TECHNOLOGY

After endless assassination attempts on al-Raj'a on Earth, the Shiat arrived on Mars ready for war. They met little resistance on landfall, but the planet's harsh environment is proving a more serious threat than persecution on Earth ever was. Newly-built mining outposts are promising, but a shortage of knowledgeable technicians after ill-considered purges cripples the Shiat's ability to maintain what they've built.

ENVIRONMENT

The Shiat live in Melas Chasma, deepest point of the 4000km-long Valles Marinaris rift. Qutb Alcazar, fortress of the faithful and home of al-Raj'a (peace be upon her) perches on the canyon rim, linked to worker habitats below via pressurized high-speed rail lines. Fractal hardwood inlays and trueglass domes grace al-Raj'a's inner chambers and the grand mosque; common habitats are plain white except for calligraphic inscriptions in sacred hues.

SOCIETY

Despite their best efforts, Shiat survival depends on orbital drops: al-Raja's weekly broadcast ensures continued supplies from believers on Earth. Water and fuel caravans from outposts help, but rationing is a constant test of faith. Prayers five times a day, isolation from infidel media, hallucinogenic rewards for the devout, and regular public executions of apostates keeps dissent in check.

Lunar mogul Samson Golde unexpectedly crash-lands 15km north of Qutb Alcazar.

Manna

Badly-needed supplies from Shiat on Earth rain into Melas Chasma.

Redline

Sacred Struggle

Parties unknown hijack al-Raj'a's broadcast, replacing it with agonized screams.

Shifting Sands

Supply caravans from outlying outposts start vanishing without a trace.

FACTIONS

Attendants

Residents of Qutb Alcazar, mostly well-connected wealthy donors.

Mountaineers

Syn Rashid's fanatically loyal soldiers and enforcers, mostly mercenary veterans.

Shirkers

Unacknowledged but permitted minority who believe al-Raj'a is a goddess in human form.

Stargazers

Former UN scientific colony, forcibly annexed by the Shiat soon after landfall.

Strivers

Miners and builders of remote outposts, regularly isolated for weeks at a stretch.

Wide-eyes

Secret sect who have lost their faith in al-Raj'a, and want to depose her.

LOCATIONS

Bay Five

Growing hangar bay and repair shop, made of welded-together cargo drop pods.

Broadcast Studio

Fortified production suite at the top of Qutb Alcazar's highest minaret.

Cairo Gardens

Pyramidal greenhouses on Melas Chasma's floor, 11km below the canyon rim.

Ibn Battutta Station

One of several outlying methane/ice mines, a week's hard travel from the Qutb.

Qutb Alcazar

Fortress, mosque, and home of al-Raj'a, on the northern edge of Melas Chasma.

Reactor One

Qutb Alcazar's nuclear reactor, the Shiat's sole source of electricity.

OBJECTS

⊕ armor-piercing, cyberthroat, nerve-linked, painful, sonar imaging

Trueglass

Dense polymer calibrated to only pass sacred wavelengths of light through.

⊕ expensive, filter, radiation shield, window

THREATS

Al-Raja's Companions

Servants, bodyguards, and consorts, all previously famous or influential on earth.
