Description

Similar in function to a shredder, the splitter fires a single projectile that breaks apart immediately after exiting the barrel. Each dart that forms a piece of this projectile contains a sophisticated sensor and guidance system. Rather than flying together in a group, each dart scans the target's armor for weaknesses and designates its own target. Upon contact the dart explodes, driving its hardened metal point into the target. A hollow chamber within the point can hold and deliver a single dose of a drug or poison.

A character using a splitter in the first range increment does not roll an attack as normal. The shot automatically inflicts damage and delivers its chemical dose (if any).
