MILLENNIUM'S END

The BlackEagle/BlackEagle

Bulletin

Issue 3, for July 2000

PDF VERSION

In 1992, Chameleon Eclectic Entertainments published the much acclaimed "BlackEagle/BlackEagle Operatives Kit", which included a 'corporate newsletter' for the company BlackEagle / BlackEagle (the company that player characters in Millennium's End work for). In 1994, they published a new copy of the 'BlackEagle Express', supplied with the "Millennium's End Overlay Accessory Kit" (which included a rather natty mechanical propelling pencil, which I still own <grin>).

As you probably know, Chameleon Eclectic folded earlier in 1999, and the website vanished without warning in January 2000, a rather unfortunate coincidence with the name of the game (Millennium's End). We are therefore unlikely to see another copy, new or otherwise, ever again.

With this in mind, ISG has resurrected the BE/BE Express in a new form, the BlackEagle Bulletin.

Marseilles BlackEagle Cell Wiped Out.

Marseilles BlackEagle Cell Wiped Out.

By Hal Dent, (Ops, Marseilles)

In a textbook attack on one of our clients two weeks ago, cell two, our close protection specialists, comprising Marc Dijon, Louis Carnier, Jacques Ferne, and Carl Schwartz, was completely destroyed, along with our client, Horst Liebermilch.

Currently, it is not known for certain who performed the attack, and the French Authorities are keeping at it. It is known that the weapons used were of modern military origin, and that the tactics used were of military derivation, including 40mm grenades, 7.62mm and 5.56mm assault weaponry and smoke grenades. More that this, we don't know, as eye-witnesses have been few and far between.

We're reeling from this, but trying to carry on as best we can.

More when we know it.

BAT III Goes Live

By Bryan Deliquois (L&P, Atlanta)

Following on from the announcement in issue 2 of the BlackEagle Bulletin, all offices and cells should now have their allocations of the BAT III system, which went live earlier last month. The manuals and SOP pamphlets that accompanied each unit should answer your questions. Over the next month, however, a team from L&P Atlanta will be visiting each office, to give a formal instruction session for each cell. Your SCL will have the schedule for the visits.

Marseilles Regional Roundup

By Jean Louis Tessier, (SCL, Marseilles)

Our employment position at the moment, is not helped by our recent losses, Cell 2, was entirely wiped out during a standard personal protection operation two weeks ago. Anyone who knew Cell 2 will greatly miss their cheerful manner in the office, their funerals will be held next week, and all are welcome. Tributes from BlackEagle offices around the world were commendable, and we thank you.

Investigations are still continuing, with the French Surete supporting us in finding the motives for the attack on the client, in the South of France. A motor convoy of 4 cars, two of which were carrying members of Cell 2, were ambushed in a small town not far from Marseilles, one was taken out by a 40mm HE grenade, and the second was eliminated while evading the ambushing team along a hill road, with what appears to have been an anti-tank missile, and a large amount of overkill. The client was killed in Marseilles, along with the remaining personal protection officers from another local security agency. Insiders from French intelligence tell us that among other suspects in this almost terrorist act include the IRA, and some Russian group, possibly the Mafia. The target was a collection of intel reports held by the client, destined for Western intelligence groups. If any BlackEagle personnel have any information on activities by these groups, could they please pass it on ASAP.

Our remaining cells are now stepping up security, around the office and elsewhere, all Cells are now undergoing more extensive personal defence and evasion training, and we are reviewing our policy on carrying personal arms when on non-official business, we have local support from French Police, who welcome the additional qualified personnel in the vicinity.

As said in our summary of the work Marseilles office handle in the Mediterranean and the South of France, this area is becoming a haven for organised crime, usually the higher level members living up their spoils in this Eden of Europe. Local police are under-funded and under-manned, with several recent incidents requiring BlackEagle on call Cells to assist in armed sieges, and so far one bank robbery, in which the Cell concerned came under heavy fire, while some of the local Gendarmerie turned tail. The S.W.A.T teams are under increased pressure, some being used on patrol in Marseilles seedier districts, which are becoming reminiscent of central Miami before the Red zone was recognised. All in all, Marseilles is becoming a more lawless capital to the Côte d'crime.

