major. Veers learned that mistakes were not to be tolerated by the Empire, and when Davin Felth pointed out that the AT-AT was vulnerable due to its legs, he carefully hid the information and shipped Felth off to Tatooine. After assuming the rank of Colonel, he was part of the garrison stationed on Corellia during the early years of the New Order, and was dispatched by Grand Admiral Thrawn to "assist" Hal and Corran Horn in capturing Zekka Thyne. After Thrawn described Veers' bravery and leadership skills to Darth Vader, Veers was promoted to Imperial Army General, and he led the AT-AT assault on the Hoth Rebel base. He later served under Executor Sedriss during Operation Shadow Hand. In the novelization of Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back, Veers is killed when Hobbie crashs his disbaled snowspeeder into Veers' walker, disabling the walker and causing it to explode. Veers was portrayed by Julian Colley in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back*. Veers was also portrayed by Gordon Gould for the The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio.* (ESB, ESBR, DE2, TME, TFE)

Veers, Zevulon
the son of Maximillian Veers, Zev grew up wondering why the Empire stood for so many wonderful things, yet destroyed entire races and enslaved others. He reluctantly joined his local SAGroup battalion, but the New Order was notvery much to his liking. When his father told him that certain comments and questions Zev had made were endangering his career, Zev vowed to be anything but like his father. He endured his Imperial training, as well as the glory his father received from the Battle of Hoth. When his commanding officer brutally torture an elderly man suspected of supporting the Alliance, Zev's better judgement took over. He helped the man, and was taken prisoner by Alliance agents trying to rescue him. Zev was questioned, but the Alliance could find no reason to distrust him. Zev became an Alliance soldier just prior to the Battle of Endor. As a gunner in the New Republic navy, he served aboard the Emancipator during the first Battle of Calamari. He was also part of the assault which attacked Byss by hiding inside the Emperor's shipment of Viper Automadons. (DE1, DESB, DE2)

VeerTa
this Meerian woman was the leader of the Home Planet Party, some 12 years before the Battle of Naboo. She was fiercely loyal to her people and her homeworld of Bandomeer, and strove to forge an alliance with the Arconans that shared the planet in order to restore it to its natural beauty. However, in order to further her plans and ideals, VeerTa entered into a secret pact with Xanatos. This put her in between her own political party, which worked with Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation, and the leaders of Offworld Mining Company. VeerTa hoped that this alliance would free Bandomeer once Xanatos had exacted his revenge against Qui-Gon Jinn, but she ultimately discovered that she was just a pawn in Xanatos' plans to destroy the planet. VeerTa was exposed after Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan Kenobi thwarted Xanatos' plans, and she was removed from office. (DR)

Vees, s'Too
this starfighter mechanic worked as an engineer on Cloud City until the Empire garrisoned the outpost. Then, Vees fled the station behind Lando Calrissian and joined the Alliance. Vees was offered a position with the Alliance's rear guard, but turned it down to continue working on Calrissian's starships. Vees held the rank of Lieutenant during the Battle of Endor. (CCG11)

Veeshas Tuwan
this was the name of a great Sith library complex which was built on Arkania, but later destroyed by the Jedi Knights. (TOJC)

Velker
a V-shaped, flying predator native to the planet Bespin, the velker is the primary hunter of the balloon-shaped beldon. These creatures are covered with a tough, armor-like hide, and have hard claws. The velkers are pack-hunters, and will gang up on any beldons they happen to find in the upper atmosphere. The pack will first rip open the beldon's gasbag, which causes it to begin to sink. The velkers then feed on the carcass as it sinks, a feast which can last for days due to the huge size of the average beldon. Velkers are fast flyers, and they generate a small electric field around their bodies. (GG2, ISU)

Vellam
this former Imperial General served as the Governor of the Bright Jewel System and its surrounding sector during the height of the New Order. Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, several of Vellam's planets were discovered to be minor bases used by the Alliance in the area, and Vellam was forced to explain this to the Emperor. Palpatine punished Vellam by placing five of his most productive planets under the control of Darth Vader. Vellam became angry with Vader, but found himself helpless to do anything about. Then, the Battle of Yavin took place, and Vader was lost in his TIE Advanced starfighter. When the cockpit suddenly appeared on Ord Mantell - right in the middle of the Bright Jewel System - Vellam tried to recover it and eliminate Vader. Unfortunately for Vellam, the cockpit was recovered by Captain Sodarra and his team and brought to Tatooine. (SL)

Vellar
this former Imperial Captain was a native of the planet Coruscant. He served under Warlord Zsinj during the period following the Battle of Endor and the breakup of the Empire. When Zsinj stole the Razor's Kiss from Kuat Drive Yards, Vellar took command of the Iron Fist while Captain Raslan commanded the Razor's Kiss. (IF, SOC)

Vellity
this planet is the homeworld of the Borneck race. Much of the planet's temperate surface was given over to agriculture. (GMK, AE)

Veloz, Jadonna
this female starhip captain was picking up a shipment of nerf tenderloins on Alderaan, bound for Cloud City, when a malfunctioning repulsorsled knocked her over. She suffered multiple injuries, but was helped out by a young Han Solo. He piloted her ship, the Wayward Girl, to Cloud City for her. (RD)

Velrugha
this ancient Hutt tried in vain to subjugate the Riileb species. The Riileb banded together and turned back Velrugha's forces several times, until Velrugha gave up and left them alone. (SWJ13)

Velser's Ring
this huge asteroid field was located between the planets Miser and Orin in the Bespin system. It is believed that the asteroids are remains of another gas giant planet, since the asteroids appeared to be formed from frozen gases and liquids rather than metal. Scientists believe that the asteroid belt was formed around 1,000 years before the Battle of Yavin. (GG2)

Velumina
this Hornet-class Carrier was the flagship of the pirate fleet commanded by Captain Sorran. In her holds, the Velumina carried four full squadrons of experimental droid starfighters. (SFT)

Velvoid

Ven
this was the name of an individual level of knowledge and enlightenment, found by those ancient Nazzar who followed the Ulizra. There were fourteen unique ven to attain. (TOJC)

Ven-Kav
the capital city of the planet Venaari, Ven-Kav is also the site of the planet's largest spaceport. (SWAJ)

Venaari
this Mid Rim world, located in the Vellakiya System, was under minimal Imperial control until the Battle of Endor. Then, for some reason, the Imperial presence was stepped up. This angered the populace, and strong resistance cells began to pop up. The reason for the increased Imperial presence was the created of Project Orrad, which was exposed by Shandria L'hanar. Since then, the New Republic has had a hard time regaining the planet, due to increased Imperial security. The average day on Venaari lasts 28 standard hours. Its year lasts 300 local days. (SWAJ)

Venaari Enterprises
manufacturers of the Venaari Striker military speeder. (SWAJ)

Venaari Striker
a military landspeeder manufactured by Venaari Enterprises. (SWAJ)

Venan, Chala
this Imperial officer was part of the team which was stranded on Dolis 3 in the wake of the peace accord signed between the Imperial Remnant and the New Republic. Chala joined Moff Derran Takkar in his plan to disrupt the wedding of Mara Jade and Luke Skywalker, as a way to strike back against the New Republic. He had a wealth of experience working in the field, and had developed a rapport with the lowlifes who made up the criminal underworld. Takkar ordered him to recruit swoop gangs and other ruffians to help disrupt the wedding. However, Chala's recruits proved to be no match for Luke and his friends, including Han Solo and Wedge Antilles. In a last-ditch attempt to halt the wedding, Chala and Iry Danta tried to infiltrate the wedding ceremony. However, they were intercepted by Chewbacca, who incapacitated both men and put an end to their actions. (U)

2) this was Prince Xizor's flagship, which was used whenever he needed to travel with a more imposing force than the Virago could provide. (HM)
3) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer patrolled the Inner Rim during the Galactic Civil War. (CRO)

Vendoll, Bho
this spacer traveled along the Ac'fren Spur of the Sisar Run in his ship, the Tragic Flaw, during the last years of the New Order. Shortly after the Battle of Hoth, Vendoll signed on to work for Kisquar, slightly aware that the Mrissi worked for Sprax and Black Sun. Kisquar ensured that Vendoll remained legitimate in his operations by injecting a purge virus into the datacore of Vendoll's ship, the Tragic Flaw, which could be removed after obtaining an alien-translation database at his destination. (SSR)

Vendor
a group of Imperial modular containers operative during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Vendrak V
this planet was the site of a protracted battle between Imperial and Alliance forces, fought over possession of a starship hangar. The Imperial troops had laid a trap for the Alliance forces, and were able to route them. (MB)

Vendred
this small world is the innermost planet of the Bissillirus System. This barren world, which orbits Bissillirus every 56 standard days, has one unstable moon. (GMK)

Vendusii Crystal
a valuable mineral mined in various grades of purity. (HR)

Venedlian Sandmole
this is a small, hunch-back rodent. (SLS)

Venerated Ones
the title given to the leaders of each generation of metalsmiths on Vandelhelm. Just before the Battle of Endor, the Venerated Ones were whisked off the planet when it became apparent that galactic power was going to change hands. They were two young children, and were given over to Alliance supporters. Following the Battle, Han Solo was contracted to return them to Vandelhelm and restore ore shipments to Fondor. They were necessary because they held the control codes which could be used to move the ore convoy out of the system. The older child was a strong-willed young woman, while the younger was an obnoxious boy. (VM)

Venesectrix
this was the name of Ree Duptom's personal starship. (HM)

Vengeance
1) this was the name used by Drend Navett and Klif as a monicker during the time they worked for Moff Disra. Navett and Klif had been hired to incite riots throughout the New Republic following the revelation of the Caamas Document, and they began dropping the name "Vengeance" to the people around them. Talon Karrde picked up on the name and provided it to Booster Terrik and Corran Horn. (SOP)
2) this was the name given to one of the many podraces which wound through the caverns and energy domes of the penal colony on Oovo IV, during the last decades of the Old Republic. (RAC)

Vengeance
1) this Star Destroyer was demolished while it was in drydock at the Wroonian Stardock, when Dirk Harkness and Jai Raventhorn exacted their revenge against Bregius Golthan. (SWAJ)

2) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer operative during the Galactic Civil War, it was the flagship that invaded the Taroon System. The Vengeance then joined the famous Death Squadron, after having its cargo holds refitted to hold additional TIE Fighters. Later, the Vengeance was stationed near Byss, as part of the planet's defense network. (TIE, DE2, CCG9)
3) this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was under the command of Jerec and then-Captain Thrawn during the Galactic Civil War. He used it to carry out missions given to him by Emperor Palpatine, such as collecting the entity known as Spore. However, Spore took control of the ship's crew and tried to capture Tash Arranda in the asteroid fields near Ithor. A group of huge space slugs, dishomed when the Vengeance destroyed the asteroids in which they lived, attacked the Vengeance and destroyed it by continually ramming it with their long bodies. (GOF8, GOF9)
4) Admiral Senn's Super-class Star Destroyer, this ship was destroyed by the Alliance prior to the Battle of Endor. (XVT)
5) this huge, spike-shaped warship was used by Jerec as his base of operations, during his search for the Valley of the Jedi. It was often escorted by several Imperial-class Star Destroyers also under Jerec's command. (DF2)

Vengeance Derra IV
this disguised Imperial spy ship was a Dwarf-class freighter that slipped into the Pyria System to see if the New Republic had actually retaken Borleias. It was sent by the Imperial warlord Zsinj, to see who controlled the planet. It was driven off by Corran Horn and Rogue Squadron. (WG)

Vengeful Sandstorm
the pirate ship owned and operated by Armanda Durkin's alter ego, Duchess. (GG7)

Vengler
this rustic, backwater world was discovered by Imperial scouts shortly before the Battle of Endor. The planet is known for its open-air markets. (GG8)

Veni
this Alderaanian youth was the younger brother of the Jedi Vici. (SWJ9)

Venir
this planet, located near the Kuat System, was the site of an Imperial base dedicated to protecting the Kuat Drive Yards. (SWJ9)

Venithon Bandit
this modified Ghtroc Industries Class 580 freighter was owned and operated by Denuab and Dorin Venithon. It was armed with a pair of turret-mounted quad-laser cannons, and was refitted by the brothers with a variety of parts they stole from their employers. (AIR)

Venithon Twins
this was this nickname used by Denuab and Dorin Venithon, a pair of infamous Ithorian pirate raiders. They were last seen in the employ of Safonne Pendon. (WBC, AIR)

Venix
this Viraxo freighter was a modified YT-1300. Aeron Azzameen once tried to infiltrate the Viraxo base on Denbo by altering the IFF codes on the freighter Selu to mimic those of the Venix. Their plan nearly worked, until the real Venix appeared at Denbo. Unfortunately, the Azzameen ships were forced to destroy the Venix in battle during the escape from Denbo. (XWA)

Venka
this non-commissioned Imperial Navy officer was one of the multitude that was promoted in the wake of the destruction of the first Death Star. A hard-worker, Venka's dedication to the New Order earned him a transfer to duty on the Executor just prior to the Battle of Hoth. (CCG4)

Venlyss Pnorr
this Gand served as a retrievals agent for the Alliance, during the Galactic Civil War. He worked under the guise of a bounty hunter, capturing Alliance operatives who were in trouble and returning them safely to Alliance safehouses. His last mission resulted in the death of the deep-cover agent he was retrieving, and Pnorr went into hiding after delivering the body to its drop-off point. (CRO)

Vennor, Dej
this bounty hunter was one of several who agreed to take on the bounties offered for the return of Dhas Vedij and the crew of the Far Orbit, following their mutiny and defection from Imperial service. Vennor refused to track down a bounty unless they were pirates or had engaged in piratical acts. It was rumored that Vennor was a former Imperial scout trooper who was horribly scarred by a pirate king, and forced to leave Imperial service. Vennor wore a suit of modified Imperial scout trooper armor, and flew in the modified Firespray-class craft Target Acquired. Vennor also used the modified interrogation droid IT-904 on his hunts. He was well-skilled in a variety of martial arts, and was proficient in the use of a vibrobladed force pike. (FOP)

Venom
this Victory-class Star Destroyer was part of Zsinj's fleet, but it was destroyed at the Battle of Selaggis. (SOC)

Venom, Zeed
this bounty hunter was contracted to hunt down Pyro Gibbtra. Venom was trained by the Skine Bounty Hunter College. (LAA)

Vensenor Flight Academy
this starship training facility was located on the planet Arkanis. (GG9)

Vensor System
this planetary system creates beautiful staryachts. (GG9)

Venteck, Pter
this man worked at the Derilyn Space Defense Platform's monitoring garrison during the height of the Galactic Civil War. He was also a member of the Friends of Paran. (OE)

Venti Paz
an alien who was often found among the scum in Jabba's palace. (TJP)

Ventil System
this star system was located in Trax Sector, near the star Dresscol. The Alliance established a shipyard in the system, where capital ships could be staged and repaired for missions in the sector. (GMK)

Vento System
this planetary system was the site of an Old Republic shipyards. (TSW)

Ventor, Halagad
a native of Alderaan, Halagad was trained to be a Jedi Knight during the last years of the Old Republic. It was unknown who trained him, for he started his schooling in the Jedi arts at a late age. He served under Obi-Wan Kenobi during the Clone Wars, and was a distinguished warrior. Shortly after the start of Emperor Palpatine's rule of the galaxy, Ventor was captured by Darth Vader and brutally interrogated. All the information Halagad knew of the Jedi was stripped from him mind, and the Jedi Purge was virtually a complete success. Halagad, traumatized by the interrogation and the death of the Jedi, fled to Trinta. There, he succombed to the Dark Side nexus that was located on the planet, and gave himself over to the energies of the Dark Side of the Force. He was discovered nearly two decades later by a group of Alliance field agents who crashed on the planet, and their bravery and trust in the Light Side of the Force eventually brought Halagad out of his despair. Upon learning of the survival of Kenobi and the appearance of Luke Skywalker, Halagad fought against the Dark Side and defeated it, but died shortly afterward. His body disintgrated, and he became one with the Force. (DOE)

Ventriloquist
this was Leia Organa-Solo's nickname for the one of the image analysts assigned to her by Nanaod Engh. The Ventriloquist was in charge of scripting Leia's speeches and critiquing her ad libs. (TT)

Venture
this New Republic Endurance-class fleet carrier was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. It suffered major damage during the unsuccessful blockade of Doornik-319, including the loss of 14 starfighters and three portside docking bays. After spending a short time in spacedock, the Venture saw further duty in the Republic's conflict with the Yevetha. (SOL, TT)

Venturer*-class Freighter
this freighter design was developed and manufactured by Ckratar Crafts. (AIR)

Venutton
Lady Valarian's human assistant, Venutton was known as high-strung and scrawny. (GG7, TJP)

Venzeiia 2 Prime
a planet subjugated by the Empire following the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Ver
a title used in the names of the life witches on Leria Kerlsil. It is used before the witch's surname, as in Karia Ver Seryan. (AC)

Verachen
this Vratix term describes the overseers of the production of bacta. The term verachen can refer to a single individual, or the group working with them. This is due to the fact that Vratix have a hive mentality, but can function as individuals. The verachen control the introduction of alazhi and kavam into the creation process, monitoring batch potency to ensure that the endproduct is consistently high-quality bacta. (KT)

Verack
one of the Habeen cargo ferry groups used to transport hyperdrives to Admiral Zaarin on the Shamus. (TIE)

Veragi Sector
this area of space is one of the few sectors without any form of stellar body. The sector was simply an empty void, although it held a secret hyperspace jump beacon placed there some twenty years after the Battle of Endor by Kyp Durron. He and the Dozen-and-Two Avengers used the jump beacon as a gathering point and escape vector during their hunts for smugglers and other criminals. They jump beacon had recorded the fly-by of the ExGal-4 Spacecaster shuttle, on it way to Helska under the command of Danni Quee, which alerted Kyp to the trouble on Belkadan. (VP)

Veratil
this t'landa Til served as Teroenza's Sacredot during the early years of the Ylesian slave and spice colony. Veratil was Han Solo's escort and trainer when he arrived at Colony One on Ylesia, offering his services as a pilot. Veratil led him on several tours of the surrounding country and the spice processing plants, before turning control of the young pilot to Muuurgh. Later, Bria Tharen and the Corellian resistance tried to assasinate Veratil, but she was unsuccessful in the endeavor. Veratil rejoined Teroenza on Ylesia, along with Tilenna, but was one of the first victims of the Battle of Ylesia as the Alliance's troops attacked Colony One first. (TPS, RD)

Verbobrain
a highly-advanced computer, model AA-1. C-3PO has one. (CPL)

Verdanth
a jungle planet used by Darth Vader as bait to capture Alliance personnel. R2-D2 and C-3PO were sent to the planet to investigate a crashed Imperial shuttle, which was left there by Vader. They activated a proximity drone, which was meant to keep Alliance personnel at bay until Vader, notified by a signal from the drone, could recover them. The drone also activates a force field that contains the prey for transport to the Executor for probing by Vader. Luke Skywalker tried to recover the droids, but was captured by Vader. He was later rescued by R2-D2 and Han Solo before Vader could take control of him. (CSW)

Verde
this blue dwarf star was the central body of the Verde System, about which orbitted the Verde Asteroid Belt and a pair of small iceball planets. (SSR)

Verde's Belt
see Verde Asteroid Belt (SSR)

Verde Asteroid Belt
this is the largest feature of the Verde System, and was home to a wide range of smugglers, pirates, and thieves. (SSR)

Verdrellig
manufacturers of starship shield generators. (RM)

Verdson
this city was located on Kalandis IV. (GG10)

Vered
one of the Empire's last remaining Moffs, Vered met with the other seven major Imperial leaders on Bastion to discuss Admiral Pellaeon's proposed peace treaty with the New Republic some ten years after the death of Thrawn. While he wasn't firmly in favor of the peace treaty, he realized that the Republic would have to allow any systems which wanted to secede to the Empire to do so, or risk damaging its own claim to authority. (SOP)

Verekil
this small corporation produced a variety of servo-mechanisms for moving large crates and cargoes in starports. (PSG)

Verena City
this is the capital city of the planet Kirima,and is the site of the planet's largest starport. It is notable for the fact that many of its inhabitants have identical first and last names, a result of the small group of clans which founded the city. Individuals are denoted by their middle names, which often indicated gender. (TSK)

Vergence
this is a term used by the Jedi Knights of the Old Republic to describe an intense concentration of the Force. Most often, vergences are associated with relics and places, but sometimes they are centered on a living being. This being often has a high concentration of midi-chlorians in their body, and can touch and use the Force with little or no training. (SW1)

Vergere
this feathered, avian was a member of the Fosh species. Vergere was also a Jedi Knight, and she was dispatched to Zonama Sekot two years after the Battle of Naboo, in an effort to discover the source of Sekotan starships. The Jedi received no communication from her for a year. Her Master, Thracia Cho Leem, feared for her life, and requested that the Jedi Council send another party to try and find her. Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker eventually discovered that, during her attempt to bond with a Sekotan starship, the planet was attacked by a group of Far Outsiders. In an effort to draw them away from the living planet, Vergere engendered herself to them and allowed herself to be taken by them, in exchange for the safety of Zonama Sekot. She left behind a message for any Jedi who followed in the seed-partners she had to leave behind. Decades later, she returned to the known galaxy, posing as a familiar to the Yuuzhan Vong priestess, Elan. Vergere had never given up hope of returning to the galaxy, but served Elan faithfully while biding her time. When Elan was chosen to act as a hostage to the New Republic, in an effort to destroy the Jedi Knights, Vergere accompanied her as a loyal servant. Vergere then revealed her true heritage to Elan, but did not reveal her position as a Jedi. In reality, Vergere was looking for a way to return home. After Elan was killed by the bo'tous she planned to use on the Jedi, Vergere gave Han Solo a sample of her tears, which contained an unusual substance which counteracted the effects of the coomb spores. These tears eventually allowed Mara Jade Skywalker to recover from her illness. Vergere, once free of Elan, fled the Millennium Falcon in an escape pod, and was not seen again. (RP, HT, JE)

Vergesso Asteroid Field
located in the Lybeya System in the Rim Territories, the Vergesso Asteroids were used by Ororo Transportation to hide a shipyard on one of the larger asteroids. The base was also used as a stopover point for much of the Tenloss Syndicate's spice trade. Xizor, displeased with Ororo for trying to horn in on his spice trade, provided the location of the shipyards to Darth Vader, telling Vader that the coordinates were for an Alliance shipyards. Xizor damaged Ororo and gained favor with the Empire in one blow. (SE, SESB)

Vergill
this planet, located in the Hapes Cluster, is the homeworld of the Vergill race. (L)

Veril Line Systems
manufacturers of the EG-series of ambulatory power generators. (MTS, CCG)

Verisin
this planet is located in Bajic Sector. (GG11)

Veriss Creek
this small waterway was located on the planet Freliq. (COG)

Verkuyl
a planet which was under Imperial control until early in the New Republic, Verkuyl was known as an alazhi manufacturing center which survived outside the control of the Bacta Cartel. It was also known as an Outer Rim backwater world with an incredible odor, generated from the alazhi production. It is one of the few planets in the galaxy with forests of alazhi trees. The planet was originally purchased by Corlin Quarle Deld, who imported workers by getting them to sign ten-year indentured contracts. Over the years, the natives became virtual slaves to Verkuylian BactaCo, until the planet was nationalized by the Empire. The Empire helped eliminate one form of slavery, and instituted another. The New Republic eventually liberated Verkuyl, but it was unknown whether the natives truly wanted to be freed. The average day on the planet lasts about 27 standard hours, and its year lasts 315 local days. (TFNR, SWJ13)

Verkuylian BactaCo
this bacta-producing corporation, based on the planet Verkuyl, was the only such facility known to operate outside the control of the Bacta Cartel headquartered on Thyferra. During the height of the New Order, many of the corporation's leaders - as well as many of Verkuyl's political leaders - abandoned the philosophy of self-ownership and aligned themselves with the Empire. It was founded by Corlin Quarle Deld, who manned the operation with indentured workers. While not exactly slaves, the workers eventually owned more to the BactaCo than their small salaries paid. The corporation was nationalized by the Empire when it took control of Verkuyl, and the workers were freed from their contracts. However, they were forced to work more hours with less time off. The New Republic later liberated Verkuyl and the BactaCo. (TFNR, SWJ13)

Vermel, Miezh
this Imperial Navy Colonel served under Admiral Pellaeon, following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn and the defeat of Admiral Daala. Pellaeon chose Vermel to deliver a message of Imperial surreder to Garm Bel Iblis, shortly after Bel Iblis arrived at Morishim. Pellaeon had hoped to begin negotiating a peace treaty with Bel Iblis, but Vermel's corvette was intercepted by a Star Destroyer dispatched by Moff Disra. Disra attempted to waylay Pellaeon's plans for peace, and captured Vermel before he could reach the New Republic. However, Vermel was able to send out a garbled transmission to Rogue Squadron shortly before he was taken captive. Vermel was then held at Rimcee Station, until Pellaeon could recover him. (SOP, VOF)

Vermiform vines
rust-colored plants native to Yavin 4. (DA)

Vermilic
this Hutt clan was known for its impetuous actions. Several years after the Battle of Endor, a young Hutt of the Vermilic clan disregarded the Hutt Commercial Laws and executed his counselor. In response, the governing body of the Hutt clans broke off all ties to the Vermilic clan. The clan went bankrupt, and no traffic between Hutt worlds moved for three months until trust was regained. (TFNR)

Vern
this prim old lady runs the souvenir shop on the Kuari Princess. (RM)

Vernan
a General in Alliance Intelligence, Vernan was Zgorth'sth's commanding officer. He ordered Ackbar to take the Alliance fleet to the Atrivis Sector and guard Mantooine from attack by the Imperial Oplovis fleet. He later served as Dutra Zeneta's commanding officer, but was killed in action shortly before the Battle of Hoth. (RASB, SWJ10, AIR)

VernanGroup
this heavy industrial manufacturer was one of the original Signatory Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. They held a significant share of the Minos-Mestra Corporation during the last century of the Old Republic, but the institution of the New Order severely depressed the economy of the Minos Cluster, and VernanGroup was forced to sell out to local investors. (CSA, GG6)

Verneilan Parasite
this microscopic parasite is virtually undetectable when it it immature. However, once it finds its way inside the body of a host organism, the parasite lodges itself in the host's throat and begins to drink its blood. The parasitre grows quickly as it gorges, filling the host's throat and causing the host to choke to death. The parasite then explodes, filling the host's body with toxic fluids from its gut. (POC)

Vernoi
an alien race found on many worlds, including Garnib. They resembled squat, blue-skinned humanoids, and had orange coloration around their eyes, mouth, and the underside of their hands and feet. By nature, they were territorial and fearful of others, but proved to extremely loyal to those beings they considered friends. (PG1)

Vernuss
this tacky-dressing Sullustan male is one of Thadius Black's associates on Demophon. (SN)

Veron
a planet with an ancient, aristocratic House. Located in the Veron System, in the Mektrun Cluster, it is the homeworld of the Gazaran race. Its tropical jungles and forests attracted many tourists. This industry also helped them co-exist with an Imperial garrison during the Galactic Civil War, since the Gazaran offered no resistance. The average day on Veron lasts about 26 standard hours, and the year encompasses 367 local days. The Veron System is centered around the binary stars Noveron and Orell. (COJ, PG1)

Veronian Berry Wine
a non-alcoholic drink. (XW)

Verossian Computers
these computers used a binary language, to simplify their use. (HR)

Verpalion
one of the ruling houses on Lianna following the birth of the New Republic. (DESB)

Verpalion, Rodin Hlian
this Imperial Advisor to Emperor Palpatine rose quickly to power in the Imperial Senate and attracted the attention of Emperor Palpatine. A close friend of Willhuf Tarkin, Rodin was given many "sensitive situations" to resolve, and was chosen to oversee the NOVA project during the height of the New Order. However, life on the planet Lianna didn't agree with his cultured upbringing, and decided to manage the project from a more urbane world. He continued to monitor the NOVA project. (ML)

Verpine
an insectile/reptilian race known for their ability to fix high-tech devices, they were the original settlers of the Roche asteroid system. Their exact homeworld remains a mystery even to the Verpine. The Verpine have developed a high level of technology, but retain a child-like sense of wonder at the galaxy around them. The Verpine body is thin and ungainly, and has only four limbs - two long arms and two thin legs. Their large, black eyes have evolved beyond the normal ability of the multifaceted eyes of most insects, allowing the Verpine to see incredible levels of detail. They live in hives of about 100 Verpine, and reproduction is only required when the population of the hive drops below a certain level. Despite their hive mentality, each Verpine is allowed individual thoughts. Their communal consciousness precludes the need for formal government. They have a body organ in their chest that allows them to emit radio waves and thus communicate with each other across distances. There is some discussion on the necessity of the Verpine's antenna, and the fact that the most criminal Verpine have always had damaged antennae. The Verpine were strong supporters of the Alliance, but didn't join it, although the Verpine helped Ackbar develop the B-wing fighter. Their system of mathematics is a base-6 system, which often presents unique difficulties in transferring their technology to humans, which use base-10. They built a series of hives in the Roche asteroids, and connected them with focused repulsor beams. (CPL, DFR, DFRSB, XWN, SFS, GG4)

Verrack
this Mon Calamari officer served as a Captain aboard the Home One flagship during the Battle of Endor. A computer and power systems expert, Verrack could also take a place as a gunner if needed. (CCG11)

Verre
this is a Kerestian swear word. (SSR)

Verre d'n Nocka
a particularly vehement Kerestian curse. (SSR)

Verrinnefra B'thog Indriummsegh
an Elomin represenative serving with the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War, Verrinnefra was part of the team which wrote and signed the Declaration of a New Republic. (HTSB)

Versella
this young girl was a native of Brentaal, and was Darrik's older cousin. She was in charge of ensuring that all her younger siblings and cousins got to the Brentaal Commerce Academy each morning, placing the older children in positions to keep an eye on the younger children. Darrik often thought of her as a Star Destroyer commander. (IDC)

Versieds
a meteor shower that regularly blankets the space around the planet Borleias. (XWN)

Vert-mite
an obnoxious, swarming insect native to the planet Garqi. (U)

Vertag Crystal
this form of crystal is found exclusively on the planet Shownar. Vertag formed much of the outer crust and surface structure of the planet. (GG9)

Vertex
a crystalline mineral mined on the planet Kir, vertex became a supplement to Authority Cash Vouchers. When someone needs to exchange credit at an Authority Currency Exchange, they are given a Voucher or vertex crystals at the going rate. The crystals that are mined on Kir are refined to a standard size and color, helping to stabilize their value as currency. (HSE, CSA)

Vertha
this small predator was native to the planet Morseer. Its teeth were shaped like triangular chisels, and had a blue-tinted enamel that xenobiologists claimed was a form of camouflage. (TBSB)

Veruna
this man served as the King of the Naboo for thirteen years before Queen Amidala was elected to replace him. During his early yeras as King, Veruna clashed often with Senator Palpatine. Over time, however, Palpatine convinced Veruna to become more involved with offworld politics. This eventually led to Veruna's downfall. It was later discovered that Veruna was a corrupt leader, and was using the prosperity of the planet to fill his own coffers. During their debates and election campaign, Veruna used Amidala's age as his primary platform. As the election wore on, the people tired of his bombastic assaults and started to listen to what Amidala was saying. They quickly understood that she was much smarter and better prepared to lead them, and voted Veruna out in a landslide vote. Following the election, Veruna was exiled to the Naboo Wastelands. He later died under mysterious circumstances. (JQA, IG1)

Vervikk
this species of creatures is known to interstellar travellers as space rats. They average a meter in length, and have two razor-sharp fangs. They inhabit the bowels of starships like a virus, wreaking havoc with systems while attacking the crewmembers who come to fix the problems. (RM)

Ves
this gaseous substance is often used as engine coolant. (CFG)

VES-700
this was one of Corondexx's pulse rifle models. (GG10)

Vesden
this Imperial Navy trooper was assigned as a sensor operator at the Imperial garrison on the forest moon of Endor. Vesden was in charge of scanning for possible infiltration of the shield generator bunker protecting the second Death Star. In reality, Vesden was a counterintelligence officer placed in the garrison by the Imperial Security Bureau. (CCG10)

Vesell, Hayvlin
an expert in artificial intelligence at the Technomic Research Foundation, Vesell, theorized that xylen-based memory chips, while out-dated, could be used to enhance artificial minds due to their finer divisibility of information. He was a contemporary of Cray Mingla. (COJ)

Veshiv, Coh
this Imperial advisor was captured by the crew of the Far Orbit, after they defected from Imperial service and struck out a privateers. Their mission to capture Veshiv was funded by the Alliance as part of the Far Orbit Project. Veshik himself was known as an annoying, self-centered blowhard who had been sent away from Coruscant on a "fact-finding" mission to the Ringali Shell in an effort to get rid of him. Veshiv's entire career had been based on knowing the secrets of others and using them to his own advantage, and he was generally regarded as one of Palpatine's best blackmail artists. When Dhas Vedij and the Far Orbit caught up to the Empire Forever and claimed to be their replacement as Veshiv's escort, Captain Annance gladly turned Veshiv over to the privateers, believing them to be Imperials. Veshiv's capture turned a great deal of Imperial attention on the Far Orbit, especially from former Captain Vocis Kenit. (FOP)

Vessar Asteroid Belt
this field of asteroids was located in the Telanka System, and was believed to be the home of Buula's Rocky Home. (HAS)

Vessel
this is a type of infochant, a being which has been cybernetically modified to store tremendous amounts of data in their heads. However, the vessel has no idea what the information deals with. When used for legal activities, vessels are generally considered couriers. Often, vessels are created from beings who were indebted to a more powerful infochant, as a way to pay off their debts. (GG2)

Vessel Cargo Manifest
this Imperial document was one of a number of documents required from any spacer who plied the spacelanes during the New Order. The procedures for obtaining the certification were documented in the Spacer's Information Manual. Known as an VCM, this document provided information on the current cargo of a starship. (SWJ9)

Vessery, Broak
this Imperial Navy Colonel served Ysanne Isard, after she escaped death during the Battle of Thyferra. A tall, black-haired man who had the nervous habit of picking invisible pieces of lint from his uniform, Vessery and his ships were dispatched by Isard to recover as much of Rogue Squadron as they could from Corvis Minor Five, after the Rogues fell into a trap laid by Isard's clone and Prince-Admiral Krennel. Vessery then trained the Rogues in the use of the TIE Defender, in hopes that their combined skills could be infiltrated into Krennel's forces and used to bring the rogue warlord down. The Requiem Squadron, under the command of Wedge Antilles' alter ego Antar Roat, managed to infiltrate Krennel's forces and bring down the shields protecting Ciutric. In the aftermath of the liberation of Ciutric and the deaths of Krennel, Isard's clone, and Isard herself, Vessery fled with two complete squadrons of TIE Defenders and their pilots. (IR)

Vessitoar
the New Republic maintained a military training facility on this planet. (WBC)

Vestaari
this race of beings was native to the planet Vestar. They were considered nomads, and dressed in distinctive robes. (EOE)

Vestar
Boba Fett caught up with the crew of the Port-Esta Queen on this planet, then was tracked by Nevo's gang from Vestar to Star Station 12. (EOE)

Vestig
this man was one of Coh Veshiv's personal aides. (FOP)

Vesuvague
a tree which is native to the planet Ithor, the vesuvague has a great root system. The roots grow quickly, and often emerge from the soils a thick vines. When a creature gets close enough to the tree, the vesuvague entraps it with these vines, constricting the prey until it dies and can be consumed by the plant. (TME, GOF9)

Vethiraptor
an Endoran creature which possesses a lot of nervous energy. (COJ)

Vetoosh
a word of goodbye used by Dap Nechel. (TFE)

Veubg
an alien whose is a member of the Veubgri race, native to the planet Gbu. (CS)

Veubgri
an alien race from the planet Gbu. The planet's intense gravity has caused them to evolve into wide, squat beings with a number of sensitive tendrils used to manipulate and touch things. They also have six feet, which help keep the aliens stable. (CS)

Vev
this is the twenty-second symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "v". (SWM)

Vew-Grek Holo Images
this multimedia conglomerate was based on Bespin's Cloud City. Its leaders were given positions on the city's Exex during their tenure. (GG2)

Vewin
this man was an Alliance agent, and a friend of Do'naal. This friendship cost him his position with the Alliance, as Do'naal was actually an Imperial agent working to ferret out rebellious individuals. Vewin was captured and interrogated on Kelada, and was subsequently considered a security risk to the Alliance. (SESB)

Vex
this Defel served as Greezim Trentacal's bodyguard until Trentacal was killed on Gabredor III. Vex was recommended to Trentacal by another contact within the Karazak Slavers Guild, and Trentacal offered Vex the position of bodyguard on the spot. At first, Vex had no interest in the job, having other personal duties to attend to. However, the Defel found himself between a rock and hard place when his own agenda was caught between Trentacal's rivals and the Karazak Guild. Vex decided to join Trentacal and avoid the entanglements, thereby furthering his own goals. Vex proved himself to be a loyal servant, and was given more and more control of Trentacal's daily routine until they were caught on Gabredor III. The slaving transfer station on the planet was infiltrated by the Red Moons, and their leader, Sully Tigereye, personally tore Vex apart in hand-to-hand combat aboard the Atron's Mistress. (SWJ8, TFE)

Vexan
this law enforcement officer was also a member of Sires Vant's criminal organization, and was one of Vant's "antenna-breakers." (GG11)

Vexen
this one of the many small mining settlements established on the planet Kallistas. It was the primary extraction site of radioactive isotopes mined on the planet. (GG10)

Vexta Belt
this system was used as a staging area for pirates attacking the Delephran shipping lanes. (SWAJ)

Veyn, Milzin
this Imperial Navy Lieutenant was a native of the city of Hullis, on the planet Halmad. He later served at the Imperial garrison in Hullis, during the period of time the planet was raided by the Hawk-bats, and a fighter pilot. (IF)

Vharing, Jovan
this Imperial officer served aboard the Interrogator under the command of Captain Nolaan. Vharing was the latest in a long line of males in his family to attend the Imperial Academy, graduating in the top two percent of his class and receiving a posting as a communications officer aboard a Victory-class Star Destroyer. A close friend and trusted advisor, Vharing was a student of Nolaan, who was grooming the young man for his own command. When Nolaan transferred to command of the Interrogator, he brought Vharing along with him. This was both a boon and a bane for Vharing. When Nolaan was executed by High Inquisitor Tremayne for a minor error, Vharing was quickly promoted in his place. At the time, Vharing was the youngest person ever promoted to Captain and command of a ship. Tremayne kept a sharp eye on Vharing, for he had proclaimed that and of Nolaan's advisors would also be executed. Vharing remained in command of the Interrogator until a senior Lieutenant Leeds inadvertently ordered the bombing of a settlement on Qlothos while Vharing slept. The planet was virtually undefended, and sixty civilians were killed in the raid. Among them was a high-ranking engineer from Kuat Drive Yards and his family, who were on vacation at the time. Tremayne executed Vharing for this mistake, despite the fact that he had nothing to do with it. Vharing's disembodied spirit roamed the ship for several minutes before realizing it was truly dead. (TFNR)

Vhin
this island continent was located in the northern hemisphere of the planet Illarreen. It was the birthplace of the Poss'Nomin race. (AE)

Via, Kara
this woman was an Alliance operative during the Galactic Civil War. She led the infiltration team that tried to gain access to TransGalMeg's corporate headquarters on Pako Ramoon, an action which was successful with the help of Diskio and K'lial Khzrry. (CRO)

Vialco
this Dark Jedi Knight trained under High Inquisitor Tremayne, and believed himself to be the logical choice to replaced Tremayne upon his death. Vialco stalked his victims from afar, planting horrible dreams in their minds until they were at his mercy. However, Vialco was also arrogant, and believed that anyone who could not touch the Dark Side of the Force was below him. This caused considerable trouble when he was ordered to work for non-Jedi commanders, and led to his being assigned to guard the new Imperial communications bunker near Iscera, on the planet Nysza III. When the Alliance learned of its construction, Commander Beatonn sent Harrier Team to destroy it. Vialco killed Arecelis Acosta and handily defeated Fable Astin during the mission, but the Harriers were able to take out the station. Vialco retreated, knowing that Fable would be an easy target, and was later contacted by Adalric Brandl. Brandl told Vialco that he was holding Fable on Trulalis, and the Dark Jedi could not pass up the tempting offer to remove her. Vialco quickly traveled to Trulalis and confronted Fable, who had become a much more formidable opponent that he believed possible. Fable was able to disarm him and defeat him, but she could not kill him. She did not want to become part of the Dark Side. However, Brandl had other ideas. He sent an image into her mind of Vialco recovering his lightsaber and attacking, and Fable moved to counter the blow. Instead of striking another lightsaber, Fable's blade severed Vialco's head from his shoulders. (SWJ8)

Viamarr Blackroot
this fungus is grown only on the planet Viamarr 4, where it is found in vast subterranean caverns. The deep black fungus puts out tubers and offshoots which can grow to a kiometer in diameter, and which are harvested for their meaty texture and nutritional balance. (WS)

Viamarr 4
one of the planets visted by the Night Caller shortly before it was captured by Wraith Squadron near Xobome 6. It was an agricultural world known for Viamarr Blackroot. (WS)

Vibre*-class Assault Cruiser developed and manufactured by Silviut, this 100-meter long craft bristles with weapons. It found widespread usage among Imperial fleets which survived the Battle of Endor, as the remnants of the Empire began raiding New Republic convoys for supplies. Vibre-class cruisers are plated with matte-black armor, to which is bonded a layer of stealth coating. A triangular, scarab-shaped craft, it is armed with four laser cannons, a pair of tractor beam projectors, and four ion cannons. The shape of the ship was dictated by its mission profile. It could latch onto larger capital ships with its tractor beams, and use cutting lasers to open the other ship's hull. A squadron of zero-G spacetroopers was disgorged into the larger ship, which would then take control of it. The ship required a crew of thirty to operate, along with 15 gunners. It could transport up to sixty troops and 500 metric tons of cargo. (JASB, PP)

Vibrion, Gebnerret
this elderly man was the political leader of an active Alliance cell during the last years of the New Order. He suffered greatly from Zithrom's Disease, and constantly took Clondex to ease the pain. In his earlier days, Vibrion was an Old Republic Senator from Ghorman. He later served the Imperial Senate, and quickly sided with Mon Mothma following the Ghorman Massacre. When warrants were issued for her arrest, Vibrion went into hiding and went to work for the Alliance. When he was captured by the Empire and imprisoned on Selnesh, the Alliance sent in a team of agents to either liberate him or execute him before the Empire could learn his secrets. The assault team, led by Lieutenant Haslam, managed to rescue Vibrion while suffering minor injuries. (SWJ10, TFE)

Vibro-hydro Tub
this is the intergalactic version of a hot tub. (GCQ)

Vibro-mop
this cleaning device used the same technology as a vibroaxe, applying the vibrating head to the mop in order to assist in cleaning. (DH)

Vibroaxe
an axe-like weapon that uses a vibrating blade. (CPL, DA)

Vibroaxe Squadron
this group of space pirates assisted Warlord Zsinj in his attempt to steal the Razor's Kiss. Their leader was a high-strung Devaronian male who was extremely irate at Zsinj and his forces after the attempt, since the Vibroaxes had no idea they'd be assaulting Kuat itself. They had planned on fighting X-Wings and Y-Wings, and they were unable to change tactics quickly enough to avoid over fifty percent losses of hardware and pilots. (IF)

Vibrobath
this is a form of sonic whirlpool used to relax muscles. (POT)

Vibroblade
1) a weapon similar to the vibroknife, only larger. (MTS)
2) the blade used in a vibroknife. (HSR, DFR, COTF)

Vibroblade
this Skipray Blastboat was part of the Khuiumin Survivors' fleet, and was part of the assault force sent to capture Zlece Oonaar aboard the Galaxy Chance. (IJ)

Vibroblades
this gang rose to power on the planet Draenell's Point, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Their rise to power threatened the control of Benthar's Boys, especially after they kidnapped Benthar himself. The Alliance agents on the planet to investigate the construction of the Imperial supply depot in the Bissillirus System assisted Benthar's Boys in rescuing him, and Vibroblades agreed to join the Boys in fighting against the Empire instead of each other. (GMK)

Vibrocutlass
this rapidly-vibrating sword was modelled after the ancient blades used by many races. (TFE)

Vibrocutter
a starship tools that employs a vibrating blade, it is designed to cut structural panels and other dense materials. (HSL)

Vibroglaive
this Gamorrean weapon was a tall weapon with a long, vibrating blade attached at the top. (OE)

Vibrohammer
like its cousins, the vibrohammer uses an internal generator to create a rapdi vibration. The vibration then motivates the peen of the hammer, allowing the user to quickly drive nails or crush stone, depending on the size of the peen. (ROM)

Vibroknife
a switchblade-like device that uses a vibrating blade. The blade is removable. (DFR)

Vibroneedle
this thin, metal needle vibrates rapidly, allowing it to pass through most materials with ease. (TSK)

Vibrosaw
a cutting implement with a rapidly-moving blade. (RD)

Vibroscalpel
a medical instrument with a vibrating blade. (HSR)

Vibroshiv
a small, easily-concealed vibrating knife. (HSL)

Vibrospade
a digging implement with a vibrating shovel blade. (GOF10)

Vibrosword
a Hapan sword with a vibrating blade. (CPL)

Vibrowire
this form of fencing used a specialized, vibrating wire to keep beings and creatures from entering or exiting an area. The wire was attached to a remote power source, and vibrated in a tight cycle. This vibration made the wire cut through flesh, bone, and most dense materials with relative ease. (SSR)

Vic
an Alliance container group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Viccae
this Yuuzhan Vong word translates into Basic as "the anger which grows from pride." (VP)

Viceprex
a shortened term for the Corporate Sector Authority's Vice Presidents, each Viceprex is a permanent employee of the Authority. Each Viceprex is in control of one of the Authority's divisions, and allwork under the control of the Direx Board. (HSE, CSA)

Vici
this ancient Jedi was a native to Alderaan. She was well-known to many children because of the Vici of Alderaan stories. At the age of 16, she rescued her younger brother, Veni, from a 20-legged dragon. (SWJ9)

Vici of Alderaan
a popular series of stories which retell the history of the young Jedi Vici. (SWJ9)

Vicra
this slick, viscous substance was used aboard starships. (COG)

Victorious
the flagship of the Qeimet Fleet. (ISB)

Victory, Salem
this truly sick man was known as a smuggler and mercenary, and was considered the leader of the Happy Blasters. He used his customized starship, the Starcat, to transport the group across the galaxy. Victory was in the mercenary game for the money, and had a knack of finding people who would pay huge sums of credits to recover certain artifacts. For this reason, Victory and the Happy Blasters took the job of recovering an unknown artifact from the Krieks, on their homeworld of Kriekaal. (SWJ13)

Victory Base
this was the name of the Imperial garrison, located in the city of Hullis, on the planet Halmad. Wraith Squadron knocked it out as part of Operation Groundquake. (IF)

Victory Forum
this gladiator arena, found in the city of Dying Slowly on Jubilar, was the site of the All-Human Free-For-All. It was named by the victor of one of Jubilar's many wars. Some time after Han Solo fought in the Forum, it was destroyed in a war. The Forum, and the surrounding city, were laid to waste and never rebuilt. (TBH)

Victory Lake
Admiral Ackbar's personal home on Coruscant, it consists of a pair of cylindrical habitats linked by a walkway. One cylinder is set out of the water, while the other is situation in the lake itself. The lower half of this cylinder is made of transparisteel, and allows Ackbar to see out into the water. (BTS)

Victory Street
a thoroughfare located in the city of Zehava, Obi-Wan Kenobi claimed that his grandfather built weapons which resembled ligthsabers and sold them on Victory Street. This ruse was in an effort to draw away the attention of several Dan guards who intercepted himself, Cerasi, and Neild. (DOD)

Victory Tax Credit
this coin was minted by the Empire. (TT)

Victory*-class Mark II Star Destroyer
see Victory-II class Star Destroyer (IJ)

Victory-I* class Star Destroyer
a medium-duty Imperial capital ship, the Victory-class was the precursor to the Imperial class. It was designed by Walex Blissex and was commissioned into service near the end of the Clone Wars. It was manufactured by Rendili StarDrive, and was built to serve three purposes: planetary defense, planetary assault and ground troop support, and ship-to-ship combat. It can run at speeds up to .45 past lightspeed. The Victory-class measured 900 meters in length, and was manned by 4,798 crewers and 402 gunners. It could transport up to 2,040 troops, and held 8,100 metric tons of cargo. It was equipped with 10 quad turbolaser batteries, 40 double turbolaser batteries, 80 concussion missile tubes, and 10 tractor beam projectors. The Star Wars: Customizable Card Game states that the Victory*-class Star Destroyer had the capability to operate in a planet's atmosphere.* (HTTE, ISB, CCG)

Victory-II* class Star Destroyer
a modification to the original Victory-class Star Destroyer, the Victory-II class was manned by 5,881 crewers but only 226 gunners. The Victory-II also measured 900 meters in length, and was 20 turbolaser batteries, 20 double turbolaser batteries, 10 ion cannons, and 10 tractor beam projectors. (SWSB, ISB)

Victrix
an Imperial-class Star Destroyed dispatched to the Demophon System to quell the riots and looting that sprang up as the system's star began to go supernova. (SN)

Videoloop
an old form of audio-video transmission. (DA)

Vidge
this Langhesi man was one of the colonists who settled the lowlands of Zonama Sekot. In his time, Vidge was known as a gloomy individual whose skills as shaping the seeds of the tampasi were unsurpassed. It was Vidge who helped shape the Sekotan starship purchased by Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker, during their search for Vergere. (RP)

VidGraph
this was a small corporation that manufactured macrobinoculars for use in the civilian marketplace. (ROE)

Vidicx Campaign
this series of battles was eventually won by the Alliance, due in part to the work of Scandium Team and Dutra Zeneta. (SWJ10)

Vidkum, Benedict
this short, thin human had bulging brown eyes and pale skin from living too many years underground in Coruscant's southern hemisphere. He worked as an engineer, and had access to many schematics and entry codes. He was a confederate of Lando Calrissian, and agreed to help Lando and Luke Skywalker gather information on Prince Xizor's palace. They haggled on a price, which Luke paid, but they also demanded that Vidkum accompany them to the palace, as a form of insurance. Vidkum's paranoia got the best of him, and he believed that Luke and Lando would kill him as soon as they got to the palace. He pulled a blaster on them, and threatened to kill them both. A short firefight resulted in the death of Benedict Vidkum, although his information was instrumental in gaining access to the palace. (SE)

Viewvid
this wall-mounted viewscreen is used on cruise ships and in resorts and spaceports to display information, maps, schedules, and directories. (RM)

Vigil, The
this secret organization was created during the New Order in the Mestra System, and was formed to fight the Minos-Mestra Corporation’s poor treatment of its working class miners and retirees. While the executives of the corporation live in opulence on Shesharile 5, they provide next to nothing for pensions or benefits. (GG6)

Vigilance
1) this Carrack-class cruiser was part of Admiral Greelanx’s fleet, under the command of Captain Eldon. It served as a recon warship during the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, and was one of the first ships to see action. It took out the Take That! before being hit by the Bnef Nlle. The resulting loss of shields spelled the ship’s doom, for the smugglers on Nar Shaddaa quickly regrouped and sent the Minestra and the Too Late Now to finish off the Vigilance. (THG)
2) this Imperial Dreadnaught was part of a convoy that was ambushed and destroyed by the Alliance, shortly before the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Vigilant
this New Republic Majestic-class battle cruiser served as a picket ship assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. During the Republic's attempted blockade of Doornik-319, the Vigilant took the frontline position vacated when the Wayfarer suffered a hyperdrive malfunction. (SOL)

