SETTING SUGGESTION

Written By: Spenser Starke

THE BLUE DEPTHS

Beneath the surface of the ocean, the people of Icarus found a new frontier to explore. With the lands of earth massively overpopulated, these new pioneers settled on the miles of open aquatic land below and built the bones of a new city- one where nature and humanity could cohabitate better than the earth above. Over thousands of years, some of their bodies adapted to this environment, evolving lungs that could process water as well as they could air, and webbed fingers and toes. This small but vital evolutionary change was the catalyst for the massive growth of Icarus, a thriving city that now reaches its tentacles wide across the ocean floor.

IMAGERY

Underwater domes, bubbles rising to the surface, sunlight fading into dark waters, schools of fish changing direction quickly, kelp forests, boots kicking up sand, mountains of coral

RESOURCES & TECHNOLOGIES

Oxygen filters, diving helmets, webbed gloves, underwater volcanoes, sulfur vents, open-water homes, fishing nets, electric barriers, submarine vehicles, underwater mining, turbine energy