So far, from the replies to our advertisement, we have enough personnel on their way to supply at least a Cell and a half, thank you all for your support, and we hope to be bringing you news for a long time to come.

BlackEagle Berlin Cracks cold war case!

By Kurt Steiner (Ops, Berlin)

It's not often that we get cold war story in the office at Berlin, but when we do, it's a hell of a story. The shame of it, is that, until the court case is over and done with, we can't say that much about it.

What we CAN tell you is that, though out investigations, a major cold war criminal and terrorist is in custody, a family has been reunited, and the police are looking rather pleased with themselves.

More in a couple of months...

London office relocation complete!

By John Blake, (SCL, Ops, London)

Well, we've completed our move from Octower, to BlackEagle house, in the Docklands Enterprise zone in London's East End, and, believe me, what a pain in the arse it was, too.

Everything on the Q-T, to avoid the press (remember Last Year, and the Special Branch fiasco in Liverpool?), and tight enough to satisfy the Police, on the movement of so much sensitive and hazardous materials. UGH! Steve Patterson, the new head of the London L&P facility (well deserved promotion, Steve, so don't forget the little people, eh?!), handled this logistical migraine with his usual diligence and flair, so it went off pretty much as hoped.

Anyhow, the amended Office phone and data directory should now, I am (reliably?) informed, be with you, so there should be no problems with comms, now (sorry about last month!)

However. Steve, where's my cactus plant, Jack's First Edition Guns 'n' Ammo poster, and the Terminator 3 office poster?

Come to that, whereinthehell is my bleeding COFFEE PERCULATOR?!

Ed: Oh, dear... looks like John's missed his morning caffeine fix again (run away!)...

R & R

By Jack Mitchell (Admin, Paris)

Hi, again, sports freaks!

Welcome to the third edition of BEB SPORT, live (well, almost) and (semi) direct!

Cricket: The "bAshes" tour began on 5th May this year at the Blackheath Cricket Club.

Following a fifty-over a side days' play, the Australians found themselves in the rather unenviable position of having to swallow their pride, with a resounding loss.

Final result:

B/E London (First Innings) 145 for 7

B/E Sydney (First Innings) 131 for 11
B/E London (Second Innings) 109 for 6
B/E Sydney (Second Innings) 95 for 6

Rain stopped play, by the way.

Last heard, the challenge has been returned, so the bAshes is set for e re-match, next year, this time in Australia...

And that, as they say, is all she wrote, this time. See you next issue, when the calendar is rather fuller!

Culinary Combat

Jeremy is on vacation right now, but will be back for the next issue - Bon Appetite!

Comment

By Peter Gibbons, (Ops, New York).

Comment contains points of view that do not always reflect the 'corporate line'. Comment can be made anonymously, or not, as the contributor wishes. Either way, items in this section are made by members of staff, whether operational, or support, or even from the back-room areas. It's your shout. Make the most of it.

Why is it, when we get a good operation running, the lawyers (the other side's lawyers, that is) get wind of it, and slap a restraining order on us?

It's not enough that we run through hoops to satisfy Due Process, obey the laws of evidentiary procedure and preservation, and Miranarize all the bad guys, but we have to pay the sons o'***** thousands in legal fees as well?!

Come on, someone, get the lobbyists working for US this time, not the scumballs!

EDITOR'S NOTE:

This issue is somewhat shorter than usual, mostly due to the holiday season, and three extended operations that London, Miami, and Kyoto are undertaking.

The next issue should be back up to the regular length. Thanks for understanding!

President's Sitrep by Clifton BlackEagle

Again, our people have died during the course of their duties.

This time, it does NOT look like the WIJ have any involvement, as the tactics and weaponry do not match their usual M.O.; we will be keeping, however, close tabs on this. The funeral arrangements have been made, and, barring operational requirements, the families of Marc Dijon, Louis Carnier, Jacques Ferne, and Carl Schwartz, have expressed their wishes that any of you who knew, even in passing, the deceased, should attend. I have instructed SCLs to try, wherever possible, to allow this to happen. See page eight for more information on the funeral arrangements.