Vigo
an old Tionese word for "nephew," Prince Xizor used it to name his closest lieutenants. The addition of a family name, he reasoned, would help them work together for their "uncle." (SE)

Vigrriev
this Elom worked as a thug and enforcer for Jabba the Hutt. Vigrriev was stationed on Tatooine, but travelled across the galaxy when needed. (GG12)

Vikas Sleer
this sleazy-looking Quarren owned the Unknown Pawn Shop, located on Phyrstal Island on Abregado-Rae, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (ND)

Vil
this young man was a student of xenoarcheology at the University of Agamar during the early stages of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy. Vil was part of the team which traveled to Bimmiel with Anki Pace, to serach for Jedi artifacts. He and Denna were sent out to repari some equipment but failed to return. It was believed that they were captured and enslaved by the Yuuzhan Vong. (DTO)

Vilas
Vonnda Ra's male companion on Dathomir. He was somewhat gifted in the use of the Force, and could manipulate the weather. He later went with Tamith Kai to search out potential trainees for the Shadow Academy, and helped her kidnap Zekk. During his apprenticeship to Tamith Kai, he grew stronger and stronger in the use of the Dark Side of the Force, and became one of the leaders of the Shadow Academy. When Zekk became a powerful student under Brakiss, the two were placed in a unique, zero-gravity combat chamber to duel each other to the death. The winner would become the Shadow Academy's military leader. Although Vilas held the upper hand throughout most of the duel, Zekk prevailed and killed Vilas. (SA, LO, L)

Vilia, Klorr
this noted botantist worked to discover an herb that appealed to a wide range of species and tastes. He created the herb savorium, and invited his friend Zorneth sample the first taste. Zorneth declined, since Vilia had used it on meat. Vilia took the first taste himself, and was affected by the herb. He became the first of the Smilers, and was known as Smiley to Zorneth and his subordinates. Zorneth cared for him for the next five years, all the while realizing that the secret of savorium must be maintained. Vilia died on Zorneth's starship when it was attacked by Dictator-Forever Craw's forces. Zorneth had ordered that the savorium groves on it be destroyed rather than captured, and the droid PDA6 followed those orders to the letter. Vilia was caught in the explosion. (DRO)

Vill Goir
one of Sedriss' sergeant-at-arms aboard the Avenger during the early stages of Operation Shadow Hand, Vill Goir was a Dark Side Adept. Goir accompanied Sedriss to Ossus, to capture Luke Skywalker and return him to Byss. Goir was killed by a lightsaber duel with Kam Solusar, when Kam was able to cleave Goir in two. (DE2)

Villip
one of the many bio-engineered technologies of the Yuuzhan Vong, the villip resembled a lump of formless flesh. When activated by touch, the villip seemed to pucker open, revealing an eye-like socket. This socket the opened a communications channel to another villip, allowing two parties to speak across vast distances. Each villip was "tuned" to communicate with another, specific villip, and the Yuuzhan Vong often had many villips in their possession, depending on how many others they were in contact with. The connection between villips was rooted in their consciousness. Once contact was made and a connection established, each villip would turn itself inside-out, forming itself into the image of its owner, therby giving the impression of talking directly to an individual who may have been halfway across the galaxy. (VP)

Villip-choir Field
this form of holographic projection was created by the Yuuzahn Vong. Two or more villips were required to create the field, which could reproduce a three-dimensional view of what the villips were seeing. In this way, the Yuuzhan Vong could observe remote events in vivid clarity. (HT)

Vilorin, Abil
see Filorin, Abil (AIR)

Vilosoria
this planet, located in the Lifh Sector, was invaded by the Empire. However, the native Vilosorians were able to overrun the local garrison and force the military off-planet. (CRO)

Vilosorian
this alien race, native to the planet Vilosoria, goes through two seasonal phases. During the cold months, the Vilosorians are docile and calm. During the warm months, they are vicious carnivores. When the Empire invaded their world, they were able to overrun the local garrison and force the Imperials off the planet. (CRO)

Vilrein, Kelsa
this dark-haired woman was one of the hostesses aboard the Kuari Princess when Detien Kaileel was arrested by Imperial forces. (TFE)

Vima-Da-Boda
a descendant of Nomi and Vima Sunrider (six generations removed from Nomi Sunrider), Vima was a great warrior for over a century before she began teaching her daughter, Neema, about the Force. Neema, however, grew tired of her mother's slow style, and attempted to teach herself. She became seduced by the Dark Side of the Force, and was utterly consumed by it. Neema became the mistress, and later the wife, of an Ottethan warlord, who eventually grew tired of her and cast her out into the rancor-filled forests of his homeworld. Vima heard Neema's telepathic plea for help, and set out at once to find her. Vima arrived too late to save her daughter, and sliced the warlord in half with her lightsaber. She succumbed to the Dark Side of the Force, and was stripped of her ability to sense and use the Force. Thus, she escaped the Jedi Purge which Emperor Palpatine initiated. Vima got into trouble, and was sent to the spice mines of Kessel, where she discovered Kyp Durron. She taught him what she could of the Force before she was taken away. Vima was discovered a number of years later by Han Solo and Princess Leia on Nar Shaddaa (or Nal Hutta, as described in Jedi Search). There, she gave Princess Leia a 10,000 year old lightsaber that was found around 800 PE on Ossus. Han and Leia returned to remove her from spaceport and move her to Coruscant, following the death of the reborn Emperor Palpatine on Byss. She helped Leia learn about the ways of the Jedi, just in time to help Leia shield her newborn son, Anakin, from the reborn Emperor. Following the death of the Emperor and Empatojayos Brand, Vima accompanied Leia back to Onderon, but during the victory celebration she mysteriously disappeared. It is not known if she had since died, or simply returned to Nar Shaddaa. (DE1, JS, DE2, EE)

Vin Freen
the Captain of the supply ship Ambitious. (TBSB)

Vincha
this plant is native to the planet Dantooine, although it was not abundant. The native Dantari learned that the vincha had certain medicinal proprties, and valued the rare plant for its ability to heal. Dantari medicine men chewed the soft, white root to develop a paste with their saliva. The paste could then be spread on a cut or other wound, and the wound would heal much quicker than if left alone. (DTO)

Vinda
a Starshipwright working for Aerospace Engineers, Inc., who with D'rag puts out a collection request for the 2,500 credits owed to them by Han Solo. They have issued eight requests for payment, and Han had ignored them all until Spray showed up to repossess his ship. (HSR)

Vindicator
this New Republic fleet transport ship was stationed near Ammuud during the years surrounding the rebirth of the Emperor Palpatine on Byss. (EE)

Vindru
this small city, located on the planet Pochi, grew up around the spaceport established on the planet by Faarl the Conquerer. (WBC)

Vine Snake
these reptilian creatures live in the vines on such planets as Wayland and Dagobah. They resemble pythons of various sizes, and hang motionless in the vines which grow in swamps and jungles. From this position, vine snakes drop onto their prey, quickly wrapping their thick bodies around their victims and constricting them. The prey eventually dies of suffocation, and the vine snake then eats it whole. (TLC, CCG4)

Vine Street
this avenue is located on the planet Masterhome, in the capital city. (SWCP)

Vine-coffee
beans grown in the jungle domes of Belsavis. It is also known as vine-coffeine. (COJ, THG)

Vink
this was the name given to one of a pair of dwarf opee sea killers kept at the Otoh Gunga Zoological Research Facility before the Battle of Naboo. The dwarf opees were the facility's rarest and most valuable specimens. Despite being just as vicious as their larger cousins, Nink and Vink were also able to understand simple commands after being trained by the researchers. (E1A9)

Vinna
this species of tree was native to the planet Tenek. It was unusual in that its bark was composed almost entirely of metal, which made the trees excellent conductors of lightning-borne electricity. These trees were discovered by Doctor Safford Raen to be the primary food sources for the raen sovra. The worms lived in the ground, twining through the roots of the vinna and waiting for thunderstorms. When lightning struck a vinna tree, the metallic bark conducted electricity into the ground, where it was consumed by the sovra worms. This sudden burst of electricity stimulated that worms, which burrowed through the ground and helped aerate the soil below the trees. (COG)

Vinnax System
this planetary system is known for its incredibly beautiful creation-swirls of gases and dust. The system is dominated by a countervacuum that breaks up the natural rotation of the system's elements. (MA)

Vinop

Viper
1) an Arakyd probe droid used by the Empire. Manufactured to specifications detailed by Darth Vader, they have a number of useful mechanical arms and attachments. They are also equipped with defensive lasers. Used to send information over coded channels to Imperial centers, they are programmed to auto-destruct if caught in a position which might jeopardize the information they contain. The first wave of Viper probos to come into Imperial service were produced on Mechis III, at the time when IG-88 controlled the planet. The assassin droid added secondary programming to these droids, mandating that the droids also report back to IG-88 on Mechis III if they found any weakness or flaw which the assassin droid could exploit in its quest for galactic dominance. In essence, IG-88 hoped to use the Viper probe droids as the advanced scouts in the droid revolution. (ESB, DFR, DFRSB, TBH)
2) this grenade launcher is manufactured by Zone Control, and can be mounted under the barrel of a blaster rifle or carbine. It can carry two grenades at a time, ejected with a Tybrene launcher. The Viper has a range of up to 500 meters, and are extremely accurate at shorter distances. (CFG)

Virago
Prince Xizor's personal starship, the Virago was a custom-built MandalMotors StarViper. Xizor's extravagant tastes demanded a ship that was anything but ordinary, and he contracted MandalMotors to build it. The result was the StarViper, a heavy assault fighter of incredible speed, armoring, weaponry, and price. The Virago was unique in the galaxy, although MandalMotors developed other designs from it that were less powerful. (SE, EGV)

Viraxo, K'Armyn
this man was the patriarch of the Viraxo family, and controlled Viraxo Industries during the height of the Galactic Civil War. K'Armyn cultivated ties to the Empire, and the lucrative contracts he won helped gain Viraxo Industries a good deal of power in their local sector. It was rumored that he had bribed an Imperial official to get the power he held, but that was never proven. He was a rival of Tomaas and Antan Azzameen, whose Twin Suns Transport Services tried to maintain a healthy business in Viraxo's sector. He was killed shortly after Ace Azzameen joined the Alliance, in a skirmish between Azzameen and Viraxo forces. (XWA)

Viraxo Designs

Virujansi
this planet was to be taken over by the Empire, but a group of Alliance soldiers impersonated the government's leaders and infiltrated the Captivity prison moon. The planet is ruled by the Rajah, who is assisted by a number of other political contemporaries: the People's Advisor translates visitors' requests to the Rajah; the Mouth of the Ancestors uses past Rajahs' actions as pertinent precedents when necessary; the Eye of History provides options that could be used to solve difficulties; the Wrathor describes the Rajah's displeasure when appropriate, using insults and barbs; the Concilliator helps all parties come to agreement. (RC)

Virulence
1) an Imperial frigate operating during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)
2) an Imperial-II class Star Destroyer commanded by Joak Drysso at the Battle of Endor, the Virulence was one of the few Imperial ships to survive the outcome of that battle. Drysso, after witnessing the destruction of the Executor, fled Endor and vowed to exact revenge on the Alliance. He found a receptive audience in Ysanne Isard, who made him one of her primary commanders. She brought the Virulence with her to help protect her interests on Thyferra, and promoted Drysso to commander of the Lusankya. Lakwii Varrscha was promoted from Executive officer to command the Virulence. Isard ordered both Drysso and Varrscha to destroy Rogue Squadron's space station in the Yag'Dhul system, but Booster Terrik had laid a trap for them. He nearly destroyed the Lusankya, but Varrscha interposed the Virulence between the space station and the larger ship. The Lusankya fled Yag'Dhul, believing the Virulence to be destroyed. However, it was captured by Terrik and held at Yag'Dhul until the Battle of Thyferra, at which time Booster enlisted the aid of Ace Squadron and helped defeat the Lusankya. Booster then claimed ownership of the Star Destroyer, and only the shrewd bargaining of Talon Kaarde and the timely announcement of his daughter's engagement to Corran Horn allowed him to actually keep it. Stripped of all but minimal weaponry and defenses, Booster renamed the ship the Errand Venture and used it as a sort of travelling source of parts and information for smugglers and other pilots. (BW, SOP)

Vo-Shay, Kinnin
this man was known throughout the galaxy as the man who never lost a sabacc match. Many believed that Vo-Shay obtained magical assistance from the amulet he wore around his neck, although the amulet was nothing more than a gift from an old girlfriend. Kinnin was easily recognizable by his silver-streaked white hair, pale violet eyes, and the long scar that ran around his mouth and past his nose. It was believed that Kinnin and his ship, the Ashanda Ray, were lost in the Tyus Cluster some fifty years before the Battle of Endor, but Vo-Shay showed up on Nar Shaddaa shortly after the battle. He had been helping the young man named Nyo to obtain a lightsaber Nyo wanted. Nyo dreamed of becoming a Jedi Knight, and tried to win enough credits to buy the weapon by playing sabacc against the Herglic gambler Doune. Kinnin soundly defeated Doune, taking more than 200,000 credits in the match. However, he won the hatred of Doune, who beat them to Nar Shaddaa and stole the lightsaber. Doune then challenged Vo-Shay to one last hand. The stakes were Vo-Shay's amulet against the lightsaber, and Vo-Shay purposely lost the hand. He wanted to ensure Doune wouldn't come after them anymore, and he knew that Doune didn't want the lightsaber in the first place. He was right on both counts, as the Herglic gave up the lightsaber after winning the amulet. Vo-Shay then told Nyo of his experience in the Tyus Cluster, where he was caught in the gravity well of a mass of black holes along with the disembodied Jedi Master, Aryzah. Lost in the timeless null void of the black holes, Aryzah taught Vo-Shay how to use the Force. He then managed to get free of the black holes, and Aryzah stayed with him from then on. After meeting Nyo, Vo-Shay and Aryzah agreed to help him learn more about the Force. (TFNR)

Vodo-Siosk Baas
a part-insect, part-crustacean Jedi Master from Dantooine. Master Vodo was the teacher of the Jedi Knights Dace and Shoaneb Culu, and later assumed the training of Nomi Sunrider. He was an expert at the creation of the lightsaber, and was known to be able to create a weapon in mere days. Baas was also the teacher of the Jedi Knight Exar Kun, before Kun turned to the Sith teachings and the Dark Side of The Force. Despite his proficiency with lightsabers, Baas prefered to use a simple staff which he wielded adeptly against any lightsaber. He augmented the staff's strength through the Force. He was greatly troubloed by the rise of Sith power, especially because it was his former student that was at the heart of the disturbance. He felt that he had failed, and returned to Coruscant after the capture of Ulic Qel-Droma. He hoped to sway the former Jedi back from the Dark Side, but was foiled by the appearance of Exar Kun. Kun challenged him to a duel, and Baas was brutally slain by his former student on the floor of the ancient Senate Chamber. (FNU, DLS, TSW, JS, IJ)

Vodran
1) this Si'Klaata Cluster planet is covered with thick swamps and jungles. It is the home world of the Vodran race and the dianoga. The planet was invaded by Imperial forces, which met with resistance from the natives. The Empire decimated the population and destroyed many of the planet's cities before the planet was subjugated. (MTS, SWAJ, GG12)
2) a humanoid race native to the planet Vodran, they were one of the three races signed into indenture by the Hutts during their battles with Xim the Despot. Of the three - which includes the Klatooinans and Nikto - the Vodrans have proved to be the most loyal to the Hutts. Vodrans are warm-blooded reptiles whose faces are studded with short spikes around the eyes and mouth. The Vodran race evolved the only true intelligence on their homeworld, descending from a species of tree-dwelling reptiles that lived in the trees. They learned how to hunt in packs, and developed a primitive hunting culture when they were discovered by the ancient Hutt Dojundo. The Vodrans signed up with Dojundo, believing that he was leading a sort of holy war against the evil Xim, and were oblivious to the machinations of the Hutts to control their star system. The Vodran strongly resisted the Imperial presence on their planet, and were summarily destroyed by the Empire. A handful of the planet's original population remained, and its pro-Alliance stance grew over time. They never lost sight of their loyalty to the Hutts, however. (MTS, SWAJ, GG12)

Voegliss
this unusual alien was from a supposedly uninhabited planet which was raxed by an Imperial laboratory. The Imperial scientist Devlor Samt found Voegliss and raised him like a son. Void this silver-plated droid was owned by Roa, and helped operate the Happy Dagger. Void was scheduled to be destroyed by anti-droid fanatics on Roonadan, so Roa picked the droid up for virtually nothing. Void's personality had been traumatized by the events, though, and required a complete reprogramming. (HT)

Void, The
1) this is the Charon term used to describe the final reality of their universe. The Charon homeworld and its sun were sucked into a black hole, which served as a model for the Void. The Void, in the Charon belief system, is the way of the universe. All life is eventually consumed by the Void, although the Charon know that they were born from the Void. It calls them to return, but chose them to first rid the galaxy of other life. Life, in the Charon belief, refused to acknowledge the Void, and was deemed unnatural. It was believed that the Final Prophet would emerge to take the Charon on their final mission, eliminating all other life before delivering the Charon to the Void. (OS)

Volumes of Truth
these religious writings were central to the Ni'Shaw-Dak Ministry, and related the laws and moral practices of each of the Jydan deities. These books were believed to have been written by the three prophets of each god, and were considered companion volumes to the Jydan Writings. (AIR)

Volz, Mira
Renn Volz's daughter and assistant, she was born on Kessel when it was still a lush planet. When her father was captured aboard his Ionic Ring near Randa, she fled to the planet and hid inside the cargo hold of the Millennium Falcon. When she was discovered, she enlisted Luke Skywalker and Han Solo in an attempt to rescue her father. She used one of his inventions to transmit an image of herself into the Ionic Ring, letting her father know that she was no longer under the control of Captain Bzorn. Professor Volz refused to submit to Bzorn's treachery, and threatened to destroy the ship. He was eventually rescued by Han, Luke, and Mira. (CSWEA)

Volz, Renn
this native of Kessel invented the Ionic Ring, which he hoped to use to reclimatize harsh planets. However, the ship was captured by Imperial Captain Bzorn, and was used to destroy planets. Bzorn claimed to have Renn's daughter, Mira, held captive, and used this fact to control Renn. However, Mira was actually free, and returned to his laboratory on Kessel with the help fo Han Solo and Luke Skywalker. They were able to intercept the Ionic Ring and defeat Bzorn's troops, freeing Renn. Renn decided that the Ionic Ring was too dangerous, despite is good qualities, and destroyed the ship. (CSWEA)

Vomak
this Abyssin worked at the Mos Espa arena during the time leading up to Anakin Skywalker's victory in the Boonta Eve Classic podrace. Vomak was employed by Watto to intercept Qui-Gon Jinn and recover yougn Anakin, after the Jedi Master won the slave in a bet on the race. Vomak and his cronies never got the chance to recover the boy, as Qui-Gon whisked him away to Queen Amidala's ship. (IG1)

Voon
1) the ancient Nelroni Marauders established a hidden base on this planet, deep underground. It orbited the blue-white star also known as Voon. They launched their primary assault on the Hyabb-Twith Corridor from Voon, until they were able to establish a base on Dachat. (TOJC)
2) this blue-white star was the central body in the Voon System. (TOJC)

Voontragi
a predator native to the planet Orellon II. (SWAJ)

Voor
1) this Imperial Lieutenant served on the Star Destroyer Relentless. It was Voor who discovered Alliance agent Dana trying to dispatch information on the bounty for Adar Tallon to the Alliance. (TM)
2) this Skeebo was the Kaptain of the Skeebo City Konstabulary force when Anachro was kidnapped by the Skavers. Voor put up minimal assistance in recovering the Hutt, because Voor was secretly in command of the Skavers. He hoped to obtain a huge reward from Gorga the Hutt, but Gorga hired Boba Fett to assist in Anachro's rescue. Fett captured Voor and forced him to lead him to the Skavers' hideout in the Southern Crags. Fett successfully recovered Anachro, much to Voor's dismay. (BF)

Voor Beetle

Voorhorian
this man was a native of Alderaan. He was part of a group of Alderaanians who traveled to Yavin 4, following the destruction of the first Death Star, to meet with Princess Leia Organa. He was extremely loyal to Leia, and was adamant about restoring the memory of Alderaan. (IS)

Voorlach
much of the trade which occurred on this planet was controlled by the Klatooinan Trade Guild, during the New Order. (PSG)

Voorlach Temple
this ancient ruin was discovered on the planet Krykis IV by Doctor Corellia Antilles. She remembered the dig well, because it was believed to have been a religious site, and was filled with hundreds of mysterious artifacts. However, further investigation revealed that the Voorlach Temple was simply an old marketplace, and the artifacts were merely trinkets that were sold there. (SWJ14)

Vooroos
this species of large, legless reptiles was found on a variety of planets throughout the galaxy. They were predatory by nature, relying on stealth and camouflage to trick their prey into getting too close to their mouths. Vooroos individuals could attain lengths of ten meters, and lived in moist, marshy areas where they were often mistaken for mossy hillocks or submerged tree trunks. They were considered immobile by most xenobiologists, and it was speculated that they reproduced when the palak beetle transported genetic material from one vooroos to another. (COG)

Voors, Hallolar
this young entreprenuer was a native of the planet Jubilar. Some fifteen years before the Battle of Hoth, Boba Fett accpeted a job offer from Jabba the Hutt to kill Voors, who had begun selling black-market spice in defiance of the Hutts' cartel on the substance. Voors was fooled into thinking Fett was a potential seller, and offered to provide regular shipments to the bounty hunter. Fett released a neural toxin, incapacitating Voors' bodyguards long enough to shoot the man, in an alley on Executioner's Row. (TBH)

Voorsbain
the population of this planet was the unknowing target of Uris' first proposed test of his improved nanogene droids. (GMH)

Voorson
manufacturers of large-scale power generators. (ISB)

Voorson, Deen
this idealistic young man was an ardent supporter of the Alliance, despite the fact that much of his family worked for the Empire. He believed that the Alliance was right, and the murder of his parents only strengthened that belief. He joined up as a technician and mechanic, and worked on the Alliance's starfighters at Yavin 4 and Hoth. He tried to gain a favor from his aunt and uncle at the Kuat Freight Port, hoping to maneuver a power generator off the main line and into the pirate ship Long Run, captained by Boo Rawl. While his aunt and uncle gruffly declined to help Deen and the Alliance, his young cousin Shannon had no such reservations. The nine-year-old used her slicing ability to reroute the power generator - using her mother's authorization codes - to the Long Run. Deen was glad for the help, but believed that his aunt had had a change of heart. When he and Rawl discovered Shannon hidden in the Long Run's holds, he reluctantly agreed to bring her along. The Imperial pursuit forced his hand, and he fled Kuat with Rawl, the power generator, and Shannon. (SWJ9)

Voorson, Johan
this starship repairman was part of a long line of Voorsons who dedicated their lives to working within the Kuat Drive Yards. Johan, like many of his relatives, married another KDY laborer, and was somewhat disdainful of the “wandering Voorsons” who left Kuat for broader horizons. His disdain for his nephew Deen - who pleaded with him to release a power generator for the Alliance - eventually led to the loss of his daughter, Shannon. Shannon believed, as Deen did, that the Alliance was rightly battling against the Empire. Shannon sliced into the KDY computers and arranged to get the power generator to Deen’s people, then stowed away on Deen’s ship. (SWJ9)

Voorson, Nell
this Kuat Freight Port traffic controller married Johan Voorson, and they lived their lives in service to the Empire. She could not abide the actions of her nephew, Deen, and sided with her husband when they refused to help him supply the Alliance with a power generator. Her daughter, Shannon, sliced into the Kuat computer system and arranged for Deen to obtain tha generator, then stowed away on Deen’s ship. Nell was on duty when the generator was stolen, and fired on the pirate ship until Shannon’s voice suddenly sounded on her comm channels. Her dedication to the Kuat facility failed to completely override her parental instincts, and she directed several transports to move between the Long Run and the Imperial pursuit until Deen’s ship escaped to open space. (SWJ9)

Voorson, Shannon
this precocious, nine-year-old child grew up at the Kuat shipyards, watching her parents slave for the Empire’s war machine. Her best friends were books and computers, and she learned a great deal about independence and strength from reading Vici of Alderaan. She was an accomplished computer slicer for her age, and looked up to her older cousin, Deen. She admired him for his dedication to the Alliance, and found herself willing to leave her parents to join as well. She sliced into the Kuat Freight Port’s duty schedule and helped the Alliance steal a much-needed power generator, and then stowed away on the pirate frieghter Long Run, piloted by Boo Rawl and her cousin, Deen. (SWJ9)

Voort saBinring
this Gamorrean male was one of several non-humans the Empire performed experiments on, in an attempt to improve the intelligence of certain races to levels at which they could understand Imperial commands and act as soldiers. Known as subject Gamma-9104, Voort was given several brain-enhancing surgeries that expanded his span of concentration and increased his mathematical abilities, but his vocal apparatus were incapable of conveying the Basic language. Thus, he was outfitted with a translator unit which he wore around his neck. He was the only known escapee of the Binring projects, since all the others were either killed or committed suicide in an escape attempt engineered by their creator, Tuzin Gast. Voort took his opportunity and escaped from Imperial control, fleeing to the Alliance. There, he expressed a desire to become a pilot, and took a name which denoted his "creation." He eventually became one of the first members of Wraith Squadron, and was given the nickname "Piggy." His last name is a derivative of the company that "produced" him, Binring Biomedical Product. As a member of the Wraiths, Piggy was the group's hand-to-hand combat expert. He was also the strength of the squadron, and his skills were invaluable during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. He was nearly killed when Jart Eyan tried to execute Admiral Ackbar, but Voort took the blaster shots meant for his superior officer. His Gamorrean physiology allowed him to absorb the blasts, and he was forced to kill Eyan to protect Ackbar. After recovering from his wounds, Voort played a key role in the infiltraton of the Binring Biodemical facility on Saffalore, and helped captured Doctor Edda Gast. (WS, IF, SOC)

Vorkosigge, Gandl
a Chief Technical Proctor serving the Imperial Academy at the time when Mako Spince destroyed the Academy's mascot moon. (DESB)

Vorn, Liegeus Sarpaetius
this man served as Seti Ashgad's holo-transmission faker, during the attempt by Dzym to take control of the galaxy. Born to a wealthy house, Liegeus was a blacksheep who preferred to steal other people's ideas and use them to his own benefit. Liegeus was employed for his ability to create realistic, highly illegal holo-vids that passed as the real thing. He also had a large part int he construction of Dzym's flagship, the Reliant. Liegeus posed as Ashgad's pilot when the leader of the Newcomers first met with Leia-Organa-Solo. Liegeus created a series of transmissions that helped cover the tracks of Ashgad and Dzym after they kidnapped Leia and disposed of her small fleet of ships. Liegeus, however, realized that Ashgad was not in control, and understood that Dzym was not all that he appeared. Liegeus strove to help Leia where he couldn't help himself. He allowed her to dump out the drugged water Ashgad provided, while secretly providing her with pure water. When the time came, Liegeus helped her get free of her room and escape, although his part in her escape waspunished by Ashgad and Dzym. He was later discovered by Luke Skywalker, who rescued Liegeus from Dzym and brought him tothe Newcomer camp. Liegeus recovered, and once free of Seti Ashgad and Dzym, he helped the reunited Newcomers and Oldtimers begin to rebuild their world. When Daala arrived with the representatives of the New Republic to find Leia and Luke, he was reunited with Daala. The two left Nam Chorios, bound for Daala's reclusive residence on Pedducis Chorios. (POT)

Vornest Dep-thesel Digarsarg
this ancient Balinaka artist lived thousands of years before the Battle of Yavin. He was considered the first Balinaka to incorporate colored pumice and small fragments of gemstones into his ice sculptures. These unique sculptures soon became known as Garnib Crystals. (PG1)

Vorrin Tal
a famous member of the Alliance to Restore the Republic. (RPG)

Vorru, Fliry
this Corellian served the Old Republic as the planetary governor. He assumed the title of Moff after Emperor Palpatine took control of the galaxy, and administered Corellia with a loose hand. He often turned a deaf ear to smuggling and priacy, and the resulting influx of smugglers and pirates tainted Corellia's otherwise spotless history. Vorru was considered to be a rival for Palpatine's position early in the New Order, until Prince Xizor had him arrested and sent to the prison on Kessel on trumped-up charges. This allowed Xizor to take control of the Corellian criminal world and use it as a training ground for his future lieutentant, such as Zekka Thyne.
Years later, when the New Republic was trying to find information on Coruscant's defenses, Wedge Antilles liberated Vorru on the condition that he keep an eye on Zekka Thyne. Vorru agreed, and was set loose on Coruscant. He petitioned the New Republic to allow him to create the Imperial City People's Militia, as a way to get the underworld under control without expending addition Republic resources. Basically, the ICPM would mean that the criminals governed themselves, under the control of Vorru himself. The Provisional Council reluctantly agreed, and Vorru set up his militia. However, he had his own agenda, with some direction from Ysanne Isard. The ICPM became a revamped Black Sun criminal organization, and Vorru became its crimelord. He controlled the information going back to the Council, and was even so bold as to apprehend Kirtan Loor. He blackmailed Loor into working for him, and began playing his own aspirations against the demands of both the New Republic and Isard. In the end, Vorru became Isard's man in all aspects, and leaked information about a supposed Palpatine Counterinsurgency Faction attack on his own bacta storehouse. This helped deflect the Republic from the plans of Isard, who then destroyed much of Imperial City while raising the Lusankya from its drydock and fleeing Coruscant. Vorru went with her, and when they arrived on Thyferra, Isard made Vorru her Minister of Trade. When they created the Thyferran Home Defense Corps, Vorru became involved with Erisi Dlarit, and the two spent equal time alone in love and mocking Isard. When the Battle of Thyferra started and began to go the way of Rogue Squadron, Vorru tried to escape form Thyferra in his personal shuttle. He was caught by Elscol Loro and Iella Wessiri. When he tried to escape, Elscol shot him in the throat. However, her weapon had been set to stun by Iella, who wanted to bring him before the New Republic to atone for his crimes. (WG, KT, TFE, BW)

Vorsazg

Vorzyd 5
known as the Gambler's World during the reign of Emperor Palpatine, Vorzyd 5 was a casino-covered world under Imperial control. The Emperor maintained the planet in an effort to collect large sums of credits for the Empire. Dozens of space-going holopanels and billboards announced the planet's location throughout the system. The various gamblers and party-goers were a mix of the richest and most influential beings in the galaxy, all come to wager their credits in games of chance. Many of the games were heavily rigged, and brought substantial amounts of money to the Empire's coffers. Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa attempted to disrupt the operation shortly after the Battle of Yavin, but were captured in the attempt. They were rescued by Alliance supporters. (CSWEA)

Vos'yr Valley
this picturesque location is found on Novor XXIII. (SSR)

Voss'on't, Trhin
this Imperial stromtrooper was the Commander of on of the Empire's Strategic Insertion battalions. Fiercely loyal to the Empire, Voss'on't was more than willing to play the part of a defector in a scheme hatched by Prince Xizor and endorsed by Emperor Palpatine himself. In the plan, which was meant to splinter the two factions that resulted from the breakup of the Bounty Hunters Guild, Voss'on't was supposed to play the part of a renegade commander who took control of an Imperial-class Star Destroyer. He was believed to have forced the ship's crew to evacuate at gunpoint, then took the vessel and fled to the Outer Rim with a hand-picked crew of accomplices. Once there, Voss'on't executed his crew and took the most valuable parts of the Star Destroyer and sold them. Among the weapons and computer systems he stole, Voss'on't also took with him the encrypt/decrypt codes used by the Strategic Insertion forces to send and receive their orders. The story was that he would sell them to the highest bidder, most likely the Alliance, who could use them to anticipate covert Imperial strikes. This all made for a valid scenario, since Voss'on't actually did kill him crewmates, and the codes were meant to exist for months while the Special Insertion teams remained hidden. Voss'on't hid out on a world with a dying mining outpost, waiting for the bounty hunters to find him. His skills as a soldier allowed him to dispatch the weakest or most foolhardy of the hunters, but he met his match when Boba Fett and Bossk apprehended him. Although both hunters nearly died in the capture, Voss'on't was nonetheless brought in. Kud'ar Mub'at served as the middleman in the bounty arrangements, since the reward for his capture was incredibly large. However, when Fett delivered the soldier, he found himself doublecrossed by Mub'at and Prince Xizor himself, who had aligned with the subnode Balancesheet to cross them all. Voss'on't was left stranded from Imperial support, and was executed by Xizor's agents, seemingly at Palpatine's order. (SLS, HM)

Vost, Aarica
this Corporate Secxtor Authority agent reported directly to Baruche Sloane during her tenure as the starship parts dealer known as Bren-Aarica Rordan. She is a tall, beautiful woman, and is extremely intelligent and ambitious. Her cover as Bren-Aarica Rordan required her to be friendly and attentive, traits which she had no problems assuming. Aarica was the daugther of Larin Vost. (TSK)

Votrad Stadium
this 100,000-seat arena was the largest entertainment venue found on the planet Brentaal. During the height of the New Order, the Stadium was used to produce several performances of the Kallea Cycle, as its 500-meter-long stage allowed for a great deal of realism and activity within the huge sets required to bring the Kallea Cycle to life. It was located in the city of Votrad. (SWJ13)

Vowluss
this Whiphid worked in the Off-Worlder's Quarter of Ropagi II as a drop point agent, making sure that cargoes get from one ship to another and finally delivered to their destination. He worked for a group of Bothans, but never revealed their identities. (PSG)

Vox
1) this was a pseudonym used by a smuggler who had a great deal of experience with droids. Vox was based on Keyoran, but spent part of his career in the Corporate Sector. (SWJ13, SWJ14)
2) this Defel informant worked on the planet Reaper's World, matching bounty postings to available hunters. She was quite skilled in her work, lacking any ture loyalty but maintaining the anonymity of her clients with ruthless cunning. Vox arranged for an anonymous bounty to be placed on the Herglic gambler Nalroch, a bounty illegally posted by Lord Haakon. (ND)

Vox, Wade
this man was known as a formidable competitor who had just enough control of the Force to keep himself alive. He participated in a number of demolition-serby style events for Jabba the Hutt, shortly before the Battle of Endor. It was rumored that he purchased Luke Skywalker's old landspeeder from Wioslea on Tatooine, then modified and armed it for racing. (OSW)

this was one of the most up-scale inns located on the Kavila continent of Dalos IV. (ND)

Vozda, Dagmar
this former Detached Duty Agent for the office of the Auditor-General of the Corporate Sector Authority investigated the case of Rex Shaxrigge. She posed as a woman executive who was lonely, and allowed Rex to make his moves. They met on Etti IV for what was ostensibly a romantic tryst, hoping to get Rex to try and steal her "corporate secrts." When he found out who she was and that she was trying to arrest him, he pulled a vibroknife on her and threatened her life. This was when a vacationing Fiolla stepped in. Fiolla had recognized Shaxrigge, but when he pulled the knife she felt she couldn't just stand by and watch. In helping Dagmar apprehend Shaxrigge, Fiolla proved herself worthy of consideration by the CSA. Dagmar remembered Fiolla's fearlessness and boldness, and hired her when she graduated. Dagmar took Fiolla under her wing and schooled her, grooming her to promotions. When Dagmar finally retired, she recommended that Fiolla take over her position, which was agreed to by the CSA. (CSA)

(SOP)

Vratix
this alien race, native to the planet Thyferra, perfected the creation of bacta by combining alazhi and kavam. They vastly outnumber the human natives of the planet, but are considered inferior to their corporate counterparts. The Vratix are humanoid insects. They have large, compound eyes, a stalk-like neck, and three pairs of limbs sprouting from a cylindrical thorax and abdomen. The upper set of limbs acts as arms, while the lower two serve as legs. The last set of limbs is well-muscled, and is used in jumping. Most Vratix are gray in color, with the shades darkening with age. They have a basic form of hive mentality, but are able to function as individuals. They believe that sight and sound are not permanent things, and prefer to touch another being in order to recognize their presence.

The Vratix on Thyferra govern themselves through the Ashern Circle. However, the strong pro-human sentiments found in the Zaltin and Xucphra factions have labeled the Ashern as terrorists. Although the Ashern are widely considered responsible for the contamination of certain lots of bacta, this may only be a ruse to cover up an internal struggle. The Ashern, through the Vratix Qlaern Hirf, petitioned Wedge Antilles to sponsor their admittance to the New Republic, but the move was placed in limbo when Ysanne Isard took control of Thyferra. (SWAJ, XWN, KT)

Vrblther
a medium-sized alien inhabiting the depths of the Nar Shaddaa spaceport. These predators resemble apes in their four-legged posture. They are generally smooth-skinned, with tufts of hair at their shoulders and haunches. Their short, thick tails enhance their balance, and their wide feet and sharp claws provide plenty of stability. They are known to be man-eaters. (DE2)

Vrecje
this is the Issori term for an unsanctioned birth. The word translates in Basic as "stranger," but has a much stronger meaning because the child and its breeding are unrecognized by Issori society. Children born of vrecje matings are considered outcasts, and are often killed. (IR)

Vreen
this scientist worked for Bioniip Laboratories on Cloud City, during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. An expert in artificial intelligence, Vreen was known for cutting corners in order to reach his goals faster than his peers. recruited away from Bioniip by Doctor Issan Len for work on the X0-X1 project. However, while Doctor Len wished to use the droid for the good of the galaxy, Doctor Vreen saw the immense potential it held for the Imperial Navy. Vreen arranged to steal the X0-X1 prototype and installed it in the central datacore of Cloud City itself, hoping to prove to Lira Wessex that the droid was valuable to the Empire. Vreen himself was a victim of X0-X1's unusual transformation plans, and soon discovered that X0-X1 had implanted thousands of evolution droids into his body. Vreen suddenly found himself becoming a living automaton. Doctor Vreen decided that he had better atone for the damage he had done. With the help of a team of Alliance agents sent to protect Doctor Len, they were able to disconnect X0-X1 from the main computer and foil the droid's plans to take over Cloud City. Vreen himself had become a flesh droid, and sacrficed himself to gain access to X0-X1's lair in the central computer core. (CCC)

Vregg

Vrokk
this Gamorrean male was the leader of the Bolgoink clan, and was one of the strongest hand-to-hand fighters. Vrokk was married to Kufbrug. Guth was accused on murdering Vrokk shortly before the Fair at Bolgoink. His brother, Rog, clakimed to have a document written by Guth which challenged Vrokk to a duel outside the normal fights which occurred at the Fair. The seal on the document was supposedly poisoned, and Vrokk died shortly after breaking the seal. It was said that Vrokk's ghost still lingered in Bolgoink Hold, a sure sign that he had been murdered. Callista Ming, however, knew that Guth couldn't sign his own name, and questioned the validity of the document. (SWJ14)

Vroon
this S'krrr greeted Mammon Hoole and the Shroud when they landed near the Sikadian Gardens, on the planet S'krrr. As the caretaker of the famous Gardens, Vroon found it unacceptable for the starship to land so close to the delicate plants collected there. He allowed Hoole to repair the ship, but that effort was interrupted when then-Captain Thrawn arrived on the planet to study its art. Vroon himself discovered that the gentle wingsong of the S'krrr soothed the drog beetles which ate the plants of the garden. It was later revealed that Vroon was a member of a secret S'krrr cult that worshipped insects, believing them to be the god-like ancestors of rhte S'krrr. Vroon wanted Hoole and Thrawn gone so that he could continue to expand the drog beetle population, in preparation for a second-coming of the insects. Vroon had been killing the shreevs that fed on the drog beetles, throwing the dead bodies into a pile behind the Gardens. However, the delicate balance between the drog beetles and the shreevs was upset by his schemes. The drog beetles overran his laboratory and killed him. (GOF8)

Vu Chusker
a small humanoid who often traveled in red cloaks and a thick hat, Vu Chusker was a former associate of Cabrool Nuum. They had a falling-out and became bitter enemies. Cabrool Nuum feared that Chusker would take over his empire, and he asked Jabba the Hutt to kill him. Jabba refused, and was thrown in jail. Cabrool's son, Rusk, freed Jabba to kill Cabrool, then demanded that the Hutt kill Chusker or be imprisoned forever. Jabba refused, and with the help of Rusk's sister, Norba, escaped and killed Rusk. Norba imprisoned Jabba as well, and demanded that he kill Chusker. Jabba promptly ate Norba, and escaped for good. Once outside the Nuum compound, Jabba encountered Vu Chusker himself. Frustrated with the day's proceedings, Jabba killed Chusker with a flick of his tail. (JTH)

Vu, Nin
this woman was a native of Alderaan, and was off-planet when the Empire destroyed the world. She had joined the fledgling Alliance as a trooper, and upon hearing of the destruction of her homeworld, she applied for a position in the Special Forces division. She excelled in the training of an Infiltrator, and was assigned to Task Force Shen upon graduation from her training. She had hoped to join the Alderaanian Death Legion, but her skills were needed in the Infiltrators. She rose quickly in rank, and was eventually promoted to First Lieutenant of the Shen task force, acting as Mart Stevez's second in command. (ROE)

Vudyne

Vuffi Raa
the Class 2 multiphasic droid Lando Calrissian wins in a sabacc match from Ottdefa Whett on Oseon 2795. Vuffi is a star-shaped machine with flexible manipulators extending from each of the five points on his body. These manipulators are used as arms and legs for a variety of tasks, including locomotion. Vuffi Raa has a single, red, multifaceted photoreceptor eye in the center of his body, and his body is covered with highly-polished chromium. Vuffi Raa's creators are unknown, but he claims to have been built in their image. The name Vuffi Raa is a numeric designation in their native language. Vuffi Raa cannot remember his creators or his initial acitivation, because he was prematurely activated during shipping, and it wiped out a number of his pre-programmed memories. This was part of an experiment that was performed by The One, the huge interstellar entity that was Vuffi Raa's father. He had hoped that Vuffi Raa would roam the stars, encountering other lifeforms and gathering data on them. This would help The One's people obtain stimulating information about the galaxy without having to enter into the violent tendencies of most races. Vuffi Raa was programmed against violence, lest he obtain tainted data about other lifeforms. Vuffi Raa is covered by a thin, metallic surface which allows him some flexibility. Inside, a thick fluid circulates throughout his system, providing lubrication and coagulation properties should the outer metal surface be punctured. It makes Vuffi Raa a semi-organic machine; it is later revealed by The One that Vuffi Raa is an infant organic starship, related to the huge machines The One and his people use to transport information. Vuffi Raa was intercepted by Rokur Gepta early on, and was placed by Gepta in the service of Osuno Whett. When Whett tried to gain power in the Renatasia System, he set Vuffi Raa up as the focal point, and this is why Klyn Shanga and his militia chased Vuffi Raa and Lando Calrissian throughout the galaxy. Shanga didn't know, until the end, that it was Whett who was to blame. Gepta had programmed Vuffi Raa to call Osuno Whett

"Master," but Vuffi Raa's inherent nature overrode that command. However, when Vuffi Raa encountered Lando Calrissian, his programming found Lando to be a more civilized person than Whett, the small droid couldn't help it when his programming called Lando "Master." After Lando managed to defeat Rokur Gepta near the ThonBoka starcave, Vuffi Raa was manumitted by Lando and allowed to roam the galaxy as the starship that he was. (LCM, LCF, LCS)

Vuhlg Worrik
this Quarren was the head of the mining operation run from the floating city of Morjanssik, on Calamari. (DU)

Vulture
this modified CR90 corvette was part of the smuggler fleet which agreed to provide arms to the Alliance, just prior to the Battle of Endor. Unfortunately for her crew, the Captain of the Vulture decided to sell out to the Empire, and the Alliance as forced to destroy it. (XWA)

Vulture Droid
this was the term used by the Trade Federation to describe the series of droid starfighters it sent into space battles. The Trade Federation never wished to risk any of its living members, so droids permeated its armed forces in every aspect. The Vulture was designed by the Xi Char order, and was a small starfighter with a pair of wings mounted to a wing-like fuselage. Lozenge-shaped weapons emplacements were mounted on the tips of the wings, and could split open in combat to reveal additional weapons systems. A small knob in the center of the fuselage held the droid brain that acted as the ship's pilot. When not in flight – either during storage aboard a Federation battle ship or after landing – the Vulture's systems transform the fighter into a walking weapons platform. This marvel of droid technology could only have been manufactured by the highly-precise Xi Charrians. The Vulture measures 3.5 meters in length when in flight mode, and is armed with four blaster cannons and two torpedo launcher. The only drawback to the Vulture starfighter is that it can only remain active for 35 minutes before it requires refueling. This potential problem is overcome by the use of 1,500 Vultures aboard every Federation battle ship. (SW1, X1, IG1)

Vulvarch
this planet is located 34 light-years from Atzerri. (SOL)

Vulwood
a purple-hued wood used to build furniture. According to Childen of the Jedi, this wood is found in an Ithorian herdship guest room, in spite of the Ithorians' reverence of nature? (COJ)

Vump-shugga
a race devised by Captain Huba and his team of pirate-chefs, it involves racing open skyshoppers across the rocky crags of Kalarba to obtain an object and returning to the starting point with it. The hard part is avoiding the vynocks which scavenge the rocks for metal. (DRO)

Vundar
this small, blue-skinned alien was a con man. He was partners with Grugosh, and served as the brains to Grugosh's brawn. The pair frequented the Mid Rim hangout known as the Maze during the Galactic Civil War. They also supported the Alliance, and acted as go-betweens for the local rebel cell and potential new members. (IA)

Vundt, Darsie
this Rampa native grew up in a middle-class family but despised the life she was born into. She lashed out at society by slicing into local information networks. She got caught by the Corporate Sector Authority, but was offered a position in the Operational Multisystem Management department. She chose to be free, and became one of the Authority's most prominent OMM programmers. (CSA)

Vuraj Marn
this Brosin male was Randle Clanse's most valuable lieutenant, within the command structure of the Brosin Underground. (AIR)

Vuras
this Jedi's struggle with the Dark Side of the Force became a primary teaching lesson for many Jedi Masters. Vuras was confronted with an enemy that used underhanded tactics to continually outsmart and defeat him. Rather than seeking a new way of dealing with the enemy, Vuras simply resorted to using his own underhanded tactics. However, the inherent evil in these tactics, and the anger with which he embraced them, led Vuras to the Dark Side and, eventually, his own destruction. (PTR)

Vurrulf

Wampa Ice Creature
the legendary white-furred snow monster of Hoth, the wampa is a four-meter-tall beast with huge paws, long claws, and curled horns atop its head. It has beady, yellow eyes. It was at the top of Hoth's food chain, hunting the native tauntauns for food. Their white fur allows them to move across the snow-covered plains in near-perfect camouflage. The wampa is a solitary creature, inhabiting the natural ice caves that are found under the planet's icy crust. Each wampa roams a wide and exclusive range, and defends it fiercely. The wampa has been known to mournfully cry out at night, filling the snow plains with a plaintive song that is used either to attract a mate or arrange plans with their brethen. Because of their size, strength, and fierce reputation, the wampa has been sought out by big-game hunters and thrill-seekers. Many times, though, it is the wampa that survives the hunt. Those hunters that manage to kill a wampa are rewarded with beautiful fur pelts and rare horns and claws. Due to the limited nature of Hoth's ecosystem, killing wampas has been outlawed. The wampa was portrayed by Des Webb in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back*, and by Howie Weed in* Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back Special Edition. (ESB, ISU)

Wan Sandage
this Devlikk was one of the Outer Rim's best podracer pilots. Wan was a tall alien with a long neck and high, bony cheeks, and was known as something of a playboy. He was the racer who hired Aldar Beedo to race in the Boonta Eve Classic in order to kill Sebulba. He flew an Elsinore-Cordova Turbodyne 99-U racer. (TPM, RAC, IG1)

Wanatte
this Imperial Captain was stationed at the garrison in Hullis city, on the planet Halmad, during the first series of raids by the Hawk-bat pirates. (IF)

Wander-kelp
native to Chad III, this form of plantlife had minimal intelligence, enough to tell it when to migrate with the currents. It was one of the forms of plants that were harvested by the water farmers on the planet. When the wander-kelp was "mating," it glowed with a bioluminescent light that shone like an oil slick on fire. Their iodine-filled leaves were harvested for their medicinal value, while the discarded biomass was used to feed the various fish that were bred. (DS)

Wanderer
1) a compact, six-seated transport craft. (HSR)

2) this model of spacer's cargo chest was manufactured by SoroSuub, and was used to protect a starship pilot's personal gear. (PSG)

Wanderer
1) this Far*Reach IV PQR scout ship was owned by the Empire until it crashed on the planet Isis. The crew of the Wanderer attempted to hijack an Alliance medical supply ship and return to Imperial space to report on Isis. They nearly made it, but were contained at the last moment by Alliance agents. (IC)

War of Words
this song, written and played by the band Starburst, first appeared on the compilation StakeOut. (GG9)

War Robot
military automatons built for Xim the Despot and used by him to wage war on his enemies. They were superbly constructed, with reinforced stress points, heavy-gauge armor, and assorted chemical and energy weapons built-in. Over a thousand of them were assigned to the Queen of Ranroon to guard Xim's treasure. Given the rumors of the loss of the Queen and Xim's defeat in the Third Battle of Vontor, all of Xim's war robots were thought to have been destroyed until Skynx revealed the remains of one to Han Solo. Han, Chewie, Badure, and Hasti later discovered the group of 1,000 war robots guarding the Queen of Ranroon on Dellalt. These were eventually destroyed when Blue Max and Bollux trapped them on a bridge and collapsed the bridge. (HSL)

War Wagon
a weapon-laden wagon used by Ephram Warrick to defeat the Duloks. (EGC)

War Wheel
this weapon platform, designed by Oskar Jyng, is an AT-AT-sized, gyro-stabilized disk. (CSA)

Warning and Detection Device called a WADD for short, it is a device built by R2-D2 to help secure Cloud City from food pirates following the Battle of Endor. (LCJ)

Waroen
this Imperial Navy Lieutenant served as Joak Drysso's chief sensor officer aboard the Lusankya. During the Battle of Thyferra, when Drysso threatened to ram the ship into the planet Thyferra, Waroen took matters into his own hands and shot Drysso. He then took command of the Lusankya, and surrendered it and her crew to the New Republic. (BW)

Warok
an older Ewok, and the father of Teebo and Paploo, Warok led a group of Ewoks sent to rescue their children from Vulgarr and the Duloks. (ECAR, AT, CCG10)

Waroo
this Wookiee word means “son of courage.” Lumpawarump took this as the familiar part of this name after rescuing Han Solo from the Pride of Yevetha. Chewbacca agreed that the young Wookiee had passed his Test of Ascension during the rescue, taking Shoran’s place and sustaining an injury while rescuing Solo. (TT)

Waroot
one of the native races of the planet Ab’Bshingh, the Waroots were almost constantly at war with the Farang race throughout their history. When the planet was discovered by the Empire, the many battles were studied by the Imperial strategist Crat Dakerno, who was sent to subjugate the two races. Dakerno used their complex maneuvers to create the board game known as B'shingh. (SWJ8) a gamepiece used by players of the game B'shingh. (TFE, SWJ8)

Warp-Top
a game of chance played in many casinos. (WSV)

Warren
this huge, super transport ship was the largest ship in the Jatayus Outbound fleet. (SSR)

Warren, Roland
one of Barosa Warren's sons, Roland served the Alliance as an undercover operative in the Simik System, during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Warren, Tara
this was Danlea Lochner's true identity, as she was a daughter of Barosa Warren. (AIR)

Warren, Tiris
this alias was used by Alton Lochner, while on various field missions for the Alliance. In reality, this was Lochner's true identity, as he was the son of Baorsa Warren. (AIR)

Warren, Tole
this man served the Alliance as a communications officer at the Suolriep Sector headquarters, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Previously, Lieutenant Warren was one of the few survivors of the safeworld Stronghold, which was nearly destroyed by the Charon. Tole was one of three sons of Barosa Warren who served the Alliance. (AIR)

Warren, The
this cantina, located in Vlarnya on Courkrus, was a hagnout used by the crew of the Red Nova as well as Riistar's Raiders. (IJ)

Warrior
1) an Imperial-I class Star Destroyer. It was charged with capturing Mon Calamari slaves when Halley Kadorto single-handedly destroyed its complement of TIE fighters and rescued the Mon Cals. (XW)
2) a New Republic gunship which was assigned to the Intrepid's fleet during the Black Fleet Crisis. It was the Warrior which intercepted Luke Skywalker, Akanah, and the Mud Sloth when they arrived with Wailu and the Fallanassi to create the illusion of other Republic warships. (TT)

Warrior*-class Gunship
this was one of the new class of starships designed for use by the New Republic Navy. It measured 190 meters in length, and was a stronger ship than the Corellian Gunship. Like many of the new classes, the Warrior-class was based a earlier, proven design, the Agave-class picket ship. Their primary mission profile was to be small, fast destroyers, capable of taking out a Star Destroyer and living to tell about it. They were armed with 10 turbolaser cannons, 8 laser cannons, and 4 concussion missile launchers, and enhanced shields.(BTS, CTD)

Warris
this Corellian served as a New Republic recruiter. He held the rank of Navy Lieutenant, and initially turned down Plat Mallar's application for training during the Yevethan Purge. He cited the fact that Polneye was still listed in the New Republic's databases as a planet which supported the Empire. (SOL)

Warsheld, Weston
this ancient man was the leader of House Calipsa during the height of the New Order. At the age of 108, he was confined to a repulsorchair and had to govern his province with the help of a great number of advisors and representatives. He was known for his shrewd sense of business, and his dealings with other Houses helped Calipsa survive the politcal and economic upheavals during the end of the Old Republic and the Galactic Civil War. (PGT)

Warspite
an Imperial Frigate assigned to Operation Strike Fear. (XW)

Wart
this man was one of the many pirates who operated benesth the notice of Governor Parnell in the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (JH)

Wartaki Islands
this archipelago is located on the planet Kashyyyk. Clay from the land of these islands was used by Wookiees to create pipes and bowls. (RD, AIR)

Warthan's Wizards
this secret group of starship designers and engineers dreamed up some of the Empire's most confidential starship designs, including several with active cloaking technology. (JE)

Wartime
this is the Gamorrean name for the summer season on the planet Gamorr. It follows the period of slushtime, when winter runoffs make the ground a muddy quagmire. Once the land dried out, however, travel became much easier, and Gamorreans can venture to other villages and begin raiding them. (SWJ14)

Warton
an Eol Sha colonist who greets Luke upon his arrival on the planetoid. Warton was later transported to Dantooine, and was the last colonist destroyed by Kratas as part of his ground assault. (JS, DA)

Waru
a being from a galaxy in which anti-Force is the prevailing fabirc of life. In the Star Wars galaxy, Waru appears as a large blob covered in golden scales. Underneath the scales is raw flesh from which oozes a blood-like substance when exposed. It can assume a number of shapes, but prefers a round shape. Waru was brought across the galactic boundaries when Hethrir began torturing prisoners at Crseih Station. The disturbances in the Force caused by all that suffering, combined with the strange warping caused by the crystallizing star near the station, rended the normal Force fabric and drew Waru through. Hethrir quickly realized Waru's importance, and made a deal with it. Hethrir would help return Waru to its own galaxy in return for mastery over the Force. Waru agreed to this deal. Hethrir secretly began sacrificing his prisoners to Waru, until the inhabitants of the station began to catch whisperings of Waru existence. When the Empire collapsed and Hethrir went into hiding, Waru extended his circle of influence to include the station's population, and a religion grew from the "miracles" Waru could perform. These miracles were simply petty games Waru would play, using some of his collected Force energies to heal the weaker individuals while waiting for really strong Force-sensitives to come along. Waru would envelope an individual with his body, gauging the individual's Force sensitivity. Waru would consume those individuals who were strong with the Force, claiming that Waru could heal only those who truly believed in him. Any doubt hindered his abilities to heal. When Xaverri discovered Waru and his connection to Hethrir, she contacted Han Solo and the New Republic, who came to determine the threat. When they intercepted Hethrir trying to build the Empire Reborn on the Station, they acted quickly. Luke, Han, and Leia all tried to destroy Waru, only to realize that Waru's power lay not in the Force, but in anti-Force. Waru sensed Luke's strength in the Force, and tried to consume him in order to return to his own galaxy without any obligation to Hethrir. Luke resisted, with help from Han and Leia, and eventually Hethrir himself was consumed by Waru. The vast Force energies he gained from Hethrir allowed him to return to his own galaxy. (CS)

Warwick
an Ewok who helped the Alliance find the Imperial shield generator on Endor. In the novelization of Star Wars: Return of the Jedi, this Ewok is different from Wicket. (ROTJN)

Wasaka
a plant native to the under-forest regions of Kashyyyk. Chewbacca was fond of eating wasaka berry pie. (WSB, TT)

Wasilsi
this ancient species was once native to the planet Joralla, but eventually died out. Xenoarchaeologists have discovered that the Wasilsi were enemies of the Tikiarri, and that they were much larger and stronger than the Tikiarri. However, for unknown reasons, the Tikiarri survived while the Wasilsi disappeared. Many scientists suggest a plague spread across Joralla, but only affected the Wasilsi. Others claim that the Wasilsi were "seeded" on Joralla as part of an experiment, but their immune systems were unable to counteract the viruses of the jungle. (PG1)

Wasith
this man served the Corporate Sector Authority as the Supervisor of the zinsian mining operations of the planet Brosi. He tried a numberof tactics, including the hiring of bounty hunters, to eliminate the Brosin Underground, but could not root out the guerrillas. (AIR)

Waskiro
a planet with a mining economy. (JTH)

Waste, The
this region of the planet Questal surrounds the city of Gralleenya. It was created by the settlers of the planet, during the ardanium rush that occurred shortly after the Battle of Yavin. Prospectors set out from the city itself, scorching and blasting their way outwards in search of the next rich vein. They left behind a nearly circular area of useless land dotted by mines and pits. (GCQ)

Waste Haulers Unlimited
one of the many Ugor waste collections corporations. Like all such operations, they are loyal to the Holy Ugor Taxation Collection Agency. (GG4)

Waste-It
this form of narcotic drug was available in the form of sticks. (SWCP)

Wasted Plains
this vast, black-sand desert was located on the planet Yefowr. (SWJ14)

Wastes, The
this region of the galaxy is located well beyond the Outer Rim Territories. During the expansion times near the end of the Old Republic, the Wastes became a source of wild rumors and stories. Access to the Wastes was forbidden during the time of Palpatine's New Order, as the Empire used its worlds to test new weapons of all sorts. Thus, many of the systems and sectors are veritable wastelands of little value. (SWJ9)

Wastril Bread
this bread was favored by Han Solo, especially when prepared by Dewlanna. (TPS)

Watch-beast

Watchdog Programming
system-level programming placed in a droid's central computer that prohibits the entry of commands that are counter to the droid's own programming, such as the harming of an individual. (HTTE)

Watcher Droid
any droid equipped with sensors and other surveillance devices. They can be equipped with repuslorlifts or ground-based locomotion, but are always programmed for stealth in finding and tracking their designated target. (CS)

Watchkeeper
one of three Bakura-class destroyers deployed by Ossilege to assist the New Republic in breaking the blockade of the Corellian System. When the Bakuran ships entered the interdiction field, the HIMS systems kept them going. The Watchkeeper, however, sustained large amounts of damage entering the field, and was evacuated. Ossilege then used the ship as a decoy, remotely-controlling it as it appeared to be leading the Bakuran fleet. It was in this position that the Watchkeeper became the first ship destroyed by the Selonian planetary repulsor, as it smashed into the repulsor field and was flattened. Luckily, all hands were rescued after the impact. (AS, CTD)

Watchman
the title bestowed on ancient Jedi Masters who oversaw the activities of a particular star system or sector. They were charged by the Old Republic with keeping the peace and harmony of life intact, and to act autonomously. (TOJ, DLS)

Water Beetle
a Socorran insect, the water beetle thrived near the underground water sources found below the planet's volcanoes. They were considered a delicacy by native Socorrans. (BDD)

Water Cyc
this jellyfish-like beast is found on many planets throughout the galaxy. Water cycs float on the surfacem bouyed by their balloon-like bodies. They capture their prey with three poisonous tentacles that hang below their bodies. They appear to simply float motionless, but can attack with swift precision when they sense prey getting near. (DF2)

Water Glider
an alien creature native to the planet Marca, the water glider was an insectoid creature with a round, flat body studded with ten delicate legs. The skimmed along the surface of the water, using the surface tension to stay "afloat," and were fast swimmers. They had bright red coloration and wicked-looking mandibles, but were harmless plant-eaters. (POM)

Water Hockey
a sport. (TNR)

Water Moon

Water Tabacc
this plant is grown on the planet Deyer. (JASB)

Watermoss
a plant native to the planet Endor. (AT)

Watersnake
a predatory reptile native to a number of planets and locales, including the jungles of Baskarn and the swamps of Trinta. (DOE, SWAJ)

Waterspire
this Simiyiar-class freighter was built for the Alliance, but was stolen from a depot on Wilpiet shortly after the Battle of Yavin by Milicass. After Milicass joined the Granse Confederacy, the Waterspire languished in drydock for many years. It was armed with a turret-mounted dual laser cannons and an ion cannon. (AIR)

Waterworm
a giant, energy-eating creature native to the planet Daluuj. These huge, spotted slugs live deep in the swampy waters, and are recognizable by their black and green skin patterns, large eye stalks, and two rows of flagella that flank either side of their bodies. (CSW)

Watesk
the planetary governor of Viamarr 4, Watesk was under the control of Apwar Trigit and Warlord Zsinj shortly after the Battle of Thyferra. (WS)

Watto
this Toydarian junk dealer operated a large shop on the outskirts of Mos Espa, shortly before the Battle of Naboo. A skilled gambler, Watto won the rights to Shmi and Anakin Skywalker in a bet with Gardulla the Hutt. Since that time, he used Anakin to maintain his shop while using Shmi for other duties. While he was Anakin's owner, Watto discovered that the boy was quite skilled at fixing things, and was also a quick study in podracing. Watto used the fact that Anakin was human – a trait not often associated with pod racers – to win money from his rivals in wagers on the races. He met his match when Qui-Gon Jinn arrived in Mos Espa, hoping to replace the hyperdrive on Queen Amidala's ship. Qiu-Gon recognized Anakin's skill as coming from the Force, and helped the boy enter the Bootna Eve race. When Anakin won the race, Qui-Gon not only won the hyperdrive but also Anakin's freedom. Watto as portrayed by Andrew Secombe in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1)

Watts
this Imperial Lieutenant was a native of the planet Corulag. His skills were in the area of sharpshooting and gunnery, and he was known as a deadly accurate shot. He was temporarily assigned to Kuat Drive Yards during the development of weapons systems for the AT-ST scout walker. Watts and his co-pilot, Major Marquand, were captured during the Battle of Endor when Chewbacca and a pair of Ewoks commandeered their AT-ST cout walker. (ROTJ, CCG10)

Watumba Bat
this species of tiny flying mammal is native to the planet Glottal. They feed on algae, rock dust, and fire. These bats are also the favored host of the parfue gnat, which is considered a delicacy by the Glottalphib. Thus, many Glottalphib will maintain a cave filled with watumba bats, in order to attract the gnats. (TNR)

Waurie, Sam
Sam was the son of a famous Corporate Sector Authority Security Division executive. He never aspired to reach that height, and worked in a series of dead-end jobs contentedly for many years. He showed great promise as a programmer, but chose to remain a drudge. He is a dreamer, and often found himself dreaming of heroic, romantic, melodramatic deeds. (CSA)

Wave Trap
this specialized chamber was used in armament development. The walls were specially baffled, and were angled together with the floor to create a room that could absorb incredible amounts of energy. (TFE)

Wave Weapon
an early for of the laser cannon that appeared during the middle of the Old Republic's reign. (TOJ)

Wave Works
this gift shop was located within the Fathoms restaurant complex, situated in the Glitter Cay Tower of Wildwater City on Calamari. Its most unique attraction was the "ceiling" of water devised by Jund Voon, its owner. Using specially modified repulsors, a swirling body of water was maintained at the upper reaches of the shop, making it appear as if patrons were shopping underwater. A group of local musicians was hired to play soothing pieces of music, further enhancing the aquatic experience. The Wave Works was known for its wondrous jewelry, created from the shells, gems, and pearls found in Calamari's oceans. Patrons marvel at Voon's skills with the jewelry, but it was really the work of Kei No Kay. (WSV)

Waveskimmer
1) another name for a wave walker. (DESB)
2) a small repulsorcraft vehicle use on many ocean-covere worlds, the waveskimmer was designed to operate just under the surface of the water. This allowed a certain measure of stealth. These craft were armed with a sonic blaster, which delivered a pulse of pure sound that traveled through the water to cause damage. (OE)

Wavesong
this Mon Calamari cruiser was part of the Alliance's fleet, during the last years of the New Order. It was commanded by Commander Elpfel. (MTSE)

Wavespeeder
used on Calamari, this is a landspeeder-like craft used to move over the oceans on the planet. (DA)

Wavewalker
an Imperial assault vehicle which glides over the surface of a body of water. They were created by the World Devastators, and are not walkers at all. Each wavewalker has two booms which are mounted on servomotors. The servos allow the pilot to position the pontoons in the same plane as the central cockpit, allowing the craft to skim the surface and discharge cargo and troops. The servos also react to the craft's acceleration, lifting the walker off the surface to gain speed. These 14-meter craft are armed with two medium blaster cannons, two light blaster cannons, and two concussion missile launchers. (DE1, DESB)

Waxbrush
a plant, native to Dathomir, which has large, green, fanlike leaves. (CPL)

Way, The

Wayfar
this was the name of the settlement on Tatooine which was the furthest from Arnthout and Mos Eisley, well to the southwest of both settlements. (SWTJ)

Wayfarer
1) this meticulously maintained freighter was own by Roa, during the early years of his association with Han Solo. (THG)
2) this New Republic picket ship was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group. It suffered hyperdrive failure while en route to the Koornacht Cluster, during the Republic's move to blockade the Yevetha. It was forced to return to drydock and never rejoined the fleet. (SOL)
3) this Mu-3 long range shuttle was owned and operated by Radell Mining Corporation, and was used as a scout ship. The cargo area was modified for the use of four additional passengers, and was armed with two turret-mounted laser cannons and a pair of proton torpedo launchers. (OE)

Wayfaring Stranger
this poorly-armed transport ship carried twenty traders from Bakura shortly after the Battle of Bakura liberated the planet from Imperial control. It was ambushed by an Imperial patrol vessel just outside the Bakura System. (TBSB)

Wayland
a primitive, backwater planet, chosen by Emperor Palpatine as a hiding place for his high-technology projects, such as the cloaking device and his Spaarti cylinders. It was originally discovered during the Old Republic's second expansion wave, but was lost from the records for many years. The colonists were forced to survive with little or no technology. The planet is home to the Psadan and Myneyrsh races, both of which lack any higher technology. Just before his death, Palpatine placed the mad clone Joruus C'baoth on the planet to guard the technology stored in Mount Tantiss. He ruled there with the cruel sense of justice of a Dark Jedi until Luke Skywalker was called to the planet. In the swirl of events surrounding Grand Admiral Thrawn's death, Mount Tantiss was destroyed and C'baoth killed. In the years that followed, the Noghri were relocated to Wayland. The New Republic discovered that it would be nearly impossible to restore Honoghr, and gave the Noghri a chance to rebuild on Wayland. Its day lasts 23 standard hours, and its year consumes 353 local days. (HTTE, HTSB, TLC, SOP)

Wayland Herd
one of the many Ithorian herds, it was the herd to which Iggjel belonged, until he decided that he needed to commune with the Mother Jungle and left the herd. (SWSB)

Waywa Fybot
a feathered humanoid from an unknown race, Waywa Fybot was a tall (2.5 meters) alien with an orange beak, scaled, three-toed feet, and bright yellow plumage. He is well-muscled, but speaks in a high-pitched voice that belies his strength. His race is flightless, and his arms are really vestigial wings, and still have a membrane that connects them to his chest. Fybot also suffers from his race's nervous anticipation, and their intense dreaming. As a youth, Fybot received Imperial conditioning, which made him tough and shrewd. He took this experience and became an undercover drug officer, which led him to become involved with the attempts to arrest Bohhuah Mutdah. In this capacity, he also came under the notice of Rokur Gepta, who saw a way to finally kill Lando Calrissian by assuming the guise of Mutdah. Gepta paid Fybot to pretend to help Lob Doluff and Bassi Vobah, and accompanied Bassi and Lando to Oseon 5792, where Gepta has killed Mutdah and taken his place. Fybot, however, has his legs broken in the flight to the asteroid, and barely recovers when they land. When he and Bassi Vobah burst in on Lando and Butdah, Fybot quickly shoots Vobah and kills her, gaining the upper hand for Gepta. When Gepta feels that he has outlived his usefulness, he kills Fybot as well. (LCF)

Wayward Girl
this freighter, owned by Jadonna Veloz, was berthed on Alderaan when Veloz suffered several injuries after a run-in with a malfunctioning anti-grav loader. The injuries nearly forced her to abandon her shipment – nerf tenderloins due on Cloud City – until a young Han Solo signed on to help pilot the ship. Solo was looking for any way to get to Bespin for the huge sabacc tournament there, and their interests overlapped. Han got the ship there on time, and was able to attend the tournament, while Veloz was paid in full for her cargo. (RD)

Waza Tree
native to the planet Dar'Or, the waza trees can grow to be 200 meters or more in height and have thousands of branches. The Ri'dar use the trees as living space, which they share with the indola. The Ri'Dar string baloo vines between the branches, and these vine nets catch falling leaves and needles. Over the millennia, these nets have become quite thick, composed of decomposing matter. (GG4)

Wazta
this Imperial Army commander's infantry units defected to the Alliance, raising a concern among Imperial commanders that more and more Alliance spies were being recruited into the Imperial armed forces. Once they learned valuable information, the began deserting. (ISB)

WBY-102 FirstMate
known as a Webby droid, this specialized thrid-degree automaton was programmed to tutor beings in the operation of a variety of mechanical vehicles. Specifically, the WBY-102 was designed to teach the sailing, maintenance, and navigation of a multi-crewed sailing yacht. The Webby was equipped with a water-tight plastic shell, as well as a homing beacon and distress signal which activated in the event of an emergency. (SWJ1)

Weakness of Inferiors, The
the second volume of Emperor Palpatine's Dark Side Compendium, this work was completely created from Palpatine's twisted mind. He describes that the source of a Dark Jedi's power is the fear and weekness of inferior beings. (DE1)

Weanel
a timid creature. (JTH)

Weapons Engineering Guide
this compendium of starship weaponry engineering provides information on mounting systems, power supplies, and possible targetting options for a wide range of weaponry. (TT)

Weaver
this Charon bio-construct is more of a weapon and defense mechanism than it is a lifeform. The weavers were designed to shoot their webbing for attack. Many of the weavers were used in the Desolate's Hall of Contests, where aline lifeforms were tested by the Charon for weaknesses. (OS)

Web-silk
a fine, Hapan fabric favored by the royal family of Hapes. (SA)

Webb, Jeroen
this Ralltiir native served as a spy for the planet's resistance forces, after the Empire subjugated the world. From there, Webb joined the Alliance as a scout. When he was stationed at Echo Base on Hoth, Webb became one of the base's tauntaun handlers. He was part of the group responsible for capturing, taming, and training the beasts for use as mounts by Alliance patrol personnel. (CCG)

Webley
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. It was under the command of Captain Alex Winger. (VOF)

Webweaver
this species of carnivorous creature inhabits the lower tree levels of Kashyyyk's dense forests. They construct huge nets to capture unwary animals for food. (HSL)

WED-1016
this Cybot Galactica droid was known as a "techie," since it was programmed to work on over 5,000 starship systems. WED-1016 was used by Alliance technicians during salvage missions. (CCG3)

WED-15-D3
this series of maintenance droids was produced by Cybot Galactica as a follow-on to the original WED15. The WED-15-D3 was generally regarded as the first automaton to successfully employ treaded locomotion. The WED-15-D3 sold surprisingly well, given that the original WED15 was regarded as too costly to maintain. (SWJ14)

WED-9-M1
nicknamed the Bantha droid because of its slow, stubborn manner, the WED-9-M1 was originally sold as a security and maintenance droid. A modified WED-9-M1 was purchased by DeMaals from the Jawas on Tatooine, and was used to patrol Docking Bay 94. (CCG)

Wedgan'tilles
this is the accepted Twi'leki interpretation of Wedge Antilles' name. In this form, it translates to "slayer of stars." If pronounced as "Wedge'antilles," the translation becomes something akin to "one who is so foul that he could make a rancor vomit." (KT)

WED15
a small model of Treadwell droid. (TME)

WED15-D3
this Cybot Galacitica treadwell droid roamed Mos Eisley doing repairs and odd jobs. It was said that there was nothing it couldn't fix. (GG7)

WED15-I662
this standard Treadwell droid was used to repair machinery and starships. It was equipped with a pair of rectangular photoreceptors that could extend upward and retract downward on a central post. The Jawas that captured R2-D2 and C-3PO had an I662 in their sandcrawler's hold. (CCG)

WED15-I7
this Treadwell maintenance droid was fiercely loyal to the Empire. It served on the first Death Star, extending the life of the equipment used there. (CCG2)

Weeb, Darren T.
this man was the captain of the freighter Arcadia, which he operated as a business with Jenna Lars. Although he talks little about it, Weeb's life was upset by the Empire, and he maintained a deep-seated grudge against the New Order. Any time it didn't put Jenna's life in jeopardy, Weeb worked hard to help the Alliance in any way possible. (ML)

Weebe, Kesha
this tough, strong-willed widow was the owner of the Farmer's Folly on Draenell's Point. She had run the tavern for twenty-five years before the Battle of Heg. (GMK)

Weechee
the oldest son of Deej and Shodu, Weechee was an adventuresome Ewok. He and his brother, Widdle, were always exploring Endor's varied wilderness, often getting lost of in trouble. When he and his father discovered the Towani's crashed shuttle, they helped the children recover, and later helped them rescue their parents from the Gorax. He was given the Ewok Red Wings of Courage by Logray, as the eldest son accompanying Deej on the mission. Weechee was portrayed by Debbie Carrington in The Ewok Adventure. (EA)

Weeffil Liff's Trading Center located on Ord Mantell, this general store served the needs of most every starship passing through the planet's primary spaceport. Housed in an old starship construction hangar, the Trading Center also served as a front for most of Liff's illegal business transactions. (GMH)

Weege, Plessus
this small-time thief was a native of the planet Draenell's Point when the Empire took control of the Bissillirus System and began constructing its supply depot just outside the system. Plessus knew that would never amount to anything as a con artist, so he became an informant for the Imperials on the planet. Plessus spent his free time at the local bars, like the Farmer's Folly, listening for potentially useful information about the local rebellion. Plessus had a feeling that Drukus Kain was working for the Alliance, but he had no proof. (GMK)

Weegee
this droid was built by Morgan Katarn so that he could have a helper around the house. A strange conglomeration of parts, Weegee became like a member of the family. When Qu Rahn entrusted his lightsaber to Morgan, he hid the device inside Weegee. He then encoded a journal disk for his son, Kyle, so that he could use the information to locate the lost Valley of the Jedi. Weegee, despite being damaged when Jerec attacked the household, nevertheless retained the lightsaber and provided it to Kyle. (DF2)

Weeliu
the nuts from this tree are considered a delicacy on many worlds. (GMH)

Ween, Houghten
this Lord and landowner from Xartun was actually an alias used by the Warlord Zsinj to gain control of property on Xartun. Zsinj used these aliases to secretly manufacture materials for his war machine. (WS)

Weequay
a race of humanoid aliens which is characterized by the topknot of hair which sprouts from their heads. The number of braids one has seems to indicate rank, although many xenosocialogists claim the number of strands is meant to indicate the number of Sriluur years a Weequay has been away from his homeworld. Weequay have gnarled, coarse skin which allows them to blend in with, and survive in, the deserts of their native planet, Sriluur. Among other Weequay, they have the ability to communicate using pheromonal discharges, but they only seem to work within individual Weequay clans. To other races, they are simply smelly beings. In general, Weequay do not have individual names. They are a quiet, dangerously violent race by nature, and have often found employment as soldiers, guards and mercenaries for the Hutts. The Weequay people have lived on Sriluur with the Houk people for many years, but the racial tensions between the two races have erupted several times into all-out war. The last of these wars was resolved just prior to the Battle of Yavin. The Weequay prefer to remain low on the technological scale, and worship the moon which orbits Sriluur and its god, Quay. The name "Weequay" means "follower of Quay." The Weequay appease their god by sacrificing a large beast after battling it. The beast most often sacrificed is the bantha. One of the most interesting things about the Weequay is their written language, which is formed from stones woven into long braids of hair to create symbols and characters. (ROTJ, TOJ, GG12, EGC, CCG7)

Weerden
the planet on which the Imperial Grand Inquisitor, Lord Torbin, was killed by an assassin droid. (SWSB)

Weet
an Alliance transport ship destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Weezo
this scarred, female Nalroni ran Weezo's Gun Shop on StarForge Station during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Weezo's Gun Shop
owned and operated by the female Nalroni known as Weezo, this weapons shop was located on StarForge Station, and carried a wide range of hand-held weapons. Her prices were high, but her merchandise was always of good quality. (FOP)

Wego
this was the first planet in the Obas System. (IA)

Wegsphere
a competitive sport played throughout the galaxy, wegsphere was created by SAGRecreation as an activity for COMPNOR members. Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, wegsphere was named the “official” sport of the New Order. It involved two teams of players, each attempting to place a ball into the opponent’s goal. The game was played in a six-sided, low-gravity well. (ISB, TBSB)

Wehttam
1) a planet near the Koornacht Cluster, it is the homeworld of the Wehttam species. It is found in the Farlax Sector. (BTS, SOL)
2) an alien race living on the planet Wehttam, near the Koornacht Cluster. They known the Cluster as "God's Temple." (BTS)
3) this language shares common verbage and grammatic structure with the Thobek and Torrock languages. (SOL)

Wehutti
this Melida was a contact of Jedi Master Yoda, and agreed to assist in rescuing Tahl from the Melida. Wehutti and his team of snipers were forced into the bowels of Zehava before they could contact Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, and then fired on the Jedi when they believed them to be Daan. Wehutti was recognizable by the fact that he had just one arm, a result of a struggle with the Daan. However, once Wehutti recognized Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan as Jedi, he quickly brought them to his camp and placed them under arrest. The wounded Melida were unable to contain the two Jedi, and they escaped. Wehutti and the Melida had been planning to use the Jedi as hostages, hoping to force the Old Republic to support the Melida in the ongoing civil war. However, both the Daan and the Melida were taken by surprise by The Young, which obtained nearly all of their weapons in a raid on Daan and Melida storehouses. Wehutti was forced into a uneasy alliance with Gueni, the leader of the Daan, in order to avert a full-scale war. However, The Young launched their own war, and eventually defeated the forces of the elders. Wehutti refused to submit to rule by The Young, and holed up in the city of Zehava. (DOD, UP)

Wei
this arid wasteland is the second planet in the Gacerian System. It has no moons. (PG2)

Weizel, Gerald
this Imperial governor was a protege of Grand Admiral Tigellinus, following his break with Grand Moff Traeda’s faction. He was placed in charge of the planet Chandrila after being backed by Moff Jamson Caglio, and took the place of Grandon Holleck. He peacefully subdued the Justice Action Network, removing Brella Temior without bloodshed. (SWJ8, SWAJ)

Wek
this young Senali boy was Ganeed's nephew, born to her sister. (SP)

Weken
this planet, a terrestrial world bathed in a poisonous atmosphere, it the second planet in the Faarlsun System. Located just outside the Zossi Belt, Weken has two moons. (WBC)

Welcome Park
this vast, open area is found on the planet Teyr, between Prye Folas spaceport and the nearest Rift Skyrail station. (SOL)

Weld
this is the Noehon family grouping. Each weld consists of a dominant, alpha-male controlling an average of 10-50 subservient females. The females have their own hierarchy. Male offspring of a weld are traditionally driven out or killed by the alpha male. Female offspring remain within the weld or are stolen to augment another alpha male's weld. (GG12)

Welinarro
this Rodian pilot was the son of Grisserno, and commanded the starfighter squadron which protected Nwarcol Point during the Galactic Civil War. Welinarro himself piloted a Gauntlet starfighter. (SSR)

Well of the Dead
this deep, pit-shaped structure - located deep in the Anarrad pit of the Shadow Forest on Kashyyyk, three leves down and eighteen kilometers northeast from Rwookrrorro - is the site where many young male Wookiees hunt the katarn as a rite of passage to adulthood. (TT)

Wellad Deck
one of two credicruise decks located immediately below the Lido Deck on the Kuari Princess. Many of the luxury liner's staterooms are located on these decks. (RM)

Welling's Revenge
one of several ships sent by the New Republic to accompany Garm Bel Iblis, Booster Terrik, and the Errant Venture to Yaga Minor, in an attempt to steal a copy of the Caamas Document. (VOF)

Wellte-ir Massacre
this was a battle which the Alliance's Scandium Team was soundly defeated. One of the few survivors was Dutra Zeneta. (SWJ10)

Welona
this was the tenth month of the Tapani local calendar, which mapped almost directly to the Coruscant local calendar. (PGT)

Wen'he'dinae
this planet is the homeworld of the Cha'wen'he race of avians, and is teeming with carnivorous species. It was discovered several millennia before the Galactic Civil War. (GG12)

Wena
the owner of C-3PO and R2-D2 after they were sold by Mungo Baobob, Wena had to put the droids up for auction. This led to their being sent to Hosk Station, near Kalarba. (DRO)

Wenderal System
this area of the galaxy was known as a hotbed of rebellious activity during the early years of the Galactic Civil War. (AIR)

Weng, Mayli
Mayli represented the Exotic Entertainers' Union, and was on Prince Xizor's secret payroll. Black Sun owned or operated a number of businesses which used the EEU's members, and Mayli was responsible for communicating needs to Xizor. She was never demanding, which pleased Xizor. (SE)

Wengel
manufacturers of communications and entertainment systems for small repulsorlift craft. (GG7)

Wenn, Cala
Morr Wenn's wife, and one of Adar Tallon's servants in his Tatooine residence. She was very loyal to Tallon. (TM)

Wenn, Morr
Cala's hsuband, and a servant loyal to Adar Tallon. Morr and Cala served Tallon while he was hiding on Tatooine. (TM)

Wennis
Rokur Gepta's personal, a decommissioned Imperial cruiser. It was a trowel-shaped craft, bristling with weaponry and heavily shielded. Gepta had built a small chamber near the ship's drive tubes. The chamber could only be accessed from outside the side, and a small auxilliary craft had to negotiate the ship's jetwash in order to land there. The chamber was windowless, with two-meter-thick walls to keep Gepta's destructive lifeform contained inside. The only way in was a thin tube; Gepta had to revert to his normal slug-like shape in order to enter it. The Wennis was destroyed near the ThonBoka following the Imperial blockade of the nebula, when Klyn Shanga forced Osuno Whett's small ship to collide with the cruiser. Whett's ship ripped the Wennis apart at the middle, and the cruiser exploded. (LCM, LCF, LCS)

Weogar
one of the two Bith cities involved in the conflict that left the planet Clak'Dor an ecological wasteland. The strife was the result of a dispute over patent rights to a new stardrive, thought to be owned by Nozho and Weogar. Nozho investigators blackmailed the neutral arbitrator in order to sway his decision, while Weogar's mayor refused to honor the falsified decision. Both cities began producing the stardrive, and the increased trade competition led to the first Bith war in a million years. Nozho struck first, launching a chemical attack that wiped out most of Weogar's population. Weogar's retailiation was a biological weapon that mutated the genetic structure of any life form it contacted, leaving Nozho a desolate land filled with genetic monsters. The survivors were forced to build hermetically-sealed cities in order to survive the devastation. (GG4)

Weptec
this smuggler was considered something of an expert on the classification of droids, at least by himself. (SWJ14)

Weqill, Lajar
this military officer was part of a safari team which was ambushed by a pack of crazed draagax on Relkass. A commander in the military, Weqill had never been forced to fight a more dangerous opponent than the draagax. (COG)

Weranian Holocards
a deck of holographic cards featuring certain "stimulating" images. (SE)

Wermyn
a native of the planet Aquella, Wermyn's skin was purplish-green because of the various dyes and tattoos placed on it by his people. Although he appears to be a strangely-colored, one-armed alien, Wermyn is quite human. He lost his right arm in an accident while serving as the operations manager of the Maw Installation. An experimental beam projector weapon malfunctioned during a zero-G test and exploded. Wermyn opted to go without an artificial implant. He was killed aboard the Death Star prototype when Tol Sivron piloted it into the Maw. (COTF, JASB)

Werncin 3
it was on this planet that New Republic agent Tauran Nartal was captured by Slar-dan ti-Gardi and Borun Call. (SWJ8)

Werra
this New Republic warship was destroyed at the Battle of N'zoth. (TT)

Werrjuice
an extremely potent narcotic. (RASB)

Werth, Bane
this man was Jaalib Brandl's personal assistant during the subjugation of Ariana, on Garos IV. Werth was a Lieutenant in the Imperial armed forces. (SWJ12)

Wesk
this is the twenty-third symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "w". (SWM)

Wess
a Mugaari cargo ferry destroyed by the Empire shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Wessel
this Imperial General threw in his lot with Carnor Jax, in the wake of the destruction of Emperor Palpatine's clones on Byss. Jax commanded him to hunt down Kir Kanos at any cost, for the former Royal Imperial Guard held the secrets of Jax's past. He hoped to capture Kanos on Phaeda, after Colonel Shev's men were eliminated singlehandedly by Kanos. He knew of Shev's corrupt ways, and felt that Shev would ignore Jax's orders to stand down and avoid Kanos. In this he was correct, as they discovered when they arrived at Phaeda. Wessel and Jax managed to gather information which had Kanos fleeing to Yinchorr, and Jax ordered Wessel to take the Emperor's Revenge to Yinchorr to capture Kanos. Jax accompanied them, wanting to witness Kanos' destruction first-hand. However, Wessel was overconfident when he was able to capture the Scimitar Assault Bomber stolen by Kanos on Phaeda. He ordered the bomber brought aboard the Emperor's Revenge and opened, so that he could personally bring Kanos into custody. Jax recognized the trick being played on him by Kanos, and fled the Star Destroyer just before Wessel forced open the hatch to the bomber. The APA-5 dorid Kanos had placed in the pilot's seat announced the destruction of the bomber, and the explosion which resulted destroyed the Emperor's Revenge. Wessel and most of his troops were killed in the explosion, as Jax and Blim fled to the surface of Yinchorr in a shuttle. (CE)

Wesselman
this was one of the primary subordinates of the Cavrilhu Pirates, and was in charge of the delivery of shipments to the Kauron System base. He was suppsoedly in the custody of the New Republic on Amorris when Luke Skywalker tried to to infiltrate the Cavrilhu Pirate base in the Kauron System. (SOP)

Wessex, Denn
this Imperial Governor of Relgim Sector married Lira Blissex. He commanded Kolaff to take the Victory-class Star Destroyer Subjugator to Kwenn space station and intercept Walex Blissex. (SF)

Wessex, Lira
formerly Lira Blissex, she is the daughter of Walex Blissex, the man who created the Victory-class ships. She despised the Old Republic and what it stood for, and chose to support the New Order. To this end, she married Denn Wessex and turned her abilities to the assistance of the Imperial Navy. She took her father's work and expanded upon it, creating the Imperial-class Star Destroyer. She later worked with her husband in an attempt to kidnap her father and coerce him to provide her more information about starship design. The attempt failed, and Lira barely escaped the destruction of the Subjugator. (SF, COTF)

Wessiri, Diric
Iella's husband, and one of the Alliance supporters covered up by Gil Bastra. He disappeared after Kirtan Loor nearly caught them on Corellia, and was captured by the Empire during a sweep of suspected Alliance supporters. He was reconditioned, and assigned to the slave labor pool working under Evir Derricote on the Krytos project. It was Diric who captured Aril Nunb on Coruscant, for use as a subject in the testing of the Krytos virus. Diric was eventually freed from captivity, and returned to his wife's side on Coruscant. Despite the fact that he had withered away to a skeletal man with thin, graying hair, Diric's spirit remained keen and vigorous, and his eyes continued to burn with intensity. He became wrapped up in the trial of Tycho Celchu, and spent many hours interviewing the pilot. Diric was convinced that Celchu was innocent, and tried to explain this to Iella, who was working to convict him. When Diric realized that a high-ranking Imperial official had surrendered to Nawara Ven, and wanted to meet with only Ven and Iella, he was convinced that it was Evir Derricote. He suddenly became highly focused on killing the Imperial who had enslaved him, and plotted to meet them as they exitted the turbolift to the courtroom. Diric's ambush succeeded, but with highly unexpected results. His first shot caught Nawara Ven in the hip. His next shots fatally wounded the Imperial, but it was Kirtan Loor, not Derricote. In response to the attack, Iella Wessiri took her own actions and shot down the attacker, not realizing that it was her own husband. Diric died from his wounds, as did Kirtan Loor. (XWN, WG, KT)

Wessiri, Iella
this Corellian female was an associate of Corran Horn and Gil Bastra. She was married to Diric Wessiri, and was a member of the New Republic Security forces. She and Corran were teamed up in a tour of duty that involved trips to Kessel. She was later planted on Coruscant as an undercover agent, assuming the alias of Irin Fossyr, a representative of the Rohair Biochemical Clinic. In this capacity, she assisted Wedge Antilles and Rogue Squadron when they were sent to Coruscant to knock out the planet's shields. The offensive was successful, despite the fact that the Krytos virus was loose, and Iella emerged from her anonymity. She was chosen to assist Halla Ettyk during the trial of Tycho Celchu, and was busy gathering data when her husband, Diric, reappeared after being in Imperial captivity. She had given him up for dead, and was quickly becoming friends with Wedge Antilles. She remained loyal to Diric, and was both ecstatic and concerned at his presence. While she loved having him back, Diric was physically emaciated and tried to remain as active as he was in the past. He was constantly talkign with Tycho Celchu, and was convinved of his innocence despite Iella's evidence. When Nawara Ven told her that he was going to produce an Imperial witness to solve the Celchu case once and for all, she discovered that the Imperial wanted to meet only with Ven and herself. She agreed, and met Kirtan Loor in a secret entrance to the Imperial Justice building. However, her husband Diric had learned that an Imperial had been captured, and he believed it to be Evir Derricote. Diric ambushed the three of them as they emerged at the prosecutor's level, and began firing shots. He caught Ven in the right hip before fatally wounding Loor. Iella acted quickly to try and save their witness and bring the assassin to justice, and shot her weapon several times. It was only after the shooting stopped that she realized who the attacker was. Diric died from his wounds just as Kirtan Loor did. Iella was very distraught, but continued on the case until Corran Horn returned to prove Celchu innocent. She also discovered that she felt some attraction to Wedge Antilles, who was two years older than her, but his duties kept them from becoming serious. Iella remained with the New Republic, and served with Elscol Loro during the infiltration of Thyferra during the Bacta War. She later joined the New Republic Intelligence agency, and was one of the key investigators working to hunt down Leonia Tavira and the Invids. She was also one of the agents who was blind-dropped into Adumari society, just before the planet opened negotiations between the Republic and the Empire for membership. She had felt that her work had distanced her from Wedge, along with his relationship with Qwi Xux. However, they were reunited on Adumar, where Wedge explained that his relationship with Qwi had ended. They rekindled their romance in the face of a civil war started because of the actions of Tomer Darpen. After the battle was over and Darpen had been arrested, Iella was named to be the Republic's key Intelligence contact on Adumar, in his place. She also agreed to marry Wedge, and together they started a family of their own. (XWN, WG, KT, BW, IJ, SOA, DTR)

West Championne
this was one of the closest landing fields to the Imperial Palace on Coruscant, located just 200 kilometers south of the palace. (SOP)

West County
this county contained the urban area of Xanas City. (HR)

West Reyno River
this branch of the Reyno River, located on the planet Brosi, emtpied into the Bay of Sypon. (AIR)

West Unillian Mountains
this chain of mountains crossed the Mee'r continent of Draenell's Point. (GMK)

Westen
an Imperial Navy Captain, he was commander of the Star Destroyer Relentless following Parlan's execution. Westen failed to capture the Alliance prisoner transport ship Celestial, and was later executed by Darth Vader. (RC, OS)

Western Dune Sea
a section of Tatooine's massive Dune Sea. (SWN)

Western Flank
this area of the galaxy was controlled by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWDW)

Westone, Becca
this woman was a native of Coruscant, and attended the Imperial Academy as a journalism major. Upon graduation, she found work with a news agency which she found had pro-Alliance management. Becca wrote an in-depth and highly-specific expose' against them for Imperial HoloVision. The agency was quickly shut down, and Becca was offered a position within Imperial HoloVision. She accepted the offer, and soon became known as one of the agency's best investigative reporters. (HR)

Weth, Beru
this was the maiden name of Beru Lars. (SCRE)

Wett Gon-Far
a city located on the planet Veron. (PG)

Wettan, Pinae
this crafty old man was left in charge of the Quekka Trench Station, after Rendeel Industries abandoned it. He made a living by renting out sections of the abandoned plant to smugglers. He rarely showed his face, though, being wary of criminal types. (HAS)

Weutta
this pudgy Phindian was in charge of security at the Syndicat warehouse in Laressa, on the planet Phindar, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. He captured Obi-Wan Kenobi when the Jedi Knight was trying to help Guerra Derida recover a stolen anti-register. (HP)

Wex Spaceport
this spaceport was located on the planet Svivren. (SWI)

Wetyin
one of the four continents discovered on Yavin 4 by Lile Gorsek and the Fernandin Scouting Operation. It was named for Wetyin's Colony. (GG2)

Wetyin's Colony
a planetary colony based on Setor, which suffered from persecution and exile and sent out a number of scouting expeditions to locate a new planet. The Fernandin Scouting Operation was one such expedition, and it received an Imperial permit to scout such worlds as Yavin 4. (GG2)

Whahalla Massacre
this was one in a series of violations of the truce between the natives of Garos IV and Sundari, in the Garos System. The two planets had been at war with each other until the truce was signed. (SWAJ)

Whaladon
native to Calamari, these huge creatures resemble humpback whales, although they have much shorter snouts and longer flippers. They are mammals, and have developed their own intelligence separate from the Mon Calamari and the Quarren. They are led by Leviathor, the great white Whaladon. The Whaladons were hunted by the remnants of the Empire following the Battle of Endor, under the command of Trioculus. They were hunted for their meat and blubber, even though the killing of Whaladons has been outlawed on Calamari for years. (GDV)

Whaladon Processing Center
the huge, dome-covered, underwater plant where Dunwell's Aqualish workers slaughter captured Whaladons for their meat and blubber. It was situated in a large, undersea crater. (GDV)

Whale-drake
this huge, albino creature lived in the depths of the Silvorian Sea. They were colorless because so many generations had lived deep enough in the ocean that they never encountered natural sunlight. (SL)

Wharen, Bea
Madel Wharen's wife, Bea was under intense Imperial scrutiny during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Wharen, Madel
this mechanical genius is the perfect example of an eccentric scientist. Madel dresses in three-day-old lab clothes and rarely showers. He was hired by the Drever Corporation, and worked his way up the ladder with his ability to create newer weapons and technologies. Madel Wharen was the inventor of the Phoenix Plasma Punch, which gained him entry to Drever's Board of Directors. However, Madel was also a supporter of the Alliance, which put him at odds with Jensen Drever II. His confrontations with Drever eventually resulted in two things: Madel himself was shipped off to a backwater research and development planet, and his family was placed under Imperial scrutiny. (GG9)

Wharen, Padyn
Madel Wharen's son, Bea was under intense Imperial scrutiny during the Galactic Civil War. (GG9)

Wharl
this was the name given to the species of huge, sentient beasts of which the ancient Jedi Master Thon was a member. It was chosen by the Old Republic's Bureau of Xenology, although Thon never accepted the term. He remained silent about his species' origins, but told his closest peers that he was from a planet in the Unknown Regions. The Wharl were large, quadripedal creatures with thick armor plating and large, clawed feet. Sharp, bony spikes protect their shoulders and their jaws. (TOJC)

Wheade Daud
this Quarren worked for Orman's organization on Lianna as a demolitions expert. (ML)

Wheel, The
this space station was known for its casinos. Located in the Besh Gorgon System of the Mid Rim, this space station resembled a huge wheel, with a central axis consisting of the main fuselage of the station. This axis was an immense cylinder, and at its midpoint there were four main spokes leading out to the circular promenade. Sprouting from the circular section were almost 100 docking piers, allowing any size ship to safely approach and dock with the Wheel. Beyond these luxury docks, thousands of bouys were placed to allow for less expensive docking, with shuttle providing guests with transport to the station. During the height of the New Order, The Wheel was situated inside an "immunity sphere," which meant that Imperial ships were not allowed to come to the station and everybody else could enjoy themselves while they were aboard. However, the owners of the station paid their taxes regularly and often to appease the Empire. They also adhered to the Empire's anti-alien biases, and the station catered to humans and near-humans while assuming alien species were "guilty until proven innocent." (ND)

Wheel Droid
this is another name for destroyer droids, or droidekas. (IS1)

Wheelbike
an old-fashioned, single-wheel transport used on Sedesia. (SWAJ)

Whisperkit
this furry creature was considered a pet by many people, and resembled a large, wingless bat. (BP)

WhisperThrust
this realspace drive system was produced by Rendili StarDrive, and was originally used only on military starships. It allowed a ship to move through realspace without emitting energy waves, making the ship run silently. Illegal WhisperThrust engines found their way into pirate fleets and outlaw tech shops during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (PP)

Whistler
1) Corran Horn's codename for his R2-D2 astromech droid. Whistler had a near-human personality, and made itself understood by modifying its language of sounds to mimic human mannerisms. This trait kept Whistler on Corran's nerves, but it also kept Corran out of trouble. Not your average astromech, Whistler was programmed by the Corellian Security Force for a number of aptitudes, including creativity, surveillance, lock-picking and forceful entry, and a certain amount of deductive reasoning. Corran also added escape and evasion subroutines. After Corran married Mirax Terrik, Whistler told her that he wanted to pilot the Pulsar Skate when Corran retired from the New Republic. When Rogue Squadron was rescued and held captive by Colonel Vessery and Ysanne Isard, all their astromechs were fitted with restraining bolts. The bold had no effect on Whistler, because the droid had a specialized piece of code installed. Whenever a restraining bolt was attached to it, Whistler's programming detected it and blocked it immediately, rendering the bolt useless. However, the same piece of code intercepted the commands of a caller or owner, and Whistler could simulate the effects of the restraining bolt. This allowed Whistler to reactivate itself after being impounded by the Imperials, and he also removed the bolt from Gate. The two used ventilation ducts and much of Whistler's knowledge of Corran and Mirax's businesses to escape the Imperial facility and return to the Errant Venture, where they told of Rogue Squadron's survival and the existence of Ysanne Isard. (XWN, IR) 2) this Ortolan merchant was so pre-occupied with food that he fell in love with the idea of owning and operation a restaurant. He was the being who designed and built the Whistler's Whirlpool cafe on the planet Trogan, wanting to have a nature theme to his restaurant. (LCSB)

Whistler's Whirlpool
a tapcafe situated in the Drinking Cup on Trogan, designed and built by the Ortolan, Whistler. Once a major tourist attraction, it has since gone bad. The circular structure is centers on the Drinking Cup, and the tidal geyser erupts through the center of the cafe. Unfortunately for Whistler's profit margin, the cafe's design and location makes the cafe a cold, damp place to try and enjoy a meal. The sound of the geyser's rushing water drowns out the loudest of conversation. (TLC, LCSB)

White-eye
this was the name used by the New Republic to describe the naotebe winglings released by Nom Anor inside Settlement Thirty-two on Duro. In their pupal stage, white-eyes were simply sluglike insects. However, after emerging from their coccoons, the white-eyes were flying bugs with a pair of rasp-like pincers for jaws. These creatures had a hunger for synthetic materials like synthplas, and consumed it with gusto. The Vong hoped to destroy several of the refugee domes on Duro by letting loose the white-eyes, thereby herding all the refugees into a single location for easy capture. (BP)

Whitebeam Run
an ancient ore shipping route across the Stenness System., thie Whitebeam Run was anchored by the Stenness Hyperspace Terminal (TOJ, TOJC)

Whitecap
this was the name given by Halls Saper to the 3PO head she used as a holo-recorder in her teachings. She wore Whitecap on her shouder, giving her the impression of having two heads. She felt that the droid's presence would be less obtrusive to the children she interviewed. The idea was sound, but the implementation still left some children uneasy in the presence of a two-headed woman. Eventually, with the help of Wedge Antilles and his pilots, Hallis reduced Whitecap's components into an ornate hairpiece which allowed the same abilities to record but was much less unusual. (SOA)

WhiteShell

Wila Prammi
this Galacian woman was one of the candidates to succeed Queen Veda, after the monarch decided to abdicate the throne. Her supporters often fought against those of Deca Brun, but neither group opposed Prince Beju. She had more political experience the Brun or Beju, having served as an underminister for King Cana and Queen Veda. Many felt that her position within the monarchy distanced her from the majority of the people. However, in the wake of admissions about Deca Brun's abuses of campaign funds, and after Prince Beju withdrew from the election and threw his support to Prammi's campaign, she was elected to succeed Veda. Prammi even received the support of Elan and the Hill People, although they chose to remain apart from the majority of Galu natives. (MOC)

Wild Fire
this converted stock light freighter was one of the few Disac pirate ships to survive the break-up of the band, shortly after the Battle of Hoth. During Morturr Heth's attempt to re-establish the Disac gang, the Wild Fire was supported by two surviving MRX-BR Pacifiers. (SSR)

Wild Karrde
Talon Karrde's smuggling ship, it appears to be a dilapidated Corellian Action VI Transport. It measures the standard 125 meters in length, but it is really a highly-modified smuggling ship. Win or Die this was one of the many pro-Imperial propaganda films made by Garik Loran when he was a child. It was rumored that this one film resulted in a five-percent increase in military recruitment. In the film, Loran plays the young son of parents who were supporters of the Old Republic. Loran's character, however, believes strongly in the New Order, and runs away to find the Emperor and escape from his parents. However, his father shoots him in the back, just as he reaches Palpatine. The child dies in the Emperor's arms, begging Palpatine to finish conquering the galaxy and ridding it of evil people like his parents. Loran received a trip to Coruscant to visit the Emperor for the role, but Palpatine was off discussing the Alliance's growing strength, so he met Ysanne Isard instead. (WS)

Windsloe, Barthalemew
this handsome man was a noted Core Worlds socialite and an expert card player. He spent much of his time in the exclusive clubs on Ord Sabaok, listening to those around him for any information about the Imperial presence in the sector. Windsloe was also an Alliance sympathizer, and used his position asa playboy and card player to gather information. He then sent the information to the Alliance by passing it to the captain of a freighter with Alliance contacts. (CRO)

Windu, Mace
this dark-skinned Jedi Master was a member of the Jedi Council in the years leading up to the Clone Wars. He was distinguished by his bald pate and stern manner. He was young for his position, barely forty when Qui-Gon Jinn brought Anakin Skywalker before the Jedi Council. He was known as a man who led others by rigorous example, employing definite guidelines and steady discipline to his students, rather than allowing them to suddenly discover something. He was also considered one of the Order's toughest fighters. Despite these characteristics, Mace Windu was also one of hte quickest Masters to appreciate a good joke, and often sprang a few himself. Mace Windu was skeptical that this was another of Qui-Gon's foolish causes. However, a cursory testing of the yong boy proved that he was indeed strong with the Force. In the end, Windu agreed with the Council that Anakin should be trained. Mace Windu was portrayed by Samuel L. Jackson in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Winged Xendrite
this flying reptile was native to the planet Xend, where it spent much of its life catching and eating insects. Measuring about 80 centimeters across its wingspan, the winged xendrite had long, thick bodies and short legs, and relied heavily on their wings to move about. It was believed that their legs and tail were used simply to grasp tree branches. They used their sticky tongues to catch insects. They had to natural predators, and their population was maintained by the amount of insect life available. As insect populations dropped, so did xendrite populations, and vice versa. While this ecological balance worked on Xend, other planets were environmentally unprepared to handle the inadvertent xendrite populations which sprang up as the creatures were imported to other worlds. (COG)

Winger, Alexandra
this adopted daughter of Imperial Governor Tork Winger was a strong supporter of the underground Alliance cell on Garos IV. A native of the planet Janara III, Alex was the biological daughter of Matt Turhaya. Alex was adopted by Winger when she was just six, after the Empire destroyed her homeworld. She was rescued by Adalric Brandl, who hoped to bring her into the fold of the Dark Jedi because of her sensitivity to the Force. In her youth, she was loved by Tork, in contradiction to the harsh reality of the Empire. She witnessed the evil of the Empire many times, and by the time she was fifteen she had decided that the Alliance needed to unseat Emperor Palpatine.