When an operative goes wrong...

We at BlackEagle/BlackEagle have never been adverse to going into legally questionable areas, to say the least. Some of our employees actually prefer a shady existence which, while something we may not encourage, we certainly condone.

When an employee crosses from a legal grey area into blackness, we bring our extensive legal abilities to bear in their defence. No questions asked. By the same token, when an employee commits criminal acts that target their fellow cell members, their client and this company we will spare no expense seeing that they pay the maximum penalty. You will note, by the way, that it states this in your contract with BlackEagle/BlackEagle.

I mention this because a certain individual in the Los Angeles field office decided to commit a number of criminal offences against this company, fellow cell mates and a number of clients.

For legal reasons, I cannot, at this time, name the individual, but somehow, I suspect that you already know how it is, the renowned BlackEagle/BlackEagle rumour mill being what it is. You will wish to know however, that working with the District Attorney's office and client's lawyers, we have amassed forty-three charges against the individual who is now looking a forty plus years jail time. The situation is that bad. This is the first time that charges have been brought against a BE/BE employee and our legal people will be sitting with the prosecution and not the defence.

So what is the moral of this tale? We will not be watching you or trying to entrap you, but you turn on us, we will plant your ass in a cell - If you are lucky -so fast, it'll make your head spin.

On to better news. The contract fill rate pushed past sixty percent for the last quarter making a twelve percent over the preceding quarter. To continue the trend we have three classes going through training and the first class date at the European Theatre Training Centre is fast approaching. Keep up your recruiting activities.

This may cause a controversy, but I have decided to allow a team from the news program "48 Hours" to accompany one of our cells on a operation. Obviously the client will have to approve, but this is publicity that costs way to much to buy. Any US-based cells want to volunteer, or do I have to pick?

Play it smart and stay safe.

Clifton BlackEagle

Notes from The Street

Editor's Note: James DiFalco (Ops, London), actually got his contribution in right on the deadline, so we can't really embarrass him this time, more's the pity. Of course, he does such a wonderful job himself, so with that, I'll let him put his feet (both of them) firmly in his mouth!

Ever wondered what happens when you're 'nicked' (translation for my international colleagues - arrested) in the good old UK??

Well if your answer to that is yes, please read on, and I'll tell you all about it - from first hand experience.

Our cell had just finished a small operation in a town in Essex, England called Harlow. A large pharmaceutical firm there had asked us to deal with an animal liberation group that they had heard was about to give them problems. As is tradition in our cell, to mark the successful end of the assignment, we went for a good old beer up, which we decided to do in Harlow (ed - in Essex, and home of the term 'Lager Lou' in the UK).

Anyway, without going into to much detail, there was a small disagreement between our group and some local Neanderthals, which culminated in a small disagreement outside of a club we had been drinking in, where I was forced to put Ugg (I think that was his name) down (and for my ex-special forces colleagues that means unconscious, not double-tapped).

Seconds later, the towns' entire contingent of constabulary was there, blues and twos going (UK slang for the sirens sounding and blue lights flashing - ed), helicopter flying over head (okay, I exaggerate) - all very exciting stuff.

I found myself thrown to the ground with four plods (UK slang for Police officers - ed) sitting on me and the cuffs going on, so, being a good boy, I did not resist arrest.

I was lifted up and marched to a nearby police car, which delivered me to the local police station (which is a mere 400 yards away), where I was steered towards the custody area.

This particular custody area is accessed through an 'airlock' type system, we go through a heavy steel door into a small corridor, with another heavy steel door at the end, the second steel door does not open until the first is shut.

On entering the custody area I was steered towards the custody sergeant, who stood behind a raised desk, computer terminal to one side. One of the arresting officers stood to one side of the desk and explained what had happened, and why I was there. 'Seen by CCTV to hit another male, who has been conveyed to hospital' (oops) 'We arrested this gentleman under section 3 of the public order act' (rough translation - hitting someone in public), 'may go for ABH' (actual bodily harm) 'depending on what state the other male is in.'