When Jaalib Brandl tried to kill Alex and her father, she called upon the Force to save Tork's life. She also explained to her father that she was supporting the resistance on Garos IV, a fact which Tork accepted. After the New Republic liberated Garos IV, Alex and her father remainde on the planet ot help the Garosians recover their lives. She quietly rose through the ranks of the resistance on Garos IV and, later, the New Republic, eventually becoming a Captain in the Republic's Navy. She commanded the Webley during Garm Bel Iblis' assault on the Ubiqtorate station at Yaga Minor, in an attempt to obtain a copy of the Caamas Document. (SWJ1, SWJ12, VOF)

Winger, Sali
Tork Winger's wife. (SWJ12)

Winger, Tork
Tork was the Assistant Minister of Defense for Garos IV, and was one of the primary focal points in the truce between the Garosians and the Sundars. He had served the Old Republic as a soldier and diplomant, and continued his service to the government when the New Order took control. When the Empire took control of the planet in order to gain access to the hibridium mines, Tork Winger was named Imperial Governor of Garos IV, primarily because the respect and praise he garnered an a native of Garos IV helped ensure a smooth transition. A strong supporter of the New Order, he failed to see that his adopted daughter, Alex, was working for the Alliance underground. Tork was nearly killed when Jaalib Brandl came to Garos IV to take control of the city of Ariana. Brandl had his own plans, and went to Garos IV to kill Winger and his daughter, thereby severing his ties to the Empire. Tork was at the center of an explosion in the Imperial garrison in Ariana, but Alex's connection to the Force kept him alive long enough for a rescue team to reach them. (SWJ1, SWJ12)

Wingle
this avian was native to the planet Ruan. When the Salliche Agricultural Corporation began retooling its operations in hopes of pleasing the Yuuzhan Vong, it genetically altered wingles to be wingless and mute, and used them to create droppings which were later turned into fertilizer. (JE)

Wingsong
this primitive form of communication is used by the S'krrr. They rub their vestigial wings together and create a series of tonal inflections which form a crude language. The hums and buzzes of wingsong are formed by manipulating the speed and pressure applied to each wing. The sound of the wingsong is what gives the S'krrr their name. The Corellians who discovered the Ishanna System thought that the insectoids' wingsong made a "s'krrr" sound. The use of wingsong is mainly found in S'krrr poetry, where it lends a beautiful sound to the story being told. (SWJ9, GOF8)

Winkie
a pittin, one of Leia Organa childhood pets on Alderaan. (COJ)

Winning Gamble
this PLY 3000 yacht was owned by the Bardrin Group during the early years of the New Republic. Sansia Bardrin was captured while flying it, and her father employed Mara Jade to help recover it. Ja Bardrin claimed to be worried only about Sansia's well-being, but in reality he simply wanted the ship back. It was equipped with a multitude of protypical and military systems, including an upgraded flight package, enhanced weapons systems, and a defensive shoot-back targetting system. When Mara discovered that she had been tricked into rescuing the ship and not Sansia, it was Sansia who offered her the ship as payment for her rescue. Mara agreed, and renamed the ship Jade's Fire. (TFNR)

Winter
Leia Organa-Solo's childhood friend, Winter was raised in the household of Bail Organa. A year and a few months older than Leia, she is a strikingly beautiful Alderaanian woman with snow-white hair. She bears a striking resemblance to Leia, and often sat in for Leia in public appearances. Their friendship grew quickly, and their rapport kept them together on many diplomatic missions. Winter has been an invaluable aide to Leia, using her photographic memory to catalog huge amounts of data for later recall. Winter's abilities were put to use by the Alliance, during its struggle with the Empire. She was known as the Targeter during the Rebellion. Winter became a visible symbol of the New Republic, helping spread Leia's ideals to other worlds, including Cilpar. Winter became a sort of scout for Rogue Squadron following the Battle of Endor, staying one step ahead of Imperial forces and alerting the fledgling New Republic command to any suspicious activity. Winter made the first contact with Elscol Loro on Cilpar, and was instrumental in the recovery of the Eidolon weapons cache. During its recovery, she began to fall in love with Tycho Celchu, and they shared their Alderaanian heritage. She later became the guardian of Han Solo and Leia's children, working with Admiral Ackbar and Luke Skywalker to design a hidden fortress on Anoth. She fought bravely against Ambassador Furgan's attack on the Anoth fortress, but was forced to leave the complex after rescuing the children. She later returned to Anoth, shoring up the planetoid's defenses for future use. (HTTE, DFR, TLC, EGC, ROC, TNR, XWRS, XWBT, RD)

Winter Fete
this is a holiday observed in Tapani Sector, and originally marked the winter equinox on the planet Pelagon. The settlers there were the first to celebrate Winter Fete, and when they began settling other planets in the sector, the holiday went with them. Over time, the holiday was modified to coincide with Coruscant's Fete Week. In the current Tapani local calendar, Winter Fete falls on the very last week of the year, following the month of Welona. (LE, PGT)

Winter Palace
this was the name of Jiliac the Hutt's estate on Nal Hutta. It was located on a remote island near the planet's equator. It was here that a young Han Solo delivered a message from Zavval, during the Hutts' struggle for control of the Ylesian spice processing facilities. The antechamber to Jiliac's main audience chamber was remarkable for its high, skylighted ceilings, pale stone walls, and glorious tapestries supposedly woven by Jiliac's prisoners. (TPS)

this glass-like substance remains in liquid form at very low temperatures, and can take as much as 10,000 years to solidify under normal conditions. It is found in the Derelkoos Desert of Klatooine, where it seeps from the desert and creates incredibly beautiful, natural sculptures. The Klatooinans call the landmark the Fountain of the Ancients, and revere it for its tenacious and wonderful existence. (GG12)

Winward, Riij
a native of Calius Saj Leeloo, on the planet Berchest, Riij joined the Alliance about a year after the Battle of Yavin. He fled his homeworld after the Empire conscripted his brother and several of his friends. His escape ship turned out to be owned by a smuggler running guns to the Alliance, and Riij decided to join up. He was stationed on Tatooine, and posed as one of the two jailers located in Mos Eisley. It was there that he discovered the ruse put on by Shada D'ukal and Karoly D'ulin, who tried to impersonate the Tonnika Sisters. He linked them to the unidentified Strike Cruiser that they landed in the Dune Sea, and agreed to help them get the Hammertong off Tatooine. When he discovered that the Hammertong was a piece of the Death Star, he begged them to let him keep it, but they refused. He kept their astromech droid as the price of their promise not to give the weapon back to the Empire. He then fled Tatooine aboard the Hopskip. (TME, TFE, SWJ12)

Wiorkettle
this Snivvian worked for Planet Dreams, Incorporated, at their home office on Cloud City, during the height of the New Order. He was an expert in terraforming asteroids and creating breathable atmospheres, and was responsible for ensuring the aesthetic appearance of newly-habitable worlds. (CCG5)

Wioslea
the Vuvrian female with a hidden past, she ended up on Tatooine without a job. When she first met Unut Poll, he was impressed with her ability to speak a large number of alien languages. Poll hired her to work as a salesperson at Spaceport Speeders, and it was Wioslea who purchased Luke Skywalker's landspeeder in Mos Eisley. At the time, she owed Jabba the Hutt 1,000 credits, and was working secretly as a spy. (GG7, CCG)

Wooka
Dathomirian word for Wookiee (CPL)

Wookiee
tall, fur-covered bipeds from Kashyyyk, Wookiees are perhaps best-known known for their fierce style of fighting. Believed to be descended from tree-climing mammalians, they live in the trees above Kashyyyk's carnivorous flora. They have retractable claws that they use for climbing in the trees. The females have six breasts that are used to feed their live-born litters, which are born after about a standard year’s gestation. The baby Wookiees are nearly four feet in length at birth. They were enslaved by the Empire, and don't enjoy the presence of humans, even after the Alliance freed them. Obi-Wan Kenobi once hinted that Wookiees had a strong affinity with the Force. The Wookiee Storybook infers that Wookiees are not native to Kashyyyk, but came to the planet a long time ago. (SW, SWR, HTTE, SGL, WSB, RD, GOF8)

Woot Horn
a deep-toned musical instrument, often used in marching bands. (CPL)

Wooter, Mem
this lawyer was one of the primary partners in the law firm of Wooter, Rimki, and Vass. He made a great deal of money working during the period of the New Order and its remnants in the years following the Battle of Endor. He was essentially the court-appointed defense attorney for any of the low-life criminals arrrested by Imperial forces, and made sure that they all were acquitted without too much hassle. When the Xenovet facility on commenor went into receivership, Wooter was appointed the trustee of the site. He paid for any fees out of his own pocket, hoping to recover any losses upon the sale of the facility. He made a small fortune on the sale, and was eventually contacted by Ysanne Isard's clone. The clone hoped to buy the facility in order to use it as bait for the New Republic and Rogue Squadron. Mirax Terrik and Iella Wessiri traced the operation which led to the death of Urlor Sette to Wooter's firm, and tried to break in and steal evidence. They were nearly captured when they fell for a false set of blueprints to the law offices, and walked into a trap. With the unwanted help of one of Booster Terrik's friends, they managed to escape. (IR)

Wooter, Rimki, and Vass, Attorneys at Law
this law agency was based in the capital city of Commenor. Because of the sale of the Xenovet facility by Mem Wooter, the agency became involved in the placement of prisoners from the Lusankya on Liinade III. Ysanne Isard's clone used the facility to house prisoners from the Lusankya, but evidence from the site led the New Republic to the agency. The firm was quite powerful and wealthy, and made most of its money through Mem Wooter's defense of low-life criminals. (IR)

World Log
this was the standard report required to be filed by the New Republic Scout Service, whenever a new planet or system of worlds is discovered. The log must contain information on each planet's environment, native life (both sentient and non-sentient), natural resources, and any personal notes on the planet or system. (GG8)

World Devastator
designed by the scientists at the Maw Installation, the plans for the World Devastator were sent to Grand Moff Tarkin years after his death at Yavin. The plans were intercepted by Umak Leth, who convinced his superiors that the designs were his own. This was easily accomplished, since the existence of the Maw Installation was well-hidden by Tarkin. Leth saw the creation of the World Devastator as his chance to surpass the genius of Bevel Lemelisk. He took the basic idea of a molecular furnace that broke down matter into its basic elements, and expanded on it. The plans were transmitted to GM Tarkin just after he left the Maw Installation with Bevel Lemelisk and the plans for the first Death Star. As with the original Death Star plans, their source was never revealed to Emperor Palpatine. The World Devastators were eventually implemented by the clone of Emperor Palpatine and used against Calamari. It was the second generation of superweapon from the Installation, and was designed to "eat" the material from a planet's surface (buildings, cities, spaceships, etc.) and reconstitute them into raw materials for creating new Imperial war machines. As with the Death Star before them, the World Devastators were described to the engineers working on them as beneficial, to be used to recycle useless rubble into useful industrial components. In a similar vein to the Mon Calamari starships, each World Devastator was slightly different than the others. This stemmed from the fact the they built themselves over time. The basic skeleton is the same, but the ships are "grown" under supervision until they are ready for deployment. Then, their programming is altered to allow them to attack a planet and begin consuming its resources for use in creating other war machines, rather than for expanding themselves. (DE1, DESB, JS, JASB)

World Family of Alderaan
another name for the Royal Alderaanian Court. (SWN)

WorldArmor 4
a smaller, less-powerful version of the MerrWeapons WorldArmor 9 planetary defense shield. (HAS)

WorldArmor 9
this was the name of MerrWeapons' planetary defense shielding system. This system encased the planet in question with an energy shield. The WorldArmor 9 was permeated with tiny fire gaps, which allowed ground-based weapons to fire at targets outside the shield. (HAS)

Worldcraft
a huge, artificial planetoid created by the Imperial Engineers under Palpatine's rule. These huge planetoids were actually starships which could travel through hyperspace. The Emperor gave them out as gifts to his most trusted servants for their exemplary service. He gave one to Hethrir for his service as Procurator of Justice for the Empire, which Hethrir took and hid on while building the forces he needed to establish the Empire Reborn. (CS)

Worldhopper
this was the name of the aging freight hauler owned and operated by Rennik and his two sons. (IR)

Worldship
a bio-engineered form of capital ship, the Yuuzhan Vong worldship was created from a community of yorik coral. The huge ships were living creatures designed to cross vast distances of space. Each was propelled by a collection of dovin basals, which could lock onto a nearby gravity source and use it to "pull" the worldship toward it at incredible speeds. A series of bio-engineered, membranous creatures were attached to the worldship, and could be extended whenever there was no strong gravitational field for the dovin basals to lock onto. The membranous creatures allowed the worldship to be pushed by the interstellar winds. Each worldship carried a compliment of coralskippers for added protection, and several were used to keep the membrane creatures extended. Once the worldship was landed, a huge, tubular worm was extended from the craft into the surface of the landing area, allowing the Yuuzhan Vong to establish a planet-side base and maintain contact with the worldship. (VP)

Worlport
the largest continent found on the planet Ord Mantell, Worlport is known for the many gambling halls and casinos found on its southern coast. (TTSB)

Worrumba
this Wookiee owed Untos Poquot a life-debt, and followed Poquot into the service of the Alliance. Worrumba fought more to protect Poquot than in support of the Alliance. Worrumba was second in command of the team sent to hijack the Black Ice. (BI)

Worthless Fool
this Cuirilla-Rayl Xylines-class spacetug was purchased by a young Alliance procurement officer from Yearo Seville. Seville claimed its memory banks held information on Imperial shipyards, and the officer paid a huge sum to acquire it. When Dwin Wisheel discovered that the memory banks had been wiped clean, he yelled at the young officer, calling the ship worthless the the officer a worthless fool. The name stuck with the ship ever since, as the working papers distributed for its maintenance began to carry that name. The ship given over to Maytoc Kollene, who chose it for the fact that it had been modified for a one-legged pilot. The Worthless Fool measures 42 meters in length, and required a crew of 7 when fully staffed. There was room for 12-18 passengers, and the ship was armed with a heavy laser cannon, a pair of Hansen FeatherTouch tractor beam projectors, and a laser cannon mounted on each tractor beam turret. (TA)

Wover, Gallie
a Gunnery Sergeant serving the New Republic aboard the Admantine, Gallie was the first to discover the death of Koth Barak. She meant to retrieve him from his break, but instead found him dead in the ship's mess hall. Gallie had served the Old Republic, but went into the merchant marine when Palpatine took control of the galaxy. She returned to active duty after the Battle fo Endor. She eventually died of the same plague which killed Barak. (POT)

Woyiq
this huge, beefy man was part of the rebel underground on Druckenwell. A former wrestler in sanctioned Imperial events, he worked in Il Avali, and was one of the people who rescued Daye Azur-Jamin after he destroyed I'att Armament's development facility there. He and his Gotal partner Toalar helped Daye recover, and sponsored his application to join the Alliance. (SWJ10, TFE)

WQ 445
this ungainly, box-shaped transport ship was produced by TaggeCo. (BP)

WR-85
Arakyd's tank droid, this automated war machine was introduced to the Imperial arsenal just after the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn. It was first used in the siege of Coruscant. (DESB)

Wraith
this was the name of Miraj's modified 74-Z speederbike. (WSV)

Wraith Leader
this was the deisgnation of Wedge Antilles, which he used after he joined Han Solo in the search for Warlord Zsinj aboard the Mon Remonda. During this time, Wedge was in command of both Rogue Squadron and Wraith Squadron, as well as Nova and Polearm Squadrons. (SOC)

Wraith Squadron
formed by Wedge Antilles shortly after the Battle of Thyferra, when the reformed Rogue Squadron could not immediately be re-assigned, Wraith Squadron was made up of the degs of the New Republic's fighter pilots. Wedge felt that there were some potentially great pilots who just needed another chance, and formed the Squadron with the help of Wes Janson. The group was originally designated Gray Squadron, but Wedge allowed the team to choose its own name. Tyria Sarkin came up the name Wraith Squadron, named for mysterious phantoms who were supposed to live under the beds of young children. Among other names proposed were Dinner Squadron – under which the squadron actually performed a mission - and Silly Squadron. Shortly after the Wraiths participated in the destruction of the Razor's Kiss, Wedge returned to Rogue Squadron, but remained in command of the Wraiths. The Wraiths quickly proved their worth as an infiltration team, taking out several key Imperial installations and providing valuable support during the hunt for Warlord Zsinj. After the defeat of Zsinj at Selaggis Six, they were disbanded as a starfighter squadron and turned into an Intelligence force working for Airen Cracken. Their insignia as a starfighter group was a white circle bounded by a blue band and two gold rings. Within the white circle were twelve images of X-Wings, flying in formation from lower left to upper right. The lead ship was larger than the others arrayed around it, and all were black in color. (WS, IF, SOC)

Wroshyr
native to Kashyyyk, these trees grow kilometers in height, almost tall enough to reach the clouds. The Wookiees build their cities in them. The branches can merge with one another to form meshes. (HTTE)

Wroshyr
this was the name of Chenlambec's saucer-shaped starship. He and Tinian I'att used it to land on the Executor while applying for the Hunt for Han Solo. When they met up with Bossk, they had to leave it behind on the huge flagship while leaving in the Hound's Tooth. (TBH)

Wroshyr Louse
this large, purplish-blue insect lived on the bark of the wroshyr trees of Kashyyyk. When crushed, these insects exuded a thick syrup, which was often used in Wookiee cooking. The females Wookiees of the planet belived that a young female could drop a wroshyr louse on the male they wished to court, and that the male would be bonded to her forever. Of course, the female had to offer to groom the male's fur, as a way to apologize for the "mistake." (C)

Wrrlevgebev
known as Wrrl, this Wookiee was rescued from slavery by the I'att family. When Tinian I'att was twelve, she witnessed Wrrl being beaten to death in the slave markets of Druckenwell, and had pleaded with her grandfather to purchase him before he was killed. When Wrrl learned of Tinian's wish to save him, he quickly declared a life-debt to her, and he never left her side. When Moff Kerioth killed Tinian's grandparents and stole I'att Armaments' new armor-protective field generator, Wrrl managed to get Tinian out of the complex before stormtroopers killed him. (TFE)

Wuher
the human bartender working in the Mos Eisley cantina when Obi-Wan Kenobi and Luke Skywalker approach Han Solo regarding passage to Alderaan. Wuher grew up on Tatooine, and was brought up by one of the Shi'ido who impersonated Reess Kairn, until the alien was killed by Aurra Sing. As an adult, Wuher worked the after-double-noon shift for Chalmun. Wuher was abandoned in Mos Eisley as a child, and has been fighting his way up in the world ever since. He has maintained a spark of a dream of getting off Tatooine. He has grown up hating and distrusting droids, having been brushed off in favor of them a number of times. When he discovered a chemistry kit, he began experimenting with new ways to create tasty drink mixes. He later completed a bartending correspondence course, and now considers himself a bioalchemist. He has been working for Chalmun for a number of years, and has fine-tuned his ability to create new beverages due to Chalmun's tight alcohol budget. In an effort to get off Tatooine, Wuher has been trying to create the perfect liqueur for Jabba the Hutt. After stumbling onto C2-R4, Wuher discovered that the droid was extremely helpful for exactly mixing ingredients. When Greedo came into the cantina and was killed by Han Solo, wuher realized that Rodian pheromones were the missing ingredient in Jabba's liqueur. Wuher obtained Greedo's corpse, and had C2-R4 brew Greedo into the liqueur. Wuher was portrayed by Ted Burnett in Star Wars. (SW, TME, BHAS)

Wuin, Treffelt
this mid-level Imperial bureaucrat was stationed on Draenell's Point, during the construction of the Empire's resupply base in the Bissillirus System, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He offered to provide information on the Empire's efforts to the Alliance, in return for sanctuary on a safeworld. Wuin worked through the trader Hennilrum to talk to the Alliance. (GMK)

Wuitho Trifalls
a beautiful series of three waterfalls once found on the planet Alderaan. (WG)

Wukkar
a former Imperial world which quickly surrendered to the New Republic. (DESB)

Wulfruit Tree
this fruit-bearing tree was native to the planet KyLessia. (TBSB)

Wulkarsk
this large predator, the largest member of the wulkenso family, was native to the planet Joralla. It lived in the jungles, attacking and consuming creatures as big as a man. Each wulkarsk had six limbs and two distinct torso sections. The lower section held four limbs, and was used for motion. The upper section held the two arms, as well as a neck and head. Their elongated snouts are studded with four eyes, which gave them excellent vision. The native Tikiarri of Joralla often tamed these beasts for use as hunters, operating in packs to help bring down larger prey. (PG1)

Wulkenso
this family of predators included the wulkarsk of Joralla. (PG1)

Wullerton
this was the capital city of the planet Draenell's Point, which was located on the continent of Mee'r. (GMK)

Wumdi
this Etti was one of Prince Xizor's vigo's, or one of his closest lieutenants. As a vigo, Wumdi developed a criminal empire by taking advantage of opportunities within the Corporate Sector. He maintained a relationship with a number of CSA executives, and brought in a wealth of credits to Black Sun. However, he embezzled a large percentage of his profits. (SE, SESB)

Wunana
this young Melida was the child of Quintama and Pinani. Wunana was killed in battle during the Twenty-Second Battle of Zehava. (DOD)

Wupiupi
this was a Huttese unit of money, and was in prominent use in the Outer Rim Territories during the last decades of the Old Republic. Note that in the novelization of Star Wars:Episode I – The Phantom Menace*, they are referred to as* truguts. (SW1, TPM)

Wuppa
1) a tall, think grass native to the planet Moltok. (HTSB)
2) a giant flower which has a spectacular bloom. (GG4)

Wurger
an Alliance Corvette group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. It was stationed at deepspace platform DS-5, and was in place to help facilitate Harkov's defection. (TIE)

Wurrif*-class Light Cruiser
this 400-meter-long Ssi-ruuvi warship was capable of carrying 200 Swarm-class battle drones. Four of these ships were sent to Bakura to escort the Shriwirr. The primary mission profile of the Wurrif-class was this form of escort, as well as protecting the Sh'ner-class assault ship and the Lwhekk-class manufacturing vessel. The average Wurrif-class ship was armed withsix heavy turbolaser cannons, 24 ion cannons, and 12 tractor beam projectors. The crew complement consisted of 200 Ssi-ruuk officers, 1,500 P'w'eck laborers, and 156 gunners. In addition to the Swarm-class battle droids, the Wurrif-class cruiser could transport up to 2,000 metric tons of cargo.. (EGV, TBSB)

Wurrooba
this Wookiee was one of the two clerks working for Labio at the Starwind Chandlery on StarForge Station during the Galactic Civil War. (FOP)

Wuta
this Ewok explorer and scout helped keep Chief Chirpa's tribe safe by tracking the predators of the Endor forest. He also sought out fallen trees, which could be used to make weapons and tools. It was Wuta who first noticed the Imperial presence on Endor, during the early phases of construction on the shield generator which would eventually protect the second Death Star. (CCG10)

Wutz
a domed rift valley found on the planet Belsavis. (COJ)

Wuvnir
this Alliance General was captured, along with General Tfin, by the bounty hunter Kal-tan-shi on the planet Yhuli. (AIR)

Wuwuhuul
this creature was Force-sensitive, and struggled to learn how to control it during the height of the New Order. Wuwuhuul was a Revwien, and resembled a large, walking plant. Wuwuhuul was a longtime companion of Grindol Maal, and the two were known supporters of the Alliance. They accompanied an Alliance team to Goratak III to recover an Imperial I2-CG droid which contained information on the starship manufacturing plant on Tar Morden. (MB)

Wuxod
this man was a Senator, and sat on the Imperial Senate until it was disbanded by Emperor Palpatine. Wuxod was one of the few Senators who spoke out against the New Order, and disappeared when he returned to Derilyn. His disappearance sparked a rash of rebellious activity on the planet, which later resulted in the Sixty Hour War and the destruction of the city of Paran. (OE)

Wuzzek
this Force Demon was imprisoned in the Menagerie by the Five, held within the Hellhoop for an untold number of years. He was contained within an angle-trap. Wuzzek escaped with the help of Chewbacca, who had been captured by the Five. Wuzzek went on a killing spree, eliminating all members of the Five in swift vengeance. Wuzzek then allowed Chewbacca, Han Solo, and Leia Organa to escape before he destroyed the Hellhoop. (CSWDW)

WU-9167
an alias used by Princess Leia for her personal starship, Alderaan. She uses it at the Munto Codru spaceport. (CS)

Wwebyls
this native of the planet Yn served as his planet's Senator to the New Republic. He supported Meido following the bombing of the Senate Assembly Chamber, and the subsequent investigation. Wwebyls was later elected to the Republic's Inner Council, following the series of Senatorial elections designed to fill positions left vacant after the bombing. (TNR)

Wyke, Gorrul
this grizzled man worked in the Trigdale refinery on Seregar during the height of the New Order. (ND)

Wyl Sector
one of the borders of the Corporate Sector, along with the Aparo Sector. (CSA)

Wyndigal 2
this swamp-covered world was near enough to its star that it received a large amount of ultra-violet radiation. Despite the fact that no sentient life evolved on the planet, several interesting species - including the croator - developed there. Humans visiting the planet had to wear protective suits in order to protect their skin from radiation burns, and the ultra-violet sunlight created an unnerving set of visual colors to most humanoid species. (COG)

Wynl
this Baragwin was a Senator in the New Republic. He was one of the first Senators to question Leia Organa Solo's pleas for the Republic to begin planning for the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. Wynl also questioned the legality and necessity of the Jedi Knights, after many Knights became vigilantes in the Outer Rim. (DTO)

Wynni
this female Wookiee was a smuggler who abandoned her Wookiee codes, a family, and two life debts to pursue her chosen career. This earned her a great deal of disrespect from her fellow Wookiees, including Chewbacca. She worked out of the Smuggler's Run, and it was on Skip 1 that she tried to seduce Chewie, during his first visit there. This earned her even less admiration in Chewie's eyes. She teamed up with Zeen Afit, Sinewy Ana Blue, and Kid DXo'la to ply the Run after the fall of Emperor Palpatine, and feigned friendship with Han Solo and Chewbacca when they came to the Run to investigate the death of Jarril. (TNR)

Wynth
a planet located in the Wyloff Sector of the Colonies. (CRO)

Wyrmyr, Horace
one-time Dean of the Imperial Academy, it was Wyrmyr who pushed hard for Mako Spince to be imprisoned following the destruction of the Academy's mascot moon. As a practical joke, Spince once faked the Dean's death during a homecoming rally. (DESB)

Wyrrhem
this Imperial Moff controlled the Aparo Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (CSA)

Wyrwulf
a huge doglike creature native to Munto Codru, the wyrwulf is actually an immature member of the Codru-Ji race. These coarse-furred, six-legged animals are very intelligent, and have a strong sense of family. The young often accompany their parents, loping alongside them. The wyrwulf represents the Codru-Ji's pupal stage. When the wyrwulf reaches sufficient age, it exudes a blue ooze which acts as a cocoon when fully formed around the wyrwulf's body. The wyrwulf then metamorphs into a full-grown adult Codru-Ji. At this point, it no longer walks on all-fours, but emerges as a bipedal alien with 4 arms. (CS)

Wystoh
a large, deep-ocean predator native to Chad III, the wystoh measures up to 7 meters in length. They have long, eel-like bodies that allow them to snake through the water with incredible speed. Their heads are dominated by beady eyes and wide mouths filled with serrated teeth. Callista told Luke Skywalker about how her family used foo-twitters to lure the beasts away from their ships when they needed to make repairs. (COJ, SWJ10)

Wyveral
this planet was known for its scientific advances in forensic medicine. (RD)

Wyykmelon
a fruit which is filled with thick, ropy flesh. (DESB)

W325
designation of the bathtub-shaped spacesuit/spacecraft that the crew of the Wennis used to inspect and repair the cruiser. Osuno Whett took control of the craft for a short time, in order to follow Rokur Gepta into his specialized chamber near the Wennis's engines. (LCS)

* X *

X
Calban's heavy blaster pistol. (GG9)

X-ball
this Ugly is created from the spherical cockpit of a TIE Fighter linked to the S-foils and wings of an X-Wing. This Twi'leki design required that a special collar be fitted to the TIE cockpit, so that the S-foils could be mounted properly. (KT)

X-ceptor
this form of Ugly starfighter was created from an X-Wing fuselage, to which was attached the wings of a TIE Interceptor. (DTO)

X-C 2
this was the designation of an experimental, high-output ion array developed for use as a sublight drive by Sienar Design Systems. It first saw use in Darth Maul's Infiltrator starship. (X1, IG1)

X-F-16
the designation of a Kuat Drive Yards power generator. (EGV)

X-foils
another term for the S-foils used on X-wings. (ROTJN)

X-Q2
known as the Regulator, this Loronar systems patrol cruiser measured 150 meters in length, and was armed with five laser cannons. It required a crew of nine to operate, with 5 gunners to operate the five laser cannons which armed the ship. Like the IPV-1, the X-Q2 was not capable of hyperspace travel. It could transport up to 15 troops and 500 metric tons of cargo. (FOP)

X-TIE
this common form of Ugly consists of an X-Wing hull mounted with the hexagonal solar panels of a TIE Fighter. (KT) common name for the Incom T-65c A2 Starfighter, this is a 12.5 meter snub fighter with two wings that split in two by activating S-foils. This allows for greater maneuverability and firing accuracy; each of the split wings has its own laser cannon (total of four). It is a single-pilot ship, with an R2 astromech droid socket. The R2 unit is used in place of a navigationa computer. It is extremely maneuverable, even at its top sublight speed of 110 MGLT. It has also been clocked at 1,050 kilometers per hour in an atmosphere. The X-Wing was designed by Incom just before the Empire stopped contracting out naval construction. The Empire believed that Incom was infiltrated by Alliance sympathizers, and relieved the X-Wing team of duty. The X-Wing team then defected to the Alliance, flying out with all the X-Wing prototypes and the starfighter's plans. Their parting gesture to the Empire was to destroy all records of the X-Wing in Incom and Imperial databases. The Alliance then began to produce the X-Wing themselves, recognizing its potential. It continued to gain acceptance after the Galactic Civil War due to its maneuverability and durability. Several upgrades and modifications from the liberated Incom design team didn't yield major improvements until the advent of the T-65d A1, which eliminated the astromech droid in favor of more computer power to provide the pilot with more in-flight options in terms of maneuverability and management of shipboard resources.

X-Wing
The T-65c A2 boasts the following shipboard components:
- Incom GBk-585 Hyperdrive Motivation Unit
- Incom MKI Drive Module
- 4 wing-mounted Incom 4j.4 Fusial Thrust Engines (some models use Incom 4L4 Fusial thrusters)
- IN-344-B Sightline Holographic Crosshairs
- 4 Taim and Bak IX4 Laser Cannons (some models use Taim and Bak KX9 laser cannons)
- Fabritech ANq 3.6 Target Tracker
- Fabritech ANs-5d Sensor Unit
- Fabritech k-blakan Mini Sensor
- S-foil Activator
- Gax Revival Life Support System
- Guidenhauser Ejection Seat
- Novaldex O-4Z Ionization Reactor
- Chempat Defender Shield Projector (rated at 50 SBD)
- Cryogenic Power Cells
- Torplex Rq8.Y Avionics Control Package
- Carbanti Universal Transceiver Package
- Melihat Multi-Imager Dedicated Energy Receptor
- Tana Ire Electro-photo Receptor
- Long Range Phased Tachyon Detection Array Model Number PA-9r
- Short Range Primary Threat Analysis Grid Number PG-7u
- Bertriak Screamer Active Jammer
- Krupx MG7 Proton Torpedo Launchers (2 racks of 3)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 20 RU)

- Transparisteel Canopy
- R2 Astromech Navigation Droid
- 4 Exhaust Nacelles
- Sarylcorp Reactant Agitator Injector
- Surge Vent and Extinguisher
(SW, SCRE, SWSB, TNR)

X-1
this was the codename given by Myk Bidlor to the poison used to kill Aruk the Hutt. Bidlor discovered that it was produced by the Malkite Poisoners, and was created from the stamen of a plant which grew on a planet known only to the Malkites. This made the drug prohibitively expensive, which led Durga to believe that clan Desilijic was behind its use. Large doses of X-1 were immediately fatal, but small doses create a dependence which can be deadly if the substance is withdrawn. (RD)

X-1 Viper Automadon
a bipedal war droid produced on Balmorra from the various war machine technologies "borrowed" from the Empire. Each of these droids stands about 3 meters tall, and is equipped with 2 pincer arms and 2 laser cannon arms. They have a unique molecular shielding which allows them to absorb the energy fired at them and convert it into ready power for its own weapons systems. (DE2)

X-222
an outdated, high-altitude fighter used by Grigmin in his travelling airshow. They are often referred to as 'triple-deuces.' (HSL)

X-23 StarWorker
a space barge designed by Incom, it has a modular shape and Incom sublight engines attached to its cargo hold. It measured 38 meters in length, and can hold 2,000 cubic meters of cargo with a maximum mass of 5,000 metric tons. They have no weapons systems, and no shielding. They require only 2 crewmen to run, plus a fifth-degree labor droid. (DA, SWSB)

X-26 StarHaul
this was a space barge developed by Incom as a larger version of the X-23 StarWorker. The X-26 was 55 meters long, could transport up to 5,000 metric tons of cargo, and was armed with a laser cannon. It was crewed by a pilot and co-pilot, along with an asrtomech droid. (FOP, POM)

X-2B
this Imperial code described Terpfen while he was a organic implant research subject. (JASB)

X-3 Skid
this repulsorsled was used by mineral and ore prospectors to transport their findings to the nearest appraiser. (POT)

X-34
a personal-use SoroSuub landspeeder, Luke Skywalker owned one on Tatooine. It had a flat, oval-shaped hull, and was powered by a rear-mounted repuslorfield generator aided by three turbine engines. Two engines were mounted on each side, and one was mounted on the rear deck. The X-34 could transport a pilot and one passenger, although two droids could be tied down on the rear deck. The X-34 has a retractable duraplex windscreen, and was controlled by a steering wheel and foot pedals. (CCG, EGV)

X-7 Factory Station
a 500-meter long orbital station designed to allow manufacturing in space. They are fairly well-armed, with multiple turbolaser batteries and two warhead launchers. It is also well-shielded, with 200 SBD shields and a 100-RU hull. The station is constructed from a central spire topped with living quarters and operational labs. Attached to this central spire are 4 storage/laboratory modules. (TIE)

X-70
this is the designation of a computer system developed after the Battle of Endor. It wasn't very powerful or useful. (POT)

X-80
this is the designation of a SoroSuub high-definition video monitor. It was extremely large in size. (POT)

X-80 Power Cells
used by the Empire on specially-modified AT-ATs, X-80 power cells create laser blasts that are incredibly hot, incinerating anything they don't destroy outright. (DE2)

X'Cal
this mythological beast was found in Ukian legends. Its appearance signified the planet's destruction was at hand. (TTSB)

Xa Fel
1) a planet in the Kanchen sector, taken by Thrawn prior to the Battle of Bilbringi. It served as one of Kuat Drive Yards' hyperdrive manufacturing centers. The manufacturing facilities are the primary focus of the planet's economy, to the point that they used up all the planet's natural resources and left it badly polluted. The natives of the planet were also called Xa Fel, and were virtually enslaved by KDY. (TLC, IJ, TTSB)
2) this near-human race was native to the planet of the same name. A primitive species by galactic standards, the Xa Fel were farmers and hunters before Kuat Drive Yards took control of the planet. In almost no time, manufacturing complexes took over the landscape, and the Xa Fel were powerless to stop it. They were virtually enslaved by KDY as laborers, and a number of genetic mutations caused by the polluted environment drew them away from the mainline human stock. Because of this contamination, the average lifespan of the Xa Fel dropped from 120 years to just 50 years. When the New Republic took control of the planet shortly after the Battle of Endor, it ordered KDY to begin a massive clean-up effort that would allow the Xa Fel to return to their previous life. The attacks of Grand Admiral Thrawn halted this effort temporarily. (TTSB, AE)

Xachihik Broth
this is a thick stew made by Wookiees, and is composed of meat, herbs, and spices. (RD)

Xaczik
this Wookiee dialect is a tribal language spoken by the natives of the Wartaki Islands. It was used by the Wookiees who resisted Imperial subjugation of Kashyyyk as a code language. (RD)

Xad
this Falleen aristocrat left his homeworld to take a pilgrimage and find out more about the rest of the galaxy. He was decidedly unlike other Falleen males, with an innate curiosity about other lifeforms. Despite his soft-hearted nature, Xad was known as a strong warrior and cold-blooded predator who was loyal to his friends. Xad was approached by Dhas Vedij and offered a chance to serve on the crew of the Far Orbit, shortly after Vedij defected from Imperial service. (FOP)

Xagobah
tihs planet was located in the Mid Rim, just inside the border with the Outer Rim Territories. (IWE1)

Xakrea
a major city located on the planet Darkknell. (TFNR)

Xalis, N'tain
this man was an Alliance agent during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, and served as the leader of Sandwind Team. (AIR)

Xan
an alien race native to the planet Algara II, the Xan are hairless, think humanoids with bulbous heads and large eyes. They have pale skin which can range in color from green to yellow to pinks. They show no emotion, for their faces lack the muscle structure to do so. The Xan cannot tolerate cold temperatures. The average Xan lives to be 80 years old, and females reach sexual maturity shortly after their twentieth birthday. All Xan are births were single-offspring. Most Xan are worker drones, and virtually all aspects of Xan society were regulated by the human settlers of Algara II. Xan culture was virtually wiped out, and most modern Xan know almost nothing about their species' history. The Algarans went so far as to prohibit the Xan from leaving the planet, for fear that the Xan would spread the truth about their oppression at the hands of the human settlers. (PG2, AE)

Xana Exotic Arms
this weapons manufacturer created some of the galaxy's most exotic and unusual weapons, including the molecular stiletto. (ROE)

Xanas City
this city was under Imperial control during the Galactic Civil War, and the 656th Regiment was garrisoned there to ensure control. (HR)

Xanatos
this boy, with midnight blue eyes and jet black hair, was a native of the planet Telos, was born into wealth and ease. His father, Crion, was the richest man on the planet. However, Crion could not provide what Xanatos wanted most: to become a Jedi Knight. Xanatos was strong with the Force, strong enough to attract the attention of Qui-Gon Jinn. The Jedi Master came to Telos and requested that Xanatos return with him to Coruscant for training. Crion agreed, and Xanatos was transported across the galaxy. He trained under the best masters, and eventually Qui-Gon took the youth as his second Padawan learner. However, Xanatos was quick to flaunt his wealth and position while in the Jedi Temple, and constantly used his “power” to impress those “less fortunate” classmates. Xanatos was also quick to anger, and responded poorly when the jibes were directed at himself. All these traits Qui-Gon strove to overlook, since he felt that Xanatos was a great student and would someday grow into a great Jedi Knight. The Jedi Council wasn’t so sure, and continually pressed Qui-Gon to evaluate Xanatos’ progress. Shortly before Xanatos ready ready to take the tests which could elevate him to the status of Jedi Knight, Master Yoda sent them both on a mission to Telos. No specifics were given on the mission, and both assumed that the purpose would be revealed when they arrived. However, what they found was a planet engulfed in turmoil. Crion had been secretly making plans to attack a neighboring planet, and when he learned that his son had returned, he drew Xanatos into his plans. Together they plotted their attack whle keeping Qui-Gon in the dark. However, the Jedi Master discovered their schemes and threatened to expose them. His attempt to gain popular support against them backfired, igniting a civil war between the factions of government on Telos. In the battle, Qui-Gon was forced to kill Crion in a duel, slicing off the fingers on one hand before dispatching Crion. Xanatos, seeing his teacher kill his father, vowed to exact revenge on the Jedi. He took the ring from his father’s finger and touched to his cheek. The hot metal left a crescent-shaped scar, which Xanatos used as a reminder of Qui-Gon’s seeming treachery. Xanatos fled, and Qui-Gon told the Jedi Council he had been killed in the fighting. Years later, Xanatos reappeared on Bandomeer, having taken control of the leadership of Offworld Mining Company through deceit and conspiracy. He claimed to be all for bringing about a peace between Offworld and the Arcona Mineral Harvest Corporation, but he secretly hoped to eliminate Arcona and take Bandomeer’s ionite mines for himself. Again he was thwarted by Qui-Gon, this time with the help of Obi-Wan Kenobi. They defeated Xanatos’ plans, but were unable to capture the rogue. Xanatos escaped again, and fled into hiding. Xanatos returned to Telos, where he began planning to stripmine the planet in order to obtain a wealth of credits. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan were forced to tack him to Telos, and exposed his parts in the game of Katharsis and his manipulation of the UniFy corporation. Despite overwhelming support for Xanatos, the Jedi were able to expose his plans and defeat Xanatos in combat. Unwilling to be captured alive, Xanatos took his own life by jumping into the acidic pools of toxic waste he had created at the Sacred Pools of Telos. (DR, RF, IG1, DOR)

Xanatos Institute for Healing
one of the many organizations funded by the former Jedi Knight Xanatos, during his attempts to gain favor with the natives of Telos. Xanatos funded a great number of humnanitarian causes, in an effort to mask his plans to stripmine Telos and take the profits for himself. (DOR)

Xandil VII
this planet was the site of a vast hunting preserve during the height of the New Order. Many Imperial officers and governors traveled to hunt in the planet's equatorial reserves. (WBC)

Xappyh Sector
Jorus C'baoth was the Ambassador-at-Large for this sector during the Old Republic. (DFR)

Xarnin Medical Technologies
this corporation produced a variety of medical devices for use in immobilizing broken limbs. (FOP)

Xarran, Gaege
this man was a General in the Imperal armed forces, in command of the garrison on the planet Vryssa during the early years of the New Republic. He began his career as one of Emperor Palpatine's royal guards. He loved his brother, Rivo, with a deep devotion, despite the fact that Rivo was only good for drinking, gambling, and getting into trouble. When Rivo fled from Boba Fett - who had been contracted to recover Rivo for the theft of information from Jabba the Hutt - Gaege tried to protect him behind the defenses of his garrison. Unfortunately, Xarran's troops were no match for the bounty hunter. Fett eliminated AT-AT walkers and the garrison's death fence before reaching the main compound. Xarran, faced without an option, set the self-destruct sequence for the base. He then set out to kill Fett himself. Gaege nearly succeeded, catching Fett while the hunter was too intent on finding Rivo. However, Fett recovered from his carelessness and lured Gaege into a trap. At the last minute, Fett fired off his rocket pack, leaving Gaege alone and in close proximity to a bomb. The detonation killed Gaege instantly. (TFNR)

Xarran, Rivo
the mentally unstable brother of Gaege Xarran, Rivo was wanted by the Hutts for slicing into the computer records of Jabba the Hutt and stealing a great deal of sensitive information. He then sold it to one of Jabba's competitors for a vast sum of credits. Rivo claimed that he accidentally got into Jabba's records, and then greed overcame him. Rivo was best known for his ability to drink, gamble, and get into trouble. Jabba exclusively contracted Boba Fett to recover him from Gaege's garrison, but the bounty hunter was unable to capture him. Rivo extracted the microscopic tracers implanted in his body and led Fett on a chase. He then confronted Fett, after the bounty hunter had killed his brother Gaege, although from a distance using a portable holo-projector. He told Fett that Gaege had set the self-destruct for the garrison, and then calmly bargained for his life. Fett agreed to tell Jabba the Rivo had died in the explosion, in exchange for Fett allowing him to leave. Faced with death if he tried to catch Rivo, Fett agreed. Rivo then fled to Ladarra, hiding out for years until Boba Fett finally caught him years after the death of Jabba. Instead of killing Rivo - now known as the Storyteller to the children of New Hope Settlement - Fett flipped him a credit chip equal in value to the bounty on Rivo's head and left. (TFNR)

Xarrce Huwla
this Tunroth joined Rogue Squadron shortly before the Battle of Brentaal, although she immediately requested a transfer out of the squadron. She was concerned with the high mortality rate of its pilots, but Wedge Antilles was unable to move her immediately. A veteran of over twenty missions before she joined the Rogues, Xarrce put her skills to their best use while awaiting transfer. She flew several missions for the Rogues during the Battle of Brentaal, and made a number of friends within the squadron. After the battle was over and the Rogues had a chance to relax, Xarrce withdrew her request for transfer and remained with the Rogues. (XWES, HXW)

Xartun
one of the planets visted by the Night Caller shortly before it was captured by Wraith Squadron near Xobome 6. Despite the fact that Xartun was under the control of Imperial warlord Zsinj, Xartun applied for admission into the New Republic. Zsinj had been planning to set up a duplicate of the bio-engineering lab run by Binring Biomedical on Saffalore, but the intervention of Wraith Squadron put an end to that plan. Xartun had two suns. (WS, SOC)

Xarxis
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Xaverri
an accomplished illusionist, Xaverri often performed at the Chance Castle on Nar Shaddaa. It was here that she met Han Solo during his early smuggling days. They developed a romantic relationship, and shared a number of adventures outrunning the early Imperial police forces. Xaverri is a tall human female with curly black hair. Before becoming a magician, Xaverri was married and had a small family. She was quite happy in this life until the Empire killed her husband and children in an unexplained assault. Xaverri struck out on her own, always looking for a way to hurt the Empire. This got her onto several systems' wanted lists, so she kept moving and performing. Her reckless and adventuresome nature gave way to vengeance following the Battle of Endor, when she turned to hunting down the remaining Imperial officers and dispatching them. When she encountered the goings-on at Crseih Station, she sent coded messages to Han in an effort to get the New Republic to establish a presence at the station and eliminate the Imperial forces gathering there. (CS, THG)

Xaza IV
this planet was known for the exquisite, oil-burning chandeliers produced by its artisans. (SESB)

Xciter
this blaster component is also known as the gas conversion enabler. When the trigger of the blaster is pulled, it opens the Heter valve and releases a small amount of gas into the Xciter. The Xciter excites the molecules of gas and moves them into the Actuating Blaster Module. (CFG)

XC2-series Droid
Cybot Galactica's administrative droids. (GG9)

Xecr Nist
one of the reborn Emperor Palpatine's personal advisers, Nist was promoted to Military Executor of Operation Shadow Hand after Sedriss and Vill Goir were killed on Ossus. Palpatine granted him the powers of Dark Jedi as part of the promotion. (DE2)

Xelbree
this alien was one of the Outer Rim's best podracer pilots. During the famous Boonta Eve Classic which was won by nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker, Xelbree was killed when his pod exploded in a ball of flame. The explosion was the result of an illegal maneuver by Sebulba, who fired a small flame weapon at Xelbree's engine fuel cells. (TPM)

Xelric Draw
this widemouthed canyon, located between Mochot Steep and the Dune Sea, split the Mospic High Range as it meandered across the desert of Tatooine. It was a shallow canyon, and was easily navigable by landspeeder. (TPM)

Xemir, Katiz
this man was a settler on a remote colony world which was subjugated by the Empire. His family was summarily executed when he refused to move them offworld. He avoided death, and fled to the Outer Rim. There, he decided that one day he would join the Alliance, but until that time, he served as a pirate on any crew that would hire him. He was approached by Dhas Vedij and offered a chance to serve on the crew of the Far Orbit, after Vedij defected from Imperial service. (FOP)

Xemlorn
this xeno-biologist was the only known scientist to witness the danchaf actually using tools or language. In his work, Lesser-known Sentients, Volume 3, Xemlorn documented the abilities of the danchaf, which had only been hinted at by the Jenet. (COG)

Xend
a planet. (COG)

Xendor
a deity or an infamous leader. (RD)

Xendor's Minions
this mythical group was often referred to by Falan Iniro, as an exclamatory remark whenever he was surprised. (THG)

Xeno
Corran Horn's R2 unit, Whistler, used this nickname to rouse support for the resistance on Garqi. Xeno was known to the students of Garqi Ag University through the computer networks they connected to, and he was able to obtain a lot of information about their activities. Unfortunately, through Xeno, Horn discovered that many of the resistance's leaders were simply rich kids who wanted to fight the system. (TFE)

Xenoarcheaology
the study of vanished alien and human cultures, employing scientific analysis of their artifacts. (SCRE)

Xenoboric Acid
a strong acid that, when concentrated, is extremely powerful. It has the strange property of reacting with the bodily fluids of many races, causing a build-up of gas inside the body. If not counteracted, the reaction causes the victim to literally explode. (JTH)

Xenon Nnaksta
this infamous Vodran rejected the traditional roles of his people and left his homeworld to ply the oceans on the planet Delassin VI. He later became an operator for the Greel Wood Logging Coproration, as well as an operative working for the Alliance. Nnaksta was a member of the legendary Twilight Class of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School, and joined the Alliance shortly afterward. At the time of the Battle of Hoth, Nnaksta was working as a Pathfinder in Suolriep Sector. (SWAJ, GG12, AIR)

Xenopsychology
this course, offered at many universities and academies throughout the galaxy, explores the many ways in which the multitude of species in the galaxy think and behave. (XWES)

Xenosurvey & Measurements, Limited
this corporation produced a variety of planetary exploration and scouting probes during the early years of the New Order. (GG2)

Xenovet
this bio-engineering corporation was based near Munto, on the planet Commenor, and was primarily created to manufacture veterinary medicines for exotic species. The corporation catered to the needs of many Imperial leaders, who liked to keep exotic pets as status symbols. As the Empire crumbled in the wake of the Battle of Endor, Xenovet began to work on breeding programs which would restore endangered species to their native worlds. However, as the New Republic struggled to rebuild worlds for sentient species, Xenovet's activites took a back-seat and the corporation eventually went out of business. Later, the clone of Ysanne Isard used the abandoned facilities to house a group of Lusankya captives, in an effort to draw out Rogue Squadron. (IR)

Xephi Sep
a renowned kinesculpture artist. (RM)

Xern
one of Rei'kas' hired thugs, Xern was sent to intercept Talon Kaarde at the Ithor Loman on Dayark. The assault failed when H'sishi and Shada D'ukal managed to taken the thugs out. He later commanded Rei'kas' command ship during their assault on Exocron, which was thwarted by the combined fleet of the Exocron Combined Air-Space Fleet and the Aing-Tii monks. The Aing-Tii spared to prisoners, killing off Xern and Rei'kas' entire fleet. (VOF)

Xern, Rodik
this unrefined man controlled the Sabrin Ring's enterprises on the southern continent of Sabrix, during the early years of the New Republic. (GG11)

Xerrol
manufacturers of the Nightstinger sniper rifle. (SOP)

Xerrol's Place
a lively nightclub located on the Kuari Princess's Lido Deck. It was glamorous and upscale, and was the place to get a drink and get to know other passengers. Live music was always played at Xerrol's Place, and the bar was tended by an 11-armed alien. (RPG, RM)

Xerton 9
this planet is ruled by the Grand Magnus. (SWAJ)

Xerxes
a planet known for its weapons distributors. (RPG)

Xerxes
1) an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate which agreed to meet with the Nharwaaks in exchange for their new hyperdrive technology. (TIE)
2) this Imperial Carrack-class cruiser was part of the Imperial force dispatched to hound the Alliance as its ships massed near Sullust, just prior to the Battle of Endor. (XWA)

Xesh
this is the twenty-fourth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "x". (SWM)

Xesre
a Mugaari Lambda-class shuttle destroyed by the Empire shortly after the Battle of Hoth. (TIE)

Xexto
this is a race of gangly aliens native to the planet Troiken, which has six limbs sprouting from a thin body. Each limb ends in a hand which has four digits. Their tiny heads sit on a thin neck, and are dominated by large eyes designed to draw in great quanitities of light. They are known as weavers, using their incredible dexterity to create some of the galaxy's most elaborate tapestries. They are also known to be highly competitive, and can speak at length about almost any subject. (YJC1, IG1, SWK)

XG Bomb
this anti-gravity field bomb was manufactured by SoroSuub for the Empire. The XG could be deployed in open fields, and was triggered by the presense of a repulsor field. Troops and non-repulsor weapons can pass over it without mishap, but when a repulsorlift vehicle passes near, the detonator is triggered. (CFG)

Xg-1 Starwing
Cygnus Spaceworks Alpha-class assault gunboat, developed for use by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. It is a single-pilot craft. It was the Empire's attempt to combine onboard shields and a hyperdrive on a single-pilot starfighter. The craft has been rated at 90 MGLT. The five-winged craft boasts the following shipboard components:
- 2 Seinar Fleet Systems' M-s3 Concussion Missile Launchers (8 missiles each)
- 2 Taim & Bak KX5 Laser Cannons
- 2 Borstel NK-3 Ion Cannons
- Cygnus 4K7 Dual Line Ion Engines
- Iotek 9j Ion Power Cells & Ionization Reactor
- Seinar Fleet Systems' N-s8.6 NavCom Unit
- Miradyne RCS-6 Flight Avionics System
- Cygnus HD7 Hyperdrive Activation Unit
- Front/Rear Projecting Novaldex Shield Generators (rated at 100 SBD)
- Quadanium Steel Armored Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 50 RU)

(XW)

Xhaxin, Urias
this white-haired, white bearded pirate captain owned and operated the Nebulon-B frigate Free Lance. His band spent much of its time attacking Imperial supply ships, both during the Galactic Civil War and into the era of the New Republic. They were quite successful during the early years of the New Republic, as the Republic spent its time tracking down the remnants of the Empire and turning a blind eye to piracy. However, after the negotiated peace between the Imperial Remnant and the New Republic, Xhaxin found the pickings growing slimmer and slimmer. He was forced to being arranging for travel of supply ships himself, advising them to fly along spacelanes that his pirates regularly patrolled. While making trying to ambush a convoy near Bastion, the Free Lance encountered a Yuuzhan Vong warship and was nearly destroyed. Xhaxin and his crew made a blind jump into hyperspace to escape, and were forced to obtain aid from the Republic. In turn, Xhaxin relayed the information of the Yuuzhan Vong attack. His left hand was a cyberneic prosthesis, required to repair an old injury. He was known by the nickname of Grayclaw, a reference to the gray bantha-hide glove he used to cover the prosthesis. (DTO, PP)

Xi
a group of cargo ships pudiscovered by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. The starship Stimsenj'kat assisted in recovering their contents. (XW)

Xi Char
this quasi-religious sect is known for their highly-precise engineering. Their fanatical attenion to details allows them to create some of the most sophisticated equipment in the galaxy, including the Vulture Droid starfighter used by the Neimoidian Trade Feceration. They were the perfect pawns for the Federation, as the Xi Char order cares only for the details of their engineering, not its ultimate use. (X1)

Xi Charrian
any of the devout followers of the Xi Char order, these highly-precise aliens are capable of creating incredibly complex, yet fully functional pieces of engineering. They develop through the Xi Char order until their are ready to move on to the next plane, when they become employed by the Hoar Chall Engineering comglomerate. (X1)

Xi'Alpha
the most common sex of Xi'Dec, it is also known as the Stictex. The Xi'Alpha sex accounts for about six percent of the Xi'Dec population. They have eight legs, any two of which can act as legs while the other six operate as arms. They have a shiny carapace topped with lacy wings, and they have a dozen optic stalks protruding from their heads. These stalks are almost prehensile in form, and can move the attached eye in any direction. Their nose is formed from six slits above their mouth, which is framed by a fully-articulated pair of pincers. (GG4, JH)

Xi'Dec
an insectile species native to the planet Stic, they have evolved in the ever-changing climate of the planet by modifying their sexes for specific purposes. About 180 unique sexes have been noted in Xi'Dec culture by the Empire, although their history has shown that many more have evolved and died out from lack of need. All of the sexes have unique physical characteristics, depending on their function in society. Each Xi'Dec family is composed of single members from various sexes, and these families form the basis for Xi'Dec society. Families take great pride in the scope of their sexual content, and they go through considerable trouble in attracting rare sexes into the family. Their specialized sexes make certain kinds of Xi'Dec valuable off-world, as geologists, geneticists, and other scientific positions, although their overall technology is only moderately advanced. Tourism is often brisk to Stic, not for the planet's climate or beauty but because of the strange and unusual appearances of the various sexes of Xi'Dec. (GG4)

Xim the Despot
a legendary, pre-Old Republic tyrant, he grew to power by despoling entire planets, collecting and selling slaves, stranding entire populations in deep space, and collecting enough armaments to support his goals. Xim rulled for about 30 Standard Time Parts (years). His despicable rule became the basis for a number of legends following his defeat at the Third Battle of Vontor. He was in the process of transporting a huge shipment to Dellalt when he was killed at Vontor, and his shipment became the basis for most of the legends of the Queen of Ranroon, the ship he was using to transport military materials to Dellalt. When he death was announced, the crew of the Queen scuttled the mission in the mountains of Dellalt, leaving the vaults Xim and built empty and awaiting the arrival of a new despot to take Xim's place. Xim's insignia consisted of a bone-colored death's head with two sunbursts in its eyesockets. (HSE)

Xiochi
this notorious slavery ring was singlehandedly broken up by Odumin. (CSA)

Xishel
this self-exiled Falleen was the strongest member of the Nanthri Pirates during the last years of the New Order. He was searching for the lost treasure of Celis Mott, and once employed Marka Durn to locate the treasure. After Durn was able to locate it, Xishel had him executed to protect the secret. Durn, however, hid the location in the databanks of his starship's computer, and turned the ship over to a group of friends. Xishel cornered them, claiming to be working for the Falleen king Haxim, in an effort to recover a trove of treasures stolen from the planet Falleen. The spacers ignored Xishel's threats. (IA)

Xiunsrus
this planet is located in the Quence Sector. It was the base of operations for the Bloodsniffers swoop gang. (GG9)

Xiytiar*-class Transport
this 164.8-meter cargo ship was capable of moving 5,000 metric tons of cargo. They were manned by a crew of two, and could carry 12 additional passengers. This class of transport had a thin, cylindrical shape highlighted by the bulbous front cargo section and the smaller, rearward engine pod. Note that X-Wing: Iron Fist claims the forward section was blocky in shape. Many pilots considered them the least elegant of any starship every designed for use. (DESB, IF) the Falleen crimelord who taught Durga the Hutt, at one time he employed Ket Maliss as a bounty hunter. Xizor was the son of a local Falleen king, and grew up to power and riches. Some years before the Battle of Hoth, Darth Vader killed much of Xizor's family on Falleen, when a military bacterium got loose and started killing the Falleen. Rather than risk an outbreak, Vader had his starships raze an entire city and its environs, including nearly two hundred thousand Falleen. Xizor lost his parents, a brother and two sisters, and three uncles in the destruction. He held a grudge against Vader ever since, and used his Black Sun contacts to wipe out the Imperial records of the deaths. This assured Xizor that no one but he knew of Vader's hand in the deaths. This deletion was incomplete, for one of Vader's information specialists discovered it just before the Battle of Endor. Xizor built an opulent palace on Coruscant as a base from which he could command Black Sun. Xizor was not an exercise fanatic, but he kept his body in perfect condition through the use of implanted stim units. His natural Falleen ability to exude attractive pheromones allowed him to attract whichever females he wished, and he had many mistresses. When he tired of one, he paid her off and moved onto the next. He rarely left his Coruscant palace, and used its proximity to the Imperial Palace to eventually became a favored associated of Emperor Palpatine. When he did leave the planet, it was in the presence of a muted but deadly security detail. During much of his plotting with the Emperor, Xizor worked through the middleman Kud'ar Mub'at, using the assembler's services to help mask his own. It was Xizor, with the permission of Palpatine, who worked with Mub'at to bring about the destruction of the Bounty Hunters Guild. Xizor hoped to create a supply of freelance assassins who could work for the Empire. This plan failed when the Guild simply split into two warring factions. However, Xizor continued to scheme. Xizor's legal and criminal operations made him the third most-powerful being in the galaxy, behind Palpatine and Vader, but Xizor was not ready to remain there. At one time, he tried to wrest control of Kuat Drive Yards from Kuat of Kuat, but was unable to do so. He knew he could never hold Palpatine's seat, so he strove to usurp Vader's position. He was obliging to every Imperial demand, and made his legitimate shipping operations available to Palpatine. Xizor gained favor quickly, and was present on Coruscant when Palpatine first contacted Darth Vader about apprehending Luke Skywalker. Xizor realized that Vader and the Emperor wanted Luke alive, and so he set in motion a plan to kill Luke before Vader could bring him before the Emperor. This would discredit Vader in the Emperor's eyes, and move Xizor into position as the second most powerful being in the galaxy. His plan nearly succeeded, until he tried to use Leia Organa as bait to lure Luke to Coruscant. Luke and Lando Calrissian succeeded in rescuing Leia, but were intercepted by Xizor's fleet as they tried to jump into hyperspace. A firefight ensued, and caught the attention of Vader's fleet. Vader had realized Xizor's plans, and took the opportunity to eliminate Xizor. Vader's ships began firing on Xizor's ship, providing an escape route for Luke and Leia. When Xizor failed to recall his ships, Vader fired on Xizor'z skyhook, Falleen's Fist, destroying it and killing Xizor. (DS, CCG, SE, MA, SLS, HM)

Xizor

Xizor Transport Systems
this cargo hauling operation was one of Prince Xizor's many legal operations, and was prosperous enough to make him incredibly wealthy on its own. The fact that much of the capital raised to keep XTS operative came from Xizor's illegal operations was not on the public record. (SE)

Xo
this planet is the homeworld of the savage Zanzibar race. The planet is bathed in red light, and its surface is studded with rocky outcroppings and groves of spike-leaved, carnivorous plants. Much of its native wildlife is reptilian in form, and each species is just as predatory as the other. It is a forbidding world few othe species have ever visited. Kir Kanos traveled to Xo to rescue Mirith Sinn. Kanos and Sinn discovered a mountainous ruin deep in the jungle, which seemed to predate the Old Republic. Statues of human forms surrounded the ruins, indicating that the Zanzibar were not the planet's original inhabitants. (CE2)

Xob
Olag Greck's Gamorrean henchman on Hosk. (DRO)

Xobome 6
this uninhabited planet was the outermost world in a system located between Commenor and Doldrums. It had a warm atmosphere, and was surrounded by an asteroid ring. Wraith Squadron was forced to land here during a navigational training session, after several X-Wings in the squadron suffered complete electronic memory loss. (WS)

Xoemefel
this planet was the site of the New Republic Scout Service's initial Ops Post. (GG8)

XoLyyn

Xorao System
Anson Blazer and a team of Alliance agents was nearly killed in this system by Kiran Tatch. (AIR)

Xorth System
a planetary system subjugated by the Empire, its people were forced to produce agricultural goods for the Empire. The farmers there grew some of the galaxy's best farrberries. (TIE)

Xosha Grass
this short-lived but quick-growing plant thrives on the plains of the planet Naboo. It is harvested by the Gungans and placed in specialized decomposition vats to create unique gases used in their technologies. (GF)

XP-2000
this was to be Ikas-Adno's premier racing vehicle, designed to operate in swoop races as well as speederbike races. However, production plans were scrapped when tests revealed that the bike placed its rider under too many G-forces. This was due mainly to its incredible speed. The prototype was eventually sold to an anonymous bidder, who turned out ot be Blizz Pinnix. The XP-2000 was categorized as a speederbike, and measured four meters in length. It had a flight ceiling of about 50 meters, and was capable of attaining speeds in excess of 1,300 kilometers an hours. (WSV)

XP-291
this SoroSuub skimmer is a flat, bullet-shaped repulsorcraft. It is not very visually appealing. It measures 6.5 meters in length. (GG7)

XP-30
a older model of landspeeder. Luke Skywalker owned one as a youth on Tatooine. (ISU, SOL)

XP-35
a model of landcruiser built by SoroSuub. (SW, SWSB)

XP-37
an old-model landspeeder built by SoroSuub. (SWSB)

XP-38
newest SoroSuub Landspeeder, replacement for the XP-37. It is a 2-person craft with a 10 kilogram cargo capacity. It can fly up to 2 meters off the ground on its repulsorlifts, and travel at speeds near 320 kilometers an hour. It is equipped with an autopilot droid that appears to be an R2 unit, but this is only a decorative covering. SoroSuub promoted the XP-38 as giving the owner "the feel of flying a starfighter." (SW, SWSB, EGV)

XP-38A
this SoroSuub landspeeder took the basic XP-38 design and modified it for use as a utility vehicle. It retained the XP-38's comfortable appointments, and has an astromech-shaped autopilot. The XP-38A measured 7.8 meters in length. Tales from the Mos Eisley Cantina indicates that Luke Skywalker may have owned an XP-38A on Tatooine. (GG7, TME)

XQ2
this was a model of space station built for the Empire. (XWA)

XQ4
this Imperial Missile Boat production platform was destroyed by Imperial forces, in an attempt to protect the starfighter's secrets from the Alliance. (TIE)

XQ5 V
a group of TIE Defender manufacturing platforms controlled by Admiral Zaarin but recovered by the Empire prior to the Battle fo Endor. (TIE)

Xroi
designation of one of the Alliance's freighters, used during the Galactic Civil War. (XW)

XR-10
this was one of Ikas-Adno's speederbikes, and was known as the Shadowhawk. It had a maximum speed of 750 kilometers an hour, and a flight ceiling of 50 meters. (WSV)

XR-85
the Arakyd tank droid, it is an sentient attack vehicle. Designed by the remnants of the Empire from pirated pathway matrices stolen from the R7 astromech droid, the first droid was finalized during Thrawn's reign of terror against the New Republic. However, the droid was not fully realized until Umak Leth brought the idea before the reborn Emperor Palpatine. He worked with Arakyd to design the tank droid, which measured 32 meters in length, nearly 30 meters in height, and moved about on a pair of treads. Each tank was armed with a heavy particle cannon, two light turbolasers, four twin heavy repeating blasters, and a Golan Arms DF.9 weapons turret mounted on its back. It had a top speed of 70 kilometers per hour, and could travel equally well on land or in water up to fifteen meters deep. Although the XR-85 was highly successful, mass-production of the sentient droid brain was cost-prohibitive. (DE1, DESB, EGV)

XR12
this dome-shaped, personal use spacecraft was produced by Bendine during the Old Republic. (IWE1)

XS-800
a Corellian Engineering Corporation starship design, the XS-800 was a small-scale version of the CR90 corvette which was designed for civilian use. It retained the hammerhead configuration, but measured just 30.2 meters in length. The XS-800 required a pilot and co-pilot to coordinate its operation, and could transport up to eight passengers and 115 metric tons of cargo. In its basic configuration, the XS-800 was armed with a front-mounted double laser cannon. (SS)

XS3
this Imperial assassin droid was dispatched to execute Hanos Darr and the miners who learned of the location of the Royal Palace of Alderaan in the asteroid rubble of the planet, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. He and Zaz Hamiroz discovered that the palace's existence was a ruse to lure Leia Organa to Alderaan, where Darth Vader and a contingent of stormtroopers awaited her. They managed to board the Ithorian herdship Bazaar and get a message to Poliss, warning the Alliance of the deception. XS3 was snt to eliminate the miners before they could transmit their message. (GA)

XT-6
an old-model droid which was produced about 4000 PE, it had many functions, including servant and warrior. The mechanisms of the XT-6 were fairly advanced for their day, and were often salvaged for use as prosthetic replacements on humanoids. (TOJ)

XTS-673
this Xizor Transport Systems bulk cruiser was destroyed by the Azzameen family, during a raid in which the Azzameen's acquired a supply of warheads from Black Sun. (XWA)

Xuaquarres IV
this planet, located in the Xuaquarres System, was the site of an Imperial weapons storehouse similar to that found on Mount Tantiss. It was also the site of the sacred burial ground used by the Duinuogwuin dragons. When the burial grounds were discovered by Zagsm'ith, a nearby Star Dragon sensed his presence and went to investigate. The dragon sensed the Imperial presence as bad, and Zagsm'ith's presence as benign, and wiped out the Imperials. The dragon then sent Zagsm'ith and his crew away, wiping out their memory of Xuaquarres and the burial ground. (GMS)

Xucphra
one of the two major pro-human competitors in the bacta production market on the planet Thyferra, the Xucphra faction was pro-Imperial in all its dealings. Xucphra benefitted greatly from Emperor Palpatine's reign. Along with the Zaltin faction, Palpatine decreed that all bacta would be produced by them, and it would be produced for military use only. This eliminated smaller competitors while creating higher profits. Among the schemes they implemented was the use of satellite facilities to produce bacta, which was then shipped back to Thyferra via a transport company owned by Xucphra. It didn't remove the Ashern faction, but viewed them as terrorists. Their corporate cultures of Xucphra and Zaltin mirrored the culture of the people who make up its employees, but only from a human standpoint. Nearly three million Vratix were employed to create the bacta, while some 10,000 humans formed the management ranks. Erisi Dlarit was a member of the Xucphra family, and was working with Ysanne Isard during the Krytos crisis on Coruscant. Dlarit was a spy, supplying Isard information on the mission profiles of Rogue Squadron. When Isard left Coruscant, she took Dlarit with her. They fled to Thyferra, where Isard took control of the planet and its bacta production, throwing her support to the Xucphra faction and ousting the Zaltin workforce. (XWN, KT, BW)

Xucphra City
this is the site of Thyferra's primary stellar-class starport. Known as Zalxuc City during the New Order, it was renamed when Xucphra aligned with Ysanne Isard and took control of the production of bacta. (BW)

Xucphra Alazhi
this ship was among the first bacta transport ships intercetped by Rogue Squadron, in the time leading up to the Battle of Thyferra. Its captain refused to surrender, even after its two companions, the Xucphra Rose and Xucphra Meander, allowed Wedge Antilles to take control. The Alazhi tried to fire on the Meander as it surrendered, but the Rogues neutralized her weapons. After being guaranteed that the crews' families would be safe from Ysanne Isard, the Alazhi surrendered. However, the Corrupter suddenly emerged from hyperspace and destroyed the Alazhi, as well as killing Riv Shiel and almost taking Gavin Darklighter. (BW)

Xucphra Meander
this was the second bacta transport ship captured by Rogue Squadron, in the time leading up to the Battle of Thyferra. Its Captain followed the lead of Bors Kenlin aboard the Xucphra Rose and surrendered her ship as soon as Wedge Antilles explained that her ship would be taken to Coruscant, where the crew could hide or obtain passage. (BW)

Xucphra Rose
this was the first bacta transport ship captured by Rogue Squadron, in the time leading up to the Battle of Thyferra. It was captained by Bors Kenlin, who surrendered his ship as soon as Wedge Antilles guaranteed the safety of the crews' families. (BW)

Xufal D'uat
this Tiss'shar bounty hunter worked in the vicinity of Elrood from his ship, the Venom Sting. D'uat made extensive modifications to the Barloz-clas freighter, adding anti-intruder sensors and safeguards as well as a pair of turret-mounted quad-laser cannons. During one mission, D'uat captured an Allaince gunrunner who turned out to be an Imperial officer named Hamaz. D'uat agreed to let Hamaz go free, provided that he record a full confession as collateral against Hamaz coming after D'uat. However, three years after acquiring the ship, D'uat was caught and killed by a fellow hunter who had been hired by Hamaz himself. Hamaz was unable to recover the recording, and the Venom Sting was set adrift in space. (SS)

Xylen
a material that was used to store information, as well as to create android processors. Its uses have dwindled during the New Republic, having been replaced by more advanced materials. (COJ)

Xylines*-class Spacetug
this 42-meter starship was produced by Cuirilla-Raye, and was often referred to as a CRX Tug by spacers. It has a ray-shaped hull, with the forward section being rounded and the aft section tapering down to the engines. There are two main decks: the upper deck houses the cockpit, crew quarters, and communications stations; the lower deck contains engineering, cargo areas, and escpae pods. It required a crew of two to operate, and could transport up to eight passengers. Designed for orbital and short-range duties, the Xylines-class tug lacked a hyperdrive. (TA, PP)

Xyquine
1) this planet was the site of a botched New Republic mission in which Pash Cracken invented the Cracken Twist. It is located in the Corellian Sector. The New Republic fleet, under the command of the Mon Calamari Gingal, was ambushed by Imperial forces while on patrol there. (TLC, TTSB, REB)
2) a style of jewelry created on Xyquine. (DFR)

Xy-2 Aircoupe
this racing airspeeder was designed and manufactured by XySpeeder Corporation. (HR)

XySpeeder Corporation
this company designed and manufactured racing speeders and upgrade replacement parts. (HR)

Xzuhal
this Falleen was a noted scout who patrolled the region just outside the Unknown Regions during the Galactic Civil War. (SESB)

X0-X1
this prototype droid was originally created by Doctor Issan Len, and it resembled a large jellyfish. Its central body was a flat disk, and several steel tentacles hung from its body. The droid was the result of Doctor Len's experiments into creating a droid which could reprogram itself, and could eventually manage the huge, multi-faceted systems of space stations. After Doctor Len hired Doctor Vreen to help complete X0-X1's artificial intelligence routines, Vreen stole X0-X1 in an effort to sell its incredible technology to the Empire. Vreen reprogammed X0-X1 to take control of Cloud City, turning it into a floating weapons platform. However, X0-X1's functional stability was weakened by its new programming, and the droid suddenly started working toward its own goals. After Vreen installed X0-X1 in the central computer core of Cloud City, X0-X1 developed evolution droids to help turn the organic population of Cloud City into metal-based automata to do its bidding. X0-X1 then started planning the conquest of the known galaxy, suddenly seeing itself as the mastermind behind a more evolved form of life. X0-X1 quickly took control of Cloud City's droid population, then set to work distributing evolution droids and transforming the city's organic population. Before X0-X1 could complete its takeover, though, Vreen turned to a group of Alliance agents and soon confronted X0-X1. In a desparate act, Walex Blissex shut down all power to Cloud City, effectively turning X0-X1 off as well. This shut off power to Cloud City's huge B/1 repulsorlift engines, and the city began to fall. Luckily, the Alliance team was able to dismantle X0-X1 before the city fell into Bespin's core. (CCC)

X1-Lioness Droid
this was the brand name of Industrial Automaton's TDL nanny droid. (SWJ14, JASB)

X10
this Corporate Sector Authority groundcruiser was used to patrol dense areas and keep the peace. At 6 meters in length, it required a single pilot, and could carry six troops. The X10 was armed with a single heavy blaster cannon. (CSA)

X10-D
1) this is a model of droid computer brain often used to control starships. Bossk used one to control the Hound's Tooth. (EGV, CCG4)
2) this bronze and red colored droid was used by Bossk to perform menial labor aboard the Hound's Tooth. Roughly Trandoshan in size and shape, X10-D received orders and assignments from the central computer Bossk installed on his ship. It had retractable piston arms, a conical torso, and a roller tread for locomotion. (TBH)
3) this series of labor droids was designed and manufactured by the Trandoshan race, for use aboard their starships and at their starports. They were slightly taller than a normal Trandoshan, with a conical torso, powerful arms, and roller-treaded feet. (E1A4)

X14
this was the codename of the New Republic spy who kept an eye out for Sate Pestage on the planet Ciutric. He was part of the Republic's Commando Team One, serving under Kapp Dendo. (XWMR)

x2-100
this Sund laser cannon was popular among criminal and outlaw organizations, because it was cheap as well as powerful. The Alliance used them to arm their T-47 airspeeders, most notably those at the Echo Base on Hoth. (CCG3)

x41
a Corellian Engineering Corporation maneuvering thruster. (EGV)

X46-7 Ore Carrier
this outdated Damorian Manufacturing starship was designed to transport raw ore to refineries. It measured 175 meters in length, and required a crew of 20. It could transport up to 8 passengers and 5,000 metric tons of cargo. (OE)

X7T-PLX
this Imperial military regulation forbade the operation of military equipment by beings under the influence of intoxicants. Punishments for those discovered to be operating under the influence were documented in Sub-section 8.2.1355 of Volume 6 of The Imperial Military Guide to Correct Thought. (FC)

* Y *

Y'nybeth
this planet is a dark world, receiving little natural sunlight. It is the homeworld of the Plasmar race. (POT)

Y'Dar Princess
a moderately-priced cruise ship which takes passengers on tours of the Outer Rim Territories. (GG9)

Y'taa
a planet which petitioned the New Republic for membership during the Yevethan Great Purge. (BTS)

Y'Tobba
this massive Hutt vessel plied the spacelanes of the Si'Klaata Cluster during the Galactic Civil War. It was owned by the crimelord Tobba the Hutt, and served as Tobba's flagship. (SSR)

Y'Toub System
the planetary system which contains Nal Hutta and Nar Shaddaa. It is located in the center of Hutt space, that portion of the galaxy ruled by the Hutts. Six planets orbit the primary star. (GG4, THG)

Y'Trella
this planet, located in the Y'Trella system of the Outer Rim Territories, was the site of the destruction of Churhee's Riflemen. (GG9, SWJ12)

Y-Ball
this Ugly starfighter was developed from a TIE Fighter cockpit mounted to the engines of a Y-Wing. First developed on Corellia, these well-armed ships were quite slow to maneuver and were often poorly made. When Rogue Squadron tried to rescue members of Baron Soontir Fels' family from kidnappers, they shot down several squadrons of these Uglies. (XWM, HXW)

Y-TIE
this Ugly starfighter was formed from the fuselage of a Y-Wing bomber. The thrust pods were replaced with the hexagonal solar panels from a standard TIE Fighter. (IA)

Y-v-6
this was a type of sublight drive system used by Suwantek Systems on the TL-1800 transport. It was extremely reliable, requiring only yearly maintenance. (SS)

Y-Wing
the common name of the Koensayr BTL Longprobe Starfighter. Originally designed for long range reconnaissance, this J-type snub fighter has twin-propulsion systems behind a single cockpit. The BTL-A4 is a 16-meter-long, one-man fighter with space for an astromech droid. The BTL-S3 is a two-man fighter, also equipped with an astromech droid. They can make 80 MGLT at sublight speeds, and can maneuver at 1,000 kilometers per hour in an atmosphere.
It boasts the following shipboard systems:
- Gax Revival Life Support System
- R2 Astromech Unit for Navigation
- 2 ArMek SW4 Laser Cannons mounted on top
- Titanium Reinforced Alusteel Alloy Hull (rated at 40 RU)
- Thiodyne O-3R Ionization Reactor
- Koensayr R300-H Hyperdrive Motivation Unit
- Long Range Phased Tachyon Detection Array Model Number PA-9r
- Short Range Primary Threat Analysis Grid Number PG-7u
- 2 Disk Ventrals for maneuvering
- Cryogenic Power Cells
- Subpro NH-7 Avionics Control Package
- Fabritech ANs-5d Sensor Unit
- SI 5G7 Quickscan Vector Imaging Crosshairs
- 2 Koensayr R200 Ion Fission Engines
- 2 Taim and Bak KX5 Laser Cannons mounted on nose (early versions and many BTL-S3's used IX4 cannons)
- Novaldex Power Generator
- Chempat Shield Projector (rated at 75 SBD)
- 2 Exhaust Nacelles
- Fabritech ANc-2.7 Tracking Computer
- Arakyd Flex Tube Proton Torpedo Launchers (2 racks of 4 each)

(SW, SCRE, SWSB, IG1)

Y-4 Raptor
a transport ship built by Incom, the Y-4 was designed for military duty. It was introduced to the Empire shortly before Incom was nationalized, and so never gained much popularity due to its assumed "Rebel" creators. Following the Battle of Endor, the Imperial Warlord Zsinj began using these ships as part of his Raptors squadron, thus the nickname Raptor became added to the Y-4 designation. At just under thirty meters, the Y-4 is a small ship. Its design is simple: a thin, deep body with basic engines and weapons. The unique thing about the Y-4 is its S-Foil-controlled wings, which aid the ship when dropping off cargo. Though small, the wings greatly stabilize the transport during military missions. The primary role of the Y-4 is the ferrying of troops and supplies between starships. It can accommodate up to forty troops and four AT-ST scout walkers. These can be delivered to docking bays or ground sites by via three folding access ramps on the left side. The military version of the Y-4 comes with a pair of forward-mounted laser cannons and a recessed concussion missile launcher. A civilian version of the Y-4 was eventually produced, lacking the weaponry, armor plating, and enhanced engines of the military version. (CPL, EGV)

Y'tras
this was the most common race of Shatra encountered on their homeworld of Trascor, accounting for nearly 87 percent of the population. Unlike their cousins, the Hy'tras, the Y'tras embraced technology and the galactic community. The Y'tras were the primary race which took to the stars after the Shatra discovered spaceflight, and eventually found throughout the galaxy. (AE)

ya Sethes
this muscular, gray-haired Adumari woman was the General in command of Yedagon's armed forces, during the civil war against the nation of Cartann. (SOA)

Yaai
a Carrack-class cruiser used by the Alliance, it was destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Yaana
this Senali girl was the first-born child of King Meenon. She was sent to the planet Rutan on her seventh birthday, as part of a generations-old agreement to maintain peace between the two worlds. When Prince Leed of Rutan refused to return to his homeworld at the age of sixteen, King Frane of Rutan threatened to throw the ten-year-old girl into prison until Leed returned. When Leed refused, Frane placed Yaana in jail until the Jedi Knights, Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, tried to convinced Frane of Leed's desire to remain on Senali. The Jedi staged a daring rescue of Yaana, in order to ensure the girls safety. After negotiating a new peace between King Frane and Meenon, Drenna agreed to remain on Rutan so that Yaana could be with her family. (SP)

Yabbo
a slang term used by Lando Calrissian to refer to bounty hunters. (SE)

Yablari
the primary planet in the Yablari System, Yablari is the homeworld of the Anomid race. A severe, planetwide drought forced the Anomid to begin colonizing other worlds in the system. (GG12)

Yaddle
this female Jedi Master was a member of the same species as Yoda. She was just 477 years old at the time of the Battle of Naboo, and was a member of the Jedi Council. She was known on the Council for her patience, compassion, and wisdom, and was one of the few Jedi entrusted with the knowledge of Morichro. Yaddle was portrayed by Phil Eason in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1, OWS)

Yag'Dhul
homeworld of the Givin, this is a small, dense planet with three moons. The moons exert intense gravitational forces on the small planet because they orbit in the opposite direction from Yag'Dhul. Yag'Dhul itself has a retrograde rotation of 175 standard hours, while the moons orbit the planet once every 53 standard hours. Thus, a month on Yag'Dhul is actually 122 hours shorter than its day. This sets up huge tidal forces that continually shifts its oceans and atmosphere from one side of the planet ot the other. This results in the displacement of the atmosphere and water around the planet, creating pockets of hard vacuum in certain areas. Many of the planet's lifeforms have simply survived by traveling with the tides, while the Givin have adapted by growing flexible exoskeletons that protect them from vacuum. (TLC, GG4, BW)

Yaga Minor
the planet from which the Outbound Flight Project was launched, Yaga Minor was the sight of an Imperial Ubiqtorate base and shipyard following the Battle of Endor. According to Rebellion, Yaga Minor is located in Sesswenna Sector. The Ubiqtorate base is housed in an orbital space station which had a unique design. Extending outward from the main station were a pair of corridor tubes that connected to outrider computer stations. This design, according to Imperial documents, allowed civilians to have access to information stored at the base, while keeping them out of the military section of the station. Grand Moff Tarkin maintained an extensive database at Yaga Minor, and wanted to ensure that his private files were never found. The Imperial presence on Yaga Minor remained strong until the New Republic stormed the Ubiqtorate base in hopes of finding a copy of the Camaas Document. After the battle, in which the Republic's forces were thwarted until Talon Karrde showed up with a fleet of his own, the planet was returned to Republic control. (DFR, TLC, REB, SOP, VOF, TTSB)

Yagai
this is the native race of the planet Yaga Minor. They were considered a commodity by the Empire, which genetically altered groups of Yagai to be strong and to survive in harsh atmospheres. They were also quite intelligent, and were often used as starship mechanics. There are two distinct subspecies of Yagai: the intelligent stock, and the moronic drones. The drones are easily distinguishable by their purple skin and wild, yellow hair, and each Yagai had a pair of nine-fingered hands. All of the fingers on one hand were mutually opposable, giving the Yagai extremely variable dexterity. The intelligent Yagai regard the drones as non-citizens. (SOP, TTSB)

Yagaran Aleudrupe
this plant produces berries. When fertilized with the nutrient-rich slime exuded by the Morodin, these berries can be crushed and used as a catalyst in boosting blaster firepower. The enhanced berries rival spin-sealed tibanna gas in their ability to increase blaster firepower. The Krish Gamgalon herded Morodins into his aleudrope fields by hunting them on safaris. (SWAJ)

Yagaran Four
this group of bounty hunters plied the Outer Rim during the early years of the New Order. They employed the Krish known as Maniac as their chief mechanic. During the hunt for a quarry near Elin Roe, Manic tinkered with the drive systems of the gang's YT-1300 freighter to help increase its power and speed. The improvements resulted in disaster, as the hyperdrive exploded upon activation, killing the Yagaran Four. The resulting explosion spread a cloud of radioactive dust over the fifth moon of Elin Roe. (CRO)

Yagen, Bovo
this Imperial Captain defected from the planet Coruscant during the Galactic Civil War and fled to the Corellian Sector with his wife and four boys. They ended up on a jungle planet just off the Corellian Trade Route, where they eventually befriended the native humanoids and developed a decent-sized outpost. The natives accepted them into their soceity, and eventually named the planets and asteroid belt in their system after him and his family. (CTD)

Yagen, Framesk
one of Bovo Yagen's sons. (CTD)

Yagen, Heloan
this woman was Bovo Yagen's wife. (CTD)

Yagen, Marenn
one of Bovo Yagen's sons. (CTD)

Yagen, Tava
one of Bovo Yagen's sons. (CTD)

Yagen, Trellar
one of Bovo Yagen's sons. (CTD)

Yagmar
an Alliance shuttle group destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Yahrkar, Vohrkrewel
this man worked for Jorkatt the Render during the early years of the New Republic, buying and selling information with the Empire and the Republic. He was wanted in every system in the sector. He was a tall, thin man with bird-like features. He often used the alias of Krovas to perform his business. (POC)

Yak Face
the derogatory term for the Yarkora race. (ROTJ, CCG7)

Yaka
a race of almost-human cyborgs, altered centuries ago by their neighbors, the Arkanians, to be smarter via cyborg implants. (DE1)

Yakez
this Imperial-class Star Destroyer was the flagship of the New Republic's Fourth Battle Group's Task Force Apex. It was under the command of Farley Carson during the Black Fleet Crisis. During the Battle of N'zoth, the Yakez was caught between two Yevethan Aramadia-class thrustships. They combined their firepower at the ship's forward hull. When the bow shields collapses, the Yakez's forward weapons hold ignited. The ship was brooken in two by the explosion, and all hands were lost. (TT)

Yalandross
this weapons manufacturer specialized in a variety of vibrobladed daggers and knives, including a series of double-bladed weapons. (FOP)

Yald
this New Republic heavy cruiser was the flagship of the fleet assembled to attack the Yuuzhan Vong at Corellia. The plan was to have the Yald, under the command of Commodore Brand, lead a mixed fleet of Republic and Hapan ship to Corellia and attack the Vong before they could launch their own assault. The entire plan hinged on the Vong attacking Corellia, which turned out ot be a feint when they actually took Fondor. (JE)

Yalln
an industrial planet. (AIR)

Yammka
this Yuuzhan Vong warship served as Nas Choka's flagship, during the aliens' invasion of the galaxy. (JE)

Yammosk
this Yuuzhan Vong bio-creation was known among the elite warrior class as the war coordinator. The creature, with its bulbous head and array of tentacles, served to coordinate all activities of an invasion fleet toward a single goal. The creation of the first yammosk took many centuries, but in the end the creature proved to be a valuable asset. It could coordinate landing operations, starfighter battles, and even full-scale seiges. It had a virtually limitless supply of energy. The creature's only solid bodily structure was a single tooth, hidden with boneless flesh. The tooth was used to bury itself into a landing area, and was driven against the ground with incredible force. Eventually, it could break through even rock and ice, and the yammosk would then insinuate itself into the created crevasse and begin coordinating the invasion forces. Any enemy ships that got too close to the yammosk's position would be rendered inoperable by the intense energy the creature used to bind the Yuuzhan Vong forces together. The only drawback of the yammosk was that, if it were ever severely injured or destroyed, the Yuuzhan Vong war force would be without any guiding force and would collapse in chaos. A Yuuzhan Vong prefect or other ranking official could commune with the yammosk by gently touching the thick, blue vein that ran between its eyes. Once the yammosk was entrenched in its new position, it could spawn a second yammosk to assist in the establishment of the next Yuuzhan Vong base. The parent yammosk would form a mental link with the offspring, transferring all knowledge it would need to act as the next war coordinator. However, the immature yammosk still had to grow strong, and the Yuuzhan Vong discovered that they grew faster if they were in contact with living bodies. Thus, the Vong began capturing beings and forcing them to remain in the nutrient vats with the yammosk, giving it ready contact with life-energies. (VP, JE)

Yander
an Alliance YT-1300 that fled the Battle of Hoth, but was later captured in the Javin Sector. (TIE)

Yane'
this yong Naboo girl was one of Queen Amidala's handmaidens. Like the other handmaidens, Yane' was chosen by Captain Panaka for her strength, loyalty, and resemblance to Amidala. Yane and Sache were the youngest of Amidala's handmaidens, and were left behind when the Queen traveled to Coruscant to petition against the Trade Federation's blockade of Naboo. Yane was portrayed by Candice Orwell in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, JQA)

Yanglan, Denno
a native of the planet Cridark II, this Imperial Medical Supervisor was in charge of the interrogation of Orn Belden, during the Bakura Incident. Despite his professional attitude, Yanglan regularly sent a portion of his paycheck back to his family in order to help them survive. After the Battle of Bakura, Yanglan and his friend, Rafe Shahverdian defected to the New Republic, primarily because he was haunted by the memory of Belden's death. He found himself being prusued by Mayr Stillman, and hoped to return to Cridark II to protect his family. He boarded the Wayfaring Stranger and tried to get home, but the ship was ambushed by an Imperial patrol ship which had been in contact with Stillman. However, a team of Alliance agents on board the ship managed to capture Stillman, allowing Yanglan to return home. (TBSB)

Yanne
this man replaced Femon as Dolph's chief aide, during the failed Jedi's bid for power. Yanne was much older than Dolph, and was not afraid to speak his mind in his master's presence. This did not endear him to Dolph, who regretted his decision and began to prepare a successor to Yanne during the New Republic's attack on Almania. (TNR)

Yanov
Mal Biron paid a group of rag-tag smugglers 10,000 credits to steal this Imperial customs frigate, shortly before the Battle of Endor. It was armed with four laser cannons and a proton torpedo launcher. (SSR)

Yansan
this Ho'Din was an ecology student who hated the "inherent evils" of technology. Despite his hatred of technology, he enrolled at the Traval-Parcor System Institute of Technology to learn everything he could, then took his education and used it to disable starships. For an unknown reason, he focused his efforts on Alliance starships during the early years of the Galactic Civil War, causing the deaths of a multitude of personnel when their starships were destroyed. This earned Yansan a high position on the Alliance's most-wanted list. (AIR)

Yao
this sentient race is known for its longevity. (TT)

Yar
an Imperial container group destroyed near Kalla VII by Keyan Farlander. (XW)

Yarael Poof
this Quermian was a member of the Jedi Council during the last years of the Old Republic. He was known among the Council for his skills in projecting illusions. Poof was one of the Jedi Masters who voted for the training of Anakin Skywalker. Yarael Poof was portrayed by Michelle Taylor in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (SW1, IG1)

Yaralou
this planet is the third world in the Baralou System. It is an aquatic planet, saturated with water to the point where the land acts like a sponge. (PG1)

Yarar, Brimon
a General in Thrackan Sal-Solo's Human League. (SC)

Yarbolk Yemm
this Chadra-Fan was a reporter for the TriNebulon News group, during the early years of the New Republic. He was busy investigating Loronar Corporation's involvement in the Meridian Sector when Dzymand Seti Ashgad released the Death Seed plague. He started to put two and two together, and eventually discovered that Loronar was supplying the various pirates and rebels with brand-new weapons. He also discovered the connection between Loronar and the Needle attack ships. He claimed that his life had been threatened at least three times before he met C-3PO and R2-D2. It was Yemm who rescued R2-D2 and C-3PO from indentured employment at the Chug 'n' Chuck on Nim Drovis, and the droids returned the favor when the three escaped from Nim Drovis on the Zicreex. (POT)

Yard, The
this huge conglomeration of metal silos and other scraps served as the headquarters for Syndicate One, on the planet Valgauth. Created from the discarded hulks of other manufacgturing facilities, the Yard appears to be a recycled castle. Inside, the Yard contains all the workings of a weapons manufacturing plant. A huge docking bay allows new weapons to be transported out to the Syndicate's customers. The Yard is relatively undefended, relying on its thick armor plating the corrosive atmosphere of Valgauth to deter any attacks. (SWJ8)

Yarin
this is a race of slow-moving, tree-like creatures. (CCR)

Yarith Bespin Hotel
see Yerith Bespin Hotel. (RD)

Yarkora
this race of humanoids had long, sloping faces which were dominated by wide, flat noses. They had huge, expressive eyes and wisps of hair ringing their skulls. Because of their appearance, they were often referred to as Yak-faces. Little is known about their homeworld, and individual Yarkora tend to be very secretive. (CCG7)

Yarn'nli
a mantis-like alien race, the yarn'nli are extremely strong. They are meat-eaters. They are known as stealthy hunters, and have a good deal of technological aptitude. (CCG)

Yarna d'al' Gargan
the six-breasted female Askajian dancer in Jabba's palace, Yarna was known as one of the greatest dancers on the planet Askaj. She was captured on her homeworld, along with her husband Nautag and their four cubs, and forced into slavery by Jabba the Hutt. One of her cubs was killed during the capture. Nautag was fed to the rancor for protesting his enslavement, and the remaining three cubs were kept at Jabba's townhouse in order to ensure Yarna's complete acceptance of her slavery. Over time, she became one of Jabba's most favored dancers. Jabba ordered her to wear cosmetic "beauty lumps" on her face, to make her look more like his mother. When Jabba was killed at the Pit of Carkoon, Yarna was still in the palace. She met up with Doallyn, and the two of them escaped from Tessek and B'omarr monks and fled to Mos Eisley. There, she recovered her three cubs and fled Tatooine, with Doallyn, to Geran. There, they decided to become freelance traders, living aboard their starship. Yarna danced on the side, and even performed the Dance of the Seventy Violet Veils at the wedding of Han Solo and Leia Organa. Gargan was portrayed by Claire Davenport in Star Wars: Return of the Jedi. (WEG, ROTJ, TJP)

Yarnak
a creature whose flesh is often roasted and eaten. (TJP)

Yarnak Gang
this pirate gang operated during the early years of the New Order. (AIR)

Yarno
a roulette-like game of chance. (GMS)

Yarrku
this Barabel was the owner of the Night Raider. He was a pirate and smuggler by trade, but would take a passage in order to make an "honest" living. Yarrku would charge an exorbitant fee, and often deliver his passengers into slavery. He once tried to swindle Nyo out of 25,000 credits for transport to Nar Shaddaa, but Kinnin Vo-Shay prevented the young man from wasting his credits. The Herglic Doune then contracted Yarrku and his pirates to intercept Vo-Shay and Nyo. Vo-Shay tricked the Barabel into believing the shields on the Ashanda Ray were down, knowing that the redundant systems would kick in shortly, then sent a bomb out in a probe as "payment" for letting them go free. Yarrku opened fire once the probe was retrieved, only to have the bomb explode just as his ship's blasts bounced off the hull of the Ashanda Ray. Yarrku and his crew were killed in the explosion. (TFNR)

Yaronn
this planet was a backwater world covered almost entirely with ocean. One small continent supports a dense forest and very little other life. It's galactic coordinates are 2839.23.893.84. (GMS)

Yarrock
an addictive, hallucinogenic drug. (COJ)

Yarrv
this planet was a lush, tropical paradise covered with dense jungles, warm oceans, and wide sandy beaches. It was settled during the height of the Old Republic, several millennia before the Battle of Yavin. During the Galactic Civil War, an Alliance protocol droid which contained vital information on their activities in the sector and on the use of Hervack Starport on Steelious was lost on Yarrv and damaged. It reverted back to its former programming as a butler, and was inserted into the household of Baron Karin of Darpheos. Alliance agents had to infiltrate the Baron's house and recover the droid before Karin could decipher the information and use it against the Alliance and start a war with Steelious. The people of Yarrv were separated into twenty different castes, and each baron had a cross-section of these castes in his realm. The small number of barons controlled over ninety percent of the planet's wealth. All the barons were ruled by a planetary King. (GMS)

Yartiv
this red star was the sun of the planet Trinta, and was located in the Outer Rim. (DOE)

Yarua
this Wookiee served as the planet Kashyyyk's primary Senator to the Old Republic, during the years leading up to the Battle of Naboo. He despised the corruption of his fellow Senators, but found himself unable to stem the tides. (IG1)

Yasilor
this planet is located in Bajic Sector. (GG11)

Yastesh
this was a game played by Sullustan children. (SWJ14)

Yatir
a humanoid race native to the planet Absit, the Yatir were overrun by the Empire's Hell's Hammers, under the command of Colonel "Rancor" Johans. (ISB)

Yavaris
this New Republic Nebulon-B escort frigate originally saw duty as a troop carrier during the Galactic Civil War, and saw action at the Battle of Yavin. Later, it was used by Wedge during the assault on the Maw Installation. (COTF, JASB)

Yavin
primary planet in the Yavin system, it is marginally habitable gas planet with dozens of moons. Three of its moons are inhabitable. The planet measures some 192,478 kilometers in diameter, and the atmosphere which surrounds it has an average depth of 65,000 kilometers. The density of its core gives Yavin a gravity which is 2.74 times the standard of Coruscant, and helped the gas giant to attract so many moons. (SW, SWN, GG2)

Yavin
this new-model Mon Calamari cruiser was used by Wedge Antilles as his command ship during the assault on Almania. (TNR)

Yavin 4
an inhabitable moon of Yavin, it has a lush, tropical ecology which supports an abundance of life. It was home to the extinct Massassi race, which was subjugated by Exar Kun some 4,000 years before the Battle of Endor. The Massassi built huge temples in the jungles to focus the Dark Side energies Kun commanded. During the Great Sith War, Yavin 4 was were Kun made his final stand, draining the life energies of the Massassi to preserve his spirit despite the death of his flesh. The resulting clash of Force energies sparked huge forest fires that ravaged the jungles. When Ulic Qel-Droma returned several years after the war, the jungles were still barren of life. Over the millennia, however, life did return to the moon, and its jungles flourished. When the Alliance built their first main base, they chose Yavin 4 as an out-of-the-way location. Following the destruction of Alderaan and Princess Leia's rescue from the first Death Star, the Empire discovered the base's location and tried to destroy it. The Alliance's starfighters, led by Luke Skywalker, destroyed the station before it could fire on the moon. However, debris from the first Death Star rained down on Yavin 4 for months, touching off forest fires and laying waste to vast portions of the planet. The destruction was much less than that resulting from the Sith War, and much of the Alliance base remained intact. Mon Mothma and Leia Organa-Solo chose Yavin 4 as the site for Luke Skywalker's Jedi praxeum. The average day on Yavin 4 lasts 24 standard hours, and it circles Yavin three times every Coruscant standard year. The moon has four major land masses separated by six interconnected oceans. Note that I, Jedi indicates that Yavin 4 has its own moon. Yavin Four is described as the base of operations for the new government forming out of the Alliance, following the death of Emperor Palpatine at Endor, in The Glove of Darth Vader. The Lost City of the Jedi claims that Yavin 4 has four main continents, and the Lost City is found on the largest of them. The book also claims that, thousands of years before the Galactic Civil War, Yavin 4 was a barren, cold ball of rock. The ancient Jedi created the lush, tropical environment, with a 6-month dry/6-month wet seasonal cycle, by building a weather and climate control center in the Lost City. They Jedi then programmed the caretaker droids to maintain the weather programs until they are told not to. The moon was later burnt extensively by Trioculus, in an attempt to locate the Lost City of the Jedi. (SW, DLS, TSW, HTF, JS, GDV, LCJ, JASB, IJ, GG2)

Yavin 8
one of three inhabitable moons of Yavin, it has a rocky, mountainous terrain which is home to a number of species of grazers and the Melodie People. It measured 11,400 kilometers in diameter, and orbited Yavin at an average distance of 560,342 kilometers. It orbited Yavin once every 1.14 Coruscant years, and its day encompassed 21 standard hours. (GG2, LW)