The sergeant turned to me, and explained that he was happy with the circumstances of my arrest (I wasn't, unsurprisingly), and that he would authorise my detention whilst enquiries etc, etc, were made.

The cuffs were removed (thankfully, because those quick cuffs hurt - especially when the friendly officer forgets to lock the self tightening mechanism), I was searched and various details were taken (name, DOB, address, have I ever tried to take my own life etc.) and fed into the terminal (this is where I kept my fingers crossed, and hoped like hell that that my fake IDs were up to scratch).

I was then informed of my right to a phone call and a solicitor (Ed - US: Lawyer) and the right to have a copy of the police code of conduct. I signed a few forms to say I understood what was going on, and the sergeant was happy (doesn't take much, really, does it?).

After the preliminary bits, I was told that I'd have to see the police doctor as (a) I'd been in a fight and (b) I'd been drinking (this man should be a detective). While I waited for the doctor, I was taken to my cell (my property stored elsewhere), a nice little room with a wooden bench and a stainless steel toilet (no toilet paper - O!).

I'd just start to drift off to sleep, despite my neighbour banging on his cell door with his head (bless him) when my cell door was opened, and a civilian detention officer showed me to the FME's (Forensic Medical Examiner, or Doctor) room. The doctor asked me a set of routine questions filling in another form - was I in good health before coming here, do I take drugs, how much have I drunk etc. After our cosy little chat the doctor tells the civilian employee (called 'matron' by his uniformed colleagues) that I'd be fit for interview in a couple of hours (I hadn't drunk that much), and I was taken back to my cell, issued a PVC coated mattress and a blanket, and was finally allowed to go to sleep.

06:30 in the morning I was woken up by a different PC who took me off to be interviewed. He was kind enough to explain what was going on, and to give me a cup of tea - giving my brain a chance to get in gear. The interview was taped, and consisted of numerous questions (open ones to get me talking, had I been in the mood) that were intended to get me to admit to the required points, that would support the charge of a section 3 public order offence. Having been shown a copy of the CCTV footage I told the truth - yep, I hit him, but no, he started it.

The officer appeared satisfied with the interview, completed a few more forms, getting me to sign a number of them and showed me back to the custody area.

After a few minutes he and the custody sergeant appeared (different sergeant as the shift changed at 06:00) and I was stood before the desk once again. I was cautioned again (actually for the first time, since the arresting officers forgot to caution me in their excitement) and was told that I was to be charged under section 3 of the public order act, and that I was duty bound to appear at the local magistrates the following Tuesday - failure to do so could lead to this that and the other (mostly involving warrants, probably 3 a.m. knocks, and a lot of aggro).

After this I was photographed, finger printed and DNA sampled. The forms I signed (yes even more forms) said, in typically British legalistic jargon, that it was okay for these to be taken, and that I had the right to apply for the destruction of my finger print image should I be found not guilty.

I then got my property back, after signing another form and shown out of the station.

I'm free!!! Until Tuesday....

Right, that's a little overview as to what you can expect if you're arrested. Remember that it'll differ slightly from station to station and from county to county, but not by too much.

Maybe my next contribution to the bulletin will be on time, but it depends on the British Judicial system really doesn't it!?

Ed: Firstly, we don't recommend that you use fake identification papers with the Police - it can lead to all manner of complications - none of them pleasant, if they fail examination. Let's hope (if only for Bulletin content) that he gets a fine, or at worst a conditional discharge, then!

News from L&P... by Todd Bell, L&P, Atlanta

Greetings from L&P!

With the rapid advancements in digital photography, we at L&P have seen a marked decrease in the requests for photo developing as operatives switch over to faster and more secure digital photography. To this end we are eliminating photo developing as a service of the L&P field offices. The regional L&P centres in Atlanta and London will continue to offer developing and with overnight mail turn around time should be less than 72 hours.

Obviously this service is only going to be of value for sensitive photos that cannot go through local developing. Maybe now is the time to take a look at our selection of digital cameras?