Yavin 13
one of three inhabitable moons of Yavin, it was a desert moon which was home to the Gerbs and the Slith. (GG2)

Yavin's Caprice
this Gymsnor-class cargo ship was captured by Sol Mon and his pirates. The ship's Captain tried to reach the New Republic and warn them of the pirates, but Sol Mon captured her before she could complete the message. (CE2)

Yawari Cliffs
this location on the Forest Moon of Endor is one of the moon's most striking features. At the Cliffs, the primeval forests end and the land drops away in steep, rocky cliffs. The exposed sandstone is dotted with wind-tunneled caves and broad ledges. (ISU)

Yayax
a large, cat-like predator found on Endor's forest moon. (ECAR)

Yazbo
Imperial slang term for a Kitonak. (COJ)

Yccakic
this Bith played the Bottom Viol in Sprig Cheever's band. (SWJ10, TFE)

Ychna
this huge Yuuzhan Vong starship was developed to attack the orbital space stations used by the New Republic. Individual ychna were huge, snake-like constructs which wrapped themselves around a space station and literally crushed it. (BP)

Ychthytonian
this alien race has four arms. (TNR)

Ydde
this Ortolan and his family lived in the Outsider Citadels of the planet Cerea, shortly before the time of the Battle of Naboo. Ydde was a good friend of Ki-Adi-Mundi, and often helped the Cerean located individuals and places in the Citadels. He worked for a small shipping firm until he was caught up in the plans of Bron and Ephant Mon to import swoops and other technology to Cerea while exporting trace quantities of malium. When he realized that a Cerean elder – Dorr-Femi-Bonmi – was involved in their plans, Ydde tried to get out. After giving all the information he could to Ki about the scheme, Ydde was executed for his seeming deceit by Dorr. He was survived by his wife and five young children. (PTR)

Yeat
this omnivore was native to the planet Mutanda, and evolved over time into aggressive predators. They were compact in form, with four muscular legs supporting their bodies. Their heads were studded with steely horns, which they used to gore their prey. They are normally friendly, but will attack without warning. (PG1)

Yedagon
one of the larger nations on the planet Adumar, the Yedagonians joined the Halbegardians in opposing Cartann's perator, Pekaelic ke Teldan, and his bid to rule Adumar's world government. (SOA)

Yedagon City
this city is the capital of the Yedagon nation, on the planet Adumar, and the seat of the Yedagonian Confederacy. (SOA)

Yedagonian Confederacy
this was the name given to the governmental body that controlled the Adumari nation of Yedagon. The Confederacy was made up from leaders of various smaller governmental units, and was led by the perator of Yedagon. (SOA)

Yedan, Gade
this human was Gyr Neela's assistant at the Mrlsst Academy. He held Neela in great contempt, feeling that the Mrlssi was nothing more than bluster and had no ability. Yedan was involved in the plot to steal the plans for the Phantom Project's cloaking device, and the discrediting of Rogue Squadron. In this capacity, he reported directly to Loka Hask. However, Hask shot him shortly before Doctor Falken's lab was consumed by a wormhole created by the gravitic polarization beam. (XWPA, HXW)

Yeens, Gela
this bad-tempered smuggler often worked for Jabba the Hutt, helping the crimelord collect on old debts. He was highly regarded for his uncanny ability to anticipate his opponent's moves in battle. Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, Yeens was searching for Debnoli on Tatooine. (CCG9)

Yefowr
this planet was known as a haven for all kinds of criminals. (SWJ14)

Yellow Aces Squadron
this was the famed X-Wing squadron based on Tierfon during the early years of the Alliance. Among its alumni are Jek Porkins and Wes Janson. (MTS, WS)

Yellow Demon 100
one of Aratech's most popular speeder bikes, the Yellow Demon was designed as a personal use craft. It is a two-seated speeder bike, propelled by a large QuietLift 1400 propulsion system. (SWSB)

Yellow Flight
this group of A-Wings was stationed on the Yavin, and were under the command of Wedge Antilles during the assault on the planet Almania. (TNR)

Yellow Nine
the patrol squadron on duty when Lehesu, freed from the Imperial blockade of the StarCave, arrived at Hosrel XI to search out humans who would help his people. They were ordered to defend the planet, and fired on Lehesu, who couldn't believe that they weren't as nice as Lando Calrissian and Vuffi Raa. (LCS)

Yellow Nine 4
a patrolman on duty when Lehesu came to Hosrel XI, Yellow Nine 4 was killed in a crossfire of laser bolts aimed at Lehesu. (LCS)

Yellow Nine 7
a patrolman on duty when Lehesu came to Hosrel XI, Yellow Nine 7 was killed when he collided with Lehesu. (LCS)

Yellow Nine 9
a patrolman on duty when Lehesu came to Hosrel XI, Yellow Nine 9 was killed when he botched his return landing from investigating Lehesu's appearance. (LCS)

Yellow Rover
this New Republic shuttle was dispatched to meet Wraith Squadron and the Night Caller at Ession. The arrival of the Yellow Rover signalled the Wraiths that the Republic's assault fleet was about thrity minutes away. (WS)

Yellow Squadron
a group of Y-wings covering for Red Squadron during the Battle of Yavin. (SWN)

Yellow-blood Malaise
this disease if often fatal if contracted by a Wookiee. (TT)

Yellowblade
this was the Yuuzhan Vong's name for Ganner Rhysode. (DTR)

Yelnor
this individual was Daala’s second-in-command during her tenure as the President of the Independent Company of Settlers. (POT)

Yelona
this was the eighth month of the Tapani local calendar, which mapped almost directly to the Coruscant local calendar. (PGT)

Yelsain
this forest world is found in the Yelsain System of the Minos Cluster. It was a large planet, although it lacked heavy metals in its composition. This resulted in a lower than normal gravity despite its size. The tress of the forests are immense, with older specimens measuring 400 meters in height. The original settlers were forced to battle the creatures which lived in the trees, and their exploits became the subject of a number of holo-vids produced on nearby Adarlon. The trees consume carbon dioxide and produce oxygen at incredible rates, which means the oxygen content of its atmosphere is quite high. This leads to intense weather patterns, with nightly thunderstorms sweeping across the surface. Yelsain’s inhabitants are rural by galactic standards, although their colleges and universities are second to none. They live and work in sprawling cities built in the trees. The natives of the planet were fiercely loyal to the Old Republic, as a result of the Republic’s support of the settlement there. Many Jedi Knights claimed Yelsain as their home, and it was rumored that many Jedi hid there during Emperor Palpatine’s purge. The planet has a day which lasts 24 standard hours, and a year which lasts 249 local days. (GG6)

Yemm
one of the few non-humans to receive a SAGEducation grant to study in the Core, Yemm was a Devaronian who earned a degree in business administration and law at the Dansuun Priory on Rhinnal. After working at several corporations in the Core, he took a position working for Grand Moff Tarkin at the Maw Installation. He was in charge of legal counsel and documentation. He is killed when the prototype Death Star built at the Maw Installation is pulled into the nearby black holes and destroyed. (COTF, JASB)

Yen-2
located in the Verde System, this planetoid was the site of a mining colony which was forced to pay "protection money" to the crimelord Sprax during the Galactic Civil War. The site's owner, Neil Barani, decided not to pay when he discovered a vein of doonium in the mines, and offered it for sale to the Empire. Unfortunately, his actions forced Sprax to retaliate, and the Nalroni dispatched Limna Yith to force Barani to pay his dues. When Barani refused, Yith used her starship's weapons to severely damaged the outpost on Yen-2, rendering most of its life-support and power systems inoperable. Much more of the outpost was destroyed by Bel Att's mercenaries, after learning of their leader's death at the hands of Limna Yith. The colony was abandoned, by Neil Barani remained behind to hide from reprisals from either the Empire or Black Sun, or both. (SSR)

Yenntar
this was the Bosph name given to the unknown spirits who perform deeds which lead to unexplained phenomona in the physical universe. (SWJ13)

Yeomet
this vermin could be found on a variety of artificial worlds such as space stations and large starships, or even on urbanized planets. Measuring up to 60 centimeters in height, the quadripedal yeomets can consume almost any material, and they sought out food with incredible tenacity. Their ability to dig through almost anything makes them a pest and a nuisance, especially on space-going vessels. The yeomets are also known to carry a variety of diseases. They are timid when first encountered, but will attack if necessary. Their teeth are not sharp, but their jaws are incredibly strong and can inflict blunt trauma in addition to passing on whatever diseases they carried. They sleep in huge piles, with pregnant females always on the bottom to assist in labor and delivery. (COG)

Yerith Bespin Hotel
Cloud City's finest hotel, it is also one of the most expensive lodging places on the outpost. Much of the architecture is crystalline in formation, and pastel colors dominate the décor. The focal point of the hotel is a fifty-story atrium. (ISU, RD)

Yerk Music Cube
a portable form of entertainment. (TME)

Yerkys ne Dago
this well-muscled Twi'lek crimelord managed to avoid be enslaved as a youth by allying himself with a band of smugglers and pirates. This association got him off Ryloth, and gave him the chance to master his leadership skills as he soon took control of the band. He eventually found himself in the Minos Cluster, where he set up a base of operations on Shesharile 5. He quickly set up shop as a crimelord, offering good rates on loans to lure people into his web. Since his initial entry into the Minos Cluster, Yerkys ne Dago has risen to become one of the system, quickly taking control of the Minos Cluster's underworld. He has an annoying habit (to humans, anyway), of using his headtails to express his feelings. The left lekku flexes when he is angry and quivers when he's content, while he uses the right lekku to add flair to his speeches. He had his lekku was painted every day in a different pattern, and was always impeccably dressed. (GG6)

Yerlad
this Alliance agent was captured by the bounty hunter Malis shortly after the Battle of Yavin, but not before Yerlad took out five Imperial troopers. (GG10)

Yeshocq
this average year on this temperate world lasted thirteen standard months. (COG)

Yesgar
this pirate had his main base located on the planet Antared III. (GMH)

Yesti
this Imperial Navy Ensign served aboard the Lusankya, under the command of Joak Drysso, as a commincations officer. (BW)

Yetnis
this planet was under Imperial control during the height of the Galactic Civil War. (HAS)

Yetoom Na Uun
a planet located on the edge of the Senex Sector. (COJ)

Yettaw
this man served as the Imperial Governor of Misnor during the height of the New Order. (COG)

Yevetha
a humanoid alien race which resemble skeletons. Their facial structure is highly colored, with a white nasal ridge and scarlet cheek and chin ridges surrounding dark black eyes. The Yevetha have six clawed fingers on each hand, and a wicked dewclaw could be extended from their wrists. They are a very self-important race, and consider all other races to be vermin. The Yevetha have a hierarchical society, with the males being dominant. There are castes of males and females, and the higher classes alway dominate the lower. Lower-ranking Yevethan males must bear their necks in deferrence to their superiors. Yevetha are also extrememly quick to learn about new things, and are particularly adept at assimilating technology. They never eat in mixed company, and detest the smell and feel of other races. They have installed specialized bathing stations on their embassy ships, to wash away the scent of other races. The Yevetha originally came from the planet N'zoth, and had populated the nearest worlds when the Empire subjugated them and used the Koornacht Cluster as a base of operations for the Black Sword Command. Under the guidance of Nil Spaar, the Yevetha overthrew the Imperials following the Galactic Civil War, and created plans to purge the Koornacht - and eventually the galaxy - of non-Yevethans. This plan became known as the Great Purge, and was initiated about twelve years after their defeat of the Empire. (BTS, SOL)

Yevethan Protectorate
this is the name sometimes given to the worlds of the Duskhan League, and indicates their control by the Yevethan race. (CTD)

Yevethan Purge
another name for the Second Birth, or the Great Purge. (SOL)

Yey
an Alliance deepspace probe destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Yfra
a Hapan ambassador during the reign of Prince Isolder and Teneniel Djo, she had bright silver hair and eyes. She was part of a delegation to Coruscant during the time Tenel Ka was attending the Jedi Academy on Yavin 4, and was charged with personally observing the education of Tenel Ka by Ta'a Chume. She wsa secretly trying to overthrow the Hapan monarchy by murdering Tenel Ka. Yfra tried to detonate a bomb in the Fountain Palace, but the resulting explosion did not hurt anyone. Yfra then tried to kill Tenel Ka on the waters near Reef Fortress by steering the royal waveskimmer into a patch of carnivorous seaweed. In trying to guarantee success, Yfra also hired a group of Bartokk assassins to intercept the skimmer. Both attacks failed. (SA, L)

Yggyn Compromise
a negotiation technique employed when both sides of an argument cannot accept the other's proposals. The Yggyn compromise request that the two sides must agree to a third, unbiased alternative. (AS)

Ygziir
this planet, located in the Yuuzhan Vong galaxy, was destroyed in the ancient Cremlevian War by Yo'Gand. The Yuuzhan Vong warrior used a strong dovin basal to pull Ygziir's moon onto a collision course with Ygziir. The resulting collision destroyed the moon and left Ygziir a shattered hulk. (VP)

Yhifar
this gas giant was mined by the Gas Vortex station during the early years of the New Republic. (GG8)

Yhuli
this planet was the site of Kal-tan-shi's capture of Alliance Generals Tfin and Wuvnir. (AIR)

Yifaii
this Ssi-ruu was in charge of enteching the humans captured on G'rho, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. (TBSB)

Yin Vocta
this Anomid entrepreneur was the brains behind the formation and operation of Vector Technologies. A graduate of the Lunis-Medix Medical Academy on Dzass IV, he was known to be loyal only to himself, and dealt with both the Alliance and the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. He was also extremely rich and powerful, and was skilled at making a person feel at ease while negotiating with them, thereby getting them to drop their guard. Despite the criminal dealings of Vector Technologies, Yoin Vocta never resorted to bribery or violence to get his way. He earned the respect and loyalty of his employees by treating them fairly and paying them well, ensuring his own base of power. He spent a great deal of his early career on Tatooine, and developed a great love for the desert. He also developed a network of informants, and was known to keep regular tabs on Jabba the Hutt. (WSV)

Yinchorr
this planet was "cleansed" of its original inhabitants by the Empire, in order to make way for a training facility for Emperor Palpatine's elite Royal Imperial Guard. The primary world of the Yinchorri System, Yinchorr was abandoned after Carnor Jax destroyed the Royal Imperial Guard facility there, shortly after the death of Emperor Palpatine's clones at Byss. The original native race was a species of timid reptilians. (CE)

Yine, Murttoc
this human was a spy and information broker with notorious connections in the criminal underworld. He was generally considered the person to see if a being wanted to enter the employ of Jabba the Hutt. (CCG7)

Yinn-x34
this Aqualish fishing platform was located on the planet Ando, and was a city unto itself. (COG)

Yinne, Lofre
one of the many pilots hired by Executive Results. (SWJ8)

Yintal
this New Republic Navy Doctor attended to Plat Mallar, after the Grannan was brought to Coruscant from Polneye during the Yevethan Purge. A small, pensive man, Yintal nevertheless was a respected physician. He was later assigned to the New Republic base in New Nystao, on Wayland, and was on hand to interview the Yuuzhan Vong priestess Elan after she was captured near Exodo II. Yintal didn't believe her story of being a political dissident seeking asylum. Unfortunately for Doctor Yintal, he was killed when the Yuuzhan Vong planted an "assassin" on Wayland to make Elan's defection seem real. (SOL, HT)

Yirt
this is the twenty-fifth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "y". (SWM)

Yisagga
this colony world was visited by the Star Morning after it left Darepp, bound for Motexx. (SOL)

Yiszte
this Saurton nation had been at war with the Tresycht nation for years. When Messert Mines Corporation first purchased the rights to the Thergum Pits, they augmented the Tresycht forces and subjugated the Yiszte in a fierce but short battle. (PG1)

Yiuli Mountains
located on the planet Neftali, this mountain range separated the Yiulimar Fjords from Beija. (BSS)

Yiulimar Fjords
this vast area of icy gorges was located southwest of Beija, on the planet Neftali. Beija itself connected the fjords to the Jhunia snow plains. The icy floes were the site of a well-known swoopracing course which started in Cordel Cove and meandered over the ice. Ice fishing was also a popular sport on the Fjords. (BSS)

Yke hyon fhars oblivyn cnous oblivyn an Old Corellian phrase which translates to "he who fears nothing, knows nothing." (SWAJ)

Ylenic It'kla
this Caamasi was one of Bail Organa's chief advisors. A golden-furred humanoid with purple facial stripes, Ylenic was part of the Alderaanian delegation which travelled to Cloud City to meet with Bria Tharen. Ylenic was also a Jedi Knight, and was a friend of Nejaa Halcyon. Shortly after the Clone Wars, Ylenic and Nejaa were dispatched to stop Nikkos Tyris, who had stumbled upon ancient Sith lore. Although the Jedi succeeded in eliminating the Sith threat, Nejaa was mortally wounded. Ylenic then flew to Corellia to deliver his personal belongings to his widow, Scerra. (RD, IJ)

Ylesia
this planet was covered with shallow seas broken by several island chains and three continents. The northern continent was located near the north pole, while the other two were located along the equator. The weather patterns on Ylesia were marked by incredibly wild air currents found in all layers of the atmosphere, making it difficult to land a ship there. These patterns were due mainly to the planet's swift rotation, which results in a ten-hour day. Much of the land is hidden under shallow, brackish water, resulting in swampy areas which abound with a strange fungus that thrives on fresh blood. The Hutts and t'landa Til set up a huge glitterstim processing plant on this world, using the front of a religious colony to obtain slave labor. An orbiting space station was positioned over Colony One, and was the primary debarkation point for new pilgrims and outgoing slaves. Bria Tharen and her Alliance crew often attacked slave ships leaving the space station. The planet eventually supported nine of the "religious" colonies before the Hutts started thinking about populating another world. During the era of the New Republic and the Yuuzhan Vong invasion of the galaxy, Ylesia became a hotbed of activity and support for the Peace Brigade. (TPS, RD, BP)

Ylesian Dream
Han Solo stowed away aboard this automated barge when it was docked to the Trader's Luck. He managed to get the ship to Ylesia with the help of its R2-series pilot. Later, after being hired by Teroenza as a pilot, he used the Dream to train and perform routine transport runs. Han tried to train Muuurgh as a gunner, but had relatively poor luck. The Dream was hyperdrive-equipped. They were flying a shipment of glitterstim in it when they were attacked by pirates and forced to stop over on Alderaan. There, Han obtained medical help help for Muuurgh while attempting to sell some of the spice. Later, when Han and Bria tried to escape from Ylesia, Jalus Nebl flew the Dream in between the Helot's Shackle and broke a tractor beam lock, allowing them to escape. Nebl took the Dream and fled into hyperspace. He later joined the Alliance, and renamed the ship Dream of Freedom. (TPS, RD)

Ylix
this backwater planet was the birthplace of Gallandro. For many centuries, the inhabitants of Ylix were embroiled in a civil war with their planetary neighbors from Goelitz. The actual cause of the feud has been forgotten, but the bitterness remained for many generations. The Imperial Moff of the sector promised to peacefully resolve the wars, but he was soon worried about other matters and the battles continued to rage. Eventually, Ylix forces - with Gallandro as one of their leaders - defeated the forces from Goelitz, ending the dispute in bloody fashion. (CSA, EGC)

Yllek, Cas Ennyl
this female human was one of House Benelex's primary representatives. When Boba Fett, masquerading as Sava Brec Madak, attempted to hire Jodo Kast, he met with Yllek to discuss terms and conditions. (TOD)

Yllotat System
the Alliance rescued prisoners on the Dreadnaught Dargon in this system, prior to the Battle of Endor. (TIE)

Yminis Sector
this area of the galaxyhas 87 habitable worlds, many of which have been colonized by the Forshul race. (SOP)

Yn
this planet was a member world of the New Republic. (TNR)

Ynara Yinnivan
this New Republic astrographer was a member of the Astrographic Survey Institute, and was asked to investigate the planet Thanta Zilbra during the Sacorrian Triad's attempt to destroy its sun. (CTD)

Ynos
this native of the planet Anobis was the leader of his farming village. When Han Solo and Anja Gallandro arrived on the planet, it was Ynos who first greeted them. He also reluctantly agreed to meet with Elis, based on the ingrained hatred he witnessed in Anja. With Elis, they worked out the beginnings of a cease-fire to the civil war they had been fighting. (ROM)

Ynr, Rhysati
a native to Bespin, she was a member of X-Wing Rogue Squadron. (XWN)

Yo'Gand
a legendary Yuuzhan Vong warrior, he was credited with turning the tide for the Yuuzhan Vong during the Cremlevian War. Using a bold move that became known as Yo'Gand's Core, he united the various Yuuzhan Vong tribes and employed a dovin basal to destroy Ygziir, the home planet of their enemies. (VP)

Yo'Gand's Core
this tactic was developed by the legendary Yuuzhan Vong warrior Yo'Gand during the Cremlevian War. At the "core" of his plan was the use of a strong dovin basal to drag their enemy's home planet, Ygziir, into a collision with its moon. Nom Anor and Da'Gara later used the tactic in an effort to destroy the planet Sernpidal, during the initial stages of their invasion of the known galaxy. (VP)

Yo'uqiol
this Rodian word, pronounced "YO-ooo-qui-ol," literally translated to "the hand of death." (COG)

Yo'uqiol
this carnivorous, mobile plant was discovered by the Rodians on their colony world of Ooo-sek. The name literally means "the hand of death," and was given because of its abundance and resiliency. The Empire even collected specimens for its own experiments. The yo'uqiol appeared to be a hybrid of plant and animal species, with roots that extend below the soil to collect water and tentacles which it ued to capture its prey. The average yo'uqiol measured 30 centimeters across, although Rodian hunters have told stories of specimens which measured five meters across, and resembled a flat flower. Surrounding the central body was a flat membrane tipped with tentacles, while the body contained a mouth and stinging spines. They fed on virtually anything that stumbled upon them, and this variety of diet made them healthy and adaptable. (COG)

Yob, Evenyl
this Naboo pilot was a member of Echo Flight, when space station TFP-9 was attacked by the Velumina. Evenyl's fighter was shot down during the attack, but was later recovered. Evenyl was promoted to a position in Bravo Squadron shortly before the Battle of Naboo. (SFT)

Yobana
this is a species of blue-skinned humanoids which strongly resemble Twi'leks. (IS1)

Yobstrimp
this carnivorous crustacean is native to the shallow waters of Naboo. These clawed creatures are also considered a delicacy by the Gungans. (GF)

Yoda
this 860-year-old Jedi Master was regarded as one of the primary leaders of the Jedi Council, in the decades leading up the to fall of the Old Republic. Along with Mace Windu and Ki-Adi-Mundi, Yoda was a strong voice in the Council's decisions. Like many other Jedi Masters, Yoda continued to teach while sitting on the Council, and was responsible for the early training of Obi-Wan Kenobi. However, when Qui-Gin Jinn brought nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker before the Council, Yoda was one of the few who voted not to train the boy. He was overruled, and Obi-Wan Kenobi was appointed the boy's master. Several years later, as Senator Palpatine named himself Emperor and the Jedi were hunted down and destroyed, Yoda fled to Dagobah in hopes of eluding the Jedi purge by hiding among the intense life-force of the creatures there. He remained on Dagobah, and was eventually caught up in the Dark Jedi rebellion that engulfed Bpfassh as he was forced to destroy their leader when they fled to Dagobah. A period of relative tranquility passed for Yoda, until the spirit of Obi-Wan Kenobi directed Luke Skywalker to seek out the old Jedi Master. When Luke discovers him on Dagobah, following the Battle of Hoth, Yoda is almost 900 years old, and appears as a dimuntive elf-like creature with greenish-blue skin, wide eyes, and large pointed ears. He speaks in an archaic form of Basic. He claims to have watched over Luke's development for as long as Luke has been alive, not knowing if he would be able to train Luke or not, for he and Obi-Wan Kenobi realized that Luke might be the last of the Jedi Knights. Yoda took part in the events on Dathomir, along with the Jedi Masters Gra'aton and Vulatan, and foretold that the last of the Jedi Knights would someday come and defeat the Nightsisters. This would mark the end of the world as the witches knew it, and reshape their lives in profound ways. The Jedi Knight Yoda saw as Luke Skywalker. Yoda also foretold that Luke would be able to reveal the secret of the hundreds of reader disks that the Jedi kept with the witches of the Light Side (passed down to Rell), and that he would share them with the Dathomir witches. Yoda was portrayed by Frank Oz and Kathryn Mullen in Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back and Star Wars: Return of the Jedi. Yoda was also portrayed by John Lithgow for the The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio. Yoda was again voiced by Frank Oz, and puppeted by Kathy Smee, Don Austen, and David Greenaway in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace. (ESB, ESBR, ROTJ, CPL, SW1, RF)

Yoly, Cof
this was an alias maintained by Major Showolter, to be used whenever he needed to talk to Doctor Saychel on Nim Drovis. (HT)

Yomin Carr
one of the Yuuzhan Vong's advance scouts, Yomin Carr posed as a human being in order to infiltrate the ExGal Society's base on Belkadan. From there, he could assist in blinding the galaxy to initial phases of the Yuuzhan Vong invasion. He hated the weak humans he worked with, but held a grudging respect for Danni Quee. As Nom Anor's plans reached their culmination, Yomin Carr maintained communication with Prefect Da'Gara and coordinated the landing of the Yuuzhan Vong's first warship on Helska. From there, he eliminated ExGal-4, and was a first-hand witness to the initial stages of the Praetorite Vong's invasion. However, in his zeal to ensure the New Republic was unaware of the Yuuzhan Vong presence, he did not anticipate that Luke Skywalker and Mara Jade would travel to Belkadan and investigate the planet's destruction. Luke and Mara were forced into a desparate battle with Carr, who used every organic weapon in his arsenal against them. Unfortunately for Yomin Carr, he was unable to take control of Mara's lightsaber during a brief melee. He tried to swing his amphistaff down and crush her head, but she managed to get the blade of the lightsaber up in time to catch him in the chest. Carr's momentum carried him further onto the blade,which pierced his armor and burned his heart. (VP)

Yomm, Auren
a fiftenn-year-old human girl from the Umboo colony of Roon, Auren was an excellent athlete. She and her droid, Bix, won many competitions in the Colonial Games. (DCAR)

Yomm, Bola
Auren Yomm's mother. (DCAR)

Yomm, Nilz
Auren Yomm's father, he was a respected physician and trader in the Roon System. (DCAR)

Yonka, Sair
this Imperial Captain commanded the Avarice during the years after the Battle of Endor. Prior to serving under Ysanne Isard, he spent most of his career in the Outer Rim chasing pirates and protecting convoys. He was known as a smart and calculating officer, who worked to maximize his chances for survival. A native of Commenor, he grew up and fell in love with a woman named Aellyn, who later married Moff Riit Jandi after Yonka left for the Imperial Academy. When they met each other years later on Elshandruu Pica, they started an illicit affair with the help of Kina Margath. When word of this affair reached the ears of Wedge Antilles and Rogue Squadron, through the droid Poe, they used it to convince Yonka to renounce his Imperial commission and join the New Republic. He accepted Wedge's proposal, and brought the Avarice and most of its crew with him. Those crewmen who wished to remain in Imperial service hijacked a Lambda-class shuttle and forced Yonka's forces to destroy them. The Star Destroyer was renamed the Freedom and was the first ship to fire on the Lusankya during the Battle of Thyferra. However, the Freedom also took heavy damage, and was disabled and adrift at the end of the fighting. Both Yonka and the Freedom survived, and Yonka became a member of the New Republic's commanders in chief during the struggle against Grand Admiral Thrawn. (BW, IR)

Yonna, Graf
this man, a native of the planet Bront, was driven insane when the Empire subjugated the planet and killed his family. He partly assumed the identity of Parsol d'Ahndole, keeping shreds of his original personality mixed in. He also allied himself with the Alliance, although he was something of a loose cannon and messed up more missions than he helped. (CRO)

Yonsen, Swifty
this man was known as one of the more fearsome hired guns of the Inner Rim. He earned his reputation through a series of misadventures, not from any real talent. However, his reptuation actually saved him from several firefights. He was approached by Dhas Vedij and offered a chance to serve on the crew of the Far Orbit, afted Vedij defected from Imperial service. (FOP)

Yootak
this vicious creature was native to the forest moon of Endor, and often attacked Ewok warriors. They were distinguished by their green fur, long forearms with hooked claws, and their tooth-filled snouts. (SWJ1)

Yorik Coral
this form of coral is found in the galaxy inhabited by the Yuuzhan Vong. They bio-engineered the coral to grow to massive sizes, and then formed it into living spaceships they called worldships. The worldships themselves resembled nothing more than asteroids when observed on standard scanners and sensors, allowing the Yuuzhan Vong to enter an area virtually undetected. When the Praetorite Vong invaded the galaxy, they had planned to use the dead world of Belkadan as a yorik coral breeding ground. The New Republic discovered that the Yuuzhan Vong captured slaves and used them to breed the coral. Small buds of coral were carried to captive slaves by creepers, which inserted the young buds into the slave's flesh. The coral kept the slave from revolting while it drew nourishment from the bodily fluids and energy of the host. It was later learned that the yorik coral used to create the Yuuzhan Vong starships aged like most other biological organism. By the time some of them reached the known galaxy, their interior components had begun to simply die out. Bioluminescent polyps stopped providing light, and organisms created to regulate temperature were unable to continue. (VP, DTO, HT)

Yorik-trema
this was a form of landing craft developed by the Yuuzhan Vong. Formed of yorik coral, these craft were designed to transport forces to the surface of a planet. They were unarmed, and had to be escorted by coralskippers during their descent. Yorik-trema were shaped to have a number of sensitive eye, which were trained to maintain contact with the coralskipper escort during the descent. These craft were equipped with ablative shields formed from living scales, which would be burned off during descent but later regenerated like skin tissue. The ground forces transported within the yorik-trema were discharged to the surface of a planet via modified molleung worms. (BP)

Yorl Niba
this Twi'leki entertainer often performed at the Starlight Theater, on Abregado-Rae, during the height of the New Order. He absolutely hated Brinaloy N'Vaari, because her impersonation of a Twi'leki female drew bigger crowds than any of his own shows. (ND)

Yorlin
this Imperial stormtrooper was stationed aboard the Iron Fist during Warlord Zsinj's campaigns against the New Republic. When the Warlord hosted the senior members of the Hawk-bat Independent Space Force, Yorlin tried to rough up Lieutenant Dissek. Dissek, who was actually Kell Tainer, retaliated to the rough treatment, giving Yorlin a concussion and knocking out a few of his teeth. (IF)

Yorr
this Imperial Captain was a former member of the Emperor's Demonstration Team, who later served as a test pilot on various TIE prototypes. He served as Jendon's wingman during several missions before co-piloting Darth Vader's personal shuttle prior to the Battle of Endor. (CCG11)

Yosger
this being was a well-known smuggling baron who maintained a base on the moon of Carz. During the Galactic Civil War, he branched out into the profitable business of weapons running and armament supply. Yosger wasn't especially intelligent or reputable, and many of his customers were angry when he couldn't meet their orders. He was eventually neutralized by Nilya Fek'ra and a group of freelance mercenaries. (GMH)

Young, The
made up of the teenagers from the societies of the Melida and the Daan, The Young were considered a minor nuisance to their elders. However, The Young maintained no affiliation to either faction, instead remaining neutral despite their individual heritages. Many of them were orphaned when their parents and family were killed in one of the battles for control of Zehava. About a decade before the Battle of Naboo, The Young was formed by the disenchanted children who witnessed their parents fighting endlessly over a few square meters of ground, spending credits on military supplies while children went hungry and fell sick due to lack of medical supplies. The Young hated the way that their parents used the children as free labor in munitions factories. The Young recognized that the war was destroying viable farmland and continuing a hatred between the Melida and the Daan that was based on petty incidents in the distant past. They hated the fact that their parents revered the dead more than they cared for their own children, and stayed away from the Halls of Evidence at all times. Members of The Young rescued Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi from the Melida, in an effort to stop the violence and prevent the Old Republic from being blackmailed into taking sides the civil war. However, The Young were no less militant that their parents, and were capable of causing great damage on their own. With the help of Obi-Wan, The Young were able to convince the Middle Generation to support their cause, and eventually defeated the elders of the Daan and Melida. Their leadership was quickly shattered, though, as Nield ignored the basic needs of his people and was overruled one several counts by Cerasi and Obi-Wan. (DOD, UP)

Young Security Squad
after The Young defeated the elders of the Daan and Melida, they began taking steps to bring a new government to the city of Zehava and the planet Melida/Daan. Led by Nield, the new government established the Young Security Squad to ensure no further uprising occurred. The original leader of the squad was the thirteen-year-old Obi-Wan Kenobi, who had renounced his Jedi training to remain on Melida/Daan with The Young. (UP)

Yount
this Imperial Governor was in control of the garrison on Wakeelmui during the last years of the New Order. (CCG10)

Youst
a Dimok platform captured by the Ripoblus forces during the Sepan Civil War. It was a weapons station that was disguised as a science outpost. It was "rescued" by Imperial intervention. (TIE)

Yoxgit
this male Ugnaught fled Cloud City after the Empire garrisonned the outpost. He hoped to return there someday, but found work supplying various weapons for Hermi Odle and Jabba the Hutt. (CCG7)

Yrak Pootzck
this is the term used by the True Ubese to describe those members of the Ubese culture who fled the destruction of their system and migrated to Ubertica. The phrase implies the cowardly ways and impure parentage of the Ubertica Ubese population. (SESB)

Yrashu
this Force-sensitive race of green primates is native to the planet Baskarn. The Yrashu live in harmony with their environment, and create ceremonial maces from the roots of the Hmumfmumf tree. They eat the Mmhmm butterflies as a source of food. Those Yrashu which were tainted by the Dark Side of the Force were known collectively as The Low. They were tolerated by society, but looked down upon as delinquents and beings of low character. (SWAJ, AE)

Yrrcanna
this black-furred Wookiee male was a former Imperial slave who had been freed shortly before the onset of the Galactic Civil War. An aggressive fighter, Yrrcanna found work at the Dool Arena on Reuss VIII, where he became a crowd favorite. (WSV)

Yrrna System
this Outer Rim system was the site of an Imperial cargo staging area infiltrated by Ali Tarrak. (TIE)

Yrros, Naem
this Imperial General was in charge of the subjugation of the city of Argona, on Rhamalai, during the height of the New Order. Yrros was educated at the Imperial Academy on Raithal, and took top honors in his class. His unswerving loyalty and dedication to the New Order earned him several swift promotions, but few friends. He was killed when the astromech droid R2-4B was confiscated and placed into the Imperial droid pool. R2-4B had been programmed to self-destruct if it was ever captured by the Empire, and the droid performed its duty flawlessly. (SWJ13)

Ysalamiri
slender, grey-furred creatures that create null-bubbles in The Force, the ysalamiri are native to the planet Myrkr. The bubble can be up to 10 meters in diameter. They attach their bodies to tree limbs and obtain nourishment from the wood, and will soon die if separated from their perch. They can reach lengths up to 50 centimeters, and have fur-covered scales. (HTTE)

Ysanna
a tribe of Force-sensitives living on modern-day Ossus, the Ysanna all seem to be able to harness some amount of the Froce for their own use. These warrior-priests use The Force to guide their out-dated projectile weapons, helping them obtain food and defend themselves. Their history shows that they arrived on Ossus just following the Great Sith War, and survived the devastation wrought on the planet during the Clone Wars. The Ysanna seem to have a bond with the tree-like, ancient Jedi Master Ood Bnar, who also survived the planet's many trials and remains alive when Luke and Kam discover the Ysanna youths Jem and Rayf. (DE2)

YT-1000
an outdated Corellian Engineering Corporation starship design. (LAA)

YT-1150
one of the earliest of the YT-series starships from Corellian Engineering Corporation, the YT-1150 resembled a long, oval loaf of bread which had been cut into three pieces lengthwise and layed out. (RP)

YT-1200
this freighter was designed by the Corellian Engineering Corporation, but was eventually phased out in favor of the YT-1300. The designs for the YT-1200 were later sold to Noca-Drive, which modified them and produced the #3-Z light freighter. (SS)

YT-1210
this Corellian Engineering Corporation light freighter was a predecessor to the YT-1300. The YT-1210 has the familiar saucer-shaped hull, but lacked the forward mandibles of the YT-1300. This craft measured some 35 meters in length, and the cockpit could be situated on either the left or right side. The basic crew consisted of a pilot and a gunner. The standard YT-1210 could carry up to 100 metric tons of cargo, and was armed with a single laser cannon. (GG6, FOP)

YT-1250
this Corellian Engineering Corporation starship design was lightly armed in its stock form. (SFT)

YT-1300
this series of Corellian light stock freighter built by the Corellian Engineering Corporation. Originally designed and manufactured some 30 years before the Battle of Yavin, it was a 2-man craft, and can accommodate up to six passengers. The YT-1300 measures 26.7 meters in length, and can hold 100 metric tons of cargo. The YT-1300 is armed with a single laser cannon, but carries to defensive shielding. The main hull is disk-shaped, with two trapezoidal pods extending from the front. The cockpit is offset-mounted on the right side of the disk. The top sublight speed of a YT-1300 is around 65 MGLT. 100-SBD shields protect a 50-RU hull. One of the primary drawbacks of this model transport is the off-center cockpit placement. While the cockpit can be positioned on either the left or right side, this positioning leaves a great deal of the ship out of the pilot’s view. While this is common for larger ships, the off-center placement makes it much harder to maneuver in tight spaces for many new pilots. The more skittish of these captains often install five-axis, laser-ranging pods near the front mandibles, in order to provide them realtime information about the parts of the ship they can’t see. (SW, SCRE, TIE, TT, E1A2)

YT-1930
this variant on the successful YT-1300 series was only moderately successful for the Corellian Engineering Corporation. From the central passageway forward, the YT-1930 was an exact duplicate of the YT-1300, with the exception being that the rounded cockpit was mounted between the forward mandibles. However, from the centerline back, the ship was unique. A pair of wing-like cargo bays flared outward from each side, while the drives were situated between them. The ship resembled a flying V. It measured 35 meters in length, and required a pilot and co-pilot to operate. It could transport up to six passengers and 200 metric tons of cargo with ease. (WSV)

YT-2400
one of the light freighters in CEC's successful YT-series, the YT-2400 incorporates the saucer-shaped hull design that made the YT-1300 popular. However, the YT-2400 does not have the paired, forward-facing mandibles. It is simply the saucer hull with a heavily-braced cockpit section off to the right side. The YT-2400 has improved hull plating, power to spare, and additional space in the cargo and engine compartments. Thus, it was easily modified to accommodate larger engines and smuggling compartments. At 21 meters in length, the YT-2400 was also slightly smaller than its predecessors, although it had the capacity to transport up to six passengers and 150 metric tons of cargo. Flying the YT-2400 demanded the skills of a pilot and co-pilot. The basic configuration was armed with a turret-mounted laser cannon. (SE, EGV, SS)

YT-450a
a clunky-looking transport ship from Corellian Engineering Corporation. (GMH)

Ytavarg Aleema
this near-human was the child of human and Keed parents. He was known among the Keed as a great lettranin player, and was recruited to play shockball by Ger Plortor. Ytavarg emerged as one of the galaxy's most famous shockball players, during the height of the New Order. A member of the Shad Furies, Aleema earned a great deal of credit from a lucrative contract. After a match against the Quent Assassins, which the Assassins won 21-20, Ytavarg tried to rescue Ap Kormar from being beaten by some Furies fans. They killed Kormar before Aleema could intervene, claiming that they were making an example of Kormar to warn other Alliance sympathizers against taking action.In anger, Aleema used his shockball equipment to kill all seven of the attackers, an action which earned him a short suspension from league play. However, Aleema was determined to extinguish the xenophobia embraced by the Empire, and found himself trying to join the Alliance. After making contact with an Alliance agent, Aleema offered whatever services he could, either physical or financial. He had established a mansion on the planet of Melinz, which he secretly used as a safehouse for Alliance agents. Aleema himself was a foster agent, and secretly funneled a large portion of his income to the Alliance. He maintained a very public presence, providing endorsements and merchandising rights in order to earn more credits, which he later funneled to the Alliance. (CRO)

Ytterbium
a key element in the production of laser cannons, much of the galaxy's ytterbium came from the Sarrahban System. The Alliance used stabilized ytterbium in conjunction with baradium, in an effort to make using the explosive much less risky. (RPG, ROE)

Yu'nar
this Trianii word describes the female tribunals which monitor and rule their society. (CSA)

Yuga 2
a planet covered with dense rain forests, it is a well-known tourist attraction. The Yuga Planetary Park is located here. Voren Na'al once booked passage from Yuga 2 to Tatooine, to begin his research on the heroes of the Battle of Yavin. (MTS)

Yuga Planetary Park
a tourist attraction on Yuga 2, it is filled with clinging trees. (MTS)

Yulant System
this Core Worlds system is managed by the Salliche Ag Corporation. (SWAJ)

Yularen, Wullf
this Imperial Security Bureau agent was assigned as Grand Moff Takrin's liaison with Emperor Palpatine. Yularen was also in charge of ensuring complete loyalty to the Emperor aboard the first Death Star. Yularen would stop at nothing to fulfill Palpatine's will. He was a well-built man of advanced age, distinguishable y his white hair and moustache. (CCG)

Yulcris
this muscular humanoid mercenary was employed by Moff Bandor to patrol the Game Chambers of Questal. Yulcris was an ape-like beingwith long arms and a sloping forehead. He carried a vibroaxe, and skulked through the chambers waiting for prisoners to become weak before issuing a challenge. (GCQ)

Yullrasuede
a sturdy fabric used in men's clothing. (TME)

Yumfla
this was the primary starport operated on the moon Suarbi 7/5. It was also the site of the Imperial governor's palace, a fortress-like affair surrounded by eight-meter-tall walls and guarded by stormtroopers. The palace itself was triangular in shape, with tall towers are each corner. The front two towers were thick squat cyclinders, while the rearward toward was a tall rectangle with the central section small in area that those above and below it. It appeared as if a fist had squeezed this section. (IJ)

Yumi
this heavy-bodied plant's origins are not known, but it thrives on many worlds throughout the galaxy. The sap taken from its bulbous stem is useful in the creation of bubble wort, and is also used as a sweet dessert topping. A single flower grows from its round body. (GF, IG1)

Yun
the youngest of the Dark Jedi serving under Jerec, Yun was a cocky, unpredictable youth striving to prove his power. Not physically imposing, Yun relied on the surprise he gained when attacking his opponents in brash ways. He attempted to kill Kyle Katarn at Baron's Hed, but was defeated by Katarn. His body was absorbed by Jerec's energy and discarded. (DF2)

Yun-Harla
this Yuuzhan Vong deity was known as the Cloaked Goddess, or the Trickster. She was often prayed to in tandem with Yun-Yammka, in order for the warrior to have guidance as well as strength in his battle. (VP)

Yun-Shuno
this was the most grotesque of the Yuuzhan Vong gods. Yun-Shuno was the patron diety of the "shamed ones," those Yuuzhan Vong whose bodies refused to accept implants of surge-coral and implanters during the ritual of escalation. (JE)

Yun-Yammka
this deity was the Yuuzhan Vong god of war. Known as The Slayer, Yun-Yammka resembled a large brain with a single eye and a puckered mouth. An array of tentacles emerged from around its body. Every Yuuzhan Ving warrior kept a statue of Yun-Yammka among his possessions, and prayed to Yun-Yammka for strength in battle. (VP)

Yun-Yuuzhan
this deity of the Yuuzhan Vong was known as the Cosmic Lord. It was Yun-Yuuzhan who took parts of his own body to form the other gods as well as the Yuuzhan Vong themselves. Thus, statues of Yun-Yuuzhan often appeared incomplete, representing his own sacrifices. (JE)

Yunax
this was a species of avian known for its aimless flights. A common phrase used to describe a misguided endeavor was as a "wild yunax chase." (HT)

Yunkor IX
this planet was the site of an early test of the B-Wing, in which a single B-Wing took out a TIE Fighter staging area near the world. (XW)

Yur T'aug
this Bothan was a Captain in the security force which patrolled Coruscant's Imperial City, some twelve years before the Battle of Naboo. Distinguished by his dark fur and flowing beard, Captain T'aug was dispatched to investigate the murder of Fligh. (DH)

Yurdak Fav
this Shistavanen Wolfman was considered a threat to the Alliance. Her great-great-grandmother was a scout for the Republic Survey Corps until Emperor Palpatine rose to power, at which time she quit. Yurdak herself went into the scouting business, working for the Uvena System Constabulary before striking out on her own. She was spotted in the vicinity of several planets which the Alliance had planned to use as safeworlds, but it was unknown whom she was working for at the time. She traveled the galaxy in her starship, the Vangaard Pathfinder Zoll-Uvena. (AIR)

Yurfloo
this slow-acting poison was created by the scientists working for Hurn Jak. There was only one known antidote. (GMS)

Yushan System
a Mid-Rim planetary system containing the planet Kaal. (SWAJ)

Yustavan
this Gutretee shaman had some control of the Force. He used it to heal the members of the Old Republic who came to Isis. He also used it to heal combatants in the Gutretee ritual of a struggle to reveal evil. (IC)

Yutani
this man served the Alliance as a scout and heavy weapons specialist. A Captain in rank, Yutani was known to use micro-repulsor engines in his field armor. The small repulsors allowed him to move smoothly and quickly while carrying and operating light field artillery weapons. He served as part of the ground assault force led by Han Solo during the Battle of Endor. (CCG10)

Yuth ugh
this Yuuzhan Vong phrases translates loosely to the command, "Do what I say." (VP)

Yutrane-Tackata
this military contractor produced a variety of armored vehicles during the early period of the New Order. (FC)

Yutusk
a backwater planet subjugated by the Empire early in the New Order. (CRO)

Yuuzhan Vong
this race of beings was native to an extra-galactic world. Roughly humanoid in shape, they often mutilated their bodies with scars and tattoos in order to prove their worth to their gods. Being from another galaxy, the Yuuzhan Vong cellular structure contained no midi-chlorians, thereby rendering them untouchable to the Force. The faces of the Yuuzhan Vong are distinguished by several key features, in addition to the scars and tattoos that define their social standing: bluish sacks beneath their eyes, sloping foreheads, and lipless mouths. They were masters of organic technology, using all sorts of lesser creatures to perform highly advanced tasks. However, they frowned upon biological diversity, and took severe steps to wipe out or subjugate the other species encountered in their home galaxy. Each ritual scarring and tattooing added to the social stature of an individual, and the pattern of disfigurement provided information about the individual's class. It was later discovered that the Yuuzhan Vong had visited the known galaxy some fifty years before their attacks on Belkadan and Dubrillion, when Anki Pace found the remains of a warrior on Bimmiel. After establishing a base on Belkadan, the Vong began capturing pirates and enslaving them as laborers on Belkadan. They used gricha larva to form huge, shell-like dwellings wherever they traveled, creating living chambers inside the spiralled nacreous material of the shell. After the Battle of Ithor, it was learned that the Yuuzhan Vong had been experimenting with the various alien species they had displaced while invading the galaxy. Most of the specimens died or were sacrificed, due to their inability to withstand the unusual biological manipulations of the Yuuzhan Vong. (VP, DTO, HT)

Yuvern System
a planetary system located in the Oplovis Sector, Yuvern was the site of an Alliance battle with the Oplovis fleet. (RASB)

Yuzzem
a race from an unknown planet, they are fur-covered humanoids with long snouts and tremendous strength. They are tall aliens with a tempermental disposition. Their arms reach all the way to the ground, even when standing, and end in huge hands. They are reported to have the strength and stamina of three men, and also suffer from long, intense hangovers when they get drunk. They were enslaved by the Empire and used in labor camps. Luke and Leia team up with two Yuzzem after escaping from Grammel's prison on Mimban. (SME)

Yuzzum
an alien race which is native to Endor's forest moon. They have round, furry bodies supported by long, thin legs. These long legs are used to keep the yuzzum's head just barely above the savanna grasses of the Dragon's Pelt, where the yuzzum hunt for ruggers. Their wide mouths are filled with pointed teeth. Their eyes seem to glow. They ride on large, three-meter-tall spider-like creatures. The yuzzum has a fair amount of intelligence, but seem incapable of understanding other lifeforms. They have been taken off the moon and sold as pets, but their nature does not make them very good pets. The yuzzum have a musical language, and they have found employment offworld as singers. (HTTE, AT, ISU, CCG7)

YV-666
a Corellian Engineering Coroporation light freighter design that is unique in shape from many other transports. It has a large, rectangular main section that is used for cargo storage. A small bridge pod is mounted on the front end of the rectangle. The rear of the ship is needle-shaped power core and engine drive system. Attached to this rear section are a pair of extendable maneuvering vanes. (EGC, EGV)

Yvara
this planet, located within the Kathol Rift, was the homeworld of the Yvarema race. It was a dry, temperate planet of low mountains and fungus-covered plains. It orbited a blue-white star in Kathol Sector. The average day on Yvara lasted 36 standard hours, while its year lasted 453 local days. (KR)

Yvarema
this species of humanoids was one of the rare examples of a hive mind which evolved in a non-insectoid, mammalian species. There were no mindless drones in Yvarema soceity, and each individual was able to develop a personality on its own. However, their intelligence was ensconced in the being known as the Majjvara, while the Majjvara was completely dependent on the rest of Yvarema society for her survival. The average Yvarema was a bulky humanoid with furred head and shoulders, a scaled torso and legs, and a short, thick tail. Their society was broken into four distinct groups, in addition to the Majjvara herself. Workers were the most common Yvarema, being neuter individuals with strong muscles and great stamina. Explorer-scouts had a fat- and water-storing hump on their backs, and were thinner than the workers. Their role was to locate food and resources for the group. Lore gatherers are among the longest-lived Yvarema, second only to the Majjvara in longevity. Their role is to act as librarians and scholars for Yvarema society. The royal explorers were extremely limited in number, and were developed during the modern era of the galaxy after the Yvarema discovered space travel. Unfortunately for the Yvarema, their strong bodies and limited individual intelligence made them prime targets for slavers who worked in the Kathol Outback.Those Yvarema who were separated from their homeworld felt an unending urge to return to Yvara. (KR)

Yvonne Targis
this near-human female was the proprietor of Mos Eisley's transport depot. (GG7)

Yyrta
the yellow star that is the center of the Yyrtan System. (SWJ1)

YZ-1000
one of the earliest Corellian Engineering Corporation transport designs, they were considered outdated during the period surrounding the Battle of Naboo. (RP)

Yzalli, Eamon
this was Corran Horn's alias when he went undercover and worked for Mosh Barris on Garqi. Yzalli was a native of Alderaan who devised a clever plan to expose the rebellion on Garqi, but he would actually free them from Barris' prisons and implicate the Prefect as a traitor to the Empire. Yzalli was to be executed by Barris for his "treachery," but instead sent a coded message to Kirtan Loor. The message implicated Barris in the escape of the Star's Delight, and claimed that he was planning to usurp Governor Tadrin and turn Garqi over to the New Republic. Horn later used the Yzalli alias, this time as a ship's mechanic aboard the Mimban Cloudrider when Rogue Squadron first pirated from Ysanne Isard's bacta cartel. (TFE, BW)

Y164
this Thalassian slave ship measured 90 meters in length, and was armed with a pair of quad-laser cannons. (GG9)

Y41-C2LC Fighter
this was the model number of Aratech's Conjo fighter. (TBSB)