There has been many requests for the M4 SPOMOD kit as used by US (and other) Special Operations. Well, we at L&P have gone one step farther. The base component of the kit is the Knight Modular Weapons System. Not only are we stocking it for the M4, but we also have versions for the M16, H&K MP5 (sorry, it won't fit SD models!), H&K HK53, H&K HK33/93, H&K G3/HK91 and H&K G36. All of the attachment components from the SOPMOD are available as individual items to make it easier to get exactly what you need. Check with your L&P rep for a price list and list of non-SOPMOD components that work with the MWS.

We have reached agreements with the relative US agencies to allow non-US based operatives to purchase Third Generation technology night vision devices (sorry, but 4th and 5th generation are still on the Military Technology Transfer Restriction list!). A small mountain of paperwork is still required to be filled out, but for a Litton Ranger M995 starlight scope it has to be worth it.

Unfortunately, still restricted to domestic sales is the Raytheon PalmIR 250 thermal imaging device. About the size of a good quality Hi8 camcorder and weighing 1.2 kilograms, the unit possesses 320x240 pixel resolution and a battery life of four hours on a 6V rechargeable battery. The unit features a focus range of 8 feet to infinity and an operational person detection range of up to 2,400 feet depending on weather and terrain. Options include alternate lenses, extra batteries, power cord adapter, and VCR adapter. Prices dictate this item be special order only so if you are interested give us a call and have $12,495 ready.

We are now stocking Blade-Tech holsters. We have both Kydex and Concealex models available, but for the time being we are only stalking them for Glocks, SIG 226/228s and Colt 1911-pattern pistols. A wide range of pistols can be accommodated, but it will take at least two weeks to get it in from Washington.

RED ALERTS

BlackEagle/BlackEagle
Logistics and Procurement
Branch,
Data Support Section /
Travel Advisory Desk

Hello again, one and all.

We at L&P TSS/TAD have, as usual, been rather busy of late. In addition to the normal run of the mill fast work we perform (at highly short notice), we've had the renewed IRA terrorism, and a brand new crop of terrorists appearing, as if by black magic, across the globe.

Speaking of which...

News from around the World: As usual the British are having problems with the IRA and it's off shoots, Not that this is anything new, but with the real chance of a lasting peace in Northern Ireland, we had better take care. The London L&P staff are preparing a set of briefs for you covering the situation as it changes.

As you have all heard by now, there has been a series of bombings world wide, both here in the US, as well as all over Europe, and in the Middle East. The response to this spate of activity in the USA, has been to set up a watchdog group here in America, called Firewatch, with representatives from world wide counter terrorist units, along with various intel groups like the CIA and MI-6. BlackEagle has been asked to send three reps to the meetings because of our front line activities against the WIJ, and others. If you have any questions you wish asked please drop me a line here in Atlanta, and I will pass them on.

OK, new party animals to worry about;

Terrorist Advisory:

- Name: Masters of Disaster.
Alias: MoD, MD, along with too many individual Aliases to list.
Source: RCMP, FBI, MI-5, EuroTer, Interpol, and Firewatch.
Allies: We have absolutely no idea at this time.
External Aid: None that we can trace, but they do get paid quite a lot of money to do this sort of thing.
Targets: Central Government, The White House (you heard about President Gore's happy face, then?), Banks, Schools, Hospitals, Anywhere with a computer and Net Access.
M.O.: As I am not up to date with all the terminology, please bear with me. They hack and crack into a site and play, and/or change data held on the system, either for fun, or for profit.
Commentary: These people might at first glance seem fairly childish, and so they are, But they are children with loaded weapons, and the skill to use them in a very dangerous manner. Don't underestimate them because of their ages, because they are highly dangerous in their own way. For example, one team of Seattle Police SWAT Officers found that paint stripper is not conducive to a healthy skin, when they raided a suspected centre for these brats and, instead, found a rather untypical kid's booby trap waiting for them. They escaped it by the skin of their nomex assault suits.

If you are going into a case that might have something to do with these people, please be careful.

As you can see, they're not above attacking people pursuing them, in ways that can make it very difficult to live normally, for example, maxing out your credit cards, or even giving you a criminal record. If you want some idea what these people are capable of ask your office hacker.