Y41-T
this was the model number of Aratech's Conjo Trainer, designed to be a bit slower than the base Y41-C2LC fighter. (TBSB)

Y41-4LC
this version of the Aratech Conjo Y41-C2LC fighter was similar in every aspect to the base fighter, but was armed with two additional laser cannons. (TBSB)

Y60
this was a series of Thalassian cargo haulers. The ship was notable for the fact that its sublight drivers were mounted behind the central group of drive nozzles. (SOP)

* Z *

z
a unit of measure which describes the amount of buildup a turbothrust converter coil can maintain. (CFG)

Z-Borus
an Alliance Nebulon-B frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-Cod
an Alliance modular container group captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-Elpi
an Alliance transport ship captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-Kopsh
an Alliance Nebulon B-2 frigate destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-Oz
an Alliance modified Corvette captured during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-Pata
this group of Carrack-class cruisers was destroyed at a TIE Defender base during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-Rok
a group of modified CR90 Corvettes used by the Alliance, but destroyed during the Galactic Civil War. (TIE)

Z-10
a massive transport ship. (TME)

Z-10 Seeker
a Starfeld starship design, the Z-10 was originally targetted for use by scouts and traders. The Z-10 never gained a foothold in that market, however, and Starfeld began selling it in other markets. It was designed to be fast and maneuverable, and many of its systems were poorly adapted for combat use when modified. A sleek ship, the Z-10 had a pair of cargo pods slung below its central fuselage. Measuring 20.3 meters in length, the ship required a pilot to operate and could transport two passengers and up to 45 metric tons of cargo. It was armed with a front-mounted Prm-3 autoblaster which was hardwired into the sensor package. (SS)

Z-12
this was the model number of one of Aratech's Cargo Master speeder trucks. Designed for military use, this 20-meter-long repulsor-truck could carry and pilot and gunner, as well as up to 24 troops. It was armed with a single, turret-mounted heavy blaster cannon. (TTSB)

Z-500
a group of Muurian transports destroyed by the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (XWN)

Z-6
this was the designation of an advanced jet pack system manufactured by Mitrinomon. It had maneuverable exhaust nozzles that helped the user change direction in mid-flight, and it has built-in gyrostabilizers to counteract gravity during landings. (CCG7)

Z-9
Sirplex shield projector used on the A-Wing starfighter. (SCRE)

Z-95 Headhunter
a snub fighter, wasp-like in its design, built by Incom in cooperation with Subpro Industries a few years before they began production on the X-Wing. One of the key designers of the ship was Seti Ashgad. They are 11.8 meters in length, and were equipped with twin engines, forked tails, and bomb pylons. They were famous for how much punishment they could take in battle. Each Headhunter was equipped with up to 3 blaster cannons on each wing, a concussion missile launcher, and a unique bubble canopy that allowed its pilot an almost 360-degree view of the sky around him. They employed a holographic, heads-up display that made the bubble canopy even more effective. However, the Z-95 lacked a hyperdrive. With the advent of the X-wing, the Z-95 became relegated to smugglers' armies and backwater usage, but still maintained a great following due to their toughness. Jessa and Doc had six of them in their defense system, and Talon Kaarde even had a few of them in his fleet. They have been clocked at 1,150 kilometers per hour in an atmosphere, and can generate sublight speeds of 85 MGLT.
They are equipped with the following shipboard components:
- Novaldex O3-R Cryogenic Power Cells and Ionization Reactor
- 4 Incom 2a Ion Fission Engines
- Vudyne CF-30 Flight Control Avionics Package
- Narmox Zr-390 NavComp Unit
- Incom Gbk-435 Hyperdrive Motivator

- Fabritech ANs-5c Sensor Package
- Long-range Phased Tachyon Detection Array model# PA-9r
- Short-range Primary Threat Analysis Grid model# PG-7u
- Fabritech ANq 2.4 Tracking Computer
- SI 5g8 "Quickscan" Vector Imaging System
- 2 Taim & Bak KX5 Laser Cannons
- 2 Krupx MG5 Concussion Missile Launchers (4 missile each)
- XoLyyn Front/Rear Projection shields (rated at 20 SBD)
- Titanium Alloy Hull (rated at 15 RU)

(HSE, DFR, JS, RASB, TIE, EGV)

Z-95 I3
this was the designation of the "Improved Model 3" version of the Z-95 Headhunter starfighter. It was armedwith a pair of triple blasters, and was generally considered the most popular of the Headhunters. (PG1)

Z-95 Mark I
this early version of the Z-95 Headhunter had a swing-wing design. It was armed with a pair of triple blasters and a concussion missile launcher. (EGV, PG1)

Z-95 AF3
this was one of the early modifications SubPro made to the basic Z-95 Headhunter, giving the ship enhanced weapons and shielding to withstand more firepower. It was developed some three years prior to the Battle of Naboo. (SFT)

Z-95-AF4
this is the common designation of the basic Z-95 Assault Fighter 4, a heavier version of the basic Z-95 Headhunter. (EGV, SFT)

Z-95C4d
an ground-support version of the Z-95 Headhunter, it has bombing capabilities. (SWSB)

Z-95ER
an extended-range version of the Z-95 Headhunter. (SWSB)

Z-95Mk1
this was another designation of the original Z-95 Mark I Headhunter. (PG1)

Z-95ML
an missile-launching version of the Z-95 Headhunter. (SWSB)

Z-95XT
an two-seat version of the Z-95 Headhunter used for training, the Z-95XT lacks the basic Z-95's concussion missiles. (RASB)

Z'fell
this planet, located in Farlax Sector's Koornacht Cluster, was one of the original Duskhan League worlds. (SOL)

Z'gag
a warm, pink-colored river flowing on the planet Ruuria. (HSL)

Z'trop
one of the most scenic planets in the galaxy. It is famous for its volcanic islands, wide beaches, and clear waters. (MMY)

Za
this Shistavenan Prince was a member of the Imperial Interim Ruling Council. He was also a puppet of Norym Kim, and was paid by Kim to be the first to nominate Xandel Carivus to succeed Nolyds as the Council's leader. (CE2)

ZA-991-131
this New Republic Intelligence datafile contained information on the re-instatement of Lando Calrissian to an acting officer of the New Republic military, during the hunt for the Teljkon vagabond. Much of the datafile is conjecture, as it was never determined which office actually re-instated Calrissian. (CTD)

Zaarin
an Imperial Admiral in service during the Galactic Civil War. He was placed in charge of the research and development of new TIE Fighter models, including the the TIE Advanced and TIE Defender, by Emperor Palpatine and Darth Vader. He negotiated with the Habeen to obtain TIE hyperdrive technology. While he openly supported the Emperor's plans to capture Admiral Harkov following the defection of his fleet, Zaarin was plotting to move his fleet to Coruscant to kill Palpatine. Using the cover of Imperial fighters, he outraced Imperial pursuit in the Glory and reached Coruscant ahead of Vader, but was unable to capture Palpatine's shuttle. Vice Admiral Thrawn arrived and chased Zaarin into hyperspace. Zaarin later re-appeared, and tried to steal the prototype cloaking device design from Thrawn. Zaarin nearly succeeded, capturing a CR90 corvette equipped with a cloaking device from the research lab in the Iast System. However, Zaarin attempted to flee into hyperspace with the ship cloaked. The cloaking device had not yet been perfected for use in hyperspace, and the device exploded. The corvette and her crew, including Zaarin were destroyed upon entering hyperspace. (TIE)

Zabian System
Lando was headed there after losing Cloud City to Zorba the Hutt. (ZHR)

Zabrak
this near-human species had several sub-species, each of which was distinguishable by the vestigial horns which ringed their heads. They are known for their ability to withstand great amounts of pain. The Zabrak races were native to the planet Iridonia. (IG1, SWK)

Zack
a predator found on the planet M'haeli, the zack's favorite prey is the dool bug. (ROC)

Zadarian Brandy
a smooth, fermented alcohol. (TFE)

Zaddja
Carnor Jax sought to find Kir Kanos on this remote world, but his troops were defeated by a trap set by Kanos. Zaddja is located in the Trilon Sector of space. (CE)

Zaela
this long, reed-like plant is native to the swamps of the planet Naboo. Its strong, pliable stalks are really branches that extend upward from a stump-like trunk, and are used by the Gungans to form gulliball mallets and other tools. (GF)

Zaff Jendinpurg
this Nebulon-B escort frigate was assigned to protect the Star Galleon Emperor's Will, during its regular taxation runs. The two ships were ambushed by the Far Orbit near Esseles, and the Zaff Jendinpurg was severely damaged in the attack. (FOP)

Zaffa Oil
this flavorful cooking oil is used in the preparation of many strong-tasting meats, since its own flavor can augment that of the meat. (SESB)

Zagsm'ith
this noted Columi archaeologist believed that he had discovered the burial ground used by the Star Dragons, somewhere in the Xuaquarres System. He hired a group of freelance scouts to take him there, but they discovered an Imperial weapons storehouse instead of Star Dragons on the system's fourth planet. Zagsm'ith was undaunted, though, and found that the planet was riddled with cave and caverns, and stumbled upon the remains of a Star Dragon. His discovery caused another Dragon to rouse from his lair and travel to Xuaquarres in order to determine what was happening. The Dragon killed the Imperials and allowed Zagsm'ith and the scouts to leave. However, upon emerging from hyperspace, they all discovered that there was no reference to Xuaquarres in the ship's logs and that they couldn't remember what had happened over the last several days. (GMS)

Zahtjav
this was a legendary Rodian monster. (FOP)

Zahtjav
this modified CR-90 corvette was captured by the noted pirate Venslas Beeli. It was named for a legendary Rodian monster. It was armed with 4 double turbolaser cannons and a pair of tractor beam projectors. The Zahtjav was originally an Old Republic scout craft that was decommissioned at the onset of the New Order and used as a cargo ship. Beeli and his pirates captured it after bribing the chief engineer into cutting out the power to the hyperdrive at a specific time. Beeli elected not to pay the engineer, and set him adrift in an escape pod. (FOP)

Zaltin
one of the two major pro-human producers of bacta on the planet Thyferra, the Zaltin faction was brought into the Bacta Cartel as the "competition" to Xucphra. Zaltin benefitted greatly from Emperor Palpatine's reign. Along with the Xucphra faction, Palpatine decreed that all bacta would be produced by them, and it would be produced for military use only. This eliminated smaller competitors while creating higher profits. It didn't remove the Ashern faction, but viewed them as terrorists. They have a corporate culture that is very different from that of their competitor, Xucphra, although both employ nearly 300 Vratix worker for each human manager. When Zaltin realized that the Empire was doomed, they worked on two fronts to take control from Xucphra. First, they promoted Bror Jace for pilot's status with Rogue Squadron, in an effort to gain ties to the New Republic. Second, they began supplying the Ashern with money and weapons, hoping to gain support from the native Vratix who actually produced the bacta. (XWN, KT, BW)

Zalxuc City
the site of Thyferra's primary starport, Zalxuc city was established at the height of the New Order to house the human population of the planet. They were responsible almost solely for the production of bacta, but numbered just 10,000. When Ysanne Isard took control of Xucphra and bacta production, many Zaltin families fled the planet. The city was then renamed Xucphra City. (BW)

Zan, Almera
a young, inexperienced Alliance agent, Almera was part of the team that tried to rescue Enid Vahr from the Demophon System. Her beautiful appearance belied her lack of self-confidence, and she was extermely short-tempered in a firefight. She was a native of the planet Jaxus. (SN)

Zana
manufacturers of molecular stilettos and other unique weapons. (SOP)

Zanazi
this was the name used by the priest-prophets of the Cosmic Balance religion. It was believed that their name was formed the letters in the Basic alphabet, referring to the alphabet's first and last letters surrounding the middle letter. The Zanazi taught the way of the Cosmic Balance in public, overseeing Simple Homes to promote the religion's ideals. (TBSB)

Zanitar
Callandri, Zayl Braith, and the Granse Confederacy tried to waylay a pair of Alliance agents at this establishment on Draria, during a meeting to obtain datafiles on Imperial fleet movements. The datafiles were being held by a group of Duros smugglers, who planned to sell the data to the Alliance. (AIR)

Zanzibar
this was a species of steel-blue-skinned humanoid mercenaries who worked for Grappa the Hutt. Native to the plane Xo, they resembled tall, walking skeletons, and ritually performed ceremonies which required blood sacrifices. Grappa often provided them with their victims, whenever a being displeased the Hutt. The victims were often brought back their homeworld of Xo for sacrifice. (CE2)

Zapalo, Graf
this man, a native of the planet Naboo, served on Queen Amidala's Advisory Council as the minister of sciences. (IG1)

Zaprid's Caravan
this group of freighters and star yachts travels throughout the backwater worlds of the Tion Hegemony. Akin to a galactic circus, Zaprid's is most famous for its ability to separate unwitting peasants and hustlers from their credits. During the period of the New Order, they were also adept at steering clear of Imperial space. (GG6)

Zaraksander
this planet was the site of Eloinie Petro-Munitions' corporate headquarters. (GG10)

Zardra
a tall, female human, Zardra has long dark hair. She carries a force pike and wears a flowing cloak. She is often recognized by the perfume she wears, which is an exotic Togorian belladonna. She is an exceptional bounty hunter, taking great pride and obtaining greater satisfaction from the hunt. She often worked with Jodo Kast and Puggles Trodd. Just before the Battle of Yavin, Zardra angered Jabba the Hutt when she killed Mageye the Hutt on Taboon. She interferred with the Thig Brothers, who were transporting stolen Imperial weapons for Jabba. Jabba, in turn, hired Gorm the Dissolver to hunt her down. She escaped, and reappeared when Captain Parlan offered the bounty for Adar Tallon. She joined Jodo Kast and Puggles Trodd again, but failed to reach Tallon before the Alliance could. She managed to survive the firefight on Tatooine, but she was blamed by many Imperials as the reason the mission to capture Tallon failed.Several factions even sent bounty hunters after her. Although she continued to work for Imperial commissions, she distrusted them at every turn. This distrust turned into hatred when her informant turned on her. The informant sold information to the Alliance, and she was captured by the agent she was pursuing. She was placed aboard the Celestial for transport to a penal colony, but was lost in Otherspace with the rest of her fellow convicts. Driven mad by the Charon red mist aboard the Desolate, Zardra survived a firefight with Alliance agents trying to rescue the crew of the Celestial. She escaped the mist and made her way bad to the Alliance agents' ship, where she helped them escape the Charon and flee back to realspace. (TM, TME, OS)

Zarfeen
this female Rodian was a bounty hunter employed by Clezo of Black Sun. She was dispatched by Clezo after word was received that Marka Durn had discovered the lost treasure of Celis Mott, but Zarfeen was too late to recover the treasure. (IA)

Zarian
this was a race of short, small amphibious creatures resembling humanoid frogs. They are quite comical in appearance. (POC)

Zaric Sector

Zavict, Abram
this man was an independent trader who had befriended the Balinaka artist Vornest Dep-thesel Digarsarg several thousand years ago. After witnessing the wondrous effects of the artist's sculptures, Zavict decided to sell them to the galaxy in general. After securing the Balinaka's agreement, Zavict founded Galactic Crystal Creations to sell Garnib Crystals on other worlds. (PG1)

Zavod, Nikk
this dashing man convinced the woman who was later known as Mala Mala to join him in a search for the Wookiee, Chewbacca. Mala Mala was taken by Zavod's handsome face and smooth personality, while Zavod simply wanted to steal her starship. After Mala Mala agreed to join him in the search, Zavod asked her to check out a problem with the ship's thrusters, claiming that there were Corellian limpets in the nacelles. When Mala Mala went to investigate, Zavod ignited the engines. Mala Mala was severely burned, and Zavod left her for dead. (C)

Zavval
this Hutt, a member of the Besadii clan, controlled the spice and slave production on Ylesia. It was Zavval who chose the t'landa Til to orchestrate the setting of a religious colony, choosing his close associate Teroenza to become the High Preist. He was constantly at odds with Jabba and Jiliac, who supplied him with raw spice for processing. He discovered, after Han Solo was attacked by pirates, that Jabba and Jiliac were waylaying transport ships laden with processed spice. Posing as pirates, Jiliac's henchmen would steal the processed spice, obtaining sellable product at virtually no cost. This made Zavval angry, and he issued an ultimatum to Jiliac via a message conveyed by Han to Nal Hutta. This only enraged Jiliac, but Han was allowed to return to Ylesia. Later, during Han's escape, Zavval happened to be in Teroenza's palace when Bria and Han were stealing the t'landa Til's treasures. A firefight ensued, during which Han and Bria escaped. Zavval, however, was caught under a pile of rubble when the ceiling of the museum collapsed after his repulsorsled crashed into a support column. Zavval was crushed beneath the stone and killed. A bounty was put on Han's head for the death of Zavval. (TPS)

Zazu
this being was believed to be the only person in the galaxy who knew the history of the borcatu species. Zazu also knew how to eliminate them. (COG)

Zchtek Worlds

Zebulon Dak Speeder Corporation
manufacturers of the the galaxy's faster landspeeders. (DCAR)

Zebulon-B Frigate
this large starship was designed and manufactured by Kuat Drive Yards during the last years of the New Order. Note that this could simply be a typographical error, and the author really meant Nebulon-B. (HM)

Zed, Akal
this Imperial Navy Captain commanded the Star Destroyer Stalker, and was assigned to Elrood Sector with Tanda Pryl and the Thunderflare to assist Moff Andal in eliminating piracy and rebellious natives. (OE)

Zee Ethda
this well-armored bounty hunter worked for Grappa the Hutt. A large, skeletal humanoid with a mouthful of sharp fangs, Ethda was dispatched by Grappa to recover Tarrant Snil, but was unable to secure the customs officer before the Imperial Interim Ruling Council issued a security alert in the wake of the assassination of Councilman Burr Nolyds. Grappa fed Ethda to his pet rancor for the failure to capture Snil. (CE2)

Zee-gee Table
this recreational game is popular among Corellian spacers. (OS)

Zeebo
Ken's pet mooka. (LCJ)

Zeebuck
this knobby-boned herbivore was native to the planet Yvara. Each zeebuck had four legs and three eyes, with a cinnamon-brown pelt and unusual sacs whch grow down the sides of their necks. These sacs were used to store food and nutrients during grazing, for later digestion. They were constantly moving in herds, looking for more food to eat. The Yvarema often tamed a herd of zeebuck in order to harvest the food sacs for their nutritional value. (KR)

Zeeda Throwing Knife
this well-balanced blade was one of the traditional Ubese hunting weapons. (AIR)

Zeen Afit
this craggy old smuggler took Han Solo on his first trip through the Smuggler's Run. He was one of the many smugglers who joined up to support Red Hand Squadron and the Alliance during the Battle of Ylesia, and was one of the few who actually got paid for it. Afit inhabited the Run after the Hutts left, and eventually went to work for Nandreeson. When Solo returned to the Run to investigate the death of Jarril, Afit and his confederates - including Kid DXo'la, Sinewy Ana Blue, and Wynni - feigned friendship with him to lure him to Nandreeson. During Solo's rescue of Lando Calrissian from the Glottalphib crimelord, Afit was killed in the firefight at Nandreeson's pond on Skip 6. (TNR, RD)

Zeer
this huge, giraffe-like beast is native to the plains of the planet Naboo. (GF)

Zeffliffl
1) the fourth planet orbiting Markbee's Star, it is the homeworld a race of leaf-like creatures. (CS)
2) the name given to the leaf-like aliens antive to Zeffliffl. These communal creatures live in masses floating in the planet's shallow southern oceans. They collect water in sacs for use when they are away from their native seas. They expel the way in a short geyser, thoroughly wetting themselves to avoid dessication. (CS)

Zehava
this city was the capital of the planet Melida/Daan. It was founded a millennium before the rise to power of Emperor Palpatine, but its borders were continually being redefinde during the civil war between the Melida and the Daan. There are records of more than twenty-one separate battles between the Melida and the Daan, dating back more than sixty years before the Battle of Naboo. The Tenth Battle of Zehava was considered the bloodiest war fought for control of the city. Shortly afterward, the city was divived into northern and southern regions, with the Daan controlling the northern-half the city and the Melida, the southern half. During the Eighteenth Battle, the Daan used the tunnels and drains under the city to secret gain access to Melida-held areas. Shortly before the Twenty-fifth Battle, Daan and Melida divided the city into sectors, and even lived side-by-side for a short time. (DOD)

ZeHeth
this planet is the homeworld of the ZeHethbra species. (TTSB)

ZeHethbra
a race characterized by their black-and-white-striped mane, the ZeHethbra are tall humanoids which have at least 80 distinct cultural, racial, and ethnic groups. This variety of cultures came about because of the varied ecosystems found on the their homeworld of ZeHeth. Northern groups tend to be brown or red in color, while southern groups tends toward blue-white fur. All ZeHethbra have the balck-and-white mane, which begins at the bridge of their nose and travels over their head and down to the small of their back. Females have wider stripes than males, and males tend to have branches of fur running out from the main stripe. (TLC)

Zehr Sea
an ocean found on the planet Delassin VI. (SWAJ)

Zekk
this young native of Ennth fled the planet following a natural disaster that devastated his colony. He escaped in a supply ship fleeing the planet, on which the captain tried to get him into an orphanage. Zekk fled this ship, and a few others, before he ended up on Peckhum's ship. Peckhum had taken Zekk in and cared for him, seeing Zekk's natural independence as a mirror of his own youth. The two finally stopped on Coruscant. There, he found refuge in the cityworld's subterranean environs. Later, he was befriended by Jaina and Jacen Solo. He is a wiry youth with black hair and striking green eyes. It was Tamith Kai, scouring the underground levels of Coruscant, who discovered that Zekk had a large amount of Force sensitivity. He was brought to the Shadow Academy for training, and was taken under Brakiss's wing. Zekk's power grew swiftly, and so did the rivaly between he and Vilas, Tamith Kai's apprentice. The two were pitted against each other in a battle to the death for the position of Darkest Knight. Both Tamith Kai and Brakiss believed that the rivalry between the two would divide the Academy. In the battle, Zekk managed to dispatch Vilas. This victory made Zekk the Darkest Knight of the Shadow Academy, a positioon bestowed upon him by Brakiss,much to Tamith Kai's dismay. As the Darkest Knight, Zekk was given command of the assault team sent to Kashyyyk to steal starship components for the Second Imperium's own ships. They infiltrated the planet holo-disguised as Wookiees, and successfully obtained a large amount of starship shielding and navigational equipment. When he suddenly found that his Imperial masters were defeated, Zekk tried to return to the Light Side of the Force, but found himself unable to concentrate and accomplish his goals. He fled Yavin 4 and returned to Ennth, only to discover the planet in the throes of is worse devastation in recent record. He helped evacuate as many people as he could, but he still felt out of place. After the evacuation, he let himself drift through the Force, and decided to become a bounty hunter. He accepted the challenge of capturing Bornan Thul, hoping to use the little control he had of the Force to track him down before anyone could harm him. Like many others, he failed to find the Alderaanian, but was welcomed back into the fold of friends on Yavin 4. He later helped Raynar Thul search out Bornan, and rejoined the Jedi Academy. He continually worked to avoid the Dark Side, and actually used the Force to win the 93rd annual Blockade Runners Derby. (LO, L, DK, SHA, TEP, ROM)

Zekka Thyne
this near-human was known as Patches to the agents of the Corellian Security Force, for his pinkish colored skin was covered with blue splotches of color. He had red eyes with black, diamond-shaped pupils, pointed ears, and pointed, black teeth. Zekka Thyne was imprisoned at Kessel by Corran Horn and his father, Hal. There were rumors that Zekka Thyne was the heir-apparent to Prince Xizor's Black Sun empire, and that he had murdered a number of high-ranking Black Sun rivals to help pave that path. His imprisonment on Kessel, followed by Xizor's death just before the Battle of Endor, left Thyne without many possibilities. However, when Wedge Antilles and the New Republic began searching for a way to infiltrate Coruscant, they chose to release Thyne from Kessel and allow him to reactivate his old Black Sun contacts on the planet. Thyne was supposed to be under the watchful eye of Fliry Vorru, but he still managed to make contact with the Empire on Coruscant. He continually relayed information on the Rogues' activities until he was discovered by Corran Horn and Inyri Forge, his former lover and spice cutter. In Corran's attempt to escape, Inyri shot Thyne dead. (WG, TFE)

Zelen
this imperial pilot served with Soontir Fel int he 37th Imperial Fighter Wing during the Reslian Purge. (MBF)

Zelos
1) home planet of the Aga. (COJ)
2) this white star is the central point of the Zelos System. This system is anomalous because of the proximity of a large, stationary gravity well near the outermost world of Rymm. The planets and moons in the system are continually pulled toward Zelos and the gravity well, although they have never left their orbits around Zelos. Travel within the system is extremely hazardous if the proper routes are not followed. (PG2)

Zelos II
this planet, the second world located in the Zelos System, is the homeworld of the Zelosians. It is a mountainous world with four moons. The Empire subjugated the planet in an effort to control the export of raw ores. In a marvel of subversion, it kept the Zelosians ignorant of the exact destination of the ores. The Zelosians were completely unaware that they were working to support the Imperial war machine. When the Battle of Endor signalled the end of the Empire, the Zelosians assumed the Empire had abandoned its base on Zelos II. However, the Imperials remained behind, hidden in the Valley of Umbra. The New Republic tried to infiltrate the base and eradicate the Imperial presence on Zelos II, which had been tipped off by a group of mercenaries. Unfortunately, the Republic's Red Team Five was nearly wiped out in the raid. The average day on Zelos II lasts 20 standard hours, and its year lasts 300 local days. It was rumored that the dead could come back to life if they made it to the Bare Forest, as several animated corpses were seen at different times of the year in several cities. It was later discovered that a species of wormlike creatures were scavenging on the dead bodies. Their feeding released chemicals that affected the nervous system of the bodies they consumed. In higher-order creatures like humans, which had been dead just a short while, this often fired the central nervous system into action. The result was that, for a short time, the muscles of the dead body were contracted automatically, sometimes resulting in enough motion to imitate walking. (PG2, TFNR)

Zelosian
an near-human race native to the planet Zelos II. The Zelosians guard a wonderful secret about their heritage: they are descended from an intelligent race of plants, and have a liquid form of green chlorophyll for blood. They cannot consume sguar, for it acts like alcohol in their bloodstream. The eyes of every Zelosian are emerald green, and are incapable of seeing in the dark. This night-blindness has created a species-wide fear of the dark, and remain hidden indoors after the sun goes down. The average Zelosian was quite superstitious, with a variety of beliefs which would seem ridiculous to the modern being. (PG2, AE)

Zelosian's Chine
located deep in the heart of the Great Zelosi Sea, the Chine is a sharp-spired ridge of coralline mountains that is surrounded by deadly reefs. Legends persist of a vast treasure hidden in caves at the base of the Chine, but have never fully been proved true. The legend claims that a merchant prince was traveling in his starship during one of the Sepulchral Night eclipses. The ship was dragged down by Zelos' gravity well, and forced to crash in the ocean. It landed near the Chine, with most of its base revealed during the low tide. The prince was unaware of the unusual tides on Zelos II, and began directing his men to bury the treasure in the caves at the mountain's base. The tide began to roll in, swiftly engulfing the prince, his men, and his treasure. Melks supposedly consumed the prince and his crew, and the treasure was never seen again. The problem with finding the treasure is that the only way to get to the caves is to travel at the time of the lowest tides on Zelos II. These only occur during the Day of the Sepulchral Night, and every native Zelosian hides indoors on this day. Thus, explorers must have a good idea of where to go before the Day occurs. When fully exposed by low tides, the Chine resembles the skeletal remains of a huge, spiny-backed beast. (TFNR)

Zeltronian Spiced Wine
Dengar had drunk too much of this the night before Jabba died, and so he missed the trip to the Pit of Carkoon. (DESB)

Zend, Salla
an old flame of Han Solo's, Salla Zend worked long and hard as a tech on a corporate transport to save enough credits to float a loan from a Hutt to buy her own ship. She started out as a normal merchant aboard the Rimrunner, but somehow ended up as a sumggler. That's how she met Han Solo and Shug Ninx. They made a number of runs together, smuggling spice to the Stenness System and trying to outdo each other on the Kessel Run. Then, during a routine solo run, Salla's hyperdrive conked out. She would have crashed into a neutron star if Solo hadn't saved her. However, her ship was lost. Note that Rebel Dawn indicates that Salla lost the Rimrunner after she attempted to beat Han during a Kessel Run. She attempted to microjump across the Maw, and fried her ship's systems upon re-entry. The experience left Salla deeply shaken, and she took Roa's advice and decided to settle down. She told everyone that she and Han were going to get married, and starting making plans. Solo didn't want to get married, and he left her on Nar Shaddaa. After that, she began working on her new ship, the Starlight Intruder, with Shug's help. When Han showed up on Nar Shaddaa following the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn Salla was pulled into the New Republic's web. She helped Solo escaped Boba Fett, and was again left waiting to see if Han would ever call back. As fate would have it, Solo did come back. However, she and Shug Ninx left the spaceport after Han Solo destroyed one of their prized cruisers, and after Zasm Katth and Baddon Fass ransack the garage. (DE1, DESB, DE2, THG, RD)

Zenji Needles
these small, thin needles are used to decorate elaborate hairstyles. They are beautifully lacquered in a multitude of colors. Shada D'ukal used them in her hair, and had a small comlink signaller disguised as one. Shada also had several reinforced needles which could be thrown like knives in a fight. (SOP)

Zenobah
the second planet in the five-world Demophon System, Zenobah was destroyed when the system's primary star exploded as a supernova. (SN)

Zenomach
a huge boring device used by the Empire to drill for ore. (MMY)

Zenox Star Cluster
this area of the galaxy supported the Empire during the Galactic Civil War. (CSWEA)

Zenn
an infamous bounty hunter. (GMH)

Zent, Pettyr
this Imperial officer was in command of the garrison on Byblos, during the Galactic Civil War. (SWJ9)

Zerek
this is the twenty-sixth symbol in the Aurebesh script, and represents the Basic letter "z". (SWM)

Zereldspidar
this Snivvian was the last of the truly evil leaders who were born from a twin-male birth. The breaking of the Blood Code gave him his evil tendencies. Zereldspidar was eventually defeated by Old Republic forces. (GG12)

Zerm
this tropical planet was continually wracked by typhoons and hurricanes until Renn Volz reclimatized it with his Ionic Ring. This first test of the ship's abilities was a resounding success, but attracted the attention of Captain Bzorn and the Empire. (CSWEA)

Zero-Gee Hall
located aboard The Wheel, this gladiatorial arena pitted combatants against each other in an arena which resembled the deepest reaches of space. Gravity was turned off, as were the lights, to simulate deep space. (ND)

Zerot's Point
this rocky outcropping overlooked The Puddle, and served as base from which Tilossa the Gotal protected the oasis and its town. Three old laser batteries were placed on the Point. (HAS)

Zersium
an element used in the formation of dura-armor and durasteel. Strephan I'att and Daye Azur-Jamin discovered that zersium flecks, imbedded in the black body glove worn by stormtroopers, helped amplify the energy dissipation field they created for I'att Armaments. It also provided additional insulation and helped reduce thermal discomfort when the field absorbed a blaster bolt. (SWSB, TFE, CTD)

Zeta Five
this Cha'a drone ship was owned by Ssk Kahorr, and was used to ferry supplies to, and ores from, the mining colony on Goluud Minor. It was the first ship sent by Ssk Kahorr to Goluud Minor via the Goluud Corridor. Loaded with supplies for the colony, Zeta Five came through hyperspace too close to Primus Goluud. The unstable star's gravity pulled the ship in and destroyed it. (GAS)

Zeta Squadron
1) the stormtrooper squadron sent to locate R2-D2 and C-3PO at all costs on Tatooine. Davin Felth was a member of the squadron, which was under the command of Captain Terrik. Zeta squadron destroyed the Jawa sandcrawler which had collected the droids, and razed the Lars homestead when it couldn't find the droids there. The final futility for Zeta squadron came when it failed to halt the launch of the Millennium Falcon. The firefight which ensued provided a cover under which Felth executed Captain Terrik. (TME)
2) the stormtrooper squadron sent to recover Jix for Darth Vader. Jix killed all but one member in a barroom firefight, and managed to knock the last member unconscious. (SST)

Zeta Zero Nine
this frigid water world is located in the Wastes. Much of the landmass of the planet is in the form of treacherous islands, most of which are surrounded by unnavigable seas. The seas are dangerous because of three things: the intense tidal forces inflicted on the planet by its wide orbital path, icebergs, and extremely cold temperature of the water. An intense magnetic field limits the use of sensors near the planet, and no lifeforms have been discovered on it. The planet's day lasts 25 standard hours, and its year lasts 403 local days. Zeta Zero Nine was the site of Imperial Moff Jesco Comark's secret base, from which he developed the Death-Hunter cyborg assassin. (SWJ9)

Zethusian Plains
this area of the planet Kamori was devastated by a huge earthquake. The resulting tidal waves and destruction kiled hundreds of thousands of Kamorians and damaged several large cities. (SWAJ)

Zexx
a large, humanoid alien race from the planet Prazhi, in the Expansion Region, these creatures had pointed heads which are covered in scales. Long, curved tusks extend from their mouths. Their violent nature made them a perfect addition to a mercenary squad or a protective guard, and they were often found working for Hutt crimelords. (TOJ, TOJC)

ZG-35
this TIE FIghter intercepted Leia Organa and Hume over Phelarion. (CSWEA)

Zgorth'sth
this Mon Calamari served as a Commander in the Alliance's Intentions division, shortly before the Battle of Hoth. Zgorth'sth discovered the build-up of the Oplovis fleet, just before it was scheduled to attack Mantooine. (RASB, AIR)

ZH-25 Questor
a Starfeld starship design, the ZH-25 Questor followed on the success of the Z-10 Seeker. The initial design parameters for the ZH-25 were to eliminate the flaws in the original Z-10 design while reusing as much of the original design as possible. The ZH-25 added a pair of cargo pods to the main fuselage of the Z-10, doubling the amount of cargo it could transport. Weapons systems were also improved with the use of Taim & Bak pulse laser cannons, and shielding was upgraded with the use of a Sirplex P-12 generator. The Questor measured 22.4 meters in length, and required a pilot to operate. It could carry up to six passengers and 85 metric tons of cargo. (SS)

Zhaelor

Zicreex
this Subla Ransom medium cargo hauler was owned by the Gamorrean sow, Captain Ugmush. It was crewed by Ugmush, her husband, her brother, two other Gamorrean males, a human slave named Jos, and the former Jedi Knight Callista Ming. The name Zicreex was given by the ship's former owner. Captain Ugmush had planned to rename it the Ugmush, but never submitted the paperwork to the Bureau of Ships Services. It was docked in Bagsho, on Nim Drovis, when R2-D2 and C-3PO were stranded on the planet. Threepio posed as Igpek Droon in order to gain passage on the ship. (POT, SWJ14)

Zidth
this Mrissi science ship was actually a slave transport. It was first sighted over the Soco-Jarel Spaceport on Socorro, where it had been searching to the Asilyr Tribal Lands. The slavers had been hjoping to capture members of the Asilyr tribe to enslave, to be put to work in mining operations to help warn against tremors and cave-ins. The sudden disappearance of several starport guards and several Bharhulai tribesmen brought tensions between the tribes to a fevered pitch, until a team of freelance mercenaries managed to defeat the slavers and drive them away. (BSS)

Zier
this Hutt was a member of the Besadii kajidic, and was Durga's chief rival for power in the aftermath of Aruk's assassination. In an effort to "keep friends close and enemies closer," Durga made Zier one of his chief lieutenants, but this didn't stop Zier from questioning Durga's motives in dealing with Black Sun. He told Durga that Besadii would not fund the investigation of Aruk's death, and continued draining of Besadii funds would result in retribution against Durga. (RD)

Zira
the bounty hunter Zardra used this alias in an elaborate scheme to collect on a bounty. Zira agreed to marry the man who was wanted in several systems, and was being pursued by a variety of hunters. The man was attacked at their wedding, and killed off several other hunters in an effort to protect his new wife, Zira. When they were safe, Zardra slapped on a pair of binders and took the man into custody. (GG10)

Zirlig
this Ishi Tib assassin was a member of the Antar Band, working for Ujin Voli during the Galactic Civil War. A meticulous perfectionist, Zirlig joined the Antar Band some twenty years before the Battle of Hoth. He appears to be an average Ishi Tib, until one was on the wrong side of one of his operations. Then, Zirlig was revealed as a cold-blooded, highly successful killer. Zirlig was well aware of the Antar Band's rivalry with Sprax and Black Sun, and longed for the day when Ujin Voli would order him to assassinate the Nalroni crimelord. (SSR)

Zirtran Brothers
the original owners of the huge space barge that forms the heart of Zirtran's Anchor. (SWAJ)

Zirtran's Anchor
a space station once located in the Besberra System which suddenly disappeared. It later reappeared, empty and abandoned, near the Phosphura Belt Nebula. The Anchor is actually a series of old starship hulls welded together to form modular living areas. It is currently owned and operated by the Geelans living there, who purchased it from the Zirtran Brothers and began expanding it. It is protected by a Golan battle station. It is divided into four primary regions, designated Alpha, Beta, Delta, and Epsilon. Alpha region is the core of the station, and houses most of its starship docks. Bounty hunters live side-by-side with the Phosphura Belt Pirates and the mysterious Kalai race. (SWAJ)

Zisian

Zissu, Stuart
this young man was twelve years old when his father, Trux, was installed as Governor of the planet Delantine. He was infamous among the pilots of the Alliance, especially after the Battle of Yavin, when he won most of their salaries in a space poker game. (SA1)

Zissu, Trux
this man was chosen by the Alliance to act as the Governor of the planet Delantine, shortly after the Battle of Yavin. His other goal in traveling to Delantine was to contact the rebel cell on Romm and gather their support. However, upon reaching Delantine, Trux and his son, Stuart, were captured by an Imperial warship. Trux allowed himself to be taken so that Stuart could escape. (SA1)

Zithrom's Disease
this kidney disorder affected many elderly human males. It was kept in check through the use of Clondex, although Clondex didn't cure the disease. (TFE)

Zjek
this alien was a member of the Karazak Slavers Cooperative team sent to capture Janissa Locrin. He led the team which eventually caught her. (GG11)

Zlarb
Zlarb learned at an early age that a life of crime was an easier life than legitimate work because he didn't have to put in 70 hours a shift but got paid fairly well. He started working as an enforcer for Ploovo 2-for-1, eventually becoming one of Ploovo's bodyguards. However, he soon saw that Pllovo's lack of ambition meant that the bodyguard work was a dead end. He broke off with Ploovo, and went into the slave trade. As a human, Zlarb found it easy to work as a slaver, but he was eventually caught by Magg, who was working for the Corporate Sector Authority. Zlarb figured his career - and probably his life - was over, but Magg proposed a partnership. At first, Zlarb had no reason to trust Magg, but their relationship grew. Magg's inside information was coupled with the underhanded slave dealings the Authority was involvde with meant Zlarb had steady work. It was Zlarb who was hired by Magg and the Authority to obtain a number of Lurian individuals for illegal genetic experiments. Zlarb hired Han Solo to meet him on Lur and transport the captured aliens. Han had a rule that he never transported slaves, but the odds were against him until Bollux set off the Millennium Falcon's fire extinguishing systems, temporarily disarming Zlarb and his thugs. This allowed Han and Chewie to subdue the thugs and free the Lurians, who eventually killed Zlarb and returned to their planet. Zlarb was a practitioner of the Malkite poisoning techniques, and was found to be carrying one of their tool kits after his death. (HSR, CSA)

ZNT-8
this was the codename of an Alliance agent who witnessed the destruction of the base on Dankayo. Agent ZNT-8's logs helped an Alliance team of operatives recover the datapacks stolen by the Elusive. (SH)

Zo'Tannath
this woman was a bounty hunter who preferred to wear Ubese battle armor. She often worked on retainer for Pok Nar-Ten, but usually made her services available to the highest bidder. Few beings ever saw her real face without dying, a mystique she cultivated to add to her prowess. (PSG)

Zoalin
this man was the New Republic Commander of the Adamantine when that ship accompanied the Borealis on Leia Organa-Solo's mission to the Chorios Systems to meet with Seti Ashgad. He eventually succumbed to the Death Seed virus, like the rest of his crew. (POT)

Zobberan Hound
this large, vicious animal was used by many beings as a guard creature. Although dim-witted and not very bright, zobberan hounds were capable of learning simple commands and actions. The average hound measured three meters in length, and resembled a large, eight-legged insect. (IA)

Zochaeb
this ancient Hutt negotiated with the Nimbanese Krovalis clan, during their attempt to regain status as a data holding family under the Bureau of Ships and Services. The Krovalis offered Zochaeb and the Hutts free access to the information in their data holding in return for their freedom. Zochaeb agreed, and petitioned the BoSS to allow Nimbanese clans to reclaim their membership. The Hutts' persuasion eventually got the Krovalis clan its own data holding, and the Hutts received a wealth of free information about the galaxy. (GG12)

Zoll-Uvena
this was the name of the Vangaard Pathfinder owned and operated by Yurdak Fav. It was armed with a turret-mounted laser cannon. (AIR)

Zollarcos, Treta

She was the apprentice of Jedi Master Dominus, and was later captured by Exar Kun's Dark Side spells. She was turned to the Dark Side, and killed Dominis during the Sith War. (TSW)

Zonama
this was the Ferroan name of the material part of the planet Zonama Sekot. The name 'Zonama' referred to the physical make-up of the planet, as compared to the 'Sekot,' or living part of the planet. (RP)

Zonaman
this was the name used to describe the collective group of Ferroan and Langhesi colonists who settled the planet Zonama Sekot. (RP)

Zonama Sekot
this planet was located in the Gardaji Rift, at the edge of the Tingel Arm, some 30 years before the Battle of Yavin. Zonama Sekot was just over 11,000 kilometers in diameter, and because of its proximity to three stars, a special three-pointed compass was developed by the original settlers. Old Republic records of some 200 years earlier indicate the system was nothing more than proto-materials, but many believe this was just a mix-up in the Republic's databases. It orbited a yellow star which was gravitationally bound to a red giant and a white dwarf, creating a unique triple-star system. The two other stars created a spectacular pinwheel of light in the planet's sky. Despite this unusual arrangement, the system was hard to find, being surrounded by the gases of the Gardaji Rift. The natives of the planet worked hard to keep their planet's location a secret, and visitors were accepted only by invitation. Zonama Sekot was unusually strong with the Force, and had been settled by several groups over the years, and the people of the planet were known for their incredibly fast starships. The planet was covered with an incredibly dense jungle which seemed to move and adjust to the planet's position. Zonama Sekot was settled som sixty years before the Battle of Naboo by two peoples, a group of Ferroans and a group of Langhesi. The original Magister of the planet placed the Ferroans upland, and the Langhesi in the lowlands, in order to maintain peace and use their skills to the planet's advantage. The name of the planet is really two words in Ferroan: Zonama, indicating the physical world; and Sekot, representing the living world. The planet was, in essence, alive, with the Sekot controlling everything from weather to growth and death. Shortly after the Battle of Naboo, the planet was attacked twice. The first time, the planet succeeded in repelling a group of Far Outsiders with the help of the Jedi Knight Vergere. However, great portions of the southern hemisphere were damaged, and were still healing a year later. The second time, Wilhuff Tarkin tried to take control of the planet, hoping to present it and its wondous factories to Chancellor Palpatine. The natives managed to hold off Tarkin's small force. Unknown to everyone, under the guidance of the Sekot, the Ferroans and Langhesi had built huge hyperdrives into the planet's crust, and simply took the entire planet into hyperspace to avoid Tarkin's fleet. The planet was never seen again. (RP)

Zonder
this man was part of the hunting party arranged by Jameson and Lajar Weqill. Unfortunately, Zonder was killed by a pack of crazed draagax. (COG)

Zone Control
this weapons manufacturer produced the Viper grenade launcher and other after-market add-ons for blaster weapons. They also produced security scanners. (CFG, ROE)

Zone Supplies, Limited
this manufacturer produced a variety of pressure plate trip mechanisms for the Empire. (CFG)

Zone 19
this area of Farlax Sector is located on the edge of the Koornacht Cluster, nestled between the Cluster and the Core. It separates the planets Wakiza and Doornik-319. (SOL)

Zone 90 East
this area of Farlax Sector it located near Doornik-319. Leia Organa-Solo sent a number of X-Wing, B-Wing, and E-Wing squadrons there to cover for losses suffered during the Fifth Battle Group's unsuccessful blockade of the planet. (SOL)

Zoneball
a Corellian sport which found a following at the various Imperial academies, zoneball involved two teams trying to place a ball into their opponent's goal. It was played in a low-gravity chamber, and the goals were often several meters above the ground. Junior leagues would use lower goals. (IJ, MBF)

Zones of Territory C2
this collection of terrains and climates was located on the planet OM813. Students of the Galactic Outdoor Survival School had to pass through each and every section of this area in order to graduate from the survivalist course offered by Barosa Warren. In addition to the various jungle, desert, aquatic, flatland, and mountainous terrains contained within C2, there were multiple types of individual terrains as well. There were heavy-gravity mountains, ammonia seas, glaciers, swamplands, and even a zero-gravity chamber. (AIR)

Zoomball
this sport was popular among the Galacians, especially the Hill People. (MOC)

Zorad, Kiros
this native of Arda-2 was under the control of Mag Doum, to whom he owed a great deal of money. Doum ordered Kiros to control Leia Organa while she was on the planet trying to resolve the puzzle of the T-6 diodem. Kiros and his son, Zon, tried to contain Leia at the Qualo's palace, but were forced to hide her in the Colla-Di caves after Luke Skywalker tried to rescue her. After Leia and Zon escaped from the kdak and Luke rescued them, Kiros decided to fight back against Doum. He exposed the criminal in front of the merchants and executives of Tun Wala, but was abducted by Imperial forces who had descended on the planet. Kiros was killed trying to attack Darth Vader. (CSWEA)

Zorad, Zon
Kiros Zorad's son, Zon accompanied Leia Organa into the Colla-Di caverns, after she had been captured on Arda-2. They were attacked by a kdak while inside the caverns, but they managed to squeeze into a small passage and escape. Zon was an excellent pilot, and took Cova's place when the Tun Walans fought back against the Empire. He flew an X-Wing against the Imperial fleet, but took severe damage trying to rescue his father. He then crashed his damaged ship into Darth Vader's Star Destroyer, sacrificing himself to drive off the fleet. (CSWEA)

Zorba Express
Zorba the Hutt's ancient, bell-shaped starship. It is in frequent need of repairs. (ZHR)

Zorba the Hutt
Zorba is Jabba the Hutt's father, a huge Hutt with stringy white hair and a white beard. He keeps his hair braided, in order to keep it from falling into his face. Just as ruthless and conniving as Jabba, Zorba was imprisoned on Kip for illegally mining gemstones when Jabba was killed on Tatooine. When Zorba was set free by a group of pirates who attacked Kip, he returned to Tatooine, hoping to join his son's empire. When he found that Jabba had been killed by Princess Leia, he immediately sought her out for revenge. On this path, he won Cloud City from Lando Calrissian in a rigged sabacc match. He then tried to deal the Jedi Prince Ken for Princess Leia, who was being held by Trioculus. Leia and Ken escaped, but Zorba had Trioculus entombed in carbonite. After capturing Leia on Hologram Fun World, Zorba tried to take her to the Great Pit of Carkoon, on Tatooine, to feed her to the Sarlacc. He was intercepted by the Grand Moffs, who unfroze Trioculus, captured Leia, and then threw Zorba into the Sarlacc Pit. Fortunately for Zorba, the Sarlacc spit him out. (ZHR, MMY, QE)

Zorm, Dasar
this man was considered the biggest racketeer on the planet Namore, during the height of the New Order. It was rumored that he was on the payroll of Imperial Prefect Gerom, but nothing was ever proven. (HR)

Zorn, Duan
this man was a corporate drone who worked for the Kazellis Corporation. When the corporation was nationalized by the Empire, Zorn stole the demostration freighter Longrunner and fled Kathol Sector, hoping to make a living as a freetrader. When he failed to pay his starport fees on Nigel III, Zorn was arrested on two counts: the original theft of the Longrunner, and his failure to make his payments. (SS)

Zorneth
this Ithorian is somewhat of a rogue, for he created a plot to take control of the galaxy. He wears a form of Ithorian battle armor, and protects himself with a group of guard droids; this show of force is yet another example of his roguish behavior. Zorneth is an expert in the fields of animal husbandry and botany, and was a contemporary associate of Klorr Vilia. When Vilia believed that he had created the universal herb, he invited to Zorneth to taste it. Zorneth declined, because he was a vegetarian and Vilia had seasoned meat with the new herb, savorium. Vilia then consumed the first taste, and was affected by the bliss-inducing properties of the herb. Zorneth took Vilia into his care, and eventually sorted through enough of Vilia's notes to deduce how savorium was propogated. Zorneth then realized that the affects of savorium would create a mindless workforce that could be exploited by the evil powers in the galaxy. He took Vilia into hiding, and began dosing warring peoples to test the strength of the herb. The results were astounding, and Zorneth tried to keep it secret. A small sample was stolen from Vilia's lab, and a group of Smilers was created. Zorneth moved to protect them, creating a Caretaker Virus to cause droids to protect Smilers around them. It was about five years after the discovery of savorium that Zorneth realized he could use it to subjugate the meat-eating species of the galaxy, paving the way for the peaceful vegetarians to control the stars. He began growing large amounts of savorium aboard his herd ship, and jealously protected it. At this time, he employed C-3PO as a translator and R2-D2 as a worker. The droids helped Zorneth defeat Dictator-Forever Craw, who had kidnapped Vilia in an attempt to steal the secret of savorium. However, Craw's forces pursued Zorneth's fleeing herd ship. This caused several of Zorneth's droids, including PDA6, to activate the self-destruct programs Zorneth created for use if capture was imminent. Zorneth pursued Vilia into the savorium grove as his ship's defenses destroyed the grove. Both Vilia and Zorneth were consumed in the explosion. (DRO)

Zossi Belt
this asteroid belt is located between Jun and Weken, the first and second worlds of the Faarlsun System. (WBC)

Zothip
a Cavrilhu pirate captain from whom Niles Ferrier stole a number of patrol ships. Ferrier sold the ships to Grand Admiral Thrawn, and Zothip vowed to get revenge on Ferrier. Zothip was born on the planet Bestine, but settled his operation in the Amorris System. Zithip got his chance when Moff Disra offered him a supply of clones from Imperial storehouses in return for the production of a supply of Preybird-class starfighters. Zothip agreed to the deal, and used his clones to augment his pirate ranks. Using flash imprinting to give the clones the necessary characteristics, Zothip was able to send out a large force of pirates in a relatively short time. When the Cavrilhu tried to intercept a New Republic convoy at Iphigin, however, Luke Skywalker discovered the clones on one of the raiding ships. He went in search of the clones, infiltrating Zothip's base in the Kauron asteroid belt. It was at this time that Major Tierce, acting outside of Disra's approval, cut off the supply of clones in order to shore up Imperial defenses. Zothip agreed to continue working with Disra, and was in charge of the small fleet that tried to intercept Admiral Pellaeon at Pesitiin. The short battle resulted in the loss of one of Zothip's Kaloth-class battle cruisers, and Zothip travelled to Bastion to obtain compensation for the loss. Unfortunately for him, Karoly D'ulin was trying to tail Han Solo and Lando Calrissian when she stumbled upon the pirates. She followed them to Moff Disra's apartments, where Zothip demanded twenty million credits from Disra. Disra declined, and Zothip and his men tried to attack. Major Tierce managed to stop several of the pirates, and Karoly took out several more. Zothip tried to kill Disra, but Karoly buried a knife in his back and split his spine. (DFR, DFRSB, SOP, VOF)

Zoul
this was the fourth of seven seasons experienced on the planet Guiteica. (AE)

Zoul Lavor Xariv Lar
this legendary Bitthaevrian warrior was a Major in the Guiteica Militia, and was best-known for his decades-long feud with Major Quaal Stavi Giniras. The pair fought each other more than 400 times, each time inflicting heavy damage to the other. However, both warriors were back challenging each other as soon as they healed. Over fifty years' time, Lar had defeated Giniras 212 victories to 211. Only the fact that Giniras died of old age stopped the rivalry. In the end, Lar took one of his own elbow quill and imbedded it in Giniras' dematoil, which he buried with Giniras in the hills of s'Korth'an. (AIR)

Zoul Minchov Dwaeer
this Bitthaevrian female was rumored to be married to Quaal Tavier Catharius. (AIR)

Zr-390
Narmox navigation computer used on the Z-95 Headhunter. (TIE)

Zr-41
Sirplex shield generator used on the B-Wing. (XW)

Zraii
this Verpine was a member of the support team for Wedge Antilles' Rogue Squadron. He was from the asteroid Roche G42. He was in charge of keeping Rogue Squadron's X-Wings in tip-top shape, and he worked hard to keep from tinkering with the ships. His Verpine mentality often got the best of him, though, and small modifications were always showing up. As luck would have it, Zraii's modifications often improved the Rogues' performance. (XWN)

Zratha
this New Republic Navy Lieutenant was one of Etahn A'baht's chief aides during the Black Fleet Crisis. (TT)

Zronta Grazer
a beast native to the planet Pii 3. (SWAJ)

ZRX-29
this is a model of airspeeder popular on Corellia. Inspector Sassich bought a red one when she was named chief of the Corellian Security Force. (IJ)

Zsajhira
the berries of this plant were edible, and were often mascerated and cooked into a sauce which complimented all sorts of poultry, especially uln bird. The zsajhira was native to the planet Socorro, where it thrived near underground water reserves. Perhaps the best-known use of the zsajhira berry was in the fermentation of Socorroan raava. (SWJ12, BSS)

Zsinj
a pudgy, balding man with a large gray moustache, Zsinj was a native of the planet Fondor. As an Imperial warlord who rose to power in the wake of the Battle of Endor, Zsinj controlled the Quelii sector. He served the Empire as Captain of the Victory-class Star Destroyer Iron Fist before the Battle of Endor destroyed the Empire. Zsinj decided to become a rogue, and fled Imperial service to carve out his own empire. In time, Zsinj proclaimed himself a Warlord and commanded one of the more potent forces opposing the New Republic. After several years, Zsinj managed to obtain possession of a Super-class Star Destroyer, which he renamed Iron Fist in honor of his first command. He began raiding New Republic supply convoys, and was a thorn in the New Republic's side. It was discovered that he was not in league with Ysanne Isard and her bid to control the Empire. In fact, Zsinj often tried to thwart her activities. It was during this time that Zsinj began wearing the all-white uniform of a Grand Admiral, even though he had never held the position in Imperial service, nor was he officially aligned with the Empire. A devious man and conniving man who held a great deal of emphasis on appearances, Zsinj often would drink non-alcoholic beverages with his subordinates, feigning inebriation to see how his people would react.. Han Solo agreed to take a fleet and search out Zsinj in an effort to bring the warlord down and end his reign of terror. Zsinj remained one step ahead of the Republic's forces for several years before they managed to destroy the Razor's Kiss, a second Super-class destroyer being built at Kuat Drive Yards. Zsinj used the parts recovered from the Razor's Kiss to form the Second Death, and used the mock-up during the Battle of Selaggis. Zsinj was nearly defeated at Vahaba before fleeing to Selaggis, where Solo nearly destroyed him. In a bold move, he fled the battle behind a screen formed by Orbital Nightcloak satellites, then detonated the Second Death in order to fool Solo and the Republic into believing that the Iron Fist was gone. Zsinj himself fled the battle in a shuttle, completing the illusion. He then went into hiding at Rancor Base, on Dathomir, where he began planning his next assault. At Dathomir, Zsinj tried to force the New Republic into action by setting up an orbital nightcloak to freeze the planet and kill its inhabitants, but the Republic's forces were able to defeat the nightcloak and destroy the Iron Fist. Zsinj, who was on board the ship when it was destroyed, was killed. (CPL, WG, IF, SOC)

Zubindi Ebsuk
this Kubaz chef worked for Beldorion, during the Hutt's early years on Nam Chorios. Zubindi was adept at genetically and hormonally manipulating insects, forcing them to grow many times larger than their normal size. This provided the Hutt with a ready supply of large, fleshy insects for appetizers or full meals. It was Zubindi who discovered how to grow drochs to larger sizes, and this discovery led to the emergence of Dzym as a power on Nam Chorios. Zubindi died soon after, when Dzym understood the power he wielded and used the Kubaz as a search of life energy. (POT)

Zuckuss
a Gand bounty hunter employed by Darth Vader to find the Millennium Falcon. He descended from a long line of successful findsmen, and was one of the few young findsmen who left Gand to find work in the galaxy. He had a uncanny knack for finding his quarry, which he attributed to his adherence to elaborate and arcance rituals. Zuckuss joined the Bounty Hunters Guild shortly after the Battle of Yavin, and was partnered with Bossk on several training missions. They failed to recover Nil Posondum from Boba Fett, then failed to intercept Fett when he tried to join the Guild. Zuckuss was also involved in the acquisition of Oph Nar Dinnid from the Shell Hutts, another mission that resulted in failure. It was during this time that Zuckuss was also working directly for Cradossk, who hoped to eliminate his son Bossk before the younger Trandoshan could kill him. However, Zuckuss was also working for Bossk, and double-crossed Cradossk after returning from Circumtore. Several years after, Zuckuss had earned enough credits to purchase a heavily-modified starship known as the Mist Hunter, built by a consortium of Gands he led. He was hired by Jabba the Hutt, and was eventually paired with 4-LOM on many bounty missions. During one such mission, a female acquisition struggled to escape, and pulled off the mask Zuckuss wore to keep in the ammonia atmosphere he breathed. The reflexive breaths of oxygen he inhaled severely burned his lungs, and left Zuckuss disabled. Thus, he and 4-LOM began accepting Hunts on the side, trying to obtain enough credits to pay of new lungs. For this reason, Zuckuss and 4-LOM brought down Imperial Governor Nardix for the Alliance. This placed tem on the Empire's Most Wanted list, but Jabba retained them anyway. Jabba sent the two to Darth Vader as unofficial emissaries to the Empire, and they entered the Hoth System as the Battle of Hoth was concluding. The pair disabled the transport ship Bright Hope, in hopes of appeasing the Empire. After accepting the Hunt, they attempted to capture the survivors on the Hope, to turn them into the Empire for their combined bounties. However, the Alliance personnel managed to turn the two hunters from Imperial service. Zuckuss worked with 4-LOM and Toryn Farr to rescue the crew of the Hope, and they fled to the Alliance rendezvous point beyond the galactic core. There, the Alliance healed Zuckuss' lungs while accepting the two hunters into their ranks. General Rieekan enlisted the two hunters in the rescue attempt on Han Solo. They worked with several other hunters to intercept Boba Fett on Gall, but failed to recover Solo's body. Zuckuss himself was captured and used as Fett's stand-in, during the delivery of Solo's frozen body to Jabba the Hutt. Fett dressed the Gand in Mandalorian armor, and put 4-LOM's inert form on a repulsorsled. When they emerged from Slave I, Jabba's minions attacked them, only to discover their true identity as Fett held them off. Zuckuss managed to recover 4-LOM's body and have the droid restored to action, but a memory wipe was requried in order to get it working again. The operation left 4-LOM without any of its previous programming, and their collaboration was effectively finished. They did work together once more, during the capture of Drawmas Sma'da, but only because 4-LOM needed someone to assist it in the capture. (ESB, EGC, CCG4, MTS, SE, SEC, TBH, MA, HM)

Zudii, Zalizar
this smuggler once ran afoul of the Bharulai tribe on Socorro. (BSS)

Zugga Challenge
named for Groff Zugga, this was once the Outer Rim Territories' hardest podracing course, and hosted an annual event on the pro circuit during the Old Republic. It was run on the Mon Gazza Speedway, with several additional twists and turns added. (RAC)

Zuggs
a bald, beady-eyed Imperial Commodore who pilots Trioculus' Imperial strike cruiser. (LCJ)

Zukonium
a material that can be vaporized and used as a destructive ray. Luke Skywalker and the Planetary Pioneers use a zukonium ray to deflect the moon that threatened to destroy the New Academy for Space Pilots. (MM)

Zukvir
this was the name of the Gand pilot in Requiem Squadron, under the command of Antar Roat. In reality, Zukvir was really Ooryl Qrygg. Roat, played by Wedge Antilles, explained the Gand's presence in an Imperial squadron as simple necessity. Requiem Squadron required the best TIE Defender pilots, and Zukvir had shown surprising aptitude and skill with the ship. (IR)

Zuliria
a planet. (AIR)

Zuliria Museum of Antiquities
this musuem, located on the planet Zuliria, was known for its collection of primitive and outdated weaponry. It the forefront of its collection was its display of bladed weapons and swords. (AIR)

Zulirian Swordmasters
this group of bladed weapon and sword collectors was founded on the planet Zuliria by Ther'das. Over time, the members found that they were quite gifted swordsbeings and combatants, and despite their original mission of being “dedicated to the further research and study of ancient melee weaponry and extinct orders of swordsbeings,” they began using their knowledge as vigilantes. (AIR)

Zuraco
this lesser-known manufacturer of medium transport cargo haulers produced ships which have a smooth, organic look to them. (SWJ8)

Zuraco Cargo Hauler
this 87.3-meter-long ship was known for its tough hull plating and superior sensor package. These craft required a crew of four, and could transport up to six passengers and 200 metric tons of cargo. Models produced during the New Order were unarmed, to help Zuraco gain more favor with the Empire. (PP)

Zureber
this fruit is used to create a bluish-colored syrup. It grows on a thorny bush that is native to many worlds throughout the galaxy. (IJ, IR)

Zurga Pass
these low foothills were located outside the city of Tamazall. (GG11)

Zut
a male phlog, mate of Dobah and father of Nahkee. (ECAR)

Zutton
this tortured Snivvian painter was known as Snaggletooth. He chose the profession of bounty hunting during the Galactic Civil War, hunting down the Thalassian slavers who decimated his people and killed his parents. His abilities attracted the attention of Jabba the Hutt, and Zutton performed a few jobs for the crimelord. Note that the Star Wars Customizable Card Game describes Zutton as an artist who was driven to live out the stories he creates. (GG12, CCG2)

Zuxu
a vicious, aquatic carnivore, the zuxu inhabited the lakes and rivers of the planbet Ganlihk. Zuxu were unusual in that they could breath on land or in the water, and their fins were actually webbed stumps which could be used like legs. Zuxu secreted a protective oil to keep their skin moist whenever they were out of the water. The mouth of a zuxu was long and pointed, and was filled with sharp teeth. Their ability to live out of the water for several hours gave the zuxu an advantage over other fish, in that it could hunt for food in an area which supported little aquatic life. (ND, COG)

Zwil
this Algarine cake-flavoring additive had a thick, cinnamon-vanilla scent. The Drovian race, following contact with the Old Republic, became somewhat addicted to zwil, and sucked it into their systems via small, spongy plugs set into the mucous membranes with which they breathe. (POT)

ZX-26
an Incom airspeeder often described as "more practical" than the ZRX-29. (IJ)

ZX1449F
this lot of bacta, contaminated by Ashern rebels on Thyferra, was discovered after it had made its way to Coruscant and infected almost two million Imperial subjects. Ysanne Isard, while ordering the lot destroyed, made sure much of it made it to the black market, hoping that some of it would find its way to the Alliance. The contaminate in the bacta was shown to have deadly effects on individuals suffering from blastonecrosis. (XWN)

Zygeria
this Outer Rim world is one of the Territories' slave capitals. (GG9)

Zygerian
this was a race known more for its legacy of slavery than anything else. The Zygerians made up the far-reaching Zygerian Slavers Guild, which provided a ready source of slaves as well as bounty-hunting services. (GG10)

Zygerian Slaver Syndicate
see Zygerian Slavers Guild (GG10)

Zygerian Slavers Guild
this formerly-secret guild went public after the Empire legalizde slavery under decree A-SL-4577.607.232. Membership in the guild is very disciplined, and must pay yearly dues in order to be allowed to take slaves. Each permit is issued for the capture of slaves in a given area of space. The Guild also branched out into bounty hunting, primarily as a means to obtain slaves. However, the Guild recognized no laws, and often resorted to outright banditry to further its own needs. (GG9, GG10)

Zygerrians
a group who specialized in slave trade. Han Solo and Chewbacca once single-handedly attacked one of their slave transports and managed to free the slaves and drive off the Zygerrians. They were so disgusted with the Zygerrians for transporting slaves, that they turned the ship over to the freed slaves, cargo and all. (HTTE, SWSB)

Zyggurats
a terrorist group working the outer edges of the galaxy that reached its height during the Clone Wars, but was suppressed by the Empire. (DE1)

Zygian
an alien race. (TME)

Zygian Savings and Loan
this banking institution was headquartered on Treylon II, and had branch offices scattered throughout the Outer Rim. A branch was located in Mos Eisley, on Tatooine. (GG7)

Zyrth
a Massassi temple of fire. (DLS)

Zythmnr
the Massassi priest who ordered Exar Kun captures on Yavin 4. (DLS)

ZZ-4Z (ZeeZee)
Han's housecleaning droid on Nar Shaddaa, Zee-Zee was a JV-Z1/D gentlebeing droid manufactured by Serv-O-Droid. Zee-Zee was first placed in service to one of the Deans of the Spacers Academy. He was willed to the next 17 deans, and picked up quite a large body of embarrassing trivia on all of them. One of the Deans was Horace Wyrmyr, who didn't particularly like droids. Zee-Zee later provided Mako Spince with the codes to the physics lab from which he stole the antimatter he used to destroy the Academy's mascot moon. Wyrmyr, upon learning that Zee-Zee had leaked his secret codes, ordered the droid recycled. After he was expelled, Mako recovered Zee-Zee, but he eventually lost the droid to Han Solo in a sabacc game. Han didn't know what to do with the droid, but kept it as a way of keeping his small apartment clean. ZeeZee was a bit eccentric, and basically did exactly what Han told her to do. When he left Nar Shaddaa after winning the Millennium Falcon from Lando Calrissian, Han asked Zee-Zee to keep the place as it was when he left. The old droid did exactly that for many years, not allowing one, single, misplaced item to be returned to its proper place. Nothing was cleaned up, but was left as it was when Han left. (DE1, DESB, RD)

zZip Product Concepts Limited
this combine produces all manner of goods for sale to the wealthy of the galaxy, from personal tools to transportation. zZip was one of the original Contributing Sponsors of the Corporate Sector Authority. One of its more infamous commodities was gladiator walkers, used in many illegal sport battles across the galaxy. (CSA, SWJ8)

Zzzanmxl
this Zanzibar was the leader of the mercenary group which worked for Grappa the Hutt on Genon. He warned Grappa that the victims he provided to the Zanzibar as payment for their services were not coming fast enough, and that Grappa had better be careful. (When Kir Kanos traveled to Xo to rescue Mirith Sinn, Zzzanmxl and his troops managed to capture Kanos. He then returned to Genon with Kanos, and asked Grappa to mediate the transfer of the bounty on Kano's head with the Empire. (CE2)

Z004
a model of landspeeder. (GMS)

Z2
this was a model of stun baton produced by Merr-Sonn, and it was used by both the Empire and the New Republic Security Force. (HR, AIR)

Z2-9 Hover Vid-Cam
this was a type of droid developed for use by investigative reporters. It can a number of recording facilities, including holographic video and full-spectrum sound. (HR)

z23
this was the designation of Seinar Fleet Systems' heat dissipation unit, used to reduce the operating temperature of large repulsorcraft and AT-AT walkers. (CCG9)

Z3-NO Mark II
this series of landscaping droids was developed for sale to wealthy landowners who were too lazy or distracted to do their own landscaping. The Mark II eventually found its way into the usage of planetary terraformers. The Z3-NO has a round, turtle-shapped body supported by four legs. The front two legs have digging implements, while the rear two support the body when digging. (GF)

Z31
this Imperial hover-probe droid was assigned to Major Stipling during his search for a source of doonium. The droid was destroyed by Limna Yith, during Black Sun's attempt to retake possession of the Yen-2 mining operation. (SSR)

* Numerics *

these are the galactic coordinates of the planet Coruscant, as this planet is considered the center of the known galaxy. (WEG, RF)

0-1B
this seemingly innocent medical droid found work aboard the Dune Princess, helping those who were motion-sick during the tour. However, 0-1B was actually a lethal battle droid created by the Alliance sympathizer known as "Never Die." 0-1B's mission was to intercept the Shard of Alderaan computer slicing program before Begas Tok could auction it off to the wrong people. (LAA)

0033X
this was a type of nitrocellulose incendiary device produced by Greff-Timms Industrial some 4,000 before the Galactic Civil War. (TOJC)

011-733-800-022
Galactic Registry Standard entry for Gamorreans. (COJ)

02021020 this was the cell in which Mirax Terrik was held, in the Imperical governor's mansion on Suarbi 7/5, under the control of Leonia Tavira. (IJ)

035
this model of SoroSuub blaster pistol had a long, thick stock and was heavier than most other blasters. (GMH)

04-7
this was a model of Novaldex power converters used on most X-Wings built after the Battle of Endor. (WS)

07034 this was the model number of a type of underwater processing plant developed by Rendeel Industries for its own uses. This medium-sized plant was made up of several modules designed to withstand the intense pressures of deep-sea operations. (HAS)

079
this was the designation of the Z-95 Headhunter Corran Horn used when he left the Jedi praxeum on Yavin 4 and was picked up by the Errant Venture. (IJ)

0797-Petothel
this was a code phrase Gara Petothel had installed in the computer systems of the Implacable, which allowed her to gain access to virtually any room on the ship. When the Implacable was severely damaged by the New Republic over Ession, she used it to gain access to Apwar Trigit's quarters and escape the Implacable by using Trigit's personal escape pod. (WS)

08129083
this New Republic Intelligence datafile was created to maintain information on Ebrihim's droid, Q9-X2. (CTD)

1-H
the designation of Ubrikkian’s heavy Imperial-class repulsortank. Measuring 20.5 meters in length, the 1-H had the toughest armor and heaviest weaponry of all the repulsortanks. The 1-H required a crew of five, and was armed with a Mark 4e/S heavy laser cannon and a medium blaster cannon. (SWJ9)

1-L
the designation of Ubrikkian’s light Imperial-class repulsortank. Measuring 20.5 meters in length, the 1-L had the least armor and lightest weaponry of all the repulsortanks. The 1-L required a crew of two, and was armed with a medium blaster cannon. It was the fastest of the repulsortanks, and was really nothing more than an armored landspeeder. (SWJ9)

1-M
the designation of Ubrikkian’s medium Imperial-class repulsortank. Measuring 20.5 meters in length, the 1-M was considered the “middle of the road” in terms of armor and weaponry. Thus, it was the least popular of all the repulsortanks, for it didn’t fill a military niche. The 1-M required a crew of three, and was armed with a medium laser cannon and a heavy repeating blaster. (SWJ9)

1.4 FD P-Tower
one of Atgar's inexpensive anti-vehicle weapons. The Alliance used a number of these to help guard Echo Base on Hoth. They hoped that shear numbers of the readily-available implements would help defend the base. (RPG)

1B6/Green
this was an Imperial Bavos-II space platform located in Darpa Sector during the Galactic Civil War. It was positioned near the Ringali Nebula and the border with Bormea Sector, where it protected both sectors and monitored illegal traffic out of Starforge Station. (FOP)

1D
Corellian Engineering Corporation gun-mounting servo-turrets. (EGV)

1e-XE
this MD-3 medical droid was one of two taken from Jabba the Hutt's palace by Dengar, following the crimelord's death on Tatooine. Along with SHΣ1-B, 1e-XE were useful in bringing Boba Fett back to life after the bounty hunter escaped from the Sarlacc's belly. 1e-XE was a white-banded droid with a very minimalist outlook. It never spoke in more than two- or three-word phrases, and often simply used a single word to express its current state of mind. When Fett was nearly healed, following the attempt by Kuat of Kuat to eliminate him, the droids were left behind as the bounty hunters fled the planet. (MA)

10-Code
this is a spacer code which uses pairs of numbers beginning with the number 10 for different common words or phrases. It was probably developed after the Empire began craking down on spacers and smugglers. (TFE)

10-T
Kuat Drive Yards' monorail train. It was propelled via the use of advanced superconductor technology. (GG9)

10-96
this is a 10-code which predates the creation of the official code language, and is rooted in the Old Corellian language. It actually has two meanings: an imbalanced individual, or a ke'dem. (TFE)

100 this is a rifle-sized model of SonoMax riot control sound weapon. (CSA)

100-GU
this was a low-powered antigravity unit used to power landspeeders. The average speeder required four such units to remain afloat. (POT)

1000 this was the model number of Ziko's standard handheld macrobinoculars. (ROE)

100,000
this Sil'Lume asteroid housed a large facility on which the independent prospectors and miners of the Sil'Lume Asteroid Belt could spend the night. Most considered it a flophouse, until they were forced to spend a night on the barren surface of an asteroid. (JH)

1009-JuleX
this was the name of a backup battery system produced by Taim & Bak. (HAS)

1010
1) this was a model of personal combat armor produced by Krail Armory. The Model 1010 suit is unique in that it is coated with photo-reactive crystals that bend and reflect the ambient colors of the wearer's immediate surroundings, making the wearer appear to blend into their environment. The 1010 suit is also covered by reflec plating, which absorbs the energy produced by sensors. The 1010 suit was deemed illegal for individual use on many planets. (KO)
2) this was a variety of cargo restraint netting manufactured by SoroSuub. (PSG)

1020/A this was the model number of Ziko's handheld macrobinocular set, which was augmented with a long-rance audio pickup unit. (ROE)

1023
Davin Felth's serial number as an Imperial stormtrooper on Tatooine. (TME)

1023.1
this TriNebulon News report documented Grand Admiral Thrawn's attack on the planet Ukio. It reports that the locals feared the Empire had unleashed the X'Cal, and that their planet was doomed. (TTSB)

1033
this deep-space anomaly, located near Carconth, was designated by the New Republic. (TT)

1047
a member of Davin Felth's Zeta squadron, this stormtrooper shot Het Nkik. (TME)

105th Stormtrooper Platoon
this Imperial unit was assigned to Starlyte Station, supporting liaison officer Arissa Fawn. They were neither the best nor the brightest of the Empire's soldiers, but they were unswervingly loyal. They called themselves "The Emperor's Irregulars," and were led by Commander Brezzic Marr. Their unit symbol showed arcing lightning passing across the Imperial symbol. (WSV)

109238.291
this New Republic Intelligence datafile contained information on the planets involved with the Human League crisis in the Corellian System and the break-up of the Starbuster Plot. (CTD)

11-S
this model of Aavman Extravagance space yacht measured 44 meters in length. It was equipped with three large engines that helped it achieve greater speeds than most luxury yachts. It required a pilot anc co-pilot to fly, and up to two gunners if the yacht was equipped with a weapons package. Many of these yachts were armed with a pair of laser cannons, so that the owners could protect their investment. (CRO)

11-17
a small, treaded droid used for mining and excavation, he has a top-mounted laser and side-mounted saws for cutting through various materials. 11-17 helps Unit Zed's group of droids destroy Grozbok. (DRO)

11P
this is the model number of Industrial Automaton's armored droid torso. (DW)

111
this was the access override code used by Edda Gast, at the Binring Biomedical facility on Saffalore. (SOC)

1125
this was the model number of Ziko's headstrap macrobinocular set. It was secured to the user's head by a lightweight harness, and allowed the user to use their hands for other activities. Controls mounted on the side could easily be adjusted with a light touch. (ROE)

1138

this New Republic tracsheet was maintained on the Rodian salver Malak. (GG11)

119.541.901/RP
this datafile, maintained by the New Republic Intelligence agency, contained information on the Raptor program established by the Imperial Warlord Zsinj. (CTD)

12
a series of labor droids. (TJP)

12 South Jedi Lane
the address of Ken's dome house in the Lost City of the Jedi. (LCJ)

12-4C-41
this droid worked on Cloud City as part of Lando Calrissian's automated support structure. 12-4C-41 served as a traffic controller. This droid was one of the few that survived EV-9D9's near-destruction of Cloud City, for she had dismembered a number of them during her rampage. 12-4C-41 managed to discover EV-9D9's data trail out of Cloud City, and spent the next few years tracking her down. He found her in Jabba the Hutt's palace, and quickly incapacitated her with four blaster shots. He then removed her abherrent third optic sensor and her pain-simulator button, depriving EV-9D9 of the sensations of death. He called it "balancing the equation," reminding her that she had diabled many of the 12-series droids on Cloud City. He freed all of EV-9D9's tortured droids, and together they slowly dismantled her until she no longer functioned. (TJP)

13.568.9018
this New Republic datafile contained information gathered by the Intelligence agency on the Corellian system. It was reviewed and modified after the discovery of planetary repulsors in the inner five worlds. (CTD)

13th Imperial Diplomatic Conclave
this meeting of planetary leaders who supported the New Order was held on Phelarion, and was hosted by Lady Tarkin. It was disrupted when Leia Organa, posing as the megonite miner Lerna, threw a stimufrost drink in the face of Shea Hublin. (CSWEA)

13X
one of Teradoc's Victory-class Star Destroyers, the 13X was under the command of Vice Admiral Pellaeon. When Admiral Daala executed Teradoc and the other warlords, the 13X was placed under the command of Colonel Cronus, who took as his command ship. The 13X led Daala's fleet of Victory-class ships on a galaxy-wide rampage before rejoining her fleet at the assault on Yavin 4. During the battle, a New Republic Corellian gunship, grievously wounded in battle, rammed the 13X and destroyed it. (DS)

132nd Forward Division
this branch of the Alliance's armed forces was stationed in Atrivis Sector during the Galactic Civil War. (MTSE)

133rd Imperial Fighter Group

13398247
this was supposedly Lieutenant Grallant's operating number. (TFE)

14th Roving Line
this small Alliance fleet was under the command of Captain Qarl during the Galactic Civil War. Its mission was to harass Imperial starships traveling along the border between the Inner and Outer Rim Territories. (ROE)

15-0-3-11
the Chokan Imperial port authority code used by Isolder at the Imperial scrap yard on Dathomir. (CPL)

151
the New Republic's databases contained no political or social information about this galactic sector. (SOL)

15,000
this was the number of credits offered by the Empire to any bounty hunter that captured Alliance ships and/or personnel fleeing the planet Hoth following the Battle of Hoth. (TBH)

150,000
this is the number of credits Darth Vader offered for the capture of either Han Solo or Leia Organa, following the Battle of Hoth. (TBH)

1550-LEX
this was the model number of a luxury space yacht designed and built by SoroSuub during the New Order. Measuring 30.4 meters in length, the ship could transport a pilot and co-pilot along with up to six passengers. It could carry up to 25 metric tons of cargo, and had stores enough for two months of travel. The 1550-LEX was equipped with a Class-1 hyperdrive, and was available with a number of weapons configurations for personal protection. The yacht had two decks, with the lower housing the engineering systems and cargo hold while the upper deck was configured for luxury accommodations and the cockpit. (SWJ13)

16AA889 Starfield Road
the residence at thiis address was actually an Alliance safehouse. It was owned by Tanass and Renia Brila. (HAS)

16th Escort Force
this small Imperial fleet was part of Commodore Soleric's command, and was assigned the specific mission of escorting merchant and corporate vessels through Ado Sector's Induparan Crown Worlds during the height of the Galactic Civil War. It was undermanned and short on resources, facts that were revealed when the Free Lance began raiding convoys in the sector. (PP)

16th Fighter Squadron known as Blue Flight, this E-Wing squadron was assigned to the Fifth Battle Group's blockade of Doornik-319. (SOL)

16th Tactical Reconnaissance Group
this flight of New Republic ferret and prowler ships was formed during the Black Fleet Crisis. Placed under the command of Colonel Mauit'ta, it was formed to further scout the Koornacht Cluster after the loss of several prowler ships at the hands of Yevethan starships. (TT)

this starfighter pilot training protocol encourages teamwork and cooperation by giving all points scored by each pilot to his wingman. (WS)

181st Imperial Fighter Group
this was the TIE Fighter squadron made famous by Soontir Fel during the early years of the New Republic. It was originally a full Wing, but was downsized shortly after the Battle of Yavin. The 181st served during the Battle of Endor, and fled after Captain Pellaeon ordered the retreat of the Imperial forces after the death of Emperor Palaptine. It was believed that this group was assigned to Warlord Zsinj's fleet, although the exact reasons weren't discovered until Admiral Rogriss revealed that the actual 181st was still an Imperial unit. Zsinj himself had created a duplicate 181st, with Tetran Cowall acting as Soontir Fel, in the hopes of drawing Rogue Squadron into a trap. (WS, IF, SOC, CCG11)

this starship fleet formation is often used by the New Republic when the fleet is outnumbered and outgunned. (TNR)

2-CLG
this was a model of cargo label generator produced by MerenData. The 2-CLG was targeted for use by independent spacers, and could produce machine-readable labels for the crates and boxes used to ship various cargoes. (PSG)

2-E
the small, green E-series droid C-3PO and R2-D2 meet on Kalarba. He, along with his droid companions Q-E and U-E, used to run the local nursery but were ordered by Mister Vuldo to build illegal blasters. After U-E was destroyed by Vuldo, Q-E and 2-E got C-3PO, R2-D2, and Nak to help them expose Vuldo's scheme. (DRO)

2-ROB
this medical droid was assigned to the crew of Ki-Adi-Mundi's Old Republic starship, during his search for Ephant Mon and his daughter, Sylvn. Her databanks were programmed with medical information on over twelve million species, but her overall programming was a prototype and, therefore, not fully tested. (PTR)

2-ZH
this Industrial Automaton surgical droid was often used in military prisons. It was similar in every respect to the 2-1B series, except for its green coloration and its decidedly military application. (JASB, SWJ13)

2-1B (Two-Onebee)
designation of a series of humanoid medical droids built by Geentech. (The Movie Trilogy Sourcebook says the 2-1B series was built by Industrial Automaton.) They are simply-constructed droids with incredible perception and talent, having performed flawlessly for decades during the last years of the Old Republic through the era of the New Republic. They can also be modified to perform precise technical procedures as well. A certain 2-1B droid in the service of Lord Cuvir was part of the inspection team that went to Wor Tandell. When Tiree attacked and killed Cuvir, 2-1B decided to return with Tiree and join the Alliance. 2-1B was eventually assigned to the Alliance's Echo Base on Hoth, and served as the base's primary medical droid. It was 2-1B, with assistance from FX-7, that treated Luke Skywalker after he was assaulted by the Wampe ice creature. Following the evacuation of Echo Base after the Battle of Hoth, 2-1B was on the Bright Hope when it was disabled by the combined fire of the Mist Hunter and an Imperial-class Star Destroyer. 2-1B helped treat the wounded aboar the ship before being rescued by Zuckuss and 4-LOM. The 2-1B droid that helped Luke recover from exposure to the harsh environment of Hoth was portrayed by Russel Horton for the The Empire Strikes Back Radio Drama on National Public Radio. (ESB, ESBR, GDV, SWSB, MTS)

2-124
this Uulshos Justice Droid was one of several assassin droids programmed for use by the Empire. 2-124 was captured by agents of the Alliance, and his memory banks were probed to determine the nature of its programming. Before the droid could be disassembled, 2-124 escaped, killing more than 20 Alliance soldiers. These actions were not prohibited to 2-124, since its original assassin programs were never wiped by the Alliance. 2-124 then disappeared, coming out only to kill selected members of the Alliance. After the Battle of Endor, 2-124 disappeared again, although it is believed that the droid became intelligent enough to reprogram itself to target New Republic personnel. (WBC)

2JTJ
this silver, personal navigation droid was given to Tahl by Jedi Master Yoda, after Tahl's eyesight was lost in a struggle with the Melida. The droid was given as a gift, to help Tahl adjust to life without sight. She quickly found the droid to be extremely annoying and utterly uncaring about its job. Known as TooJay, the droid continually called Tahl "sir" despite the fact that she was female, and tried to correct her every move. TooJay was given a female personality, in order to help Tahl feel more at ease with the droid. This nice touch was often overcome by TooJay's nagging behavior. It was soon discovered that Xanatos had placed a recording and monitoring device within 2JTJ's plating, and used the device to monitor the Jedi's actions during his attempts to steal the Healing Crystals of Fire and a cache of vertex. Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi arranged to have 2J record a false conversation, in an effort to lure Xanatos to them. The plan nearly succeeded, but Xanatos managed to escape. (UP, CT)

2LC/Blue
this Imperial Bavos-I defense platform was located near Esseles during the height of the Galactic Civil War. While providing the defensive capabilities necessary to protect Esseles and its system, 2LC/Blue suffered from the lack of storage that plagued the Bavos-I platform. Thus, it was highly dependent on regular supply convoys. (FOP)

2PO
this series of protocol droids preceeded the 3PO series. Melnea Arnthout had a 2PO with her on Tatooine. It was stolen, but later returned, by the Jawas. (GG7)

27th Denarian Fleet
this Old Republic Navy fleet was one of the first to be overhauled under the auspices of the New Order. Palpatine ordered some 250 Victory-class Star Destroyers decommissioned to make way for the new Imperial-class Star Destroyers. The Victories were stripped of weaponry and sold at auction to raise money for the Imperial war machine. The Corporate Sector Authority won the property rights to a majority of the Victories, which they re-outfitted and placed at the forefront of their own fleet. (CSA)

27th Hour Social Club located in Margath's on Elshandruu Pica, this is the place to visit on the planet. It attracts beings from all walks of life, from successful businesspeople to used-droid salesmen. A minimum of 150 beings populate the club 27 hours a day - which is amazing given that Elshandruu Pica's day only lasts 26 hours, thus the club's name. Live music is always performed there. One of the most popular bands to play the club is Deeply Religious, although they often perform in disguise. (GG9)

3D-4X
1) this silver-plated administrative droid was owned by Hekis Durumm Perdo Kolokk Baldikarr Thun. When IG-88 arrived on Mechis III to set up its base, it signalled all droids to eliminate organic lifeforms immediately. When 3D-4X delivered its master's tea and production data, it also delivered a pair of blaster bolts to the man's head. IG-88 then used the droid, which had access to Thun's digitized signature, to monitor any external details that might come up. (TBH)
2) this was a series of administrative droids used during the early decades of the New Republic. (HT)

3DC/Green
this deep-space emergency repair station was operated by the Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. To hide the station's true nature, it was registered with the Bureau of Ship Services as a "civilian volunteer rescue station." It was a Rendili StarDrive Type I platform. (HAS)

3DO-series Droid
this ancient series of protocol and service automatons was produced by Duwani Mechanical Products some 4,000 prior to the Battle of Yavin. (TOJC)

3DVO
this small, spherical droid was designed on Jazbina to be a reporter. Much of its body was dedicated to a huge holocam recorder, and the rest was used to house a small repulsor engine which allowed 3DVO to float around. Three smaller recording devices surrounded the large central camera, and a communications array poked from the upper part of its body. It was assigned by Prepredenko to record Luke Skywalker's efforts to rescue his daughter, Syayna. Unknown to 3DVO, Prepredenko installed a small dart launcher in place of one of its sensors. After Luke used 3DVO's repulsors to avoid being eaten by a tikulini worm, he found Syayna and her resistance cell. Prepredenkpo activated the dart launcher, shooting Luke with a tranquilizer to incapacitate him while soldiers captured the rebels. 3DVO got a measure of revenge when he reported Darth Vader's arrival on Jazbina to Prepredenko. 3DVO told the ruler that Vader wanted Luke dead, instead of alive, hoping that Vader would kill Prepredenko for disoberying his orders. The plan worked, but 3DVO felt a twinge of remorse. The droid agreed to help Prepredenko get a message to Syayna, but the transmission was discovered by the Imperials. Stormtroopers arrived and shot Prepredenko and 3DVO, but not before the droid displayed the executions on public viewscreens. (VQ)

4-axial Stabilizer
this device provides multi-dimensional stability to a starship’s hyperdrive motivator. (OS)

4-D
this automated construct was used by the bounty hunter Mala to move about. 4-D had two multi-jointed legs and four articulated arms, and its spherical head contained a farily sophisticated brain. This allowed 4-D to be somewhat independent of Mala, allowing her to focus her concentration elsewhere. 4-D was also armed with several blaster and melee weapons, and would defend Mala to the death. 4-D was forced to sacrifice itself in order to save Mala, when she discovered that Luke Skywalker had destroyed the first Death Star. Darth Vader had hunted down all the beings who knew of Luke's deeds, and Mala tried to escape. She and 4-D had to jump for their lives, and although they went down firing, 4-D was crushed upon impact. Mala barely survived, with the assistance of another of her droids, B-6. (VQ)

4-LB
this large, square labor droid ran a power station in Mos Eisley. 4-LB lived on the old Lank settlement, and confused Adar Tallon with Bels Lank. Thus, he was approached by the bounty hunter IG-72 during the hunt for Tallon. 4-LB provided information on Lank's whereabouts, thinking that IG-72 was describing him. IG-72 then disintegrated the labor droid. (TM)

4-LOM
a rogue droid bounty hunter conscripted by Darth Vader to find the Millennium Falcon, it had an insect-like head and humanoid body. 4-LOM was a late-model Industrial Automaton protocol droid which had served as an interpreter on the Kuari Princess. He was equipped with a TranLang III communications module so that he could interface between the ship's guests and its computer. Because both 4-LOM and the ship's computer knew the exact locations of the passengers' valuables, they began simulating the "perfect theft." However, both of them soon began to discover how to alter the other's programming, and a series of thefts began to be reported aboard the Princess. One of the first such thefts was that of the Ankarres Sapphire, stolen from Dom Pricina. 4-LOM initially took the stone to protect it from Dom Pricina’s careless handling of the stone. However, 4-LOM realized that most humans were careless as Dom Pricina had been, and taking the stone opened up to programming to 4-LOM. The continued interaction between 4-LOM and the ship's computer enhanced and widened the droid's own sentience, and 4-LOM began to grow bored of the simple thefts. 4-LOM left the ship when it made port, and began working as an information broker and master thief. He worked for Jabba the Hutt for a while, and the Hutt eventually made 4-LOM a deal it couldn't refuse: in return for a complete refit that would allow the droid to perform violent actions, 4-LOM would agree to become one of Jabba's personal bounty hunters. Jabba paired 4-LOM with Zuckuss, and the two became Jabba's favorite hunters. 4-LOM became obsessed with learning how to use intuition, and studied Zuckuss during the Gand’s mediations. 4-LOM even thought about trying to understand the Force. When Vader put out the bounty on Han Solo's head, Jabba sent the two to the Executor as unofficial emissaries to the Empire. Note that, although The Essential Guide to Characters indicates Jabba sent them, Tales of the Bounty Hunters tells that the two sought out Vader after Zuckuss discovered the bounty during a meditative trance. The droid and the Gand never got involed with the Hunt for Solo, as they discovered that the Alliance would help them more than the Empire. They eventually joined the Alliance, after saving the crew of the Bright Hope near Hoth. While waiting for Zuckuss' lungs to heal, 4-LOM had a form of prescient insight, and thought he saw himself working with a group of Jedi trainees. Once Zuckuss' lungs healed, the pair left to intercept Boba Fett and recover Solo. Even though Boba Fett was the one to capture Solo, the other bounty hunters tracked Fett to try and bargain with him. Led by Bossk, 4-LOM and the others intercepted Fett at Gaul. Fett managed to escape, but 4-LOM was disabled and left in the hold of Slave I. When 4-LOM reactivated itself, it signaled the others to give them Fett's location. However, Fett discovered the transmission and shot 4-LOM through the head. Fett then used the inert droid as a stand-in for Han Solo's frozen form, and he used Zuckuss for a stand-in of himself. Fett sent them out of Slave I on Tatooine, to draw off any of Jabba's minions who would have stolen Solo's body and claimed the bounty themselves. Zuckuss later managed to get 4-LOM repaired, but the memory wipe required to reactivate its droid brain left 4-LOM without any semblance of its former personality. The droid no longer felt that it needed a partner, although it chose to work with Zuckuss during the capture of Drawmas Sma'da because it needed a partner to carry out the capture. Note that the Essential Guide to Characters indicates that Jabba retained the services of 4-LOM and Zuckuss until his own death, despite the destruction of the droid in Shadows of the Empire. (ESB, EGC, SE, SEC, TBH, HM)

4-S
this was one of the chrome-plated droids used by Captain Swagg, during his attempt to steal the relics from the Gungan Sacred Place. 4-S, along with 3-S and 5-S, was assigned by Swagg to destroy the arena in Lake Umberbool, but the attempt was thwarted by Jar Jar Binks and Major Fassa. 4-S was destroyed in the attempt, although the Gungans managed to recover 4-S's head and use it against Swagg. the medical droid used by Captain Ixsthmus aboard the starship Long Shot. (SWCP)

4B-X
this research droid was part of the Alliance's droid pool at the Massassi Base on Yavin 4, shortly before the Battle of Yavin. After the destruction of the first Death Star, 4B-X was assigned to the crew that escorted Trux Zissu to Delantine. 4B-X was a short, barrel-shaped automaton with a large datascreen for a head and a feminine personality. 4B-X was the latest model of her series, and was designed to operate in nearly any environment. Instead of feet, 4B-X had four long legs that ended with tractor-wheels which could be retracted if necessary. (SA1)

Star Wars Chronology

This chronology is taken from all Lucasfilm-licensed Star Wars material. It is primarily based on the dating scheme proposed by Timothy Zahn in Dark Force Rising, in which all dates prior to the birth of the New Order and Senator Palpatine's reign as Imperial Emperor are denoted as PE (pre-Empire), while all dates starting with the inception of Palpatine's New Order are denoted as NE (New Empire). Note that his conflicts with the SW-RPG time pattern of 5 days per week, 7 weeks per month, 10 months per year, plus three holidays and three festival weeks. This yields a 368-day year, the normal year on the planet Coruscant. This is the basis for the standard timepart. The conflict arises when you look at the dating of the Alderaan Ascendency Contention, which was in the eleventh month 70 PE. Other than this, Zahn's dating is acceptable.

The "Year BSW4" column is meant to try and map the NE/PE dating to the timeline displayed at the Star Wars Official web site (www.starwars.com) in the Mos Espa section. It bases the time of the event on the timeframe of the events of Star Wars: A New Hope. If something happens "10 years before the Battle of Yavin," it is noted as -10.

The “MM/DD” column us meant to try and map the NE/PE dating to the timeline displayed in the West End Games Galaxywide News Nets dating system introduced in Star Wars Adventure Journal #3. This system, based on the SW-RPG system described above, dates the uprising on Ralltiir, the dissolution of the Imperial Senate, and the destruction of Alderaan during the third month of the 35th year.

For more information on the chronology of Star Wars, there are several other fan sites I highly recommend:

- Christopher McElroy's TimeTales
- JMM's Star War Chronology
- The Star Wars Literature Compendium

NOTE: there are three “official” timelines which have been published. The first was in A Guide to the Star Wars Universe, by Bill Slaviscek. Many of its entries have since been revised. The second was in Star Wars Chronicles, and focused mainly on movie events. Certain entries have since been revised. The latest was in The Star Wars Encyclopedia, by Steve Sansweet. I have used this reference, along with facts noted in Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace to generate this version of the chronology.

DFR	66 PE		4/10	The Duinuogwuin-Gotal Conflict is finally resolved
DFR	65 PE		7/7	The Old Republic approves the Outbound Flight Project

Source	Year PE	Year BSW4	MM/DD	Event
	65 PE		12/7	Thrawn is assigned to eliminate the Outbound Flight Project
DFR	64 PE		4/1	Outbound Flight Project terminated after the loss of all Jedi involved
				Note that Dark Force Rising cites this date explicitly, while The Last Command indicates it occurs during the Clone Wars. Heir to the Empire claims it happens before the Clone Wars, as does Vision of the Future..
DFR	62 PE		8/21	Jorus C'baoth is named Ambassador-at-Large to the Xappyh Sector
				Note that Dark Force Rising cites this date explicitly, despite the fact that C'baoth is lost in 64 PE as part of the Outbound Flight Project.
DOD		-74		Full-scale civil war breaks out between the Melida and the Daan, the culmination of centuries of petty battles
IG1		-72		Mace Windu is born
TPM		-72		Shmi Skywalker is born
RP		-65		Wilhuff Tarkin is born
RP		-64		Raith Sienar is born (there isn't much difference between his birthdate and that of Wilhuff Tarkin)
GSWU	42 PE	-57		Obi-Wan Kenobi is born
				The actual dating of this is from several sources, which indicate Obi-Wan is 25 years old at the time of the Battle of Naboo.
				The followers of H'kig flee Galand, prompting the formation of the H'kig religion
		-54		Ki-Adi-Mundi returns to Cerea after becoming a Jedi Knight, to free his village from the grip of Bin-Garda Zon and his gang of thieves
				Note that this date is the author's assumption.
IG1		-52		Jar Jar Binks is born on Naboo
	40 PE			Chewbacca leaves Kashyyyk to explore the galaxy
PTR		-49		Sylvn is born to Ki-Adi-Mundi and his honor-wife, Mawin
GSWU	30 PE	-48		Mon Mothma is born on Chandrila
TPM		-46		Queen Amidala is born on Naboo
IG1		-45		Veruna is elected King of Naboo
DR		-44		Obi-Wan Kenobi is apprenticed to Qui-Gon Jinn, after defeating Xanatos on Bandomeer
HP		-44		Obi-Wan Kenobi and Qui-Gon Jinn break up the Syndicat which was controlling Phindar
UP		-43		Obi-Wan Kenobi leaves the Jedi Order to help The Young on Melida/Daan, but returns to the Order after Qui-Gon Jinn helps him avoid a war on the planet.
DFR	29 PE			The Old Republic approves the creation of the Katana fleet
DFR	28 PE			The Katana fleet is lost after a hive virus infects the crew of the flagship Katana
SOC		-43		Edallia Monotheer is born on Coruscant
SWE		-41		Anakin Skywalker is born to Shmi Skywalker
				Note that this contradicts A Guide to the Star Wars Universe, which dates this at 55 BSW4, as well as Star Wars Chronicles, which dates this at 40 BSW4. However, Star Wars: Epsiode I – The Phantom Menace clearly states that Anakin is 9 years old at the time of the Trade Federation blockade of Naboo.
TPM		-38		Shmi and Anakin Skywalker are brought to Tatooine by Gardulla the Hutt, who loses them to Watto in a wager on the podraces
	25 PE			Anakin Skywalker joins the Jedi Knights
				Note that this date is inferred by many literary sources, it is obviously much later given the dating of Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace.
	20 PE			The Clone Wars begin
				Note that this date, along with the end of the Clone Wars below, is provided by many literary sources as well as Star Wars Chronicles, but is obviously much later given the dating of Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace.
				Randil Sal marries Tiion Solo
VOF				Jorj Car'das takes control of Booster Terrik's operation when Booster is imprisoned on Kessel by Hal Horn
	19 PE			Jedi Knights defeat the Mandalorian Shock Troopers
	17 PE			Emperor Palpatine and Darth Vader enslave the Noghri
				Note that this date is inferred by Dark Force Rising, although Palpatine cannot be Emperor yet, nor has Anakin Skywalker been turned to the Dark Side.
				Thrackan Sal-Solo is born on Corellia
		-35		The Clone Wars end
				Note that this date, along with the beginning of the Clone Wars above, is provided by many literary sources, but is obviously much later given the dating of Star Wars: Episode I – The Phantom Menace.
JQA		-34		Amidala is elected ruler of Theed
JQA		-33		Winama dies on Naboo
PTR		-33		Ki-Adi-Mundi is elected to the Jedi Council after breaking the schemes of Bron and Ephant Mon
				Anakin Skywalker activates C-3PO for the first time
E1A1		-32		Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi rescue Adi Gallia from Esseles, after she discovers the Trade Federation's plans to build droid starfighters
TPM		-32		Amidala is elected Queen of Naboo, after Veruna's corruption is exposed
IG1		-32		Jar Jar Binks is exiled from Otoh Gunga after a series of accidents
TPM		-32		The Trade Federation blockades the planet Naboo, but it is broken by the efforts of Anakin Skywalker
TPM		-32		The Battle of Naboo takes place, and Qui-Gon Jinn is killed in battle with Darth Maul
TPM		-32		Obi-Wan Kenobi defeats Darth Maul, and is promoted to Jedi Knight
TPM		-32		Senator Palpatine is elected Supreme Chancellor of the Republic
CTD	15 PE			Hortel Ossilege is born on Bakura

XWM	12 PE			Syal Antilles is born on Corellia
RP		-30		Vergere discovers the existence of the Far Outsiders on Zonama Sekot
	11 PE	-29		Han Solo is born and orphaned on Corellia
RP		-29		Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi travel to Zonama Sekot to rescue Vergere
GG6				The Church of Infinite Perception rises to power on Pergitor
RD	10 PE			Bria Tharen is born on Corellia
				Note that Rebel Dawn cites that Bria is one year younger than Han Solo, although is explicitly says she is 26 at the time of the Cloud City Sabacc Tournament.
TPS	9 PE			Han Solo is taken in by Garris Shrike
DTO		-25		Mongei Shai and the Yuuzhan Vong make first landing on Bimmiel, but Shai is killed by slashrats
DFR	7 PE			Second Bpfassh Dark Jedi Insurrection takes place in the Sluis Sector
				Note that this event is implicitly cited in Dark Force Rising, but may be a mistake in Zahn's chronology.
VOF				Jorj Car'das is commandeered by a Bpfasshi Dark Jedi, and survives the encounter after being healed by Yoda on Dagobah
				Note that this seems to correct the Dark Jedi insurrection which was detailed in Dark Force Rising.
GOF11	7 PE			Eyal Shah is born on Corellia
		-22		Star Wars: Episode II
		-20		Star Wars: Episode III
	2 PE			Tycho Celchu is born on Alderaan
				Tycho is noted as being several months older than Wedge in the X-Wing series of books and comics
	2 PE			Wedge Antilles is born on Corellia
GOF6		-20		Hoole joins the Empire as a scientist, and Project Starscream is launched
TPS				Dewlanna joins Garris Shrike and befriends Han Solo
	1 PE			Senator Palpatine begins his power play to institute the New Order
				Winter is born on Alderaan
	1 NE	-18		Palpatine names himself Emperor, and initiates the New Order
				This date is inferred from Timothy Zahn's work in Dark Force Rising, which uses a pre-Empire dating scheme to chronicle Jorus C'baoth's exploits.
		-18		Emperor Palpatine orders the extermination of all the Jedi Knights
		-18		Yoda goes into hiding on Dagobah
		-18		Luke and Leia Skywalker are born
VP		-18		Mara Jade is born
				This is the author's conjecture, based on Leia Organa Solo's statement in Vector Prime that Mara is her age, yet still wants to have children.
